LOCAL COUNTY CANDIDATES POLL LARGE PRIMARY VOTE

FORESTRY EXPERT HOWELL ENTERTAINS BOYS LEAGUE

Yesterday afternoon at 3:30, a jolly crowd of 55 boys started on a hike to Mr. B. C. Howell's residence on Chestnut street. At 4:10 the boys arrived, and were gladly welcomed by Mr. Howell, who took them to his fine peach orchard, lined them up in single file, and presented each with a large juicy peach. Mr. Howell then took them to a grove in the rear of his property, and after they were quietly seated, he gave them a most interesting talk on trees.

After Mr. Howell had been given three hearty cheers by the boys, off they started in companies of five, for Fair Acres Farm, which they reached at five o'clock. Mr. Patrick had three boys waiting with three sacks of corn, for a corn roast. Each boy received one ear of corn, and with what remained in the bag, Mr. Welch gave them a corn scramble. Three great camp fires were built, and to see those 55 boys sitting around, each roasting his ear of corn, was a sight that every friend of the boys would have enjoyed seeing. Just before six the campfires were extinguished, the light cleared up and the boys started, each with a corn stalk over his shoulder for a gun, and marched in real war fashion for home, after having given Mr. Patrick three rousing cheers. On their way home the boys sang many of their Boys' Meeting songs. At 6:20 all arrived home, tired and dirty, but happy after a fine afternoon of fun.

A cordial invitation has been received from Mr. P. A. Cook, to visit his poultry farm, on the Springfield road, next Thursday afternoon. Mr. Cook has promised Mr. Herbert R. Welch, the boys' leader, a big time. He will tell them of his experiences in hunting game in the heart of Africa.

The Boys' League held their meeting every Sunday at 6:20, in the chapel of the First M. E. Church and every Westfield Boy is cordially invited. Sixty-one boys attended last Sunday evening.

CHRISTIAN WORKER'S SUPPER CONFERENCE.

About one hundred representatives of the more than twenty organizations and affiliated organizations of the Presbyterian church lined together last evening. The chief object of their getting together was to make definite and vivid the one end for which all were working under different organizations. Besides the organizations which are active in the work of the church itself, there are Union Chapters at Willow Grove, Branch Mills, Mountainside and Madison Avenue, in which members of this church are vitally interested and very active in promoting. Representatives from these chapters were present and joined in the conference.

The thought of the conference centered in Christ the great Head of the Church Universal. This emphasized the oneness of the Presbyterian church with all other Christian communities. The topics discussed were those of "Evangelism," or the winning of men to Christ by Mrs. M. A. Harris. "Education," or training men to be like Christ, by Mr. M. B. Dutcher. "Missions," or sending men out for Christ by Mr. A. N. Pierson. "Social Service," or blinding men together in Christ, by Mr. Charles R. Pitcheo.

The conference was pervaded by a spirit of earnest devotion. Several hymns of the church were sung and prayer was offered by Rev. L. D. Callins, D. D.

The dinner was served by committees in charge of Mrs. Glendon Ludlow and Mrs. Dr. J. J. Savitz. The tables were served by the young ladies of the church.

Mabel Livingstone Doying.

Mrs. Mabel Livingstone Doying, wife of F. Wallace Doying of Washington street, died in the Muhlenberg hospital in Plainfield this morning at 5:30, after an illness covering two months. Mrs. Doying was born in Brooklyn on November 10, 1886, and had lived the greater part of her life in this town. She attended the public schools in this town and had a host of friends who are grieved to hear of her death. Had Mrs. Doying lived until November, she would have been married five years. Besides her husband, she is survived by one son, William Wallace Doying, her father and mother Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Doying, of Park street, and two brothers, Martin A. Doying, Jr., and J. Harold Doying also survive her.

Tuttle, Democratic Candidate for Congress, and Pierson, Republican Candidate for Assembly, Loyal Support by Fellow Townsmen

MANY REGISTER FOR ELECTION

That Westfield appreciates the efforts of its favorite sons, was evidenced at the primary election on Tuesday, when Arthur N. Pierson, candidate for the assembly nomination on the Republican ticket, received a large vote at the hands of his fellow townsmen, leading the Assembly ticket with a comfortable majority. William E. Tuttle, Jr., the Democratic nominee for Congress, received 140 votes as against 9 for his opponent. Mayor Evans was accorded the largest vote of any candidate in the town.

Mr. Pierson not only ran well in his home town but all over the county and was high man among the assembly candidates, receiving a total vote in the county of 4,864. This speaks well for Mr. Pierson, as this is his first appearance in the county political arena and shows that he is not only well liked in his home town but throughout the county as well.

Congressman Tuttle, who was a candidate for the re-nomination, received almost the entire vote of the Democratic party in the town and defeated his opponent, Thomas J. Pierson, two to one in the county.

For the Congressional nomination on the Republican ticket, John H. Capstick won out in the district over Charles N. Fowler and W. Torrence Stuchell. Mr. Fowler carried Westfield and Union County, but Mr. Capstick's vote in his home county, Morris, was more than enough to offset this. Mr. Stuchell was a bad third in the race.

There was no opposition to Carlton B. Pierce for the Republican nominee for State Senator. He received a total vote of 5,531 in the county.

For the Assembly, Arthur N. Pierson, W. N. Runyon and Charles L. Morgan were the winners on the Republican ticket and W. F. Callahan, Francis V. Dobbins, and C. E. Dooley on the Democratic ticket. On the Progressive ticket the nominees were J. B. Furber, W. D. Jones and T. F. Van Dyke.

In the primary election for local offices Mayor H. W. Evans showed his popularity among his home voters in the Republican party by polling the largest vote of any candidate on the ticket. His vote was 423, out of a total vote of 450. John A. Dennis received the Democratic nomination by 119, out of a total of 154.

There was no opposition in either party for the nomination of councilmen. Those chosen on the Republican ticket were Robert E. Perry, in the first ward; Adolph Ganzel in the second ward; William R. Davis, in the third ward and George F. Brown in the fourth ward. On the Democratic ticket there was no nominee for the first ward. Robert F. Hohenstein received the nomination in the second ward; John W. James in the third ward and Robert L. DeCamp in the fourth ward.

The vote in the town was very light at the primary but a large number of voters registered for the general election in November.

RESULTS IN FANWOOD BOROUGH.

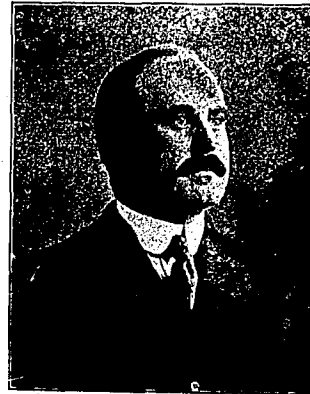

The primary election in the Borough of Fanwood, was very quiet and a light vote was polled by all parties. For Congress on the Republican ticket, Charles N. Fowler was the favorite, receiving 20 votes to 22 for John H. Capstick and 2 for W. Torrence Stuchell. Carlton B. Pierce received 51 votes for the nomination of State Senator. William N. Runyon was high man on the assembly ticket, receiving 53 votes; Arthur N. Pierson was next with 48 and Charles L. Morgan third with 43. For County Clerk James C. Calvert received 53 votes to William H. Wright's three. Samuel P. T. Wilbur was the choice of the Republicans for Sheriff, he receiving 41 votes. Frank H. Smith, who was the candidate for registrar was high man on the ticket with 55 votes. William G. Britton and Albert J. Nichols were nominated for council.

For Congress on the Democratic ticket, William E. Tuttle, Jr., received 13 votes to his opponent's 2. Dobbins, Linko and Dooley were the choices for assembly; Crowell and Leonard each received five votes for the nomination of county clerk; DeVine and McLoughlin five votes each for sheriff; and Kelly for registrar. Two Progressive tickets were cast and one Socialist.

NIGHT SCHOOL WILL OPEN ON OCTOBER 6

The night school will open in the Washington school building on Tuesday, October 6. There will be three sessions a week on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings during the fall and winter. Those who wish to attend shall present themselves for enrollment at the office in the Washington school on October 5. The teachers in the night school this year will be Mark A. Webster and Miss Whetmore who will teach commercial courses; Ha Huber and P. S. Ketcham who will teach English and the grades; K. V. Carman who will teach mechanical drawing; Miss Secrist and Miss Steffy who will teach in the grades.

Miss Florence L. Kirk began her duties as teacher in the new sixth grade in the Grant school on Monday. This grade is composed of pupils who were transferred from the grades in the other school to the Grant building.

The instruction committee of the Board of Education, together with the principals of the schools and supervising principal, held a meeting in the Washington school on Monday night and took up administration problems.

Miss Yerkes, of Dover, was a visitor at the schools this week.

A class in elementary mechanical drawing was begun in the Washington school this week with an enrollment of seventeen.

Miss Ruth Griffiths teacher of the fourth grade in the Lincoln school has been called to her home in Utica, N. Y., on account of the serious illness of her mother.

The athletic committee of the Board of Education, the captains and managers of the athletic teams and several members of the high school faculty who are interested in athletics held a meeting in the Washington school on Wednesday night. The main item of business was discussing the rules of the Board of Education and the examination of athletic schedules. After this meeting the instruction committee of the Board held a meeting and considered petitions.

Miss Mabel E. Bray, the supervisor of music has organized the high school glee club for the year.

Watermelon Social Tonight.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Madison Avenue Mission will hold a watermelon social tonight for the benefit of the Mission chapel. The affair will be held in the chapel and in addition to the special feature there will be a program consisting of tenor solos by Mr. McHarry, of Jersey City; violin solos by Harold Welch; piano solos by Mrs. Edwards of Newark, and recitations by local talent. A small admission fee will be charged at the door and every one is invited to attend.

W. C. T. U. HOLDS THIRTIETH CONVENTION

In the First Methodist Church Many Delegates Present and Three Sessions Held. Officers Re-elected For the Year

The thirtieth annual convention of the Union County W. C. T. U. was held in the First Methodist church yesterday and was attended by about fifty delegates from the various unions, in the county.

There were three sessions and they were all very interesting. The first was opened at 10 o'clock in the morning and was called to order by Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, the county president. The crusade psalm was then read which was followed by a prayer by Mrs. J. L. Manning, of Dunellen. Mrs. Samuel Johnston of the local union extended greetings to the county union and Rev. G. Franklin Ream, Pastor of the church extended the greetings of the church. These greetings were responded to by Mrs. C. W. Scott, of Elizabeth. Appointment of committees followed; reading of journal; address of the president; annual report of the corresponding secretary and treasurer and auditor's report. This was followed by a song entitled, "We're Out for Prohibition." The song was followed by the offering and a prayer, after which the election of officers took place and the following were re-elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Mary Davis Tomlinson, of Plainfield; associate president, Mrs. David B. Currie, of Cranford; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. L. Rarick, of Dunellen; recording secretary, Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Plainfield; treasurer, Mrs. Mary T. Cox, of Cranford; honorary vice-presidents, Mrs. Scriben Steward, of Elizabeth and Miss Julia A. Barker, of Rahway; delegate to the national convention which meets in Atlanta, Ga., November 13-18, Mrs. T. C. Bodine; alternate Miss Emma Johnson of this town. After the election of officers Mrs. T. C. Bodine gave an interesting talk on "Thirty Years of Work by Union County W. C. T. U." Introduction of visitors followed and a noon-tide prayer was offered by Mrs. M. L. Winter and then adjournment was made for luncheon which had been prepared by a branch of the Ladies Aid Society of the church with Mrs. T. T. Harkrader as chairman.

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock with devotion, which was followed by the reports of the various superintendents who were given three minutes each in which to present their reports. After the reports the chorus "The Crusade Banner" was sung. This was followed by a recitation entitled "Her Program" by Miss Myrtle Fish; the offering then followed and Ashton Markoe Currie recited "Ma Can't Vote." Report of the resolution committee was then heard and some miscellaneous business transacted after which adjournment was made until evening.

The evening session was devoted to a silver oratorical medal contest and opened at 8 o'clock with devotion by Rev. G. Franklin Ream, the pastor of the church. The remainder of the program follows:

Hymn.
No. 1—"What the Old Flag Said", Grace Reeve.
No. 2—"King Alcohol Shall Die", John DeHart.
Solo—"The White Ribbon", Mrs. E. M. Compton.
No. 3—"A Fence or an Ambulance", Mildred Harkrader.
No. 4—"The Boys of America", Gordon B. Carr.
Chorus—"The Crusader Bonnet".
No. 5—"A World-Wide Outcry", Russell Morgan.
Solo—"Victory", Miss Campbell.
Solo.
No. 6—"Me and Hopsy", Louie Arise.
Presentation of Medal.
Hymn—"America".
Benediction.
The medal was awarded to Miss Louise Coles, by the judges, who were Rev. E. N. Compton, Mrs. E. N. Durgestock and Miss Michael of Cranford and the presentation was made by Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, the county president.

DANIEL G. FINK ILL. IN MAINE.

The family of Daniel G. Fink, who lives at Branch Mills, near this place, received word from Bangor, Me., yesterday afternoon that Mr. Fink was sick in that city with an attack of appendicitis.

Mr. Fink went to Maine about three weeks ago on a hunting trip. While it is not thought that his illness is serious, his son Edward G. Fink and his daughter, Mrs. Charles Pierson, left for Maine last night.

FIRESIDE COUNCIL HAS BIG NIGHT

Sixty Members Present and Orator Westerberg Provides Excellent Entertainment

Did Charlie Westerberg make good as orator of Fireside Council, Royal Arcanum? Well, just ask any of the sixty brothers who attended the meeting of the council, held in Arcanum hall last night, and hear what they tell you. It was "Wesley's" first time at the bat as it were and he certainly did make good. The entertainment which Orator Westerberg had provided for the amusement of the brothers was an indoor athletic meet and while it was impossible to run all the events which were scheduled, on account of the lateness of the hour, those that were, showed that the orator knows his business.

The first event was a broad jump and William Stenhamorgan proved to be the best in this line and captured the prize, which was a safety razor. The next event was a walking race, which consisted of walking the tape backwards the full length of the room. Edward Witke, who has somewhat of a record for "hiking" proved his ability of walking backwards as well as forwards and captured the prize which was a china match holder. The next event was participated in by a large number of the brothers and consisted of putting the shot. In this event Newton Lambert proved an adept and was awarded the prize which was a china match holder. The golf match and baseball game were postponed on account of the fact that some of the brothers wanted to get home and enjoy a little sleep before going to New York to business. After the meet, refreshments, consisting of coffee, sandwiches and cake, were served.

Previous to the entertainment, William Blumlyg was initiated into the mysteries of the order and orator Westerberg was installed in his office by Supervising Deputy F. G. Ward. Brother Ward also made a short address.

Announcement was made of the union meeting to be held in Elizabeth, on November 10, at which the Supreme Regent of the United States is expected to be present and it was decided to send a large delegation from Fireside to that meeting.

It was one of the largest attended meetings of the council held in some time and Regent Carr was very much gratified and pleased.

SYSTEMATIC STEALING DONE AT NEWS STAND

During the past five weeks, goods to the value of $60.40 have been stolen from the Union News Company stands at the Westfield railroad station by a systematic method which surprised Agent Frank A. Phelps when he made an investigation to ascertain why he was short $42 on one occasion when he checked up with the company, and $18.40 when he checked up again two weeks later. Whole boxes of cigars, dozens of packs of cigarettes, boxes of candy and smaller articles were stolen from the newsstand without being missed by Agent Phelps until he had calls for the goods which had been removed.

Upon investigation Agent Phelps found that the north side window of the stand had been opened with a piece of wire which was shoved under the sash and used to pull back the bolts on the sash. Entrance to the newsstand on the south side showed very clever work on the part of the thief, who drove a nail through the woodwork, displacing a heavy brass bolt which held the window and iron grating in position.

Agent Phelps has reported the loss to the Union News Company and their detectives are now at work on the case.

Many Attend Wedding.

Mrs. D. S. Falle, formerly of Dudley avenue, and daughter of W. C. Poor, was married to Dr. Romane C. Hoffman of Philadelphia, on Monday, September 14. Several of the bride's friends from Westfield attended the wedding. Dr. and Mrs. Hoffman will reside in Philadelphia.

PARK COMMISSION ASKS FOR $250 APPROPRIATION

At the adjourned meeting of the Park Commission held in the town hall Friday night it was decided by the members of the Commission to ask the town council for an appropriation of $250 in connection with trimming the trees in this place. This decision was reached after B. C. Howell, who has been trimming and caring for the trees had stated that it would require about $150 more to do the necessary work on the trees.

Commissioner Halsted made a motion that the Commission ask the council for $500, but this was not seconded, as Councilman Davis, who is a member of the Commission and who is the chairman of the finance committee of the council, said that the financial conditions were such that this appropriation of $500 could not be made by the council. Mr. Howell said that a good deal of the work could go over until next year and would not do any damage to the trees. Some of the trees, however, he said, needed attention now. Mayor Evans, who was present, was asked what his opinion was on the matter and he said that under the present condition of affairs it would be better to let the new work on the trees lay over until next year but to do what was necessary now. The total amount expended on the trimming and caring for the trees up to date is $400.02.

C. E. Cheney, of 512 Westfield avenue, asked for permission to have an elm tree in front of his property removed. It was decided to have the read committee of the council do the work. Commissioner Gilby called the attention of the Commission to a dead tree in front of the parish house of the chapel of St. Paul's church and to one in front of the property of J. E. Brewer, on Benson place. It was decided to have these trees removed. Secretary Grape was instructed to notify Mr. Brewer that he could remove the tree from in front of his property and also a live one which was choking the growth of others.

President Russell presided and all the members were present except Councilman DeCamp.

JEWISH NEW YEAR OBSERVED THIS WEEK

Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year, was observed on Monday and Tuesday of this week by all the Jewish people in this town who had their places of business closed on both days.

Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year, which marks the beginning of the year 5675 of the Jewish calendar, was ushered in at sundown on Sunday, which is the first day of the first month, Tishri. This holiday, which next to the Day of Atonement is the most solemnly observed on the calendar, lasted until sundown on Tuesday. During that time persons of the Jewish faith throughout the world ceased work and attended the prayer services at the synagogues.

As the mishpat, or judgment day, Rosh Hashonah is closely connected with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. According to their religion, after the Jewish people have come to judgment before the Lord for all their deeds of the past year, those who have not sinned greatly are given until the Day of Atonement, a matter of ten days, to repent and at the end of that time are forgiven.

The holiday has been observed by the Jews for over 3,000 years, and except for the special sacrifices and burnt offerings that were customary in the days when they were in possession of their own land, the mode of observance has much the same aspect as then. The shofar, or ram's horn trumpet, is blown in the synagogue several times a day. Young and old assemble to hear it. It is the custom, prevailing from ancient times, to "eat the fat and drink the sweet." One reason for this is the assertion, made by many rabbis of the past, that it was conducive to good fortune to eat fruits, grapes, honey and other palatable foods on the occasion of the New Year.

The ancient Jews of agricultural Palestine considered their year begun from the time they planted their corn, which, in their country, was in the fall and the arrangement of their calendar had economic reasons.

SCHAARSCHMIDT NOT IN THE GERMAN ARMY

That the report which was circulated around town and which appeared in a number of the papers of nearby cities and which The Standard in its last issue contradicted to the effect that A. A. Schaarschmidt who went to Germany with his family on June 11, had been drafted into the German army and had been killed, proved conclusively to be without foundation on Tuesday when Otto Jahn of 159 Broad street, who was an intimate friend of Mr. Schaarschmidt received a post card from him stating that he was not in the army and that he and his family were well and getting along all right.

Mr. Jahn is of the opinion that Mr. Schaarschmidt and his family will soon try to return to this country. The post card which Mr. Jahn received was dated September 2.

EXPLOSION DESTROYS NEARBY PLANT

Wright Chemical Works Wrecked And Three Men Killed in Disastrous Accident Last Friday

The Wright Chemical Works of Union, a few miles from Westfield, were destroyed last Friday afternoon by an explosion in one of the drying houses of the plant.

The explosion was felt to a great extent in this town. Buildings shook and the residents were considerably upset. A number of the residents were of the opinion that the report heard and felt was from blasting. After it was learned where the explosion was and that three men had been killed a number of people visited the scene of the explosion in automobile.

The explosion occurred in one of the six drying sheds of the Wright Company about 100 yards from the office and buildings of the firm. The cause of the explosion is not known. The three men killed were John Ryle, foreman, 53 years old, married; Winfield S. Palmer, Jr., 17 years old, single; and Grover Kleindents, 26 years old, single.

The men were blown to atoms and pieces of their bodies were found lying all over the ground after the explosion. The building where the explosion took place was a complete wreck and was blown to kindling wood. The other buildings nearby were more or less damaged and the ground was torn up as if it had been ploughed. The force of the explosion killed rabbits, snakes and other animals in the woods nearby.

As a result of the explosion burning boards were scattered in every direction, setting fire to the woods nearby. Windows in the residences near the Chemical Works were blown out and at Upsala College which is only 2,800 feet away there was considerable consternation among the pupils as the windows on the north and east sides of the buildings were shattered and the force of the concussion drove a current of air through the intake of the ventilating system with such force that the registers in some of the rooms were torn from their fastenings.

Those who saw the explosion say that immediately after it took place, the sky over the plant suggested a volcano in action.

The report of the explosion was felt in a large portion of the State and it was thought that there had been another earthquake and people who did not learn of the explosion for some time were greatly wrought up and frightened.

George D. Beatty who is the leader of the Men's Forum of the First Methodist church has returned to his home in Stonelough Park, after spending the summer at his summer home in Staatsburg, N. Y., and will resume the leadership of the Forum on Sunday, October 4. It is probable that Lender Beatty will take up some phases of the European war as they appear to the Christian mind.

The summer class of the Forum has been led by different leaders, including Pastor Ream, W. C. Hart, William H. Orr, E. D. French and P. B. Ham. A broad program of work and study for the fall and winter is being planned.

BURGLARS ENTER F. W. BENNETT'S HOME

Burglars entered the home of Ezra W. Bennett, 412 Everson place, early Sunday morning, and after ransacking the sideboard drawers in the dining room and other rooms on the first floor, went away without taking anything except some fruit which was in a dish on the kitchen table. The burglary was not discovered by the Bennett family until they came down stairs in the morning when they found the sideboard drawers open and the things in the dining room generally upset. Traces of a candle having been burned were found on the rug on the dining room floor and in front of the sideboard was a large pool of candle grease. Entrance to the house was made by prying open a rear window in the dining room which the burglars reached by walking up a trap cellar door. In the sideboard drawers were silverware, cut glass, dishes and other valuable articles but none of these were missing and it is thought the burglars were after money and nothing else or they would have taken some of the silverware. Mr. and Mrs. Bennett had been out early in the evening and when they arrived home found everything all right.

They reported the matter to the police and they are working on the case. It is thought it was the work of local burglars who were acquainted with the house and surroundings. This is the second time within a short time that this street has been visited by burglars, the other being at the home of R. I. Vervoort which is opposite the Bennett house. The residents are complaining that they are not receiving proper police protection and that they are in fear as they do not know when their house is going to be entered. At the present time there are only eight policemen covering the several beats in this place and it is hard for one officer to be in all the places at the same time on his beat. Some of the residents of Everson place state they hardly ever see a policeman on that thoroughfare at night and that if they did they would feel as if they were being protected and it would ease their minds of a good deal of worry.

DR. SAVITZ NOW ASS'T COMMISSIONER.

In the Educational Bulletin for September, published by the Department of Public Instruction of the State of New Jersey, Dr. J. J. Savitz, of Westfield, is listed as Assistant Commissioner and Supervisor of Elementary Education.

In his letter of resignation to the State Board of Education, Mr. George A. Mirick, whose place Dr. Savitz now fills, speaks of his successor as follows:

"Dr. Savitz, who is to succeed me, is an ideal man in temperament, training and experience to be put in charge of the forces that are at present active in the elementary field of education, and I wish for him the largest measure of success, which I am sure he will secure."

EQUAL FRANCHISE LEAGUE HOLDS MEETING.

The meeting of the Equal Franchise League was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. E. Sturgis, the president, on the Boulevard. Work was planned for the coming year and a number of new members joined the League. The mass meeting at Mountainside on August 28, was reported a great success.

The meeting was addressed by Miss Julia S. Iffert, of Morristown who spoke very encouragingly of the work done in the State. A home-made cake and candy sale will be held by the Equal Franchise League tomorrow, between the hours of 10:30 a. m. and 4 p. m., at F. H. Schaefer's dry goods store on Elm street.

ANNUAL BAZAAR TO BE HELD NEXT MONTH.

The annual fair and bazaar of Holy Trinity church will be held in the assembly hall of the Westfield Theatre during the week of October 12, and it promises to be a big success. The committee in charge of the various arrangements is bending every effort towards the success of the fair and all are working to make it the best ever held. There will be all kinds of fancy articles for sale and dancing will be a feature every night.

The Dorcas Society Entertains.

A lawn social of the Dorcas Society of the Presbyterian church will be held at the home of Miss Emma Johnson, 221 Lenox avenue, Wednesday, September 30, from 2 to 5:30 p. m. Mrs. G. B. Ludlow will assist as hostess; both of these ladies extend a most cordial invitation to all members and friends with the usual good time in store.

ADVANCE CLUB HOLDS ITS FIRST MEETING

The first meeting of the Advance Club for the season was held last Friday night at the home of Mrs. G. A. V. Hankinson on Walnut street, and there were about forty members present and a very interesting and enjoyable evening was passed. The program of the evening consisted of a discussion of the plans of the year's work by Mrs. H. B. Jackson; a reading by Miss Prall entitled, "The Accolade." Miss Prall responded to an encore with "Bill and Trouble." Different members of the Club gave their experiences during their vacations and several old songs were sung under the direction of Mrs. M. B. Dutcher the chairman of the music committee.

Refreshments were served before the members of the club separated for their homes. One of the items of business transacted was the electing of Miss Ida Hutchinson, secretary in place of Mrs. J. A. Blum who resigned.

Public Opinion a Real Force.

By W. IRWIN STEANS, D. D.

One of the things impressed upon us in these days is the way in which every warring government in Europe has for the past six weeks addressed its earnest efforts to convincing the people of the United States that the cause for which they are fighting is just and righteous. It is plain that the opinion regarding each nation's position formed by the American people is considered of great importance to their cause. This strenuous attempt to obtain our favorable judgment is not inspired by any fear of our intervention; they are not thinking of our battleships nor of our military power. It is the instinctive realization of the immense and pervasive power of calm, disinterested public opinion at this stage of the world's history, greater and more searching than ever before. There are national laws and laws that are international; we have alliances and friendly understandings and treaties; there is the Hague tribunal with its Palace of Peace, the hall of the nations for the settlement of disputes. But there is something greater and grander, more authoritative, more masterful. The universal Christian mind, the authority of the collective body of good men and good women, is to be the final judgment of everything and of all. It is here that the sanctions of international law are to be found.

The President in his reply to the German Emperor and the Belgian Envoys, attaches the highest importance to the judgment of the universal Christian mind, when he says: "Presently, I pray God very soon, this war will be over. The day of accounting will then come when I take it for granted the nations of Europe will assemble to determine a settlement. What such an assembly cannot compass, the opinion of mankind, the final arbiter in all such matters will supply." For this final arbiterment America is enjoined "to keep herself fit and free to do what is honest and disinterested and truly serviceable for the peace of the world."

What we see here on a world-scale is true of every small community as well. The good men and good women are a personalized conscience wherever they are found. They may be found in a large majority or in a small but select minority—but in the last analysis their influence will be found to determine the issue. Did we better understand and appreciate this, more of us would keep ourselves both "fit and free" from all entangling and compromising alliances that we be qualified to receive the deference which our fellow men always show to the opinions of fair minded and righteous men. Individuals of elevated character are a public conscience. We all recognize the fact that there are men and women so grandly good, so conspicuously loyal to righteous principles that they have the power and the recognized right to reprove and condemn to judge and to punish. We stand in awe of what they may think of us more than of any statute. They are personalized consciences, living judges, constant arbiters. Their authority over us is not conferred, it is personal. Just because they are people of fine moral quality, of lofty mind and pure spirit, with a fine sense of honor, they are inherently public judges to whose decisions we almost unconsciously defer.

In every town and city, in every little community, in every institution, you can find these people of character to whom we defer. They are the standards of ethics, the arbiters of conduct, the silent reprovers of wrong, the constant inciters to right. They are found in all our great industries, in all our shops, in our offices, on our railways, in business, in our town councils and corporations, the potent influence of whose lofty characters restrains from wrong and inspires to the right. These good men and good women are the power that both create and sustain good laws.

The Assembly Ticket.

Not the least spirited of the contests in the Primary was the Assembly race of the Republican ticket. Our fellow townsman, Mr. Arthur N. Pierson, Mr. William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, and Mr. Charles L. Morgan, of Elizabeth, are the successful candidates and their names will appear on the Assembly ballot on the Republican Party.

While Mr. Pierson led Mr. Runyon by over 500 votes, and Mr. Runyon led Mr. Morgan by 1200 votes, this should not be taken in any way to indicate the standing of these candidates in the election, as Mr. Morgan was in the field against two other Elizabeth opponents, whereas Mr. Pierson and Mr. Runyon were recognized as the local candidates to represent the middle and upper section of the County.

We believe, however, that the vote of Tuesday indicates that Mr. Pierson's candidacy has been favorably received in every section of the County, and we bespeak for him and his associates on the ticket success on Election Day.

Strenuous Congressional Campaign.

The victory of Mr. John H. Capstick, of Morris County, over Charles N. Fowler, of Union County, although by only a small majority, places Mr. Capstick on the Congressional Ticket of the Republican Party, and in opposition to Mr. William E. Tuttle, Jr., of our town.

It promises to be the most strenuous campaign for Congressional honors had in the Fifth District for a number of years.

The absence of the Progressive vote at the Primaries would indicate that a large number of those who voted the Progressive ticket last year, are seeking new party affiliations, and since most of the Progressive vote came from the Republican Party and was the means of electing Mr. Tuttle last year, the assumption is that they will support the Republican ticket in November. The strong claim which Mr. Capstick makes for the votes of the Fifth District, will give Mr. Tuttle all he can do to secure his reelection.

The tariff will undoubtedly be a dominant issue in this fall's Congressional campaign, and since Mr. Capstick is a strong protective tariff advocate, standing on the tariff plank of both the Progressive and Republican platforms of the last Presidential election, and Mr. Tuttle stands pledged to the present tariff program, the returns on the 3rd of November will tell how the people of the Fifth Congressional District view tariff matters.

The "Pork Barrel."

By the dint of hard work, even to the exhorting of filibuster and record speeches, the administration's pork barrel bill has been cut from $53,000,000 to $20,000,000 for the coming year. After all, whether one is favorable to the river and harbor appropriation bill, so commonly known as the "Pork Barrel", or not, it would seem to be high time that the administration got in step with the necessities of the times, and cut such appropriations to a hard time basis.

Pork is rather a strong meat for an empty stomach.

We congratulate the Republican Senators upon their victory in this matter. They have certainly rendered timely service to the people of our land. Perhaps when we have this favorite meat for the politicians cut down to a minimum, we will learn how to get along without quite so much pork in our annual expense account.

Strong County Ticket.

The county ticket announced today as a result of the primary election of yesterday should be very satisfactory to Republicans. The party enters the contest to be decided at the November election with strong, clean candidates, in which voters generally will have the largest measure of confidence. There is not a weak spot in the county ticket, and the men, chosen are well adapted to the offices they aspire to fill. The ticket should by every right succeed at the polls.

County Clerk James C. Calvert and Register of Deeds Frank H. Smith are renominated. Both men have made such a record in their respective offices and as men and citizens as to gain full public confidence. George C. Otto, candidate for the office of sheriff, is a well-known local business man and will receive ungrudging endorsement and support of all good citizens. The candidates for Member of Assembly, Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield; William N. Runyon, of Plainfield and Charles L. Morgan, of this city, are all men who will ably represent the county at Trenton.

Hope of Republican success is greatly augmented by the return of a large percentage of the Progressive strength to the party. The returns show a decided falling off in the Progressive vote, both in the city and county—a falling off even from the vote of a year ago. The Republican returns show a corresponding increase. The able men nominated by Republicans probably in some measure accounts for this.

—Elizabeth Journal.

The Last of Them.

The last passenger pigeon is dead in its cage at the Cincinnati Zoo.

Thirty years ago, when this specimen of the species was caught, passenger pigeons by the millions flew north and south spring and all across the land.

Men still living can remember seeing them in great clouds that sometimes required a whole day in passing. Myriads of them were slain for food, and yet no impression seemed to be made on their numbers. Then the flocks began to diminish.

In a few years they disappeared altogether, and for a decade past scientists have offered a standing reward for a pair of the birds with which to perpetuate the race.

The disappearance of the passenger pigeon is one of the apparently unsolvable mysteries of the world. While they were killed in great numbers, the small impression made by these onslaughts was not sufficient to have exterminated the race any more than the annual killing of blackbirds has blotted out that species.

Many theories have been advanced, but none is satisfactory. Whether the birds were the victims of some strange disease in epidemic form or learned to avoid the country in which so many of them were slaughtered, may always remain a puzzle to those interested in birdlore.

—State Gazette.

At the single port of Philadelphia 23,000 tons of sugar, or 46,000,000 pounds, were unloaded last week. The consignments were from the Hawaiian ports, coming by way of the Panama Canal, and from Cuba. This does not look as though the importation of sugar had been curtailed. It is convincing that there is no reason for the price going up so noticeably in the retail market.

—Elizabeth Journal.

Some of the women's pages continue to publish instructions about putting up jams and jellies, when what the housekeeper wants is points on auction bridge.

It is suspected that some of the advances in food prices are not due so much to the war as to the desire of dealers to acquire a 1915 automobile.

Owing to the fact that they have just had a vacation many people are now forced to take a week off for rest.

Stock exchanges still closed, but the sports can bet on baseball.

Does It Cost $5000 a Year to Run Your Home?

If it does it is a question worthy of your consideration as to whether your estate and your life insurance will yield an income sufficient for your home maintenance. If your estate amounts to $15,000 and your life insurance to $15,000 or $30,000, this will yield but $1500 per annum at 5%.

Some Monthly Income Insurance would help out. Let us tell you about it. An inquiry will no way obligate you to take life insurance.

CELEBRATES HIS 86TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

Charles Pierson who is one of the "oldest young men" in this town celebrated his 86th birthday yesterday. Mr. Pierson comes into town every day from his farm at New York and Rahway avenues and reads the war news with interest each day. He voted in the Republican primary on Tuesday. Many of his friends remarked to him that he was looking fine to which Mr. Pierson replied that he "felt good for a fellow 86 years old." Mr. Pierson is a son of Theophilus Pierson who at one time owned half of this town and lived on the farm at present occupied by Mr. Pierson.

Mr. Pierson was born on the farm and with the exception of twenty years during which he lived in New York he has resided here. He remembers Westfield when it had but one blacksmith shop, two stores, one church and a tavern. Mr. Pierson's wife died twelve years ago. The couple had no children. In speaking of election day Mr. Pierson said that he remembered attending a ratification meeting for William H. Harrison. Mr. Pierson was a Whig before the Republican party was formed.

Grand Annual Picnic By Company G., Uniformed Rank.

On next Saturday, September 26th, Company G, Uniformed Rank Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold their first grand annual picnic and dance at Britz's hall and grove. There will be prize bowling and all kinds of games, in fact everything that will tend to make the affair a success.

Delegations are expected from Milzaboth, Linden, Cranford and Plainfield. Professor Dows six-piece Jr. O. U. A. M. orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion. Dancing will start promptly at 8 o'clock.

TO HAVE A SERIES OF ENTERTAINMENTS

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the District Nursing Association was held at the home of the president, Mrs. P. Q. Oliver, last Monday. A series of entertainments will be given by the members during the fall and winter, the first one will be a card party at the home of Mrs. Oliver, 644 Boulevard, on October 20th. Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Oliver hostesses; all card games will be played, prizes for each table. After tables have been made up, same should be telephoned to Mrs. Oliver not later than October 17th. No tickets will be sold but an admission fee of 50 cents will be charged.

All are cordially invited to attend and help this most worthy association along. This association has been doing good work in Westfield since it was organized and should have the support of every citizen.

DOING Y. M. C. A. WORK AMONG SOLDIERS.

Frank Howe, Jr., a former Westfield boy who has been doing Y. M. C. A. work in Africa for the past four years is now doing the same work in the camps of the soldiers in England.

Mr. Howe was on his way home from Africa, and when he reached England his children had the diphtheria. At this time the war broke out and Mr. Howe volunteered his services and they were accepted.

Accelerates the Pulse.
A motorist with malapropian propensities was pointing out the different parts of his car, and presently came to a foot lever which he called the "exhilarator." "That must be what you press when you go joy-riding," wittily remarked one of the bystanders.

District Sunday School Association Meets.

The District Sunday School Association held a meeting in the parish house of the Congregational church last night. Arthur M. Crane, president of the county association and who is from Roselle, gave an interesting address on "Efficiency by Organization." Mr. Crane told how to prepare for an increase in membership in the Sunday Schools and then how to go out and get new members.

It was expected that the officers of the association would be elected, but owing to the fact that there were other meetings being held in the other churches it was postponed until an adjourned meeting of the association, which will be called by the chairman, Rev. M. L. Stinson.

Extraordinary Complaint.
A divorce complaint filed in San Francisco recently contained the following surprising allegations: "That after the marriage of plaintiff and defendant . . . the defendant abused this plaintiff with his tongue . . . and thereby inflicted great bodily injury to this plaintiff and made her black and blue."

The Social Neighbor.
"Now, don't talk too much when you go to call on our neighbor. You may answer questions, of course." "That is all I ever do," said the child. "And they ask a great many questions. Last time they asked how much salary papa got and if he ever quarreled with you."

Birds of the Panama Zone.
It is estimated that there are about 800 varieties of birds in the canal zone—a larger number of species than is to be found in any one state in the United States.

She was born in Newville, Pa., but had been a resident of this town for the past twenty-three years. She was a member of the Presbyterian church. She is survived by three children, Miss Jane Morrow, Mrs. William Lynde and John C. Morrow, all of this town.

The funeral will be held from the home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. W. I. Stearns of the Presbyterian church. Interment will be made in Fairview cemetery.

SHOWN BY

R. M. FRENCH & SON.

The newest and most complete outdoor sleeping bed for children is being shown by R. M. French and Son. It is the only bed designed for both summer and winter use, being entirely enclosed with removable canvas sides which can be instantly adjusted to admit light and air or closed to protect the child from the sun, rain, wind, dust or excessive light.

If you have children it is of the greatest importance that you consider their health and comfort. Give them the opportunity for both by sleeping in an outdoor Portable Sleeping Couch.—Adv.

The Spanish Opal.

In no other country has a charm played so large a part as in Spain. One of the most famous rings in history is what is known as the "Spanish opal," to the influence of which is attributed by the superstitious inhabitants of the country all the misfortunes suffered by Spain in the last century. It was given to Alfonso XII by the notorious adventurer Comtesse de Castiglione, with whom the monarch was friendly when he was an exile and a pretender to the Spanish throne.

SEASON CLOSURES WITH WORTH IN LEAD

George Worth, the star center fielder of the local team, was the season's best batter finishing the season with an average of .373 in 21 games, missing only one game the whole season. Worth made 28 hits; six hits more than Valleau, who was second in number of hits with 22 in 18 games.

Worth was Manager MacDonald's right hand man in the absence of assistant manager Valleau and Captain Green, who was out of the lineup a great deal this past season. Record was second in batting.

"JUDY" WORTH.

with an average of .325 in 11 games. George Ortleb has a better average, but he was in only 5 games. Record was the best second baseman seen at the keystone sack in the last few seasons, while Valleau and Green were the next in order of the three hundred hitters.

Following are the seventeen members of the team who were in five or more games:

BOWLING WILL SOON BE THE ATTRACTION.

Bowling enthusiasts are already getting in form for the fall and winter and every night lovers of this sport are to be found on the alleys of the Playhouse and Westfield Theatre.

The Sunday School Athletic League has rented the Playhouse and will open the season on October 13, and will bowl on Tuesdays and Thursday nights.

The Fraternal Bowling League will roll on the alleys of the Westfield Theatre and will start on Monday, October 5, and will roll every Monday, Tuesday and Thursday night.

Several parties and clubs have rented the Playhouse alleys for the other nights in the week and lovers of bowling anticipate an active season with the ten pins.

Easy Economy.

When lighting the gas do not turn the key on full, but only four-fifths of the way, and see that sufficient air enters through the air passage. This will eliminate the blissing and give proportional flow of air and gas. When the mantle gets black throw a little ordinary salt in the same from the top, which will consume the carbon and make your mantle clear and white.

His Hat Saved Him.

An old German was delivering a self-imposed address on military science. "My son Otto," said he "goes off to the war and wears a high hat. Along comes a bullet—right through the middle of it. Had he been wearing a cap, mein Gott! Otto would have been killed!"

DUNHAN AND THROCKMORTON WINNERS OF NIGHT TENNIS TOURNAMENT

The second night tennis tournament on the courts of the Westfield Golf Club came to an end last Friday night when the semi-finals and finals were played before a gallery of nine hundred people which was the largest crowd of the week. In the semi-finals Hall and Campbell of the West Side Tennis Club and Woodbridge A. C., defeated Gomes and Randall of the Westfield Golf Club, 1-6, 6-3, 6-1. Dunham and H. Throckmorton of the Ilderan Outing Club, Rahway, defeated Beers and Cochran of the Plainfield Country Club 6-2, 6-2. In the finals Dunham and H. Throckmorton defeated Hall and Campbell, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4. The prizes were bronze cups mounted with sterling silver inlaid and were given to the winners and runners up.

MRS. MANVILLE WINS SINCLAIR CUP.

Mrs. H. E. Manville was the first winner of the Dr. R. R. Sinclair cup which was played for by the ladies on the Westfield Golf Club links last Tuesday. Mrs. Manville has been playing exceptionally good golf this year. Mrs. Manville's hardest opponent was Miss Hazel Gardner, whom she defeated 2 up and 1 to play.

Mrs. W. R. Davis was an easy opponent, 8 up and 7.

Miss Hazel Gardner defeated Mrs. C. P. Worth 3 up and 2.

Mrs. A. E. Kellar drew by.

Mrs. H. E. Manville defeated Mrs. W. H. Lane by default.

Mrs. W. E. Brown defeated Mrs. A. R. Clement, 3 up and 2.

Mrs. O. Knight defeated Mrs. R. L. McIntosh by default.

Mrs. C. T. Revere and Mrs. C. S. Hinchman won by default.

In the second round:

Mrs. H. E. Manville defeated Miss Hazel Gardner, 2 up and 1.

Mrs. W. R. Davis defeated Mrs. A. E. Kellar, 5 up and 4.

Mrs. O. Knight defeated Mrs. W. E. Brown, 4 up and 2.

Mrs. C. T. Revere defeated Mrs. C. S. Hinchman, 6 up and 5.

Mrs. W. R. Davis was an easy opponent in the semi-finals for Mrs. H. E. Manville, who won 6 up and 4.

Mrs. C. T. Revere defeated Mrs. O. Knight 4 up and 2.

GOLF NOTES.

Last Saturday the first round for the Governor's Cup was played at the Westfield Golf Club and all the contestants were evenly matched. W. M. Townley defeated H. W. Stover in one of the longest matches ever played on the links and 54 had to be played before Townley won 4 up and 2 to play. A. I. Nichols and R. H. Aronson again had an interesting match which Aronson lost 1 up. R. S. Gales defeated C. E. Halsted 2 up and 2 to play. C. T. Revere defeated S. Bender by default. R. M. Bennett defeated R. L. McIntosh 7 up and 5 to play. W. A. Sturges defeated R. H. Ferris 2 up and 1 to play and O. Knight defeated W. E. Brown 2 up.

In the sweepstakes event at the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday, W. A. Sturges was the winner 48-40-89-21-62; G. J. Morgan and R. L. McIntosh tied for second and third, the former having 45-49-93-23-71 and the latter 45-46-91-20-71.

Profound Consular Advice.

The American commercial representative abroad should say what he means. We have just been reading a consular report from the Uganda district, Africa, which informs us that "human beings receive the sleeping sickness from biting flies." If this is really a fact, the obvious advice is: Substitute beetles or roaches. Don't bite flies; swat them!—Judge.

Curious Old Carving Cleaned.

A famous White Horse on Graham hill, Wiltshire, England, one of the well-known figures cut out in chalk and familiar to travelers from London to the west of England, has undergone a thorough scouring process. The cost has been borne by Nigel Gresley, descendant of a head master of Marlborough school, the boys of which cut out the chalk 110 years ago.

FOOTBALL PROSPECTS OF WESTFIELD HIGH

Although the football team starts off this year with fewer veterans than they have had in some previous years, there seems to be every chance of a team which will be able to uphold last year's record. Practically all of last year's second team are still eligible. Under the direction of Messrs. Huber and Stimson, the team is now well under way and will undoubtedly be in fine condition for the first game which will be played a week from tomorrow at Westfield, the local eleven meeting Central Commercial and Manual Training, of Newark.

The backfield problem is the one which is causing the captain and coaches the most concern, but this should be easily solved by next Saturday. With Harry Randall, of last year's backfield, Roy Miller end last year, Bill Gilmartin, second team full back and first team sub last year, and Wallace Bush, sub for two years, the backfield should prove fairly strong. Crutenden and Brower, both "W" men, will probably play the ends again this year. Both of last year's second team men are out for the position. Elliott and Carberry should be strong subs for the position.

There are so many good men trying for guard and tackle that the hardest part of picking these positions will be to get the best. Davies and Maranghi of last year's eleven, Gorton, Martin, Trimble, Mann and Bourne, of last year's second team and several new men including Wright, Clark, Welch and A. Cairns. R. Cairns and Gotra are the candidates for center.

Beginning next Monday, the second team will practise under the direction of Messrs. Beard and Barton and all indications point to a second team that will be fully as good as last year's.

The schedule follows:

Saturday, Oct. 3.—Central C. & M. T. H. S., at Westfield.

Saturday, Oct. 10.—Pingry School at Westfield.

Monday, Oct. 12.—South Orange H. S., at Westfield.

Saturday, Oct. 17.—St. Benedict's Prep, at Westfield.

Wednesday, Oct. 21.—Somerville H. S., at Westfield.

Saturday, Oct. 24.—Dover H. S., at Dover.

Wednesday, Oct. 28.—Rahway H. S., at Westfield.

Saturday, Oct. 31.—Battin H. S., at Elizabeth.

Election Day, Nov. 3.—Plainfield H. S., at Westfield.

Saturday, Nov. 7.—Roselle H. S., at Westfield.

Saturday, Nov. 14.—New Brunswick

H. S., at Westfield.
Saturday, Nov. 21.—Plainfield at Plainfield.

Thanksgiving, Nov. 26.—Ex-High at Westfield.

The Columbus Day game, Monday, October 12, will be played at 10:15 A. M., and the Thanksgiving Day game at 11:00 A. M. All others will begin at 3:30 P. M.

Fate's Instrument.
"Watch me," he said.

He took his hands from the steering wheel and let the heavy car run itself down the smooth roadway.

Then came the instrument of fate. It was a June bug.

It clawed the daring driver on the nose and he awoke in the hospital.

Moral: In a June-bug neighborhood hang onto the wheel.

Hallowed Spot.
"Why doesn't somebody build on this vacant lot? You seem to be short on civic enterprise."
"Quite the contrary, stranger. The man who owns that lot has too much public spirit to build on it."
"How do you make that out?"
"That's where the circus shows when it comes to town."

THE GARDEN'S BENEFIT.

"Your garden must be a source of great pleasure."

"Well, it makes me more calm and philosophical. When I see how hard it is to grow things I don't feel so indignant at the prices charged by the store."

Use for Medieval Armor.
Any family having ancestors can make use of the medieval armor that may have been inherited, cutting it down to fit the children that have to associate with the unmuzzled dogs of the neighborhood.—Chicago News.

Curiosity for Mother to See.
After mother had laid a steak on a hissing hot pan and the air became too thick for comfort, little Marcia retreated to a safer distance, and as the sputtering did not diminish, her sense of caution finally sent her into the pantry. From this vantage ground fascinated brown eyes peered forth at the volcanic action on the stove. Finding voice at last, the little one piped, "Look, look, mother, at the grease dust in the air."

How Would You Break a Man's Nerve With a Playing Card?

Alaric Trine sought his revenge armed with a single playing card.

He broke Alan Law's nerve and nearly wrecked the happiness of his own daughter.

His other child—but you'd better see the pictures.

CHAPTER I.

The Message of the Rose.

Lapped deep in the leather-bound luxury of an ample lounge-chair, valled apart from the world by the venerable solitude of the library of London's most exclusive club, Mr. Alan Law excluded (largely on the iape of his neck) and, squinting discontentedly down his nose, admitted that he was exhaustively bored.

Now the chair filled so gracelessly stood by an open window, some twenty feet below which lay a sizable walled garden, an old English garden in full flower. And through the window, now and then, a half-hearted breeze wafted gusts of warm air, suave and enervating with the heavy fragrance of English roses.

Mr. Law drank deep of it, and in spite of his spiritual unrest, sighed slightly and shut his eyes.

An unspoken word troubled the depth of his consciousness, so that old memories stirred and struggled to its surface. The word was "Rose," and for the time seemed to be the name neither of a woman nor of a flower, but oddly of both, as though the two things were one. His mental vision, bridging the gap of a year, conjured up the vision of a lithe, sweet silhouette in white, with red roses at her belt, posed on a terrace of the Riviera against the burning Mediterranean blue.

Mr. Law was dully conscious that he ought to be sorry about something. But he was really very drowsy indeed; and so, drinking deep of wine-scent of roses, he fell gently asleep.

The clock was striking four when he awoke; and before closing his eyes he had noticed that its hands indicated ten minutes to four. So he could not have slept very long.

For some few seconds Alan did not move, but rested as he was, incredulously regarding a rose which had materialized mysteriously upon the little table at his elbow. He was quite sure it had not been there when he closed his eyes, and almost as sure that it was not real.

And in that instant of awakening the magic fragrance of the rose-garden seemed to be even more strong and cloying sweet than ever.

Then he put out a gingerly hand and discovered that it was real beyond all question. A warm red rose, fresh-plucked, drops of water trembling and sparkling like tiny diamonds on the velvet of its fleshy petals. And when impulsively he took it by the stem, he discovered a most indisputable thorn—which did service for the traditional pinch.

Convinced that he wasn't dreaming, Alan transferred the rose to his sound hand, and meditatively sucked his a sign from her, so that he had grown accustomed to the unflattering belief that she had forgotten him.

And now the sign had come—but what the deuce did the trey of hearts mean?

When morning came, London had lost Alan Law. No man of his acquaintance—nor any woman—had received the least warning of his disappearance. He was simply and sufficiently removed from English ken.

CHAPTER II.

The Sign of the Three.

Out-of-doors, high brazen noon, a day in spring, the clamorous life of New York running as fluent as quicksilver through its brilliant streets.

Within-doors, neither sound nor sunbeam disturbed a perennial quiet that was yet not peace.

The room was like a wide, deep well of night, the haunt of teeming shadows and sinister silences.

Little, indeed, was visible beyond the lonely shape that brooded over it, the figure of an old man motionless in a great, leather-bound chair.

His hair was as white as his heart was black. The rack of his bones, clothed in a thick black dressing-gown with waist-cord of crimson silk, from the thighs down was covered by a black woollen rug. He stared unblinkingly at nothing; a man seven-eighths dead, completely paralyzed but for his head and his left arm.

Presently a faint clicking signal disturbed the stillness. Seneca Trine put forth his left hand and touched one of a row of crimson buttons embedded in the desk. Something else clicked—this time a latch. There was the faintest possible noise of a closing door, and a smallish man stole noiselessly into the light, paused beside the desk and waited respectfully for leave to speak.

"Well?"

"A telegram, sir—from England."

"Give it me!"

The old man seized the sheet of yellow paper, scanned it hungrily, and crushed it in his tremulous claw with a gesture of uncontrollable emotion.

"Send my daughter Judith here!"

Two minutes later a young woman in street dress was admitted to the chamber of shadows.

"You sent for me, father?"

"Sit down."

She found and placed a chair at the desk, and obediently settled herself in it.

"Judith—tell me—what day is this?"

"My birthday. I am twenty-one."

"And your sister's birthday: Rose, too, is twenty-one."

"Yes."

"You could have forgotten that," the old man pursued almost mockingly.

"Do you really dislike your twin-sister so intensely?"

The girl's voice trembled. "You know," she said, "we have nothing in common—beyond parentage and this abominable resemblance. Our natures differ as light from darkness."

"And which would you say was—light?"

"Hardly my own: I'm no hypocrite. Rose is everything that they tell me my mother was, while I"—the girl smiled strangely—"I think—I am more your daughter than my mother's."

A nod of the white head confirmed the suggestion. "It is true. I have watched you closely, Judith, perhaps more closely than even you know. Before I was brought to this"—the wasted hand made a significant gesture—"I was a man of strong passions. Your mother never loved, but rather feared me. And Rose is the mirror of her mother's nature, gentle, unselfish, sympathetic. But you, Judith, you are like a second self to me."

An accent of profound satisfaction informed his voice. The girl waited in a silence that was tensely expectant.

"Then, if on this your birthday I were to ask a service of you that might injuriously affect the happiness of your sister—?"

The girl laughed briefly: "Only ask it!"

"And how far would you go to do my will?"

"Where would you stop in the service of one you loved?"

Seneca Trine nodded gravely. And after a brief pause, "Rose is in love," he announced.

"Oh, I know—I know!" the father affirmed with a faint ring of satisfaction. "I am old, a cripple, prisoner of this living tomb; but all things I should know—somehow—I come to know in course of time!"

"It's true—that Englishman who scraped an acquaintance with on the Riviera last year—what's his name?—Law, Alan Law."

"In the main," the father corrected mildly, "you are right. Only, he's not English. His father was Wellington Law, of Law & Son."

She knew better than to interrupt, but her seeming patience was boiled by the whitening knuckles of a hand that lay within the little pool of blood-red light.

And presently the deep voice rolled on: "Law and I were once friends;

then—it came to pass that we loved one woman, your mother. I won her—all but her heart: too late she realized it was Law she loved. He never forgave me, nor I him. Though he married another woman, still he held from me the love of my wife. I could not sleep for hating him—and he was no better off. Each sought the other's ruin; it came to be an open duel between us, in Wall street. One of us had to fail—and I held the stronger hand. The night before the day that was to have seen my triumph, I walked in Central park, as was my habit to tire my body so that my brain might sleep. Crossing the East drive I was struck by a motor-car running at high speed without lights. I was picked up insensible—and lived only to be what I am today. Law triumphed in the street while I lay helpless; only a living remnant of my fortune remained to me. Then his chauffeur, discharged, came to me and sold me the truth; it was Law's car with Law at the wheel that had struck me down—a deliberate attempt at assassination. I sent Law word that I meant to have a life for a life. For what was I better than dead? I promised him that, should he escape, I would have the life of his son. He knew I meant it, and sent his wife and son abroad. Then he died suddenly, of some common ailment—they said; but I knew better. He died of fear of me."

Trine smiled a cruel smile: "I had made his life a reign of terror. Ever so often I would send Law, one way or another—mysteriously always—a trey of hearts; it was my death-sign for him; as you know, our name, Trine, signifies a group of three. And every time he received a trey of hearts, within twenty-four hours an attempt of some sort would be made upon his life. The strain broke down his nerve."

"Then I turned my attention to the son, but the distance was too great, the difficulties insuperable. The Law millions mocked all my efforts; their alliance with the Rothschilds placed mother and son under the protection of every secret police in Europe. But they dared not come home. At length I realized I could win only by playing a waiting game. I needed three things: more money; to bring Alan Law back to America; and one agent I could trust, one incorruptible agent. I ceased to persecute mother and son, lulled them into a sense of false security, and by careful speculations repaired my fortunes. In Rose I had the lure to draw the boy back to America; in you, the one person I could trust."

"I sent Rose abroad and arranged that she should meet Law. They fell in love at sight. Then I wrote informing her that the man she had chosen was the son of him who had murdered all of me but my brain. It fell out as I foresaw. You can imagine the scene of passionate renunciation—pledges of undying constancy—the arrangement of a secret code whereby, when she needed him, she would send him a single rose—the birth of a great romance!"

The old man laughed sardonically. "Well, there is the history. Now the rose has been sent; Law is already homeward bound; my agents are watching his every step. The rest is in your hands."

The girl bent forward, breathing heavily, eyes aflame in a face that had assumed a waxen pallor.

"What is it you want of me?"

"Bring Alan Law to me. Dead or alive, bring him to me. But alive, if you can compass it; I wish to see him die. Then I, too, may die content."

The hand of hot-blooded youth stole forth and grasped the icy hand of death-in-life.

"I will bring him," Judith swore—"dead or alive, you shall have him here."

CHAPTER III.

The Trail of Treachery.

But young Mr. Law was sole agent of his own evanishment; just as he was nobody's fool, least of all his own. The hidden meaning of the trey of hearts perplexed him with such distrust that before leaving London, he dispatched a code enigma to his confidential agent in New York.

What do you know about the trey of hearts? Answer immediately.

The answer forestalled his arrival in Liverpool:

Trine's death sign for your father. For God's sake, look to yourself and keep away from America.

But Alan had more than once visited America incognito and unknown to Seneca Trine via a secret route of his own selection.

Eight days out of London, a second-class passenger newly landed from one of the C-P steamships, he walked the streets of Quebec—and dropped out of sight between dark and dawn, to turn up presently in the distant Canadian hamlet of Balo St. Paul, apparently a very tenderfooted American woods-traveler chaperoned by a taciturn Indian guide picked up heaven-knows-where.

Crossing the St. Lawrence by night, the two struck off quietly into the hinterland of the Notre Dame range, then crossed the Maine border.

On the second noon thereafter, trail-worn and weary, as lean as their depleted packs, the two paused on a ridge-pole of the wilderness up back of the Allagash country, and made their midday meal in a silence which, if normal in the Indian, was one of deep misgivings on Alan's part.

Continually his gaze questioned the northern skies that lowered portentously, foul with smoke—a country-wide conflagration that threatened all northern Maine, bone-dry with drought.

Only the south offered a fair prospect. And the fires were making southward far faster than man might hope to travel through that grim and stubborn land.

Even as he stared, Alan saw fresh columns of dun-colored smoke spring up in the northwest.

Anxiously he consulted the impassive mask of the Indian, from whom his questions gained Alan little comfort. Jacob recommended forced marches to Spirit lake, where canoes might be found to aid their flight; and withdrew into sullen reserve.

They traveled far and fast by dim forest trails before sundown, then again paused for food and rest. And as Jacob sat deftly about preparing the meal, Alan stumbled off to whip the little trail-side stream for trout.

Perhaps a hundred yards upstream, the back-lash of a careless cast by his weary hand hooked the state of Maine free—and swinging on his heel brought up, nose to a sapling, transfixed by a rectangle of white paste-board fixed to its trunk, a trey of hearts, of which each plp had been neatly punctured by a 22-caliber bullet.

He carried it back to camp, meaning to consult the guide, but on second thought, held his tongue. It was not likely that the Indian had overlooked an object so conspicuous on the trail.

So Alan waited for him to speak—and meantime determined to watch Jacob more narrowly, though no other suspicious circumstance had marked the several days of their association.

The first half of the night was, as the day, devoted to relentless progress southward; thirty minutes of steady jogging, five minutes for rest—and repeat.

No more question as to the need for such urgent haste; overhead the north wind muttered without ceasing. Thin veils of smoke drifted through the forest, hugging the ground, like some weird acrid mist; and ever the curtain heavens glared, livid with reflected fires.

By midnight Alan had come to the bounds of endurance; flesh, bone and sinew could no longer stand the strain. Though Jacob declared that Spirit lake was now only six hours distant, as far as concerned Alan he might have said 600. His blanket once unrolled, Alan dropped upon it like one drugged.

The sun was high when he awakened and sat up, rubbing heavy eyes, stretching aching limbs, wondering what had come over the Indian to let him sleep so late.

Of a sudden he was assailed by sickening fears that needed only the briefest investigation to confirm. Jacob had absconded with every valuable item of their equipment.

Nor was his motive far to seek. Overnight the fire had made tremendous gains. And ever and anon the wind would bring down the roar of the holocaust, dulled by distance but not unlike the growling of wild animals feeding on their kill.

Alan delayed long enough only to swallow a few mouthfuls of raw food, gulped water from a spring, and set out at a dog-trot on the trail to Spirit Lake.

For hours he blundered blindly on, holding to the trail mainly by instinct.

At length, panting, gasping, half-blinded, he staggered into a little natural clearing and plunged forward headlong, so bewildered that he could not have said whether he was tripped or thrown; for even as he stumbled a heavy body landed on his back and crushed him savagely to earth.

In less than a minute he was overcome; his wrists hitched together, his ankles bound with heavy cord.

When his vision cleared he found Jacob within a yard, regarding him with a face as immobile as though it had been cast in the bronze it resembled.

Beyond, to one side, a woman in a man's hunting costume stood eyeing the captive as narrowly as the Indian, but unlike him with a countenance that seemed aglow with a fierce exultancy over his downfall.

But for that look, he could have believed hers the face that had brought thumb. Then he jumped up from the chair and glared suspiciously round the room. It was true that a practical joke in that solemn atmosphere were a thing unthinkable; still, there was the rose.

There was no one but himself in the library.

Perplexed to exasperation, Alan fled the club, only pausing on the way out to annex the envelope he found addressed to him in the letter-rack.

It was a blank white envelope of good quality, the address typewritten, the stamp English, and bore a London postmark half illegible.

Alan tore the envelope open in absent-minded fashion—and started as if stung. The enclosure was a simple playing card—a trey of hearts!

As for Alan Law, he wandered homeward in a state of stupefaction. He could read quite well the message of the rose. He would not soon forget that year-old paring with his Rose of the Riviera: "You say you love me but may not marry me—and we must part. Then promise this, that if ever you change your mind, you'll send for me." And her promise: "I will send you a rose."

But the year had lapsed with never him over to this mortal pass. Feature for feature, even to the hue of her tumbled hair, she counterfeited the woman he loved; only those eyes, aflame with their look of inhuman ruthlessness, denied that the two were one.

He sought vainly to speak. The breath rustled in his parched throat like wind whispering among dead leaves.

Thrusting the Indian roughly aside, the woman knelt in his place by Alan's head.

"No," she said, and smiling cruelly, shook her head—"no, I am not your Rose. But I am her sister, Judith, her twin, born in the same hour, daughter of—can you guess whose daughter? But see this!" She flashed a card from within her hunting shirt and held it before his eyes. "You know it, eh? The trey of hearts—the symbol of Trine—Trine, your father's enemy, and yours. And—Rose's father and mine! So, now, perhaps you know!"

A gust of wind like a furnace blast swept the glade. The woman sprang up, glanced over-shoulder into the forest, and signed to the Indian.

"In ten minutes," she said, "these woods will be your funeral pyre."

She stepped back. Jacob advanced, picked Alan up, shouldered his body, and strode back into the forest. Ten feet in from the clearing he dropped the helpless man supine upon a bed of dry logs and branches.

Then, with a single movement, he disappeared.

CHAPTER IV.

Many Waters.

Overhead, through a rift in the foliage, a sky was visible whose ebon darkness called to mind a thunder-cloud.

The heat was nearly intolerable; the voice of the fire was very loud.

A heavy, broken crashing near by made Alan turn his head, and he saw a brown bear break cover and plunge on into the farther thickets—fore-runner of a mad rout of terrified forest folk, deer, porcupines, a fox or two, a wildcat, rabbits, squirrels, partridges—a dozen more.

Two minutes had passed of the ten. Something was digging uncomfortably into Alan's right hip—the automatic pistol in his hip pocket, of which Jacob had neglected to relieve him. Then a sharp, spiteful crackling brought him suddenly to a sitting position, to find that the Indian had thoughtfully touched a match to the pyre before departing. At Alan's feet the twigs were blazing merrily.

It would have been easy enough, acting on instinct, to snatch his limbs away, but he did not move more than to strain his feet as far as their bonds permitted. Conscious of scorching heat even through his hunting boots, he suffered that torture until a tongue of flame licked up, wrapped itself round the thick hempen cord and ate it through.

Immediately Alan kicked his feet free, lifted to a kneeling position, and crawled from the pyre.

As for his hands—Alan's hunting-knife was still in its sheath belted to the small of his back. Tearing at the belt with his hampered fingers, he contrived to shift it round until the sheath knife stuck at the belt-loop over his left hip. Withdrawing and conveying the blade to his mouth, he gripped it firmly between his teeth, and sawed the cords round his wrists against the razor-sharp blade.

Before Alan could turn and run he saw a vanguard of flames bridge 50 yards at a bound and start a dead pine blazing like a torch.

And then he was pelting like a madman across the smoked-filled clearing, and in less than two minutes broke from the forest to the pebbly shore of a wide-bosomed lake, and within a few hundred feet of a substantial dam, through whose spillway a heavy volume of water cascaded with a roar rivaling that of the forest-fire itself.

Two quick glances showed Alan two things: that his only way of escape was via the dam; that there was a solitary canoe at mid-lake, bearing swiftly to the farther-shore Judith Trine and the Indian—the latter wielding the paddle.

In the act of turning toward the dam he saw Jacob drop the paddle. The next instant a bullet from a Winchester .30 kicked up a spurt of pebbles only a few feet in advance of Alan.

He quickened his pace, but the next bullet fell closer, while the third actually bit the earth beneath his running feet as he gained the dam.

Exasperated, he pulled up, whipped out his pistol and fired without aim. At the same time, he noted that the distance between dam and canoe had lessened perceptibly, thanks to the strong current sucking through the spillway.

His shot flew wide, but almost instinctively his finger closed again upon the trigger, and he saw the paddle snap in twain, its blade falling overboard. And then the Indian fired again, his bullet droning past Alan's ear.

As he fired in response Jacob started, dropped his rifle and crumpled up in the bow of the canoe.

Simultaneously earth and heavens rocked with a terrific clap of thunder.

He turned again and ran swiftly along the dam, toward two heavy timbers that bridged the torrent of the spillway.

Then a glance aside brought him up with a thrill of horror; the suck of the overflow had drawn the canoe within a hundred yards of the spillway. The dead Indian in its bow, the living woman helpless in its stern, it swept swiftly onward to destruction.

His next few actions were wholly unpremeditated. He was conscious only of her white, staring face, her strange likeness to the woman that he loved.

He ran out upon the bridge, threw himself down upon the innermost timber, turned, and let his body fall backward, arms extended at length, and swung, braced by his feet beneath the outer timber.

With a swiftness that passed conscious thought, he was aware of the canoe hurtling onward with the speed of wind, its sharp prow apparently aimed directly for his head. Then hands closed round his wrists like clamps; a tremendous weight tore at his arms, and with an effort of inconceivable difficulty he began to lift, to drag the woman up out of the foaming jaws of death.

Somehow that impossible feat was achieved; somehow the woman gained a hold upon his body, shifted it to his belt, contrived inexplicably to clamber over him to the timbers; and somehow he in turn pulled himself up to safety, and sick with reaction sprawled prone, lengthwise upon that foot-wide bridge, above the screaming abyss.

Later he became aware that the woman had crawled to safety on the farther shore, and pulling himself together, imitated her example. Solid earth underfoot, he rose and stood swaying, beset by a great weakness.

Through the gathering darkness—a ghastly twilight in which the flaming forests on the other shore burned with an unearthly glare—he discovered the wan, writhen face of Judith Trine close to his and he heard her voice, a scream barely audible above the mingled voices of the conflagration and the cascades:

"You fool! Why did you save me? I tell you, I have sworn your death!" The utter grotesqueness of it all broke upon his intelligence like the revelation of some enormous fundamental absurdity in Nature. He laughed a little hysterically.

Darkness followed. A flash of lightning seemed to flame between them like a fiery sword. To its crashing thunder, he lapsed into unconsciousness.

When he roused, it was with a shiver and a shudder. Rain was falling in torrents from a sky the hue of slate. Across the lake dense volumes of steam enveloped the frow that faintly beneath the deluge. A great hissing noise filled the world, muting even the roar of the spillway.

He was alone. But in his hand, tattered and bruised by the downpour, he found—a rose.

METHODIST MEN'S BROTHERHOOD ENTERTAINS

With Big Fall Rally and Unique Reception. 100 Guests Come by Special Trolley From Newark

Last Monday evening the Methodist Brotherhood entered with fine enthusiasm into the first event of their Fall program. Accompanied by their wives and sweethearts they gathered early at the Chapel to await the arrival of the Men's Bible Class from the Central Presbyterian Church of Newark. A minute man stationed at the Junction telephoned the news of the approaching trolley. At once every member was put under rapid marching orders. After very dextrous maneuvers, under command of Marshall for the evening, L. M. Pearsall, an open order line was formed extending from the eastern Church walk on Broad street to the open Chapel door. Even the Germans or Allies would have taken a second thought before attacking such a front. As soon as the trolley, under command of Acting Scout, W. A. Bishop came to a full stop the guests were escorted, single file along the receiving line. No time was spent in the exchange of formalities, but every guest received the warmest hand shake that the men in the line knew how to give and by the time the Chapel door was reached no one, not even the most reticent stranger, had any doubt about his being made welcome.

Upstairs in the Chapel Auditorium the Brotherhood orchestra was playing, and a big block of reserved seats was awaiting the trolley riders. Immediately, W. A. Bishop, no longer Scout, but now presiding officer, took charge. He announced that all the clocks and watches of Westfield had been ordered stopped, and that nobody need worry about the return of the trolley, because that had all been left to him. After a brief welcome by the pastor of the Methodist church, the leader of the Newark Class was introduced as "Mr. E. A. Meyer, the Livest Layman in Newark." His associates in the Class supported this introduction with most hearty applause, and his alert and earnest remarks helped the Westfield men to see how he had earned the distinction.

Mr. George D. Bontys, the leader of the Men's Forum in Westfield was then introduced and asked to say ten words. Without doubt they were the biggest and funniest ten words that any one present had heard all summer. His story of the newsboy and the skeleton will make his hearers shiver and laugh for many a day.

Mrs. S. D. French, with her daughters, Helen and Dorothy sang in trio greatly to the delight of all. Mr. Harold Welch, the wizard of fancy music, made the violin and piano do fancy holiday stunts. And Thomas W. Murray, with his fine voice and individual powers of interpretation read an excellent selection on "The Home." Mr. Alfred E. Pearsall's genial presence and good humor was a welcome surprise to all. He had not been with the brotherhood for a long while, but his smile and his deep ringing voice expressing both frolic and tenderness added to the joy of the hour. Mr. E. L. Brodeur, one of the new members of the Brotherhood and an expert player of the sliding trombone, rendered a beautiful selection.

The men detailed to the refreshments were ready with the wares the moment they were called for, and the Newark friends were served to the fine flavor of our ladies' home made cakes, and the special lemon-some-thing that only Harold Wright knows how to put together.

Before farewells were said the guests were taken through the auditorium of the new Church and Mr. F. B. Ham showed them a little of the capabilities of the organ.

Three rousing cheers out on the street, the shouting of hearty good-byes, calls to come again, and the Newark friends were off.

FORMAL OPENING AND EXHIBITION OF AUTHORITATIVE AUTUMN MILLINERY BEGINNING MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21st.

In an enlarged, handsome and improved salon flooded with daylight, our formal Autumnal opening display of Distinctive Millinery will be a style review, interesting and resplendent, as it will be beautiful.

For here will be gathered, with painstaking care and authoritative selection, all hats—and only those hats—which in every line reflect the best in correct style for Autumn and early winter wearing. It will be noted that the wide range of styling allows a delightful variety of choice of shape and size—and yet to be still safely within the correct. While the small hat, in new and novel shapes, still holds its own with its parisian air, the new distinctly note will be the large picture hat, hailed with delight by many because of its permitting the freest expression of one's individuality.

The always correct and dressy black hat will be well represented in new forms, side by side with the gorgeous plumed large hat, resplendent in new and beautiful colorings. Unusual blending of the new tortoise shades, the soft, dainty colorings of chinchilla; the new begonia pinks, papalin blues, mint, browns, jasper greens and the many hued soft plumed ostrich, fancy mounts, with many interesting metallic treatments and new effects in flowers and novelties.

ROI C. COLLINS SETTLES A DISPUTE.

Roi C. Collins, while motoring up Central avenue, in the vicinity of North street, yesterday afternoon in his "Phantom" racer, saw two large vicious dogs fighting in a resident's front yard. Mr. Collins did not hesitate to think of the dangerous task before him, but with two mighty leaps placed himself in the arena, where, on failing to separate the two fierce brutes with several mighty wallops on the larger beast's head with a large club, picked up on his mad dash to the rescue, he resorted to another method of attack and after several attempts succeeded in throwing the larger brute to the ground.

Then the awe-stricken spectators jumped in, and with weapons of all descriptions succeeded in landing the other antagonist, but upon falling they locked jaws with one another and remained so until some one more nervy than the rest succeeded in prying their jaws apart. Mr. Collins was loudly applauded for his heroism and the skillful way in which he settled the battle.

Should Conserve Panama Birds.
The bird resources of the canal zone evidently are of much importance. Possibly if they are properly conserved they will become one of the valuable assets of the United States. Having permitted so much reckless bird slaughter in this country that insect pests are increasing at an alarming rate, it would be well to take care of the birds that have been added to our national possessions by reason of the acquisition of a section of Panama.

Refuse to Yield to Old Age.
It is a common saying that there are no old people now-a-days. That is more flattering than true. There are as many old people now as there ever were, in proportion to the population at large, but there are fewer, perhaps, who advertise their passing. The old people of today, as a rule, try to be more spruce, more agile, more debonaire. They pay an attention to externals which would have been regarded as indecorous by persons of the same age a half century ago.

Enormous Match Consumption.
To keep up with the match consumption of the earth the services of 60,000 workpeople are constantly required.

COUNCIL TRANSACTS ROUTINE BUSINESS

Receives Many Bids For Sewers And Sidewalks. Board of Assessors Presents Reports

The council at its meeting on Monday night transacted considerable business of a routine nature. Bids for the laying of a concrete sidewalk on Highland avenue, and for the construction of 3500 feet of ten and eight inch sewers in Chestnut street, were received. There were six bidders for the sidewalk work and six for the construction of the sewers. The bidders on the sidewalk work were James E. Sheehan, H. B. Smith, E. W. Chamberlin, M. Gallo, E. F. Gilby and Charles Peterson and for the sewers, E. W. Chamberlin, Jacob Jacques, James S. Sheehan, C. Massa, C. A. Peterson and M. Gallo. All the bids were referred to the road committee and after they had been gone over by Town Engineer Vars and the road committee the contract for the sidewalk was awarded to M. Gallo and the contract for sewers to C. Massa.

No objections were received to the hearing on the improvement of Lincoln road and Webster place and of Stanmore place from Prospect street to Clark street.

The ordinance to vacate Addison street was passed on second and third readings. A certificate of indebtedness to the amount of $1,000 was ordered issued and $250 was directed to be transferred from the unexpended balances to the credit of the Park Commission.

The recommendation of Councilman DeCamp that lots 841 and 855 in Centre street be sold to John Pierce for the amount against them for unpaid taxes; lots 518 and 116 on South street to John Pierce; lots 212 and 218 on Scotch Plains avenue, to Ira C. Lambert and lots on Ripley place to Nicola Devia was adopted.

A resolution was also adopted by the council that the town clerk advertise for bids for the improvement of Edgewood Parkway, the southeast side of Grove street and the northwest side of Myrtle avenue, to be returnable on Monday evening, October 5. The work of the Weldon Contracting Company done on Lincoln road and Webster place was accepted by the town.

The deed of H. B. Tromaine and wife conveying certain streets and highways in Stoneleigh Park to the town was accepted by the council on a resolution introduced by Councilman DeCamp.

Councilman Affleck of the police committee introduced a resolution which was adopted dispensing with the services of Charles Lance as dog warden.

The Board of Assessors presented reports on the constructing of the sewer in Newark avenue and Graceland place, and the paving of Mountain and Highland avenues, and a hearing was set for Monday evening, October 19, the cost to the property owners for the construction of the sewer will amount to $219.91 and to the town $254.10. The cost to the property owners for the paving of Mountain and Highland avenues will amount to $425.07 and to the town $23.41.

House Company No. 1, of the fire department presented a resolution to the council asking that the fire hydrants in the town be painted a brighter color. The company members claimed that with the present color it was hard to see the hydrants. They recommended that they be painted a bright color and that the caps be painted white. They also asked that the brush and grass be cut away from around the hydrants. A communication was received from John R. Connolly, clerk of the county Board of Assessors, stating that the local tax rate will be $1.98.

Residents of Ripley place, from North street to Washington street petitioned the council for a concrete sidewalk on both sides of that thoroughfare. Bills amounting to $540.31 were ordered paid.

Mayor Evans presided and all the members were present except Councilmen Davis and Taylor.

An Eye to the Future.
The late Wilson Barrett possessed a valuable old dresser who had the good fortune to be built on the same classic lines as Barrett himself, and accordingly inherited his master's cast-off clothes. One day something had upset Barrett at rehearsal, and he lost his temper. Every one stampeded out of his way. He strode into his dressing room with flashing eyes, and so indignant did he feel that he inconspicuously dashed his hat with great violence into the corner of the apartment. The faithful dresser, who knew every mood of his master, was quite unperturbed. He merely exclaimed, in bland tones, but with a touch of reproach:

"Here, steady, go'nor; I've got to wear that some day!"

Francis Bacon.
The death of Francis Bacon was caused by his devotion to the cause of research and scientific investigation. During one of his excursions to the country he conceived the idea that animal substances may be preserved by means of snow. He procured a fowl and conducted the experiment himself. A severe cold was the result, and in his already enfeebled condition he was not able to withstand it and died of what we now know as bronchitis April 9, 1626, aged sixty-five, at the home of Lord Arundel. He was buried in St. Michael's church, St. Albans.

Innuendo.
"Is dem you all's chickens?"
"Caise dey's my all's chickens. Whose chickens did you s'pose dey was?"
"I wasn' s'posin' nuffin about 'em. But I will say dat it's mighty lucky dat a chicken won't come a-runnin' an' a-waggin' its tail when its regular owner whistles, same as a dog."—Washington Star.

Settlement Work.
"Did you hear about Muggins taking up settlement work?"
"Yes. He usually works his credit for 50 cents on the dollar."—Town Topics.

One Redeeming Feature.
The fool men have a lot of faults. But, bless their hearts, they don't kiss each other when they meet on the street.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Criticism often takes from the tree caterpillars and blossoms together.—Tipton

Mother No Artist.
Mamma is no natural artist, but she does her best when asked by the youngsters to "draw pictures." The other day, upon little George's demand, she made a sketch of a hen. When finished George regarded it with polite but critical attention. At last, sighing, he requested: "Please write 'Hen' underneath it, mamma. I want it to know where it belongs."

WHAT HAVE YOU GAINED in weight during your vacation? The scales at Gale's Pharmacy warranted correct.

Choice.
I used to think I'd like to get
A great amount of money.
But now I'd rather smile than fret
And know my life is sunny.

His Opportunity.
"Miss Crowder," said the young man who was fishing for an invitation to call, "I hope to have the pleasure of seeing you again."
"Why not?" answered the haughty beauty. "I'm frequently visible taking the air in my motor car."

Hardships Ahead.
"What's the matter, Flubdub?"
"My daughter insists on going as a missionary to Tibet. Think of the hardships she will have to endure."
"It might be worse. Look at my case. My daughter insists on marrying a poet."

Its Result.
"I see King George is embarrassed by a card scandal in his household, and blushes for his noble friends."
"Then, I suppose, the card trouble resulted from a royal flush."

Equality, for Sure.
"Why," asked the splendorist suffragist, "doesn't a woman get a man's wages?"
"My wife does," spoke up a man in the crowd, "she gets mine."

Natural Regret.
"I regret my inability to dance to your satisfaction, Miss Port."
"Yes, a number of my friends mentioned to me that yours was a sorry kind of tango."

Always.
"When do you think a wife is justified in taking money from her husband's pocket?"
"Whenever she finds any there."

The Final Result.
"The public insists on having teeth put in these trust laws."
"Well, if they have teeth in them, it is likely they will be gold-filled."

Daily Thought.
No set of happenings in any land whatever, in Bible days or since, can claim more truly to be God's Providential orderings and opportunities than can the events of our own day.—The Archbishop of Canterbury.
