NEWLY WEDS VISIT GENEROUS UNCLE

Are Promised Home In Westfield
Young Couple Have Interesting Time Among Merchants and Find Westfield Prices
Right

In a remote hamlet back in Virginia lived a demure maiden and a bashful young man, who had for some years been living with but one and the same object in view. Both were help- less victims of "love microbes" that were doing the most effectual work under the direction of Cupid himself.

Finally Bert woke up one day and decided that procrastination was the thief of time and bliss—and he im- mediately set forth to bring matters to a focus. Very soon there was a wedding, and it wasn't much longer before their Uncle Bill Jones, of West- field, wrote effusively of what he term- ed "grit," and proposed that if they would locate here he would start them up in life. Soon they were bidding their local loved ones adieu and pre- paring for a trip in this direction.

When the train pulled in, generous Uncle Bill was at the depot to greet them and welcomed a much elated couple, and after hearty congratula- tions led them straightaway to The North Avenue Hotel. It was at the breakfast table the next morning, while partaking of a tempting menu that Uncle Bill first unfolded his plans to the appreciative newcomers, ob- ligating himself first of all to build and furnish for them a modern home. "But in the meantime," he said, "you will find this hotel a pleasant and most agreeable place to live, since it is widely known as our best appointed and most zealously managed hotel and a general favorite with the 'Knights of the Grip,' under the management of J. H. Willet, who looks after the welfare of those under its roof."

"Come," said the generous uncle, rising from the breakfast table. "The pleasure is now mine to introduce you to our town, your future home. Then, too, I want to lose no time in selecting a nice site in a healthful location where we may have agree- able environments about us. In look- ing over town I noticed an M. R. & L. Co., sign on a site that attracted my attention and they have informed me that the owners are the Pearsall Company. First we will go in and confer with the Pearsall Company, in the Pearsall Building, our well in- formed and wide-awake real estate men. They own some of the finest restricted residence sites, on Beech- wood Place, Ellingham Place, Prospect Street and Brightwood Avenue. We can make a fine selection from their plots, where we will have the finest surroundings, and in the most pleas- ant location in this entire section. They also have several fine business sites.

Just a little later the couple were courteously received at the Pearsall office and it wasn't long before they had a check for an attractive resi- dence site, on which Uncle Bill will at once erect a handsome residence. "Now, I am at sea," said Uncle Bill. "It beats all how houses are built these days, considering the way they built them fifty years ago. Why, the modern houses of today have con- veniences and comforts that one of any time never dreamed of. But I know who can help us out in this dilemma," said he suddenly, remem- bering H. Russell & Company, Inc., at 15 Prospect Street, men of original ideas and good taste in practical ar- chitecture. H. Russell & Company, Inc., soon had the plans ready for a $5,500- 00 residence for the bride. It is renais- sance of Corinthian effect, symmet- rical in appearance and commodious to a degree in its interior arrange- ments, and is just what the bride longed for. The construction of this will at once be begun.

"Good lumber and good material go hand in hand with good workmanship when it comes to building a good house," said Uncle Bill, "for much de- pends upon the quality of the mill work used in obtaining a pretty, fin- ished effect. Now, about the lumber,"

Increases Frontage of Lot by Five Feet. Annual Report
Received by Trustees

The trustees of the Free Public Li- brary held their monthly meeting in the library building on Broad street, last night and transacted consider- able business. Mrs. J. T. Tubby, who is one of the trustees and the secre- tary presented the annual report which was accepted and ordered filed. The trustees received from W. G. Peckham a deed for a triangular strip of ground, having a frontage of five feet, which is an addition to the former library lot on Broad street. This deed was referred to the secretary and will be turned over to the town coun- cil at its meeting on Monday night, with the recommendation that it be accepted.

The old map of Westfield which was in the town exhibit held this summer and which was turned over to the li- brary is to be preserved and will be framed as the trustees consider it of historical value. The term of C. A. Springstead as a trustee will expire on January 1. There are now three li- brarians in the library—Miss Teller, who is the head librarian; Miss Mc- Diarmid and Miss Smith, assistants. The trustees present at the meeting were W. A. Dempsey, J. M. ENORMOUS VOTE CAST FOR BEAUTIFUL LIBRARY FIRST WEEK

Phoenix Stores Co., H. J. Martin Jr. and Geo. W. Baker Now
Issue Votes in This Popular Contest

McKINLEY SCHOOL LEADS WITH 7376

We desire to acknowledge with sat- isfaction the generous and widespread interest the people of Westfield have exhibited in the Library Competition at this early stage of the affair, and it is well that this is so for the pe- riod of abnormal expenditure—The Holidays—being so near at hand, mo- mentum immediately obtained will aid your working forces more ready and eager to take advantage of this. The writer might as well state right here, in order that you may be forewarned, that we will have a very special propo- sition to make you covering the nine days between December 10th and 24th, and the more thoroughly your work is organized in the interim, the more capable you will be to reap the fruits of the impending special offer.

After considerable work the thou- sands of votes cast the past week have assumed definite totals and are placed to the credit of the candidates now aspirants for the beautiful Library, on display at Schaefer & Company's Department Store. The long list re- presents every sentiment in the com- munity from the urchin on the street to the banker, from the layman to the clergyman, from the servant to the society matron, in fact, Westfield is fast developing into one great common body of individuals aspiring to the same end with a single purpose in view.

The first boom of the cannon sends McKinley school to the forefront, the position always coveted by every con- stant. This worthy institution's friends were alert from the very first moment passing the news from ear to ear that these friends have given ready response is self evident.

NEW MERCHANTS ADDED.

We desire to call your special at- tention to the fact that the Phoenix Stores Company, Mr. Finley, Proprietor, has entered the library competi- tive movement, also Mr. H. J. Martin, Jr., the repair man, the bicycle, motor- cycle and Edison phonograph shop so favorably known among you, and George W. Baker, the hardware dealer. Votes are issued on all repairs. The results in both these stores will be heavy and our readers should be ur- ging in their efforts here.

The big stride made by that hust- ling crowd out for the Fire Depart- ment bodes ill for anyone lagging in the good work and is convincing testi- mony that many of the members are "on the job" in earnest. The High school also is deserving of special men- tion for their plucky beginning and if the friends in toto get behind these few who have taken the initiative this worthy competitor can be counted a dangerous rival.

Now that the long list of candidates is set forth in printer's type, the time for speedy and concerted effort is here. This is an affair, which, if car- ried to a successful issue, will require the exercise of united purpose. You simply cannot depend upon each in- dividual to perform his part unless that individual has been approached per- sonally or by letter, indicating the desire from executive heads for this support. Leadership is essential and this leadership must be augmented by tributary working forces. The writer is well aware that this suggestion will be put into effect sooner or later, but delay along this line may result in defeat in the end.

The big competition is introducing many new faces into the enterprising stores where votes are issued, and this increase of trade will grow and grow, day by day, until the last day, when there will be a perfect avalanche of buyers eager to make every dime and dollar count in the final struggle for their favorite. This is one of the ob- jects of this great educational move- ment, and if you want to be in the swim, just get the voting habit; make every dime, dollar and ten dollar purchase develop votes for your favorite by studiously referring to the card in the store windows, and there you will find a merchant representing every department of trade.

John Dohrman to Lecture.

Two weeks from tonight, John A. Dohrman, of Kimball avenue, will lec- ture in the Presbyterian church for the benefit of the Children's Country Home. The subject of Mr. Dohrman's lecture will be a personally conducted tour of the "Italian Lakes."

The illustrations were taken by Mr. Dohrman and colored by Miss Grace A. Smith, of New York. Tickets for the lecture are selling rapidly and the lecture promises to be interesting as all of Mr. Dohrman's lectures are.

We have endeavored as near as pos- sible to consolidate the vote in such cases where the tickets were marked differently, yet intended for the same candidate. If there is any further omission along this line, we will ap- preciate anyone directing our atten- tion to same by addressing a post card to Library Advertising Co., 32 Union Sq., New York.

R. L. DECAMP NEW POSTMASTER

Recommended by Congressman
Tuttle This Week. Meets
With General Approval

Congressman W. E. Tuttle, Jr., this week recommended to President Wil- son the name of Councilman Robert L. DeCamp, for the position of post- master in this town, to succeed Au- gustus K. Gale, the present incum- bent. As the recommendation of Congressman Tuttle is equivalent to appointment by President Wilson, the many friends of Mr. DeCamp are show- ering him with congratulations on his good fortune.

The question has been under discus- sion for some weeks as to who would be the successor to postmaster Gale. Many names have been mentioned but all rumor was set at rest when the news of the recommendation of Con- gressman Tuttle reached town.

Mr. DeCamp was born in Plainfield in 1884. His family moved to Vir- ginia in 1886 and he received his early education in that State. Later the family removed to Morris county in this state and Mr. DeCamp attended the Chester high school and the Dover Business College, from both of which he graduated. His business career has been with the Market & Fulton Bank, of New York City, with which insti- tution he has been for the past twelve years and where he now holds a re- sponsible position.

Since coming to this town, Mr. De- Camp has made a host of friends and is very popular. He has been elected to the council from the Fourth ward, three consecutive times and during his term in the council has served as chairman of the finance and budg- et committee and for the past year has been chairman of the road, sewer and water committee. He has taken an active interest in matters pertaining to the welfare of the town and his training in the bank with which he is connected well qualifies him for the position to which he has been recom- mended by Congressman Tuttle.

Mr. DeCamp is a member of the Board of Trade, the Park Commission, president of the Westfield Democratic Club and the Suburban Club, a direc- tor in the Mutual Building and Loan Association, and a member of Atlas Lodge, F. & A. M. and a thirty-second degree mason, member of the Salam shrine.

The appointment will probably be made by President Wilson within a few weeks and will be sent to the Senate for confirmation. Mr. DeCamp will probably take charge of the post office about the middle of February.

Have you contributed to the Belgian Relief Fund?

Belgian Relief Committee of Westfield, N. J.

December 3, 1914.

To the Editor of "The Standard":

To answer any questions which may be raised in regard to the work of the Belgian Relief Committee, and "Bel- gian Relief Day," will you please publish the following infor- mation:

- The contributions collected in Westfield will be turned over to the Belgian Relief Committee of New York City. This committee, of which the Reverend J. F. Still- mans is chairman and J. P. Morgan and Company, Treas- urers, is directing the entire Belgian relief movement in the United States.
- Cash donations received from all sources by the New York committee, are used to purchase, in the United States, articles of food and clothing. No money is sent abroad.
- All purchasing and distributing is in the care of competent, experienced agents. All contributors may feel assured that the funds are disbursed in a careful and efficient manner in the directions where help is most needed. Directors of the American Red Cross, experi- enced in relief work, and American consular officials, are taking an active part in this work. In this connection, many transportation charges are waived by the carriers, and the balance is assumed by the Rockefeller Foundation. As other expenses of operation are very slight, practically 100 cents of every dollar contributed goes into the purchase of food and clothing for the needy.
- All donations are for the benefit of the non-combat- ants of Belgium—that is, the women, children and aged. Nothing goes to the soldiers of any country.
- Both clean, second-hand and new clothing will be received by the Westfield Committee. This is made pos- sible by a special arrangement with the New York Com- mittee. All clothing should be delivered at the headquar- ters in the Westfield Inn building by Saturday, or word should be left there so that a messenger may call on that day.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS J. HUNTER,
Chairman of the General Committee.

MAUNDER'S SONG OF THANKSGIVING AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A special service of Thanksgiving will be held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening next at 8 o'clock, when Maunder's beautiful cantata "Song of Thanksgiving" will be sung by the quartet and entire chorus, assisted by the Young Peoples Choir. The work is especially appropriate at this season, and those who attend the service may anticipate an adequate rendering of its beauty. The soloists for the occasion will be Miss C. Ames Forsyth, Soprano, Mrs. A. B. Rowland, Contralto, Mr. Williams St. John, Tenor and Choir Director, Mr. E. E. Unglaub, Bass, and Mrs. H. N. Taylor, Organist.

The chorus, the Misses Catto, Eida Fink, McDougall, Williams and Witke, Sopranos, Misses Fink, Johnston, Meyer, Taylor and Tice and Mrs. W. T. Regor, Contraltos, Mr. W. T. Regor, Tenor; and Messrs. Harris and Witke, Bass.

The Young Peoples Choir has been recently organized to develop a knowledge of sacred music among the young folk of the Bible School and congregation and to assist at intervals in the services of the church and school. The rehearsals are under the direction of Choir Master St. John, whose efficiency both as musician and leader has been most satisfactorily demonstrated, and are held at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoons. The interest and attention of the young people has been manifest, and they are looking forward to increasing usefulness in this as well as other lines of service. The cordial co-operation and support of parents and friends is invited.

MOLD ANNUAL HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL

The annual Harvest Home exercises of the Sunday School of the First Methodist church were held last Sunday afternoon and were attended by a large audience. The program which had been arranged by a committee of the school, of which Mrs. Samuel Burhans was the chairman, was participated in by all departments of the school and was well rendered, especially the parts taken by the junior department in charge of R. I. Vervoort. On a table in the front of the church were vegetables of all kinds symbolic of the harvest time, while in the centre of the church were placed corn-stalks with ears of corn in the husk hanging from them.

The exercises were in charge of the superintendent of the school, James F. Johnston. The complete program follows:

Any one wishing to join the class, may communicate with Fred G. Smith, chairman of the athletic committee, or William Heinecke, 118 East Broad street. The Men's Class meets on Tuesday evenings at eight o'clock and the boys class will meet on Tuesday afternoons at four o'clock.

"Our National Parks."

Tomorrow night the lecture in the assembly room of the Washington school will be given by Nat. M. Brigham and his subject will be, "Our National Parks." Mr. Brigham has lectured in this town before and those who have heard him lecture, will be glad of the opportunity of hearing him again. Mr. Brigham will take his hearers all through this country and will visit all the parks worth seeing. The lecture will be illustrated with many stereotyped views of the parks and other scenic points in the United States.

ANNUAL CONCLAVE OF KNIGHTS OF HOLY GRAIL

The annual Grand Conclave of the Knights of the Holy Grail of the Presbyterian church was held Friday evening in the Parish House. This order is composed of four degrees, the pages made up of boys, under twelve, the esquires from twelve to sixteen, knights from sixteen to twenty-one and princes of men over twenty-one. The Knighthood was organized three years ago and has steadily grown until it has now almost the largest membership of any of the church organizations. At the conclave Friday evening there were about fifty members attending.

The degree team which is composed of A. N. Pierson, King Arthur; Stanley Reese, Knight Commander; M. B. Dutcher, Prelate; A. B. Willoughby, Knight of the Scroll; Raymond Tice, Herald, and Edward T. Cairns, Robert T. Cairns, Elwood Reese, John Ludlow, George Cook, Lincoln Clark and Hiram Fink, Jr., directed by Merlin C. A. Springstead initiated twenty new members. The ceremony was very impressive and produced a great effect on all present.

The business meeting which followed the initiation was opened with a prayer by Dr. Steans. An official design for the pins of the order was approved and many were ordered. The pin is in the shape of a cross enamelled with the colors of the order. Merlin Springstead announced the calendar for the next two months and gave a general outline of the activities for the coming year which will include athletic events, debates, vocational talks, and various meetings of the four degrees. Conditions for the awarding of the different honorary degrees were also announced. The use of the tennis courts for the next year was also a topic under discussion. Arrangements for the preservation of the courts during the winter were perfected. The meeting adjourned at ten o'clock.

PUBLIC INVITED TO GOLF CLUB BRIDGE

Colonel Bogey's Belgian Night

The Colonel said, and scratched his head,
"We must keep in the race.
We cannot let the others get the rail or set the pace.
For golf today, just now's passe,
To 'Belgian Aid' the craze,
I'll turn my hand. That blighted land
Shall have what I can raise."

As soldier too, the colonel knew,
The odds they've had to fight.
He planned a game, of well known fame.

At th' club for Belgian Night.
The price's not steep and you must keep
The object well in view.
Some family it will help see
Live this bleak winter through.

Now come ye all, both short and tall,
Tomorrow night at eight
For there will be good company,
Lo do not hesitate.

For who can know, you and your bean,
A prize may win together.
Lo crank the car, yegs, bring mamma,
And never mind the weather.

SPECIAL WORK COMMITTEE HAS DELIGHTFUL MUSICALS

The "Special Work Committee" of the Woman's Club is to be congratulated upon the unique and delightful afternoon given last Monday in the attractive and hospitable home of Mrs. Robert E. Perry.

The following program, full of contrasts, was given by Miss Harmonie David, soprano, and Miss Marion David, pianist, two young artists of charming personality for whom a promising future is predicted:

Songs of the British Isles (in costume)
(a) Nymphs and Shepherds...Purcell
(b) There was a Bonny Lass...Park
(c) The Next Market Day.....Ulster Melody

Piano Solos
(a) To the Sea.....McDowell
(b) Claire de Lune.....Debussy
Chansons de la Vieux France (in costume).

(a) Chantons les amours...Weckerlin
(b) Non, Je n'irais plus...Weckerlin
(c) Tambourin.....Weckerlin
(d) Margoton.....Old Dance Tune

Piano Solos
(a) Prelude.....Rachmaninoff
(b) Murmuring Zephyrs.....Jensen
Songs of the Orient (in costume)
(a) La Brise.....C. Saint-Saens
(b) Le Canari.....Tchaikowsky
(c) Le Nil.....X. Leroux

Each group of songs was given in a different costume which furnished a dainty and appropriate setting. The young singer possesses mental actuality, a fresh natural voice, sympathetic in quality, which she used with invariable taste and a nice appreciation of the dramatic and color values of the songs interpreted.

No less pleasing was the warmly received piano selections of Miss Marion David who combines a strong sense of rhythm with a tone full of color values a clean clear-cut technique.

After the recital a social hour of the utmost cordiality was enjoyed over the tea cups. Thanks are due to Herder Bros., for the loan of palms and to R. M. French & Son, for the loan of chairs.

Ladies Aid Society

Has "Pure Food Luncheon."

The members of Group F, of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Methodist church, held a "Pure Food Luncheon" in the chapel of the old church building on Wednesday afternoon, which was attended by about 100 persons who partook of the good things which were provided. An excellent menu of everything in the pure food line was served. In addition to the luncheon, Robert W. Rollins, of Brooklyn, under whose direction the luncheon was prepared, gave a short address on the subject of "Pure Food."

The ladies who comprise Group F, are Mrs. T. T. Harkrader, chairman; Mrs. H. L. Abrams, Mrs. E. R. Pear-sall, Mrs. E. J. Jones, Mrs. Leroy Gulick, Mrs. E. F. Keegan, Mrs. H. Lloyd, Mrs. Purcell, Mrs. H. S. Embree, Mrs. E. J. Johnson, Mrs. M. T. Townley, Mrs. Robert Crosby, Mrs. John Fisher, Mrs. S. E. Harkrader, Mrs. Paul Schladersky, Mrs. T. J. Woodring, Mrs. Hoyt and Mrs. Runyon. The luncheon was very successful both from a social and financial point of view.

MOUNTAINSIDE.

Appropriate Thanksgiving exercises were held in the Mountain-side school on Wednesday of last week. They were attended by a large number of the parents and friends of the scholars. The exercises were greatly appreciated.

The following is a list of the pupils who were neither absent nor tardy during the month of November: Mary Schultz, Helen Hageman, Alleen Hutson, Gladys Boyton, Ella Clarke, Agnes Meyerdirck, Frank Wigg, Harry Boyton, Louis Heckel, Coleridge Hutson, Herbert Lear, Martha Heckel, Muriel Hollin, Verna Lear, Adeline Meyerdirck, Russell Lear, Charles Lear, Chester Ammerman, Arnold Palmer and Atherton Kitts. The work in the school is progressing very nicely.

YOUR KIDNEYS.

Westfield Residents Must Learn The Importance of Keeping Them Well.

Perfect health means that every organ of the body is performing its functions properly.

Perfect health cannot be enjoyed if the kidneys are weak and disordered. Thousands testify that Doan's Kidney Pills have a reviving action on weak kidneys.

What this remedy has done in so many cases of this kind is the best proof of its merit.

Read the following. It's testimony gratefully given by a resident of this locality:

Mrs. S. Driscoll, 1009 S. Second St., Plainfield, N. J., says: "A dull pain across the small of my back and in my sides clung to me constantly and any hard work made me worse. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells, especially when stooping or lifting and I felt weak and run down. I tried plasters and various other remedies but nothing helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They made a lasting cure. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills just as highly today as I have been for the past five years."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Driscoll had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WESTFIELD PUBLIC SCHOOLS' HONOR ROLL

The following is a list of the Pupils of the Grant, Lincoln, McKinley and Prospect Schools who were neither tardy nor absent during the month of November:

mill work and sundry requisites, coming under this heading, I am going to see Tuttle Bros. our live and best exponents of lumber and building material. Their yards, sheds and warehouses are always filled with rough and dressed lumber of all dimensions, and the manifold articles in building material, adequate to meet the demands of an exacting public. It is needless to say that Tuttle Bros. did furnish the bill of lumber and every item for the whole job. Uncle Bill remarked that he found them very prompt and agreeable to do business with. They also handle sash doors, blinds, coal, mouldings and all kinds of mill work. They are connected by phone and are prompt to give any information asked for.

"An important institution, that lends a helping hand to the progressive and industrious, who have a desire to own their own homes is the building and loan association. In our town the Home Building & Loan Association, has attracted considerable attention because of the aid it has given house builders, not speaking of the work it has done in adding to the architectural beauty of the town," said Uncle Bill. The Home Building & Loan Association has as its officers and directors, substantial men of this town, who have been instrumental in building large and successful business enterprises. They are men whose interests are largely in the town and take great interest in its welfare. As we will need some money to complete our new home, we will go over and see E. A. Merrill, the secretary, and learn what requirements are necessary, to secure a loan from the Home Building and Loan Association. They are nice people to deal with and besides getting a loan from them, we will also make a good investment that will pay us in after years," insisted Uncle Bill.

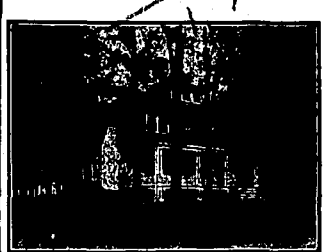

"About the plumbing, remarked Uncle Bill; 'we can't use too much care; for good health and many comforts are dependent upon sanitation and heating, and when coupled with the use of porcelain bath tubs, good sinks and handsome and appropriate fixtures, to say nothing of conveniences, they combine a pleasing interior finish, which is most desirable. Now to avoid encountering any trouble in after years I am going to have John L. Miller, at 23 Prospect street, execute the plumbing and heating.' Then we can expect a square deal, for this is the reputation that John L. Miller, the plumber, has won, with a cognizant public for doing things, and he has every facility at hand for executing contracts promptly, too. He installs steam, hot water and hot air heaters and is an expert in his line of work. He does sheet metal work and carries a good stock of material for repairs. When desired, Mr. Miller installs the Honeywell Temperature Regulator, with steam and hot water heating. This keeps the rooms at a desired temperature, day or night, as it opens or closes the drafts automatically. These regulators have given great satisfaction wherever Mr. Miller has installed them."

"In my earlier days," remarked Uncle Bill, "the practical use of electricity was unknown: It did not enter into the construction of a building at all, but it is different today. Electricity is necessary to the construction of a modern home. The conveniences that it affords are manifold. Now about the electrical work and fixtures, I am going to see H. B. Miller's Sons, at 151 Broad street, our wide awake and efficient, electrical contractors and dealers in electrical supplies, who will install the fixtures for electrical service, supply chandeliers and fixtures exquisite in taste and appropriateness, and do everything right. They can also supply so many devices so convenient in the household, including electric irons, toasters, washing machines, vacuum sweepers and dozens of labor-saving devices. This house has been over thirty-five years in the electric business. They do everything electrical and are equipped for subserving the best interests of the people and deal in electrical supplies and fixtures suitable for any class of building; do all kinds of repairing, and they enjoy an extensive patronage."

"It is the task of the painter and decorator, too, that counts very much in obtaining artistic and harmonious results," chipped in the bride. For, she said, "it is the painting and decorating, when executed by capable artisans, that augment the attractiveness of the interior and exterior of the house, rendering it pleasing and inviting."

Then, interrupted Uncle Bill, "I shall take no chances on botching, but I'll see H. Russell & Company, Inc. about this work, they also carry a full line of wall paper and mouldings and are exclusive in their line. They are artists in this work, employing all competent men, who work with dexterity, and if we give the decorating and painting to H. Russell & Company, Inc., the live general contractors in painting and decorating, we can rest assured of getting good workmanship and a well finished interior, decorated in shipshape style, at a reasonable cost, too, said Uncle Bill."

THE RESIDENCE BUILT BY UNCLE BILL ON THE PEARSALL CO., TRACT AMONG THE TREES.

"Well, we have the range in the kitchen and the heater in the cellar and now we must have coal to get any service from them," suggested the bride. "Why, of course," said Uncle Bill, "and there is just one place to order it from, and that is P. Traynor, whose office and store is at 58 Elm street, his yard and branch office is at North avenue and Elmer street. He sells all sizes of the best coal and when we order from P. Traynor we are sure to get the best quality and full weight. His coal is well screened and he is always prompt in delivering, too," insisted Uncle Bill. "I know this firm to be very particular, not only in the excellence of their product, but in business dealings, too. We will order now before the cold weather sets in. P. Traynor also sells poultry and pigeon foods, condition powders and everything for dogs, horses and cattle. They carry a full line of incubators and brooders, also, and many articles for the barn yard and poultry runs. They are a square house to deal with," said Uncle Bill assuringly.

"Well, it's up to me to furnish your new residence," remarked Uncle Bill, and it shall be furnished in just as good taste and as completely as your judgment or taste will permit, or displease. "How grand," she exclaimed, beaming with joy and expectancy. Uncle Bill then bade the young couple to go with him to R. M. French & Son, at 6 Elm Street, our live exponents of furniture and well informed house furnishers, where is handled everything that is smart, useful and dainty, needed to fit out the cottage or mansion, on whatever scale desired. The trio were politely received at the store, where, after conferring with one of the firm, they soon selected some exquisite furniture, carpets, rugs, easy chairs, rockers, jardener stools, comforters, waste paper baskets and a telephone table. They got something for every room in the house. They selected among other things a fine kitchen cabinet, and dozens of articles so useful in the home. Hence the progressive R. M. French & Son, got the order to fit the house from the top to the bottom. "Good square house to deal with," said Uncle Bill, upon leaving, "and this firm also does upholstering, carpet cleaning and mattress renovating."

"Next I must have some china, glassware, aluminum ware and a manifold list of housefurnishing goods and kitchen utensils, remarked the bride.

"Why, of course," rejoined Uncle Bill, "and I presume you will want some cutlery and a hundred and one articles needed when a young couple go to housekeeping. Well, for these we will go to the Westfield Hardware Company, at the corner of Broad and Elm street, our best ordered hardware and housefurnishing goods store."

Westfield. They have just unpacked some new and very pretty chinaware and cut and etched glassware. Here you will find the latest and best articles for your culinary department, and a large stock from which to select. This is the same firm that sold us the building hardware, paints, etc., for our new residence. The Westfield Hardware Company carries a very complete line in tools, pottery, implements and polishes of all kinds, besides their general hardware and housefurnishing goods. C. A. Magee, the president, has just bought this company and intends to conduct the business on modern methods. The large line of patrons has been gathered from an exacting public and is growing each year. I see they are having a sale on the Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets, on dollar a week payments. We will be sure to take advantage of this liberal offer," said Uncle Bill, before they are all gone."

"By the way," said Uncle Bill, with evident seriousness, "since we have spent all of this money in building and furnishing a new home, it would be a grave oversight for us to delay the matter of insurance. I think we had better go post haste and see the Mortgage, Realty & Investment Company, at 7 Prospect street, who will relieve us of all apprehensions and suspense. They represent the best and staunchest fire, automobile accident, liability and plate glass insurance companies in the world, from which we may choose. They are the wide-awake and alert underwriters who yearly write a large volume of insurance. They have been in the business many years and are careful that every policy-holder is dealt with in a fair and liberal way in the adjustment of all honest claims. They represent the staunchest companies in existence. They are very accommodating and agreeable men to deal with, and we cannot make a mistake in placing our insurance through this agency," said Uncle Bill assuringly.

"It certainly is a comfort to be able to have all the details taken care of so efficiently in one office—you remember that they drew the contract of sale, made the search, drafted the deed, and took all the responsibility and worry from our shoulders."

"There is one thing I have neglected, so far," piped Uncle Bill. "Young people are, in a measure, more ambitious than our old fellows and you will want to see some of the country, now and then, after your day's work is done. I have in mind to present you with an Overland 1915 car. Hiram L. Fink, proprietor of the Westfield Garage, at 135 Elm street, says there is more automobile value in an Overland or Peerless car than any other cars on the market for the price. Mr. Fink's recommendation means a lot to me, because he understands the good points in all cars and knows what he is talking about. This is the Peerless and Overland Agency in this section and we can purchase a car from Hiram L. Fink. Besides, at this modern garage you can have your car housed, all repairs made, kept in good condition and brought to your door when you need it. Come, we will go over and call on Mr. Fink and have him demonstrate his cars and give us a spin in one this afternoon," insisted Uncle Bill. "This house also has autos for hire, manufacture automobile tops, fine carriages, wagons and harness."

"Since I have secured you an outfit of wearing apparel, I must go the whole figure and get you a pair of shoes, also," said the liberal uncle. "And there is just one place to buy, to suit you, and that is Ernest T. Hand's popular shoe store, located at 109 Broad street. Here we will find everything that is smart in shoe style. Samuel E. Fields, manages this business and he handles shoes exclusively, and the finest makes, representing the most celebrated manufacturers, are to be found on his shelves. These are warranted perfect in fit, of highest quality material, the best workmanship and the latest styles and are guaranteed to wear comfortably and well. This store handles shoes for men, women, misses and children and they have the largest assortment in this section. Mr. Fields makes a business of selling particular shoes to particular people, and his long list of patrons is drawn from an exacting public." Jenny was soon proud in the possession of a pair of "Dorothy Dodd" shoes and a handsome pair of slippers, while Bert selected a fine pair of Slater & Morrill's men's shoes. They were well pleased with their purchases.

es. "Fine people to deal with and a nice store, too," said Uncle Bill as they again entered the street.

"Next you want to recommend a good market," said Jennie to Uncle Bill, "one that I can depend upon all the time." "Well, for good meats, honest weights and a nice all-around place to trade," advised Uncle Bill, smiling good-naturedly, Geo. M. Scudder, Inc., sea food, vegetable and meat market is where you want to trade. There you will find, every day in the week, the choicest and best fresh and cured meats that money, experience and vigilant effort can obtain. The best and fattest cattle, veal and lambs are bought for the patrons of this market and supplied fresh daily. Every article is provided with a view of meeting in every particular the demands of a long list of exacting patrons. This is an old established market, where the best quality of meat is served and any cuts desired for domestic use may be had here, as well as the finest poultry, fruits, vegetables and everything for the table. Geo. M. Scudder's market is equipped with ample cold storage and maintains good delivery service, and considering all in all, the basis upon which this market is catering to the public, it fully merits the run of business accorded to it, and the good name that so many give it," said Uncle Bill, assuringly.

"Well, the next question on the docket," ventured Uncle Bill to Jennie, "is to arrange for the larder. It is the housewife's sequel to maintaining the good graces of the men folks. Now for select table groceries and provisions and toothsome table delicacies, imported fruits, fine cheeses, condiments and vegetables of every kind, you go to the Phoenix Stores Company Grocery, whose headquarters are at 33 Elm street, the place that furnishes the table complete. They conduct a well appointed and completely stocked fancy grocery, where there is always shown a varied assortment of the most tempting good things to eat, including the finest coffee, canned fruits and vegetables and many other articles carried exclusively at this store. The patrons come from every nook and corner hereabouts and presumably for a reason. Perhaps it is because they appreciate the superior and correct ways that characterize the business dealings of The Phoenix Stores Company, our wide-awake and well-versed grocerymen and purveyor of the larder," said Uncle Bill, assuringly.

"Oh, Uncle!" exclaimed Jenny, "I would love to see a moving picture show. We have none in Virginia, near our home and I have read a much about them."

"We'll fix that," replied Uncle Bill, "A good one is right here, the 'Playhouse' on Elm street. It is a popular place of amusement in Westfield and one that has enjoyed a large patronage that is constantly growing. The very best pictures, many of which are exclusive reels and never shown before elsewhere, are exhibited at the Playhouse. The theatre is always kept neat and clean and is patronized by the best people of this vicinity. William J. Bogert, Jr., the manager, has had wide experience in the professional line and selects the subjects in the way of features for the entertainment, with a view of pleasing and educating his audiences. Every day is a feature day at the Playhouse. Next Tuesday, Dec. 8th, 'Shore Acres' will be shown in five reels, with Charles A. Stevenson taking the leading part. This is an interesting New England story of Maine farm life, as well as a touch of the sea. No one should miss it. The picture is true to life, full of stirring episodes and keeps the audience interested from start to finish. There is never a dull entertainment at the Playhouse, always something new. We will go and see 'Shore Acres' as I am sure you will like it," said Uncle Bill.

"As we are going to the Playhouse to see Shore Acres, we may as well stay down town and take lunch at the Kate Greenaway before going to the theatre," said Uncle Bill. "The Kate Greenaway is a popular and well appointed catering establishment, where the good things of life are prepared in a home like manner and served in an attractive style. They serve a special lunch or dinner, between the hours of 12:00 M. and 2:30 P. M., and special meals, sandwiches, cakes, pies, etc., at any time during the day. The dining room has a large seating capacity and is patronized by the best people of the town. Business and professional men, who are unable to get home for lunch, find the Kate Greenaway an excellent place to take their meals. It is in charge of skilled housewives and everything served is tasty and well prepared. On Thursday and Friday evenings, special maid's 'day out' dinners are served, and a business men's supper is special on Saturday evenings. One of the chief attractions is home-baked pastry, cakes, rolls and preserves, made by the ladies of Westfield for the Women's Exchange, which is also conducted under the same roof. The Kate Greenaway is closed Sundays, except for especially ordered dinners or suppers. They make a specialty in catering for weddings, social gatherings, house parties, etc., in a home-like manner. Their service is equal to any in the big cities, and their service and provision in Westfield in some of the best homes, has received the highest award of praise."

At this juncture Bert complained of the saw edge on his collar. "Oh, yes, uncle, I want you to recommend a reliable laundry," said Jennie. "Bert is positively cranky about his linen." "All right," said Uncle Bill, as he laughed heartily. "If you will call up,

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Detail.

Across the plain purple shadows were sweeping, close-ranked, like some vast dark army invading the land, pouring on over the rampart of mountains in the east.

Within the rim of hills that ringed the plain like the chipped and broken flange of a titanic saucer, silence brooded and solitude held away—dwarfing the town of Detail that occupied the approximate middle of the sagebrush waste, to proportions even less significant than might be inferred from the candor of its christening.

A platform, a siding, a water tank, a Wells-Fargo office and a telegraph and ticket office, backed by three rough frame buildings; that is Detail itemized completely.

Shortly after nightfall the steel ribbons of the Santa Fe began to hum. A headlight peered suspiciously round a shoulder of the eastern range, took heart of courage to find the plain still wrapped in peace, and trudged stolidly toward Detail, the engine whose eye it was pulling after it a string of freight cars, both flat and box.

At Detail the train paused. Its crew alighted and engaged in animated argument. Detail gathered that the excitement was due to the unaccountable disappearance of the caboose; none seemed to have any notion as to how it could have broken loose; yet missing it conspicuously was.

In the pause that followed, while a report was telegraphed to headquarters and instructions returned to proceed without delay, one of the trainmen spied a boyish figure lurking in the open door of an empty box car. Cunningly boarding this car from the opposite side, the trainman caught the skulker unawares and booted him valiantly into the night.

As the figure alighted and took to its heels, losing itself in the darkness, it uttered a cry of pained surprise and protest which drew a wrinkle of astonishment between the brows of the trainman.

"Sounded like a woman's voice," he mused; then dismissed the suggestion as obviously absurd.

It was not. Shortly after the freight train had gone on its way—before, indeed, the glimmer of its rear lights had been lost among the western hills—a second headlight appeared in the east, swept swiftly across the plain and in turn stopped at Detail.

The second bird-of-passage proved to be a locomotive drawing a single car—a Pullman.

Hardly had it run past the switch, however, when the brakeman dropped down, ran quickly back to the switch and threw it open.

Promptly the train backed on to the siding.

As the Pullman jolted across the frogs the brakeman, interposing himself between it and the tender, released the coupling.

By the time that the Pullman had come to a full stop on the siding, the locomotive was swinging westward like a scared jackrabbit—though no such milk-and-water characterization of the traitor passed the lips of any one of the three men who presently appeared on the Pullman's platform and shook impotent fists in the direction taken by the fugitive engine.

When the last of these had run temporarily out of breath and blasphemy, a brief silence fell, punctuated by groans from each, and concluded by the sound of a voice calling from the interior of the car—a voice as strangely sonorous of tone as it was curiously querulous of accent.

The three men immediately ran back into the car and presented themselves with countenances variously apologetic, to one who occupied a corner of the drawing room: a man wrapped in a steamer rug and a cloud of fury.

Now when he had drained the muddy froth of profanity from his temper it left a clear and effervescent well of virulent humor: the wrath of the valetudinarian began to vent itself upon the hapless heads of the trio who stood before him.

While this was in process, the person of boyish appearance, who had been keeping religiously aloof and inconspicuous in the background of Detail ever since that unhappy affair with the trainman, stole quietly up to the rear of the stalled Pullman, climbed aboard, and creeping down the aisle unceremoniously interrupted the conference just as the invalid was polishing off a rude but honest opinion of the intellectual caliber of one of the three named Marrophat, who figured as his right-hand man and familiar genius.

"Amen to that!" the boyish person ejaculated with candid fervor, lounging gracelessly in the doorway. "There's many a true word spoken in wrath, Mr. Marrophat. Father forgot only one thing—your mastery way with a revolver. From what I've seen of that, this day, I'll go bail that the only safe place for a man you pull a gun on is right in front of the muzzle. There's something downright uncanny in the way you can hit anything but what you aim at!"

"Judith!" exclaimed the invalid.

"Where did you drop from?"

"From that freight," Judith explained carelessly, neglecting to elucidate the exact fashion of her drop. "I judged you'd be along presently, and thought I'd like to learn the news. Well—what luck?"

Her father shrugged with his one movable shoulder. Mr. Marrophat grunted indignantly. The others shuffled uneasily and looked all ways but one—at the girl in man's clothing.

"None?" Judith interpreted. "You don't mean to tell me that after I had taken all that trouble—cast the caboose loose in the middle of that trestle at the risk of my life—you didn't have the nerve to go through with the business!"

"We went through with it all right," replied Marrophat defensively; "but as usual, they were too quick for us. They jumped out and dropped off the trestle before our engine hit the caboose. We smashed that to kindling wood—but they got away just in time to miss the crash. And by the time we had stopped and calmed down the engineer—well, it was dark and no way of telling which way they had run."

The girl started to speak, but merely dropped limp hands at her sides and rolled her eyes helplessly.

"We do our best," Marrophat observed. "We can't be blamed if something—somehow—always happens to tip the others off."

The girl swung to face him with blazing eyes. "Just what does that mean?" she demanded in a dangerous voice.

Marrophat lifted his shoulders. "Nothing—much," he allowed. "I am only thinking how strange it is that Mr. Law can't be caught by any sort of stratagem—when you are on the job, Miss Judith!"

The girl's hands were clenched into fists, white knuckles showing through the flesh. "You contemptible puppy!" she snapped.

But on this her voice failed; for her eyes traveled past the person of Mr. Marrophat to the doorway of the drawing room and found it framing a stranger.

"Excuse me, friends," he offered in a lazy, semi-humorous drawl. "It pains me considerable to butt in on this happy family gathering, but business is business, same as usual, and I got to ask you all to please put up your hands!"

"What do you want?" the invalid demanded.

"Why," drawled the bandit, "nothing in particular—only your cash. Shell out, if you please—gents all and the lady, too." He ran an appreciative glance down the figure which Judith's disguise revealed rather than concealed. "If you'll pardon my takin'

"Give me a thousand on account," said the other, "and a paper saying you'll pay me nineteen thousand more in exchange for it and one dead man, properly identified as the one you want—signed by you—and your man's as good as dead this minute, providing he's in riding distance of this here car."

Trine waved his hand at his secretary. "Jimmy, find a thousand dollars for this gentleman. Make out the paper he indicates for the balance, and I'll sign it."

"Ain't you powerful trustful, Mr. Trine? How do you know I'll do anything more'n pocket that thousand and fade delicately away?"

"My daughter and this gentleman, Mr. Marrophat, will accompany you."

"Oh, that's the way of it, is it?"

"Name?" interjected the secretary, writing busily with the top of his attaché case for a desk.

"Slade," said the bandit, "James Slade." Again Trine punctured the atmosphere with his index finger. "The man whose life I want is named Alan Law. He is running away with my daughter, Rose, accompanied by a person named Barcus, disguised as a Pullman porter."

"The three of them having recent escaped from a train wreck up yonder on the trestle?" Hopi Jim interposed.

"You've met them?" Judith demanded, whirling round.

"About an hour ago, or maybe an hour and a half," Hopi Jim replied, "a good ways down the road. They stopped and ast where they could get put up for the night. I kindly directed them on to Mesa, down in the Painted hills yonder."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Fireplay.

Contented with the promise of a thousand dollars advance on his contract, providing he returned with horses within a stipulated time, Mr. Hopi James Slade drifted quietly away into the desert night.

Well content, persuaded that the morrow's sun would never set upon a world tenanted by one Alan Law, that monomaniac, Seneca Trine, forgot his recent ill temper and set himself diplo-night, the girl maneuvered her horse to the side of Hopi Jim, and then dropped back, permitting Marrophat to lead the way with Texas.

As deliberately she set herself to work upon the bandit's susceptibility to her charms.

Within an hour she had him ready to do anything to win her smile.

In that first rush of golden day athwart the land, the party came quietly into the town of Mesa, riding slowly in order that the noise of their approach might not warn the fugitives, who Hopi asserted confidently would still be sound asleep in the accommodations offered by the town's one hotel.

It was to be termed a town only in courtesy, this Mesa: a straggling street of shacks, ramshackle relics of what had once been a promising community, the half-way station between the railroad and the mining camps secreted in the fastnesses of the Painted hills—camps now abandoned, their very names almost faded out of the memory of mankind.

Midway in this string of edifices the hotel stood—a rough, unpainted, wooden edifice, mainly veranda and bar-room as to its lower floor.

Jealously Judith watched the windows of the second floor; and she alone of the four detected the face that showed for one brief instant well back in the shadows beyond one of the bedroom windows—a face that glimmered momentarily with the pallor of a ghost's against the background of that obscurity, and then was gone.

Her eyes alone, indeed, could have recognized the features of Alan Law in that fugitive glimpse.

Two sentences exchanged between Hopi Jim and a bear-eyed fellow whom he roused from sudden slumbers behind the bar sealed their confidence with conviction: the three fugitives were in fact guests of the house, occupying two of the three rooms that composed its upper story.

In the rush that followed up the narrow stairway, Judith led with such spirit that not even Marrophat suspected her revolver was poised solely with intent to shoot from his hand his own revolver the instant he leveled it at a human target.

Closed and locked doors confronted them; and their summons echoed no response; while the first door, when broken in by a whole-souled kick, discovered nothing more satisfactory than an empty room, its bed bearing the imprint of a woman's body, but that woman gone.

From the one window, looking down the side of the house, Texas announced that the woman had not escaped by jumping out.

So it seemed that the three must have had warning of their arrival, after all; and presumably were now herded together in the adjoining room, which looked out over the veranda roof, waiting in fear and trembling for the assault that must soon come—and in fact immediately did.

But it met with more stubborn resistance than had been anticipated. The door had been barricaded from within—re-enforced by furniture placed against it. Four minutes and the united efforts of four men (including the beary loafer of the barroom) were required to overcome its inert resistance. But even when it was down, the room was found to be as empty as the first.

Only the fingers of two hands gripping the edge of the veranda roof showed the way the fugitives had flown; and these vanished instantly as the room was invaded.

Followed a swift rush of hoofs down the dusty street, and a chorus of blasphemy in the hotel hallway; for Judith had headed the concerted rush for the staircase and contrived to block it for a full half minute by pretending to stumble and twist her ankle.

In spite of that alleged injury, she never limped, and wasn't a yard behind the first who broke from the hotel to the open, nor yet appreciably behind him in vaulting to saddle.

Well up the road a cloud of smoky dust half obscured the shapes of three who rode for their very lives.

The pursuit was off in a twinkling and well bunched—Marrophat's mount leading by a nose, Judith second, Hopi Jim and Texas but little in the rear. And in the first rush they seemed to gain; moment by moment they drew up on the flying cloud of dust.

Judith heard an oath muttered beside her and saw Marrophat jerking a revolver from its holster. The weapon swept up and to a level; but as the hammer fell, Judith's horse caromed heavily against the other, swinging it half a dozen feet aside, and deflecting the bullet hopelessly.

The shock of collision was so great that Marrophat kept his seat with difficulty. He turned toward Judith a face livid with rage.

Simultaneously, as if taking the shot as the signal for a fusillade, Judith saw Alan lean back over his horse's rump and open fire.

An instant later his companion, Barcus, imitated his example.

In immediate consequence, Texas, dropped reins, slumped forward over the pommel, wobbled weakly in his saddle for a moment, then losing the stirrups, pitched headlong to the ground; while Hopi Jim's horse stopped short, precipitating his rider overhead, and dropped dead.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

The Upper Trail.

In the ten minutes' delay necessitated by this reverse, a number of more or less innocent bystanders poked up the man Texas and carried him off to breathe his last beneath a root; Hopi Jim poked himself up, brushed his person tolerably clear of clouds of dust and profanity, and departed in search of a mount to replace the horse that had been shot under him; and Judith sat her horse calmly, smiling sweet insolence into the exasperated countenance of Marrophat.

Incidentally the fugitives disappeared round a bend in the road that led directly into the wild and barren heart of the Painted hills.

In the brief interval that elapsed before his return with Hopi Jim, Marrophat contrived to persuade the bandit that Judith had been, at least indirectly, responsible for the catastrophe with the upshot that, temporarily blinded to her fascinations by the glitter of nineteen thousand dollars in the near distance, Mr. Slade maintained his distance and a deaf ear to her blandishments. The only information as to their purpose that she was able to extract from either man, when the pursuing party turned aside from the main trail, some distance from Mesa, was that Hopi Jim knew a short cut through the range, via what he termed the upper trail, by which they hoped to be able to head the fugitives off before they could gain the desert on the far side of the hills.

Only at long intervals did they draw rein to permit Hopi Jim to make reconnaissance of the lower trail that threaded the valley on the far side of the ridge.

Toward noon he returned in haste from the last of these surveys, scrambling recklessly down the mountain-side and throwing himself upon his horse with the advice:

"We've headed 'em—can make it now if we ride like all get-out!"

For half an hour more they pushed on at the best speed to be obtained from their weary animals, at length drawing rein at a point where the trail crossed the ridge and widened out upon a long, broad ledge that overhung the valley of the lower trail, with a clear drop to the latter from the brink of a good two hundred feet.

One hasty look back and down into the valley evoked a grunt of satisfaction from Hopi Jim.

"Just in time," he asserted. "Here they come! Ten minutes more . . ."

His smile answered Marrophat's with unspeakable cruel significance.

"Texas will sleep better tonight when he knows how I've squared the deal for him!" the bandit declared.

"What are you going to do?" Judith demanded, reining her horse in beside Marrophat as the latter dismounted.

A gesture drew her attention to a huge boulder poised insecurely on the very lip of the chasm.

"We're going to tip that over on your friends, Miss Judith!" Marrophat replied, with a smack of relish in his voice. "Simple—neat—efficient—eh? What more can you ask?"

She answered only with an irrepressible gesture of horror. Marrophat's laugh followed her as she turned away.

For some moments she strained her vision vainly, endeavoring to penetrate the turbulent currents of superheated air that filled the valley. Then she made out indistinctly the faintly marked line of the lower trail; and immediately she caught a glimpse of three small figures, mounted, toiling painfully toward the point where death awaited them like a bolt from the blue.

Hastily she glanced over-shoulder: Hopi Jim and Marrophat, ignoring her, were straining themselves against the boulder without budging it an inch, for all its apparent nicety of poise. For an instant a wild hope flashed through her mind, but it was immediately exorcised when Hopi Jim stepped back and uttered a few words of which only "two—dynamite" and "fuse"—reached her ears.

Kneeling beside the boulder he dug busily for an instant, then lodged the stick to his satisfaction, attached the fuse, and breaking off, edged on his belly to the edge of the cliff and looked down, carefully calculating the length of the fuse by the distance of the party down below from the spot where the rock must fall.

But while he was so engaged and Marrophat aided him, all eager interest, Judith was taking advantage of their disregard of her.

Hurriedly unbuttoning her jacket, she whipped a playing card from her pocket, a trey o' hearts, and with the stub of a pencil scribbled three words on its face—"Danger! Go back!"

Then finding a small, flatish bit of rock, she bound the card to it with a bit of string; and with one more backward glance to make sure she was not watched, approached the brink.

Hopi Jim was meticulously shortening the fuse, Marrophat kneeling by his side.

In the canyon below the three were within two minutes of the danger point.

It was no trick at all to drop the stone so that it fell within a dozen feet of the leading horseman.

She saw him rein in suddenly, dismount, cast a look aloft, then dismount and pick up the warning.

As the others joined him, he detached the card and showed it to them.

At the same time Hopi Jim and Marrophat jumped up and ran back, each seizing and holding his horse by nose and bridle.

Constrained to do likewise lest she lose her mount, Judith waited with a lightened heart.

The explosion smote dull echoes from the flanks of the Painted hills, all drawing in the noon-day hush; the boulder teetered reluctantly on the brink, then disappeared with a tearing sound followed by a rush of earth and gravel; a wide gap appeared in the brink of the trail.

Leaving Marrophat to hold the two frightened horses while the girl soothed her own, the bandit rushed to notice," he amended. "Perhaps I wouldn't if the lady's clothes didn't fit her so all-fired quick!"

"Keep a civil tongue in your head, my man!" Judith counseled, without any show of fear.

At the same time her father's voice brought her to her senses.

"Judith! Be quiet. Let me deal with this gentleman. I am sure we can come to some arrangement."

"You bet your life," agreed the gentleman as the girl mutinously stepped back. "I know what I want, and you all know you got it, so the name of the said arrangement is just 'shell out.'"

"One minute," the invalid interposed. "Don't misunderstand me: I guarantee you shall be amply satisfied. I give you my word—the word of Seneca Trine."

The eyes of the bandit widened. "No? Is that so? Seneca Trine, the railroad king? Sure's you're born you're him: I've seen your picture in the papers a dozen times. Well, now, it looks like I'd drawn a full house to this pair of deuces, don't it? You ought to be able to pay something handsome—"

"I'll pay you far more handsomely than you dream of if you'll do as I wish," Trine interrupted quickly. "Do me the service I wish—and name your price: whatever it is, you shall have it!"

"Nothing could be fairer'n that!" the two-gun man admitted suspiciously. "But what's the number of this here service—like you call it?"

"Listen to me," Trine bent his head forward and jabbed the air with an emphatic forefinger. "What's the life of a man worth in this neck of the woods?"

"How much you got?"

"I'll pay you ten thousand dollars for the life of the man I will name."

The eyes of the bandit narrowed. "Hold on, my friend: is that what you call my naming my own price?"

"Name it, then," said Trine.

matically to adjust the differences between his daughter, Judith, and his first lieutenant, Marrophat.

It was no facile task: Marrophat could not be trusted to work with a single mind because of his infatuation for Judith; Judith could no more be trusted faithfully to serve out her vow to bring Alan Law to her father's feet, alive or dead, because—O cruel irony of Fate!—she herself had fallen in love with that same man whose death she had pledged herself to compass.

Only when, as now, half mad with jealousy, determined to see Alan dead rather than yield him to the woman he loved, her sister, might Judith be counted upon to serve her father in his lust for vengeance as he would be served—and even so not without Marrophat at her elbow to egg her on through her resentment of his surveillance.

Neither could be trusted, indeed, to work alone to the desired consummation; for Trine had secret reason to fear lest Marrophat might, given opportunity, connive at Alan's escape in order that he might marry Rose and so throw Judith back into his, Marrophat's, arms.

Poor, deluded fool!

Such was the private comment of Marrophat's master.

For all that, it was the man and not his daughter, whom Trine designated to lead the expedition, cunningly counting on Judith's chagrin to work upon her passions and excite her to one last, mad, blind attempt that should prove successful.

Smiling his secret smile, Trine announced his decision at the last moment, while Hopi Jim waited with his horses and an assistant—one Texas—for whose utter innocence of sorcery Mr. Slade unhesitatingly vouched.

Subtly submissive, at least in outward seeming, Judith bowed to this decision, marched out of the car, and suffered Marrophat to help her mount her horse.

Now, deliberately, as the little cavalcade rode through the moonlit desert or send for the Westfield Steam and Hand Laundry, you need have no apprehension. It has been doing my work for a long time, and I find it the best and most prompt in these parts. It is modern in equipment, where the most sanitary rules are observed continually. The busy delivery wagons are seen scaling the corners at a double quick gait all over town every day, gathering up or delivering its work faultlessly laundried to a legion of customers. Besides, George H. Losey, the proprietor and his corps of assistants are ever prompt, alert and pleasant in managing the business affairs, whether it is for local or out of town customers, that are reached by agents at all tributary points.

Oh, yes, uncle, you were to take us for a drive," said Jennie.

"Yes, yes, so I was, and I will keep my word, too," said Uncle Bill. Just then a pair of spirited steeds drawing a substantial and attractive trap, with fine trappings, drew up in front of the house. "This rig came from W. H. Barton's stables, our best out at a reasonable price, and it is equipped with livery stable man here," continued Uncle Bill. "It is truly a commodious and well ordered stable in every particular, where are kept good vehicles for all uses, and good horses, too, including some 'high steppers,' let out at a reasonable price, and it is this kind of business effort that has brought this popular stable under the management of W. H. Barton into good standing with the public and made it deserving of the good will and patronage of which it is the recipient," said Uncle Bill. "This concern rents touring cars by the day or hour, rents coaches for weddings, receptions, etc., and operates a boarding and exchange stable."

"Next we will go to Bauman's studio, Broad street and Central avenue, and sit for a dozen of his celebrated photos, the kind that have a tendency to soften the hard lines in the picture and give the subject a cleaner complexion," suggested Uncle Bill, "for nothing recalls reminiscences of the honeymoon in after years, so vividly as a good photograph and one taken at Bauman's studio will be a real likeness of you. Mr. Bauman, who is in charge, is not a 'camera snapper,' but a portrait photographer, as specimens on exhibition at the pleasantly arranged studio will attest. That all photographs are alike, capable of achieving the same results, is no more true than pen, ink and paper make the same author," said Uncle Bill. This studio, aside from an ample and thoroughly equipped establishment, turns out the finest class of portrait work. Mr. Bauman, not only possesses the art of posing, but understands the worth of perception as well, which distinguishes him as more than a portrait artist and makes for this studio more than a local man.

Jenny next asked where the best millinery store was. "You just mentioned it in time," rejoined Uncle Bill, "for this is the principal one right here," pointing to the millinery parlors of John M. Emberton, at 110 East Broad street. "It is an inviting and pleasantly appointed millinery parlor, where the same new effects and latest creations appear simultaneously with their display in the metropolitan cities. So zealously does Mr. Emberton guard the interests of his patrons, that he visits New York's best importing houses every week and brings back the latest Parisian styles and latest creations in hats. The large, varied and attractive lines of millinery were so tasty and dainty, also reasonable, that Jenny soon succumbed to a nobby and exquisite new hat. "This establishment is held in high many machines among their patrons. They carry the Reading Standard, Queen City, Arrow and Dart bicycles which have found a ready sale on the market and are giving good service. They carry a large stock of Havoline oil, gasoline and other mobile necessities. Urban & Hohenstein are square people to deal with and their recommendation means a good serviceable article and at a reasonable price, too," said Uncle Bill.

"Well, Jennie, since you are a bride, it is fitting that I should send home a nice bouquet of flowers and some pots of plants for the house, including a nice palm and fern. Herder Brothers at 766 Prospect street, have very modern greenhouses and supply the finest floral decorations of every description and for all occasions. Besides ordering for the house now we had better consult Herder Brothers as to the necessary bulbs, plants and vines we will need to set out in our lawn and garden. Many of the best residence properties in this vicinity and in surrounding towns, have been beautified by the handiwork of Herder Brothers, who make a specialty of landscape gardening and beautifying lawns, as well as supplying trees, plants, vines, bulbs and flowers. They have a thorough knowledge of their business. I know of no one who can supply us with better quality and more thrifty plants, bulbs and seeds, as well as give us valuable information in this line than Herder Brothers, said Uncle Bill, knowingly.

This firm supplies cut flowers, funeral designs and floral decorations, for any purpose and cater to a large list of patrons, who appreciate their artistic decorations.

"I understand you are an accomplished musician," said Uncle Bill to the bride. Jenny finally admitted that she played the piano. "That's good," said Uncle Bill. "Every home that has music in it is the happier. Nothing affords more real pleasure or entertainment in life, than does good music."

"Yes, Uncle, I want a 'Mehlin' piano in my parlor. Most of my friends back in Virginia have it. It is exquisite in tone and volume and a beautiful instrument."

"Your wish shall be granted," said Uncle Bill. "The 'Mehlin' piano is handled in Westfield by W. T. Reger, who has his show rooms at 111 Prospect street, where a large line of Mehlin Pianos and player-pianos are displayed in various styles of cabinets. He also sells Victrolas, the hornless talking machine, together with a large assortment of records. He does tuning and repairing also. Mr. Reger's dealings are always pleasant and business-like, and he carries a very complete stock of musical goods. He has a large assortment of records for player-pianos as well as Victrolas. His terms are always reasonable and he is an agreeable fellow to deal with, too," said Uncle Bill assuringly.

"You will find in your shopping tours, that where you can buy your table necessities in one place you not only save time, but money also," said Uncle Bill.

"One of the successful and well conducted establishments in Westfield, that caters to a large patronage, is P. J. Windfeldt's meat, grocery and vegetable market. This is a very large store and they do a very large business, consequently their stock is always fresh and good. It is one of the few places that sell everything for the table and their prices are as low as possible for the quality of goods they serve. In their grocery department are found the finest coffee, canned fruit, cheeses, condiments and vegetables of every kind, and in the meat department are the choicest and best fresh and cured meats to be found on the market. Mr. Windfeldt has had many years experience in the meat and grocery business and his knowledge of the market enables him to select the best and he knows what to buy to please his long list of exacting patrons, too. The presentable and well-stocked premises at once mirrors the business tact of P. J. Windfeldt and bespeaks the volume of business tendered this establishment by housewives who appreciate quality, in the supplies for their larder and the necessities for their table," insisted Uncle Bill.

"Barnard's Home Made Bread is supplied at this store. This bread is baked in a scrupulously clean and hygienic bakery and is original in taste, flavor and goodness."

"I purchased a lot in Fairview Cemetery a long time ago, and when we laid your Aunt Kate away last year, I had it put in beautiful shape, with a fine monument," said Uncle Bill. "Who buried Aunt Kate?" asked Jenny.

"Why, Mr. E. N. Brown, the funeral director, who has his office and undertaking rooms, on Elm street, said Uncle Bill. "He is one of the best known funeral directors in the county. His establishment is always in condition to render prompt and efficient service. Mr. Brown leaves nothing to chance. His long experience has enabled him to provide for all contingencies that are likely to arise and funerals conducted by him are noted for the smoothness and harmony of their ceremonies. As an embalmer he adopts the most modern methods and his skill in this important department of his profession is the result of thorough knowledge and long experience. He makes interments in any cemetery and also arranges for out-of-town funerals and when desired will take entire charge of the funeral arrangements and relieve the family of all responsibility in the matter. pressive. The grave was opened and the earth removed from the place during the ceremony. The grave was lined with greens and was also surrounded by plants, vines and flowers. The casket was lowered automatically into its last resting place and everything passed along so nicely, that it was over before we really knew it," said Uncle Bill.

"What beautiful floral decorations," were the remarks made by many of the guests at the "housewarming" reception given by the bride. "Yes," remarked the happy bride, "they were furnished by Herder Brothers at 766 Prospect street. I understand they are one of the foremost designers in floral decorations and they have certainly displayed much art in their selection of flowers and their arrangement for this occasion."

"Everything about the house is arranged so nicely, too," remarked another. "The furniture, the furnishing, the dining service and all are so pretty."

"And especially the dinner," remarked a prominent lady. "I don't know when I have enjoyed a social repast, so much, as I have your 'get acquainted' dinner. I understand the Kate Greenway were the caterers. Well, they do know how to prepare good tasty dinners in a home-like manner," she suggested.

"Yes folks, everything has passed off nicely and every merchant we have patronized has treated us right, too," said Uncle Bill assuringly.

BANKERS CLUB DISBANDED

The Banker's Club which was organized in this town about a year ago, has been disbanded and the balance of the money that was in the treasury of the club has been turned over to the District Nursing Association. The amount received from the club amounted to $44.37 and was appreciated by the Association and will be used by them in their good work.

The Bankers Club, was composed of local and New York bank clerks and bankers. Meetings were held each month in the town hall at which a good speaker addressed the members on the subject of banking and its interests. These meetings at first were well attended but the attendance gradually fell off to such an extent that the officers decided to put the question of disbanding up to the members. At a meeting held Saturday night this action was taken.

Dr. Savitz Discusses "Playgrounds" Before Forum.

"Playgrounds" was the subject of an interesting address given before the Men's Forum of the First Methodist church last Sunday morning by Dr. J. J. Savitz, assistant Commissioner of Education.

Dr. Savitz said that there are three forms of human activity, play, work and drudgery. Play, he stated, is fundamental in the moral and physical life of the child, for without play the child cannot develop physically or morally. He said that the playgrounds afford an opportunity for the child to become socialized, for by coming in contact with his fellows he develops a power of understanding and appreciates them. He learns to make rules governing games and abides by them. In this way the child begins to appreciate the rights of others. Dr. Savitz said that on these experiences the future moral life of the child would develop. The meeting was presided over by President of the Forum, George D. Donatys.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1914.

New Postmaster.

The recommendation of Mr. Robert L. DeCamp for the position of Postmaster in Westfield made by Congressman Tuttle is the climax of quite a spirited contest among the several aspirants for this office. There has been much speculation about town as to which of the numerous candidates would be finally successful, and it is a matter of relief that so acceptable an appointee should be named. While there is but little doubt that Mr. Tuttle's recommendation is equivalent to an appointment many of the aspirants feel that their acquaintance with the President and their faithful service in the party should merit for them favorable consideration.

The selection of Mr. DeCamp should be a source of congratulation on the part of the citizens of Westfield and to our Congressman, who, we know, has felt a peculiar interest in the appointment of postmaster to his home town.

Mr. DeCamp will bring to this office just the business experience, energy and pleasing manner which the office of Postmaster calls for. His bank training will be a valuable asset to the office, and the energy and enthusiasm which Mr. DeCamp puts in every endeavor will place the Westfield Post Office upon a high plane of efficiency to which a town such as ours is entitled.

Mr. DeCamp is no stranger to public service. He has represented the people of the Fourth ward for four consecutive years in the Council and has just received the endorsement of this service by re-election for a new term.

As Chairman of the Finance, the Road, Water and Sewer Committee, Mr. DeCamp has shown a capacity for work and for doing things that have won for him the confidence of the people and a host of friends. We bespeak for Mr. DeCamp the hearty support of the people of Westfield and a brilliant career as Postmaster of our town.

"O wad some power the giftie gie us to see oursel's as ithers see us."

"An Ounce of Prevention."

According to official figures, more than one-third of the cost of our state government is for penal, charitable and corrective institutions. The ever increasing demand for funds for this item should cause serious thought and possible alarm. While the time will probably never come when New Jersey will not care properly for her wards, it is possibly high time that more thought and consideration should be given to the agencies which are at work filling our present almshouses, insane asylums, epileptic homes, prisons and reformatories.

We believe we could well follow the policy laid down in the old adage that "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and study the causes that contribute so largely to filling our institutions rather than spending large sums annually for their upkeep.

The Toll of the War.

While the war tax which went into effect on Tuesday is estimated to place a burden of about one hundred million dollars upon the American people in the next year, there seems to be little doubt but that this will be only a minor part of the real war burden which this country will be called upon to bear. The tremendous losses to the South, because of the condition of the cotton market, have already placed several million dollars on the wrong side of the ledger of our war account. With this, must be added the bonus which has been paid by the American people in the advanced cost of sugar, flour, meat, and, in fact, almost all foodstuffs.

Taking everything into account, America will pay pretty dearly for the conflict now going on in Europe, and the demand made upon this country for guns, automobiles, clothing, shoes, etc., can never compensate us for the losses which we must necessarily sustain. No sound economic theory can support any promise of a very substantial prosperity built upon the misfortunes of other nations, such as would have been true had the good things promised at the opening of the war come to the United States. After all, this world is built on a sounder and truer basis of economics than would obtain should the promised advantages have come true. It is refreshing to note that the sentiment is swinging from depending on the strength of arms or the power of peace proposals to an overshadowing Providence, who, in His own good time, will rule and overrule all things and bring about a peace that will endure for all time.

Infant Mortality.

In a communication addressed to prominent citizens of New Jersey, setting forth statistics and conditions of infant mortality in the state and calling for a larger sympathy and more definite purpose along preventative lines, The Public Welfare Committee of Essex County, are instituting a campaign of education that should bear fruit.

Almost everything that goes to make up the economic life of our nation has its welfare bureau, and sufficient federal, state and country appropriations to properly protect the public from the ravages of blight and pest to vegetable life and disease and plagues which destroy animals. While there has been some little activity and attention paid to the frightful loss of life of infants, this most important subject has been neglected all too long, until ignorance and superstition has raised the infant mortality to alarming degrees, and New Jersey holds anything but a complimentary position in the list of States in this regard. In 1912, of the 60,000 births registered in New Jersey, 7,457 died under the age of one year. This means that 12.4 out of every thousand died before their first birthday.

Those who have investigated the subject tell us that at least 70 per cent. of these were caused by ignorance on the part of the parents in caring for the children after birth, and that 15 per cent. were chargeable to vicious and ignorant parentage.

With all the "Prevention of Cruelty to" societies and associations "For the Promotion of" it is not about time that the American people put first things first, and spend a few of the many millions annually expended by the Federal and State Government in an effort to cut down infant mortality.

"MUSTN'T TOUCH."

Remember when you were a little tad, or tadpole, and your mother or father pointed out something to your little eyes and said: "Mustn't touch"? Of course you remember it. You'll never forget as long as you live how these very words threw a cloak of mystery around the object that you "Mustn't touch," and how that phrase started the determination in your mind that you WOULD touch.

The other day a mother took her two-year-old baby to call on a neighbor. The first thing the child noticed in the room was the glare of the fire in a stove. She pointed at it and said, in her childish lisp: "Pittty!"

"Mustn't touch, baby," warned her mother, drawing her away from the stove.

Then the mother turned to talk with her friend. The very first thing the baby did was to touch the hot stove. The "Mustn't touch" command of her mother only whetted her curiosity and MADE her touch the stove. But she burned her hand and learned through experience not to touch.

The other day the mother of a boy in town here made some pumpkin pies, as she placed them near a window to cool she saw her young son looking longingly at the steaming pies.

"Mustn't touch," she warned, shaking a finger at him. Then she left the room. The first thing her son did was to grab one of the pies and eat it all. He became very ill.

He learned, through experience,

Shipping Receipts Require Stamps.

Owing to the war tax which is now in effect the express and freight companies are required to affix a stamp on the receipt which they give to the person sending a package. This stamp after being put on by the shipper or consignee is cancelled by the sender of the package. The value of the stamp is one cent.

Failure on the part of the shipper to attach such a stamp upon each receipt issued is punishable in accordance with the penalties invoked under the Internal Revenue Laws.

on the alleys of both the Westfield Theatre and the Playhouse. At 8:15 a bridge party will be held, under the direction of the Westfield Golf Club, at the club house, and in addition to these events there will be special moving pictures at both of the theatres, part of the proceeds of which will go to the fund.

Headquarters have been opened in the store on Broad street in the Westfield Inn Building, which has been donated by W. G. Peckham, where clothing or cash may be sent. If word is left at the store, a messenger will call for donations of clothing or cash. The store has been open every day this week from 3 until 5 in the afternoon and will be open all day tomorrow.

Cash donations may be sent to the treasurer, J. F. Cowperthwaite and these as well as all other donations will be duly acknowledged.

It has been the aim of the committee who have had the day in charge to afford some sort of amusement for everyone so that all might become interested in the movement which has aroused the sympathy of the whole world.

The items especially needed by the Clothing Donation Committee, of which Mrs. Paul Philip is chairman, include shawls, scarfs, or mufflers of warm materials and of as large a size as possible, woolen blouses, warm skirts and simple dresses, boots, shoes and stockings. Blankets are particularly needed. Warm articles of men's clothing can also be used.

As this town is noted for its charitable giving there is no doubt but that it will do its share in this Belgian Relief Day Fund and as it is for a worthy cause there is no reason why every one should not contribute his or her mite towards its success.

It Happened in Westfield, N. J.

A citizen of our town has just collected the proceeds of $4500 insurance on the 20-Year Endowment plan. In 1899 he took out three Policies—$1,000, $1,000 and $2,500. These Policies if kept in force would mature for the face amount, $4,500, and accumulated dividends, in 1919. The insured, however, has elected to draw the cash value at the present time, and as his dividends amount to nearly 30% of the premiums paid, he receives $4016.92 at this time—nearly the amount of the Policies.

Are you going to buy your boy an Endowment Policy for a Christmas Gift?

Mrs. R. H. Collins of First street, entertained about twenty-five members of the Literary and Social Circle of the First Methodist church at a silver tea at her home on Wednesday afternoon. The proceeds of the tea will go to the Bulletin, a church publication.

BRIDGE TOMORROW NIGHT

First Public Bridge at Golf Club

Tomorrow evening, Saturday, at eight o'clock, there will be a public bridge held at the Westfield Golf Club, the proceeds to go to the Belgian Relief Committee. As this is the first public bridge that has ever been attempted by the Golf Club, it is hoped that it will be largely attended by the public as well as receive the support of the club members. The object is a very worthy one and the plight of the homeless Belgians with winter already at hand, enlists everyone's sympathy.

The tickets are one dollar each and may be obtained at Frutchey's Drug Store. It is requested that players be as prompt as possible, that the committee may start the playing at eight. Prizes will be given to the winners.

Attention of Westfield Bowlers!

Belgian Day will be observed on both the Playhouse and Westfield Theatre alleys tomorrow, Saturday, Dec. 5. Special features have been arranged and the proceeds will go to the Belgian Relief Fund On the Playhouse alleys, from 2 P. M., to 12 midnight an individual and a two man championship of Westfield tournament will be rolled. A small entrance fee of 25 cents will be charged and all entries must be made with Alfred Chapman at the Playhouse alleys by noon on Saturday. Gold medals will be awarded for these events.

On the Westfield Theatre alleys a prize bowling contest is scheduled at 8 P. M., and several handsome and useful prizes will be awarded. Everybody has a chance in these contests. Captain's of the fraternal and church leagues are asked to get in touch with their bowlers and make as many entries as possible. Let everyone come down and roll a few games to help the cause. The tournaments have been arranged by Charles E. Kimball and Charles Westberg.

Musical for Benefit of Madison Avenue Chapel.

The pupils of W. Brynildsen gave a very interesting and pleasing musical at the Madison avenue chapel on Wednesday evening, December 2nd. Violin solos, piano solos, vocal solos, duets and quartets were rendered. Also selections on the mandolin, banjo and guitar with piano accompaniment. One of the features of the evening was the rendering of a quartet by four of the sons of Mr. Brynildsen.

In spite of the stormy weather the house was filled and the musicians provided a great success. The proceeds of the entertainment were given to the Madison avenue chapel.

FIRST REGULAR TRAP SHOOT.

Tomorrow afternoon, Saturday, Dec. 5th, will witness the first trap shooting event of the Westfield Golf Club. Twenty-five targets will be allowed each contestant tomorrow in the shoot for the point cup to be presented at the end of the season, high gun making five points, second, three and third, two.

The shelter house and traps are located at the edge of the woods between what are to be the new fourth and sixth holes. Take the trolley to Lyde, Park entrance. The traps are ready at 1:30, the first scheduled event taking place at 2:00.

the edge, threw himself flat and swore bitterly, with an accent of grievance, as he rose.

From the canyon below a dull noise of galloping hoofs advertised to him the failure of their attempt.

And Hopi Jim turned back only to find Judith mounted, reining her horse in between him and Marrophat, and prepared to give emphasis to what she had to say with an automatic pistol that nestled snugly in her palm.

"One moment, Mr. Slade," she suggested evenly. "Just a moment before you break the sad news to Mr. Marrophat. I've something to say that needs your attention—likewise, your respect. It is this: I am parting company with you and Mr. Marrophat. I am riding on toward the west, by this trail. If either of you care to follow me—the automatic flashed ominously in the sun glare—"It will be with full knowledge of the consequences. Mr. Marrophat will enlighten you if you have any doubt of my ability to take care of myself in such affairs as this. If you are well advised, you will turn back and report failure to my father."

She nodded curtly and swung her horse round.

"And what shall I tell your father from you?" Marrophat demanded sharply.

"What you please," the girl replied, flashing an impish smile over-shoulder. "But, since when I part company with you, I part with him as well—for all of me, you may tell him to go to the devil!"

"Well," Mr. Marrophat admitted contentedly to Mr. Slade, "I'm damned!"

"And that ain't all," Mr. Slade confided in Mr. Marrophat, whipping out his own revolver: "You're being held up, too. I'll take those guns of yours, friend, and what else you've got about you that's of value, including your horse—and when you get back to old man Trine you can just tell him, with my best compliments, that I've quit the job and lit out after that daughter of his'n. She's a heap sight more attractive than nineteen thousand dollars, and not half so hard to earn!"

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Burnt Fingers.

Once she had lost touch with her father's creatures, the girl drew rein and went on more slowly and cautiously.

Below her, in the valley, the lower trail wound its facile way. From time to time she could discern upon some naked stretch of its length a cloud of dust, or perhaps three mounted figures, scurrying madly on with fear of death snapping at their heels.

It was within an hour of midnight, a night bell-clear and bitter cold on the heights, and bright with moonlight, when Alan's party made its last pause and camped to rest against the dawn, unconscious of the fact that, a quarter of a mile above them, on the upper trail, a lonely woman paused when they paused and made her own camp on the edge of a sharp declivity.

The level shafts of the rising sun, awakened her. She sat up, rubbed her eyes, yawned, stretched limbs stiff with the hardship of sleeping on unyielding, sun-baked earth—and of a sudden started up, surprised by the grating of footsteps on the earth behind her.

Before she could turn, however, she was caught and wrapped in the arms of Hopi Jim.

She mustered all her strength and wits and will for one last struggle—and in a frenzied moment managed to break his hold a trifle, enough to enable her to snatch at the pistol hanging from her belt and present it at his head.

But it exploded harmlessly, spending its bullet on the blue of the morning sky. The bandit caught her wrist in time, thrust it aside and subjected it to such cruel pressure and such savage wrenchings that the pistol dropped from fingers numbed with pain.

And now all hint of mercy left his eyes; remained only the glare of rage. He put forth all his strength in turn, and Judith was as a child in his hands. In half a minute he had her helpless, in as much time more her back was breaking across his knee, while he bound her with loop after loop of his rawhide lariat.

Then, leaving her momentarily cupine on the ground, Hopi Jim caught and unhobbled her horse, and without troubling to saddle it, lifted the girl to its back, and placed her there, face upward, catching her hands and feet, as they fell on either flank of the animal, with more loops of that unbreakable rawhide, and deftly placing the master knot of the hitch that bound this human pack well beyond possibility of her reach.

She panted a prayer for mercy. He laughed in her face, bent and kissed her brutally, and stepped back laughing to admire his handiwork.

Thus he stood for an instant between the horse and the edge of the declivity, a fair mark, stark against the sky, for one who stood in the valley below, holding his rifle with eager fingers, waiting for just such opportunity with the same impatience with which he had waited for it ever since the noise of debris kicked over the edge by the struggling man and woman had drawn his attention to what was going on above.

Alan pressed the trigger and the shot sounded clear in the morning stillness. Judith saw a look of agonized amazement cross the face of Hopi Jim Slade.

Then he threw his hands out, clawed blindly at the air, staggered, reeled against the horse's flank so heavily that it, chilled in fright, and abruptly shot from sight over the edge of the bluff.

PHIO CLUB vs. ALPHA SIGMA.
Proceeds for the benefit of the Belgians.

The Phio Club will play the Alpha Sigma basketball at the Episcopal parish house tomorrow, Saturday afternoon at 3:00.

The proceeds are for the Belgian relief committee. Tickets are now on sale at Fruthey's, the Candy Kitchen and the Belgian Day headquarters at the Westfield Inn.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL BEGINS.

This afternoon the High School girls will open the season against Kearny H. S. Last year this team lost both games to the High School by close scores and there will certainly be a good game this afternoon.

The boys open their season on Tuesday when they play Cranford High at Westfield. Since the boys lost only one of the seven regulars through graduation, the team this year promises to be the best of the past few years. The team to start will be picked from the following: Forwards, Day, Ewing, Lambert, Pearsall; Center, Traynor, Davies; Guards, Sisserson, Burns, Gilmartin and Lambert. The first night game will be held on the eighteenth against the Phio.

BAPTIST WIN TWO;
TIED FOR FIRST PLACE

By defeating the Episcopal team of the Sunday School Athletic League, two out of three games on the Playhouse alleys on Tuesday night, the Baptists are now tied for first place with the Congregational team. The Baptist won the first and last game, while the Episcopal were the winners of the sandwich game by nine pins. Meyer of this team did some good bowling and it was not his fault that the series was lost as he posted 225 in the first game and 222 in the second but the rest of the team were not up to the scratch and consequently they lost out. For the Baptist, Shotwell posted 208 in the last game and Ortleb 206, while Worth hung up 209 in the second. The scores:

Sounded Funny.

The following true story gives a delightful glimpse of a very little child. The baby, who was just beginning to prattle, was taken to walk in an orchard where some bantams were turned loose. One perky little bird stood right in the child's path, craned his neck and uttered a shrill "Cock-a-doodle-doo." The little girl bent down her head so as to be as near the level of the bird as possible and then listened in the most pleading voice: "Pleath will you thay that adain?"

Physically and Mentally Worn Out—Tells How Nervous and Crying Spells Were Ended by Vinol.

Monmouth, Ill.:—"I was weak, worn-out and nervous. I had no appetite and was getting so thin and discouraged, one day I just broke down and cried when a friend came in and asked me what was the matter. I told of my condition and how nothing I took seemed to do me any good. Vinol was suggested. I got a bottle and before it was half gone I could eat and sleep well. I continued its use and now my friends say I look ten years younger, and I am well, healthy and strong. I wish I could induce every tired-out, worn-out, nervous woman to take Vinol."—Mrs. HANRIET GALE, Monmouth, Ill.

There are many over-worked, tired-out carwomen, nervous women in this vicinity who need the strengthening, tissue building, and vitalizing effects of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, and so sure are we that it will build them up and make them strong that we offer to return their money if it fails to benefit.

Vinol is a delicious preparation of the extract of cod liver oil and peptonate of iron and contains no oil.

Last night on the Playhouse alleys, the Holy Trinity team of the Sunday School Athletic League, defeated the Methodist team the first game and by so doing kept them from going into first place. In addition to taking the first game the Trinityites made a new team score when they posted 956 in this game. In the sandwich game they lost out by 4 pins and the good night game by nine pins.

Two hundred scores were plentiful. M. McMahon of the Trinity team posted 223 in the first and Wahl of the same team 204 in the last. For the Methodists, Allen posted 236 in the last and Westerberg 202 in the first. The scores:

Chinese Serial Dramas.

Serial drama has been popular in China for centuries. Their most famous play, "Pi-Pa-Ki—The Story of the Lute," written in the fourteenth century, is divided into twenty-four sections and innumerable acts and scenes, and takes several days to perform. And Chinese plays of forty long acts, lasting a week or two, are quite common. In England the longest play ever written, but not performed, was an unnamed drama, in twenty-five acts, by "Mad Nat Lee."

LOYALS CELEBRATE 25TH ANNIVERSARY.

The big meeting of the Loyal Association at the Masonic Temple, New York City, on Nov. 30th, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of its founding was largely attended by the members of Union Council who contributed six candidates to the class of 64 who lined up to be initiated.

Union was prominent in many ways. One of its members had the orator's station during the initiation. In the picture taken the local body had front page position and our noble brothers of the Boys Brigade in uniform carrying old glory were very much in evidence and added materially to the success of the occasion. Besides this the prize silver gavel won by Union from the Supreme Council last year was used during the meeting.

The order has cause to be proud of the showing made and the local lodge covered itself with additional honors.

GALLAGHER HOUSE NEARLY DESTROYED

Last Sunday shortly after noon, a fire which it is thought was caused by a defective flue completely gutted the residence of Joseph E. Gallagher in Fanwood Township, just over the boundary line of this town and did damage amounting to about $4,000. The residence was occupied by W. B. Rodenbaugh and his family.

A fire had been started in the fire place and soon after it was started smoke was smelled by members of the Rodenbaugh family. E. B. Rodenbaugh happened to go out doors and glancing up at the roof discovered that it was on fire. He immediately cried for help. The Westfield Fire Department was telephoned for and responded in record time but when they arrived on the property, which is quite a distance from town, they found the top part of the house a mass of flames. They set to work with a win and as there are no fire hydrants in the vicinity they bent their efforts to try in some way to get water, with which to fight the fire. This was accomplished by pulling the red fire engine down to the brook, in the rear of the Gallagher property, where they connected the hose and engine and commenced to pump water to the house. At first nothing but leaves and mud came through the hose, but this was remedied by digging the hose farther into the brook which is a part of Lambert's pond. The firemen worked like beavers and after they had sent in another alarm to the fire house for more help and other firemen had responded they got the fire under control. The fire was confined to the second and third floors, the entire roof of the house being completely burned off. The other floors were drenched with water.

The Rodenbaughs as soon as they discovered the fire commenced to take their furniture out of the house and saved practically everything except some books and other small articles which were in a room on the third floor and belonged to the Gallagher's. The firemen did good work and received many words of commendation, as it was one of the worst fires which they have had to combat in a long while. Had it not been for the nearness of the brook they would have been helpless and would have had to stand by and see the house burn down. Fire Chief Decker and his men deserve great credit as they stayed on top of the building and played a stream of water on it until every vestige of fire was gone.

Mr. Gallagher and his family had not been living in the house for some time and the Rodenbaughs were occupying it in the family's absence. The building was covered with insurance as was the furniture. The work of the red engine in pumping the water from the brook was marvelous and proved that it was equal to any emergency and that it could pump a good stream whether from a hydrant or a brook.

THEATRE CROWDS SEE
FIRE DEPARTMENT WORK

The fire department was called out at 10:30 last night to a fire in the Westfield Tailoring Company store, on Elm street, opposite The Standard office just as the theatres were closing. The fire was caused by an overheated stove which was placed against the woodwork in the rear of the store.

The fire was discovered by a passer-by who turned in the alarm at The Standard office. The firemen quickly responded and soon had a stream of water playing on the inside of the store and the blaze extinguished. The damage done will amount to about $200. A large crowd of theatre goers witnessed the work of the department.

Bellaire, O.—Belmont county has 1000 applications for the 30 additional saloon licenses to be granted. The great rush for licenses is due to the fact that West Virginia, "right across the way," is dry. Belmont county was formerly dry but voted wet at the last election in order to take care of the West Virginia trade.

Riverhead, Idaho.—The only Democrat elected here at the recent election was Andrew Prudent who won over Charles H. Moller by two votes. After the election it was found that the office to which he had been elected, that of Town Game Constable, had been abolished more than two years.

MRS. BENSON NARROWLY ESCAPES BEING KILLED

A horse attached to a light wagon, belonging to A. H. Benson, of Goodman's Corner, and driven by Mrs. A. H. Benson, ran away in front of Tuttle Bros. mill at 3:30 yesterday afternoon and but for the prompt action of C. H. Garrison who is employed at the mill, Mrs. Benson would probably have been killed. The shaft of the wagon broke. This frightened the horse causing Mrs. Benson to lose control of it. Mr. Garrison who was standing in the office door of Tuttle Brothers, saw the immediate danger and hastened to Mrs. Benson's assistance. Grabbing the horse by the bridle, he pulled him up behind a wagon standing in front of E. C. Winter's property and without doubt saved Mrs. Benson's life. Bystanders who saw Mr. Garrison's act said it was a most heroic feat.
