Court: List's privacy not violated

By JOANNE McFADDEN THE RECORD

A state appellate court has upheld the 1990 verdict of John List, the Westfield man who systematically killed all five members of his family in 1971.

In a brief statement, the threemember panel headed by Judge Sylvia Pressler discounted the key points of his appeal, including arguments that the police improperly searched the house without a warrant and violated the confidentiality of priest-penitent privilege when they opened and read a letter Mr. List had written to his pastor.

The court also found no fault in the selection of the jury for Mr. List's trial in Superior Court in Elizabeth, nor the imposition of five life sentences by Judge William L'E Wertheimer.

(Continued from page A-1) veyed stated there was no noticeable increase in noise or traffic. In addition, she said, studies support the notion that the availability of quality educational facilities attracts home buyers.

"Instead of decreasing home values, just the opposite is true," she said, after the meeting.

Mrs. Grant will provide members of the Board of Adjustment with copies of those surveys in addition to a planning guide published by the American Planning Boards, which recommend guidelines for developing quality day care centers in residential areas.

While there were over a halfdozen parents who spoke for the application, and several neighbors that did as well, there were only two who spoke against it. A Prospect Avenue resident was concerned that other homes in the neighborhood would also look to build day care businesses.

"What's to stop other neighbors from doing it is the use variance, said Mr. Grant. "A use variance is based on need. And with our center established, there would be no other need for another center in such close proximity."

In a letter to the board, Prospect Street resident Virginia Robinson expressed her support.

"Good child care is needed desperately by working parents and our neighborhood has become a brighter place because of the little ones," she said.

· Citing the need for additional infant care throughout Westfield, the Grants requested a special condition use variance to use their residence for business. They will continue to live in the home.

"When you talk about day care for children under 2 years old, it virtually non-existent" said Mrs. Grant. "And when who talk about quality day care for children under 2 years old, you're out in the stratosphere. That's what we're facing in Westfield."

The Grants are currently registered with the state and operate a legitimate licensed family day care center which is limited by law to six children. The mini-day care operation license would permit up to 30 children, although the Grants only expect to serve 13 children.

"We are trying to prepare for be continuation of this hearing," haid Mr. Grant, "we want to let the beople know we are not creating a monster here, we are not interested in a big facility."

Larry Grau, a spokesman for the Presbyterian Church, also spoke against the all-commercial application.

We are anxious for something to be done because of the condition of the building, but we are concerned with the longer term potential problems with a commercial use," he said.

"Should this property be sold, a higher density employment, or customer base could change the character of the neighborhood. We are also concerned that the change in character will inspire other buildings in the area to want the same change."

Board member Alan Fried said he would not oppose the allcommercial use of the building, because granting the application would not impair the intent of the zoning laws.

"This is no longer a residential area," he said.

Keep on Westfield Board of Education's posture on staff sharing medical costs is A-OK

Last week's announcement that the school board and union representing Westfield teachers were at an impasse over whether employees should pay any of the health insurance premiums now paid by town taxpayers. They have applied to have a mediator help them resolve the conflict.

Are they serious?

In 1993, in Westfield, and no matter what the unions in other districts in the county have settled for in this aspect of their wage contracts, it is time that the Westfield Education Association awakes and hears the grumbling.

And it's not just that other unions in the Westfield school district have made such concessions already. The point is that most of the working population of the town have had to make such givebacks with their private sector employers as long as a year or two ago. At last Tuesday night's school board meeting, President Susan Pepper offered a speech heavily couched in rich proce, but persistently making the point that it's time for the teachers' union to get off the dime, as it were.

Ms. Pepper also took the opportunity to lay the responsibility for publicly airing the negotiation stalemate at the teachers' union door. She cited a recent meeting at which teacher-members heard union leaders lay out the various offers and counter-offers each side has made in the long negotiations thus far. Her implication is that with the negotiating barn door thus opened, the board would feel little reluctance to take its case public, too.

Of course, the remarks of Ms. Pepper and, later, of board Vice President and Negotiation Committee chairwoman Susan Jacobson, who spelled out some specific figures, effectively brought the board's case to Westfield taxpayers. The teachers had met among themselves to air the negotiation situation, rather than reciting their wish list before a general audience at a public meeting.

Regardless of the justifications and rationalizations of either side, property owners in town deserve to know what's being discussed about school district working contracts. The negotiating goals read by Ms. Pepper at last week's meeting were news at the time. This is unfortunate. Maybe if they had been publicly debated before negotiations began, the board and the union would have had a clearer idea of townsfolks' sentiments on pay levels. Then, maybe the din of rhetoric and weight of tax bills felt today would be lowered.

Achilles heel in wetlands enforcement

Conservationists see incursion of developers on sensitive wildlife areas

By DAVID F. MOORE

The New Jersey environmental community is taking a close second look at planned state enforcement of federal wetland protection laws. We need to learn more about what we thought was a good thing.

With all the regulations there are for protection of the environment, wouldn't you think that combining and integrating related programs would make sense? We thought so.

Thus, in the mid-1980s an idea emerged for a wetlands protection process that would combine the state's 1970 coastal wetlands law, some provisions of the 1979 Pinelands Protection Act, wetlands protection by the federal Clean Water Act, and a new law that would curtail loss of freshwater wetlands.

That would mean lower water cleanup costs, better water supply,

By 1987, the New Jersey Freshr Wetlands Protection Act was in place, with the idea that in due course the state would either administer or be responsible for the dredge-and-fill permits issued by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers under the Clean Water Act.

Indeed, such a pact was entered into between conservationists and the development community in return for promised support by developers for new regulations that would be more coherent than the scattered laws already in place.

Of course, the conservationists bargained in good faith, and are still sticking to the deal, even though the developers got all they could out of the negotiating process and then dropped support.

Some of us have warned the EPA of the potential for erosion of wetlands protection if the present version of the state's assumption agreement goes forward. It needs a closer public look.

Some of us wrote a letter to DEPE saying this on May 21. It is a complex subject, so it is easy to misunderstand. We're not advocating doing away with either the state or federal programs; it is not a choice between one or the other.

The conservation community supports the state's administering both its own and the federal wetlands laws; two layers of protection are better than one. But there is some danger that something less protective than what the current around wetlands should be defined. If endangered species habitat were present, then the maximum buffer area was to be imposed. There are currently some problems with the agreement's implementation.

The belief was that unless such habitat was protected, even though no rare or endangered species were currently found to be present, development could prohibit their return. Thus such habitat would continue to shrink, and make rare critters more rare.

Should the DEPE assume enforcement responsibility for federal regulation over dredging and flooding of freshwater wetlands, it is feared in some environmental circles that developer influence over legislators could erode protection.

Despite commitment of a governor, this could be accomplished by legislative fiscal cuts in DEPE's enforcement funding or caps on permit fees. The result would be an bit more about any planned statefederal wetland protection agreement, and needs proof that wetreached on how protection areas land losses would not get worse.

Shop Rite just isn't necessary

To The Record:

I am writing to express my disapproval of the erection of a Shop Rite along North Avenue at the Garwood/Westfield border.

North Avenue runs through small towns with enough current traffic problems to deal with; adding a huge Shop Rite complex (which we don't need for shopping purposes) will only make a difficult situation unbearable and more un-

Also, with the current economic climate, how can any town justify a new supermarket which would cause other already existing market places to suffer financially? It doesn't make any sense.

I suggest politely sending Shop Rite officials and all their money and energies to the existing Clark market. Further, I suggest en hancement of said property to make that store more appealing and customer satisfying. Any potential buyers in the Garwood/ Westfield area are easily accessible to this already existing Clark/Central Avenue site.

Graduating from the old school

This is the week the annual ritual of graduation begins. Amid hearty congretulations from perents, friends and school mate teens will venture forth into the world. Well, sort of.

Things have changed since I was growing up. Now granted it has not been 50 years since t went to high school, but it has been long enough to notice some definite changes.

For one thing, more graduates are going to college. Back when I was in high school, it was more the norm for seniors to be preparing to go out into the world and find a job than be packing a trunk for college. You could be the emerteet kid in school, but if your parents didn't have the money, you were out of luck.

Girls' primary goal in life was to focus on finding a job, getting married and having a family. That's what was expected of them and no one messed with it. In fact, women were content with this perspective, and actually looked forward to the time-honored traditions associated with courtship and marriage - not to mention the responsibilities that came after merriage. A domestic engineer was valued by one and all for the vast array of functions she performed, including raising children.

But men had their problems too. If the economic status of a family did not forestell earning a degree, other family traditions often awayed potential college students towards the family trade.

For example, if grandpa and ded were shoemskers, a son could bring shame on the family if he decided to pursue a career in teaching. It just was not done.

A father waited amounty for his son to join the family business. It was a proud moment the day a father added "and Son," to the facade. While this seemed inherent to blue coller occupations such as masons, bakers, and clathing store owners, other more prestigious professional families had their dilemmas too.

But something changed in the past 20 or so years. The timehandred profession of housewife became passe as women of all ages came into their own. They warted careers, a place in the workforce — and a college education. Gradually, it became the norm to attend college, and the percentages began to shift. Going right into the work force after high achool now became somewhat unusuai.

Those who were caught between the changing tide still wonder what it would be like to go to college and have that four-year time period to grow up a little more. Going out into the world "cold" isn't easy. And for some reason or another, if a person gets a chance to go to college later, it's just not the same. I guess that's because you never can go back.

Reading club set at library

Children of all ages are invited to participate in Three Ring Reading, the vacation reading club at the Westfield Memorial Library.

Children who are reading on their own may join. Children who are not yet reading may join the Listening Club and earn credits for listening to stories others read to them. The rules for both clubs are outlined in a special summer program sheet available at the children's desk.

Reading club members will receive instructions and a reading record booklet. For every five books completed, members may toss to win a circus prize and will earn a display ball with their name to add to the jugglers' challenge. For finishing 20 books, members will earn a special display bell and a certificate of merit.

Giving single mothers a fighting chance

Raphael's House nears completion

THE RECORD

renford residents Edith Coogan and Mary Orrico believe in miracles. If they didn't, Rephael's Life House for unwed mothers would still be just an idea and not a reality.

After four years of planning, working and dreaming, Papheel's Life House is scheduled to open in September. With just the first floor painting left to be completed and some flooring, the founders are putting the final touches on the 12-bedroom renoveled convent in Elizabeth.

Much has happened in the past four years - more than the founders of Raphael's Life House could ever have imagined. But the plight of unwed mothers and the lack of lowcost housing in Union County helped spur the two women to find a solution to the problem. That solution turned out to be Rephasi's Life House.

But Ms. Coogan and Ms. Orrico give credit where credit is due.

"God directed us," Ms. Coogan said. The house's name comes from a reference to a Biblical character. "How else could so many wonderful people have crossed our path."

The prohibitive expense of such a venture could have scared the two away from the project, but they said faith played the biggest part in their decision to press on. Without faith they never would have had the outpouring of help from strangers from every welk of life and occupation, nor would they have found the former convent that would bear the name Rapheel's Life House.

When Ms. Coogan heard about the convent, it had been vacent for 10 in its second printing. years. Although the three-story building needed renovating, it was an answer to prayer, said Mrs. Coogen. The have a 10-year, $1 per-annum ase with Newark Archdlocese. which owns the building.

Built in 1870, the convent needed a new heating system and realignment of bedrooms in order to accommodate a live-in staff for the home. Amezingly, said Mrs. Coogen, erchitects, general contractors and a host of other professionals volunteered their services along the way, not to mention private citizens. Little by little, the home began to take shape, and funding was found through state and county grants.

To date, the organization has raised $285,000. This includes a $100,000 sheller support grant from the N.J. Department of Community Affairs, another $10,000 grant from the Hyde and Watson Foundation of Chatham, and a Union County Com-

Raphael's Life House incorporated in February 1991 and a board of directors now oversees the administration of the complex. Board members include Westfield residents Helen Skowronski, Frank Muggeo and Kevin Morrisey, and Scotch Plains resident Mary Ann Connelly.

And then there are volunteers of all ages who have contributed to the cause, such as Girl Scouts Betsy Lau and Regine Hanley of Westfield who worked on a gold badge award by raising $170 for the cause, and Cranford resident John Marnrak (a Boy Scout from Troop 178), who as part of his Eagle Scout project enlisted the help of his parents and friends and painted all the windows and doors at the home.

For Mrs. Coogan and Mrs. Orrico, Raphael's Life House has been a labor of love. When the home opens, they expect it will be the miracle many unwed mothers have prayed

Better Days SELF-DISCIPLINE

People frequently ask their therapist to help them be-

Once depression and attention deficit disorders have been professionally ruled out, it's generally found that being easily distracted comes from not setting priorities. Many people actively believe they need to do everything that interests them and are distressed when choices must be made. This is especially true for people who grew up in households where family members had similar traits and there were no role models for focus, prioritization, and delayed gratification of desires.

These are all learned skills, and the initial process of becoming more selfdisciplined requires that the individual decide either not to do some things, or to delay their pursuit for another time. Learning to deal with the internal tension related to delayed pleasure-seeking is painful, but after a while people find that they actually accomplish more and feel greater sat-

Golf tournament gave business slight boost

By VERA CARLEY

THE RECORD

While golfers were playing on the greens last week, vying for part of the $1.6 million in prize money at the U.S. Open Golf Tournament in Springfield, some Westfield businesses were hoping to rake in some green of their own by attracting tourists passing through.

Although the golf tournament lasted only four days, according to Michele Picou, the downtown manager of Main Street in Westfield, it did have a positive affect on businesses in the area.

"As I talked to merchants, they seemed to be a little bit busier downtown even though there wasn't a big push to attract tourists," Ms. Picou said. "I think there was a nice significant increase."

The biggest draw in town for these tourists, she said, seemed to be the 12 restaurants in the area. Golf fans seemed to be making their way off the links and headed straight for the dinner tables, where restaurant owners found business busier then usual.

While seating some of golf's premiere players, Eric Tevrow, the owner of Sinclaire's Restaurant, said he had to manage a 30 percent increase in business last week.

"The tournament has definitely improved business. We're always busy, but it increased us to capacity during the weekdays," he said. "We had to turn people away."

Sinclaire's Restaurant wasn't the only business turning people away. There wasn't any more room at the inn, either. The Westfield Inn, that is. According to Gina Ciccocelli. manager of the Westfield Inn, the large turnout was anticipated.

But apparently, they weren't going to shop for clothes. According to some retail managers in Westfield, business was normal for this time of year, with increases due mainly to people shopping for Fathers Day.

"Business increased 5 percent (over the weekend). But it's not easy to tell if it was because of the tournament or because of fathers day. It was hard to know if they were here buying for it," said Andie Browder, store manager at The Gap. "It hasn't really affected us, but we didn't think it would."

Joe Spector, manager of the Leader Store, echoed that sentiment. Mr. Spector said he hadn't noticed any major boost in sales since the start of the tournament. But he said that there was a simple reason for that. Tourists, he said, were here to watch the tournament - not to go shopping.

Newman strikes gold, silver, bronze at Classic

THE RECORD

Last week, Westfield's Austin Newman gave more credence to the adage that some things become better with age.

The 77-year-old Newman overcame a sore knee and 90-degree heat and humidity to win three gold medals, a silver and a bronze at the 1993 National Senior Sports Classic in Baton Rouge, La., an event which attracted about 5,000 men and women over 55 years of age.

Newman, who went through arthroscopic surgery May 5 to repair damaged knee ligaments, claimed national titles in the 75-79year-old age group in the triathlon and the 200- and 400-meter freestyle swimming third in the 50 free.

Newman's injured knee forced him to sit out running events, which are his specialty. Nonetheless, he won the triathlon in convincing fashion, winning by approximately 11 minutes. The man who set four national records (triathlon, one-mile cycling, 5K and 10K road race) two years ago in the National Senior Sports Classic at Syracuse was 10th after 450 yards of swimming. But, he took over the ead during the 12.4-mile cycling portion of the event, which he traversed in 41 minutes. Following the completion of his 3.1-mile run, Newman crossed the finish line in first place (1:23:14), unchallenged in his age events. He was second in the 100 free and "Because I was favoring my knee, one of the main muscles in the right side of my back hurt me," said Newman, who will undergo further examinations by his doctor. "But, I was determined to do it, even if I had to walk to finish,"

Newman also excelled in the pool, where his knee was put under considerably less stress. He was clocked in 7:07 in the 400 free, beating his closest competitor by nine seconds. His victory in the 200 free (2:16.2) did not come easy, as he edged the runnerup by only four-tenths of a second.

In the 100 free, Newman touched out two and a half seconds behind the winner and completed his four laps in 1:29.3, good for second place. He picked up a bronze medal in the 50 free, finishing in 38.06 seconds.

Newman earned a ribbon for his fifth place showing in the one-mile cycling event. But, following a pair of eighth-place finishes in the 5,000 and 10,000-meter cycling races, Newman felt his best chances for success were in the water.

"I'm very pleased," said Newman, who was rewarded for his performance in the 1991 Senior Sports Classic with the Whole Grain Total Award for Outstanding Multiple Male Event Athletes. "I had a good time and I met nice people. The camaraderie between the swimmers and bikers was very nice."

Depending upon the condition of his knee and the status of his corporate sponsorship by General Mills, Newman said he would like to participate in the 1995 National Senior Sports Classic at San Antonio, Tex.

Nicklaus exhibit opens at Golf House museum

THE RECORD

FAR HILLS - Everyone likes gold. But golfers - they love the Golden Bear.

Thousands of golfers and golf fans flocked to the United States Golf Association Golf House Museum during the past week since its newest exhibition, "Jack Nick-laus, Champion of Champions," opened June 15.

We've been very, very active this week," said deskperson Patty Moran. "It seems like people have been coming from all over. In the summertime we pick up, and since the (United States) Open is so close, more people are coming."

The museum has always had the walk-through exhibits explaining the history of golf, including the development of the golf club and ball, and when and where tournaments were founded.

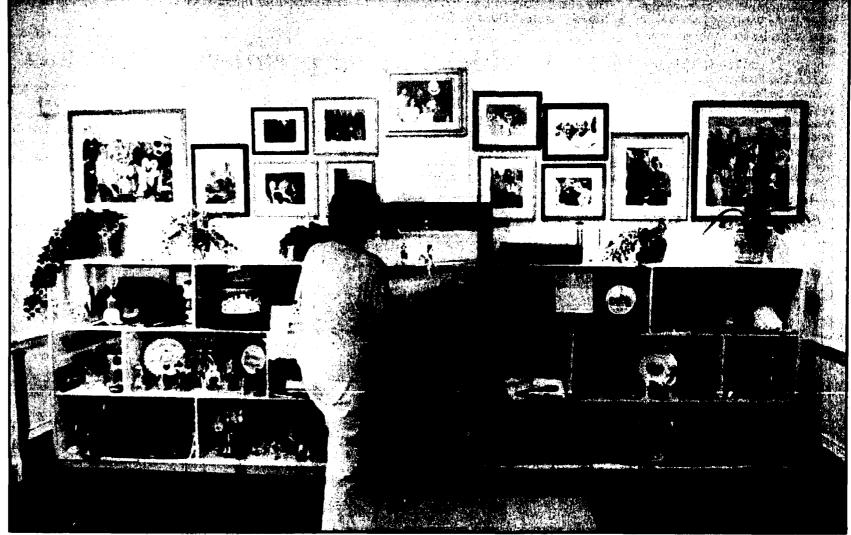

But right now it's Jack and his treasures, which will be on display at the museum until Nov. 28, that visitors want to see.

"We've been extremely busy since the new exhibit opened," said weekend security guard Steve Schrak, "A couple of busloads of people came out this morning."

Even visitors who stopped by the elegant and beautifully manicured museum on a whim were extremely pleased to examine the trophies and golf equipment of one of golf's greatest players.

"I'd never been here before, I swick resident and golfer William Far Hills. McDermott, "I didn't expect them to have this (exhibit). It's very teresting and informative. I knew he was the greatest golfer in the world, but I didn't know this much about him."

Almost half the upper level of the museum currently houses the exhibit. Since Nicklaus has won 20 major tournaments, including three Masters titles, three British Opens, four U.S. Opens and five PGA titles, it's no wonder the museum needed so much space. He also was part of the Ryder Cup team seven times, serving as its Once visitors see the new exhibit, available for viewing 9 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays and 10 a.m.4 p.m. weekends, it seems inevitable they, too, will watch the Golden Bear's life and legend continue as well.

Weetfield Chargers 2, Millsbarough 1
The Westfield Chargers were victorios in their final game of the sesson as they best the Hillsborough Stingers by a 2-1 margin. The game was a defensive battle for most of the first half as Chargers delenders Ryan Hogan, Richle Rowe, Brender Maher, and Matt Karps consistently kept the ball clear of the net. On the few occasions that the Stingers were to get a shot on goel, goelle Paul Johnston gathered up the ball without mishap. Toward the end, after the Westfeld offense of Kevin Doyle, Jack Kane, Gavin Shulman, John Henry Flood, and Matt Simone kept the pressure on the Stinger detense. Eric Zimak, shot a centering pass to Teddy Brown, who kicked it off one of the Hillsborough players into the net for his first ged of the year.

After the Stingers tied the game in the middle of the second half, the Chargers took control but were unable to score until only five minutes were left in the game. With Chris McClellan able to keep the ball on the oponents side, stopper Doug Minarek drave down the field, split through three defenders and kicked a sliding shot from the 18 over a Stinger keeper for the winning goel. Goelle Chris Sowerz, helped the un-forgiving Charger defense, held off desperate Stingers until the final whistle.

'The response I've received from advertising with Forbes Newspapers has been so incredible that my exterior schedule for '93 is full. I'm presently booking my 1994 exterior season. In the 9 years I've been in business, I've tried a variety of other advertising from the larger area newspapers to the local community calendars. Nothing has given me the return that I've received from Forbes Newspapers. Thank you Forbes." Tom Hanson

FORD'S NEW TAURUS SHO is a reworked version of the Ford Taurus with more

Ford's Taurus SHO a hot, tractable car

By BOB HAGIN

FORBES NEWSPAPERS

The Taurus is the sedan that started Ford's dramatic and positive turnaround. Introduced in the mid-eighties after almost five years in development, plus three billion dollars in plant and equipment costs, it became a best seller, and with its well-rounded aerodynamic design, a trend setter as well.

To broaden its appeal, Ford decided to give Taurus buyers the option of more muscle. After much study they turned to Yamaha to take advantage of its extensive experience in building high-performance engines. A sophisticated 24-valve, 3.0 liter, V-6 power plant was selected, and a new designator, SHO (Super High Output) was chosen. The new engine increased the output from 140 to 220 to horsepower.

Until this year the SHO was only available with a five-speed manual transmission. Adding an automatic transmission turned out to be much more work than just bolting new one on. The performance increase made it necessary to develop a stronger four-speed automatic transmission. As more low-end torque was required for proper power distribution the engine displacement had to be increased to 3.2 liters, and the engine mountings had to be slightly rearranged.

APPEARANCE

The familiar styling of the Taurus is given a sportier image by the addition of distinctive lower body side cladding, rocker panel extensions, a rear spoiler and special badging. Also, special larger 16 inch six-spoke alloy wheels and Goodyear Eagle GA P215/60R16 all-season performance/ touring tires are included in the SHO package.

COMFORT

Ford calls the SHO automatic the Executive Express, and outfits it appropriately. Everything that should be powered is, and the infrared remote lock control even has a panic button. The upgrade AM/FM/CD/cassette system offers great selectivity and sound, plus remote controls on the leather wrapped tilt steering wheel. Interior temperature is quietly inaintained by an easy-to-use climate system with rear seat ducting. Seating is adjustable, roomy, comfortable and leather upholstery is available. Other nice touches are the optional sun/moon tilt/slide sunroof, lots of flat trunk space, cup holders, a versatile sun visor arrangement and remote trunk and fuel door release.

ROADABILITY

In keeping with its Executive Express image the suspension engineering for the SHO automatic was designed to provide a softer more pliant ride than its stick shift counterpart. In more than 400 miles of touring over many types of roads in good and bad weather it behaved very well due to a balanced combination of design and safety factors. Variable assist power steering, four-wheel anti-lock disc brakes, allweather tires and independent suspension contribute, as do the dual air bags and three-point seat belts, plus the good vision.

PERFORMANCE

The V-6 Yamaha engine for the SHO automatic had to be redesigned to develop higher torque quickly so that it would deliver almost exactly the same performance numbers as the manual shifter. Boring out the displacement to 3.2 liters, plus some other internal modifications accomplished the mission. This engine is powerful, quiet and good looking too, The new four-speed automatic is electronically controlled and delivers smooth, crisp and quiet gear changes.

EPA ratings are 17 city/26 highway. I averaged 23.7 mpg.

SUGGESTIONS

Add memory switch for driver's power seat. Redesign rear deck lid for lower liftover. Design rear seats to fold down.

CONCLUSIONS

Four years after its introduction the Taurus SHO now has the dual advantages of excellent power, performance and handling plus the convenience of automatic shifting. This provides the Executive Express with what it needed to enhance its appeal to those who want its power, but don't want to shift in commute traffic to town or the airport.

Peppy Ford Ranger Splash 4x4 passes all tests with flying colors

By 308 and

FORBES NEWSPAPERS

This week Bob and Tom Hagin (father and son writers) evaluate the Ford Ranger Splash 4x4, a peppy, weekend four-wheeler with plenty of pizzazz and not much interior room.

TOM: The Ranger offers great performance. Its 4.0 liter V6 scoots up tell the factory guys at Ford what but a matching camper to freeway speeds quickly and the four-speed automatic has an overdrive to keep the engine revs low at cruising speeds.

BOB: It's a kid's truck for sure and the performance is there, but I thought it was a little light in the tail and it was easy to spin the rear tires even on dry, rough pavement. The ersatz step-side styling takes it out of the "working truck" class but it will appeal to those who go for the Southern California "surfer" look. Very "rad."

TOM: The thing is a cutie. The Splash logo on the side doesn't do anything for a masculine image, however. I was teased a bit for the Barbie Doll look. Splash and Muscle Beach don't go together. Peel off the decals and the truck is immediately more macho, with meaty P235/ 75R 15 radials that bit well in the off-road section we went through. The color-keyed bumpers and moldings give the Ranger an almost "after-

BOB: Good point, because that's just what Ford seems to be doing. Although it's really just a dolled up Ranger four-wheel drive, the Splash points up the fact that a Ranger can be tricked-out with whatever them. Ford put the armrest in a perfect spot. I had a place to rest my combination of cosmic paint, stripes and trim pieces a buyer wants to arm and the console underneath it held my wallet, daybook and a come up with. It's almost too slick to do any serious off-roading in.

TOM: Never the less, I crawled up some pretty steep hills with this one. The short wheelbase made "cresting" easy, and the dashmounted push button four-wheel drive system made it a snap to buckle down into low gear range for really tough climbs. BOB: Maybe we'd better not never see a lumber rack a grind we put it through. I shell with a surfboard crawled around under the wouldn't do you any good. Splash to see what was what The only waves you see mechanically and I found the in- any more ar in our hot dependent front suspension is a tub' really slick version of the original Ford Twin I Beam system.

There's been a lot of exterior changes over the older Rangers, too. It's a little wider and the interior even sported a CD player. The only thing I really found a pain was the bucket seats.

TOM: It made my back sore during long distance driving but it forced me to sit in an upright a position. Mom would be happy that Ford altered my posture, but a bit more reclining action would be nice. I loved the seat material and the inflatable supports that were built into bunch of other stuff, too. It even had those little spring-loaded coin things, which came in handy for bridge fare.

BOB: I guess that one gets use to sitting bott-upright eventually. A better selection would be the optional bench seat. That would allow me to put one of the grandkids in the middle.

TOM: Dad, you don't take grandchildren in a truck like this one. The stereo system sounded great, right up there with the best of new cars, but the CD player skipped a bit over super-bumpy roads. I thought the blazing orange paint (Ford calls it "Vibrant Red") looked awesome, and so did other people. I got positive comments during rush hour.

BOB: There's a couple of options that I'd have liked on this Splash. It needed a bed-liner. I was afraid that I was going to scratch up the floor of the bed. And as always, your mother suggested a coffee-cup holder and a more convenient place for her purse.

TOM: Fortunately for my image, I don't need a purse holder. This Splash will probably never see a lumber rack but a matching camper shell with a surfboard rack would make the surf crowd happy. Of course a surfboard wouldn't do you any good, Dad. The only waves you see any more are in our hot tub.

BOB: And fortunately they're small ones. I'm too old for wipe-outs.

Learning the ins-and-outs of roughing it on car excursion

By BOB HAGN

irst off, you should know that I'm not the outdoor type. I don't seek out 4-wheel-drive excursions that send me into the desert wastelands of tropical jungles or even onto city streets in the snow. I leave that to my outdoorsy bachelor son, Tom. He seems to enjoy that sort of self-abuse and then enjoys writing about it. He still has his derelict-but-running 1975 Dodge Ramcharger his brothers have dubbed "Rat Patrol." The name its.

My idea of roughing it is a sedan without an air conditioner. I guess that I put in too many miles on Korean dirt roads behind the wheel of a Ishaki-colored 4wheel-drive Jeep 40 some-odd years ago. But I broke my unapoken pledge recently and attended a two day off-road dog-and-pony show put on by lauzu. Along with a bunch of other auto writers, I was flown to Southern California and put up at a fancy resort in the wastelands deep in California's Anza-Borrego Desert State Park. The next day, ensconced in posh Isuzu SUVs, we crawled through many miles of very rough but well-marked desert two-lene trails to look at big mud holes, 17 paim. trees and assorted geological wonders. It was lots better then Kores

The event was to promote lauzu's 1993 line of SUV vehicles in their natural settings, in case you've been in Sedanland for the past three decades and have never heard the term, SUV stands for Sports Utility Vehicle and while the origin of the designation seem lost to antiquity, its implication is clear. It's a vehicle that's meant to be used on less-than-ideal road surfaces (like the fire trail to Ded's favorite fishing hole) but offers the motorized amenities of life like a reasonably comfortable ride, air conditioning and heating, a quality sound system, arm cheir seating and styling that doesn't remind you of the box that your refrigerator came in. In today's upecale society, i'm told a very expensive and classy SUV like the British Range Rover is de rigueur in country club parting lots and is giving the perfunctory Jeguer seden a run for its money. How many Range Rovers take ded fishing is open to speculation.

The "utility" part comes in when the back seats are folded up and the vehicle is used to haul groceries for the family or feed for the polo ponies.

The concept of the SUV does, indeed, go back a long way and can be directly traced to the Army's General Purpose (GP or "Jeep") 4X4 utility truck of 1938 although creature comforts were in short supply in those early 4-wheel-drivers. It was American Bantam's idea and design but Ford and Willys beat them out of the money and now American Bantam is just a name in automotive history books. Life-and politics aren't fair.

But both Ford and Willys are still in the SUV business, Ford with the Bionco and Explorer and Jeep (it's a separate brand name now) with the Wrangler (the direct progeny of the original), Cherokee and Grand Cherokee. If fact, almost all the world's auto makers are in the SUV business and they come in all sizes from the minuscule Geo Tracker at 2,100 pounds to the gargantuan GMC Suburban which weigh in at 5,404 and seats an entire kid's hockey team. The prices vary too. The spertan Suzuki Simural goes for $5,699 base while the patrician Range Rover lists at $49,200 - premium model, of I'm told Mercedes is in the SUV business in The Old Country and I know that Lamborghini makes one as well. I know this because I saw one at the Los Angeles. Car Show but in as much as I'm not an "innie" in the car writing business, I didn't get to sit in it much less drive it.

There's a newcomer to the SUV world, too. If you followed the Desert Storm TV series a couple of seasons ago, you no doubt saw the GM General Hummer in action. Road & Track called it "The Great Intimidator" and that's an accurate evaluation. This humungous nononsense machine now comes in several other colors besides Desert Carnoullage and the civilian version reminds me for all the world of Hulk Hogan in a Brooks Brothers three-piece suit. There's lots of places an SUV can go that would bog down a conventional passenger car, of course, but according to the folks at leuzu, only two percent of the 280,000 SUVs they've acid here ever hit the trail. There are rugged vecation apots around the country that are only accessible via a suitable 4-wheel-drive machine and there are tour companies that organize and guide those who are interested - but more on that in a later feature.

There is a trio of SUVs in my family and they fall into two use categories. Cathy's Toyota 4Runner and Darcy's Mitsublehi Montero are both used as family cars that keep them from having to bend over to put the grandchiliren into their car seats but since Tom's "Rat Patrol" requires a step ladder for entry, we're pretty sure that beby seats are not of primary concezn in his case.

PORBES NEWSPAPERS

The brake pedal on my '90 Hyundai is low. I took it back to the dealer in my area and he replaced or repaired the master cylinder and adjusted the brake pedal but it's still too low. I lost the brakes completely a couple of times which is scary to me. Have you any idea why my brake pedal is so low?

Since your authorized Hyundai dealer can't fix the brakes, better call the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (800-424-9393) and the Hyundai hot-line, too. That number is in your owner's manual. Brakes that fail are a safety threat to everyone on the road as well as to you. Usually brakes that fail and then return suffer from a faulty master cylinder that has an internal leak. I assume that there are no external leaks visible under the car. Get the car to another shop for an inspection and repair but please don't drive in my hometown.

Cruisersso that dates the era. Too bad you didn't go for a convertible the year you bought your sedan: rag-top New Yorkers are being advertised in national vintage car publications for around $7500 while cars like your sedan are being offered for from $700 to $3000 depending on the condition. Unfortunately, convertibles don't react kindly to Idaho weather, I'm told. If this tells a new car buyer anything it is that if you plan to keep your vehicle for a quarter of a century as an investment, better plan to buy one that is a sportster, a limited edition or a convertible. Everything else becomes just another nice old car after awhile.

We own a 1984 Ford Lynx (or jinx) that we bought new. We would like to get another year out of it if we could have one long term problem solved. The problem started a year after we bought it and I own a 1968 Chrysler in the past few years it has been tuned up every four months. It just runs rough, is very gassy, and isn't running eter and it has been kept in a on all four cylinders. Several garages have worked on it and worth in today's market? Will it their diagnostic equipment says increase in value by holding on things are fine. Below 20 MPH, to it for a longer period of the oil light comes on, the brakes become unresponsive During the time that my and we often have to shift into seven kids were pre-teens, neutral to keep the engine from we had several of those dying. The Ford dealership late-'70s Chrysler New Yorker says it's normal for a four cylinand Newport four-door sedans. der engine to have the engine to dig it out.

Colored Con House they be not in the high

The kids called them Star light come on. Our car was inspected for an external crack in the aluminum cylinder head and the Ford dealer said that there wasn't one evident. Within a few months we had to have the cylinder head replaced because of an internal crack at our own expense. The plug wires put on a light show in the dark and the even pulsate with each discharge.

Unfortunately you bought

Line worst car Ford ever built. I've never known an owner that didn't have the cylinder head crack. Lots of times the factory would pick up the tab but most times they would not. Have the oil pressure tested with a mechanical gauge; it isn't normal for any engine to have any warning light come on at any time. That's why they call them warning lights. I'd be suspicious that the car has another cracked head or blown head gasket which would account for the sporadic running. The fact that the brakes degrade indicates that the power booster is losing engine vacuum. A blown head gasket can be checked with a chemical dye-check of the coolant and pressurizing the cooling system to check for an internal leak is another method. It can't very well be checked with electronic equipment. The mechanic has

Not long ago, as you may recall, we had so many customers we sometimes had to ask them to wait a few weeks while we built their cars. Well, the people in Spring Hill voted to put in a bit more overtime to help keep up with the demand, and we now have a pretty wide selection of models to show you. So the only thing that might try your patience from now on is hearing, over and over again, "Say, how do you like your new Saturn?"

Take a 'Classic Cruise' in Somerville

Friday night festivals offer music, sidewalk dining and some memorable machines

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN WeekendPlus Editor

rt ain't Hollywood Boulevard, but it ain't a movie, either. West Main Street, Somerville — not exactly a glamorous name on paper, but you ought to see it on Friday nights in the summer, when a spontaneous motorcade of classic, custom cars lines the main downtown drag.

It looks like a scene out of the movie American Graffiti, escept the street - and the cars - are for real. And people are flocking to Somerville by the carload to enjoy the Friday festivities, which include sidewalk dining, free concerts and even peeks under the car hoods offered by some of the more generous "cruisers."

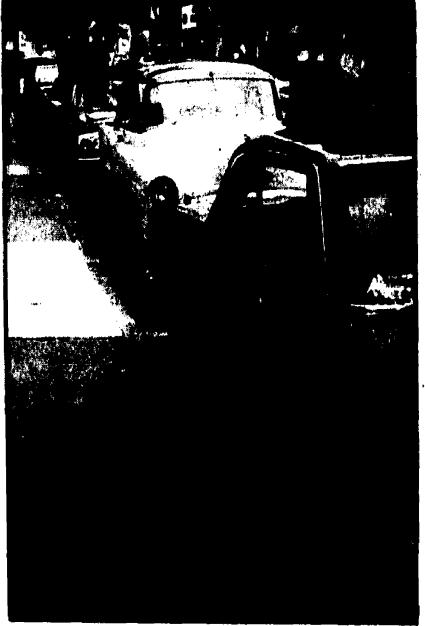

It all started four years ago, when Wes Pinson, owner of West End Gulf and classic car owner, was looking for a spot for his classic car club pals to display their machines where people could see them. Many car clubs gather in parking lots or other specific locations throughout New Jersey, but there was no place they could "cruise" — and that's what Pinson was after.

Pinson, who's since moved from the area, contacted Tony Ettore, a West Main merchant and chairman of the Somerville Business and Professional Association (SPBA), to see if the SPBA couldn't help him clear it with the police and town officials to cruise West Main and park their classics along the street for everyone to see.

"The first year was a little rocky," said Ettore, who owns Marty Orshan's Clothing for Men. "Because it wasn't a sanctioned group — it was just word of mouth. We had some problems with cars being parked in front of fire hydrants, and police were ticketing cars in loading zones, which we had cleared with police department because they're not needed on Friday nights, but the information wasn't getting back to the police. But it was good, because we got a lot of the bugs out."

In subsequent years, "it sort of organized itself" according to Ettore, and while some merchants found the cars to be a bother, many — especially restaurants — found the large crowds of people being drawn to Somerville were a boost to business in a lagging economy.

"It doesn't necessarily put money in your register on Friday nights," said Ettore, who does stay open late on Fridays. "It's not a business night, it's a show-off night, because people see your business, and if they see a sale sign or something in the window, they might come back to buy some other time."

KERRIE HAGYMEEKENOPLUS

Classic cars line Main Street in Somerville and draw huge crowds every summer Friday evening in Somerville.

The first Friday, according to Ettore, there were only about 10 classic cars on display, but now, upwards of 120 custom classics show up on a given night, everything from Model Ts and roadsters of the pre-World War II era to the Mustangs, Mopar "muscle machines" and convertible Corvettes of the '60s and '70s.

"If the merchants are smart enough to stay open or at least keep their lights on Friday night, then a lot of people are going to see there store in a positive light," said Rich Réitman, chairman of the Somerville District Management Corporation (DMC), which helps promote the event in several ways, including the presentation of a free concert series on the Somerset County Courthouse Green (see sidebar). "It's just a great atmosphere, and it presents Somerville in a very positive light. And I don't know why any merchant would object to an extra 6,000-8,000 people in town to see their stores."

The practice of cruising, meanwhile, has slowed down considerably, as most car owners just pull into town and settle in a favorite spot. This is probably a natural result of the popularity of the event, which draws so many people. traffic can back up for miles, although there's plenty of free perking in the municipal lots once you get into town.

Another innovation is the addition of sidewalk dining areas at many of the Main Street eateries, which range from pizza pariors and pubs to elegant restaurants. Other DMC-sponsored attractions include a disc jockey and the hiring of the Flemington Trolley, a bus restored to look like an old-time trolley that shuttles people up and down Main Street. Both the DJ and the trolley were contracted for Fridays in June only, but the trolley may be back for July as well.

The final piece of the puzzle will begin in a few weeks, when the long-awaited StreetScape program gets underway. Streetscape, a DMC project, will invest more than $1 million into revitalization of the Somerville business district. The plan includes construction of new sidewalks that would help to encourage customer traffic.

"I remember I lived in the New Brunswick area in the late '60s, and back then, I wouldn't dare walk down George Street," said Reitman. "Now it's beautiful there, and people are coming back to New Brunswick."

Reitman said the "Classic Cruisers" have helped to revitalize downtown Somerville, and once StreetScape is is completed. Somerville may return to its glory days as the hub of Somerset County.

"I went to the concert at the Green the other day with my wife and two daughters," he said. "And let me tell you, to sit on the lawn listening to a Sousa marching bend with a couple of hundred people, kids running around everywhere — it's like something out of a Norman Rockwell painting.

"After the concert, we walked into town, and we saw some friends we hadn't seen in 20 years. The cars, the outdoor cases, the trolley, they're all part of a bigger project - to bring people back into Somerville. You have to give them a reason to want to come here."

Courthouse concerts start the evening off

Somerville Downtown Management Corp. sponsors a series of Friday night concerts on the Somerset County Courthouse Green every Friday night through the end of August.

Better yet, they're free!

It's a program with something for everyone, from gospel, classical and Dixieland jazz to folk, blues and rock 'n' roll.

Most of the musucians donate their performances, while production costs are paid for by the DMC, the primary sponsor, Somerset County Johnson and Johnson Companies, and the participating sponsors, Hoechsy Celanese Corp. New Jersey Savings Bank and the Somerset Trust Co.

ecognizing that cars and Concerts begin at 7 p.m. and are music go together like over by 8 p.m., leaving you plenty baseball and hot dogs, The of time to shop, eat a meal at a downtown restaurant and enjoy the classic cars along West Main Street.

A piece of the action

Co-star, audience are taken for quite a ride in 'Last Action Hero'

By JEFFREY COHEN WeekendPlus Film Critic

f somebody walked up to you two months ago and said this summer Steven Spielberg and Arnold Schwarzenegger would have films opening within a week of each other, and one of them would be far more appropriate for kids than the other, whose movie would you have put your money on?

Me too, and we both would have been wrong.

Although Jurassic Park is, head and shoulders, the better film, it is Schwarzenegger's latest epic, Last Action More, that is less likely to cause nightmares and more likely to cause applause in the under-12 set. In fact, Hero, Ah-nuld's attempt to broaden his audience base, tries to hit so many marks and still be palatable to the family that, eventually, it misses the mark.

That doesn't mean there isn't plenty of fun to be had. This is the action Arnold melded with the comedy Arnold (you know, Twins), and the seams show like crazy. If Schwarzenegger weren't actually playing two characters, you'd swear he's schizophrenic. Fact is, this is a movie not about Arnold and his gun, but about a kid (Austin O'Brien) who, through plot mechanics that don't make sense even when they're explained, ends up inside a movie starring his favorite action hero, Jack Slater (how Arnold always ends up with a WASP name and an Austrian accent is one of the few cliches not satirized here). Slater is played by the big guy himself, and not a little mileage is gotten out of him mispronouncing his own name.

The movie is, finally, about movies. Danny, the generic kid who drives the plot, is a movie freak, hanging out with an old projectionist (Robert Prosky). When he makes it onto the screen, he's able to predict the plot turns because he's seen this a million times before. So have we.

The difference is, this time the movie understands that a lot of this stuff is just, well, silly. The movie-within-a-movie that opens Hero is overblown Die Hard nonsense, and because it's directed by John McTiernan (who did, well, Die Hard), you'd expect the jokes to be a little less obvious. Yes, once forced to disarm, Jack Slater's would still have hundreds of guns on him. Don't expect us to laugh when we know that Far more successful are the Hollywood in-jokes. When Danny tells Slater not to trust his FBI pal Practice, who happens to be played by F.

Arnold Schwarzenegger's latest movie, Last Action Hero provides the usual action, but also finds enough time to poke comic fun at several Hollywood cliches and even Hamlet, described during one point in the film as the 'first action hero.'

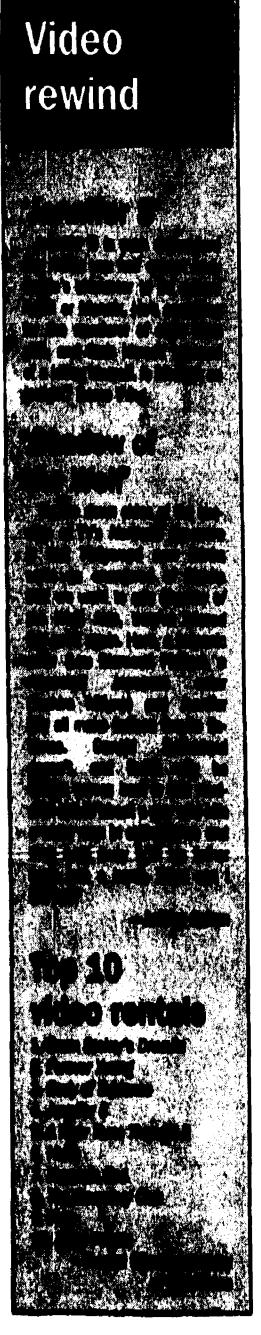

Murray Abraham, it's because Danny recognizes him as "the guy who killed Mozart." When Danny's teacher introduces a clip from Laurence Olivier's Hamlet, it would be nice if the audience recognized the teacher as Joan Plowright, the widow of Olivier herself. For that matter, in a movie like this, it would be nice if the audience recognized Hamlet.

Big stars play cameos all over the place in here. From a surprisingly earnest Tina Turner to a very cleverly placed Sharon Stone, they all seem to be having a fine time. Arnold even gets to play himself, coming to the premiere of his latest film, in which he plays Jack Slater. By that point, Slater and Danny have come back to reality, so Slater's there, too. You're just going to have to trust me on some of this.

Some of the gags hit the mark; some of them are aimed at kids. Some of the movie plays like a tough action epic, some of it is comedy for kids. Yes, there is cartoonish violence, and even Arnold makes a gag about how this is a more family oriented picture because "we only kill 48 people in this one, as opposed to the last, in which we killed 119."

Arnold, no matter how much you want to hate him, just gives off some kind of wierd likability on the screen. When Jack finds out he is, in fact, a fictional character, he actually experiences a moment of angst that appears genuine. But those expecting Terminator 3 might be put off by the sanitized action and silly jokes. Even so, if you're kids are more than 5 and less than 14, you could do worse than go with them to Last Action Hero.

Correction — In last week's review of Jurassic Park, it was stated that the bumbling computer hacker who sets the whole plot awry was played by Bob Peck. The actor's name is really Wayne Knight Oops, sorry.

No Oscar for 'Last Action Hero,' but it's no 'Hudson Hawk'

Here's how the rest of America's favorite reviewers felt about Arnold's latest bone-crunching blow-up:

Michael Medved The New York Post

"...hard-core action fans may well opt for Cliffhanger, with its sweaty, spectacular stunts, overly earnest acting and excesses of sadistic gore, but I prefer this funny, frisky new film — with its relatively restrained blood-and-guts and appropriately awarded PG-13 rating. Even when its gags don't work, Last Action Hero maintains a suitably skeptical and breezy attitude toward a tired movie formula that's become a sour joke whenever it tries to take its own conventions too seriously."

The New York Times Vincent Canby

"Last Action Hero is something of a mess, but a fequently enjoyable one. It tries to be too many things to too many different kinds of audiences, the result being that it will probably confuse, and perhaps even alienate, the hard-core action fans...More sophisticated audiences are likely never to see the film's occasionally funny gags at the expense of movies the action fans have never heard of."

USA Today Susan Włoszczyna

"This movie-within-a-movie is a too long, too loud tease as it toys with the Schwarzen-dude's well-toned cinematic image...While not exactly the son of Howard the Duck or Hudson Hawk, Hero flies uncomfortably close to turkeydom..."

The Daily News Dave Kehr

"For a moment...the film seems to be making a serious statement about the desensitizing nature of excessive movie violence...But no sooner have the filmmakers made this obvious, yet important, point than the characters start blasting away again. The film shows no regard for the innocent people they kill and no concern for the pain and destruction they cause."

Brand X bringing new chops to Club Bene

Phil Collins' former bandmates reunite after 12-year hiatus for album and club tour

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN WeekendPlus Editor

ercy Jones, former bass player for the 70s jazz-rock-fusion band Brand X, was a little leery about reforming the group when he was offered the opportunity last year — fearing it was a dinosaur whose day had come and gone.

But dinosaurs are in vogue these days, so along with original guitarist John Goodsall and newly-recruited drummer Frank Katz on drums, he gave it a shot. And you can judge the results for yourself on Friday, June 25, when the trio performs with new-ager Adrian Legg at Club Bene in Sayreville.

Of course, among the Brand X alumni that won't be with the new lineup is Phil Collins. But Collins' Brand X was only a studio participant with the band anyway. Splitting his time with Genesis, he never had time to tour with the band, although he was often — and incorrectly - identified as the man who put it together.

Actually, it was keyboard player Robin Lumley invited Goodsall, Jones, and others to a London rehearsal hall to jam on a weekly basis. That led to a recording deal with Island Records in 1974.

"We made a record for Island that had vocals on it, but we didn't like it, so we asked if we could make another, all-instrumental record," said Jones during a phone interview from his apartment in Manhattan, where he's lived since 1979. "They said OK, but we realized the drummer we had wasn't suitable for instrumental music, so we started looking for another, and an A&R guy at Island suggested Phil. We liked him, and he liked us, so we made the album. We liked this one, but Island hated it, so they dumped us."

Collins, though, helped the band get a deal with Charisma Records (Genesis' label), which is probably where the misconception began that Brand X was Collins' "hobby band."

"We resented it, not so much towards him but to the press," Jones said. "But the problem did arise later where Phil was treating it as sort of a part-time hobby, where as we were taking it very seriously. We had to use other drummers on tour, but he insisted on playing on all the records."

But with or without Phil Collins, this was a band that developed quite a reputation for some major chops, not the least of which lept off Jones' remarkable fretless bass, which caught the attention of people like Brian Eno. who featured Jones liberally on his magnificent album Before and After Science.

"That Before and After Science was one of most enjoyable things I ever worked on, because he gave you so much room," said Jones.

The new version of Brand X began in March of '92, when Jones was approached by Brooklyn-based Ozone Records, which was recording an album by Paranoise, a band Jones had been working with, and asked him if he wanted to do an album with a guitarist. The search for a guitarist eventually led to Goodsall, who was living and working in California.

"It was tense recording because we hadn't played together in 12 years," he said. "We didn't know if there would be any chemistry, because people change, but it worked, and after only about a half-hour, we realized we could do something."

Only after the record was completed was the decision made to call the band Brand X. the album X Communication, and mount an East Coast tour last December, which skipped New Jersey. This one won't, and the new Brand X will make its New Jersey debut at Club Bene.

"It's a different sound," said Jones. "With only three pieces, there's a lot more room, and the songs aren't as elaborately arranged as when it was a five piece."

New technology, though, has helped the band flesh out the sound. "In the old days, there were no samplers, so you had to use tape loops," said Jones, adding with a chuckle "I remember one time when Eno had tape loops that went around the entire room!"

NJSO to bid bon-voyage to Hugh Wolff

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN

WeekendPlus Editor

ianists Andre Watts and Yefim Bronfman, violinist Robert Mc-Duffie and cellist Carter Brey will join the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra Sunday, June 27, at Newark Symphony Hall to say good-bye to a special friend and colleague.

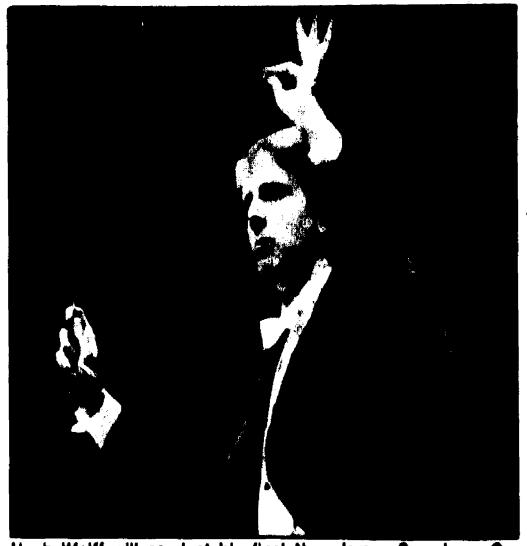

The all-Beethoven program and post-concert dinner are a special tribute to Hugh Wolff, former music director of the NJSO, who will conduct the orchestra he's led since 1985 one last time before moving on to his new post as music director of the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra in Minneapolis.

The tribute is an appropriate send-off for the respected maestro, who revitalized the orchestra, modernizing its repertoire to include both modern and American composers. He also expanded the orchestra's exposure by instituting radio performances, commercial recordings, chamber orchestra series at both Rutgers and Princeton and a pops series while also helping to arrange for the orchestra's first tour of

During his tenure as music director, the NJSO's budget more than doubled from $3 million to $7.2 million, while the subscriber base skyrocketed from 6,000 to 16.000.

The program will include "Leonore" Overture No. 2, Op. 72; the Concerto in C major for Piano, Violin, Cello and Orchestra, Op. 56 (with Bronfman, McDuffie and Brey); the "Leonore" Overture No. 3, Op. 72a and finally the Fantasia in C minor, Op. 80 ("Choral Fantasy"), with Andre Watts and the Pro Art Chorale joining the orchestra for a rousing finale.

New Jersey prepares for balloon mania

Tickets are now on sale for Quick Chek Festival of Ballooning July 30-Aug.1

f you see motorcycles, a castle or a giant parrot flying over your house in late July, don't run for the nearest psychiatrist. It's just a bunch of hot air.

Advanced tickets are now available for the Quick Chek New Jersey Festival of Ballooning at Solberg Airport in Readington, which will be held July 30, 31 and Aug. 1.

More than 100 balloonists are expected to show for this year's festival, including the fascinating Forbes collection of hot air balloons, including the "Harley Hog" and a macaw parrot. Other entertainment will include air shows (featuring barnstorming and antique planes), antique car displays, a medieval joust on horseback, a magic show, barbershop quartets, circus acts, a marionette show and a petting farm. Artists and crafters will display their works. Fireworks shows will end each day of the event.

This year's event is being run by Korff Enterprises of Mahwah and Promo I of New York. Readington resident Bill Lewis founded the festival 10 years ago, but has retired as organizer and sold the tights to the event.

On July 30, gates open at 1 p.m. with the balloons scheduled to go up at 6:30 p.m., weather permitting. Gates close at 10 p.m. On July 31 and Aug. 1, gates open at 6 a.m. with the balloons scheduled to ascend at 6:30 a.m. and then again at 6:30 p.m.

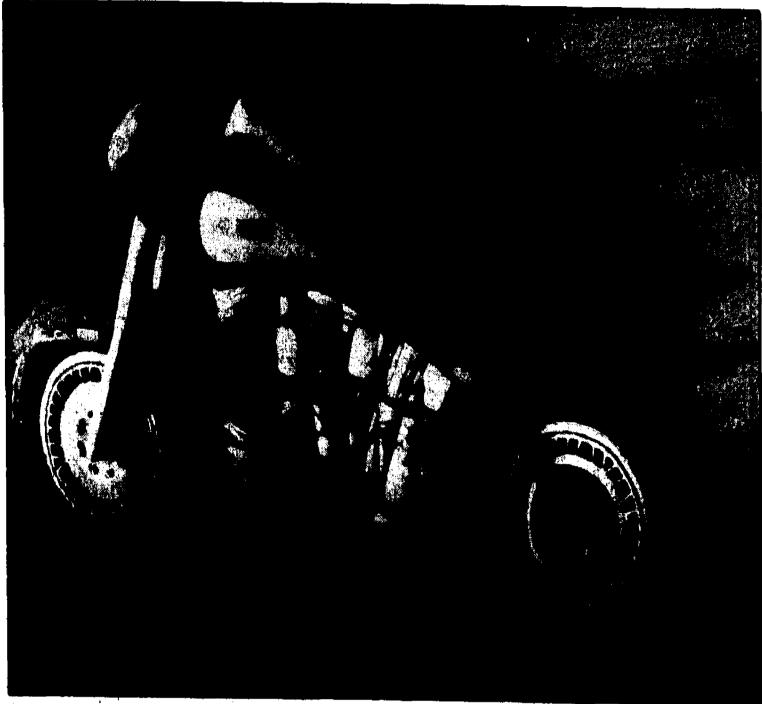

Quick Chek, this year's title sponsor, will sell advance tickets with $1 from each ticket going to the Leukemia Society of New Jersey.

Advanced tickets for adults are $8; children 6-12 years old, $3, and children under 6 get in free. They can be obtained at any Quick Chek location or by calling 800-HOT-AIR9. Advanced group rates also are available. Cost is $7 for adults and $2 for children 6-12.

Advance tickets can also be obtained from the Somerville B.P.O.E. Lodge 1068, with a portion of the cost going to the Somerville Handicapped Children's Center.

At the gate, tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children ages 6-12.

Festival organizers are looking for volunteers to take tickets and man information booths during the three-day event. Groups or individuals interested in participating should call 800-HOT-AIR9.

The Forbes "Harley Hog" belloon features wheels with a diameter exceeding 52 feet.

"Mr. Peanut" supervises a mass balloon launching at last year's Festival of ballooning.

A view from inside the Forbes "Macaw" balloon provides a glimpse of a fellow balloonist beyong the "claws" of the glant parrot, which measures 194 feet by 85 feet from head to tall.

TOUR HIGHLIGHTS

The Spanish Riding School

and places to be visited on the 10-day Imperial Capitals Tour being offered by Forbes Newspapers and Lufthansa German Airlines.

No visit to the Imperial city of Vienna is complete without a visit to the home of the Dancing White Horses of the Spanish Riding School. The mystique of these magnificent horses is world famous. Their rescue from the horrors of World War II by General Patton was documented in the Walt Disney classic film The Miracle of The White Stallions. Today, they are considered an Austrian national treasure.

For many centuries the Spanish horse, a crossing of Arab and Berber stallions with Andalusian mares, was of the same importance in Europe as the English thoroughbred is today. When the Moors were driven out of Spain, breeding, which had reached a very high standard during their 700-year reign began to decline. In the following years, attempts were made to continue the Spanish breed in various countries of Europe.

The imperial court in Vienna ordered stallions and mares to be bought in Spain and transported to

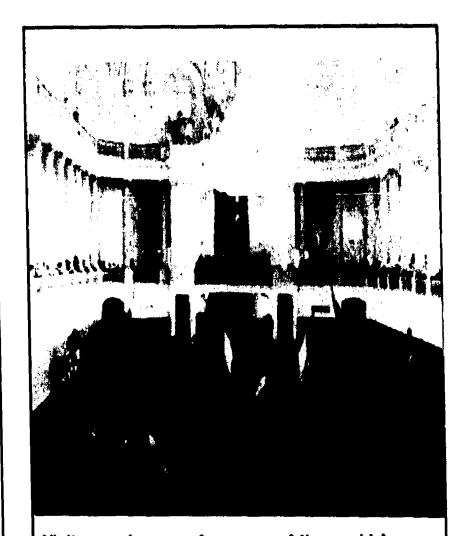

This is one in a series of articles about the cities Lipizza, a small village near Trieste. Here the Imperial stud farm was founded in 1580 to make a new home for the Spanish horse. All horses born at this stud farm were called Lipizzaners.

In the 16th century, the classical art of riding was at its peak and riding academies were established at all royal courts. The graceful movements of the Lipizzaners and the absolute control of their muscles suggest a comparison with the classical ballet.

At the end of World War II, the area containing the Lipizza stud was ceded to the newly established nation of Yugoslavia. Austria was allowed to keep some of the breeding stock and in 1919, a new stud was established at Piber in Styria. From then on, it was the task of this village to provide all the horses for the Spanish riding school in Vienna.

While in Vienna, local readers who join the Imperial Capitals tour will experience the magic of the legendary dancing white stallions when we pay a visit to the world famous Spanish Riding School.

For information about the Imperial Capitals Tour, contact your local travel agent or call the Romantic Tour Hotline at (703) 644-3179 or 800-523-6767.

Visitors enjoy a performance of the world famous white Lipizzaner Stallions at the Spanish Riding School in Vienna.

Sponsored by Forbes Newspapers and Lufthansa.

Our tour departs October 5, 1993.

On the waterfront

Inside and out,
Stars and Stripes
at the Armory is a delicious destination

by MICKI PULSINELLI
Culhary Correpondent

y mother returned to her home in Florida last week, but before she left, I promised her a lobster dinner. When she lived in New Jersey, she always liked the shore. Summer vacations were always two weeks at the ocean. So I chose a place close to our home, but with a shore atmosphere.

The place was Stars and Stripes at the Armory in Perth
Amboy. Located along the Perth
Amboy waterfront, the Armory offers a magnificent view of the Arthur Kill, the waterway between
New Jersey and Staten Island.

It was a spring night, so we chose to eat indoors. But several people were out on the patio, oblivious to the wind and cool temperature. We decided a walk along the pier would be better after dinner to enjoy the night air and burn off some calories.

Stars and Stripes is located on the main floor. The dining room is reminiscent of a luxury liner. There is a large bar in the middle with tables all around. There are windows everywhere providing a nice view of the harbor. We saw several sail boats making their way back to the dock.

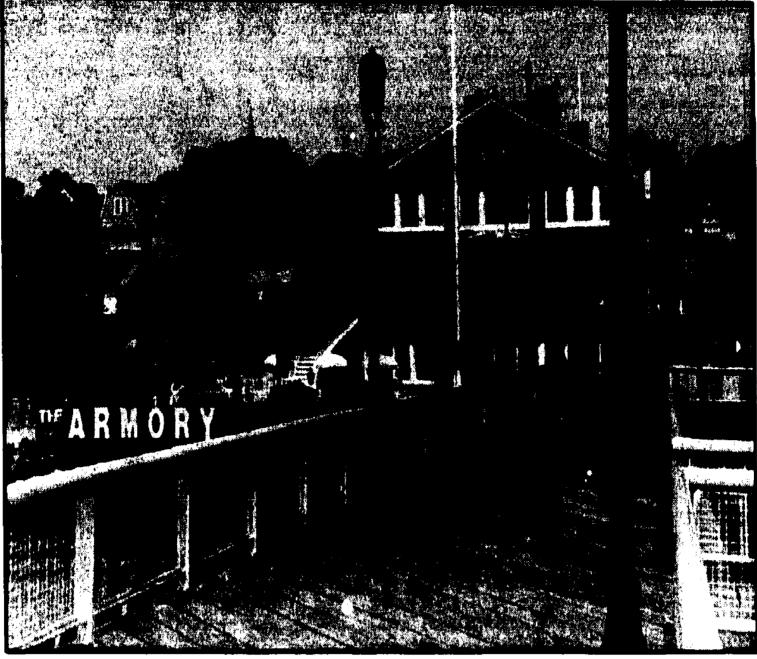

The colors are, obviously, red, white and blue. Bright and colorful neon signs are everywhere. Tables are covered with white table cloths and red napkins, and all the servers are dressed in red, white and blue sport shirts.

The crowd was a mixture of all ages. Some were dressed in jacket and ties, while others were more casual. There were people there for dinner as well as others stopping for a drink after a long work week (this was a Friday night).

Stars and Stripes menu is mostly seafood, but it does have a few meat and poultry selections. There are 10 hot and cold appetizers ($4.95-$8.95 for Maryland crab cake), three soups ($3.25-$3.50), and four salads ($3.50-$5.75 for sliced tomatoes and fresh mozzarella).

There are three pasta selections ($11.95-$14.95) and all include a seafood (scallops, salmon and red clam sauce). Meat and poultry selections are filet mignon ($18.95), N.Y. strip steak ($16.95), 16-ounce T-bone ($17.95), twin double lamb chops ($16.95) and grilled chicken breast ($12.95).

They had 13 seafood selections. Fresh, whole lobster, boiled or broiled, sells for $12.95 a pound. Other choices include sea bass ($15.95), scrod ($13.95), yellowtail flounder ($12.95), swordfish ($17.95), salmon ($17.95), monkfish ($14.95) and pompano ($15.95). You can order it blackened, grilled, broiled, poached or sauteed, and served with your choice of sauce (teriyaki, roasted red pepper, lemon-basil, mustard-dill or lobster-cognac).

Stars and Stripes at the Armory in Perth Amboy offers fine seafood and more on a waterfront location overlooking the Arthur Kill.

The menu also has "traditional surf favorites" such as stuffed flounder ($13.95), stuffed shrimp ($16.95) and surf and turf at market price. Entrees are served with a salad, potato and vegetables.

We started the night with two orders of steamers, for my mother and I ($6.25), and Maryland crab cake for my husband. The menu says little necks, but they were the real steamers, and delicious. They were served in a little pot with a cup of broth and butter.

The crab cake was served with a spicy hot roasted red pepper orange sauce that filled the plate. He remarked that this would have been a great entree.

My mother ordered her lobster (a 1¼ pound lobster, broiled, for $16.00). She was equipped with a lobster fork, a large shell cracker and a bib. When she was finished, all that was left was a mound of shells. She said her lobster was delicious and very tender.

My husband ordered the broiled jumbo Texas Gulf shrimp stuffed with crabmeat ($16.95). This consisted of three large shrimp, stuffed with a good crabmeat, and served with shoestring fries, cauliflower, broccoli, zucchini and carrots.

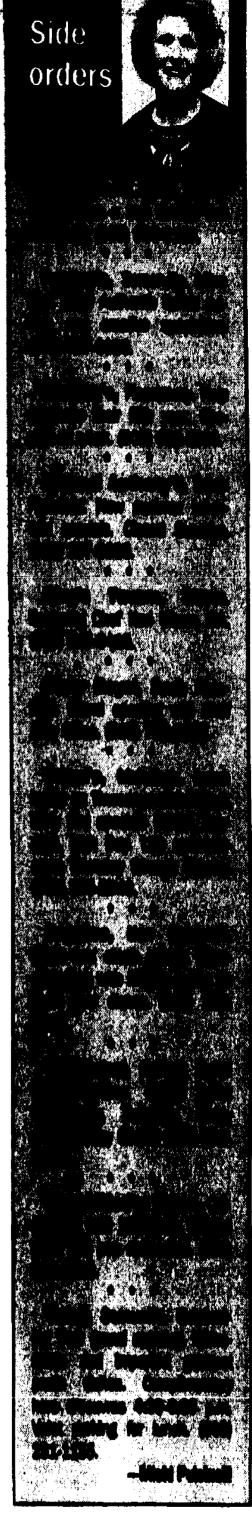

I had the "campy scampi," three Gulf shrimp, a baby lobster tail, angel hair pasta and served in a scampi sauce ($14.95). I ate all of the seafood, but couldn't finish the pasta. The scampi sauce was prepared the way I like it, with plenty of garlic.

Desserts are on the menu ($2.95 to $4.50). My mother had the cheese-cake with a nutty crust ($4.25) and my husband had the rice pudding ($2.95).

We lingered over our mugs of coffee, content to just sit back and listen to the singing of the piano player, while watching the moon rise on the water.

STARS AND STRIPES AT THE ARMORY 200 Front St., Perth Amboy. (908) 826-

This column is intended to inform readers about dining opportunities in the area. It is not a review.

Wine With Reason Marilyn Cormack

Three more "S"-es, sip, spit or swallow. You've already gathered as much information about your wine through sight swirling and smell as you can. The next logical step is to put it in your mouth to see if you can confirm your observations. But, when is it appropriate to spit and when can you swallow?

Spitting is not some affected thing that only wine snobs do. It can be very necessary. I always tell my classes that if they don't spit, especially if we're tasting seven or eight wines, that everything after glass four is going to taste great. Spitting is really the only way to go when you are tasting a line of wines for critical analysis. It's amazing how even the little amount of alcohol absorbed sublingually can affect not only your tastebuds, but your emotional judgement as well. However, I do not condone spitting in fine dining situations, or at your parents Thanksgiving meal, unless they've already learned to expect this kind of bohemian behavior from you.

Whether you choose to soit or swallow, the beginning procedure is still the same - you take a small sip of wine and tip your head down. Keeping your teeth together, purse your lips slightly and draw air in through your mouth. The wine is being warmed by your oral cavity to release fla-Tors and adding the air helps to open it even more. You should be making a fairly good slurping sound. Next, hold your head up and gently roll the wine around your mouth. This will help you discover all the tactile attributes of the wine.

Now you can either swallow or spit. Take note: if you are at a winery and the winemaker spits on his cellar floor, it's O.K. for you, too. After the wine has left your mouth, keep your lips closed and take a deep breath in. You'll be amazed how many more aromas you'll discover.

Ask yourself if what you thought about the wine is happening in your mouth. Did the berries you smelled come through in the taste? If the wine looked thick, did you find it mouth-coating? If it was super bright could you pick up the acidity? Practice this, and see how close your analysis comes to the actual taste of the wine. Enjoy!

Well, The Enclave, Continental Properties' exclusive gatehouse community, is shattering the stereotypical image of a townhouse.

The Enclave's two- and three-bedroom townhomes offer up to 2,850 square feet of living space - as much as one might expect to find in a detached, single-family home. Starting at $189,990, the townhouses also offer the same quality design of detached homes. In fact, The Enclaves townhomes bear more resemblance to quality detached homes than to the townhouses of bygone days.

The real difference here between detached homes and The Enclave's townhomes is an exterior maintenance plan that leaves the work, including landscaping in the hands of professionals. Residents are free of the "yard work" associated with single-family home ownership. That means they have more time to enjoy the community's pool, formal gardens, 15-acre woodland preserve, tennis courts, and luxurious clubhouse fitness center. complete with saunas.

Corporate transfers are good news

By TERRY LAVIN KUBOCK

CORRESPONDENT

Good news for the central New Jersey real estate market: Corporations are again transferring management staff here in significant numbers, contributing to an active a smooth transition into the new area, many relocation market.

The result? A seller-friendly market. This healthy portion of relocation business, along with low mortgage rates, and the pent-up demands of local first-time buyers and move-up homeowners who held off buying until the economic recovery, have made it so. In short, there are more buyers than homes for sale.

Yet the sales environment does not resemble the frenzied pace of the late '80s. The economy continues to make many potential buyers tentative about moving, and nationally, corporations in the '90s are being more conservative in offering transfers to their staffs.

But the relocation traffic in this area is definitely on an upswing.

"For the first time in a long while, we are seeing some growth in the number of incoming employees into the Wall Street area," said Barbara De Malo, manager at Burgdoff Realtors Relocation. "That's very positive, especially for those towns situated along the train line into lower Manhattan.

"In addition, as many companies downsize, they are bringing their personnel back to their corporate headquarters, many of which are located in central and northern New Jersey," she said.

Chris Siepert, national account executive for Relocation One, A Coldwell Banker Schlott Company, also pointed out that central New Jersey's strategic location has upped its relocation statistics.

This area has major companies, such as AT&T, Merck, Johnson & Johnson, Bristol-Myers, Squibb, which have a tradition of moving their people."

While relocations have helped to increase area sales, they have also fueled a boom in the rental market. Sheila Michael, property coordinator of Prudential Relocation, said business has been brisk.

"Our clients fall into three categories: those who are building a new home and need a rental property in the interim, those who are on a short-term assignment and don't want to sell their original home, and those who need time to save to afford a home in this area," she said.

Ms. De Maio sees many international transferees as rental candidates.

"In spite of the talk of globalization, we "First, we do a needs assessment," explained Ms. Seipert, "so we can zero in on the type of community to best suit the transferee's needs and finances. Tradi-

After narrowing down the options, the next step is education.

"Well before the relocating family looks at a home," recommended Ms. DeMaio, "they need to be prepared for what the market offers. Sticker shock is still a problem for many people relocating to this area. If potential buyers do their homework, and read up on designated areas, their home search will be more successful and efficient"

Once the relocating families have identifled their areas of choice, the relocation firms refer them to a few realtors.

"I'll sit with transferees and talk about their housing needs to be sure that their lifestyle is a comfortable match for the area," said Alex Redelico of ReMax in Bridgewater. "Their preferences for schools, commuting, and recreational programs will help me recommend the right homes at affordable prices."

As the spring market of 1993 winds down, area relocations specialists are encouraged by the positive trends, and look for the numbers to remain the same for the remainder of the year. That's good news for central New Jersey's homeowners, real estate professionals, and the local economy.

Merchandise Your Home!

Have you ever noticed the racks and stacks of colorful merchandise displayed near the checkout lane of your gorcery or discount store? Those are known as "impulse" displays, created to catch your attention and cause you to make one last selection "on impulse."

Whether the stack of merchandise contains hundreds of bags of cheese doodles, or cases of motor oil, it is a form of merchandising that works because it grabs your attention at a time when you literally have your money in your hand.

Merchandising is important in real estate too. When selling your home, choose an agent who understands the concept, and can demonstrate a history of merchandising homes favorably.

What is merchandising? It is the practice of positioning home favorably in the eyes of prospective buyers, causing them to select the home. Three ingredients must be present to result in successfulmerchandising: 1) an attractive product (your home), 2) the right price (no more than fair market value), and 3) exposure to many buyers. First, you must offer an attractive product, a home in excellent condition. Your real estate agent can help by providing tips to make your home sparkle. You must also have your home priced fairly. That means it must be at, or slightly below, fair market value. Again, your agent has access to local market information to help your arrive at the right price. Buvers compare homes and recognize those which are overpriced, so price is critical to the merchandising process.

The third ingredient - exposure to many buyers - is your agent's challenge. If you offer a home in dazzling condition at the right price, you may expect your agent to create an aggressive marketing plan. The plan should target all potential buyers, as well as other real estate agents. They are an important source of buyers too.

Ask your agent about merchandising your home. It really makes a difference.

Whether you plan to buy, sell, invest or just need information, call us anytime at (908) 658-3600 or stop in at #3. Route 206, Bedmin-W.

What to do on a rainy day? Catch up on video rentals

t is pouring rain outside and you can't send the children out to play on the swings, or it's way too sunny and hot to be able to enjoy an outdoor game of baseball, or you just don't feel like going to the beach for one more day - the local video store is always a quick and easy solution.

In the summer, as during the rest of the year, the most popular movies remain new releases, action and comedy. However, Joe said during the summer customers are more likely to rent older movies than they are during the rest of the year. "More people have more time to spend looking for older films. They are willing to go for long walks to the video store, so they want to stay in the air-conditioned room for a longer amount of time and they have more time to look around," he comments.

Jeff Levine of Easy Video, which has stores in Middlesex and Somerset counties, said, "In the summer we see people renting more family types of movies - the PG, and PG-13 comedies."

Young Adult Librarian Franklin Township Public Library

Patrica C. Wrede began writing The Enchanted Forest Chronicles in 1990. She is up to Book Three and still going strong, to the delight of all lovers of fantasy, princes, princesses, talking animals, and most of all, dragons.

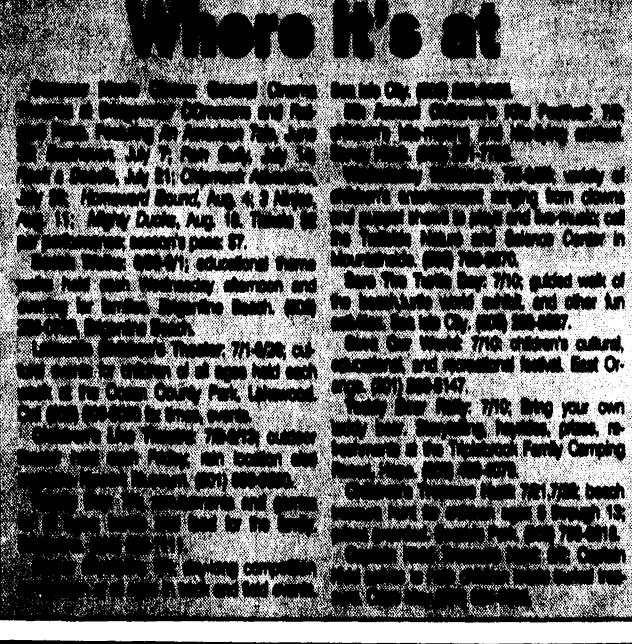

Dealing with Dragons is the novel that introduces Princess Cimorene to lovers of fantasy and fairytale spoofs. When a dull, stodgy young prince is selected by her parents to be the husband of the head-strong young princess, she runs away and joins the service of a dragon. By the end of the book the female dragon Cimorene works for has been elected King. the princess is "King's Cook and Librarian," and everything is in place for the sequel.

Searching for Dragons introduces Mendanbar, the 20-year-old King of the Enchanted Forest. He meets Princess Cimorene. They discover a dastardly plot and battle wizards, using the prince's Enchanted Sword. Cimorene and Mendanbar are perfect for one another, and the novel ends with a wedding scene that is a delight.

Calling on Dragons opens with Witch Morwen, who goes to warn Mendanbr and Cimorene that something is amiss, only to discover that the Enchanted Sword is missing. The Enchanted Sword is eventually found, but when Cimorene tries to return home, she discovers that a barrier has been erected by the wizards and that Mendanbar has been abducted and hidden away so completely that only a descendent wielding the Enchanted Sword will be able to rescue him. Cimorene is pregnant, so now all we have to do is wait for her baby to get big enough and for the sequel to be written.

All three of these novels are perfect for summer reading. They are madcap romps, written with bright, witty dialogue and are about a more-than-capable heroine. These fairytale spoofs are an absolute treat, from start to finish, and will appeal to all fantasy lovers, as well as anyone else with a sense of humor.

BACKYARD

Here's how to achieve that perfect yard

By CHARGINE NETZ

perfect yard is a beautiful thing, a testament to your hours of hard work and planning. But what ers. happens when things go awry, as they can do? What if there is a devastating insect attack, bad weather or any other thing that can lay waste your best gardening plans?

For tips on what do I do now, I turned to some of the best experts in central New Jersey. Barton Nurseries, 949 New Durham Road, Edison, is one of the largest nurseries in Middlesex County. Owner Joe Barton told me that it's never too late to plant, adding that perennials, such as lilies that will bloom later, are among his biggest sellers this time of year. But never forget Barton's crop of hardy annuals: such as impatiens and begonias, so suited to our climate and soil conditions. A full supply of them is waiting for you at the nursery.

Mr. Barton added. Don't over-water your plants. Keep them moist but not soaked.

Ed Robinson, owner of Robinson & Sons Landscaping, 122 Bloomingdale Ave., Cranford, has a wide variety of plantings available for your summertime (or almost anytime) enjoyment. He said, "We have everything from azaless to large trees ready for our customers." Robinson's not only sells on the retail side of the market, but offers a design and/or planting service that will design the landscaping of your property to your specifications, tell you what, desire.

Central Jersey Nurseries, 28 Hamilton Road, Hillsborough, has just the annual and/or perennial stock you need to make your property a showcase. Their wide variety of offerings also includes several types of viburnum (an evergreen that flowers in June or July depending on variety purchased), potentilla (another shrub that produces vellow or white flowers throughout the summer) and Kousa dogwood trees, that produce white flowers in June. This is very similar to the dogwood that blooms in May, said owner Vince Lipani, Junipers and firs are also in stock for custom-

And turn to Central Jersey Nurseries for Tanaka and Echo lines of lawn care accessories. The store has weed trimmers, leaf blowers, edgers and other accessories made by these fine manufacturers.

Just about anything you want for the interior and/or where and when to plant, and carry out your plans if you so exterior for improvement of your home can be found in the 11,000 square feet of space at Warrenville Hardware, 61 Mountain Blvd., Warren. Cousins and co-owners Bill Mc-Donald and Frank Vicendese together bring you the finest in home improvement supplies. family's added safety Warrenville Hardware carries an entire line of Schlage and Kwickset locks, as well as the everpopular Masterlock series. Keying your home to open on one key, and other key/lock services are yours for the asking at this all-inclusive store.

Part of anyone's summer fix-up campaign is keeping paint/paper jobs up to snuff. Commenting on the current trend to the historical looking interiors/exteriors, paint department manager George Andolino, with eight years experience as paint manager, noted that Warrenville Hardware has a full line of Benjamin Moore and Williamsburg historical colors for the discriminating homeowner. Among the most popular colors now are Montgomery White, Blue Spade Gray and Alexandria Beige (exteriors), Phillipsbury Blue and Hadley Red (trim), and Sheraton Beige, Lancaster Whitewash and Queen Anne Pink (interiors), Mr. Andolino noted. He added that most of their colors can be suitably interchanged from interior to exterior, and vice versa.

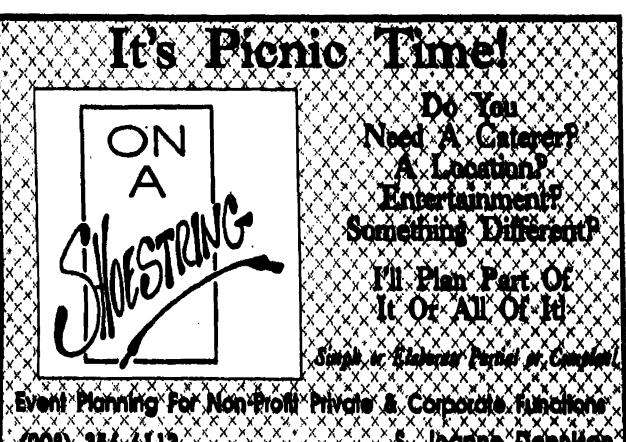

Warrenville Hardware is also equipped with the latest computerized sales aids to guide you in your color selection. One of these systems enables the highly trained sales representative to exactly match your paint chip, fabric swatch, etc. Mr. McDonald said the computer will do a spectrometer analysis and print out an exact formula to match the color sample. It takes out the guesswork and saves the customer lots of time. The analysis is extremely accurate he noted. This system can match up to 1,600 colors better than the human eye can.

The other aid is a computerized video planner that lets the operator input colors onto the facade of a house or a room so that the customer can see just what the projected final results will be. If the planned concept doesn't look right, after all, you will know immediately and can try another color scheme before any damage is done. Need wallpaper to complement your decor? Just what you need can be found in the store's many wallpaper books and hanging supplies.

Sun glasses should do more than look cool

ummer eyewear should be synonymous with summer eye care, say area opticians.

"All glasses should have UV protection," said Marianne Adams, optician at The Eye Center, 213 Stelton Road, Piscataway. A special clear coating blocks against the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays, the sunburn rays. Ms. Adams said it is smart to have regular glasses coated, so when you wear them outside you have protection. They will not guard against glare, only against ultraviolet rays.

For a defense against glare, sunglasses, whether prescription or non-prescription, should have a dark lens, preferably gray, green or brown. These colors work with the eyes, while others, such as blue, work in opposition, disturbing the eye's focusing system. Sunglasses should be coated with UV 400, which guarantees nearly full UV protection.

A good pair of sunglasses should also reduce infrared rays, the sun's heat rays. After a long day on the beach, infrared ray exposure may cause a burning or stinging sensation in your eyes.

Good lenses should also be free of any defects, such as wavy surfaces or internal haziness that may distort images.

Ms. Adams stressed, "With the ozone layer being burnt away and the harmful rays not being filtered as effectively, it is very important to wear glasses with UV protection to prevent damage."

The Eye Center is a complete eye care facility with three ophthalmologists on staff, Dr. Robert Shapiro, Dr. Mark Krawitz, and Dr. Paul Ocken.

After your eye exam, you may have your prescription filled and receive help selecting

Ms. Adams said, "Metals are popular; they are light and come in several colors. Some customers select frames to go with their wardrobe and may purchase more than one pair of sunglasses. Anything we sell is fully warranted for one year."

The Eye Center has been in Piscataway for six years, with another facility in the Warren Medical Building, 65 Mountain Blvd., Warren.

Dave Demilia, owner/optician of Hillsborough Optical Shoppe Inc., 411 Route 206, Hillsborough for nine years, said they can treat or coat all glasses with a clear solution to provide UV protection, which filters about 99 percent of the harmful rays.

According to Mr. Demilia, UV protection may help to prevent the formation of cata-

Mr. Demilia, an optician for over 25 years, makes prescription lenses for regular or sunglasses and sells a large selection of frames. He said, "Our service is very quick and of the highest quality; we stand behind all our frames and service; we can usually fill a prescription in one or two days,"

Judy Demilia, an optician for five years, says they sell such popular brands as Avant Guard, Logo, Serengeti, Carrera, Rabands, Oleg Cassini and Guess.

Hillsborough Optical also sells nonprescription sunglasses and will turn any frame for sale into sunglasses. Ms. Demilia said, "For non-prescription sunglasses, customers are just charged for the frame. Colored metal frames in a rounder shape are definitely popular with today's customers."

Mr. Demilia said that lifestyle should be considered when selecting sunglasses. For boating enthusiasts, polarized lenses cut out the reflection on the water. Mirror lenses are a good choice for those who spend considerable time in bright sunlight, such as skiers.

Anne Sakr, ophthalmic assistant at Berman and Rossi Fashion Eyewear Center, Middlesex Mall, South Plainfield, agreed that UV coating on lenses is most important. "We recommend the UV coating on all glasses. A dark sunglass lens for glare with UV protection is best for sun exposure; polarized lenses are good for the ocean.

Berman and Rossi's optometrist, Dr. Paul Rosen, does eye examinations on the premises. After your exam, you may select from a variety of frames, from budget to designer, including Avant Guard, Yves St. from a variety of fashionable frames right at Laurent, Tura, and Silhouette. Ms. Sakr said, "We also have a showcase of NeoStyle frames. Rayband Wayfarers are popular for sunglasses."

> Popular frame styles are wire or metal frames. Preferred colors include black, gold and shades of teal. Plastic and tortoise shell frames are still somewhat popular. Berman and Rossi sells mostly plastic lenses. Plastic lenses are lighter and, therefore, usually more comfortable than glass lenses.

> "We also carry the new transition comfort lens and transition plus. It works like photogray. Photo-gray are glass lenses that darken gradually as you go into the sunlight.

Scent of A Woman, he said "is supposed to be romantic, but it really has little to do with romance, and Aspen Extreme is great for people who can't wait to get back to the ski slopes."

Mr. Baldanza suggests outdoor movies such as A River Runs Through It and friendship movies such as The Big Chill for adults to rent during the summer.

Recommendations for children's movies range from animated classics such as Cinderella to such blockbusters as Home Alone, Jeff Levine of Easy Video said, "Younger children generally prefer Sesame Street, Barney, and Care would rather rent Swiss Family

"The earlier Disney is great for children. Disney has been around the longest and they know what kids want. You can't go wrong with it." said Walter Wescott of Video Video.

Video stores such as West Coast Video and Video Video in Piscataway understand parents' reluctance to let children carry money around, even if it is just to rent a movie. Mr. Baldanza of West Coast Video said, "We have a rolling charge account, so the parents can come in every week or every other week and pay their bill."

"We have a system where the family does not have to pay until the movie is returned, so children Bears while the older children never have to bring in money," said Mr. Wescott of Video Video.

The benefits of the Well the best advice some local fitness experts have to offer is: get real. Seriously.

"Avoid setting goals too high, too quickly," said Gary Patti, owner of Gold Medal Fitness in Cranford.

In fact, unreasonable expectations are perhaps the main factor that causes people to fall short of their fitness ideals, said Fran Tango, manager of Spa Lady in Piscataway.

"The only reason that people fail is because they do not give themselves enough time," Ms. Tango said. "They don't give themselves time to reap the benefits of all their hard work."

A summer fitness regimen should be based on a person's current level of physical activity. It should either flow with an existing workout program, or serve as the springboard for something long range.

"When a new member comes in, we set up a whole program," Mr. Patti said.

The staff at Gold Medal Fitness tailors a workout regimen for each individual, based on his or her fitness goals and present level of fitness, he said. They emphasize cardiovascular conditioning to trim the person down, thereby motivating them with visible results, Mr. Patti said. The activity also strengthens the body's endurance, preparing it for more strenuous types of exercise.

"You don't want to overwhelm the body physically," Mr. Patti said. "You need to set reasonable goals ahead of time. Don't start too intensely. The idea is to be conservative, but effective."

For do-it-yourselfers who prefer to exercise in their own homes, cardiovascular workouts are key, he said.

Bicycling, rowing machines, jogging (depending upon the strength of one's back and knees), jumping rope, and swimming are good cardiovascular activities.

The benefits of a health spa over trying to exercise on your own are simple: guidance and maintenance, Ms. Tango said.

"The most important thing is for them to make up their minds what their goals are," she said. "Then they need to look at different spas, to see which one suits their needs."

At Spa Lady, each person's regimen is designed specifically for that individual. Spa staff work with members, reweighing and remeasuring them regularly to help the achieve their fitness goals, she said.

For a program to be effective, the person must be willing to work out no less than three times a week, Ms. Tango said.

For someone who has been inactive, that means a moderate start, with a small amount of cardiovascular activity. There are many activities that can be done on a beginner's level, she said.

"The important thing is that they don't overdo it because they want results yesterday. Within 30 days, even at the beginner's level, they will see results," Ms. Tango said.

Diet is also important, Ms. Tango and Mr. Patti said. Also, cut out the late night, or after dinner snacks, said Mr. Patti. One can increase intake of carbohydrates, and even calories, as long as they are lean calories.

It's possible to find low-fat, nutritious foods that will both fit into a diet, yet still be fun for summer, said Lisa Holaday, manager of Nature's Holaday in Somerville, which carries a complete line of vitamin supplements, as well as foods aimed at helping one reduce fat intake. There are fat-free cookies and chips, and, for summer barbecues, garden burgers and hot dogs that have only 2 percent fat.

ACTIVITIES

Fun-seekers can fill a day with the most outrageous diversions

Take a few turns in a Grand Prix go-cart at the new track at Fairway Golf Center's in Piscalaway.

f you are like me, constant activity and action are the key to having a great day, and this holds especially true for the summer, when I try to do as much as possible during my free time.

In order to achieve this, you must be able to use every the sun!

So, to prove it can be done, I have broken a summer day into various activities which would provide the most enjoyment when the weather is just perfect.

First objective after rolling out of bed around 11 a.m. (we all need sleep as well as fun), is to move my spirits with motorized speed.

The day starts at Fairway Golf Center (819-0111) on Stelton Road in Piscataway, which recently opened its new Grand Prix Go-Cart Race Track, and this is one ride you will not forget.

Some excellent weather and $4 per race ($7 for a double seater for a parents and smaller child who decide not to drive the separate Mini Grand Prix track for younger Indy cart drivers) will enable you to drive one these gas-powered racers around the quarter-mile track, and boy can they move.

They reach speeds close to 30 miles per hour, with some pretty sharp turns, and the 6-8 lap, five-minute race really has some serious action.

You have to use all your skill to either move into the lead on the track, which is slightly wider than two cars side by side, or do all you can to keep the lead.

Even though the car and track are surrounded by rubber padded metal plates, the bump and grind action is continuous, and even involves a few spin outs.

But, assistant manager George Christensen said each car has a power cut off to avoid possible accidents.

"The Kart Kommander watches the racers and simply flips a switch to reduce the carts to an idle during spin outs, so they other racers don't hit the carts in trouble," Mr. Christensen said.

"So far, it has been really popular and I have seen some kids buy 20 tickets and drive them all day," he added. "We sell approximately 800 tickets a day on the weekends, and about 500 a day during the week."

Racers must be 56 inches and taller to drive the Grand Prix carts, and 48 inches for younger children to challenge the Mini Grand Prix ($3).

After cor a ring the raceway, I move on to Grand Slam which is run by collegiate baseball and softball coaches. U.S.A. on Oc. Tree Road in South Plainfield, for some find.

Valuable practice time does not have to be lost even with the hot afternoon rays beating down (although do not forget to leave time later for tanning), with a little time anyone second of the day in order to achieve maximum fun under can swing like The Babe (hitting is another question which little over $200, and the lessons are held in local YMCAs. you have to answer).

> According to Steven Cianci, owner and manager of Grand Slam U.S.A.(756-4446), which is part of the Whitey Ford Grand Slam franchise, he is has a full schedule of sports camps, parties and fund-raisers throughout the year.

> "We hold about 20 parties a week here," Mr. Cianci said. "Also, local high school and Little League teams schedule time in the batting cages and pitching tunnel to train be-

"We hold the classes in the YMCA pools, but all of our open water certification in areas like Round Valley Reservoir, Spruce Run and the Point Pleasant inlet," Mr. Masters

After receiving certification, Ocean Explorers offers follow-up training to teach divers other aspects of the sport, including night diving, using a camera underwater and reaching various depths of open water.

Divers also have an opportunity to take open water trips every weekend, according to Mr. Masters, for $50-$75 to different shipwrecks off the coast of New Jersey, where there are almost 1,000 sunken boats waiting to be explored.

You can take the diving certification one step closer, and travel with Ocean Explorers to Florida and the Cayman Islands, which they run once a month, for fun or even to complete the training.

Now that all the rushing has worn me down, it is time to relax a little and take a quiet trip around Echo Lake Park in Mountainside, on paddle boats run by Summer Fun Associates.

WAIT! I forgot to eat.

No need to worry, Summer Fun also runs a snack bar at the lake, featuring a full menu with chicken nuggets, mozzarella sticks, meatball sandwiches, chicken patties, shrimp baskets and other snacks.

With a full stomach, I can easily take advantage of the boats, which can be rented for $6 an hour.

John Moretti, from Summer Fun Associates, said a good portion of business is created on the weekend, but they offer packages to groups to come enjoy the lake during the week.

The boats are very popular, but we encourage different groups — day campers, nursery schools, Girl Scouts — to visit the lake," Mr. Moretti said. "The price per person varies depending on the size of the group but it averages to about $4.75 a child."

So, if you really need to get out and take advantage of the summer weather, you might not need to do it all in one day, but remember to wear sun tan lotion and enjoy your-fore the spring season."

Mr. Cianci also said the parties are successful because parents feel comfortable with the staff, and the size of the facility allows parents to easily keep track of the kids during the party.

Grand Slam's training programs are in full force during the summer, and athletes have the opportunity to join one of the baseball and softball camps held at Grand Slam, famous character on Saturday Night Live, played by Billy Crystal, named Fernando, firmly believed it is better to look good than to feel good.

Well, as the summer approaches, it is the always going to be the "cool" look that will make every sports and recreation enthusiasts feel fabulous.

The staff members at Pelican Pools on Route 22 in Whitehouse and Route 18 in East Brunswick, The Sporting Life on Main Street in Somerville, and Drier's Sporting Goods in the Blue Star Shopping Center in Watchung, are ready to help anyone who enters their doors achieve this great feeling.

What has fast become a popular form of recreation and exercise, in-line skating, has stores swamped with customers looking to take to the streets and Scott Donohue, with the Whitehouse Pelican store, said they offer a full line of rental and sales skates.

He also said this current trend was thought up many, many years ago.

"In-line skating was invented approximately 100 years ago, but everyone thought it was too difficult so they switched to the four-wheel brand," Mr. Donohue said. "They are very fun, people use them for transportation, and low impact exercise, which burns off calories like cross country skiing."

When looking for a pair of skates, Mr. Donohue said you should look for several points, especially with the wheels, and to remember you get what you pay for.

The wheels should be constructed with urythene and hubbed to absorb heat from the ball bearings, which should be seeled. After that, it comes down to a question of the type of chassis and bladder for the feet.

Some brands to look for are: Rollerblade (this is a name brand, not all skates are Rollerblade); Bauer, which manufactures ice skates; and Ultre Wheels, and all are in the range of $79-$279.

They also rent akates for $10 a day, and offer lessons for Safety should be the No. 1 concern after buying the skates, and according to Mr. Donohue, everyone should be first and foremost sure to wear knee and wrist pads, as well as elbow pads and a helmet.

While skating, he said clothing should be comfortable. but suggested tight spandex shorts (with sweat shorts, if necessary), and a loose fitting shirt which absorbs perspira-

"The look this summer is baggy shorts with a 7-9 inch inseam, and a T-shirt with matching hat," said co-owner Bill Roberts. "Usually, people will either match the hat and shirt by team name, or color of each item."

In preparation for the continued wave of popularity in clothing which features the names and logos of a fan's favorite team. Mr. Roberts said they have concentrated on the areas of local professional and popular national collegiste teams.

names such as Notre Dame, Florida State, Michigan, Miami, Washington, and Penn State, with almost every type of clothing which goes with it,

The Sporting Life starts with the hat, and can dress someone all the way down to the feet.

"Footwear styles these days have turned to low cut or three-quarter height, in brands such as Nike and Reebok," Mr. Roberts added. "With the summer, no one wears high tops, so they look for styles like running shoes, or play basketball in the three-quarter style."

He also said tube and striped socks are definitely out, and most people are wearing ankle high, white socks.

The next place to look for the right stuff equipment is Drier's Sporting Goods, a family business for 125 years in Watchung, who say "if you need it, we have it," and use their 11,500 square feet to store their merchandise.

"If we don't go all the way with an item, we don't sell it," said Drier's Vice President Dolly Dicenso. "We carry apparel, equipment, and footwear for all sports, and do it with popular prices and service. We stand behind everything we sell."

Drier's carries everything needed to outfit sporting teams, from the custom printed uniforms and equipment to every type of bat a baseball and softball player might need.

Various departments also focus on leisure sports like fishing, camping, hiking, swimming, snorkeling, and a great deal of backyard games such as volleyball, badminton, bocce, and crochet.

"There has been an increase in the number of bocce and crochet sets sold, especially among adults around the age of 35," Ms. Dicenso said. "Volleyball has even picked up to equal badminton set sales."

Among the volleyball sets, Ms. Dicenso said the most popular sets for the back yard barbecue have been the new PVC sets with a net which slips over the top of the poles.

As long as customers expect the best, and continue the search for the "look," stores like Drier's, Pelican, and the

(He was referring to the different products applied in the early spring, late spring, summer and fall, all of which will ensure a beautiful yard for consumers.)

Warrenville Herdwere customers who are concurrers of Scott's lawn care products receive reminder postcards when it is time to apply each step in the system. More than 3,000 people in the area take advantage of this service provided by Warrenville Herdware, which also offers an early-bird discount on the Scott's products in February.

Warrenville Hardware also offers Ortho lawn and insect products, and is proud to carry the Ortho Problem Solver. As large as an encyclopedia, Mr. McDonald said the Problem Solver is profusely illustrated with just about every lewn and insect problem known to exist. Once the problem has been pinpointed, the Ortho experts discuss the suggested remedies in the book's pages.

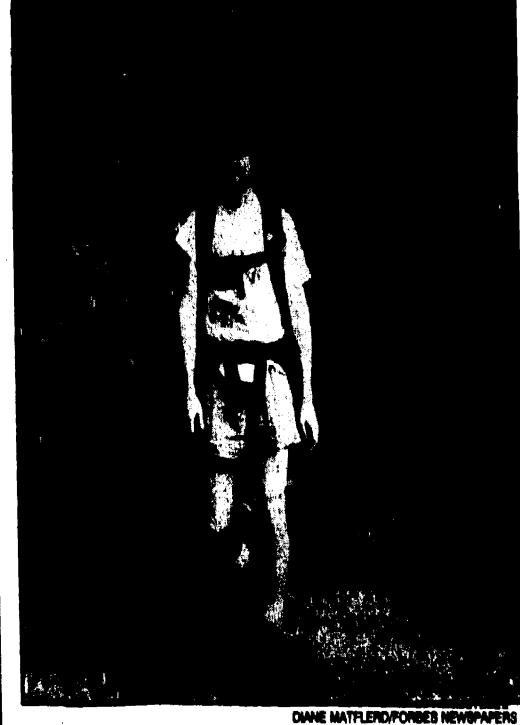

"We not only stock Ortho products, but are glad to offer this free service to people, as customer satisfaction via quality merchandise and an expert sales staff is our No. 1 priority," Mr. McDonald sald. "If people are happy

We realize that the retail market is very competitive, and do everything in our power to give people what they want and need, in every department of Warrenville Hardware."

> Speaking of the outdoors, no one hates stinging insects more than I do. I am scared of them, but yet sensitive to our fragile ecosystem, and therefore am glad to know that Warrenville Hardware stocks non-chemical insect catchers that will keep me — and our planet safe for future generations.

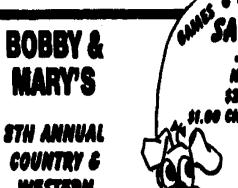

This multi-faceted store also stocks the very popular Weber and Ducane grills for your barbecuing pleasure, as well as an acre devoted to miscellaneous outdoor improvement needs such as mulch, stone, sand and concrete mixes. And while the grill heats, take down those falling branches or other debris with products from the Stihl family of lawn care tools, all fully stocked by Warrenville Hardware. Or clean the pool with HTH/Olin products from this terrific hardware store.

Needing to do some indoor maintenance? No probtem. Warrenville Hardware also stocks PVC pipes for builders and the do-it-yourself devotee, while yet other departments handle housewares, lighting supplies and even window glass and screen repair.

ROMANELLI'S RISTORANTE

Frank Colandrea, the owner of Ro manelli's Ristorante in Scotch Plains, has brought a slice of Italy to America, if not Italy, certainly the lower east side of New York. As you walk through the restau rant and discover the ceramic floor, the neon sign spelling "ROMANELLI'S" or the north wall covered with marble, you realize that this restaurant is different from most others.

We were escorted to a raised dining area with greenhouse style windows, white oak floor and pastel colors. Our table top was granite, and the table setting consisted of fresh pink carnations, rose cloth napkins and white china with green trim. Everything looked so new, so fresh and so light and airy.

Later in the evening, Mr. Colan drea had the opportunity to visit our table. He told us that he's been in the restaurant business for more than 20 years and his chef, Luigi Pepe, trained in New York, where he eventually operated and cooked for his own restaurant.

The menu is a mixture of con ventional and not-so-conventional recipes. Among the appetizers is a dish called vongole alla viageggina ($6.95), which is clams with oil, garlic, white wine and parsley. One of the pasta dishes is fettucini alla Toscana ($9.95), fettucini with meat sauce and mushrooms To scany style.

Romanelli's menu consists of 18 appetizers and salads with prices ranging from $4 for mozzarella in carrozza to $7.50 for a seafood salad and shrimp. scungilli and ca lamari. There are 12 pasta dishes ($9.50 to $16.95) for a seafood mix ture, with an average cost of an assortment of veal and beef (10 items from $12.95 to $17.95). The menu also includes 11 seafood en trees ($13.50 to $19.95 for lobster tails, calamari and shrimp).

Add to this an assortment of spe cials. from appetizers to pasta and veal entrees. and you have a wide selection from which to choose. To top everything off, one of their im ported special desserts.

Romanelli's is an appealing res taurant that serves good Italian food in an attractive setting at prices that are reasonable for the portions served.

"May the face of every good news/And the back of every bad news/Be towards us."

"Here's health to your enemies' enemies."

"May the roof above us never fall in/And may we friends gathered below/Never fall out."

These are some of the toasts you may hear across the backyard this summer as friends and relatives gather to enjoy the long, warm, summer evenings. Nothing complements a fine meal like a fine beverage, and Super Saver, 888 Route 22, Somerville, is ready with a complete variety of both alcoholic and nonalcoholic drinks for you.

Manager Steve Itak told me that the new four-pack liquor/soda coolers are proving most popular this season. The Jack Daniels country cocktails, Jim Beam and Ron Rico brands are particularly big hits.

A refreshing glass of white wine is especially welcome in the summer, and Super Saver is ready to fill your orders for chardonnay, chenon blanc and sauvignon blanc wines. Mr. Itak has all the most popular name brands in stock, including R.H. Phillips and Columbia, which are quite reasonably priced.

Every gathering should have its share of designated drivers who are not consuming alcohol, and for them Mr. Itak can recommend O'Douls and/or Sharps non-alcoholic beers. Most refreshing,he commented.

Microbeer enthusiasts will be glad to know that Super Saver also has special brews for them. (Microbeers are those produced in limited quantities by small breweries.) With each beer produced in relatively small quantities, Super Saver has made arrangements to stock rotating brands for its customers' pleasure.

Southwestern influence is hot in fashion

Washable silks are popular for summer for men and women

By PAT JOHNSON

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Ehis summer may bring a sense of deja vu, '60s style. Though you will see bell-bottoms, knotted blouses and gauze skirts, the biggest summer of '93 fashion trend, according to area retailers, is washable silks.

Lena Reiss, an owner and buyer for Moonstruck, 170 Orlando Drive on Route 206 South at the Raritan Mall, carries washable silks in solids and prints. She says, "The fabric is cool and comfortable; it not only looks and feels good, but it is popular because of its washability."

According to Ms. Reiss, '93 summer fashion includes printed silks, ruffled blouses, sleeveless blouses with cotton embroidery, denim shorts in stripes, and denim with embroidery.

The southwest influence is evident, as are various ethnic looks. Gauze and chiffon long skirts with tiers are in vogue, in mixed prints. "It's a romantic peasant look," said Ms. Reiss. Long cotton skirts are also popular, as are full, wide palazzo pants, worn with flats and blazers.

Moonstruck, where nothing is priced over $15.99, also carries sundresses, bodysuits and leggings, and bike shorts. According to Ms. Reiss, bodysuits with short sleeves, sleeveless, or halter-style are very popular, worn with bike shorts.

"Colors are bright," she says, "but white always sells well in the summer, and black and white is always popular."

Located in the Raritan Mall for five years, Moonstruck has two other locations — Inman Avenue, Edison, and their newest address, Centennial Avenue, Piscataway.

The stores carry top brands — and designer names such as Jordache, Bill Blass, The Gap and The Limited - in all sizes, junior, missy and plus.

Owner Diane Fonesca opened Rodeo Drive at 59 West Main St., Somerville, in November. She said, "I visited Rodeo Drive in California and was impressed with how extremely customer-oriented they were and how they wanted customers to have fun with shopping. My store is based upon that theme."

Ms. Fonesca is working on putting in a system that will profile the needs and wishes of customers, type of clothes, lifestyle, etc. She said, "We ask customers to bring in a specific item and we'll help them coordinate it."

Rodeo Drive carries mostly corporate to after 5 styles, as well as a large selection of accessories.

Summer of '93 corporate-wear, according to Ms. Fonesca, includes silk-blend or pure silk suits, which can be worn for three, often four, seasons. Worn with exciting colorful print blouses and scarves for the summer, prints include an aqua, purple, fuschia blend.

Two-piece dresses are popular, a silk skirt or split-skirt, or slacks and blouse. Deep teal and olive green are popular colors, as are black and white.

For after 5, a simple black sheath dress with open back is popular and can be worn during the day with a jacket. Harem pants in a lightweight knit are being worn with a draped top. A dressy navy top with a navy skirt is also a big seller.

Ms. Fonesca suggests pieces you can coordinate with other things. Rodeo Drive carries summer straw hats, often worn with a scarf around the brim. She said some customers buy one of their unique hand-crafted designer pins to wear on the hat.

As well as popular brands in clothing, such as Regina 9 p.m. both Thursday and Friday nights."

Porter and Lace, Rodeo Drives carries many new designer names in jewelry, belts, and handbags.

Washable silk is popular for men also, according to Tony Ettore, owner of Marty Orshan, 75-77 West Main St., Somerville. "Our store now has a modern, '90s look," said Mr. Ettore, Mr. Ettore sells a line of washable silk shirts for $29.98. Also in demand are 100-percent cotton sport shirts.

Mr. Ettore said his store is geared to men aged 15 to 50plus and sells sizes from 28 to 42. Brands include Levi, Cotler, Jordache, Santana, Sergio, Dockers, Arrow, Career Club, and London Fog. Marty Orshan's sells sports slacks, dress slacks, shorts, dress and casual shirts, socks, belts, ties, and work boots and work clothes. They also carry a full line of warmup suits, shorts, tanks and beachwear.

Mr. Ettore said the Michael Jordan and Hare Jordan lines are popular and include hats and duffel bags. He carries an assortment of mesh tank tops in crop, T- and tank styles with matching shorts.

Some athletic shorts with liners are worn as bathing trunks. Trunks in bright or pastel multi-colors are popular, as are garment-washed greys, purples and blues.

Marty Orshan also stocks sneakers in popular brands such as Nike, Reebok and Russell.

Mr. Ettore says, "For the younger set, Levi's are a big animal print in orange, rust, brown and green and also the seller, especially the 560 loose fit and the 550 relaxed fit in different finishes and colors. Colored denim is popular in blue, black, red and green. Shorts are a medium length."

> For the more mature buyer, Mr. Ettore sells Docker cotton shorts in light backgrounds and Docker, Arrow, or London Fog knit shirts. Earth tones are also popular, as are black, white, navy and grey. New popular Dockers colors include Fig, a deep brownish grape, and a deep aquamarine. Taupe is also popular.

> Mr. Ettore says, "The look of our store has gotten younger; we're very fashion-oriented. We offer very personalized service, including special orders. We'll help you put a wardrobe together if you'd like. You can get outfitted and not break the bank. For customer convenience, we're open until

Skin, nails and hair suffer from the summer sun

By ELEANOR BARRETT

FORBES NEWSPAPERS

To many, it may be the ultimate summer scenario but what's wrong with this picture?

Here's you: at the beach, basking in sun, propped strategically so the rays hit your body eventy as you sit in a sandchair, fingers and tootsies in the sand, yes, it's the ultimate beach day.

But if a scientist could overlay the above seescape with one of those X-ray-type films that show you what's really going on, it probably wouldn't be a pretty sight, say area beauty experts.

Take, for example, your nails. Extremely hot or cold weather can cause them to become dry and brittle. Add a little salt, sand and chlorine and you've got the perfect recipe for a bad nail day, said Sue Schultes of Notorious Nails in Green Brook.

"Sand takes the moisture out of the nail and will pull off the nail anything artificial, such as polish, tips and wraps. People don't realize how many things are bad for natural nails," said Ms. Schultes, adding, even the cabin pressure in an airplane can cause damage which may not be detected immediately.

To offset the damage of what to nails is a volatile summer environment, she said, first and foremost, drink lots of water. "Anything that affects the body will affect the nails."

Other preventative measures Ms. Schultes suggests include the frequent use of cuticle oil, nail polish formulated with sunblocking agents and frequent manicures.

factors can turn the original color of nail polish, one should not. Warran. make frequent use of polish remover as it, too, dries the nail.

Nails are not the only part of the body to dry from exposure to the elements, however. The heir and skin also need pampering to keep them in super shape.

According to Darlene Samicki of Darlelle Hair Studio in Cranford, summer can wreak havoc on hair color as blonds become greens and brunettes become brassy, but the unwanted color change can be avoided if you plan ahead.

"With chlorine and saltwater and sun, what we normally suggest to everybody is to buy and use hair products with leave-in protectors, especially for those with color-treated hair," Ms. Sarnicki said.

Those adorning their natural color are not out of the woods either, she said, and should pay attention to dryness which can occur from the elements and the lifelessness hair can take on from a buildup of conditioners, hair sprays and other treatments.

"Stay away from products with an ingredient list that has alcohol at the top. That product will dry helr out. Mainly you want to find a product with human hair keratin," said Ms. Samicki.

The hair is composed of keratin and usually products which contain it will not coat hair, rather, she said, they will moisturize

The skin, just as the hair and the nails, also needs plenty of moisturizing but all the consumption of water, and amearing of

She cautioned that although suntan lotions and many other from burning, said Merrill Lindernan, owner of Skin Dynamics in

"Of course it's become very well known to us what's happening to the ozone layer. The sun's rays are much stronger than they were years ago," said Ms. Lindeman.

She added, much in the same way as smoking digerettes does, the sun kills "radicals" that are responsible for the aging process and the acceleration of the aging process is not the only danger of exposure.

"You're really taking a chance of exposing yourself to skin cancer in the future," she said.

But even though dangers do exist, one need not resort to spending the summer locked up in a dark room. With an ounce of prevention, "tanning is OK as long as it done minimally," she said.

Some tanning tips offered by Ms. Lindeman:

- Wear a sun screen congruent with the sensitivity of your skin.
- Avoid bething in the sun during the peak "burning" hours from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.
- Apply sun screen one-half hour before you go out into the sun as it will work more efficiently.
- Reapply often, especially after vigorous activity and swimming.
- Extollate the akin regularly to avoid a buildup of dead layers. and oils which can lead to an uneven tan.
- Shower immediately after coming in from the sun and follow creams and lotions mean little if the epidermis is not protected with a moisturizer which matches the integrity of your skin.

FAIRWAY GOLF CENTER

What is the best way to avoid a slice?
What is the best way to avoid a "duck" hook?

TIPS FROM THE PRO
by Brian Richards, PGA
Golf Professional Falrway Golf Center

"The Importance of Posture, Salance and Muscular Readiness"

One of the most common words used in teaching golf is, relax! While the golfer is setting up to the ball he should not be tense, neither should he be relaxed in the sense of being limp. Golf is a game of differential relaxation and of one group of opposing muscles relaxing while its opposite is contracting. This is certainly true in the set up. The body should look "proud," head up, not slumped on the chest trying to keep it down, arms extended, but not locked, back straight but not rigid, grip firm but not tight, legs and feet solid but not wooden. It's an athletic, "at ready" position common to any sport before movement begins.

Think of a baseball shortstop getting ready to field a grounder, a basketball player in a defensive guarding position, a football quarterback about to receive the ball from center, a skier on a downhill run, a swimmer preparing to dive into the water at the start of a race - all ready for action; they are bent at the knees, balanced, with the weight slightly favoring the balls of the feet in anticipation of movement. There are some differences, but there are enough similarities to show that golf, like other sports, requires that the performer prepare the body for action. The only difference is that golf is motion without locomotion. It's movement without the body traveling "anywhere". Golf requires both precision and power. Both are influenced by how the body is "set up" to perform.

Build Self-Esteem — Beat Stress

How to tame the inner critic happiness and you are competent to cope with life's challenges. "If you build on these convictions, you have a powerful tool against stress," says Charlain Andres, educational coordinator at Carrier.

Unfortunately, within us are self-images formed before school age.
"Negative self-images come from a time when we were too young to combat nicknames, labels and assumptions based on limited information," she says. Beliefs about ourselves are remembered and affect our self-esteem today.

The inner critic sends us messages from the past. It limits us, sets impossible standards and calls us names. "If you talk to others like you talk to yourself, you'd never have any friends!" states Andres.

Why is the critical voice so devastating? "It is almost always believed, because you are the source," she explains. "And because the critical voice speaks in shorthand." As an example, the word "dentist" can trigger a stress reaction for some people.

"If you learn to overcome your critical voice, you can reach your goals," says Andres.

Steps to uncover your critical voice:

- Describe the upsetting event or problem.
- How does it make you feel?
- What are your automatic thoughts and how realistic are they?
- After you identify the distortions in these thoughts, substitute rational responses. Make sure your rational responses are convincing statements pointing out hunger to hunger to disclose more of themselves once they move beyond cultural stereotypes and expectations, says

New Men's Program

Gregory Ferenz, right, coordinator of the new
Men's Program at Carrier Foundation.

The program, unique in the region, enables men to share their deepest concerns and deal with specific issues of anger, self-esteem, relationships and sexuality.

"Men generally limit themselves to practical, concrete conversation and play the role of problemsolver— a pattern that can compromise their emotional well-being," Ferenz explains. Men also run into trouble when they try to be "sturdy oaks," always self-reliant, powerful and unemotional. Difficulty in expressing emotion can lead to depression, anxiety, interpersonal problems and other conflicts.

"Many men become wrapped up in certain tasks and shut themselves off from others. They need to pull out of culturally imposed roles and recognize the importance of more intimate dialogue with both men and women," he emphasizes.

In the Men's Program, participants learn to speak of fundamental inner struggles and, in revealing more of themselves, discover that other men experience similar difficulties. "There's comfort in realizing you're not the only male feeling inadequate and isolated," he says.

The program helps men gain personal insight, communication and other skills needed to cope with the particular stresses and conflicts men encounter, from career to relationship concerns. Discussion helps men identify and experience positive as well as negative feelings and experiment with appropriate ways to express them.

For example, Ferenz says, men must reject impulsive or "volcanic" action, but learn to use anger constructively. "In an angry exchange, a man might not realize how intimidating he is to the target of his rage," Ferenz continues. "His display cuts off communication. Men can appropriately show anger by expressing verbally how they feel and by finding physical activities to let off steam."

"If sexuality is the topic, the focus is how to go about being intimate through caring and communication," Ferenz says.

Inpatient and outpatient men's groups are available.
Outpatient groups meet at the Carrier Center for Counseling and Outpatient Treatment in Belle Mead, located midway between Princeton and Somerville.

For more information, call 1-800-933-3579. □

Stop Smoking

"Professionals in the SMOKELESS program show how you can quit smoking quickly without climbing the walls or gaining weight," says Linda Shaw, ACSW, supervisor at the Carrier Center for Counseling and Outpatient Treatment. SMOKELESS addresses the complex smoking habit from every angle — physical, psychological and behavioral. SMOKELESS is cited by the Surgeon General as being "particularly successful."

Fee for the nine-session program is $160. VISA or MasterCard is accepted.

SMOKELESS facilitator is Patricia Ann Rubens, BEd,
MS, certified by the American Institute for Preventive Medicine and American Lung Association.

the lies of your critical voice.

Once the critical voice has been quieted, see how much less stressed you feel.

tress isn't something that "happens" to you, Andres emphasizes. Rather, it is a thought process almost totally within your control.

Stress is not the events in your life — job, family, broken car, overdue bills — but the way you interpret and respond to these events. When something happens, most of us react by thinking about the situation. This thought process — occurring so quickly you are not even aware of it — results in a feeling. The feeling may be worry, frustration, anxiety or helplessness.

Most of us feel especially stressed when we see ourselves as unable to control a situation.

Obviously, you cannot control another person's thoughts, feelings and behavior.

If your source of stress is based on other people, you need to start looking at ways to change your inner self-talk and, therefore, your reaction.

Remember, stress is a direct result of the way you interpret your life. If you see yourself as strong and capable, stress is reduced while your ability to cope increases.

More tools to fight negative thoughts:

- Shift your attention. You cannot think of two things at once.
- "Tidy up" creatively and get rid of worry about things you can't control. Imagine taking the problem, putting it in a box and dropping it in the ocean. Or set it on a back burner.
- Ask yourself, "What is the cost of staying stuck in negative patterns?" Are you willing to pay the price?
- Life is not a dress rehearsal! "Just do it!"

 Procrastination is a common source of stress.

 Confront whatever keeps you from meeting your goals. Find the underlying negative belief and change or reprogram your thoughts.

Summertime — Not Just for "Hanging Out" h, to be young again and enjoy the lazy, hazy days of summer! Summertime can be a time of fond memories for all ages, but especially for adolescents. It provides the much needed break from the rigors of studies and schedules of school activities. The less structured vacation time is long awaited.

Parents can assist their children to learn more and enjoy the "free time" by overseeing planning of activities that could range from summer recreational camp, sports camp, volunteer work or even a "first job" opportunity. These options should be presented as choices so that the youth may decide which activities to pursue.

Summer is a perfect time for adolescents to embark on their first job experiences, according to Lawrence DeMilio, MD, clinical director of Carrier Foundation Adolescent Services. This important educational opportunity provides a new relationship for adolescents, certainly different from peer-to-peer, parent-child or teacher-student relationships.

A job may also be the first eye-opening "real world" experience. As an employee, the adolescent needs to assume responsibilities, deal with co-workers and cope with day-to-day tasks.

Carl Salierno, EdD, administrator of the Carrier Day School, notes that as young people become less dependent upon parents, jobs assist them in developing self-reliance, practical skills along with understanding the rewards of freedom and choices.

Parents should encourage a child by the age of 16 to secure a job even if it's not financially necessary. Most important, summer activities should provide opportunities for growth and fond memories. Who knows? This summer may produce good memories and experiences leading to wider and better professional opportunities.

Pretty daring right? Well, I don't think so. Since I'm the Pete in Pete's Motor Werkes, and since I'm the owner, I'm gonna live or die by my reputation anyway. And so far I'm living okay.

I'm glad to be recognizable.

Y'see, I grew up around here and worked at other shops in the area. That makes me a known quantity to a lot of folks. So I have plenty of customers who brought me their cars long before I opened my own place. If you know any, ask them about me. Word of mouth's even better advertising for me than this is.

I know what I'm doing.

So what do you get at Pete's hesides a pretty face? How about a ton of experience working on all types of ears. Foreign and domestic. From simple to exotic. You just can't cause a problem I've never solved. No way. So I can almost guarantee you'll get the job done right the first time. That's right. I said the first time.

Why an auto mechanic would show his face in an ad." by Peter Jeney

You get to know who you are dealing with.

And because I'm the owner, you're always talking to the guy who's very concerned about the work. When you've got questions or some kind of special concern, you and I hash it out. Which, if you've ever dealt with the service department of one of those fancy highway dealerships, well, enough said.

Most jobs get done the same day.

I've got my trusty computer for record keeping. That's my secret when it comes to keeping your job straight. It also helps me to get complicated jobs done the same day they come in. I'm guessing you'd say that's fairly important.

I'm not afraid of the word trust-

One other thing I'll promise you: I'm gonna be up front. I'll give you honest service at a fair price. (Hey, if I wasn't honest, I really wouldn't show my face.) So far, the people around Westfield seem to be satisfied. And it may sound corny, but I really enjoy meeting them and helping them out.

It's easy to find me.

Next time you've got car trouble, stop by. I'm easy to get to at 1138R South Avenue West (behind Jax's Auto Parts) in Westfield. I'm open Monday to Friday from 8am to 6pm and on Saturdays from 8 until 5. There's complete diagnostics and comprehensive service. And you can tell me if the picture does me justice.

"When you find a good thing, you stay with it. Pete's worked on my cars for seven years."
