Briefs

Sale Days are ON!

The traditional, annual Summer Sale Days will be held today, Friday and Saturday, July 15-17. Special savings on seasonal merchandise will be featured by retailers. Large, shocking pink signs in participating shops will publicize the event which is sponsored by the INTOWN group of the Westfield Area Chamber of Commerce.

Thirty INTOWN member stores will be identified by bright pink bows at their entrances. Bows, purchased from Shades of Green on Central Aveue, were delivered by the sales reps of INTOWN member newspapers. Advertisements for "Westfield in the Pink Days" specials appear in today's newspaper.

CAAP picnic Saturday

The second annual family picnic of the Concerned African-American Parents (CAAP) will be held on Saturday, July 17 in Tamaques Park from 1 p.m. to dusk. For information on the event call 654-0629.

Vacation video show

Vacation videos will be shown at the Westfield Memorial Library for children of all ages on Friday mornings starting tomorrow through Aug. 13 from 10:30-11 a.m. The videos will be animated versions of favorite picture books. No registration is required.

• Registration begins on Wednesday, July 21, for a toddler time story hour on Wednesday, July 28 at 10:30 a.m. Children should be 2-1/2 years old, a Westfield Library member, and accompanied by a parent. The 30-minute program consists of audience participation in finger games, picture identification, songs and very simple stories.

Lions drawing on 20th

The Westfield Lions Club will hold a raffle drawing on July 20 at the Steak & Ale in Mountainside. Prizes include a Zenith color television, Apriceno Jewelers gift certificate, and a certificate from the Steak & Ale. Proceeds go to Lions' sight conservation projects.

Park concerts start

The recreation commission is sponsoring a concert series featuring the Westfield Community Concert Band on Thursdays at 8 p.m. through Aug. 12. Upcoming acts include the Play Trains, the Salaam Temple String Band, and the Rahway Valley Jerseyaires.

New CPR course

The local Red Cross is offering a new course called Community First Aid and Safety that covers infant, child and adult CPR with a solid base in standard first aid. The nine-hour course will be given on two nights, July 27 and 28 at the Chapter House, 321 Elm St. Class size is limited and will be filled on a fist come, first served basis. Call 232-7090 for more information.

Foreign films...

The Memorial Library hosts a Thursday evening foreign film festival starting tonight, July 15, through Aug. 19, at 7:30 in the meeting room. All films will have English subtitles; registration is not required. The schedule includes:
July 15: Raise the Red Lantern (Mandarin 1992) - Sold into marriage, Songlian finds she is merely the latest of the lord's four wives.
July 22: Dark Eyes (Italian and Russian 1987) - Marcello Mastroianni is an amiable turn-of-the-century lap dog named Romano whose response to a crisis at the bank run by his wife is to bolt to a spa.

Do seniors pay too much for garbage?

LaPorta says pickup could be cleaned up

By NICOLE A. GAVINO
THE RECORD

Although Westfield finds itself free from hassles due to striking garbage haulers, Councilman Tony LaPorta claims that the current garbage collection system is outdated.

While recylcing has reduce garbage residents put at the curb, the cost has remained the same. Some citizens feel that this cost is not reflective of the times and changes need to be made to bring costs down, Councilman LaPorta said.

Westfield residents have their garbage picked up by a number of private contractors whose prices range from $30-$36 dollars per month. These flat rates do not take into account the amount of garbage a resident generates. Trash volumes may be quite different between a senior citizen living alone and a large family.

The independent haulers are regulated by tariffs which determine how much they can charge. According to Mr. LaPorta, these tariffs are outdated.

"Families are just not as big as they used to be," Mr. LaPorta said. "With the amount of recycling the town has been doing, people feel they've been putting out less garbage."

Westfield residents now recycle all kinds of glass, cans of tin and aluminum, several kinds of plastics, newspapers, magazines, junk mail, and cardboard products.

The haulers are currently being deregulated and right now prices can go up or down by about 8-10

Foundation elects three new trustees

James Hermiston III, Frank A. MacPherson, and Eva M. Wiley were recently elected to the Westfield Foundation's Board of Trustees.

Also, Lee M. Hale was re-elected president of the board at the foundation's annual meeting. And the board also awarded more than $19,000 in grants to various local organizations.

Richard C. Griggs was elected vice president of the foundation's board, and Edward J. Hobble was elected secretary. Leo J. Senus was re-elected treasurer.

"Jim, Frank and Eva bring a wealth of expertise to the foundation's board, and in a variety of areas," said Mr. Hale, of the new Trustees. "We are fortunate to have them."

Mr. Hermiston, is a 17-year resident of Westfield. He is active in the Westfield High School Boosters Association, the College Men's Club of Westfield, and St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

"I hope to assist the foundation by bringing another financial perspective to the group," he said.

Mr. MacPherson, a former Westfield town councilman, is the chairman and chief executive officer of MacPherson Control Products Inc., the company he founded in 1959.

He served as vice chairman of the Westfield Downtown Committee, and will chair the Economic Restructuring Committee of the WDC's Main Street program.

"I watched the Westfield Foundation become a reality in the 1970s, and I, like so many Westfielders, will always be indebted to those who had the vision to establish this marvelous organization," Mr. MacPherson said.

Mr. MacPherson's wife, Margaret, is a former Westfield Foundation trustee.

Mrs. Wiley has held numerous volunteer jobs in her 25 years as a Westfield resident, and is currently a member of the Westfield Bicentennial 1994 Steering Commission.

"The Westfield Foundation, established to improve the quality of life in Westfield, has always quietly done so with much thought, concern, and kindness," Mrs. Wiley said.

For more information about the Westfield Foundation, call Freia Mitarai, executive director at 233-9787, or write to the Westfield Foundation, Box 2295, Westfield N.J. 07091.

Wanted: town hall manager

Mayor Garland "Bud" Boothe will head a search committee to replace retiring township administrator John Malloy. Mr. Malloy will leave town service Oct. 4 after having served in his position since 1970.

According to Councilman Michael Panagos, the committee will meet next week to set the parameters for the search.

"There are some very basic questions that need to be answered first," he said, "such as whether we want to hire a management search team or headhunter to conduct the search, whether we should do a national or state-wide search, and whether they are any suggestions for replacement within our municipality."

Mr. Malloy will retire effective Jan. 1. After leaving his position in October, he will take sick leave and vacation prior to his last official day on the job.

Westfield High School teachers linked to Russia

By BRENDA J. FOY
THE RECORD

Husband and wife team Alan and Randee Lantis discussed their experiences teaching English and Democracy to students in Chelyabinsk, Russia at a recent meeting of the Board of Education.

This was part of a cooperation between Chelyabinsk and Westfield educators that began in 1991 through a New Jersey group called Hands Across the Water.

Chelyabinsk is a city of slightly more than 1 million people, located on the border of Siberia. It is 1,500 miles east of Moscow. Until recently, this was a closed city to foreigners, and a permit was required to enter the city from within the country. At one time, the city was a center for the manufacture of nuclear weapons. It is still the cultural and industrial center of the region.

Mr. and Mrs. Lantis taught at Public School No. 93, which specializes in English.

In Russia, a student usually knows by ninth grade what he or she will be doing after high school, and either prepares for the university entrance exams in a particular field, or is sent to a vocational school. The Lantis' both said that often the students with learning difficulties are sent to vocational school and ignored, because teachers don't have the training to work with them.

The Minister of Education, Science and Culture for Chelyabinsk, Sergei Chekanov, served as the Lantis' host for the first few months of their visit. The Lantis' describe him as extremely motivated to westernize his city's educational system; and it was he who extended the invitation to teach in the city for half of the school year.

Along with their teaching duties, which Mrs. Lantis said was "the most rewarding experience I have had as a teacher," the couple worked with educators on the professional level, holding seminars and instruction for other teachers, and for future teachers.

Mr. Lantis, a history teacher at Westfield high school, taught democracy to the older students, as well as English to seventh-graders.

Prentice Hall donated some new textbooks on democracy to Chelyabinsk. Mr. Lantis found that the students did not have a strong background in politics. With the changing political climate, they needed to be led in discussing these ideas in a way they were not able to before, he said.

Randee Lantis at School No. 93, Chelyabinsk, Russia.

Students were highly motivated, but did not have the critical thinking skills that are taught in Western schools, Mr. Lantis said.

The couple studied the Russian language before their trip, and did not have any real difficulty travelling around the city, or taking care of other everyday chores such as food shopping. The move into a flat of their own in April created some new challenges, because their landlady and neighbors did not speak any English, but they adapted quickly.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lantis would like to see more of the necessary changes occur in the city's school system, and mentioned that possibly the greatest need of the schools are current texts and visual aids.

Dr. Mark Smith, Superintendent of Schools, will be traveling to Chelyabinsk in September for further discussions about education, and to discuss future interactions between Chelyabinsk and Westfield. There is a possibility of inviting some teachers to come to America for hands-on training, but nothing is definite.

Mr. and Mrs. Lantis hope to speak more about their trip, in the meantime, and to raise interest locally in obtaining materials for the students in Chelyabinsk.

Westfield resident Melissa Lesher visited Ecqudor recently as part of a team of journalism students. A documentary film she is producing about her trip will be aired by a New York television station later this year.

Young reporter cuts teeth in Quito

By NICOLE A. GAVINO
THE PRESS

Westfield resident and journalism student Melissa Lesher found both practical and life experience during her broadcasting debut.

Still an undergraduate student at the University of Richmond in Virginia, the young Ms. Lesher recently got her hands deep into the journalism trade during a trip to Equador where she began work on her first documentary film.

Raised in Westfield, she attended public schools through the eighth grade until finishing her secondary education at Mount Saint Mary's in Watchung. In the fall she will begin her final year of undergraduate studies at the age of 21.

Ms. Lesher has been led towards journalism with a little help from her mother Tina Lesher, a journalism professor at William Paterson College in Wayne.

But it was through John Rhodes, one of Tina Lesher's colleagues, that Ms. Lesher came upon a rare opportunity to travel and get hands-on experience in broadcast journalism.

"Before I went to Equador, I didn't have much exposure to TV journalism," Ms. Lesher said.

Through a program at William Paterson College, Ms. Lesher spent two weeks in Quito, Equador, with the goal of creating her own documentary. The program involved a total of 16 students, each one working on his or her own seperate project. The students also helped each other as they worked in groups of four, acting as a crew team for one another.

Ms. Lesher's project focused on the Working Boys Center in Equador's capital city. The center helps to keep the children off the streets by providing recreation activities, general education, and trade education. The budding journalist chose the center for her documentary because she found interest in the Americans working at the center.

The core of her documentary is based on an interview with the Working Boys Center's founder and director, Father Halligan, a Jesuit priest who came to Equador from the U.S. and started the center in the 1960s. Along with Father Halligan, there are many young American students doing missionary work at the center.

Ms. Lesher is currently editing her project and hopes to finish this week. Her final work will be aired on Channel 31, WNWC in New York some time in the near future, hopefully before fall.

Right now, Ms. Lesher is simply glad to be safe at home. Besides working on her project, she also experienced life in South America — an experience which both frightened and exhilarated her.

"I am so glad to be alive after my trip; it was just so amazing and so exciting," she said.

Newark man allegedly resisted arrest

Police charged a Newark man with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest after chasing him down North Avenue shortly after midnight July 10. According to the police report, police received complaints of a person standing in the middle of the intersection at North and Central avenues, trying to kick cars, and screaming at people.

Police arrived at 12:26 a.m. and found Andre Hunter, 23, in the middle of the intersection. When they tried to subdue him with a chemical spray, the man allegedly fled on foot down the street. The police later caught him at the Westfield Diner, where he allegedly continued to try to resist arrest by biting officers. A second attempt at spraying the chemical gas was successful.

He was released on $2,500 bail.

Also:

July 12

Police arrested Anthony Laterrara of Clark at 10:20 a.m. for allegedly driving on the revoked list after stopping him for a motor vehicle violation. It was his second arrest; he was released on $775 bail.

Lillian Lemke of Boynton Avenue was cited for not yielding the right of way at an intersection after being involved in an accident on North and Central avenues. According to the report, Mrs. Lemke was driving eastbound on North Avenue at 5:34 p.m. when she attempted to make a left turn and collided with a vehicle driven by Robert Knudsen, also of Westfield. There were no injuries.

Police charged Mary McCarthy of North Plainfield with driving without a license, driving without registration, and driving without insurance after she was involved in an accident on Central Avenue and East Broad Street. She was also charged with failing to stop at a stop sign. According to the report, Ms. McCarthy was travelling north on Central Avenue when she made a right turn onto E. Broad Street and hit a vehicle operated by Judith Robertson of Hort Street. There were no injuries.

Police log

Arthur Thompson of Birch Place reported damage to his plants and shrubs in his backyard garden. Police are investigating.

Michael Panella of Union told police that a person threw a large rock at his car while he was traveling on South Avenue. The front panel and driver's side door was damaged.

July 10

A Castleman Drive resident reported $200 stolen from his vehicle while it was parked on West Broad Street.

Police are investigating a break-in at the Nomahegan Swim Club which occurred sometime during the night hours. According to police, 37 cabanas were broken into. Entry to the cabanas was gained by breaking out slats in the doors and reaching in, unlocking the handles. Entry to the establishment was gained by jumping the fence, police said. Since each cabana is individually maintained, police are currently contacting members to compile a list of stolen items.

Charles Cherry of Woodlawn Avenue, Cranford, was arrested at 5 a.m. and charged with driving without a license after police stopped him for a motor vehicle violation at Sterling and Livingston streets. He was released on $225 bail.

Police issued a summons to Christine Schmidt of Hillside for allegedly failing to stop at a stop sign after being involved in an accident at 8:55 a.m. on Elmer Street. Ms. Schmidt was traveling south on Elmer when she entered the intersection and collided with a car driven by Gary Scher of Colonia. The car also struck a third vehicle operated by Michael Rota of Linden. There were no injuries.

July 9

Joseph DeCarlo of Mountainside was arrested at 2:45 a.m. and charged with driving while intoxicated. He was released on $650 bail.

* * *

July 8

Mark McAuliff of Milford was cited for careless driving after his vehicle struck the rear of another which was pushed into a third vehicle. According to the report, Mr. McAuliff failed to stop his vehicle and hit a car operated by Jeffrey Tuney of Westfield. Mr. Tuney's car was pushed into the rear of a car driven by James Pascuiti of Mountainside.

New signs warn cars to yield to pedestrians

Dr. Sheldon Glickman stands with a new safety sign near East Broad Street.

Chief Anthony J. Scutti announced recently that signs were installed in the central business district alerting the motoring public to the New Jersey State Law requiring motorists to yield to pedestrian in crosswalk.

Dr. Sheldon Glickman of Westfield had been traveling out of state and had seen signs alerting drivers to the need to yield to pedestrians and brought these signs to the attention of Chief Scutti and Sgt. Carl Geis of the traffic safety bureau who arranged for the signs to be installed.

State laws require that motor vehilce drivers yield to pedestrians. Penalties for failure to yield specify that, upon conviction, the offender shall be liable to a penalty of not more than $50, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 15 days, or both, plus two points on their licenses.

The town of Westfield has been recognized in the past by the American Automobile Association for its record of no pedestrian fatalities. This recognition further exemplifies the Westfield Police Department's ongoing commitment to pedestrian and bicycle safety in the town through education.

Scutti elected president of chiefs' association

The New Jersey Association of Chiefs of Police elected their 81st President at their annual training conference at Trump Plaza in Atlantic City recently.

Chief Anthony J. Scutti of Westfield, chief and member of the association since 1986, took the reins from President Joseph Batten of Berlin Township at the installation banquet. The banquet is the culmination of the association's five day training session and police security expo.

Mayor James Whelan of Atlantic City began the festivities, which were highlighted by the congratulatory remarks of Gov. Jim Florio, Attorney General Robert J. DelTufo, and Senate President Donald T. DiFrancesco.

Gov. Florio and Attorney General DelTufo spoke of Chief Scutti's contributions to law enforcement and stature the association has now attained through the continuing hard work and dedication of its members. The attorney General administered the oath of officer to Chief Scutti and the board of officers.

Senator DiFrancesco, Sheriff Ralph Froehlich of Union County, the Union County Chiefs of Police Association and Mayor Garland "Bud" Booth of Westfield also made presentations to Chief Scutti.

Chief Scutti's theme for the conference and his presidency was "The Time is Now." He believes that as visible leaders of communities, chiefs of police must take the lead in solving the most difficult problems and challenges put before us. The association is capable and ready to meet these challenges, he said.

ShopRite's expert sees minimal impact

By NICOLE GAVINO
THE CHRONICLE

Both the Westfield and Garwood planning boards and a few residents had the opportunity to question ShopRite's traffic engineer regarding the proposed 59,000-square-foot ShopRite center.

The planning boards, meeting in joint session to hear the case, requested additional traffic studies be conducted at several intersections in both communities. The proposed site straddles the Westfield-Garwood boundary on North Avenue.

Last Thursday, the additional data was presented to the planning boards and a small audience at Wilson School in Westfield.

The meeting began with an announcement from Westfield Planning Board attorney William Jeremiah regarding letters from the public that have been sent to board members. Mr. Jeremiah advised the board to disregard any letters and requested that the public stop sending them. The public has a right to be heard, but through public hearings, not letters, he said. The time will come for public testimony, however, that probably won't be until sometime in the fall, he added.

Although the public is still not able to voice opinions, audience members were given a chance to ask questions for the first time at last week's hearing. The action came after police intervention was necessary to quiet the audience at last month's meeting.

After ShopRite traffic engineer Henry Ney testified and was examined by both boards, the public was given a brief opportunity to ask questions instead of having the attorneys who represent private concerns cross examine.

Mr. Ney's additional testimony covered traffic data on the intersections of South and Central Avenues, East Broad and Chestnut Streets, East Broad and Euclid Streets, and North Avenue and Elmer, Euclid, Fourth, and Chestnut Streets in Westfield and South Avenue and Center Street in Garwood. According to Mr. Ney, these intersections already have existing problems and will not feel any substantial impact from the development.

His analysis showed that traffic problems at those intersections with light signals can easily be mitigated by adjusting the signal timing. The non-signal intersections along North Avenue showed traffic conditions which remained the same in both pre- and post-build situations. The intersection of East Broad and Chestnut Streets presents the greatest problem because its condition is already a failure and shows no easy way for mitigation.

Mr. Ney told the boards that the existing problems need to be addressed, and any added impact can be mitigated.

"We have identified a number of locations where the site will have an impact and we have proposed solutions," said Mr. Ney. "This development will not have a negative impact on this community in terms of traffic," he said.

The intersection of East Broad and Chestnut Streets warrants a signal whether the proposed ShopRite is built or not. However, Mr. Ney agreed that there would be added traffic, although it would not be a burden. When asked by the Westfield board who should pay for a light at this intersection, Mr. Ney responded, "We are not responsible for 100 percent of the light. We are prepared to meet our fair share; we will have an impact."

Questions asked by both Westfield and Garwood planning board members also centered on what-if or worst-case-scenario issues which Mr. Ney answered by asserting the validity of his analysis.

PTC awards $9,500 to college-bound grads

The Westfield Parent Teacher Council awarded $9,500 to nine graduating seniors at a reception recently. The scholarship originated in 1956 as a memorial to Elizabeth Marik, a history teacher at Roosevelt Junior High School, who also served as a president of the PTC.

Each year funds are raised through donations solicited by the PTOs and PTAs of the Westfield schools. The awards are made to WHS seniors who plan to further their education and demonstrate scholarship, service, integrity, and financial need.

Peter Fontana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fontana, will attend Duke University where he will pursue a medical degree. He is a member of the National Honor Society and the National Latin Honor Society and achieved high scores on national Latin and mathematics exams. He also served his community as a volunteer at the Neighborhood Council and a local Rescue Squad.

Elizabeth Getz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Getz, will attend Middlebury College and major in languages. In high school she was a member of the National Honor Society and the French National Honor Society. She also volunteered at a cancer camp for children and a special children's camp.

Craig Juelis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Juelis, will attend Union College in Schenectady, N.Y. His high school activities included the lacrosse and football teams. He was chosen to attend the American Legion Jersey Boy's State and 4-H Citizenship-Washington Focus. He has worked as an intern in the office of Sen. Bill Bradley. For four years Craig trained puppies to become guide dogs for the blind.

Jennifer Lin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Lin, will attend Rutgers and hopes to be a pediatrician. Her high school honors included the National Honor Society and the French National Honor Society. She served her community as a volunteer at Camp Offspring and West Lake Summer School.

Catherine Lonsdale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Lonsdale, will attend Seton Hall to major in business. She was a member of the Key Club, Spanish Club, Italian Club and Saturday Science Club. She volunteered in an after-school science program at Roosevelt Intermediate School and at Spalding for Children.

Michelle Maraffi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Maraffi, will attend Swarthmore College with hopes of becoming a school psychologist. Her high school activities included the National Honor Society, French National Honor Society, Madrigal Singers, All-State Chorus, chamber orchestra and NJ Region 2 honors orchestra. She has also volunteered at Union County Homeless Hospitality and the American Diabetes Association.

Deborah Pianko, daughter of Mrs. Miriam Garfield, will attend Rutgers. She was a member of the French National Honor Society, drum major with the marching band, flute soloist with the wind ensemble and concert band, and a member of the United States Figure Skating Association. She served the community as a volunteer at Children's Specialized Hospital.

David Shiwatsuka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shiwatsuka, will study architecture at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y. In high school David played on the lacrosse team and was a member of the Ski Club.

Rennie Silverstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Silverstein, will study physical therapy at New York University. In high school, Rennie was captain of the cross country team and a member of the winter and spring track teams. She also volunteered at Children's Specialized Hospital and helped on various projects with her temple youth group.

Do seniors pay too much?

percent, Mr. LaPorta said. In a few years, they will be totally deregulated and the State Legislature believes that at that time market forces and competition will bring prices down.

As chairman of the town committee's Solid Waste Committee, Councilman LaPorta does not believe this will happen and said he is taking other steps to help bring garbage costs down for Westfield residents.

Since early this year he has brought together an open town meeting, has met with the haulers, and met with the Solid Waste Committee in search of some solutions.

Resident William Barnes feels that the current garbage pick-up system is unfair and inadequate.

"When senior citizens or people who don't have children don't generate as much solid waste, why should we have to subsidize others?" Mr. Barnes said. He has attended town meetings and believes that progress has not been made towards a solution. "If the town doesn't have a solution, I think that the people themselves should have the option to address the haulers themselves and to make a deal for one container or two containers, etc.," he said.

However, not all residents are unhappy with the current system.

"They come and pick it up in the back," said a Harrison Avenue resident. "Our garbagemen are nice and reliable. You have to pay for what you get."

Hard drugs, hard time

County Prosecutor Ruotolo suggests courts vary sentencing for different drug sellers

Union County Prosecutor Andrew K. Ruotolo Jr. raised some eyebrows and some concerns in his address to a legislative-press session. The conference was sponsored by the Westfield-based Union County Chapter of the National Council of Alcohlism and Drug dependence July 1.

The County's chief law enforcement officer suggested a variation on the mandatory sentencing of drug offenders. He said that those convicted of selling drugs to support their own habit could, instead of going to jail, be placed under tight supervision and given treatments to end their drug abuse.

The prosecutor drew a distinction between those selling drugs to others to support their own habit, and those selling for sheer personal profit. The profiteers, he said, deserve jail sentences.

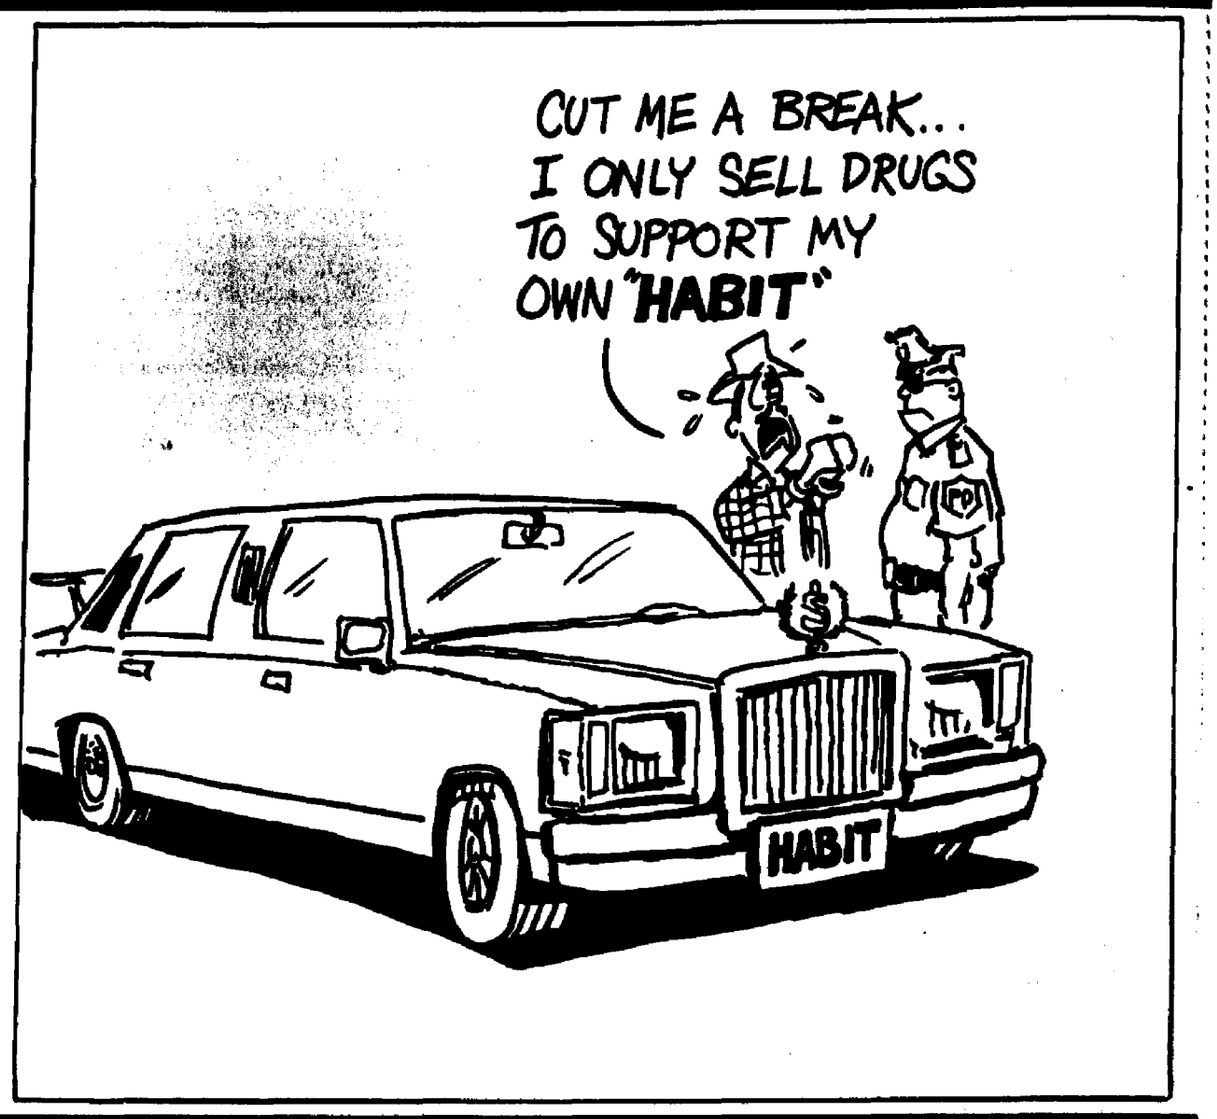

The goal of the Ruotolo program is to rehabilitate those criminals who may be deemed as much victim as violator by trained counselors who would review their individual histories and situation. The prosecutor's plan also would force those who declined supervised, non-jail rehabilitation to go through the rehab program while in jail.

The distinction between drug sellers motivated by profit and those selling to support their own habit is clear enough. But good luck selling it to those living in fear of pushers befouling their neighborhood or youngsters, or fearing mugging or burglary by any drug consumer. Regardless of the motivation for selling drugs, the pushing is an evil that seems worthy of harsh, mandatory sentencing upon conviction.

Mr. Ruotolo, however, is clearly in a position to understand the nuances of the drug abuse morass. His program deserves serious examination from the legal, financial and social points of view.

Politically, however, with the gubernatorial and legislative election year at hand, there seems little likelihood that a program perceived as softening mandatory sentencing of drug pushers will see the light of day.

A better strategy might be to expand the educational programs such as the eminently successful D.A.R.E. project that has reached so many area school children with the anti-drug message. If heading off demand for drugs is the ultimate solution to abuse and the crimes related to it, then citizens would surely support such an impetus from the Prosecutor's office.

Letters to the editor

Lessons of history should compel teaching morals

To The Record:

In a letter to the editor recently, two young men, Christopher Leahy and Harold Connolly, made it evident that our educational system which has influenced our children, has confirmed our worst fears.

To begin with, these two young men stated in their letter that we do not teach morals in public school because of the wall of separation of church and state. Historically morals have always been taught in school, such as stealing, not cheating on tests and respect for others, just to name a few. Society cannot exist without morals which are the foundation of the laws that govern us. Schools also require rules and regulations to maintain order.

Leahy and Connolly state that schools should preclude any and all instruction of a moral sense. This is obviously what these young people have been taught, but sadly enough they do not realize that someone's values are being taught today, and they are those of the dominant political power in the Federal court and in the educational bureaucracies of most states which are secularist. They ignore the existence of God and teach that man is the center of all things.

History has shown repeatedly what happens when man rejects God and makes himself the supreme power. Hitler decided it was right to kill six million Jews. Stalin decided it was right to kill 20 million Kulaks. If man is the center or measure of all things, who can say that Hitler and Stalin were wrong?

The two young men claim that our nation has never had a moral fiber: Perhaps morals are not the only thing that are not being taught — obviously students are being taught the censored version of American history, which precludes the truth about why this nation was founded. Students get nothing about the search for religious freedom that was the basis for much of early settlement. They hear nothing about the part religion played in the anti-slavery and temperance movements of the 19th century. Or in the civil rights movement of our 20th century.

It was also stated in this letter that no one was forced to view the play, Moonchildren — that it was a choice. Speaking of choices, the public was never made aware of the contents of the play so that they could have been given the choice to attend or not.

Leahy and Connelly asked the question, Since when does attending college and having a firm commitment to one's beliefs amount to a lack of decency and education? The answer is simple. When they choose inappropriate ways to express their beliefs.

It was also implied that without the play, our youth would never have the opportunity to examine the times and issues surrounding the Vietnam War. The play had little to do with the Vietnam War. In fact Brendan Gill, in his review published in New Yorker Magazine of March 1972, had this to say: Moonchildren, at the Royale, is a lifeless little patchwork of a play about six or eight university students dwelling more or less uneasily together ... The play that Michael Weller appears to have written is a dull affair indeed ... The intractable fact of the matter is that the characters with whom we are invited to spend the evening have nothing of interest to say or do. Furthermore, libraries are filled with volumes of historical accounts of the Vietnam War without profanity.

The two young men ask, Why would we want to deny our children access to the truth? Precisely — This is a major concern, that our children are not being told the truth. We want to teach our children to discern the truth (facts) from opinions. This play represented only an opinion.

An example of how the truth is being withheld from our children: Leahy and Connoly, are frighteningly mistaken about the effectiveness of condoms in preventing the spread of AIDS. The most recent study from the University of Texas shows that condoms are only 69% effective in preventing the transmission of HIV among the heterosexual couples and may be as as low as 46%. For more facts on the effectiveness of condoms, please read the guest essay published in The Record July 8, by Richard Smith, a public health professional of New Jersey.

In conclusion, I would like to point out that Christopher Leahy and Harold Connoly's letter is proof of what we are concerned regarding the mixed messages that our children are being given. I am very sorry they do not realize that we as parents of children in Westfield have a lot at stake by speaking out. That we have genuine concern and that when we refer to our children, we mean not only our biological children, but all children of this community. Never once were young people blamed for the production of this play. Adults are the ones who should be held accountable. We are on your side, kids — We truly care. Maybe one day when you're parents, you will understand. Just remember, God gave you parents and teachers for a reason – to guide you so that some day you make decisions based on the values you were taught.

KATHLEEN HINTZE
Westfield

Some books, plays, art are inappropriate

To The Record:

As a concerned parent and resident of Westfield, one of my primary concerns is that our children be provided the best education available within certain guidelines of public decency and morality. In that regard, it seems to me that high school activities and events should always involve age-appropriate material. Activities or events which contain an abundance of profanity, sexually explicit language or imagery should, in my view, be categorically rejected by the Superintendent of Westfield Schools and his administration as unsuitable for our students.

Productions like Moonchildren, which was produced by the Westfield High School Repertory Theatre Group, should be excluded as being unsuitable for students in grades 9-12. It is no "answer" to say that anyone who is offended by such productions need not participate or view them. Curricular as well as co-curricular activities should be inclusive, not exclusive, which means that they ought generally to reflect or be in consonance with, but never offend community values.

High school productions and activities which involve students and which are also produced for public consumption should not require an advance rating similar to that used in the motion picture industry in order to avoid government regulation. Should the parents, teachers and school advisers be required to dictate polices and procedures to the schools to assure that co-curricular activities do not offend community values? Should co-curricular activities focus on or involve profanity of any kind? I do not think they should.

It is time for the Superintendent of Schools and his administration to take responsibility and be accountable for the co-curricular activities undertaken in the Westfield High School as they have for the school's curriculum.

Smith concert was stirring in many ways

To The Record:

Something very special occurred on the night of June 20 here in Westfield. Wayne Smith, a young African-American cellist appeared in concert at the First Congregational Church on Elmer Street.

Dr. Theodore Schlosberg, instrumental music teacher in the Westfield public schools, sponsored Wayne, his former student, in this Sunday evening concert. Kenneth Hopper, manager of the Westfield Symphony, accompanied him on the piano. The concert was conceived as a way to help defray the costs of Wayne's senior year at the prestigious Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N.Y.

We in the audience — family, friends, neighbors, former teachers, children, a 2-year-old niece, a Russian emigre family — music lovers all, were treated to an evening of exquisite beauty.

Presenting a program of Beethoven, David Popper, Ernest Bloch, and J. S. Bach, Wayne Smith demonstrated both his mastery of and artistry on the cello.

As all of us cheered, some of us cried and many felt the way people in other times must have felt hearing a young Marian Anderson, a young Horowitz or a young Yo Yo Ma.

I take particular pleasure in knowing that Wayne Smith's extraordinary talent was first discovered and nurtured by our music teachers here in the Westfield public schools.

Many thanks go to Dr. Schlosberg, Mr. Hopper and the Rev. John Wightman for bringing this gifted young artist to the Westfield public. We came to show our support for Wayne but we left enriched by a musical experience of beauty and power.

If you missed the concert, you still have the opportunity to help this talented young cellist complete his senior year at college and continue his quest to become a world cellist. Simply mail your check to the Wayne Smith Scholarship Fund, P.O. Box 507, Westfield, N.J. 07091.

New Union County Alliance designed to aim local groups' energy at future

(The following is excerpted from a speech by Union County Administrator Ann Barron delivered at a press conference announcing the formation of the Union County Alliance June 29.)

The Union County Alliance, announced June 29th, is a bold, new vision of the future. The alliance is a coalition of leaders of major organizations as well as individuals in Union County dedicated to economic recovery and revitalization, and ultimately a better Union County.

Guest essay

To achieve this goal, the alliance will develop and advocate a county-wide agenda that will be put before our elected representatives. It will develop a comprehensive long range plan to position Union County to move into the 21st century at maximum strength. And, the alliance will aggressively pursue Union County's fair share of investment dollars for key initiatives such as infrastructure, housing, job training and developement.

One of Union County's greatest strengths is its diversity. The county is fortunate to have a number of strong, effective organizations in business, labor, education, government, civic and community groups. What's happened in the past is that these individual organizations worked effectively to address and solve their own problems. Each in its own way has done a remarkable job of maintaining its services, programs or production. Since each group's vision was limited by its own perspective, sometimes these groups worked at cross purposes.

What the alliance seeks to do is to work with all these diverse groups to develop and impliment a long-range plan that will be for the greater good of Union County now and in the years to come.

While we may have individual agendas, we do have common interests and common concerns. The alliance will support efforts of individual organizations that will ultimately benefit the county as a whole.

The alliance will serve to improve communications among all groups and will act as a clearing house for ideas and issues that affect all of us.

As mentioned earlier, the Union County Alliance will develop a long-term plan. This plan will be our road map for the future. To reach our long-term goal of making Union County an excellent place to live and work, the alliance will seek to:

- Address public policy issues that conflict with and discourage economic growth, such as costly and overly stringent environmental regulations;
- Strengthen the economic base for tax rateables and improve the quality of services provided in the county;

Campanelli resigns post

Westfield Recreation Commission Director Paul V. Campanelli has resigned after serving more than seven years with the Town of Westfield. Mr. Campanelli, who was hired in 1985 as the assistant director and promoted to director in 1990, has accepted a marketing position with Reddy-Cheminor Pharmaceuticals of Ridgewood.

Mr. Campanelli, a Westfield resident, and his wife Joanne have a daughter, Christie, 2. They expect their second child in August.

The Recreation Commission and Town Council of Westfield have announced that Assistant Director Glenn S. Burrell will succeed Mr. Campanelli. Mr. Burrell, who has served as assistant director since June 1990, is a George Mason University graduate and holds a bachelor's degree in recreation and park management.

Mr. Burrell currently chairs the Union County district affiliation to the New Jersey Recreation and Park Association.

He brings six years experience as the incoming director of recreation and is certified as a recreation administrator through the N.J. Department of Community Affairs.

Chin resigns as head of GOP commitee

The Westfield Town Republican Committee has accepted the resignation of Allen Chin as chairman and has elected the current Second Ward Leader of the Republican Committee, Robert W. Cockren, as its new chairman.

Outgoing chairman Allen Chin has served as chairman for the past six years and resigned due mainly to increased business commitments.

Mr. Cockren, 41, has been active in town politics, has served as legal counsel to the Town Committee during the last six years and recently became Second Ward Republican Leader.

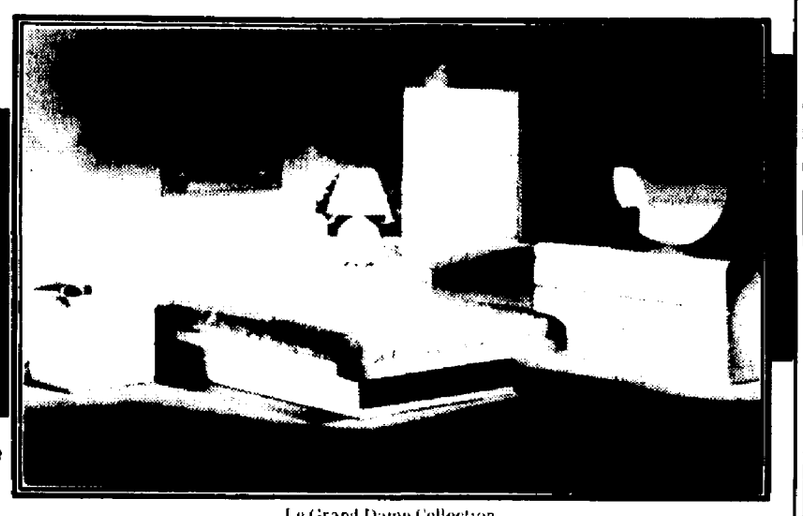

Mr. Cockren said he is also committed to bringing new blood into the Republican Party in Westfield.

He formed and was elected president of the newly created Westfield Republican Club and has been active in numerous Republican campaigns in recent years.

After his election by the town committee, Mr. Cockren said he was "gratified and honored by the overwhelming support of the Committee" and "committed to the longstanding tradition of integrity and quality of Westfield Town government."

WHAT'S THE DIAMOND EXPRESS LANE ANYWAY?

"A jewelry store check out line for people buying ten diamonds or less?"

"Gee, I'm not really sure. But it sure sounds fast and classy."

"Think I was born yesterday? It's a commuter's best friend."

"It's the High Occupancy Vehicle Lane on I-80, and my carpool will be on it."

Get ready to rideshare on the I-80 Diamond Express Lane between Route 15 and I-287 in 1994. Save time, money and the stress of fighting traffic congestion. By reducing the number of vehicles on the road, the Diamond will improve air quality and free up the flow of traffic on the other lanes of I-80 too. Coming soon to an interstate near you – the Diamond Express Lane. A better commute is riding on it.

IT'S TIME TO CLEAR THE AIR

We have many choices for steering clear of air pollution caused by congested highways. But only one choice about when to start.

NOW.

Over 5,500 New Jersey companies employing 100 people or more soon will be creating Employer Trip Reduction programs that offer new commuting choices to employees.

Choices like four day-40 hour work weeks, working at home, flextime, and incentives for carpooling or using public transit. Choices that will benefit New Jersey's economy and all state residents, by unclogging our highways and clearing the air.

The New Jersey Department of Transportation is working closely with the business community to meet this federal Clean Air Act requirement. Together, we can achieve a solution to reduce the pollution. When you consider the alternative, the choice is clear.

Speaking the truth is handy

By LUCILLE HOVELL

When someone asks a personal question you don't want to answer, how can you reply?

You can say, "None of your business." You can say nothing, and reply with a look meant to shrivel; or you can think or verbalize, "How can anyone be so rude?" My forte is humor. If that turns you off, read no further.

It strikes me as funny that people can be rude, and not even know that they are crude. Really, that is funny.

Near strangers have asked how old I am, how much I paid for my jacket and where I got it. What size I wear, and how much do I get paid for writing articles or fiction. Am I intending to remarry, or do I not mind being a widow?

"You don't really know me," I say with an innocuous smile, "But I never tell a lie. You can expect the absolute truth, and the truth is, I find that question one I don't answer."

Truth isn't always that easy. Sometimes there is a good and valid reason to firmly not answer lie. Example — how do you guide your child out of "deep water," painlessly? When my daughter was about 14, it seems many parents were being intimidated by their kids. One 15-year-old girl had told me that at one party, parents were away.

"And," she said, "the boys got the key to the liquor cabinet ... and ... you know how adult drunks act. Well you should see kids!"

I had no intention of seeing kids drunk. Laws did not have to be passed for us to know that you are responsible for kids in your care, your house. No under-age person was ever given any alcohol while under my roof.

A neighbor's daughter was having a party for "kids" and my daughter was invited. I phoned.

"Hi," I said cheerfully. "Anything I can do for the party? Sandwiches, cookies? Need an extra chaperone? A dozen or more kids can be difficult to handle."

"Oh!" she laughed, not at all offended at my naivete. "The kids would have fits! Jim and I have to get out, and promise we won't be back before midnight. You know how kids are!"

Actually, kids, like adults, are all somewhat different, except that immature people are more influenced by peer pressure and I didn't know those particular kids. Did she? I certainly would not dream of asking a near stranger any personal questions. It would be pointless, and yes, rude.

"Yup, kids! They do want their way!" I said, with truthful conviction. "I think mine is a little young for an unchaperoned boy-girl party. Maybe next year, okay?"

Even the "maybe next year" was truthful. How did daughter take it? Sulked at first, called us old-fashioned and then surprisingly, "I'm glad you didn't let me go. I'm chicken, and I hate when the kids call me that. I get out of things by saying my parents are too strict."

But this was about truth. Truth that can make you laugh, and be helpful, and the truth that sometimes is an avoidance of other truths, like "That's a beautiful color on you," and not also thinking the person looks ill or tired. Or, to the tired looking woman in the supermarket with three little kids in tow ... "How beautiful your children are. I wish my grandchildren lived nearer to me. Those little ones of yours will grow so fast! I know you appreciate them." Or, hey there! What kind of writing do I do?

Well, I like to amuse, not abuse or confuse people who want to read a short item, and have the luxury of skipping over one that they do not choose to read ... and that is all, the truth!

Summer school that's fun

The Westfield Worshop for the Arts recently began its 22nd season. The workshop, which runs classes at Edison Intermediate School, has 760 students of all ages taking part this summer.

The workshop is dedicated to providing children with opportunities to explore music, art, dance, theater, and more. Dr. Theodore Schlosberg is the program's director.

Children as young as in the first grade can choose from such subjects as computer literacy, Spanish, and mask-making. Fourth-graders can take TV production, jewelry making and magic. Many of the older students may find themselves taking classes in cartooning or photography.

The workshop culminates with the showing of the children's artwork and performances during the final week. The junior musical, grades 6-9, will put on a production of The Little Mermaid July 29-30. P.T., a musical based on the life of P.T. Barnum, will be performed by members of grades 4-7. The show will tour nursing homes, hospitals, and senior citizen and community centers.

Other performances include The Ghost of Canterville Hall July 27-28 and Godspell, July 22-24.

For more information of the Westfield Worshop for the Arts, please call 322-5065.

Phelan replaces Furstner as adult school head

Carol Phelan has succeeded May Furstner as director and registrar of the Westfield Adult School.

Mrs. Phelan has assumed the post for the 1993-94 academic year. Mrs. Furstner, who held the dual position for six and a half years, has retired to pursue other interests.

Mrs. Phelan became acquainted with the Westfield Adult School as a student. She has been working with Ms. Furstner during the last semester to effect a smooth transition.

The director/registrar is hired by the board of the Westfield Adult School Association.

Mrs. Phelan is a Westfield resident with three children enrolled in Westfield public schools.

She is past president of the Friends of Westfield Memorial Library. She currently serves as president of Roosevelt Intermediate School PTSO (Parent/Teacher/ Student Organization.)

She is also a trustee of the Educational Fund of Westfield and a member of the board of the Westfield Y.

Ms. Furstner, who has been associated with Westfield Adult School for 12 years, the last six as director/registrar, was honored at the annual meeting of the Westfield Adult School Association in May.

On that festive occasion, she received a beautiful gift and heard many expressions of gratitude and admiration for a job well done. Board members cited her innovations in curriculum, excellent preparations of catalogues, and unflagging enthusiasm for continuing education.

Above all, they praised her exceptionally cordial relationships with faculty, students and members of the board.

"Basically, I want to continue the excellence May Furstner has pursued in this position," Mrs. Phelan said. "I am preparing the fall adult school catalogue and am looking forward to the next academic year."

Rainville will head garden club

Nancy Rainville of Westfield was elected District 5 director of The Garden Club of New Jersey at the annual meeting in June at the New Brunswick Hyatt Regency Hotel.

Mrs. Rainville served as District 4 director 1992-1993 when the GCNJ reorganized the state districts to better serve the member clubs.

The new District 5 includes the garden clubs of Basking Ridge, Bernardsville, New Providence, Plainfield, Scotch Plains-Fanwood, Watchung, Cranford, Elizabeth, Springfield, Westfield; as well as Clio of Roselle, Dig & Delve, Floraphile, Four Seasons, and Green Thumb of Cranford; Rake & Hoe of Westfield and the Cherry Dell Garden Club.

Mrs. Rainville is a past president of the Garden Club of Westfield.

Coren among seniors cited for history

Six high school seniors have been honored by the Union County Historical Society for doing outstanding work in history in ceremonies at the Abraham Clark House in Roselle.

Among those honored were Seth Coren, a senior at Westfield High School. Seth plans to attend Duke University as a liberal arts major.

Each honoree was presented a check and a certificate.

In addition to the student awards, a special plaque was presented to Jean-Rae turner, the society's secretary, in recognition of her dedicated and devoted service to history.

103 years young

Jessie Rae Turner, a resident of Meridian Nursing Home in Westfield, receives a proclamation on her 103rd birthday last week from Union County Freeholder Chairwoman Linda Lee-Kelly. Joining in the celebration are Mrs. Turner's daughter Jean Rae Turner and Ella Shaykevich of Westfield, a Unit Director at Meridian.

League salutes 60th year

At their annual meeting in June, the members of the Westfield Service League celebrated their 60th anniversary. What began in 1933 as a group of 19 women knitting sweaters, preparing surgical dressings and delivering holiday baskets for the District Nursing Association, has become a group of about 185 active, associate, sustainer, and provisional members.

The league runs the Thrift and Consignment Shops on Elmer Street and donates the proceeds to more than 45 local charities, such as the Westfield Food Pantry, Westfield Neighborhood Council, Red Cross, Westfield Rescue Squad, Westfield Department of Human Services, Union County Association for Retarded Citizens, Center for Hope Hospice, St. Joseph's Social Service Center, and Youth and Family Counseling. The total donated this year was $80,000.

In addition to working at the shops, the members give monthly birthday parties for the patients at the Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside, serve as dispatchers at the Westfield Rescue Squad and assist at the local Child Health Clinic.

To commemorate this milestone, the Westfield Service League donated money to the recreation commission for landscaping the area around the flagpole at the Memorial Pool complex. The flagpole itself was the league's gift to the town at the time of their 50th anniversary.

Rotary Club enjoys successful year under Maggio

At a recent Westfield Rotary Club meeting, immediate past president Linda B. Maggio handed over the symbols of her office — a bell and gavel - to Gail A. Cassidy, who will serve as president until June 30, 1994.

The club enjoyed a successful year under Mrs. Maggio, topped by a Presidential Citation for achieving a well-balanced program in all four avenues of Rotary service as follows:

- Club Service — including Rotary information programs, having two members attend the international convention in Melbourne, Australia, and organizing successful fellowship activities.
- Vocational service — including Youth in Business Day for high school students and a full-day seminar with high school students on "Ethical Decision Making in the Workplace." Also, introducing the Charles A. Philhower Award to recognize an outstanding elementary school teacher.
- Community service — two community members were recognized for their humanitarian achievements — a custom racing cycle was purchased for Paul Jackson who is paralyzed from the waist down enabling him to compete in the New York marathon.
- International service — including hosting a youth exchange student from Spain, Elena Pombo, who spent the school year at Westfield High School; and sponsoring Nancy LaCorte to be a member of a group study exchange team going to Finland for six weeks.

During 1992-93, the club distributed $53,000 in scholarships to high school graduates and college students plus $14,000 to various local charitable organizations. In the past year, the club lived up to the year's Rotary slogan, "Real Happiness is helping others."

Mrs. Cassidy has prepared a plan for the coming year and members are looking forward to another enjoyable, successful, and beneficial year in the club's history. Westfield Rotarians will join 1.2 million Rotarians around the world in implementing the 1993-94 slogan, "Do what you believe in and believe in what you do."

KIDS' STUFF

A SPECIAL PAGE OF SUMMER FUN JUST FOR KIDS

CHECK IT OUT

By ROBIN DEL GUIDICE
Head of Children's Services
Somerset County Library

Mysteries are a favorite at any time of the year. But this summer many children in the area are participating in the Undercover Summer Reading Club at their local library and mysteries are even more popular than usual. Whether it is a crime to be solved, a secret to be discovered or a puzzle to be unravelled, mysteries are sure to please any reader.

The 13th Clue by Ann Jonas is just right for any young child who likes a puzzle and who knows how it feels to have a terrible day. The girl in this story is having one of those days. Her birthday seems to have been forgotten and she is feeling very sad. Suddenly, however, the lights go out. When they come back on, a note says, "find more clues!" And so the search begins. REaders follow along as clues are discovered. Each must be deciphered before going on to the next and finally reaching the surprise at the end.

Another book for young children with clues and hidden pictures is I Spy Fun House: A Book of Picture Riddles by Walter Wick and Jean Marzollo. Rhymes give the clues as children are asked to find hidden objects in the brightly colored photographs on each page. Sure to be a hit with anyone who likes to solve puzzles.

For older children who like a good puzzle, here are two new books in some pupular series. Thr fourth book in Lynn Reid Banks' stories of Omri and his toy Indian is The Mystery of the Cupboard. Omri's family has inherited an old house in the country. There he discovers a diary that reveals the sercret of his mysterious cupboard and introduces him to some new people who were the first to come alive. Whether children have read the others in the series or not, they will enjoy learning the secrets of this mysterious cupboard that brings toy figures to life.

James Howe has also written another book about Chester, Harold and Howie, those unusual pets of the Monroe family. In Return to Howliday Inn the trio once again finds itself at Chateau Bow-Wow, the kennel that Chester has named "Howliday Inn." He is sure that danger is afoot — strange voices, unusual characters, buried bones and a secret code all add up to some harrowing (and hilarious) experiences for Chester and his pals.

No matter what the age, mysteries are great summer reading fare. Some will put a tingle in your spine, some will keep you guessing right up to the end, while still others will make you chuckle as you help solve the puzzle. The ones mentioned here are just a few of the many that are available for children at libraries throughout the area.

And the winners are...

This week's winners of the Summer Movie Circus Contest sponsored by General Cinema Theatres and Forbes Newspapers are:

Andrea Iacovone of South Plainfield, Danielle Garcia of Somerville, Karen Switaj of Dunellen, Linda MacIntyre of Middlesex, and Ralph Losanno of Bedminster.

Each winner will receive Movie Circus Season passes and Jurassic Park mini-posters.

Chillin' at an artistic 'oasis'

Youngsters keep cool with summer workshops

By DEBORAH SOMMERS
FORBES CORRESPONDENT

Getting your mind off the sweltering summer heat isn't easy when it's 100 degrees in the shade, but Elazar Nudell of Scotch Plains has found a cool way to "chill out" under the summer sun.

While the beaches attract those searching for relief from the heat, it is the snare drum, among other activities, which draws Elazar to the Westfield Summer Workshop for the Arts located at the Edison Intermediate School in Westfield.

The snare drum, however, isn't the only thing Elazar practices; his mornings at the art center also include a taste of origami, television production, cartooning, and improvisational theater. These are among over 100 courses offered at the art center this summer which fall under eight headings: drama, fine arts, music, communication arts, crafts, dance, musical theater and special interests.

Although the summer workshop may be new to some, Elazar discovered the center four years ago, where he first learned to play the violin. However, the sixth-grader of Terrill Middle School says, "This year is better than others because there are more classes being given that I would enjoy."

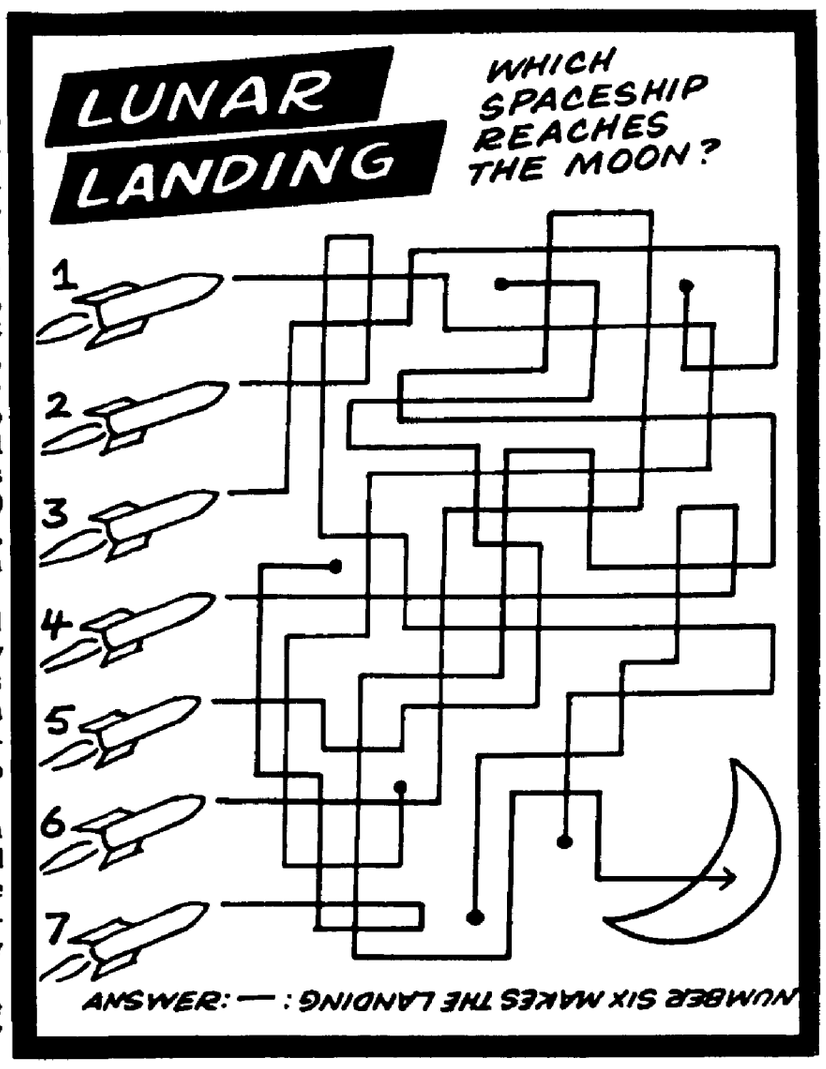

While television production may be his favorite class this year, Elazar continues to play the violin and has developed an interest in the music world. This summer he is looking forward to attending his first live concert of Itzhak Perlman, his favorite violinist.

This is the summer workshop's 23rd year in operation. Director and founder of the center, Ted Schlosberg originally created this non-profit program as a music education center; however, he has expanded the program by adding a different form of the arts each year. Responding to parents' increasing demands for a meaningful summer program for children, the workshop has grown from 20 teachers and 100 students to 80 teachers and 760 students. Dr. Schlosberg says, "The summer workshop is an oasis for children to develop their many talents in one place."

Children have an opportunity to expand and broaden their world by taking five classes every morning, 8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Each class is taught by certified experienced teachers, whom Dr. Schlosberg says, are "interested in developing the total individual through exposure to all the arts."

Elazar, an aspiring archeologist who has spina bifida, hopes to continue playing his violin and taking classes at the summer workshop. He loves a challenge, but whenever he feels disheartened he says, "a little bell goes off in my body saying I should keep going, and I do."

For Elazar, it's easy to keep going during the stifling summer days when you have an "oasis" at the summer workshop.

Mary Krakora, 61, a longtime resident of this community, died July 8, 1993 at her home.

Mrs. Krakora was born in Bryan, Ohio, and had lived in Westfield since 1965. She earned a bachelor's degree in philosophy in 1955 from Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Surviving are two sons, Joseph Krakora of Fanwood and John Krakora of Lynchburg, Va.; a daughter, Ann Doyle, and a granddaughter, Rebecca Krakora, both of Fanwood; two brothers, Paul Carlsten of Baltimore, Md., and John Carlsten of Des Moines, Iowa; and a sister, Virginia Gladding of Madeira Beach, Fla.

A memorial service was held Monday at the First Unitarian Society of Plainfield, of which Mrs. Krakora was a member.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the First Unitarian Society of Plainfield, 724 Park Ave., Plainfield, 07060.

Arrangements were by the Memorial Funeral Home, Fanwood.

Lewis Vaning Jr., 82

Office manager with a food company

Lewis M. Vaning Jr., 82, a former office manager with the food company now known as CPC International Inc., died June 30, 1993 at his home in Scotch Plains.

He was born in Denville, attended Westfield public schools, and lived in Westfield before moving to Scotch Plains in 1948.

Mr. Vaning retired in 1973 after 45 years at the Englewood Cliffs headquarters of CPC and its predecessor, Corn Products Co. A technical sergeant in the Army during World War II, he held the European, African, and Middle Eastern Service Medal.

Surviving are a son, Lewis M. Vaning III of Westfield; and two grandchildren.

Services and burial were private. Arrangements were by the Memorial Funeral Home, Fanwood.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society or the Scotch Plains Rescue Squad.

Donald D. Way, 96

A former Singer Company executive

Donald D. Way, 96, a retired executive officer of the Singer Company, died Thursday, July 1, 1993 at Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center in Plainfield.

He was born in Corning, N.Y., and grew up in New York City. He had lived in Westfield since 1939.

Mr. Way joined Singer in 1919 after graduating from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was president of his class and later served for more than 35 years as an honorary secretary of MIT's Educational Council.

He graduated in 1915 from Trinity School in New York. The summer before entering MIT, he served as a radio operator for the S.S. Advance, one of the first ships to go through the Panama Canal.

During his 45-year career at the Singer Company, Mr. Way worked in Elizabeth, New York City, Italy and throughout Latin America. As chief Engineer for the Diehl Company, a Singer subsidiary, he was in charge of relocating the plant to Finderne during World War II.

Before his retirement from Singer in 1964, Mr. Way served as assistant vice president for the Latin American division of the Singer Company and started new plants in Mexico and Brazil. He was a member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers and served in the U.S. Army Signal Corps during World War I.

Mr. Way was a member of the Presbyterian Church in Westfield and was a past president and treasurer of the board of trustees.

He is survived by his wife of 35 years, the former Barbara Dickerman; three sons, Peter of Westfield, Christopher of Seattle, Wash., and Curtis of Baltimore, Md.; and a daughter, Sharon Way Tittle of Westfield.

Memorial services were held July 10 at the Presbyterian Church in Westfield.

Arrangements were by Gray Funeral Home in Westfield.

Donations may be made to the Memorial Fund of the Westfield Presbyterian Church or the Westfield Rescue Squad.

Mary Barron, 89; principal

Mary M. Barron, 89, a retired teacher and school principal who was active in the Elizabethtown chapter of the American Red Cross, died July 6, 1993 at the Berkeley Heights Convalescent Center.

She was born in Jersey City and moved to Westfield in 1973 from Elizabeth.

Miss Barron was the principal of two Elizabeth schools, Benjamin Franklin School No. 13 from 1944-49 and Robert Morris School No. 18 from 1949-64. She received a bachelor's degree in education from Rutgers University in 1933 and a master's degree in education from New York University in 1943.

An officer of the Elizabeth Business and Professional Women's Club, Miss Barron was vice president and recording secretary of the Elizabeth Principals' Association. She also held membership in the Elementary Teachers Organization and Clasroom Teachers Association.

She was active in the elementary principals' association and the Department of Elementary Principals within the New Jersey Education Association. She was a member of the NJEA and the National Education Association.

Miss Barron was co-chairwoman of the Junior Red Cross and served on the board of directors of the Red Cross' Elizabethtown chapter. She worked with a USO canteen during World War II, belonged to the American Red Cross' staff assistance corps, and volunteered her time to Red Cross blood drives and disaster relief for the Elizabethtown chapter.

She belonged to the Altar Rosary Society and Leisure Group at St. Genevieve's Roman Catholic Church, Elizabeth, of which Miss Barron was a parishioner.

Surviving are a sister-in-law, Ruth Barron of Palm Harbor, Fla.; and several nieces and nephews.

Services were held Saturday at the Leonard Home for Funerals, Elizabeth, followed by a funeral Mass at St. Genevieve's Church. Burial was in St. Gertrude Cemetery, Colonia.

Churches planning a joint worship

The members of the First Baptist Church and the First Congregational Church, Westfield, will again enjoy combined worship services for the summer. For families and others who love the presence of children in worship, an informal service will be held at 9-9:30 a.m. at the Congregational Church, 125 Elmer St. Dr. John Wightman, pastor of the Congregational church, will preach this Sunday at the traditional 10 a.m. worship service, in the air conditioned sanctuary at 170 Elm St. Child care will be provided.

Singles Continental Breakfast and Discussion Group, an ecumenical gathering of widowed, divorced, and never married men and women, meets every Sunday morning 9:00-10:30 a.m. at the First Baptist Church of Westfield.

First Baptist's Life After Divorce Group will meet at the church on July 23, 6:30 p.m. Vacation Bible School will take place Monday, July 26 through Friday, July 30. Call church office for additional information at 233-2278.

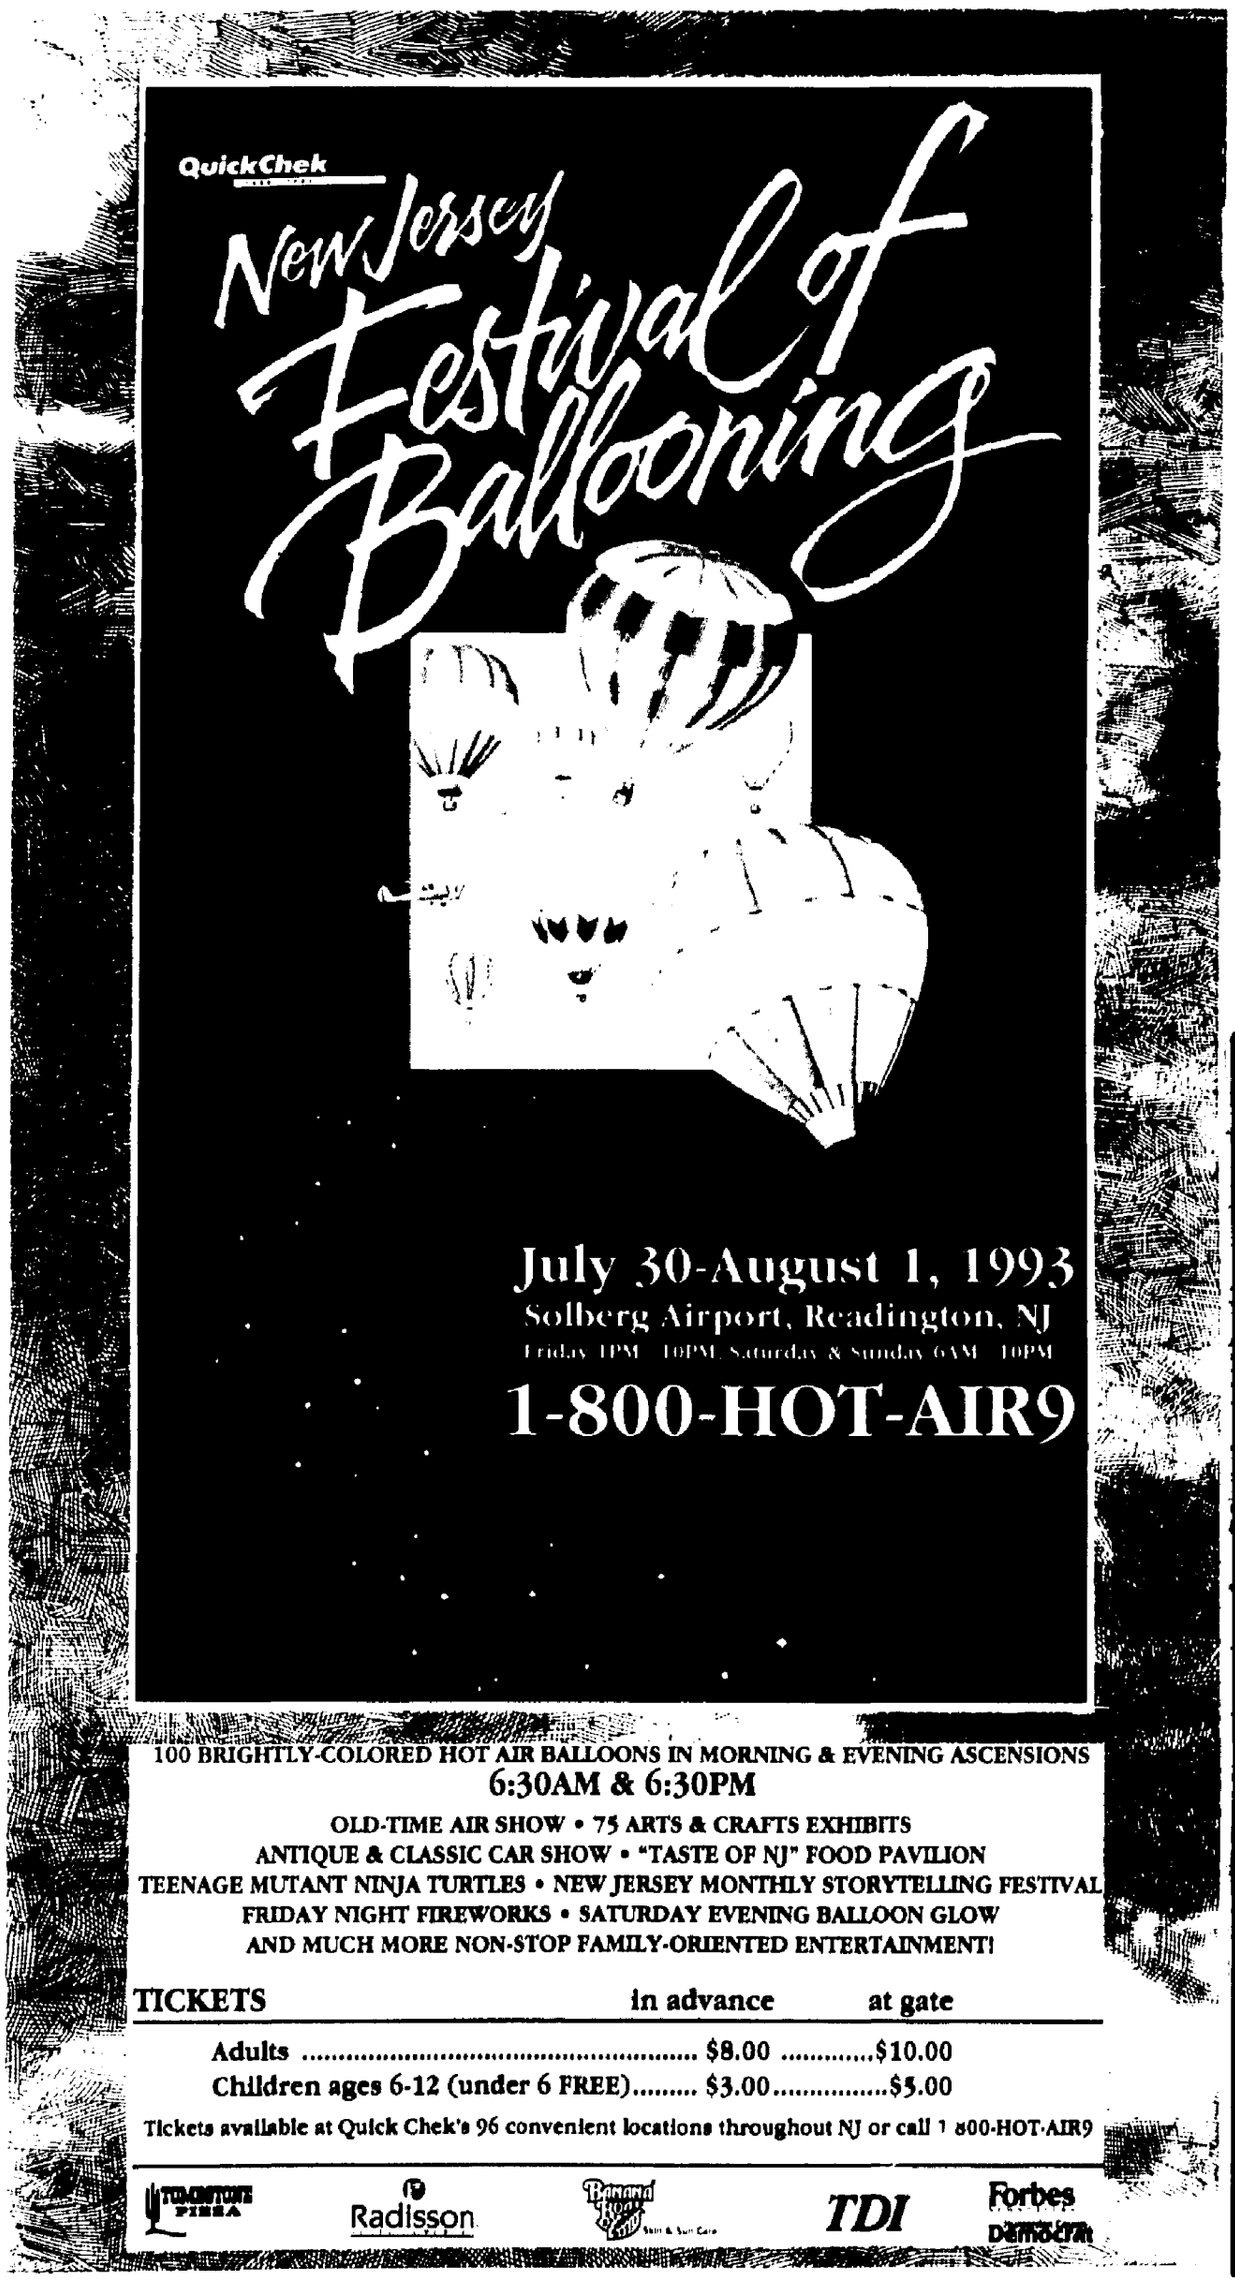

First Baptist Church offering Bible School

The First Baptist Church of Westfield, 170 Elm St., once again is offering a nondenominational Vacation Bible School program July 26-30 from 9-11:30 a.m.

Refreshments, crafts, singing, and age-appropriate lessons with the theme "Living in God's Creation" are available for children age 3 years through those entering grade 4.

An adult Bible Study examines in depth the same scripture passages the children are studying and is available to parents and all interested adults. For parents in the adult class, child care is provided for children age 2 years and younger.

A Youth in Action program for children entering grades 5-12 will be held August 9-13. Youth in Action provides hands on experiences in community service projects. A special emphasis focuses on compassion for those living in poverty.

MAUREEN and KEVIN CUNNINGHAM

Maureen G. Moffit marries Kevin J. Cunningham

Maureen G. Moffitt, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. John Moffitt of Cranford was married to Kevin J. Cunningham, son of Mr. & Mrs. Edward Cunningham of Westfield March 27, 1993.

The ceremony took place at St. Anne's Church in Garwood. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The Rev. John M. Balweg, a friend of the family, performed the double ring ceremony, and the bride's three cousins served as alter boys.

Kristie El Koury, a friend of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Lisa Gall, Katie Bell, Laura Cowan, Laurie Love, and Cecil Kandle, all friends of the bride.

Sean Cunningham, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Declan and Kieran Cunningham, brothers of the groom; Michael Moffitt, brother of the bride; and Scott Risco and Ken Smith, friends of the groom.

Marnie Mamrak, cousin of the bride, and Nicole Cunningham, niece of the groom, served as junior bridesmaids. Courtney Cunningham, also a niece of the groom, served as flower girl.

A cocktail hour and reception were held at the Atrium Country Club in West Orange.

The bride is a graduate of LaSalle University. She is currently employed as advertising feature editor for Guest Informant magazine in Woodland Hills, Calif.

The bridegroom also attended LaSalle University and is employed as a sales support representative for ILX Systems in West Los Angeles.

The couple honeymooned in St. Thomas, V.I.

They are living in Marina Del Rey, Calif.

Births

Debra and Gerard Abbattista of Westfield announce the birth of their daughter, Jenelle Marie, June 2, 1993 at Overlook Hospital. She weighed 7 pounds 1 ounce and was 21 inches long. She joins an older brother, Michael Gerard, 22 months old.

Maternal grandparents are Sondra and David Varoli of Washington Township; paternal grandparents are Margaret and Morris Abbattista of Paramus. Great-grandparents are Columbina Varoli, Helen and Joe Barillo.

Orchestra plans Bach to Bernstein

The Westfield Symphony Orchestra's 1993-94 season will run the gamut from Bach and Beethoven to Leonard Bernstein.

The season will open Oct. 23 at the Westfield High School Auditorium, with an all Beethoven program: Egmont Overture, Piano Concerto No. 3, and Symphony No. 6 (Pastorale). Pianist Richard Field, winner of the Viotti International Prize in Italy, will be guest artist.

Rigoletto will be the opera in concert Nov. 20 at the Presbyterian Church in Westfield. Internationally acclaimed baritone Mark Rucker, and well-known soprano Gail Dobish will sing the leads of Rigoletto and Gilda.

Fanfare for Westfield will premiere Jan. 29, in celebration of the town's bicentennial year. The orchestra commissioned the work from New Jersey composer and WSO trumpeter David Sampson. Fanfare will be presented.

March 5 will bring baroque favorites from Handel (Water Music).

The Union County Arts Center, the venue for the orchestra's highly successful final concert of the 1992-93 season, will be the site of the '93-'94 season's final concert April 16. The program will include Dvorak's Symphony No. 8, and Grieg's Piano Concerto No. 21. Pianist Jeffrey Biegel, 1989 winner of the Marguerite Long/Jacques Thibaud Competition, will be the soloist in Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 21.

In the 1992-'93 season, 60 percent of the concerts were sold out. Season subscribers are assured reserved seats at all concerts, and receive a 20 percent discount.

For more information, call 232-9400.

Cancer society seeks volunteers

The Cancer Society, Union County Unit is seeking bi-lingual women who have experienced breast cancer for their Reach to Recovery program.

The Reach to Recovery program is a rehabilitation program for women who have had breast cancer. Women who have experienced breast cancer are trained to meet with women who are undergoing the same experience. The volunteer visitor brings a kit containing educational, rehabilitation and cosmetic items.

If you speak both Spanish and English and have had breast cancer at least one year ago, please contact the Union County Unit at 354-7373.

Better Days

PARANOID?

Everyone feels suspicious at times. Without this protection mechanism, people would have no internal medium to judge if situations are potentially dangerous or not.

Making the distinction between normal, healthy guardedness and chronic paranoia is difficult and subjective – especially when the individual has been under prolonged stress. Many times the problem is compounded by the patient's not seeking feed back from those who were trusted in the past. This pattern is more likely when the individual is feeling hurt or betrayed by a close friend or associate.

As a general rule, a person ought to seek assistance if he or she is feeling suspicious, isolated, agitated, and provocative for any prolonged period of time. In times of stress it is essential to get a broader perspective beyond one's own thinking. Isolation breeds paranoia and reduces interpersonal functioning.

GSG goes swimmingly for Westfield

Ten medalists attain success in the water

By KIP KUDUK
THE RECORD

As a town renown for its excellence in aquatic sports, most notably swimming, it was no surprise that 10 of 16 Westfield medalists in last weekend's Garden State Games wore bathing suits as their official uniforms.

Four swimmers and half a dozen synchronized swimmers took home medals from the Sonny Werblin Recreation Center and the College Avenue Gymnasium pools at Rutgers University.

The trio of 10-year-old Danielle Baukh and 13-year-olds Laura Osborne and Virginia Blauvelt claimed a total of 13 gold medals, one silver and one bronze in synchronized swimming action Sunday.

Baukh captured an individual gold in the 10-and-under figures competition with a score of 23.576, then earned a silver in the 10-and-under solo event (80.776).

Baukh joined forces with Julie Ost of Watchung to strike gold in the 10-and-under duet competition (77.440). She was also the youngest member of six-girl grouping which won the 13 and 14-year-old team competition with a total score of 36.605.

Osborne and Blauvelt, both of whom were on the gold-medal winning team with Baukh, arrived home with a combined total of seven gold medals and one bronze.

KERRIE HAGY/THE RECORD

Westfield's Chris Vogel performed quite well last Saturday in the Garden State Games at Rutgers University. He hurled two scoreless innings for the Northeast in its 8-3 victory over the Southeast in the opening game and went 1 for 3 while hitting the ball solidly in the gold-medal game, which the Northeast lost, 11-6.

The duo won the 13- and 14-year-old duet title with ease, finishing more than 15 points ahead of their closest pursuers. They also won gold in the trio competition, teaming up with Edison's Kate Matusiak to post the winning score of 84.613.

Osborne picked up another gold medal in the individual 13- and 14-year-old figures open event, compiling 26.109 points, a little more than a point more than Blauvelt, who won the bronze with a score of 24.954.

Rounding out the synchronized swimming competition, 11-year-old Terra Meierdierck and 10-year-olds Adrienne Bogoto and Katherine Heinze united with three other girls to win gold in the 11- and 12-year-old team event.

In the open swimming events, Matt Janson, 14, snagged a gold medal in the 13- and 14-year-old 50-meter freestyle with a winning time of 27.05 seconds. Competing in the same age group, Tim Romano bagged a silver medal in the Six Lady Devils help Northwest win gold

Outmanned booters victorious in finals despite using one sub

By KIP KUDUK
THE RECORD

Last weekend, 12 girls, five of whom live in Westfield, proved the mental side of sports is far more important than the physical side which typically commands everyone's attention.

The relatively small group, which comprised the Northwest girls' soccer squad in the finals of the Garden State Games, was outmanned and physically exhausted during its championship match against the Northeast, a team which registered a 4-0 shutout against the Northwest in the opening game of the tournament.

But, sound tactical play, unwavering determination and a fair amount of talent allowed the Northwest to capture the gold following its improbable 2-1 victory over the Northeast in sweltering heat and humidity at the Rutgers University Busch Campus Saturday.

The Northwest's triumph is even more astounding when you stop and consider the team lost and tied its first two games, then survived a shootout to qualify for the gold-medal game.

"Playing with only one substitute in that heat took a lot of guts," said Northwest coach Keith Hertell, a Westfield resident. "It was a total team effort, something the girls should be proud of. Everyone pulled together and that's what made it nice."

In the first game of the tournament, Hertell experimented with various lineups and strategies during a rather resounding 4-0 defeat to the eventual silver medalists.

In its second game, the Northwest tied a strong Southeast team which went on to claim the bronze medal. Katie McElligott of New Providence scored her team's only goal with an assist from Stacy Jerolaman of Gill-St. Bernards. Jen Koster of Scotch Plains-Fanwood H.S. and Livingston's Jesse Kroll combined to stop a dozen shots for the Northwest.

"After the first two games there was no way I thought we'd win," said Westfield resident Jessica Czar, who played at sweeper with Yvette Broderick of Union Catholic. "I thought our best shot was for third place."

CHRISTIE McGOVERN

LAURA TODD

Facing the prospect of playing for a bronze medal if it did not win its third game, the Northwest pounded the Southwest, 4-0. McElligott and Jerolaman scored goals, as did Danielle Wood of Montville and Westfield resident Tanya Habeeb, who attends Mount St. Mary's Academy in Watchung.

The results of the first three games put the Northwest and Southeast in a flat-footed tie for second place, even after applying every conceivable tie breaker. So, the two sides agreed to conduct a shootout to see which side would play for the gold.

This shootout was not the normal penalty kick format. Instead, each girl started with the ball 35 yards away from the goal and had five seconds to either score, miss or have the goalie make a save.

After three scoreless rounds in the five-round shootout, a Southeast goal in the fourth round was answered when Czar booted one home to tie the score. Each side missed their opportunity in the fifth round, forcing a sudden death situation.

The Northwest was catapulted into the finals when a save by the Northwest keeper in the first extra round was followed by a goal from Scotch Plains-Fanwood freshman Ann Keegan.

In the championship match, two goalies and three others were not available to play. After Habeeb, a forward, was forced to sit out the remainder of the match after sustaining an ankle injury, Hertell only had one substitute at his disposal while the opposition had 11. Keep in mind this was after one full match and a shootout were held in 100 degree heat.

"We were pretty determined,"

Making a point

Judy Lee, head coach of the Westfield swim team, gives instructions to her swimmers prior to a home meet against the Springfield swim team two weeks ago. This event and many more like it is sponsored by the Westfield Recreation Commission.

More than 200 riders expected to vie for title at Somerset Hills Trials

More than 200 riders will have their chance to be carried to victory at this year's Somerset Hills Horse Trials scheduled for Aug. 7-8 at the United States Equestrain Team (USET) Olympic Training Center in Gladstone.

This year, over $2,000 will be awarded to competitors at three levels in 14 division of competiton.

Spectators are welcome and encouraged to attend the event which is hosted by the Eastern States Dressage and Combined Training Association. All who attend will be able to follow the competitors through three phases of competition.

The first, dressage, tests the obedience and training of the horse as it is guided through a series of movements, not unlike equestrian ballet.

The second and most exciting phase, cross country, tests speed, boldness and jumping ability as the pair navigates the jumps and terrian surrounding the USET.

The final phase, show jumping, tests the finesse and jumping ability of horse and rider in the arena.

Thanks to the growing community support, the Somerset Hills Horse Trials has been able to expand and open its doors to over 100 more riders. For many riders, competing at the USET will be a great experience. Together, sponsors such as the Somerset Hills Hotel, Schering-Plough Animal Health, Bedminster Texaco and Somerset Hills Towing, Chatfield's and S & S Saddlery have donated resources to help build the jumping course these new competitors will face. Thanks to them and the many other local sponsors, spectators will see more exciting rides this year than ever before.

Once again, Roger Haller of Oldwick has designed the three cross-country courses which will challenge this year's competitors. Haller carefully designs each course to meet the experience of the riders.

Admission to the show is free. Activities will begin each day at 8 a.m., rain or shine.

The United States Equestrian Team Olympic Training Center is located on Pottersville Road in Gladstone, just off Route 206. For more information, contact David Cuozzo at 604-6781.

Westfield enters big weekend in CJ league

By KIP KUDUK
THE RECORD

With two-thirds of the season already completed and another 13 games left to play, head coach Raf Crocco still wonders which Westfield team will show up on game day.

Even though Crocco's club has improved considerably since it began its initial Central Jersey Plainfield Twilight Baseball League season, it remains prone to mistakes, often at crucial times.

"I have no idea which team to expect," said Crocco. "You usually have a weak link to factor in, but I don't know what to expect on a day-to-day basis. Our hitting has improved, so we've had enough runs to let us hang on in the end.

"The defense's tightened up a lot, but it's not where they want it to be. We still have an uncertain feel about things."

Heading into a big four-game weekend, Crocco knows his team must play its best if it wants to make a serious run at the playoffs. Entering play on Wednesday, Westfield (9-12-1, 19 points) was three points out of a playoff spot, depending upon how third-place Hillsborough (11-11, 22 pts.) fared Tuesday.

On Friday, Westfield travels to Green Brook Park to square off against New Providence (17-6-3, 37 pts.). The leaders of the West Division, North Hunterdon (21-2-1, 43 pts.), will visit Westfield Saturday at noon and on Sunday Westfield plays a big doubleheader against Perth Amboy (11-12,1, 23 pts.) at Washington Park.

"If we can steal three games we can stay in the thick of it," said Crocco. "I think defense is the key. When we struggle we make errors. You can get away with that against high school teams, but not against college players."

WEEK IN REVIEW — Westfield carried a three-game winning streak into Wednesday's game against Islen (5-18-2, 12 points), which occurred after press time. Dating back to last Tuesday, Westfield had won five out of six games to climb out of the Central Division cellar and into playoff contention.

On Tuesday, Westfield registered a much-needed 6-4 victory over the Woodbridge Giants. Dave Koehler proved to be the hero, as his two-run, two-out home run in the bottom of the fifth provided the margin of victory. Koehler also picked up the victory in relief.

Westfield led 4-0 after the first inning on the strength of consecutive two-out singles by Dave Harwood, starting pitcher Chris Vogel, Adam Yannuzzi and Billy Rodd.

Following Friday's 9-3 loss to New Providence, the defending league and state champions, Westfield swept a doubleheader from Clinton. In the first game, a 7-5 victory, Westfield took advantage of six Clinton walks to score four runs in the sixth. Singles by Chris Infantino and Mike Smith fueled the uprising. Harwood was credited with the victory.

Westfield escaped with a 10-9 victory in the nightcap. Cort Montross, who went 3 for 4, drove in the Calvin Wise with the game-winning run to break a 9-9 deadlock in the bottom of the seventh. Jim Charlesworth (2 for 3, home run), Dave Duelks (2 for 4, triple, single) and Harwood (2 for 4, triple, single) had multiple-hit games, while Rodd scored three times.

Last Tuesday, Pete Ausiello drove in the game's only run with a second-inning sacrifice fly and hurled a complete-game four-hit shutout to lift Westfield to a 1-0 victory over Kenilworth.

In Saturday afternoon's All Star game between the CJPTBL and the Met League at the Edison Intermediate Field, three Westfield players made appearances. Catcher Seth Coron went 1 for 2 with a single, Ausiello pitched a total of an inning and a third and Harwood went 0 for 2.

Harwood was also inserted into the game as a pitcher with the score 9-9, and the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth. He gave up a sacrifice fly that won the game for the Met League.

200-meter backstroke (2:28.35) and Jessica Lichtenstein won bronze in the 200 free (2:20.44).

In masters swimming action, Ed Pretre earned a pair of gold medals on the strength of first-place finishes in the 45-49 age group in the 50 free (29.63) and 100 back (1:28.23). Next year, Pretre will compete in the 50-54 age group.

Outside of the water, four Westfield residents excelled in various road racing events.

Irwin Bernstein took home two gold medals for the second consecutive year in the 60-69 age group of the masters competition. Bernstein cruised to easy victories in the 400- and 800-meter running events.

On Saturday, his time of 1:05.4 in the 400 put him comfortably ahead of Bob Naylor of Teaneck by six and a half seconds. On Sunday, Bernstein (2:35.7) outdistanced Naylor (3:03.7) in the 800.

Joanna Villanueva, 16, had no difficulties in winning the teenage female division of the Olive Garden 5K Run in Edison. Villanueva's final time of 26:08 was almost two minutes faster than runner-up Jennifer Legato of Washington Twp. (27:52).

Eric Linenberg snared a gold medal in the 14- and 15-year-old division of the 2.6-mile non-licensed cycling race for males. Gerry Linenberg followed suit by winning the same race in the 50-59 age group. Gerry Linenberg has won medals in eight of the last nine Garden State Games.

In the female open discus competition, Sue Piekarz breezed to a gold-medal finish with a toss of 164-8, 57-8 more than silver medalist Rita Babikian of New Milford.

Christopher Shin captured a gold medal in the mini pee wee division of the Tae Kwon Do event for 6-, 7- and 8-year-old yellow belt boys under 60 pounds.

Lady Devils

said Czar, who played with fellow Blue Devils Christie McGovern, Suzie Folger, Laura Todd, Tara Miller and Melissa Long during the tournament. "We didn't let the weather get to us. We just concentrated and stayed focused on the game.

"We made some defensive changes. The sweepers concentrated more on defense and didn't let the forwards get by them. The backs and midfielders marked up and tried to be the first ones to the ball."

"We were just thinking about revenge," said Broderick, who usually plays at forward. "We knew they'd go in cocky. We noticed the heat a lot, but we drank a lot of water. I think the key to the game was the passing to our wings. We just passed it to the outside near the flags and let the wings outrun the sweepers."

Halfback Shana Henderson of Summit was credited with an own goal just before halftime to put the Northwest on top, 1-0, at the intermission. With 15 minutes left in regulation time, Keegan trapped a fullback's clearing attempt from her center halfback position and quickly placed the ball into the upper left corner of the net from 25 yards out, giving the Northwest an insurance goal it needed.

After Anne Wenthe of Glen Rock cut the deficit in half, the Northwest stubbornly held onto its slim lead to win its first medal in Garden State Games girls' soccer history.

"The kids went on guts," said Hertell, who is also the head coach of the Central Jersey Stars, a 19-and-under select team for girls. "It just shows how you can't let the body dictate to the mind how much you're suffering physically. They knew they had to turn it up a notch and they did. The last thing I told them was to take a piece of this back to high school and use it to your advantage the next time you're in a pressure situation."

Sampras to play McEnroe in Mahwah

Pete Sampras, the 1993 Wimbledon champion and the top-ranked player in the world, will play tennis legend John McEnroe in a special benefit match 3 p.m. Sunday in Mahwah to benefit the ABC Cities Tennis Program.

The match precedes the Pathmark Classic's secen-day women's tournament, which features tennis stars Jennifer Capriati, Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere, Gabriela Sabatini and Mary Joe Fernandez.

The Classic will be Sampras' first match since his historic July 4 Wimbledon title match, a 7-6, 7-6, 3-6, 6-4 win over Jim Courier. Sampras has won four of his last seven tournaments, including Tokyo, Hong Kong and the Lipton Championship in Key Biscayne. He is also only the second player to win the U.S. Open and Wimbledon before his 22nd birthday.

The real winners of the McEnroe-Sampras match will be the children in the ABC Cities Tennis Program of Arthur Ashe's Safe Passage Foundation. McEnroe will donate his entire purse for the day to the Foundation, which his friend Arthur Ashe started 1990 in Newark to provide tennis and academic programs to disadvantaged youths.

The 16th annual Pathmark Tennis Classic will be held July 18-25 at the Crossroads Corporate Center. For tickets to the Sampras-McEnroe match and all sessions of the Classic, call Ticketmaster or the tournament box office at 201-825-9100.

Morristown Chemical Bank Challenge Race

The Morristown Chemical Bank Corporate Challenge Race will be run 7 p.m. Tuesday in downtown Morristown. The 3.5-mile road race will start and finish at Headquarters Plaza, and nearly 3,000 runners are expected from more than 200 major businesses across the state.

World-class runner and record holder Grete Waitz will be on hand to discuss the importance of health and fitness to the corporate community.

The race is open to full-time employees of corporations and businesses. The Morristown event us part of the Chemical Corporate Challene, an 18-city series with 15 races in the United States and three overseas in London, Oslo and Frankfurt. The Corporate Challenge is the largest participatory sporting event series in the United States, with nearly 120,000 runners from more than 6,100 companies participating in 1992.

For more information, call 1-201-386-1486, ext. 224.

Fort Monmouth Summer Fun Fest

Fort Monmouth is opening its gates for a weekend of fun from August 5-8 and will feature a five-mile run/racewalk and Volksmarch.

The public is welcome to participate in many sporting, family and creative events being offered during the fort's first Summer Fun Fest.

The course for the Five-mile Run and Racewalk, held August 7, circles the post on a flat terrain. The entry fee is $8 until August 2, which qualifies you for a tee-shirt. After August 2, the cost is $10. Overall winners in the male and female categories will receive a new mountain bike, donated by the Fort Monmouth Army AirForce Exchange Service (AAFES) store. Trophies and other prizes will be given for the first, second and third place winners in all age categories.

A Volksmarch is a traditional German non-competitive walk for family and friends. Take your time to leisurely walk the Fort Monmouth grounds and local area and earn valuable Volksmarch credits and a specialty-designed Volksmarch pin. The Volksmarch starts on August 8 at the Fort Monmouth Arts and Crafts Center, Building 1123. Start anytime between 8 a.m.-2 p.m. and finish by 5 p.m. All participants which register will qualify to win a $50 gift certificate from Quails of Monmouth Mall.

To get to Fort Monmouth, take the Garden State Parkway to Exit 105 (Eatontown). Take the first jug handle and cross Hwy 36 onto Hope Road (northbound). At the intersection of Hope Road and Tinton Avenue (3rd traffic light past jug handle), turn right onto Tinton and stay on it for 1/2 mile. At the intersection of Hwy 35 and Avenue of Memories, proceed through gate to Arts and Crafts center (Building 1123).

For registration and information, call 532-2695 or leave a message at 532-9CFA, ext. 4915.

Women's Singles

The following standings of the Westfield Tennis Association Women's Singles Ladder reflect matches played through July 11. All inactive players have been dropped from the standings. Those who wish to be listed in the standings again must play and report some matches. Although many challenges were postponed due to the heat wave this reporting period, a few upsets took place among the 30 matches that were played.

Names with numbers in parentheses after them indicate matches played so far. Eight matches must be played by Labor Day in order to play in the playoffs.

Players who are having trouble arranging matches are reminded to plan matches in advance. They can challenge below, as well as above themselves in order to avoid being dropped from the standings due to inactivity.

The next reporting period concludes at 8 p.m. Sunday, July 25. Match scores should be reported within three days to Jean Power.

1. Jacqueline Boyle (5); 2. Jean Power (8); 3. Ann Herttua (5); 4. Karen Dorne (6); 5. Clara Karnish (7); 6. Tucker Trimble (7); 7. Lillian Louie (8); 8. Marcia Talbot (4); 9. Debbie Gatesy (8)

Golfers swing for diabetes at outing

The American Diabetes Association, New Jersey Affiliate, Inc., has announced the 10th annual L. Robert Keller Memorial Golf Invitational on Monday, July 19, at the Canoe Brook Country Club in Summit.

Play will be limited to 172 golfers. The $375 entry fee includes buffet luncheon, golf carts, cocktails and hors d'oeuvres, gifts, prizes and dinner. Morning registration is followed by a luncheon at 11:15 a.m. and a shotgun start at 12:30 p.m.. This year's tournament features prizes including two luxury Lexus automobiles, which will be awarded to the first hole-in-one on each course.

In the United States there are more than 13 million people with diabetes, including 460,000 New Jersey residents. The mission of the American Diabetes Association is to prevent and cure diabetes and to improve the lives of those affected by it.

To register for the outing, call Joan Mistrough, Vice President of Development, at (800) 562-2063 or (908) 469-7979.

GOLF
ASK The PRO'S...
HOW OFTEN SHOULD I REPLACE MY GRIPS ON MY GOLF CLUBS?
It depends on how much you play. An avid golfer should replace his or her grips twice a year, and everyone should replace their grips once a year.
FOR THE AVERAGE GOLFER, DO THEY GET MORE DRIVING DISTANCE FROM ONE BALL OR ANOTHER? IS ONE BALL MORE ACCURATE THAN OTHERS?
You will get more distance and durability from a 2 piece ball, but no ball gives any better accuracy.
I'M HAVING TROUBLE WITH PUTTING, IS IT ADVISABLE FOR A 20 HANDICAPPER TO GO TO CROSS-HAND PUTTING LIKE SOME OF THE PROS HAVE?
Not necessarily, pros go to the crossed-hand putting because it helps with their nerves. It is better to get involved with drills to correct your bad habits.
WHAT DO YOU SAY TO GOLFERS WHO COME INTO YOUR PRO SHOP LOOKING FOR ADVICE?
Many golfers come in looking for a quick fix to improve their game. You only get out of it what you put into it. Get involved with a teaching pro and contine practicing. Get back to taking lessons and remembering the basics.

TAKING THE MYSTERY OUT OF CHOOSING GOLF EQUIPMENT
Steel Shafts, Lightweight Steel, Graphite Shafts, Regular Flex, Stiff Flex, Senior Flex. What is best for me? Have you ever wondered what best suits your golf swing? Golf is a High-Tech industry today. Gone are the days of simply purchasing a set of golf clubs off the rack.
Proper equipment custom fitted to your golf swing will most definitely improve your game. It amazes me how many golfers are simply playing with the wrong clubs for their swing! Your golf swing determines the right clubs for you. If the golf shop you patronize sells golf equipment without some form of club fitting technique, it may be time to consider a change. Club fitting should be a very personal experience! Club-head speed, weight distribution, hand speed are just a few determining factors. Qualified customer service representatives, along with Hi-Tech computerized equipment, should make your golf club purchase a rewarding experience.

American Legion

Westfield defeated Springfield in a game that was called in the sixth inning because of rain. Westfield scored six runs in the opening inning, when it sent 11 men to the plate. Pat Cosquer had two singles in the inning, while Tom Oravez, Dave Fela, Ryan Mann, and Joe DiLauro each contributed with singles. Fela's hit drove in two runs, while Mann's plated one. Ron Noblie also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

Westfield scored five more runs in the top of the sixth. Chris Vogel had an RBI double. Adley Torres drove in a run with a triple, while Steve Cheek ripped a two-run double and Bill Rhodes connected for an RBI single. Cheek pitched a fine game, shutting Springfield down after the second inning. The victory, Westfield's third in a row, improved its record to 9-7.

Westfield defeated Kenilworth on Wednesday, 13-7. Torres provided the big hit, a three-run homer. Kris Williams had three hits, Ron Noblie added a triple, and Rob Toth belted a two-run double. Cheek also had two singles.

SOFTBALL

12-and-under Tri-County League

Westfield got off to a rough start in its first four games. In the season opener against Cranford, the Blue Devils were shut out 9-0. Alison Checchio pitched seven strong innings for Westfield, but got very little offensive support.

In the second game against Roselle Park, Westfield led, 2-1, after two innings. Walks to Liz McKeon and Kelly Meyer were followed by a two-out double by Stephanie Flynn. Roselle Park rallied with five runs in the bottom of the sixth inning and held off a Westfield rally in the seventh to defeat the Blue Devils, 7-3. Flynn had two hits, Jessica Lutkenhouse and Brooke Smith each contributed with hits for Westfield. Jessica Matteo and Checcio provided solid pitching to keep their team in the game.

Against Iselin, the Blue Devils trailed 3-0 through four innings before the game was broken open by Iselin, which recorded a 7-0 victory. Matteo, Checchio and Amanda Pirozzi had hits, but the rest of the Westfield bats remained silent.

A strong Colonia squad spoiled Westfield's home opener 17-1 and dropped their record to 0-4. Liza Yannuzzi and Matteo had the only hits for Westfield.

INTOWN names promotion winners

The INTOWN group of the Westfield Area Chamber of Commerce recently announced the winners of the Soar into Summer promotion conducted in June. Christine Khedr, a Westfield resident for 13 years, won the grand prize of a hot air balloon ride for two. Thirty other entrants in the drawing won prizes donated by chamber businesses.

Mrs. Khedr, who enjoys walking into town with her baby son for shopping and errands, entered the drawing at Central Jersey Bank. The bank was among the 34 INTOWN members which were entry locations for the promotion. Mrs. Khedr is employed as an educational consultant, teaching teachers of elementary grades mathematics and science.

Mrs. Khedr and her husband are scheduling their balloon ascension from Hunterdon County Airport through Forbes Newspapers, which donated the grand prize.

All of the winners were notified by telephone and have picked up their prizes at the chamber office.

The June Balloon promotion, co-chaired by Susan Auer of Brunner Opticians, George Brummer of Brummer's Chocolates and Bill Moore of Classic Studio, was the final event of the INTOWN group's 1992-93 calendar. The new INTOWN year began July 1. All Westfield area retailers are invited to join, to increase the financial support and volunteer efforts needed to produce image-enhancing events which benefit the whole local business community.

For information, contact the Westfield Area Chamber of Commerce at 233-3021.

Donna Peiffer, right, advertising sales representative for Forbes Newspapers, congratulates Christine and Aladin Khedr for winning a free hot air balloon ride through a Westfield INTOWN drawing. The ride was donated by Forbes Newspapers.

Chamber bids farewell to its retiring director

Cynthia Kowalczyk, executive director of the Westfield Area Chamber of Commerce since 1989, was the guest of honor at the chamber's annual picnic held in June at the home of Sandra and Richard Zimmer. Members of the chamber's executive board and board of directors, as well as Mrs. Kowalczyk's husband, Ed, saluted her on the occasion of her retirement.

Chamber members at the picnic commended her for her enthusiasm and energy. They particularly thanked her for achieving a major goal Mrs. Kowalczyk set for herself — a growth of 100 chamber members in her four years and a significantly higher retention rate of members than in many comparable chambers, despite economic difficulties in the past two years.

Susan Fell, on behalf of the entire chamber membership, presented her with a scrapbook of various press releases and photos, compiled by Lyn Tweedie, from Mrs. Kowalczyk's four years as executive director.

Mrs. Kowalczyk began as executive director when Frank Swain was WACC president. With his encouragement, she started a number of new projects in addition to the previously set schedule of annual chamber programs.

Mrs. Kowalczyk started the series of annual holiday ornaments in 1989. She improved "SHOWCASE of the Westfield Area," a chamber advertising publication mailed to area homes three times a year. She inaugurated a series of midday luncheon meetings to serve as networking opportunities in addition to the similar "Business After Hours" gatherings.

With neighboring chambers, Mrs. Kowalczyk organized quarterly Business After Hours expos. The "Meet Your Legislator" evenings co-sponsored with the Cranford chamber were well-received.

Throughout her tenure, Mrs. Kowalczyk provided leadership and much time to INTOWN meetings and events, including: four annual October INTOWN pre-Halloween parades, four winter festivals, two productions of "Westfield is a Garden," two scavenger hunts, and many similar promotions. Chamber associates fondly recall Mrs. Kowalczyk's willingness to blow up hundreds of balloons, hang hundreds of ribbons, and perform other time-consuming tasks associated with each promotion.

After attending the Westfield Village Mall in 1989, she encouraged the chamber to hire the Advertising Alliance to produce the highly successful, heavily attended Westfield Festifalls of the past three years (the fourth annual Festifall will be held Sept. 19).

Dr. Meyers joins Overlook in dermatology

Lawrence S.N. Meyers, M.D., of Westfield, has recently joined Overlook Hospital in the department of dermatology.

Dr. Meyers graduated Phi Beta Kappa from New York University, received his medical degree from Temple University Medical School, Philadelphia, and served his internship at Abington Memorial Hospital, Abington, Pa.

He completed his residency at the Skin and Cancer Hospital of Philadelphia where he was chief resident. He also served as an associate with the Dermatology Center, Philadelphia.

He is also on the clinical faculty of Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, New Brunswick, N.J.

MARTIN R. CURLIK

Dr. Curlick joins staff of NYU center

The board of trustees at New York University Medical Center has approved Martin R. Curlik, M.D., for the position of clinical professor of urology. Dr. Curlik will continue as chief of the Section of Laparoscopic Urologic Surgery, Department of Urology.

In addition, he has been invited as a guest speaker at the Society of Philippine Surgeons in America. The SPSA meeting will be held in Palm Springs, Calif., this month. The topics of presentation will include Laparoscopic Pelvic Lymphadenectomy in the Treatment of Prostate Cancer, Laparoscopic Nephrectomy and Laparoscopic Bladder Suspension for the Treatment of Female Urinary Incontinence.

Dr. Curlik also has a private practice in adult urology in Westfield and maintains practice as an attending physician at Overlook and Rahway Hospitals. He holds a teaching position at New York University Medical Center with a special interest in laparoscopic urologic surgery and prostate cancer.

In addition, he is a clinical investigator for Merck & Co. Inc. in Rahway and is on the Laparoscopic Advisory Panel of Ethicon Inc., in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Dr. Curlik is participating in a multi-center study with Merck & Co. Inc. to examine the efficacy and tolerability of Proscar, a new drug for the treatment of benign prostatic hyperplasia.

Borowsky is promoted to management

Linda Borowsky of Westfield has been promoted to manager at KPMG Peat Marwick. A graduate of Seton Hall University with a bachelor's degree in accounting, Ms. Borowsky joined KPMG Peat Marwick in 1988.

She has developed an extensive background providing corporate and individual taxation services to the financial services industry.

MIRACULOUS INVOCATION TO SAINT THERESE: Recite daily or hourly in sickness and trials, especially when all help seems lacking. O glorious Saint Therese, thou whom almighty God has raised up to aid & counsel mankind, I implore thy miraculous intercession, so powerful art thou in obtaining every need of body & soul that not without reason does holy mother church proclaim thee a prodigy of miracles, the greatest saint of modern times. Fervently I now beseech thee to answer my petition [mention here] and to carry out thy promises of spending heaven doing good upon earth, of letting fall from heaven a Shower of Roses. Henceforth dear Little Flower, I will fulfill thy plea to be made known everywhere and I will never cease to lead others to Jesus through thee. Amen. Thank you Saint Therese. Spread devotion to Saint Therese by distributing Little Flower Prayer Cards and by reporting favors in writing. RMS

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never known to fail). Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and hear me, herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x). Holy Mother, t place this cause in your hands (3x). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. A.D.

Automotive Guide

DAKOTA CLUB CAB 4X4 by Dodge is a complete package for heavy duty work and four-wheel drive versatility.

Dakota 4X4 is Dodge's top-of-the-line pickup in the mid-size range

Up until the '70s all pickups came in one size — large.

When Japanese automakers entered the picture with their mini-pickups, each of the Big-3 American auto producers eventually made arrangements with them to produce mini-pickups with U.S. nameplates. Sales of these small pickups soared as buyers learned of their low price and versatility.

Dodge, in addition to producing passenger and sports-performance cars, is also Chrysler's truck division, and as such, contracted with Mitsubishi to build its Ram 50 pickups. While this arrangement has worked well for many years, Dodge felt there was a significant market for a slightly larger, or mid-size pickup truck. In 1987 it debuted the Dakota, which combined the greater capacity of the full size with the operating economy of the mini pickup. Since then, both sport and club cab models have been added, as have V-6 and V-8 powerplants.

This week's test vehicle, Dakota Club Cab 4x4, is Dodge's top-of-the-line mid-size pickup. It is powered by the 5.2 liter Magnum V-8, and combines five-passenger capability with a six and a half foot bed, the performance afforded by a 220 horsepower engine and four-wheel drive versatility.

It's a complete package for heavy duty work, or high-powered play:

APPEARANCE

The Club Cab combines both car and truck styling cues. When fitted with four-by-four drive, it stands tall and its bold bright grille and bumpers, large truck-style side mirrors and styled alloy wheels give it a purposeful look. The longer cab has rear pop-out side windows plus a sliding rear window. Its sides are fairly straight and protected by a full-length rub-strip, and the tail gate is easily removable. The Club Cab can only be fitted with the shorter six-and-a-half bed.

COMFORT

From the inside, this Dakota looks like a passenger car. With roomy comfortable bucket seats up front and snug three-across bench seating in the rear, a full instrument panel, power windows, locks and mirrors, plus cruise control, it has all of the prerequisites. Add a tilting sport steering wheel, a sensitive, great-sounding AM/FM cassette system, and a fairly quiet and efficient heater/air conditioner, and it's hard to believe this Club Cab is on a pickup truck.

Interior storage space is very good, and there are even the now prerequisite cup holders.

ROADABILITY

Even though the Dakota 4x4 is equipped with independent front suspension and stabilizer bars, its rear leaf springs still make it ride like a pickup truck. Power steering and the anti-spin differential make for easier maneuvering, while the Goodyear Wrangler AT all season tires provide a good grip on all kinds of road surfaces. Its power front disc/rear drum anti-lock brake setup is unique in this class of vehicle, and adds a good measure of safety.

When required, it is easy to get into four-wheel drive without stopping (on the fly) simply by moving the shift lever to four-high. All around vision is excellent and the ride at highway speeds is fairly quiet.

PERFORMANCE

The optional 5.2-liter Magnum V-8 provides a robust 230 horsepower to the rear, or all four wheels, via an electronically controlled smooth shifting four-speed automatic transmission. There's plenty of low-end torque for surmounting all kinds of obstacles. The stainless steel exhaust system is tuned to provide a V-8 rumble.

SUGGESTIONS

For simplicity, reduce the number of functions performed by the steering column mounted multi-function lever.

ECONOMY

EPA ratings are 13 city/17 highway. I averaged 15.2 mpg.

CONCLUSIONS

The various mid-size Dakota models give Dodge a unique position in today's pickup truck market, as it offers a wide variety of power and load options that can present advantages over its mini and full-size counterparts. In particular, the V-8 powered Club Cab with the four-by-four driveline can trailer up to 6,000 pounds, carry five people and haul up to 1,800 pounds. Quite a comprehensive combination.

Some quick lube shops have slick changing style

By BOB HAGIN
FORBES NEWSPAPERS

Q Recently I took my 1986 Toyota Camry in to a shop for an oil change. I go to one of those quick oil change places because I've always thought that the rest of the car is sealed and doesn't need to be lubricated. The manager of the shop told me that they have a way to change the oil now with a hypodermic needle. What do you suggest?

A.A. Merced, Calif.

A Several of my high school students have gotten jobs in quick oil change places and they've told me some horror stories about the things that they and other attendants do to their charges. Among others, they told me that in some places, they're under such time restraints, they don't have time to remove a balky oil drain plug with the proper wrench and have to resort to locking pliers or a pipe wrench. This, of course, ruins the plug and it eventually becomes round. In the past, I've had to drill out the center of oil drain plugs and use a large screw extractor to finish the job. The oil change system that sucks out the oil through a tube that is shoved down the engine oil dip stick tube has been around for many years but it can never get all of the used oil out of the sump.

The only proper way to do the job is to drain the sump when the oil is hot and let it all drain out. While it's up in the air, the technician can spot other potential problems to pass them on to the owner as well as change the oil filter. The suction pump system is lots quicker, however.

There are many oil and filter quick change shops that do a satisfactory job, but those that don't can do a lot of damage that the owner won't be aware of until the next oil change is due or when the oil drain plug falls out because it was only put in finger tight.

I'm particularly aware of this problem because I did it twice myself when I was a teenager assigned to a lube rack. I was fired both times (I'm a slow learner, I guess) and then became aware of the need to always check drain plugs twice.

Q I recently had the tires replaced on my 1989 Hyundai at a discount store. The tires were installed on the car by the shop in back of the store that is owned by the company. After I had the job done, I noticed that there was a slight fluctuation in the brake pedal when I slowly rolled up to a stop sign. I took it back to the shop immediately as I thought that the mechanics had installed the tires wrong. They took them off and inspected them and rechecked the balance but everything was OK. The pulsation is slight but annoying.

K.B. Buffalo, N.Y.

A The only reason that I can think of for your pulsating pedal is that the tire jockey put on your wheel lug nuts too tightly or used an impact wrench that applied too much torque. This can warp the wheel or the wheel hub or both. Wheel nuts are supposed to be installed with a torque wrench, done in a factory recommended pattern and to a factory recommend torque specification. This is usually around 70 foot-pounds but it could be more or less. The problem is a somewhat common one but Hyundais seem to be singularly prone to it. The company issued a service bulletin on the subject a few years ago.

Q I'm interested in building a kit car that would look like a Morgan. I've scoured the buff magazines and written to several kit car companies but none of them offer a Morgan replica. I'd really like to buy a new Morgan but the cost is out of my reach and there is a delivery delay of a couple of years. Do you know of a company that duplicates Morgans?

K.K. Chicago, Ill.

A I think the specter of the ongoing battle between Ferrari and those kit car companies that make Ferrari duplicates keeps many manufacturers from replicating a car that came from a car maker that's still in business - especially a small, exclusive one. The classic British sports car lines of the Morgan would be easy to duplicate but its teeth-jarring ride would be hard to match short of using no suspension springs.

TOUR HIGHLIGHTS:

The Thermal Baths of Budapest

This is one in a series of articles about the cities and places to be visited on the 10-day tour, "Imperial Capitals," being offered by Forbes Newspapers and Lufthansa German Airlines.

Budapest could actually be called "Budapest Spa." Every day, 50 million liters of warm medicinal waters gush up from several dozen springs. In the winter, even the Danube exhales steam in some places, as the water rich in minerals flows into the river.

With one-third of Europe's total thermal water supply under Hungarian territory, Budapest alone boasts some 123 springs; but one can find abundant waters in the countryside as well.

Thermal spas, usually frequented by patients with various rheumatic, respiratory or nervous system ailments, have been popular since the Roman times. In the past 15 years, a modern network of four- and five-star hotels was constructed to provide the best in service and comfort to this city's international clientele.

Budapest's waters have been written about since Celtic times.

In the Middle Ages, hospitals were established near the medicinal springs, with the result that today many of them are still part of large complexes devoted to hydropathic therapy.

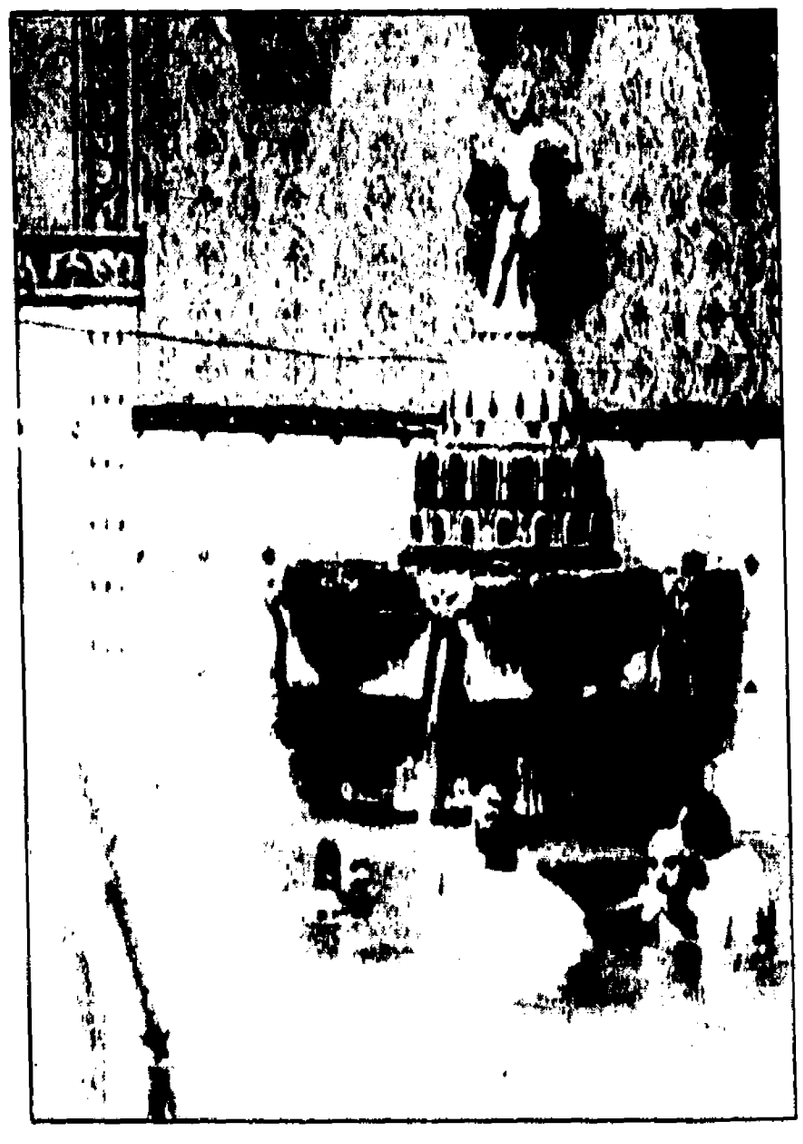

Many of the old baths still receive guests. Of these, the Kiraly, established by the Turks in 1565, is easily the most intimate and charming. Its pleasures, however, can be enjoyed only by men. Other baths cater to both sexes on most days or have alternating days.

It has been estimated that 16 million gallons of medicinal water stream out daily from the 123 thermal springs on both sides of the Danube.

As well as restoring one's strength, they offer a unique insight into the way in which Budapest society is organized. Like the coffee houses of Vienna, the baths are places for regular meetings, informal discussions and a general gathering of news.

The Baths of Budapest are reasonably priced and present a relaxing cultural experience which should not be missed.

Playtime in the park

Theater under the stars is a summer tradition in Roosevelt Park

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
WeekendPlus Editor

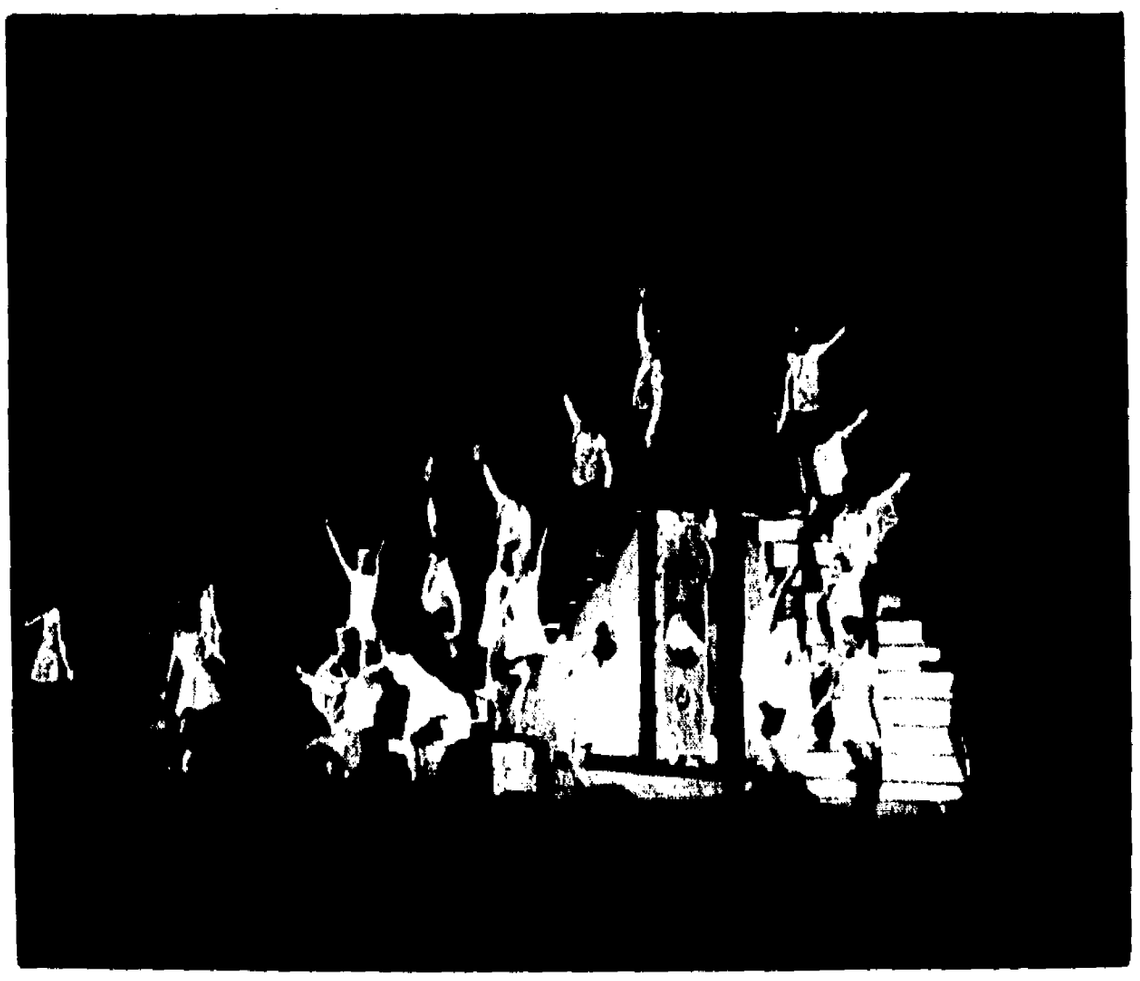

One of New Jersey's oldest, and most popular, theater traditions is right in Edison, and the price is only two bucks — about the same cost as a video rental.

Given that it's the only county-sponsored service of it's kind in the state, Plays-in-the-Park, the summer theater series, now in its 31st year presenting popular Broadway fare to upwards of 3,000 people a night, is somewhat taken for granted. Unlike other area theaters, which count on grants and ticket sales for support, Plays-in-the-Park is a service of the Middlesex County Department of Parks and Recreation. In fact, the four full-time staff members who run the show are civil servants.

"Technically, my job description is some sort of a parks supervisor," said Gary Cohen, who's more accurately labled as producing director.

Cohen, whose resume includes founding the Celebration Playhouse in Cranford (he also taught video at Cranford High School and still directs plays there), spends 12 months a year planning, scheduling and budgeting the Plays-in-the-Park season. But this is the best time of the year — when the impressive theater facility at Roosevelt Park (Next door to Menlo Park Mall on Route 1 South) is enlivened with activity as carpenters, set designers, actors and lighting technicians are busily preparing for the current show, the zany musical Nunsense, which opened July 14 and continues through July 24.

The season began last month with a successful run of the musical 42nd Street, which played to a staggering total of 18,216 customers in only eight performances — a figure rivaled only by the largest of Broadway theaters playing host to runaway hits like Phantom and Miss Saigon.

AUGUSTO F. MENEZES/WEEKENDPLUS

The cast of 42nd Street, which opened the 31st season of Plays-in-the-Park at Roosevelt Park in Edison last month, performs a big production number for a capacity crowd.

And for the first time since 1980, the current season will feature four main productions — with Man of La-Mancha (Aug. 4-14) and California Suite (Aug. 24-31) rounding out the line-up, plus "Dance-in-the-Park II" (Sept. 9-11) — a lively night of choregraphy from local dance companies inaugurated last year.

> Since reopening in Roosevelt Park in 1978, more than one million people have seen Plays-in-the-Park productions

Plays-in-the-Park also produces a winter show for the Christmas holiday, a tradition that was interrupted in 1991 due to lack of funds, but was revived last year with a production of You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown.

But there's nothing like theater under the stars, and Plays-in-the-Park has an ideal setting for exactly that in Roosevelt Park. Offices, storage, costume, tech and carpentry shops and dressing rooms are all housed in the angular, paneled building in the south end of the park, which opens to a passeralle stage at one end. Beyond the stage is a natural grass amphitheater sloping upwards for the audience, the most experienced of which bring low-backed lawn chairs (blankets and chaise lounges, which take up too much room, and high-backed lawn chairs — too high for those behind yoou to see over — are not permitted).

Behind the fenced audience arena is another building, which houses an area for light technicians and a concession stand. Light towers also flank the stage, while ample parking is located nearby.

An impressive venue, to say the least, especially when you consider the humble beginnings of Plays-in-the-Park, which started in 1963 with a small group of volunteers and a modest budget from the Middlesex County Freeholders, who provided enough money for a flat, open stage and a storage shed.

By the mid-'70s, as the "shed" was expanded to include a scene shop and dressing rooms, the high-quality productions were popular enough to draw more than 150,000 patrons a year. But in 1975, the original building was destroyed by fire.

Temporary facilities were constructed for the remainder of the 1975 season and the 1976 season, but in 1977, the action moved to Middlesex County College for one summer while the new (and current) facilities were constructed.

Since reopening at Roosevelt Park in 1978, more than one million people have seen Plays-in-the-Park productions, which have, in the absence of rain, continued uninterrupted ever since.

"It really is a New Jersey tradition, and one that we and the freeholders are very proud of," said Cohen.

One of the reasons for the near-professional quality of the productions is the large crowds.

"When you get to play to 2,500 people a night, it draws a lot of actors," said Cohen. "We literally get hundreds of people auditioning every year."

"On opening night, when you look out there and see a sea of people, it's incredible," said Jackie Neill of Woodbridge, a full-time Plays-in-the Park staffer (administrative assistant) who also performs in many shows.

Neill, currently starring as streetwise sister Robert Anne in Nunsense, sees both sides of the ledger. Along with Cohen, master carpenter Dave Griffin and carpenter Joe Vasta, Neill is one of the four full-time civil servant employees of the Parks Department assigned to Plays-in-the-Park.

"We also have seasonal help — groundskeepers, technicians, musicians — everybody gets paid except the actors and the backstage volunteers," said Cohen.

But the acting experience pays off in experience and exposure, according to Neill.

"We've had many people go onto Broadway, or movies or television," said Neill, who mentioned world-famous magician and Metuchen native David Copperfield as one distinguished alumnus. "It's thought of as a training ground."

Planning ahead

If you want to take in a show at Plays-in-the-Park, planning ahead is a good idea.

First of all, tickets are only sold on the day of the show. According to policy, in the event of a cancellation due to rain before intermission, patrons may exchange their ticket stubs at the box office for another evening. So if the forecast is for rain, you may just want to wait another day.

Another reason there's no advance sale is that with room for 3,000, sellouts are rare, so there's no reason to rush to the box office. Seating, however, is general admission, so if you like to be close to the stage, you may want to consider an early arrival. Lines have been known to form as early as noon at the admission gate for the shows, which begin at 8:30 p.m.

According to producing director Gary Cohen, however, it's not always necessary to show up until about 6 p.m., when the doors open, or even later.

"There's a huge line between 4-6 p.m. that takes up the front spots, but I'm not so sure those are the best seats, anyway," said Cohen. "I think it's better to be right around the middle. Usually, you can come in at 6 p.m. or 7 p.m. and get a good seat, although if you show up at 8:20 p.m., you're going to have a problem."

AUGSTO F. MENEZES/WEEKENDPLUS

A sea of Plays-in-the-Park patrons wait for the curtain to rise on 42nd Street.

Dinner theater in the park

Dinner and theater makes a great date, and Nordstrom's at the Menlo Park Mall has a new plan just for Plays-in-the-Park patrons.

Between 5-7 p.m., Nordstrom's Garden Court Restaurant is offering theater-goers 20 percent off their dinner check. Just show them your tickets (parking in the park, buying your tickets at the box office and then walking over to the mall is your best bet), and you're all set.

Since you'll be on a tight schedule, reservations are a good idea. For more information, call (908) 603-5000.

Monster of a show

Stagework's faithful 'Frankenstein' counters the Hollywood hype

By MICHAEL P. SCASSERRA
WeekendPlus Theatre Critic

Jim Cronin is the "created man," Frankenstein, in Mary Shelly's Frankenstein running through Aug. 7 at Stageworks/Summit.

Mary Shelley's Frankenstein, this summer's mainstage production at Summit's Stageworks, is artistic director Robert Pridham's adaptation of the classic gothic novel about the obsessed doctor Victor Frankenstein and his monstrous creation. Having worked on this text for five years, director Pridham's intention was to remain true to Shelley's original 1818 work, "a tale of sensuality and murder," by creating a text which utilizes verbatim segments of her novel as well as information obtained from correspondence chronicling her own life.

This Frankenstein, presented in a staged reading five years ago, strives to remain true to a literary classic, a novel which has been to varying degrees of success translated to the screen. Prior to seeing the Stageworks show, audience members are invited to view a simple but thought-provoking video installation which simultaneously plays several different cinematic versions of the Frankenstein legend. The installation provides a neat accent to the production which places Pridham's text in the literary context he clearly intends.

Described by the director as a "chamber horror piece for five players," Pridham's Frankenstein is narrated by Shelley herself, whose comments establish the circumstances of the novel's creation as well as the sometimes eerie parallels between her life and her fiction. The heart of the play, though, is the bizarre parent-child relationship between Frankenstein and his creation, a brooding, tortured child-man who torments his creator to avenge the pained existence into which he has been thrust.

The narrative is occasionally blurred, particularly in the initial portions of the first act which establish a cross-cutting coexistence of "the mind and memory" of Shelley in 1823, and the late 18th century action of the Frankenstein story. Not the most vivid or poetic writer of her time, Shelley's authorial strength rests in the darkness of her vision, well captured, if not imaginatively expanded upon in this adaptation. Determined to remain true to its source material and foreground Shelley's dense prose, Pridham's staging is sometimes static, but when the staging does work well, as in a climactic confrontation between the monster and the innocent Elizabeth, the effect is startling.

Played out on a simple but effective set of twisted black curtains and a tilted stage of trap doors, neatly enhanced by Dan Feith's lighting effects, Pridham's play is enacted by an attractive, able cast. As the "created man," James Cronin gives a commanding performance. The center of the play, an extended confrontation between the monster and his creator, works primarily thanks to Cronin's resourceful characterization. Neil Bradley makes for a youthful and appropriately intense Victor, and Cynthia Boorujy is a lovely, properly poised Shelley. Equally effective are DeAnne Kemp as Elizabeth, and G.R. Johnson, who convincingly portrays Victor's confidante, Henry Clerval, as well as several other supporting roles.

As evidenced by last summer's adaptation of The Graduate, and with its proven determination to re-offer overlooked works (as with it upcoming staged reading of Ariel Dorfman's Death and the Maiden (Aug. 1) Stageworks remains a highly professional company with its own commendable agenda. The most noteworthy achievement of this Frankenstein is its steadfast determination to undermine the popularization of Shelley's creation, a work so liberally altered by Hollywood that an adaptation which adheres to the original novel seems, paradoxically, an alternative vision. From a literary standpoint, the production is admirable, but future stagings might benefit from a stronger dose of theatrical inventiveness.

MARY SHELLEY'S FRANKENSTEIN through Aug. 7 at Stageworks/Summit, Arts Center Theatre, Kent Place School, 42 Norwood Ave., Summit. Tickets $15.50-$10.50. (908) 273-9383.

Richard White is the tortured title character in the musical Phantom, which has been extended through July 25 at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn.

Another 'Phantom' plays the Paper Mill

By MICHAEL P. SCASSERRA
WeekendPlus Theater Critic

Because its run has been extended, due to enthusiastic audience response, there is still time to catch "the other" Phantom at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn.

While Andrew Lloyd Webber's Phantom of the Opera continues to sell out on Broadway, the reliably professional Paper Mill presents an alternative — though equally lush — musical version of the classic, 19th-century Gaston Leroux novel. Initially begun prior to Lloyd Webber's pop opera smash, this Phantom, created by composer and lyricist Maury Yeston and playwright Arthur Kopit (the team behind the hit musical Nine) has thus far been denied a New York run. Now, the Paper Mill, which has rescued other unjustly neglected musicals such as Chess and Mack and Mabel, treats area audiences to an hugely entertaining, often stunning production.

While Webber's show was designed to include a number of popular ballads, this Phantom is more concerned with storytelling and in combining more traditional musical theater with a fatal romanticism and a few gruesome touches which recall Sondheim's Sweeney Todd. Kopit's book attempts to create a psychological background for the title character, in this case a disfigured young man who dwells beneath the Avenue de l'Opera in Paris, pining away after the loss of his mother. In the voice of Christine Daee (Marie-Laurence Danvers,) an innocent young singer introduced to the opera by handsome admirer Count Phillipe de Chandon (Paul Schoeffler,) the Phantom (Richard White) finds love, passion and, finally, a reason to drop his masquerade, ultimately with tragic consequences.

As Christine is lead to her destiny by the Phantom, both must deal with the opera's new owners, Alain Cholet (Vince Trani) and his diva wife, La Carlotta (Patti Allison). Cholet has plans to run the theatre like a dictatorship in order to make a star of his overstuffed, under-talented wife. The Phantom, though, has other plans for the opera and for Christine, who has been relegated to costume assistant.

Determined to boost her career and to win her love, the Phantom devises a plot to rid the opera of the tasteless owners. Meanwhile, Christine finds herself torn between the affections of the Count and the growing love she feels for her mysterious, masked tutor.

The first act of Phantom is nothing short of spectacular. A large and talented company packs the stage for the melodic opening, "Melodie de Paris." The musical highlights of the evening, though, belong to White and Dunbar, two gifted vocalists whose duets provide the evening's most beautiful moments.

The Paper Mill performers are uniformly excellent. White, who performs with an impressive authority, and Dunbar, an ideal ingenue, vocalize with an effortless beauty and handle their heavy love scenes with a sweet sincerity. As Carlotta, Allison steals scenes from an altogether expert supporting cast.

Every bit as important as the cast to this Phantom, though, is scenic designer Michael Anania. Anania has designed a huge, amazingly detailed, ever-shifting set which utilizes every inch of the cavernous Paper Mill.

NJSF's 'Arms and the Man' a delightful diversion

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
WeekendPlus Editor

Sometimes a play can be too funny for its own good.

But while the humor of George Bernard Shaw's comedy Arms and the Man, currently running at Drew University's New Jersey Shakespeare Festival, often obscures the bite of it's anti-war and proper society satire, the audience is never ill-served because the only reason for the confusion is they're laughing too hard to notice.

Directed and performed with playful enthusiasm by NJSF artistic director Bonnie Monte and her talented cast, the production is part of a concerted effort on the part of Monte, who assumed her position in 1991, to broaden the scope of the festival.

"We do a lot of Shakespeare, but there are only 38 plays in the cannon," said Monte. "And I'm very, very adamant about bringing the rest of the classical repertoire to our audiences."

Her goal is almost in sight after selling out a four-week run of Chekov's The Seagull last year. Ticket sales have also been strong for Arms, so act fast if you want to see it, because the brief run ends Saturday.

Arms isn't a favorite of Shaw's, but clearly, it's a hit with the audience.

"I think that was one of Shaw's problems with the play," said Monte. "It was one of his earliest plays, his style had not yet fully developed, and his ability to drive more harshly to the point of the matter had not yet evolved, and so I think he always felt the play was somewhat trivial. And even though the intent of his lifelong work was there, it was dealt with in a very comical way."

The pros and cons of both war and romance collide throughout the three acts of Arms, which focuses on an aristocratic Bulgarian family, cultured by Bulgarian standards, but still boorish by the standards of Western Europe.

While the men are off, well, playing on the battlefield, Catherine, wife of Major Petkoff, and her daughter, the flighty beauty Raina, await news of a victory. Not long after the news comes that the enemy Servs are on the run, a runaway Servian soldier -- actually a timid, but clever mercenary from Switzerland -- climbs Raina's balcony to hide out, and comes to enjoy the clandestine hospitality of Raina, who finds the whole notion of being taken hostage as rather romantic.

Her secret meeting with the handsome soldier comes back to haunt her as the soldier later becomes a peacetime associate of her father and Major Saranoff, the dashing, if dim, fiance of Raina.

"You have to accept the play for what it is, and it is without a doubt, hysterically funny," said Monte. "There are lots of ways to go with that — I've seen productions that try to completely try to deal with the seriousness of it, and they're boring."

ARMS AND THE MAN through July 17 at the Bowne Theatre, Drew University, 36 Madison Ave., Madison. Tickets $30-$14. (201) 408-5600.

James Michael Reilly, as Bluntschli, courts the Bulgarian "princess" Raina (Laila Robins) in the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival's production of George Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man at Drew University in Madison.

'Phantom'

tistic director, keeps the evening fluid and lively, particularly during the first act. He deals in a particularly expert manner with the narrative considerations of the work.

To Johanson's credit, this Phantom does not overly rely on pyrotechnics. There is the crowd-pleasing falling chandelier and a few fiery lighting effects, but these technical touches compliment rather than overpower the production.

Unfortunately, the second act of Phantom does not quite match the seamless artistry of the first. Kopit's book occasionally goes awry, with a slightly overlong, introspective focus on the Phantom's psyche, including an extended flashback sequence (featuring a lovely dance performance by Christiane Farr) and some over-the-top emoting by White during his solo laments. These are minor complaints, though, considering the overall rewards of the production.

The cat's meow

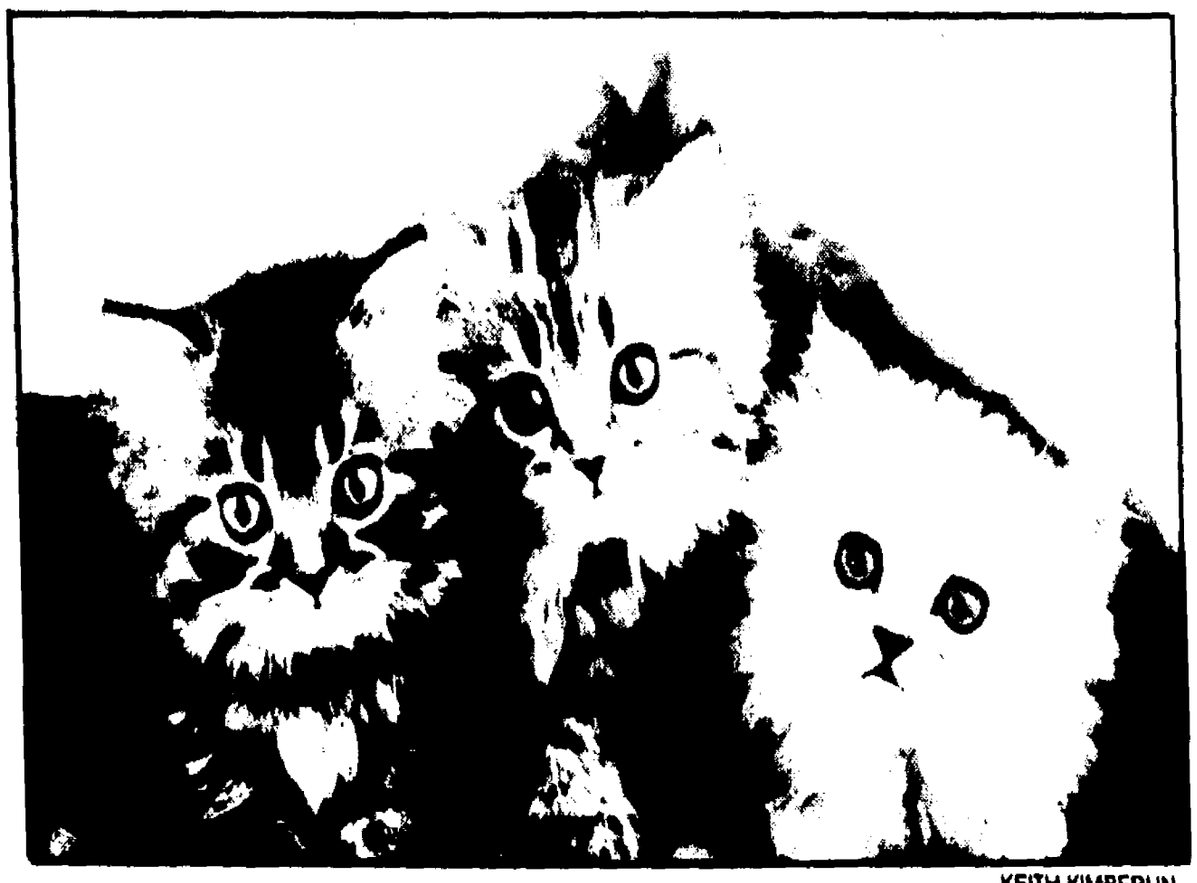

Garden State Cat Show is a purr-fect excursion

By MINX McCLOUD
WeekendPlus Writer

Have you heard the mews...er, news? The Garden State Cat Club's 57th annual Cat Show take place this weekend at the Garden State Convention and Exhibit Center in Somerset.

Where else can you see more than 700 beautiful cats, buy or adopt a kitten or cat, and buy every imaginable product and gadget made for cats? What the vendors in the "Meow Mall" don't have with them, they'll order for you.

Cat Fancier Association (CFA) judges will explain the ideal appearance, temperament and origin of each breed during the competitions. More than 35 breeds will be found at the show, including Abyssinian, Birman, Himalayan, Somali and Maine Coon cats, which will compete for trophies, rosettes and points.

KEITH KIMBERLIN

Norwegian Forest cats are one of the new breeds accepted for competition at the Garden State Cat Club's 57th annual show this weekend at the Garden State Convention and Exhibit Center in Somerset.

According to Keith Kimberlin of Edison, publicity chairman and cat breeder, the American Curl, Norwegian Forest Cat, and Longhaired Scottish Fold are three breeds which have just been accepted for full championship competition status.

It takes several years for a breed to be fully accepted into competition under CFA standards, Kimberlin said.

Kimberlin has three Norwegian Forest Cats and three Birmans. He said the Norwegian's main characteristic is an "all-weather coat," almost entirely non-matting.

"You have all the pleasure of a long-haired cat without the tedious day-to-day grooming," he says.

Those who do not own purebred cats will enjoy the household cat division, where mixed breed and cats without papers can compete. Any cat can be entered provided it is clean, neutered, not de-clawed, and is up-to-date on vaccinations.

Household cats are judged on their general appearance, condition, bright eyes and sparkling coat. They are separated into color categories, such as solid, bi-color, and tabby; and age groups – kittens (4-8 months) and adult cats (no age limit).

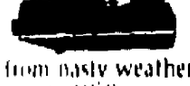

Free cat food samples will be given out and Sheba Gourmet cat food, the sponsor of the show, will give a key to each person who visits their booth. One of those keys will unlock the Sheba Treasure Chest filled with a year's supply of cat food worth $435.

George Ney will be there with his performing cats, which will do tricks you thought only a dog could do, while still maintaining their marvelous feline dignity.

The Somerset Humane Society will have kittens for adoption, and, if you're dreaming of a purebred cat of your own, the various breeders will be only too happy to extol their cats' virtues.

NJ CAT SHOW, Saturday-Sunday, July 17-18, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., at Garden State Convention and Exhibit Center, Somerset. Admission $7 adults, $3 seniors/children under 12, free under 5. (908) 469-4000.

Post-Oscar Eastwood

Dirty Harry goes to Washington in 'In the Line of Fire'

By JEFFREY COHEN
WeekendPlus Film Critic

Rene Russo and Clint Eastwood help to guard the presidential motorcade in the new action thriller In the Line of Fire.

Clint Eastwood plays the piano far more often than he fires a gun in In the Line of Fire, but don't despair, violence fans. There's plenty of mayhem packed into this movie; it's there to disguise the virtual avalanche of cliches.

Line of Fire is a standard cop movie masquerading as a big event. It includes such time-honored cop movie ingredients as the villain (John Malkovich) who can't resist calling the cop (guess who) with details of his dastardly plan; the cop whose past includes one life-shatterng failure; the innocent bystanders who get in the way of a professional assassin; the cocky rookie partnered with the grizzled veteran...you get the idea. There's also one character so clearly marked for death he should be wearing a shroud instead of a business suit.

What's supposed to be different about this movie is that the hero cop is a Secret Service agent, and he's hot on the trail of a madman bent on assassinating the president. But since presidents were undeified sometime around, oh, Nixon, and since this movie invents a fictional president we don't even really get to see, we could care less about whether the president gets assassinated.

Luckily, director Wolfgang Peterson (Das Boot, The Neverending Story) realizes this, so he has us clearly identify with Clint's Frank Horrigan, and he makes Frank care — desperately — about the president getting assassinated. Screenwriter Jeff Maguire piles on the incidents, getting Malkovich closer and closer to the president, while only Horrigan realizes how near the danger is.

If it weren't Clint Eastwood playing Horrigan, this would be a lightweight cop movie. But Eastwood, never afraid to play heroes with flaws, is a very good man who might have saved Kennedy and didn't, and has been beating himself up about it for 30 years.

Any student of cop movies will know from Frame One how this is going to play itself out. But watching Eastwood drag out his star power and display his ever-underestimated sense of humor is always worth a visit. He makes the movie worthwhile pretty much on his own.

Not that the supporting cast is a bunch of slouches. Malkovich is in his "speaking-very-quietly-to-mask-his-underlying-madness" mode, looking downright nerdy, and is a refreshing change from the accented megavillains of such films as Cliffhanger. Dylan McDermott, as Clint's new partner, reflects the audience's incredulity at the elder agent's cool, sometimes cold manner.

But when they decided to add a love interest in Rene Russo (Lethal Weapon 3), the filmmakers made a decided mistake. Playing another agent but given none of the action — Hollywood's latest lip-service nod to feminism — Russo is perfectly good. Trading dewey-eyed stares and sexual repartee with a man who has a good 30 years on her, Russo looks embarrassed.

And as usual in films like this, some of the pieces don't add up. There can be little action in a movie where the two antagonists, by design, can't meet until the very end. So every once in a while the screenplay arranges for Malkovich to meet up with an innocent bystander for him to kill (so we'll know how evil he is).

At one point, opening a bogus bank account, Malkovich lies about being from Minneapolis. Uh-oh, the bank officer is, too, and it becomes clear quickly that she knows he's lying. Can't have that, so Malkovich follows her home and in a disturbing sequence, dispathces her and her roomate. Why? It's less suspicious to kill two women than to lie to a bank officer?

But you can't quibble with stuff like this. If you're a Clint fan (on the order of, say, Tightrope, but with more humor), you'll get your money's worth at In the Line of Fire. If you're not a Clint fan, why are you reading this review?

OPENING THIS WEEK

FREE WILLY

HOCUS POCUS

CURRENT FILMS

CLIFFHANGER

•Spectacular photography co-stars with Sylvester Stallone in the first of the big-budget summer blockbusters. Sly shakes off his his failed attempt at comedy (Stop! Or My Mom Will Shoot) and returns to action as an expert mountain climber hired to rescue hostages from a gang of crooks following an airplane crash. (R)

DAVE

✔Kevin Kline stars in this romantic comedy about a regular guy and presidential lookalike who's recruited to stand in for the Commander-in-Chief. Highly-anticipated film, directed by Ivan Reitman (Ghostbusters, Twins, Leagle Eagles), also pokes fun at the media and the Washington political scene and features numerous cameos by politicians, media and other celebrity-types. With Sigourney Weaver, Frank Langella. (PG-13)

DENNIS THE MENACE

DRAGON: THE BRUCE LEE STORY

THE FIRM

•Tom Cruise stars in this long, but intriguing film adaption of the John Grisham bestseller about an Ivy League law school grad who accepts a lavish offer from a small, but waelthy partnership that turns out to be more than he bargained for. All-star cast features Gene Hackman, Hal Holbrook, Wilfred Brimley, Holly Hunter, Gary Busey and Jean Tripplehorn (Basic Instinct). Directed by Sydney Pollack (Out of Africa). (R)

GUILTY AS SIN

•Rebecca DeMornay (The Hand That Rocks the Cradle) stars as a lawyer who falls for her client, (an oily, evil Don Johnson) who's accused of murdering his wife. She gets him off, but finds out he's guilty (hence the title). Will she turn him in? Will he turn on her? The summer's first big thriller. (R)

HAPPILY EVER AFTER

•Animated, but non-Disney sequel to Snow White. Voices include Ed Asner, Carol Channing, Irene Cara, Dom DeLuise, Tracey Ullmann and others. (G)

HOT SHOTS! PART DEUX

IN THE LINE OF FIRE

•Clint Eastwood stars as an aging secret service man, haunted by his failure to protect JFK, but determined not to let a psychopath (John Malkovich) kill the current president. (R)

JURASSIC PARK

☆Steven Spielberg's long-awaited summer blockbuster centered around an island theme park featuring real dinosaurs (cloned from prehistoric DNA) that begin to run amok on their creators. Big-budget effects and an all-star cast featuring Jeff Goldblum (The Fly), Laura Dern (Wild at Heart), Sam Neill and director Richard Attenborough. Just remember to take the warnings seriously: this is a scary -- although not extremely bloody — movie that may be too intense for some of the younger children who'll no doubt be dying to see it. Buy them one of the toys instead. (PG-13)

THE LAST ACTION HERO

•Die Hard director John McTiernan teams up with action icon Arnold Schwarzenegger for this big-budget fantasy about a young boy (Austin O'Brien) whose favorite movie star literally jumps off the screen and joins him on a wild adventure.

(Please turn to page 9)

Film capsules

An action movie that also finds time for comedy as it spoofs the action-movie genre. With Art Carney, F. Murray Abraham. (PG-13)

LIFE WITH MIKEY

•Comedy with Michael J. Fox as a forgotten child star now running a two-bit talent agency pinning its hopes on a precocious young client.

LIKE WATER FOR CHOCOLATE

☆Mexican story of a man's relationship with the woman he loves — his wife's sister. (R)

MADE IN AMERICA

•Much-hyped comedy with Whoopi Goldberg as the mother of a grown child who finds out the sperm bank donor who "fathered" her is white car salesman Ted Danson. Fresh Prince Will Smith co-stars with Nia Long. Directed by Richard Benjamin. (PG-13)

MENACE II SOCIETY

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

☆Kenneth Branagh (Henry V, Dead Again) directs and stars in this latest adaption of the Shakespeare comedy with his wife, recent Oscar-winner Emma Thompson (Howard's End). Also with Denzel Washington, Michael Keaton and Keanu Reeves. (PG-13)

ONCE UPON A FOREST

•Michael Crawford (Broadway's Phantom) and Ben Vereen provide the voices in this Hanna-Barbera animated feature about three forest animals who team up to save the life of their friend. (G)

ROOKIE OF THE YEAR

•A medical mishap gives a 12-year-old Little League reject the ability to pitch his way into the major leagues. His on-screen victims include many current pros. (PG)

SLEEPLESS IN SEATTLE

•Tom Hanks (Big) and Meg Ryan (When Harry Met Sally) star in this summer romance about strangers who manage to find each other despite being separated by an entire continent. (PG)

SLIVER

•Basic Instinct temptress Sharon Stone returns to familiar territory in this failed film version of Ira Levin's psychosexual novel dealing with the touchy (or is that no-touchy?) subject of voyeurism. With Tom Berenger and William Baldwin. (R)

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS

☆Disney's first (and some say best) feature-length animated musical is back for another big-screen run. Take the kids, but remember this is also quite underrated as a "date" movie — take our word for it. (G)

SON IN LAW

WEEKEND AT BERNIES 2

•Everybody's favorite corpse returns for more comedy adventure with Andrew McCarthy and Jonathan Silverman as his hapless accomplices. Warning: the first Bernie was a stiff, and only Hollywood knows why this sequel was given life.

WHAT'S LOVE GOT TO DO WITH IT

✔Big screen biopic detailing the life of singer Tina Turner, who triumphed over prejudice, an abusive husband and bankruptcy to become the queen of rock 'n' roll. (R)

REVIVALS/ SPECIAL SCREENINGS

EL MARIACHI (1993; Spanish w/ English subtitles)/AN OCCURANCE AT OWL CREEK BRIDGE (1962)

✔Produced with a microscopic budget of $7,000, this artistic action-adventure managed to win the Audience Award at the prestigious Sundance Film Festival. Offbeat story follows a musician, clad in black and carrying a guitar case, who is mistaken for a hit man when he arrives in a Mexican border town, setting off a comedy of errors, chase scenes and shootouts. Rated R. El Mariachi replaces Like Water for Chocolate on original schedule, which still includes award-winning short film Occurance, which was originally presented to most of the public as an episode of The Twighlight Zone. Sunday, July 18, 7 p.m., at the State Theatre, 19 Livingston Ave., New Brunswick. Part of "Hot Nights, Cool Cinema" series sponsored by Rutgers Film Co-op. Admission $7.

STALKER (1983; Russian w/ English subtitles)

☆Groundbreaking, pre-perestroika science fiction from behind the iron curtain tells the story of an expedition into a mysterious, mystical zone created by a fallen meteor. Friday, July 16, 7 p.m., Milledoler Hall on the College Avenue campus of Rutgers University, New Brunswick. Presented by the "Voldorama" summer film festival. Admission $3, $2 Rutgers Film Co-op members. (908) 932-7084.

SHIFTING MARGINS (1985-93)

✔Rutgers Film Co-op director Al Nigrin presents a festival of his own experimental films, presented in a multi-media format. Offerings include Light Pharmacy 4.1 (1988-93); Terrain Vague (1987), Aurelia (1985) and more. Tickets must be purchased by Friday, July 16. Thursday, July 22, 7 p.m., at the New Jersey center for the Visual Arts, 68 Elm st., Summit. Admission $6. (908) 273-9121.

The Queen is up to no good in the animated Disney classic Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, which is back in the theaters with a newly-restored print.

The Neville Brothers return to the Hub City's State Theatre

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
WeekendPlus Editor

New Jersey music fans, like many around the nation, have jumped on the New Orleans musical bandwagon in recent years. And there's no better representation of the style than the Neville Brothers, who return to New Brunswick Tuesday, July 20, for a concert at the State Theatre.

And if you missed their last concert there, back in 1991, don't make the same mistake again. With funky undulating rhythms, gospel and soul-inspired vocals, and enough musicianship to bring the French Quarter to its knees, this could be the Central Jersey concert event of the summer.

It's been a good couple of years for the brothers since their last State Theatre appearance, particularly for vocalist Aaron, who hit the top 10 with his 1991 album, Warm Your Heart, and the single, "Everybody Plays the Fool." Aaron, who had scored a Grammy the year before for his "Don't Know Much" duet with Linda Ronstadt, has gone on to produce several more hit singles as well as a string of television and radio commercials that have thrust him into the public eye.

Translated -- Aaron's hot as a cayenne pepper, and it's about time.

Still, his success has not threatened the unity of the Neville Brothers, who still tour together several months each year. Their most recent album, Family Groove, was released in 1992 to fairly disappointing sales, but continued their pattern of mixing R&B originals, inspired covers (like Steve Miller's "Fly Like an Eagle") and gospel, with many of their songs taking aim at the current social issues of the day.

For further pre-concert research, look into the albums Fiyo on the Bayou (A&M; 1981), Yellow Moon (A&M; 1989), and the anthology Treacherous: A History of the Neville Brothers (Rhino; 1988), which traces their history, both together and as individuals, back to the 1950s.

Treacherous (avoid the watered-down Treacherous Too! unless you just can't get enough) also contains Aaron's first big hit, "Tell it Like it is," which dates back to the mid-'60s, before the brothers began to record together.

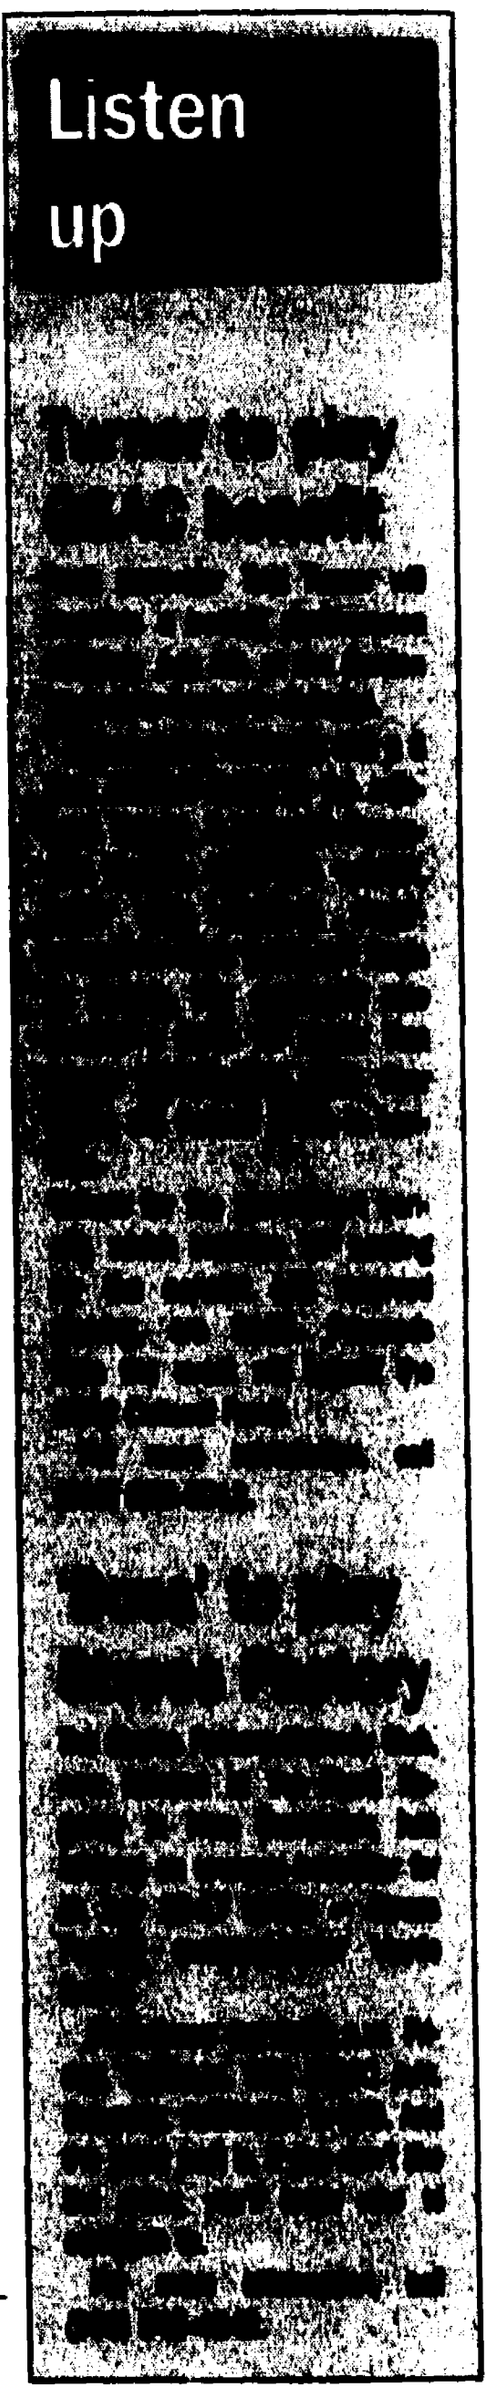

Interestingly, all the brothers had been in the business for nearly 20 years before they got together in one band in 1978. Prior to that, Aaron and Art (keyboards, vocals) teamed up in the Hawkettes in the '50s, while Art and Cyril (percussion, vocals) in the mid-'70s. Soon after, all joined up with the funky, flamboyant Wild Tchoupitoulas temporarily in 1976 before finally uniting on their own.

National recognition would come later, but it wasn't long before the Nevilles grew to legendary status in their native New Orleans, where they were regulars at such major showcases as Tipatina's.

Art Porter opens the show, which begins at 8 p.m.

THE NEVILLE BROTHERS Tuesday, July 20, 8 p.m., at the State Theatre, 19 Livingston Ave., New Brunswick. Tickets $22.50. (908) 246-7469.

ELO II to play Club Bene

Last week, it was the Jefferson Starship. This week, it's the Electric Light Orchestra. Somehow, Club Bene in Sayreville has become a sort of Deep Space 9 for old rock 'n' roll space vessels.

And just as the Starship -- which is touring without Grace Slick or Paul Kantner, among others -- is missing it's key bridge crew members, ELO is without their Captain Kirk and Captain Picard all rolled into one -- singer/songwriter/guitarist/arranger/frontman Jeff Lynne, who mostly produces other acts these days when he's not a Traveling Wilbury.

Hence the name ELO II, which tried to book a major U.S. tour in 1991, but was forced to cancel due to poor ticket sales.

But they should pack the Club Bene on Saturday, July 17, for two shows (7:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m.) with a six-man lineup that features original drummer Bev Bevan, bassist-vocalist Kelly Groucutt, and violinist Mik Kaminski, an original member of the three-piece string section that gave ELO its trademark sound.

The current lineup did find a receptive audience in Europe, where their record sold well and they toured with the 85-piece Moscow Symphony Orchestra.

There'll be no orchestra at Club Bene, but the crowd will no doubt enjoy some slick reproductions of such hits as "Evil Woman," "Turn to Stone," "Don't Bring Me Down" and the classic rock radio favorite "Roll Over Beethoven."

ELO II Saturday, July 17, 7:30 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. at Club Bene, Route 35 South, Sayreville. Tickets $20 ($30 w/ pre-show dinner). (908) 727-3000.

The Electric Light Orchestra II, featuring original ELO members Bev Bevan, Kelly Groucutt and Mik Kaminski, will play two shows Saturday, July 17, at Club Bene in Sayreville.

Emotional exhibition

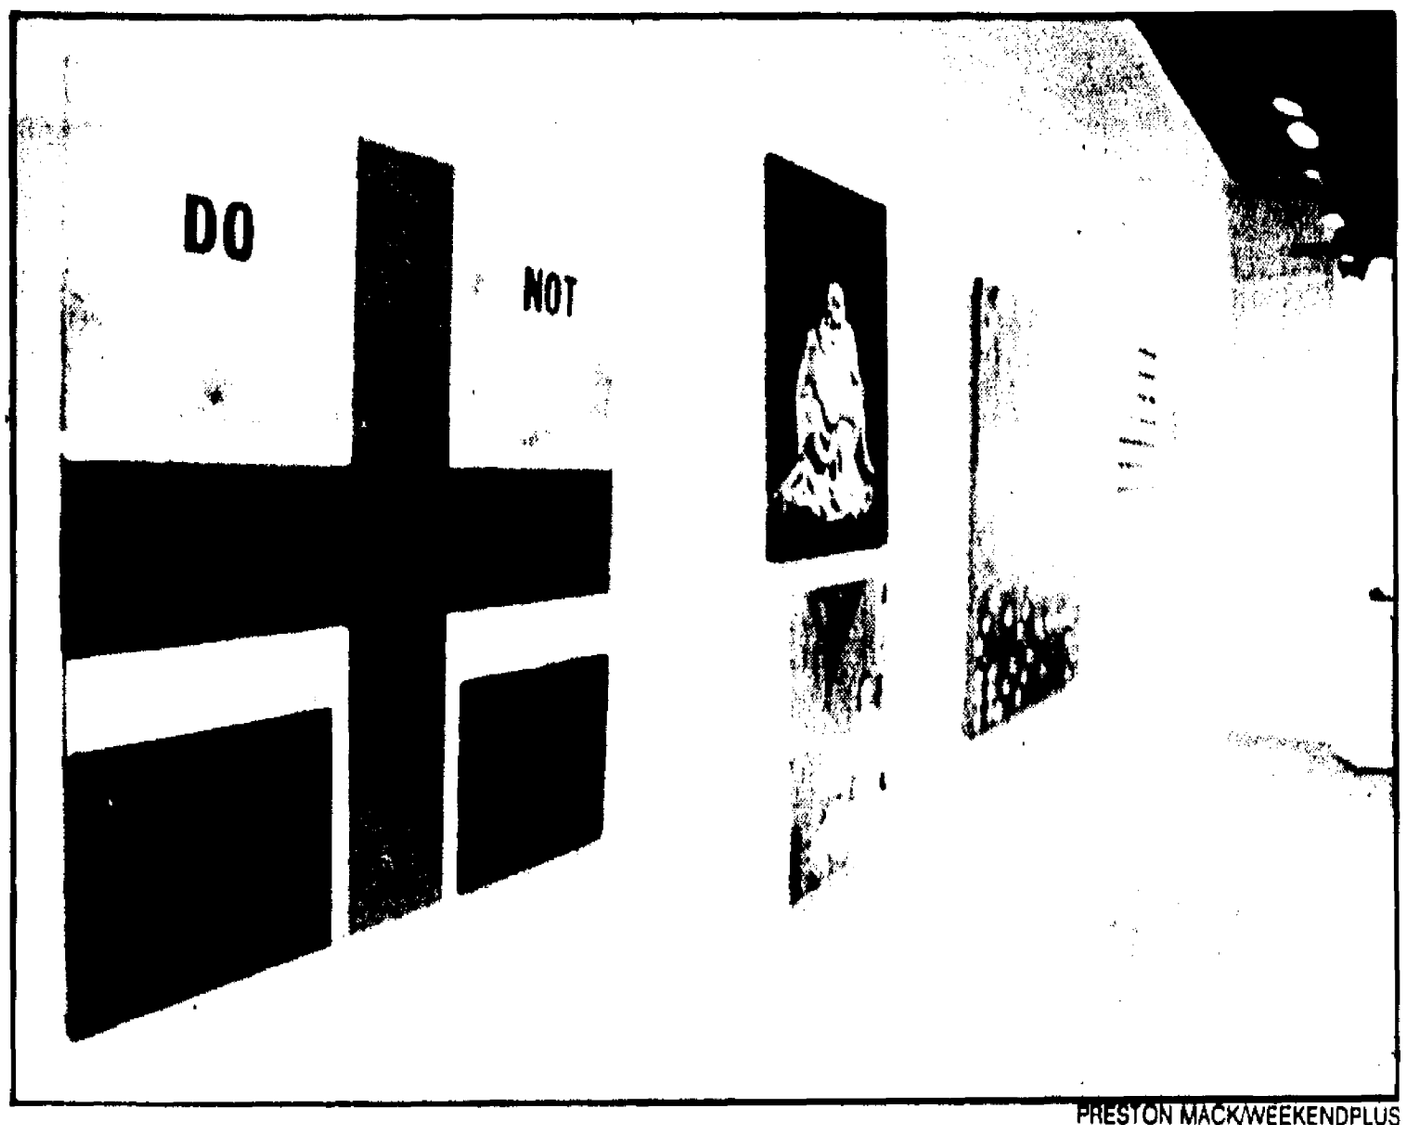

AIDS-affected artists join forces at Watchung Arts

By MARC O'REILLY
WeekendPlus Writer

While some art is dependent on a theme to give it meaning, other works have the ability to stand alone.

Both these types are present at the Watchung Arts Center this month.

A Need to Respond, is the July theme for the Watchung Arts Center, currently featuring an art exhibit that is aimed at giving voice to feelings and opinions about AIDS and HIV, according to program director Larry Young.

PRESTON MACK/WEEKENDPLUS

"A Need to Respond" is the theme of the AIDS-related exhibition showing through the end of July at the Watchung Arts Center.

All of the artists represented in the exhibit -- though not all infected -- have been all been affected by the disease in some way.

While the topic of AIDS is often equated instantly with death, the exhibit focuses on life. With styles ranging from classical to abstract, the exhibit exudes a feeling of uneasiness that is typical of this topic. If art is meant to mimic life, then this exhibit as a whole is successful.

Of the 20 artists represented in A Need To Respond only five will receive awards for their work, but the community will be equally awarded with the experience of sharing the intense feelings that are present in this display.

Some of the works are straight-forward statements about the AIDS and HIV, while others simply show images that even those not directly affected by disease can understand. Many different media are represented in the exhibit as the gallery takes on a hot aura, with many of the works highlighted in reds and oranges.

Leave your opinions about the disease at home and take in the feelings that are projected from the works.

If the focus of the display is awareness, then a piece entitled "Outrage" seems to say it all. This is a multi-media collage of old crumpled newspaper clippings smeared in red paint. The newspaper stories report a rare disease that affected homosexual men as early as 1953. The statement of the work ss made clear by the word "outrage" which appears in several places in the collage.

For those who do not find this medium asthetically appealing, there is the oil on canvas work of V. Jadali. Jadali's "Live Performance" projects fear, frustration and anger in a controlled manner. Jandali's statement about the everyday feelings that are part the of lives of those affected by AIDS as well as those who are not is strong, though indirect. The artist's subtle style is successful in relating a gamut of emotions in a woman's face while death lurk's behind her in the doorway.

With a topic as highly controversial as AIDS, it is difficult to separate opinion from interpretation of AIDS related art. However, Jadali brings the feelings linked to the disease into a more universal scope.

The exhibit will undoubtedly strike a nerve in those who view the disease with political and moral presuppositions. Some of the pieces use graphic sexual imagery that may make some feel uncomfortable.

One piece that may seem particularly disturbing is "Condom Nation" which is an American Flag with a condoms representing each of the fifty stars.

Those who want to separate themselves from the disease will not enjoy this display because the universality of the emotions in the exhibit make strong connections to some of the artists and to the disease itself.

The exhibition is, though, a prime opportunity for those affected by the disease to share in the feelings of others like themselves. And those who have been fortunate enough not to feel the direct effects of the disease will also enjoy this chance to become more familiar with feelings about the disease. Either way, the exhibit may not make you smile, but it will most certainly make you think.

A NEED TO RESPOND through July 31 at the Watchung Arts Center, 18 Stirling Rd., Watchung. Hours 1-4 p.m. Sundays and Weekdays. Free Admission. (908) 753-0190.

Natasha's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) - Don't let someone impose upon you in the name of friendship. Try not to force issues with higher-ups. Impatience could sometimes be a problem. Home matters go well. This weekend, accent objectivity and try not to be temperamental.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) - Some you deal with right now are polite but insincere. The person who understands you best is a partner. Be careful not to give unsolicited advice this week. Much of what you do this week is of a behind-the-scenes nature. Travel is favored this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) - Though it is a productive week for you on the job, agreements with others about financial concerns are difficult to achieve now. Avert quarrels if you can. Tension could arise with a friend over a money matter. This weekend, you may be inviting others to a social gathering.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) - Others aren't in the mood to compromise where business is concerned this week. A partnership matter may bewilder you. Romantic introductions come for those eligible. Take the lead in making things happen in your career. Recreational pursuits are favored for the weekend.

LEO - (July 23 to August 22) - Some matters concerning work are under a cloud this week. You may have diffulty getting along with a coworker. You will make progress, however, on the domestic scene. A new job assignment comes to you later in the week and catches you by surprise.

VIRGO - (August 23 to September 22) - Try not to waste your time this week with superficial types. You will be making an important investment decision. Try not to argue with close ties over the use of joint assets. Do something different for entertainment this weekend.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) - A career matter is brought to a successful conclusion. Old grievances could resurface to upset domestic harmony. Do your best to avoid arguments this week. Changes occur at home over the weekend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) - You will take a definite stand this week, but others may be evasive. Don't believe everything you hear. Try unto to be abrupt with a work colleague. Maintain cordial relations with others. Couples may have an unusual outing this weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) - You will need care in financial dealings with others. You need to watch that you don't overspend this week. Safeguard assets. Fortunately, a new source of income could arise later in the week. You are in the mood for adventure, sports and exercise this weekend.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) - Group activities are favored this week. You or a partner may be to sensitive. Try unto to get unduly upset. Getting this done around the house is one of your priorities this weekend. Later, you will be in the mood for relaxing pursuits.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) - It is best to do things yourself if you want them done to your satisfaction. Work should go well, but something could anger you later in the week. Watch your temper. You are quick to express your views, which is all right, as long as you don't have your feet out in the aisle.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) - Try to avoid friction with a friend over a money matter. You will want to take advantage of local sales, but you tend to buy on impulse this week. You will be making some new friends over the weekend. Be sure to accept social invitations.

MAGIC MAN
This 62 year old, attractive, separated but available, JWM is a self-employed professional in search of a petite, sexy lady who is MUCH younger than I am for a long term relationship. I Am a non-smoker, very light social drinker, with multiple interests ranging from modern novels to fast cars to Vegas. I raised two girls who are married and have their own lives. I miss having youngsters (not adult children) around the house, so if you have kids, thats a plus. Hopefully, you are a woman who can make decisions, understands the pressures of business, is impulsive, tender, has a good sense of humor, can even laugh at herself, and is willing to do something at the drop of a hat. And hopefully, you are a woman who needs both to give and receive lots of affection. If you can be introspective and thoughtful, if you like to roughhouse one minute and cuddle the next, if you aren't afraid of meaningful emotion or commitment, and if you are willing to try to work out your hangups (we all have them), give me a call. Please respond to ext. 4471

NEW TO NEW JERSEY
My life so far has been interesting. I've been married. Divorced. I've lived all over the country. I'm 50, a white male, very down to earth, 5'8, 155 lbs. affectionate, warm, caring, loving, with green eyes, black hair, mustache, dark complexion. I'm funny, romantic, faithful, a one-woman man, sincere, honest, not superficial, not pretentious or materialistic. I prefer natural things, cuddling, gardening, dogs, house plants, the outdoors, parks, farms, long walks on the beach, or the beauty of the woods. I'm an artist, I like crafts, exploring flea markets, old movies, all animals, laughter, good conversation, friends, backyard barbecues, books, museums, dancing, dining out, or just eating pizza at home. I would like to share a pie with a woman who enjoys the simple things of life, like quiet cozy evenings. A woman who's sensitive, affectionate, warm and loving, with a good sense of humor and who's a bit unconventional. I would like to meet a down to earth real person with old fashioned traditional values, 35-48 (please not too overweight) for friendship, snuggling, and possible long-term monogamous relationship. Please call Ext. 4513

NEW TO SOMERSET COUNTY
44, divorced white female, healthcare professional, busy working on my degree at a weekend college, finally has the summer off. Haven't had a chance to make new friends. I'd like to get back to what I enjoy, natural living, outdoors activities like biking, hiking, long walks, rides in the country and exploring, all types of music from Reggae to Blue Grass, getting into shape, but most importantly good and funny conversations and friendship. I have an adventurous nature and I enjoy [illegible], sharing and having fun and taking risks. I just returned from a white water rafting trip in WV with my kids. What a blast although I was a little scared). I appreciate the absurdities that life can offer and can laugh at myself (why else would I write this personal). I'd love to meet a patient man with similar interests who wants to explore (the Bridges of Madison County) with me this summer. Please respond to ext. 4479

Family fiesta

Young and old love Tijauna Joe's in North Plainfield

By MICKI PULSINELLI
Culinary Correspondent

AUGUSTO F. MENEZES/WEEKENDPLUS

Ilene Beetner and Jeff Strauss enjoy lunch in a peaceful setting at Tijuana Joe's restaurant in North Plainfield.

When I decided to dine at Tijuana Joe's, I asked my youngest daughter to come with us. She had worked one summer at a Mexican restaurant in Colorado, and obviously knows more about Mexican food than I do. Somehow, our oldest daughter found out, so we invited her, too.

Now mind you, these are not young children I'm talking about (the oldest has her won apartment, and the youngest is in college). But Tijuana Joe's has a reputation for catering to families and this certainly was a family affair.

Well, as it turned out, we had a good time — even more so now that they are older and need not be disciplined. In fact, at their age, they both know more than us! Isn't it amazing that the older you get the smarter your children become? But that's another story for another time.

There are two separate dining rooms, smoking and non-smoking. Both were filling up fast the Friday night we were there. In the center of our dining room was a horse-drawn cart with live trees and plants shooting up to the sky light above. The adobe walls were covered with hand-painted murals of Mexico

There were booths in the front and back of the room, and tables in between and in the middle. We sat at a large side table with one huge oversized chair. The girls insisted that I sit there.

For appetizers, the four of shared a half portion of Buffalo wings (10 for $4.50) and fried potato skins ($4.95). The wings were very hot, so most of them were eaten by my husband and one daughter.

The potato skins were half potatoes, served with sour cream and melted cheese dip. But at TJ's the cheese dip is on the side for you to apply. That way the cheese doesn't dry out the potato.

We each ordered a different entree. One daughter had the Mexican, or Chorizo pizza ($5.95). This was a flour tortilla covered with ranchero sauce, spicy beef (ordered without this), two cheeses, mushrooms, tomatoes, onions, black olives and jalapeno peppers. She said it was good, but not as good as the one she made in Colorado (naturally).

Our other daughter had the un poco de todo (a little of each) for $8.95. This was a sample platter of nachos with beef, chili, melted cheese, onions and diced tomatoes; bacon quesadilla; and one each chicken and beef Mexiskins (crisp fried potato skins with seasoned chicken or taco meat and cheese, jalapenos and served with sour cream).

My husband ordered the enchilada banderas ($9.75), one beef, chicken and cheese enchilada, with onions and chili, and topped with melted Jack cheese and red sauce. He had this before, so he knew what he was ordering.

I had the El Caramba (sauteed shrimp) for $10.95. This consisted of a large flour tortilla filled with shrimp sauteed in garlic butter, cheddar cheese, onions and diced tomatoes. The tortilla is folded, baked, and served in a casserole with Mexican rice, refried beans and sour cream.

All four entrees were generous portions. Each of us tasted a little of each other's meal. The El Caramba received the highest marks — in fact, I shared most of it with one daughter.

For dessert we ordered two mud pies ($3.55). This is mocha almond and vanilla ice cream in a chocolate cookie topped with hot chocolate and whipped cream. Our daughters shared one, and my husband had the other.

This evening was not planned as a family outing, even though it turned out to be one. But if it were, I couldn't have picked a nicer place.

Wine with Reason
Marilyn Cormack

I have a friend, Kelly, who frequents my house and therefore puts up with a lot from me. She is always subjected to tasting whatever I have found interesting, any new wine I want to review. This wouldn't be bad, except she is a true chardonnay lover. I don't mean that she drinks chards because it's popular, or because she hasn't been exposed to anything else. (Impossible if you hang out with me!) She is just an honest, full blown chardonnary lover. So, last week, I went on a chard binge. I tried a whole bunch and found some that I wanted to let you know about. Did I invite Kelly over? No. But, Kelly, this one is for you.

Byron Santa Barbara Chardonnay 1991 — Aromas of pear, spice, butter and oak all follow through in the flavor. Intense and rich in the mouth, very big and mouth filling. Apple, honey and vanilla flavors remain long after you've swallowed. Enough acidity for a clean finish.

Calera Central Coast Chardonnay 1991 — This winery really knows how to use oak. Deep pear and citrus flavors are heavily veiled in oak toast and butter. This wine simply coates every inch of your mouth. So much complexity here, you'd swear this was a white wine trying to be a red. Good aging potential.

Benzinger Sonoma County Chardonnay 1991 — Wonderful varietal nose, opens to apples and citrus with a hint of oak. In mouth, the apple gives way to pear and melon with the toast and butter playing up the end. Totally clean finish. Have lots of this on hand. Always.

Chateau St. Jean Sonoma Chardonnay 1991 — A good "fruit first" wine. Lively and citrusy, showing the green apple, grapefruit flavors that chards are famous for having. Loads of spice, clove, and nutmeg round out the end. The aftertaste is crisp and lean.

Creston Paso Robles 1991 — Apple and vanilla on the front, spices and grapefruit in the middle, with just a touch of toast and butter on the end. A perfect everyday wine that has enough presence to keep even a hard nose happy.

None of these wines should be over $18.00. In fact, most should be very reasonably priced. Chill only slightly for a hot weather treat. Enjoy!

SUMMER DINING

FIRST PLACE

COLONIAL FARMS

Franklin Township

(908) 873-3990

Colonial Farms Restaurant occupies a 200-year old building, with all the appropriate colonial charm, including a fireplace in the grill room and candlelight on the smoke-free enclosed porches. Eric Holt and his management team have recently expanded their menu. With old favorites still featured, they have added many new items with an emphasis on creating an atmosphere of casual family dining to blend with Colonial Farms Rustic Charm. Always known for its prime rib, seafood and steaks the new menu's additions of pastas, veal, chicken and daily specials offer appealing alternatives for the entire family. In addition to the expanded menu and family pricing Colonial Farms has added two popular segments to it's menu. They offer and Early Bird Special: weekday dinners from 4:30-6 pm which include soup, dessert and beverage and childrens menu with meals for $1.95. The large wine list also reflects the menu pricing with most selections $12-$16 per bottle.

In addition to it's regular dinner menu Colonial Farms has continued to expand it's grille menu which features ½ lb. burgers, large salads, several types of grilled chicken sandwiches and a large selection of appetizers and snacks. The Grille Room's popularity has according to Mr. Hold been the most exciting part of Colonial Farms growth and continues to develop its own loyal regulars. The success of The Grille Room was very influential in the changes to it's other menus said Mr. Hold pointing out that many guests select from both menus when eating in The Grille Room. Located at 1745 Amwell Road in Somerset, near the Franklin Township Municipal Complex, Colonial Farms Restaurant specializes in weddings, parties and banquets, seating up to 180. It accepts most major credit cards. Reservations are welcome by calling 873-3990.

SAPPORO

Sapporo offers hibachi tables, traditional dining, a sushi bar and a liquor bar as well. Although only open for a few months, patrons at the sushi bar seemed to know each other and the chef Michael Suzuki.

Kimono-clad waitresses state that it is quite common at a sushi bar for customers to gain confidence in their chef and have him choose their food. Some of the them don't even look at the menu.

The interior is light, airy and spotless. The main dining room has unpainted wood molding, including shozi paper windows, and black tables with wood trim. The sushi bar is located in the same room, but separated by a waist wood slat partition., Lighting is provided by round paper laterns, hanging from the ceiling, track lights and small wall lamps. Wood dividers filled with stones and plants do a nice job of separating the large room into smaller sections.

Everything is understated and so tastefully done. It is a relaxed and comfortable atmosphere.

The menu at Sapporo includes 25 appetizers (42.00 to $8.00). 2 soups ($1.50) and 4 salads ($1.50 to $6.50). Appetizers include steam Japanese green soybean ($2.00), fresh raw tuna fish slices (tuna sashimi for $8.00), pork dumplings ($4.00), fried soft shell crab, oysters and shrimp ($5.50). If you haven't tried sushi or shashimi yet, this is a good place to start.

In addition to the green salad, there are seaweed ($4.00), octopus and cucumber in a sweet sour sauce and a crabstick and cucumber in the sweet sour sauce ($6.50).

For entrees they have 7 tempura dishes (batter dipped, deep fried pieces of meat, vegetables and fish) for $10.00 to $20.95. There are also 9 teriyaki choices ($11.00 to $20.95) including steak, roaster breasts, fish, scallops, duck, shrimp and lobster. The average price of the tempura and teriyaki dishes were $12.00 to $15.00. The $20.95 items were lobster dishes.

Another section of the menu, called Donburi & Nabemono (6 selections from $10.50 to $38.50 for a thinly sliced New York strip steak and which is a combinations of Japanese noodles in broth with fish or chicken and vegetables. This section also included broiled smoked eel with eel sauce ($14.50) and a bouillabaisse seafood with Oriental vegetables ($15.50).

Most of the items come with a salad, soup, rice and that delicious green tea served in Japanese restaurants.

Sapporo is an attractive Japanese restaurant serving refreshingly light and flavorful food. Choices range from the familiar to the not-so-familiar Japanese entrees. If you're in the mood to experience new flavors or replenish old taste, Sapporo is the place to go.

Invite The Right Guests!

You've decided to have a party, and want to invite only your closest friends. Rather than taking time to write out invitations, you place an ad in the paper that reads "I'm having a party Friday night, and you're invited. Please come!" Your name and address appear at the bottom of the ad.

You make big plans, decorate, and get dressed up. At the appointed hour Friday night, you are surprised to have over fifty total strangers show up at your door — ready to party. What happened?

First, although you knew exactly who you wanted to invite, you took a short cut. You ran a "generic" ad hoping to attract the attention of your friends. Instead, you got the attention of "John Q. Public". Second, you expended effort getting ready for a party that wasn't appreciated by the crowd you attracted.

When selling your home, a similar situation may occur if you try to sell without representation by an agent. By employing an agent to look after your best interests, your home is likely to be shown more often, and to qualified buyers.

Selling without an agent, you may attract prospects to your home who have no business being there. They may lack the financial resources to buy your home, and may be bargain hunters or window shoppers.

When selling your home, it is important to attract only the "right" prospects. An agent does this by targeting specific buying groups, those individuals most likely to purchase a home like yours.

Potential buyers are screened for their ability to make a purchase and their motivation to do so. Only qualified buyers with appointments — are shown your home. This eliminates inconvenience and reduces the number of showings before a buyer is located.

When selling your home, be certain that an agent is representing you. You are more likely to receive the best possible price, in the shortest time, and with the least inconvenience to you and your family. •••••

Whether you plan to buy, sell, invest or just need information, call us anytime at (908) 658-3600 or stop in at #3 Route 206 Bedminster.

Windermere: Good foundation

Builders' career more than 20 years

WARREN — Windermere, Ferrugia Associates' new 75-home community here, didn't begin when the builders first broke ground on the development.

The quality and beauty inherent in the associates' latest project traces its foundations back over the builders' more than 20-year history. Windermere is the culmination of years of striving for perfection in home building.

That is evident in the classic design and quality construction materials that go into a home built at Windermere. In fact, it is so evident that only 25 homes are left for sale.

Prices begin at $329,900. Models offer four bedrooms and two and a half or three and a half baths. Some areas feature cathedral and vaulted ceilings.

A grand two-story entry foyer leads to the ground floor. Spacious family rooms are standard, and fireplaces are optional in the rooms. There are gracious living rooms, and separate formal dining rooms.

One of the many highlights of these homes are the luxuriously appointed master bedroom suites. Each suite includes an opulent master bath featuring a six-foot soaking tub with tile platform surround, separate shower with frosted glass enclosure, ceramic tile floors and lighted walk-in closets with ventilated shelving.

Kitchens are a gourmet dream with raised panel oak cabinetry, a choice of coordinated laminate counter tops, self-cleaning electric oven/range with microwave, deluxe dishwasher, stainless steel sink with single lever faucet, and no-wax vinyl flooring. Breakfast nooks are bright and sunny. Deluxe stained wood hand rails and railings are present throughout. There is also a separate laundry room.

The exteriors and construction also reflect Feruggia Associate's attention to beauty, detail and quality. Anderson double hung insulated windows with grilles are standard. So are colonial raised-panel painted interior doors, luxurious wall to wall carpeting, abundant closets with ventilated shelving and electric door chimes.

All homes are pre-wired for cable and telephone, and feature spacious full basements. There are also spacious wood decks.

Lawns are sodded and equipped with sprinkler systems for front and side lawns. Attractive landscaping shrubs adorn the front entry, and appealing shade trees are present. Two-car garages are attached, and paved drives feature Belgium Block curbs. Walkways are concrete.

Seamless aluminum gutters and leaders, insulated metal exterior front double doors, dimensional roofs, maintenance

Are you looking for something new?

Twin Pointe is one of many area new homes developments

The sounds of new homes going up in Central New Jersey can be heard in Raritan Township at The Fallone Organization's Twin Pointe community.

With the community selling rapidly, several homes under construction and the model recently competed, the activity at Twin Pointe has been frenzied. The reason Twin Pointe has been such a success is due to the community's extraordinary value, superb home designs, convenient location and despite the usually slow summer months, sales at Twin Pointe are expected to remain brisk.

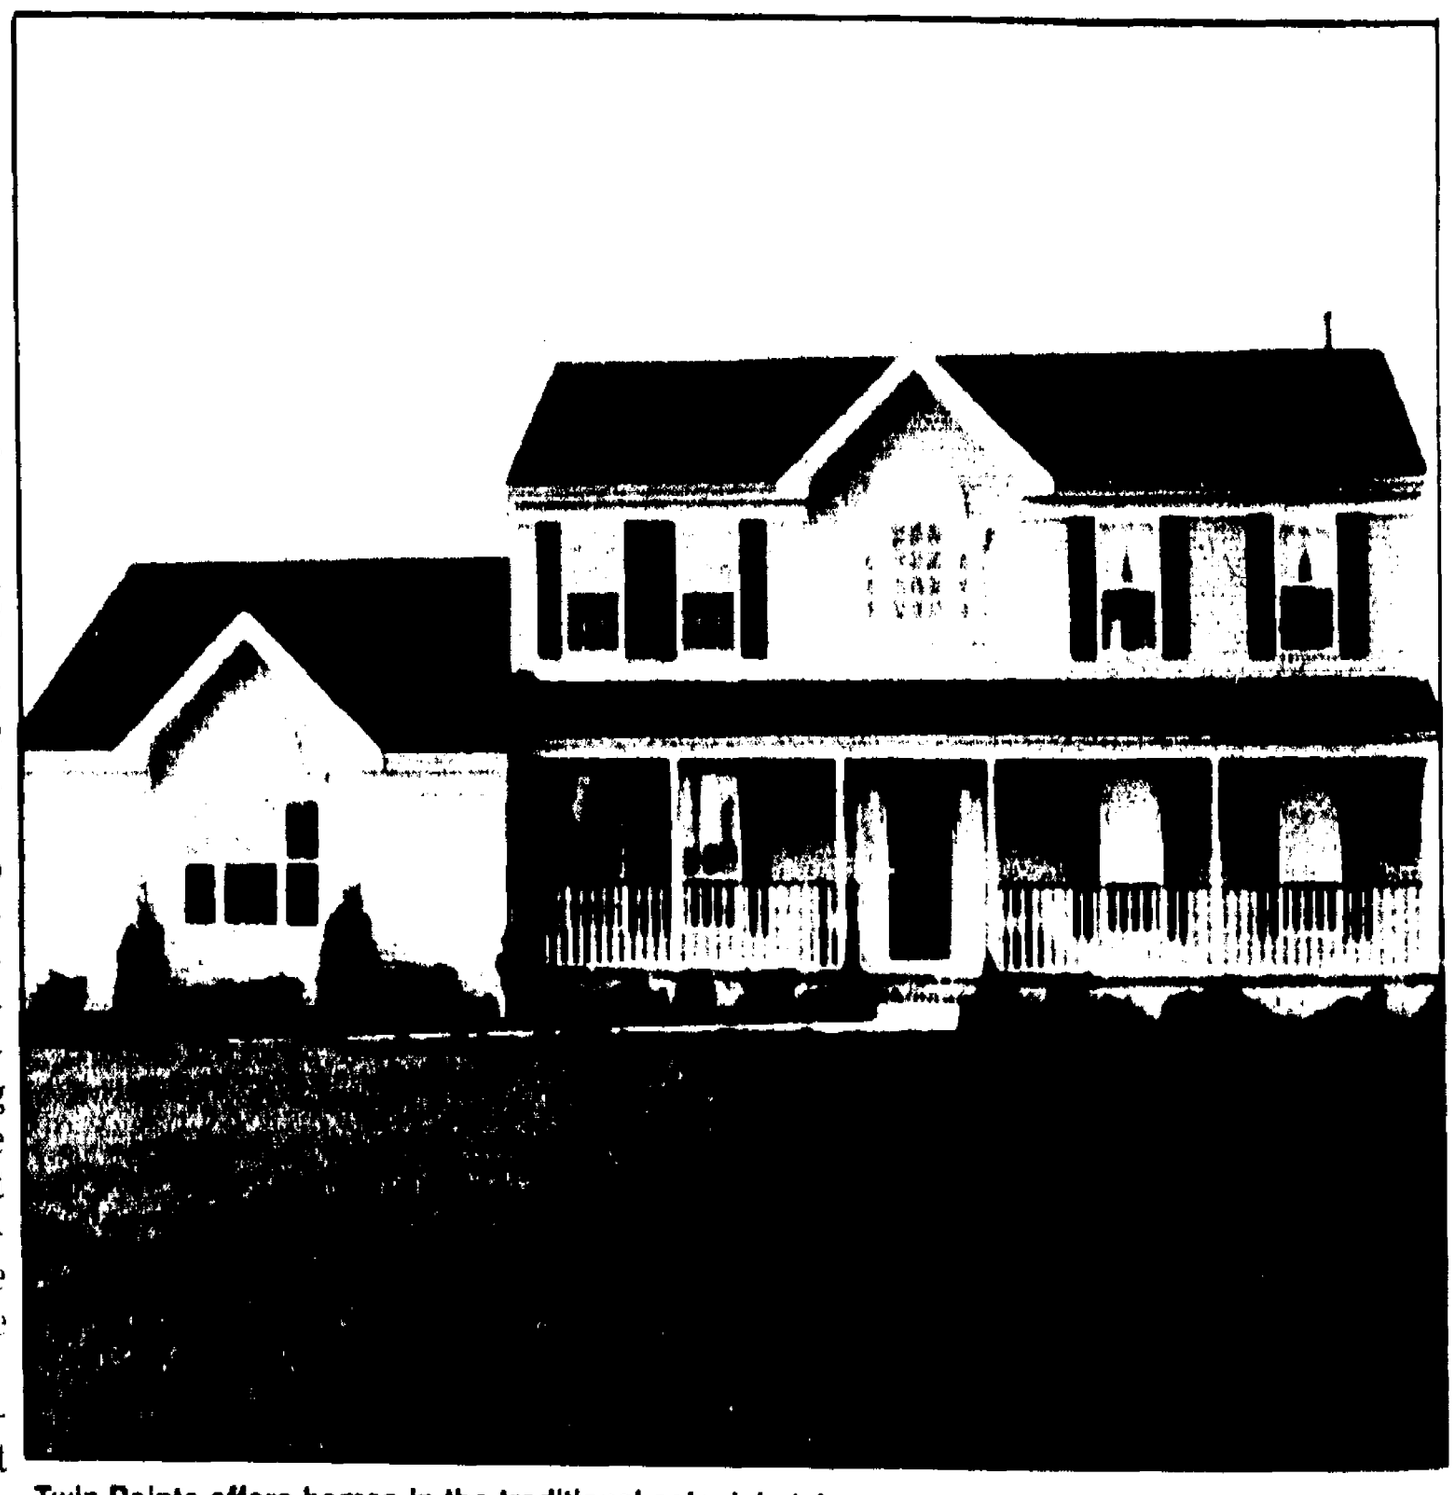

Priced from $236,900, the homes at Twin Pointe have been designed to offer growing families exactly the type of lifestyle they're looking for today.

Not only does each four-bedroom home contain a long list of luxurious amenities, but a tot lot and numerous recreational features are planned for Twin Pointe. The area's outstanding school system, convenience to major commuting highways and close proximity to the charming towns of Flemington, Clinton and New Hope make Twin Pointe the ideal family community.

"We designed Twin Pointe to be the ultimate, small neighborhood community for growing families," said Alan Fallone, vice president of The Fallone Organization. "Everything about Twin Pointe from the price, on-site recreation and tot lot to the location has been meticulously planned to ensure that families are offered the perfect '90's lifestyle."

Currently, the preconstruction phase is almost sold out

(Please turn to page 9)

Twin Pointe offers homes in the traditional colonial style.

A 21-year veteran of the real estate industry, she has been the top Century 21 sales associate in the state for the past two years. She resides in Somerset, and had received the company's Centurion award for outstanding sales performance.

* * *

Kurt Schoenberg, a sales associate with the Basking Ridge office of Welchert, Realtors, has tied for the office's top producer award for the most listings in May.

A lifelong resident of Basking Ridge, Mr. Schoenberg has listed and sold real estate for one year.

Frank J. Mandato of New Providence, has joined Burgdorff, Realtors as a sales associate in the company's Stirling office.

Mr. Mandato formerly worked for 30 years in the fragrance and packaging industry, rising to the level of vice-president of a major firm and dealing extensively with business matters in Europe and the Far East. He is a graduate of Rider College, and holds a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Burgdorff, Realtors' Stirling office, located at 1071 Valley Road, won the company's Office Referral Award for April.

Sales associate Ida Hoskins contributed to the office's success. Of the company's 34 branches, the Stirling office had the highest number of referrals since 1985, including at the silver level. She has resided in Millington for 13 years.

Grand marshals

John and Morgan McLachlan, of the McLachlan Inc. real estate agency in Somerville, display the marshals' hats they wore while serving as marshals at the recent U.S. Open Golf Tournament at Baltusrol in Springfield.

Joan Deck of Coldwell Banker Schlott's Bedminster/Bridgewater office has been named Associate of the Month for her sales performance during May. She also earned the position in January and March.

Ms. Deck's January award ranked her first in sales associates throughout the country, as well as her own office, according to Ben Lindeman, manager of the office. She is well within the top 2 percent of the 38,000 company agents in the state, and has been a consistent member of the New Jersey Association of Realtors' Million Dollar Sales Club. She reached the club's prestigious Gold Level in 1991.

A resident of Somerset County for more than 30 years, Ms. Deck has been a real estate professional for 19 years. She attended the company's International Business Conference in San Antonio, Texas earlier this year, where she was honored as a member of the International President's Circle. That honor is bestowed on less than 5 percent of the company's 50,000 agents in the continental United States, Hawaii and Canada.

Jean Jenkins, a sales associate in the Bedminster office of Welchert, Realtors, has earned the office's award as top producer for A p ril.

A real estate professional for 12 years, Ms. Jenkins is a member of the Somerset, Hunterdon and Morris counties Boards of Realtors. She has earned membership in the company's prestigious President's Club, the New Jersey Association of Realtors' Million Dollar Club at the Silver Level, and the company's Million Dollar Sales and Marketed Clubs.

She is a longtime resident of Bridgewater.

Heather O'Donnell, a licensed real estate professional for four years, has earned the top producer award for Welchert, Realtor's Bedminster office during May.

Ms. O'Donnell has the most listings in the office for the month. She specializes in listing and selling homes and condominiums in Somerset County. A member of the Somerset and Hunterdon counties Boards of Realtors, she qualified for the state Million Dollar Sales Club in 1992. She is a three-year resident of Basking Ridge.

Carol Garth and Jane DiGian, co-chairwomen of the Somerset County Board of Realtors' food drive presents Marie Scannell, Food Bank Network director, with a check from the drive. The board's community service committee conducted the food drive June 5 at eight local grocery stores for the benefit of the Food Bank Network of Somerset County. With public support, and the cooperation of Kings, ShopRite, Grand Union, A&P, and Foodtown, the food drive garnered 6,253 pounds of food and $368,000. Participating in the drive were Ms. DiGian, Ms. Garth, Marilyn Rutishauser, Phyullis Staskewicz, Nina Orshan, Terry Prokp, Roger Graubard, and 71 realtors from Burgdorff, Welchert, Coldwell Banker/Schlott, Landmark, Re/Max and Patricia Ryan Assoc.

Windermere's builders have good foundations

-free vinyl siding, and brass exterior light fixtures ensure years of beauty, security and comfort.

Heat is two-zone warm air gas, and there is two-zone central air conditioning. Insulation is high-quality fiberglass, and 50-gallon water heaters are gas-fired.

With an eye to safety, all homes are equipped with electronic smoke detectors with battery back-ups. There is also a 10-year homeowners' warranty.

The wide renown of Ferruggia Associates began with a deep respect for fine homes. The Ferruggia name was passed from buyer to buyer, until those seeking the peak in luxurious comfort and magnificent style would hear the name mentioned again and again.

Ferruggia Associates combine skills the brothers learned from their father, a lifetime builder, with management techniques they developed as successful professionals in the business world. Ferruggia Associates retain on staff individuals who represent the finest ability in their respective trades.

Now, more than 20 years since the Ferruggias first demonstrated their exceptional ability, Windermere is the culmination of all they've learned during continued striving for perfection.

Windermere is located off Apple Tree Road in Warren. To visit the community, or for more information, call Evan Squire of Century 21 Worden & Green at 874-4700.

HOMEQUITY SM RELOCATION CENTERS

Be sure your home passes inspection

By TERRY LAVIN KUBOSKI
CORRESPONDENT

Remember the Tom Hanks-Shelley Long comedy, The Money Pit, in which they bought the House from Hell?

Surely, these two never hired a home inspection team to assess the property before their purchase.

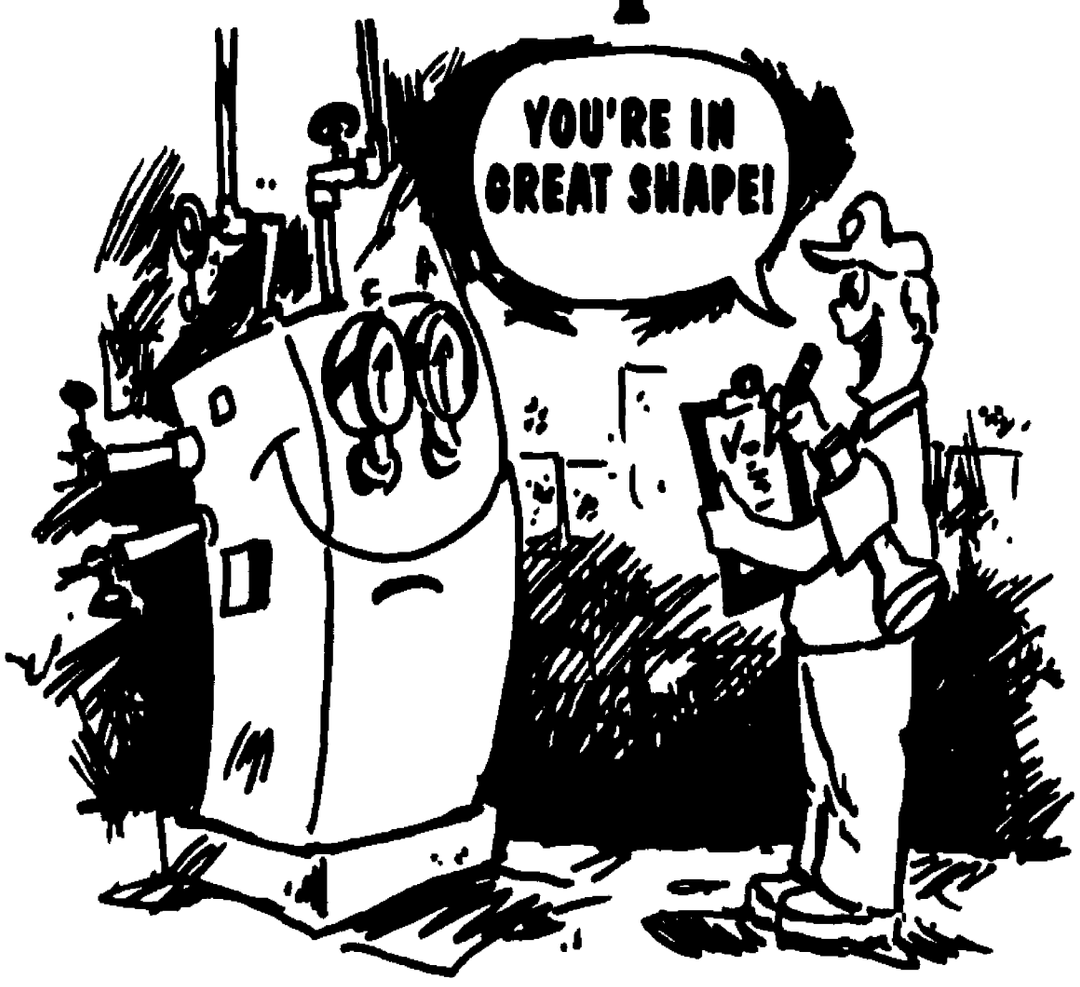

Fortunately, potential Central New Jersey homebuyers have an array of home inspection firms to select from, to avoid the Money Pit couple's plight.

A home inspection is what the name implies. Professionals visit a site and evaluate the home's critical components: heating, plumbing, air conditioning, electricity, roofing, structure, and basement. Evaluating septic systems, insect infestation, and radon can be extra.

Clients are generally potential buyers and investors, although real estate agents, bankers, attorneys, or architects may hire the home inspectors on their client's behalf. While most home inspections involve resale homes, some people do have their new construction evaluated for quality of workmanship and potential future problems.

Yet a new trend is emerging. Sellers are obtaining home inspections prior to listing their homes, so they can either make appropriate repairs or demonstrate that their home has passed an inspection.

The home inspection's goal is to identify any current or potential problems, so that the buyer can make intelligent decisions about Qurchasing the property or negotiating the price. In short, the objective is to avoid any surprises.

In hiring a home inspector, George Risha, P.E., of Criterium Risha Engiand with only 27 homes planned, potential homebuyers should visit Twin Pointe soon too ensure the home of their family's dreams is not already spoken for. The Fallone's 90-day construction schedule also ensures that homebuyers who purchase this weekend will be able to move into their new home before the September school year begins.

Sales center hours are weekends, noon-5 p.m., weekdays from 9 a.m.- 4 p.m. To visit Twin Pointe, from the Somerville circle, go 12 miles south on Route 202. Turn left at Somerset Trust Bank and go one mile to Barley Sheaf Road. Turn right and go another mile to Montgomery Drive. Turn right onto Montgomery and proceed to the end.

Chapel Hill in Metuchen is a six-unit development offered by prominent builder Jack Morris. The homes are center hall colonials of three and four bedrooms. All homes offer central air conditioning, a family room, country kitchen, two and a half baths, and one- or two-car garages.

A model home is now being constructed. Prices range from $189,900 to $209,900. For more information, call Ruth Terwilliger of Weichert, Realtors, at 906-8200.

Contempo South, a seven-home development in South Plainfield, is another fine project by Batra Construction and Development Corp. The developer will custom build a house if a buyer already has design plans. The builder also offers two different sized bi-level designs, several colonials and a ranch.

The project is in its final phases. Prices start at $155,999. First-time buyers will find the development especially attractive. For more information, call Diane Bender of Weichert, Realtors at 906-8200.

Imaginative architectural designs and a premier country/suburban location are expected to attract trade-up buyers to Sycamore Estates at Warren Township, a new luxury home community.

Prices start at $539,000 for the six-home project. The first home has already sold, and is nearing completion.

"These are very sophisticated designs, charming and yet stately, with a host of elements that lend character to a home," said Susan Powers of Weichert, Realtors. "People who've previewed the model plans have told us, quite frankly, how impressed they are by their unique looks and spatial flow."

Exteriors are done in stucco and brick, or stucco and stone, Ms. Powers said. Extensive trim work is present both inside and outside and each comes with a landscaping package that includes an underground sprinkler system for the front lawn. Also included are two separate, high-efficiency, gas forced-air heating systems, and two central air conditioning systems.

One model is designed with the three-car garage set an at angle from the entrance way, Ms. Powers said. The angle creates "curb appeal, giving the house a sense of importance," she said. The master suite in the same model is set within its own private wing also. The suite features volume ceilings in the bedroom and bath, his and her walk-in closets, and a Jacuzzi bath.

Other highlights of the model include a two-story marble entry foyer, a large sunken

This living can be easy

Village offers maintenance-free ownership

CRANFORD — Is it possible to find the best of both worlds?

Can the security of home ownership be combined with the maintenance-free lifestyle of renting?

At English Village Condominiums, located on three acres of the former Sperry Estate, the answer is a resounding "yes!"

HOUSE TOUR

The condominium estate, situated between Prospect and Casino avenues, offers 27 different floor plans in prices ranging from $91,900 for a one-bedroom unit to $165,500 for a three bedroom unit.

Perhaps the most unusual offering of English Village is the available owner financing. The Graham family, which owned English Village Apartments for 20 years, converted the apartments to condos and offered relatively hassle-free mortgages. Two basic mortgage programs offer rates of 6½ percent, one-year adjustable with 30-year amortization, and 7½ percent fixed balloon, featuring 30-year amortization.

Units vary from one two three bedrooms. Three bedroom units offer two baths. All units feature roomy kitchens, spacious living rooms and bedrooms. Some units offer porches.

Each former apartment unit undergoes varying levels of renovation. Minimal renovations include installation of new windows, painting and cleaning, new switches, plugs and outlets, cleaning and waxing of wood floors, new kitchen floors, kitchen light, hardware, range and refrigerator.

Standard renovation includes upgraded electric to all buildings, new decorator switches and outlets, thermolator vinyl windows and screens, solid oak parquet floors sanded and refinished, and intercoms to front entrance doors. Kitchens get new cabinet hardware, no wax vinyl floor tiles, new dishwashers, refrigerators, ranges, range hoods, microwaves, light fixtures and wallpaper. Baths get new vinyl acrylic tubs and showers, or reglazing of exiting facilities, new tile walls, vinyl ceilings, new vanity, sink, faucets, vinyl floor tiles, marble window sills, new mirrored medicine chests, toilets, light fixtures, and wallpaper.

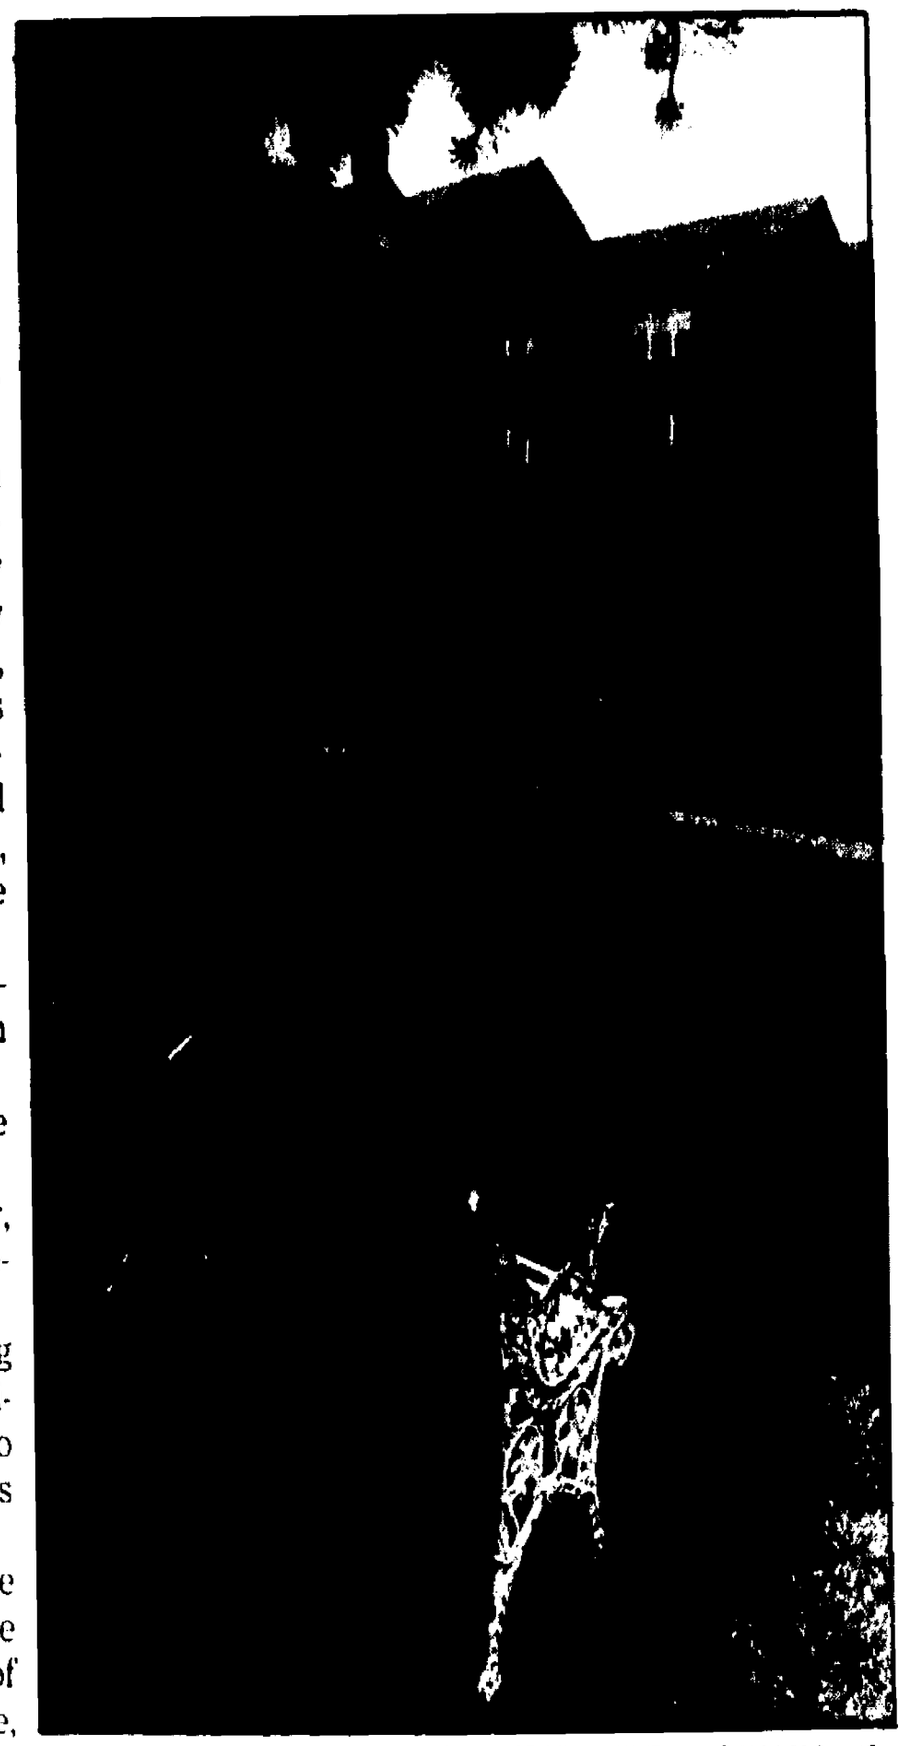

Deluxe renovation include all standard renovation plus re-design of exiting kitchen layouts with all new Euro style cabinetry.

Garages are $65 a month if available and on-site parking is $20 per month.

A maintenance fee includes heat, hot water, trash pickup, master condo insurance and maintenance of all common areas and grounds.

Be sure your home passes inspection

neers, serving Central New Jersey, offered this advice.

"Look for a firm with professional engineers. To qualify for that designation, an individual must have four years of college, along with five years of experience. In addition, that person is bound to the ethical standards of the National Association of Professional Engineers to serve only the client.

"I would also recommend that you ask for a sample of their standard report and a resume," Mr. Risha said. "Make sure the report is not merely a checklist, but a written commentary on the home. You need to be comfortable with the firm's experience and if the company objects to your questions, move on to another organization."

Another industry source suggests asking the home inspection company about their industry affiliations and their policy on letting the client accompany them on the inspection.

"It's a good way to obtain safety and maintenance information about your future home," said the source.

Since the state requires no licensing or minimal educational requirements, consumers are encouraged to "Inspect the inspection company," said Kenneth Austin, chairman of HouseMaster of America, a national company headquartered in Bound Brook. "We require our inspectors to complete the National Institute of Building Inspectors training program and be certified, as well as being recertified annually through exams and on-site evaluations.

"We also consider insurance coverage a very important credential," said Mr. Austin. "Errors and Omissions insurance is like malpractice insurance to cover inspector negligence. Liability insurance protects you should the inspector damage something and worker's compensation insurance covers the inspector for injuries sustained while on the seller's property on your behalf."

Industry-wide, Mr. Risha, who lectures on home inspections at colleges and lending institutions, reported that three issues are gaining momentum in the '90s.

"We see more concern on lead in the water, lead in paint, and electro-magnetic field exposure from high tension wires," he said.

On the environmental side, Mr. Risha also made this recommendation.

"Traditionally, potential buyers inquire about the schools, places of worship, shopping, and commuting. But they need to ask if any of the surrounding land (within a few block radius) is environmentally sensitive. Are there any abandoned dumps or Superfund areas nearby? This is becoming a bigger issue and consumers need to be more aware."

A home ideal for entertaining

Colonial has 3 fireplaces, and wet bar

SCOTCH PLAINS -- Nestled among mature trees and well-kept shrubs on a prestigious property, this colonial home at 1400 Raritan Road offers the finest in family living.

Listing for $490,000 through Re/Max Realty Center, Realtors, the home offers separate rooms that can be used as maid's quarters. Highlighting the home is a lower-level entertainment center.

HOUSE TOUR

With four bedrooms and three and a half baths, this is the perfect home for the growing family. Side by side with the quality brick construction is the interior beauty of hardwood floors, and the luxury of a wine cellar in the finished basement.

Constructed in 1977 as a builder's home, the house features quality construction and materials. The floor plan accents open spaces and a fluid movement from the first level family room, dining room and living room.

On the first level is a 20-by-13 family room with a brick front fireplace and hardwood floors. The living room is a spacious 12-by-21 feet. The formal dining room is 13-by-12 and the kitchen is a grand 25-by-12, offering a dishwasher and garbage disposal among its many amenities. Custom built sliders lead from the first level to a pleasantly appointed patio.

The lower level entertainment center is the perfect spot for either family gatherings or cocktail parties. A wine cellar, built-in wet bar and full kitchen are featured. A terraced exit leads to the back yard.

There is wall-to-wall carpeting in some rooms and hardwood floors throughout the home.

On the second floor, the master bedroom is a generous 17-by-13 feet. Additional bedrooms are 12-by-13, 11-by-15, and 12-by-12.

An addition can be used as a maid's or au pair's quarters, or as a private h[illegible]e. There

How to have a cool summer at home

EDISON — Summer's here and today's savvy homeowners are looking for ways to keep cool while keeping energy costs low.

Here are suggestions on keeping your home cool during these warm weather months from the New Jersey Association of Realtors (NJAR).

Nearly one-fourth of your home summer heat comes in through the windows. You can reduce this amount by shading your windows from direct sunlight.

The most simple solution is to use interior window shades, curtains or blinds, particularly those with a white or reflective backing that won't absorb heat, says the NJAR. Regularly lowering the shades when the sun is directly on the window can reduce heat gain through a window by some 25 percent. Awnings or overhanging eaves (especially on the south side) work well to shelter windows from sunlight. You may prefer eaves because they don't block desired winter sunlight as the winter sun is lower.

Solar shade screens will block out up to 75 percent of the sun's rays without obscuring your vision. Louvered sun screens are also recommended in warm climates.

If the time has come to replace your glass windows, consider Low-E glass which can minimize unwanted heat. Low-E glass also blocks out more than 60 percent of the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays which can damage carpeting and furniture.

"If you prefer not to add to or alter your home's windows, consider planting a tree or shrub that will shade your window," says Gene Azzalina, NJAR president. "Select a fast-growing or mature plant for cost effectiveness. It's a good idea to consult with a local nursery to make certain your choice is practical. This type of natural shading can cut interior heat by 10 to 15 degrees."

Windows are not the only source of heat gain. The walls and roof absorb heat as well. On a hot day, your roof surface may reach 150 degrees Fahrenheit and interior attic temperatures may reach 130 degrees.

Consider installing a radiant barrier, a special type of reinforced foil stapled to rafters or laid over attic insulation. Foil barriers can block about 90 percent of the incoming radiant heat to the attic insulation. Radiant barriers could save 10 percent on your utility bill.

When re-roofing, choose light colored shingles since they absorb less solar heat. Consider light colors when selecting siding or exterior paint colors. Air leaks can result in significant heat gain during the summer months. Look for such unwanted air passages around doors and windows and where electrical, plumbing and gas enter.

Caulk around windows and doors and where piping and wiring run into the home. Add insulation to the attic floor or between the roof rafters. Consult a local insulation specialist to determine the recommended amount of insulation in your area.

Until the outdoor air temperature reaches 85 degrees Fahrenheit, circulating the air inside your home can have a remarkable cooling effect.

"Open doors and windows at sundown and pull in cooler air outside with fans," said Mr. Azzalina, broker/owner of Century 21 Centennial in Elmwood Park. "Open adjacent windows for cross ventilation. Close the house in the morning to retain the cool air, unless it's humid outside. In humid weather, avoid opening the windows at night when the air temperature may be lower, but the moisture content higher."

Use room fans to move air around. Portable fans cost less than 5 cents per hour to operate, ceiling fans a penny or two more. Whole house fans installed in a hallway ceiling or attic, can move 3,000 to 6,000 cubic feet of air per minute, thereby quickly replacing warm indoor air with cooler outdoor air. These fans can eliminate the need for an air conditioner during certain times of the year and, for maximum efficiency, can be wired to automatically turn off when your air conditioner comes on.

While you can't control the heat produced by the sun, you can reduce the amount of heat produced indoors. Cooking, bathing and using appliances all produce heat. Use appliances in the morning and evening hours and avoid heating your stove if possible. A microwave oven not only saves heat, but utility costs as well. A very hot day is a great time to use that outdoor grill.
