Shops can create a 'basket case' Labor Day picnic

By NICOLE A. GAVINO
THE RECORD

The sunshine, a blanket, one of Westfield's several parks, and the ultimate picnic basket are all one needs to enjoy a Labor Day holiday picnic.

There are several shops in Westfield's downtown that can offer such a basket. Among them is Homeward Bounty on North Avenue.

Valerie Korniesz-Shears, part-owner of Homeward Bounty, said many residents like to pick up anything from a thermos full of fresh gazpacho to a full-course dinner. Ms. Korniesz-Shears and her partner, Jan Shears-Angleton are happy to pack a small snack for Labor Day weekend traveling or make up a full-course picnic basket for four.

Ms. Korniesz-Shears put together the ultimate picnic basket, called The Woopie Picnic, which included the following:

- ☑ pate and toasts with cornichons
- ☑ bowtie pasta with sun-dried tomato vinaigrette (with feta, spring peas, and bermuda onion)
- ☑ focaccia sandwich with grilled vegetables, fresh mozzarella, basil and tomatoes
- ☑ artichoke and fustina squares
- ☑ rustic fruit tarts with peaches and plums
- ☑ individual chocolate truffles and mints
- ☑ champagne or late harvest kieseling

The Woopie Picnic Basket also includes utensils, napkins and plates, and can be made for any number of people. The price is $20 per person and does not include the champagne.

Although Homeward Bounty will not be open on Labor Day, Ms. Korniesz-Shears said that it is quite common for people to pick up baskets on Friday or Saturday to have them ready for the weekend. Homeward Bounty is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-7 p.m. and Saturdays, 9 a.m.-6 p.m.

Many Westfielders, however, may be attending a Labor Day party, a barbeque or a picnic with a large group. Shops like The Classic Basket on South Avenue can help. This gourmet shop can offer the perfect hostess gift basket for such an occasion.

Part-owner Maria Menezes said The Barbeque Picnic Basket is the ultimate for a hostess gift for Labor Day picnics. The Barbeque Basket includes the following:

- ☑ cheese sticks
- ☑ tortilla chips and salsa
- ☑ salad dressing
- ☑ mustard and barbeque sauce
- ☑ chocolate chip cookies
- ☑ barbeque utensils and napkins

The Barbeque Basket is $55 and can be delivered anywhere in Westfield and some surrounding towns. Ms. Menezes and her partner Diane Snyder can put together anything from the Barbeque Basket to a wine and cheese ensemble. The Classic Basket is open 10 a.m.-6 p.m., Monday-Saturday.

Other local gourmet shops include Recipes Inc., The Cheese Stop, and Lia's. The Cheese Stop and Lia's are both happy to make up picnic baskets for customers, but the customers must bring in their own baskets.

Whether one spends Labor Day in a local park with a loved one, at the neighborhood bash, or even on the road, everyone needs to eat. Westfield's gourmet shops can help make the food the highlight of the holiday.

Maria Menezes displays some of the goodies that might go into a Labor Day picnic basket at Classic Basket in Westfield.

Kathleen Zepf returns to run Tamaques School

By NICOLE A. GAVINO
THE RECORD

After nine years in retirement, Kathleen Zepf has returned to the Westfield school system as ready and eager as those just starting their careers. Last week Ms. Zepf was at her desk preparing for her work as interim principal at Tamaques School.

"She is very enthusiastic," said Dr. Mark Smith at the last board meeting. "I found her delightful, and I look forward to working with her."

Ms. Zepf had worked in the Westfield schools since 1957, spending 16 years in the classroom and 18 years in administration. Her last eight years were at Tamaques, working four years as assistant principal and four as principal. After 32 years, she decided to take an early retirement in 1984.

"It's an up and down career, with schools closing and such," Ms. Zepf said. "I loved retirement, but it's good to be back."

"It came as a bolt out of thin air," Ms. Zepf said. "But it's going to be nice to be back among the children and my staff."

"I just have very, very fond memories of her," said Susan Jacobson, vice president of the Board of Education, and a former Tamaques student. "I found her to be a warm, wonderful person, and I remember that she was very good with the children."

There will be many among the current staff at Tamaques school who have already worked with Ms. Zepf.

"Of the few whom I have seen that were here before — it's as though we've never been apart," Ms. Zepf said.

However, Ms. Zepf is ready for new faces and new challenges in her return.

"There are quite a few new faces, but they look like very nice eager young gals ready to face their careers," Ms. Zepf said. "Coming back — it's just such a challenge, after so long — can I still do it?"

Ms. Zepf said that it was just this kind of challenge that keeps her excited about her return. The people who know her past work have no doubt that she can handle the job.

The Board of Education hopes to find a permanent replacement by January.

"I'm going to be very busy — I'm sure of that," Ms. Zepf said.

1993 Westfield HS SATs 'quite good,' official says

By NICOLE A. GAVINO
THE RECORD

Westfield High School's Class of 1993's SAT test results "were quite good," said Cas Jakubik of the high school's guidance department.

A total of 277 out of 296 students took the test over the six testing periods throughout the year. The total verbal mean was 462 out of 800 and the math mean was 531 out of 800.

These scores were not significantly changed from last year's scores, with only a four-point difference for both sections. In fact, over the last six years Westfield High School students have been fairly consistent in their results. The lowest and highest verbal means over the last six years show a difference of only 12 points, and the math means show a difference of only 18 points.

Dr. Jakubik said the standard error of measurement for the test reveals that only a difference of 35 points or more is significant.

"People have to keep their feet on the ground when they're looking at this stuff," Dr. Jakubik said.

Although the overall results don't show much change, there are changes in the math section for male and female averages. Over the years there seems to be less of a gap between the means of male and female scores. In 1988 there was a 67-point gap seen in the average of 479 for females to 546 for males. In 1993 the gap was only 28 points with a female average of 516 and a male average of 544.

"I noticed closer scores between male and female math means this year. That's terrific," said Dr. Jakubik. "Maybe we're doing something good," he said.

Although less total students took the test this past year, nearly the same percentage of students from the graduating class took the test. Dr. Jakubik said the more students who take the test the lower the average would probably be.

"Generally, we try to encourage all students to take the test, just to keep all of the options open for them," Dr. Jakubik said. "Sometimes this might bring the averages down but, it doesn't matter because we've made sure the child has all the choices."

These results also do not show any reasons for individual changes that may affect overall scores.

"There are different reasons for each different individual (score) each testing time," Dr. Jakubik said.

Overall, Westfield's 1993 graduates fared well over the national averages with a 38-point margin over the national verbal average of 424 and a 53-point lead over the national math average of 531.

Advisory panel will help find Tamaques School principal

School Superintendent Mark Smith has announced the formation of an advisory committee composed of parent and teacher representatives as well as administrative personnel to aid in the search for a new principal for Tamaques School to replace David M. Tuller.

Mr. Tuller was promoted to director of human resources this summer. Director of human resources redefinition of the existing position, supervisor of personnel and affirmative action officer held by Marie Scian until her retirement this summer. Mr. Tuller had been principal of Tamaques School since 1984.

Kathleen Zepf, former principal of Tamaques School, has been appointed interim principal during the search for a permanent principal.

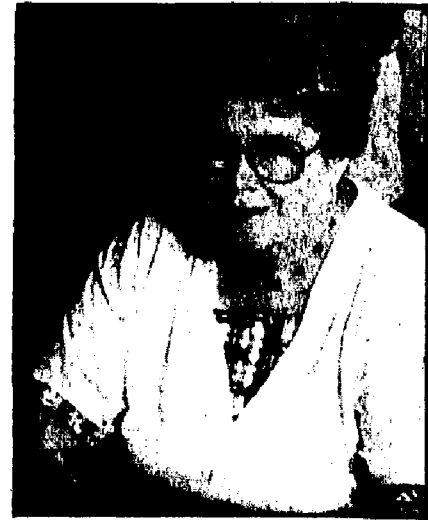

Members of the superintendent's advisory committee include Nancy Biggio, current president of Tamaques School PTO; Ronnie Caravello, 1992-93 Tamaques PTO president; Patricia Hughes, Tamaques School teacher; Kelley Kissiah, Jefferson School principal and coordinating elementary principal; Debbie McCullum, Tamaques School teacher; and David Tuller, director of human resources.

The committee will assist Superintendent Smith in making his decision on a recommendation to the board of education. Committee members will provide input and act in an advisory role to the superintendent.

"This is the fifth time we are using a selection advisory committee involving parents and teachers to aid in the selection of a school principal," Dr. Smith said. "The process has been successful in finding outstanding candidates for the principalships of Washington, Jefferson, Wilson and Roosevelt schools."

The deadline for interested applicants to apply for the position is Sept. 24. Dr. Smith said he expects the committee to complete its work by the end of October, when he will make a recommendation to the Board of Education. The new principal is expected to start his job Jan. 1.

Dr. James Nixon elected Neighborhood Council head

"Revitalization Through Collaboration" is the Westfield Neighborhood Council's mission — a legacy maintained and expanded by Dr. James Nixon.

Dr. Nixon was elected to serve as the seventh president of the Westfield Neighborhood Council's board of trustees. As president, Dr. Nixon will lead the non-profit agency in policy-making, finances, and property management. During his term, the Neighborhood Council will be celebrating its 25th year of providing cultural, educational, and economic opportunities to its neighborhood residents. After-school tutoring, teen activity nights, and summer sports are among the programs offered at the Westfield Neighborhood Council.

"During my tenure, I would like us to develop and implement a diverse menu of services for the community served by the Westfield Neighborhood Council," Dr. Nixon said.

He earned his doctorate degree in chemistry at Cornell University in 1960 and worked at Exxon Research for 26 years, retiring in 1986. He currently serves as deputy director of a research center in the Chemistry Department at City College, The City University of New York.

During his career at Exxon Research, Dr. Nixon was instrumental in establishing the successful Minorities in Engineering program at Union County College, where he continues to sit on the advisory committee.

Dr. Nixon's professional activities include memberships in the American Chemical Society, and the National Action Council for Minorities in Engineering. In addition, he served as past chairperson of the public policy division for the American Society of Engineering Education. He is a past president of the Westfield United Fund and a past chairperson of the United Fund's budget review committee.

Dr. Nixon serves on the boards of the Westfield United Fund and the United Family and Children's Society, an adoption service agency which matches parents with children. He also belongs to Westfield's Concerned African American Parents.

"The Westfield community is very generous," Dr. Nixon said. "The residents give generously not only of their money, but also volunteer many hours to support community projects of all kinds. I will be asking them to give more to the Westfield Neighborhood Council during the coming year, to help us rebuild this agency into a powerful force for good in the community it serves. I am confident that they will again respond to our call."

our call."

Dr. Nixon is married to Melba Nixon, who serves on the Westfield Y board, the recreation commission, and the board of education. The Nixons have three children, all college graduates, and two with advanced degrees. Their children's employers include AT&T, Polaroid, and the California Housing Partnership.

"In growing up in Westfield, our children were beneficiaries of the strong sense of community that exists here, Dr. Nixon said. "They were well served by several community-supported agencies, such as the Westfield Community Center, the Westfield Y, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and the Westfield Band."

A vice president of real estate finance at Kredietbank in Manhattan, Mr. Schwarz is an alumnus of Gettysburg College. He serves as chairman of the Westfield Planning Board, director of the Westfield Downtown Committee, and an elder of the Westfield Presbyterian Church. Schools, staff of more than 300 set for opening day

The traditional enthusiasm and excitement over the beginning of a new school year has permeated the community: parents, students and staff members are looking forward, for a variety of reasons, to the opening of school Wednesday.

In addition to renewing friendships, there is always the potential of meeting and making new friends.

More than 300 returning staff members and more than 4,400 students expected for the 1993-94 school year will find 28 new staff members and a number of facility improvements.

The 28 new staff members, most of whom replace retirees, will attend an orientation program this week. For the first time, new teachers will report to school four days before other staff members to participate in a new mentoring program.

Although students report to school Wednesday, all staff members will report to school Tuesday. School Superintendent Mark C. Smith, who traditionally addresses the faculty the day before school opens for students has given this time over to the Westfield Education Association (WEA). Since negotiating terms for the Board of Education and the NTBA matched a tentative agreement Aug. 19, Michael Seiler, WEA President, will hold a meeting to present terms of the contract to WEA members. After the contract is ratified by the WEA membership, it will be placed for action on the Board of Education agenda at a public meeting.

Recalling a button worn by teachers last year that declared, "Teachers Make the Difference," Dr. Smith said he is pleased a tentative agreement has been reached before the start of the school year.

"Westfield is an outstanding school district because of the caliber of its teachers and students," he said. "The community supports the quest for educational excellence by the faculty and student body. I have every reason to believe that our students will continue in the 1993-1994 academic year to achieve to the best of their abilities under the capable guidance of our teachers."

Teachers returning to classrooms have been busy over the summer months; many took advanced courses and 15 participated in the Westfield Writing Workshop course. Forty-seven teachers worked on refining existing curriculum in the following areas: special education, library/media skills, computers, nursing procedures, second grade enrichment, business, English/social studies, library, mathematics, physical education, science, and the Westfield High School Council.

A new approach to the teaching of mathematics, which began last September, will begin its second year when school opens next week. Developed by an 18-member profession staff committee, it is based on the National Council of Teacher of Mathematics Standards, and focuses on helping students understand math concepts, apply them to real-life problems and develop higher-level thinking skills. Over a period of time, the new program will introduce more complex mathematics at earlier grades.

Social studies and English are combined in two new elective courses at the high school, "Ancient Traditions" and "Medieval Traditions."

During the school year, Westfield High School will conduct a self-evaluation for the two-year evaluation process that will result in a three-day visit by an accreditation team from the Middle Atlantic States Association of Schools and Colleges in 1994.

Also, during this school year, the entire school district will begin documenting evidence for a monitoring review by the State Department of Education in 1994.

A continuing project includes the Technology Committee — a staff and citizen advisory committee appointed last year to look into technology needs in the schools. The 19-member committee presented an interim report in May and is expected to submit a final report to the school board in October.

Summer maintenance and capital improvement projects have been undertaken at each of the school facilities. The largest improvement project is taking place at Washington School where a four-classroom addition is being constructed. It is expected that all outside work will be completed before students return to school next week and that the addition will be completed later in the fall. During construction, two first grade classes will meet in the newly-carpeted school library.

Washington School's library has been temporarily relocated to the school gymnasium. McKinley School's exterior received some major renovations this summer, including a new sidewalk, painting, brick repointing and gutter work. The women's field hockey, softball and physical education field, located next to the high school, is completed and ready for students. A second computer lab is being added to each of the town's two intermediate schools.

Eye Openers

HELP FOR LOW VISION

More than 11 million Americans have some form of serious visual impairment, called low vision. For more than a million of them, the impairment is severe enough that they cannot read a newspaper with ordinary glasses or contact lenses.

In most cases, low vision is due to an age-related impairment like cataracts, glaucoma, macular degeneration or retinal disease. It's when reading becomes difficult that the person with low vision consults with an eye professional.

Though low vision cannot be cured, the optometrist works to maximize remaining vision so that patients can function at their usual tasks. Your eye specialist may prescribe optical magnification systems — hand-held magnifiers, stand magnifiers and video print enlargers — that make small print big enough to read. Special telescopes are available to enable a person with low vision to watch TV or go to theater and sporting events.

Select towns invited to self-insure

By ANNE ALPERT
THE RECORD

Representatives from eight local communities met in Scotch Plains last Tuesday to consider creating a municipal joint insurance fund to reduce insurance costs by sharing property-casualty risks.

Mayor Garland "Bud" Boothe attended along with officials from Scotch Plains, Mountainside, Summit, Watchung, Chatham and Bernardsville.

If enough communities adopt a resolution to form a joint insurance fund (JIF) by the end of September, the towns could unite by next year, according to Dave Grubb, senior partner of PERMA, a company that administers JIFs for many communities in New Jersey.

Mr. Grubb presented figures suggesting Westfield might realize a 25.8-percent savings on insurance premiums — based on the current cost of $822,950 for 1993 and estimating a $210,356 per year savings.

"In the last six years, Municipal Excess Liability Joint Insurance funds (MEL) have grown to over 250 towns and 42 utility authorities," Mr. Grubb said. "Self insurance is the most cost effective way for towns to insure their risks. Administrative costs are lower and self-insurance avoids taxes and other assessments loaded into commercial insurance rates."

Each town will select a full-time commissioner to manage the fund locally and to represent the community at group and MEL levels.

Enough communities to establish a $1.5 million budget must adopt a resolution to join the fund. That could be as few as three towns (Westfield, Scotch Plains, and Summit, for instance) or all eight proposed towns. Once resolutions are passed, charter member towns would each appoint a commissioner, select key professionals, and petition MEL for membership.

Mr. Grubb suggested that Farnwood would realize the greatest savings, 35.8-percent on premiums — based on the current cost of $233,039 for 1993 and estimating a $79,915 savings. They would be followed closely by Mountainside with possible savings of 35.5-percent — based on $234,321 premium and saving $83,250. Scotch Plains might expect 18.6-percent — with current costs of $409,139 and a savings of $67,813. Summit might see 21.4-percent — based on $701,664 in premiums and saving $150,029. Watchung could realize 18.8-percent — based on $130,471 premiums and $24,524 savings. Chatham may free up 14.5-percent with a premium of $242,259 and saving $35,151. Bernardsville might see 12.0-percent on $175,207 saving $21,038.

Child Care's food program is under way

Kids reflect on summer, new school year

By NICOLE A. SAVINO
THE RECORD

As Westfield school opening approaches, youngsters are getting excited about their return and preparing for the best.

Children return to school Wednesday and are now enjoying the last of their summer vacation while thoughts of the week ahead are edging their way in.

After vacations full of travel and fun, Westfield children are excited for reunions with school friends, to meet their new teachers and to get back to their studies.

Several children spent the last few days of summer vacation with their families and friends at the Westfield Memorial Pool. Marcus Thornton and Anthony Pecoraro were found cooling off at the air hockey game. These 11 year-olds are heading into seventh grade at Edison Intermediate School and hoping for some positive change.

"I hope I get all nice teachers," said Anthony. "Most of them are okay, but I hope I get all the best ones."

His friend Marcus was concerned about the amount of work in the year ahead. "I hope that we have less projects," Marcus said. "Last year I had a project for every subject, even music and that was hard."

Younger friends at the pool were more anxious to get back to the school work. "It's going to be fun," said Chrissy Hopper who is going into second grade at Jefferson school. "I am most excited about doing math and reading and writing, too".

Her best friend Colleen Kirk, who is heading into first grade at Tamaques school, agrees with Chrissy. "I love to write and I want to do more reading," Colleen said. "I will write about Disney World, I got to go there just before because I got all 1's last year".

The children agreed that when asked about their summer vacations they would write about going to the swimming pool and going to the shore with their families.

None had done any back to school shopping yet, but they knew they would be going soon. "We have to go soon but we're going to wait until I know what I need for all my classes," Anthony said.

Along with notebooks and pencils, the boys said they must have some new clothes to start the year off. "I want to get some new sports clothes," said Marcus, "team jackets - college and professional only, that's what I have to get". And Anthony agreed, "I know I'm going to get more sports clothes for this year".

As for the girls, lunchboxes were critical. "I'm going to get a new lunchbox - Barbie I hope," Colleen said. "Yeah," said Chrissy, "I already have one, but I want a new Barbie one, too".

Most of all, the children are excited to see all their old school friends and meet new ones. "I have a lot of friends at school and it's going to be the most fun seeing them again," Chrissy said.

28 new professional school staffers join mentors

Twenty-eight staff members new to the Westfield Public Schools came to school this week for a new orientation/mentoring program. The new staff members have been working in the schools and in their classrooms and meeting with their mentor teachers.

As part of a new mentoring program, this is the first time that new teachers are beginning their assignment five days before the entire faculty returns Tuesday. The mentoring program was developed by a ten member staff committee last year.

Hits & misses

Going back to school has deep meaning for entire family — and the community

HIT: That milestone feeling of pride, expectation, promise and progress that fills the family's soul as the clan's former toddler is scrubbed, dressed, photographed, coached and sent off to his or her FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL.

MISS: That millstone feeling and the welling tear that follow the realization that ex-toddler is only 12 years away from generating a $100,000-plus, four-year college tuition bill. Brown bag for you, kid, for 12 years! Naah.

HIT: Parents hear from friends that the high school teacher(s) Johnny and Susie have for this year are well-liked, tough-but-fair and strictly business when it comes to homework and term papers.

MISS: Parents hear from Johnny and Susie that their teachers were transferred kicking and screaming from a gifted and talented pilot program that crashed in a budget bust after last school year.

HIT: Two days into the school year and Johnny is excitedly showing Mom and Dad his math text book and newly issued calculator. Has a corner been turned? Have all those years of prodding, praying and holding up peers' academic successes paid off? Hold your breath...

MISS: Dark clouds of doubt and concern quickly gather as Johnny asks meekly for the car keys, "just to run downtown to see if the book store is open."

HIT: A note from the teacher reports to parents that a new math curriculum is in place this year. It promises to smooth the learning process and implant the theories and practices permanently. It has worked worldwide, but especially in Japan, the note adds.

MISS: For homework, the students will teach this new math to their parents. Parents will be invited to match wits with their kids en masse and in public around Oct. 1 at a parents' night special program.

HIT: The entire family has bought into a nightly regimen for getting homework and reading assignments done. Period.

MISS: The homework plan is under fire. Three TV networks have scheduled weeknight mini-series on Michael Jackson's life and lifestyle. And MTV hasn't been heard from yet.

HIT: Students who make a scholastic new year's resolution to hit personal highs in every subject they are to study.

MISS: Students who, after falling a bit short of their goal, lose heart rather than working harder and seeking help.

Letters to the editor

Classroom is not sending correct sex ed messages

To The Record:

In response to B. Jackson's letter of Aug. 19, to Irene Kalinowski's letter of Aug. 12, the fact that teenage sexual activity has increased is due to the comprehensive, and in many classrooms, graphic sex education to which our children are being exposed.

It's sheer propaganda that we parents don't care. There will always be those parents who don't care, but I beg to differ that the majority do. Please consider a few facts:

One of the main sex education mentalities, Planned Parenthood, in its own 1988 Annual Report, stated that 62 percent of parents talked with their children about sex and contraceptives. This does not count, of course, the many parents who teach their children about chastity, but do not mention contraception.

On the other hand, we have our schools, which are merely giving lip service to abstinence as one of several sexuality options. Studies prove that just giving information and choices doesn't work; giving a strong value-laden abstinence message does. Please write to your state senators and ask them to support the passage of the "Stress Abstinence" Bill No. S113.

Dr. William Archer, immediate past chief of population affairs, Health and Human Services, said that after $2 billion and many years of information and contraceptive-based programs, not one has ever reduced the pregnancy rate even 1 percent.

Isn't B. Jackson's referral to teens with AIDS and 13-year-old pregnant girls proof that the mixed messages and misrepresented facts being taught in schools have resulted in a complete failure? Condoms have an inherent flaw (hole) that is 50 to 500 times the size of the AIDS virus. And yet our teens are being told that the latex condom is the only protection against the transmission of HIV and that they should use one every time they engage in sexual intercourse!

As for Jackson's contention that 50 years ago parents didn't teach their children about sexuality, obviously common sense told them that teaching about sexuality prematurely was detrimental to their health, lives and emotional well-being. The fact of the matter is, the percentage of teenage sexual activity was far below what it is today and that was prior to our sex education era. According to the Journal of Adolescent Health, March, 1991, "The rates of adverse sexual consequences among our teenagers have not fallen and risky sexual behaviors seem to be increasing."

Teens are now the fastest growing risk group for HIV despite the knowledge and resources available to them. Haven't we become desperate enough realize that it is absolutely degrading to teach our children the plumbing and mechanics of sexuality while precluding the fact that feelings and delicate emotions are very much a part of the whole sex package.

The studies cited above certainly do not back B. Jackson's claims about schools being the appropriate place to teach sex education. In addition, the Senate Select Committee to Study the Michigan Model for Comprehensive School Health Education reported that "Michigan's teenagers have been victimized by our slanted and one-sided sex education teaching."

During a study done by Marion H. Howard, MD, at Emory University, 84 percent of 1,000 sexually active girls surveyed in the Emory Clinic wanted more information on how to say no without hurting the other person's feelings. Consider this, teens are more prone to sexually transmitted diseases because their immune system is not as resistant as that of an adult, and the physiological make-up of a female's body makes her more susceptible to STDs.

In conclusion, it is quite evident that it is neither Irene Kalinowski nor many other parents who have been "under a 50-year-old rock," but perhaps those who are obviously reneging their responsibility of teaching and nurturing their children about an issue that is extremely value-sensitive and placing it in the hands of (Big Brother) the state.

Resident challenges Greco

To The Record: (The following is a copy of a letter I sent to Westfield Councilman Greco.)

Dear Councilman Greco:

During the Aug. 10 Town Council meeting, you made a motion to table the ordinance that would limit the times during which garbage could be collected, supposedly because the council had received a pledge from the haulers voluntarily to comply with a 6 a.m. start-time. Shortly thereafter, the ordinance was tabled.

In the subsequent discussion, you promised that if there was even one instance of a garbage pickup before 6 a.m., you would vote in support of the ordinance at the September meeting.

After that August meeting, as I am sure you will recall, there was a discussion between a handful of Westfield residents and three councilmen, yourself included, concerning the proposed ordinance. In the course of this discussion, you screamed at me over and over that you were not a liar and that your integrity meant something. I replied that you could not make a thing true by repeatedly shouting it, no matter how vociferously you shouted.

On August 23, I was awakened from a sound sleep by the sound of my garbage being collected at 5:05 a.m. It is my understanding that this has been happening all over town of late, just as it happened prior to the August council meeting. In any case, I have provided you with the one instance you said you needed.

It is said that actions speak louder than words. At the Sept. 14 and Sept. 28 council meetings, you will have an opportunity to demonstrate by your actions what you could never prove by mere words.

I profoundly hope you will not disappoint me.

Thanks from 'Galore & More'

To The Record:

On behalf of the committee for the Westfield Senior High School fund-raiser, "Galore & More," we offer a very special thanks for the contributions of so many merchant, parents and supporters. The success of our event was dependent on the caring generosity of good and responsive people, and we consider ourselves fortunate for your support.

The fund-raiser was a grand success and enabled us to provide $500 scholarships for four young people, to make contributions to the WHS band and the Hi's Eye student publication, and provide funding for enhancement of Project '79 programs at Westfield Senior High School.

You participated in a very tangible way in demonstrating our belief that learning leads to positive change. The better we can equip our youth today in the foundations of academic excellence, the brighter their tomorrows will be.

Enjoy the feeling that you have done much to help us achieve the goals set for "Galore & More" as we salute everyone who has given in time, funds, services, products and energy. Thank you for taking part in this great event.

Cable backlash hits Congress

To The Record:

"Law Could be Costly for Cable Customers"

Didn't President Bush veto the 1992 Cable Act saying it would NOT reduce rates? When Congress over-rode the veto, his comment was "stay tuned". Thanks Congress.

Speaking of Congress, what did the Honorable Rinaldo do with his "close to" million dollar surplus war chest when he retired? He said he would refund it and use it for "charitable" purposes!

As George would say — "Stay tuned!"

We would like to thank all who contributed to this important cause and hope to have your support in the future.

Bagger devises environmental opportunity zone

By RICHARD H. BAGGER
N.J. ASSEMBLYMAN

At the dawn of this century, President Teddy Roosevelt took to the rostrum of the House of Representatives for the annual message to the nation. Speaking to the Congress — and the American People — the Republican Roosevelt warned, "We are prone to speak of the resources of this country as inexhaustible; this is not so. The conservation of our natural resources and their proper use constitute the fundamental problem which underlies almost every other problem of our national life."

Roosevelt was prophetic. Three generations after his warning, miles of timber and meadow have fallen victim to backhoes and bulldozers for new development while acres of our cities lie vacant, idled as much by our environmental laws as any other cause of urban decline. As we look to a new century, we must ask, isn't there a better way to preserve our natural resources?

Yes, there is. As an assemblyman, I am trying to combine a cleaner environment with a more productive economy; the two are not mutually exclusive.

One bold approach is embodied in legislation I am drafting, the Environmental Opportunity Zone Act, which would take the premise of Urban Enterprise Zones and apply them in the context of environmental law.

In Urban Enterprise Zones, government cuts the tax burden. Lower taxes become an incentive for new business to move to locate there. The zone then begins to attract the critical mass of capital, businesses and jobs necessary to rebuild a city. Urban Enterprise Zones worked well, creating millions of dollars in urban investment and creating thousands of jobs. The same results can be achieved with Environmental Opportunity Zones.

In Environmental Opportunity Zones, government would simplify the regulatory burden businesses face as they clean up old, abandoned, unproductive sites, and thus help transform them into cleaner job-producing — and tax-paying — properties.

Under the Environmental Opportunity Zone Act, Trenton would do something it doesn't do much of these days — make life easier. Using financing from the New Jersey Economic Development Authority (EDA), a revolving loan fund would help pay for the cleanups. Once the cleanups were completed, innocent purchasers would have immunity from liability for past environmental conditions. The cities which would benefit from these zones would do their part as well, reducing tax burdens on the property to offset the cost of cleanup.

But perhaps the most exciting part of the act, would be a pilot program to train the men and women who live within the zones to take part in the cleanups. The New Jersey Institute of Technology and the New Community Corporation of Newark are already seeking approval from the New Jersey Departments of Labor and Environmental Protection and Energy to do just this. Samuel Ehrenhalt, the United States Department of Labor's Regional commissioner, noted recently that New Jersey "gets to be a hassle to operate in. A total of 140,000 manufacturing jobs were lost in the last four years. It is not the usual business cycle. There's no indication that these outfits are coming back."

If we believe that generating jobs by expanding the private sector is a virtue, and if we believe that creating jobs in our cities is one of our highest priorities, then state government must change the way it does business.

Environmental Opportunity Zones would result in greatly expanded cleanup of vacant urban industrial sites, redirection of manufacturing activity into New Jersey's cities as called for by the state plan, new private sector training and job opportunities for city residents, and a broader tax base to support public service and schools. Most important, we will have heeded Teddy Roosevelt's warning and begun to conserve and reclaim posterity for the next generation of New Jerseyans.

The program for the year will be designed to respond to the interests of the membership. Each member has received a questionnaire, according to Co-chairs Dr. John G. King's, AAA offer kids' safety contest

It's almost back-to-school time and the perfect opportunity to remind your children that safety awareness is important and fun too. The AAA New Jersey Automobile Club, Kings Super Markets and Tropicana are teaming up to educate youngsters about back-to-school safety through their "My Safety Grab Bag" fill-in-the-blank puzzle contest.

Between Sept. 5 and 25, area youngsters are invited to stop by any Kings Super Market (located throughout northern and central New Jersey) or the AAA New Jersey Automobile Club office in Florham Park, Springfield or Randolph to pick up contest rules and puzzle entry forms.

The contest is open to children in grades 1-5. Nineteen winners will be selected (one from each store) to receive a AAA Fall Fun Pack that includes a bicycle helmet, AAA Travel Activity Book and movie passes.

Each store winner will also be entered in a grand prize drawing to win a $100 U.S. Savings Bond and Tropicana bicycle. In addition, the winner will receive a AAA geography education kit, a $1,500 Radio Shack gift certificate for computer hardware/software courtesy of Tropicana, a bushel of apples courtesy of Kings and AAA's Deputy Dan the Safety Van assembly program for his or her school.

This marks the fifth year AAA and Kings have jointly worked to promote back-to-school safety and Tropicana's first. Kings Super Markets will be displaying AAA's "School's Open - Drive Carefully" materials in each of its 19 stores in northern and central New Jersey.

Mulreany re-named to foundation board

Robert H. Mulreany, a former resident of Westfield, has been re-appointed as a member of the board of trustees of Overlook Hospital Foundation. Mr. Mulreany, formerly mayor of Westfield and president of the Westfield Board of Education, has given 25 years of service to Overlook Hospital as a trustee and chairman of the hospital and hospital foundation boards of trustees.

In June, Overlook renamed its campus library Robert H. Mulreany Health Sciences Library in honor of his leadership and service to the hospital community.

Overlook's current status as a major teaching hospital in the United States is due largely to the affiliation Mr. Mulreany established between Overlook and Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons.

ROBERT H. MULREANY

sicians and Surgeons.

Mr. Mulreany is also credited as the force behind the creation of Overlook Hospital Foundation, which, independently incorporated, raises funds to benefit Overlook.

In addition to his service to Overlook, Mr. Mulreany is a retired senior partner in the law firm of DeForest and Duer in New York City. He is former president of Provident Loan Society of New York, and now a trustee. He is chairman emeritus of United Water Resources, Hackensack Water Co. and Spring Valley Water Co., as well as director emeritus of National State Bank and Constellation Bankcorp. He served as trustee and secretary of John A. Hartford Foundation, trustee of H. Smith Richardson Foundation and trustee of The Foundation Center, all in New York City.

Recently he was received Westfield Rotary's Charles F. Bailey Humanitarian Award for his support of community organizations.

Oobleck!

Group of creative moms has devised fun, games to ease pre-school jitters

By ANNE ALPERT
THE CHRONICLE

Moms and Dads know that August is the longest month of the year.

They've played with all the toys, gone to the pool and been to camp — and now what? How do you keep the kids amused for another week of summer?

A group of Fanwood moms offered Union County parents a life raft of remarkably fun and easy creative activities for children at a workshop at First Baptist church in Westfield last month.

Parenting Pathways asked

Diane M. Genco, Chair of the N.J. School-age Child Care Coalition in Morris County, to demonstrate the making of "Oobleck," "space waves" and newspaper hats — among other tips.

Parenting Pathways is the brainchild of six women who felt there was a real need to provide parents with support, said member Tourie Nozari. "We created Parenting Pathways as an alternative for parents who are looking for knowledge and support in dealing with the challenging job of raising a family."

Oobleck is Ms. Genco's name for a thixotropic substance easily made and fascinating to play with. (A thixotropic substance is a gel that turns to liquid when shaken or otherwise disturbed.) The name is borrowed from Dr. Suess' book Bartholomew and the Oobleck.

To make Oobleck:

- 1) Pour 1 cup of water into a pan
- 2) Put in four drops of green food coloring
- 3) Add one 16 ounce box of cornstarch
- 4) Add 3/4 cup more water and mix by hand to create an even texture. It will seem as if you have too little water, but keep at it. Resist the temptation to add more water.

You will end up with a delightful substance, alternately solid and liquid. Pick up a handful and 'pour' it. Cut the stream with scissors and then try to slam your hand into the pile. It's easy to clean up and a guaranteed diversion.

Space Waves

Make your own mini-ocean in a bottle:

You will need:

Newspaper; a clear plastic one-liter soda bottle, well-rinsed and labels removed; water; one-half liter clear mineral oil or light-colored vegetable oil; blue food coloring; optional funnel and duct tape.

1) Cover work surface with a double layer of a newspaper.

2) Fill the bottle one-half full with water. Add food coloring until your 'ocean' is a color you like, then put lid on tightly. Be sure bottle does not leak.

3) Open and fill the bottle to the very top with oil. Use a funnel to prevent spilling if you like. The oil and water will not mix.

4) Reseal the bottle tightly. You may want to tape the seal closed.

Hold the bottle sideways and slowly rock it back and forth.

Newspaper hats

Put three or four layers of a newspaper on top of a child's head. Wrap masking tape around and around the child's head until you have a good fit — then let him or her "arrange" the hat by twisting, tearing and rolling the edges. These are also great for birthday parties.

Church team rehabs housing in week in upstate N.Y.

Teens, adults work on buildings in Bath

Seven teenagers and three adults from the First United Methodist Church of Westfield traveled to the city of Bath in Steuben County, N.Y. during the week of July 11-17 to participate in RISE.

They were Lynnda Warwick, Virginia Sweet, Tom Sweet and Tom Sweet Jr. from North Plainfield; Christy Santo from Fanwood; and Rebecca Stavenick, Kiri France, David and Sue Bercaw, and Robert Anderson from Westfield.

RISE (Risingville Intercommunity Service Effort) works to ease the housing crisis by rehabilitating homes whose owners cannot afford to do it themselves. Whatever is necessary is done from tearing down to rebuilding. RISE, which is staffed entirely by volunteers, is stationed in Risingville, N.Y. and serves the surrounding counties.

This year RISE decided to do their repair work on houses in Steuben County. Once in Bath, the Westfielders were split into two groups. Virginia Sweet, Tom Sweet Jr., Robert Anderson, Kiri France, and Tom Sweet were assigned to build a ramp for a handicapped person.

Lynnda Warwick, Rebecca Stavenick, Christy Santo, and David, and Sue Bercaw were assigned to tear down an addition of a home. The RISE leadership advised this group that they would probably not get this project done — that they would be lucky, if they got the roof off in a week.

The group proved them wrong by tearing down the entire addition in three days. After the ramp was completed the Westfielders worked together at the demolition site. Where once there had been a badly built addition, all that remained were piles of shingles, tar paper, siding, thin cardboard paper, lots of wood, and finally, more than 17 cups of nails.

FUMC began its preparation for this mission project last February. Team members were recruited and projects were planned to finance the venture. The principal fund-raiser was the RISE-A-Thon held in Tamaques Park. After lining up sponsors, church members walked, Rollerbladed, bicycled or jogged around the park for three hours. Sufficient funds were raised to fully underwrite the cost of the trip.

Church member Bob Moore taught team members a number of building skills. These included how to use a hand saw, a hammer and a power saw. The volunteers also learned how to lift a bucket up to a roof and how to lower it back down, as well as how to safely climb up and down a ladder. The value of these lessons was demonstrated in the group's accomplishments in Bath.

Much preparation was also done by RISE officials. Twenty-five homes were selected as 1993 projects. A call for volunteers to work during either a week in June or a week in July went out. Fourteen churches answered the call. A total of 58 visiting volunteers worked on 17 different projects during the July week.

Dale Forsman, Director of RISE and associate pastor of the Chatham United Methodist Church, told the Westfield group, "I am truly amazed by what you have done ... I truly am amazed!"

All agreed with Dale that they accomplished a lot for just one week. Asked if she would take part in RISE again, Christy Santo replied, "It was a pleasure to do a job that otherwise would have never been done. I'm looking forward to doing it again."

Exploding the myth that kids have it easy on school year's eve

By CHERYL NEHL
THE CHRONICLE

Who could ever forget the first day of school? The strain of worrying if you would get to the bus stop on time, or have the right supplies. The biggest fear of all was speculating on WHO would be your teacher for the next nine months. Such anxieties made the last week of summer vacation pure hell.

Everyone thinks kids have it easy. After all, they don't have the responsibility of a job and, for the most part, spend their days playing, watching television or getting waited on by Mom.

But anyone who has been a kid and lived through it recalls the agony as the first day of school approached. Contrary to popular belief, not every teacher was Miss Crabtree, from the "Little Rascals," or Mr. Kotter from "Welcome back Kotter."

By Cheryl Nehl

And since I went to parochial school there was little likelihood Mom would take my side against the Good Sisters when push came to shove. After all, they had God on their side and I was not known as an angel. In fact, there were moments when Mom questioned if I was related to the devil himself. So it did little good to tell Mom of any fear I might have about my instructor for the school year.

Instead, I kept it to myself, or only talked about it to the kids in the neighborhood. They harbored the same anxieties.

Of course, you have to put yourself in the place of an 8-, 9- or 10-year-old kid in order to appreciate the depth of the problem. Now when you're a kid, problems loom larger than life. And what could be larger than not knowing if "Attila the Hun" would be my teacher that year?

And since in a child's mind everything looms larger than life, the reputation of one of the Good Sisters could have been blown out of proportion by those who hold grudges. Still, one had to protect oneself from the unknown. A year in the life of a kid was a lifetime, and "Death Row," was not a place any kids wanted to be when their whole life was ahead of them.

"Death Row," (as it was fondly called by anyone who went to the school I did for eight, long years) was on the second floor of the four-story school building. For some reason, the teachers on this floor were harder, they punished without mercy or reason, and in general made Army boot camp look like nursery school. Most kids avoided that hallway like the plague, going "the long way," whenever on an errand. But from what we heard from our older siblings and friends, to even walk that way could be detrimental to our well being.

Every year I worried and every year the luck of the draw was on my side. Unfortunately, the year I turned 10, my luck ran out.

There were three Good Sisters who taught fourth grade, which gave me a pretty good chance of not getting the wrong one. After exploring all angles and discussing the prospect of being in that class and surviving, the kids in the neighborhood came to the conclusion that the entire decision was "in God's hands."

Amid sleepless nights and tortured days I waited for the first day of school. At last it arrived. With heart pounding, I boarded the bus for the two-mile trip to school and gathered in the schoolyard with the other kids who also were awaiting their fate. We watched as Sister Superior made her way into the schoolyard, and blew on the whistle to let us know that the time had come.

One by one the faces of my friends lighted up with relief or fell in despair, while I continued to recite silently every prayer I had ever learned, and then some. But my tie to God must have been loosely connected because when I heard my name, everything I had feared, dreaded, prayed would not happen became a reality. Sister Superior's voice echoed in the schoolyard, bouncing off the walls of the church and school buildings until I had to cover my ears. It took everything in me not to start screaming.

Heads hanging, shoulders slumped, we walked in a straight line silently behind "Attila the Hun," a woebegone group of students who had surrendered to the enemy.

But in case you wonder if it was as bad as I have interpreted it, I submit this anecdote for your examination:

"I bought the pencils you asked for," Mom says sweetly.

"Are they number 2 pencils?" I asked with fear in my voice.

"Why no, they're number 3's," she replies. "Should that make a difference?"

"THEY HAVE TO BE NUMBER 2 PENCILS," I scream, my face turning white. "IF THEY'RE NOT SHE WILL...KILL US."

And I haven't even said anything about how they expected us to put on book covers without ANY tape at all. I rest my case.

Seminar for new cancer patients

The diagnosis of cancer can be devastating. However, learning about the disease can make the course of treatment and recovery much easier for patients and their families.

Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center and the American Cancer Society are cosponsoring a seminar, "Orientation to Cancer Therapy," for adults who have been recently diagnosed with cancer. It will be held the second Tuesday of every month, beginning Sept. 14.

Participants need only attend one session to get the information they will need to know before they begin treatment. The free seminar is open to those with cancer, their families and their friends and is open to all patients regardless of where they will be treated.

Topics to be discussed include chemotherapy, adjuvant therapy, nutrition, radiation therapy, hormone therapy and available community resources.

"Patients need to be fully educated," explained Mary Aloia, an oncology social worker at Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center. "The more they know about the disease, the more in control they feel and the more positive outlook they tend to have."

She suggests that following the diagnosis of cancer, patients and their families learn all they can. Go to seminars, do research, see what information your library has to offer and ask your doctor questions, she advised.

Ms. Aloia said the best time for a patient to attend the seminar is after learning the diagnosis but prior to treatment. That way, most of their questions can be answered and they will know what to expect before they go for their first dose of chemotherapy or radiation.

Each session will consist of an information portion plus a question and answer period. Refreshments will be served courtesy of Ortho Biotech and educational literature will be available. A list of cancer-related community resources will also be distributed.

The session is free, but registration is necessary. Call Ms. Aloia at 668-2244 or Carolyn Fabrizio at the Union County Unit of the American Cancer Society at 354-7373 for more information or to reserve your place.

New title drops one key word

The Association for Retarded Citizens/Union County made history at its recent annual meeting by voting to change its name to The Arc of Union County. For the first time since its 1949 founding, "retarded" is gone from its name.

While the name change does not become effective until Jan. 1, a mission statement explaining the purpose of the organization, also approved at the meeting, is effective immediately.

The name follows similar action by state and local chapters of the association after the national organization changed its name in October 1991. In response to the outcry from those who no longer wished to be labeled "retarded," the new name seeks to empower those served by the agency rather than demean them.

The mission statement adopted by The Arc reads: "The mission of the Arc of Union County is to empower and support people with mental retardation and other associated developmental disabilities, and their families, in achieving their maximum potential and their full appropriate inclusion in informed communities. This will be accomplished through the unification of the agency's staff, employees, volunteers, families and self-advocates is the common goal of providing quality services and broad-based advocacy which supports individuals in achieving full value in their lives."

For more information about The Arc, call 754-5910 or write to The Arc, 1225 South Ave., Plainfield, N.J. 07062.

Better Days
INNER DEMONS

Many people grow up in families in which there are rigidly defined expectations for behavior and conduct. On top of this, strong messages of disapproval result from disappointing others' expectations. All too often, this process produces people who feel chronically torn between their "real self" and what they show to others.

This secret side usually results in repressed anger that takes the form of depression, leading to periodic outbursts of rage. When the rage is seen by others, more negative feedback occurs, thus perpetuating the cycle. In therapy, people are asked to identify clearly and describe this secret self. Counselor and client also explore the fears of what the reaction would be if the real self was public. Often, the real self is so closely associated with the internal rage that the client thinks the rage is all there is.

By identifying hidden aspects of self, we can work to develop a plan to bring the hidden parts out without the rage and work constructively to help others understand the whole person.

GEORGE PACCIOLLO/THE RECORD

Westfield's Dave Brown fades back to pass during a recent exhibition game against the Pittsburgh Steelers. With a year of experience under his belt and a better feeling for Dan Reeves' wide open offensive scheme, Brown is more comfortable and confident than last season.

Taking a Giant step

A wiser Dave Brown feels more at ease as he closes in on starting job

By KIP KUDUK
THE RECORD

Since the football gods smiled upon Dave Brown in last June's NFL supplemental draft, the quarterback has experienced a lot more misery than prosperity during his limited duty on the gridiron.

Coming off a rookie season during which he was sacked four times in his debut and sustained a broken right thumb late in the year, the Westfield native had already endured plenty of adversity as he entered his first full pre-season camp with the New York Giants.

Brown is certainly closer to starting than when he was a year ago, but attaining success on the field has continued to be elusive. For example, during Saturday night's final exhibition game at Miami Brown faced a third-and-45 situation when he took his first snap from center.

In the fourth quarter, a 40-yard scramble deep into Dolphin territory was nullified because of a holding penalty and, later, an apparent touchdown pass to tight end Derek Brown was ruled incomplete after an official decided the receiver did not hold onto the ball long enough.

"It can't get much tougher," said Brown, who tossed a pair of touchdown passes and completed 12 of 23 attempts for 111 yards against the defending AFC East champs. "I'm glad I've faced such tough spots already so I can learn from them and go on."

While the majority of Brown's time with the Giants has been spent learning, the Duke University alum said his role this year is to be prepared to play at a moment's notice.

"I'm going to continue to learn, but, this year the learning is more under fire," said Duke's fourth all-time leading QB in passing yardage and completions. "I must get ready to play and not have a drop off between the first and second unit when I go in there."

"You've got to prepare as if you're the starter because you practice all week as if you are. If Phil Simms goes down, god forbid, my job is to make sure the offense doesn't miss a beat."

Not only does Brown feel more comfortable with his teammates and surroundings, but he also feels at ease with Reeves' new offensive scheme, which features a less conservative approach than last year. This has enabled Brown to give more attention to the playbook and defensive coverages, instead of worrying about intangibles beyond his control.

"The difference between last year and this year is night and day," said the 1988 Westfield High School graduate. "I'm not in awe of it anymore. The biggest difference is being comfortable with the players and the system. The more I play, the more confident I feel and when I'm more relaxed it helps me play better."

"Things are just a lot smoother this year. The offense is totally different and I like it a lot better than last year. I played in an open offense in college and that's what this is like, so this is a situation I feel more comfortable in."

THE RECORD

Entering its sixth season under the direction of the town's Police Athletic League, Westfield's youth football program is beginning to benefit from its past accomplishments on the gridiron.

Thanks to the prosperity the organization has enjoyed over the past four seasons, youth football no longer operates under the shadow of the NFL on Sunday afternoons.

Not only have more fans attended games than ever before, but the league is attracting a record number of players. With approximately 90 boys enrolled in this fall's program, PAL Director Joe Young is considering putting together an in-town league, similar to the one in place in the 60s and 70s, if the current trend persists.

"Teams have done well over the past years and interest rises in town as the teams win," said Young. "We've gotten a lot of people at the games and word's gotten out that we have a good program. I think success breeds success."

"We have a very dedicated coaching staff and they've developed a relatively sophisticated program for a little league situation. We try to get as professional as we can with the teams and we teach a safe way to play football."

Last year Westfield's three teams compiled an aggregate 19-5-3 record in the Suburban Youth League and the "B" team won its league championship. Each team plays a nine-game schedule against squads from Cranford, Scotch Plains, Berkeley Heights, Millburn, Chatham, Perth Amboy, Springfield, Hanover Twp., and South Orange.

The youngest group, the "C" team, is comprised of fourth and fifth graders. This squad, coached by George Giresi, Bruce Baker and Young, begins the action on Sunday with a noon kickoff. After winning back-to-back league titles in 1990 and '91, the squad went 6-2-1 last year, losing both games by a single point.

Jay Factor, Paul Harbaugh and Dean Fizzell guide the sixth and seventh grade "B" team, which completes the Sunday triple-header with a scheduled 2:45 p.m. start. The "B" squad won its first league championship with an 8-1 record last year and appears to be strong again this fall, as plenty of talented newcomers join a solid group of returnees.

In its third year of existence, the "A" team is coming off a 5-2-2 campaign. This group of eighth graders is coached by Tim Doerr, Joe Walsh and Ken Clarcocca and plays in the featured game at 1:30 p.m.

In addition to emphasizing the fundamentals of the sport, Young strives to achieve a close-knit program which fosters team unity. The program also stays in constant contact with the coaching staff at Westfield High School.

"The whole goal is teamwork," said Young, who is aided in his PAL pursuits by executive director Ron Allen and fund raising chairperson Mary Ann Dowling. "Unlike other sports, we get kids from all over town to play on our teams. Football crosses a lot of barriers and we teach camaraderie and a sense of family. We also stress that schoolwork is important. We give scholar-athlete awards at the end of the year."

Young also said the kids who play in the program are taught the same system as those who play at the freshmen, junior varsity and varsity levels at WHS, thus preparing them for future endeavors.

Practices began this week and the season is slated to open Sept. 26. As of press time, the 1993 schedule had not been released, but look for it in future editions of The Record.

STACEY HAGNA

Lady Devils' swim coach steps down

By KIP KUDUK
THE RECORD

While the reasons are merely a coincidence, the head coaching position of the girls' swim team at Westfield High School has become a hot seat, of sorts.

Following a season in which the Blue Devils won the Union County championship and compiled an 8-2-1 record, Stacey Hagna became the third head coach in as many years to resign after spending only one year at the helm.

Hegna, who joins boys' coach Chris McGiffin as the second Westfield varsity swim coach to resign this summer, replaced Cindy Schaefer. Schaefer stepped down after the 1991-92 campaign due to time conflicts with practices and meets which would have interfered with family obligations. In '91 Schaefer took over for Lynn McRae, who left on maternity leave.

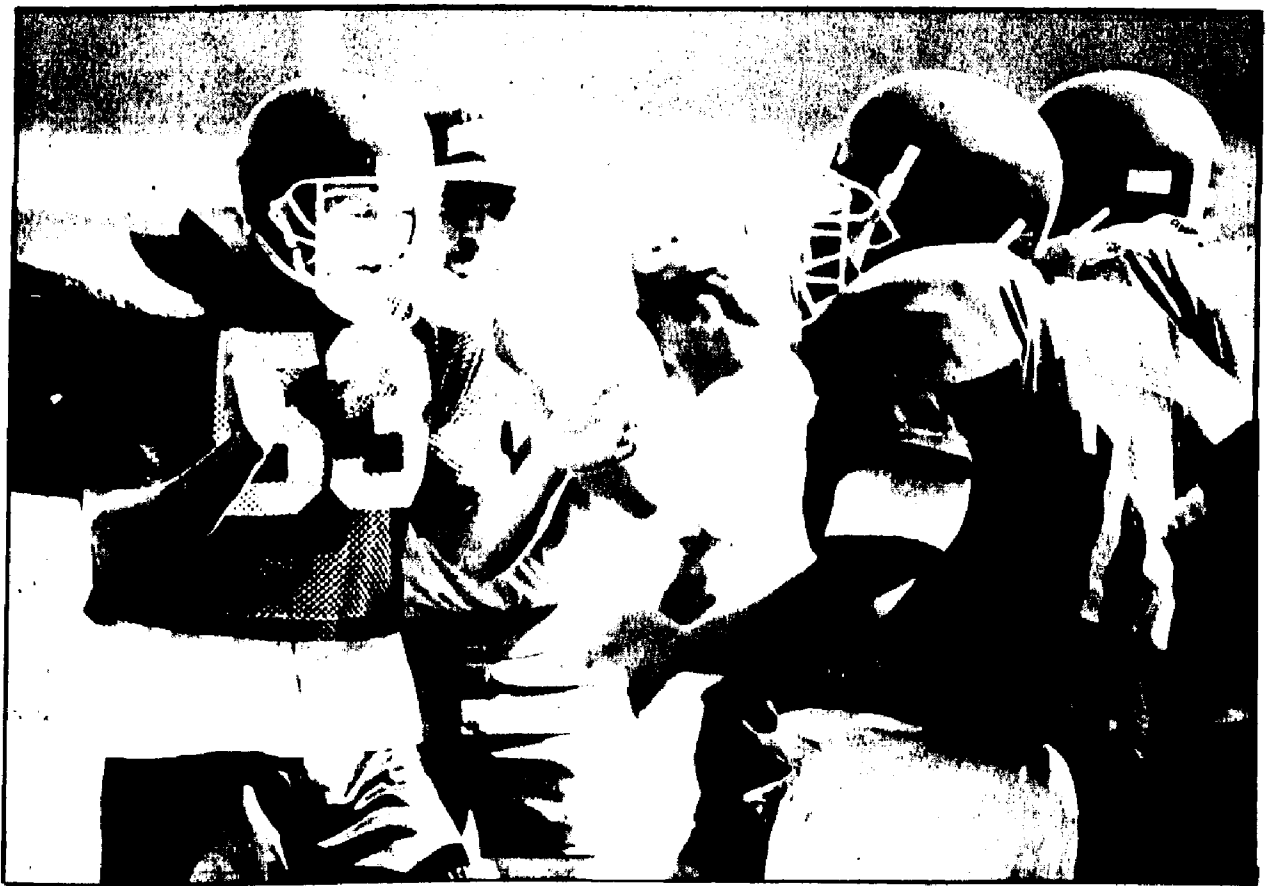

"It was a difficult decision to leave because I loved it there," said Hagna, who is engaged to be married in July 1994. "I feel bad about the way things turned out because I got close to some of the swimmers and I kind of feel that I let them down. There are a great bunch of girls there."

Hegna's decision was financially motivated. Without any openings in the high school's social studies department, the 27-year-old sought employment elsewhere instead of continuing to hold down several part-time jobs. Three weeks ago Hagna agreed to take a full-time teaching position at St. Mary's High School in Elizabeth.

With the conclusion of the school day at St. Mary's coming at 2:30 and daily practices at the Westfield Y scheduled at 1:30, it would have been virtually impossible for Hagna to continue as the Blue Devils' coach.

"I tried to arrange a switch with (former WHS Athletic Director) Gary Kehler, but he told me they have to work around the times the Y gives them. Otherwise I would've loved to do it," said Hagna, a Gettysburg College graduate. "I'm disappointed, but I had to do what's best for me. (Please turn to page A-10)

Swim coach

It's an opportunity I had to take." Ed Tranchina, who officially took over for Kehler yesterday, will decide who will become the fourth girls' head coach in the last four years.

Without a doubt, Hegna's successor will be blessed with an incredibly talented team which will be among the best in the state. The Blue Devils graduated only two girls from a squad which lost to Roxbury for the second straight year in the A Division North 1-2 semifinals.

"I'm sure the girls will even do better this year," said Hegna. "This team will be phenomenal. They have a lot of good swimmers coming up."

MIKE CHALENSKI
KENILWORTH

The 1987 Brearley Regional High School graduate beat the odds and made the Philadelphia Eagles' 47-man roster despite signing on as a free agent rookie. During the pre-season the defensive end led all Philadelphia linemen in sacks with 3 1/2, earning him the nickname "Sackman."

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN (Never known to fail). Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x). Holy Spirit, place this cause in your hands (3x). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. Chevrolet's Suburban is still a truck at heart

By TOM HAGIN

FORBES NEWSPAPERS

EXTERIOR

From the front doors forward, this Suburban is a clone of the latest generation Chevy C/K pickup series. It has rounded fender corners and a softer roof line, halogen headlamps buried into the grille, aluminum alloy wheels and an overall length that extends a bit past 18 feet.

Flush, tinted glass runs down the side, offering a grand view of the world outside, and continues on to wrap around the tailgate.

The new body style was introduced into the Suburban line in 1992, and the result of this restyling was an inch less height and two inches less width.

Two inches were added to the wheelbase for an improved ride, but the overall length was reduced by almost an inch.

INTERIOR

The Suburban's interior is cavernous, requiring those in the rear to communicate with the driver almost in shouts. We were able to put this luxurious behemoth to good use.

Our annual pilgrimage to a local lake was that same week and we carried nine people, camping gear for all, two windsurfing boards and four bikes on a roof rack. Although we finally had to cram some of the last bits of gear under seats, we began with around 50 cubic feet of luggage space.

With the rear seats removed, 160 cubic feet of baggage could have been hauled. Our Suburban had a comfortable split reclining front bench seat, with gray cloth interior.

The fabric was treated with Scotchgard, so spilled drinks weren't a problem.

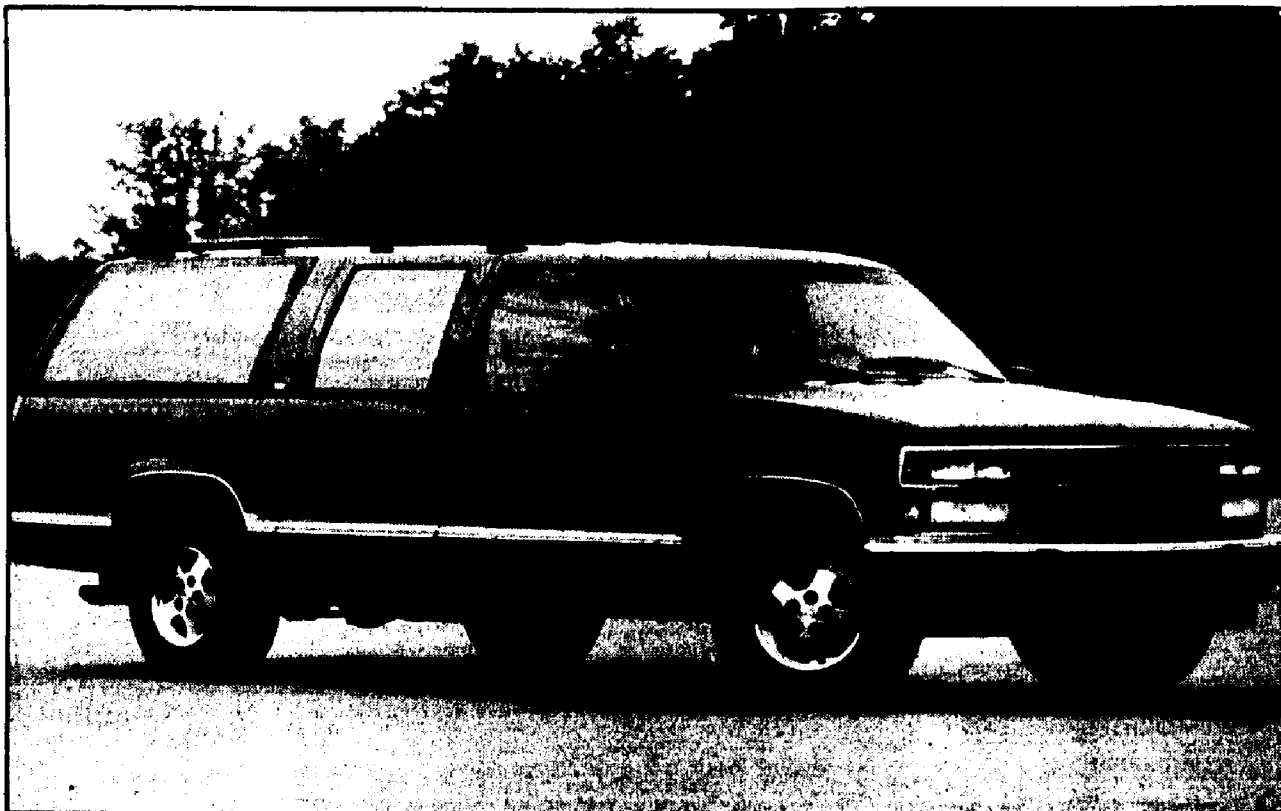

We found the hood release positioned very close to the parking brake handle and unintentionally opened the hood several times.

COMFORT

The Suburban's performance is alright, but don't expect to win any Stoplight Grand Prix races with it.

This is a very large vehicle that tips the scales at a bit over 5,100 pounds. The driver sits well above the traffic and is able to adjust the front seat in six directions.

The Silverado trim package added an impressive sounding AM/FM cassette sound system, power locks, tilt steering column and cruise con-rol, all of which make piloting this land-yacht relatively easy in a forward direction.

Chevrolet's Suburban C 1500 model is ready to tackle rough roads, or travel around town.

On the other hand, parking this rig is tough, so expect to make a few turns around the block to find an area large enough to conveniently accommodate this giant.

ENGINEERING

The new Suburban handles remarkably well for such a big machine.

The 350-inch V8 small block Chevrolet engine is tuned for low and mid-speed power rather than top-end speed and the mileage is thereby kept at reasonable levels.

An upgrading of the transmission control system has produced smoother, uninterrupted shifting during all conditions.

Front and rear anti-roll bars keep body lean to a minimum, while the suspension system has undergone minor changes.

The huge fuel tank (42 gallons) gave our Suburban a range of 714 miles.

SAFETY

Passengers and driver are kept safe by four-wheel anti-lock brakes (ABS), three-point safety belts, and over 500 pounds of surrounding sheet metal.

Air bags would have been a welcome addition.

SUGGESTIONS

We recommend the Suburban in the four-wheel drive configuration if off-road driving is anticipated. Otherwise, it's a waste of money.

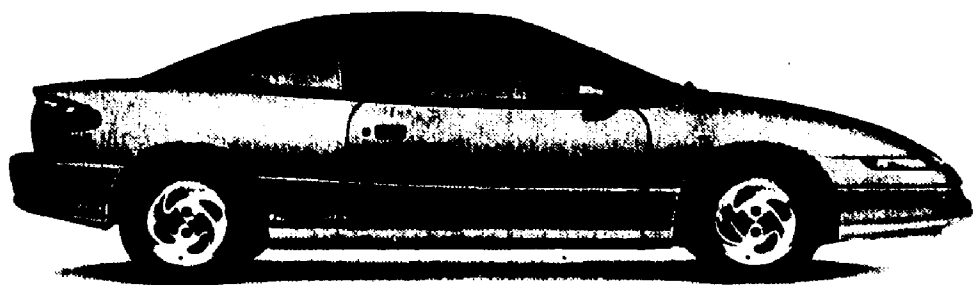

We averaged 13 mpg for the week with the 350-cubic inch powerplant.

The optional and more hungry 454 cubic-inch engine only adds 30 more horses, so I'd stick with the smaller unit.

CONCLUSIONS

The sports/utility vehicle (SUV) has become a favorite of upscale auto buyers over the past few years and, if size counts, the Chevrolet Suburban can certainly be called King of the Hill — but it takes the four-wheel drive version to get there.

Thanks for your patience.
Your Saturn
is here.

Not long ago, as you may recall, we had so many customers we sometimes had to ask them to wait a few weeks while we built their cars. Well, the people in Spring Hill voted to put in a bit more overtime to help keep up with the demand, and we now have a pretty wide selection of models to show you. So the only thing that might try your patience from now on is hearing, over and over again, "Say, how do you like your new Saturn?"

REALTORS

Choosing a realtor can be a challenge

Thinking about listing your home with a realtor? Well, before you place that kind of responsibility into someone else's hands, be sure you select the right person for the task.

If you have never been through the home selling process before — or if you have, but didn't find it a positive experience — consider the advice professional realtors give their clients.

Sanjeev Aneja, GRI, an associate with ReMax Realty Center in Iselin, a matter of a few simple questions can make a difference between a positive and bad experience, as well as selling and the failure to sell a residential property.

"Asking these questions and listening to the answers attentively will help you select the right listing agent," said Mr. Aneja, a residential sales specialist in Middlesex County. Mr. Aneja recommended asking the following key questions of at least two or three prospective real estate agents and, from there, choosing the one who meets or exceeds your expectations:

- Are you a full-time or a part-time realtor?
 - What geographic areas do you specialize in?
 - Do you presently have any listings in our area?
 - What kind of advanced professional designation and/or certifications do you have (such as GRI, CRS, a broker's license, etc.)?
 - What if you don't perform as you promised? In that event, can we cancel the listing?
 - When will you start marketing our home?
 - How much time and money are you willing to spend on the marketing of our home? How often will you advertise? Where will you advertise?
- (Please turn to page RE-4)

Labor Day fun is just around the corner

You don't have to travel very far to enjoy your last gasp of summer vacation

By JOSHUA BALLING
WeekendPlus Writer

For those of us whose idea of a relaxing Labor Day weekend doesn't involve sitting on the parkway in bumper to bumper traffic on the way home from the shore or braving the mad stampede of back to school shoppers at area malls, there are plenty of festivities right in our proverbial back yard to keep us entertained this year.

Everyone loves a parade

South Plainfield will kick off its day-long 36th annual Labor Day extravaganza Monday, Sept. 6, with a 5k run beginning at 9:15 with the start and finish to be held in Veteran's Memorial Park.

Festival committee member Hank Grabarz said the parade is set to begin at 10:00 a.m. and will travel along Plainfield Avenue through the center of town before ending in the park. This year's parade should have over 60 participants, from kids riding decorated bikes to 70-piece marching bands and the traditional rescue squad and fire department vehicles, Grabarz said.

Veteran's Memorial Park will again be the hub of this year's activities. After the parade ends, there will be plenty of food and other games to entertain festival goers, Grabarz said.

"There is something for everybody this year," he said. "We've even got a circus putting on two shows."

Vidbel's Old Time Circus will perform at 2 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. under the big top. At 6 p.m. the festivities will move to Spring Lake Park, where the Big Band Express will play in the gazebo until the fireworks light up the night sky around 8:30 p.m.

Grabarz said the best place to view the pyrotechnic display will be from Spring Lake Park, and asked that people not try to enter Veteran's Memorial Park to see the show because it is too close to the launching area.

Last year around 20,000 people attended the day's events. Grabarz said he anticipates the same number as long as the weather cooperates.

"I would advise people to get here early to avoid congestion problems caused by the run and the parade," he said. "The support staff has enough to worry about without traffic problems getting in the way."

For area music aficionados, this Labor Day weekend will offer a veritable cornucopia of harmonically diverse styles and performers.

Labor Day Blues

The Bound Brook Blues Festival kicks off at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 4, at the Roosevelt Hotel on Talmadge Avenue. Organizer Floyd James said the festival will showcase Chicago, Mississippi Delta, and modern blues, and should last until the wee hours of the morning.

"We've planned a blues fandango!" he said. Featured performers include Bo Diddley, Jr., (he's not Bo Diddley's son, but Bo Diddley himself gave the talented guitarist that nickname over 20 years ago and the influence is unmistakable) and blues guitarist Johnny Charles of Somerville, along with a host of local talent.

James said he organized a similar event at the Roosevelt in April and the response was so positive that he had to do it again.

"I had too many calls from people that wanted to bring their friends," he said. "We're here to show that real blues lovers and performers do exist in Central Jersey."

Tickets cost $17 and are available at outlets in Somerville, Bound Brook, and Middlesex. For more information, call James at 231-9710.

Also on Saturday will be a country music festival to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association in Franklin.

Suburban country

The Country Music Extravaganza begins at noon at the Ukrainian Center across from the Garden State Exhibit Center on Davidson Avenue. It will feature a full day of dance instruction workshops, an ongoing country fair, and five hours of music highlighted by the Tim Gillis Band, Cowtown, the Texas Homewreckers, and Sage. Tickets for the concert can be obtained from any Ticketmaster location. The fair begins Wednesday, Sept. 1 and runs through Labor Day. Admission to the fair is a $1 donation to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. For more information, call (201) 974-0300.

African-American music celebration

If country music doesn't get your feet kicking head to Edison Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 4-5 for the Black Music Festival and Expo at the Raritan Exposition Center from 11 a.m.-9 p.m.

Spokesperson Taneshia Clark said the event will be a "celebration of African-American music and culture." Over 80 local and professional acts including AFTER 7, KRS-1, and Trends of Culture will perform over the weekend. Singer Elaine Monk of New Brunswick, niece of jazz legend Thelonious Monk, is also scheduled to perform.

Expo goers can also sit in on music seminars including "Building an Empire Out of Beats," whose panelists include the producers of Mary J. Blige, Onyx, and Father MC, or a shop from a variety of African American owned businesses.

Tickets for the event are $12 at the door for adults and $5 for children under 12. For more information call 754-7944.

So keep the family car off the parkway, the sunburn off your shoulders and save a few dollars this Labor Day weekend by staying in the area and enjoying some local entertainment. The shore will still be there next week.

Labor Day lineup

Local Labor Day festivities include (clockwise, from right): "Bo Diddley, Jr." headlines the Down Home Blues Show Saturday in Bound Brook; The Tim Gillis Band will be featured during the MDA Country Music Extravaganza Saturday at the Ukranian Center in Somerset; Vidbell's Old-Tyme Circus is part of the 36th annual Labor Day Extravaganza Monday in South Plainfield, which includes a parade down Plainfield Avenue; and singer Elaine Monk of New Brunswick will perform during the Black Music Festival and Expo Saturday-Sunday at the Raritan Center Exposition Hall in Edison.

And there's more!

If you still want to get out of the area but don't feel like doing the traditional Labor Day beach thing, there are several alternatives that might catch your fancy all within easy driving distance.

Among them are the Scandinavian Folk Fest '93 at Van Park in Bland Lake on Sunday, Sept. 5. Billed as "A smorgasbord of fun", last year's festival attracted over 20,000 people.

Festival-goers can enjoy a day of Scandinavian food from Swedish pavilions and vendors to grilled salmon and reindeer meat stew, entertainment from the Boston Scandinavian Ensemble playing folk and classical Norwegian music and the Norwegian Folk Dancers of New Jersey.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. and run until 6 p.m., rain or shine. Tickets are $8 at the gate with $1 parking charge. Children under 14 are admitted free.

Jazz lovers should head to Haverth where the Haverth Shakespeare Festival will present 100 Trumpets: A Salute to the Incomparable Duke Ellington, Sunday, Sept. 6 from 4-11 p.m. at Haverth Pond.

Proceeds from the event will benefit the Englewood Hospital. The all-day festival will feature Jon Fadda, considered by many to be Dizzy's heir apparent. He will lead a parade of 100 trumpeters down Haverth Avenue to the outdoor theater. Other featured artists include Max Roach, Doc Fielder, Jimmy Owens, and Nicholas Payton. Both amateur and professional trumpet players from around the area are invited to join the parade. Admission is free but donations will be accepted to benefit the hospital. For more information, call (201) 387-7421.

The Old Bay Restaurant in New Brunswick will be sponsoring a blues benefit for Mid-West flood relief Sunday Sept. 5 beginning at 9:30 p.m. All funds collected at the door will be given to the American Red Cross for distribution. The minimum donation is $3, said General Manager Kevin Williams.

"We've done this kind of thing before," he said. "I hope to have about 100-150 people here to have a good time with some great blues."

The benefit will feature the Weepers, a Delta and Chicago acoustic and electric blues band, who will be joined by members of the Voodudes, Nasty Ned and the Chili Peppers, and the Castle Brown Band, along with other acts who regularly gig at the Old Bay. (Related story on page 6).

Big kicks in the park

Plays-in-the-Park ends with 'Dance in the Park'

For the second straight year, Plays-in-the-Park will conclude its summer theater season with an exciting series of dance performances.

Drawing material from both Broadway and local sources, Dance in the Park will feature a different program each night from Sept. 9 to Sept. 11 at Roosevelt Park in Edison. Each performance will be composed of a first act offering recreations of dance productions from Broadway shows, followed by a second act starring established New Jersey dance companies.

Tapping material from such choice Broadway fare as Candide, Sweeney Todd and Grease, among others, those first acts will showcase the talents of Plays-in-the-Park hoofers and five of the group's featured choreographers -- Michelle Massa (who is also directing the program), Sherry Alban, Neil Cerbone, Lorinda Santos and Linda Kay. Among the numbers to be performed are "Favorite Son" from the current Broadway hit The Will Rogers Follies and the "audition number" from 42nd Street (which opened the 1993 Plays-in-the-Park season back in June).

Thursday night's second act will showcase the modern dance performance of the Highland Park-based Janetti-Haver dance company.

Friday, the second act belongs to the Premiere Dance Company, while Saturday's show will conclude the series with the Rutgers University Danceworks.

Sept. 12 will be the rain date for any cancelled performance.

DANCE IN THE PARK, Sept. 9-11 at Plays-in-the-Park, Roosevelt Park, Route 1 South, Edison. Admission $2. (908) 548-2884.

The Janetti-Haver Dance Group of Highland Park will perform during Thursday's Dance in the Park performance at Plays in the Park in Edison's Roosevelt Park.

Blues bonanza

Old Bay to host benefit concert for flood relief

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
WeekendPlus Editor

The Weepers are a part-time band with a full-time conscience.

So despite playing out just one night a week — Saturday — this talented group of blues musicians, who embraced the blues and developed an "unplugged" set long before either was fashionable, finds time to play benefit concerts, including a Midwest Flood relief fund-raiser scheduled for Sunday at the Old Bay Restaurant in New Brunswick.

The band was formed in May of '92 following the 1991 breakup of the Hounds, who backed up for opened for blues stars like B.B. King and Otis Rush in the '80s when they made their visits to the east coast. While several of the Hounds moved on to new ventures, guitarist-vocalist Freddie Frye, harp player Trip Henderson and slide-lap steel player Gary "Lado" Ambrosy decided to continue on.

Fighting the onslaught of new blues bands glutting the market, and wanting to rediscover their roots, the group decided to develop an acoustic set of vintage Mississippi Delta acoustic blues, which has helped to distinguish itself from the other bands, most of which were inspired more by the electric flash of Stevie Ray Vaughan than the raw recordings of Robert Johnson and Charlie Patton.

"Our acoustic set is probably our most satisfying," said Frye. "It's something that comes from the heart. We had played just full-tilt contemporary Chicago electric blues, and that kinda gets old after three sets — you know, just guitar-harp-loud. And it's odd that it [the debut of the Weepers and their acoustic set] happened at the same time as everyone became 'unplugged.' Our first gig was in May, and Clapton's Unplugged came out. I think, about a week prior to that. When we went out, we were uneasy because we didn't know if it would be received at all, and since then, everybody's just enjoyed the heck out of anyone's that been unplugged. Clapton didn't want to release Unplugged because he didn't think it had any merit, but it's gone on to be one of his biggest sellers."

Frye, 42, has detoured down other musical roads during his 20-odd years of playing in bands, but always came back.

"From '73-'79 I was in a 'cellar' band, writing what I guess would be termed British classical rock along the lines of Gentle Giant, U.K. and Jethro Tull," he said. "But we never made it out of the cellar, and in 1979, I made a personal decision that I want to play music and be out there living it as much as I can, so the drummer, Bill Beck, and I left the band and started a blues band."

Doug Conroy, a studio drummer and engineer, and bassist-vocalist Ralph Andrews round out the Weepers lineup, which will be joined for the Old Bay benefit (which Frye helped to organize) by a host of regulars on the local blues scene, including former Hound Castle Browne (who now has his own band that plays in the area), Blue Plate Special, harpist "Big Nancy," Nick Petti, Doug Snyder, Johnny Charles, and many more.

"We've always done as many benefits as we can do," he said. "Every month, or two months at least, because you get so much out of it. You get so much back. And this flood out there on the Mississippi, what they've been hit with is unbelievable."

"They're a great place to work for because their hearts are in the right place," Frye said of the Old Bay. "We were fortunate to be involved with the benefit [at the Old Bay] for Elijah's Promise, which is a soup kitchen in New Brunswick. It's a neat little club, and the folks are always pleasant there."

MISSISSIPPI RIVER BLUES BENEFIT Sunday, Sept. 5, 9:30 p.m., at the Old Bay restaurant, 61-63 Church St., New Brunswick. Admission $3. (908) 246-3111.

The Philharmonic Orchestra of New Jersey will open its 1993-94 season Saturday, Sept. 19, at Ramapo Valley Community College in North Branch.

Conductor George Marinier Maul returns to lead the 90-piece orchestra and Philharmonic concertmaster/featured violinist Peter Winograd during a performance of Bruch's Violin Concerto in G Minor and Chausson's Poeme for Violin and Orchestra.

NIGHTLIFE

Bud light? No, satellite NTN, QBI provide interactive thrills all over America

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
Weekend Plus Editor

The NFL season is just about upon us. But if being a Monday morning quarterback just isn't enough for you anymore, you can now prove well you know the game as it happens, thanks to the National Trivia Network, which offers interactive games via satellite to taverns, hotels and other venues throughout the United States and Canada.

The most popular of the NTN services is QBI, which allows patrons to predict the plays of NFL games Sundays and Monday nights. NTN also offers trivia and other sports games, beaming out roughly 11 hours of interactive entertainment a day, seven days a week.

Bono's, a comfortable, friendly sports bar and grill on Old York Road in Bridgewater, is now in its second year of participating in the QBI network. So far, the response has been extremely positive.

"It's definitely been good for business," said Joe Buonafede, who co-owns the bar along with his father, Roger. "It's a lot of fun and people really go nuts with it."

And it's really easy to play, too. The locations offering NTN are equipped with a satellite link and television monitors that prompt the players, who are equipped with small, cordless remote terminals, with questions or instructions. In QBI, you are instructed to enter what kind of play you think the offense will run. Choices can be as simple as run or pass, although the more specific your guess, the more points you can win. Correctly choose a deep pass, or better yet, a deep pass to the left or the right, and you increase your score.

You don't have to know all the intricacies of the game to play, but the more you play, the more you learn how the system pays off. And at least at Bono's, both the staff and the regular players seem eager to help the novices bring their game up to speed.

Former football coach and broadcaster Hank Stram serves as an unofficial host for QB1, one of the interactive games offered to taverns by the National Trivia Network.

"The whole strategy is getting consecutive guesses," said Buonafede, pointing out the bonus scores on the monitor that increase with every consecutive play correctly predicted.

Individuals compete against others in the bar, but there's also a sense of teamwork as the entire group strives to place high in the national standings. During breaks in the action, your location's score is ranked against others around the country.

Most locations don't charge their patrons for the game — at $700 per month, it's cheaper than booking a band for one night, yet provides non-stop entertainment.

Bono's, in fact, awards a beer mug to the winner of each game, a prize that many regulars seem to covet, given the number of friendly rivalries that revealed themselves during a recent Monday night game. Dan Addonizio of Neschanic Station, for instance, claimed to be Bono's 1993 Super Bowl champion.

"Only because I wasn't here," shot back another regular, who identified himself only as Mark.

The monitors even egg the crowd on, congratulating players for risky payoffs or when they take over the lead.

Other locations in the area, like Ebbet's in Whitehouse Station, have more action on the trivia network than for QBI, but whatever game you choose, it's a uniquely interactive experience on two levels — not only does it link you up with people all over North America, it also gives you a chance to meet new people right where you are.

"It's a very nice ice-breaker," said John Manikas, marketing director for the Radisson Hotel Somerset, which enjoys a good trade with both NTN trivia and QBI in its Charades lounge. "That's why we put it in. It can be a very personal experience or you can get together with a group of people and team up against thousands of others playing all over the country at the exact same time."

For more information on QBI or NTN, call Bono's at (908) 685-9502, Ebbet's at (908) 534-4611 or the Radisson at (908) 469-2600.

Picking your place to walk

Editor's note: This is the second of a six-part series on walking for exercise being run in conjunction with the American Heart Association's Heartwalk, which takes place locally on Oct. 3 at Slattery Park in Bridgewater. Ms. Wyder is the chief of physical therapy at Somerset Medical Center.

Everyone walks every day, but this is not adequate to be considered exercise. It must be a continuous walk in order to be beneficial. Walking can be done in your neighborhood; or, if you live on a busy street, drive to a more residential area. Local high schools usually have a track which anybody can use while school is not in session. A popular place to walk in Somerset County is the Bridgewater Commons. The mall opens before the stores do so that the mall is open to walkers. Somerset Medical Center has a group called the Healthhikers which also has monthly meetings. For more information, you can call 685-2828.

Parks, such as Colonial Park, are a perfect place to take a walk. Here, you can enjoy the fresh air while doing something that is good for you. Another alternative to walking outdoors is at a local YMCA or health club, or by purchasing your own treadmill. When the weather is too cold or too hot (remember, extremes of temperature make the hard work harder), I recommend to walk indoors; however, when the weather is beautiful, make your walks more enjoyable by walking outdoors.

When to exercise is another concern. Before doing any form of exercise, you should wait at least 1-2 hours after eating, depending on the size of the meal. This is to allow for digestion to occur. During digestion, the heart has to work harder in order to get the required job done. If you exercise on top of digestion, you are not only ruining the risk for developing stomach cramps but you are also overworking your heart. Aside from this, exercise can be done at any time of the day. Some people like to exercise at the beginning of the day, while others prefer to exercise at the end of the day. This is strictly an individual decision, but it is very important to find a time that you will stick with. If you decide on a time that is difficult for you to walk at, you will be less likely to continue with it.

Look for the Heartwalk registration form in the main section of this newspaper. For more information, call (908) 685-1118.

Mel the director

There is a good side to 'The Man Without a Face'

By JEFFREY COHEN
WeekendPlus Film Critic

Mel Gibson has made the seemingly inevitable leap into directing with The Man Without a Face.

and although he reportedly didn't want to, he stars in the film as well. If only he'd written it, there might be something there.

Set in 1968 (for some reason), the story revolves around Chuck Norstadt (Nick Stahl), a boy living with his mother (Margaret Whitton) two sisters (Fay Masterson, Gaby Hoffman), and a parade of stepfathers, the latest of whom is played by Richard Masur.

Chuck's problem is that his mother and sisters are one-dimensional clichés rather than characters, and so he wants out. For some reason, he wants out to a military academy, but why ask questions? Now, the plot thins: Chuck needs to pass a tough entrance exam to get into the academy of his dreams, so he enlists the help of Justin McLeod (Gibson), a former schoolteacher who was hideously disfigured in a car crash years ago and now lives as a hermit in a house on a hill overlooking the sea. Getting the point yet?

McLeod, bitter and unsmiling, reluctantly begins to tutor Chuck in Latin, literature, and geometry, so far as we can tell. He is a feared presence in the small New England town where Chuck lives, despite his never doing anything but acting a little aloof and having a face obviously ravaged by fire. In short, he's an outcast in his own mind who eventually has managed to convince everyone else that he's an outcast, too.

Well, guess what, the two form a special friendship that transcends the teacher-student relationship and help each other with their emotional problems. You didn't see that coming, did you? And just when they seem about as idyllic as you can get in a film with no music video sequence, blind prejudice rears its ugly head and they are torn apart. But not before Gibson gets to recite in Latin and perform soliloquies from The Merchant of Venice (just to drive the point home with a jackhammer, he actually drags out the old "do we not bleed" chestnut).

It's not a problem that every single plot point can be spotted from a house on a hill five miles away. This Phantom of the Opera-meets-Dead

Mel Gibson plays a bitter, deformed recluse who forms a teacher-student relationship with a young boy (played by Nick Stahl) in The Man Without a Face, which also marks the Lethal Weapon star's directorial debut.

Poets Society story can survive a little predictability and sentimentality. But director Gibson has let his screenwriter, Malcolm MacRury (based on the novel by Isabelle Holland), off too easy. The only real people in this movie are Chuck and McLeod, and everybody else is such a cardboard cutout that they seem to be dropping in from another soundstage to visit Mel's set.

The mother is essentially a middle-aged sexpot caricature, the older daughter starting to follow in mom's footsteps and is preposterously obnoxious teenager to boot, and the younger daughter one of those precocious-beyond-her-years types who wore out their welcome on sitcoms 20 years ago. The new stepdad is an academic-hippie type, railing on about the abuses of the Nixon administration and made to look foolish. As if the Nixon administration had made this movie. (Come to think of it, a kid who wants to go to a military academy during the Vietnam War...nah.)

Yes, the central relationship is between teacher and student, but if the other characters aren't believable, Chuck's motivation is diminished and the story is weakened. And once McLeod warms to the boy, he becomes so cute and cuddly even the makeup Gibson wears on half his face (making him look like Ted Danson in burn makeup) threatens to fall off and crack.

It's all overbaked nonsense, but Gibson directs with enough showmanship as to make it watchable and even evoke a few emotions, albeit synthetic ones. He's not a bad director, and an underrated actor. If he finds himself a writer, next time maybe he'll make a good movie.

Video rewind

'There Goes the Neighborhood'

Here's a surprise: There Goes the Neighborhood, a straight-to-video comedy with Jeff Daniels, Catherine O'Hara, and a whole-heap-in-comedy cast (Steve Posnerman, Anthony Quinn, Judith Ivey, Hector Elizondo), isn't awful. It's silly, but refreshingly not stupid, and the cast is engaging, especially O'Hara, who isn't as mean as she was on ECV but is still. Somebody ought to get her into a movie one of these days.

'Sniper'

Tom Berenger, one of film's most underutilized actors, is badly provided for again in Sniper, the mechanical story of a Marine Corps hit man on his final mission and the young recruit elected to be his spotter. It bleeds testosterone and makes remarkably little sense. Tom, get a new agent.

Rutgers Co-op film festivals continue on and off campus

By WILLIAM WESTHOVEN
WeekendPlus Editor

Both "art films" and "the art of film" will be the deep focus of the Rutgers Film Co-op and the New Jersey Media Arts Center, which will present two big-screen festivals this fall.

On campus, "Potpourri" is the theme of the fall film program at Rutgers, which will take place Friday evenings at Milledoler Hall on the College Avenue campus in New Brunswick. It kicks off with a bang on Sept. 10 with Brother's Keeper, the highly-acclaimed 1992 documentary about four elderly brothers living together in rural upstate New York, one of whom is accused of murdering another. Unjustly ignored by the Oscars, it was honored with several awards from the New York Film Critics Circle, the National Board of Review and the Sundance Film Festival.

The following Friday, Sept. 17, Hoboken's ethnic blue collar community, and the invasion of it by greedy developers who displaced many of the area's poor and elderly, is the subject of the documentary Delivered Vacant, which will be screened along with an appearance by its director, Nora Jacobson.

Other highlights include Alfred Hitchcock's classic Rear Window (Oct. 15); Performance (Oct. 29) director Nicholas Roeg's 1970 thriller about a fugitive hiding out with a rock 'n' roller, played by a still young Mick Jagger, who steals the show with his performance of "Memo for a Turner;" and Z. Costa-Gavras' political thriller that won an Academy Award for best foreign film in 1969.

Off campus in New Brunswick, the Co-op's "Hot Nights, Cool Cinema" series at the State Theatre was so successful this past summer — drawing an average of 550 patrons to Sunday night screenings — that another series has been booked for fall and may herald the return of movies to

if you can — this is an event that should not be missed.

Both series are curated by Co-op director Al Nigrin, who has mounted a personal crusade to make sure that the cinema is part of the reitalized New Brunswick cultural scene, and may finally be seeing his wish come true. For more information, call Nigrin at (908) 932-8482.

This production image from Camille is part of the documentary Visions of Light, which kicks off the Rutgers Film Co-op's "Fall By Night" fall film festival Sept. 19 at the State Theatre in New Brunswick. The double feature also includes a screening of a restored print of Citizen Kane.

downtown hub City on a permanent basis.

The "Fall By Night" series, which will take place Sundays beginning Sept. 19, opens with Visions of Light a documentary celebrating the art of the film by spotlighting the world's greatest cinematographers as they discuss their craft. Described as a That's Entertainment! for cinematography, the film was a hit at last year's New York Festival and will finally make its Central Jersey premiere here.

Features on the schedule include several restoration prints and anniversary screenings, including the 50th anniversary restored print of Citizen Kane, which will be shown along with Visions of Light; the 25th anniversary screening of the landmark science fiction classic 2001: A Space Odyssey (Sept. 26); and David Lean's "director's cut" of Lawrence of Arabia (Oct. 17).

"Fall By Night" breaks "camp" on Halloween night with a trio of 3-D "classics" from the '50s — The Creature From the Black Lagoon, It! The Terror From Beyond Space and House of Wax. If you can't get into the Halloween screening of The Phantom of the Opera at Rutgers Kirkpatrick Chapel — or even

Wine with Reason

Marilyn Cormack

Last week I said we would attack some of the variables that make one wine different from another. So, we begin with fermentation.

Fermentation is what makes grape juice become wine. Yeast is introduced to the juice; it eats the available sugar and converts it to alcohol and CO₂. Very simple equation.

However, where the fermentation occurs can have a huge effect on how a wine will taste.

Fermenting in a stainless steel tank is probably the most popular way to ferment wines, especially whites. In stainless tanks you can control the temperatures of the process. This is important, as higher temperatures tend to draw out more extracts. Lower temps create less phenolic wines, wines that may have more subtle varietal flavors. Think of putting a tea bag in hot and cold water. Anyway, wines made in stainless steel tend to be very clean, nicely to immensely acidic, fruit first in flavors and in some people's opinions (not mine), pretty simple. Having tasted many wines, I can assure you that complexity does begin with really good fruit, and a good blending job by the wine maker.

Fermentation may also take place in oak cases. It is harder to control the temperature here, so the process does tend to happen at higher temps which immediately gives you more flavor extractions from grape skins and pulp. Also, you have the added component of wood that the heat allows to be released and integrated with the wine. Barrel fermented wines can have the same acid levels as stainless, but you might not call the style as "clean." The wood and extra varietal components add a layer of flavors. There is more depth. It is less likely to remind you of fresh fruit.

What does this mean for you as a consumer? It means that if you like sharply focused, fruit first wines, you should look into bottles that say "Stainless Steel Fermentation" on them. If you like oaky, richly, fruity wines with (perhaps) a tad more viscosity, try something "Barrel Fermented."

Next week: How'd they get the butter in there?

Enjoy.

THE MATTRESS FACTORY

The best way to judge a mattress is with a razor blade.

Let's face it. A mattress is a blind item. All the important things that make a mattress good or bad are buried under the fancy cover, where you can't see them.

So what does the department store salesman tell you to do to judge the quality of a mattress?

Sit on it. Which makes about as much sense as kicking an automobile tire to gauge the quality of a car.

What do you think will happen when you sit on the mattress? Will it explode? Will it cave in? Will it collapse, or spring a spring? Of course not. It's still new. The real test will come in a couple of years.

And then it's too late.

"Oh no," you object. "There's the warranty!"

Let us tell you something about mattress warranties.

You buy the mattress on sale for 50% off. (When was the last time you ever heard of anyone paying full retail for a mattress?) Then six years pass, and the mattress poops out. You take the warranty into the store, and they give you 50% credit on the FULL PRICE OF THE NEW MATTRESS. Which is the same as buying a new mattress on sale. Some warranty!

At the Mattress Factory we take a razor blade to Simmons and Sealy mattresses. And to our own. So you can see what's going on inside. Our mattresses give you heavier-gauge springs.

We give you TEN LAYERS (count 'em) of padding and insulation compared to their four or five. And we surround each of our mattresses with anywhere from twelve to eighteen z-shaped vertical-coiled edge supports for full support right up to the edge of the bed. So you can sit—or sleep—on the edge.

Sealy doesn't give you this. Stearns & Foster doesn't. Simmons doesn't.

Once you've seen the comparison, you'll see that there's no comparison.

AND THEN, WE'LL BEAT THEIR SALE PRICE. That's right. We'll give you a better product, a better guarantee, and a better price.

Our family has been building mattresses for sixty-four years now. We're a factory, not a fancy department store or discount.

So the next time you see a sale ad on mattresses, bring it in to us. We'll beat it. Six ways.

Education opportunities abound in county

Dianna Hume of Union studies at the Union County College Library.

INFO '93

Educational opportunities for Union County residents do not stop with the county's highly rated secondary schools. Union County College and a variety of adult school and continuing education programs allow everyone the opportunity to improve upon their skills and education close to home.

Union County College

Union County College enrolled 25,000 students in its three campuses during the past year, including 4,500 full time students. Nearly half are working toward a degree, and others come to earn certificates or continuing education credit. It has also established cooperative programs with Elizabeth General Hospital and Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center for its Nursing program; and with four-year institutions for other fields.

Newer additions at the college include an English as a Second Language program, College for Kids, which provides activities and workshops for children aged 5-14, and a Telecourse ability for those who cannot regularly attend on-campus classes.

The college celebrates its 60th birthday this year with a year-long festival, starting with a Gala concert and Silent Auction on Saturday, Oct. 16, on the Commons on the Cranford Campus.

For information, call; Admissions Hotline: 709-7500; Elizabeth Campus: 965-6050; Plainfield Campus: 756-4100.

Union County Vocational-Technical School

This fall, Union County Vo-Tech is offering 126 courses, days and evenings, on its campus in Scotch Plains. The school works in conjunction with high school programs for students who attend classes there in addition to their academic program. A highly honored Culinary Art and Baking program is available, along with other fields include Cosmetology, Auto Technology, and Building Trades.

Adult Schools

The Westfield Adult School (232-4050) offers over 70 courses, ranging from Antique Silver Collecting to Financial Planning, all taught by area residents, all for nominal fees. The school offers two sessions, Spring and Fall, annually. Similar offerings are also available at the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Adult School (889-7718).

County focuses on stimulating business

By VERA CARLEY
INFO'93

In Union County, still reeling from its economic calamities of the late '80s where for every job created 15 were lost, it is no wonder that the two most pressing issues facing the county are the budget and improving the business climate.

"The most pressing issue will be to keep the budget to at least the cost of living. I think we did it this year," said Republican County Freeholder Linda Di Giovanni. "I don't expect an increase over that unless some state funding doesn't come down (to the county)."

This year's budget, said Linda-Lee Kelly, Republican chairman of the county freeholders, with a 3.62 percent increase in the tax levy represents the lowest rate in 15 years.

Originally the budget, which projected $250 million in spending, had called for a 4.2 increase in the levy. However, Lawrence Caroselli, the Finance Director of Union County, said with additional monies coming into the county and a surplus larger than expected, the budget could be balanced without imposing a higher tax.

One of the steps that the county took to balance the budget was to close the Addiction Recovery Unit (ARU) at Runnells Hospital in Berkley Heights, which operated at an annual deficit of $1.5 million. In addition, the county increased user fees at recreational facilities. Officials also dedicated the county's triple-A rating to the Union County Improvement Authority issuance of a capital project bond for a fee of 1 percent of the estimated issue of the bond at $20 to $30 million. The move generated some $250,000 in anticipated revenue.

The county also decided to postpone the hiring of 50 new correction officers, which had been funded in the original version of the budget, until later this year to soften the impact on the budget.

"We held back on opening new positions, unless it would save on overtime and reduction of costs. We certainly had our difficulties earlier in the year. Just trying to balance it with the 1½ percent cap imposed by the state was difficult," said Mr. Caroselli. "It certainly wasn't easy."

One of the things that did make closing the estimated deficit easier than expected was a surplus that was larger than anticipated. Originally, only $8.2 million was expected as the amount of surplus for 1992, but by the end of the year $12 million was still left in the county coffers.

"It's something we've done in the past. We've historically used our surplus. We've used $9 million in this budget, some 70 percent. Actually it's less than usual as a percent," Mr. Caroselli said. "Our hope is to replenish what we use. That is our goal, but we don't put any particular amount away. We hope to collect more than we anticipate. Overall the economic situation will affect our collection of revenue."

To stimulate that economic situation, Freeholder Kelly said that the county had put together the Alliance for Union County. The alliance is an association of representatives from the business, educational, labor, manufacturing, and banking communities working to develop a strategy to improve the county's economic climate.

"I haven't seen the recovery spreading along as they say. We can't simply rely on the economy getting by," Freeholder Kelly said. "No matter what happens to the economy, we have to try and make it a better place to do business. We have to tell them why Union County is a nice place to have a company. Union County has many positive things. There are a lot of pluses here. We're trying to let them know and convince them. But the government can't do it alone. We all have a common goal together. It makes us stronger, unifying into one single group."

Union County Freeholder Mario Paparozzi, right, congratulates Rosemary Boehm of Cranford moments after she received the Union County College Alumni Prize, awarded to the student with the highest grade-point average. School President is also congratulating Ms. Boehm, who earned a perfect 4.0.

And while the alliance pools together

some of the county's leaders in business and education, the county itself has pooled some of its own resources to work on a project aimed at easing the tax burden on county residents.

"We have a group of people, employees, whose job is to actively look for grant monies that we are eligible for and help tailoring our programs to get funds," Freeholder Kelly said. "We're actively looking for grants and reimbursements...We're making sure that all our checks are coming in."

County's real estate market is showing robust activity

Real estate in Union County has seen a "good spring and a good summer," said Marilyn Kelly, office manager of the award-winning Westfield office of Coldwell Banker Schlott, Realtors.

And thanks in part to "phenomenal" mortgage rates, the market will probably enjoy continued health, said Ms. Kelly.

"We've been very busy, and we haven't really seen a lag in anything."

"The interest rates are phenomenal," she said, noting her office has recently seen jumbo and regular mortgages at rates as low as 6½ percent. No one is sure how much longer the low rates will last, but for now they are definitely giving the market a helping hand, she said.

"These rates are lower than they have been in 20 years," Ms. Kelly noted. "You can qualify for much more house" under the current rates, she said.

Demand is also strong right now, with some homes selling the same day they enter the market, she said.

If the low mortgage rates and overall health of the market continue, home prices could begin to rise, Ms. Kelly said. But, that does not necessarily mean the market will falter, she added, citing the boom market of the 1980s. During the '80s home prices rose, but demand kept pace.

"It seems everything is right" for a continually good market, Ms. Kelly said. "No one is going to overpay for a house."

"The name of the game is, if it's priced fairly, it will sell."

Real estate outlook

"From what I can see, it's going to be a good market," Ms. Kelly predicted. "And it's going to continue."

Although real estate is doing well in Union County and surrounding areas, existing home sales in New Jersey for the second quarter of 1993 dipped slightly more than 10 percent below sales for the same quarter in 1992, according to the National Association of Realtors.

It was the first time in nearly a year that sales declined, the NJAR reported. However, realtors reported strong sales in June and July, and the third and fourth quarters are expected to be positive.

"The housing sector in New Jersey is torn between low mortgage rates and circumspect consumers who are concerned about their jobs and the economy in general," said Gene Azzalina, NJAR president. "The month of June was quite busy, as was July. We anticipate a very good year for real estate in New Jersey."

The seasonally adjusted annual rate of 119,800 for April, May and June is 37,400, the NJAR reported. That is down 9.8 percent from the 41,500 rate marked in the same period of 1992. However, the second quarter 1993 total did exceed the first quarter sales figure of 27,400 by 26.7 percent. Still, sales of existing single-family homes for the first half of 1993 (64,800) are 5.5 percent below the 1992 pace.

Arts and entertainment are a diverse fare

Entertainment

Union County is known for its diverse communities, and the arts and entertainment community is no different. From a respected professional symphony in Westfield to country dancing at JukeBox Eddie's in Scotch Plains, there's something for everyone here along the Route 22 corridor.

While your on Route 22, don't forget to stop at Sports Park U.S.A. in Union (687-0500), one of the first — and still one of the most popular — "mega" sports arcades, featuring batting cages, basketball hoops, billiards, a miniature golf course, scores of video games and even midway rides like bumper cars and a tilt-a-whirl.

Of course, Union County has more sophisticated culture as well, including the Westfield Symphony, a collection of professional musicians from all over the Metropolitan area that present a series of symphonic performances at the Presbyterian Church on Mountain Avenue. For more information on the coming 1993-94 season, call Brad Keimach at 232-9400.

Theater is also a popular activity in Union County, and community theater groups in the area include the Cranford Dramatic Club, the Westfield Community Players, and the Philathalians of Fanwood. And if you want to see the finest in Garden State professional theater, the Paper Mill Playhouse (201-376-4343), New Jersey's best-known stage, is right over the county borders in Millburn.

Theaters booking a wide range of events include the Ritz in Elizabeth (352-7469) and the Union County Arts Center in Rahway (499-8226). The Arts Center lineup also includes silent movies with musical accompaniment on the Center's prized "Mighty Wurlitzer" organ, children's entertainers and national touring dance and theater groups.

Heartsaving

In 1992, Bernie had an EKG that showed his heart racing, a potentially deadly condition caused by rapid misfiring of the heart's electrical system. • But with Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital's new state-of-the-art electrophysiology studies, his doctors were able to avert sudden cardiac arrest. • They identified a specific drug that suppressed his rapid heart rate, even when it was challenged by an electrical impulse to quicken its beat.

Happily for Bernie, all of this technology and care translates into more time on the golf course.

At Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital, our regional Cardiac Center... is a state-of-the-art facility equipped to treat heart disease from reversing a heart attack in progress to performing open-heart surgery. • But, as New Jersey's premier academic medical center, we don't just treat the disease; our board-certified cardiologists are researching ways to prevent it. • And care continues at our outpatient CERT Center with a personalized program of exercises and rehabilitation training.

County paves way toward cleaner air

Encourages car, van pools

By BOB SULLIVAN

INFO '93

The New Jersey Department of Transportation has several minor projects planned to improve the flow of traffic in and around Union County.

But don't expect any grand new roadways to serve as a cure-all for the county's consistent congestion.

"The days of building miles and miles of new interstate highways are behind us," said Chuck Lamm, spokesman for the DOT. "Those days are gone."

Now the DOT's role is to make spot improvements on existing roadways. But that can barely cut into the daily delays commuters can find heading back and forth to work each day. Mr. Lamm said drivers have to do their part and utilize mass transit or ride-sharing whenever possible.

New Jersey has the second worst air quality in the nation," Mr. Lamm said. "We have to take steps to reduce our level of air pollution, particularly in light of the Clean Air Act. New Jersey stands to lose millions of dollars in federal funds if we don't comply, and right now, we are not in compliance."

Union County officials plan to pursue a list of initiatives and incentives to boost energy-saving commuting measures. They include:

- The development of a county-wide mass transit guide.
- Implementation of the Rand Bill, a requirement for employers of 100 or more to devise a plan to increase the average vehicle occupancy to and from the work site.
- Several local transit improvement programs, including culverts, bridges, roadways, and intersections.

But the state DOT has by no means abandoned Union County's roadways, and drivers will evidence of small improvement projects in several areas.

Those who take I-78 to the Garden State Parkway are used to waiting on a narrow entrance ramp while traffic backs up around the entrance tolls. In fact, cars usually line up and take up much of I-78's right lane some 800 yards before the exit during peak hours. That's an unsafe condition, and one the DOT has already begun to address.

A new, wider exit lane will replace the current lane. The meridian on the right side of the road will be paved during the first phase of the project, which began in late July.

Also on I-78, several sound barrier construction projects are just underway. They will place barriers in Union, Millburn, and Springfield.

On Route 22 in Kenilworth, Springfield, and Union, over a three mile stretch between Dunbar Road and Fairway Drive, several projects are planned. They include resurfacing, ramp improvements, and a new auxiliary lane for exiting traffic near stores. That project is some two years away, according to Mr. Lamm.

Other DOT projects to be begun before January include:

- Computerization of traffic lights along Route 1 & 9. Sensors will be installed which monitor the flow of traffic and adjust light sequence timing accordingly.
- In Roselle, the West Fifth Avenue bridge over transit rail lines will be rebuilt.
- In Rahway, The Maple Avenue Bridge over the Robinson Branch of the Rahway River will be renovated.

'New Jersey has the second worst air quality in the nation. We have to take steps to reduce our level of air pollution, particularly in light of the Clean Air Act. New Jersey stands to lose millions of dollars in federal funding if we don't comply, and right now, we are not in compliance'

More than just Scots settled these plains

By ANNE ALPERT

INFO '93

The Scotsmen for whom Scotch Plains was originally named left the area in the late 1600s when they discovered they couldn't get the land they wanted.

Originally 2,000 Delaware and Lenni-Lenape Indians called the rich area home, but a Dutchman, Peter Sonmans, first settled the heartland from the Old Mill on Bonnie Burns Road along Green Brook through the entire north section of what was to become Scotch Plains.

Immigrants headed up from Perth Amboy between 1683-87 and in 1865, George Scot left his homeland with 100 eager settlers for the plains of natural grass where three brooks came together under the "Blew Hills." Most of his fellow-travelers left to go back home, citing the lack of available land for homesteading even then, but old maps and manuscripts sometimes identified the area as "Scotsplain."

Scotch Plains grew slowly, mostly as an agricultural community, but also as a stage stop on the road from New York to Philadelphia. The "Olde Stage Couch Inn" at the corner of Park Avenue and Front Street has been the historical heart of Scotch Plains since 1737, when it first opened as an inn and rest stop for the Swift-Sure Line stagecoach that linked the little towns between New York and Philadelphia.

The old tavern has gone through many transformations over the years. In revolutionary times, it was a place for troop messengers and officers to sip grog. In 1831, the tavern keeper, Peter B. Davis, was involved in the murder of Baltus Roll, the namesake of Baltusrol Avenue on the road to Summit. By the Civil War it was called DeBoud's Hotel and Park Avenue was Martine Avenue. In the 1950s it was "Ye Olde Tavern" on Front Street and was a teen-age hangout for a while from 1958-1959. Today the place is listed on the register of National Historic Places.

When Scotch Plains residents objected to the railroad coming less than a mile from their downtown in the 1800s, a spiteful Central Railroad Company established a depot at Martine and South Avenue and called it "Fanwood" after Fannie Wood, the daughter of the owner of the railroad. For many years, Scotch Plains commuters had to hike a mile-and-a-half on a board sidewalk to get to the New York-bound train and back.

The entire area was known as "Fanwood" after the railroad station for many years. To further add to the confusion, in 1895, a one-mile-square section of then-"Fanwood Township" separated to become Fanwood Borough. The two Fanwoods co-existed until 1917 when George H. Johnson persuaded the state legislature to legalize the original colonial name, Scotch Plains, for the township.

Despite its "Scottish" name, Scotch Plains was settled by immigrants from many different countries. Southern Europeans, especially Italians, brought fresh ideas and energy into the area. Among the first arrivals were the Joseph Del Neros in 1860. This family provided the township with three mayors and many other town officials through the years.

Cranford winds its way toward tomorrow

By JOANNE McFADDEN
INFO '93

The Rahway River, Cranford's most distinguishing asset, winds its way in, out, and through most of the town.

A suburban community located in north central New Jersey, the 5-square-mile township is strategically situated for business and personal travel with easy access to the Garden State Parkway, and Routes 78 and 22. There is convenient commuter rail transportation to both Newark and New York City. Once a blue-collar town, Cranford's 22,600 residents now also include professionals, business executives, and entrepreneurs.

Like most other towns throughout the state, Cranford's municipal officials have had to deal with the escalating cost of operations. Although taxpayers saw their taxes rise approximately $204 on a home appraised at $172,000 this year, the municipal portion of the bill registered a zero increase. The overall tax levy for Cranford residents rose 5.3 percent, or almost $1.9 million. The municipal portion of the tax bill is 23.3 percent, schools at 56.2 percent, and the county, 20.5 percent.

Cranford's officials were successful this year implementing several cost-savings measures, including the reorganization of its public works, public safety, and engineering departments. The Police Department has also been successful in turning the state-mandated 911 emergency system into an asset for the town by providing service to Winfield Park at an annual revenue of $13,000.

Other cost savings were realized through joint purchasing efforts between the township and the Cranford Board of Education. Both town and board have approved separate bond ordinances to provide improvements at their respective facilities.

The Board of Education is facing a rise in enrollment in its elementary grades, which has caused the district to add staff while also causing a lack of space at some of its buildings. Some members of the board have raised questions about the blow-by-blow approach to solving enrollment hikes.

At a joint meeting of the Board of Education and the Township Committee this summer, discussion surfaced regarding the potential use of the Community Center as a setting for some non-building dependent educational programs. They might include the Special Needs Assessment for Pre-School Youngsters.

The integration of computer technology in both the curriculum and in the district's administration has been lacking in years past. Movement in that direction is evident as the district hired its first technology director this summer. In addition, Dr. Emalene Renna, Cranford's new superintendent of schools, has set that as a goal this year. Dr. Renna also has emphasized that the district needs to improve the understanding, acknowledgment and appreciation of society's different cultures.

The changing face of the Cranford student body toward more urbanized individuals has brought with it a number of problems, including the need for more available student counseling. Currently, the community counselor, whose salary is paid by both school and township, has asked for funds to hire additional personnel.

Important to the survival of the township is the downtown shopping district. The Downtown Management Corporation is currently putting the final touches on its seven-year Streetscape sidewalk improvement program. The Township Committee recently took steps to help downtown property and store owners weather the bad economic climate. The committee members hired a property maintenance official to ensure the area's Victorian atmosphere stays pristine, and by pledged to study a proposal to rezone the entire downtown area to permit retail, office and service establishments to locate anywhere in the district. The present law limits the kinds of businesses allowed on a street-by-street basis.

Active town plans for its bicentennial

By NICOLE A. GAVINO
INFO '93

The town of Westfield has spent over 200 years growing into what it is today. Now planning 1994 bicentennial festivities, Westfield stands as an active community that continues to change and grow with the times.

Westfield is far from its late eighteenth century state, when it housed but a few stores, and homes were nearly a mile apart. Largely a family-oriented residential suburb, Westfield is now home to nearly fifteen churches, four parks, an expansive school system, and a downtown area that flourishes with shops and theatres, and features a police center and two fire houses. The community's interests are evident in over 200 social, political, cultural, religious, and service-oriented clubs and organizations.

Westfield's school system has gone through quite a few changes in recent years. Previously, student enrollment was on the decline and at times the community questioned the need for six elementary schools, two intermediate schools, and a high school. But this year has shown a growing number of students at the elementary level, and there will soon be a new wing at Washington school.

Returning students will be greeted by a number of new faces, as the school system experiences a large turnover in staff this year. With many senior teachers reaching retirement age, newly-hired teachers are heading into the classrooms. As well, sports-bound students have said goodbye to highly regarded Athletic Director Gary Kehler, who has retired and will be replaced by Ed Tranchino.

AUGUSTO F. MENEZES/INFO 93

The Gazebo at Mindowaskin Park, across from town hall, serves as a centerpiece for many Westfield activities.

The Westfield Board of Education and the Westfield Education Association have reached a tentative contract agreement which should be ratified before the start of the school year.

Residents face the possibility of a new ShopRite supermarket on its Garwood border. Westfield Planning Board is in the early stages of a hearing process likely to last for perhaps another year. Many residents are concerned about the proposed store and its effect on the community, although there is also some support for the project.

In town government, residents have raised issues over noise, both on land and in the air. Hoping to be relieved of the overhead noise from air traffic, residents have fought for a rerouting of airline traffic. On land, residents hope for an ordinance that would prohibit early morning garbage pick-up noise. Although both these issues have been addressed by town hall, no resolutions have been made.

In other areas related to garbage pick-up, some residents have raised the of pick-up prices because they pay a steady rate regardless of how much garbage they generate. Although talk has continued, no actions have been made toward a solution.

Issues facing borough may yet be resolved

By CHERYL NEHL

INFO '93

The two-square mile town of Kenilworth has had its share of major problems in the last several years, but the borough that has come to be known as "the town with a heart" has yet to cry 'uncle.'

Losing David Brearley High School after a court battle this year was a blow to borough officials, residents and students alike. However, all is not lost. The Union County Regional District now faces not just Kenilworth, but five of the six sending towns ready, willing and able to dissolve the regional system. Putting their money where their mouth is, five of the towns in the district brought in Deloitte and Touche in February to perform a de-regionalization feasibility study.

As of presstime, the study results were due at any moment. But a preliminary inquiry by Kenilworth School Superintendent Lloyd Leschuk several weeks ago revealed the prospect of the borough running its own high school was feasible. In addition, a bill making it easier to dissolve a regional district was recently signed by Gov. Jim Florio.

The coming year should prove instrumental in the borough's quest to operate the high school on its own. However, should deregionalization progress to the referendum stage, the majority vote of all six towns would be required in order for each of the six to operate its own high school district. Until then, former Brearley High School students will be bused to Jonathan Dayton High School in Springfield, and Arthur L. Johnson in Clark.

Another major issue facing residents is whether the borough will be saddled with a $16.1 million lawsuit award granted to a man injured in the borough almost a decade ago. Although the borough has appealed this award, the court of appeals has requested the two parties try to settle the dispute out of court.

The case became an albatross around the borough's neck after a faulty signal light at the intersection of Monroe Avenue and North 14th Street caused an accident that left Mark Waldorf, a 23-year-old Staten Island resident, quadriplegic. During the last decade the ensuing lawsuit saw two trials, two appeals, plus a multi-million dollar decision, that hangs yet over taxpayers' heads.

The governing body and taxpayers continue to wait and wonder what the final tab will be, and how it will be funded. The borough is working to secure funds to be used when and if the judgment has to be paid. In the meantime, taxpayers have no idea how Waldorf judgment may eventually affect their tax bill.

The development of the Volco site on the Boulevard has been key to the borough since the mid 80s. In the next year A&P will build a prototype supermarket, car wash and mini-lube facility.

INFO '93

The name Garwood honors Samuel Garwood, first president of Garwood Land and Improvement Company, which acquired large tracts of land in the area during the 1890s.

Residents of the small community located between Westfield and Cranford felt shortchanged by the two municipalities, and decided to form their own borough in 1903. Garwood developed as an industrial community that also provided housing for factory workers.

Borough Council constantly battles to control rising residential taxes while still providing services to its 4,227 residents. Among the items imposed on its budget are state-mandated services and systems, such as the enhanced 911 emergency response system. In addition, the council must face the same rising insurance, salary and benefits costs as neighboring communities.

The governing body responded this year to residents' cries for more recreational space. After hearing the recommendations of the Planning Board's recreation committee, town residents and governing bodies conducted a successful fund-raising drive that will ultimately pay for the sprucing-up of Hartmann Field.

While the governing body may have its house in order, the local Board of Education is slow to react to rising enrollment, deteriorating facilities, and a rash of resignations by its administrators. In April, then-Superintendent Walter Boright left the district for a similar position in a larger community. Soon after, Raymond Krov, the business administrator, resigned his post when it was increased from a part-time position to full-time. During the summer, acting-Superintendent Thomas Kennedy, whose former position as director of special services also remains vacant, and Dr. Randy Pratt, principal, both announced their departures.

The Board of Education has not yet announced solutions to many of these problems. As of Aug. 19, only the school business administrator and the principal positions had been filled. And the promotion of Jim Brunn, a district science teacher, to principal, has created an additional vacancy in that department.

Whether there will be a desk and a classroom for every student when the doors open this month is anyone's guess. During the spring, several rooms at the Franklin and Lincoln schools had to be vacated due to water damage caused by a leaking roof. The roof is still not repaired.

The Child Study Team will be relocated to free-up one classroom that is necessary for a first grade, but to where, know one knows. The Board of Education discussed placing a temporary building at one its facilities and later discussing renting space at the Garwood Mall.

On the secondary education level, the municipality's residents must begin to deal with the closing of Brearley High School this spring. Students will now attend either Johnson High School in Clark, or Jonathan Dayton in Springfield.

David Fass, owner of the La-Z-Boy Gallery on Route 22 helps Kathy Mitchell, manager of the North Plainfield store, draw the winning entry in a recent contest. Bud Haroski of Westfield was the lucky recipient of a hot air balloon ride for two.

Comfort is in store for you at La-Z-Boy

La-Z-Boy is the leader in top-quality recliners. But were you aware that La-Z-Boy is the number 1 manufacturer of upholstered furniture in America?

The same quality, comfort and care you know goes into their recliners is in their complete line of sofas, sleep sofas, modulars, reclining sofas, and chairs.

No matter what your style — contemporary, colonial, transitional or traditional — you'll find it at a La-Z-Boy Gallery in North Plainfield. If you can't find what you want from the store's huge inventory, select from over 800 wear-tested fabrics and have it made specially for you. Let La-Z-Boy's professional sales staff show you the La-Z-Boy line.

La-Z-Boy is located at 533 Route 22 West, North Plainfield. The store is open 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Mondays-Fridays, 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Saturdays, and noon-5 p.m. Sundays Visa, MasterCard, Discover and the La-Z-Boy Comfort Cards are accepted.

Racquetball leagues now forming at King George

Now that beach time is over for the year, it's time to think about staying in shape during the colder weather when you can't get outside. How about some racquetball at the King George Racquetball Club, 17 King George Road, Green Brook?

Assistant manager Chris Levitt told me that new racquetball leagues will be forming the week of Sept. 13. Leagues are in session during the day and evening to fit your schedule.

And when your time on the racquetball court is up, how about trying the free weights, nautilus, or other equipment designed to keep your body, particularly the cardiovascular system, in peak condition? King George has Stairmasters and Life Cycles ready for your immediate use. Special initiation rates are in effect now.

Visit Lamps and Things for custom designing

By ROZ GERKEN

FORBES NEWSPAPERS

"Strictly decorating" is the way Gail Bacelar describes the business of Lamps and Things, located at Route 22 East and Washington Avenue in Green Brook. Ms. Bacelar operates the store, which has been in the same location for the last 14 years.

A Piscataway native, Ms. Bacelar explains that she and her husband Carlos ran a custom woodworking store downstairs and then took on the decorating center.

Custom-designed is the key word at her store, she said, noting that she will design anything a customer wants.

"Bring in wallpaper or fabric and I'll design a lamp to match. With over 100 colors, I can make a Tiffany lamp that will be unique," she said.

"Lamps and Things is not the standard lighting-fixtute store. Instead, we carry vases, statues, plates, draperies, sconces, cocktail tables and coffee tables," she said, adding, "We have over 200 Tiffany lamps in stock at all times. For a specific look, I can recover a fringed shade, using your fabric or ours."

At this time of year, ceiling fans are popular.

"We have them in any color. We buy from a supplier who does custom work," Ms. Bacelar said.

Her assistant, Gordon Greene, has a background in decorating and "his ideas are sure to please," Ms. Bacelar said.

From Victorian to contemporary to southwestern in style, Ms. Bacelar said, "we can help you. Instead of going to your home, we can save you money by welcoming a customer to bring in photos, and we can suggest arrangements and other ideas."

At Lamps and Things, Gail Bacelar offers an entire custom decorating center.

Take a journey into history at Combat Hobbies

Combat Hobbies is a dream come true for both the hobbyist looking for military games and toys and the owner, Jay Horne.

"This all started with the love of military history," said Mr. Horne, who spent a couple of years aboard ship serving in the U.S. Navy.

A large case of toy soldiers is displayed with pieces of history and memorabilia "so that people understand what they are looking at."

The details of each setup are very important to Mr. Horne. Memorabilis may be an original hat from a World War II army officer, a badge or a medal. He displays them so "people can actually see what pieces accompanied the soldiers," said Mr. Horne.

Above the case is an assortment of military hats that took over 30 years to collect.

Combat Hobbies also offers an extensive selection of models with an emphasis on military history. Mr. Horne also sells and rents military videos, military prints, as well as paints and models which would normally have to be special ordered.

In another area, Combat Hobbies caters to a popular military sport — war games. The store carries all the camouflage and equipment for the paintball participant, providing they are at least 18 years of age.

For children, Combat Hobbies has a variety of unique items such as custom-made castles, knights, cowboys and Indians.

There is also a variety of history magazines and books.

Mr. Horne believes his shop plays a positive role in encouraging youth to have productive pastimes. He and his two teenaged sons do WWII re-enactments and his 1941 Dodge Weapons Carrier is often used for parades and military rallies.

"It never hurts to learn about history because history repeats itself," said Mr. Horne.

Combat Hobbies is on the second floor of the Hyde Park Mall on Route 22 West just after the Cramer Avenue exit. For more information, call 424-1945.

Celebrate the outdoors at Ray's Sport Shop

By CHRISTINE RETZ

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

National Hunting and Fishing Day will be celebrated this year Sept. 25. In honor of this occasion, Ray's Sport Shop, 559 Route 22, North Plainfield, is holding a tremendous sale Sept. 11-Oct. 3. All sports goods, clothes and featured items from each department will be on sale then. And be sure to stop in Sept. 3 to become eligible for their free gifts by putting your name in the special box.

Hunters will also want to stop at Ray's to enter the annual "Deer Hunting in Maine" contest. The winner gets a week of deer hunting in the Rangeley Lakes region of Maine, an area famous for its trophy whitetail deer. The contest closes Oct. 3, and the vacation must be taken between Nov. 8-13, 1993. Obtain your entry blank at the store.

While you're at Ray's, brush up on your marksmanship at the indoor shooting range, which is open to the public.

Ray's is entering its 47th year of service to the hunting and fishing public, and with the high-seasons upon us, the store is fully stocked with everything from fishing tackle to archery equipment to camping supplies to make your outdoors experience most enjoyable.

The store also has gunsmithing services, and sells sporting arms such as rifles, shotguns and handguns, for each of which the appropriate permit is needed. Handgun instruction is also offered for the person interested in home protection or target practice.

Manager Roger Mistove said, "It's always wiser to have someone show you the safe way." Information on the Handgun Proficiency Course may be obtained by calling Ray's at 501-4400.
