The Plainfield Trust Company of Plainfield, New Jersey, desires to call the attention of the residents of this state to the very excellent facilities that it has to offer.

Both small and large accounts are sought and interest at a liberal rate is paid.

The management of the Company is in the hands of men financially strong; of men who are successful in other walks of life and who manage the company with the same care and conservatism, that they devote to their individual business. In addition to this a capital, surplus and undivided profits of $235,000 safeguard the interests of depositors.

Accounts may be opened and all business may be transacted entirely by mail. We have many such accounts, a booklet giving full details may be obtained free upon request.

3% paid on Checking accounts of $200 or more.

3 1/2% paid on Special accounts of $5.00 or more.

Fire-side Council Goes Visiting.

About forty members of Fire-side Council, R. A., visited Bayonne Council Tuesday evening. A number of members who earn their bread in the city met at Peck's restaurant and had dinner together. Grand Orator Class was elected an honorary member of the Knockers' Club of Bayonne Council, and presented with the emblem of the club, a beautiful silver hammer in a handsome leather case. Supreme Representative Beech, of Bayonne Council, was accused of wilfully throwing away, while at the Supreme Council Session, that which the Supreme Council pays for. It was regularly moved and seconded that Grand Orator Class be delegated to go to a point between Old Point Comfort and Richmond and endeavor to pick up that which Supreme Representative Beech had wilfully wasted. Among the nobles present were Grand Regent Rogers, Grand Vice Regent Ward, Grand Orator Class, Grand Secretary Albers, Supreme Representative Lightfoot, and Supreme Representative Farrell.

TOWN COUNCIL SESSION.

CHARLES A. SMITH APPOINTED FREEHOLDER.

Park Commissioners Get an Appropriation--Many Sidewalk Improvements Passed--Culvert on First Street in the Weekend.

The entire Council was present at the meeting held Monday evening, and hearings in connection with a large number of improvements were held. Many objections were received and heard by the Council. Ordinances were passed for all of the improvements with the exception of the sidewalk on the south-westerly side of Elm street from Dudley avenue to Newton place. The latter proceeding came up on petition and was defeated by the protest signed by owners of more than half of the property along the line proposed to be improved.

The Cadets' Entertainment.

The entertainment given last Friday night by the Westfield Cadets in the Westfield Club Hall was an enjoyable affair. Prof. J. J. Savitz made an address on the "Boy Problem" saying that where there is a boy there is a problem as to how entertain and train the boy. He spoke of military drilling as one of the best methods of instructing and entertaining boys and young men, and developing them along physical lines.

A part of the company of cadets gave a short drill under the command of Captain Edgar R. Pearsall, the movement, especially the manual of arms, being executed with snap and precision. Then followed the part of the entertainment given by friends of the Cadets. This part of the program was well balanced, and there was not a dull period in it. Ripples of laughter followed the lines of Miss Aimée Louise Emonas as she told about the bride's first visit to the butcher shop and "The Telephone Romance."

The "Musical Stewart" produced much mirth. The Mozart Quartette sang several selections which were received with marked demonstrations of pleasure and appreciation. This male quartette is composed of Messrs. Reger, first tenor; Graves, second tenor; Waterbury, first bass; and Kreidler, second bass.

Miss Louise Morehouse pleased the auditors with her two or three songs, and Fred F. Van Bps gave a pleasant variety to the program by his well rendered banjo solos.

Mr. William Embleton acted as stage manager

Commencement Week Events.

The teachers and pupils of the schools have a busy week before them with the following events scheduled to take place.

Baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Dr. W. I. Stearns in the Presbyterian Church, Sunday evening, June 10th. The pastors of all the churches with their congregations, the alumni, teachers, and the public generally are invited to attend the service.

Oratorical contest for the Peckham prizes, amounting to $40, at the Washington School Auditorium, Monday evening, June 11th, at 8 o'clock. The contestants are Howard Hastings, Marjorie Philip, Annette Gladwin, Oleita Harrison and Clara Demman.

Senior class day exercises, Wednesday, June 13th, at 2.45 p. m. The public is invited. A reception will be given to the invited friends of the graduates after the exercises.

Annual commencement exercises in Washington School auditorium, Thursday, June 14th, at 8 p. m. Alice Hanford will deliver the salutatory and Helen Savi z the valedictory. The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Mead, of Newark, N. J., will deliver the address. Arrangements have been made to seat the largest possible number of people. All are invited. The regulations of the board provide, however, that no one will be permitted to stand in the aisles or doorways. Flowers for the graduates will be put on the stage, to be distributed after the exercises. Presents for the graduates will be sent to the principal's office.

A reception to the graduates by the junior class in the Westfield Club Hall Friday, June 15th at 8 p. m.

Alumni reception in Westfield Club Hall, Monday evening, June 18th.

SAHARA 'A SEA OF LIGHT.

Not the Dull Bland Waste That It Is So Commonly Supposed to Be.

A hollow sea of dazzling, vibrating light seen in the desert of Sahara near midday. The Sahara is not at all as popularly pictured—it is a vast plain of moving sand dotted here and there with fertile oases. From Tripoli in North Africa westward it is a vast depression of sand and clay not much above sea level, in some parts perfectly level, in others hilly, with low depressions containing water saltier than the sea. This generally evaporates, leaving a coating of brilliant crystals which look like snow in the distance. The river from the Atlas mountains serves to irrigate the oases of the Zibani; sometimes they flow above the surface, but more often below it. Now and then the mirage appears, refreshing the weary eyes of the stranger with visions of beautiful lakes near the horizon, even sometimes of moving caravans and trees. Alas! This is an instance where seeing is not believing. After many disappointments the camel suddenly raise their heads and snuff the air and move at quicker pace, instinct telling them that water is near. There is a fascination about desert life that is understood only after one has spent several weeks with a caravan among the Arabs. While the heat is great it is perfectly dry, and therefore does not enervate as does a humid atmosphere 40 degrees lower in temperature.

"THE QUEEN OF SICILY."

City of Syracuse Beyond Compare Among the Hellenic Communities.

William Sharp writes in "The Garden of the Sun" in Century: Syracuse calls itself the capital of the south, but it has no cause to dispute pride of place with Palermo. The metropolitan city is superior in population, wealth and intellect, but it is deficient in what its ancient and glorious rival has in such abundance. For Syracuse has the supreme claim of Greece in a way that no other city except Athens has. Not even in Corinth, nowhere in Hellas from Messana or Sparta in the south to Thebes in the north, is there any Hellenic town to compare with "the Queen of Sicily." As a sanctuary, Delphi is far more impressive than anything in Sicily, as a national meeting place Olympia has no rival; but nowhere except at Athens is a Greek city to be seen today which has the proud record of the marvelous metropolis of the Sicilian Greeks, a city as great in power and wealth and beauty as Athens herself, and victor at last in the long and fatal rivalry which indirectly involved the passing of the Hellenic dominion of all the lands washed by the Ionian and Mediterranean seas.

CARE OF THE HUNTING DOG

Must Be Well Nourished, But Meat Must Be Withheld While in the Field.

Much meat is to the sporting dog's nose what strong drink is to the detective's eye—poison, says Country Life in America. The beginner in the field often does not realize this, and nightly attributes his indifferent luck of the day to a scarcity of birds, when generous portions of beef or pot liquor are to blame.

Of course, when there is hard work to be done a dog must be well nourished, and its vitality kept up by giving it light morsels at frequent intervals, just as the man with the gun has to be sustained by good wholesome food. Two biscuits and water in the morning, a half biscuit several times a day, and at night a hearty meal of well-cooked vegetables or oatmeal porridge form the best fare for a dog in the field. Remember, however, to give the portions of biscuits when water is near by, since dry crumbs create a thirst that frequently handicaps a dog as much as hunger.

No Holiday. People have different ideas as to what constitutes a holiday—or a vacation. Mrs. Pettis had her own firmly fixed opinions on the subject.

"I don't count Thanksgiving or Christmas or Washington's birthday or any of those holidays," she said, frankly, to an old friend one day. "What I count a holiday is when Ezra and Jim and Bob and 'Liphlet go off up to the wood-lot with their dinner, and I know they won't be back till night."

"I'm not one to deny that men-folks have their good points, but how any woman can call it a holiday when they're in the house, eating for food by looks when they aren't by words, is beyond me!"—Youth's Companion.

American Orchestras. Felix Weingartner, the noted composer-conductor, in commenting on American orchestras, attributes their great success to the fact that they are cosmopolitan in personnel, whereas European orchestras, excepting possibly those in England, are largely national. He thinks French players the most skillful in the wood-wind, the Germans in the brass. The American orchestra conductors seek the best players available without regard to nationality.

Dream Came True. Says a recent news item in an English newspaper: "A Mrs. Howling, of Penge, dreamed that she saw her little girl washed up on Hastings beach and the body taken away on a tarpaulin. Two days later the child was knocked down by a pantehoon and its wheels passed over her. Bystanders brought a tarpaulin, upon which the child was taken to the Beckenham cottage hospital."

England's Altitude. Of the 58,324 square miles of England and Wales 26,482 are under 250 feet in elevation above the sea, 16,365 are between 250 and 500 feet, 10,475 are between 500 and 1,000 feet, 4,458 are between 1,000 and 2,000 feet, 300 are between 2,000 and 3,000 feet and four are more than 3,000 feet.

FAMOUS LOST TREASURES.

Relics of the Days of the Pharaohs and Other Epochs Worth Fortunes.

The Venus de Milo, which has been all the world knows, an imperfect piece of sculpture, though it is the greatest treasure of its kind the world has ever seen. A great reward would be given the man who could find the missing parts. About 25 years ago the most important of them—the right arm—came to light in London and was proved by experts to be genuine. The owner, however, refused to part with it, and concealed it for four it was stolen. Unfortunately, he died without revealing its hiding place, so it is as much lost as ever.

A bronze drinking cup which was stolen from an Egyptian temple in 1759 and brought to Europe has mysteriously disappeared. On it is engraved the whole history of the Pharaohs and it could easily be sold for $100,000. In fact, the French government offered a reward of $14,000 for its discovery, but the famous cup has vanished, probably forever.

Another treasure which has vanished in as strange a way is the Marcella vase of the Dresden collection. This is the only piece missing from the famous Dresden Marcella collection, the value of which is said to be $75,000. It bears the cross arrows and the lion's head. Not long ago the vase was said to be in England, but that as it may, the person who rediscovered this treasure may command any price in reason for it.

How it is possible that a treasure so large as a painting could be lost slight of entirely is not easily explained, but this has often happened. One of Reynolds' paintings, "The Countess of Derby," which is considered his best portrait, has disappeared. Not long after it was painted it disappeared from the collection of the earl of Derby and has never been heard of since, though it would bring $150,000 to the finder. There are also two Van Dykes and a Rembrandt missing, for which collectors are willing to pay $200,000.

TOO MUCH FUNNY BUSINESS

Kentucky Bridegroom Who Didn't Believe in Kissing in Public.

A well-known Kentuckian tells of a marriage ceremony that a justice of the peace in the Blue Grass state was hurriedly called upon one day to perform.

It appears, relates Success Magazine, that the bridegroom, a big, mountainer very roughly dressed, had brought his prospective bride with him to the office of the clerk of the court, thinking to secure his license and have the ceremony performed at one visit. When his license had been duly granted the mountaineer asked if there was a justice of the peace then in the court house who could tie the knot. Upon being advised by the clerk that he himself was a justice of the peace and that he was willing to join the two lovers, the bridegroom said: "Waal, then, we're ready; go ahead!"

"But you'll have to secure two witnesses," smilingly observed the clerk and justice, "before I can proceed."

At this the mountaineer demurred, saying that he did not care for witnesses. Nevertheless, he was convinced in a moment that this formality was an indispensable one, and accordingly the necessary witnesses were procured and the ceremony began. When the couple had promised to love, obey, etc., together with the rest of the service, the justice of the peace, quite innocently observed that the bridegroom should "kiss the bride."

Thereupon the mountaineer exhibited fresh impatience at the exactions of the official. "Look here!" he exclaimed, angrily, "It seems to me that you're draggin' in a lot of funny business in this weddin'. Why, I telled her before we came in!"

THE JERUSALEM ARTICHOKE

Peculiar Qualities of a Tuber That Grows on the Roots of the Sunflower.

Most young folks in the country are familiar with the sweet, crisp, juicy tubers known as artichokes. These, says an article on "Nature and Science," in St. Nicholas, grow on the roots of the sunflower known to botanists as Helianthus tuberosus, and are commonly called Jerusalem artichokes. Under this common name you will find the tubers offered for sale in most seed catalogues.

The plants are easily grown in almost any kind of soil. At first glance the tubers have somewhat the appearance of potatoes, but unlike them they may be eaten raw like radishes, or they may be pickled or cooked. Recipes are to be found in all cook books.

These artichokes are entirely different (yet not far distant in a botanical way) from the globe artichokes which are grown in California, and perhaps elsewhere exclusively for their edible flower buds. These are never eaten raw. Even when cooked they are rather tasteless. Personally, I think they are not to be compared, as an acceptable vegetable, with the Jerusalem artichoke, sometimes even now found in old-fashioned gardens.

England's Altitude. Of the 58,324 square miles of England and Wales 26,482 are under 250 feet in elevation above the sea, 16,365 are between 250 and 500 feet, 10,475 are between 500 and 1,000 feet, 4,458 are between 1,000 and 2,000 feet, 300 are between 2,000 and 3,000 feet and four are more than 3,000 feet.

A GLIB YOUNG MAN.

BUT HE PICKED OUT THE WRONG OLD LADY.

"On one of my trips through the home-lock belt," said the traveling grocerman, "I picked up a glib young chap who was passing through that interesting rural district about, with an assorted stock of side lines that he insisted he would have no difficulty in disposing of to the unsophisticated dwellers, either for cash or barter, such entire confidence did he have in the persuasiveness of his tongue and the sickness of his temper."

"He assured me of this in a way that I wasn't brought up to regard as modest as I was giving him a lift on his way toward Geville, and he was so anxious to show me an example of his irresistible style of doing business with the hemlock belt that I stopped at a comfortable looking little farmhouse near the roadside, where the benevolence and sympathy that beamed from the gold rimmed specs of the old lady who stood in the door led the glib and confident young man to remark to me as he got out of the wagon that if he didn't have a mortgage on that place before he got through he had forgotten his business."

"I ain't exclaimed the old lady, as the confident side line chap approached the house and saluted her. 'Sollin' things?' 'The glib merchant said he was, and she told him to sit down, which he did, in the only chair there was on the little porch."

"I see you are a woman of business," he began at once, "and so there is no use of wasting time. I'll get right at it. Now, here's barometers—and he produced one from his stock, with a sly wink over his shoulder at me. 'There ain't nothing more useful than bar—'

"Them's the things that tell you when the weather's goin' to change, ain't they?" asked the benevolent old lady, innocently.

"Yes, ma'am, replied the side line man. 'There ain't anything that'll tell the—'

"Oh, yes there is!" the old lady cut in on him. 'I've got a bunton. See it h'istn' itself there on the right hand corner o' that foot?"

"Why, say! When that bunton begins to make weather I kin size up the kind it's goin' to be three weeks ahead, an' kin generally tell when it's goin' to set in, down to the littlest part of a minute!"

"That bunton took to workin' to'erle early this season, an' I sent word up the creek for folks to git for high ground, fer on March 3, at jest 2:30 p. m. in the afternoon, the ice would break and come down u-hummin' and clean things from A to Izzard; but it didn't do it, not till 2:31 p. m."

"I see to wunst that there was somethin' the matter with that bunton, an' so I investigated. And what do you think? Part o' that bunton had got a little frosted, somehow, and it sort o' stagnated it so it couldn't work exac'ly up to its full, till, and it had fell shy a minute on tellin' the time o' the comin' o' that ice down the creek."

"Sensitive? That bunton? I a, me!" "And tell the changes? Why, say! That bun—but there's lots o' folks 'round here that hain't got no bunton in the family, an' I git tired o' their runnin' here a-consultin' mine every time they want to plant 'aters, or kill a hog, or pole beans, or gots to town, an' them folks ought to have barometers."

"I'll jest do you a good turn, young man, seeln' as you're strugglin' to benefit th' district! I'll hang that b'rometer o' your'n up here, an' when they come here after weather they'll see it, an' how it works, an' they'll pine fer one. So all you'll have to do, when you come round this way agin, is to fetch along a big stock of b'rometers, an' you'll ketch a trade that'll skeer you."

"Don't thank me! I'd rather do it than not. I like to lift people along."

"And the benevolent and sympathetic old lady took the barometer and hung it on a nail against the side of the house."

"Now," said she, turning to the amazed and willing side line distributor, "I bet you got cough medicine!"

"That's what I have, said the glib young man, rousing again to duty. 'Here you are! Dr. Strainem's Elixir of Egyptian Tar! Nothing ever like it for knockin' a cough or cold endways! I'll—'

"Fudge and fiddlesticks!" exclaimed the benevolent old lady. "Why don't you cure that cough o' your'n, then?"

"We don't never have no coughs nor no colds 'round here! Why? 'Cause o' my mixer o' honest, ally-campare and slank cabbage! That's why!"

"Here you be, young man! See it? and she produced a bottle done up in a red wrapper."

"Here you be!" said she, "Fifty cents a bottle, it is, but I kin make it three bottles for a dollar to you!"

"Three, hey? All right! I make it myself an' warrant it. There! They'll fit right in there where you took the b'rometer out of. Dollar. Thank you! An' don't fergit when you come agin to—"

"But the glib young man of the side lines grabbed his budget and made tracks down the road, and as the benevolent old lady gazed after him I heard her say:

"Shucks! Now, I'll jest bet 't that feller'll jest be keerkless enough not to come 'round here agin with them b'rometers."

"Then she beamed on the one she had hung on the nail, and I drove on my way musing on the mistakes of men, and the sweet, childlike simplicity and ingenuousness of these hemlock belt folk."—N. Y. Sun.

Who sets a trap for his enemy catches himself.

THE CLASS OF 1906.

"Ever to be first!" is the motto chosen by the graduating class of the Westfield High School. The class does well in recognizing at the outset that life is largely a matter of competition. The members do not do so well, however, if they fail to appreciate that life is not entirely a competition, and that other features are of vastly greater importance. It is much easier to be first than to deserve to be first. The thing is not so much to win as to win fairly. The members of the class will learn in later life by experience what they would do better to take to heart now,—that success not earned is not success at all. For a while one may go about exhibiting laurel wreaths, the insignia of achievement, and folks, seeing only the laurels, will applaud. But after the applause dies down one can hear the low tones of questioning voices here and there in the multitude, asking "who is the victor and how did he do this thing?" Insistently the questions are repeated; and it depends on how they are answered by the facts, whether the applause is to be renewed and sustained, or turned to bitter scorn and shame. No better illustration need be given of the humiliation awaiting the undeservedly successful than the fate of the many men recently exposed and defamed in commercial and political life. Hitherto regarded as conspicuous examples of right living, there are few now to do them reverence. These considerations are, of course, aside from the worthier one of living justly from moral conviction. There will be occasions when it were better not to be first; when circumstances should demand the sacrifice of first place to higher conceptions of duty and the dictates of love. First place may signify nothing more than mathematical location. It does not necessarily mean progress or permanence. Sought as an end, it brings but empty honor if reached. Attained as an incidental result of good work well done, it is an intense satisfaction. Emphasis upon ambition is wasted breath in these days. Plain talk on values is still needed. Thought and action should be balanced. Hastily conceived ideals and a mad rush to achieve them bring up the individual with a sharp turn somewhere, often when it is too late to go back and start again. We are too apt to think that to be first we must be fast. It is not so. Let the Class of 1906 go us slowly as they find necessary to go carefully, let them put principle before position, let them be thorough rather than quick; and, unawares, they will one day find themselves first.

George L. Record and John P. Dryden are both candidates for United States Senator. Record has challenged Dryden to a series of joint debates on their respective claims to the office. If the challenge is accepted the public will be interested, and perhaps enlightened. But the next United States Senator is likely to be a man named Stokes.

No one seems to have had a good word to say for Senator Cornman.

Again Freeholder Smith.
 The Town Council at a regular meeting last Monday evening unanimously appointed Charles A. Smith a member of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, to fill the unexpired term of the late W. W. Connolly.

Charles Augustus Smith was born in New York City on March 30, 1846. He received his education in Brooklyn and Elizabeth.

Mr. Smith entered the real estate and insurance business in Elizabeth at the age of 16 and four years later engaged with the wholesale drug house of B. Keith & Co., manufacturing chemists, of New York City, in which firm he was clerk and junior partner for several years.

In 1876 Mr. Smith resided at Scotch Plains, and started the coal and lumber business in Fairwood, of which he is now manager. In 1885 he removed to Westfield from Scotch Plains and established and built the coal, lumber and mill plant business now operated by Tuttle Bros., to whom he sold out in 1897. Since then he has continued the same line of trade at Fairwood.

Mr. Smith was one of the pioneer residents of Ripley Hill section of Westfield, having built there in 1859. He is a member of Atlas Lodge, F. and A. M., of Westfield, and of Fairwood Council; Royal Arcanum, of which organization he was one of the founders, some twenty years ago. He is also a member of Westfield Conclave, Improved Order of Heptasophs, and an exempt fireman. He was one of the original organizers of the Westfield Club.

In politics he has served as a member of the Republican County Executive Committee from the Third ward of Westfield. On the organization of the Westfield town government he was appointed a freeholder for the term of one year.

WILL LAY THE CORNERSTONE.

Public Library Ceremonies To-morrow Afternoon—The Public Cordially Invited to Attend.

Invitations have been issued to attend the ceremonies at the laying of the corner stone of the Westfield Free Public Library Building at Broad and Elmer Streets to-morrow afternoon at half past two. The public is invited in the cordial invitation extended by the trustees. The invocation will be made by Rev. H. H. Guernsey. Mr. Sinter Storrs Clark, President of the Library Board will make the introductory remarks. The address will be delivered by Dr. W. L. Stems, and Mayor Randolph Perkins will lay the corner stone. The exercises will conclude with singing by the school children. Under the stone will be placed the usual things, a Bible, list of trustees and town officials, current local papers, coins, etc.

If the weather should be stormy the exercises will be held in the Presbyterian Chapel, and the stone will be laid immediately after.

About Those Tax Returns.

Assessor J. M. C. Marshall and most of the town officials have been plying with questions about the meaning of the blank assessment valuation forms sent to all taxpayers this year. Many seem to think the plan some new and unusual feature. The law requiring these forms to be sent out has been on the statute books for years. Many assessors have given the law rather lax enforcement. At a recent meeting of the County Board of Assessors all the local assessors were directed to carry out the law strictly. The great agitation throughout the state on matters of taxation generally has led all the taxing officials to adhere closely to the laws on the subject. The notices sent out in Westfield have no special local significance. State laws compel the assessor to issue them.

Miss Ethel A. Green Married.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Anrolia Green, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Rufus Green, of the Boulevard, to Mr. J. Byron Dixon, occurred in New York City on Sunday morning last. The bride and groom immediately left for Niagara Falls. They will go from there to Canada, visiting friends in Toronto, Montreal and other places for a month.

Letter to Henry H. Miller,

Westfield, N. J.
 Dear Sir: There is endless discussion about barytes in paint. Perhaps this settles the question.

Two houses exactly alike at Delhi, N. Y.; the owner of both is Mr. N. Avery. One was recently painted Dove; the other with a barytes paint; same painter did both jobs; his name is George Gilbert.

One cost $27; the other $4. The first took 6 gallons; the other 13. Six gallons Dove, as to covering, equals twelve of the other.

Yours truly,

A TROPHY FOR RAILROAD MEN.

Bronze Presented to W. G. Besler to Athletes of C. R. R. of N. J.

It is a well recognized fact that the brain worker, as well as he who toils with his hands, has need of out-door exercise and recreation to better fit him for the strenuous life of these strenuous times. The results are ten-fold in a strong active body and alert brain and mind.

The great corporations of the day realize these conditions, and exert themselves to bring their employees up to a mental standing that will enable them to compete in the world's business. Many of the great railroad corporations have made provision in one way or another for the promotion of Athletics, some in the form of gymnasiums, while others have opened other channels for out-door life.

Last year the management of the Central Railroad of New Jersey set aside a large tract near the Jersey City terminal of the company, for an athletic field, and an association known as the "Jersey Athletic Association" was formed, which includes in its membership members from every department and division of the system. The spirit of contest is keen and resulted in many achievements in the various lines of sport. The Vice-President and General Manager, Mr. W. G. Besler, thoroughly appreciating the value of the fellowship attained through these associations, decided this year to present a trophy known as the "Besler Trophy," to be contested for in the baseball field. All departments were invited to enter the contest, and already ball teams have begun to practice with a view to gaining the trophy. This trophy is a beautiful bronze bearing the inscription "De Vin," it is mounted on an onyx pedestal, which bears a plate, inscribed:

"The Besler Bronze, Presented to Central Railroad of New Jersey Athletic Assn."

This is to be contested for annually as an inter-department championship baseball trophy May 1st, 1906. In presenting the trophy Mr. Besler said, "he hoped it would engender competition in a healthy and sportsmanlike way, and would, through such competition, create something even more valuable, i. e., esprit de corps among the members of the various departments of the railroad, that would make for better sport, better fellowship, and, more than either, better service for the company in whose service we all were engaged."

Nine teams have already entered the contest for the bronze trophy and many a lively struggle is anticipated.

Miss Lucy C. Huter Wedded.

The wedding of Miss Lucy C. Baker, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Baker, to Mr. Charles T. Knapp, of Poughkeepsie, took place on Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents on South Avenue. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Frank A. Scofield, a cousin of the bride, assisted by Dr. J. R. Wright, the bride's pastor. An abundance of June roses and ferns, with festoons of daisies and a large hall of daisies and ferns formed the pretty decorations. To the strains of Lohengrin wedding march, played by Miss Hazel Baker, a sister of the bride, the bridal party entered the parlor. First came little Miss Edith Knapp, Winnie Davis, Louise Baker, Virginia Gale and Gordon and Durrell Losce, bearing a chain of daisies which formed an aisle. Then came the matron of honor, Mrs. A. K. Doughty, of Poughkeepsie, a cousin of the bride. She wore a gown of white silk trimmed with lace, and carried pink roses, tied with white ribbon. The bride's maid, Miss Nina Baker, sister of the bride, followed. Her dress was white dotted swiss, with lace trimming. She also carried pink roses, with white ribbon. Then came the bride, prettily gowned in white bridal silk, on train, trimmed with applique lace. She wore a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white bride roses, tied with white satin ribbon. The best man was Mr. William Helm, of Watertown, Conn. Following the ceremony congratulations were extended and refreshments served, after which the bride and groom departed in a coach, elaborately decorated with white ribbons and daisies, for the 1:50 train, en route for a two weeks' trip to Carmel, and upper New York State. The bride's traveling costume was gray cloth with hat to match. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Knapp will reside in Newark. Many beautiful and useful presents were received by the bride. Guests were in attendance from Brooklyn, New York City, Poughkeepsie, Shenandoah, N. Y., Watertown, Conn., Cranford and Westfield.

INSURANCE

Is the Talk of the Day. I represent some of the strongest companies in the world. Is your dwelling covered to its full value? Are your household goods insured? Is your automobile insured? Are you insured against loss by burglary or theft? Are your plate glass windows insured? Boys will throw stones. Are you insured against Tornado's and high winds? If you are interested in any of these lines I can give you the necessary protection for a small amount of money.

HUNTERS POINTING.

Lolly Poppy (the Laurel of Dugh's). All Westfielders are invited to stop into Rogers and Trumpp's, 120 Broad street, and inspect their goods. Better still, give them a nice order and see how well the goods, the prices, the service like the bill. Rogers and Trumpp's rapidly increasing success is due to their fair treatment to all. Ring up 240 W if you prefer. You will get just what you order. The home-made candy at the New York Candy Kitchen is known throughout the county, because of its deliciousness. It's fresh, pure, clean. The ice-cream of this popular place is also a home product, made from pure milk, right on the spot. It's used in their ice-cream soda, too. Give the Kitchen a trial and see what a lay-out you will get. MEXICO has the celebrated Rock Dale Print Butter. That's the butter to buy. Also fine tub butter. Prices right. There is no use in talking Dugh's has the best ten cream, ice cream soda, candy, fruits, etc. to be found in Westfield. Try some of the ice cream he has and you will never go any where else for it. Any form of collecting which is undertaken seriously, and pursued consistently, is much more than a relaxation; it is a magnificent education, a source alike of pleasure and of profit; it is a mental tonic, reviving jaded nerves and completely filling one with wholesome exhilaration. Undertaken thus, collecting adds a joy to life.—Collector's Magazine. Typewriting Record. Ray Vancliff, a newspaper man, broke the world's typewriting record at Pueblo, Col., taking 2,600 words during the first 30 minutes, and finishing the hour with 4,917 words, over the long-distance telephone from Denver, 120 miles away. The previous hour record, 3,830 words, was made by Paul Minder, at New York, on November 4, 1905. Alpine Railway. A wonderful mountain railway is being constructed in the Tyrolean Alps by a Swiss engineer named Strubb, of Clarenz, near Montreux. When completed this line will achieve the European record, which has been held up to now by the Stanserhorn railway, for traversing the steepest mountain slope in the world.

CHILDREN'S COUNTRY HOME.

The season at the Home was opened as usual on May 30 with the Decoration Day Festival. The attendance was very gratifying, over four hundred paying admission at the gate. All were delighted with the new wing given by Dr. J. Ackerman Coles which adds much to the beauty and convenience of the house. What was the old dining-room is now the entrance hall to the assembly room, a nobly planned, beautifully finished room which is to have a memorial window to a dear friend of the institution, Mrs. Backwell, aunt of Dr. Coles. A new bath-room is also on this floor. Above is a large dormitory in which the beds are headed to sliding windows, to be run out at night on the screen-enclosed open corridor. A helper's room is also on this floor. The ground floor is well finished play-room. None of the rooms in this wing were finished on Decoration Day, the memorial window was not in place. When all is finished and furnished there will be delightful services in the assembly room of which the notes will be given through the press and to which the public will be invited. The Home was opened to the children on June 1 and twenty-five are now being cared for, all of them cripples or deformed. They have come from the Newark Home for Crippled Children, the New York Orthopedic Hospital and the New York Mission. Several cannot stand for them an appeal is made in another column for Hummocks; three would be greatly appreciated. The managers in a few days will issue an appeal for increased subscriptions and for special gifts towards an endowment fund. The work at the Home is praise-worthy and satisfactory, and the managers look to their friends and a generous public for the needed financial support. Visitors at the Home at any hour are cordially welcome. Police Court News. Joseph Ricardo was fined $10 by Judge Toney last night for keeping a disorderly house on South Avenue. Thomas Dears made a complaint against Fred Johnson, colored, for assault. The complaint was dismissed. Chief O'Neill arrested Nathaniel Rodas yesterday for stealing rings and knives from Albert Snyder. He was held for the Grand Jury.

UNION COUNTY ORPHANS' COURT

In the matter of the application of Charles W. Harden, Administrator of Julia Keenan, deceased, for sale of land to pay debts, order to show cause, Christopher W. Harden, administrator of Julia Keenan, to court, having been filed in this Court under oath, a just and true account of the personal estate and debts of said deceased, whereby it appears that the personal estate of said deceased is insufficient to pay the debts, and that the said land is to be sold to pay the same. It is, on this sixteenth day of May, ordered that the said land, to-wit: that all parcels situated in the lands, townships and precincts of the County of Union, in the State of New Jersey, be sold at public sale, to-wit: at the Court House, in the City of Elizabeth, on the eighteenth day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause why so much of said land as is necessary to pay the debts of said Julia Keenan, deceased, should not be sold as will be sufficient to pay her debts, or the residue thereof, as the case may require. And it is further ordered that the order be read and published in one of the newspapers of this State, as by the statute directed.

By the Court. GEORGE T. PARROT, Surrogate.
O. A. W. W.

NOTICE.

In the County of New Jersey, To WALTER H. LAMBERT, Executor of the will of said Julia Keenan, deceased, appointed by the Court on the day of the above-mentioned order, in a case wherein ELLIOTT LAMBERT is complainant and you are defendant, you are notified to appear in this Court on or before the twelfth day of July next, or in default thereof, such decree will be made against you as the Court shall think equitable and just. The said bill of complaint is first against you for a decree from the bonds of said defendant on the ground of desertion. Dated May eleventh, 1906. JAMES O. CLINE, Solicitor of the Court, 111 Third Street, Westfield, N. J.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

ESTATE OF WILLIAM W. CONNOLLY, Deceased. Pursuant to the order of George T. Parrot, Surrogate of the County of Union, made on the application of the undersigned, Executor of the will of said William W. Connolly, deceased, the creditors of said deceased are notified to present their claims and demands against the estate of said deceased within ninety days from the fifth day of June next, or they will be forever barred from presenting or recovering the same against the said executor. JOSEPH R. CONNOLLY, Executor. O. A. W. W.

EXECUTOR'S SETTLEMENT.

Notice is hereby given, That the account of the subscriber, Executor of the will of the late P. Whitehead, deceased, will be audited and settled by the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphans' Court of the County of Union, on Wednesday, the twelfth day of June next. Dated May fifth, 1906. Frederick A. Whitcomb, O. A. W. W.

The Great Ambition.

This ambition not to be satisfied with little things is characteristic of men of great fiber, and it had a great deal to do in shaping Beecher's career. If he had had an ordinary ambition, he never would have been the power in the world that he was—he never would have become one of the first preachers in the world. A steady stream cannot rise higher than its fountain-head.—Success Magazine.

Effective Remedy.

It is said that a candidate for parliament at the recent English elections, while justifying flogging in the army, remarked: "There is no necessary disgrace in being flogged. I was once flogged myself, and it was for telling the truth, too." "It seems to have cured you," said a voice from the back of the hall. This story was also first told about Prof. Mahaffy, of Dublin, Father Healy, of Bray, making the retort.

How About Defeat?

Art has its charms for the illiterate. A copy of "The Winged Victory" was played last summer in the library of the University of Rochester. A workman assisting in the operation surveyed the headless and armless statue with interest. "An' what may ye call that fellow?" he asked. "That's the statue of 'Victory,'" said the librarian. "Victory is it?" said the man; begorra, I'd like to see the other fellow, thim."

Needed Revision.

A bill is before parliament for the revision of certain ancient Scottish laws. Among them are: "That no Scotsman bring in the realm any lingsmen." "That all persons sail cum to Courts in sobry and quiet manner." "That no Inglesman have benefice within Scotland." Also the statute of "wappynschawings ridaris and gangaris throu the center."

Just as We Think.

Of course there is no future for stale brains, or for a man who stands still and ceases to grow. He is old who thinks he is old, and useless who thinks he is useless. When a man has ceased to grow he begins to die, and many people are half dead at 50, not because of their age, but because of their mental attitude, because of the way they live life.—Success Magazine.

Statues with Top-Hats.

Some of the London newspapers are arguing over the number of statues with "top hats" there are in existence. One is a statue of the late President Kruger that never reached Pretoria and lies in a yard at Durban. Mrs. Kruger stipulated that the top of the hat should be left open so as to hold rainwater for the birds.

Only Six Out of Sixteen.

"Well, another one of my babies is gone," said T. B. Stout, of Marie. "Alice got married to Robert Sheridan. That's seven married now and three dead. It sure seems lonesome to wife and me now with only six children left at home. But that's the way of the world. They're here to-day and gone to-morrow."—Magnum (Okla.) Sun-Monitor.

King Favors Jews.

The London Jewish World states that King Carlos of Portugal, on his recent visit to England, was so impressed with the position of Jews there and by the services they rendered the country that he has stated his intention to have the Jewish religion recognized in Portugal.

RUSSIA IS A RIVAL.

COMPETITOR OF AMERICA IN INDIA OIL FIELDS.

Advantage Lies with Our Producers in Advanced Methods of Refinement, Transportation, Etc.

The illuminating oil trade of British India is at present almost exclusively controlled by Russia. Of the 22,600,000 gallons of kerosene oil imported into Bombay during the fiscal year 1904-05 the czar's empire was credited with more than 17,000,000 gallons, valued at nearly $2,000,000. This oil, however, is not the highest quality of illuminating fluid, states the New York Tribune, Russia has never been able to meet the United States in competition for the higher grades of oil, but for some years she has practically controlled the market of British India in low grade and low priced oils.

For these oils, however, other competitors have appeared in the market, which threaten to take away ultimately her present supremacy. Dutch Borneo has within the last three years increased the volume of her export of kerosene to Bombay from 500,000 to 3,500,000 gallons. Burma oil also shows a remarkable advance, and its first shipment to Bombay was recorded last year, being a part of British India, politically, Burma imports her oil into Bombay duty free, which, of course, gives her a great advantage over the Russian producer. The American producers of kerosene have lately been devoting considerable attention to the importation of Russian oil into Bombay. It is believed that with advanced methods of refinement, system of bulk transportation and immense installations the United States will be able to meet successfully the competition, not only of Russia, but of Borneo and Burma, in the kerosene markets of India.

The Russian oil sent to India is produced near Baku, on the western shore of the Caspian sea. From there it is carried across Trans-Caucasia, some 500 miles, to the port of Batoum, on the Black Sea, on tank cars, holding ten tons each, like those which were used in the Pennsylvania oil fields over 30 years ago. The cost of railway freight is $6.50 a ton.

At Batoum the oil is loaded on oil steamers, which transport it across the Black sea, through the Bosphorus and Dardanelles, down the Aegean sea, across the Mediterranean, through the Suez canal, through the Red sea and the Arabian sea to Bombay, the distance traversed being some 6,000 miles, although Bombay is only about 2,000 miles in a straight line from Baku, the point of departure.

It is thought by the producers of the United States that in their facilities for transportation they have an advantage which will enable them easily to wrest from Russia the predominance which she has held in the oil trade of British India. Russia, herself, however, is doing a good deal to lessen the costs of transportation, and this must be taken into account in forming plans of action in the contest.

A pipe line to unite the wells at Baku with the port of Batoum has been completed, and this cannot fail to have an important and far reaching effect on the Russian oil industry. The length of the line is 570 miles. It crosses the watershed of the province, and will carry crude oil from Baku to be distilled and shipped at Batoum.

The total capacity of the tanks and pipes of the line is, roughly speaking, 12,507 tons. The saving in freight by the pipe line is estimated to be equal to one-half of the old car freight, which will prove an important factor in the competition to hold the oil markets of British India.

The increase of exports is estimated to amount to more than 500,000 tons a year, and it is calculated that as the result of the construction of the new pipe line a lessening of the cost of oil to the consumer can be made of about two cents a gallon. The American producers must be able to meet this reduction, and, possibly, increase it, if it is to secure the rich field now being worked by Russia.

Powerful Torpedo.

The new torpedos of the United States navy is one of the most powerful sea weapons in existence. It will travel more than two and a quarter miles, or twice the range of the Whitehead torpedo, which it supercedes. The new missile is turbine driven. The government will purchase and construct 400 of these torpedoes at a cost of several millions.

Massachusetts Highways.

During the last 12 years approximately 622 miles of state highway have been constructed in Massachusetts. These roads have cost, approximately, $5,160,000. Of these highways about 90 per cent. are of the kind known as macadam roads, the remaining ten per cent. being of gravel.

Need Water.

Jean d'Orsay, discussing in the Paris Matin a proposition that swimming should be taught to Parisian school children, quotes a statistical return showing that the average number of baths taken a year by each person in France is four.

The United Kingdom still easily leads all her colonies in the matter of the raising of cattle. She has 47,000,000 sheep, cattle, horses and pigs, as against New Zealand's 21,000,000.

Sir Patrick Keith Murray has presented to the British nation an old cushion on which the crown of Scotland rested, and it has been placed in the jewel room in the Edinburgh castle.

Lord Rosebery hopes the new liberal ministry in England will take Gen. Booth, of the Salvation Army, into its councils in dealing with the awful problem of London's unemployed.

A candidate for parliament at the recent election in Great Britain has filed a petition in bankruptcy, owing $106,140 and having assets estimated of the value of $8,405. He was an enthusiastic "fiscal reformer."

A new party has been formed in the house of commons, but its object is not political. What it hopes to effect is a reduction in the parliamentary barber shop of the price of shaving from 24 cents to 12 cents.

OF HISTORIC INTEREST.

An edict of Charles IX. of France, dated 1563, made it a civil offense to offer any guest more than three courses at one meal. If a fourth appeared, the provider of the feast was liable to a fine of 200 francs; while the guests who partook of it could be called upon to pay the authorities 40 francs each.

Lord Avelbury, otherwise Sir John Lubbock, was the first person in England to have his photograph taken. M. Deguerre, the co-inventor of the art, came to London to patent his discovery, and paid an early visit to Lord Avelbury's father. The son was playing in the garden and was successfully photographed.

At the end of Washington's administration there were 16 states in the union. There was also the "Northwest Territory," as it was called, not yet organized into states—the whole wide region between the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, from which slavery had been forever excluded by a law passed by congress in 1787. The first census of the nation was taken in 1790; and the population was about 4,000,000 (3,929,211).

Turtle doves were excommunicated in Canada in the seventeenth century, and ternites in Brazil and Peru in the eighteenth. Enough, however, has probably been said. The ecclesiastical of medieval judicial procedure are numerous, but this is, perhaps, one of the greatest, and one can only conclude that our ancestors must have had an abundance of time to waste if they were willing to spend it on such absurdities.

La Fayette's visit to this country (1824) as "the nation's guest" was a joyous event. He traveled through each of the 24 states, and was everywhere welcomed with delight. His visit to the tomb of Washington was full of affectionate remembrance. He was carried home in a national vessel, the Brandywine, named in honor of the battle in which La Fayette first drew his sword in behalf of the colonies.

Great Snakes.

Her lip quivered. She rushed upon stage. "Serpent that you are!" she cried. Though he shuddered at the cruel words, the love-light in his eyes neither faded nor grew cold. "Dear," he murmured, tenderly, "I'm a serpent, you're a snake charmer."

But the audience, regarding the joke as old, hissed.—Washington Star.

Delicate Point Settled.

It has always been a moot point in Austria as to how an officer ought to salute a brother officer when he has a lady on his arm. This delicate point, however, has now been settled by the issue of an official army order. In future if the lady is taking the arm of the officer then he can, and must, give the salute with his left. But if, as a favorite custom is, the officer is taking the lady under the arm he has to disengage himself and salute regularly with his right.

JEWELERS LOSE VAST SUMS

Women of Fashion in London Order
Gems and Jewels Refuse to Pay.

"Millions and millions, through a favorite man, for the dishonest women of fashion, are by no means the only sufferers," said a West End jeweler yesterday. "I use the term 'dishonest' advisedly, for it is surely nothing short of dishonesty for a woman to order things in the hope that her husband will settle the bill, though she has been warned not to incur the expense. We jewelers, on quite a modest computation, must lose between $250,- 000 a year in London alone in unpaid bills.

"One woman this winter, after ordering bangles, rings and a jeweled neck chain to the value of over $100, told us to send the bill to her husband.
He wrote telling us he had forbidden his wife to pledge his credit nearly a year ago, and formally declined to settle the bill. We have not been able to get either our money or our goods."

A Bond street jeweler said: "I have thousands of dollars' worth of book debts which I will sell you for a cent on the dollar.

"There is nothing to prevent a married woman from ordering an article worth $2,500 and never paying a penny.
We cannot get the jewelry returned either. On the whole, I have come to the conclusion that the woman of society is not so honest as we would wish her to be."

DAMASCUS THE UNTOUCHED

The Oriental City Called by Arabs a
"Pearl Enclosed by Emeralds."

Most travelers, I think, will award to Damascus in Syria the palm of being one of the most "untouched" of oriental cities, writes William G. Fitz-Gerald, in Four-Truck News, a lovely ancient snow-white garden, surrounded by forests of pomegranates and other orchards such as caused the Arabs, a thousand years ago, to speak of it as a "pearl enclosed by emeralds." Time has stood still in Damascus for a thousand years and life goes on in the country outside its walls precisely as it did when the ancient Bible historian spoke of the city in the Book of Genesis. For there, plowing is done with a crooked bough drawn by a ragged camel; or by the Arab farmer's wife in double harness with a donkey.
There, too, and likewise within the walls, one sees the long lines of indolent eastern women drawing water from the well, just as Rachel did; or women sitting before the doors of their houses grinding corn in the old Bible way, with upper and nether stones.

THE ENGLISH POLICEMAN.

He is Always Neat and Quiet and Deferential Towards the Public.

Of all departments of the city
(Manchester, England) the one, next to the tramways, of which a stranger sees the most is the police. And in the conduct of the police department, writes Samuel Merwin, in Success Magazine, we find a striking comparison with our American notion of police work. In Manchester, as in London, the policeman is always the servant of the public. As in London, he carries neither club nor revolver. His duties are very nearly the same as those of a New York officer; it is in his method of doing his work that the striking difference lies. He is always quiet, always neat, always respectful, open deferential, in his treatment of the public. Such overbearing manners as we sometimes see in New York policemen would not be tolerated in Manchester—or in London, for that matter.
Graft in the police department is almost unheard of. The laws on this subject sprang out of a lively public spirit and are meant to be enforced.

APACHES NEVER SCALPED.

Contrary to General Report These Indians Never Took Victim's Hair.

The taking of scalps has been spoken of so commonly in the press of the United States that it has become a general practice when speaking of a man having lost his life among the Indians, to say: "He lost his scalp." Novelists even of to-day, when locating their stories in Apacheland, almost invariably scalp the victims of Apache vengeance. As a matter of fact, writes E. S. Curtis, in Scribner's one can say that the Apache never took scalps.
Men who have lived in the Apache country and have been closely associated with them for 30 years or more, claim that no full-blooded Apache ever scalped a man he killed. On the contrary, he would not touch a body after death, and would throw away his weapons if stained with human blood.
"Their own dead the men never help to bury. This task is left to the women.

Sartorial Perspicacity.

"I should like," the man cautiously explained to his tailor, "to have a little pocket, a very, very small pocket,
one you could hardly see, you know,
put somewhere, say in the hem of my trousers, or in the waistband, oh,
where it couldn't be so easily found.
You understand?" "I see," said the tailor. "You are married now."—N. Y.
Sun.

Just a Family Jar.

He (angrily)—So there was a man after you when you married me, was there?
She—Yes; there was.
"Poor fool! I wish to heavens you had married him."
"I did."—Boston Transcript.

OLD INDIAN FEUD.

HOW IT WAS ENDED BY A LIT-TLE GIRL.

Crazy Wolf was a warrior of the Sioux nation, who held to all the savage traditions of his race. For years he refused to receive rations from the hands of the whites, and this marked him singular among all the Sioux.
His deadly enemy was Little Bear, who had made lasting peace in his heart with the whites and who had yielded little by little to the allu-ments of civilized living.

The enmity of Crazy Wolf and Little Bear dated from the day of the great battle with the Pawnees.

When the remnant of the stricken Pawnees had turned to fly Crazy Wolf and Little Bear quarreled over the right to take a scalp, and a hand-to-hand combat ensued. The chiefs parted them and said that neither must die, for the nation had need of all its men. Though the hands of Crazy Wolf and Little Bear were stayed by the chieftains, hatred still lived in their breasts.

It was ten years after the battle with the Pawnees and at the Pine Ridge agency, where a portion of the Sioux had been gathered, the government erected a schoolhouse for the Indian children. Instantly a division occurred between the fathers of the tribe. One-half declared that the teaching of the whites should never have place in the minds of their children. The children of Little Bear went to school. The children of Crazy Wolf were kept in the wigwam.

Runners came to Pine Ridge from Standing Rock and Rosebud. They told of the coming of the Messiah, that the buffalo were returning and that if the Southern Sioux would but put their ears to the ground they would hear the thunder of the hoofs
of the oncoming herd.

One-half of the warriors at Pine Ridge agency were seized with the Messiah craze. They danced the ghost dance and put on the ghost shirts.
The one-half stampeded from the agency, and with it went Crazy Wolf, as savage in heart as he was when he fought the Pawnees on the frontier of Nebraska. Little Bear stayed at the agency.

One day after the battle of Wounded Knee had been fought a band of 20 Sioux braves broke away from the main body for the sole purpose of raiding Pine Ridge agency and killing the children who were gathered in the schoolhouse—the children of their brothers who had succumbed to the white man's ways. In the band was Crazy Wolf, his heart full of the lust of killing.

The warriors came within sight of the schoolhouse. It stood on a bluff, and on one side was absolutely unprotected. Crazy Wolf knew the location of the room in which the little ones gathered daily at their lessons. The mounted warriors made a headlong rush down the valley sidriving the ridge, and as they whirled by the school they poured volley after volley into the room where the children of the friendly Sioux were assembled.

It was not the fault of Crazy Wolf that on that day there was not a slaughter of the innocents. A teacher had seen the feathered heads showing among the willows by the White Clay creek, and, taking the alarm, had hurried the children to the cellar.

The raiding band went northward.
There was cavalry at the post to take up the pursuit, and the fugitives succeeded in reaching the main body of Indians, who by this time were surrounded by the troops of Gen. Miles and were being gradually forced into the agency.

Crazy Wolf, when he saw the surrender of his brethren was coming, mounted his pony and made for the Bad Lands. He foresaw the end of the uprising and the complete subjugation of his people, and he laid it at the doors of the tepees of the Sioux who had refused to join the braves
on the warpath.

Crazy Wolf made up his mind to kill Little Bear. He nearly starved in the Bad Lands and his pony was dead. A week after the surrender he started for the agency on foot. His ammunition was gone and he had nothing but his knife. He ate willow bark and roots. Hunger took his bodily strength, but his heart purpose was unweakened.

Crazy Wolf, starving, lay on the bank of the White Clay creek. The tepee of Little Bear was only 300 yards away. Crazy Wolf was famished, but he lay there in the bushes waiting for night and vengeance. He looked down to the water's edge, and there he saw a little girl with a willow basket full of foot. The little one looked up and saw the famished eyes of the warrior.
She smiled at him and held out her basket. Crazy Wolf knew his strength was going fast. It might not last till the hour of revenge. He ate the proffered food. The child was molding clay. Suddenly she turned and offered Crazy Wolf the model of a peace pipe.
"You have eaten," she said, "now smoke."

Crazy Wolf took the pipe and blew an imaginary cloud of smoke away from his lips. The little one smiled at him again.

"Whose child are you?" asked Crazy Wolf.

"The child of the great warrior Little Bear," was the answer.

Crazy Wolf had eaten the bread of peace. He had never broken a tradition of the Sioux race.

Crazy Wolf walked into the agency,
and a little child was leading him.
