TOWN COUNCIL MEETS

Receive Complaint from Health Board Against Dust Raised By Sweeping Machines.

LICENSE TRANSFER HELD OVER.

All Bids for New Fire House Above Limit
Lighting Contract Soon to Expire.
Routine Business Settled.

The Town Council met in regular session at the Town Hall, Tuesday night. Every bid for constructing the new fire house was rejected as being too high. The contract for laying sidewalks was awarded and routine matters taken up. Mayor Alpers and every Councilman excepting Mr. Davis was present.

Six bids for constructing the new fire house were received and several bids for putting in the plumbing, heating plant and lighting facilities. All the bids were thrown out as exceeding the $20,000 limit for the entire building and tower, and the new bids are re-advertised and will be opened on the evening of July 18.

Bills and claims to the amount of $2,424.75 were ordered paid. Of this amount $175.73 is for improvements and $32.50 for tarva. A warrant to the order of the County Treasurer for $5,575.16 was ordered as Westfield's share of the County road bonds. A certificate for $2,300 for the sinking fund of the County road bonds was ordered to be drawn.

Notice from the Public Service Corporation, that the contract for streetlighting would soon expire, was received. They offer to furnish 25 candle power carbon lamps at $17 a year, or 32 candle power tungsten lamps at $18 a year. The matter was left in the hands of the street lighting committee.

The contract for laying stone sidewalks was awarded to J. W. Manhattan, of Plainfield. Only one other bid was received.

A petition was presented asking for a curb, brick gutter, and macadam for the full width of the roadway on Broad street, between Elm street and Central avenue. Other petitions for improvements were received.

The application of Anna Borchering for a transfer of the liquor license of William Malchukski, Grove street, was referred to the excise committee.

Communications from the Board of Health were received stating that the garbage ordinance had been passed, complaint of the bad condition of the street at Elm street and Sinclair place, complaint of the dust arising from the sweeping machines used to prepare the streets for the application of tarva and from the street sweeper used along Broad street. The Health Board thought water should be applied before such sweeping was done. These matters were referred to the committee on roads and sidewalks.

The letter of the Board of Health asking for more specific information concerning houses not connected with the sewers was referred to the law committee.

A TWO-FOLD GAIN.

People's Bank Nearly Doubles Resources Since First Year's Business.

The People's National Bank has just circulated an artistic folder, the work of the Standard Press, by which some views of the progress of that institution are displayed in a convincing manner. An exterior and two interior views of the new bank building are shown, on one side of which is the condensed statement of accounts at the close of business on June 30, and on the other the names of members of the Board of Directors. The statement tells the tale of progress, which is reflected in the views of the new building, for it shows that the bank has nearly doubled its resources since the close of its first year's business in 1907. At that time the resources were $200,000; to-day they are over $400,000. The total deposits of the bank to-day are $380,000.70. The bank was organized in 1906.

Held for Beating Local Servant Girl.

Held on suspicion of having robbed and beaten a girl who gave her name as Annie Carmack, a servant employed in the household of Mr. H. N. Walker, of Prospect street, Westfield, to Ebenburg, Pa., and there beating her into insensibility, Steven Orszak, a Pole of Elizabeth, was arrested in that city, Monday night. Request for such arrest was made by District Attorney J. W. Leach, of Cambria county, Pa., on a charge of attempted murder, criminal assault and robbery.

Mr. Bowman and family, of Euclid avenue have gone to Westport, Conn., for the summer season.

Miss Dorothy Francis and Miss Paul, of Stapleton, S. I., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Francis.

THINK INITIAL MOVE FOR WATER PLANT IS IMPERATIVE

Mayor Alpers and Councilman Floyd Fear Present Supply is Exhaustable.

Mayor A. L. Alpers and Councilman E. D. Floyd, with Mayor MacQuoid, of Roselle and the members of the Citizen's Committee of Cranford, visited the water station of the Union Water Co., at Netherwood, yesterday afternoon, as the guests of Frank Bergen and former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, directors of the Company. The visit was made with a view to ascertaining the nature of the work being done to supply Westfield and environs with sufficient water from that source.

It was found that two wells had been driven and that work had been begun on three more. When these are completed it is declared by the officials of the company that there will be an adequate supply of water. It is feared, however, that the company has a problem on its hands in endeavoring to supply this section with water for an indefinite period. The section is growing so rapidly that the feeling is entertained, by both Mayor Alpers and Councilman Floyd, that some day this town may suddenly be in dilemma for want of a sufficient water supply unless immediate steps are taken by the people here to secure a local water plant. Both gentlemen stated positively that they thought an initial move was imperative, and they declared that, as a matter of public safety against a possible failure of the present supply, the town should, through its officials, discover a good source in this locality and purchase it for future use.

SOME GOING HERE!

Miss Syracuse and Aron B. to Race Again at Fair Acres.

The Westfield Driving and Riding Club is making arrangements for a high class meet at the Fair Acres track, on the afternoon of July 16. There will be four races in all. Those in charge are negotiating for and will probably get together in the free-for-all, that great quartette, Aron B., 2:15 1/4; Miss Syracuse, 2:10 1/4; Lillian W., 2:16 1/4; Strongheart, 2:14 1/4. To this end a set of gold mounted harness will be given the winner of this race, while a silver cup and blue ribbons will be given the winners of the other three races. All these horses have stopped better than their records at matinees or in work outs and are now rounding into their best form. Every race will be a top-notch, and the local truck officials will undoubtedly duplicate and even surpass the recent meet at Fair Acres.

TRUST CO.'S STEADY ADVANCE.

Local Institution Has More Than Tripled Its Resources Since 1903.

The report of the Westfield Trust Co., issued at the close of business on June 30, is a certain indication of the rapid progress which the oldest banking institution is making. The deposits now aggregate $870,000.48, and the surplus and profits (earned) amount to $68,357.39. The institution has gained in total resources nearly $100,000 in the last year. Looking backward the progress of the Westfield Trust Co. has been gratifying. Since 1903 the assets have tripled. In that year they were $338,940. In July, 1906, they were $417,330.01. To-day the assets are over a million dollars. The influence of this institution has been as extensive as its business growth.

Resigns After Twenty Years Service.

Mrs. W. S. Hurst, of the Boulevard, who has served as superintendent of the primary department of the Methodist Sunday School for twenty years was presented with an electric study lamp by the officers of the school Sunday afternoon. All present expressed regret that Mrs. Hurst was about to give up the position she has so ably filled for a score of years.

E. D. FLOYD FOR MAYOR.

Declared That First Ward Councilman Will Be Choice of His Party at Primaries.

MAY YIELD TO WISHES OF FRIENDS.

Regarded as the Logical Successor of Mayor Alpers Because of His Knowledge of Public Affairs.

It is now certain that Mr. Edward D. Floyd, councilman from the first ward, will be the Republican candidate for Mayor to succeed Hon. Augustus L. Alpers, whose term of office will expire next January, and who will not be a candidate for re-election. Mr. Floyd has long been regarded as the logical successor of Mayor Alpers because of his wide knowledge of town affairs. His friends, both Democrats and Republicans, have insisted that he should be a candidate, and it is generally understood that he has finally yielded to their demands. It is said, too, that he will have no opposition at the coming primaries.

Mr. Floyd has served as Councilman from the First Ward for two consecutive terms having been nominated and elected, both times without opposition. He has been Chairman of the Police Committee and a member of the following committees: Fire Department and Hydrants, Finance, Town Property and Street Lighting. His work on these committees has made him thoroughly conversant with the details of each, and as chief executive his experience will be most helpful in the solution of important problems. As a presiding officer, Mr. Floyd will be able to give intelligent direction to the deliberations of the Council because of his familiarity with the methods of procedure.

It is pointed out, also, that he is the logical candidate for Mayor because he is as widely known as any public official who ever held local office. He knows the people, the condition of public affairs and his judgment in all matters of public import will be practical. Mr. Floyd is personally popular. He is president of the Westfield Golf Club and has done much to assist in the prosperity of that organization.

A HALF-HOLIDAY OF SPORT FOR CLERKS AND MERCHANTS. Ball Yard Acquaintance to Be Revived Next Thursday.

Incident to the announcement of a half-holiday for local business houses on Thursday afternoon, preparations are being made to give merchants and clerks an afternoon of wholesome diversion. The new half-holiday rule will go into effect next Thursday at which time a baseball game will be played between the local merchants and clerks at Recreation Park. Warren Woodruff and other one-time baseball sharps are scheduled to renew ball-yard acquaintance and the game is going to be "classy." It is planned to play a game every week, and arrangements are now being made to schedule a game with the Cranford merchants and clerks for July 21. The local ballists have visions of putting their neighbors in the has-been corner when the rival teams meet on the diamond. It looks like a happy revival of old times.

Shoots Strange-Acting Dog.

W. A. Brown, of Orchard street, shot an unknown dog at his home, Saturday. Mr. Brown said that the dog acted suspiciously and he appeared to have the rabies. He showed his teeth and made a dash for Mr. Brown, who was seated on his porch. Mr. Brown protected himself by means of a screen, until a gun could be procured. He then disposed of the animal. The dog's appearance was sudden and apparently it was not a native of these parts.

Safe and Sane Fourth.

Owing to the safe and sane ordinance no serious accidents were reported in Westfield. Two small fires were reported.

The fire department was called out because of a blaze on the roof of a barn back of the Presbyterian manse in the afternoon. Fire-crackers caused the fire. Practically no damage was done.

Fire-crackers also caused a small blaze in the kitchen of Mr. Chilton, of Central avenue. The blaze was put out without the help of the firemen and little damage resulted.

—May Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Taylor, of Mountain avenue, is spending a month with her uncle, Mr. Edward Townsend, of Westmont, N. J.

—Rev. Dr. Frank A. Scofield, pastor of the Willis Avenue Methodist Church, of New York City, will exchange pulpits with Rev. C. J. Greenwood, Sunday evening. The two pastors are old friends.

PETITION BEFORE BOARD

Mr. Thompson Presents It and Urges Its Consideration on Behalf of Over 100 Signers.

FOR SCHOOL IN EAST BROAD STREET

Some Opposition By Lenox Avenue Citizens—Board Awaits Opinion of Attorney General—Other Matters.

A petition signed by over 100 legal voters and representing each of the four wards, was presented to the Board of Education at its meeting Tuesday night. The document was in legal form and called for the holding of a special election to reconsider the question of a site for the proposed new school house and the appropriation to be asked therefor. It gives to the voters the alternative of voting either for the building of addition or wings to the Washington school or for purchasing a tract of land opposite Stanley avenue, in the East Broad street section and erecting an eight-room school house thereon. The first proposition carries with it an appropriation of $45,000, and the latter an appropriation of $40,000.

The petition was presented by Hon. Lloyd Thompson, who briefly outlined the facts in the case. He stated that there was a feeling of uncertainty as to the efficiency of the Washington school plan, and that its selection by the voters by the small majority of eight votes was due to a prejudice against the Mountain avenue site. Mr. Thompson said that it was felt that the building of a school in the East Broad street section would meet with the approval of the voters. While he said lawyers had stated that the Board must comply with the provisions of the petition provided no action had been taken to build the school according to the wishes of the majority as expressed at the last election, the purpose of petition was more in the nature of a request and was not meant as a movement to embarrass the Board in its work. The Board was asked only to give the matter serious consideration. Mr. Thompson submitted opinions to substantiate the legality of the petition, one coming from Assistant State Superintendent Betts, who had himself read it, and with certain minor corrections, had declared it to be legal.

Mr. Boden, representing some of the residents of Lenox avenue, was present and protested against the building of the school on the site selected. He opposed the building of the school there because he felt that it would depreciate the value of his property.

The Board members discussed the petition at length and there was a sentiment in favor of proceeding with the work of complying with its provisions; some seemed to think that the Board had no option in the matter. It was thought best, however, to defer action until a written opinion from the Attorney General as to the legality of the proceedings could be secured. The District Clerk was authorized to secure this opinion.

The resignation of Mr. Earle A. Merrill as a member of the Board was accepted with regret, and the appointment of his successor was deferred until the September meeting. Some available candidates for the place were discussed. Mr. Denigoy was appointed chairman of the teacher's committee to succeed Mr. Merrill, and Mr. Low chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Dennis was appointed a member of the teacher's committee. Chairman Egel made his report on the work of improving the school buildings during the summer. Several contracts were awarded to the lowest bidders from estimates secured by him.

Miss Ethel McNinch tendered her resignation as teacher in the McKinley school and it was accepted. Miss McNinch has accepted a position in Tuckahoe, N. Y. Mr. Low announced the selection of the following teachers:

Miss Lella Sterner, a graduate of Stroudsburg Normal; Ray F. Snyder, a graduate of Lafayette and Easton Business Colleges; E. A. Reuther, of the New York State Normal. Miss Sterner will teach in the McKinley school, Mr. Snyder will teach commercial courses and Mr. Reuther will be at the head of the Manual Training Department. He will teach three days in Westfield and two in Cranford each week.

—Anson F. Grant and Rollin P. Grant and family, of Westfield avenue, went to Belmar to-day for a two weeks stay.

—Charles Wright and family, of Brooklyn, have been visiting at the home of J. Fred Wright, Harrison avenue.

'ARON B.' RETAINS LAURELS.

Wins from Strong Heart and Lowers Plainfield Racing Record to 2:16 1-4

The Plainfield Driving Association put on a good card at the Fourth of July races. It was racing weather and our Plainfield brethren are getting wise to the advantage and comfort of the sprinkling pot. The feature was the redoubtable Aron B., who won the second race and lowered the Plainfield track record to 2:16 1-4. Westfield was well represented by local horsemen and others who went up to see Wm. Wortendyke's Tramway and H. H. Hutchings's Foxy Todd start.

Great interest was centered on the second race for Aron B. was pitted against a new rival, Strong Heart. While Adam Blair's horse retained his laurels, Strong Heart can always make him step, and was right on the job to capture a heat if anybody made a mistake. Strong Heart drew the pole, Aron B. second position and Lillian W., outside. In the first heat Aron B. went up in the air, which gave Strong Heart first position. The real race was in the next three heats, all of which were captured by Aron B. In the second heat all three horses went a fast mile without a skip or break and Aron B. lowered the Plainfield track record in a race from 2:16 1-4 to 2:16 1-4. Aron B. did not win the race without his troubles. In the last heat Stello thought he saw an opening between the other two horses and tried to get through, but the boys closed on him and Lillian W. took to the air.

The first race was won in sing-song fashion by Stello's Igo, who was at no time in danger. In the second heat all the field but Mary S. went up in the air. Foxy Todd acted bad at first but finally settled down and stepped a smooth mile.

The third race developed no warm contests. Jane Todd, the winner, lost the second heat by breaking. Wm. Wortendyke's Tramway, the easy going son of the Tramp, although this is his second start in a race, showed that he is fast developing into a race horse worthy of his breeding. His driver had a somewhat narrow escape from injury in the second heat. Mr. J. S. Irving's Alasia took sick some time before the races and was unable to start.

GOLF CLUB TENNIS.

Some Interesting Matches—Local Team to Play Jersey City.

The Men's Doubles tournament on July 4th had five teams entered and resulted in some close play. The Gould-Moore and Newman-Cutler teams are in the finals for the cups. Their match was not finished, each having won a set. The match will probably be decided on July 16th. On July 9th the Golf Club tennis team plays a return match at Jersey City with the Danforth Club. The courts are near the Greenville station of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. It is hoped our club will be well represented by members to support their team. The players representing Westfield Golf Club will probably be Messrs. Dietz, Gould, Smith, Stern and Takaki.

Athletics.

A local team journeyed to Roselle Saturday to play base ball with a team from the Men's Club of the First Baptist Church of that place. After an exciting and well played game of 10 innings, the score was 7-7. The Westfield players were as follows: H. Evans, p.; Robert DeCamp, c.; Benjamin Boden, 1b.; William Gould, 2b.; A. V. Smith, 3b.; Charles Moore, s. s.; C. R. Dann, l. f.; Walter Andrews, c. f.

The Cubs lost to Metuchen by a score of 5-3, at Metuchen, Saturday. The batteries for Westfield were Green and Welch.

Tartia.

There seems to be some misapprehension as to the proper method of preparing the streets for the application of tartia, and the proper amount of this material to be used. Those familiar with the use of tartia are agreed on certain propositions: as applied to "Tartia B," which is used in Westfield, except on parts of Elm street where "Tartia X" has been used.

Two things are essential to the successful application of tartia: First, the surface of the macadam should be thoroughly cleaned of all dust, dirt or screenings, thus leaving the stones which form the bonded road exposed over all the surface. Secondly, the surface of the road or street should be perfectly dry.

It seems reasonable to say that the horse sweepers can do the cleaning better than hand brooms, because they are quicker and are better able to loosen up all the dust and dirt.

If the streets are sprinkled before the sweeping is done all the dust and dirt cannot be removed and the tartia will not penetrate the macadam, which is the object aimed at. When the road is perfectly dry, and at no other time, the tartia should be applied. Now, it almost goes without saying, that since tartia contains some oil, it will not mix with water. Thus water would keep the tartia from penetrating into the macadam.

After properly cleaning the street tartia B to the amount of one-third gallon per square yard, or more if the road will absorb it, should be uniformly applied. The road should then be allowed to remain unused for from two to twenty-four hours if possible, to permit the absorption of the tartia. Sharp, clean sand should be spread over the surface in quantity just sufficient to absorb the excess of the tartia. Of course street sweepings if of suitable quality could be substituted for the sand. After the binding material of the road has been firmly cemented with the tartia, the street may be cleaned with brooms as required.

Of course a cloud of dust is raised while this sweeping is going on, and we know that disease germs are thereby carried about. However this seems a small matter when compared with the dust nuisance which used to last from spring until autumn. Why not close the windows until the enemy has passed? It seems unavoidable that some of the tartia should be tracked into the houses, but this too is temporary. Those who doubt the efficacy of tartia as compared with oil as a dust killer, will find an object lesson in Plainfield where the two have been used on near by streets of similar construction. Tartia proved superior in every way.

The local authorities have applied tartia on our streets properly and efficiently, and the streets so treated, in consequence, are among the best in the county. The rain interfered somewhat with this work, but the authorities can hardly be held responsible for the visitations of J. Pluvius.

Give Mere Man a Chance.

Speaking of civility to animals, we have organizations well equipped and very active to shield from all harm, the pet canary birds, down trodden cats, bon-constrictors, little Fido, and the noblest of them all, the horse. Why not a society to protect merely human beings from the brute creation? Who would not be relieved, especially during these dog days, from dogs with pseudo-muzzles of leather, dogs provided with only the muzzles given them by the creator of all good things, from howling cats of nocturnal devilishness, from the innocent chickens seeking a worm or bug in our pet lettuce or pansy bed? While we are at the house-ly and the mesquite, why not tackle other obvious nuisances?

Keep Off the Grass Please.

All citizens are requested to keep off the grass of the Washington school grounds. Already this fine lawn has been injured in this way. The Board of Education is having the walks graveled and rolled smooth, so that the excuse that the walks hurt the feet, no longer will be legitimate.

CERTAINLY the joy of ownership more than compensates for any sacrifice involved. Suppose you do have to go without gratifying some passing fancy isn't it worth the satisfaction it gives to know you have that much more in the home?

Not very good business to pay out money for ten years or more and at the end of that time have nothing to show for it.

The regular once-a-month-payment does the trick, and before you know it you have a solid foundation laid for future needs. Should you want to buy or build a home we will loan you the money at 5% interest, allow you to pay it back in monthly installments, and in amounts about what you would pay for rent. Keeping in Touch With Home

THE bread-winner is frequently delayed beyond his regular hour. This disturbs the household arrangements. The family does not mind a reasonable delay provided there is notice in advance.

With a telephone in the home a man can advise his family of any delay. A residence telephone also provides the means for the family to communicate with him through the day. Not a week passes that the family has not some urgent message to send to the man of the house.

The cost of residence telephone service is negligible as compared with its convenience.

Remember, too, that every Bell Telephone is a Long Distance Station.

ENGLISH VIEW OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

BY JOHN ARTHUR RAMB.

Valedictory Address Delivered at the Commencement Exercises of The Westfield High School, June 16, 1910.

I hate England! I hate England! That is what a young American, not yet in his "teens," told me a few days ago. He is to be pardoned, however, because of his youth. But I wonder if any of you feel the same way. Not I, and I am not an Englishman either. Did it ever occur to you that there might have been and was an English side to the American Revolution?

American history, like American politics, to be most clearly seen, must be studied in the light of Europe. The history of this nation is too meager and biased if he has his knowledge merely in the study of American subjects from American school books and American authors. Nowhere is this so strikingly true as where the American Revolution is concerned, for American journals and school books of a past generation—fortunately not so true of the present—have conveyed false and exaggerated conceptions of England's despotism and tyranny. We have unconsciously received the impression that England never regarded her colonies in America with any feeling but hatred, and as fit subjects for harsh legislation and unjust taxation. Nothing, however, could be farther from the truth. No nation ever loved her colonies so sincerely or treated them so liberally as England. Is anything more astonishing than that England lost her colonies because she loved them?

Let us consider the results of the French and Indian war. By the Peace of Paris, 1763, France retired absolutely from the North American Continent, leaving England in complete control of Canada and all the territory east of the Mississippi River. What did this mean to England's colonies in America? The removal forever of all danger of foreign interference left them absolute masters of their destinies. The one dark cloud which had hung over their future was dispelled. No longer were they threatened by any serious danger. No longer could any limits be assigned to their expansion. By expelling the French from America England opened for her colonies a road to independence. It was not an unconscious step on England's part, but one of careful deliberation, for Englishmen were not blind to this possibility by any means. The question whether Canada should be retained or restored to France was much discussed. With the total expulsion of the French from America, there would be nothing to prevent the colonies from breaking away from England if they so desired. To conquer a country three thousand miles away, with a seacoast of more than one thousand miles, would be a task of great difficulty and ruinous expense. To hold it, contrary to the will of the people, would be impossible. England, by her command of the sea, might easily destroy its commerce, disturb its fisheries and bombard its seaport towns, but she could strike no vital blow. Yet, England's trust and faith in her colonies were too strong, and Canada was retained. Thus had England shown her love for her colonies by involving herself in a war in their behalf which cost the lives of thousands of English soldiers and more than doubled her national debt.

Let us now turn to England's treatment of her colonies. A surprising difference is seen at once between England's colonies and those of other nations. As France was then the most liberal of European countries in her colonial relations, let us compare England with France in this respect. England allowed her colonists practically to govern themselves. Under their charters, their government was purely representative. They elected their local officers and assemblies, and sent their own representatives to the general colonial assembly. In most cases they even elected their own governors. France gave her colonists most of these privileges. They knew nothing of self-government or of self-taxation. The colony was ruled absolutely by the home government, and was continually interfered with. The roots of mediæval feudalism were fastened in the soil.

Not only did English colonists enjoy more liberty than their French neighbors in their government, but in their commerce as well. True, England practically controlled the commerce of her colonies, but what nation did not? Was it not natural for England to expect to derive the benefit of trade rather than some other nation? France not only monopolized the trade of her colonies, but even gave the important trade in beavers exclusively to a company in France. England's commercial policies were not above criticism by any means, but let us not forget that the commercial policies of other nations were far worse.

Historians have laid very little stress upon the great trade in smuggling carried on by the colonies, yet they have never failed to pour forth volumes of abuse upon the Writ of Assistance. It was bad enough for smuggling to assume the important branch of regular trade it did, but when the New England States systematically supplied French fleets, French garrisons, and the French West Indies with large quantities of provisions even during the French and Indian war, it was high time for England to interfere. Issued for the purpose of stopping this illicit trade, which was nothing less than disloyalty, the Writ of Assistance were perfectly legal, disregarding the fact that they were frequently used in England as general warrants.

In 1765 the Stamp Act, which caused so much discussion on both sides of the water, was passed by Parliament. Its purpose was to raise by taxation, a revenue toward the support of ten thousand English troops in America, primarily for colonial protection. This was necessary, for the injustice of the colonists' treatment of the Indians, and the encroachments upon their land, frequently led to horrible Indian uprisings. During such crises, because of the jealousy and lack of unity among the states, those who were out of the zone of immediate danger almost totally disregarded requests for aid. In 1763 a confederation of several Indian tribes had suddenly swept over the whole western border of Pennsylvania and Virginia, had murdered almost all the English settlers scattered beyond the mountains, had surprised and captured every British fort between the Ohio River and Lake Erie, and had closely blockaded Fort Detroit and Pittsburgh. Due to the presence of English troops in America, the Indians had been finally defeated and driven back, after a terrible struggle which lasted fourteen months. This was a sufficient proof that a permanent force of English soldiers was necessary to insure the protection of the colonists. Was it too much to expect them to defray one-third of the expense for the support of such a force? Burdened as she was by debt, England gladly offered to bear the greater part of it. After a year had elapsed without any action but objection on the part of the colonies, England passed the Stamp Act. Immediately there was violent opposition in America. The colonists denied the right of Parliament to tax them. From all over the colonies came cries of "Taxation without representation is tyranny!"

Viewed from a standpoint of International Law of that time and not of mere sentiment of this or any other century, England had a perfect right to tax them. The colonists were just as much under the authority of Parliament as Englishmen in England, for Parliament of England was Parliament of the whole English Empire. Colonial Charters did not abridge Parliament's jurisdiction over them in the least. They were Englishmen still living in a land just as much English as England.

In defense of their position, or rather opposition, the colonists declared that they were not represented in Parliament. Was England? In one sense no! It is an undisputed fact that nine-tenths of the English people had no votes. Because of the "rotten borough" system the great manufacturing towns, which contributed so largely to the public burdens, such as Manchester, Sheffield and Leeds, were, for the most part, wholly unrepresented. If Parliament taxed unrepresented Englishmen without rebellion, why not the colonies? Yet the colonists were represented. It was a first principal of the English Constitution that a member of Parliament was the representative not only of his own constituency, but also of the whole empire. Men connected with, or at least especially interested in, the colonies always found their way into Parliament. Can we say without the slightest compunction or injustice to these men that America was not represented when Pitt and Burke, two of the greatest statesmen England has ever produced, were constantly making the walls of Parliament resound with their brilliant speeches in America's behalf.

On March 5, 1770, we are told, occurred one of the most horrible massacres in history. A body of seven English soldiers on duty in Boston, deliberately fired into a mob of forty or fifty Americans, killing five and wounding six, merely for a playful attack with snowballs, stones and clubs! Perhaps no single event in American history has been exaggerated more than this. Yet the truth is, that the action taken by the soldiers, much as it is to be regretted, was purely in self-defense. The Americans took the initiative, and they should have taken the consequences in the same spirit. Had they left the soldiers unmolested, the "terrible massacre" would never have been committed.

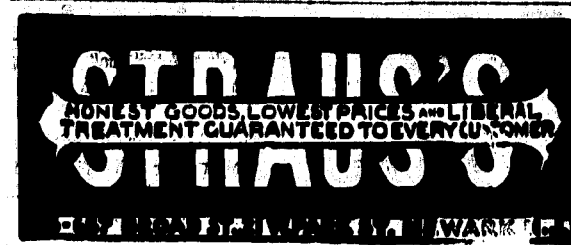

Three years later, in December, 1773, Boston held the greatest party in her history, an event that created wild delight everywhere in America. Three ships laden with tea from England arrived at Boston harbor. Foiled in their plan to send the tea back to England, a body of forty or fifty Americans, disguised as Indians, boarded the ships on the night of the sixteenth, and emptied the whole cargo, worth $60,000 into the water! Why? Simply because there was a tax on it! That the price of tea was actually lower than in England mattered little. They saw only the tax. By this foolish and condemnable act, Boston, and all America, since it applauded heartily, threw down the gauntlet of defiance. England, exasperated beyond endurance, and deeply insulted, accepted the challenge and passed the five Intolerable Acts early in 1774, which, because of the transportation of troops to America, led directly to war.

It is unnecessary to trace events any further. The question which now remains is simply this: Was the American Revolution justifiable? To say "Yes," because the Americans stood for liberty in its truest sense, is a very beautiful justification indeed, but worth absolutely nothing. Sentiment is all very well in its place, but its place is not here. Was the American Revolution justified by real grievances? Yes! At least three of the Intolerable Acts were a direct violation of the English Constitution. America had failed to comprehend England's attitude, and had consequently misconstrued her policies. Yet, blind as America had been, England had been still blinder. She had failed to see that there were limits to her authority, and that these limits were reached and exceeded when she violated the English Constitution. Little did she realize that the colonies which she estranged by her own acts would some day eclipse England herself, and as the United States of America, lead the whole world!

As July 4, 1776, marked a crisis in the life of this nation, so will June 16, 1910, mark a crisis for us as graduates. It will not mean the sudden bursting of bonds that had begun to annoy and chafe our independent, buoyant spirits; a sudden renunciation of allegiance to an authority, which, because of circumstances, we could no longer respect and acknowledge; but a gentle and painful severing of ties which we vain would leave unbroken. It will mean the achievement in a moment of dreams which we have tenderly, almost sacredly cherished through four of the happiest years of our lives; years, that have slipped by so swiftly and peacefully that we have been almost wholly unconscious of the progress of time. We have reached to-night, the first goal of our youthful ambition. We have come here to-night for the last time as a class, to bid a fond farewell to those who have made the past few years what they have been to us, and what they will be to us in the future, years full of sweet and lingering remembrance. It is with the

JUDGE RUNYON TO OPPOSE C.N.FOWLER FOR CONGRESS.

Plainfield Magistrate Announces His Candidacy for Nomination.

William N. Runyon, City Judge of Plainfield, has announced his candidacy for nomination to Congress in the Fifth Congressional District, in opposition to Congressman Charles Newell Fowler, of Elizabeth. It is said that County Chairman Frank Smith looks with favor upon Judge Runyon's candidacy, and that State Treasurer Daniel Voorhees, Republican leader of Morris County, will support Judge Runyon.

JUDGE WILLIAM N. RUNYON.

Judge Runyon was born in the City of Plainfield, was graduated from the High School there, from Yale University and the New York Law School. He is a member of many secret societies and lodges, the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and Scroll and Keys. He is very popular in his home city. He has been City Judge four consecutive terms.

In his announcement Judge Runyon says: "If nominated and elected I pledge myself to a constant and faithful discharge of my duties in helping fulfill the promises to which the Republicans stand committed and I beg to assure my fellow citizens, one and all, that my acts shall be the result of my own conclusions and not simply the expression of others' mandates; that neither fear nor favor shall sway me, and that so far as in me lies I shall at all times be truly a representative of the people. With this statement I offer myself for your consideration and shall be well content to abide by your verdict."

Another Plea for the Horse.

July 1, 1910.

EDITOR STANDARD:

Dear Sir—I read with much pleasure Miss Harning's article in last week's STANDARD regarding the number of poor crippled and cruelly treated horses in this town. I too have noticed almost daily a number of such wretched crippled and overworked horses and wondered that the S. P. C. A. did not locate a thorough going man (or woman) as agent here where one is so badly needed. My sympathy has always been with the horse. What would we do without him? I also remarked different times about the poor beast with an iron band on his leg and there are lots of others just as badly off. All honor to the S. P. C. A. and its noble work and humane treatment of the good and faithful horse.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. J. HASKINS.

He plead guilty and was put in the jug to await the action of the grand jury.
