THE SLATE TO DATE

E. D. Floyd and J. A. Dennis Will Be Opposed in Fight For Mayoralty.

H. W. EVANS A CANDIDATE.

Will Be Republican Nominee for Council in Ward 1—W. R. Hutchings to Run in Ward 4.

The politicians, both Republican and Democrat, are busy getting the petitions of their respective candidates signed before August 30. Getting candidates for office on both sides have seemed to be a hard proposition to solve this year as so many of the citizens who have been approached and asked to accept nominations have declined and seemed to consider it a burden rather than a duty they owe to the town. However, the line-up of candidates for local office so far as ascertained and whose petitions will be filed are as follows: Republicans—For Mayor, Councilman E. D. Floyd. Mr. Floyd has been in the Council for a number of years and is well fitted for the office to which his party would have him elected. He is well known and very popular and has the backing of the local Republican organization. As yet no one has been mentioned for the office of collector or assessor. For town clerk, Councilman O. M. Affleck and John McCormick are aspirants for the honor. For freeholders, Joseph Perry and C. M. Smith will be candidates to succeed themselves. For members of Council it has been a hard matter to find men who would take the nomination for this office as it is regarded as an thankless job and requires so much time and attention. George T. Cruttenberg who was mentioned for the nomination in the first ward declined to serve. Harry W. Evans has consented to become a candidate from this ward and will be the Republican nominee. In the second ward, Clarence B. Smith and Martin Snyder will be the candidates. Mr. Smith will be nominated to succeed himself as he is now filling the unexpired term of J. J. Schmitt who resigned. In the third ward Councilman A. J. Wilson will be a candidate to succeed himself. Over in the fourth ward W. R. Hutchings has been induced to run. Mr. Hutchings is well known and is a member of the local Riding and Driving Club and popular. He is counted upon to make a good showing on election day.

On the Democratic side there has been much conjecture as to who would be the candidate for Mayor. At first it was said that Dr. J. B. Harrison would be the candidate, but he declined the honor and then Henry G. Mooney, a former councilman from the first ward was mentioned but he also declined. Yesterday J. Alston Dennis consented to allow his name to be used as a candidate. Mr. Dennis is a member of the Board of Education. It is understood that he will have the backing of the anti-saloon league, who are opposed to liquor licenses. For collector A. H. Clark is a candidate to succeed himself as is J. M. C. Marsh for assessor. For freeholders John G. TenEyck and J. Raymond Lambert are candidates. Charles Clark and Harold Francis are both seeking the nomination for town clerk. For Council in the first ward no one has been mentioned; in the second ward Councilman Hohenstein is a candidate to succeed himself and Charles E. Burtis is also in the field. In the third ward no one has been named and in the fourth ward Robert DeCamp will be the nominee. Monday is the last day for filing petitions.

"SPEAK-EASY" PROPRIETOR FINED $100 BY RECORDER TOUNCEY.

Donato Casale Found Guilty of Illegal Selling in Hart Shacks.

The character of the new local excise ordinance was demonstrated, with telling effect, Wednesday night, when Donato Casale, an Italian, was tried and convicted of running a "speak easy" in Hart's tenements, 110 Clark street, and fined $100 and cost. Casale paid up, and left the court room a poorer and wiser man.

Chief O'Neil has been shadowing the Casale "Boarding House" for two months. Although morally certain that the proprietor was violating the law, he issued orders to his men to make no arrests until they "got their man right." Monday night, August 15, Joseph Bonnette, an Italian on the local force, got the drop on the "speak easy," and discovered a number of Italians drinking beer in the place. The officer at once placed the proprietor under arrest, and he was released under bond to appear before Judge Toucey Wednesday night.

At the trial Casale was represented by a New York lawyer, a fellow-countryman with an unpronounceable name, and plead "not guilty" to the charge. A score of witnesses, all Italians, testified, however, that they had drunk beer in Casale's place, and had paid for it.

The court made short shift of the proprietor.

THREE NEGROES ARRESTED.

Dancing Was Their Specialty; Milk Stealing Their Avocation.

John Thomas, Frank Brown and Edward Fort, all colored, told Recorder Toucey, in the local court, this morning, that they had attended a dance at Plainfield on the previous evening, and had returned to Westfield by way of North avenue, in the wee small hours of the morning. Officers Caulfield, Cressman and Darcy amplified their statement by explaining that they had discovered the three "society leaders," by the railroad track regaling on a bottle of milk and some buns, stolen from the porch of a North avenue resident. Thomas had a revolver in his possession.

Thomas was held for the grand jury for carrying concealed weapons. Brown and Fort were fined $10 each or 30 days in the county jail. They are still waiting for a benefactor in the local jail.

According to the police, dancing must be a specialty and milk-pilfering an avocation with these gypsies. Knight-Errants. Residents of North avenue told Chief O'Neil that milk was stolen from their premises nearly every morning. The police were ordered to be on the look-out.

Dr. Strong's Sermon at Congregational Church.

The Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong delivered an eloquent and instructive sermon in the Congregational Church, Sunday morning, on "The Social Teachings of Jesus." This sermon will be published in THE STANDARD in two installments, the first of which appears in this issue. The sermon will be published later in pamphlet form.

Dr. John Calvin Goddard to Preach Here

Rev. Dr. John Calvin Goddard, pastor of the Congregational church at Salisbury, Connecticut, will occupy the pulpit of the local Congregational church, Sunday morning. Dr. Goddard is a well-known preacher and lecturer, and those attending the local church on Sunday will be favored with a scholarly discourse.

J. G. CASEY REMOVED.

Mayor Alpers Appoints C. B. Smith as Head of Property Committee at Adjourned Meeting.

MAYOR SAYS WORK IS DELAYED.

Deposed Chairman Questions Mayor's Authority and is Advised by Letter to Get Posted Before Next Meeting.

Mayor Augustus L. Alpers set the tongues a-wagging Wednesday night, when, at the close of an adjourned meeting, he summarily removed James G. Casey as chairman of the Town Property and Street Lighting Committee and named Clarence B. Smith as his successor. The Mayor's action was the last item of business and was transacted with such dispatch that the large crowd assembled to hear the deliberations on the park question were taken by surprise.

Just before adjournment, Mayor Alpers tapped with his gavel and asked for order. "There is one more item of business to transact," he said. The question under discussion was the appointment of a janitor to succeed Thomas Jones, who had expressed a desire to resign. Charles Lance was mentioned as his successor. Councilman Casey moved that action in this matter be deferred pending Mr. Floyd's return so that a full committee vote could be obtained. Mayor Alpers declared that the matter had been pending long enough, and that action ought to be taken at once. The present janitor had resigned, he said, and he had received a letter from Councilman Floyd endorsing Lance. Mr. Casey replied that Thomas Jones had not resigned. Councilman Wilson declared there was no question but Lance would be appointed, but he thought action should be deferred until the next meeting.

Mayor Alpers disagreed and a vote was called for. The motion was carried and action was deferred. Messrs. Alpers, Affleck and Middleitch voting against, and Messrs. Hohenstein, Smith, Wilson and Casey voting for.

Mayor Alpers then said: "Before we adjourn, gentlemen, I will make a change in committees. The chairman of the Property and Street Lighting Committee has not done his work properly. I shall, therefore, remove him and appoint Mr. Smith as his successor." Mr. Casey took the floor. "Mr. Mayor," he said, "I am informed that you have no right to remove me without consent of Council."

"Well, I have," replied the mayor, "and if you think I have not you can inform yourself on the subject between this and the next meeting. The Council has been set back in its work by the way you have attended to your duties as chairman of an important committee, and I think the selection of another man to take your place will provide a remedy."

Wallace Doying Undergoes Operation.

TOWN TO BUY THE PECKHAM PROPERTY

Ordinance Authorizing Purchase Passed on First Reading By Unanimous Vote of Council.

THREE HUNDRED PETITIONERS SIGN.

And Bill Peasley Presents a Memorial—

L. M. Pearsall Makes Strong Plea for Favorable Action for Petitioners.

With the unqualified endorsement of nearly three hundred petitioners and a memorial from Hon. Bill Peasley, the Council passed on first reading the ordinance authorizing the purchase of the Peckham property on Mountain avenue, at an adjourned meeting Wednesday night, by a unanimous vote. Messrs. Floyd and Davis were the only absentees.

The Council room was crowded with interested citizens, and the result of the vote called for cheers and hand-clapping. Seldom has so much interest been taken in the matter of a public improvement and those present seemed to be of one mind, that the purchase of the "dump" was a necessity.

The petitions were presented by Mr. Mr. Leigh Pearsall, who urged the passage of the ordinance. He said that this was the time for the town to take an advanced step in securing property for park purposes. The time was not far distant, he declared, when acreage would be held at a prohibitive price. The Peckham property was in the heart of a fine residential section, where property values were increasing, and could be bought at a low figure; in its present shape, it was an "eye sore," but could be made a beautiful property at small expense, and reflect credit upon the town.

Mr. Pearsall called attention to the fact that other towns were moving ahead in extending their park systems, and there was need for Westfield to fall in line, so that its prestige would not suffer. He spoke of the opposition to the Washington school park at the time of its purchase, and of how this property had enhanced the reputation of the town.

"None of those who once opposed the purchase of that property would oppose it now," said Mr. Pearsall emphatically.

In former years, he said, a like opposition had arisen to the appropriation for County roads when this work was first undertaken. To-day, he said, our roads were giving us prestige throughout the east, a prestige in which the Town of Westfield was sharing, and that few if any begrudged the nominal cost to the individual tax-payer which this work had entailed.

Following Mr. Pearsall's address, the clerk read the Peasley memorial. This is it:

August 24, 1910.
To the Honorable,
The Mayor and Council,
Town of Westfield, N. J.
Gentlemen—Be it respectfully called to your attention that:
Charles F. Conant,
Nathaniel B. Gardner,
Christopher W. Harden,
George H. Embree,
Martin Welles,
and others who served the interests of the town faithfully and well were ALL BURDENED WITH CAPTIOUS CRITICISM BUT THESE GENTLEMEN LEFT OFFICE WITH LASTING MEMORIES, AND SO WILL YOU.

Yours respectfully,
BILL PEASLEY.

BIGGEST MEET OF SEASON ON LOCAL TRACK, LABOR DAY.

Seven Events—$1025 in Gold—Miss Syracuse After Track Record.

What is regarded as the best racing card of the season for this section of the State will be served after the manner of "sport for sports' sake" at the Fair Acres Track, Labor Day afternoon. The Westfield Riding and Driving Club, which has made other organizations of its kind in Union county recognize their enterprise and sportsmanship, has the "big meet" in hand, and the racing committee reports that the best horses in New Jersey will contend for honors on the local track.

Ten hundred and twenty-five dollars in gold will be distributed among the winners of the four big events.

Miss Syracuse (record 2:10 1/4) will make an effort to lower the track record of 2:15, now held by the fast pacer Aron B. owned by Adam C. Blair, of Plainfield. In making the local track record Aron B. beat Miss Syracuse in straight heats early in the season; but was defeated by the Newark mare, at Waverly, last Saturday. Miss Syracuse's mile against time will alone be worth the price of admission.

Another feature will be a mule race and still another a 2:50 Trot and Pace and Quick Hitch Race for club members only. Prizes will be awarded the winner of this event.

The four big events for purses will be:

Free-for-all, $300; 2:30 Trot and Pace, $300; 2:30 Trot and Pace, $300; 1 Mile Running Race, $125.

The races will start promptly at 1:30 o'clock. Stages will run to the track from the corner of Broad and Elm streets, and between each heat the band will play. Come early and avoid the rush!

Twilight Club to Give Dances.

The Twilight Social Club an organization composed of young men of Garwood will give a series of dances during the fall and winter months. The first will be a shirt waist dance and will be held at Becker's Auditorium on North avenue on the evening of September 9th. Music will be furnished by Prof. Dow and the ladies will receive souvenirs. On the committee of arrangements are Mr. Frank Packer, Mr. Wm. G. Wolf and Richard Watt.

Westfield Gets Back at Metuchen.

METUCHEN, N. J., Aug. 20.—The Westfield Cubs in their return game with Metuchen played fast ball and beat them 13 to 1 in six innings. It was agreed before the game to stop in time for Mac's men to catch an early train. The last time the Cubs went up there they lost 5 to 3 and went up there this time with blood in their eyes.

Up to the sixth inning the score was 2 to 1 in favor of the Cubs and Green was pitching fine ball having only given 3 hits so there was little chance for them. But the Cubs did. In the sixth inning Hunt the first man up fanned, Colgan the new centre fielder hit safe, Hines was passed, Douglas hit safe sending Colgan home, Devitalice hit safe, Hines came home, Green hit safe, Smith was safe on a fielder's choice, Quigley hit safe sending Douglas and Devitalice home, Maxwell was passed and forced Green home. Then Hunt came up and made his first hit and it was a dandy and every one came home and he followed them before the catcher got the ball back. Colgan hit safe again, Hines did the same, Douglas followed suit, sending Colgan home, Devitalice cleared house with a double, and Green did the Hunt act making a home run sending Devitalice in before him, Smith fled out making the third out.

Well there are only two more games and they belong to the Cubs. It is Maplewood this Saturday, in which town the Cubs lost their first game of the season by the score 3 to 1.

ARON B. IS BEATEN BY MISS SYRACUSE.

Before a crowd of more than 6,000 people, who had turned out to witness the race, Aron B., the chestnut gelding owned by Adam C. Blair, of Plainfield, was defeated in straight heats by Miss Syracuse, the fleet footed bay mare of Theodore T. Miller, who lives in Newark, at the Waverly track Saturday afternoon. This special match proved to be the drawing card of the afternoon's sport for the two speeders met to settle an old dispute as to their respective abilities.

Adam Blair drove his own horse in the races. In the first heat it was plainly visible that Mr. Blair was not letting his horse go the limit, and the bay mare won in the slow heat of 2:38. Matters were different in the next two heats, and the time for the two was 2:20. Miss Syracuse was driven by Johnny Stearns, who is regarded as one of the best amateur drivers in the country.

In June the Plainfield horse defeated the Newark mare in straight heats on the Westfield track and now the rubber remains to be run off. The date has not been fixed upon as yet.

Olympic Park, Newark.

From the most modern of musical comedy occupying the stage this week, the Aborn Comic Opera Company at Olympic Park, will turn back to opera comique of the standard variety next week, presenting the first time in three years Daniel Francois Amber's masterpiece, "Fra Diavolo," which was capably presented several weeks during the earlier Aborn seasons, and which, after its long absence from their repertory, will be most welcome.

The Olympic Park vaudeville performance for the coming week will include Warner's Juvenile Circus, Koff's Trained Animals and other acts. The New Jersey State Fair will take place on October 3rd, continuing for an entire week.

RANDOLPH'S AUTO WRECKED BY MAN WHO WANTED WORK.

Joy-Rider Goes on Tour While Owner is in Boston.

Edward S. F. Randolph, of Westfield, returned home Saturday morning from Boston and found his big Mitchell touring car in his garage wrecked as the result of a joy ride taken by a man who had forced an entrance to the garage and taken the car out and ditched it near Rahway.

The man came to Mr. Randolph on Tuesday, August 16, asking for work, and was given a job washing the cars by Mr. Randolph. The latter took an interest in him and after the work was done paid him for it. On Wednesday morning the man met him again on the street and asked if there was any work, but Mr. Randolph said that he was going away that day to Boston, but on his return might have something for the man to do.

The night after Mr. Randolph had gone, the man took the car out for a ride and was seen driving it recklessly around Westfield. Next morning Mr. Randolph's brother, going to the garage, found a note on the desk signed: "Your car is on the road to Rahway. It is broke. I am gone. Jack."

Word was sent to Clifford Manning, of Plainfield, a brother-in-law of Mr. Randolph, who, taking Dick Randolph, of Westfield, went toward Rahway on a hunt for the car. They found it near a hotel just out of Rahway, in the ditch. Two tires were ruined, the front axle was bent and a wheel and lamp were broken. At the hotel it was learned that the car must have been ditched some time after midnight, for the people at the hotel said it was not there before 12 o'clock.

Mr. Randolph has put the police on track of the man hoping to make an example of him and doing something to break up joy riding.

—Miss Helen Bartoleb, of Jersey Shore, Penn., spent a week in Westfield, the guest of Miss Inez Fink, South avenue.

—Mrs. Hugh Talbot and children left Tuesday for High Point, N. J., where they will remain until after Labor Day.

—Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Richardson have moved into their new home on Elm street, recently purchased from Mr. E. C. Goodman.

The following letter was read by the Town Clerk, and referred to the Town Property and Street Lighting Committee: Elizabeth, N. J., Aug. 17, 1910. The Mayor and Common Council of the Town of Westfield, Westfield, N. J.

Gentlemen:—In conversation with Mayor Alpers he called my attention to the fact that some time ago we paid you a rate of $17.00 for 25 candle power carbon street lamps. In my letter of August 11, I said $18.00. This was an error and would say that the price for a five year contract for 25 candle power carbon lamps will be $17.00 per year. The price of Tungsten lamps that are now installed will be $18.00 as per my letter of August 11. Yours very truly, H. G. CHANDLER, Division Agent.

Woman's Home Companion is September.

Women are planning their fall wardrobe now and rejuvenating their houses, and the beautiful September issue of the Woman's Home Companion comes to us in the nick of time. The Gould, the Fashion Editor, shows the points of the autumn's style, and a new department, "Home Decoration and Handicraft," will serve as an inspiration for the home lover.

In this issue begins an unusually thrilling story of the stage by Ethel Footner, entitled "True Love." Stories by Mary Hastings, Annie Hamilton Donnell, and Grace Keon, together with another installment of "The Four," which is drawing to a complete an assortment of fiction found in a magazine.

There is also a large reproduction in full color of Jennie Wilson's painting, "Little Drops of Water," which is another of her charming illustrations familiar voices of childhood.

Mrs. Burton Harrison returns in a charming manner, her reminiscences of the famous men and women who have gathered in her drawing-room.

"Taking Royalty by Storm," by Mrs. Sutton Reymor, is a fascinating and vivid account of the Rembrandt's tour in Europe.

FOWLER IN RACE.

Has No Intention of Withdrawing From Congressional Fight, He Says.

Representative Charles N. Fowler is a candidate for Congress in the Fifth Congressional District despite the fact that his petition as a candidate for United States Senator was filed with Secretary of State Dickinson Tuesday and his name will appear on the primary ballot along with that of Franklin Murphy and former Governor Stokes for the choice of the voters.

Mr. Fowler was asked what he had to say regarding the story that many of his friends, who are making a fight for his renomination in the Fifth District, were disappointed because he had filed a petition for the United States Senatorship and that this was taken as an indication that he would withdraw from the Congressional fight.

"I will leave a statement regarding this question at the proper time," Mr. Fowler said.

"But you have not thought of quitting the fight for Congress, have you?" he was asked.

"No," he replied. "Absolutely no. I am in the fight for the Congressional nomination; everybody knows that."

A CORROBORATION

Of Interest to Westfield Readers.

For months Westfield citizens have seen in these columns enthusiastic praise of Don's Kidney Pills, by residents of this locality.

Would these prominent people recommend a remedy that had not proven reliable?

Would they confirm their statements after years had elapsed if personal experience had not shown the remedy to be worthy of endorsement?

No stronger proof of merit can be had than cases that have stood the test of time.

The following statement should carry conviction to the mind of every Westfield reader.

William Schwartz, 10 E. Scott Place, Elizabeth, N. J., says: "I was a victim of kidney complaint for some time. My back was very weak and ached incessantly, especially after I had contracted a cold or was exposed to damp weather. I often felt as if I could not endure the pains in my head and an annoying kidney weakness distressed me night and day. Physicians' medicines did not help me and when I heard of Don's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply. After using about three boxes my kidneys were restored to a normal condition and the pains in my back were removed."

THIS TALK OF TIME.

On June 29, 1909, Mr. Schwartz said: "I have had no occasion to use Don's Kidney Pills since 1906. I am still as strong in my prime of this remedy as ever."

The Saloon Problem.

To the Editor of the STANDARD.

Dear Sir:
From the year 1648, when the State of Connecticut prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquors to Indians, it is a far cry to 1910, when nine states have prohibited the sale of this product completely and all but five of the others have adopted some form of local option laws in the interest of restraining the liquor traffic through local sentiment, but in that long period the human consciousness has undergone startling changes upon this as upon most other subjects. The past forty years represent a period when evolution of thought has perhaps taken its greatest leaps and bounds. The development of the sciences has led the minds of men to measure every-day questions by new standards. Things that were formerly taken as a matter of course have fallen under the scrutinizing and ruthless gaze of the specialist who has revealed through patient scientific study and investigation the "why" and the "how," with the result that much of the old has been laid aside, as the worn-out garment, to be replaced by the new, for the greater uplift and advantage of mankind.

Witness, if you please, the wonderful change and progress that have been made in the science of medicine and surgery in the last quarter-century. The scientific study of the body, the sciences that attack it, and the effect of certain chemical combinations upon it, have resulted in a very much wider and deeper knowledge of the nature of disease, and much more effective and successful methods in its treatment, the single question of hygiene alone often occupying an important and dominating place. What is true in the field of medicine and surgery is equally true in sociology. Men are today looking at the problems of life in the balance of a new light, and what in their earlier ignorance were foregone conclusions have been broken down and dissolved in the power of the higher knowledge. The standing and care of the poor, particularly in the much congested centers of our big cities, the entire system of organized charity, the treatment of problems raised in the relations between labor and capital, the matter of punishment for crime, and the administration of penal and other public institutions, the handling of the various forms of social evils, all these have been recast, and are continually being recast, in the light of new study and experience, and the greater obligation which has simultaneously arisen.

That there has been a corresponding development of thought on the liquor question is perfectly patent and is pointed by the fact stated in the first paragraph of this letter: that such development is the result of careful scientific investigation of the relation of the use of alcohol to life and health is undeniable. The fact of such development is in no way surprising, rather is it normal; the astounding fact is that it has not been greater or more rapid in its action, for is it not true that the essence of the matter to-day and that upon which all thought and energy is focused; namely the destructive effect of alcohol, was the same that was signalled by the act of Connecticut in 1648?

Every pupil in our public schools acquainted with American history knows the disastrous effects wrought upon the red man by the introduction of rum. It was the evil result of its use upon the savage which quickly impressed our forefathers with the necessity of some remedial measures and which lay behind their action, though it was not from humanitarianism toward the savage that their action sprang, but rather from the more selfish motive of their own peace and safety. The shortsightedness has been in not earlier realizing that what was detrimental to the body and brain of the savage would in the long run be equally detrimental to the body and brain of the white race. It is true that with the white man its use has not been so universally abused, in the sense that entire communities have not surrendered to its influence as entire tribes of the red man did, but its effects have been quite as virulent upon hundreds of thousands, and while the per capita of inebriates would probably be against the red man and in favor of the white, we will all admit the percentage in the case of the latter to be high enough. What is equally pertinent to the present discussion is what may be safely considered the excessive use of alcoholic liquors, and upon this phase of the question both expert and lay opinion has undergone a persistent change. While it must be admitted that such a question is always a relative one, involving the personal equation of the individual affected, I believe it can be shown that some of the popular ideas on the point which have long passed current, are quite superficial and are giving way little by little to more enlightened opinions, and I shall make a further reference to the subject in another letter.

The No-License Movement throughout the country has been the logical sequence of the evolution of thought to which I have alluded; it is nothing erratic or eccentric, just the normal expression of cause and effect; that it is nothing ephemeral is shown by the years it has been in the arena; that its task is a gigantic one may be evidenced by the retail cost of liquor consumed in the United States, which annually amounts to one billion six hundred and seventy-five million dollars ($1,675,000,000) a sum greater than the value of the most consumed by the entire population when the figures were compiled, two years ago. That it has, and is exerting, a wonderful power is proven by two facts, the first of which is that in the past forty years the population living in what is described as a "dry" territory, has increased from 9% in 1870, to about 50% at the present time; and the second that its influence is admitted by its enemies in no uncertain language.

T. M. Gilmore, President of the National Model License League, a liquor organization, has said: "The Anti-Saloon League is one of the results of the present waves of reform. Waves always recede but they leave their effects and these effects may be disastrous. This Anti-Saloon League wave, we now realize, is no ordinary protest against the retail liquor trade. It is a gigantic movement, a monster upheaval, a tidal wave, so to speak, and we can no more ignore it, or scorn it, than we could ignore or scorn an earthquake or a hurricane."

The annual report of the Virginia Commission of the United States Brewers' Association presented at the convention at Atlantic City in 1909 declared "that

MERCHANTS AT CONEY.

All the Boys Planning to do Stunts on the Outing Thursday.

The members of the Merchants Association of Westfield will have a big time next Thursday afternoon. The boys have been planning a picnic for some time and have at last hit upon a scheme which has proved popular with every member of the organization.

The weather permitting, therefore, the first annual outing to Coney Island will take place on scheduled time next Thursday. All the members are going, and they will "Shoot the Shutes," travel the Scenic Railway, visit the Lions Den and tame the Fortune Teller. Charlie Clark says he will be the first man at the pole at the Steeplechase. Warren Woodruff says he (Charles) may be first to the pole, but he'll be "taking the dust" on the home stretch. A. B. The Situation.

There has never been a time in the history of Westfield when there was more need for the exercise of hard common sense than there is to-day. Local problems are worthy of sober consideration. It is to be remembered that the only emoluments for holding public office in this town are one dollar per annum plus hard knocks. Public office when viewed from the outside seems as simple as A. B. C., but when the practical work is undertaken from the inside, it is a problem in higher mathematics in which public opinion is the unknown quantity. It is not a theory but a fact that private citizens regard office holding as a distasteful and thankless task. The reluctance of many to serve at this time is proof positive that the plea for patriotic service does not go a long way with the business man, who having given his day to the arduous and not always congenial task for bread-winning, must, in the capacity of a public official, stand for the abuse of the belligerent element in his constituency.

Mr. Citizen Fixit is always with us, but not being of a constructive turn of mind, he must employ his days and nights telling us how to do the things which he has never attempted, and which he probably could not do as well as those whom he criticises. To focus the attention upon things as they are; to know why they are, and to give a proper balance to causes and effects; and then to try by practical, painstaking effort to help to make things as they should be—this is the task to which every citizen who is sincerely interested in the up-lift of the community should set himself.

"THE HART TENEMENTS"

The owner of the "Hart Tenements" on Clark street ought to hate himself for disgracing this community with a row of disreputable looking buildings, some of the tenants of which have as little regard for the law as they have for decency. These tenements have always been "a smear on the map of Westfield," and as time goes on they fall more and more into disrepute.

The fact that one of the tenants has been running a "speak-easy" as an "Italian Boarding House," only serves to illustrate the fact that buildings of this character are no fit abiding place for law-abiding and self-respecting citizens, and that the longer they endure they are a menace to the moral welfare of the community.

No sympathy can be felt for the owner of these tenements. It is devoutly to be wished, however, that some measure can be taken whereby a leading approach to a fine section of this town may be shorn of an abomination.

In respect to the fine of $100 imposed upon the Italian "Boarding House Proprietor," we beg to pay grateful tribute to the practicability and efficacy of proper excise regulations. The fine ought to serve to teach would-be violators to stand in awe of the "majesty of the law."

EDITOR OF STANDARD:

DEAR SIR:—

I am accused of obstructing the work of the Council. I deny the accusation. In the matter of the lease on the Thompson building, I have three times brought the matter to the attention of the Mayor and Council in recess, and the Mayor has each time held it up, declaring that he wished first to consult Mr. Thompson.

As to the street lighting contract, I think my colleagues will agree that I did my duty, and I can prove it.

In the matter of a janitor, the present janitor, Thomas Jones, has not resigned at this time, but does intend to resign the first of September, and will stay longer if I wish him to. He told me the last of June that he was going to resign July 1, because dogs were kept in the police cells, and he would not clean the cells. I immediately had the dog-catcher remove the dogs, clean out the cells, and Jones continued his work. I am glad to say that I had the backing of the majority of my colleagues at the meeting Wednesday night in the matter of deferring action on the appointment of a new janitor until the present janitor's resignation has been obtained.

All the above assertions I am willing to prove at the next Council meeting if necessary.

Yours truly,
JAMES G. CASEY.

NEW INSPECTOR AT WORK.

Andrew Carney, of Plainfield, Now in Charge of Local Sanitation.

Andrew Carney, of North Plainfield, assumed his duties as Inspector for the Board of Health of Westfield, yesterday morning. Mr. Carney holds a State Inspector's license and is fully qualified for his work. He will have full charge of all sanitary and plumbing inspection in the town, and will make full reports of his work to the Board of Health each month.

Carney's appointment is in line with the movement on the part of the local Board of Health to put Westfield in the front rank of suburban towns in sanitation.

Mr. Carney will be assisted in his work up to the first of September by Edward Edgar, who was the inspector up to the time of Mr. Carney's appointment. Mr. Carney believes he can learn enough about Westfield in the next ten days to carry on his work unassisted.

"THE SOCIAL TEACHINGS OF JESUS."

Sermon by Rev. Josiah Strong D. D., at Congregational Church of Christ, Westfield, N. J., Sunday August 21, 1910.

"God and one man," says Dr. Parkhurst, "could make any other religion, but it takes God and two men to make Christianity." This characterization justly emphasizes social relations as constituting an essential part of the Christian religion. The social aspects of Christianity, however, have been commonly neglected. Indeed many are not aware that a large portion of the teachings of Jesus was social. It is the object of this discourse to consider what would be the effect of the common acceptance of those teachings.

It becomes necessary to define what is meant by the social teachings of Jesus. They are embodied in His doctrine of the kingdom of God, which was the great burden of His preaching. Until recently this doctrine has been generally misunderstood. Many have supposed that the "kingdom of heaven" was the home of the blessed dead. Others have confounded it with the visible church, while still others have thought it was identical with the invisible church. But it is an error, and a very mischievous one, to make the kingdom of God synonymous with any one of these, for it is more comprehensive than any one or all of them.

Speaking exactly, God's kingdom is of course as wide as his dominion; but in scriptural usage the expression "kingdom of God" is generally employed to designate a redeemed world. The matured prophetic conception of that kingdom fully come in the earth was that of a world-wide society, in which universal obedience to the divine law, administered by the Lord's anointed would bring universal blessings, spiritual and temporal; or, in one word, the kingdom of God realized would be an ideal world.

It is to be observed that while this kingdom was spiritual, a kingdom of righteousness, it was also, in the conception of the Hebrew prophets, a kingdom of physical well-being. It distinctly included nature. All natural phenomena are constantly represented in the Old Testament as expressions of the divine will. Of course, modern science was unknown to the ancient Israelites, and our conception of natural law was utterly foreign to their minds; but had natural laws been known to them, they surely would have been considered laws of the kingdom of God. It is good theology and good philosophy, and not had science to regard all natural laws as expressions of the divine will. God's will, therefore, cannot be perfectly done in the earth until all natural laws are perfectly obeyed.

Modern science has revealed the intimate connection of mind and body. We are beginning to see that there are physical conditions of moral progress, so that to aim at an ideal moral and spiritual world while ignoring physical causes and conditions would be mere quackery. Let us bear in mind then that the kingdom of God which the Hebrew prophets foresaw included the physical as well as the moral and spiritual redemption of the world, and all that is necessarily contained in that conception.

Now Jesus, like his forerunner, John, began His preaching by declaring that this kingdom was already at hand. He nowhere defined the expression, for the obvious reason that it was entirely familiar to all Jewish ears. He allowed His hearers to understand that He meant by it what they had always understood by it. Instead of setting aside the ancient teaching, He took care to say that He came not to destroy the prophets, but to fulfill. Like them, He recognized God in nature, and declared that not even a sparrow falls to the ground without our Father. He also asserted that His own dominion over nature, commanding the winds and the waves. Like the prophets, he included physical as well as spiritual well-being in His aim, and showed the keenest sympathy with bodily want and sickness, feeding the multitude, making the blind to see and the lame to walk, and healing all manner of diseases.

Jesus made it perfectly clear that He came to set up in the earth this kingdom of God which the prophets of Israel had foretold, and this redeemed world which was the principal subject of His discourse was His social ideal. For the realization of this social ideal and for the government of this heavenly kingdom he inculcated and perfectly exemplified three fundamental social laws, viz., the law of service, the law of sacrifice and the law of love—the last being the most vital of the three, because it makes possible the fulfillment.

and glorified, the other two. We are to inquire, then, what influence might be reasonably expected to attend the common acceptance of these three social laws of Jesus.

The eminent English economist, Prof. Alfred Marshall, in his well-known work "Principals of Economics," remarks that "the two great forming agencies of the world's history have been the religious and the economic"—a statement which few intelligent men would care to controvert. If, then, it can be shown what effect the common acceptance of the social teachings of Jesus would naturally have on these great formative agencies, we may anticipate with some confidence what would be their effect on civilization.

I. Let us consider first the religious forces. The acceptance of the social teachings of Jesus would have a marked effect on the religious aim. It is popularly supposed among Christians that the divine aim in the work of redemption was to increase the census of heaven, to multiply the number of saved souls.

If we share this belief, then, as faithful disciples of Christ, we must, of course, make it our supreme object in life, first to save our own soul, and then to save other souls. This conception of religion naturally fixes attention on that part of the man which alone can enter a spiritual heaven, and, therefore, depreciates the body. The world is a wilderness through which we must needs pass as pilgrims to gain the heavenly Canaan. Life is a probation, an opportunity to prepare for death. The discipline of life is to wean us from the follies of time and sense and to prepare us for eternity. If the world seems to be very beautiful, appealing to every sense, if the natural relations of the family are very sweet and give us unspeakable delights, we must be on our guard not to enjoy these beauties and delights overmuch, lest they become temptations of the devil to wean us from the heavenly glory and to satisfy us with earthly good. If we are truly spiritually minded, we shall have a limited and rather questionable interest in art and science, in invention and the progress of civilization, in politics and social reform, in business and in recreation, because they are of the world and worldly.

I would not imply that every one who fails to apprehend and to accept the social teachings of Jesus holds so narrow a conception of the Christian religion, for many a man's common-sense saves him from his logic; but I maintain that this conception logically and commonly follows a misapprehension of the teachings of Jesus concerning the kingdom of heaven. If by that kingdom we understand the home of the blessed dead, then the injunction to seek first the kingdom of God must be understood to make the gaining of heaven at last the supreme object of life. It fixes attention on the other world rather than on this, and lays the great emphasis on individual salvation.

Failure to perceive the social character of Christianity leads to an individualistic interpretation of it. This interpretation has been and still is the commonly accepted one. It was this conception which the genius of Bunyan clothed with the imagery of the "Pilgrim's Progress," and which has heretofore been accepted by all Protestant Christians as true beyond question.

But when we perceive that by "the kingdom of God" Jesus meant an ideal world, our interpretation of Christianity undergoes a radical change and becomes social. We now discover that the great business of life is not to escape from the City of Destruction and to gain a place of personal safety, but to save the city; to transform the City of Destruction into the City of the New Jerusalem; and with the broadening of our sympathies, of our ideas and of our life.

Accepting the kingdom of God as our social ideal, we attach new importance to society. We perceive its solidarity, and learn that its members are members one of another, and that no one of them can live unto himself or die unto himself. We rediscover a truth which pagans Romans knew and which Christians ought never to have lost—"Unus homo, nullus homo." The brotherhood of man now gains new meaning, and we perceive that love to our neighbor is as real a part of the religion of Jesus as is love to God. We no longer divide religion and philanthropy into separate spheres, as if love to God and love to man were two essentially different things and implied two different kinds of character. Genuine love, that is, disinterested love, whatever its object, is divine. "He that loveth knoweth God," Cardinal Manning said to Henry George, "I love men because Jesus loved them"; to which Mr. George replied, "And I love Jesus because He loved men." It matters little which way round the circle we move, provided only we are within it; in that happy case we shall in due time complete the circle of love which embraces God and man.

Accepting the teaching of Jesus that the kingdom of God is the world redeemed, we see that the kingdom cannot fully come until all peoples and kindreds and tribes are included in it. That kingdom cannot come in its fulness to the most favored land until it has fully come to the darkest corner of the earth; hence a new impulse to Christian missions. And our sympathies and endeavors reach not only outward to other nations, but also forward to other generations. We become interested in all that works the improvement or deterioration of the human stock, and it becomes as easy to make sacrifices for those who are to live five hundred years hence as for those who live ten thousand miles away. Many men, calling themselves Christians, are as little concerned for future generations as was Sir Boyle Roche when he asked the Irish Parliament: "Why should we put ourselves out of the way for posterity? What has posterity done for us?" But we see that the kingdom which Jesus preached cannot fully come in the world, that the humanity for which He lived and died cannot be fully saved, until the heredity of every member of every generation gives to him the highest possibilities of the noblest manhood, nor until the environment of every child born into the world enables him to realize these possibilities; for the long lines of descent which run through the ages are the warp in the great loom of time, while ceaseless intercommunication is the swift shuttle flying back and forth throughout the earth and weaving in the woof of common interest, thus drawing close the individual threads into one vast web of humanity.

Furthermore, accepting the teaching of Jesus that the kingdom of God is the world redeemed makes a new place in our religion for the physical world. It is no longer regarded as a necessary evil, utterly foreign to the great spiritual realities, if not actually hostile to them. It is now seen to be a component part of the Kingdom of God. We discover that spirit and matter are, in this world, intimately related and that each conditions the other. We gain new respect for the human body and perceive how noble and necessary an object of endeavor is the physical perfection of the race. We now find ourselves toiling not only to save souls, but men. Our ideal for the individual is not the highest spirituality, nor the greatest intellectuality, nor the finest corporality, but all of these united into the noblest manhood.

With our new apprehension of the physical world as a part of the Kingdom of God, we accept the laws of nature as laws of that kingdom. Science, therefore, which discovers these laws to us, becomes another revelation from God, the teachings of which are to be eagerly studied and conscientiously obeyed.

Thus religion, under the influence of the social teachings of Jesus, is expanded from interest and effort in behalf of a fraction of the individual until it embraces all the interests of the whole world; and instead of loosening its grip by fixing attention on "a land that is very far off"; it gains reality and power by dealing with all phases of actual and every day life. With such a religion God becomes real; not the great Perhaps, but the great I Am; not what Carlyle calls a remote past or of a dim future, but the God of to-day, the greatest reality in the world, active in all human affairs, turning and overturning among the nations, and out of the discord and chaos of conflict-inflicting selfish interests slowly but infallibly evolving the harmony and beauty of His Kingdom of loving obedience—heaven on earth.

Let us consider further what influence the acceptance of the social teachings of Jesus will naturally exert on theology. Changes in our conception of religion are sure to be reflected in our theological views. Heretofore theology has been a circle drawn around the individual as a centre; hereafter it must be an ellipse drawn around the individual and society as the two foci.

To be continued next week.

THE MAN ON THE OUTSIDE.

Pen Points Political and Philosophical Produced by Penney's Perceptions.

Bill Penney Says!!

A bored of trade—long credit.

A board of education—the black board.

A board of health—the wash board.

The court of last resort—ask ing pa.

The horn of plenty—"Honk! Honk!"

The blush of nature knows no paint or powder pot.

The leading lady—the wife of the hen pecked husband.

It is not necessary to procure a license to peddle a hard luck story.

Position is everything; you can't help but look down on the scrub woman.

Hatred in a woman's heart is often love soured by neglect.

A scollar is a person whose convictions have become moth eaten.

The bulk of political contributions is merely interest on mortgaged jobs.

Politics played with glittering generalities don't disguise the pure article.

The ideas of infidels are identical with icicles; they always point downward.

Be a stenographer yourself, once in so often, and take a little dictation from conscience.

If one way of dressing the hair doesn't suit a woman she can easily switch to something else.

When a man begins to talk over his nose's head his job is hitched to a mighty slender thread.

A popular line of insurance would be protection against loss from the explosion of a theory.

A synonym is something some people would like to use when they come in contact with a dogmatist.

If that serpent had only hissed at Eve, to attract her attention, this never would have been a world of trouble.

A good example of a white lie is the ten dollar a day hotel stationery used in a seven dollar a week boarding house.

A woman may tell other women that she has the best husband on earth without arousing the least bit of jealousy.

A woman does not really appreciate what a complex proposition mathematics is until she attempts to reconcile her bank account.

We know a man who brought home a carefully selected growl and had to throw it away because he found the minister making a call.

There are two kinds of knockers, the constructive and the destructive any hair brain can find fault, it takes a genius to suggest a better plan.

If you want to get into and stick in life's big league, being good in spots won't do, it is necessary to be good all over and all the way through.

It is reasonably certain that the originator of the colored comic contortion newspaper supplement will never have his portrait hung in the hall of fame.

Before going away on her vacation a girl will take a whole day in properly packing her trunk, when she is ready to return the same operation takes next to nothing time.

There is just as much pride to some people in knowing that their ancestors camp over in the "Mayflower" without questioning whether they came first cabin or steerage.

Fresh air camp teacher—"Children, there is no work to do in Heaven, it is a place of eternal rest."

Wondering Willie—"Say, teacher, who fixes the harp strings when they break?"

Before entrusting a night key to his son every father should take him aside and give him some heart to heart advice relating to the serious things which any boy will naturally run into and which the father is fully familiar with to his regret.

The mingled emotion stunt gets in its fine work when a man has quick use for his long laid away dress suit; the tickled feeling at having grown so stout and the suppressed wrath at the suit showing its inability to meet the demands of style with comfort.

Old timers in Westfield will recall the political factions classed as the "buckwheat," the "sun downer" and the "gravel train." Long before the town was distracted into wards and the "town room" was the one polling place, the "buckwheat" was the soil native who needed about all of the political attention; the "sun downer" term belonged to the handful of commuters whose home coming time gave rise to the cognomen, and many a local election was turned over night through the deep laid plans concocted while this factor neglected their sleep. The "gravel train" always brought in the precessional vote, five minutes before the close of the polls, and the length of the procession usually was a clear indication of the size of the doubtful vote, classified as such in a campaign canvass.

Open Friday Evenings, Also Saturday's at Noon, During July and August.

Yes We Do We Sell Standard Brands of Merchandise

Did you ever buy a nationally advertised article and did you ever fail to get your money's worth?

The fact that thousands of dollars have been spent to give publicity to any nationally advertised article is a guarantee of quality.

Any article of merchandise so advertised must be all it is represented; otherwise the manufacturer is foolishly burning up his money.

It is our business policy to sell Advertised Brands.

The immediate profits to a merchant are less on Advertised Brands.

Then why do we sell them?

We want your confidence and having that we shall meet your increased patronage.

Not every store sells advertised brands exclusively.

Neglected Opportunity.
A learned professor lectured the students recently on "Embryonic development and polyembryony in Smilacina racemosa." As no record was made for Umbyby-bybyby Phonononograph company of New York-or-kork-or-k and Pa-pa-parla, however, you will have to deny yourself the pleasure of hearing it reproduced.—Washington Herald.

Round or Flat?
The British have had heaps of trouble in Siam to make the natives understand that the world is round, instead of flat. Indeed, the native teachers keep on teaching the children that it is flat, and when argued with they reply: "If it isn't flat, why do the mountains stand up as they do, instead of rolling downhill?"

Same Peanuts.
America, even if it were not for the circus, eats more peanuts than any other country in the world. We do not seem to be even able to supply our own demand, as during 1907 and 1908 Japan exported 17,000,000 pounds of peanuts, and the major portion of them came to this country.

The Last Word.
Determined to have the last word, the woman hunted through the dictionary and soon emerged triumphant with a list of three thousand framed from "Constantinople," and received therefore one year's subscription to the Joyful Home's big prize contest.—Judge.

Youth and Springtime.
Seeds are sprouting, trees budding, flowers peeping out from warm nooks. Everything grows in springtime. Youth is springtime, habits are sprouting, dispositions are putting out their leaves, opinions are forming.—Beecher.

Mumps Spread by Cat.
The rapid spread of an epidemic of mumps in a Pennsylvania town recently was attributed to a cat, which caught the "disease" by eating food handled by one of the earliest patients and gave it to other family pets.

Can You Blame Him.
Willie—"Whadja quit yer job for?"
Weary—"Well, I figured it like this: If I don't make good, they'd fire me. If I did make good, they'd expect me to keep on makin' good. That's too much work, so I quit."

Pig Lived Long Without Food.
Mixed from a farm near Ramsgate, England, two months ago, a pig, which had apparently been covered in during the building of a haystack, was found alive in the stack, but very weak.
