Justice Toney Experienced Similar Case.

The following was recently printed in a New York paper: "Percy H. Johnson, a member of New Jersey's Fish and Game Commission, and Warden Frederick J. Hall caught yesterday Joseph Larkin and Herbert Brownjohn, two boys, marauding in the little stream known as Toney's brook in Glen Ridge.

The lads declared to Recorder Cadmus that they did not know they were violating the law. Each boy was fined $23.00, a total of $46.00, for two small fish.

Larkin's fine was paid by his father, but Brownjohn, who is the son of a poor widow, will spend a term in the county jail.

The sympathy of Recorder Cadmus was with the boys, but he could not take any other action in the case.

Within two weeks Justice Toney was compelled by law to impose a fine of $23.00 and costs upon a young Garwood man, arrested and brought before him charged with fishing in Echo Lake with four hooks on his line. The man pleaded ignorance of the law. Judge Toney was criticised by some for imposing the fine in this case, but the law compelled him to do so.

Editor Potter Turns the Tables and Makes a Home Run.

Editor Union County Standard:

Nothing in your issue of last Friday a paragraph headed "Editor Hankinson Scores." I venture to remind you that a score in journalism or in baseball is only a half-score if it fails to show the hits and errors of both sides. Hankinson was the first man up, and here is his official performance exactly as it appeared in his paper the Leader:

"The marriage of Henry F. Maeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Brunner to Miss Jennie Baxter, of Brooklyn, whose engagement was recently announced in the Leader, will be married Thursday evening, August 24, at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 117 Prospect place, Brooklyn."

To this I replied in the Chronicle of August 9th after copying the article verbatim: "It is earnestly to be hoped that the confusion at the wedding will not correspond to that in the printing office from which this notice was issued, also we may be prepared to hear that the clergyman kissed the groom's mother-in-law, the bride gave away her father, and the best man put the ring on the maid of honor's thumb."

Editor Hankinson next proceeded to "score," as you say by alleging that "The editor of the Cranford Chronicle cannot understand a statement in the Leader in which a young man of one surname should be spoken of as a son of Mr. and Mrs. _____, of another surname. Of course not; no one would expect him to understand anything, and no one cares whether he does or not. People of ordinary intelligence comprehend the item that so troubled Cranford's would-be funny newspaper man. None of his witticisms 'go,' except in his own office, where for obvious reasons his employees 'laugh with counterfeited glee.'"

I acknowledge with due humility that Hankinson's remarks 'touchin' on and appertainin' to the going power of my witticisms are true. Nobody finds them funny save my own printers' devil, and he eats Quaker Oats every morning as a preparation for wearing the smile that won't come off. What troubles my dull intellect is not the lack of an undeserved reputation for wit, but Hankinson's lack of fairness. He subscribes to me inability to comprehend the relationship which permits a young man of the surname Maeller to be spoken of as the son of Mr. and Mrs. Brunner whereas that relationship gave me no perplexity at all. What did confuse me was the statement in the Leader that "the marriage *** will be married." People of ordinary intelligence will I think be willing to excuse my confusion, if by publishing this letter you put before them the complete score.

Respectfully,
JOHN H. PORTER.
Cranford, August 23, 1906.

Letter to A. O. Fitch, Westfield, N. J.

Dear Sir: If you could get the exclusive sale of a sweeter sugar for five miles round— $\frac{1}{2}$  lb as sweet as a pound of usual sugar, and cost no more—you'd jump at it, wouldn't you?

There wouldn't be 100 lb of any other sugar sold in a year in your town; you'd gobble the trade; and it wouldn't hurt your whole business.

Devoe is like that among paints; it is twice as sweet as some; it is sweeter than any; not one exception; one gallon is two or one-and-a-half or one-and-three-quarters.

Better than that; paint has to be painted; that costs $2 to $4 a gallon. A gallon saved is $2 to $4 saved in labor, besides the paint.

Even that isn't all. A gallon Devoe put-on wears as long as two gallons put-on at a cost of $2 to $4 a gallon and two gallons more put-on at $2 to $4 a gallon. Count all that. The paint that wears double costs less by 3 gallons of paint and 3 gallons of painting; that's about $15 a gallon for those superfluous gallons.

That's as good as a double-sweet sugar, isn't it?

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO.
New York.

P. S.—Charles Orlinberger sells our paint.

Protest From H. L. Abrams, Editor of Union County Standard:

Dear Sir:

With your kind permission, I would like a little space in your valuable paper to publicly protest against the unjust discrimination of our town officials against the owner and tenants of the SPANARD block. Under our present form of government we have seen many improvements in our beautiful little town, but the present council have gone out of their way to limit certain interests, and this is one of them. For the past six years the walk across Prospect street at North Avenue has been a disgrace to the town, and repeated requests have been made for a new walk, but always refused, while we have seen walks put down within two hundred feet of this corner that no one can use. We refer to the walk at Elm street and North Avenue, from French's corner to a mud hole in the depot driveway. Last spring stakes for a crosswalk were dumped in front of the SPANARD building and we had high hopes of a new walk before the winter rains and snow made this a sea of mud instead of a dry walk, but after using this spot for a storage place for their stone all summer, we awoke to the fact that we did not know our men after all, for Contractor Manhattan was ordered to cart these stones to other wards of the town, where some gentleman might get a few votes in the coming election by having crosswalks laid where they are not needed by the many, but by a select few. Mr. Traynor, chairman of the road committee, was appealed to, but we could get no satisfaction. Mr. Traynor and Mr. Barner, chairman of the sidewalk committee, represent the Second ward in the Council, and this is the way they look after one of the most important corners of the Second ward and the town. However, Mr. Barner did not forget to have a walk laid across Central Avenue, from North Avenue to his flat property, when not over a hundred feet from this crossing one had recently been laid at the intersection of Pickett street and Central Avenue.

Three years ago Elm street from North Avenue to Broad street was torn up and a new roadbed made from curb to curb at the expense of the whole town, the abutting property holders paying for the brick for the gutters, and every one was pleased with the improvement. Two years ago similar work commenced on Prospect street, and finished last year, the town doing the center of the street and the abutting property owners paying for the other stone. This was also a good piece of work with the single exception of this crosswalk, where a basin was formed, holding the water from both streets. Upon complaint to the head of the street department, Contractor Willoughby carted and dumped into this basin four loads of rich, creamy Jersey mud, and on top of this a few shovels of stone dust, and we have a walk. Mr. Traynor says, must do us for at least another year, while the strangers from other towns and cities that wish to see us on real estate matters must plow through this lake of mud and go home thoroughly disgusted with a town that would allow such conditions to exist. And why all this? Simply spite; nothing else, as I have it on excellent authority that the town has sixty feet of crosswalk stone that a place will have to be provided for, so two walks are laid across Elm street, in a thinly populated part of the town, not three hundred feet apart, while the crossings in the heart of the town are left in a filthy condition. The one at Prospect and Broad is nearly as bad as the one at Prospect street and North Avenue. However we will have to rest on the old saying that "all things come to him who waits" even if we have to wait for a new council.

Possibly the new councilman from the Second ward will take more interest in the ward from which he comes, and place this much-needed improvement.

Very truly yours,
HERBERT L. ABRAMS.

THIS LAW INCREASES SAVINGS.

"Bishops' Law" puts more money to credit of workmen in Newark banks.

One of the favorite, but entirely unsupported, arguments upon which the brewing and saloon interests have built their cases in opposition to the "bishops' law," is that the operation of the act has driven thousands of dollars a week out of Newark through the alleged Sunday exclusions of people who now go out of the State to buy intoxicants and spend money which formerly remained in the city to the benefit of local business and financial institutions. Various incoherent and thoughtless statements, in which effect has been more considered than fact, have estimated this financial loss to the city at from $50,000 to $200,000 a week.

There is no more reliable barometer of economic and financial conditions in any city than the savings banks, whose deposits are drawn largely from the working classes of the community, the classes which it has been claimed are particularly affected by the "bishops' law." If, in their eagerness for Sunday drink, the workmen of Newark are spending more money in carriages to get their intoxicants elsewhere than they spent when they were able to get them at home, it is a logical conclusion that they would have less money left on Monday to put in the bank.

To ascertain the facts, the Times asked six of the ten savings banks and financial institutions of the city having savings departments for statements showing the Monday deposits since the "bishops' law" went into effect, and the deposits for corresponding Mondays of last year, were as follows:

For the first four Mondays under the "bishops' law" the increased savings deposits of this year, in four banks, over the deposits for corresponding Mondays of last year, were as follows:

Dime Savings Institution, $7,745.03

North Ward National Bank, 24,844.34

Security Savings Bank, 6,187.15

West Side Trust Company, 18,241.91

Total, $56,920.43

If this average increase applies to all of the ten savings institutions of the city which is a fair supposition, it means that in four weeks the working men of Newark were able to put away for future emergencies more than $140,000 over the amount of their savings last year. It means that Newark workmen are putting in the banks more than $35,000 a week, a large part of which they spent in the saloons before the "bishops' law" went into operation.

That this increase in savings has been due mainly, if not entirely, to the Sunday closing of saloons is shown by the fact that, in most instances, there was no remarkable increase in this year's Monday deposits prior to the effectiveness of the new law. In one savings bank the deposits for July 2, the Monday before the law went into operation, were $3,000 less than the corresponding Monday of 1905. The deposits for the four Mondays following, in the same bank, were more than $6,000 greater than for the same Mondays last year.

These figures mean that under the "bishops' law" Newark workmen are saving at the rate of nearly $2,000,000 a year more money than they did with open Sunday saloons. This is a lesson of the new law which should make an impression upon every serious, sensible person in the community.—Newark News.

EXECUTOR'S SETTLEMENT.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That the account of the subscriber, Executor of Susan M. ### Reopening of the Elizabeth Commercial College.

The Elizabeth Commercial College, which graduated a large class of students last year, and was so successful in placing them in good positions with the various railroads and prominent business houses of Elizabeth, Newark and New York, will reopen next Tuesday, Sept. 4. Many young people from Westfield have attended this school and are now holding responsible and profitable positions. The Shorthand, Bookkeeping and English departments offer excellent opportunities to bright, intelligent people who are seeking a practical commercial education. Too many young people seek employment without the proper qualifications and are compelled to work for years before securing the salary that an Elizabeth Commercial College graduate begins with. This modern up-to-date college is located on the third floor of the beautiful new Hersh Building, 207-209 Broad Street, Elizabeth, N. J.

A handsome new catalogue, giving interesting particulars has just been issued by the school and will be mailed, free of charge, upon request. Parents, business men, and young men and women desiring to prepare for business are invited to visit the school and inspect its facilities and equipment. The college office is now open both day and evening for registration.

A Picturesque and Reasonable Outing.

The most picturesque town in America is only a hundred and twenty miles from New York. Mauch Chunk, in a narrow pass between the Lehigh River and the overhanging mountains, rises on the slopes like a quaint Swiss village. Historically the locality is known in connection with the discovery of anthracite coal. This discovery led to the construction of a bit of railroad which is the oldest in the country. Originally the track was laid to convey the coal to the river, but now it is maintained solely for recreation purposes. The cars are first hauled up a high hill, and from that point they travel by their own gravity around a circuit of nearly eight miles. As one ascends the steep slope the buildings below, the town and the nearer landmarks drop away in perspective with kaleidoscopic suddenness, and the doubling valley of the Lehigh spreads out in a thrilling panorama. Sights of great interest abound along the route. Old Indian trails over the hills are pointed out, the primeval forest envelopes the track for long stretches, and glimpses of old mining settlements are caught in the valleys. At Summit Mountain a halt is made and opportunity is given to visit the mines. The burning mine which is situated here has been smoldering since 1832 in spite of elaborate and costly undertakings to extinguish the fire. Returning from Summit Mountain the car attains great speed, and, as the visitor always thinks, the inspiring ride is over all too soon. The New Jersey Central will operate one of its popular Excursions to Mauch Chunk on September 3, 1906. Round trip 1.50 and special train leaves Westfield at 9.12 a. m.

Sealed proposals will be received by the Council of the Town of Westfield, New Jersey, at the Town Rooms on Tuesday, Sept. 4, 1906, at eight-thirty p. m., for constructing about ten hundred and twenty feet (1020) lineal feet of eight (8) inch sanitary sewer and appurtenances in North Street and Walnut Street in the Town of Westfield, New Jersey.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $100 drawn to the order of the Town Treasurer as an evidence of good faith and a bond of one thousand ($1,000) dollars will be required to guarantee the faithful performance of the contract.

The Council reserves the right to reject any or all bids. Plans and specifications may be examined and forms of proposal may be obtained at the office of A. W. Vura, Town Surveyor, at the corner of Broad and Elm Streets, Westfield, New Jersey. LLOYD THOMPSON, Town Clerk. Westfield, N. J., Aug. 21, 1906.

Lake Excursion.

The beauty spot of New Jersey is Lake Hopatcong and one who visits the place is charmed with the diversified entertainment afforded. The surroundings are delightful in every respect and a day spent in the rarified mountain air of the Jersey foothills will do wonders for the tourist. There are ample facilities for fishing and boating and one who enjoys the rambles in wooded paths and the quietness of the natural pines, to him Lake Hopatcong is the gem of places. On September 2, 1906, the New Jersey Central is going to run one of its famous low priced and popular excursions to the Lake. Round trip $1.00 and special train leaves Westfield at 9.12 a. m.

Bartimaeus and Zacchaeus

Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 2, 1906
Specially Prepared for This Paper.

LESSON TEXT.—Laa. 18: 35-40. Memory Verses, 35, 36. GOLDEN TEXT.—"The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."—Laa. 19: 10.

TIME.—The first of March, A. D. 30; not long after the last lesson. PLACE.—Jericho, 15 or 20 miles north-east of Jerusalem, in the valley of the Jordan.

Comment and Suggestive Thought. V. 35. "A certain blind man." One well known to the people of that locality. "Begging." The usual occupation of the blind.

Vs. 36, 37. "Hearing the multitude." His ears, made keen as the ears of the blind community are, was quick to discern that a great crowd was passing. Evidently Bartimaeus had heard of Jesus, how he had restored sight to other blind men, and he felt that now was his opportunity.

V. 38. "He cried." He could not see Jesus, but he was determined that Jesus should hear and thereby be drawn to see him. "Son of David." Perhaps the blind man recognized Jesus as the Messiah, the descendant of great King David; for of this coming One it had been foretold that he should open the eyes of the blind (Laa. 29: 18; 36: 6; 42: 7), and this Jesus had proved able to do. "Have mercy on me." This was his customary cry, but in the present instance the mercy craved was not alms, but the restoration of sight.

V. 39. "They which went before." Those who were in advance of Jesus. "Rebuked him . . . hold his peace." They tried to make him cease his cries, deeming it unfit that a common beggar should thus intrude upon one for whom they had great respect. Given to this day there are some to hinder those who seek Jesus.

V. 40. "Jesus stood." Nothing is too much trouble for Jesus, if he can but help a single soul. "Commanded him to be brought." To the calling man, the calling Jesus responded.

V. 41. "What wilt thou?" It is God's way to ask us to express to him our desires. He might supply many of our needs without our asking, but we are bidden. "In everything by prayer . . . let your requests be made known unto God." "Lord," or "Master." There is love and devotion in the title he chooses to address Jesus. "That I might receive my sight." This was the one object of his desire.

V. 42. "Jesus said." According to Matthew, as Jesus spoke he touched the eyes of Bartimaeus and his companion, and immediately sight was restored. "Thy faith hath saved thee." It was divine power that wrought the cure, but the man had put himself in connection with that power by his loving confidence in Jesus.

V. 43. "Received his sight." The restoration was immediate and complete.

V. 2. "Zacchaeus." His name is a Hebrew one, signifying pure, hence undoubtedly the man was a Jew. Concerning his character previous to this meeting with Jesus, most commentators believe that it had been all that served to render publicans odious to their fellow men. "Chief among the publicans. . . . And he was rich." His position was in itself a lucrative one, and the temptations toward unlawful gains were very great.

V. 3. "Sought to see Jesus who he was." He had heard much of Christ. Curiosity was, we may believe, the only motive in his desire to see Jesus.

V. 4. "Ran . . . and climbed." He resorted to the usual devices boys follow to enable them to see a passing pageant.

V. 5. "Said, Zacchaeus, come down." We need not wonder how One who could read the man's heart knew also his name. "To-day I must abide at thy house." To invite one's self into a perfect keeping with the custom of orientals, where there is little accommodation such as public inns for travelers.

V. 6. "He made haste, came down, received him." He who had overcome so many obstacles in order to catch a glimpse, is quite prepared to eagerly and joyously seize the opportunity for closer acquaintance.

V. 7. "They all murmured." The feeling of the Jews against the publicans was very strong.

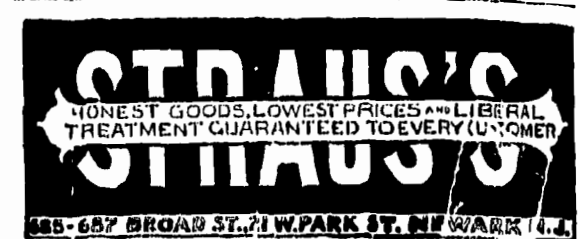

V. 8. "Zacchaeus stood." Stood forth as if to perform a formal act before his family and guests. "The half of my goods I give to the poor." He purposes to begin at once to distribute among the poor the one-half of his present possessions. "If I have taken . . . false accusation." By his tone he confesses that investigation will reveal that in collecting taxes he has often extorted more than his due. "I restore him fourfold." For a case like this the Jewish law required restitution with one-fifth added to the principal (Num. 5: 7); Zacchaeus judged himself as if convicted of theft (Ex. 22: 1).

V. 40. Jesus heartily welcomes every seeking one.—Laa. 66: 24. V. 41. Each has need to call upon Jesus to remove spiritual blindness.—Ps. 119: 18. V. 2. Worldly wealth consecrated to God becomes a great power for good.—1 Tim. 6: 17, 18. V. 3. A disposition to seek Jesus is proof that Jesus is seeking us.—John 6: 44. V. 5. Jesus is willing to dwell with us all the days.—Matt. 28: 20. V. 8. True reformation is proved by good works.—Jas. 2: 18.

There's no truer friend than a RAIN COAT. Its possession relieves you of nagging weather worries. A customer who bought one of these UTILITY COATS at a similar sale here about a year ago, was making inquiries as to "when we were going to have another sale of RAIN COATS," and in speaking of the merits of this almost indispensable garment she said: "It's all right in the Summer time; in Winter I could not get along without one." This expression prompted us to call them UTILITY COATS. Do not let this opportunity slip. We cannot promise another sale of such reliable rain-proof garments this season, as all manufacturers of RAIN COATS are holding them at stiff prices. These coats are made of Holden & Leonard's celebrated "Cosmos" rain-proof fabrics. A very handsome tailor made collarless model. The Old Days.
Good old times are an illusion and a snare, and the man who sighs for them has little conception of what they were. Return to them, would you? Then rise on a cold morning and wash at the pump, put on a pair of rawhide boots that rival a tin can in stiffness, pull on a woollen shirt over your back, and sit down to a bar meal with your three-legged stool dancing around on a split-slab floor, eat corn pone and bacon for a steady diet and labor 14 hours out of 24. Go without a daily paper, a fly screen, a mosquito bar, a spring mattress, a kerosene lamp, gee-haw your oxen to market and sit on the floor of an ox cart as you wend your way to church or a frolic. Parch corn and peas for coffee and sassafras for tea, and see how you like it. —San Antonio Light.

Jersey's "Punk" Parties.
"Punk parties are quite fashionable on the Jersey coast," said the commuter. "Each guest carries a lighted stick of punk and holds it carefully until the party is over. This is on account of the mosquitoes." "Punk is the only apparent remedy for mosquitoes on the Jersey coast. I said apparent. All along the coast, the summer resorts guests of the hotels are recognized in the dusk by the small torches of punk which they always carry."

Unsuitable Bathing Suit.
"Will this bathing suit shrink?" asked Tottie Skippies. "Certainly not, miss; all our goods are guaranteed," replied the trusty salesman. "Then I don't want it," replied the shapely one, handing back the little garment.

Too Gay.
The puritan miss dozed over her knitting and dropped a stitch in her father's stocking. "Priscilla," said the old gentleman, sternly, "be more careful." "Why, father," replied Priscilla, in surprise, "there is no great harm in dropping a stitch in your stocking, is there?" "Yes, my daughter. Surely you would not have it gossiped about that your staid old sire wore drop-stitch stockings like the dudes of 200 years from now?" And Priscilla, shocked at the very thought, began to unravel the whole stocking.

Leading Authority.
"Mister," said the sad-faced individual who had sneaked in the big sky scraper, "can I sell you the great 'Encyclopedia of Sporting Events'?" "Nope," replied the busy man. "We have one 'encyclopedia' of sporting events already." "That no?" "Where do you keep it?" "Why, we try to keep him on that stool over there, addressing envelopes. I mean the office boy, and he is an encyclopedia on everything from a game of skiddoo to the Olympian games."

The old-time method of purging the system with Cathartics that tear, gripe, grind and break down the walls of the stomach and intestines is superseded by Dade's Little Liver Pills. They cleanse the liver, and instead of weakening, build up and strengthen the whole system. Relieve headache, biliousness, constipation, etc. They never gripe. Sold by James G. Casey, Druggist.

Too Long for Wang.
I have just received the following quaint story from a reader who is apparently unperturbed by the earthquake. A lady in San Francisco engaged a Chinese cook. When the celestial came, among other things she asked him his name. "My name," said the Chinaman, smiling, "is Wang Hang Ho." "Oh, I can't remember all that," said the lady, "I will call you John." John smiled all over and asked: "What is your name?" "My name is Mrs. Melville Longdon."

Nothing to It.
Mr. Yerner—It certainly should be some satisfaction to you to know that I would die for you. Miss Coldart—I don't see how it could be. Mr. Yerner—You don't? Miss Coldart—No; you told me yourself that every life insurance company you ever applied to has rejected you as a risk.

Precocious.
Speaker Cannon, on his seventieth birthday, referred in a jocular way to the precocity of the twentieth century child. "Why, before long," he said, "we shall hear of the baby that has just been weaned, turning to its nurse and saying: 'I have had every reason to be satisfied with your past services, and shall not fail to recommend you among my acquaintances. Pray accept this dollar for yourself.'"

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, August 24, 1906, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed all members present except Freeholders Adams and Kibbe—2.

The minutes of the previous meeting (reading of bills being omitted), were on motion, approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.
From board of taxation of Union county, N. J., as follows:

July 19, 1906.
Gentlemen: The county board of taxation recently appointed by the Governor, and who have duly qualified and organized, that there are constantly questions arising respecting the manner of procedure with their work as indicated in the act under which they were appointed, and it is sometimes quite difficult to determine just the manner of procedure required under said act, and that the assistance of counsel would, at times, be very acceptable; accordingly we would respectfully petition your honorable body to assign said board counsel upon whom we may call for advice and instruction when required.

Board of Taxation of Union county, per Thomas Hanna, Secretary.

After some discussion, and an objection being offered, the clerk was directed to notify said board that the county attorney would act in all cases when legal advice was needed.

From H. E. Merritt, Secretary, etc., as follows:
Elizabeth, July 31, 1906.
Dear Sirs: I have been instructed by Local No. 9, Fishers, Bakers, Platers of Elizabeth, to request permission from your honorable body for the use of the court house steps for the purpose of having our picture taken in a body on Labor Day, preceding the parade. Our local consists of 400 members, so there would be no other suitable place in the city. Hoping your honorable body will grant this request, and with best wishes, I remain most obediently yours,

H. E. Merritt, Secretary, etc.
On motion of Freeholder Greiner, the communication was received, and the permission as asked for was granted unanimously.

From Louis Keller, calling attention to condition of Morris avenue where trolley tracks had been laid, and that the work had been very badly done. Also, to lay repair of Morris avenue from the outer edge of Springfield to the town of Summit. The construction of the trunk sewer two years ago has left this road full of depressions and hummocks, and the hummocks, which have been surrounded by objectionable round cobble stones are much above the present street level.

On motion of Freeholder Cady, received and referred to county road committee.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.
By committee on bridge, on St. George avenue, Highway, as follows:

Gentlemen: Your committee appointed to examine the bridge on Highway on St. George avenue, near Jacques avenue, would respectfully report that they visited said bridge and found same much in need of repair; your committee would therefore recommend that said bridge be repaired at a cost not to exceed $300.

Respectfully submitted, Adolph H. Greiner, Louis Woodruff, Henry Krouse, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

Freeholder Chandler moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By the committee on bridge, Morris Creek, Linden township, N. J.
Gentlemen: We have examined this bridge and find that the western abutment wall is in very bad shape, and should be entirely rebuilt; the eastern wall is in need of some small repairs. We would therefore respectfully recommend that the western wall be rebuilt with stone, and the eastern wall be repaired, at a cost not to exceed $800.

Henry Krouse, John Robinson, Committee.

Freeholder Cady moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By committee on bridge, Alston Road, Westfield, N. J.
Gentlemen: Your committee appointed to examine and report as to the bridge on Alston Road, in the town of Westfield, would respectfully report that we have examined said bridge and find it to be of temporary structure, in a dilapidated condition and unsafe for public travel, and we would recommend that a new bridge be built of concrete, reinforced with steel bars, at a cost not to exceed $800.

Respectfully submitted, C. A. Smith, C. S. Chandler, Peter H. Meisel, Committee.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By the committee on Scott avenue bridge, Plainfield, N. J.
Resolved, That the committee on the Scott avenue bridge, Plainfield, be empowered to construct the eastern abutment of said bridge of concrete, as the city of Plainfield is going to lower the bridge 12 feet, and present wall is not deep enough for such improvement, the additional cost, not to exceed $400.

S. P. T. Wilbur, John Robinson, Geo. H. Chadek, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

Freeholder Greiner moved that the report be received and resolution adopted, which was ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By committee on Leland avenue bridge, Plainfield, N. J.
Resolved, That the committee on the Leland avenue bridge at Plainfield, N. J., be empowered to have the approach to the bridge filled in, at a cost not exceeding $150, each county, (Union and Somerset), to pay $75.

Signed—S. P. T. Wilbur, Geo. H. Chadek, John Robinson, W. A. Westphal, Committee.

Freeholder Wahl moved that the report be received and resolution adopted, which was ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

NEW BUSINESS.
By Freeholder Krouse:
Resolved, That the committee on public grounds and buildings, with the cooperation of the court house commissioners, investigate into the advisability of the installation of power and lighting plant in the court house building, for the purpose of supplying the county buildings with electricity and electric light, and report to this board at the next meeting the probable cost of the same, and the cost of maintenance.

And be it further Resolved, That they also investigate into the advisability of installing the necessary machinery, for the purpose of supplying the county buildings with water, and report to this board at its next meeting the probable cost of the same, together with the cost of maintenance.

On motion of Freeholder Wahl, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder Jensen:
To the Board of Freeholders:
Gentlemen: As chairman of the committee on rawhide, Elizabeth, I beg to report that I have discharged H. Bush, as keeper of the South street bridge. This man was taken because of alleged infidelity to duty which upon personal investigation I found to be true, therefore took summary action in discharging Bush. I have engaged Robert Kolter to act as bridge tender of the South street bridge, and believe that he will look after the bridge properly, salary $250 per annum.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received, and the action taken by Freeholder Jensen, confirmed, which was ordered on roll call by a unanimous vote.

By Freeholder Jensen:
To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:
Gentlemen: Complaint has been made that during the early evening rush hours, the South Front street bridge, Elizabeth, must be opened in order to allow small launches to run out the river. Usually each evening there are anywhere from 10 to 15 small launches that pass through, causing considerable inconvenience to factory men on their way home; also at times badly blocking truck traffic.

I understand it is a law not to open a bridge for any small boat, unless it has a 12 inch mast, therefore if this board can legally take any action which would tend to properly regulate the opening of bridges for launches, it would seem advisable to do so. It is suggested that most of the small launches could be easily fitted with adjustable canopies instead of permanent ones as is now the case.

For the purpose of presenting the matter to the Board of Freeholders for consideration, I offer the following resolution: Resolved, That every launch equipped with a regular enclosed stationary cabin may pass through the bridge as heretofore, but that the bridge tender be instructed not to open a bridge for launches less than 20 feet in length which are equipped with canopies that could and should be made adjustable, so as to permit them going under the bridge without opening same and thereby avoid any unnecessary delay to traffic, etc. Also that the secretary of the board post printed copies of this action on conspicuous places on each bridge.

On motion of Freeholder Cady, received, and referred to the committee on legal questions and the county attorney.

By Freeholder Wilbur:
Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the inlet at the Park avenue bridge over Cedar Brook, Plainfield, N. J. Myself and Mr. Hubbard examined the same and found that the water overflooded the sidewalks every time it stormed. I would advise enlarging the same at a cost not exceeding $150.

Freeholder Greiner moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted.

The Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Wilbur, Krouse and Jensen.

By Freeholder Perry:
Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine the bridge on South avenue, Westfield, near Central avenue, to determine as to the advisability of constructing a new bridge at that point, the committee to report at next meeting.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee, Freeholders Perry, Westphal and Greiner.

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read, and on roll call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

TOLD TALES OUT OF SE

Parrot's Phrase More Than at Domestic Difficulties.

S. Baring-Gould, the English novelist, had the bitter pleasure of many unflattering obituaries. Through an error he reported dead, and the news his native land declared that he had left no good hind.

An American editor dined with Mr. Baring-Gould in London during the season. The talk turned to the premature obituaries, and the American said:

"How did you feel on reading them?"

"Taken aback, nonplussed," the novelist grimly replied. "I felt, like an East Ham lady who owned a parrot."

"This lady's cook came to her one morning in joyful excitement."

"O, ma'am," she cried, the parrot has learned some more words."

"Good," said the East Ham lady. "That bird is wonderfully teachable. It sits and drinks in every blessed word my husband says to me. What does it say now?"

"It keeps a-sayin'," said the cook. "Shut up, you old fool!"

MADE THINGS EASY FOR HU

How One Clever Woman Gets Her Letters Posted.

Women with absent-minded bands who forget to mail letters, needn't grieve, for a matron says she has found a cure for such little oversights. Once upon a time, she says, the dialogue between her and her husband used to run: "Didn't you hear me ask you to mail it? You were listening all the time." "I quite forgot. Yes, you always do." Now, she adds in triumph, everything is as it should be and the all important epistle reaches its destination on time. After much thinking she decided that the best plan was to pin the letter on the lapel of her husband's coat when he started for business. Thus tagged he would cause passersby to stare and, wondering what they were looking at, he would see the letter. It worked like a charm.

Big Peanuts This Year.

Peanut lovers have noticed that nuts are generally very much larger this year than usual, a fact which may be verified by the most casual glance at any stand where they are sold. They are said to be much larger in flavor, though there are no connoisseurs who declare that small nut is the sweetest.

"The increased size of the peanut now in the market," says a wholesale dealer, "is due more to improved methods of cultivation, I think, than to accident of favorable weather conditions, though the current crop is unusually large in quantity."

"As to the relative merits of large and small nut, I cannot speak being a seller, and not an eater. I do know, however, that with these big, fat-looking fellows on sale there is practically no market for the little ones."—Philadelphia Record.

Made Her Feel at Home.

A visiting woman went to a party with a man and his wife to other men's clubs, and as they sat waiting to be served she felt a little homesick.

hostess looked surprised, "I thought you were a guest with a melancholy infection."

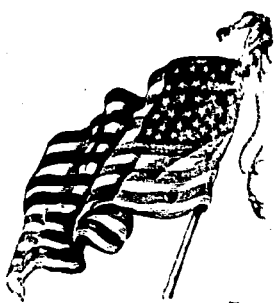

"I am always so unhappy when I go to a man's club. No wonder I get so homesick with my home, wife may plead and threaten, she can't possibly compete with service of such a place as this."

"Just at this moment the waiter gracefully tipped a glass of soup in her lap."

"Thank you," she said to him fully.—Minneapolis Tribune.

REDS ABOVE EITHER PARTY.

Theodore McGarrath sends us a letter in which he takes this paper to task for what he calls a partisan bias to the good work of the progress. The letter is published in this issue. Mr. McGarrath's complaint is that we give no credit to the Democrats for their share in the legislation. As Mr. McGarrath's letter gives them most of it the Democratic party may now be considered to have recovered from the blow. It has always been a fair play for independent minds to hold possible for proper legislation party in majority and control. It has seldom been an indictable crime for the majority party to pass such wise and beneficial legislation that even the minority were attracted, persuaded or forced to vote for it. And, from a practical standpoint, it matters little whence comes the first cry on behalf of a good law. What does matter is whether the man or the party in control of the organization and the machinery will pass that law. It is a difficult task to measure men in politics by their motives and promises. Motives are mixed and promises are easily made. The only effective test for the voters to apply is accomplishment. The Republicans were in control of the last national Legislature. They were responsible for the results of the session. The results, though short of much that was desirable, were yet the best in many years. The conclusion is that, in a large degree, the party has made good. There is a slight guarantee that the Democratic party, divided and struggling among themselves, will do better or as well. The sailors have always worked when their fellow Republicans were at the helm. The Republican was at the helm. The sailors' cohesiveness and more concerted action are necessary for a party who would do things worth while. These have seldom been the asset of the party to which McGarrath pins his faith. Agriculture spells Democracy. Legislation spells Republicanism. It may some day be different. We venture to say it will.

But Mr. McGarrath did not read our editorial carefully. He asserts we are too partisan. We said it was not only a matter for congratulation, but of wonderment that the Republican party accomplished so much. Surely, that is moderate modest for a partisan to say. We spoke only for Republicans. Here is a paragraph from the editorial:

"President Roosevelt rightly points out that the record of the Fifty-ninth Congress is unique in the history of the nation for advanced and wise action toward the solution of the economic problems of this country. To defeat men who have had a part in such work provoke a cynical attitude upon the part of publicists concerning the advantages of urging the public welfare as against corporate monopoly in the halls of legislation."

Democrats are included in "the Fifty-ninth Congress." That phrase is not partisan. Neither is the phrase, "men who have had a part in such work." Do you not see, Mr. McGarrath, that if the whole country reads that paragraph and votes accordingly next November it will return to Congress all the men, of both parties, who voted for the good laws, and defeat the men, of both parties, who voted against them?

The Chief Executive of this nation will doubtless be known in history as Roosevelt the Versatile. Simplified spelling has received Presidential endorsement. If the list made up by the spelling reformers were generally adopted the new form of the words would soon look familiar, or at worst, would disturb only those who now think they know how to spell. Children being taught, and those that come after them, will find the new forms much less strange than we find the present ones. As for the wealth of English literature that would need to be considered in making new ways of spelling words, we presume most of it can be translated into the new form without seeming hideous to the coming generations who will never have seen it any other way. If there is any that is not so translatable, then future students will have to read it much as Chaucer is read now. We of this day can, of course, keep the copies of our favorite authors, and continue to read them in the original, as it were.

Does the "Bishops' Law" work to advantage? Well, a little! Listen to this: The brewers said that the effect of the law is to drive men out of the State on Sunday to spend their money for liquid refreshments in another commonwealth, and that New Jersey merchants are thereby the losers. Wherever statements of importance are made newspapers stand ready to challenge them. So the Newark News looked into the matter, found out a few things of a different color, and then made its own statement, a complete refutation of the other. The News went to the Savings Banks of the city and asked them for a statement of the deposits on Mondays since the "Bishops' Law" has been operative, compared with the deposits on corresponding Mondays a year ago. See what these statements show: "Instead of the savings falling off, the Monday deposits under the 'Bishops' Law' have been more than one-third larger than for the same Mondays last year, when the saloons were open." So you see, though, come to think of it, you would better read the whole story as told on page two of THE STANDARD to-day.

A contemporary suggests that the President's action has got the alphabet into politics. That's all right. They want to reform the spelling, and in order to need reforming you've got to get into politics. Ask Colby and Runyon.

Uncle Sam will have to throw a rope about Cuba and tow her further up this way. She is too near South America to be immune from revolutions.

There is more than one way of destroying your neighbor's property. You can set it on fire or you can build across the street from it.

Here's hoping the Czar will introduce the spelling reform in Russia. It is sadly needed, and no other kind of reform seems to go there.

Rhetoricians define the present language of the Russian Revolutionists as bombastic.

Spelling matches will be revived in the schools now.

Mr. McGarrath says Give Credit to Whom Credit is Due.

To the Editor of the Standard:
Some weeks ago, and again last week, you printed an article in which the President and the republican representatives in Congress, and congratulating that party upon the brilliant work done by them during the last session; but you failed, like most partisans, to state that no measure that was passed by the President, was passed only by the aid of democratic votes; nor that the rate bill, which was the most important of all that were passed, was a purely democratic measure.

Another democratic measure, that the President proposed, was that forbidding political contributions by corporations, which could have been passed, but Mr. Roosevelt withdrew. Why? Was it because he thought that one-dollar subscriptions would not furnish money enough to elect another republican Congress? "The Philippine tariff was not unmodified, Chinese exclusion was not modified, insurance was not placed under Federal control, a war navy was not authorized in times of peace, and the turning of the trusts was left to the courts. The President well said that much was done, and that it was not possible to do everything. Neither is it necessary, nor exorable, to take partisan credit for everything, when the record shows two failures to each achievement, and Democratic assistance in all that was done. It is a pity that we have a President who is so much a party chairman, and so forgetful that he is President of all the people, even including the Democrats to whom he owes so much." It is also a pity that partisan journals should seem so eager to destroy their influence upon intelligent and thoughtful readers, as they surely do, when printing such misleading statements.

When Mr. Roosevelt is compelled to boast of the passage of democratic measures by a republican congress, only by the aid of democrats, he should be more modest; but modesty is not one of his attributes.

T. McGarrath.
Westfield,
August 27th.

Literary Discussion Opened.

DEAR STANDARD:—Permit me to throw an apple of discord among your readers in the shape of the following question: What are the greatest novels in the world? I would suggest that five or ten names should be enough for one list. I think it best to leave the word "greatest" undefined, each person to use the word according to his own idea of greatness in a novel. For obvious reasons only one novel should be given to each author named. In order to start the game I will begin with my list. Here it is:

Don Quixote,
Robinson Crusoe,
Les Misérables,
Esmond,
Middlemarch,
The Scarlet Letter,
Anna Karenina; with honorable mention of John Inglesant and Zola's Debut.

These lists should be given without explanation, but as this is the beginning of the game—the first guess—I will add the following comments for the sole purpose of explaining the content of the question. Such works as Pilgrim's Progress and The Sorrows of Werther are omitted because they are not properly novels. Dickens is not in my list because he is a superb story-teller, and in that line he is inferior to Dumas and Balzac; and for me to add the three would make my list too long. As to Scott? Well, it is somebody else's turn to guess.

Yours truly,
HENRY KETCHAM.
Westfield, N. J., August 27, 1906.

[The STANDARD is glad to print the above letter and to offer its columns for a discussion of the subject. Mr. Ketcham's suggestion that the lists be given without explanation is a thoughtful reminder that newspaper space is limited. We are quite willing, however, to receive with my contribution such brief comment as the writer may care to make.—Ed.]

Play in the Round Robin at the Westfield Club has been slow during the past week. But few matches were played off, and those but served to give Fred G. Smith a larger lead for the championship. The advertised tournament in Men's Doubles at the Cranford Casino for Saturday and Labor day has been called off. There were not sufficient entries to justify continuance, and the interest in the East Jersey tournament in Elizabeth affected others nearby. Lovers of good tennis will have an exceptional opportunity to-morrow and Monday to see final rounds of the East Jersey Championship at the grounds of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club in Elizabeth. There are men's singles and doubles, mixed doubles and women's doubles. The cup is held by Carl Behr, Jr., who went to the final round in the national tournament last week in Newport, and the winner of the match on Saturday will meet him on Monday. F. G. Anderson, who held the cup in 1904, is looked upon as the probable winner and challenger. In the play are such men as T. R. Pell, Robert Le Roy, Mollenhauer Westfall, the Kings County cracks and others. The main line cars pass the grounds of the club.

Manhattan Claims Damages.

J. W. Manhattan, who has laid most of the stone sidewalks in this town for several years past, is on the war-path. He claims that several pieces of work were awarded him by the Town Council last year and were held up and awarded to William H. Weldon about a month ago. Manhattan claims that the acceptance of his bid the first time was a contract which bound the town to let him lay the walks, and he proposes to enjoy their construction by any means. Weldon's bid was five or six cents a foot higher than Manhattan's. One of the walks involved is that on the northeastern side of Elm street north of Dudley avenue. Manhattan recently refused to bid on contracts to be let by the town, some of which were the ones he claims had been formerly let to him.

Will Preserve Old House.

Within a hundred feet of the Hudson river, in the lower part of the city of Rensselaer, N. Y., stands a very old house. It is in good condition now, but five years ago the doors and windows were boarded up and it looked as though it would soon go the way of all things, either ruined through neglect or pulled apart by relic hunters. But at this time the Daughters of the Revolution bought the building with the announced purpose of presenting it to the state.

The building is known by many names, as "The Old Van Rensselaer Manor House," "The Yankee Doodle House," "Fort Crallo," and "The Oldest House in America."

Proud of her Unkissed Lips.

A well-seasoned spinster applied to her family physician in Harlem the other day for a general character certificate, saying: "Doctor, surprising as it may appear, I have never yet been kissed, and I trust that my lips will remain unskissed so far as man is concerned to the end of my life."

She evidently reasoned that such statement of alleged fact ought her to prove sufficient groundwork on which to justify a clean bill. The M. D. gave the necessary credentials, charging her the fee usually exacted for signing medical examiners' vouchers.

Consistent.

De Style—So the affirmative side in the debate "Are Briles a Necessary Evil?" came out ahead; congratulate you.

Gunbusta—Thanks; but I want to tell you confidentially that we gave the negative side ten dollars to let us win.

The Opinion She Thought.

"Well, what do you think of my new hat?" she asked.

"Do you want a candid opinion?" he questioned.

"Heavens, no!" she replied. "Say something nice."

Antics of a Summer Girl

FAIR DEBIL-lance it wasn't that the only doctor near Kinnana
lives is a grumpy old individual, at least 65 and addicted to giving the worst-tasting
stuff on earth and insisting it is medicine. I certainly should have had nervous prostration the last week. He likes, this old doctor never notices whether one is young and pretty or a grandmother—and, anyhow, one can have nervous prostration at home just as well. But what I went through with Prof. Honeyman was certainly trying.

I was awfully glad when he arrived at the hotel, for I had got rather tired of the college boy, who was the only available excuse for a man on hand.
Besides, I didn't want to be selfish.
I felt that the little blonde girl and her monello-like sister, who are also here, really ought to have some one to row them about. Prof. Honeyman looked distinguished in a way, so I smiled the college boy, and the little blonde girl promptly comforted him.

I think the professor is about 35, but he is awfully good-looking. He had an abstracted way about him that made me wonder whether he really knew I was sitting there or not —and you must confess that was irritating, as I had on an especially becoming gown. He did confide in me that he had come to Kinnana lake because he had heard that the woods around it abounded in fine specimens and he intended to work while he was here.

I saw my chance. I leaned forward with parted lips and opened my eyes wide. "Oh, professor!" I cried, with just the proper amount of enthusiasm.
"So you are a scientist! I am so glad, because I've always been so interested in—er—things really worth while."

The professor really woke up then and looked at me approvingly. "What!
You are an enthusiast, too?" he

"I'm Collecting Snakes."

asked. "Perhaps, then, I may hope to have your help in my hunt."

Really, he was too easy. I smiled at him in a sisterly, we-are-fellow-workers way and said I should be so glad of the companionship of a man who shared my enthusiasm for research.

I didn't know whether to meet him the next morning with a hammer to chip rocks or a butterfly net. He came out on the veranda smiling, and he had no implements to tell the tale, either. He said it certainly was satisfying to meet a young woman who preferred to get down to her favorite work instead of sleeping the morning away.

I finally had to find out what we were supposed to be looking for.
"Will you have the goodness to tell me," I demanded, in sheer desperation, "what it is we are supposed to be collecting?"

"Why, I supposed you knew," he murmured, in surprise. "You seemed so enthusiastic. I'm collecting snakes!
For my book on the subject."

I was a red away in one jump and holding my skirts. I believe I went into hysterics on the spot. And that idiotic man had supposed that I was trustfully sauntering out to pick up snakes for him.

I said I had a headache, and thought I'd better go back to the hotel. And I flew down the very middle of the path on thythe.

He still persisted in thinking me interested in the subject, for he was so absent-minded. So he was always hunting me up to tell me of his finds.
I never was quite sure whether or not his pockets were full of snakes, and I endured perfect agonies whenever he was near me.

He left last night and promised to send me his book. But I can't get the college boy back again. He seems really to like the little blonde girl.
Men have such queer tastes! Always yours, Kate.—Chicago Daily News.

The Star Boarder's Pills

By P. A. BLYTH

(Copyright, by Joseph H. Bowler)

"Why are we waiting?"

She was a new-comer or she would have known that in this very genteel boarding house, select as were its boarders, the star boarder was an English baronet, and that it was a feature of honor accorded him that dinner was never fairly commenced before his arrival at the table.

"The baronet, to do him justice, was extremely punctual when replenishing the linen man was concerned. But on this particular evening he was not in his accustomed place, and people shuttled and toyed with rings, and tried to appear not to be waiting, till the newcomer, a vivacious, fresh-tinted little lady, a little turned 40, inquired of her near neighbor the cause of delay. But at that moment the baronet appeared, walking slowly, a heavy cloud on his brow. He took his seat by the side of Miss Brown, the lady of the establishment, presiding at the head of the table.
He stooped and whispered to her in portentous tones.

"Can't eat no dinner!" she answered aloud in alarmed accents.

"Nothing, nothing," said the star boarder, "unless," with a melancholy wave of his hand, "a spoonful, just a spoonful of the soup. No more, not a drop more," as in obedience to his request the soup ladle descended to his plate. "I have not missed taking them for 15 years, and I dare not attempt anything like a full meal without them
add. Until the mail arrives to-morrow morning I am a starving man," and mournfully he applied himself to the soup placed before him. That dispatched, he rose, and with a muttered apology left the apartment for the drawing room.

At his departure Miss Brown gave explanation. "The star boarder could eat no dinner because his digestive pills—the last two he possessed till the morning mail brought a fresh supply—had disappeared from the box. The pill box was still standing on the mantlepiece, but the pills, so the servant reported who had been sent to fetch them, were gone.

"Does he think the servant swallowed them?"

"I don't know," answered Miss Brown, absently, too anxious for the effect upon her permanent boarder to join in the general titter around the table; "but he says he shall dismiss him at once for his carelessness."

"What is the number of the baronet's room?" The newcomer asked the question with sharp abruptness.

"No. 15."

"Then it is next to mine." The lady looked for a moment attentively at her plate, then, after the baronet's example, rising, with murmured apologies, quitted the table and the room.

A minute later found her by the star
boarder's chair. "Are you quite sure?
Perhaps there is some mistake. Your servant might have overlooked them.
May he just give one more look?"

Divided between surprise at her interference and her pertinacity, the baronet, turning, rang the bell near him and directed his servant to look once more.

The man obeyed. He returned, perplexity on his face, with the pill box and two innocent-looking pills therein.
"There, I told you so!" said the little lady, with a clap of her small white hands.

The star boarder's first sensation was
joy. "Madam," he said, with a studied bow, "you have the witchery of your sex." But his brow clouded. Glancing towards his man-servant, "Your carelessness is unpardonable. I shall dismiss you from my service. You might have cost me the loss of—"

He rose hastily and, courtesy reminding him, offered his arm to his benefactress.

The two returned to the dining room.
"Forgive the poor man," said the lady as they went.

"No, madam; such carelessness is too culpable."

"And you are feeling quite well this morning?" It was the morning after, and the lady whose witchery had secured the baronet his dinner leaned over his chair.

"Quite, madam," he replied gallantly, "owing to your cleverness. I have not had a dinner since we so well enjoyed so perfect a night's rest for a long while."

"Then you will not be so stern towards your man-servant?"

But the star boarder shook his head.
"Such culpable carelessness, madam."
The lady hesitated. "Could you keep a secret?"

He bowed solemnly.

"Then I will tell you something. My room joins yours; they are much alike.
I, too, take pills before dinner, and I went by mistake into your room and took two pills. Afterwards I slipped up and placed two of mine in your box.
I feared to tell you lest they should not suit you; but you see they have acted admirably. Pray, say you forgive me."

The baronet's politeness was taxed.
"Madam," he said, "the effects have been too happy for resentment. Also it follows my servant is absolved from blame."

"There was a deeper tint in the lady's cheek, but her eyes were laughing.
"Could you keep another secret?"

He laid his hand on his heart.
"Faithfully."

"Then"—she rose as though prepared to make quick exit after speaking. "It is nothing so very serious; only the pills you took last night were rheumatism pills; and I am so glad they suited you."
