WESTFIELD CHURCH NEWS.

NOTES ABOUT THE SEVERAL DENOMINATIONS.

The Pulpit Supplies Next Sunday—Who Will Preach—Special Services—Sunday School and Prayer Meeting Topics.

NOTE—The usual hours of services in the several churches will be found in the Church Directory in another column.

Congregational Church.

The pastor, the Rev. H. H. Churnsey, will occupy the pulpit in the Congregational Church Sunday morning and evening.

Baptist Church.

The Rev. C. J. Greenwood, pastor, will preach Sunday morning and evening in the Baptist Church. Evening service at 7:30 o'clock.

Methodist Church.

The Rev. Dr. John R. Wright, pastor, will preach in the Methodist Church Sunday morning, when a special service for the elderly folks will be held, carriages being provided for those usually unable to get to church. The Epworth League meeting will be held at 7 o'clock, and the usual evening church service resumed at 7:45.

Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. W. I. Stearns, pastor, will preach in the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning and evening.

The banquet of the Men's Club will take place at seven o'clock to-night. The speaker will be the Rev. Daniel Martin, D. D., of Newark.

The Ladies' Sewing Society will hold their tea October 18th this month on account of the Synodical meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary societies at East Orange yesterday. The Presbyterian Synod of New Jersey meets at Asbury Park on Monday.

Several mission study classes have been formed in the church for an eight weeks' course. One class is studying "Aliens or Americans" and the other class "The Christian Conquest of India."

St. Paul's Church.

The Rev. George W. Deyo, of St. Augustine Chapel, New York, will have charge of the services at St. Paul's Church on Sunday.

Children's Country Home.

Through the courtesy of the trustees the annual meeting of the Children's Country Home Association will be held in the Baptist Church on Monday evening at eight o'clock.

This beautiful charity is supported by many generous friends and well-wishers but comparatively few attend the annual meetings, the managers have always sought to make them interesting and attractive. This year, in addition to full reports of the year's work, an address will be given by Rev. William F. Dorward, of Stelton, N. J. This gentleman is a most interesting speaker, a lecturer of the New York Board of Education. He is in great demand and comes to Westfield as a special favor.

The story of the year and the address of Mr. Dorward ought to bring out many who usually do not attend these meetings, and it is hoped and earnestly desired that a large audience will be present.

The annual meeting of the Children's Country Home will be held October 15th, 1906.

Friends desiring to contribute to this season's work, are kindly asked to do so at once.

Donations may be handed to any one of the Managers or sent to the Treasurer.

REFORMERS TO CONTINUE.

WILL BEGIN FIGHT AGAIN AFTER THE ELECTION.

Senator Colby to Study Laws—Would Vote for Stokes for Senator—Will Not Stand for Dryden—Fathoms Scratched Tickets Will Be Voted.

Senator Everett Colby, who will be the lone reform representative of Essex county in the legislature this winter, announced yesterday that from the Newark headquarters the leaders of the new idea will continue their fight for representative government and as soon as the legislature convenes information containing brief and succinct information that voters will be interested in will be sent out regularly.

Senator Colby will go on an extended tour next Monday and will return in two weeks and take up study which will enable him to qualify for admission to the New Jersey bar. He will study in Sheriff Frank Sommer's office and will practice law in Newark.

"I will take no part in the coming campaign," said the senator. "We are all Republicans. It does not follow that a Republican will necessarily vote a straight ticket. Every man will vote as he thinks is right."

As to his stand in the coming session of the legislature, Mr. Colby said it did not make any difference to him that he would stand alone. Asked how he would vote in the caucus for United States senator, he replied: "I will not vote for Senator Dryden."

He answered further that he did not think George L. Record was a candidate. Asked for his opinion of Senator Dryden's possible success, he replied: "I suppose if the Republicans win in Essex county, in view of the assistance which I am informed was rendered to the other counties, Senator Dryden's election is assured."

Senator Colby was asked about Governor Stokes' chances of election to the United States senate and said that he felt if Essex county should go Democratic "the governor would undoubtedly obtain the Republican caucus nomination." When asked whether if Governor Stokes was the choice of the caucus he would vote for him Senator Colby said he would.

Asked what his course would be in the legislature, Senator Colby said:

"Every member in the senate will have to go on record on the planks in our platform. I shall make an effort to get a rule adopted compelling the chairman of every committee to report any bill on the request of twenty per cent. of the members of the senate. I shall also try to get a bill passed to allow the people to vote directly for United States senators."

Speaking of the recent defeat sustained at the primaries, Senator Colby said the people do not understand what a tremendous vote was polled. In Elizabeth, in Senator Kean's home, no district was carried by the regulars by more than twenty majority. "And so far as I know, not a cent was spent by us. The result came from men interested in the 'new idea' movement. We will continue the fight in every county," he continued. "Already many districts have organizations. Many young men have come forward and offered their active support for next year's campaign."

Senator Colby said that the feature that reacted strongest against the "new idea" was, in his opinion, the bishops' bill, "which I voted for in the senate, and which the machine made me responsible for. I believe in this bill, and I am glad I voted for it."

A Great Change.

Store improvement always deserves applause. And a case especially worthy of notice is that of the interior rearrangement in the Clothing Store of Marshall & Ball, Newark.

The change and improvements have been so great that even some of the old patrons of the house have thought they were in the wrong store.

The Furnishings Department has been removed to the right of the store, near the entrance, and greatly enlarged to meet the rapidly growing trade in that line.

The front office has been removed to the rear of the store, and the Women's Hosiery and Gloves located in the basement near Women's Shoes.

It may not be out of place here to say that this unusual store is showing Fall Clothing for men and young men that has never been equalled in their history of nearly fifty years as manufacturing clothes.

Plainfield Courier-News Approves Standard's Advice.

The Westfield Standard takes every sensible view of the results in the primaries following the battle between the Republican factions: "Those in control at Trenton will be watched the more jealously for the trust reposed in them under pressure to place it in others. The campaign has been of real benefit. It never does any harm to raise the windows and let in some fresh air, even if you don't decide to clean house. Let them all shake hands and get together. There is work yet to be done of a character that needs united effort. Sinking in the tents has long since been unfathomable with the vanquished in any field, just as punishment of the adversary is no longer a habit of the victor. There is room in the Republican party for honest differences of opinion, and freedom to act upon conviction. That this is so can best be attested by the hearty cooperation of the forces on both sides of the 'late unpleasantness' in November."—Plainfield Courier-News.

Record Indicted for Libel.

George L. Record, corporation counsel of Jersey City, and Colby candidate for U. S. Senator before the recent primaries, has been indicted by the Hudson County Grand Jury for criminal libel. The action was taken at the instance of Record's political foe, Col. Samuel Dickinson, whom Record charged with being the paid agent of the corporations.

Democratic Assembly Candidates.

At the Democratic County Convention last Friday night in Elizabeth, Joseph T. Hague, of Elizabeth, James E. Desmond, of Elizabeth, and Harry C. Coulter, of Rahway, were nominated for the Assembly. Dr. F. Otto Wagner of Elizabeth is the nominee for Coroner. The Democrats claim that there is to be no perfunctory canvass this year but that they will make an earnest effort to be elected. With James E. Martine running for congressman there will probably be more than the usual energy put into the Democratic campaign in this County, and the Republicans will have to get out their full force to obtain the usual majority.

Republican Convention.

The Republican Town Convention of Delegates for the nomination of candidates of the Republican party for Mayor, Justices of the Peace and Freeholders, to be voted for at the general election in November, will be held in the Town Rooms on Friday evening, October 19, 1906, at eight o'clock.

Pigs, Shoats and Hogs.

When does a pig become a hog? Some authorities say when it is big enough to hold its own with the hogs at the trough. That sounds very well, but it is not right. Prof. Jay D. Lentz, of Concord, says a pig does not become a hog but a shoat, and the shoat becomes a hog.

STREETSSWEET TONED PIANOS

It is a pleasure for any one to pick a piano from the splendid stock assembled in our Music Hall Warerooms, because there is not an instrument in the house that does not possess a full, rich, sweet tone. This is true of the very best makes and the very cheapest. Other differences make the difference in price.

If you want an exceptionally high grade instrument you will select a Kranich & Bach or the Hardman as a matter of course. If you want something a little more moderately priced you will take a Kuchthal or Scencer or Hazelton. Still more moderately priced are the Lien and Hensel Pianos. They are all good, all well made and capable of giving forth the richest melody when a capable performer takes them in hand.

Besides presenting the instruments named we are also Newark's agents for the famous Harman Automatic Piano, which can be played by hand or mechanically with equal facility. This is truly a wonderful instrument and marks a great advance over the piano players you have heretofore known.

Any of these splendid instruments can be bought by making a small first payment and easy monthly payments thereafter.

We rent good, new pianos for only $4 a month, and after using them awhile you should desire to own the instrument, we will allow the rental paid on the purchase price—certainly an inducement to those who are not sure that they want a piano permanently.

Why Vinol Is Better Than Any Other Remedy to Restore

Health and StrengthVinol

WE RETURN MONEY IF IT FAILS TO GIVE SATISFACTION

Frutchev & Hathaway, Druggists.

Because Vinol is a real Cod Liver Preparation and does not contain a single disagreeable or harmful ingredient and is not a secret formula.

Because Vinol contains all the medicinal elements—the soothing, healing, strengthening and flesh creating properties of Cod Liver Oil—but without oil or grease.

Because everything in Vinol,—except the tonic iron and a fine old wine,—is actually extracted from fresh cods' livers and their oil.

Because Vinol is deliciously palatable and agreeable under all conditions. Everybody likes it.

Because Vinol tones up the system, strengthens every organ, nerve, muscle and fibre of the whole body and thus overcomes weakness by thoroughly eradicating the cause of disease.

That's Why Vinol is altogether different and better than any other remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, and all Throat, Lung and Wasting Diseases.

That's Why Vinol Restores Health and Strength to Delicate Children, Feeble Old People, Weak and Sickly Persons, Nursing Mothers, and Convalescents.

FEED BOX FOR GREEDY HORSES.

Device by Which the Animals Can Be Kept Under Control.

A correspondent in the Breeders' Gazette asks for information concerning the making of wire movable buttons for feeding to control greedy horses. Here is the answer accompanied by an illustration made by M. T. G.

Make a stout frame that will fit in feed box, not a tight fit, but enough smaller so that it will lift out easily. String stout wires an inch apart from end to end of the frame as shown in illustration. This may be done with staples, or holes may be bored through frame with a gimlet. After the feed is in lay wire frame on top of feed. The horse gets all the feed easily, but gets it slowly. Suppose feed box is to be a common square one, make the wire frame as in the sketch.

Cowpea Pasture for Lambs.

Cowpeas furnish excellent grazing for lambs and yearlings. They are strong in protein, even when green, and furnish a well-balanced food. Do not begin to pasture peas until they are quite mature, which will be when the pods are turning yellow. If, says the Farm and Home, a small amount of grain is fed while the lambs are pastured upon peas the growth will be very satisfactory. Hay made from peas is also a very good food for lambs and if crop is harvested before it gets so ripe will last long into the fall and prove much better than dry hay.

SNAKE STORIES POINT MORAL.

If Nothing Else, They Show Folly of Exaggerating Horrors.

One of the significant features of his snake season, and of any snake season that occurs, which is every year, is the very long length of the blacksnakes that are seen. This is not at all remarkable, for about the only thing a blacksnake has to show for itself is its length. It has no muscular tail like the rattlesnake, nor the puffed-out head of the hissing viper, nor the livid, languid manners of the housesnake—it has only length, and when with amazing speed it whips through the deep grass or dead leaves, it seems to be 30 or 40 feet long.

So truly does this little blason exist that when a person tells of a blacksnake seven or eight feet long, he prides himself on great modesty of statement. And, by the way, we have noted many blacksnake stories this summer, and we have not encountered a snake under seven feet.

There was that story of a girl out in York state, who heard her little dog barking violently out in the stable. She went there to discover the cause, and lo! that little dog was in fight with a blacksnake seven feet long. It was a great fight and the dog was doing heroic work, keeping the python at bay, until the little girl hunted up a pitch fork and with that dispatched the serpent, which, the account says, was seven feet long. Of course, it had to be seven feet, for there are no other kind.

Is there a moral to this? There is, of course, to every snake story. It is this, be exceedingly careful not to make bigger than it is the horrible incident in your life which you encounter. See that your blacksnake is under seven feet long.—Ohio State Journal.

OFFERED UP TO MAMMON.

Lives and Health of Children Sacrificed to God of Gain.

Irene Macfadyen of England, after inspecting conditions, a year or two ago, wrote: "The physical, mental, and moral effect of these long hours of toil on the children is indescribably sad. Mill children are so stunted that every foreman will tell you that you cannot judge their ages. The lint in their lungs forms a perfect cultivating medium for tuberculosis and pneumonia, and consumption is common among them. Many die after a few years of this service." The Washington Post, commenting on child-labor in the south, says: "The average life of the children after they go into the mills is four years. It would be less cruel for a state to have children painlessly put to death than it is to permit them to be ground to death by this awful process."—The Cosmopolitan.

Marking the Santa Fe Trail.

The famous old Santa Fe trail is to be marked so that its location will not be forgotten. The school children of Kansas were asked to contribute a penny each to secure suitable markers for this pioneer highway of progress, and $69,166 responded. With this fund the trail will be outlined in an enduring manner from Kansas City to Santa Fe, 800 miles as the caravans made it, the three consumed for the round trip being 110 days. It is believed the trail dates back to 1540, when a Spanish adventurer led an expedition from Mexico as far north as Kansas. But it was not until the beginning of the last century that the American trader and pioneer utilized the long trail that stretched out into the wilderness of the new El Dorado.

"Do you want a flower, sir?"

She was poorly clad, a child of the people, but with a face that a princess might envy.

Marlow took no notice of the voice, as he hurried through the street—it was a highway of the alms—but the patter of the child's bare feet kept pace with his own tread.

"They say they are made out of dead people," she persisted, offering him a tube-rose.

"Thanks," he said, as he paused to take a flower. "Do you grow them?" he added.

"Grow them?" she laughed, with wondering eyes. "Why, they are made out of dead people, I tell you."

"Indeed? Then, where did you get this?"

"From Nellie's coffin. She was buried from our court this morning."

"Ah! And what is your name, little one?"

"My name's Nellie, too."

"Nellie—Nellie of the Rose! I shall accept your flower, and I shall keep it always."

Laughing, the child blushed, and ran.

Marlow wondered at the young girl's beauty and grace, but not at the floral gift, for he had always attracted children.

It was twilight when Marlow arrived at his rooms. He placed the flower upon his desk, wrote his editorial, dispatched it, and fell asleep. A street piano was playing to dancing children on the sidewalk below. The air grew cold. He arose and closed the window. Though the stillness of the room came faintly the splash of chopping water. An odor that suggested death chilled him to the heart. On turning, he saw in the center of the room a coffin, in which Nellie—not a child, but a grown woman—lay dead.

Without understanding, a sense of desolation appaled him, and bowing his head, he kissed the dead woman's brow, and awoke. The air was heavy with the perfume of the flower the child had given him, and her words lingered in his thoughts.

Five years passed. Nellie of the Rose had at first interested Marlow, and he educated her; and, although he learned that she was the daughter of a Gipsy mother and a spoiled, home-loving son of a noble house; Marlow loved her and made her his wife.

Society at first laughed, then sneered, and finally ostracized him. But he laughed at society and was happy for a year.

Yet, the spirit of unrest—the spirit of Nellie's Gipsy mother—possessed the girl, and without a word, without a sign, she left him.

Society said "I told you so," and opened its arms to receive him again, but Marlow tolled on, and awaited his wife's return. Dim of eye and hollow of cheek from toiling and waiting, men said he drank. But his work refuted the charge.

Two years passed. One day a message came to him.

"Come to me," he read, as the paper fluttered from his grasp.

In a free ward of the city hospital, Marlow knelt by the bedside of his wife.

A spirit of her home-loving father was asserting itself, and longing for forgiveness and for home, she confessed.

"Don't! Don't! Oh, Tom, don't look at me so kindly," she moaned.

"I have forgotten all save that one year of happiness you gave me," he whispered.

"But the world—your world, Tom—what will it say?"

"You are my world, dear love," he said, tenderly smoothing her hair.

"Perhaps," she sighed. "But, only for a short time, only for a little while. Oh, Tom, take me home! Home! Oh, home! Won't you, Tom?"

"Yes, little one," he answered, as she fondled and kissed his hand.

—Emerson.

ANXIOUS READER ANSWERED.

An "anxious reader" asks the editor of the Westfield Leader—"how can there be ten greatest novels?" Very easily. The point of the objection is probably that "greatest" is superlative, and that there can be only one "greatest." It is true that the word is superlative. It is not true that there can be only one "greatest" in the sense in which it is used in the phrase quoted. The fallacy of the objection is in supposing that "greatest" is necessarily singular. Of a number of things there may be some which are not only greater than the others, but the greatest of the lot. To illustrate: Of all the novels written, which are the greatest ones? These we mention. How many are there? Ten. Then these are the ten greatest novels? Yes.

It may be suggested that the proper phrase should be "the greatest ten novels." The criticism of that is two-fold. First, the word "greatest" would there modify the word "ten," which is incorrect, because ten, being a definite numerical term, there can of course be no greatest ten or least ten. Ten is ten. Only that and nothing more—nor less. The second objection is, the phrase assumes that the greatest novels can only be classed in blocks of ten, whereas that is not necessarily a fact. Of a number of novels some may be bad, some worse, and some the worst of all. Likewise, there may be some great, some greater, and some the greatest. The anxious reader is confusing the phrase he criticizes with another phrase, often used, but which is not so correct, namely, "the ten first" of anything. The word "first" is preferably used before the plural word "ten" here, because generally speaking there is more likely to be a "first ten" than a "ten first"; although theoretically there could be even a "ten first." Take a company of soldiers, for instance. They are marching in lines of ten men each. The ten men in the front line, if they were exactly the same size and led exactly the same line, would be not only the first ten, but the ten first, because they would be first with respect to those behind them, and not second with respect to one another. The chief thing required of language is clearness. When you say "the ten greatest novels" every one knows what you mean. When you say "the greatest ten novels" it is not so clear. Grammarians do not make language. They only report it as they find it. Sense and usage make language. A little learning is a dangerous thing.

We shall soon see men who can wield a pen fairly well, seeking the prominence of political position, in order to derive a comfortable income from articles written for the newspapers and magazines. This field is now a recognized source of revenue in that respect.

People who tell their troubles when they are not compelled to tell them are apt to tell more than they really have anyway.

Often the radicals are as radical as they are because of the extent to which conservatives insist on staying conservative.

Is Mountain avenue to be widened? And is a trolley line through that section in view?

Miss Wittke Becomes a Bride.

Miss Gertrude May Wittke, daughter of J. S. A. Wittke, of Mountainside, became the bride of George Harold Whitney, of Plainfield, Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock, the wedding taking place in the new art gallery at the home of the bride's father. The Rev. Dr. George H. Whitney, father of the bridegroom officiated.

The interior of the Wittke residence was elaborately decorated with smilax, asparagus, white chrysanthemums, pink roses and lilies of the valley. The new art gallery, not yet completed, made just the right room for the elaborate affair, which was attended by hundreds of guests from far and near. Charles Doerner furnished the decorations.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white satin made princess and trimmed with Duchesse and rose point lace. She wore a tall veil and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her diamond bracelet was the gift of the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Whitney and Miss Margaret Rayan, of Plainfield, and Miss Kathryn Hill, of Trenton. The matron of honor was Mrs. Lee S. Roberts, a sister of the bride. Charles Wittke, a brother of the bride, was best man and Larile Wittke, a 4-year-old niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The bridesmaids were gowned in pink mousseline over pink silk and carried bouquets of pink roses. The matron of honor was gowned in white net over green silk and carried a bouquet of white roses. The flower girl was dressed in white lace and batiste.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were brooches of blue enamel and diamonds.

The ushers were Louis Wilson and Roland Rice, of Plainfield; Leonard Beckley, of New York, and Leland Smith, of Westfield. Glockner's orchestra, of Elizabeth, played.

After the ceremony an elaborate collation was served by Day, of Newark. The bride and groom left amid showers of rice for their wedding tour to New England. They expect to spend several weeks in Maine and will reside in Plainfield on their return.

Several social functions have taken place prior to the wedding. Miss Wittke entertained the bridal party at her home in Westfield for dinner on Tuesday evening, October 2. The groom gave a dinner to the ushers and best man at the Plainfield Casino, on Thursday, October 4. A fruit shower was held in honor of the bride, Miss Wittke, at the home of the groom's parents in Plainfield from 3 to 5 o'clock last Thursday afternoon, while a kitchen shower was held at her own home in Westfield, on September 27.

Crattenden Home Afire.

A fire at the home of George T. Crattenden, 58 Highland Avenue, was discovered by Milman Cory Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock. Mr. Cory awakened the family. Mr. Crattenden telephoned to police headquarters for the fire department and Officer Canfield promptly turned in the alarm for the fire department, which responded promptly.

The fire originated from woodwork in a brick fireplace and burned through the studding and weather boards on the outside of the building. The flames were quickly extinguished with fire extinguishers. The damage will amount to less than $100, which is covered by insurance.

John Doyle's Generosity.

The late William Plummer, of Newburyport, who was a contractor and mason, had in his employ as a tender an Irishman named John Doyle. One day John went to Mr. Plummer and said he was in trouble, as he had lost his account book.

"Why," said Mr. Plummer, "you can not read or write, and how could you keep an account book?"

"Well," said John, "I had a nail keg in the cellar, and when I worked a whole day I put a potato in the keg, and half a potato for a half-day. My pig got into the cellar and ate the potatoes."

"Very well," said Mr. Plummer, "I have your account, and will look it over." On doing so, he found that John had overdrawn 50 cents. He told John that he had drawn 50 cents more than was due him, when John said: "Well, Mr. Plummer, it's a small amount, and you are welcome to it."

WOMAN'S CLUB OPENS SEASON STUDY OF NEW JERSEY.

President's Address in Full—Reports of Delegates to Conventions Heard—Committees Give Accounts of Their Work—New Members Proposed.

The season's work of the Woman's Club of Westfield opened on Monday afternoon at the Presbyterian Chapel. The Rev. C. J. Greenwood, pastor of the Baptist Church, offered the prayer, after which Mrs. Theodore D. Bunce, the president of the club, addressed the members as follows:

Mrs. Bunce's Address.

"It gives me great pleasure this lovely autumn afternoon to greet the members of our club and our guests. We begin today the twelfth season of the Woman's Club of Westfield. Five months have passed since our last meeting. During that time our members have been widely separated. Many have traveled far in this land in foreign lands. We hope at our next meeting to have from the fortunate ones accounts of their journeys to the sea, the mountains, the camp and to the other side of the Atlantic.

To many of our members the vacation season has been a time of rest, recreation and the opportunity for broadening the views of life that travel gives. We rejoice in this; but to others it has been a time of sorrow and loss. To those we give our sympathy, and the comfort of an understanding heart, one woman to another.

In May, after a short illness, Mrs. Eliza A. Bridges, one of our charter members, passed peacefully into the life beyond. We were so used to the gentle and lovely presence of this dear member, that perhaps we did not realize how remarkable and unusual it was for a lady nearly ninety years of age to be able to attend the greater part of our meetings, and to enjoy and discuss the papers and proceedings. Her presence added a dignity to our gatherings. Her memory is a treasure. The lives of those who have been called beyond are a heritage and will be preserved in our hearts as an inspiration for the future. The names of Emma McCormick, Ruth Perkins, Kate Woodward and Eliza Bridges, recall not alone sad recollections, but memories full of sweetness, brightness, and recognition of lovely lives that were lived amongst us and whose influence will not die.

As the years go by the associations of our club life grow deeper and stronger. The glory of old countries, old literatures, old religions, is the priceless heritage of the story of the past, the story of those who have lived, worked, striven and died, their work to be carried on by younger hearts and hands. This is tradition. Each year of our club life adds to our storehouse of work accomplished and of devoted service.

Ever since Ex-President Cleveland several years ago wrote for a well-known periodical his somewhat scathing criticism of woman's clubs, we have constantly reading and hearing discussions of the usefulness of such organizations of women. I was much interested in an article on this subject in a recent magazine, and in a discussion with several club women in regard to it. Several women told of clubs to which they belonged. The story of one was largely the story of another. Most of the clubs in our federation, for instance, started, as did our own, for the improvement of the members in literature, music, affairs of the day, and the like. But in almost every case, after a few years, the women began to reach out to assist some needy or struggling cause, or to remedy some evil that was in their doors. "Three motives," one woman says, "inspire the woman's club movement. They are philanthropy, education and social service. To do good, to grow wiser, to join in civic progress.

In our own club this is somewhat the case. Our constitution says: "its object shall be the mutual improvement of its members in literature, art, science and the vital interests of the day." The last phrase soon meant vital interests of the day in our own town, and the woman's club means to-day in Westfield, a band of earnest, progressive women, quick to see the needs of our town, interested in our fine schools and library, ready to strengthen and assist every endeavor to make our town beautiful, to look for good to live in, and the best place in the world to bring up the children.

We are proud of our record, we have a reason for the faith that is in us. We begin our twelfth year of work with pride in the past, and confidence and faith in the future fields of opportunity right here in our own meetings and in our own town open before us. We are a band of busy women, we come here for mental rest and recreation, for an hour of companionship and cheer. We know that the good fellowship of our club helps us to perform the duties and bear the burdens. This year, we are to study our own State of New Jersey. A fine program has been prepared for us by a committee of five women, who have spared no effort to make this year instructive, interesting and helpful to every woman in our club. Let us assist this committee by regular attendance and appreciative hearts and minds. "From each as she has power to give" and if we all live up to our club motto, we can make the present year a banner year in our history.

Business Transacted.

Reference was made to the fact that Miss Clara Steeb, the corresponding secretary of the club, had resigned during the summer and that the executive committee had filled the vacancy by appointing Mrs. Robert Johnston to the office. Mrs. E. S. Robinson, the former president, referred to the loyal and efficient services rendered by Miss Steeb during her term of office, and upon Mrs. Robinson's motion a vote of appreciation was extended to Miss Steeb.

Mrs. Robinson gave the report of the State Federation Convention at Metuchen last spring and of the Biennial session of the National Federation at St. Paul in the month of June. The members were informed that they would have to make up their minds whether or not they desired to take part in any agitation in favor of woman's suffrage.

Reports of the club committees on Library, School Gardens and School Luncheon were given by the respective heads of the committees. It was announced that there were four vacancies in the membership of the club, and the names of Mrs. Siskerson, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Sinclair and Mrs. Cutler were proposed, to be voted on at a later meeting. Mrs. C. N. Coddling, a former member, was re-elected by acclamation.

Lecture by Dr. Savitz.

The business of the meeting concluded, Dr. J. J. Savitz, supervising principal of the Westfield schools, delivered his lecture upon "The Topography and Geography of New Jersey." Dr. Savitz illustrated his talk with relief maps and simple experiments. He called attention to the scientific method of studying the subject, the definite relation of cause and effect having everything to do with the positive knowledge that scientists have been able to obtain in their investigations of the phenomena observed in this field. He traced the geological history of New Jersey, showing the main divisions of the topographical conditions in this state, sketching roughly as he went along the different conditions which produced the land and water formations existing today in New Jersey. Dr. Savitz cited illustrations of several of these formations in Westfield. The valuable collection of geological specimens owned by the Westfield High School was arranged on a table at one end of the room, where all could examine them.

Miss Peddle very kindly added to the enjoyment of the afternoon by rendering several Scotch and English folk-songs, and was heartily encored.

A reception and club tea followed the general meeting, many of the members and guests remaining to enjoy the social half hour.

—Albert M. Baxter was arrested yesterday by Officer Caulfield for creating a disturbance at the Railway Junction. Baxter will have a trial before Judge Toucey to-night.

—Frederick Hodge, seventeen years old, who lived with the family of Henry Hamilton in Mountainside, died last night of lock-jaw, the result of injuries received from a rusty nail. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon.

FIRE LADDIES HOLD GREAT PARADE AT ELIZABETH

Westfield Represented by a Delegation of Exempt and Active Members—Old Chemical Engine Attracts Attention.

The much heralded parade of fire fighters was held at Elizabeth yesterday, and proved a grand success. A column of men in every variety of firemen's uniforms, engines, bands, drum corps, and standard bearers, formed a line of march of over four miles. Chief Frederick C. Decker headed a delegation from Westfield, consisting of forty exempt firemen and about twenty-five active members. They were accompanied by Russell Wilcox's drum corps. The hose wagon was included in the Westfield division, as well as the old chemical hand engine, the first apparatus bought for the organized Westfield fire department in 1875. This old engine attracted much attention along the line of march. All three of the local companies were represented. Among the former members who met their comrades from Westfield at Elizabeth and joined the procession were Charles B. Peckham, Andrew Chambers and John R. Barclay.

Explaining it. "This talk about millions of dollars for the Panama canal gets me," remarked St. Slocum. "That's a power of money for just a canal."

"Mebbe," suggested Rube Robbins, "they're going to have the towpath asphalted. That runs into a heap of money."

Paint Adds Value to Property

For every dollar's worth of paint—good paint—you put on your house, you add several dollars to its value, for the difference in price which property in good repair will bring over a shabby building is by no means measured by the actual cost of the improvement.

In this calculation we have not included the insurance feature—the saving of the property from decay.

Good paint looks well, protects well, lasts well.

There are many imitations of paint which do none of these things, yet cost as much or more than straight white lead and linseed oil, the best paint.

Atlantic Pure White Lead

Made by the Old Dutch Process is the acknowledged standard. See that it is used on your house.

Don't Want to Climb.

Rather than make an effort to reach the top some men prefer to remain at the bottom for the purpose of helping pull others down.

Hardly Reason Enough.

Some of our neighbors are permitted to live because it takes all kinds of people to make a world. That's the answer.

Popular Word.

"Forbidden" is a familiar word in Germany. In Italy it is "vietato." In Germany "verboten" or more politely "untersagt," and in France "defendu."

"Brother Jonathan."

The original "Brother Jonathan" was Mr. Jonathan Trumbull, governor of the state of Connecticut during the American war of independence.

"It isn't the name that makes clothes good. It's the clothes that make the name good."

Stoutenburgh's are best! It's a common boast in many clothing stores: "Our clothes are as good as Stoutenburgh's." But the saying lacks the smack of truth.

After what others may say or claim, your own eyes will tell you that Stoutenburgh clothes are never equalled or even approached. Their style, fit, tailoring and quality are evidence of their superiority over any other clothes.

Will you see them?

Fall Suits for men and young men, in exclusive gray effects, blues and blacks, $10 to $30. Fall Overcoats in the "Essex," the Chesterfield and dinky top coat models $10 to $38.

We fulfil our outfitting mission by providing Hats, Shoes and Furnishings of corresponding style and quality.

SQUELCHED THE PROUD ONE.

Old Traveler Took the Starch Out of the Staff Officer.

A gorgeous staff officer, glittering attendant of a visiting governor, stood at the entrance to the platform in the Philadelphia station of the Pennsylvania road the other day. There had been a historic anniversary celebrated down the Delaware and the guests were about to board their special train for New York. The haughty staff officer had been stationed where he was in order to pass in on to the platform where the "special" was awaiting the invited guests. He was very, very proud. To him appeared an irate old man, dictatorial of temper and apologetic of build.

"When does the next train for Harrisburg leave?" snapped the portly and fiery man.

The staff officer drew himself up haughtily and replied in accents meant to be chilling: "I am sure I don't know."

"You don't, hey?" roared the irate inquirer, being, of course under the impression that the staff officer was one of the uniformed employees of the road: "You don't, hey? Well, I'll find out why you don't. What in thunder are you paid for, any way?"

By this time a crowd of the expected guests had arrived and were standing by, listening with amusement to the conversation. The last pointed question of the old man was too much and a "snicker" broke out which swelled into a laugh as the staff officer, completely taken aback, stammered out: "I—I—don't know."

PITY THE BUTTONED-BEHIND.

The Victim of Modern Feminine Clothes Needs Sympathy.

The man was looking quizzically around the theater, evident in search of something or somebody. "Do you see her anywhere?" coldly asked the maiden at his side.

He laughed. "I wasn't looking for any 'her,'" he said. "I was merely confirming my belief that the majority of women who wear waists buttoned in the back go around with the sixth button from the top unbuttoned. Of course, I know it is difficult for a woman to fasten her shirt-waist properly when it closes in the back, but why is it always the sixth button from the top; why not the third or the fifth?"

The maiden at his side looked at him pityingly. "That's easy," she said. "If you'd tried to wear such a waist you'd know just why. It's because the sixth button marks the point where we cannot reach up or down to. By twisting and squirming we can manage to fasten the fifth button from the top, and by twisting our arms up we can reach the seventh from the top, but the sixth is impossible. So we leave it, expecting to ask some kind friend to button that one button for us, and then we go out and forget all about it, until we're reminded. Would you mind buttoning that sixth button on my waist now before the show begins?"

Uncle Eben.

"A person dat has mo' money dan be knows what to do with," said Uncle Eben, "pears to be a good deal like a man wif de dyspepsia in a house full of pie."

"Presumption" of Death.

An English court has just allowed the heirs of a young man who went down with a ship in a storm in the Indian ocean in 1857 to "presume" that he is dead.

Marriage Gets Another Frosting.

And now even the frosting of the wedding cake is said to harbor germs. Thus one more is added to the list of obstacles on the road to marriage.

African Mountain Sinking.

Jebel Naiba, a mountain near Bona, in Algiers, is gradually sinking. Around its base a huge depression grows steadily deeper.

DONKEYS FOR CHILDREN.

They Cost Too Much to Be Common in This Country.

The little donkey art, as it trudged along the white beach, attracted much attention. Under their red silk parasols the ladies in white looked at the small, gray donkey and smiled. The gentlemen, raising their eyes from their novels, patted the small and feebly animal as it passed.

"That donkey cost a hundred," said a veterinary surgeon. "It is a very fine specimen. What I want to know is, why are not cheap donkeys bred here in America, the same as abroad? Then every child, at an expense of $5 or $10, might have a donkey no bigger than a Newfoundland dog to ride and drive."

"London is full of donkeys. The custers use them. Every tiny huckster cart is drawn by a tiny gray donkey." The animals are bred in Ireland and in Wales, and it is possible to buy little ones for $4, $5 and $7, and so on up to $100 or more for the fancy grades.

"The donkey is docile, intelligent, industrious, moral. He never runs away. He never loses his temper. He is an ideal pet for children, and if he were bred here, he would be within the reach of nearly all."

"Think how nice it would be if you could do what you can do in England—give a child a nice little donkey that only costs $5."

Was Wise Man.

First bald-headed man—No flies or mosquitoes bothered my bald head this summer.

Second bald-headed man—What did you do?

First bald-headed man—Had a splder's web tattooed on my bald spot.

HAD THE YOUNGSTER SCARED.

Boy May Have Doubted, But He Took No Chances.

Shrill whistling by a boy on a lake-bound car was stopped last night by a remark addressed to the conductor after other means to check the "warbler" failed. The boy's whistling greatly annoyed all the passengers.

The conductor said to a passenger in so low a tone that the whistler could not hear him: "Isn't it a pity that there is no rule to stop a nuisance of that kind?"

"Watch me fix him," said the passenger, and then he remarked aloud: "I'd have just as big a mustache as yours if it hadn't been for the fact that I was continually whistling when I was a boy. But I didn't know at the time that whistling prevented hair growing on the upper lip."

That boy was about 17 years old and he had just a suspicion of fuzz on his upper lip. He stopped whistling.—Worcester Post.

Darkest Pittsburgh.

In three small adjoining towns not far from Pittsburgh visitors have often noticed remarkable irregularity in the numbers of the houses. On one dwelling would be seen No. 12, on the next No. 210, on the next No. 417, on the next No. 110, and so on. The cause of this confusion was brought to light the other day when a woman from one of the little towns made a purchase in a city store and requested that the goods be delivered at her home, naming the street in which she resided.

"What is the number of your home?" asked the clerk who had made the sale.

"We have no number just now," said the purchaser. "We moved on April 1 and forgot to bring our number with us."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE REASON WHY

We So Strongly Endorse and Recommend Vinol to the People of Westfield.

A member of the firm of Frutchey & Hathaway, our local druggists, says: "We do not believe there is a man, woman or child in Westfield whom our famous cod liver preparation, Vinol, will not benefit at this season of the year."

"We believe there is no need for so many people to drag around run-down, tired out and debilitated, or for old people to remain weak and infirm when we guarantee Vinol will restore health and strength."

Continued the druggist: "For centuries cod liver oil has been recognized as the standard of all body-building agents for wasted human strength and vitality, but on account of the nauseating and system-clogging oil which enveloped its curative properties few could take it with benefit."

"In Vinol you get in a concentrated form every one of the curative and strength-creating elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers, the useless, system-clogging oil eliminated, and tonic iron added."

"Vinol is guaranteed by over five thousand of the leading druggists of the United States to create strength for old people, for the run-down, tired and debilitated, weak, sickly women and children, and after severe sickness."

"We ask every such person in Westfield to try Vinol. It costs nothing if it fails." Frutchey and Hathaway, Druggists.

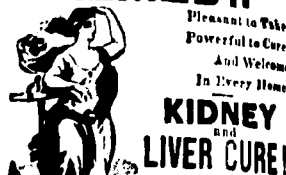

NOTE.—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Westfield, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

Worse Plight.

"He's been talking golf so much here lately he seems to be actually going crazy."

"Gracious! Then what must be the condition of the people he's been talking to?"

Test of Tea.

The amount of ash given by tea leaves when burning is said to be a guide as to the quality of the tea. The difference is small amongst good samples, but the quantity of ash increases amongst the inferior and adulterated samples.

Not Occupation for the Aged.

According to French and Swiss physicians, it is dangerous for elderly and weak persons to visit the higher altitudes of the Alps. They assert that for such persons to do so is to invite cerebral apoplexy, cardiac lesions and pulmonary embolism.

PLAINFIELD THEATRE.

Ezra Kendall will make his debut here in his latest success, Swiss Family Robinson, on Oct. 18th at the New Plainfield Theatre matinee and night. A treat of the highest order is in store for local theatre goers.

CRUISE TO SEE MODJESKA.

For the singer to see Modjeska, whose art is the art of Edwin Booth, of Ellen Terry, of Charlotte Cushman and of Mrs. Siddons, is for its cause to suffer a blow from which it may not recover in an entire generation. Realization of this fact is responsible for the enthusiasm with which playgoers in all parts of the land have determined that the great Polish actress' farewell American tour shall be an unbroken series of testimonials of appreciation and esteem. Local patrons of the drama entered into the spirit of the purpose with an unrestrained enthusiasm that assures that when Modjeska appears at the New Plainfield Theatre, next Monday night in the play chosen by ballot of ticket purchasers she will be greeted by a throng which for size and cordiality has never been surpassed in this city. Ever since this performance was first announced it seems to have been regarded as a matter of course that every occasional as well as every regular attendant of the playhouse was to be present, if the capacity of the theatre would permit. It has developed that this estimate was not over sanguine, for it is a certainty now that there will not be seats for all who will clamor for admission to do the celebrated artist honor. None who have ever seen Modjeska and, likewise, none who are so unfortunate as not to have seen her, wish to permit this final opportunity to pass ungrasped, for it will never come again. Modjeska, so far as the American stage is concerned, will live only in history after this farewell tour.

PROCTOR'S NEWARK THEATRE.

An interesting program of agreeable variety has been arranged for Proctor's Newark Theatre for the week of Oct. 15. The principle headline feature being the reappearance here of the popular Broadway singer and comedienne Nina Carus, who will score heavily with her latest song successes. Miss Carus promises a rare treat for the fair sex by wearing some of her newest Parisian gowns, for which she is noted.

Catherine Hayes and Sabel Johnson will introduce a distinct novelty in their "Dreams of Baby Days" by singing with an interesting series of moving pictures.

Another of Mr. F. F. Proctor's European importations, the Three Donkeys, will amaze the audience with their feats of strength and agility on the Spanish rings.

BROADWAY THEATRE.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of Gen. Lew Wallace's "The Prince of India" is scoring the success at the Broadway Theatre that such a magnificent and interesting attraction merits. The house is packed to the doors at each performance and enthusiastic applause marks every incident of the play from start to finish.

HELPING YOUNG MINISTER OUT OF HIS DIFFICULTY

A young minister in a college town was embarrassed by the thought of criticism in his cultivated congregation.

He sought counsel from his father, an old and wise minister, saying: "Father, I am hampered in my ministry in the pulpit I am now serving. If I cite anything from geology, there is Prof. A., teacher of this science, right before me. If I use an illustration of Roman mythology, there is Prof. B—ready to trip me up for my little inaccuracy. If I instance something in English literature that pleases me, I am covered by the presence of the learned man that teaches that branch. What shall I do?"

The sagacious old man replied: "Do not be discouraged. Preach the gospel. They probably know very little of that."

Natural Question.

A little Philadelphia boy was taken by his father for his first visit to the zoo. Stopping before an enclosure, he asked: "Papa, what animal is that?" Reading the sign looked up to one side, his father responded: "That, my son, is a pronghorned antelope." "Isn't he blow his horns?" was the question that promptly followed.—Exchange.

The First Requisite of Beauty.

The first requisite of beauty is a clear complexion. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup clears a sallow blotched complexion as it stimulates the liver and bowels, and the eyes become bright and clear. You owe it to your friends to take it if your complexion is bad. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not irritate or grip and is very pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes.—Sold by Frutchey and Hatha-way, Druggists.

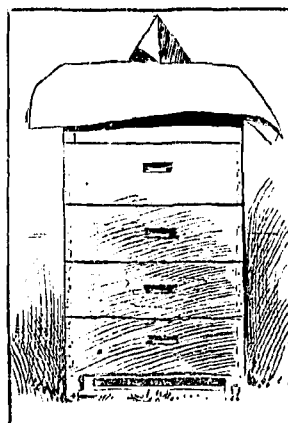

A MILLER TENT-ESCAPE.

Its Use and How to Take Surplus Honey Out of the Supers.

There are two ways of making a Miller tent-escape. The way I made mine, explains Fred A. Strohbach, in Farmer's Voice, is as follows:

First, a piece of wire cloth was cut 22x19½ inches. At the middle of one of the long sides a mark was made, and two marks five and one-half inches from each end on the other long side. Then a line was drawn from each of the five and one-half inch marks to the corners of the other long side. The wire-cloth is folded on these lines and sewn down with fine wire. (The wire-cloth can also be cut off on these lines, but the tent will not be as rigid.) After the first two folds have been sewn down the piece of wire-cloth is folded so it will have the shape of a pyramid. In order to fold properly, a line should be made with white chalk from the five and one-half inch marks to the center (mark) of the other long side and the wire-cloth folded on these lines. After the wire-cloth is folded the two sides that meet are sewn together with fine wire. A hole large enough for bees to pass must be left at the top.)

This wire-cloth tent escape must be fastened onto a piece of cloth (I used old flour sacks) large enough to hang down four or five inches on all four sides of a super. After a piece of cloth of the right size is spread on a table, the tent-escape is put on the center of it and marks made where the three corners of the tent come. Then, starting about one inch towards the center from the marks, the cloth is cut to the center. Enough of the three flaps of cloth is cut off so about two inches remain. The two inches left are sewed into the inside of the three-sided tent with string.

Dr. Miller, after whom the tent is named, and who first devised it, makes a hem on two ends of the cloth and fills it with small stones to hold down the tent in windy weather. But I prefer to insert a heavy stick into the hem (the same as in a window shade) for holding down the escape.

I will describe in a few words how the tent-escape is used:

After as many of the bees as possible have been driven down out of the super to be taken off (driven down with smoke, I mean), it is put on a bottom board and a Miller tent escape put over it, and the entrance below closed with a wire-cloth entrance closer which is made the same as an entrance guard.

The pile of supers can be eight or ten high, but the more supers the longer it takes for them to be freed of the bees.

The bees will pass out freely through the hole at the top of escape, but sometimes a bunch of outgoing bees will gather in the top of the escape and attract outside bees, which will then force their way into the pile of supers to fill themselves with honey and carry it into the hive again. The bees should be scattered with a few puffs of smoke, and all will be well again.

The supers should be put in a sunny place to entice out the bees, and they may also be hustled a little by blowing in smoke at the bottom of the pile of supers.

If a bunch of bees gather on the entrance closer below, it should be taken away and the bees shaken off, and, of course, the closer replaced again.

The pile of supers must be "beelighted," so no bees can get in; especially so if there is no need to gather. If bees get a taste when surplus honey is taken off, one may have to stop operations for several days.

Work with Poultry.

Lice are the cause of much of the so-called cholera.

More attention to the feeding of fowls will give more profit in the returns.

Put a leaky honey package with soap and see how quickly it will stop the leak.

Feeding an unbalanced ration means that a considerable part of the ration is wasted.

A bare yard without shade is fatal to ducks. Dip a couple of bran sacks and tack them on a frame three feet high if you can't provide any better shade.

IN DAKOTA

It was a very old story, in the small town of Deadwood, S. D., back in the days of the gold rush. A man named Bill Souter, who had been a lawyer in the East, had come to Deadwood to practice law. He was a very good lawyer, and he was very popular in the town. He had a very good sense of humor, and he was very kind to everyone. He was a very good friend to everyone.

One day, he was sitting in his office, and he was looking out the window. He was looking at the mountains in the distance. He was looking at the river in the foreground. He was looking at the town in the middle ground. He was looking at the people in the town. He was looking at the life in the town. He was looking at the future of the town.

A many years ago, when I was young, I was told that Owen Wister, the famous writer, had written the word "cheque." The word "cheque" was a word that was used in the English language, and it was a word that was used in the English language.

GOOD PLACE TO PUT A RAZOR.

In a Bag Lined with Wash Leather and Conveniently Placed.

The accompanying sketch illustrates a useful little bag for a razor, made for hanging up on the post of a looking-glass or on a nail in the wall by the side of the glass. The bag should be about eight inches in length and two in width. It is gathered at the top and a ribbon run through, which answers the double purpose of closing the neck and supporting the bag when

When Dimpleton reached his home, after a rather trying day at the office, he was met at the door by Mrs. Dimpleton in a flutter of excitement and lace ruffles. She held something behind her back.

"Just guess!" she cooed, delightedly. "Not a guess left," Dimpleton said, as he hung up his hat. He had been guessing at Erie all day.

"It's something nice," she said, coaxingly, as she slipped her arm around him and led the way to the cool library.

"Not an invitation to some home party, that we will have to accept?" he questioned in sudden alarm.

"Of course not—as if I would think anything was nice that would take us away from home!" she protested, indignantly.

"Well, I'm prepared for the worst; what is it?" he said, pulling her down upon his knee.

She held up the letter she had been concealing.

"Mamma has written that she would be here to-morrow to stay a month!" she cried, triumphantly.

No, Dimpleton didn't start a rough-house, break any furniture, go off to the club and stay out all night, or do any of the things that the funny writer has so long relied upon to bring a howl of mirth. His face lit up with real pleasure.

"Is that so?" he said. "Well, I certainly will be glad to see the old lady! I haven't had a good, long talk with her since before we were engaged, and I would come around to the house of a summer evening and find you out with some other fellow."

For this happened to be about an average mother-in-law, and Dimpleton liked her—as is not uncommon—Puck.

Real Old-Fashioned Umbrella.
There has been discovered at Greepock, England, an old-fashioned umbrella with whalebone ribs, which must be quite 120 years old. When opened it affords shelter for a whole family.

A Rich Possession.
This was over my chief prayer: A piece of ground, not too large, with a garden, and a spring of never-failing water near my house, and a little woodland besides.—Horace.

Growth of Cotton Industry.
In 1800 100,000 bales of cotton would have lasted the Lancashire mills for a year; now the same amount only feeds their spindles for a day and a quarter.

Preserved in Alcohol.
Notwithstanding statistics show the French village of Chally to be the heaviest consumer of alcoholic liquors in proportion to population of any village of France, it is a fact that the little hamlet contains also the largest number of octogenarians.—American Wine Press.

Striving to Please.
"Do you expect to raise any hay this year?"
"Not much," answered Mr. Corotose. "Only just enough to make the place look like a farm so's to satisfy the feelin' of the summer boarders."—Washington Star.

No danger of consumption if you use Foley's Honey and Tar because that stubborn cough.—Sold by Fritchey and Hathaway, Druggists.

First Use of Ice Cream.

Though the ancient Greeks and Romans used ice for table purposes to get through the hot months of summer, they knew nothing of "ices." These were introduced into France from Italy about 1660 and were known at first as "fromages glaces," iced cheeses, although they were made of strawberries and apricots, and contained not a drop of cream. From 1762 the use of "glaces" in the plural was sanctioned by the French academy, but not before 1825 did "une glace" force its way into recognized acceptance. "Ices" are referred to from time to time in the eighteenth century in English people's letters from abroad. "Iced creams," however, were known as early as 1659, and by the middle of the eighteenth century "ice cream" figured in cookery books.

Robertson Coming.

It is with great pleasure we announce the return of the D. W. Robertson Moving Picture Company on Wednesday evening, October 17th.
