Council Holds Short Meeting.

A short session of the Town Council was held on Monday night. Councilmen Eskholme and Russell were not present. Mr. Lambert made a plan for improvements to road on South Broad street, and the road committee was asked to look into the matter. The council gave John Taylor permission to build a wood extension on the North avenue building formerly known as the Lambert feed store.

Bids for furnishing fire hose were received from Henry M. Backley and J. A. Dennis. The bid of the latter for 500 feet was accepted. Reports of the commissioners of assessment were received and ordered advertised. Two assessments were confirmed.

The council directed the clerk to pay to E. W. Chamberlin the warrant ordered with held some time ago. Certificates of exemption from the duty were granted to John Goltra, Charles Doermer and E. H. Koerner. Mayor Perkins suggested a vote of thanks to the firemen for their prompt and efficient work at the fire in Welch Brothers' store recently, and such a vote was extended. Chief O'Neill turned over to the council the twenty dollars reward paid by the United States for the return of Arnold Miller to the navy yard, and the council ordered the money paid to Officer Stamets, who made the arrest.

P. J. Flanagan's hotel license was transferred to John H. Willott, to whom the North Avenue Hotel has been sold. Fire Chief Decker stated that he would, after consultation with the fire committee, submit recommendations for increased facilities for fighting fires.

Town Attorney Oliver was directed to take up the matter of causing the removal of trolley wires from the trees about the Washington school grounds.

J. M. Ledley asked for permission to close a portion of South avenue near North street while he is constructing a bridge there, and the council gave him three weeks.

By amendment to the bond ordinance passed on second reading about a year ago the rate of interest was increased to four and one half per cent.

The council voted to join in the petition for a new railroad station on the south side of the track.

Hearings on petitions for sewers on Downer street and Osborne avenue were ordered advertised.

Mr. Hoppock's Petition.

Moses Hoppock has taken a great deal of pains to make the petition for a new station on the south side one that the railroad officials will be deeply impressed with, when presented with over six hundred signatures of the citizens of Westfield.

The signatures are neatly tabulated on grey card boards which are to be bound in a morocco cover with silver clasps, and gold lettering on the front cover. A delegation from the town council will be present when the petition is presented.

A Remarkable Charity.

The famous Bowery Mission Bread Line, now in its fourth year, at which every morning, at one o'clock during the winter months, one thousand homeless and destitute men and boys are provided with a breakfast of hot coffee and rolls, will resume operations at Thanksgiving, midnight, and continue to Easter morning, 1907. Last year 141,000 were thus assisted, and altogether over half a million have had a weary night's tramp agreeably interrupted by this inexpensive, yet very welcome refreshment.

The Directors of the Bowery Mission have appointed Mr. John C. Earl, of 22 Bible House, New York City, Financial Secretary, succeeding Dr. Simon Trenwith, lately deceased.

THINGS THE BABY NEEDS.

Will Add Greatly to Little One's Health and Comfort.

The less noise a baby hears, the less he is carried about and played with for the first six months of his life, the better it will be.

It is seldom necessary to take him from his crib, except for his bath and meals. The habit of tossing him about and trotting him on the knee makes him nervous and wakeful, and cannot possibly do any good.

His undeveloped system calls for rest, yet he is often denied that privilege.

Children, as well as older people, are to a great extent creatures of habit, and they cannot acquire habits that are conducive to proper development and health of the body at too early an age.

It is during sleep that the building-up forces work without interruption and the child gains in flesh and strength.

Have regular hours for his naps, and see that everything is favorable for sleep at that time. There should be no tight bands to hinder respiration.

Place his crib in such a position that the light will not shine directly upon his face—preferably in a cool, quiet corner. Do not cover him too warmly; change his position occasionally, and he will sleep longer.

If baby is restless and does not sleep well, it is well to remove some of the covering. Baby should not be covered too warmly, but should have just enough covering, so he won't be cold.

Never give your baby soothing sirup of any kind, except on the advice of your physician.

Whenever baby shows the slightest symptoms of sickness it is best to call a physician at once, since much harm may be done by only a few hours' delay, and the little life is far too precious to be sacrificed needlessly.

AROUND THE HOUSE.

To take white spots from varnished furniture hold a hot stove lid or plate over them and they will soon disappear.

If a bottle of the oil of pennyroyal is left opened in a room at night, not a mosquito will be found there in the morning.

Apple jelly may be improved by adding to it water, in which the core and trimmings of pineapple have been boiled, and the liquid strained.

For troublesome ants—A heavy chalk mark laid a finger's distance from the sugar and all around (there must be no space not covered) will surely prevent ants from troubling.

A good way to clean mice in a stove that has become blackened with smoke, is to take it out and thoroughly wash it with vinegar. If the black does not come off at once, let it soak a little.

Do not throw away your pea pods after shelling the peas, for they contain so much sweetness that they give a delicious flavor to the peas. Boil the pods first, then drain the water off in a colander and use it for boiling the peas.

Mix potash with powdered meal, and throw it in the rat holes of a cellar, and the rats will depart. For mice in a poultry, stuff a saturated rag with a solution of cayenne pepper into the hole, and no mouse will touch the rag.

Leather goods, if their appearance is to be preserved, should not be kept in places that are too dry, as the heat will cause the leather to crack. Nor in damp places that will make it moldy. To freshen leather chair seats, traveling bags, book covers, etc., that have become shabby or spotted, rub them with the well-beaten white of an egg. Soiled leather bags are best cleaned by using ordinary russet shoe polish, cleaning them in the same way that shoes are cleaned.

Misleading.

"What a beautiful piece your daughter is playing. It's from Wagner, is it not?"

"Oh, no. She's merely polishing the piano keys."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

NECTARINES.

A Fruit Which is Closely Related to the Peach.

The feature which distinguishes the nectarine from the peach is that it does not have a fuzzy coat. Were it called a smooth peach, such as it really is, the confusion in regard to it would be avoided.

It was formerly supposed that the nectarine was a distinct species and was divided like the peach into freestone and cling. But the distinction is now known to be incorrect. Nectarines have been raised from peach seeds and peaches from nectarines. It is even possible to originate either from the other by bud variation, which is sufficient to prove that the difference is the result of either chance or selection.

Nectarines are cultivated like peaches, but owing to their smooth skin they are more liable to damage from the curculio than is the case with the peach. In California they are grown on a commercial scale, but are insignificant when compared with the peach, the product of the former being less than one-hundredth part that of the latter.

In general, nectarines will grow where peaches do. They are less hardy than the peach and are shorter lived, but this is probably due to the little attention which the development of the fruit has received. Had the same consideration been given it that the peach has received there seems to be no reason why it should not be as hardy.

On the market the nectarine is not as popular as the peach because the varieties have been less highly developed, consequently are inferior. The only feature that recommends it is the smooth skin and this is not sufficient to overcome the disadvantages.

Were it not for the curculio the position of the nectarine might be different. If it were equal to the peach it would have the preference on account of the smooth skin. But so long as the fur coat is a protection it is probable that the peach will be preferred by the grower to the neglect of the nectarine.

The varieties of nectarines are few compared with the peach. Bailey mentions less than a dozen as of importance. The Boston and Pittmaston Orange are most commonly recommended.

But there is one use for the nectarine mentioned by Prairie Farmer, which should not be forgotten. The smooth-tongued tree agent finds that it sometimes serves his purpose very well as a trap for the unwary.

HOUSE FOR CURING ONIONS.

Suitable Structure Recommended by Agricultural Department.

The plan shown in the cut represents what has been recommended by the department of agriculture as a good house for the curing of onions, and has been used with success by practical growers. The structure consists of little more than a frame in which shelves are placed from six to ten inches apart. This shed is cheaply made and keeps the onions well separated so that air can reach them from nearly all sides.

Shed for Drying Onions.

Careless.

"What made you lose that battle?" asked the Southern American Insurance agent.

"I lost my head," confessed the contrite officer. "I got so interested trying to remember exactly what we are fighting about that I forgot to fight."—Washington Star.

TRAGEDIES IN MEN'S LIVES.

Tombstone Inscriptions That Tell Their Own Story.

"To any one who knows his New York," remarked an elderly local inhabitant, "there is no better opportunity to study the tragedies in men's lives than in one of our cemeteries. I stopped in front of one great tomb the other day in Woodhull, attracted partly by the beauty of the design of the tomb and partly, I confess, by the name of the family engraved on the principal sarcophagus. It was that of one of the wealthiest families in this city, whose name is known over the country, since it is attached to an article of food that almost every one uses. And yet when I studied the story told by four of the tombstones, I could not help but think how little happiness the man, who is the only member of his family left, could have with all his fortune.

"One stone bore the name of the youngest child, who had lived less than a year. The second showed that another boy had died the day he was born. The third showed that a third child, a boy, had lived to be 19, while the fourth stone covered his wife. There was a fifth stone, bare of any name, and I could not help wondering if the head of that house was not simply waiting for the time to come when he would rest beneath it, and the tragedy of his loneliness be ended.

Princeton Pastor a Humorist.

The Rev. Dr. J. Addison Henry, for many years the Princeton pastor, had a keen sense of humor, and detested shams. Speaking of how careless to a congregation are the honorary degrees and titles that its pastor might have, he told of one his daughter, Mrs. Oddyke, when a child, conferred upon him. It seems Dr. Henry was attending one of the sessions of the general assembly and the little girl addressed a letter to him: "The Rev. J. Addison Henry, General Ass." He was famous as a punster, and his play of words on his name was often quoted. When the degree of D. D. was conferred upon him by Princeton he remarked: "So A.D.-ison Henry." With children he was irresistible. He told them, one day in speaking of prayer, that his little daughter one Christmas eve made the following supplication: "Oh, Lord, do please make the night very short and to-morrow very long." The text for his address on his fortieth anniversary was: "And Forty Years Have I Suffered These People."

Handshake Anguish.

A correspondent who is one of the sex most liable to have his hand pressed, thanks us for our protest against the "physical anguish" that is daily inflicted by the handshake. But this acute pain, she confesses, is brought about altogether by the wearing of rings on the right hand. No one could possibly apply the word "anguish" to anything felt by the undecorated hand; but is by no means too violent a name for what many fragile fingers undergo between the diamond and the ruby. Our correspondent owns that an acute observer might see her many times nervously conveying all her right hand rings to the fingers of the left hand before a farewell likely to be hearty.

As 'D'Artagnan' Sees It.

I am the first to admire the bold who make perilous experiments with the view to some useful discovery. But I ask in vain what possible advantage could the spherical balloon competition be to aeronautic science. A tempest, a single storm, or a sudden change of wind while crossing the channel might have destroyed the whole flying squadron.—Henri Rochefort, in Paris Intransigeant.

Punch Hears Rumor.

Paris, it is stated, is to have its boy messengers. A Societe des Petits Messagers is in process of formation. It is rumored that, with the poetic fancy characteristic of our neighbors, a number of the lads will be clothed as Cupid and employed solely for the conveyance of love letters.—Punch.

OPPOSED TO MACHINES

There is one political machine to which the voters and election officials alike seem to be entirely opposed. We refer to the voting machine. Expressions of sentiment against the alleged improvement over the ballot box have been more numerous and more emphatic this year than at any time since they have been put in operation in New Jersey. The extent and vigor of the criticism is due largely to the fact that more mistakes were made this year than at other times, and returns in several close contests were rendered rather uncertain through the errors.

As a concrete illustration of mechanical genius the voting machine is something to arouse the curiosity and admiration of everyone. The degree of effectiveness to which it has been brought by the many contrivances attached to it is truly wonderful. That it will one day be made so simple and so easy of intelligent operation as to be of practical and satisfactory use as type-writers and counting machines now are, can not be doubted. It is, however, equally unquestionable to our mind, that voting machines are not yet a satisfactory substitute for the old-fashioned ballot boxes. The voting of a district should not be dependent for its correctness upon the proper setting of a complex mechanical contrivance by election officials, who are apt to be new men each year, and not mechanics. At least it should not be so until the setting of it is a simpler matter than at present, and the knowledge of its workings more readily understood. Another objection to it now is, that the most deft and ready manipulator of the pegs can scarcely cut a ticket without the knowledge of those outside the curtain. The further objection urged by many voters that they have no personal assurance of having voted as they intended is also entitled to consideration.

The voting machine is not a complete failure. It is a coming success. Its use in the future is certain. Its use at present is premature.

If it were capable of definite calculation we think the world would be surprised to learn the relation of the automobile to the arousing of class hatred, the size of Hearst's vote in New York, and the general advance of Socialism. The reaction of the common people upon the reckless and flaunting use of the automobile, which they look upon both as an evidence of wealth and an engine of menace, finds its expression in the forms mentioned. A reformation should be instituted within the automobile class now, or a revolution of those without is not far distant, and the autoists will share a distinct responsibility as a causal agency of the social disturbance.

It is worth while to remember that Thanksgiving Day is set apart as a day upon which to render thanksgiving.

The crimson or the blue?

Though some counties may be weakly opposed to Senator Dryden, it is generally agreed that in Union there is strength. It seems to be the strength of Union against the strength of Gibraltar.

Senator Ackerman's Lecture.

Senator Ernest R. Ackerman was welcomed by an exceedingly large audience of men last night, when he delivered his illustrated lecture on "Travels in the Orient." Before the Presbyterian Men's Club and their invited friends, President Harvey introduced the lecturer, and the audience was interested and entertained for an hour and a half by the Senator's views of foreign lands, and the amusing comment upon the phases shown in the conventional type of views and letters generally given.

He started on his journey from New York and took his hearers around the world through Portugal, Egypt, Arabia, India, China, Russia, Japan and back across the Pacific and the United States. A vote of thanks was extended by this group for the most interesting evening afforded by the courtesy of Senator Ackerman.

Mr. Gallagher Buys Batty Farm.

Joseph E. Gallagher has purchased through the agency of George L. DeLong the residence and farm property of W. G. Batty on Radley Road. The farm consists of one hundred acres, woods, water and other attractive features included. The price paid is reported to be in the neighborhood of $3500. Mr. Gallagher will take possession of the place shortly.

The Ladies' World.

The Ladies' World for December is the first number brought out by Charles Dwyer, who recently resigned the editorship of The Deliberator. It is a readable magazine from cover to cover, and in addition to the recreation it affords, the ladies will find in its Fashion, Dress-making, Needlework and Household departments enough valuable material to pay for the subscription price many times over. The chief features are: A Christmas Library, by Edith Livingston Smith; Serial Stories by Florence Moore Kingsland, Julia Traill Bishop; Christmas verse by Harriet Prescott Spofford and Sable M. Best; short fiction by various writers; the departments mentioned above and several others including Gossip by Dr. Eleanor Rogers called Good Looks. (New York: Fifty cents a year.)

Fanwood Bowlers Defeated Westfield.

In a well bowled match at Fanwood Thursday night Westfield bowlers went down to defeat before the crack Saburbian team of that place. Westfield put up good scores, which under ordinary conditions should have won for them. The scores:

DUST COATS IN FAVOR.

Are Now Made Up in Many Designs and Materials.

If you were to ask a very fashionable modiste what would be proper for you to wear just now she would reply: "Wear the dust coat!" Then she would add: "The dust coat of to-day is very different from the linen duster of old, for it is chic and well fitted. It is very decorative in its color, design and in its execution, and it is practical."

If you were to press her closely for the colors and the materials she would reply:

"The most fashionable dust coats are made of waterproof stuff, both in plain and in check design. They are of cheviot cloth and novelty goods and they are made almost long enough to cover up the entire gown."

"Then come the coats of pongee, which can be lined and made suitable for winter, and following these are the mohair and the linen coats."

OBITUARY.

Mary Louise Douglas.

Mary Louise Douglas, youngest daughter of the late David Bates and Anne Elizabeth Douglas, died on Saturday at her home, 412 North Broad street, Westfield. She was born in Brooklyn in 1881 but spent most of her life in Batavia, N. Y., removing to Westfield in May, 1901. While for many years she has been an invalid, much of the time helpless, her health improved greatly since she lived in Westfield. She made many friends of all ages, and her death will be mourned by the children, their parents and her intimates. Her life was a daily beautiful because of its strong spirit of Christian cheerfulness. Though an invalid, her unselfishness was a constant inspiration to her friends. Her kindness of thought and speech were unending and her efforts in behalf of many whose only claim to distinction was her brotherly love. She was all her life an earnest and devoted church woman, present always at the services when her health permitted. The funeral services were held in St. Paul's church, Westfield, on Tuesday afternoon. Interment followed in the Douglas family vault in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn. The burial service was held by the Rev. Syllabus Cross, pastor of St. Paul's church, assisted by the Rev. Harris C. Rish. The committal and prayers at the interment were said by the Rev. W. R. Lord, Curator of Grace Church, New York.

George Fullerton Elliott.

The death of George Fullerton Elliott occurred Saturday at his home on Dudley avenue after a short illness. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. W. L. Stearns, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, on Tuesday afternoon, and were attended by a large delegation of the business associates of the deceased from Garwood. He had resided here for the past thirteen years.

Stories Told at Fireside.

If anyone thinks that Fireside Corn-cob is dead all that is necessary to convince him otherwise is to come out and see for himself. Last night about eighty brothers gathered around "Fireside's" fireplace and had a royal good time telling stories, eating pumpkin pie, drinking cider and smoking. Ira Lambert said he had been busy all the week, and he hoped now business would let up. Chaplain Perry said that Regent Taylor could not grace the room with his presence as he had to stay home and mind the baby. The secretary was instructed to send the council's congratulations to Regent and Mrs. Taylor. Judge Parker, after much urging, told his experience while running for the Presidency. For an encore he told how he came to get married. Brother Williams told a story about some Hebrews who had a large number of asses and small children, yet who somehow failed to make things go. Doctor Savage told how when he went to college his fondness for greens gained for him the name of "Nebuchadnezzar," and that it still sticks to him. "Nebby," for short. Doctor Butler said he was very busy at present doctoring cats, having added that animal to his list. Steve asked how the gear was feeling—that he had a lot of new members for next month. Inquiries after James M. French were made, and a bouquet was ordered sent as an expression of the brotherly feeling of Fireside. A letter from Dr. Stearns was read inviting the council as a body to attend divine service Sunday evening, December 2, which invitation was unanimously accepted, and notices ordered sent to all brothers.

The Modern Heating, Plumbing and Decorating Company have leased the ground floor of the Pearsall Building, now occupied by the Standard Publishing Company, and will take possession about December 15th next. The Standard will remove shortly to the new building on Prospect Street. H. L. Abrams will retain his real estate office with the new tenants of the Pearsall Building, who will thoroughly renovate and improve the place for use as a shop, show-room and offices.

The Standard goes into the new building constructed by Lloyd Thompson on Prospect Street between Broad Street and Union Place, where the Standard will have increased room and office facilities, and where the office of the town clerk will also be located.

Advance Club Read Shakespeare.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. D. Jackson entertained the Advance Club at their home on Dudley Avenue last Friday night. The literary part of the evening consisted of the reading and discussion of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar." Miss Rathbone and Mrs. Tibbs contributed enjoyably to the musical program, and the social hour which followed was most happy. The play will be further considered at the next meeting of the club.

CORAL USED FOR ROADBED.

Remarkable Construction of Florida
East Coast Railway.

American railroad builders have used nearly every conceivable material for roadbed, from solid granite to the shifting sands of the great southwestern desert, held together by growing vines. But it remained for the Florida East Coast railway to construct a roadbed out of material which is growing in popularity as jewelry.

The portion of the Florida coast
upon which it has been found feasible to use coral as ballast is in the extension from Miami to Key West, along the Florida keys. The reason for such use is patent to the student of geology.
The keys through which the road runs are composed of it. Coral rock is the only thing obtainable except by long transportation. Many of the long islands are a long way from the mainland.

But a beautiful and exceedingly substantial roadway is being constructed out of the coral rock. It is glistening white, like a great band of satin ribbon, on which the little islands, with their luxuriant, tropical growth, are strung like a necklace of emerald beads. It is more truly a gem-studded road, uniting Key West to the Florida shore.

The road, which was conceived in the mind of Henry M. Flagler as a part of his plan to join Cuba with the United States by an all-rail route, is remarkable in more than one particular. Much of the roadbed is being constructed in water 30 or more feet deep. Forests of trees are being used for piling and tons upon tons of concrete are being dumped on top to form a substantial highway through the ocean.

When this unique railway is done
the traveler will, in places, be speeding along entirely out of sight of land.
He will practically go to sea in a railway train. Nothing will greet his eye at times but the wide expanse of blue waters where the Atlantic and the Gulf meet. The new line will cost from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 to build.
It is expected to be completed in three years.

"Picnic Suppers."

"Picnic suppers" were described in 1802 as a new fashionable craze in England. A list was compiled of the various dishes, each with a number against it. Then lots were drawn by the party, and each person had to provide the dish marked with the number he drew. Such suppers were known in the time of James I. and the word "picnic" was known to Lord Chatterfield. It is supposed to come from "pick" to eat, and "nec," a trifle. Foote calls picnics "nicknacks."

A MENACE TO CITIES

Professor Fessenden Sounds a Note of Warning.

Cities Not Adapted to Operate Business Enterprises—Loss of Capital Through New Developments—The Danger a Real One.

It is becoming more and more generally recognized that undertakings founded on the great public needs of the highly organized society of modern times should be controlled by society.
Whether, having the power, it is indivisible that municipalities should actually engage in such undertakings or whether they should merely maintain their control, as it has been aptly put, through their powers as a landlord, is a matter which will be determined by the municipalities from political, social and economic as well as engineering considerations.

Considering the question from its engineering side alone, it is found that from the very essential nature of the matter only a certain class of engineering undertakings can be efficiently and properly operated by states or municipalities. It is very important that this limitation should be recognized, as where the limitation has been over-stepped it has resulted in heavy financial losses to the governing bodies immediately concerned. It has seriously checked development in engineering lines, and these results have in consequence afforded a strong argument to those opposed to municipal operation of public utilities.

It is true that under state or municipal operation some minor and sporadic developments may be expected, and nothing of a general or important character. Important developments generally come only from the hands of individuals or bodies responsible only to themselves and provided with the incentive of a large profit. The elimination of self responsibility and incentive would inevitably produce a condition in industrial and scientific development analogous to the dark ages.

It is to be noted that this conclusion is derived from engineering considerations alone and does not include any consideration from the political, social or economic side. There may, it is conceivable, be political, social and economic considerations which tend to affect this limitation. Considered, however, from the engineering standpoint alone there can be no question but that the field of state and municipal operation should be limited to undertakings in which there is no immediate prospect of or need for improved method.

A danger which is always associated with the ownership of industrial undertakings is that the capital investment may be lost through the development of new and cheaper methods and processes. The extent to which industrial machinery of certain types is rendered obsolete by new improvements is not always realized. The writer is personally acquainted with one street car railway plant in which the entire electrical equipment of the power house was thrown out and replaced with improved machinery four times within a period of ten years. The Carnegie company is reported, correctly, it is believed, to have scrapped on one occasion more than $1,000,000 worth of new machinery which had never been used.

This has already become a serious matter for many municipalities which have engaged in undertakings lying outside of the engineering limits defined above. Many of these municipalities installed plants for the production of electric light at a time prior to the advent of important improvements in generating and distributing electricity, and as these municipalities in common with most municipalities made no proper allowance for depreciation the capital invested has been practically lost, and in addition the cost of electric light to the consumer is much higher than it is in other places equipped with later and more economical types of machinery. In addition, heavy and expensive repairs have been necessary and the taxes correspondingly increased. This has reacted upon the municipalities, since the heavy rates have caused manufacturers to move away to other towns, and this again has still further increased the burden upon the remaining. There are already indications that a considerable number of these municipalities which have engaged in improper undertakings are entering upon a period of financial difficulty.—R. A. Fessenden.

As a Socialist Sees It.

Every recognized authority on Socialist economics, from Marx to Ferri, has been and is an avowed economic evolutionist. They all without exception recognize that public ownership under capitalism must come before the full Socialist programme can meet with realization.

When the Socialist party shall succeed to power in municipality, state or nation it will fall heir to the holdings of its capitalist predecessors. Every dollar's worth of property that we can wrest from private capitalism through public ownership will fall into the hands of the Socialist party without a struggle upon its succession to power.—
International Socialist Review.

What Government Is For.

It is the appropriate function of the government to safeguard the individual and to see that the game of business is fairly played, that the cards are held above the table and that everybody is given a square deal. It is not the appropriate function of the government to sit in the game.—Hon
Leslie M. Shaw.

TITLES OF NO USE IN BUSINESS.

Foreigners in America Soon Learn to Assume Plebeian Names.

"Titles of the society woman, who recently dropped with a European nobleman concealed by fate as a riding master," said a German baron, whose New York name is plain Mr. Smith, "you have no idea what a drawback this is in business in this country. And what trouble the owner has to go to conceal it. They talk about Americans worshipping titles. It is certainly not the case in the business world. For altogether justifiable reasons, perhaps, your Yankee newspapers and fiction writers are anxious to describe the European nobleman, whatever his fatherland, as effeminate, dissipated, and generally no good. This creates a prejudice which the titled foreigner immediately becomes acquainted with when he comes here for the purpose of making a living."

"I had been but three days in New York when I learned to discard the honored name I was born to. During those three days, although an expert engineer with a special field, I could obtain work nowhere. On the fourth day I became Mr. Carl Smith and got a job. It's all nonsense to say that the representative American worships titles. He doesn't. Plain Carl Smith has better chances any day than the foreigner with three binges to his name."—N. Y. Press.

Mark Twain on Etiquette.
"Mark Twain" at a dinner in New York talked on etiquette.

"I once read a book of etiquette," he said, "and I still remember many of the rules. The most important ones were these:

"How to accept a proffered cigar—'In the right hand into the box, draw out two, place one absently in the other pocket of the vest, insert the other between the lips and look inquiringly around for a light."

"How to leave a room properly—Open the door, place one foot over the sill, follow it up closely with the other and then, turning slightly, shut the door."

"How to accept a dinner invitation—Eat a light breakfast and no lunch."

"How to accept an invitation to drink—Look careless. Say, 'Don't care if I do,' and fix the gaze on the other side of the room while the liquor is being poured into the glass. This will assure you a full portion."

Last Alpine Diligence.

With the inauguration of the Simplon tunnel there has passed away, so far as this famous mountain pass is concerned, the time-honored service by road coach. While the inaugural festivities were going forward on a great scale at other points, Brieg had a half-day, half-mournful little celebration of its own—that of the last diligence. All the local magnates and officials and all the residents in gala attire attended. The last coach drove up in brilliant decoration, with the "last of the postillions" there were speeches, commemorative of a century of progress, and the company finally separated after singing the national anthem in hearty Swiss fashion.

When your Watch Stops

You cannot make it go by shaking it.

Red Revenge.

"So you spurn me!" he cried, in wrathful woe. "But I shall have my revenge!"

"Ha! ha!" laughs the heartless maiden.

"You may laugh now, but wait! In the four years I have known you, you have given me six photographs of yourself. Each one of them I shall have enlarged by the cheap crayon process, and presented to your various friends and relatives!"

Leaving the frightened girl in a swoon, the cruel swain departs with the melodramatic tread of one who will stop at nothing.—Judge.

Moderation.

It was a question of diet.

"Mr. Doddington!" she asked, turning to appeal to the little man who sat drinking with her husband. "Don't you think that a little meat from time to time is really necessary to everyone?"

The little man paused. "In my opinion, Mrs. Gollightly," said he, "a little food of any kind now and then does no particular harm."

Cause For Alarm.
"Maria," said Mr. Billings, "what all this roast?"

"Never mind the roast, dear," said Mrs. Billings. "I'm more concerned to know what all this is. This is the first time for 25 years that you haven't been able to tell exactly what all the roast and everything else on the table. Aren't you well to-day, John?"—Chicago Tribune.

Done in a Hurry.

People complain that journalism must be frivolous or unreliable because it is done in a hurry. But all the serious things are done in a hurry. All the really reliable things are done in a hurry. A commercial decision involving millions is always made in a hurry. I have never been in a battle; but my military friends tell me that a battle often takes place in a hurry. Serious things generally are done quickly; getting married, for instance, or getting changed.—Illustrated London News.

THE SWEETS OF LOVE.

I found her making coffee.
She looked so sweet and sweet
That on her cheek I kissed a kiss
And bent a sweet smile.
But she was smiling still.
She swung the pan around,
And in a trice that sticky mess
I on my shirt-front found!

I wore a worried look;
It told me, I confess:
I said: "How am I to get home
In this adhesive mess?"
She only laughed and said:
"It isn't like it's true."
But then, you say it only shows
How sweet I am to you!"

That evening when I'd changed
And we were friends again,
She spoke a word which rendered me
The happiest of men.
And then she said to me
In accents sweet and low,
"I won't do it again; it makes You so stuck-up you know!"

Deep Enough.
"You are anaemic," says the physician, after much thumping and prodding. "You should practice deep breathing."

"Deep breathing?" retorts the patient. "Why, doctor, that's just what I do all the time. I work in a sub-bellar, 60 feet below the street level."

—Judge.

POSSIBLE CHICKEN PROBLEM.

"Oh! Alfred, wouldn't it be awful if they lost their mother, and we had to bring them up on the bottle?"

—Brooklyn Life.

Interests a Waiter.
"The pleasures of the intellectual are all lost on the uneducated," remarked the philosopher at the banquet. "How, for instance, could that waiter over there be interested in 'evolution'?"

"Easiest thing in the world," said his friend, facetiously; "evolution means 'change.'"

—Detroit Free Press.

THE STUPIDITY OF MAN.

"Pa," said Mrs. Catesby, "I'm going to invite a lot of company in on Thursday night to celebrate our silver wedding."

"Silver? What are you talking about? The silver wedding's when people have been married 25 years."

"Yes. We've never celebrated any of the anniversaries of our wedding, and we may as well begin with this one."

"But, great Scott, ma, we've been married thirty—"

"Now, never mind that. Pa Catesby, we are going to celebrate our silver wedding anniversary next Thursday night."

"But, ma, we can't. You must remember that we've a daughter who's nearly thirty—"

"Oh, get that 'thirt' off your mind. Mabel will be 21 the 16th of the month. My goodness, if you don't know how to make money, I sometimes believe I just couldn't go on living with you, you're such a simple about everything else."

"Whew! Well, ma, go ahead with your dumb foolishness, but forget to eat that old rag about us not being able to go to the Philadelphia centennial, because Annie was a baby then."

MRS. SARAH J. WINDROM

Mrs. Sarah J. Windrom of Chicago, cousin of Zachary Taylor, twelfth president of the United States, and niece of Alexander Hamilton, who signed the Declaration of Independence, is 76 years old, but has a keen appetite, sleep soundly, and feel as well-to-day, thanks to Vinol. "I was young and liver oil was disagreeable in a greasy, unpalatable form, and I fairly gagged me to get it down. Vinol is entirely different, very palatable, nourishing to impoverished blood, the finest tonic and strength creator ever used in my life."

"Vinol is a real cod liver preparation from which the useless oil has been eliminated and tonic iron added. Try Vinol on our guarantee."

Quill Toothpicks from France.
Quill toothpicks come from France. The largest factory in the world is near Paris, where there is an annual product of 20,000,000 quills. The factory was started to make quill pens, but when these went out of general use it was converted into a toothpick mill.
