FORT WANTS MORE.

Not Satisfied With Utilities Measure and Urges Legislators to Make It More Effective.

SIGNED IT TO DEFEAT ENEMIES.

Believes They Supported It, Weak as It Was, Because They Thought He Would Veto It—Special Message.

TRENTON, March 29.—Governor Fort gave legislators and politicians a big surprise last night when he sent a special message to the Senate urging that further legislation be enacted with reference to a public utilities commission as created under the Wakelee-Pierce bill which was passed last week and signed by the Governor. In his message the Governor points out that there are serious defects in the Wakelee-Pierce bill as approved, but he did not think them of sufficient moment to affect the features of the bill which he deemed to be good and of advantage to the public. In his special message the Governor strongly urges that some additional legislation be carried out so as to give the commission the power to make rates and also the power to enforce their orders by a proper penalty. With reference to the power to enforce orders conferred by the Wakelee-Pierce bill, the Governor says:

"I doubt the effectiveness of even the slight power which this bill confers upon the commission. But I approve the act in order that the principle may be established and the act made a basis to build future legislation upon, which shall be more effective. There must always be a beginning. If I should veto this bill, I am quite sure I should greatly please some people whom I have reason to believe have only withheld opposition in the hope, if not the belief, that I would veto it, and they could then intervene and prevent any legislation and allege that the Executive, who has been insisting upon a public utilities bill, had refused a fair one, and thus attempt to throw the responsibility upon him. I do not propose that any of those now caught in this weak net shall be permitted to wiggle out through any act of mine. The thing to do is to insist most vigorously that this bill is only accepted as a basis of additional legislative legislation, and to go steadily on educating the people by letting them see what can be done even under this law; that they may appreciate of what great value a really effective public utilities law would be."

Governor Fort sent to the Senate a ringing message urging that the McCran bill, proposing to prohibit the diversion of subterranean water to outside of the State, be passed without amendment, as has been done in the House. The Governor says that he has been advised by the Attorney-General that the enactment of legislation such as the McCran bill is absolutely essential for the protection of the State, not only against the Hudson Water Company, which is seeking to have it amended so as to exempt itself from the operation of the measure, but against all other companies of this character. Referring to the Hudson Water Company, the Governor says: "The conduct of this company has been flagrantly offensive to the people of the state, and it has been so persistently insistent to obtain water, whether they get it rightfully or wrongfully, falsely or surreptitiously, that it is not entitled to any consideration at the hands of the Legislature."

Senator Ackerman's bill, No. 207, was passed by the Senate. It authorizes the Board of Managers of the State Reformatory at Rahway to fix the salaries of all employees, providing, however, that no salary greater than $1500 a year shall be paid except to the Deputy Superintendent and Chief Parole Officer, who shall receive not more than $1800 per year. The object of this bill is to raise the salaries of two of the officers of the institution $200 per year each.

The Senate also passed House bill No. 100, which straightens out a question which caused considerable annoyance at the last election. According to the present law the city clerks are obliged to deliver ballot boxes to the election officers on the day preceding the elections. This method proved cumbersome and expensive, and by the change in the law the election officers are required to call and receive the boxes from the city clerks.

With the calendar filled with bills pressing for consideration the House Monday night wasted over two hours in useless argument on Assemblyman

BIG YEAR FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL OF THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.

All Departments Have Grown—James F. Johnston Re-elected.

James F. Johnston, of Harrison avenue, was re-elected superintendent of the First M. E. Sunday School at the annual election of the Sunday School Board of that church at the parsonage last Monday night. Mr. Johnston refused the nomination at first but after a lot of persuasion on the part of the Board, he was finally induced to serve another year. This shows that the Board appreciate Mr. Johnston's earnest and helpful leadership. To assist the superintendent Mr. Ralph I. Vervoort and Mrs. Samuel Burhans were chosen. The other officers are: Frank M. Taylor, secretary; Walter Johnston, assistant secretary; L. H. Leggett, treasurer; H. E. Bush, librarian; F. B. Ham, pianist; John S. Burhans, Jr., chorister; Mrs. W. C. Hart, president of the Missionary Society; F. B. Ham, vice-president; J. M. Dillaway, treasurer; W. A. Bishop, temperance secretary.

The reports of the officers were better than any ever presented before the Board. They showed that the school was thriving and growing fast through the untiring efforts of its officers. The books show that 406 students are enrolled in the Sunday School, 29 in the Cradle Roll and 98 members in the Home Department. The average attendance was 270, and the highest attendance was attained on Rally Day when 353 pupils were present and 43 visitors. An attendance of 300 and over has been attained for ten Sundays. The finances also show interesting advances. The total receipts for the year were $870.00, of which $830.00 was given to missionary work.

With the facts of growth and success the school and the officers will start the new Sunday School year next Sunday with renewed purpose to make it, the last year in the present building, a record breaker.

THE CENSUS CONTEST.

Last Month of Opportunity for Young Folks to Guess Town Population.

THE STANDARD'S Census Contest is receiving the earnest attention of Westfield people, and particularly of the young folks. Over four hundred guesses have been received, some of which are judged to be pretty accurate. Of course no one knows what the present population of Westfield is, so rapidly has the town grown in the last five years; consequently the result of the census enumeration may startle those who have estimated conservatively. The guesses thus far received run all the way from 7500 to 9500. If the latter figure proved to be correct, wouldn't the most of us rub our eyes and wonder how it ever happened? But "you never can tell."

The Census Contest has been running for two months, and but one month more remains. On and after April 30 no more guesses will be received. All the guesses submitted will be placed in large envelopes and filed away until the result of the enumeration is officially announced. Then the best guesser will awarded $10 in gold; the second best guesser $5 in gold; and the third, one year's subscription to THE UNION COUNTY STANDARD. In the event of a tie the money will be divided.

Since the contest is drawing to a close it will be well if all those who want to prove themselves adept in the art of guessing, send in their guesses at once. A blank form is printed in every issue of THE STANDARD. Fill it out and send it to us. It is only a matter of a few minutes work—and you may be well paid for your labor. If you don't like your first guess—guess again!

NEW BOROUGH HALL.

Mountainside Building to be Formally Opened Tonight.

The hall has just been completed, the lighting system installed and the officials of the Borough cordially invite the residents to be present at the formal opening and to inspect the building.

Prominent citizens of the Borough and neighboring municipalities will be present and deliver addresses. Beginning April 5th and at intervals thereafter, entertainments will be conducted in the hall, under the direction of a committee of prominent officials.

J. D. BENNETT SURPRISED.

Employees of Central Remember Their "Old Boss" by Gift.

Joseph D. Bennett, of Elm Street, was given a happy surprise by his friends in the employ of the Central Railroad, Tuesday. Mr. Bennett was in the Passenger Department of the Central for forty years and for many years was superintendent. He resigned his position only a short time ago, because of ill health. Mr. Bennett will be seventy-six years old in September.

Those who had worked with him and under him for so many years could not but feel regret at the loss of his companionship. They liked their "old boss," and they couldn't see him go without letting him know that he would be missed. So they asked him to come down to the "shop" on Tuesday morning, and then it was that he learned how much they thought of him. To his surprise he was called into the private office and made to sit down in a handsome leather covered Morris chair.

"How do you like that, Boss," he was asked.

"That's fine," he replied.

And they gave him to understand that so long as he lived he was to spend his leisure moments reclining in that arm chair.

TARVIA ORDINANCES PASSED.

Final Meeting of Council in Old Quarters—Objection From Mr. Keasby.

The Council held an adjourned meeting in the Town rooms, Saturday night, at which the tarvia ordinances were passed on final reading, and the Clerk authorized to advertise for estimates on the work. The bids will be opened on April 18th. The Harrison avenue ordinance was not passed because of objections to certain details. A new ordinance covering the laying of tarvia on this avenue, will be drawn up and acted upon at a meeting to be held on April 18th.

The complete list of tarvia ordinances passed will be found on another page of this issue.

A letter was received from Mr. Keasby stating the objections of that gentleman to the laying of a sidewalk along his North avenue property. In the writer's opinion the sidewalk was not necessary. The Council, after deliberation, conceded the point, and the matter was dropped. Mayor Alpers announced that petitions for laying macadam on Dudley avenue as far as North avenue, and along North avenue westward to the town limits would soon be prepared.

The Council will meet in the new Town Hall on Monday night.

Drunken Passenger Sent to Jail.

Max Hoffman, of Plainfield, was drunk and disorderly on an east bound trolley car last Saturday night. He used vile language and did other things in defiance of law and order. Conductor Bird made complaint against him and Judge Toney sent him to the county jail for ten days in default of a fine of $10.

Many complaints have been received by the local authorities against the misconduct of passengers on main line trolley cars passing through Westfield. An effort will be made to punish severely all offenders.

OVERCOME BY THE ODOR OF EASTER LILLIES, SINGER FAINTS.

Alfred M. Best Had to Be Taken From Choir Loft.

Alfred M. Best, tenor, of this place, fainted during the singing of a solo at the Congregational Church Sunday morning, and Miss Lickwood, soprano, of Woodbridge, and Miss Hubbel, contralto, of New York, experienced difficulty in getting through their parts. The singers were affected by the odor of Easter lillies which were banded high upon the platform in front of the choir loft.

Mr. Best had been practicing late the night before, and slept late Sunday morning, coming to the services without having eaten any breakfast. Under the circumstances he was a fit subject for the sickening influences of the odor of Easter lillies. The other singers were rendered more susceptible by Mr. Best's plight and while not overcome as he was, nevertheless they were noticeable nervous. Mr. Best had to be taken from the choir loft and it was some time before he regained consciousness. The services were interrupted for only a few minutes. Dr. Loomis preached an instructive sermon on "The New Hope."

THE MUSIC CONTEST.

Details of Program Arranged at Washington School Monday.

Details of the program for the coming musical contest to be held in the Plainfield High School, the last week in April, were completed at a meeting of the supervisors of music held at the Washington School Monday afternoon. As now arranged the junior section will sing on Thursday afternoon, April 28; the grammar section on Friday afternoon, April 29, and the high school section on Friday morning, April 29. Westfield will be represented in all sections in the contest.

Those present at the meeting Monday afternoon were as follows: Professor Charles Lewis, of Plainfield; Professor Thomas Wilson, of Elizabeth and Roselle; Miss Christine E. Munoz, of Roselle Park; Miss Mabel E. Bray, of Westfield; Professor Herbert Lloyd, of Bound Brook and North Plainfield; Miss Elizabeth Vossler, of Somerville, and Professor George Wilnot, of New Brunswick.

There was a meeting of the executive committee of the contest at the Washington School last evening, at which time the prizes to be given to the winners were announced and arrangements for transportation decided upon.

The prizes for the six class contests will be silver and bronze medals, and medals will be awarded in the individual test, first and second prizes.

Salvation Army Band to Play Here.

The National Staff Band of the Salvation Army will give a concert in the Presbyterian church, Sunday evening at 7:45. Colonel McIntyre will preside and Brigadier Kimball will assist. Robert D. Griffith will conduct. The soloists will be, Captain J. Allen, cornet; Captain J. Lock, clarinet; Captain F. Fowler, bass; Captain G. Darby, euphonium; A. E. Sanford, trombone. The Salvation Army band has been heard here before, and the coming concert promises to draw a large crowd.

THE PRUDENTIAL

Dear Sirs: I hereby acknowledge with thanks the prompt adjustment of the claim on the life of my late husband, William J. Summerell. My husband was closely connected with the life insurance business for a great many years, and was therefore in an exceptionally favorable position to weigh and judge the numerous forms of policies before the public. The policy you are paying on his life was issued on the Monthly Income plan, and I will now receive an income from your Company of $30 per month as long as I live, as the result of my husband's foresight. The fact that he selected the Monthly Income policy in preference to any other form is both an endorsement of the policy and an endorsement of the Company. No other form so completely carries out the idea of protection, and no other makes so certain that the protection will be continued and guaranteed from any possibility of loss. Again thanking you, I remain,

"ADVERTISE IN THE STANDARD"

THE SESSION BOOK AGAIN.

To the Rev. William Irwin Steans, D. D.; The Members of The Session; The Trustees; and All Members of the Presbyterian Church in Westfield, New Jersey.

Hon. Francis E. Woodruff, Morristown, New Jersey.

September 9th, 1909.
Gentlemen:—On September 23, 1896, The Rev. Newton W. Cadwell, D. D., then being the incumbent, your Session Book No. 2, 1759-1893, was in your archives, and was accessible to the public. It was consulted by the writer that day in connection with his study of the history of his family. On May 12, 1903, Dr. Cadwell having meanwhile departed from Westfield, it had disappeared. (See advertisement in The Union County Standard of July 24, 1908).

Because the writer, Francis E. Woodruff, is a descendant of Joseph Woodruff one of the founders of your church; because he is a kinsman of the Rev. Benjamin Woodruff who entered the records in that book; and because—besides a past and present officer of your church—who had indicated unwillingness to aid in the recovery of the missing volume—he was, so far as he knew, the only man who was aware of the disappearance; he felt and feels it his duty to do all in his power to bring about its full restoration to your archives. To keep the unselfishness of his motives above suspicion he has passed a self-denying ordinance never to consult the book. While believing that punishment is deserved by those responsible for its disappearance, and for unwillingness to make effort for its restoration, he declines to have anything to do with it; his sole object being restoration of the status quo ante.

Holding these views he did his best to effect this result through a private correspondence continued to 1905; but while Dr. Cadwell would not deny that sometime during his stay in Atlantic City he had the book in his possession he kept on writing "I do not have the book," "nor can I tell you where it is," etc., etc., etc., all of which however true was irrelevant so long as he did not deny having had it.

Failing with him—in 1907 the writer brought the matter to the attention of your Clerk of the Session, but without result. In 1908, after warning your Session that lacking restoration by a date named, publicity would be unavoidable, he posted and advertised a reward for the recovery of the book. This not bringing it, after a similar warning to your Session, he advertised (U. C. S., July 24, 1908,) extracts from the correspondence, but told only the minimum he thought might (with private explanations) effect restoration. In consequence (letters in his possession prove) of this, the Session Book was restored to your archives, as announced by The Westfield Leader (Oct. 14, 1908).

In 1909 the New Jersey Historical Society having asked access to the restored book your Session replied, "the records of this church are not open for public inspection," that is, not even for a Historical Society. A letter published March 26, (U. C. S.,) stated, "As it is safe to say that out-church in the world are so open, and as prior to Dr. Cadwell's departure this was true also of Westfield, some special reason for this refusal must be sought." In an advertisement of April 30, (U. C. S.,) the Editor of The Westfield Leader (one of your Trustees) was cited as "explaining, in effect, that because old church records may contain much that should never see the light, and because if done for one it must be done for all, public access should not be given to Session Book No. 2." In reply the writer suggested that conditional access can be safely granted under rules on the lines of the following:—

First, for strangers, that they must be introduced by some one known to, and approved by the Session. Second, for all, that anything other than baptismal, marriage and funeral items cannot be copied or divulged until after the Session's formal written consent has been obtained.

Such rules would suffice for future users of the book, but the substantiality of this "old time scandal" excuse for refusing access becomes manifest when we remember that Dr. Cadwell has authorized (see letter in U. C. S., of May 14, 1909, original authority in writer's possession) the statement that he "has an exact verbatim copy of all the records of the Westfield organization since 1759 that is, including Session Book No. 2," which he expects to publish in full, when convenient, in a history of the Presbyterian church of Westfield. "The in full" taken literally, means "scandals and all"; but even if that could possibly be his meaning, and even if two or three members of your Session could, understandingly, possibly approve, would not the enforcing such rules as above suggested save him the scandals for his promised history, while no longer depriving the New Jersey Historical Society, and the public generally, of the sought for marriage and similar items?

May 3rd to 5th four writers of standing, two of them officers of the New Jersey Historical Society, applied for such limited and conditional access; and were told that their requests had been referred to your Session for consideration, but to time of writing this no further word has reached them. On June 12th your Clerk of the Session received a letter, "the delay in replying is of course explainable. I write only to say that it would cause me great regret if an unexplained delay continued so long as to compel the next public step." On July 19, one of those whose May request had been referred to your Session asked when a reply might be expected; but so far unavailingly. The continuance of your Session's unmannerly silence these months, sufficiently indicates its unwillingness to reply, but before taking the next public step the writer makes still another appeal this time to your whole church; and a copy will be sent to Dr. Cadwell.

In large organizations it is usual to leave the guiding to a few, until, exceptionally, some matter arises so important it needs to be decided by a more general voice. Something of the kind may have occurred when after the offers of rewards, and the advertisements, pressure was apparently brought to bear that helped restore the book. It will not, however, be a restoration to its condition before it was unlawfully removed from your archives so long as your Session, in effect, reserves its information for Dr. Cadwell's benefit; his "verbatim copy" being thus given a monopoly. The writer therefore hopes that the general voice will insist on a practical restoration of the status quo ante by the issuing of rules for conditional access; and end the matter.

If though, unhappily there should be further unexplained delay in the issuing of such rules the writer will feel it his duty to publish this as an open letter.

January 7th, 1910.

Gentlemen:—In a letter to you of Sept. 9, 1909, a choice was given between further publicity and "conditional access" to the restored but suppressed Session Book No. 2 that some time between Sept. 23, 1899 and May 12, 1903, had been surreptitiously removed from the church archives. On Sept. 21, you sent to the New Jersey Historical Society a copy of the book's vital records, but that left out valuable information in ordinary minutes that could with entire propriety be given to the public, so on October 2nd the request for "conditional access" was repeated.

In October, at Atlantic City, the Rev. Dr. Steans said to the Rev. Joseph F. Folsom, Recording Secretary of the New Jersey Historical Society, that your Session is "willing to grant any reasonable request to examine the records of the church." As requirement of rules for such access of course rests entirely with yourselves, in the interest of the public, it only remains to remember that we are mortal, so put this statement on record for the benefit of those who come after us. As to the writer, for more than six years now he has felt it his duty, for reasons given, to strive for the restoration, with reasonable access, of the session book; and he cannot feel that his long task will have been ended until the result of his work has been made lasting by such record.

He would greatly like to stop here and leave the rest to you; but his experience forbids. His courteous appeals to you to do your duty voluntarily have hitherto steadily been ignored. As he has already explained, he believes that this failure to do your duty—by making effort to get back the session book for the safe custody of which you were responsible—has consciously been only on the part of one or more members of the Session. It was they who compelled the writer to bring the force of public opinion to bear; and this opening the eyes of you others to full realization of the false position in which they had placed you they were made by you to consent to the getting back of the session book and the sending of the vital records.

The writer will be very glad if you others will complete your good work by having Dr. Steans' statement put on record; either by a favorable reply to the courteous request for information from the Corresponding Secretary of the New Jersey Historical Society, the Hon. William Nelson, or in any other satisfactory way you may prefer; but unless this is done, and known to the writer, by February 1st, 1910, he must however reluctantly do what he believes is his duty to do, so will publish his letter of Sept. 9th (and whatever else of the correspondence may seem required) until the statement has been satisfactorily put on record.

February 5, 1910.

Gentlemen:—In a letter of January 7, 1910, it was stated that "The writer will be very glad if you others will complete your good work by having Dr. Steans' statement put on record, either by a favorable reply to the courteous request for information from the Corresponding Secretary of the New Jersey Historical Society, the Hon. William Nelson, or in any other satisfactory way you may prefer; but unless this is done, and known to the writer, by February 1st, 1910, he must however reluctantly do what he believes is his duty to do, so will publish his letter of Sept. 9th (and whatever else of the correspondence may seem required) until the statement has been satisfactorily put on record."

This request, so to put on record, plainly seems his duty to make, and only reasonable for you to grant. Yet there has been no reply to Corresponding Secretary Nelson and, so far as the writer knows, no other way has been taken. Copies of his letters of Sept. 9, 1909, Jan. 7, 1910 and Feb. 5, 1910—all of which please re-read—will be in readiness for the printer within a week or so and as soon as possible thereafter will be published. If you will look back throughout the long-drawn proceedings you will find that the writer has invariably kept his word.

NOTE—Compare dates with those in fourth paragraph of advertisement above.

THE RECORD.

In the letters of January 7th and February 5th, 1910, above, the writer engaged that unless the verbal statement that the Session is "willing to grant any reasonable request to examine the records of the church" had been put on record by February 1st he would publish designated correspondence until that statement "has been satisfactorily put on record."

Had the members of the Session responded they would have spared the need of this further publicity—even after it had begun there was opportunity to stop its progress—but they have not risen to the occasion.

So, instead, the statement is publicly recorded in these six explanatory advertisements in the STANDARD, February 15th to April 1st, and in notices close to "Jersey Genealogy" in the Newark Evening News of March 12th, 19th, 26th and April 2d. It will also be filed in the records of the New Jersey Historical Society.

The writer feels that this has sufficiently kept his engagement, and that his nearly seven year long task has been completed,—with the missing session book restored and accessible, as it should be, on the approval of the Session.

Combination

Accommodation

Increased facilities are a benefit to patrons. Being able to get what you want when you want it is the chief advantage of the MODERN DEPARTMENT PLAN.

It Pays You---It May Not Pay Us.

We sometimes add new departments at the request of customers. When several of our good patrons ask for a commodity which we do not carry in stock, we make it a business to add a new department, buy a large stock of the commodity desired, even if in the sale of it there is little or no profit---just because we want to be accommodating. IT IS THE POLICY OF THE WINDFELDT COMBINATION STORE TO HANDLE EVERY CLASS OF GOODS FOR WHICH THERE IS A DEMAND, WHETHER THAT DEMAND BE LARGE OR SMALL AND WHETHER THE PROFIT BE MUCH OR LITTLE.

Small Profits---But Large Sales

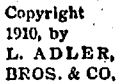

Modern business demands that goods be sold cheaply. This is an age when the customer must get the full benefit of commercial enterprise. The business man must be a good buyer, and he must not try to squeeze a large profit out of his business. When he buys at a bargain he must sell at a bargain. His customers are putting him to the test. If he sells good goods at low prices, his customers will be satisfied, and they will always be his patrons. The better the class of goods which he sells and the lower his prices, the more certain he is of increasing his business---the more certain he is of PERMANENT SUCCESS.

The Windfeldt Combination Store has tripled its business. Every department has grown, and those who opened an account with us at the beginning are still patronizing our store. This is proof of the feasibility and practicability of our plan.

We make money by doing such a large business, that a small percentage of profit on the gross business amounts to a very substantial figure. It may be that all our departments do not pay, but they always carry themselves, and we do not stand to lose a penny, and by the maintenance of a non-paying department we accommodate our patrons. If any one of our departments should not pay for itself, we could at once do away it, without loss of time or money. But fortunately, none of our departments has failed to produce revenue, and all the really essential departments pay.

We Shall Continue to Grow With the Town.

THE WINDFELDT COMBINATION PLAN has proved to be best adapted to the needs of this growing town. It

The Usual Result

(Time, a winter evening. Place, the comfortably furnished living room of a house in a Chicago suburb. Caw-thorn is seated before an open fire, holding between his fingers an un-lighted cigar, which he surveys critically. Louisa, his wife, is seated at a desk, frowning and biting the end of her pencil.)

Louisa—There's no question about it, Dan; we really ought to economize. Dan (striking a match)—Well, haven't I been smoking my Christmas cigars for nearly a month? (Puffs the cigar.) If smoking your Christmas cigars instead of buying the kind you like isn't economy I don't know what is!

Louisa—You can, at least, be thankful that I didn't give you any! I've been married long enough to know better than to do that!

Dan—What put it into your head to economize?

Louisa (with solemn intensity)—What do you suppose that wretched bank has done?

Dan (smiling in anticipation)—I can't imagine.

Louisa—Sent me a notice that my account is overdrawn! Did you ever hear of such a thing? They might have known that I would come down and put in some more money just as soon as you give me my next month's allowance!

Dan—But didn't you know? (Comes over and picks up a checkbook.) Why, these stubs are all blank! When you write a check, don't you subtract—

Louisa—Of course not! I never could subtract right. When I want to know how much money I have in the bank I just go and ask them. They're supposed to know. What is a bank for, anyway?

Dan—But if you— Louisa—Please don't bother, Dan. How can I subtract when there isn't anything in the bank to subtract from? The only thing to do now is to practice strict economy. Not that I'm ever the least bit extravagant! I hope you realize, Dan, how much you owe to my good management.

Dan—Of course, I do. (Sits down.) I was telling Blankley, just the other day, that the way you manage things housekeeping is almost as cheap as living at a hotel. We had quite an argument.

Louisa—Didn't he believe you? Dan—Well, I had to show him. You know Blankley lived in Missouri till he was almost old enough to vote.

Louisa (with an uncomprehending stare)—I don't see what that has to do with it. But, really, it takes a woman to economize. Why, I read, just the other day, of a woman who made herself a perfectly lovely net waist out of her husband's old linen mesh underwear. Now, a man never would have thought of doing that, would he?

Dan—Not in a thousand years! It's a pity I can't afford to wear mesh underwear.

Louisa—Yes, isn't it? And to-day, I found a recipe for making the most delicious cake without eggs, milk, butter or sugar! What would you think of that?

Dan—I prefer to reserve judgment till I've eaten the cake. By the way, was the dinner we had to-night constructed on the economical lines?

Louisa (nodding her head emphatically)—Wasn't it splendid?

Dan—Well, I didn't seem to be able to recognize anything.

Louisa (triumphantly)—I knew you wouldn't. Left-overs from soup to dessert! Mary worked on that dinner for hours and hours! She says if we are going to have such meals often she will have no time to wash and iron and we'll have to hire a laundress, but of course we can't afford that.

(The telephone bell rings and Louisa hurries out to answer it. Dan puffs the last inch of his cigar and looks thoughtfully at the fire.)

Louise (returning)—It was Mrs. Blankley. She wanted us to be on the list of patrons for the charity ball. I told her of course we'd be delighted. (Sits down and begins to play with her pencil. Brief silence.) Dan!

Dan—Well? Louisa—I'm rather glad, after all, that you don't agree with me about the need of economy.

Dan—Why, I didn't say— Louisa—I know you didn't, dear, but I can always tell just how you feel about things without your saying a word. I suppose it's a sort of sixth sense. And since you don't think it necessary to economize, don't you think—

Dan—Yes? Louisa—Well, my evening gown is positively threadbare and—

Dan—And you ought to have a new one before the charity ball?

Louisa—You clever man! How did you guess it? But (looking serious) my bank account?

Dan (gallantly)—Tell them to send the bill to me.

Louisa (jumping up and running toward him)—Dan, you are the dearest thing!

A New Metal.

A new material, called by its inventor "cork metal," has been introduced for the manufacture of aeroplanes. It is about 40 per cent. lighter than aluminum, and is nothing more than an alloy of magnesium with small quantities of aluminum and iron. The drawback to the "cork metal" is that it reacts chemically with hot water, giving off hydrogen, but doubtless this difficulty will be got over in some way.

DALRYMPLE MUST FIGHT.

Governor's Veto of House Bill Threatens Control of Essex Leaders.

Following Governor Fort's veto of House bill No. 87, proposing to extend the term of members of county and city political committees from one to two years, some of the stalwart "regulars" of the Essex County delegation hotly demanded that an effort be made to pass the bill over the disapproval of the Chief Executive. Assemblyman Minard, the leader of the Essex County delegation, was particularly angered by the Governor's veto, which will have the effect of compelling Alfred N. Dalrymple to fight for his political leadership in Essex County next fall, whereas if the measure had become a law, he would have been secure in his place of county chairman for two years. The proposition of attempting to pass the bill over the veto of the Governor was urged upon Majority Leader Edge, but he promptly and vigorously decided that it would be a very impolitic move.

House bill, No. 94, by Mr. Crosby, was passed by the Senate and will now go to the Governor. This bill provides that it shall be unlawful to treat any person for tuberculosis in any hospital, or sanatorium without the consent in writing of the State Board of Health. Senator Leavitt, of Mercer, offered an amendment which provided that the law go into effect immediately instead of May 1. This amendment was adopted.

Senator Ackerman's bill authorizing the establishment of a woman's reformatory went through the House with only 11 votes against it. W. W. St. J.

Woman's Home Companion for April.

As spring comes around again, the Woman's Home Companion lifts its own standard another degree with its Easter issue. The cover design, by Fanny Y. Cory strikes a true April note which is faithfully carried out in the entire magazine. A full page painting by Balfour Iker, is one of the tenderest subjects ever attempted by this artist, and "Old-Time Gardens in the Connecticut Valley" by Charles Edward Hooper, with illustrations by Herman Pfeiffer, is an unusually artistic feature. "The Campaign of Hope," the tireless fight against tuberculosis, is waged with undiminished enthusiasm and is awakening people throughout the country.

Getting Used to 'Em.

"I just have heard of the arrival of the third child in the Jones family," remarked the woman. "The announcement of the first born was made by beautifully engraved cards, tied with tiny white ribbon; the second was by telegraph, and this third one, though a much-wished-for boy, was made merely by a postal card."

An Important Condition.

Five-year-old Zora had been listening very attentively to the older ones talking, when one turned to her and asked, "Well, Zora, what are you going to do when you are grown?" After drawing a long breath she answered, "I'm going to teach school if there are any kids left."—The Liberator.

The Hint Direct.

To Mrs. McCarthy, busy with her washing and in no mood for chat, had come Mrs. Clancy, who noticed after an hour or two that it has become cloudy. Said she: "Do it rain, Mrs. McCarthy?" "It do that, Mrs. Clancy; but not that hard I couldn't get home if I was at your house."—San Francisco Alibi.

Pine Stronger Than Steel.

Calculation confirmed by experiment has shown that, weight for weight, pine wood is stronger than steel in both transverse and tensile strength. It is regarded as doubtful if any metal could be made into a hollow rod equaling a bamboo rod in stiffness without exceeding it in weight. In structures of wood the weak points are always at the joints.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

Hint to Amateur Carpenters.

A nail driven into oak or other timber oftentimes bends or breaks. To avoid this all is needed is a little wax or soap. The nail, if greased with either of these will go straight into the board. Carpenters who do finishing work bore a small hole in the handle of their hammers and then fill it with either wax or soap, running the nails into it as they use them.

Superlatively Great.

A group of men were seated about a table in the cafe of a western club discussing the rise of the prohibition sentiment when Wade Ellis bustled in. "A great man," said one. "A very great man," replied another; "he had John D. Rockefeller on the stand for a whole day and forced John to admit that he made money."

Ing-rate.

The Lady with the Feather—"No," I said, "this is too much. I've allowed you to buy me flowers and chocolates and to take me to theaters and dinners; I've even granted you the liberty of hiring a motor car for me—and this, I said, is all the thanks I get—you try to kiss me."—The Sketch.

Farmer Boy Presidents.

Prof. W. J. Spillman declares that the farms have furnished this country with 92 per cent. of its presidents, 91 per cent. of its governors, 83 per cent. of its cabinet officers, 70 per cent. of its senators, 64 per cent. of its congressmen and 55 per cent. of its railroad presidents.

Power of Wealth.

The ultimate test of the real efficiency of a rich man is to be able to get his divorce without due publicity and attendant scandal, except in those few cases where they rather enjoy the new sensation of notoriety, a phase which is really pathological.—Life.

How He Got It.

The kind lady had just handed the hungry hobo a sandwich and a hunk of pie. "Poor man!" she said, sympathetically. "Are you married?" "No'm," answered the H. H. "I got dis hunted look from bein' chased from place to place by der perlice."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1910.

The Growth of Local Enterprise.

It might be well to call attention to the fact that Westfield is endeavoring to become a self-supporting community; that is, that the citizens are giving preference to local business enterprise whenever they can do so consistently and economically. To build up a Town of Homes is one object: to foster Home Enterprise is another.

In days gone by the merchants were not enterprising; they simply existed, and were satisfied with old fangled methods and ideas; but today the modern spirit has taken hold of local industry, and, if one will stop to reckon he will find that considerable progress has been made. Not only have local industries increased, but local enterprise has extended its lines in all directions. Merchants are making an earnest effort to compete with metropolitan stores. It is well that the progressive movement should be encouraged; the merchant is benefitted by increased trade and profits, and the citizen is benefitted by having a home market sufficient to his needs. There is every reason to believe the time is not far distant when Westfield will be well supplied with department stores, and that local citizens will be even more enthusiastic in their support of them than they are today.

Success to the Borough.

Mountainside is looking up! Everybody (not to mention the progressive citizens of the Borough) is glad of it. Those who have watched hopefully for signs of a renaissance in the civic affairs of the Borough, at last are able to say that progress in a right direction is being made. The building of a Town Hall seems to have set the fires of civic pride—for so long smouldering—burning briskly, and now, under the right auspices, other improvements are to be carried out—all of which will add to the prestige of the municipality, and give comfort and pleasure to the citizens.

It would be difficult to ascertain the cause of the millennium in Mountainside. Certainly the present administration was quick to note the needs of possibilities of a Borough so advantageously situated. It may be, too, that the citizens were inspired to co-operate with the officials because of the example set by the Town of Westfield. However, we leave it to the people of Mountainside to pay tribute to the deserving, and rejoice with the Mayor, Bechtold, the Council, Attorney Taggart, Uncle Alfred and all the good citizens of the borough in the progress thus far made. We know that the best is not too good for them—May they courageously fight for it—and get it.

"It's An Ill Wind---!"

One fortunate phase of this mad dog scare is the absence of stray dogs in our streets. In commending the local authorities for their prompt and effective efforts to prevent the spread of rabies it is well

Cooke---Johnston.

Miss May Johnston, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob M. Johnston, was married at the home of her parents, 487 Mountain avenue, last Friday night, to Mr. Ray Alexander Cooke of Elizabeth. The bride was gowned in white French batiste with trimmings of baby Irish point lace and carried orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Lena L. Hoffman, of Lebanon, as maid of honor. Clarence H. Appar, a cousin of the bride, acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William E. Davis, of Marlborough. Only relatives of the two families were present at the ceremony. A wedding supper was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cooke left for a wedding trip in the South. Mrs. Cooke was formerly a teacher in an Elizabeth public school; she received many handsome presents of silver and cut glass.

Italian Driver Seriously Hurt.

Ridello Cologierro, an Italian driver in the employ of S. D. Winter, was seriously injured Monday morning by being thrown from the seat of the wagon which he was driving. Cologierro struck upon the back of his head and his scalp was torn several inches. The accident occurred on Broad street. He was in an unconscious condition when picked up. Dr. Laird was called and dressed the man's wounds, after which he was taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital. The injured man's home is on Spring street.

OBITUARY.

William B. Haffelfinger.

William B. Haffelfinger, of Lawrence avenue, died at the Wernersville, Pa. Sanitarium, last Saturday afternoon. He was 55 years old and had been a sick man for a number of years. He is survived by a wife and daughter, Miss Mary Haffelfinger, who is a student at Dunn Hall Preparatory School.

Mr. Haffelfinger was a real estate operator, having offices in Brooklyn. He was born in Philadelphia, and when a young man moved to Chambersburg, Pa., where he lived up to three years ago. Ill health caused him to seek a more congenial climate, and he brought his family to Westfield. For a time his condition improved, but the old malady soon returned, and no hope was entertained for his recovery. Three weeks ago he was taken to the Sanitarium, but was not benefited by the treatment, and it was decided to bring him home. His wife and daughter went to the sanitarium for that purpose on Friday, but Mr. Haffelfinger was then in such a critical condition that he could not leave his bed. He died Saturday afternoon.

The funeral services and interment took place at Chambersburg, his wife's home, on Tuesday. The Rev. C. B. Calkins, of Westfield, a friend of the family, was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Mr. Haffelfinger was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Anton Schneider.

Anton Schneider, died at his home on Mountain avenue, Tuesday morning in his sixty-sixth year. He is survived by a wife and two daughters. The funeral services were held at his late home yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, the Rev. Dr. William I. Steans, pastor of the Presbyterian Church officiating. The burial was at Fairview.

Human Interest

Service As Applied To Mortgage Loans.

To procure loans on real estate with the moral assurance that interest payments will be made when due—

That the property will be kept faithfully covered by insurance in a reliable company and taxes and assessments paid—

That the property will be preserved in first-class condition and the security thereby sustained—

That the principle fund will be promptly paid at maturity if an extension is not desired—

IS THE AIM OF THE JUDICIOUS INVESTOR.

These essentials must be carefully considered and they all depend on the character of the borrower.

This is what we call personal or plus security, since it affords a protection to the investor over and above the security of the property itself.

The investor dislikes a resort to legal proceedings—foreclosure—as they are unprofitable and unpleasant to all save the lawyers.

And it is to preclude or minimize such a possibility that we investigate the personal as well as the property risk and study the proposition from all sides.

That is why the mortgage loan investor is safe in our hands, and such is our Human Interest Service.

The Value of Mortgages

Half of the business of the world is done on paper, and if you are desirous of securing your own home, and find it is not convenient for you to pay cash, you are entitled, and it is also a good business, to secure a mortgage, on good collateral, your house.

If being your own landlord and having the kind of a home you want with plenty of grounds, and congenial and desirable location where values have increased at the rate of 25% per annum for the past four years, appeals to you, communicate with THE WESTFIELD REAL ESTATE COMPANY, and they will submit plans and finance the proposition, relieving you of the many details.

Why Real Estate is the Best Investment

Real Estate is the most judicious investment, as it enhances in value the most steadily, and yields the best returns. The SECURITY, the INCREASE, and the INCOME are the three essentials to be sought for making an investment.

We have just listed a property which has these three essentials. It will be wise to investigate.

Newark--The Industrial City

We are glad to see Other stores taking up the question of a suitable name for Newark. It shows the proper public spirit. When We first suggested the plan we thought possibly it might not "take," but now pretty nearly every one is talking about it, and we are receiving letters from all parts of this vicinity and many from remote places. Scores of excellent names have been offered, but the "Industrial City" is still in the lead by an overwhelming majority.

The name suits us, and we believe it suits the majority of Newarkers, so we shall henceforth call it the "Industrial City."

By the way, this morning's paper stated that the latest city directory returns give the "Industrial City" a population of 420,000. This is rather more than we expected, but it's bully isn't it?

Lets' all talk "Industrial City"—it'll soon be the fad.

UNKIND TO DICK

As the girl with the jet chain started into the shop door the other girl with the lynx furs had just started out. They saw each other at the same moment.

"Well, of all things!" cried the girl with the jet chain. "Where on earth did you come from, Larina Hoops? Just in town shopping, I suppose? Why, I haven't seen you since I went to Prairie Town to be bridesmaid last spring—since Ethel married and went away. I haven't even heard from there. That is—anyhow, how well you look!"

"Do it!" asked the young woman with the lynx furs.

"I'm dying to hear all the news!" protested the girl with the jet chain. "I had a lovely time there! Sometimes, though, my conscience does hurt me."

"Goodness!" cried the girl with the lynx furs. "What for?"

The other one sighed. "Oh, I don't suppose I did anything, really," she said. "Only—well—I've always felt that I spoiled his whole life. Dick Harmon, you know. Of course, I couldn't help his being so crazy about me."

"Oh, was he?"

"Goodness! I should think he was." When they had edged into a corner away from the crowd the girl with the jet chain added by way of explanation: "I don't suppose people generally noticed it, but when one has had as much experience as I have little things show one which way the wind blows. Not that Dick came right out and said things—but it's easy enough to tell when a man really cares! Especially if he is one of the slow, silent kind like Dick! He really is awfully nice, even if he does live in a small town! How is he?"

"Why, he seemed all right when I last saw him," said the girl with the lynx furs. "I—"

"I'm so glad!" said the girl with the jet chain fervently. "I'm so glad he has had the spirit to rise above it! Of course, when a man feels as deeply as it is his nature to be never really gets over a thing like that—but it's something to conceal from people."

"Why, I never knew that you and Dick got so extremely well acquainted the month you were in Prairie Town!" said the girl with the lynx furs.

"My dear," murmured her friend, "it isn't time, you know, it's just feeling that it's the right one! Why, Dick's eyes haunt me yet! I don't suppose, since you're always known him, you ever noticed how much he expresses with his eyes! You always seemed to take him as a matter of course. However, that's just as well, perhaps. I think a girl makes a mistake to let herself grow especially interested in a man who doesn't notice her. I could see when I first met Dick that he had taken a strong fancy to me. Of course, I had no intention of leading him on. I simply couldn't live in a small town after being used to the distractions of a city. It's so narrowing. I'm really amazed that a man as clever as Dick should stick to Prairie Town!"

"Well," said the girl with the lynx furs, "his father has the biggest law practice in the county and Dick's in his office now as partner. And their big house—"

"Dick a partner!" cried the girl with the jet chain. "Well, of course that's very delightful. I suppose he really will have a decent income now. And Dick is very nice. I sometimes feel that I needn't have ended our acquaintance so abruptly. I might have been kinder to him. I almost worry about it!"

"What did you do?" asked the girl with the lynx furs.

"Of course, when I got back home I wrote to Dick," explained the girl with the jet chain. "I always believe in being polite, and he had taken me to the train."

"He said you asked him to," murmured the girl with the lynx furs.

"The idea!" flushed the girl with the jet chain, flushing. "I don't recollect doing any such thing! Men mix things up so! Well, I wrote him and I never heard from him." So I had to do as I did."

"What was that?"

"Why," said the girl with the jet chain, with dignity. "I ended the correspondence. I didn't write again."

"Oh," said the girl with the lynx furs. "I see! How unkind of you!"

"Yes, I've often felt so," admitted the girl with the jet chain. "Still, it may be he simply hadn't the heart to write me when he knew it was hopeless. I believe I really ought to look him up—poor Dick! And he's a partner with his father now! He really is awfully good looking. I shall write him to-night. I feel that it's my duty. By the way, when did you come and how long?"

The girl with the lynx furs appeared confused. "I was trying to tell you, but you didn't give me a chance," she said. "I'm in town on my wedding trip. Dick and I were married last week."

Alvin Adams, when the express business was in its infancy, had an office and two horses in New York city. One of these horses was a fine, fast animal, and the other an old, broken-down nag. Packages that were to be delivered immediately he sent out behind the fast horse. Of course, that didn't have to be rushed, he would say: "Leave them for the old boss." In every express office to this day there is an "old boss" room, where undelivered and unclaimed packages are kept.

Work of Humorous Mason.
In Litchfield (Eng.) cathedral the central pillar of the chapter-house and the clustered shafts and vaulting ribs which spread from it are very fine specimens of early English work. One of the pillars contains the quaint design of a cat with a mouse in its mouth. It is supposed to have been executed in a humorous spirit by one of the masons, who, so far as the stone permitted, made it quite realistic.

Not for Hans.

Hans came in from his ranch to buy a horse. "I've got the very thing you want," said like Hergman; "it's a fine road horse, five years old, sound as a quail, 1175 cash down, and he goes ten miles without stopping." Hans threw up his hands in protest. "Not for me," he said—"not for me. I wouldn't give you five cents for him. I live eight miles out, and I'd half to walk back two miles."

Revelations of Color.

Colors tell a tale. Feminine lugubricity shows a painful affection for musty blacks, for sickly fawns and greasy grays. Those of overflowing vitality, on the other hand, love bright colors—orange, scarlet and blue. People of amiable, but rather indefinite character, show a decided preference for pale shadowy shades—pale-blue, pale-pink, white or cream.—Gentlewoman, London.

Signals That Carry Far.

When an African chief of the Nigerial tribes is ready to begin harvesting and requires extra assistance, says Popular Mechanics, he sets some of his tribesmen drumming. They beat a huge kettledrum made of skin stretched on a calabash and a small side drum. The sound of the drumming carries a great distance, and laborers come in from all directions.

Wasting Letters.

We have only a few letters in the alphabet, yet many persist in wasting them. Here comes M. Fleuron, Mr. Lloyd, Mr. Brentt, Mr. Llewellyn, Mr. Percey, Mr. Willcocks, Mr. Hammerslight, Mr. Maygonigale, Mr. Maccrae, Miss Carrolllyne Welles, Miss Mneulands, Georges Kheller, etc.—N. Y. Press.

Timber Too Widely Scattered.

While there is an abundance of suitable timber in Brazil, it is difficult to find many districts where the trees suitable for lumber are close enough together for profitable work. Transportation causes much difficulty, often making it impossible to transport logs to a mill or lumber to a market.

New Fishes in the Sea.

In a communication to the Royal Society of Queensland, Douglas Ogilby records the discovery of one new genus and seven new species of fish. Among these are slender dog shark, Howe's needle fish, long-beaked garfish, the somber leather jacket and others.

Pygmies of East Africa.

The thick forest along the banks of the Semliki, in eastern Africa, is densely inhabited by pygmies. They are cannibals, and when pressed for food exchange their children for those of other families. They refuse to eat members of their own families.

Objectionable.

"I wouldn't object to do man dat keeps talkin' all de time," said Uncle Eben. "If he didn't insist on th'owin' in a question every ten minutes or so dat you's got to answer to show you's keepin' awake."—Washington Star.

Fan Easily Handled.

A patent has been granted on a fan, the propeller-like blades of which are driven through gear wheels by a lever operated by one finger of the person holding it. The inventor claims it obviates the effort needed for using the ordinary fan.

Cleopatra Homely!

So Cleopatra was homely after all! Well, at its worst, history is only like those newspapers in which every police court heroine is young and beautiful.

Bicycle for the Blind.

An Englishman has invented a bicycle for the blind. In reality it is a multi-cycle, carrying 12 riders, led by a seeing person, who does the steering.

No Will and No Way.

Folks as have no mind to be o' use have always the luck to be out o' the road when there's anything to be done.—George Elliot.

Make the Best of Things.

A jolly temper is not the sign of an empty head. Become a philosopher and skip over troubles and never cross bridges before you reach them.

Dependent Only on Itself.

True dignity is never gained by place and never lost when honors are withdrawn.—Massinger.

The One Thing Needful.

If I take care of my character, my reputation will take care of itself.—Moody.

Daily Thought.

Give what you have. To some it may be better than you dare think.—Longfellow.

Urged, But Not Practiced.

Virtue has many preachers, but few martyrs.—Helvetius.

Getting Consolation

"I used to think, before I married Fred," said the agitated young woman, "that I wanted a musician." She shook her head and gazed around the small circle dramatically.

"And now," said the unmarried girl, "I suppose you're so supremely satisfied that you don't notice any lack?"

The circle of young matrons laid down their embroidery and regarded her with scorn.

"Indeed!" they remarked, collectively.

"But—but—" stammered the unmarried girl. "I thought you were all happily wedded?"

"So we are!" they chimed, indignantly.

"Then why—" began the unmarried girl, in perplexity.

The girl who had married Fred waved the others to silence.

"She doesn't understand, that's all," she explained. "Why should she? Let me tell you about some of my domestic troubles."

"If I had actually married a professional musician, such as I dreamed about at midnight recitals at the age of 17," explained the girl who had married Fred, "he'd be a lamenting widower by this time, that's certain—lyrically, of course. At least, I hope he'd lament. If the professional ones are as much more 'temperamental' than the amateurs—well, pity their families, my dear!"

"Has Fred turned musical?" ventured the timid young matron in mauve broadcloth.

"Has he?" echoed Fred's bride. "I should say he has!—Pardon me for repeating your question, but I'm rather agitated to-day. Fred thinks he's developing a tenor voice, and nothing damaging that I can say seems to have any weight against the advice of the curious friends he's acquired lately."

"Tenors are always the worst," murmured the unmarried girl, reminiscently.

The girl who had married Fred pounced upon her eagerly. "Have you suffered from it, too?" she cried.

The unmarried girl nodded. "My brother," she explained. "But he's over it now."

"Are Fred's new friends musicians?" asked the timid matron in mauve.

"I think so, judging from their looks," said the girl who had married Fred. "My dear girls, I wish you could have seen the specimen Fred brought home to dinner last night. Perfectly impossible! We happened to have a particularly good dinner, and, of course, I was glad of that, but when I saw him I decided it was quite unnecessary to hurry out and put on my best bouillon cups—that's always my first instinct when I have unexpected company."

The circle nodded.

"Of course," conceded the girl who had married Fred, "Fred has to have somebody to play accompaniments for him, I suppose, and I don't know a sharp from a flat myself. Anyway, he was wild about this creature."

"Isn't he magnificent?" Fred said to me, after the person had gone—he left an umbrella and a pair of overshoes, by the way, so I expect he'll come again. 'Isn't he a genius?' Fred asked me. 'Did you notice how he subordinated himself?'"

"I did not," I replied. "He is as big as a house, and he lounged over the whole room, and he had on a green and purple necktie."

"But I was speaking of his accompaniment," explained Fred. "His technique is superb. He fairly makes a fellow do his best."

"Well," breathed the circle, sympathetically, "do you have much of that sort of thing?"

The girl who had married Fred nodded, gloomily. Then she brightened. "Every cloud has a silver lining," she remarked. "I tell Fred that I'm glad to have some balm for my wounded feelings. He applied for active membership in the Beethoven Choral Club."

"And they took him?" cried the timid matron in mauve broadcloth.

"Oh, no," said the girl who had married Fred, smiling happily. "They rejected him with considerable emphasis, and he had to console himself by taking out an associate life membership instead. I like the Beethoven Choral club myself to the extent of having four seats for every concert. We'll take you all," she ended, generously. "I'll make up a party of strictly ignorant people—and we'll have supper afterward."

Phosphorescent Photographs.

Phosphorescent photographs have an image consisting of white calcium sulphide, which shines in the dark after being exposed to luminous rays. The process requires care, but a French authority states that there is no real difficulty. Into a moderately warm solution of one ounce of gelatine in ten ounces of water, 50 grains of potassium bichromate and 200 grains of phosphorescent calcium sulphide are stirred. This solution is used to coat a film of plain celluloid, and after drying the plate thus prepared is exposed under a positive for about the time needed for a carbon print. Warm water is the developer.

HON. DAVID HEALY.

U. S. Immigration Service, Ellis Island, To Speak.

Mr. Healy will give a lecture on the "Immigrant in National Life" on the evening of Tuesday, April 5th, for the benefit of the furnishing of the Borough Hall at Mountainside. Mr. Alfred E. Pearsall is chairman of the committee getting up the series of five lectures and entertainments on alternate Tuesdays, commencing with the above lecture.

Mr. Healy was born and educated in Canada, but crossed to Uncle Sam's side of the line before he was out of his teens. He had been a school teacher in Canada but on coming to the United States he sought employment in the timber forests of Pennsylvania where he soon became known as an expert sawyer in the great lumber mills, as well as a student of the industrial problem.

He was induced to enter the field of journalism during the great railway strikes of 1877, and moved to Rochester, New York, where he soon became popular in the wider field. In a few years later he was elected member of the State Legislature upon an independent ticket from the city of Rochester, and served with Theodore Roosevelt during the session of 1883 when a personal friendship was begun which has remained unbroken since.

In that session Mr. Healy secured the passage of the law establishing the Bureau of Labor Statistics which has come to be recognized as one of the most valuable departments of the Government for the gathering and tabulating of reliable information upon which to base proper legislation on industrial and economic questions.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETING.

Interesting "Criticism of Recent Books" Read by Members.

At the meeting of the Woman's Club held on March 28th the business session was brief. The detailed program for the ensuing year on "The Literature of the Elizabethan Age" was read and accepted with congratulations. Mrs. Fred White of Prospect street was admitted to active membership.

The subject for the afternoon was "Criticism of Recent Books," and three very entertaining papers were read by members of the club. Mrs. Bunce opened the program with a short but comprehensive criticism of the works of De Morgan, and read extracts from several of his books. Mrs. Calkins followed with a delightful paper giving an outline of several works. The third paper by Mrs. Salter Storrs Clark dealt more with the illustrations contained in "The New York" by John C. Van Dyke than with its subject matter, and descriptions lent new interest to familiar landmarks.

FIREMEN FIGHT FIRES.

Small Barn of F. H. Trevenan Burned to the Ground Tuesday.

The local fire department has been very busy within the past week putting out brush fires. Tuesday afternoon they were called to Einbrea Crescent where the barn of Mr. Link had caught fire, but the fire was extinguished before much damage was done. Later in the afternoon, a call was again answered by the fire department, on Clark street and Edgewater avenue, where the brush was afire in the woods, and was under control, but not before it burned down a small barn of Mr. F. H. Trevenan. The damage is estimated at $150.

Those who heard the play "The Servant in the House," know the power of this convincing drama. Mr. Mead is a reciter of note. He has a splendid voice, of wide range and dramatic force. The recitation of the play should have a deep meaning and purpose through his interpretation.

FORT WANTS MORE.

Baker's motion to relieve the Committee on Elections of his bill to extend the direct primary system to the nomination of Governor and members of Congress. Every assemblyman knew before the subject was brought up that Mr. Baker's request was foredoomed to defeat. Notwithstanding, more than a dozen speeches, many of them long drawn out, were made. On roll-call the Baker motion was defeated by a vote of 37 to 18, the Republicans, with the exception of Mr. Nichols, of Camberland, and Mr. Crosby, of Ocean, voting solidly to sustain the action of the Committee in refusing to report the bill.

BIRD MIMIC HERE.

Mr. Avis to Lecture at Washington School, April 29.

The announcement was made last Wednesday by County Superintendent Dr. J. J. Savitz at the local High School that the bird mimic, Mr. Avis, will lecture here on April 29. Dr. Savitz said that Mr. Avis would lecture to the students of the local school in the morning, and as this was such a rare opportunity, he would endeavor to have the lecture repeated in the evening.

Mr. Avis, who will lecture in all the Union county schools that week, comes here through the efforts of the Nature League of New Jersey. He gives illustrated lectures on all the different birds, tells of their habits and mimics them.
