This yearbook is dedicated to the kaleidoscope that is Westfield High School's student body. Our staff has worked very hard to include a variety of representatives from the diverse groups of our school. We have made an effort to paint a picture of red, blue, yellow, green, orange, and purple. We hope that you will enjoy our work of art. Thank you for purchasing the 1996-1997 Weather Vane. Enjoy gazing through your Kaleidoscope.

KALEIDOSCOPE of Seniors

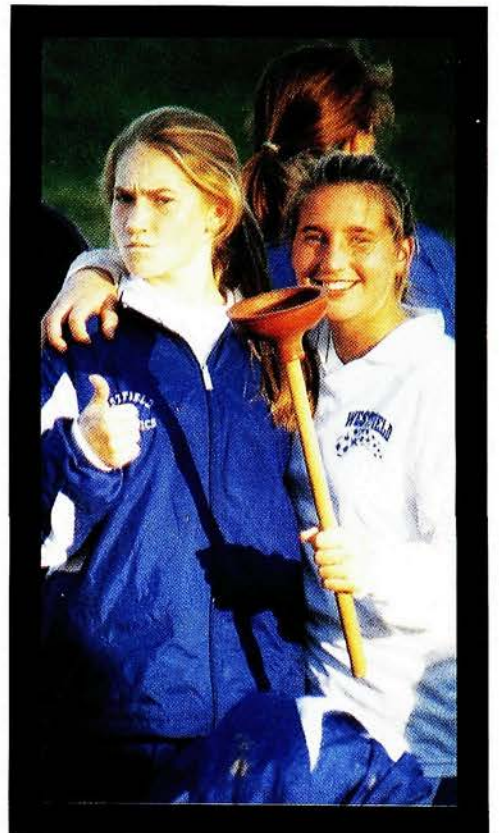

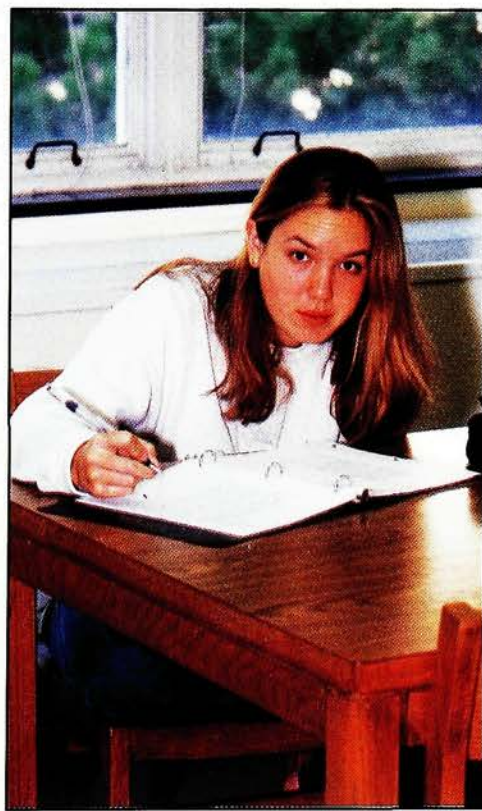

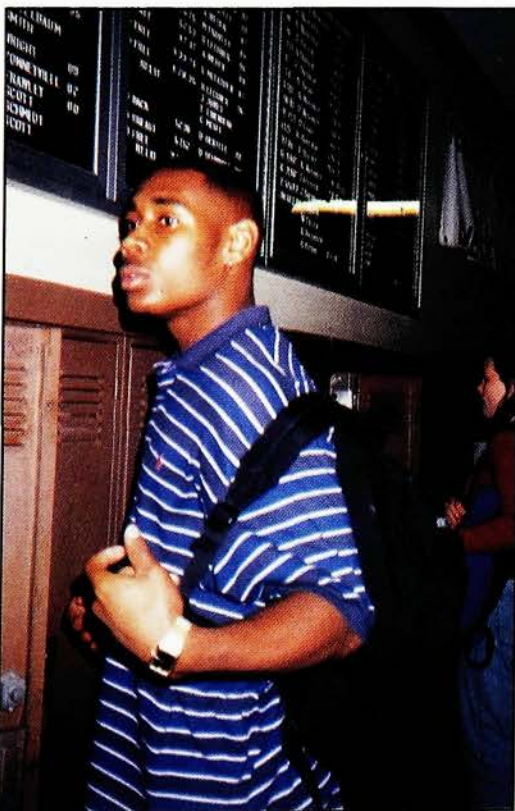

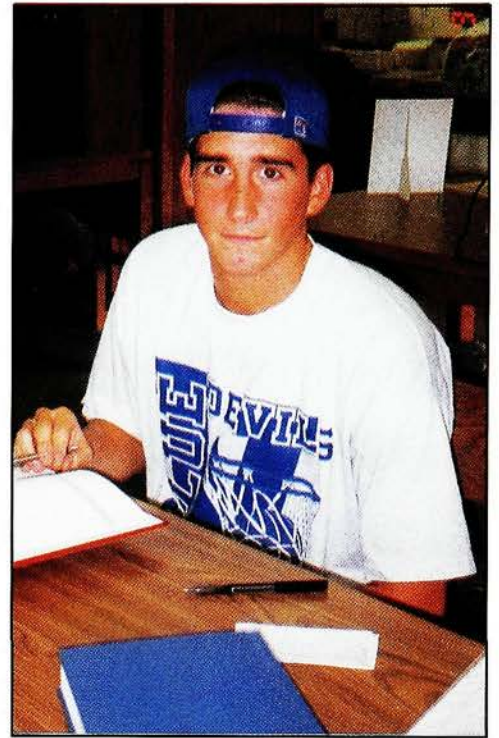

Senior year has come to an end at last. We have graduated from high school classes, SATs, college applications and college essays. Most of us have now been accepted to our first, second, or third choice college. Now we can recover from the very communicable symptoms of senioritis: excessive drowsiness, procrastination, and the formulation of excuses.

KALEIDOSCOPE of Juniors

The easiest way to describe Junior Year would be to print the list of anxiety-producing events which exists in each student's mind. It reads:

1. Colleges will be looking at my G.P.A. next year, so it better be good!
2. Parallel parking! You expect me to get this car into that space?
3. I can't believe Ms. Strauss won't let me write my paper on the merits of owning a Jeep Grand Cherokee . . . there's so much I could say . . .
4. But it's April break, and I'm supposed to be getting a tan not a research paper headache!
5. I can make it to summer . . . I think I can, I think I can . . .

Ben's Foreign Language

I have enjoyed playing the alto saxophone since elementary school. Thanks to the encouragement of my parents, fine private instruction, and personal drive, I aspire to dedicate my career to music. Music, like a foreign language, consists of a body of technical information to learn as well as its personal interpretation. I have learned much of the subtleties of music interpretation and phrasing as a result of listening to my extensive jazz record collection. I aspire to be a performer and, perhaps, an educator. I want to learn and work with intelligent and interesting people from all walks of life. During the summer and vacations I practice my saxophone for two hours or more a day. During the school week I practice every day, but the length of my session varies because of school work and other activities.

Ian: In-Line

I've been skating since I was twelve. In the middle of sixth grade I got these really old Toys 'R' Us brand skates and used them for a while. I have had six pairs of skates since. I think the person who influenced me the most was Eddie Campos. He was at this demo three summers ago. He taught me how to skate half-pipe and do some aggressive tricks. That's when I started aggressive skating. Since then I've been sponsored by a couple of people. I skated in a demo two years ago and took second in a competition two months ago. I plan to keep skating for a long time because I have fun. I will compete as long as I can. The only problem I have is when people skate in competitions, they lose the fun of the sport. I skate six to seven times a week in the summer, and one to two times in the winter.

▼ Dominick Volini flashes his pearly whites.

▲ Thumbs up for math!

▼ I guess there's nothing better to do when you can't go out for lunch.

▲ Eat those fries while they're hot.

▼ What are you smiling about?

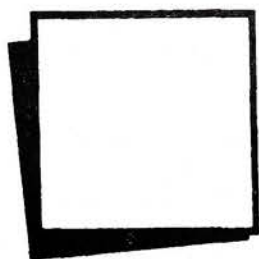

Sophomore year finally arrives. You have survived being a freshman, with all of its worries and fears. You have now moved to a higher level, although there are still some of the same drawbacks as the previous year. You are not old enough to drive, and open lunch is not going to be a reality until next year. Sophomores are basically stuck in the middle — not as young and inexperienced as a freshman, but not as accomplished as upperclassmen.

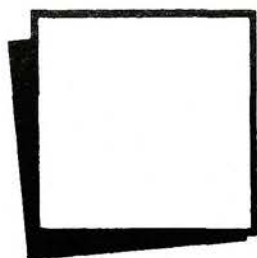

Although you must face many inconveniences, there are positive aspects of life as a sophomore. For example, you are no longer the “baby” of the school, unlike the timid, unsure freshmen. You might actually find yourself enjoying the day, as a sense of comfort and stability comes with being a year older. Sophomores are also one year closer to gaining the many privileges juniors and seniors are granted.

As one can see, there are both benefits and disadvantages to being a sophomore. Regardless of your feelings about this year, try to make the best of what it has to offer. You might decide sophomore year is not so bad after all.

Freshmen arrive at school on the first day with many apprehensions. They think, "Will I find my classes?", "Will my new teachers be strict?", "Will I make new friends?" However, they soon find themselves basking in the many privileges of life at WHS. Students enjoy free periods and a forty minute lunch period compared to last year's dinky twenty minute lunch study. Many electives, sports, and clubs allow students to get to know their peers and to become an active part of the high school community.

Danielle Baukh: Competitive Swimmer

I began participating in synchronized swimming at age eight. Currently I train four days in the water and three days out of the water lifting weights. My specific accomplishments include: twelfth place at Naitonals in duet and team events, fifth place at the Junior Olympics in 1995, and ninth place at the U.S. Open in 1996. My goal is to earn a place on the National Junior Team. The team is comprised of eight of the best synchronized swimmers (ages 14-17) in the nation.

Ah! A break from Author Miller does feel good.
Doesn't it?

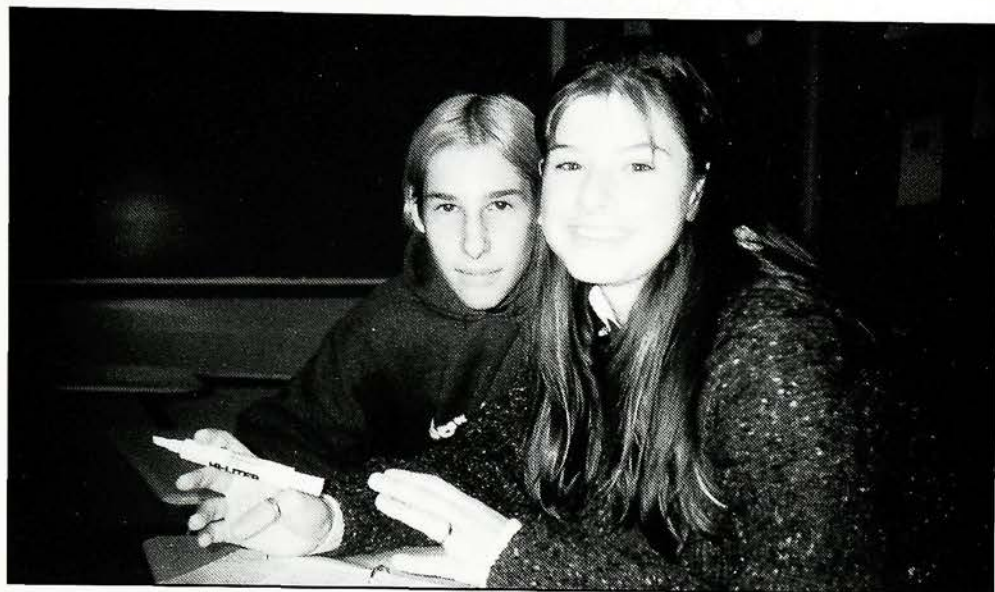

Ever since we can remember, English has been a part of our lives. This department has taught topics such as grammar, analytical and creative pieces, and, most importantly, the creation of our own voice. English, though at times challenging, has benefited every student. The English teachers have inspired us to become individuals.

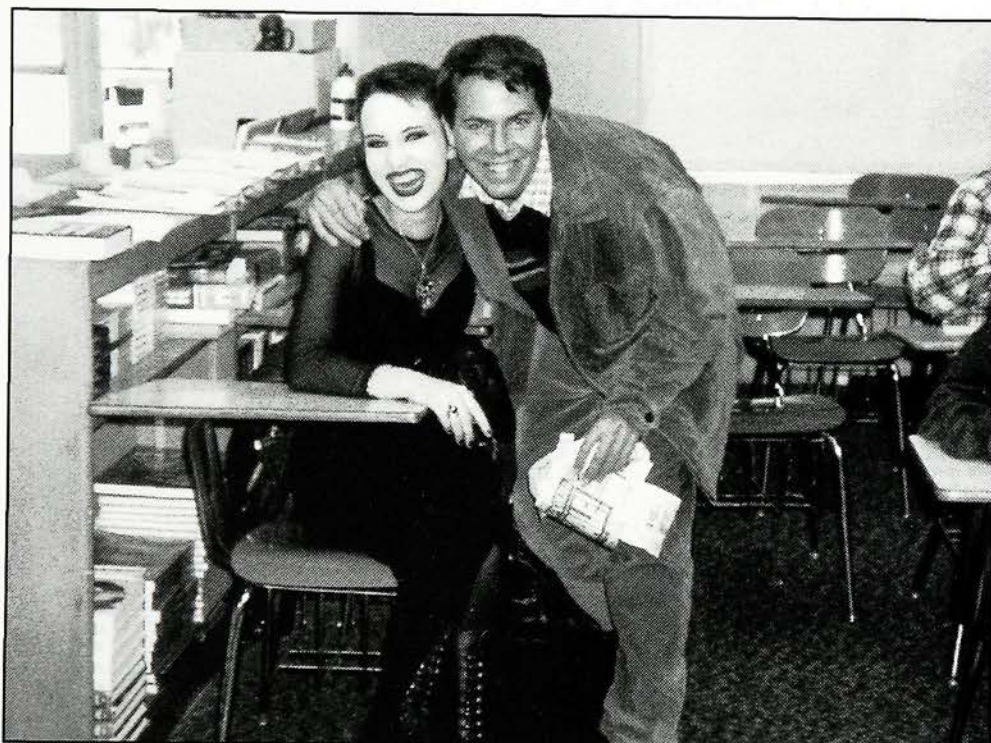

"Why the heck isn't it in here?"

"Why do they insist on making me write papers?"

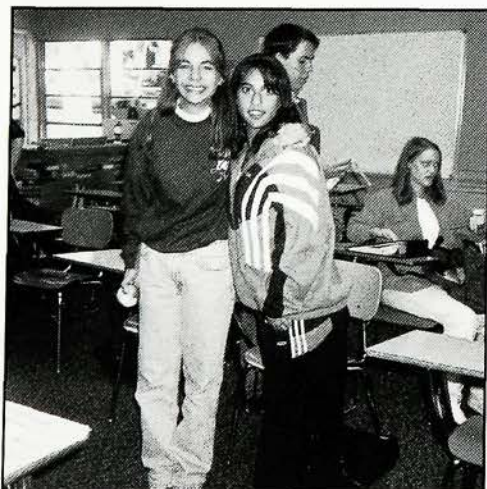

Rewriting History

History and Hi-Liters. What a combination.

"Ha! Ha! We're in class and you're not!"

History is crucial no matter what you want to be. Without it, you cannot survive in the real world. For example: You want to become a politician. Well, you need A.P. Government. Let's say you want to become an ambassador to France. It will be important that you have taken Hornish's A.P. European class. Even if you would like to become a manager of Burger King, you need to know their history. If you know and understand history, the world will not make the same mistake twice. The WHS Social Studies department has helped many students understand this lesson, which will help the world in its future.

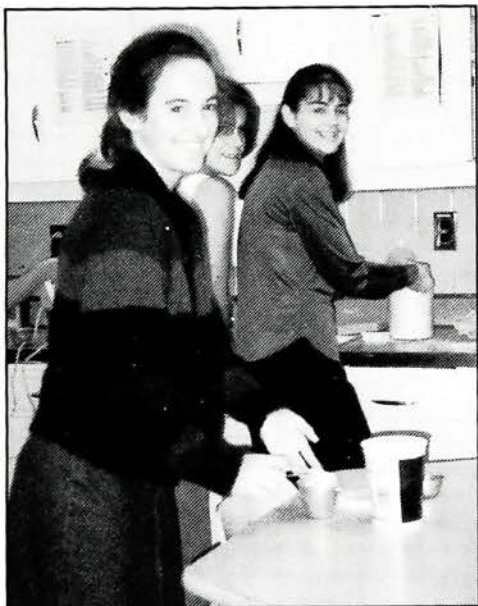

"You know, Beth. I forgot to do my homework."
 "That's okay, Jes. Just smile for the camera."

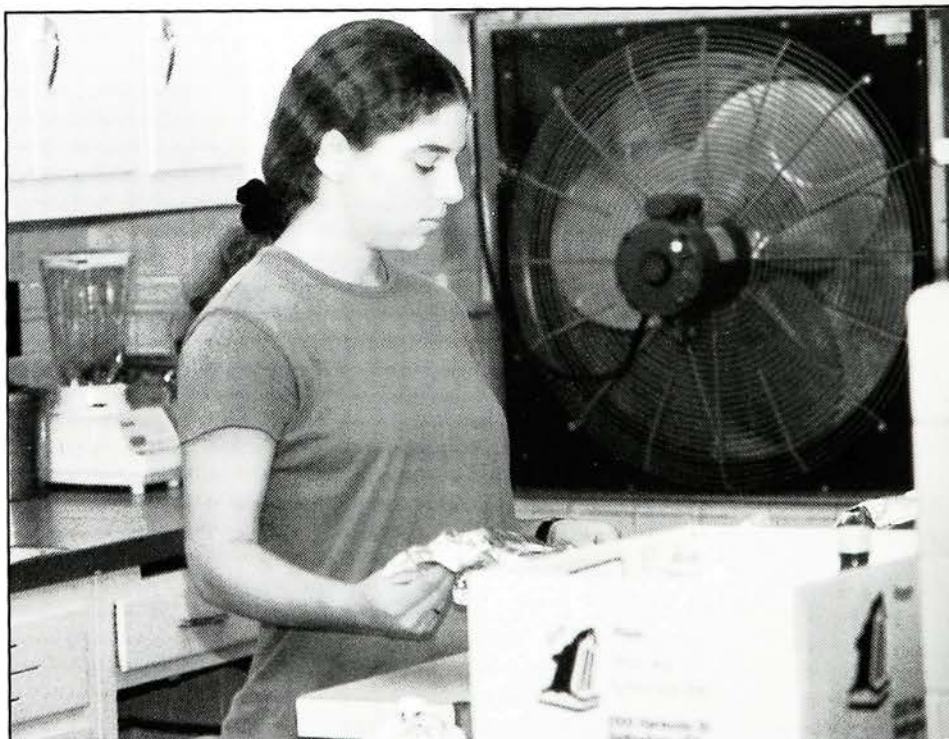

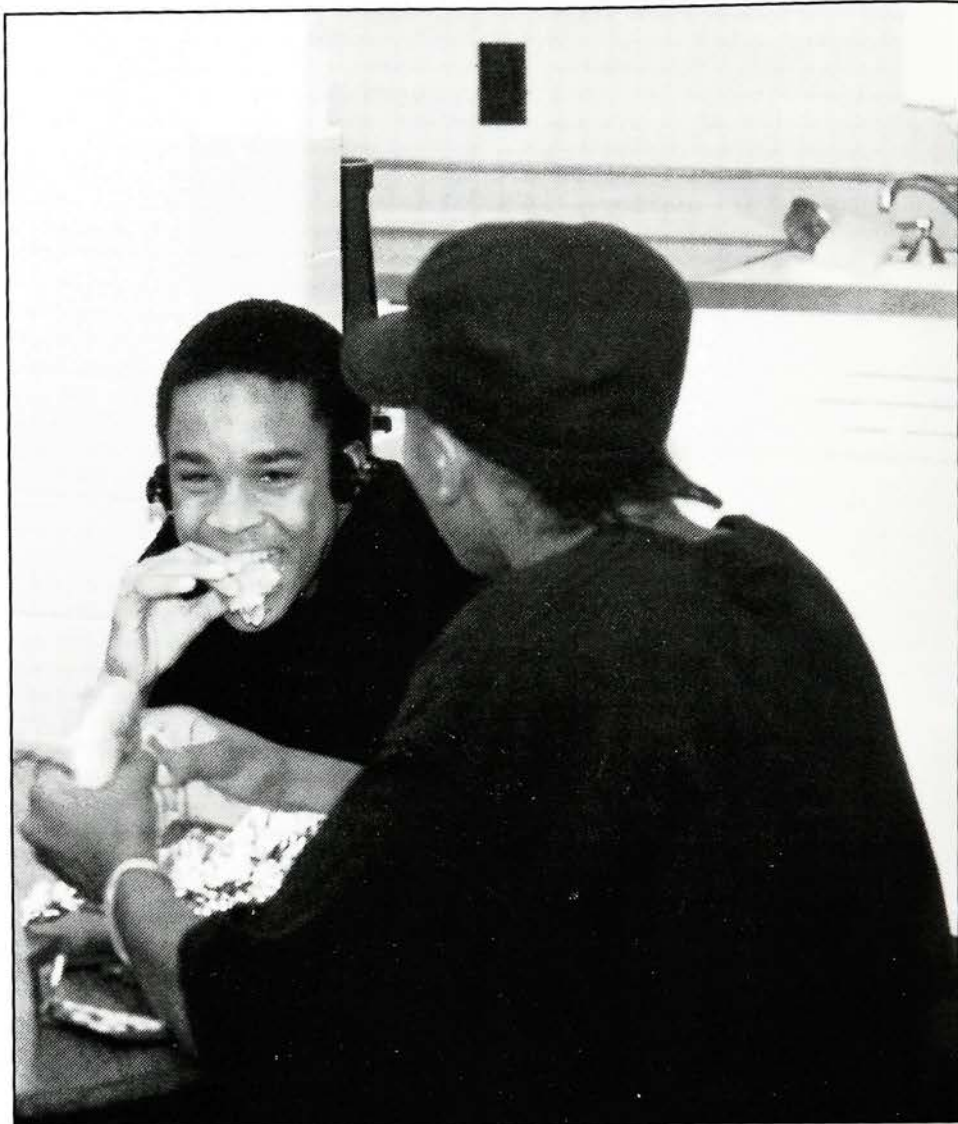

"Okay. So Churchill was from Russia and Stalin was from England. Right?"

Hey, was that made in Foods?

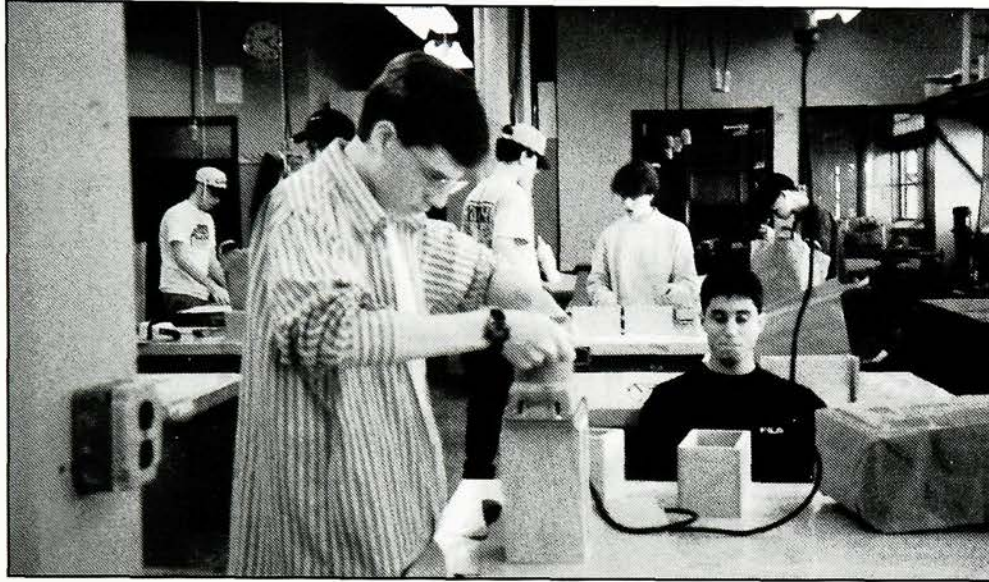

Modern Foods and Gourmet Cooking allow students to gain valuable skills for the future. These half-year courses teach students the fundamentals of cooking and baking. This class not only teaches you how to prepare things, but it also teaches you about team work. As a group, you learn how to give and take orders. Each person in the group has an individual task which results in one major product.

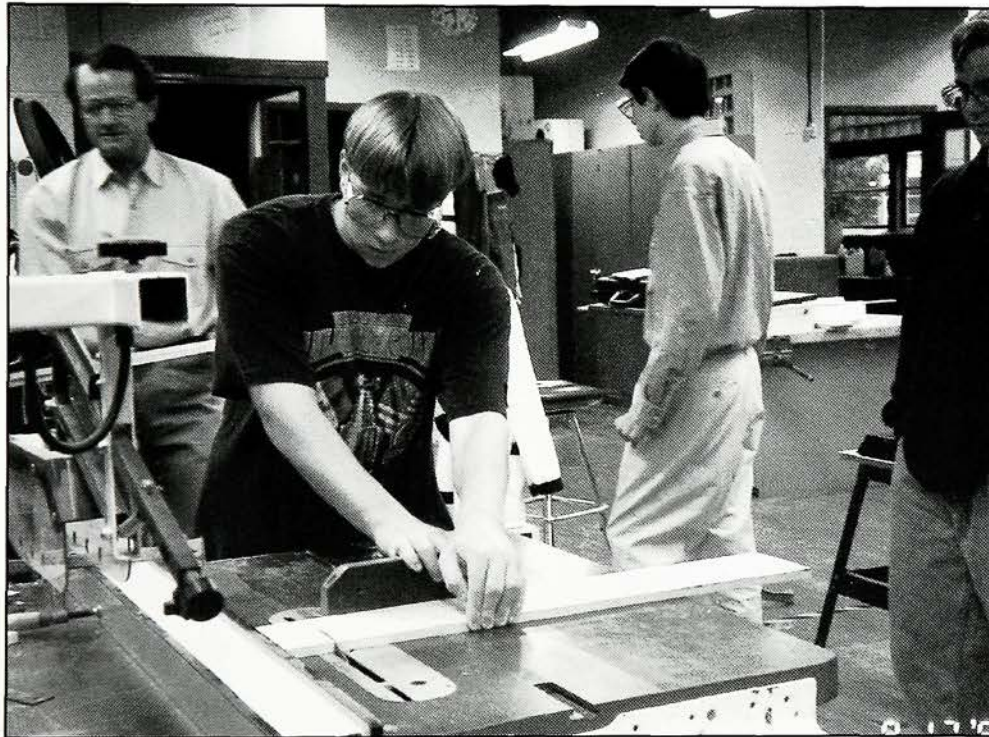

Three chefs grin as they put together a gourmet meal.

"O.K., so do you put the shortening in the cup or the pan?"

Two Hands Are Better Than One

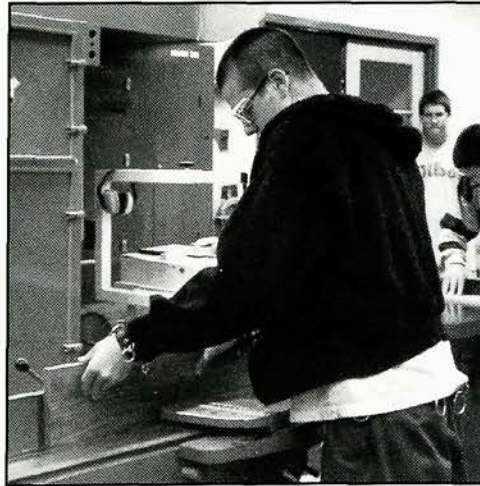

"Why doesn't this top come off?"

"Now, I pull with the left hand and push with the right."

The Industrial Arts department teaches skills that are essential in the real world. These classes teach you to work with "hands-on" projects. They allow you to work along the side of others and with large machinery. Usually, these classes influence students to pursue related fields.

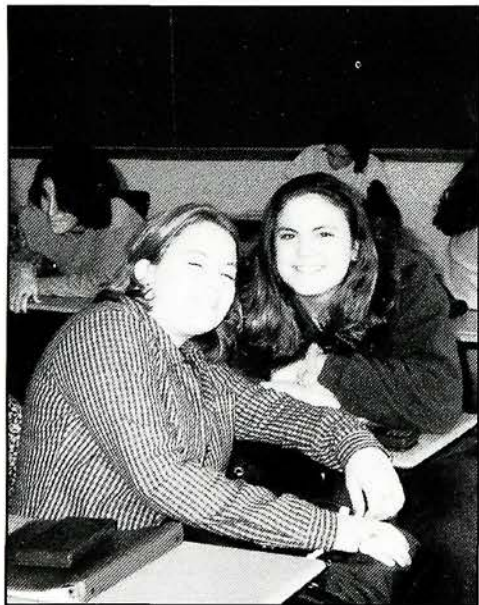

"I swear I didn't break it."

"If I could only fit this piece of wood into this machine."

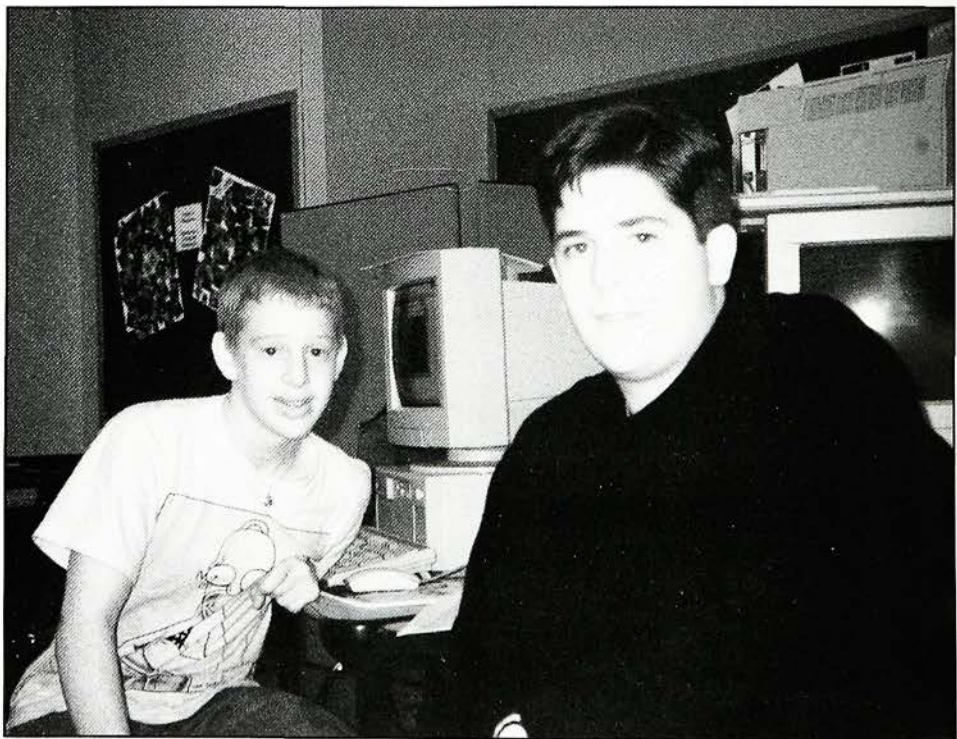

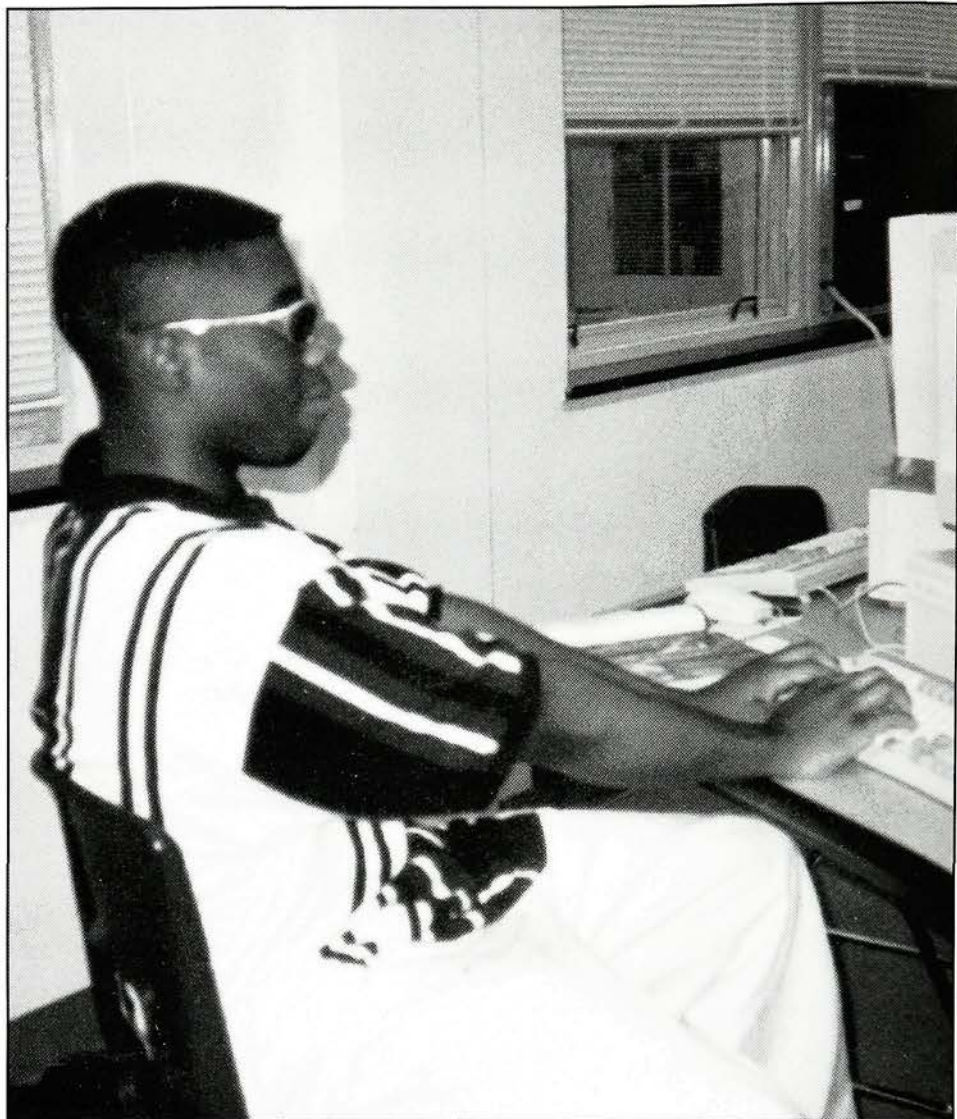

Ryan Allman is rolling on the computer, shielding his eyes from potentially dangerous vibes from the screen.

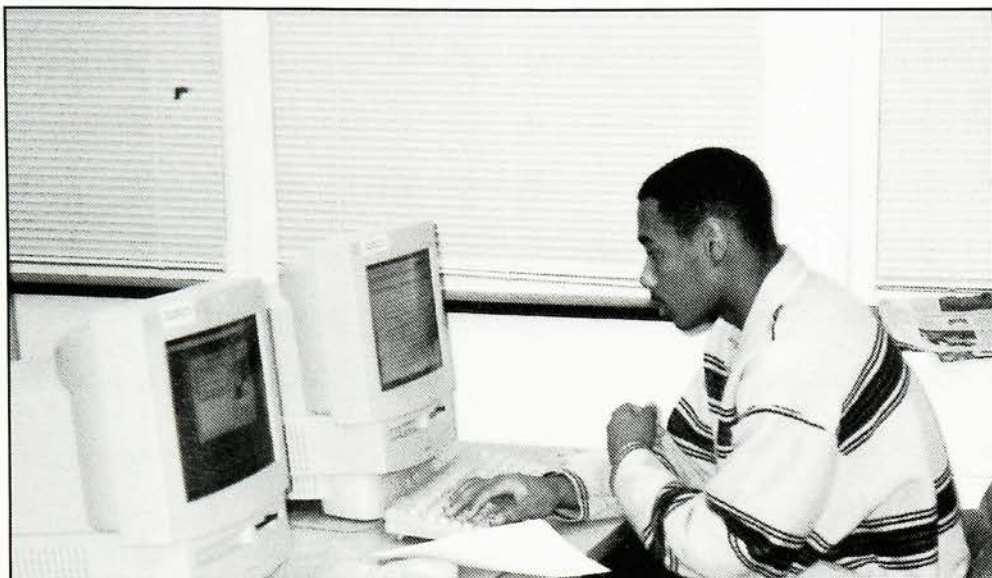

The Westfield High School Math Department offers a variety of courses for every skill level. Students take at least three years of math: Algebra I, Geometry, and Algebra 2. After that they have a choice of Calculus, Trigonometry, or simply Integrated math which is a sampling and a review of Algebra, Trig, and Calc. In addition to traditional math courses, Accounting and Business Math are offered as elective courses. Students who have tested low in standardized tests take a supplemental class called Basic Skills Improvement Program which increases math knowledge as well as self-esteem. Math is a life skill that you will eventually find useful even if you can't understand all of these equations.

Two senior students pause after calculating an intense calculus problem.

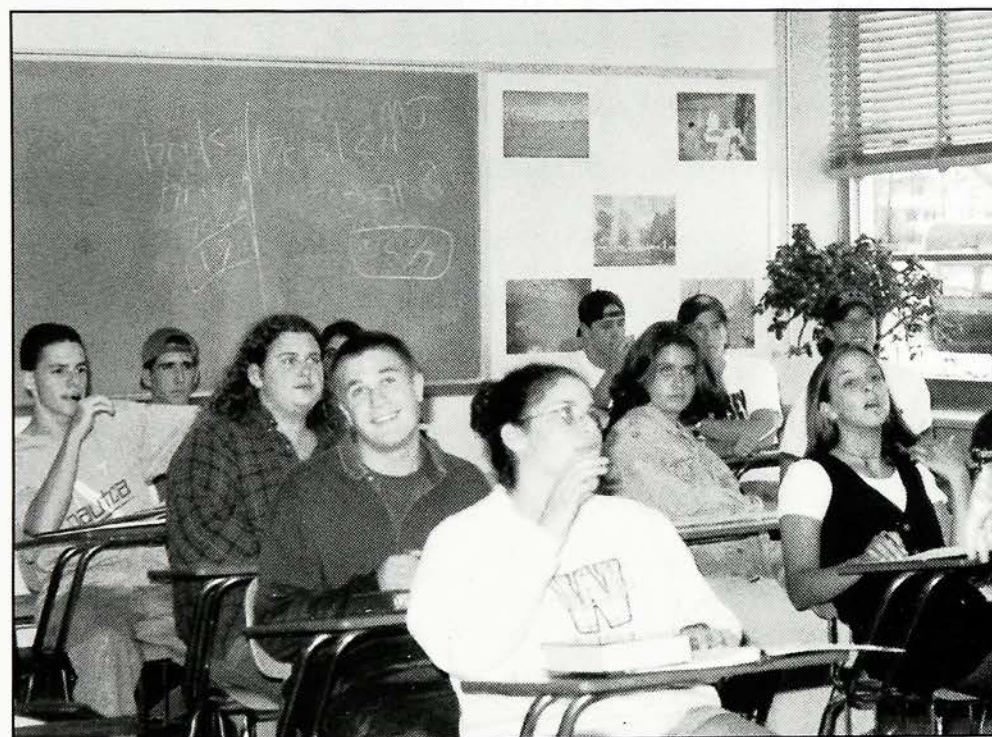

"Mmm, choices, choices. Should we do work or pose for a picture?"

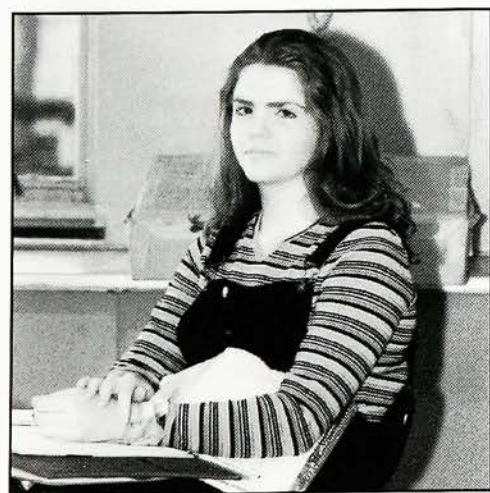

The Wave of the Future

Johnnie Faggins proofreads his English paper in the new Mac Lab to remove grammar errors. Use those skills!

Craig Hein knows the answer.

Computers play an important role in education today. We are the first generation who is computer literate. Our school has two computer labs, one IBM and one Macintosh. Macintosh computers are frequently used in education for their simplicity. However most of the computer students who know the fundamentals of DOS hone their skills with elective courses. The department offers classes in PASCAL, C++ , Computer Science, and AP computer courses. Both labs are equipped with Internet technology. The computer labs are used by students and teachers alike so the learning does not stop with the students.

Katie Healy can't decide how to solve an Algebra equation.

"Don't mess with me. I'm in leather."

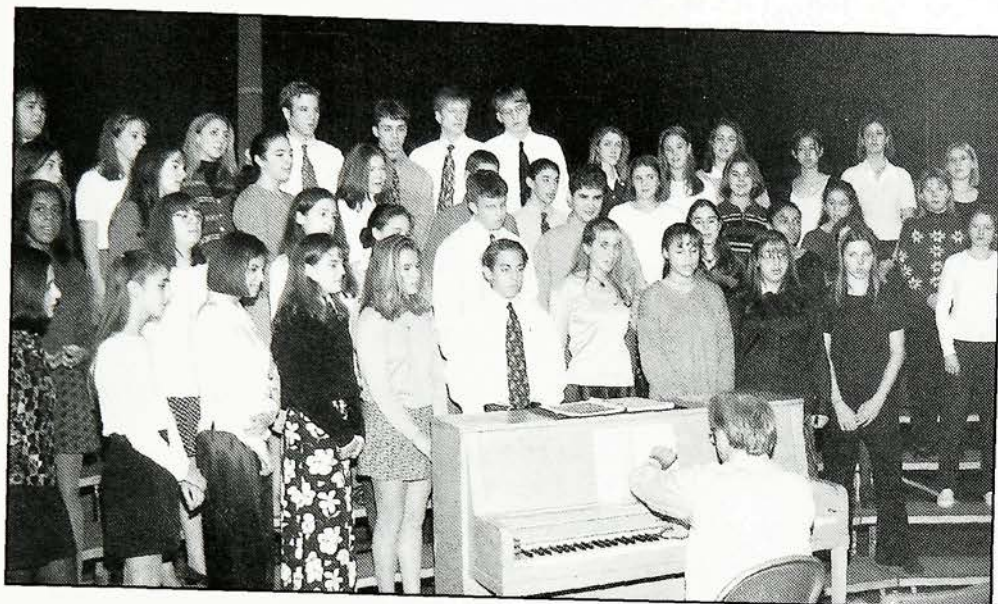

Drama offers a variety of opportunities for different people. Drama I begins with the basics of drama exercises, scenes, and monologues. Then the real fun begins. Drama II has competitions, and in Drama III we learn a little about directing. Each person grows as an actor, and as a person. The safe environment and familiar friends surround you. Once you walk into the auditorium, you can forget about the busy halls. Inside we can express ourselves on the stage through action and voice.

"The secret of tying shoelaces lies in the fingers."

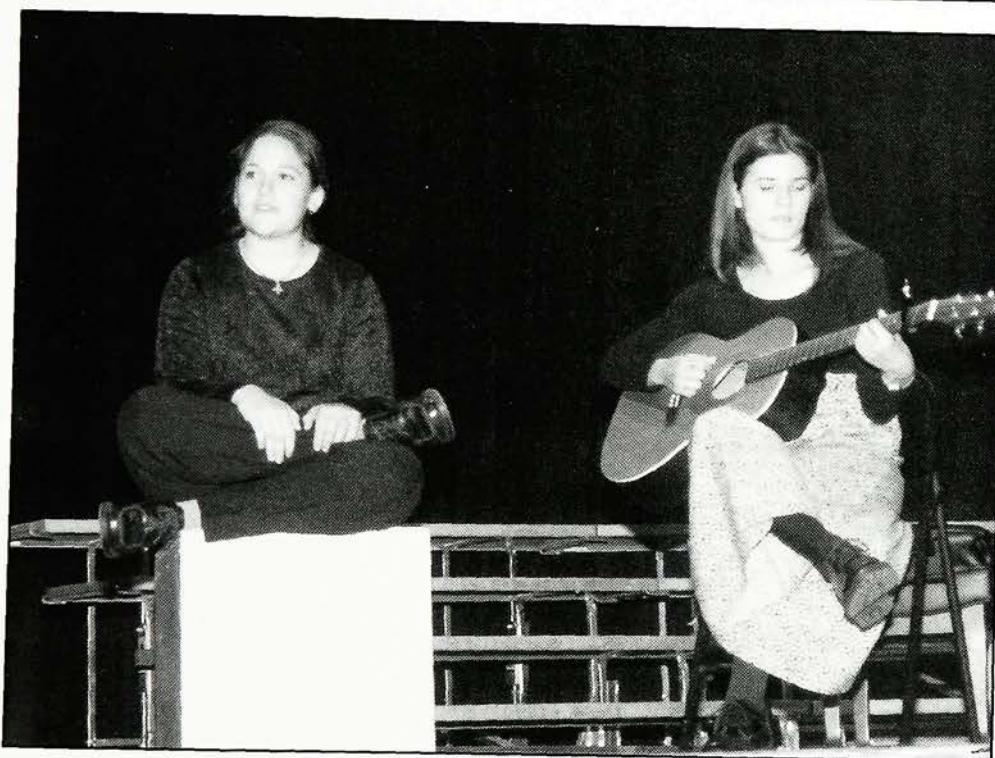

"How could you? You know I love him," says Allegra Fiore as she acts for her audience.

Center Stage

Mixed Chorus sings a song for their parents in the Holiday Concert.

"Closer I am to find . . ." sings Denise DeMello as Lauren Flynn plays the guitar.

Those high notes in the morning are unforgettable. Chorus is one of my memorable classes. I find I can always express myself through my music. Everyone is always accepted, no matter what type of voice they have. Chorus is a place where you can turn from all your problems and be free. Every day I look forward to chorus — it's the highlight of my day. Through tears and smiles, you can always find a friend in chorus. Someone will always be there for you.

— Natalie Warren '99

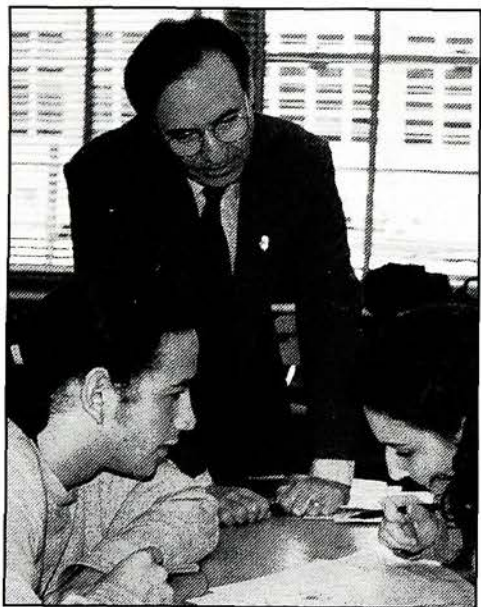

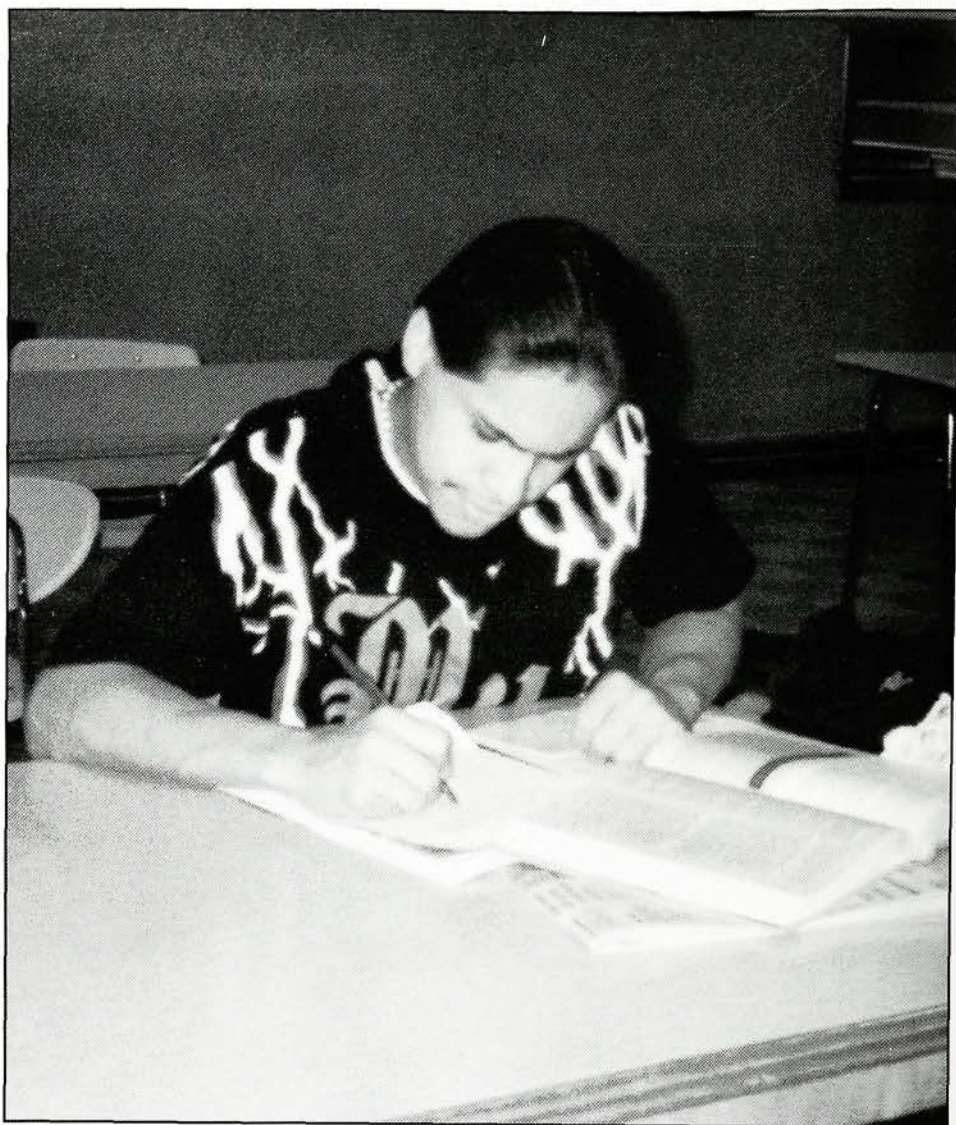

"When is it my turn to sing?"

"Come on, everyone. Sing along!"

Frank Perez makes the most of his free time.

●GOOD

Commissioner Klagholtz meets with Project 79 goodwill ambassadors Josh Silverstein and Anne Brummel.

Boys in the wood.

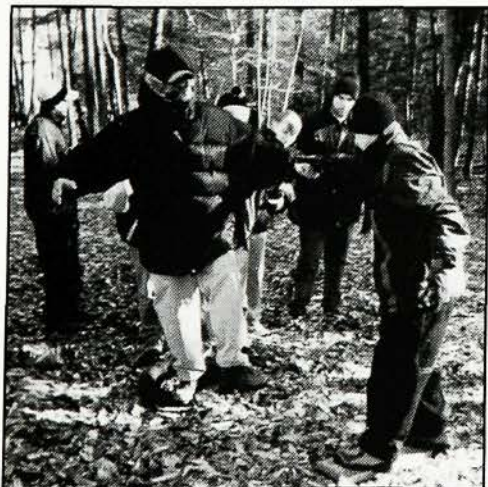

Project '79

Project 79 students bask in the warmth of the spring sun and their friendship.

Friends forever.

● OUR
to SHINE

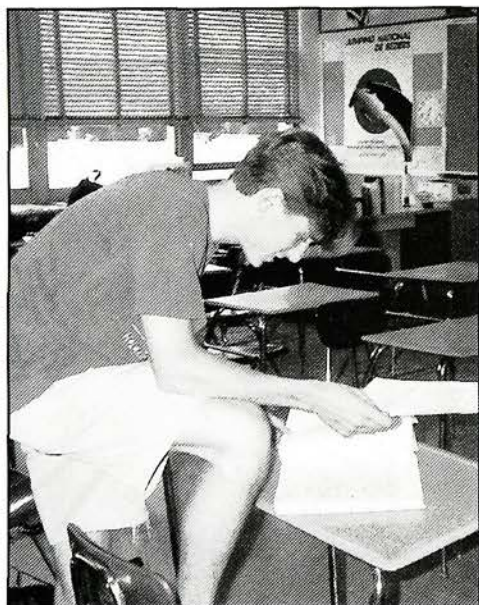

"Will you catch me if I fall?"

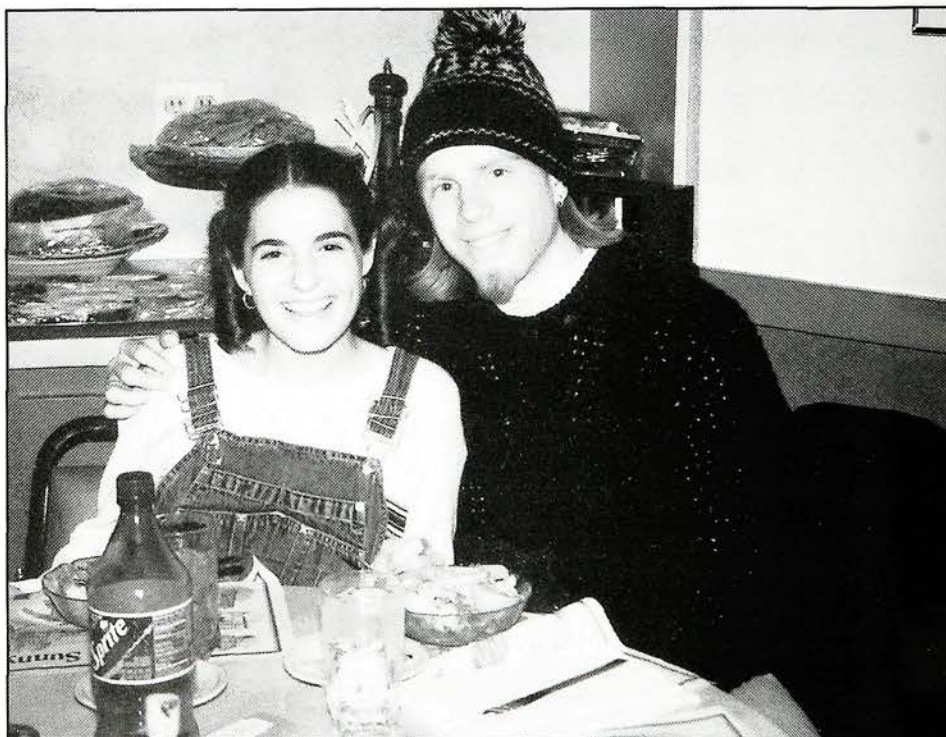

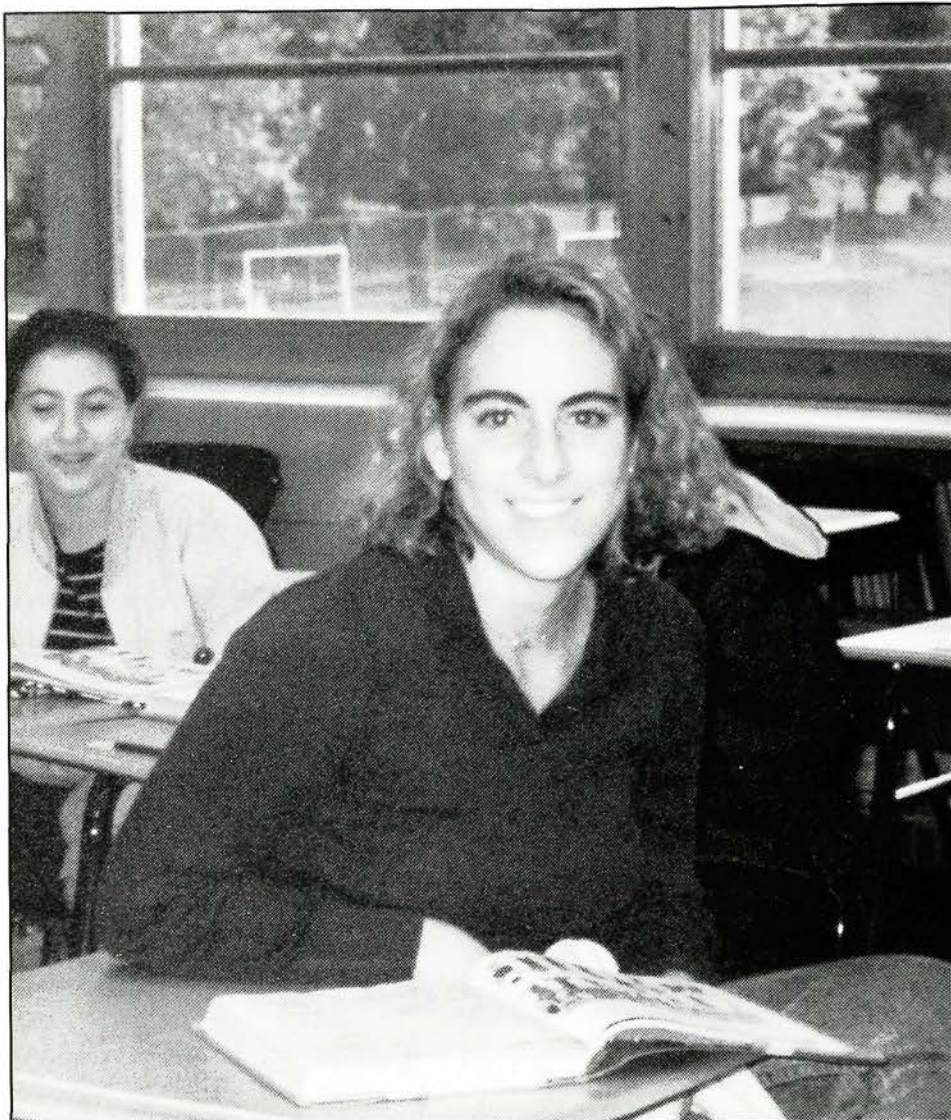

Giving back: this Project '79 student reaches out to the elderly in Westfield.

Kelly relaxes as she studies for her test.

Learning a foreign language is an invaluable skill. Westfield High School offers five languages: Italian, French, German, Spanish, and Latin. Besides being fun, it enhances your future prospects such as traveling or after high school, getting a good job. Many students learn two or even three languages at a time here. In the spring local colleges have competitions in which students recite written works in the particular language; the hardest competition is improvisation. Each year, Westfield High School participants come home with awards. Although it might be tricky to conjugate all those different verbs, it's worth it.

"Where did I put my homework? I know it's somewhere around here."

"Ciao bella! We speak Italiano."

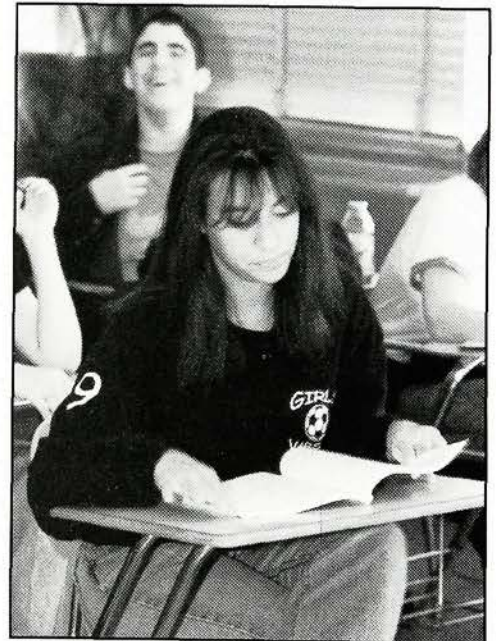

We Are the World

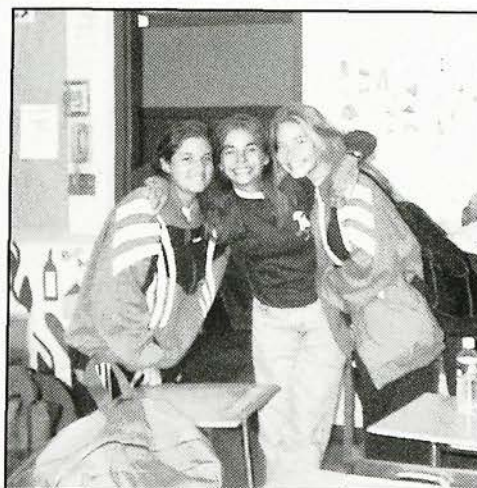

Student and teacher both looking for a bargain.

"So, what do you need. You tell me the cookie and I'll tell you the price."

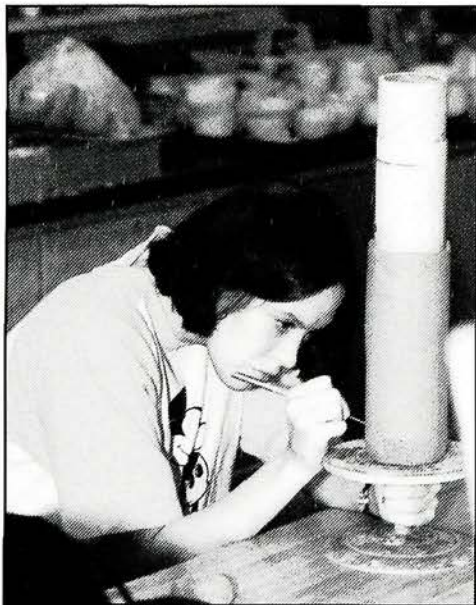

This student studies using the popular method of osmosis.

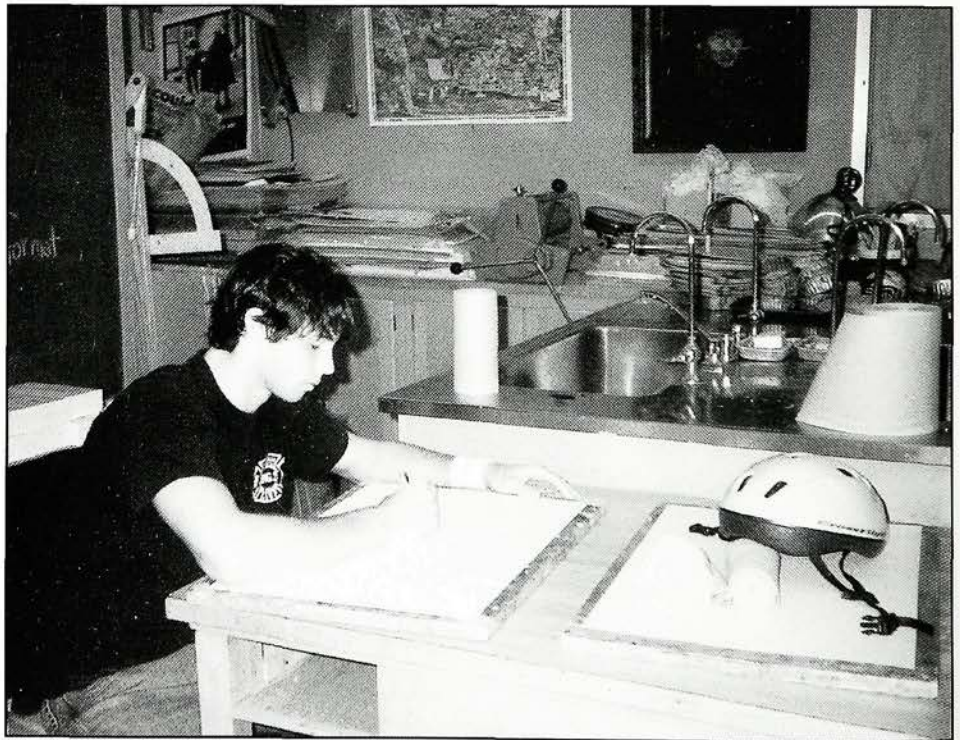

Bonjour. These ladies unite to take on the French language together.

"The drawing, the drawing. Take a picture of the drawing."

Some of the best talent in WHS comes from the fine art classes. In this area of study, students learn about art history, sculpting, painting, shading, etc. Through the wonderful staff, students are able to create beautiful, yet personal pieces of art. Then in May, our WHS artists show off their pieces in the annual district Art Show.

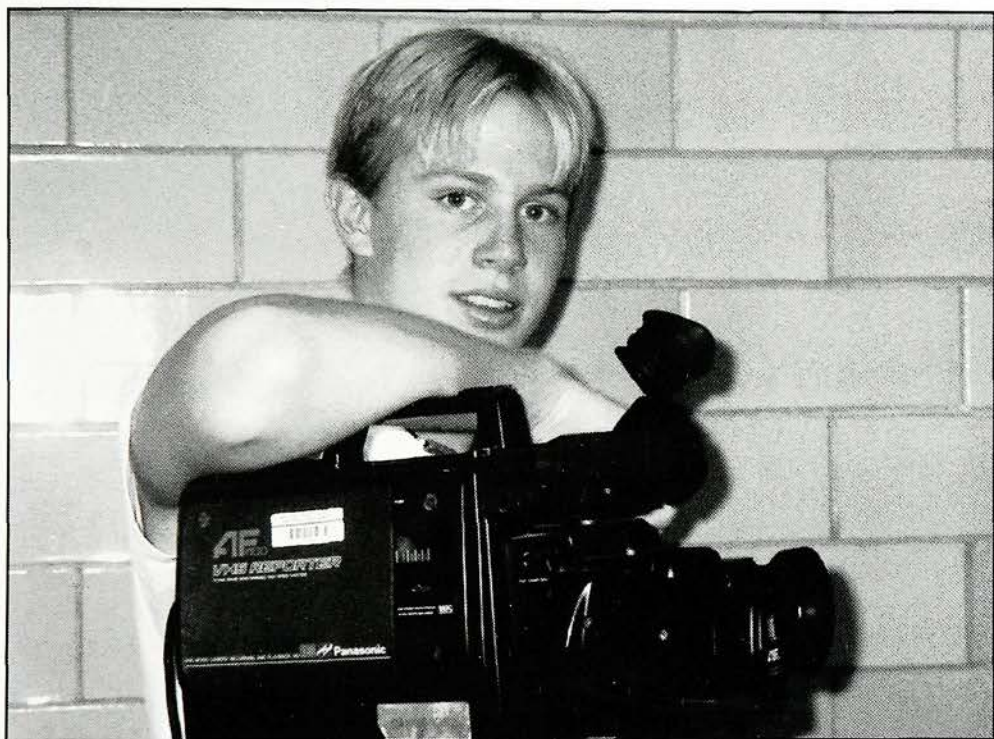

"Why does sculpting take so much time and effort?"

"I am so tired."

Paint Me a Program

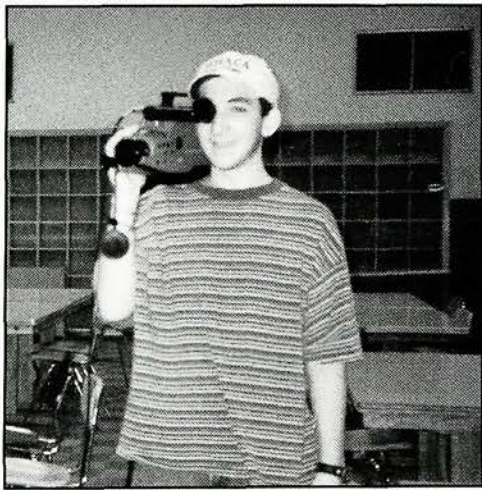

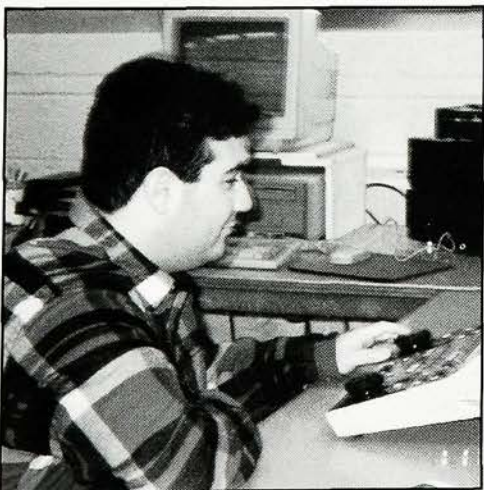

Lights! Camera! Action!

This production student stops to pose with his video camera.

If you wanted to run a TV show or direct a play, where would you go? Of course, the best place to begin is the TV production class. This class teaches you how to operate cameras, audio equipment, lighting, and special effects. By the end of TV, you will know how to make a show. By the end of TV2, you'll know how to improve the show.

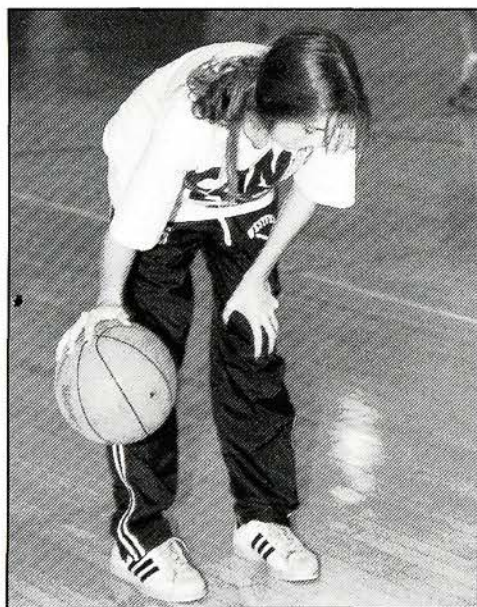

"Mm, I wonder what this knob does?"

This guy is on his way to prime time!

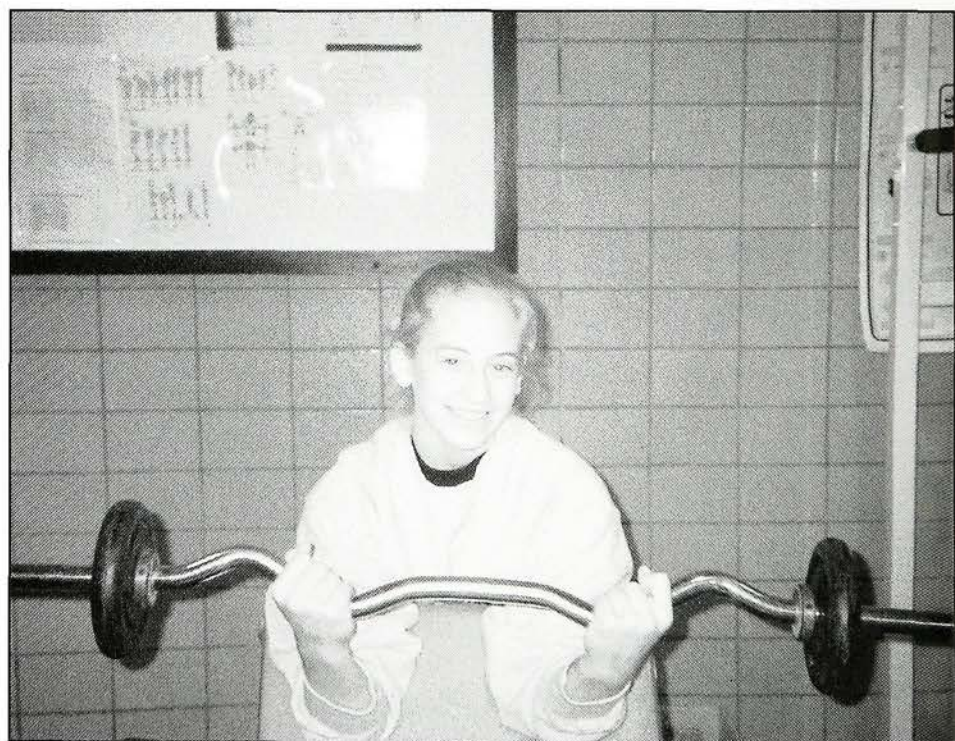

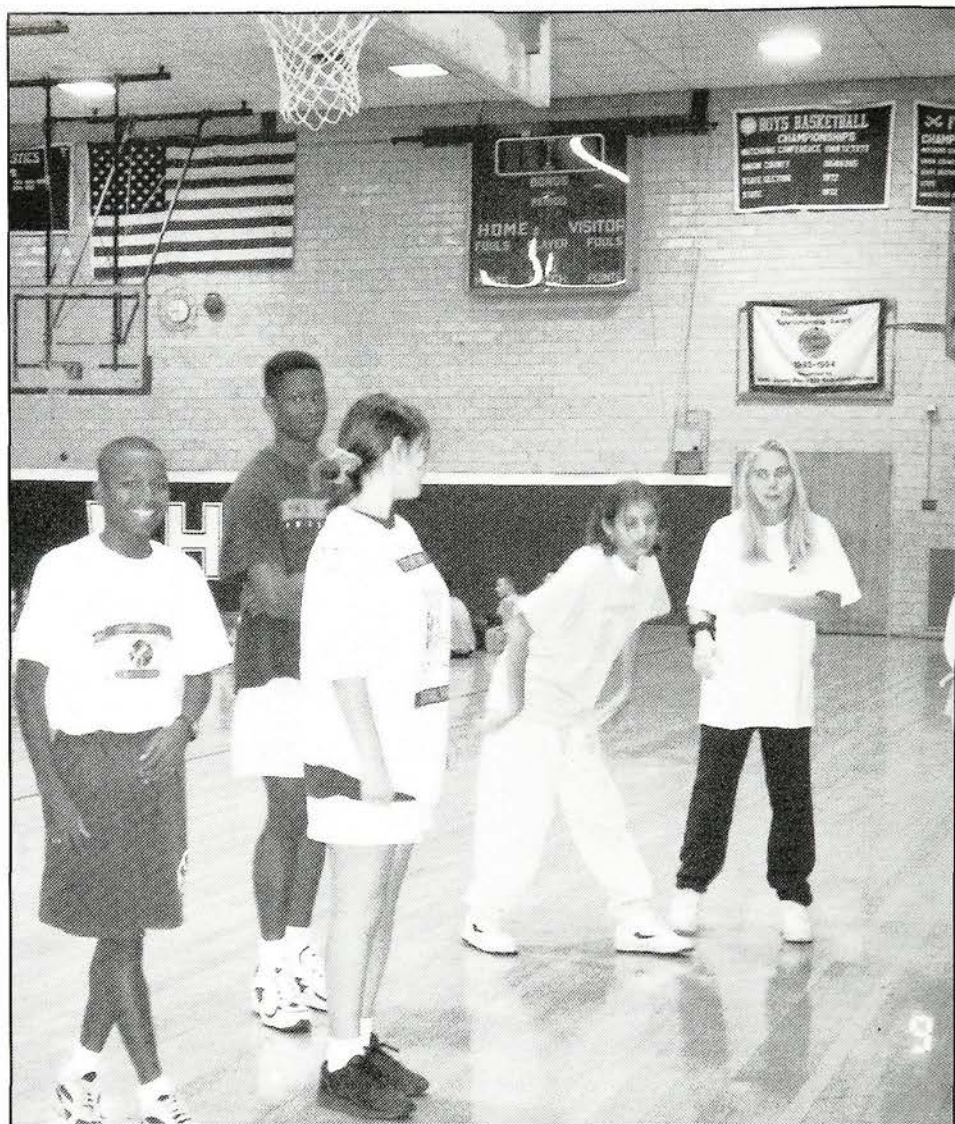

Karina Reyes demonstrates the new hip hop aerobics.

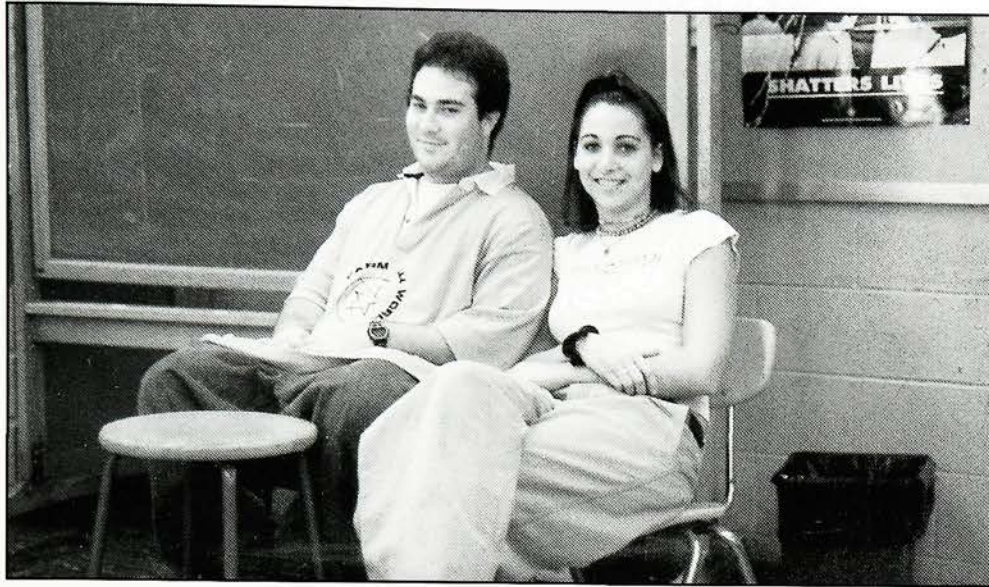

Ahh, gym class. This class is important for two reasons. One, there's no homework (Well, that depends on who you have). Two, it's the only class which can successfully get your mind off all your worries. No matter what you play, the sport always seems to make you forget your problems, and allows you to relax and fool around. Besides changing, it's an enjoyable class.

"I never noticed how shiny the gym floor is."

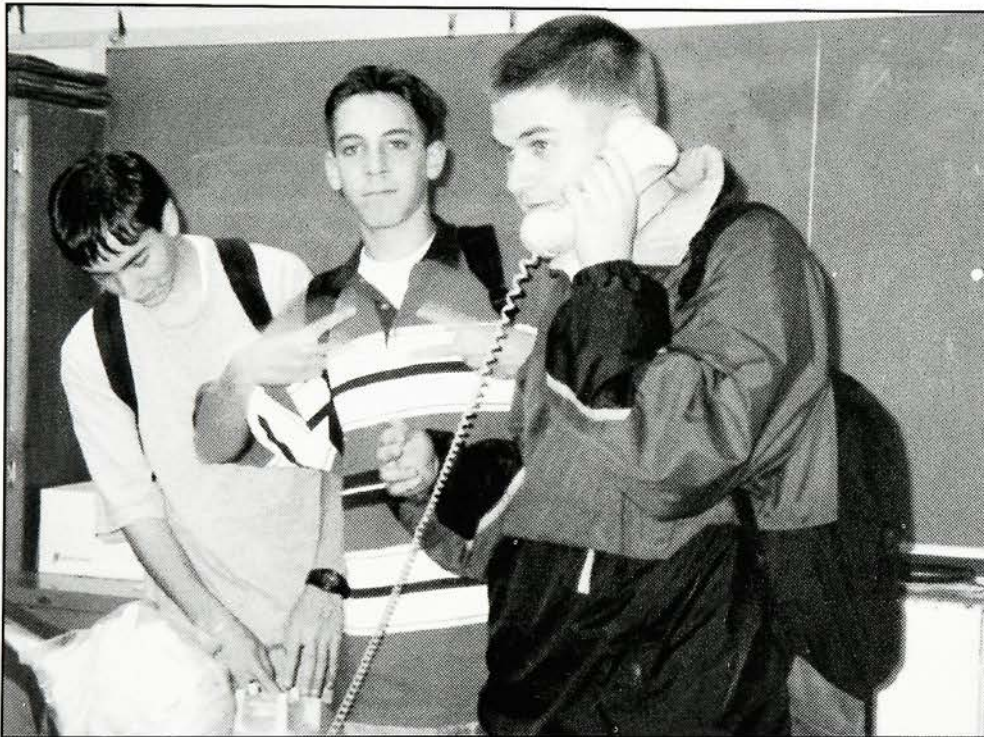

"Urr, it's not as easy as it looks."

Exercising Body and Mind

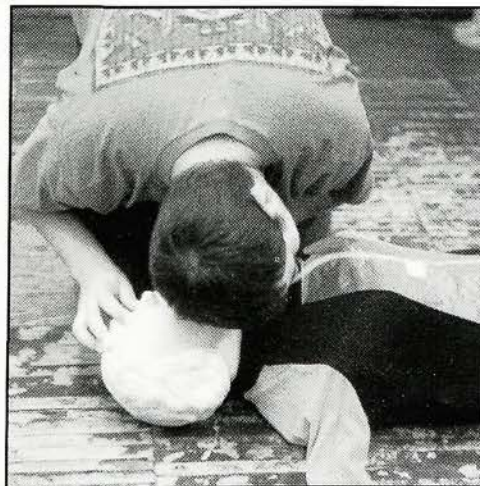

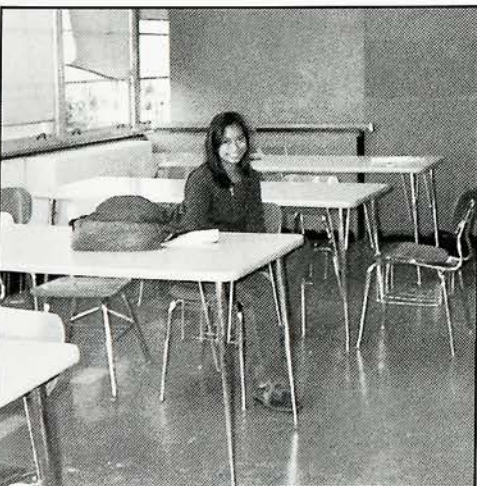

Samantha and Dan relax and look on as the rest of their classmates participate in CPR.

"Hello 9-1-1. We have an emergency. Our dummy is not functioning correctly."

Then, there's Health, the only class you have to take one marking period of each year in order to graduate. Usually, it's fun and interesting. Every year there is a new objective and a new topic. For example: drugs, sex, CPR, etc. It's a class where you can go to educate yourself and still have almost no homework.

Rina Errazo patiently waits for health class to begin.

"Are you OK? Please answer me. I can't hear you!"

KALIDOSCOPE of Sports

"Go Westfield!" we scream to push our team to victory. Down by one, ten seconds left in the game . . . Westfield scores! We win the game, and everyone goes crazy. This is the enthusiasm and team spirit of Westfield.

Almost everyday our varsity, junior varsity, and freshmen work hard to prepare for competition. Students learn leadership, teamwork, and dedication by participating in one of the twenty sports offered here at Westfield.

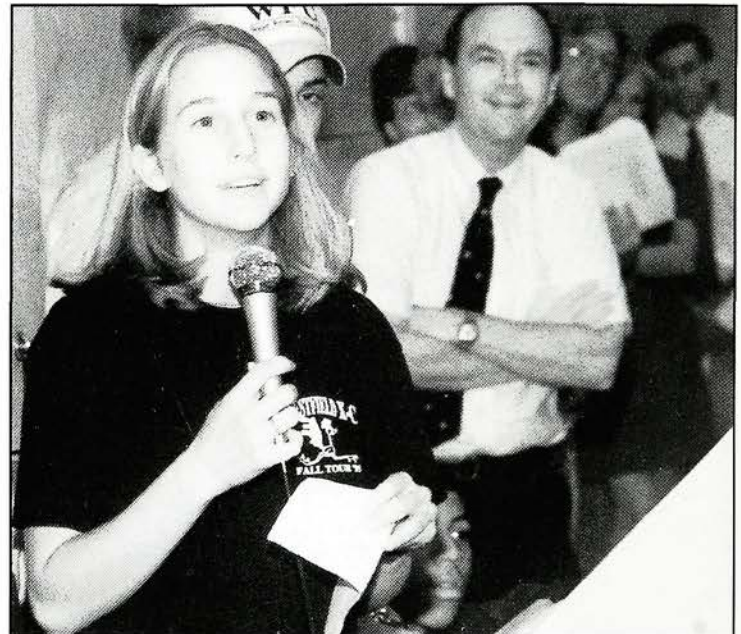

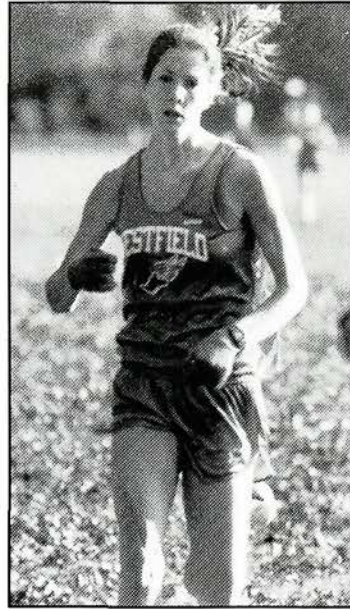

Running the Distance

"Man, I didn't realize cross-country took so much effort!"

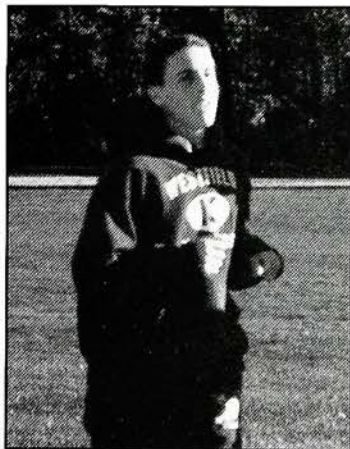

"A nice, hot bath would feel good right now."

"I wonder where everyone else went."

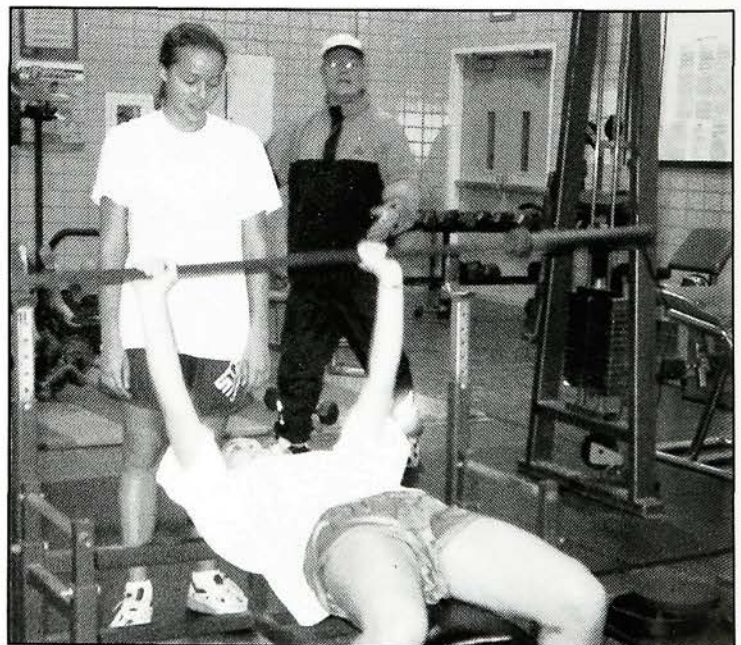

At the pep rally, Senior co-captain Sue Kozub wishes the best of luck to her team this season.

"Boy, do I hate the sun in my face."

"Mmm, two more to go."

"I believe that this year, more than any other, accurately represented the spirit of the WHS cross-country. When it truly mattered, we came together as an unstoppable unit and performed at the Meet of Champions. Coach Jack Martin did a terrific job in preparing us for the season and it is because of him that everything came together as well as it did."

Senior Molly Phelan and Freshman Abby Coxson help in timing for their teammates.

Senior Lauren McGovern takes a breath before continuing her warm-up swim.

Senior Michelle Kashlak and Freshman Jessie Coxson become excited as they record the great swim times accomplished by their teammates.

"Come on, I know you girls can do it," whispers Heidi Schoenemann.

I am really proud of the girls' team this season. Everyone worked hard to achieve their individual goals we set for the team. Winning Counties for the fifth consecutive year illustrates our depth and consistency and advancing in the State tournament was our greatest accomplishment.

KALEIDOSCOPE of Extracurricular Activities

Name that club — Westfield High School has it. Our school has a variety of extracurricular activities from billiards and art to a more serious side, the student council. Many clubs sponsor interesting events as the student council's annual Winter Gala, the Asian Club's Asian Night, and Folio's coffee house to mention a few. Joining clubs at WHS not only is an incredible experience, it is also a way to meet interesting people.

Celebrate African American Awareness!

Nikki and Alexis salute to the general.

Celebrate good times, come on!

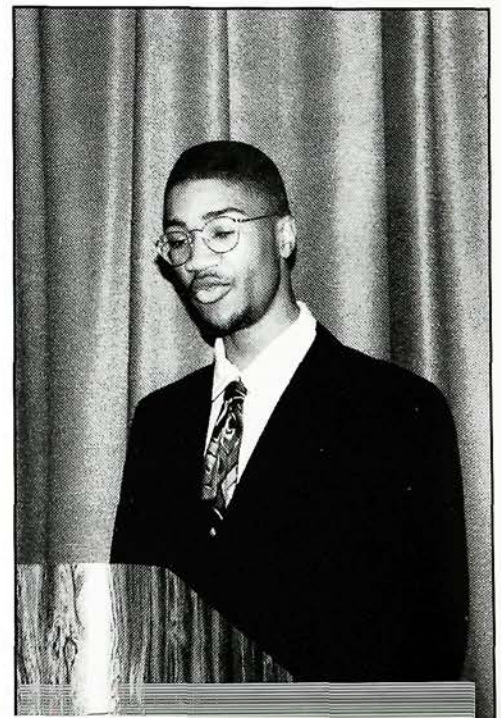

I think that the Awareness Club brings a lot of Black kids together. It inspires unity as well as pride in being African American. Awareness Night is the most important event that we partake in. The club also goes on college tours, basketball games, and other activities as well.

Coming to meetings almost every Thursday, members of the Asian Awareness Club have been preparing all year to present Asian Night. It's one evening full of various Asian foods and entertainment. Some students volunteered to share their talents with the crowd that night and others preferred to show off their yummy cooking (some with their parents help).

Westfield High School offers a variety of classes which prepare you for the future, but what if you want to become active in business or politics. WHS encourages students to involve themselves in such clubs as FBLA and Model UN. FBLA allows students who are interested in business to enjoy in competitions dealing with business and it teaches you about the business world. Those who like politics can join the Model UN, Young Republicans, or Young Democrats. By joining these clubs, one can become familiar with the political leaders of today and even create a model government in which they can actively participate.

Yearbook staffers complete the most tedious, yet essential part of the yearbook-layouts.

"Thank goodness for White Out!" says Margie O'Connell as she corrects a boo-boo on a layout.

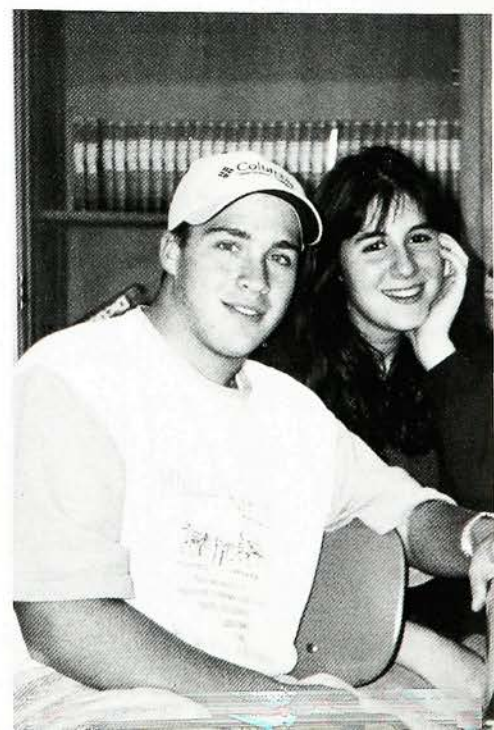

The Weather Vane is an annual publication from the yearbook staff. We spend countless hours of hard work with layouts, writing up these nifty captions, and taking pictures of you, the students, in your funniest situations. All for the memories that will last a lifetime. Our job never ends as we check and re-check proofs to make sure that everyone's name is spelled right, but we are not perfect! We were pleased to see such a great turn out during our meetings. Under the esteemed leadership and experience of Ms. Dugle and Ms. Strauss the editorial staff comprised of five dedicated upperclassmen, three associate editors and two senior editors, makes sure as many students get into the candid pages of the Weather Vane as possible. We hope you are pleased with what you are seeing.

Seniors Rina Errazo and Ann Polak, senior editors, take a well earned break after completing the first deadline on time.

Editor Sarah Rubenstein proofreads copy that will become an article in Hi's Eye.

Diane Schwebel, a senior staffer, looks up from choosing pics for the latest issue.

Hi's Eye, the student-run newspaper, is an opportunity for talented journalists to practice their talent and see the result every Friday. The paper is unique in that it is not financially supported by the school board and has to raise money and sell advertising space in the newspaper. The Journalism 2 and 3 classes run the paper and sometimes write about controversial topics, but the strong subscription proves the paper's popularity. If you don't have a subscription this year, get one next year because, "If it's Friday, and there's school, there'll be a Hi's Eye."

Laura Krevesky gets off the phone with information for a story while her fellow staffers work on a layout in the newsroom.

Mike Wyatt and the rest of his band perform at Folio's most loved Coffee House.

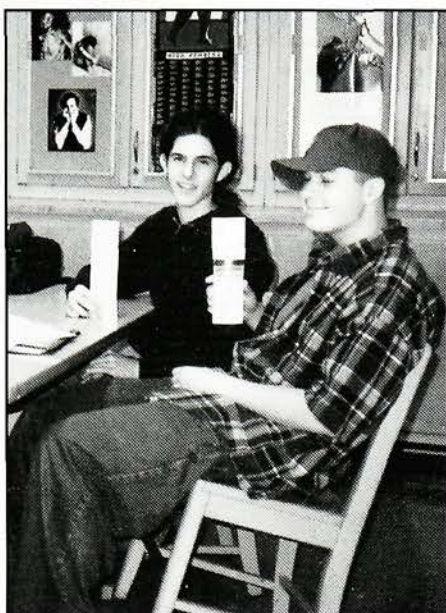

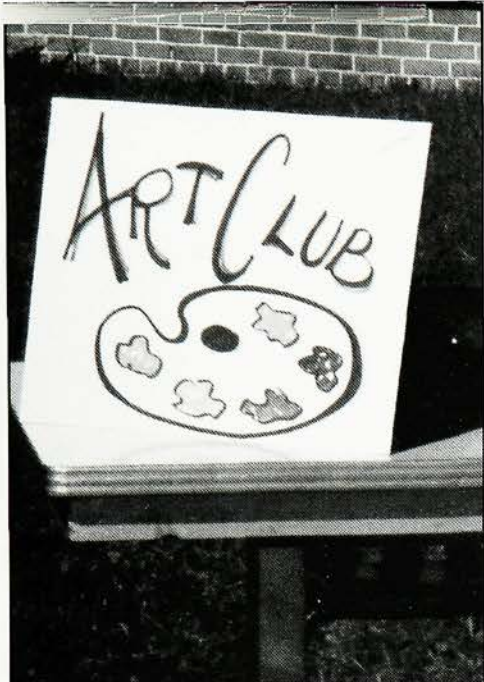

For many years, Folio has provided the students of WHS with an outlet to express their feelings in writing and art. The end of the year is always anticipated with hopes of having work published and reading the poetry and stories of fellow classmates. Under advisor Mr. Marc Silbergeld, this year's staff pulled together to produce an original, creative magazine for the reading pleasure of the entire school community.

Justin reads his poetry to the audience.

Ben displays his drumming skills with two sticks and a stool.

The Art Club tries to attract new members with its sign on Club Day.

Officers Van Hanos and Craig Hein meet to discuss the next fund raiser.

The Art Club is run by Fine Arts teacher Mr. Silveira. Its members raise funds for field trips to museums and scholarships. The money is earned from decorated Halloween pumpkins, Holiday ornaments, and, of course, candy on Valentine's Day.

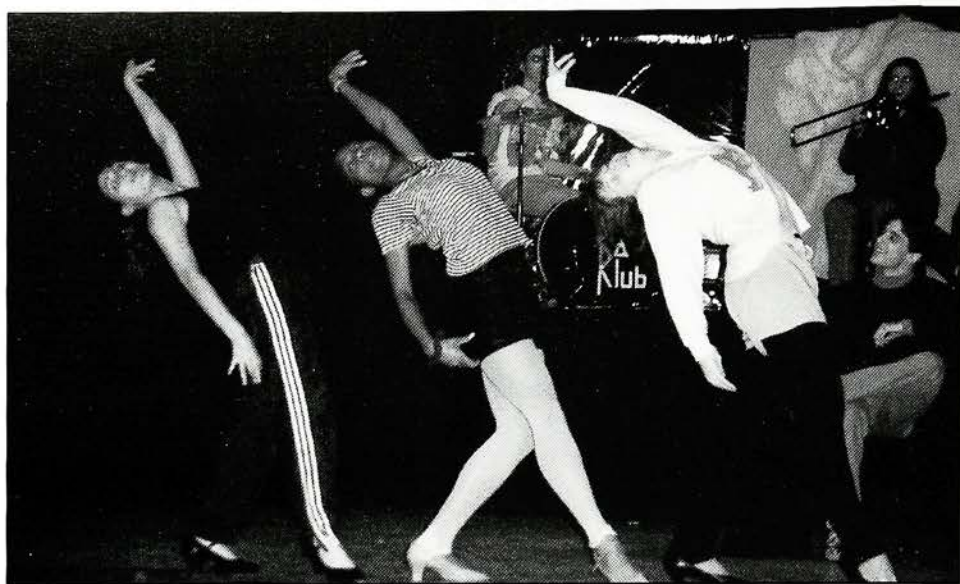

Francine Chow extends her art skills from the class to the club.

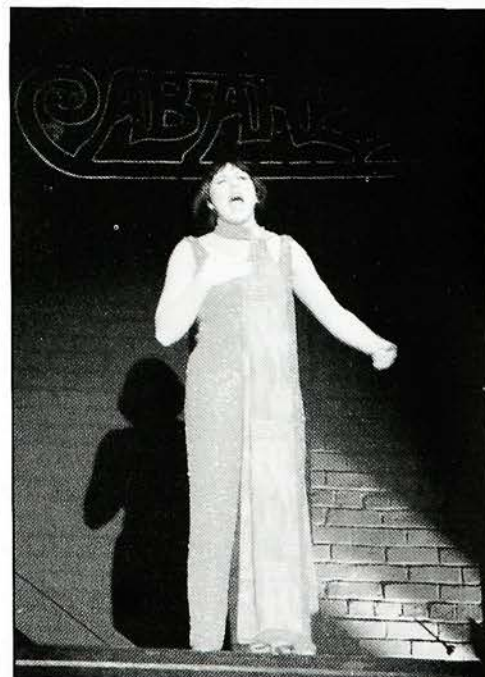

Annie Patt carved Dr. Petrix's face into a pumpkin for the annual Halloween pumpkin sale.

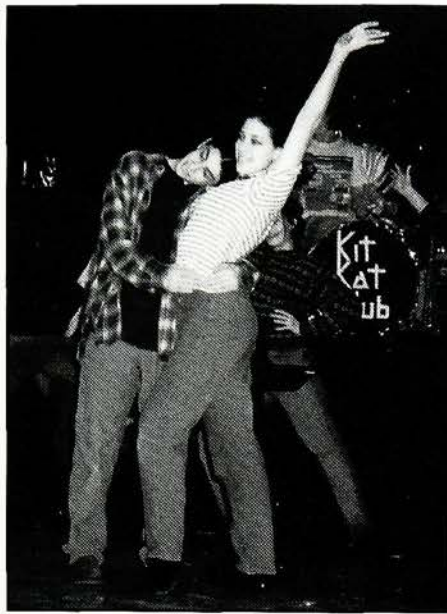

Jesse Blumberg plays the dynamic role of 'Cliff', an American writer.

The Trojan women find it difficult to let go.

Cecily's persuasion falls on deaf ears.

The drama department stunned WHS with Trojan Women. The classic struggle of warring gods was brought to life by talented leads including Charlie Irwin, Cecily Schaefer, Katie Hogan, and Melissa Miller. The somber performance was punctuated by unusual sound effects and music by Rusted Root. The end result was a phenomenal play and a good time for everyone.

These Trojan women stand their ground in defiance.

Cecily Schaefer captures the intensity of her character's emotion.

Senior Amy Williams sets up a punt for her teammate.

The Student Council is one of the many active organizations at Westfield High School. Many students join the committee to represent their peers. This organization sponsors many exciting events such as Spirit Week, the Winter Gala, Hip-Hoptober, Powder Puff, and Homecoming.

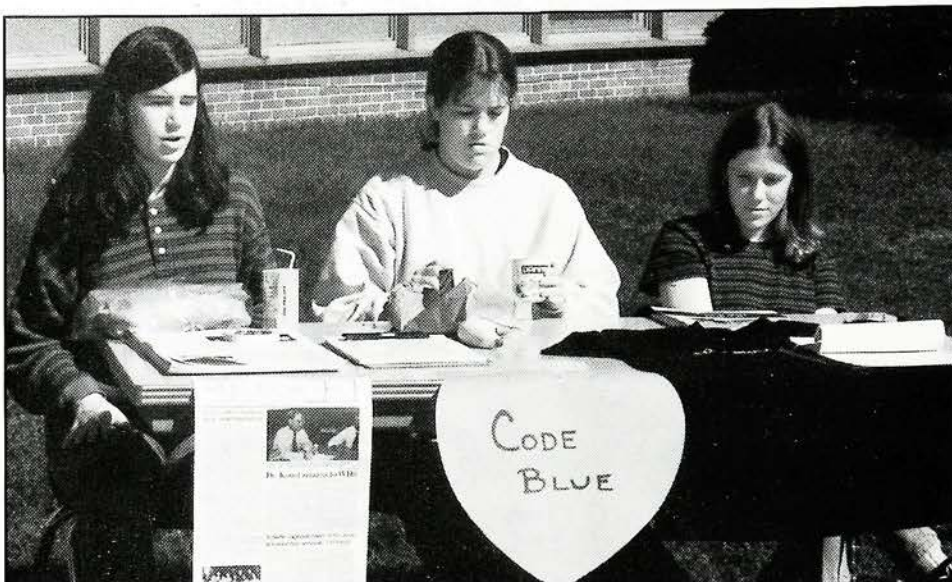

It's Batman and his Robins.

Student Council representatives show enthusiasm at the Winter Gala.

Italian Club members enjoy an authentic Italian dinner at Ferraro's for the Holiday Dinner.

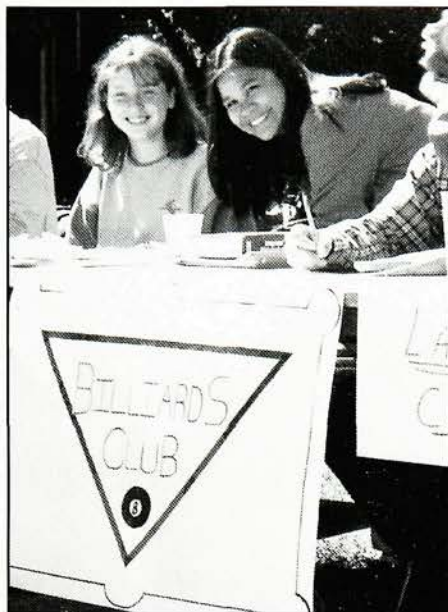

Westfield High School offers many clubs from the Student Council to Saturday Science. Students can participate in competitions, lectures, and even club trips. Most students are involved in one or more clubs depending on how much free time they have. The Diversity 2000, African-American, Hispanic, and Asian Awareness Clubs focus upon racial relations and how to improve them in school. The Community Service, Key Club, and national Honor Society organizations help out the school and the local community volunteering their time and energy to improve the lives of others. Model UN, Junior States, and FBLA participate in competitions all over the east coast. Clubs from each of the foreign languages are also popular.

Hands Across the Ages members scout new members on Club Day.

International Club members pose with Eric Niece from Real World MTV on a club trip.

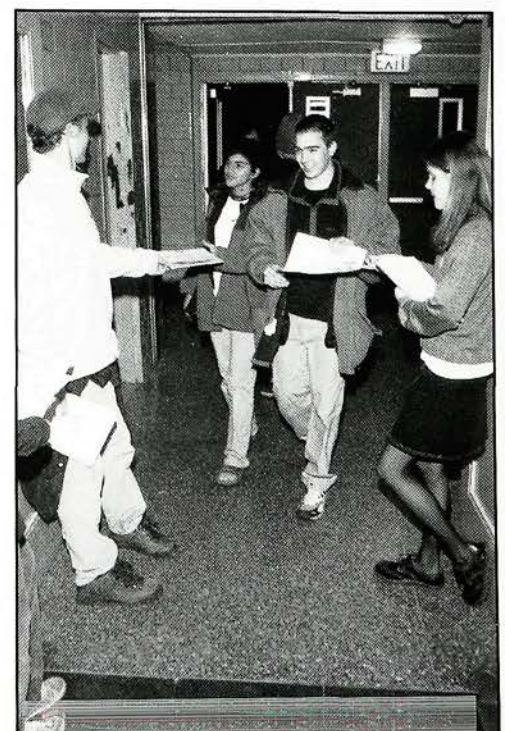

James Noblett has finally decided what university to attend.

Junior Jay Osborne asks for athletic information from Weslian University.

Senior Jen Kamps visits with a college representative about her academic future.

Ben Gleason and Karen Spector are greeted by their fellow classmates at the entrance to College Night.

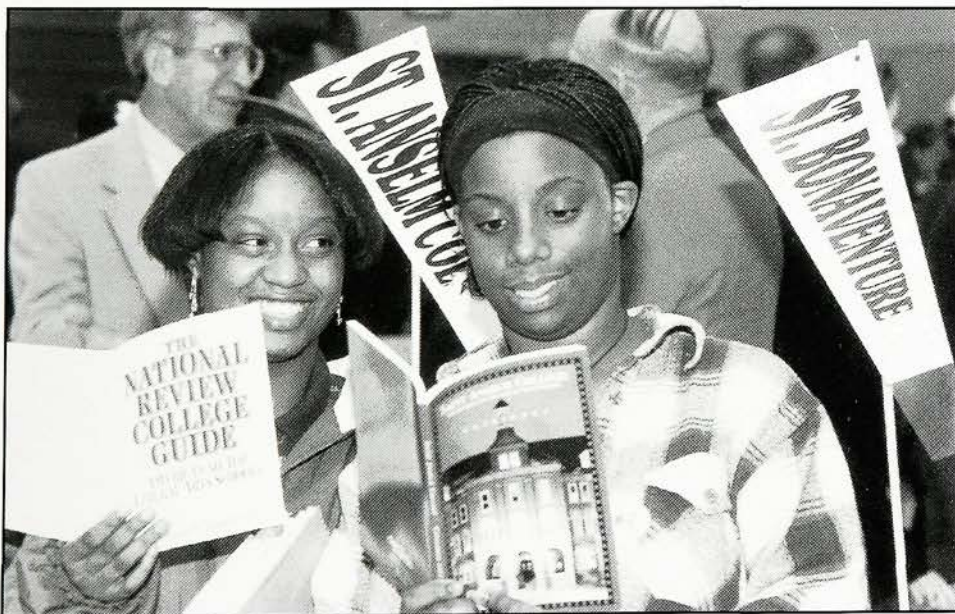

Junior Christine Giameo receives literature from an informative school representative.

Linnea Swenson fills out a card from the University of Richmond. A possible item on her college list.

College Night took place on November 21st. This annual event, sponsored by the Westfield High School Guidance Department, is a valuable opportunity for students and parents to talk to representatives from colleges and universities from all over the country and the Armed Forces. Not only do students from WHS attend but so do students from the surrounding area. You can receive literature about schools you are interested in and ask questions to representatives, some of whom turn out to be alumni of Westfield High School . . . If you get hungry, there are refreshment tables set up out in the hall run by WHS clubs and sports teams. If you are interested in a college education, don't miss next year's College Night.

The Varsity Gym is filled with parents and students from high schools all over the county.

KALIDOSCOPE of Faculty

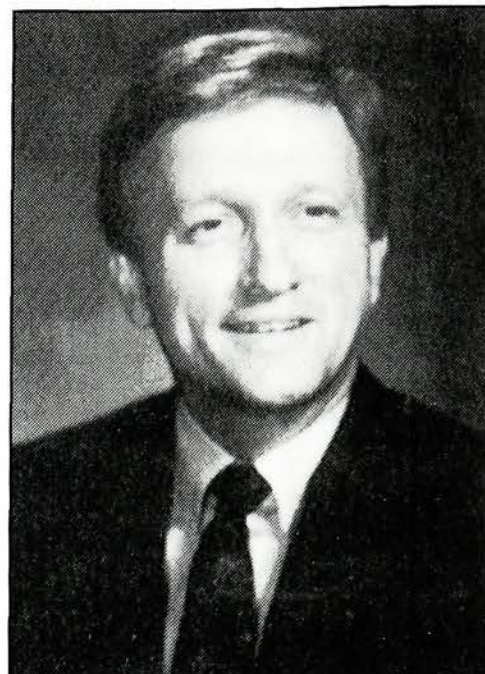

Faculty members enhance the quality of education at Westfield High School. Every teacher's goal in our community is to educate each and every student, and teachers accomplish this task through their dedication. They dedicate their time to students before, during, and after school to ensure that they learn the concepts taught in class. In short, faculty members make certain that pupils at WHS have a pleasant and rewarding experience throughout their high school career.

Thanks for the memories . . .

Late night delirium, lost orange pencils, three-month old Tostitos, "You can't say that in the yearbook" captions, TCBY runs, the party that never was, wall of shame photos, animal crackers, and all of your skill, hard work, and dedication which produced this beautiful book. Acknowledgements

This year's edition of the Weather Vane was purposely created to break away from the traditional style of the past few years. We have put a lot of effort into making this an original and unique book. We would like to thank Maggie Diggory and Rishi Talreja whose contributions to this book are immeasurable. Rishi, thank you for your constant course of wisdom. Maggie, without you this book would have no writing (We really mean that.)

We would like to give a special thanks to Kate and Susan. Your commitment to this yearbook and to us, has been greatly appreciated and will not be forgotten. We will never forget our Christmas party. Lou's buffalo wings were great, and let's not forget about Ann's cake. We know Dennis, Audrey, and, especially, John have kept you on your toes, and we want you to know how valuable your presence has been to all of us.

Our final thanks goes to all our contributors who witnessed us at our most insane moments. TCBY and our Wall of Fame, what would we do without you? Cafeteria A will always have a special place in our hearts (and Kate's stomach). The track team and the Cabaret singers were always a constant source of entertainment.

This book represents a kaleidoscope of this past year through the eyes of the Social Director, the Nerd, the Page Master Wizard, the Jerk, and the Boss. We hope you acknowledge the hours we have put into making this the best Weather Vane ever.

With Love,
Ann, Luis, and Rina

Reconciling the Number Twelve

Please include all pertinent information

Last name first, first name last

Locker serial number
(whatever that may be)

Year in School

The facts and figures which flowed from brain to hand,
Got clogged along the line
Blocked by the size and seriousness
Of the number twelve.

Trite twelve means senior.
How can it
Describe all that I am now?
A number assigned to my person
Cannot summarize
The composite of experiences I call life.

School bells echo in my ear
Twelve noon signals lunch time.
That notable transition.
This year is like noontime
Because it is twelve noon for only one
Minute out of twenty-four hours
Of every day
Before that
There are small
Morning miracles

But p.m.
No more milestone markers of time
Come in the form of numbers.
The rest of the day
Like my life
Is simply afternoon

Colophon

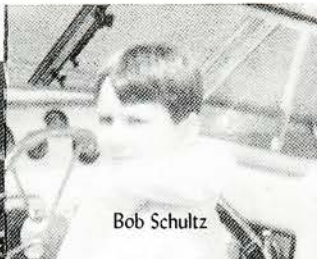

Volume 76 of the Weather Vane was published by the Westfield High School yearbook staff at Westfield High School, 550 Dorian Road, Westfield, NJ 07090. The yearbook was published under the director of Advisors Susan Dugle and Kate Strauss and Editors Ann Polak, Rina Errazo, and Luis Da Costa. It was printed by Herff Jones, 525 Boyd School Road, Gettysburg, PA 17325, under the direction of Linda Mauss. Customer service representative for central NJ was Dudley Davis.

This book features 288 pages. The first page printed on 110 pound Allegiance. The remainder of the book is printed on 80 pound Bordeaux. Scott Cool of Herff Jones assisted the editors, and advisors with the cover design. The base cover is 100% black embossed with multicolor kaleidoscope and gold lettering in Lydian Font. The cover is encased in 160 point Binder's Board. It is printed on a white litho material, laminated, Smythsewn, rounded and backed. Fibertext in white serves as the stock for the end sheet. The front end sheet also includes the table of contents.

Eight hundred books were printed and sold to the students for the price of $50.00 to all students. The staff would also like to take time to thank the students and faculty who contributed copy and photos used in this publication.
