FORTY CENTS

NEW DEVELOPMENTS WILL NOT HAVE DOOR-TO-DOOR

Proposal for Curbside Delivery of Mail Now Is History for Existing Homes in Town

Postal Regulations Seem to Preclude Curb Boxes Near Routes Where Frontdoor Service Exists; 'Gang' Depositories Protested

By ROBERT R. FASZCZEWSKI
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

The short-lived attempt by the Westfield Postmaster to convert the town and Mountainside from door-to-door to curbside mail delivery has come to an end for existing homes, it was revealed at Tuesday's conference session of the Town Council.

Fourth Ward Councilman Michael E. Panagos, who was acting Mayor in the absence of Garland C. "Bud" Boothe, Jr., made the announcement at the beginning of the session and it was confirmed by Robert Hoffman, the Supervisor of Administration at the Westfield Post Office, who appeared at the meeting to field questions.

Mr. Hoffman said he would pass on concerns of town officials about the proposal to Frank Zeevalk, the Officer-in-Charge of the Westfield Post Office, who is on vacation.

One of those concerns, relayed by Town Attorney Charles H. Brandt, was from elderly residents of the Duncan Hill Apartments on Central Avenue who do not want to go to "gang boxes" installed there to pick up their mail.

After Third Ward Councilman Kenneth L. MacRitchie said the proposal, to install curbside mailboxes on all residences when they become vacant or change hands and on all newly-constructed residences, was "dropped like a bombshell" on Westfield and should not have been done without citizen and local official input, Mr. Hoffman said far-reaching decisions in the future would be made only after such input.

First Ward Councilman Norman N. Greco, who led much of the fight against the proposal, which the Postal Service said was aimed at decreasing routes and saving money, Tuesday read a letter he received from the Postmaster which stated a portion of Postal Service policy provides even new developments which are within one city block of an area with door-to-door delivery would retain that delivery unless residents of those developments requested otherwise.

"This appears to preclude curbside delivery since every new development in Westfield probably is within one block of one with door-to-door delivery," Councilman Greco said.

"It looks like we have a solution to the problem," Second Ward Councilman James J. Gruba said. "I hope there is no slipage."

The Postal Service, despite the above policy statement, will continue to install curbside service for new homes, Mr. Hoffman said Tuesday.

One resident, Jack Dunn, who attempted to speak at Tuesday's conference session but was precluded from doing so because resident comments are not allowed at the work sessions, did say "if it ain't broke, don't fix it" before departing the council room.

Councilman Panagos instructed Mr. Brandt to keep track of the situation and report back to the council on how the Postal Service has responded to citizen concerns about the "gang boxes" and other phases of the policy.

On another matter, taxes, Town Administrator John F. Malloy, Jr. had good news and bad news for Westfield taxpayers.

Mr. Malloy said the town has received approval of its 1992 budget from the state and the $22,419,915 plan for spending for municipal services is expected to be adopted this coming Tuesday.

State approval of the budget means the town has been able to send out tax bills for the third quarter.

The good news about those bills is they are based on the lower 1991 municipal tax rate and they are due on Friday, August 14.

Individual taxpayers, however, will have until Friday, August 28, to pay their tax bills without being charged interest on the delinquency, Mr. Malloy noted, because of the delay in mailing out the bills.

All of the increase in taxes attributable to the 1992 budget will, however, be built into tax bills for the fourth quarter which will be due on Sunday, November 1, the Administrator added.

He also noted the town would lose approximately $2 million in revenue because the third quarter collections are based on last year's tax rate and the difference would have to be made up at the end of this year.

When the budget was introduced in April it was estimated property owners with "average" homes in Westfield assessed at $180,000 would pay $450 more in taxes this year.

State Approves Town Budget; Tax Bills Sent

The council, at its regular public meeting this coming Tuesday, also is expected to introduce an amendment to the town recycling ordinance which will add corrugated paper, steel cans and two types of plastic bottles to the materials which must be recycled by residents.

The measure is being considered to bring the town into compliance with amendments to the county solid waste plan aimed at meeting the state-mandated 60 per cent recycling goal.

On another matter, Town Engineer Edward A. Gottko said although the state has approved a stop sign for the intersection of Kimball Avenue and Wychwood Road his office still is working on a revision of plans to realign the intersection before the sign is installed.

The realignment proposal will be painted onto the intersection so the Councilmen can view it before voting to approve it, he said.

He also reported town police have stepped up enforcement against vandalism to the Mindowaskin Park bandstand which has had to be repainted several times because of graffiti and, he said, railings have been broken in places.

'SUNBRELLA DAYS' TO BE NEXT WEEK

The annual Westfield summer sidewalk sale days are scheduled for Thursday and Friday, August 13 and 14. Sponsored by the Intown group of the Westfield area Chamber of Commerce, the two-day event will repeat the "Sunbrella Days" theme, with many participants having umbrella tables in front of their shops.

Traditionally, sidewalk sale days attract crowds of bargain hunters to Westfield.

Street-front businesses planning to participate may telephone the chamber office at 233-3021 for regulations and information.

Florist Shop on South Avenue West Gets Okay for Greenhouse Improvement

Board Member Objects to Condition of Property; Parking Discussed

By MICHAEL J. PETRIANO, 3rd
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

On Monday evening Westfield's Planning Board met to consider a site plan for Pierre J. Vigilanti, of Vance Florist at 321 to 339 South Avenue West, who has proposed to make improvements to a greenhouse situated on his property and to improve his parking area.

Before the Board heard this testimony, Attorney James B. Flynn appeared to represent Joseph Sculzadonna on the Mount Laurel issue.

Mr. Sculzadonna is currently constructing a subdivision off Prospect Street extending to Route No. 22.

After consulting with the Department of Environmental Protection, it was ascertained three of the 22 lots planned for construction will be "virtually impossible" to construct, Mr. Flynn noted.

The number of lots, though now having been reduced to 19, will be "basically the same subdivision," according to Mr. Flynn.

Edward A. Gottko, the Town Engineer, said Charles H. Brandt, the Town Attorney, will be providing a subdividers' agreement to let the process "move ahead."

DEADLINES HELP LEADER SERVE YOU

Those preparing press releases for submission to The Westfield Leader are reminded all copy should be in the hands of the Editor at 50 Elm Street, Westfield, by 4 p.m., on the Friday before the Thursday on which they wish it to appear.

For events which happen the weekend prior to publication, press releases should reach the Editor by Monday of the week of publication at 10 a.m.

Obituaries will be taken until Tuesday at 5 p.m.

For events which are planned weeks or months in advance, we encourage submission of stories as early as possible prior to the event.

The above deadlines are meant to enable us to prepare your copy carefully.

After Mr. Flynn's report to the Board, Attorney Alan J. Guterman appeared to represent Mr. Vigilanti.

Mr. Guterman first said the application already had been considered by the site plan review committee.

He added for 50 years there have been two greenhouses on the property in question, and the remaining greenhouse is in a dilapidated condition.

Albert Schleifer, the architect for Mr. Vigilanti, said the existing greenhouse must be rebuilt.

In terms of parking, Mr. Schleifer said the existing lot would be repaved, and macadam would be laid in all areas of the parking lot. He added some of the parking lot is gravel, and this area too would be paved with macadam.

It also was mentioned by Mr. Schleifer during testimony there

Dismissal of Charges for Driving While Intoxicated Leads to Three-Month Suspensions of Attorneys

Supreme Court Decides They Acted Improperly in Not Telling Municipal Judge Details of Attempt to 'Dump' Case; Police Officers Under Investigation Cleared of Showing Favoritism to Suspect, a Lawyer

By KURT C. BAUER

Editor's Note: The story which follows was taken from a syllabus prepared by the Office of the Clerk of the New Jersey Supreme Court and from a decision of the Court rendered on July 10 in the case of Robert T. Norton, an attorney practicing in Westfield, and Richard H. Kress, the Clark Municipal Prosecutor, who were suspended by the Court from the practice of law for three months because of their involvement in the dismissal of a driving while intoxicated case against Joseph Donnelly of Westfield, an attorney with a practice in New York City.

Westfield Police Chief Anthony J. Scutti, interviewed by The Westfield Leader about the case yesterday

GRASSMANN TRUST DONATES TO PARK

The E.J. Grassmann Trust of Warren has awarded a $6,000 grant to the Friends of Mindowaskin Park for the renovation of the park, according to Second Ward Councilwoman, Mrs. Margaret C. Sur, the Chairman of the Friends group.

So far the Friends organization has raised approximately $37,000 for the renovation of the park and playground. The $6,000 grant from the Grassmann Trust will be used for the children's playground.

The group also will purchase a $15,000 piece of playground equipment.

Plans are in motion for the installation of a bench and lamp post in the park. At FestiFall on Sunday, September 20, the group hopes to sell a large number of T-shirts.

Those wishing to make contributions to the renovation project may write the Friends at P.O. Box 87, Westfield, 07091 or telephone her at 232-6408.

morning, said the Ethics Committee investigation, on which the Supreme Court decision is based, did not "come up with all the facts" which were revealed to the Westfield Police Department in its internal investigation of the matter.

"Normally I do not comment on internal investigations," the Chief said, "but since I feel this opinion directly reflects on our police officers I should take this opportunity to state our side of the story."

The Chief said, unlike the impression which was left by the Ethics Committee investigation, the two Westfield Patrolmen involved, Andrew C. Gallagher and David A. Luce, did report to Westfield Sergeant Kevin Maloney, who was on desk duty the night of the hearing in Clark on Donnelly's case, they thought the defendant had improperly been allowed to "plea bargain" on a driving while intoxicated charge.

The Sergeant, according to Chief Scutti, also had some concern about the case because the officers indicated to him the driving while intoxicated charge had been "merged" into other motor vehicle violation charges — the reverse of what he believed to be the normal procedure, and expressed his concern to his superior, Lieutenant Frank Brunelle.

The crux of the Donnelly case, the Chief said, rested on whether proper certification was given of the results of the Breathalyzer test given to the defendant.

Although Kress claimed Patrolman Gallagher brought the question of whether the certification was proper to the Prosecutor, the Chief said the internal investigation showed, the Patrolman claimed the Prosecutor raised the question with him.

Norton, according to the Chief, said in the ethics case he had showed Kress, not Patrolman Gallagher, evidence of his concern about the certification.

During the internal investigation Patrolman Gallagher said Kress told him if the certification was overturned on the Donnelly case this could cause other driving while intoxicated cases in Westfield to be overturned, and this led the Patrolman to conclude it would not be wise to proceed with the case.

The Chief also said Kress, as the Prosecutor in the case, was acting as the attorney for the Police Officers and should have been aware of the questioning of the certification was a defense tactic which frequently had failed and would most likely not have resulted in the case driving while intoxicated being dismissed against Donnelly.

Kress, according to the Chief, also should have known the New Jersey Supreme Court previously had ruled against plea bargains in such cases and informed the officers.

Also, commenting on Kress' knowledge of the certification defense, the Chief stated the Westfield internal investigation also showed Norton, in preparing his challenge to the certification, had asked an attorney who was an expert in the field for his opinion, which had been faxed to Norton's office on the machine to which Norton and Kress had access in the town office where Kress previously had practiced and whose facilities continued to be used by his staff at the time of the Donnelly case.

The Chief added the Union County Prosecutor's Office had conducted its own investigation of the case and the conduct of the officers at the same time Westfield conducted its investigation and it had come to the same conclusion — the officers had not been properly advised by Kress.

He also said Patrolman Gallagher at no time indicated Donnelly's membership in the 200 Club had any influence on his decision not to proceed with the case.

Freeholders' Support Sought for Airport Link

The Growth Connection Coalition has petitioned the Union County Board of Freeholders to show its support for a proposed rail link to Newark International Airport because of the competition for funding, a published report said last week.

With two major transportation projects proposed for Hudson County and one for Essex and Union Counties, it is important for politicians to be united behind a project linking the airport, Newark and Elizabeth, Everett Shaw, the Chairman of the coalition, was quoted as saying.

Mr. Shaw said because the project is nearing completion of the planning stage, the coalition plans to "go out, inform and solicit the support of the local political leadership."

"This is the only way we're going to succeed in getting our fair share of funds, so it doesn't all go to Hudson," Mr. Shaw said.

He noted a planning team is expected to complete its study by December, at which time, "if we get an option we can't support, it jeopardizes our starting point."

He referred to $670 million in federal money under the North Jersey Urban Core Project to be spent on any of three projects "according to who gets to the starting line first."

Mr. Shaw is one of 30 people on a technical advisory committee to help guide the study process.

There are four alternative routes, proposed by various sources, being viewed for the rail link to Newark, including one that would essentially eliminate Elizabeth from the plan.

The Growth Connection Coalition recommends the option known as the Automated Guideway Transit/Light Rail Transit; that would run mostly on elevated tracks similar to the monorail line at Disney World.

The route would connect New Jersey Transit's Broad Street Station, Pennsylvania Station, Government Center, the Waverly rail yards, Newark International Airport and the proposed Airport City site, south of the airport in Elizabeth.

The line would serve 17 stops over eight miles and would cost between $300 million and $350 million.

Mr. Shaw said the coalition supports this option because it would provide the most economic development benefits to Newark and Elizabeth. The project also would provide the most service with the least cost, he said.

The rail link project gained critical support two weeks ago when the Federal Aviation Administration approved a $3 boarding fee for all airline passengers at the region's three major airports.

Most of the estimated $282 million to be raised through this surcharge over 34 months would go toward financing the on-airport "people-movr" lines, including a monorail already under construction at Newark International Airport.

The Port Authority initially sought permission to charge airlines passengers a $3 boarding fee over 10 years to raise $1.5 billion to pay for proposed rail and highway-access improvements at Newark, John F. Kennedy and LaGuardia Airports.

The surcharge, scheduled to begin on Thursday, October 1, also would provide funding for off-airport projects such as the Growth Connection.

The ongoing Elizabeth-Newark studies, expected to be completed by the end of the year by New Jersey Transit, compare all the options recommended for the rail link.

Officials have said the final report could be a recommendation of one plan, or it could be a recommendation of parts of each plan.

A consultant's study done for New Jersey Transit earlier this year found a new rail station near the airport on Amtrak's Northeast Corridor Line could be constructed and linked to the airport by a one-mile extension of the airport monorail, which is under construction. The plan has one station stop, covers one mile and would cost between $170 million and $210 million.

Port Authority Chairman Richard Leone has said this line most likely could be built using boarding fee revenues.

Mr. Shaw said it is important for government officials in Essex and Union Counties to express their support of the project because without agreement, the project can be delayed and the funds would be lost.

"We are in a competitive position of seeking funding to get to the final stage of construction," Mr. Shaw said.

Hudson County, he said, completed a five-year study for its Waterfront Transit Project two years ago, but spent the past two years trying to muster political support.

Mrs. Jacobson Opposes Initiative and Referendum

Mrs. Susan Jacobson, the Vice President of the Westfield Board of Education, on July 20 joined other local school board members from throughout New Jersey to voice opposition to initiative and referendum during a special "lobby day" at the State House in Trenton.

Mrs. Jacobson met with area legislators as part of an effort organized by the New Jersey School Boards Association.

On July 20 proposed constitutional amendments to establish a system of initiative and referendum failed to achieve the necessary three-fifths majority vote for placement on the November ballot.

"We are deeply concerned about the devastating impact a system of initiative and referendum could have on public education in New Jersey," Mrs. Jacobson said.

She pointed out several reasons why initiative and referendum would not be in the public's interest:

- Expensive media and advertising campaigns spearheaded by special interest groups would dominate the debate in initiative and referendum and would have the most influence over the electorate.

- Education issues are complex and require in-depth analysis. Initiative and referendum reduce these issues to simplistic "yes-or-no," "take-it or leave-it" propositions. Elected representatives are in the best position to make the decisions affecting the education system after public input and debate.

- Under initiative and referendum a distressed and over-taxed citizenry can be expected to seek relief through tax-limitation measures — without regard to the effect on the public schools. In at least one state with initiative and referendum, Massachusetts, the impact on public education has been devastating.

Daniel Ginsburg Earns Bachelor's

Daniel Ginsburg of 352 Orenda Circle, Westfield was awarded a Bachelor of Arts Degree on Tuesday, May 19, at the University of Maryland's College of Behavioral & Social Sciences in College Park, Maryland.

Daniel is a graduate of Westfield High School.

Governor Clinton Charged With Insulting New Jersey

Arkansas Democrat Cited as Saying He Took Federal Funds 'Because I Couldn't Bear to See It Go to New Jersey'

On the eve of Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton's visit to New Jersey August 1 to talk politics with the nation's Democratic governors, Republican State Chairman and Assemblyman Robert D. Franks July 31 charged Governor Clinton had insulted the state 11 years ago.

Assemblyman Franks, who represents Westfield among other communities, citing a July 1981 story in the Pine Bluff, Arkansas Commercial, said Governor Clinton had demonstrated an insensitivity to voters in New Jersey when the Governor mentioned he accepted federal funds for programs that were "not worth a hill of beans" in order that the money not go to the Garden State, according to published reports.

The Arkansas Democrat was not governor at the time. He was defeated in 1980 after serving a two-year term. He returned to the Governor's office in 1982.

Assemblyman Franks likened the 1981 remark to an off-handed comment made in 1984 by former Senator Gary Hart of Colorado which was widely interpreted as an insult and hurt his campaign in the state's Democratic presidential primary.

Democratic State Chairman and State Senator Raymond Lesniak called Assemblyman Franks' charge "nonsense" and said it demonstrated the "panic" in President Bush's campaign for re-election. He said Governor Clinton was not singling out New Jersey when he made the comment in 1981.

Governor Clinton sat down August 1 with Democratic governors attending the annual meeting of the National Governors' Association in Princeton.

A two-hour working lunch was held at a winery in Belle Mead to discuss Clinton's campaign.

Assemblyman Franks July 31 distributed a copy of the 1981 newspaper story in which Governor Clinton discussed prison overcrowding in Arkansas and the then-new Reagan administration.

President Reagan had been in the White House six months. Governor Clinton applauded the Republican for attempting to bring the federal budget under control but was quoted as saying it was "a pipe dream" to think the federal government could operate with a balanced budget.

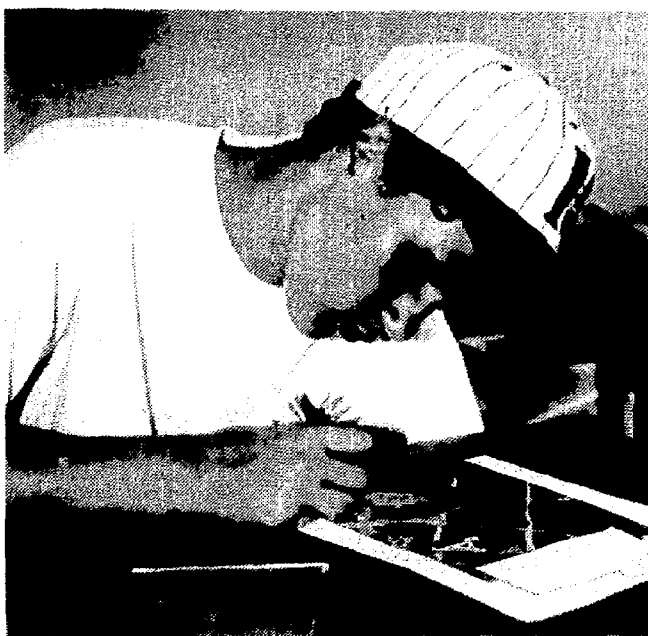

He said budget cuts would affect "good programs" and not just reduce waste and fraud.

"Several times as governor, I took federal money for programs not worth a hill of beans because I couldn't bear to see it go to New Jersey," he said. "It's a terrible way to run a country, but I participated in it, and so did every politician in the country."

Republican Chairman Franks said, "Politicians have made a career of making New Jersey the butt of unflattering jokes. But, in the final analysis, those politicians have been called to account by the people of New Jersey."

"Why is it that Bill Clinton felt it necessary to single out New Jersey for this derogatory treatment?" Assemblyman Franks asked.

Democratic State Chairman Lesniak said Governor Clinton was not singling out New Jersey but just stating he sought federal funds rather than see it go somewhere else.

BRINGING IT TO LIFE... Chad Vigilanti works on a cartoon at the Westfield Workshop for the Arts.

Cartoons 'Come to Life' At Workshop for Arts

The world of cartoon characters came to life this summer for students enrolled in the Westfield Workshop for the Arts' Cartooning No. 1 and No. 2 classes taught by professional artist, Gregg Jupa.

Mr. Jupa showed students samples of familiar classic cartoon characters, then guided students as they created their own original characters on drawings, posters and character dummies.

This summer, students were treated to a visit by workshop alumnus, John Leary, who shared his experience as an animation art specialist and described the animation process.

Following his presentation, the students, ranging in age from 10 to 17, engaged in hands-on projects, making their own animation cels. They drew, inked and painted each cel which featured characters superimposed on carefully-designed backgrounds.

The cartooning students exhibited

Town to Get $135,000 In Federal Funding

The town has been approved to receive a total of $135,000 in grants under the federal Community Development Block Grant Program for this year, Westfield Engineer Edward A. Gottko said this week.

According to Mr. Gottko, the town will receive $45,000 for the reconstruction of Palsted Avenue from South Avenue to Downer Street, $20,000 for the hiring of a second consultant to study options for the development of a second senior citizens housing complex, $30,000 to make the Municipal Building accessible to the handicapped and $40,000 to install Gabion walls to prevent the further erosion of the Windsor Avenue brook.

The Engineer noted the federal funds will pay for the entire costs of the projects and the Municipal Building work will be done as part of the ongoing renovation while the other projects are expected to be completed by the end of this year or the beginning of next year.

The funds must be spent between October, 1992 and September, 1993, he added.

their art work and presented demonstrations at the workshop's fourth annual Festival of the Arts in Mindowaskin Park and in the halls of Edison Intermediate School in Westfield where the workshop is held.

Cartooning is just one of more than 100 classes offered at the Westfield Workshop for the Arts. The five-week summer enrichment program covers such topics as instrumental music and voice, theater and dance, fine arts and crafts, communication arts and computers.

The workshop, which is open to all New Jersey residents, is a project of the New Jersey Workshop for the Arts, a non-profit arts education organization that oversees The Music Studio, the Westfield Fencing Club, Union County Music Theater and the Westfield Community Summer Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Theodore K. Schlosberg.

For more information about any of these programs, please telephone 322-5065.

Two Town Artists Win County Prizes

Philip Kass of Westfield won third prize in the non-professional watercolor category and Mrs. Jeanette Goldstein of Westfield won the first prize in the non-professional sculpture category in the Union County Senior Citizen Art Exhibit.

Their works are on display this month in the Freeholders' Meeting Room on the sixth floor of the County Administration Building in Elizabeth.

Mrs. Goldstein's winning entry will be exhibited at the 27th annual New Jersey Senior Citizens Art Competition next month at the Monmouth County Library Headquarters in Manalapan.

A reception for the artists will be held on Thursday, August 20, from 6 to 7 p.m. in the meeting room.

For additional information or to indicate you will attend the reception, please telephone the Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs at 558-2550.

Welcome Wagon Sets Ice Cream Social

The Welcome Wagon Club of Westfield will hold its second annual ice cream social on Sunday, August 9 from 6 to 8 p.m. This is a casual family event for participants to come and make their own ice cream sundae or cone and to relax together before the start of another week. Entertainment will be provided by an experienced clown. The cost is $7 per family.

A couples gourmet dinner is set for Saturday, August 8, at 8 o'clock. All couples attending will assist in the preparation of the dinner, the theme centering around Barcelona in honor of this year's summer Olympics.

The Welcome Wagon Club of Westfield invites all area women, whether new to the area, new mothers, empty nesters, or those desiring to make new friends while enjoying fun activities, to telephone 233-0956 or 654-9755 to learn more about the club.

George Warrington On Alliance Board

George Warrington of Westfield, the Executive Director of the Delaware River Port Authority of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, has been elected to the Board of Directors of the New Jersey Alliance for Action. The Alliance is a state-wide coalition of some 500 business, labor, professional, academic and governmental organizations that is headquartered in Edison. Its mission is to improve the quality of life in New Jersey through economic progress, creation of jobs and responsible protection of the environment.

Mr. Warrington replaces Eugene J. McCaffrey, Sr., the retired Executive Director of the authority.

Case Against Some Servants of Law Must Not Overshadow Service of Most

A story on the front page of today's Westfield Leader contains a number of charges and some determinations against prominent members of the community in the legal profession.

The charges are, indeed, serious, for they represent accusations these officers of the court violated the public trust by unethically attempting to show favoritism to an attorney who was accused of a serious violation of law.

Aside from the Supreme Court decision to sanction two of the attorneys involved, however, the public should remember that none of the other people involved have been convicted of misconduct or criminal behavior.

A Westfield Police Department internal investigation and one conducted by the Union County Prosecutor's Office have determined the town Patrolmen in the case followed the proper procedures, according to Westfield Police Chief Anthony J. Scutti.

Despite the conclusions of the Court in this case, however, the public should not use it to prejudice all of those in the legal profession. The majority perform ethically under the most difficult of circumstances.

We are glad to see the Police Department is doing its part to tighten up its regulations regarding what appear to be inadequacies in the court system, and we hope the court system itself will be more careful this type of incident does not reoccur.

The case demonstrates, however, there are remedies in our system to deal with those who are charged with improperly using the rules of the system for selfish ends.

Report from Washington

Community Development Emphasizes Self-Help

The growing list of domestic needs is prompting more Americans to question how their taxes are spent by Congress. Fewer Americans are willing to send more foreign aid to other countries that are in desperate condition. Many more have been urging Congress to cut back on the defense budget.

"We have to take care of our own people first," the American people insist, and indeed it is a duty of our government to provide the basis for public and private investment in the health, safety and economic vigor of our own country. The American people cannot help others while our economy is imperiled by massive public and private debt. They need to be reasonably assured government is not ignoring our essential needs at home.

What many people tend to overlook is the federal government subsidizes transportation, highways, housing, pollution cleanup, health care, education, sewers, flood control, economic investment and a host of local social services they often take for granted.

Without this annual assistance from Washington, fewer New Jersey commuters could afford to use trains, buses and airports, and our highways would be hopelessly clogged and in disrepair. Without help from the federal government, New Jersey would be suffering from increased pollution, even higher housing costs and a deteriorating public infrastructure.

For instance, over the next year in Union County, senior citizens, poor families, the homeless and the handicapped will receive the largest share of $8.2 million in new federal community development grants, one of the highest amounts in several years.

The priorities to spend this money were not made in Washington but by representatives of 21 municipalities in Union County. Their choices include projects such as sewers and flood control and parks. Money also goes to programs that benefit Union County's human resources.

One of the newest projects, called the Congregation Hospitality Network, involves 14 churches and synagogues that are providing shelter beds for single women, parents and children. It will receive a modest grant of $12,000 in federal funds.

The bulk of support comes from religious congregations, private food donations and volunteers. The program's impact does not depend on government funds but on the goodwill and charity of people in the community.

Economic development projects designed to provide jobs in urban core areas of Elizabeth and Plainfield also are on the priority list. These investments of federal funds are likely to increase in the next few years as Congress and local communities focus more attention on job-creation programs and economic development.

The Union County Community Development program for 19 municipalities with populations under 50,000 will receive a total of $5,381,000 over the next year. The agency is currently receiving $4,905,000.

Because Union County has one of the largest populations of senior citizens in New Jersey, 30 of the projects will benefit senior citizens. They include $125,000 for feasibility studies and site planning for proposed new senior citizens housing in Westfield, Scotch Plains and Fanwood.

Other local and countywide programs aimed at helping the county's aging population include transportation services, handyman fix-up at more than 300 homes occupied by low-income residents, social services, health care clinics, elderly day care, nutrition assistance and college-level study programs at Union County College.

Low-income neighborhoods in Plainfield will receive slightly more than $1 million for 25 projects on the priority list submitted by the Union County Community Development Revenue Sharing Committee, the most of any municipality except Elizabeth, which is funded separately.

The largest amount, $488,000, is for Plainfield's rent-assistance program to help low-income families. Another $60,000 is for slum clearance.

Social-service agencies affiliated with United Way will receive a total of $152,554 for local and countywide projects that include day care, domestic violence cases, occupational training of the handicapped, health services, after-school child care, child-abuse prevention and training for developmentally-disabled children. In many cases, it is matched by private donations and contributions from business and employees in the county.

Passage by Congress of the Americans With Disabilities Act, which is being implemented in stages starting this year, is increasing the need for barrier-free facilities in many public buildings. The list of approved projects includes $268,000 to remove barriers to the handicapped in buildings on don streets. Elizabeth is receiving $2,442,000 in community development funds and Union Township has earmarked $747,000.

The largest share of the community development funds for Union is targeted for the low-income area of Vauxhall to expand the Myra Kearsce Community Action Center. It will receive federal funds for its infants-and-toddlers program and health services. Other federal funds will go to the Cerebral Palsy Center and the Boys and Girls Club, both in Union.

In short, the Community Development Block Grant Program recognizes that charity and prudent investment begin at home.

Letters to the Editor

Public Opposition Leads to Cancellation Of Installation of Metal Postal Boxes

Since we were quick to use The Westfield Leader to alert the citizens and interested organizations and public officials to the intent of the local Postal Service to gradually convert both Westfield and Mountaintain to curbside mail delivery, we hasten to advise all who have not yet heard that our efforts to have this plan rescinded were successful.

I was advised earlier this week by the local postal officials "the plan has been dropped, and all of the over 200 mailboxes already erected will be removed."

This also is my only means of thanking the many of my own constituents and other citizens for their expressions of outrage, their letter-writing to local, state and federal officials who could be helpful in reversing this plan, and the interested local organizations such as the Westfield Board of Realtors who added their valuable efforts to the cause.

Clearly, the volume and intensity of our collective protest was heard and heeded by our local postal officials.

I did meet with Frank Zeevalk, Officer-in-Charge of Westfield in the absence of Postmaster James Rosa, Jr., and Mr. Zeevalk was most courteous and attentive to our list of reasons why the plan should be discontinued. Obviously our objections prevailed.

We thank these local postal officials for their willingness to reconsider the idea, especially in view of the intensity of the opposition, thus distinguishing themselves from the likes of the Federal Aviation Administration. We also were gratified at the speed of the individual and organization response, and we warmly thank all who participated in this successful effort, especially Assemblyman Richard H. Bagger.

Visiting Nurses Back United Fund Of Westfield

Visiting Nurse and Health Services of Elizabeth strongly supports the United Fund of Westfield.

It is our belief the recent scandals occurred at the headquarters of the United Way of America and are not in any way associated with the local office. We urge the public to continue to make donations.

With your help, the United Fund of Westfield will continue to provide programs which will benefit the community. Gifts to the United Way help you, your neighbors, co-workers, and families — not the employees of the United Way of America.

Don't Take This Name In Vain

Hooligan/hoodlum — a gangster or thug.

Of all the thugs who have come and gone, only a very few have been eponymized, i.e., had their names immortalized as English words.

Hooligan and hoodlum are two words that were, according to reliable sources, derived from the names of criminals. You are about to find out who's "Hoo" in the underworld.

According to the late etymologist, Eric Partridge, there was a man named Hooligan who "walked among his fellow man, robbing and, occasionally, bashing them."

This particular Hooligan lived in the 19th century London and worked as a bouncer when he was not leading his gang into felonious activities.

One version of hoodlum's etymology traces it to a story that appeared in a San Francisco newspaper circa 1871.

The article, according to this theory, was written by an investigative reporter who exposed a street gang led by a man named Muldoon. In order to protect himself from reprisal, the reporter reversed the spelling of the gangster's name to Noodlum. But a typographical error changed the "N" to an "H" and, therefore, Muldoon's name appeared as Hoodlum.

In order to protect ourselves from the wrath of dubious readers, or for that matter from the scorn of the Muldoon clan, we feel compelled to present this alternate theory. Some sources trace hoodlum to the Bavarian word huddellump, a slovenly or careless person.

Regardless of which version you accept, hood is a shortened slang version of hoodlum that first appeared in American English in 1930.

Erratum

In a caption in last week's Westfield Leader about Villari's Self Defense Center Assistant Instructor Bill Bedner was incorrectly identified as Bill Byrd.

Let us forget, Saddam's invasion took place, in the first place, as a result of botched diplomacy by the President's representative in Iraq.

It certainly would seem Mr. Bush's successes in the realm of foreign policy are not what he would have us think. And everyone knows about his success on the domestic front.

Nuclear Family Doesn't Necessarily Mirror Reality

A reader writes:

Since you are a family therapist, could you comment on Vice President J. Danforth Quayle's comments about Murphy Brown and his view that the program is a poor example of healthy family values? Do you agree with him healthy family values are best established in families where a mother and father exist to meet the child's needs, including the establishment of strong role models?

Answer:

Throughout the years of writing Hung Up!, I have avoided any questions that have involved politics. If I support Vice President Quayle's views, I will be seen as a "conservative Republican;" if I support Murphy Brown as a caring, loving mother whose values are "proper," I'll be seen as a "liberal Democrat."

This will serve no useful purpose. I certainly do not want to be labeled, or to lose readers.

But I can say I believe in the family unit, and hope the primary family unit consists of a mother and father. At the same time, I recognize the reality that today's family is defined as a unit of individuals living together. This includes intact families, single-parent families; reconstituted families such as remarried husbands and/or wives and the children they bring into the marriage; unmarried couples, extended families, single adults and families of divorcees moving to parents' homes, and gay couples.

We cannot ignore or deny this; consequently, we must address such issues as single parents, the need for most parents to work, leaving young children alone, the need for day care centers, health programs, realistic educational goals and the development of healthy parental skills programs.

A graduate student writes:

I have read your column since I was in high school, and I thought you would be interested to know what I am doing in graduate school. I have taken your two interests, psychology and music, and I am writing my dissertation, I'm getting a doctorate in psychology, on those fields. I am analyzing the changes in male and female roles throughout the decades as expressed in song. Many of the earlier songs present the woman as weak, dependent, needy, as the lyrics indicate in Someone to Watch Over Me. Listen to such words as, "She may be weary, some girls do get weary. Try a little tenderness." Or the statement that one's value is dependent on other people's feelings as in, "You're nobody till somebody loves you." The evolution of what lyrics express is fascinating.

Answer:

Thank you for sharing your professional evolution. The songs you sight are great old chestnuts with beautiful melodies, but I do share some of your sentiment. Music has always reflected the times in which it is written.

Many of today's better songs refer to personal struggles, feelings, society's stresses and so on. Helen Reddy's I Am Woman, Feelings, and Dionne Warwick's Friends are Good Examples of These. Share your dissertation with me when it is done. Good luck. Of course, my favorite song of all time is the Planters version of Smoke Gets in Your Eyes, written in 1934 — and they don't write lyrics like those either. So who says I can't have ambivalent feelings?

A frustrated reader writes:

What do you do when you find out your best friend, male, and your girlfriend of two years have been secretly dating?

Answer:

Get a new best friend and a new steady girlfriend! Pronto!

Money Alone Won't Solve Problems of Education Today

Editor's Note: Mrs. Saland was a Vice President with the Westfield office of the Chemical Bank until the end of last year.

After reading Frederick Gajewski's letter regarding more funding for education, I had to write and express my thoughts, too.

The majority of our real estate tax is given to schools.

It appears no matter how much money is received things are getting worse, not better.

All reports show results of reading, spelling and mathematics tests are low.

Students are taught to respect the earth and even celebrate Earth Day. Look at the litter everywhere and the graffiti.

There is more violence, vandalism and other crimes.

They don't speak English. They speak in an obscene language taught to them via television, movies and records.

Children show less respect to parents and other people.

More money and time is spent by our young people to attend rock concerts everywhere.

How many are found at libraries or in churches?

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome and abortion have increased during the past decade, not to mention divorce.

When I was a student starting at the first grade, the school had no need for special classes and teachers and fancy buildings. Most of the teachers attended normal schools, not colleges, for masters' degrees.

I will always hold them in high esteem because they taught me the basics.

The three R's and respect for country, other people and their property.

Something is radically wrong with our education programs and more money is not the cure.

Maybe returning to prayer and Bible reading will solve a very sad, sad situation.

President Bush's 'Success' In Iraq Was Really a Failure

Wasn't it bad enough Mr. Bush, bowing to pressure from Mrs. Thatcher of all people, stuck his nose where it didn't belong in the Persian Gulf crisis last year? Now it is charged "an illegal coverup was conducted by the Bush administration of certain financial arrangements to aid Iraq, before the Gulf War," as reported in The Star-Ledger July 31 editorial.

This comes as a cloud of suspicion continues to surround Mr. Bush as to his role in the Iran-Contra affair.

But leaving aside the question of coverups, one may well wonder if, indeed, Mr. Bush conducted the Gulf War in a competent manner.

Iraq is out of Kuwait. But so what?

Saddam Hussein continues to enslave his own Iraqi people and thumb his nose at the rest of the world. Meanwhile Mr. Bush succeeded in sparking the worst environmental disaster in recorded history, the burning of the Kuwaiti oil fields. He succeeded quite nicely in dislocating the Kurds and caused untold suffering to the hostage Iraqi people.

The list goes on and on. Under Mr. Bush's watchful eye as Commander in Chief, servicemen were raped by scores of American servicemen, and "whole regiments of Iraqi conscripts were buried alive by American bulldozers" as reported in The Star-Ledger on July 31.

Tenth Amendment Guards Rights of the States

Editor's Note: The following is another in a series of articles on the United States Constitution and the Bill of Rights prepared by former United States Supreme Court Justice Warren E. Burger, the Chairman of last year's Commission on the Bicentennial of the Constitution. This week's article deals with the 10th Amendment.

Like the Ninth Amendment, the 10th Amendment was included in the Bill of Rights to address the concerns of those who were apprehensive the new national or federal government created by the Constitution was too powerful.

Thus, the 10th Amendment makes clear the federal government is a government of limited, delegated powers: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

In drafting this provision, the Framers sought to preserve the idea the federal government was a government of limited powers without stating the limitation so strictly the government would be paralyzed.

Under the Articles of Confederation, the national government was severely weakened by a clause which provided, "each state retains its sovereignty, freedom and independence, and every power, jurisdiction, and right, which is not expressly delegated to the United States."

If some opponents of a strong national government had their way, the 10th Amendment would also have limited the federal government to powers "expressly delegated" to it by the Constitution.

During debate on the proposed amendments, however, Congressman James Madison of Virginia argued, "it was impossible to confine the government to the exercise of express power; there must necessarily be admitted powers by implication..."

Although Madison's view prevailed, not everyone was convinced of the correctness of his position and some members of Congress feared the federal government would use its power to weaken or destroy the state governments.

In two dramatic incidents during the early years of the Republic, states attempted to assert their sovereignty by declaring acts of Congress unconstitutional.

In 1798, the Congress enacted the Alien and Sedition Acts, which operated to stifle the rising political opposition of the Jeffersonian Republicans.

In response, with the assistance of James Madison and Thomas Jefferson, Virginia and Kentucky passed resolutions declaring the Alien and Sedition Acts unconstitutional and affirming the authority of the states to make independent judgments concerning the constitutionality of federal legislation.

Other states failed, however, to follow suit, and the challenge abated when the Alien and Sedition Acts expired in 1801.

In 1832, led by Vice President John C. Calhoun, South Carolina passed an ordinance that declared the federal protective tariffs of 1828 and 1832 "unauthorized by the Constitution" and therefore "null, void, and no law nor binding upon this state, its officers or citizens."

The nullification crisis was resolved when Congress passed a compromise bill that gradually phased out the high tariffs that South Carolinians found so objectionable.

While these and other political challenges to federal supremacy were being raised, the Supreme Court established two crucial legal principles: First, federal law was supreme to state law and, second, the federal government had certain implied powers that were not specifically enumerated in the Constitution.

The first of these principles — expressly set forth in Article No. 6 of the Constitution, which declares the Constitution, laws, and treaties of the United States "shall be the supreme Law of the Land" — was given practical application in such cases as Ware versus Hylton, in which the Supreme Court struck down a Virginia statute that conflicted with the 1783 Treaty of Peace between the United States and Great Britain and Dartmouth College versus Woodward, 17 United States, in 1819, in which the Court ruled Dartmouth College's Colonial charter was a contract, and New Hampshire's attempt to revise the original college charter violated the command in Article No. 1, section No. 10 of the Constitution that "no state shall pass any law impairing the Obligation of Contracts."

The principle the federal government was a government of implied as well as express powers was set forth in cases such as M'Culloch versus Maryland, in which the Supreme Court ruled Congress has the authority to exercise a power not expressly set forth in the Constitution — the power to create a national bank — under its general authority in Article No. 1, section No. 8, "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper."

In M'Culloch, the Court specifically rejected the argument the 10th Amendment limited the federal government's authority to powers that were "expressly" delegated in the Constitution, noting "the men who drew and adopted the 10th Amendment had experienced embarrassments resulting from the insertion of this word in the Articles of Confederation, and probably omitted it to avoid those embarrassments."

Even after these decisions, advocates of "state sovereignty" continued their assaults on federal authority well into the 19th century.

The ideological dispute over the nature of the union and the scope of federal supremacy culminated in the Civil War, which finally resolved the question of the federal government's authority over the states and the authority of states to secede from the Union.

From the conclusion of the civil war to the present day, the federal government's power and influence over state governments has steadily expanded, as state governments have surrendered significant authority in a variety of areas — interstate commerce, social welfare, health care and environmental protection — to federal control.

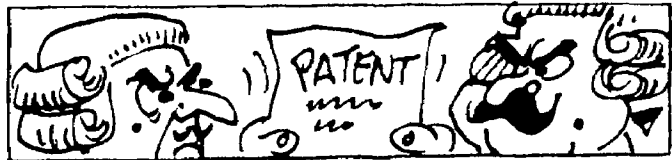

In recent times, this shift in power from state to federal government has generated debate about the concept of "federalism," and some have voiced concern the states should reclaim some of the powers and responsibilities that have been transferred to the federal government.

As the 10th Amendment makes clear, the federal government is a government of delegates powers, and it is well within the power of the states and their citizens to reclaim authority they have surrendered if they so choose.

Musical on Earth Due at Trailside

Audience participation and contemporary music will be used to help children learn what they can do to protect the Earth during "Program for a Healthy Planet, an Environmental Musical" and a Slim Goodbody production, on Wednesday, August 12, at 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. at the Trailside Nature and Science Center at Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountaintide.

The program will be for children 7 years old and older and the fee will be $3 per person.

The first bicycle, a wooden scooter-like vehicle, was invented about 1790 by Comte Mede de Sivrac of France. An improved model, the draisine, was invented by Baron Karl von Drais of Germany about 1816.

POPCORN™

Honey, I Blew Up the Kid: Don't Inflate Your Hopes

By Michael Goldberger

One Popcorn, Poor • Two Popcorns, Fair • Three Popcorns, Good • Four Popcorns, Excellent

Where there is a hit, there is a sequel — thus explaining the existence of Honey, I Blew Up the Kid, a sadly inferior follow-up to that wonderfully inventive kiddie sci-fi primer, Honey, I Shrunk the Kids.

The original was my then 3-year-old daughter, Erin's first movie outing, an indelible experience in this proud dad's history book. We both had a great time, and discussing the flick afterwards convinced me this astute filmmaker, wise beyond her years, was certain to be penning cinema critiques for The Times of London one day.

Three years later, our attendance at the followup was also a highly enjoyable experience...despite our artistic differences. She fully enjoyed the movie; let's say I enjoyed being the daddy who took her to see it. I watched her. I love watching the changes in her expression, the sense of importance with which she takes it all in, the screen shadow and reflections coloring her perfect little face.

Note here Honey, I Blew Up the Kid is fine entertainment for the 10-year-old and under crowd. But, unlike the first move, a junior comedy version of The Incredible Shrinking Man, it doesn't play on two levels, and won't appeal to adults.

The original film introduced bushels of novel concepts. Rick Moranis in a tailor-made role as zany inventor, Wayne Szalinski, and a likeable group of kids that young children could relate to.

The sad truth is, the filmmakers do little to conceal their lazy ways with this second-go-round. Quite unashamedly, they merely drag out the old stencil, reverse the concept, literally, and, lacking a decent script, utilize the strained goings-on to develop a slapstick free-for-all. With this issue, scientist Szalinski, played by a less-inspired Moranis, unintentionally turns his toddler into a 112-foot giant. The jumbo tyke then heads for downtown Las Vegas and makes like the monster that devoured Cleveland.

What attempts to pass for a plot shows Wayne now compromised by some jealous, opportunistic, corporate ne'er-do-wells at Sterling Laboratories.

You'll remember that, prior to the success of his laser-probe-shrinking-watchamacallit, the daffy inventor did as he pleased. Here, in the film's mealy-mouthed way, a mini-lesson on the tyranny of committees and corporate backstabbing is offered. Come to think of it, maybe that part isn't so bad.

As is the case with most sequels, it's generally not what the film does that comes under scrutiny, but rather what it fails to accomplish.

In this instance, Director Randal Kleiser and company simply take us grown-ups for granted, neglecting to toss us some nuances while we do our parental duty.

In plain business terms, the filmmakers invoke the bottom line — our kids love this first installment, and so it follows that we'll take them to see this one.

But then there is the all-important kiddie quotient to consider. My budding film reviewer, now 6 1/2, gives this one a nod of approval and, y'know, come to think of it, there were some amusing moments.

After all, at 45 1/2, I can address the adults...but what right do I have to buck expert opinion? If you and your kid want to see Honey, I Blew Up the Kid, don't let me burst your balloon.

Answers to Some Questions Which Don't Keep You Awake

By LOUIS H. CLARK
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

Questions I have been asked lately.
Question: Why did men object to women getting the vote?

Answer: They didn't. In fact the amendment which gave women the right to vote was overwhelmingly approved by men. Their selfish motive? Why should we take all the blame?

Question: I am often baffled by those foreign language films on the Public Broadcasting System. The ones that particularly affect me are the Italian and French films where everyone is yammering at once, so I can't concentrate on the subtitles flashing across the screen and lose the whole thread of the story.

Answer: Just use your mute button. This will keep the noise from blocking your brain. Of course you'll miss the music so just have an Offenbach tape playing if it's a French film. Respighi if it's Italian. That way you'll get the same effect.

Question: Why is it that when a man does something stupid like painting his house a Bermuda pink on the coast of Maine everyone criticizes the man's wife?

Answer: The only answer I have been able to get from highly qualified experts is women take it for granted every wife has — or should have — better taste than her husband. Therefore they automatically place the blame for anything going wrong on her.

Question: Does money buy happiness?
Answer: As has been said from time immemorial money will not buy health though most wealthy people, as far as I can make out, seem to live into their 90s. That wasn't your question, but is partly your answer. If you mean what was once called love and has now been reduced to the legal term commitment it helps if you are married to someone as rich as you are. If your wealth falls below your spouse's you are in for a tough time. That is why the wealthy do not need family counsel.

Poets From Town Cited in Contest

Mrs. Amy H. Garvey and Mrs. Ellen L. Kaufman, residents of Westfield, have been named as fifth-place winners in the Distinguished Poet Awards contest sponsored by Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum in Sistersville, West Virginia.

Both poems were judged among thousands of entries received in this national contest.

Fifth-place winners receive the "Distinguished Poet" certificate in addition to the cash award.

Also, the winning poems will be published in Sparrowgrass Poetry Forum's Winter 1993 edition of Treasured Poems of America, an anthology featuring poets from throughout the United States and Canada.

Fairleigh Honors Six From Town

Six Westfield students have been named to the Dean's List, which requires a 3.2 or better grade average, out of a possible 4.0, or the Honor's List, which requires an average of 3.5 or better on the Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University.

Named to the Dean's List were: Glenn L. Cavanaugh, Maureen Feury, Jeffrey Licciardello, Alain Mann, Jason Reeves and Claudia L. Roles were selected for the Honor's List.

Play Trains Due At Mindowaskin

Concert goers who came out in the rain on July 23 were treated to the sounds of the dance band, Kings Road.

The summer concert series will continue next week with the sounds of the Play Trains. The summer band concerts are held at Mindowaskin Park at 8 p.m. free of charge.

THE 6TH DECADE

How to Buffett Against The Perils of Perots

By Herb Ross

The Ross Perot adventure into politics is more of a puzzle than ever!

Millionaires don't have the stamina nor the psyche to be politicians. You could detect the Martin qualities of Ross Perot in the early days.

Now if you were a follower of Warren Buffett you would find him to be a "sterling" character. A $10,000 investment in the Buffett Partnership in 1956, and reinvested in Berkshire Hathaway in 1969, would be worth $35 million today — after all taxes, fees and expenses. Prior to expenses, the same $10,000 would be worth $465 million. Each year at Berkshire's annual meeting, shareholders are invited to hear the legendary investor's wit, wisdom and investment savvy.

"If we find a company we like, the level of the market will not really impact our decisions. We will decide company by company. We spend essentially no time thinking about macroeconomics factors. In other words, if somebody handed us a prediction by the most revered intellectual on the subject, with figures for unemployment or interest rates or whatever it might be for the next two years, we would not pay any attention to it. We simply try to focus on business that we think we understand and where we like the price and management. If we see anything that relates to predictions about what's going to happen in Congress, we don't even read it. We just don't think it's helpful to have a view on these matters."

"Do we start by what's happening in the universe? In many investment organizations, it is customary to substitute top-down analysis for common sense. First, they start with what's going to happen in the universe and then keep narrowing it down. You've got this great averaging of intelligence quotients in a largely offsetting fashion. We think that just tends to be nonsense."

Warren Buffett, unlike Mr. Perot is a pragmatist.

For example he said, "In any business, there are going to be all kinds of factors that happen next week, next month, next year, and so forth. But the really important thing is to be in the right business. The classic case is Coca-Cola which went public in 1919. They initially sold stock at $40 a share. The next year, it went down to $19. Sugar prices had changed pretty dramatically after World War I. So you would have lost half of your money one year later if you'd bought the stock when it first came public, but if you owned that share today — and had reinvested all of your dividends — it would be worth about $1.8 million. We have had Depressions. We have had wars. Sugar prices have gone up and down. A million things have happened. How much more fruitful is it for us to think about whether the product is likely to sustain itself and the economics than to try to be questioning whether to jump in or jump out of the stock?

A lot of people made money owning that stock for a long period of time. And that's how people make money. If you're right about the business, you'll be right about your investments over the long term. When the Buffett part of Berkshire is over — when somebody looks at whatever the end result is — my guess is if you take out the best 15 decisions, it would not be much of a record. That's the way the works.

Talking at business schools, I always say they'd be better off if when they got out of school, they got a ticket with 20 punches on it. And every time they make an investment decision, it uses up a punch. You'll never use up all 20 punches if you save them for great ideas."

And the difference between Mr. Perot and Mr. Buffett is very simple. You go to bat and you swing, you take your chances and don't quit. There is something to be learned from this. What do you think?

The Westfield Leader

— Serving the Town Since 1890 —

P.O. Box 250, 50 Elm Street • Westfield, N. J. 07091

Dear Westfielder:

The Westfield Leader has the highest readership of any paid weekly newspaper in Union County — with nearly two-thirds of our town's households numbered as paid subscribers.

Every week it enables its subscribers to receive the most complete coverage of any area newspaper of every event in Westfield from town government and politics to high school sports to weddings, engagements, complete obituaries, other social news and the many events sponsored by our town's numerous civic organizations.

It also offers viewpoints on a variety of topics — current films, senior citizen issues, humor, psychology and current events by experts in each field who are your neighbors.

Many of our readers give gift subscriptions to those in and out of town and also send The Leader to those in college. Perhaps, this is the time you might consider some of these possibilities.

The Leader, your hometown newspaper since 1890, is the official newspaper for Westfield and also an official newspaper for Union County.

With all good regards,

Kurt C. Bauer, Publisher

Florist Wins Approval For Greenhouse Project

are four existing metered parking spaces adjacent to Vance Florist on South Avenue.

The Acting Chairman of the Board, Douglas T. Schwarz, questioned Mr. Schleifer as to where on the plans the required handicapped parking space was.

Mr. Schleifer replied, "We don't show a handicapped spot," and indicated space No. 1 on the plans would be the designated spot.

When asked if the No. 1 space was the most easily accessible space to the store, Mr. Schleifer said it was.

Robert L. Newell, a member of the board, said he was "discouraged at the condition of the existing site," and thought the parking lot should have a better appearance, since it lies next to a residential area.

In later discussions, Mr. Newell said he was concerned over the line between the commercial and residential zones.

When Mr. Gottko said "the applicant was informed a year ago about the requirements of site planning, by both myself and the zoning officer."

Mr. Gutterman said he wasn't aware of this.

Mr. Newell stated, at the end of the testimony, he still felt the application was "inadequate," and with two dissenting votes, those of Mr. Newell and Gary T. Hall, the board's majority approved Mr. Vigilant's application for site plan approval.

With little other business, and after the approval of last month's minutes, the meeting was adjourned.

The Planning Board will meet again on Monday, September 14.

Recycling Pickups Told For the Rest of 1992

The Union County Utilities Authority has released the schedule for curbside pickups of recyclables during 1992 for Westfield.

Newspaper, glass and aluminum will be collected every other week according to the following schedule:

	Westfield
	North of the railroad tracks	South of the railroad tracks
JUNE	NORTH 11 and 25	SOUTH 12 and 26
JULY	9 and 23	10 and 24
AUGUST	6 and 20	7 and 21
SEPTEMBER	3 and 17	4 and 18
OCTOBER	1, 15 and 29	2, 16 and 30
NOVEMBER	12	13
DECEMBER	10 and 24	11

No pickups on Fridays, November 27 and December 25; Thursday, November 26.

Residents are reminded to set out their recyclables by 7:30 a.m. the day they are scheduled for collection. Residents should prepare their materials according to the following guidelines:

- NEWSPAPERS — must be clean and tied in bundles that are no more than eight inches thick. The bundles may not include paper bags, magazines, telephone books or junk mail.

- GLASS BOTTLES AND JARS — must be well rinsed with all caps and lids removed. Labels, styrofoam, metal rings and plastic do not have to be removed. Glass must be placed at the curb in a sturdy, reusable container. Only bottles and jars will be collected and no windows, glass, dishes, pyrex, mirrors or crystal should be placed for collection.

- ALUMINUM BEVERAGE CONTAINERS — must be well rinsed and placed in a sturdy, reusable container. Tin cans, paint cans and spray cans cannot be collected. (Note: A magnet will not stick to the side or bottom of a recyclable all-aluminum can.)

Glass and aluminum recyclables must be set out in separate containers. Materials placed in plastic or paper bags will not be collected.

Town-Wide Olympics Occupy Playgrounders

JEFFERSON PLAYGROUND
Despite the rain, Jefferson Playgrounders enjoyed many fun-filled activities throughout the week.

On July 23, playgrounders brought in their favorite stuffed animals. Winners included Tyler Palla with the most colorful family of animals, Brendan Egan with the cutest animal, Abby Coxson with the most interesting animal, Jill Woodbury with the most original animal, Jen Woodbury with the most loved animal, and Devin Power with the scariest animal.

On July 24 playgrounders participated in a bubble gum blowing contest. Winners for the biggest bubble were Jesse Coxson in first, Michael Sawicki in second and Kristen Leonardis in third. The smallest bubbles were blown by David Lanza in first, Abby Coxson and Jill Woodbury tied for second and Mike Nahaczewski in third.

The loudest crack was accomplished by Liz McKeon in first, Janna Kamel in second and Jesse Coxson in third. Tod O'Connell, Adam Jack and Jimmy McKeon all blew bubbles inside bubbles. On Friday afternoon playgrounders participated in Christmas in July. Sixty playgrounders exchanged gifts to celebrate.

On Monday, July 27, playgrounders took part in the annual Playground Olympics at Memorial Pool. Jefferson won the 10-to-12-year-old tug-of-war.

On July 28, Jefferson won the first round of the softball tournament, beating Tamaques 3-2. The team came back in the bottom of the last inning led by hits from Liz McKeon, Bobby Stroud and Ian Ulez.

Tuesday afternoon, 50 playgrounders went to see Honey, I Blew Up the Kid at the Westfield Cinema.

MCKINLEY PLAYGROUND
Last Monday the annual olympics were held at Memorial Pool.

McKinley placed first, second and third in various events. For the 6-to-9 year olds, high jumper, Tim Mansfield, from McKinley took third place, jumping over three feet.

In the 10-to-12-year-old competition for high jump, Lamont Turner took second place with his jump over four feet.

McKinley's 6-to-9-year-old tug-of-war team captured victory by defeating the other playgrounders. Overall, McKinley placed third.

Tuesday was dedicated to making friendship bracelets. This craft was popular with both the boys and girls.

Wednesday was Drug and Awareness Day, a day which was spent teaching the children how to say "no" to drugs. Also on Wednesday a kickball game between the playgrounders and the counselors took place.

Thursday a costume parade was held, while a few playgrounders got to go see the Yankees play Baltimore.

Friday was a special day at McKinley because the children were taken to Echo Lanes for an afternoon of bowling which was made possible from the profit made from the fair.

TAMAQUES PLAYGROUND
On Wednesday the playgrounders celebrated Everybody's Birthday. Since the weather was bad on Thursday, they were unable to do tie dying, but they will be doing it next week. On Friday, Tamaques had a scavenger hunt and breakfast at the playground.

The Playground Olympics was on Monday. Tamaques came in first place in the 6-to-9-year-old age group, and they took a trophy for second place overall.

Some of the people who won awards were Erin O'Brien, Elisa Cognetti, David Fahey, Jane Anderson, Eli Harel and Kelly Masterson.

This week, the playground will have Hawaiian Day with food and games with a Hawaiian theme. Next week, Tamaques will be having a talent show, and costume parade on make up the missed tie die day.

WASHINGTON PLAYGROUND
Last Thursday afternoon some of the playgrounders watched a movie and ate popcorn which was provided by a mother. Meanwhile, there was a Whiffle Ball tournament in the gymnasium.

Friday was Everybody's Birthday on the Playground. The children celebrated with pizza, cake and Rice Krispie Treats.

Another highlight of the afternoon was the pinyata, made in the shape of a hot air balloon. The children all took turns being spun around and aiming a bat at pinyata until David Citrin released a shower of candy.

While the rest of the world concentrated on the Olympic games in Barcelona, the playgrounders participated in their own games at Memorial Pool. The Washington team was made up of Rob and Kate Albino, Mary Warren, Stephen Levine, Eric Gale, Emily Dura, Chris Freisen and Katie Hollenbach. Award-winning performances were given by all.

Christian and Colby Fagin and Chris Priesen scored points for Washington.

Tuesday morning, Washington's softball team won the first match of the tournament due to Wilson's forfeit. The kickball team, made up of Brendan Maher, Chris Freisen, Kevin Mullane, Anthony and Lee Tomasso, Katie Hollenbach, Katie Albino, Brian Ludlum and Joe Cernak, won its game against McKinley with a final score of 8-5.

Tuesday afternoon, some of the children participated in a physical fitness test which involved jumping rope, the shuttle run, chin-ups, standing broad jump and squat thrusts. Finally, Wednesday morning was the long-awaited All-Star Game.

Delegates from Washington were Kevin and Dan Mullane, Laura Krusner and Chris Freisen.

WILSON PLAYGROUND
The past week at Wilson Playground was full of fun activities. On July 23 the participants had a bubble gum-blowing contest where Katie Richards placed first, Kyle Legones placed second and Willy Cashman placed third.

A tournament was held on Friday where the children competed in Tie-Tac-Toe, Nook-Hockey, ping pong and Connect-4. The winners of Tie-Tac-Toe were Jared Tenzer in first, Kevin Riley in second and Dan Caprio in third.

In Connect-4 Dan Cutro placed first, Jared Tenzer and Matt Brinkman tied.

Dan Caprio came in first in the Nook-Hockey tournament, with Adrienne Dani in second and Jared Tenzer in third. Lastly, Caprio placed first in ping pong with Dan Cutro in second place. Friday afternoon the playgrounders ended Circus Week with a peanut hung and games. They then rested for the Olympics, where they all enjoyed participating in swim and field events. On Tuesday they made beaded jewelry and had fun playing pillow polo.

The playgrounders are looking forward to celebrating Drug and Alcohol Awareness Day on Wednesday and plan to end Physical Fitness Week with plenty of exercise.

FRANKLIN PLAYGROUND
During the rainy weather on Thursday and Friday, Franklin playgrounders played Whiffleball when they weren't watching somebody's favorite movie, Gremlins.

Monday, Edward Hany took first place in the high jump at the All-playground Olympics. The tug-of-war teams also did very well.

Even though the Neighborhood Council defeated the softball team, Franklin played a tough game and made a great comeback in the last inning.

Wednesday Franklin held its own Olympics.

Ryan Hogarth took first in the obstacle course, Krissy Mack won the Nook-Hockey tournament and Eric Schoenemann and Alex Musick won the tetherball tournament.

The Olympics were cut short due to the heat, therefore, the playgrounders moved onto the Slip-n-Slide to cool things down. There still are two weeks left at the playgrounds.

NEIGHBORHOOD COUNCIL
The week started off with the Westfield Recreation Department's 32nd annual Playground Summer Olympics.

Neighborhood Council capitalized on all the field events. Winners in the standing broad jump for 6-to-9-year-olds went to first, Miguel Cruz; second, John Logen, third, Joe Lundy; 10-to-12-year-olds; Fuquan Johnson. Girls 6-to-9-year-olds, Mikaela Cruz and Secret Bundy, and 10-to-12-year-olds, Camisha Brown; Javelin throw, 6-to-9-year-olds first, Miguel Cruz; 10-to-12-year-olds, second Fuquan Johnson, Shuntle Run, 10-to-12-year-olds, first, Rasheed Hawks; Obstacle Course, 6-to-9-year-olds, first, Lenec Clarke; Water Walk Race, 6-to-9-year-olds, third place, Lenec Clarke; 10-to-12-year-olds, first, Fuquan Johnson; High Jump, 10-to-12-year-olds, first, Fuquan Johnson, and third, Rasheed Hawks.

The relay race began with 6-year-old Mikaela Cruz leading off and giving the stick to 7-year-old Rahdee Harrison, who passed the stick to 8-year-old Joe Lundy.

The Neighborhood Council never fell behind in the race. Joe gave it to Miguel Cruz, who passed it to Eric Myrick, who gave it to Camisha Brown for the finishing touches.

The softball team also played its first playoff game and came out victorious 16-12 over Franklin School.

Fuquan Johnson hit two home runs and Rasheed Hawks hit a grand slam. Other outstanding play was by Darnell Harrison, Eric Myrick, Joe Lundy, Miguel Cruz and Kwame Morgan.

Detective Ronald Allen also gave a speech on Drug Awareness.

Rhoda Faughnan Hits Ace Ashbrook

The Ashbrook Women's Golf Association of Scotch Plains held a Best Ball of Three Tournament on July 30.

Results were as follows:
9 Holes: Winners were LJ Haworth, Maddle Cochran and Ruth Lingo.
Low Putts: Ann Powers, Claire Fink and Yvonne Kaye.

18 Holes: First place went to the team of Rhoda Faughnan, Natalie Ples and Carol Madra and the team of Debra Molton, Vivian Sanders and Ann Wiesinger. They shot a net 55. In third place was the team of Mary Anderson, Pat Botta and Helen Brown, net 59.

Water Company Seeks 13.8 Per Cent Increase

Elizabethtown Water Company of Westfield July 31 petitioned the New Jersey Board of Regulatory Commissioners for a rate increase that would yield an increase in revenues of $12.3 million or approximately 13.8 per cent over current revenues.

"Elizabethtown finds it will be necessary to file for annual rate increases to offset costs associated with meeting regulatory requirements and the needs of its customers," Thomas Cawley, the President of the company, said.

The largest portion of the increase will cover the costs to finance $36.5 million for construction projects that were not reflected in the March 1992 rates. These projects include water treatment, transmission and storage facilities needed to ensure Elizabethtown continues to meet system demands and regulations governing water quality and service. The increase also will offset higher costs for power, labor and benefits and for water purchased from the state, according to Mr. Cawley.

Even under the proposed rates, Elizabethtown will continue to maintain rates that are lower than those of most other New Jersey water companies. The average Elizabethtown residential customer using 2,700 cubic feet or 20,20 gallons of water per quarter, the regular billing period, would notice a cost increase of $9.16 per quarter or 70 cents per week, the company President said.

One out of every seven people in the world understands and speaks English in some form.

The name "geometry" comes from the Greek words for "earth" and "to measure."

ON THE CALENDAR...Woman's Club of Westfield representative, Mrs. Lawrence H. Bryant, prepares a fund-raising event with Dick Turner of Turner World Travel Inc. of Westfield. On Wednesday, October 28, the Woman's Club of Westfield will sponsor a "Dessert Extravaganza - Card Party" and will also offer a trip of your choice to benefit the club's scholarship fund. Mr. Turner will co-sponsor, with the club, the offer of a trip valued at $1,000. Tickets may be obtained from any club member and from Turner Travel.

Mrs. Smith Directs Foreign Language Group

Mrs. Molly Smith has been appointed the Director of the Foreign Language Awareness Group. She assumes her responsibilities immediately, taking over from Mrs. Denise Feilders, who with her family, is moving to Paris this autumn.

Mrs. Smith has a Master's Degree in Business Administration from the Tulane School of Business in New Orleans and a Bachelor of Arts Degree in History with a minor in French from Colorado College in Colorado Springs, Colorado. She spent her junior year abroad in Besancon, France.

Before stopping work to have her children, Brian Smith, 5, and Annie Smith, 3, Mrs. Smith was a financial analyst for American Medical International and a personal computer consultant for American Medical International.

The group offers classes in French, Spanish and Japanese after school to elementary school children. Hundreds of children have attended these language classes taught by professional and/or native-speaking teachers. New to the group this year are language classes for kindergarten children and a supplementary curriculum and possibly special classes for returning second- and third-year students who have previously participated in the group.

Registration for the group will take place the first week of school. All children in the Westfield elementary schools will receive registration forms in their Parent-Teacher Organization packets.

Other Westfield residents can pick up the materials at Room 209, the Board of Education Administration Building after Tuesday, September 1.

Mrs. Smith can be telephoned at 789-8874 to answer any questions.

To teach is also to learn.

Baptist Youth to Hold Car Wash Tomorrow

Youth in Action at the First Baptist Church of Westfield will hold a car wash to benefit the Interfaith Council for the Homeless tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the church parking lot at 170 Elm Street. The cost will be $4 per car.
Last week, the nine young people participating in Youth in Action sang and visited at the Baptist Home in Newark, painted a room in facilities managed by Youth with a Mission in Elizabeth, served lunch at the food kitchen of the Bowery Mission in New York City and collected canned goods for the First Baptist Church of North Plainfield Food Pantry.

[Editor's Note: Public Notice advertising plays a unique role both in American history and in the present by which this country's democracy is preserved. Its one premise is that people must be informed if they are to govern themselves competently. Public Notice advertising first came into being with the Congress of 1792. That body, recognizing its responsibility to the people, required the Postmaster General to advertise for bids for the construction of new post offices. From that inauspicious beginning to the complex publication requirements in federal, state and local laws today, government officials have come more and more to understand their obligations to inform the public through Public Notice advertising. Newspapers over the years have been the vehicle by which these obligations have been fulfilled. They will continue to be as long as the public demands that it be informed frequently and by the best means possible.]

National Hadassah Cites Mrs. Blonsky as Leader

Mrs. Miriam Blonsky of the Westfield Chapter of Hadassah has been named a recipient of the Sixth Annual Hadassah National Leadership Award.

This was announced by Hadassah National President, Mrs. Deborah Kaplan, at Hadassah's 78th Annual Convention held in Washington, D.C. in July.
These awards honor members whose leadership accomplishments within Hadassah and other civic, educational and cultural organizations reflect Hadassah's dedication to the principles of the volunteer ethic.
"The source of Hadassah's strength lies in leaders who are empowered with the motivation and skill to effect positive change," said Mrs. Kaplan. "It is a privilege to present the Hadassah National Leadership Award to Mrs. Blonsky in recognition of her extraordinary contribution to her community."
"Mrs. Blonsky exemplifies the best qualities of today's Hadassah woman," said Mrs. Geraldyn Lichtenstein and Mrs. Evelyn Hollander, Co-Presidents of the Westfield Chapter. "We all share a sense of pride for the tribute bestowed upon her."

Mrs. Blonsky is a life member and has been active in the Westfield Chapter for 17 years. She has held the offices of Recording Secretary, Program Vice President and President and was named the Westfield Chapter's "Woman of the Year" in 1989.

She served on the Board of the Northern New Jersey Region of Hadassah as the Young Judaea Chairman and is a member of the Zionist Youth Commission of Young Judaea. Presently she serves on the Executive Board of the Northern New Jersey Region.
Mr. and Mrs. Milford Blonsky, who have resided in Westfield for 33 years, are the parents of two children and have three grandchildren. They are members of Temple Emanu-El in Westfield.

Mrs. Miriam Blonsky

She has held major offices in the Parent-Teacher Association, having served as President of Jefferson School and Edison Junior High School and held office in the Parent-Teacher Council.

She is a member of Women's American ORT, Jewish Family Service and Friends of the Westfield Memorial Library. Mrs. Blonsky has been a volunteer at the New Jersey Geriatric Center in Elizabeth for 16 years.

Roommate of Candidate Remembers Convention

Editor's Note: The following is an account of the Democratic National Convention in New York City last month by James E. Moore of Westfield, who attended the convention and was a roommate of the party's Presidential nominee, Governor William Jefferson "Bill" Clinton, at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C.

The week of the convention was amazing and exciting. Seeing New York filled with delegates and the Garden crammed with celebrating Democrats was an extraordinary contrast with the small-town crowds I witnessed only five months ago in a cold, and for Governor Clinton, crisis-filled February in New Hampshire and the bitter debates in the New York Primary.

For me the convention provided not only the chance to enjoy the Governor's success and listen to great speeches, but also meet old friends from college days at Georgetown and catch up with new friends made during the primary process. There were even enough Georgetown friends to throw an impromptu dinner party for 16 on Tuesday night.

All four Governor Clinton's college roommates were on hand demonstrating in a small way the diversity of America — a commercial airline pilot from California, a novelist from Baltimore, an international banker from New York and a Westfielder. For my wife, Mrs. Jane Moore, the Secretary of the New Jersey Women's Coalition for Clinton, the week was filled with meetings on coalition issues important to the New Jersey delegation.

By Wednesday, the convention was rapidly building toward a climax with everyone waiting on Governor Mario Cuomo. The crowd, which so packed the Garden that there seemed to be an endless stream of people moving along the aisles, came to a complete stop as he spoke. The content was clear and the delivery electrifying. The subsequent voting was accomplished in a mood of celebration.

Then, just after Ohio put him over the top, Jane and I were stunned to see Governor and Mrs. Clinton on the giant video screen making their way from Macy's to the Garden. The voting process was halted and the crowd began to go wild with excitement.

I had seen Harry Thomason, the Governor's media advisor, during the week and he had promised a surprise, but we certainly did not expect this. I will never forget the moment the Governor stood alone just below the speaker's podium, thanked everyone and announced the return of the Comeback Kid with the entire crowd on its feet cheering.

On Thursday morning I spoke with Paul Begala and Stan Greenberg, Governor Clinton's pollsters, who announced the results of a new poll only that week showing the Governor at 56 per cent and President George Bush at 28 per cent.

Then, with Ross Perot's withdrawal the scene was set for an extraordinary final evening. Jane and I were hosts to 10 guests Thursday, two from Westfield, Garret Parker and Helen Peters, and we were pleased to have the opportunity to spend some time with Governor Clinton's mother and discuss the upcoming speech with Thomas Caplan, an old friend and one of the Governor's speech writers.

Everyone believed the speeches Senator Albert Gore, Jr. and Governor Clinton would give that night were critical to the success of the campaign, and the tension was palpable in all the campaign staff we met with.

I believe both speeches reached out to America and let the people see and understand better the Bill Clinton I have known and admired for 28 years.

We followed up the event with an outstanding party for 3,000 at the Sheraton which had gone from being undersold two weeks prior to the convention to so heavily oversold Rahm Emanuel, the National Finance Director, told me it was every fundraiser's nightmare, more people wanting $1,000 tickets than there were seats.

We all went to bed about 3 a.m. with the sound of the new Democratic theme songs of Paul Simon and Fleetwood Mac ringing in our ears.

The next morning we wrapped up the week with a send off for Governor and Mrs. Clinton and Senator and Mrs. Gore on the first of several bus tours of America in the coming weeks.

As the Governor said Thursday night, "We meet at a special moment in history. The Cold War is over. Now that we have changed the world, it's time for a change in America."

The great New York convention was over but the campaign has just begun.

Internal Investigation Clears Two Town Patrolmen; Chief Says They Were Misled by Clark Prosecutor

Donnelly admitted to consuming a few drinks at dinner that evening and Breathalyzer tests administered at the Westfield Police Station by Patrolman Gallagher reportedly revealed he had a blood-alcohol level above the legal limit.

At the station, Donnelly showed Patrolman Luce a card from the 200 Club, an organization of businessmen and professionals who support law enforcement services in the state and provide monetary support to the families of officers injured or killed in the line of duty.

The suspect asked Norton, who was a close friend, to represent him, and the Westfield attorney agreed to do so at no charge.

Several days after the arrest Norton met Patrolman Gallagher at the police station and asked the Patrolman to give the New York attorney "a break," describing Donnelly as a good citizen and a substantial supporter of law enforcement.

During their conversation Donnelly's contributions to the 200 Club were mentioned.

Donnelly's driving while intoxicated case was to be tried in Westfield Municipal Court, but Norton, at his client's request, arranged for it to be tried in Clark, where Kress, his former law partner, was the Municipal Prosecutor.

Donnelly insisted the case not be tried in the town or in Mountaintop, according to the court papers, because he and the Municipal Judges in both communities were members of the same golf club, and Donnelly did not want to be embarrassed.

After speaking with the Westfield Judge, Norton successfully had the case transferred to Clark.

However, Clark was not an appropriate site for the trial because of a previously-issued order which set the priority for venues when Westfield was disqualified to be Mountaintop, Springfield and Plainfield, in that order.

Norton testified he was not aware of that order, and the Westfield Court Clerk said she had suffered a "lapse of memory" when she reassigned the case to Clark.

The Supreme Court also said Norton displayed a lack of candor when he failed to inform either Westfield Judge Edward J. Hobbie or Mountaintop Judge Robert A. Ruggiero that Donnelly had been a defendant before Judge Ruggiero a year earlier on a careless-driving charge.

Norton and Kress had been partners for one year, beginning in July of 1987. Apparently the dissolution of the partnership was not friendly, and although the former partners shared office space, they did everything they could to ensure they were neither partners nor office associates.

However, under the state's office associates rule, a municipal attorney or any of his office associates cannot represent any defendant in the municipal court which employs the attorney.

Office associates, according to the rule, include attorneys who share common office facilities. Technically, Kress and Norton shared office facilities because Kress and his associate had access to Norton's library, which they occasionally used as a conference room, and they shared use of a facsimile machine.

Norton and Kress did not discuss the Donnelly case until the day of the municipal court hearing.

Prior to the hearing, Norton told Patrolmen Luce and Gallagher he was ready to try the case and noted some problems with the certifications of the Breathalyzer results.

Both Patrolmen testified before the District Ethics Committee that at Kress's office the Clark Prosecutor convinced them to dismiss the case.

Kress testified Patrolman Gallagher told him the two officers wanted to give Donnelly a break and asked Kress to find a reason to dismiss the driving while intoxicated charges.

Kress told them he would not dismiss the charges. According to Kress, Norton then came to see him and, for the first time, showed Kress the documents constituting a Breathalyzer analysis certificate defense.

The Clark Prosecutor told Norton he didn't agree with that defense.

At a second visit to Kress's office by Patrolman Gallagher, according to Kress, he told the Patrolman there was no merit to Donnelly's Breathalyzer defense.

During that conversation, Patrolman Gallagher made it clear he did not want to prosecute the driving while intoxicated charge, noting Donnelly's membership in the 200 Club.

Kress reiterated he would not dismiss the charge. The Patrolman then asked the Prosecutor what would happen if he refused to testify or proceed with the matter, and the Prosecutor said he would not be able to proceed.

Thereafter, Kress informed the Clark Judge the officers did not want to proceed with the driving while intoxicated case, and the Township Judge told Kress, if the officers testified to that fact on the record, he would dismiss the charge.

Kress relayed the information to Patrolman Gallagher, and the matter was placed on the record in the Clark Municipal Court. After the Patrolman confirmed his statement on being unwilling to proceed to the Clark court, the case against Donnelly was dismissed.

The Supreme Court found Norton's and Kress's roles in the dismissal of the driving while intoxicated charge against Donnelly were improper and constituted unethical conduct.

Although the Court found the District Ethics Commission properly placed little emphasis on the technical violation of the office associates rule, it did find, according to state rules, a lawyer must not knowingly fail to disclose to the tribunal a material fact with the knowledge non-disclosure would tend to mislead the tribunal.

Kress knew the Patrolmen "dumped" the case for an improper reason, the Court found, and, at a minimum the Prosecutor should have emphasized the case was a driving while intoxicated matter, informed the Judge he had a strong case and had the officers testify about why they did not want to proceed.

"As the Municipal Prosecutor," the Court papers said, "Kress bears some responsibility for an allegedly strong driving while intoxicated case being dismissed for an improper reason."

Police Probe Shows Officers Followed Rules After Hearing In Clark

The Court also found Norton cannot escape responsibility for his actions because they were instrumental in causing Donnelly's case to be dismissed.

"A court relies on the integrity of counsel to limit discussions with the arresting officers to the facts surrounding the arrest and not to use the meeting as an opportunity to suggest to the officers they 'dump' the case. Norton's suggestion the police officers give his client a 'break' was purposely ambiguous," the Supreme Court found.

Both Norton and Kress, experienced municipal court attorneys, knew the driving while intoxicated charge had been improperly dismissed, the Court found, and "an attorney's loyalty to his client can never override the professional loyalty owed to the justice system. Although neither Kress nor Norton lied to the court, they were not completely candid. Their silence led to the improper disposition of a driving while intoxicated charge, a dismissal they both knew was wrong. Under the circumstances, both attorneys had an ethical duty to advise the court of the possible miscarriage of justice."

The Court also found because there was no distinction in terms of culpability between Norton and Kress, each was responsible for the dismissal of the charge against Donnelly, and both were to be suspended for the same three-month time period from the practice of law.
