OPPONENTS WARNED DISRUPTIONS OF THE HEARING COULD HURT THEIR CAUSE

ShopRite Experts Intensely Questioned On Traffic Impact From Proposed Store

Foes Complain About Increased Noise, Pollution and Property Taxes If Application Is Given Approval; Board Members Express Concern About Vehicles Being Diverted From Other Streets to the Market

By PAUL J. PEYTON
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader
Representatives of Springfield-based Village Supermarkets, Inc. faced intense questioning from members of both the Westfield and Garwood Planning Boards during the fifth consecutive joint hearing last Thursday on the 58,864-square-foot ShopRite supermarket proposed for the North Avenue site of Westfield Lumber and Home Center on the Westfield-Garwood border.

A second flyer stated, "ShopRite is wrong for the Westfield Lumberyard site. It is far too big."
The flyer said the lumberyard is a "potentially-contaminated site."
It also stated the area has "plenty" of supermarkets.
The public did not have the opportunity to speak at the meeting, since the application must first be fully presented before objections to it are allowed.
Throughout the hearings, the boards have permitted the public to comment on each of Village's experts at the conclusion of each expert's testimony. Henry Ney, Village's traffic expert, has been questioned on his testimony over the past two hearings.

During his testimony Thursday, Mr. Ney noted the supermarket and the North Avenue Plaza strip mall would share the same parking facilities and thus create a shopping center.
He said the total square footage of both facilities would be in the 73,000 range. The strip mall is about 14,800 square feet and the proposed ShopRite would be close to 59,000.

Garwood Planning Board member Raymond Wolf noted the supermarket would be the first major retail establishment on the north side of the railroad tracks, North Avenue, between Elizabeth and Plainfield.
"We've gone from an industrial area to a shopping area," he said.

Ban on Skateboarding Could Be Moved Back

Councilmen to Consult Library Board of Trustees About Allowing Sports on Lot When Building's Closed

By ROBERT R. FASZCZEWSKI
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

The Town Council may backpedal from one of the restrictions it passed last month on rollerblading and skateboarding, following an appeal by youths at last Wednesday's meeting of the council.
The youths, objecting to the recently-enacted ordinance which bans the sports at the parking lots on both sides of the Westfield Railroad Station and at the Westfield Memorial Library parking lot, complained the Roosevelt Intermediate School lot many of them use is not smooth enough for the sport and requested the use of the library lot on Sundays when the library is not open.
Mayor Garland C. "Bud" Boothe, Jr. replied the youths should take their plea for better maintenance of the Roosevelt lot to the Board of Education, under whose jurisdiction the lot is governed.
The Mayor and his fellow council members, however, agreed to explore with the library Board of Trustees the possibility of allowing rollerblading and skateboarding on the library lot when the building is closed.

He noted, however, the practice might not be allowed if the library Board decided to open the building on Sundays, a concept which it has been studying lately.
In another matter related to traffic, the council adopted an ordinance delineating stop-sign intersections at seven locations around the town.
The signs will be erected on Pine Street at its intersections with Ripley Avenue, Irving Avenue, Grandview Avenue and Columbus Avenue, at Eaglecroft Road at its intersection with Coleman Place, Hanford Place and Embree Crescent and on Florida Street at the intersection of Wyoming Street.
Transportation, Parking and Traffic Safety Committee member James Hely noted many motorists were unaware these intersections, and others, in the town were unmarked and both drivers often think they have the right-of-way, thus resulting in many accidents, including one to

Play That Uses 'F' Word Repeatedly Draws Heavy Criticism From Parents

Contract Negotiations Stall With Teachers' Union Over Health-Care Benefits And Wage Package; Health Costs Are About 13 Per Cent of the Budget

By TUCKER TRIMBLE
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

Forced into a larger room to accommodate the well over 100 people attending the Tuesday meeting of the Westfield Board of Education, board members listened as a group of parents reacted to the recent Westfield High School performance of Moon Children written by Michael Weller. The play concerns the lives of a small group of college students in the 1960's.
Mrs. Kathleen Heintze of Floral Court spoke about her reactions to seeing the play last Friday evening, and the implications involved in the explicit sexual subject matter.
"Our children are being given double messages," she said. "They're not allowed to attend an 'R' rated movie, but it's okay for them to attend an 'R' rated play performed by their fellow students in their local high school. The 'F' word was used 51 times."
"How can such denigrating expressions benefit young, impressionable minds?"
"If the newspaper will not print some of the lines from this play — and rightfully so — then why were our children subjected to such indecency? Instead of educating our children — education including the nurturing and building of moral character — we are 'applauding' the use of profanity and the playing of roles of those who do not represent decent, educated members of society."

condoms to prevent the spread of the HIV virus is "hardly what one could consider a good AIDS prevention policy."
"Why aren't the students being told that the natural flaw in latex rubber condoms is anywhere between 50 to 500 times larger than the AIDS virus?" she asked. "We are literally telling our children to play Russian Roulette! When are we going to start to teach that there is such a thing as right and wrong?"
Stephen Heintze also spoke about the changing norms in the classrooms. Ten years ago, words like "masturbate" and "condom" were not spoken in the schools, he said, "but someone drew a line and now they are. Where is the line now to be drawn and who is to draw it?" He told board members that in a recent speech class a student demonstrated how to put a condom on a banana and was praised for his bravery.
George Hogan from Shadowlawn Drive also told the board of his concerns about the play. "This is not about the first amendment and artistic license," he said. "This is about common decency and community values."

"I don't know how anyone could have sat through this play," added Mrs. Mary Catherine Nagengast of Westbrook Road. "We are giving mixed messages to our children. This is not proper," she said. "Where is our moral education going? Where do we teach morals?" she asked. "I want to be a part of what my daughter is exposed to."
Amanda Irwin, a high school junior and co-director of the play along with senior, David Wells, read a statement from the absent Mr. Weller, part of which follows:
"I chose this play to direct for fairly simple reasons. I felt that the characters, humor and relationships depicted in the play all supported a powerful message which I considered especially appropriate for our time.
"I also felt that much of the language which may be considered offensive offered a necessary insight into the characters."

Town High School Officials Refuse To Censor Students Over Play

A Parent Considers Language Used Offensive and Sending Wrong Message

By ROBERT R. FASZCZEWSKI
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

Westfield High School officials have decided a complaint objecting to language used in a play held two weeks ago at the school is not sufficient reason to impose what they consider censorship of student-produced theater.
The play, Moon Children, was presented on June 4 by the school's Repertory Theater, whose purpose it is to allow students in high school drama programs to go beyond the scope of the fall drama and spring musical presented each year as part of the standard curriculum, according to English teacher, Mrs. Beverly Geddis, who is the advisor to the program.
Mrs. Geddis said the students are allowed to write or produce their own plays for the Repertory Theater or to select plays which already have been presented elsewhere and to direct or produce them at the high school.
She added although the children have much leeway to choose scripts, faculty members do exercise some control over what is presented.
Moon Children, she noted, was presented in London in 1972 or 1973 and Off Broadway in the mid-1970s.
It traces the lives of several college students during the later part of the Vietnam War, their struggles to decide what course their future will take and their protest against the war, Mrs. Geddis added.
In a telephone call to school Principal, Dr. Robert G. Petix, and in a letter to the Editor which appears on Page 4 of today's Westfield Leader a parent, Mrs. Kathleen Heintze, has objected to obscene language used in the play.
Dr. Petix told The Leader on Thursday he had received a message that Mrs. Heintze was concerned about the language in the play and about other programs in the school system, such as sex education courses in which abstinence was not emphasized as the primary means of birth control.

He said she has informed school officials she was going to make her concerns public and would rally support for her position, although he has not had a chance to speak with Mrs. Heintze.

The Principal noted, just as he encourages parents to make their objections to any school program known, he also encourages teachers to guide their students in selecting productions appropriate to the maturity level of students viewing the plays.

Environmental Regulations Could Halt Ewan Plan

Town to Accept Fewer Lots to Avoid Being Turned Down

By ROBERT R. FASZCZEWSKI
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

The Town Council's plan to turn the largest open tract of land in Westfield, the Ewan Tract, into the Lexington Heights subdivision may be derailed by bureaucratic changes in the state and federal governments.
The council, several months ago, hired a consultant to help it decide whether to apply for exemption from state wetlands regulations on the tract on the basis of the fact the subdivision was planned before the regulations became law, and it was not completed only because Mount Laurel litigation brought a halt to the town's plans.
If the exemption is not granted, the town only would be allowed to build on 16 of the 28 lots originally mapped out because 12 of the lots border on wetlands.
This alternative would require the filing of a letter of intention in order for the wetlands to be delineated and resource values to be set for them, Town Engineer Edward A. Gotko said at Tuesday's council conference session.
The town's choice might be between mapping out 16 lots and not having a subdivision, Mr. Gotko noted.
The choice for the town would seem simple — file for the exemption in order to preserve the 16 lots and the income from each, estimated at $150,000 to $175,000.
The problem comes because the federal Army Corps of Engineers currently regulates all fresh water areas in the state under federal law, and, under current regulations, they would have to be consulted after the town's exemption was granted by the state.
The Army Corps, according to Mr. Gotko, probably would uphold the exemption.

Enter the state Department of Environmental Protection and energy, which has applied to the federal government to administer federal freshwater regulations in the state in place of the Army Corps.
If that application is approved, which is expected shortly, all letters of exemption would be disallowed and, if sites such as the Ewan Tract are not under "substantial construction" by Friday, December 31, of next year, the exemption for transition areas between the wetlands and the proposed buildable lots would be disallowed.
This, according to the Engineer, probably would mean the disallowance of the entire project.
In the worst-case scenario, Town Administrator John F. Malloy, Jr. said Tuesday, the Ewan Tract would have to be turned into a park.
Mr. Gotko said the state takeover of federal regulations probably would

Holy Trinity Pupils 'Explore' Many Far Away Places

Fourth through eighth graders at Holy Trinity Interparochial School "traveled" around the world in search of Mrs. Theresa Ancharki's sixth-grade social studies class. As part of their world history studies, the sixth graders chose a country of their heritage for a written report and a major presentation to which the other students were invited.

"Visitors" who searched the world were given a program listing the students and the countries they represented as well as a "passport" to be signed by the country's representative. Ethnic foods prepared by sixth graders and their parents were available for sampling.

Each country had its own display table with items of interest from the country, and the students personalized the display with a family tree and a poster representing important facts about their country. Some students gave a demonstration from their ethnic background including clarinet playing of a Polish Polka, pasta making from Italy and Irish dancing.

Vacation Reading Club Soon Begins at Library

The rules for both clubs are outlined in a special summer program sheet available at the Children's Desk.

Reading Club members will receive instructions and a reading-record booklet. For every five books completed, members may "lose" to win a circus prize and will earn a display "ball" with their name to add to the jugglers' challenge. For finishing 20 books, members will earn a "special" display ball and a certificate of merit.

Readers looking for a special challenge, may read 10 books in required categories and join the High-Wire Daredevils.

Lee Hale Re-Elected Head Of the Westfield Foundation

Lee M. Hale was re-elected President of the Westfield Foundation Board of Trustees at the foundation's annual meeting. The board also awarded more than $19,000 in grants to various local organizations.

Richard C. Griggs was elected Vice President of the foundation's board and Edward J. Hobbie, Secretary. Leo J. Senus was re-elected Treasurer.

Approximately $11,000 was allocated for the Summer Youth Employment Program of the foundation. Through this program, eight Westfield area agencies are able to offer summer jobs to young Westfielders. The participating agencies this year are Westfield Day Care Center, the New Jersey Workshop for the Arts, Children's Specialized Hospital, the Westfield Memorial Library, the Westfield-Mountainside Chapter of the American Red Cross, Washington Rock Girl Scouts Council, the United Fund of Westfield and the Westfield Neighborhood Council.

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Foundation's Summer Youth Employment Program which has previously relied on matching financial support from the Westfield business community. In recent years, that support has been lagging, but the foundation has continued the program because the trustees believe it is so worthwhile. Mr. Hale pointed out the foundation is strongly encouraging local citizens to donate funds for this program.

The United Fund of Westfield was granted $2,500 to help finance the purchase of a new copying machine.

The Westfield Community Band was given $2,228 to purchase 25 musical arrangements and the necessary equipment in which to safely store and transport them.

The Westfield-Mountainside Chapter of the American Red Cross received a grant of $2,100 to paint the exterior of their 110-year-old headquarters on Elm Street.

Project Graduation - Bash '93, the all-night substance-free party for Westfield High School seniors on graduation night, was given a $1,000 grant.

Five hundred dollars was allocated to the Westfield-based Choral Arts Society of New Jersey, Inc. to underwrite the cost of free tickets for senior citizens at the society's May and January concerts.

Mr. Hale also announced the foundation was immensely pleased to be able to send a previously allocated matching $1,000 grant to the Hi's Eye, Westfield High School's student-run weekly newspaper.

Last fall, the 1992-1993 staff of the newspaper was confronted with debts of $7,700 accumulated since 1985, as well as escalating operational costs. The foundation allocated a matching grant, contingent upon the staff's ability to raise that amount through staff fundraising. The Hi's Eye staff has raised $2,711 through leaf-raking and car wash projects.

The Westfield Foundation, the town's own community foundation, is a non-profit philanthropic organization whose purpose is to maintain and enhance the quality of life in Westfield. Further information about the Foundation can be obtained by contacting the Executive Director, Mrs. Freia Mitarai, at 233-9787, or writing the Westfield Foundation, P.O. Box 2295, Westfield, 07091.

HONORED BY STUDENTS... Dr. Tina Leshor of Westfield, an Assistant Professor of Communication at William Paterson College in Wayne, was presented with a Students First Award by student Domenick Stampono during a recent ceremony at the college. The awards were created by the Class of 1993 to honor faculty, administrators and staff who exemplify "putting students first" by a consistent commitment to helping, believing and caring for students.

THE 6TH DECADE

As You Get Older, You're Drying Out!

By Herb Ross

As you get older you get drier! Yep, you dry out and you find your largest "organ," your skin, very dry and flaky.

But wait, there is an answer — Vaseline! It's cheap and it works. Okay, it's a gooey mess but most dermatologists prefer petroleum jelly to seal in the moisture.

Left untreated dry skin can become a problem and eventually you can get rashes that require a doctor's care.

Repeat the winter in Florida and the tropical climate is negated by the air conditioning drying blasts.

If you find that any kind of petroleum jelly is too "cloying," the next step is to find the densest and heaviest moisturizer you can stand. Remember creams are better than lotions and ointments are better than creams.

Some of the brand names high on the list recommended by dermatologists are:

- 1. Moisturel
2. Curel

- 3. Eucerin
4. Lubriderm
5. Nivea

For persistent roughness on heels, elbows and legs, dermatologists often recommend lactic acid. "I'll call these "Educated Moisturizers," says Dr. Nia Terezakis, a clinical professor of dermatology at Tulane University School of Medicine, New Orleans.

"The acid reprograms surface cells so they retain moisture better and shed more normally instead of flaking off in clumps." Lactic acid can be found in several drugstore lotions, including Lac-Hydrin and Eucerin Plus. The cause of dry skin deals with the lipids; as we get older, we seem to lose the ability to make natural body oils — women in their sixth decade and men in their eighth decade — and the wrinkles will come from dryness.

So get out those creams, lotions and vaseline and put an end to being dry.

POPCORN™

Life With Mikey Doesn't Live Up to Its Potential

By Michael Goldberger

One Popcorn, Poor • Two Popcorns, Fair • Three Popcorns, Good • Four Popcorns, Excellent

3 popcorns

A good premise suffers from lack of self esteem in Life With Mikey, a film that doesn't give itself a fair shake. Right from the opening credits it becomes apparent that the filmmakers are hell-bent on movie mediocrity, unconcerned with their product's potential. They succeed in producing a neither here nor there effort about a once-upon-a-time child star, Mikey, who now begrudgingly works as a talent agent, reluctantly priming today's screen-struck cherubs for work in show biz...or, at least commercials — maybe.

Washed up at age 15, the now 31-year-old Michael Chapman was America's favorite kid via a 1970s sitcom that now loans its name for this film's title. Acted by Michael J. Fox, who puts in his now all-too-familiar, nonchalant style of portrayal, Mikey suffers from a case of nostalgia, self-pity and general lack of direction.

Unable to throw himself fully into the talent agency he runs with his brother, the title character assures that life with the current Mikey is a series of half-hearted efforts — that is, until he meets Angie.

Ultimately stealing his heart, but starting with his wallet, the culprit is Angela Vega, an astute but rather mysterious street urchin who proves quite the adversary. A pick-pocket, the pint-sized Greta Garbo wants to be left alone; the former child phenom wants to harness her enchanting style of chutzpah for the good of talent agents Chapman & Chapman. While they probably envision their new find as the next Shirley Temple, a cookie commercial worth $250,000 is the first object of conquest. Lured by the numbers, Angie finally decides to give it a go.

The world of commercials represents a considerable culture shock for young Miss Vega, acted well enough by Christina Vidal. The Hispanic gal is the angry product of a broken home and has been living by her wits for several months. Seeking to protect his investment, Mikey takes Angela in and makes her resume school — no mean feat, incidentally.

What follows is roughly derivative of the Pygmalion play, making for a kiddie version of My Fair Lady as Angie Vega learns to walk the walk and talk the talk; concurrently, Mikey's supposed to be finding new sensitivity in a meaningful life worth living. The archetype for this angle in films is Little Miss Marker, the 1930s winsome classic starring Miss Temple and the always dapper Adolph Menjou. Unfortunately, neither Miss Vega nor Mr. Fox do the least bit of thespian thing to challenge the memory of that old standard.

Still, the film boasts some good scenes, especially when the camera is focusing on the plethora of would-be child stars roaming the halls, anterooms, and audition stage of Chapman & Chapman, interminably shrieking their proclaimed talents.

Again, it's a miniature version, but this time reminiscent of the border entertainment abilities displayed by Broadway Danny Rose's clients in Woody Allen's film of the same name. This motley crew of young wannabe's gives the movie a form of conviviality it should be establishing in other aspects of the screenplay as well.

However, Life With Mikey is inconsistent, spotty and lacking in artistic impetus. As someone's labor of love it would have had a soul, and hence half a chance of propounding some semi-profound bits of profundity. As it stands, simply going through the motions, Life With Mikey doesn't live its filmic life to the fullest.

Traffic Impact of the Proposed ShopRite Store Debated adding traffic volume will increase in an area that presently sees local street traffic.

"It will change the complexion of these neighborhoods. I sit on the corner and, believe me, it will be changed," he said.

Mr. Wolf said drivers will look for shortcuts to avoid the new traffic signal proposed for the main entrance to the parking lot of the supermarket at North Avenue and Chestnut Street.

Mr. Ney noted any increased traffic in the area would be caused by re-orientated trips of shoppers shopping at ShopRite rather than the other food stores in the area.

The traffic expert added the bulk of the traffic or about 71 per cent coming to the facility would be from Westfield and Garwood with 18 per cent from Cranford and the remaining 10 per cent from neighboring communities such as Mountainside. Mountainside does not have a supermarket within its boundaries. Its only food store is a 7-Eleven.

Westfield board member Robert L. Newell asked Mr. Ney to explain why there would be a 40 per cent increase in traffic 150 feet west of Chestnut Street on North Avenue.

He said the total westbound traffic weekdays, as provided in Mr. Ney's report, is 13,800 westbound and 9,100 eastbound. Mr. Newell figured the increase is due to traffic going eastbound on South Avenue instead.

"I'm going to assume for argument sake there are an extra 4,000 cars going eastbound on South Avenue. That's one of the reasons we feel it is important to have southbound, South Avenue, traffic monitored not just northbound or North Avenue," Mr. Newell said. "Will the ShopRite draw some of that traffic, eastbound on South Avenue, to North Avenue, because it is a destination?"

Mr. Ney said 25 per cent of the traffic would be considered passby traffic or existing traffic. The other 75 per cent would be new traffic to the area drawn to the new supermarket.

As stated in Mr. Ney's traffic report, a copy of which was retained by The Westfield Leader, as was a copy of the report of Eric Keller of Keller and Kirkpatrick, the boards professional planner, "It has been found retail uses may attract up to 50 per cent of their total trip generation from the existing flow on the adjacent roadway network."

In terms of 24-hour volume into the facility, Mr. Ney said the number of cars entering the shopping center results in an average daily two-way volume of 5,820 trips, Saturday volume of 7,525, and Sunday two-way volume of over 4,200.

Mr. Newell said with current traffic volume of 22,000 cars weekly on North Avenue, "You're saying we are going to have another 18,000 (per week) cars by the ShopRite."

Mr. Ney responded total traffic counts completed on January 13 show a total of 14,500 pieces of two-way traffic counted on North Avenue during a 24-hour period.

On Tuesday of that week, the count was 13,600 with Monday's count being around 10,000.

He said distribution from the site would be from the east, the west and the north.

Mr. Ney added when taking this into account the total volume onto North Avenue would be lower than Mr. Newell's estimate. He emphasized the total trips are re-oriented trips from other markets in the two communities.

"That's part of our concern is they, vehicles involved in the total traffic volume, all are reoriented onto North Avenue," responded Mr. Newell.

Board members from both towns, as well as an attorney representing a car dealership and a homeowner, respectively, who are opposing the supermarket, were critical of Mr. Ney for not providing a written report on 10 additional intersections that the boards had requested last month.

Mrs. Elizabeth H. List, acting as Westfield board Chairman in place of Douglas T. Schwarz, had asked Mr. Ney to provide traffic counts on these intersections and to give future estimates in relation to the ShopRite.

Mr. Ney reviewed only four potential traffic hot spots in his initial report. They were North Avenue, Route No. 28, Chestnut Street and North Avenue, Walnut Street and North Avenue and Center Street and South Avenue.

Jeffrey Lehrer, Village's attorney, noted Mr. Ney had told the boards last month he would provide the information verbally, but time constraints would in all likelihood prevent him from submitting a written report.

Brian Fahey, the attorney for Dr. and Mrs. Ulf Dolling of 641 Fourth Avenue, asked the boards to direct Mr. Ney to provide written documentation on the additional intersections.

Mr. Fahey said he was afraid Mr. Ney would answer criticisms raised by a report presented by Mr. Keller rather than present a written report on the intersections. He added this would not give the attorneys sufficient time to cross examine Mr. Ney on the information.

"This is our case and we can present it how we see fit," responded Mr. Lehrer.

After several outbursts by those in attendance during Mr. Ney's testimony, Craig Greenawald, attorney for the Garwood Board, noted the negative impact these interruptions could have on the outcome of the case.

"Permit me to point out the consequences of cutting your own throat. If the transcripts of these proceedings reveal the boards were unable to control the audience, and the board turns down the application, that could give good grounds for a court-directed decision the applicant be given permission to build the shopping center he wants," Mr. Greenawald said, adding the court might feel the boards were influenced by opponents of the supermarket.

Later in the hearing William S. Jeremiah, 2nd, the Westfield board Attorney, noted, "This is not the sixth grade."

He noted "common courtesy" allows the applicant to be heard.

One of the criticisms in Mr. Keller's report was Mr. Ney's traffic analysis directed traffic to and from the proposed supermarket via Route No. 28 and Lincoln Avenue instead of Center Street or Central Avenue.

"We basically routed traffic through the most convenient roadway that would service the properties to the south of the site," Mr. Ney said, noting that secondary roads were not taken into account because of the unlikelihood of significant traffic increases.

Mr. Keller, in his report, recommended a change in the parking scheme.

Mr. Ney said the plan would place

40 per cent of the parking west of the facility's center driveway. He said, in essence, most of the shoppers during weekdays would tend to park in this lot to get close to the store.

He added this would increase the danger of injuries to pedestrians since the center driveway is at the entrance to the store.

Mr. Keller's suggestion was made in attempt to reduce traffic flow in front of the store.

Mr. Ney said Mr. Keller's proposal would defeat the need for the Chestnut Street-North Avenue proposed traffic signal since traffic would exit mostly using the center driveway which would be west of the Chestnut Street entrance.

As stated in his report, "The central-access driveway is important to minimize circulation within the parking lot."

In discussing the additional intersections as requested by the board, Mr. Ney said the current combined traffic volume at North and Hillcrest Avenues and Elmer and Elm Streets would be 130 vehicular trips during the evening peak hours and 196 during the Saturday peak time.

The traffic flow at South Chestnut and East Broad Streets would be 74 trips during the evening peak hours and 100 during the Saturday peak time, he noted.

"It would appear the intersection is a candidate for signalization," Mr. Ney said.

With signalization on Chestnut Street at North Avenue, Mr. Ney said traffic volumes would not have an impact at the East Broad Street and Euclid Avenue intersection. He said the South and Central Avenue intersection would have 40 vehicular trips during the evening peak hours and 58 during Saturday peak time.

The East Broad Street-North Avenue intersection would have 53 vehicular trips in the evening and 80 on Saturday. The South Avenue-Center Street corner would have volume of 65 cars in the evening and 97 on Saturdays, according to the traffic expert.

At the request of Westfield Mayor Garland C. "Bud" Boothe, Jr., traffic counts were taken with use of electronic traffic counters placed to the north and south of Fourth Avenue on South Chestnut Street. The counts had previously been done in December.

Mayor Boothe said he wanted a count in June due to baseball season which causes increased traffic use near Gumbert Park.

Mr. Ney said the December night peak hours were 81 trips southbound on South Chestnut and 76 northbound. In June the count was 88 southbound and 90 northbound. During peak time on Saturday in December the count was 71 vehicles south and 75 northbound with June counts of 95 south and 84 north.

Mr. Ney said the primary north and south route to the store would be via Chestnut Street while east and westbound traffic would use Route No. 28. Any increases in volume on local streets would reduce traffic on these two main thoroughfares.

The next meeting will be on Thursday, July 8, at the Washington School.

On May 20 the Westfield Symphony Orchestra Guild honored Margaret O'Connell of Watchung Fork in Westfield with the Volunteer of the Year Award for her contribution of time to the Junior Guild.

A student at the Roosevelt Intermediate School, Margaret is the Treasurer of the Student Council and particularly likes French and clay sculpture.

Also, she is involved in all kinds of musical activities. She plays the clarinet in the band and sings in the Sharps and Flats. She even plays in the Westfield Soccer Association on the traveling team and on the in-town soccer team.

As a Junior Guild member, she had an opportunity to hear the concerts which she loved. She helped out at collecting tickets and ushering.

Also, she was able to attend the post-concert parties, where she served everything from hors d'oeuvres to chocolates.

The Junior Guild also gets involved in the Gala, an annual Symphony Ball. Because the theme this year was Evening of Stars, the Junior Guild members dressed up as such stars as Charlie Chaplin, Marilyn Monroe and Lauren Bacall.

The seniors in the guild may receive a letter of recommendation from Kenneth Hopper, the Executive Director of the Westfield Symphony, for their college applications as a demonstration of their community involvement. This year senior Allison McEnerney added such a letter to her college applications.

For further information about the Junior Guild, please telephone 232-9400.

Storm Cuts Path of Destruction Across Both Sides of Town

By ROBERT R. FASZCZEWSKI
Specially Written for The Westfield Leader

The thunderstorm which cut a huge and destructive swathe across Northern and Central New Jersey on June 9 also left deep marks in many neighborhoods in Westfield and a minor dent in the town treasury.

Approximately 20 trees were uprooted on both sides of the town, according to Town Engineer Edward A. Gottko, although there were more trees knocked down on the North side and more power outages on the South side.

Orenda Circle, Parkview Avenue, Raymond Street and South Chestnut Street were the areas most affected by uprootings of trees, Mr. Gottko added, but most of the good-sized trees were split at the top.

Wires were downed on Boulevard off South Avenue and near the Duncan Hill apartment complex on Central Avenue, he noted, with tree limbs landing on power lines on Summit Avenue and Grove and Clifton Streets, causing residences in those areas to be without power for much of last Wednesday, and the same situation on Rahway Avenue with the power out until the morning of June 10.

The power to some of the homes in the town was not restored until late on June 10, the Engineer said.

Public works tree crews, which normally work only during the day, were kept until 10 p.m. on June 9 to keep as many roads open as possible, he noted.

The Public Works Department logged approximately 50 manhours in straight time and in overtime, according to Mr. Gottko, and the overtime bill due to the storm was estimated at $5,000.

Meanwhile, the Fire Department answered 27 calls due to the storm.

SECOND STRIKE...For the second time this spring, a severe rain and windstorm wreaked havoc in Westfield, with trees and wires down. Here a fireman guards Tremont Avenue, where a tree has fallen on a car, pulling down electrical cables. William Burke for The Westfield Leader

SPLIT DECISION...A tree breaks over a Maye Street home during the June 9 storm, which whipped through the town with winds clocked up to 80 miles per hour. Gail Corbin for The Westfield Leader

WITHIN REACH...Westfield firefighters clean up debris in front of a Maye Street residence during last Wednesday's storm using the new 110-foot ladder truck. Gail Corbin for The Westfield Leader

INSTANT CONVERTIBLE...A tree lies across the roof of a car after the June 9 storm struck Parkview Avenue. Gail Corbin for The Westfield Leader

BACK TO ITS ROOTS...The June 9 storm uprooted this tree in front of a Raymond Street home and left it across an adjacent driveway. Gail Corbin for The Westfield Leader

Come to Where the Calla Lilies Are Always in Bloom

A PLACE IN THE PARK

By PAUL LANDRY

Paul Landry's memory, imagination, and artistic talent are prodigious. He loves the simple pleasures of the New England sea and shore, and fills his vision of America's halcyon days with flowers and flags. Things were simpler and cleaner then, and that's what Paul Landry captures and shares with an expressive and lush oil painting technique.

A Place in the Park is a peaceful and flower-filled image. On one hand, bright and bold; on the other, soft and delicate, these blooms come in a bountiful and beautiful variety of shapes, textures, and fragrances. There are calla lilies, impatiens, shrubs, and groundcovers.

Beyond the obvious abundance of plants, Landry shows his skill in more subtle ways. His lily pads are highlighted by the sunshine. The tall and handsome trees create interesting shade patterns across the park and artful reflections across the water.

"I always enjoy park setting — for all they teach and for what they have to share with all who take the time to notice," Landry says. "There is no end to the impression they make on my heart and soul. Why not stop and listen to nature's conversations?"

Why not indeed? R.S.V.P. to Landry's invitation by reserving your own special seat from which to view A Place in the Park. Visit your authorized Greenwich Workshop dealer to find this idyllic image of peace, beauty, and quiet.

Admission is $2.50 per person and $2.10 for seniors citizens.

Children under 6 years old will not be admitted.

The Diabetes Center of New Jersey, which is affiliated with Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center in Plainfield, conducts a variety of courses to teach those with diabetes, or those who cook for people with diabetes, how to eat well and healthfully.

School Officials Won't Censor Play

For "artistic and programming reasons," Dr. Petix said, some of the scenes in Moon Children were cut or toned down, but in order to keep the play in its proper context, it was not felt appropriate to "obliterate" the language used.

Neither Dr. Petix nor Mrs. Geddis could recall objections to other controversial plays previously presented at the school or any objections beyond those of Mrs. Hintze to Moon Children.

In fact, the presentation of Remember My Name, the play about the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome quilt presented last year, accomplished a worthwhile goal in heightening awareness of the disease, the Principal added.

Students are told in advance of the content of plays which the Repertory Theater chooses to present, he noted, and they do have the choice of not attending the production.

Dr. Petix also said repertory productions, by their nature are more avant garde than other productions.

He noted he had faith in his staff and, "I am unconvinced a few words which we may find offensive are sufficient reason to impose censorship."

Board of Education Will Meet on Tuesday

The Westfield Board of Education will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, June 22, in the Board Meeting Room at 302 Elm Street.

The purpose of the special meeting is to firm up some end-of-the-year business and to appoint a Washington School Principal and a Supervisor of Fine Arts for the school district.

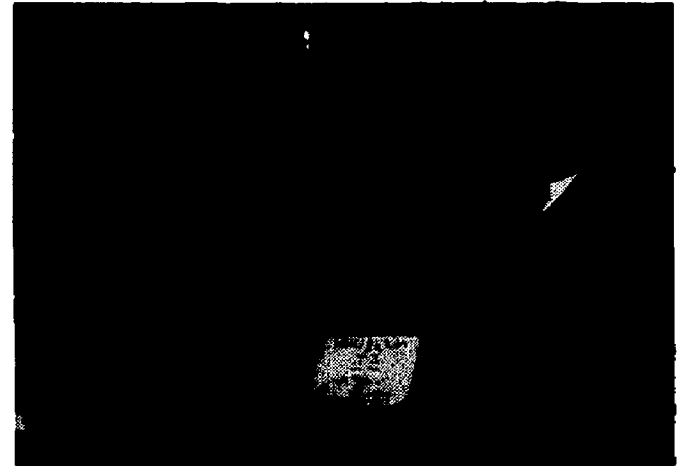

School Superintendent, Dr. Mark C. Smith, has been working with advisory committees in searching for the new Principal and Fine Arts Supervisor.

The school district received over 100 applications for the Principal position and over 60 for the fine arts position. The two positions need to be filled due to the retirements of Franklin School Principal, Mrs. Faith Divisek, and Mrs. Jean McDermott, the Supervisor of Fine Arts.

Washington School needs a new Principal because Kenneth Wark, the Washington Principal for the past five years, was named to replace Mrs. Divisek as the Principal of Franklin in May.

The special school board meeting is open to the public, with time allowed for public questions, comments and suggestions.

Franklin Students Learn About Vowels and Bunnies

Kindergartners at Franklin School recently climbed into a large plastic bubble.

The children heard a book called The Biggest Bubble in the World, which was read by the teachers who were also inside the bubble.

This activity was one of the multi-sensory approaches used to reinforce the study of the "u" vowel.

The bubble was loaned to the kindergarten by Diane Genco, the mother of kindergarten teacher Willa Schaefer. This summer, the teachers hope to make a bubble of their own to be kept at Franklin School.

To celebrate the 100th birthday of Beatrix Potter, the kindergartners at Franklin School heard a storyteller retell stories of Peter Rabbit and his friends.

The children learned how the books were written and a little of the history of her life.

The program was sponsored by the school's Parent-Teacher Association.

Students can sign up for either a four- or five-week program, and take between one and five classes each day at the Edison Intermediate School in Westfield. Workshop classes are open to all New Jersey residents.

Students will be able to learn a new craft this summer or continue perfecting a favorite. They can sign up now for airbrush painting, jewelry making, tie-dye and batik, mask making, mixed crafts and puppetry. The new juggling course offered by the workshop still has room for those in fourth to sixth grades to join in while ballet, twirling, Step Aerobics and magic are not yet filled. Language courses with openings include French, Spanish and the "Latin Lives!" course.

The courses offered by the workshop are taught by certified adult teachers, many with Master's Degrees and who are professional musicians, artists and dancers.

The workshop's music department is busy tuning up to teach beginning through advanced students, string, woodwind, brass and percussion instruments. Ensemble playing is offered in the concert-band or jazz-band course, and for those who like to sing and dance, a Musical-Theater Chorus class is available. Private music lessons are available for all levels in the afternoon and in the evening. Music instruction is available all year long to allow the students continued musical development.

For under $4 an hour, students will enjoy classes and all courses are offered at one school.

Workshop classes are held Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Early drop-off at 7:30 a.m. and late pickup at 1:30 p.m. are available. ## Variety of Nature Found At Trailside This Summer

Trailside Nature and Science Center, which is located on Coles Avenue, Mountainside, beginning next month, will offer nature-related programs for pre-schoolers up to eighth-grade students.

The center's location in the Watchung Reservation with its 2,000 acres of field, streams and forests provides a perfect environment for programs about geology, "Trailside Rockers," fish, "Something Fishy," dinosaurs, "Dino-Mite," wetlands, "Wet and Wild," Indians, "Lenape Lore," and astronomy, "Astro-Nuts." In "Trailside Rockers" participants, first and second graders, will discover through hands-on activities the difference between a rock and mineral, search for volcanic rocks and start their own rock collection or add to one. It will be held Monday, July 19, and Tuesday, July 20, from 9:15 to 11:45 a.m.

The "original people" of New Jersey lived in harmony with the land. Participants in "Lenape Lore" on Wednesday and Thursday, July 28 and 29, or on Monday and Tuesday, August 9 and 10, from 1 to 3 p.m. will discover secrets, hear legends, play Lenape games and sample some Lenape food.

First and second grades will enjoy "Something Fishy" from Monday through Thursday, July 19 to 22, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. or August 2 to 5 from 10:30 a.m. to noon as they sample Surprise Lake using special nets and other pond equipment. Students will release the wild fish but will take home their very own fish to keep on the last day of class.

Third-through fifth-grade students will learn how to identify birds by flight, field markings and shape in "Junior Birders," offered on Thursdays, July 22, 29 and August 5, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Other topics for this age group include weather, solar energy and geology.

In "Dino-Mite," pre-schoolers, 4 and 5 year olds who have not completed first grade, will travel back in time to the days of the "terrible lizards," be a paleontologist and make a cast of a real dinosaur footprint.

Other programs for this age group include "Natural Beginnings," a four-day program designed to heighten a child's awareness of the natural world through discovery games, field excursions and crafts; "Feathers, Fur and Scales," also a four-day program about different animal groups using some live examples, and "Going Buggy," a tour of "Bug Haven" to get children excited about insects through explorations, crafts and stories.

Fees for programs vary. Registration for all programs is required and class sizes are limited. Please telephone Trailside at 789-3670 to receive brochures or for more information.

Echo Lake Country Club, Formed From Indian Land, Merged Two Organizations

Editor's Note: The following is a history of Echo Lake Country Club of Westfield based on the book, Echo Lake Country Club—Ninety Years in the Forefront of New Jersey Golf, written by Leo M. Hale of Westfield, the former Assistant Treasurer of Merck & Co., Inc. of Rahway, who joined Echo Lake in 1965 and served on its Board of Trustees from 1969 to 1975.

ON THE FIFTH...The 365-yard, Par 4 fifth hole at Echo Lake is another hole where any drive between the fairway bunkers or beyond is okay. The ledge green is big, but one of the most heavily fortified on the course with bunkering back and front. It also is advisable to keep the approach shot below the flagstick, as anything else is a downhill putt and deceptively fast.

Donald Ross designed the club's golf course in 1912. The land upon which the club now exists was purchased from the Lenape Indians by Captain John Baker, on October 8, 1664. The parcel he bought extended westward from the Minisink Path, which ran through the state into much of this area, and comprised several square miles.

Thereafter known as the Baker Tract, the land had been part of a large grant from the Duke of York to Lord John Berkeley and Sir George Carteret.

Thus, Captain Baker secretly met with key Lenape chiefs on Staten Island in October, 1664 to transact the Elizabeth Town Purchase. It was so known from the name given to the area after Berkeley and Carteret assumed title.

The main settlement was named in honor of Lady Carteret, and the West Fields of Elizabeth Town included the acres of the golf course.

The new Baker Tract encompassed all of the land now owned by Echo Lake Country Club, as well as a substantial part of what is now Westfield, Mountainside, and other nearby towns.

There were many subsequent owners of the property, including David Harper and his wife, Mrs. Katie E. Harper, from whom the Cranford Golf Club purchased the greater part of the club's land on May 1, 1911.

Northern New Jersey was strategic during the Revolution, and in 1780 the Battle of Springfield was fought. Redcoats, fleeing the Colonials, cut into the woods and swamp close to what is now the western end of Echo Lake Park. They reached East Broad Street in Westfield via the road that is now Woodland Avenue, crossing the current 14th through 16th holes.

The railroad eventually developed residential Westfield and Cranford.

Some people decided to live in Westfield or Cranford (Craneville, as it was then called) and commute to their jobs in New York City. As the commutation service and the schools got better, there were more and more local residents, many of whom desired to play golf.

On August 28, 1899, a group of men met in the Township Rooms of Cranford "to find out," as LeRoy M. (Happy) Lyman put it, "if a golf club is wanted in Cranford."

Most of these men lived in Cranford or in other nearby towns. Shortly, a golf club was organized, $800 of the needed $4,000 was pledged, and the members voted to name the club after their town. The original charter obtained a few weeks after the meeting is still in effect.

Within a few days, the club had leased property on the south side of Cranford along Lincoln Avenue. The entrance, at Lincoln Avenue and what was then the end of South Union Avenue, was a short distance from the trolley line and the railroad station.

John C. Denman, the uncle of Rowde Denman and Denman Peniston, owned a large part of the property and charged the Cranford club only $1 per year. The club bought lots from F.B. Ham and from James W. Ferguson, and sold them to John Denman, who in turn included the properties in the lease. The balance of the land was leased — also for a tiny fee — from an aunt of the Denman brothers. Both leases were for indefinite periods and restricted the use of the property to golf.

About a month after its first organizational meeting, the Cranford Golf Club had 50 members. The other 50 necessary for the project were not long in coming. The Board of Trustees voted $3,000 for the erection of a clubhouse: A large room for dances, card parties, and teas; locker room and showers; a "cafe" and little kitchen; and, later on, a ladies' locker room, and then a porch.

Willie Dunn was the first foreign professional commissioned to design a golf course in America. He was brought over from Scotland to build a course for Shinnecock Hills in Southampton, which hosted the 1986 United States Open.

Willie also designed Lakewood Country Club, Scarsdale, Ardsley-on-Hudson, Jekyll Island, New Canaan and Royal Montreal.

In 1900, work on the property was begun. There were no sand traps, but there were bunkers; a fine nine holes resulted.

Opening day was May 26, 1900, when the cups were first put in the greens and the sandbuckets placed at the tees. Walter J. Travis, who attended one of the early course-design strategy sessions, later won the United States Amateur Championship, and became an honorary member of the Cranford Club on July 10, 1902.

Toward the end of 1910, led by W.W. Buckley, members began to look into the future. They believed the club had outgrown the Lincoln Avenue site, and definitely required an 18-hole course. Club ownership of a choice piece of property also was strongly desired.

William Buckley voiced his sentiments at the Board of Trustees meeting held on November 1, 1910. He proposed forming a committee consisting of the President and two other board members to inspect properties appropriate for a first class golf course.

The motion carried; Mr. Buckley and Frank Sloan joined President William Gallally in exploring nearly every parcel of open land within four miles of Cranford. After a month, they were convinced that the Harper Farm, often called Echo Lake Farm, was the spot.

A committee of five was appointed to prepare a plan to raise the necessary funds to acquire the farm, build a clubhouse, and construct an excellent golf course.

At the next Board meeting, on January 17, 1911, the committee adopted a plan to issue and sell $85,000 worth of 20-year second-mortgage bonds, callable at par 6 per cent. The active members approved the plan on February 2, 1911. Within a short time $60,000 of the bonds were sold and the Harper Farm was purchased. Dues for active members were raised to $40 per year.

Donald Ross, the most famous golf architect of the time, was engaged to design the course. He found much work for a steam shovel and other heavy earth-moving equipment within the property boundaries.

Mr. Ross's plans were approved and $6,000 was allocated for the building of a clubhouse. The fieldstone foundation is like a fortress. Stones, rubble, and boulders removed from the course were used — and posed later-year difficulties when the locker room was extended. The great chimney and fireplace were also built of stones unearthed during the golf course construction.

The clubhouse was located right where it is today. Long before the Echo Lake Country Park was envisioned, folks admired the view from the clubhouse's North side, though as time went on the golf course side became the focal point. The issue of tennis courts was on the agenda of a trustees meeting, but the high construction costs and lack of an appropriate site discouraged the board from building any.

George Low, golf professional at Baltusrol, together with Mr. I'Anson, supervised the course construction, and they followed Mr. Ross's plans with only a few deviations. It was ready for play in the spring of 1913. A group of members teed up at the Lincoln Avenue course in Cranford to play all the way to the 18th green of the new course by Echo Lake.

In 1913, the course was 6,247 yards long, or 373 yards shorter than it is today from the blue tees.

Here is a quotation from a periodical of the spring of 1913, "The Cranford Golf Club, having outgrown its original quarters, has just taken possession of its new 18 hole course, which is delightfully situated among the rolling hills on the shore of Echo Lake, and is acknowledged to be one of the finest in this country. The clubhouse, which is built on a high bluff overlooking the lake, is a model of beauty and convenience."

In 1920, a merger with the Westfield Golf Club came under consideration. Seeing the successful establishment of a golf club in its offspring town, a good part of Cranford having been within the bounds of Westfield until March 14, 1871, some of the boys of the older town lost no time organizing a golf club of their own.

Edwin R. Perkins was the club's first President. He was the general manager of the Aeolian Company and had just built a handsome residence at 31 Stoneleigh Park, Westfield, which was later home of the famous head professional of Baltusrol, Johnny Farrell.

On September 29, 1900, a group of gentlemen, which included Charles D. Orth, Edward D. Floyd, Harrison W. Gladwin, Paul Worcester, J. Allan Worth, J. Boyd Wilson, Edward J. Faulkner and Paul Q. Oliver, formed the Westfield Golf Club.

In 1900, a top requisite for the location of a golf course was it be convenient by railroad or by trolley. Properties were inspected, and the Osborn farm on Old Jerusalem Road in Scotch Plains, but just a few hundred feet past the Westfield line, was for sale. The purchase was made under the name of the Westfield Golf Club Realty Company, Inc.

The farmhouse was made over into an adequate clubhouse, and the barn was used to store equipment until it burned down. The course was planned by members themselves. There were woods, hills, brooks, a pond, a bog — a golf course architect's dream. Trolley tracks crossed the old first and second holes; convenient access was no problem.

In 1910, the Westfield Golf Club Realty Company sold about 50 acres on the other side of the trolley tracks, and with the proceeds purchased a large parcel of land at the far end of the course from the Warren Ackerman Estate. The Westfield Golf Club purchased the balance of this parcel, which was the first land ever owned outright by the club. An addition to the clubhouse was built and work was begun on the reconstruction of the course, four of the holes being entirely new from tees to greens. As nine holes had to be kept open for play during the period, the work took time. The new course measured 3,312 yards and an admirer called it "the best nine-hole course in the eastern states."

If the plans for the addition to the clubhouse and the new golf course had been delayed until 1911, or if the Cranford Golf Club had acquired Echo Lake Farm in 1910 instead of in 1911, it seems quite likely the merger of the two roots would have taken place at this time instead of in 1921.

Tennis courts were constructed and tennis became an important activity at the Westfield Golf Club. It was the third club in the world to install flood lights so tennis could be played after dark.

No minutes of meetings of members or of Trustees of the Westfield Golf Club survive. The old clubhouse later became the property of Shady Rest Country Club, Inc. and now is part of the Scotch Plains municipal course.

Over the next 20 years, the number of golfers in the country increased dramatically, but not the membership of Westfield.

There was some discussion of constructing another nine holes on adjacent property, but the consensus was if there was any expansion to be done, the entire course should be moved farther out into the country. But the number of active members had diminished to close to 125, such a project did not seem financially feasible.

The solution came in the form of a merger, and toward the Christmas holiday time of 1920, talks with Cranford became serious.

Neither club questioned the mutual benefits of a merger. The Cranford Golf Club had an excellent and valuable 18-hole golf course; the Westfield Golf Club had a fairly substantial equity in the saleable property along Jerusalem Road which, when turned into cash, would provide satisfactory working capital; and the number of good active members would be about 225.

Before many weeks had gone by the joint committee arrived at a plan.

At least 111 active members of the Westfield Golf Club were to go along as active members of the combination.

The charter of the Westfield Golf Club was to be terminated and the ensuing combination was to be operated under the charter of the Cranford Golf Club. All of the assets and liabilities of the Westfield Golf Club were to be transferred to the Cranford Golf Club.

Each of the 111 active members of the Cranford Golf Club, having paid — or having agreed to pay — $300 for his proprietary certificate, needed no further qualification. Each active member of the Westfield Golf Club going into the combination, having already paid $50 for a share of stock of the Westfield Golf Club, would be required to pay an additional $250 for his proprietary certificate of the new combination, redeemable at $300, but he would not be required to pay an initiation fee. Dues paid in advance at the Westfield Golf Club would be credited at the Cranford Golf Club.

The combination was to be given a name other than the Cranford Golf Club as soon as possible after the consolidation had been finalized.

A few days after the plan had been agreed upon in joint committee, the necessary 111 members of the Westfield Golf Club had signed. Immediately thereupon a special meeting of the active members of the Cranford Golf Club was called for March 31, 1921, at the Cranford Casino. The following resolution was carried unanimously:

"That the Cranford Golf Club consolidate with the Westfield Golf Club, and the Board of Trustees of the Cranford Golf Club be, and they are, authorized, empowered and directed, to do and perform each and every act necessary to carry such consolidation into full force and effect, anything in the By-Laws of the club to the contrary notwithstanding.

The following Tuesday evening, April 5, 1921, a special meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Cranford Golf Club was held at the clubhouse of the Westfield Golf Club. One hundred and sixteen active members of the Westfield Golf Club were proposed for active membership in the Cranford Golf Club and duly elected.

On the same evening, immediately following this meeting, there was a meeting of both boards of trustees for the purpose of working out the details of the amalgamation, with William Buckley acting as Chairman. A committee was appointed to arrange for a board of trustees that would have 15 men. A committee was appointed to propose the amendments of the by-laws that were necessitated by the merger.

The question of a name was discussed at some length. Names such as "Cranford-Westfield Golf Club," "The Golf Club of New Jersey," "Indian names such as 'Minisink Golf Club,'" and others were suggested, to all of which there were objections. There were no objections to the name "Echo Lake."

There was, however, the general feeling that the combination should eventually become a country club and not only a golf club, and that if "Echo Lake" were to be the name, it should be "Echo Lake Country Club."

Robert Crane was chosen for President. Theodore H. "Luddy" Ludwig was nominated Vice President, and Gordon Brownell for Secretary. All were duly elected. The new officers thereupon were instructed to change the name of the organization from the Cranford Golf Club to the Echo Lake Country Club. This was accomplished June 1, 1921.

The final merger operation of consequence was the sale of the properties along Jerusalem Road. The balance of the original property, formerly owned by the Westfield Golf Club Realty Company, was sold to a group organized as Shady Rest Country Club, Inc.

On June 12, 1922, land was purchased from Mrs. Agnes N. Pierson and Charles F. Pierson, her husband. It was two parcels — one of six sides and one of four. The six-sided part of the purchase included the present fifth green, the first part of the present sixth hole, practically all of the present practice ground, most of the last part of the present ninth hole, and some of the rough between the present ninth and tenth holes. Before the purchase, most of this land had been a corn field.

The first use made of the newly-acquired land was the establishment of the fifth green on the top of the little hill. Also at the beginning of the 1924 season the new 13th green was put into use, the old one being a couple of hundred feet to its left and close to the row of trees. The corn field was turned into a practice fairway. At about this time, the Union County Park Commission was working on the idea of a park at Echo Lake. To enlarge the lake it needed to purchase some of the club property. Robert Crane, William Buckley, and Samuel Armstrong constituted the club committee that met with county representatives.

On October 1, 1923, Echo Lake Country Club sold to the Union County Park Commission two parcels of land; one parcel being to the east of the clubhouse, from the lake and stream to our present property boundaries; the other parcel being to the west of the clubhouse, from the lake and stream to the bounds of our property as they are today, except for a lot behind the sixteenth tee that was disposed of later. For these parcels, totalling 32 acres, Echo Lake Country Club received $8,525 and certain rights.

In the 1920s, the New York offices would empty at noon Saturday (the Stock Exchange was open until 12 noon) and golfers would grab a quick lunch at the Jersey City ferry terminal, head for the club from the Cranford or Westfield stations, and get to the first tee to establish their starting times. Four to five hours later they'd be back in the clubhouse locker room for a drink from a bottle of just-off-the-boat scotch, rye, or applejack. The parties, with much singing, were legendary. Wives often met their husbands in the front (only) parking lot and drove them home. Early Sunday morning, the same gang went at the course again.

Golfers playing Echo Lake in the early 1920s saw little evidence of residential expansion. On most of the back nine, except for a couple of houses on Woodland Avenue that were visible only from the 14th green, there was nothing to meet the eye but the golf course, woods, and rolling hills.

Then Arthur Rule, a local realtor, began purchasing land along the club's property all the way from Springfield Avenue to behind the 16th tee. He wanted to develop high-quality homes. Negotiations for a mutually beneficial land deal began between Mr. Rule and the club, and continued until 1930.

In 1926, Win Brower was appointed Chairman of a clubhouse expansion committee, and members began considering making improvements to the clubhouse. Plans were approved, and work completed in 1928. Included in this major undertaking was a large dining room on the west, the extension of the porches on both sides of it, the expansion of the locker room below and the rooms above. The shower room was also renovated, with marble partitions replacing the metal ones. Finally, the kitchen was enlarged, further ensuring the members' complete enjoyment of their club.

Nineteen thirty saw the initial publication of The Echo Lake News. It has continued regularly and sporadically, under one name or another up to the present time. The Echo Lake News announced upcoming events and the winners of prizes, kept tabs on folks joining or resigning, divulged interesting bits of news concerning individual members, changes in vital statistics, and so forth. It also published messages from the committees.

In 1930, the Rule deal was finally signed and recorded. It was a straight trade. For the land the club received to the left of the fifth and sixth holes, the club signed over a rectangular parcel about 408 feet by 424 feet behind the eleventh green and the 12th tee, which is now a part of Kimball Circle. The club was not to erect any structure within 200 feet of the new boundary line except a one-family dwelling, house of rural design, with a garage, not to cost less than $10,000.

This restriction expired, however, on July 1, 1943. Mr. and Mrs. Rule, and their heirs and assigns, agreed to reserve a strip of land 36 feet wide on their side of the boundary line from Springfield Avenue to some distance beyond the present sixth tee upon which, at such time as the Pierson Farm is developed, they will construct a hard-surface road 18 feet wide. The club and its members or successors will have the use of this road after it is constructed and shall not be obligated for any part of its cost or maintenance charges as long as the property is operated as a golf course.

Otherwise, the cost of maintenance is to be borne equally by the owners of property facing the road. The deal was a good one for the club, as it received valuable land.

The first major tournament held on the course was the New Jersey State Amateur in 1931, when Paul Anderson defeated Eddie Wild in the final match. In 1934, the club was hot to the Metropolitan Open. Paul Runyan came out of the trap on the right of the 18th green and went down in one putt to beat Walter Hagen and Willy Cox by a stroke. In 1936, the New Jersey State Women's Amateur at Echo Lake saw Helen Hockenjos beating Maureen Orcutt in the final round.

In April 1934, the club received a license to serve alcoholic beverages. Toward the close of 1934, the number of active members, which had been gradually decreasing since the waiting list days of 1929, was down to 233.

An idea used by the Essex County Country Club, West Orange, seemed to be a solution: Limited period memberships. At a meeting of the active members, this idea was adopted and put into effect on March 1, 1935.

The number of limited period members at any time was to be restricted to the difference between the number of active members and 325. A limited period member had all the privileges of an active member, except that he did not have a vote, he was not permitted to hold office, and his membership ran only from year to year. Limited period memberships were abolished in 1946.

During the war years, Echo Lake Country Club focused its efforts on retaining the club's holdings. During World War II, all members of the club who joined the armed forces for the duration continued to have the same privileges as before, but were not required to pay dues for the period.

The labor situation became difficult. Previously, there were some nine men at work on the course, and now only an average of four could be found who were not needed elsewhere. So, too, with the clubhouse personnel. New machines were almost out of the question and repairs were difficult. There was little new golf equipment to be had and the only golf balls available were old ones with new covers. Gas rationing made driving to the club an infrequent convenience. The federal government, via taxes raised the dues twenty per cent.

During the uncertainty of the first month of the war, the Board of Trustees declared that to drive to the club would be looked upon as an unpatriotic act. Soon the Office of Price Administration was established and every car owner was entitled to at least an "A Ration" which permitted him to purchase three gallons of gasoline per week.

It was difficult to get a ruling from the Office of Price Administration as to whether or not this rationed gasoline should be used to get to and from a place, such as the club, which offered exercise and food. The one obtained was, "Use your own best judgment." Groups of members would make their own arrangements and the number of cars used was cut down to less than one fifth of normal.

A bicycle path was constructed past the 15th green and toward the center of Westfield. A Transportation Committee reported horse-drawn vehicles were unavailable. This committee also found that school buses were impractical, but it did make arrangements with a taxicab company for the weekends and holidays of the 1943 season.

There were discussions about closing the club for the three or four months of the late fall and winter seasons, but it was kept open every day throughout the war.

At the end of 1943, the number of active members was down to 120. Shortly after the conclusion of the war, the active membership rose to 249, and by the end of 1946 was full at 315.

In September 1945, the club borrowed $50,000 on a 20-year amortizing loan, with interest at the rate of 4 1/2 per cent per annum, from the Westfield Federal Savings and Loan Association. With the borrowing, the club paid off and retired the balance remaining on the old first mortgage (dated May 1, 1911, executed by the Cranford Golf Club to David Harper and, in 1945, held by Charles P. "Pit" Buckley) and the outstanding Echo Lake Country Club Class A bonds, dated May 1, 1928.

In 1945, the green committee engaged professional golf course architect, Robert Trent Jones, to look over the golf course, with the idea of suggesting improvements.

Mr. Jones made some recommendations which were implemented in 1951. And on October 19, 1945, William Patterson started the Echo Lake Country Club Seniors' Golf Association for active members 50 years of age and older.

Early in 1948, Kerk Harms, the

Echo Lake Formed From Indian Lands

Chairman of the house committee, appointed an all-ladies subcommittee, consisting of Mrs. Marshall Risley and Miss Frances Peirce, to tackle the problem of redecorating the dining room. It was the first time that ladies had been given complete responsibility for a major club project.

In the early post-war years, the club had an opportunity to purchase the Davis farm for another nine holes or other use. The farm ran from the corner of Broad Street and Springfield Avenue to Wychwood to the club boundary on the fifth and sixth holes. At $30,000, the price was considered to steep.

In 1950, a new house was built near the practice putting green to take care of the pro shop and the caddies, and the space vacated in the clubhouse was used for a men's grill and bar. The cost was $31,500.

Nineteen fifty saw the establishment of a new class of membership: The house (or social) member, such a member could not hold office, could not go out for a round of golf, nor could he swim in the pool.

During 1951, the maximum number of active members was raised to 325, which it had been some 20 years before.

On April 29, 1953, approval was given for improvements in the clubhouse—extending and enclosing the porch, installing a cocktail lounge therein, installing a ladies' powder room on the ground floor, making minor improvements in the kitchen facilities, and excavating beneath the present porch to enlarge the locker room facilities, at a cost of $11,000.

In 1953, construction was begun on the new fourth green, located to the left of the original green, and the back of the 18th green was extended toward the practice putting green. The location of the new fourth was suggested by Robert Trent Jones in 1945.

On September 29, 1954, approval was given for betterment of the golf course: for modern methods of regenerating its turf and invigorating its soil; for the latest and most efficient maintenance equipment; for extensive alterations and renovations to the men's locker room, including the replacement of obsolete plumbing; for air conditioning in the new cocktail lounge and dining room, at a cost of $32,500.

In 1957, President Arthur Bickel inaugurated a four-year modernization plan involving the clubhouse and golf course. New tees were prepared at the sixth, ninth, 10th, 11th and 15th holes. Wire fencing was erected along the fifth and sixth fairways. Pipelines were added to adequately water the back nine. The fairways were cultivated with seed producing grass more resistant to hot weather.

Harry Crichton continued at the helm through 1963. During those early 1960s, a number of golf course and clubhouse improvements were made. With financing through a $100,000 bank loan, the kitchen was modernized, staff quarters were added upstairs, the men's grill was remodeled, an addition was made to the pro shop for bag storage, caddy facilities, and merchandise display. And a new greens equipment building was constructed off the 17th fairway at a cost of $35,000.

During this early 1960 period, the waiting list for membership lengthened until it reached 50 to 60 by 1963. Country clubs were at a premium.

Robert Jones followed Harry Crichton as President in 1963, and Emerson Thomas was President in 1964 through 1966. During this period, the club engaged a golf course architect (Geoffrey Cornish) to suggest possible revisions over a long-term period. Subsequently, a plan was presented which is still being generally followed.

In 1965, the two golf course refreshment stands (at holes seven and 14) were refurbished. Later that year the club received a legacy from member, James Kyle, who died while playing the 16th hole, and put under consideration a new refreshment area at the ninth. Ultimately, the Kyle legacy was utilized to build the present Kyle House between the ninth and tenth holes.

In 1965-1966, several improvements were made to the clubhouse. The ballroom was refurbished and the dining made more attractive. A large mirror was placed on the wall opposite the fireplace in the ballroom. An acoustical dropped ceiling was installed, floor carpeting added, and an opening was made into the cocktail lounge.

Platform tennis was added to the club's activities with the building of two courts and a warming hut, without running water or bathrooms, and with minimal viewing windows. The program became very successful and by 1972 a third court was added.

In 1971, the ladies' locker room was substantially refurbished with new furniture, lockers, showers, dressing area and lounge. In that same year, the 14th, 16th and 18th ladies' tees were enlarged and trees and shrubs were added to the new fifth hole.

In 1972, major improvements were made in expanding the bar into a bar-cocktail lounge with windows overlooking the course, establishment of what is now the popular Terrace Room with its view of the course, the Crystal Room, and a patio overlooking the 18th green.

In 1976, the Trustees rejected a proposal to install three tennis courts to satisfy club members who could not, because of a ten-year waiting list, get into the Westfield Tennis Club, and who otherwise thought Echo Lake should be a complete club. Three reasons were cited for not putting in tennis courts: They would encroach on the golf course, the already insufficient parking would be lessened, and the installation cost was extremely high.

Given the relatively small acreage of Echo Lake's property, there just was no room for tennis. As it turned out, most of the Echo Lake members who wanted to get into the Westfield Tennis Club were able to do so in the 1980s.

Snow Bird golfers, a unique group, was established at Echo Lake in 1975 by William Rose, James Ryan and Warren Gravely. Ninety participants signed up as potential winter players, and contests were organized. To the present, there continues to be a large group of Snow Birds.

In 1977-1978, the professional shop club storage and cart storage areas were expanded, the platform tennis hut was expanded, its windows improved, running water installed. And for $80,000, the club kitchen was renovated.

Annual pool visits numbered 4,000 in 1982. Shortly thereafter the Trustees decided to allow all active members and their families access to the pool as part of their memberships.

A major renovation of the downstairs men's locker room was accomplished in 1985 including lowering the ceiling, creating a new entrance/exit to the front of the club, establishing a locker room vestibule, new furniture, new rugs, refurbished down-bar area and kitchen, and refurbished lockers ($255,000).

This major improvement was needed in an area that was substandard before. To finance this renovation, the bond was increased from $900 to $1,750.

Nineteen eighty-five saw William Quinn installed as President. During Mr. Quinn's one-year regime, the club developed a five-year plan for improvement of the golf course, including an irrigation system, rebuilt tees and bunkers, and bought advanced green equipment. The men's locker area redecorating was completed.

The club was host to the New Jersey Open in 1985, its seventh major New Jersey/Metropolitan event. Gary Ostrega, Michael Preston's Pro-Pro winning partner of the year before, won it with a 279.

In early 1987, the Trustees named a long-range planning committee to develop "A Plan for the Future." After considerable review with the members, it was decided by the trustees not to submit the plan in its entirety to the members.

In August 1987, the club and Westfield-Mountainside, suffered extensive tree damage from a summer electrical storm and tornado. The golf course, the 50 big trees down, and the pool area, with furniture damage, were the worst hit.

Dig-out costs were $50,000 and while there was a different look immediately after, the prior tree programs are serving the club well.

Women's Singles Sees Many Changes In Standings

Many challenges, especially in the top half and the midsection of the Westfield Tennis Association Women's Singles Ladder, produced the widespread changes in the standings of 41 matches played through June 13.

Players are reminded one match must be played once every two weeks in order not to be dropped three spaces in the standings due to inactivity.

The next reporting period concludes at 8 p.m. on Sunday, June 27. Match scores should be reported within three days to Jan Power. Information about rules or joining the ladder is available by telephoning 654-5763.

In 46 innings he allowed only one earned run and finished with the county's best record at 9-0, striking out 64, walking 24 and allowing 38 hits.

He finished with a .71 earned-run average.

Marlins Capture Crown In Eastern Division

The Eastern loop champion New Norris Chevrolet Marlins of the National League Division in Westfield Girls' Softball opened their playoff drive on June 10 with a 6-5 victory over the Roosters' Phillies.

The Marlins jumped out to a 2-0 first-inning lead after a walk to Robin Early, followed by consecutive singles by Tara Clarke, Jackie McKeever and Lindsay Guerriero.

Roosters rallied for four runs to take a 4-2 lead into the fifth inning.

In the home fifth, singles by Kristin Ostrega and Katie Brunetto sandwiched around walks to Maureen Cooke, Early, Clarke, Jackie McKeever and Lindsay Guerriero, pushed four runs across for the Marlins. They held on in the last inning with the tying run at third for the 6-5 win.

Bethany Dresely, Lauren Coltrera, and Jessica McKeever also had hits for the Marlins.

Saturday, June 12, saw the Marlins and the Braves squaring off in the second round of the "A" bracket playoffs.

The rematch of the two best teams in the league lived up to its pre-game billing as a real barn burner. After spotting the Braves a 7-0 lead after one inning, the Marlins demonstrated why they had an undefeated season as they chipped away at the Braves thanks to timely hits by Early, Clarke, Jessica and Jackie McKeever, Brunetto, Guerriero, Coltrera, and Dresely.

With the score 8-5 entering the last half of the sixth inning, the Marlins tried one more time to put their magic to work. They loaded the bases and cut the lead to 8-7, but fate dealt them an unkind result as they just missed getting the tying run across home plate and lost for the first and only time all season.

The Braves became the "A" Division bracket champions.

Bruins Beat Spartans 14-13 on June 8

The Bruins became the first University League team to win eight games this season, as they defeated the second Spartans by one run for the second time in five days.

Mark Matthews' single led to two runs for the Bruins before Greg Ayon's triple and a single by Greg Montgomery put the Spartans on top 3-2 after one inning of play. Tim Clark's double, a single by James McKenna, and Ben Glasson's run-batted-in gave the Bruins another short-lived lead at 4-3, but the Spartans answered with two second-inning runs of their own.

Steve Taranto's baseliad down the rightfield line with the bases loaded saw the key hit as the Bruins erupted to score six runs in the third inning. Pitcher Dave Osburn's single helped him toward a win as the Bruins scored three more runs for a commanding eight-run lead.

Brian Shaver came on and pitched well in relief for the Bruins, who remained on top 13-7, as they played the final inning. A double by Sam St. Clair gave the Bruins an insurance run they desperately needed as the Spartans never quit in their final turn at bat.

Singles by Chris Paganu, Michael Keller and James Clark were followed by a triple by Larry Saxon and a double by Andrew Shannon that put the tying run in scoring position with two outs. John Tralaral then smashed a line drive toward rightfield that walloped just inches off the ground by Bruins' first baseman McKenna to end the thriller.

'Soar Into Summer' Ends Promotion Saturday

Brightly-colored balloons are popping up this week for the "Soar into Summer" promotion sponsored by the Intown group of the Westfield Area Chamber of Commerce.

Clusters of balloons identify the 32 businesses which are entry locations for the "Soar into Summer" drawing. Balloons will be most plentiful on Saturday, June 19, the climax of the promotion, on the day before Father's Day.

Costumed clowns will stroll the sidewalks on Saturday. Some will be making balloon animals to give to watching children. Others will distribute helium-filled balloons to shoppers along the main business streets.

The balloons on Saturday will mark the final day shoppers may enter the "Soar into Summer" drawing.

Since June 10, drawing entry blanks and boxes in which to deposit them have been available in participating Intown and Westfield Association of Merchants businesses. Winners from among all entries will be randomly chosen on Monday, June 21, and notified by telephone.

The one grand prize winner will win a hot air balloon ride for two. Many other winners will receive prizes donated by more than 20 Chamber businesses.

Designers Potpourri, off the South Avenue Circle, has joined the list of businesses which have donated goods or gift certificates, to be given to "Soar into Summer" winners.

This promotion, financed and staffed by the members of Intown, is the final event of their 1992-1993 calendar.

A new Intown year will begin on Thursday, July 1. All Westfield area retailers may join.

For information, please telephone the Chamber of Commerce office at 233-3021.

The Red Rose Plants Seeds of the Matinees

Trailside Nature and Science Center at Coles Avenue and New Providence Road in Mountainside will kick off another fun summer season of Wednesday matinees on July 7 with the play, The Red Rose at 1:30 p.m.

The Red Rose, dramatized by le Clancho du Rand, is a rendition of Beauty and the Beast by the same writer who adapted Creative Theatre's production of The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe.

This fairy tale, originally attributed to Madame Le Prince de Beaumont, is a favorite of young people and adults alike, telling the story of a prince who has been turned into a beast and the love of a young woman which frees him from his curse.

The play is suggested for young people aged 4 to 12 — no children under 4 will be admitted — and their families.

Begun in 1969, Creative Theatre has been touring plays into schools, libraries and recreation centers since 1975.

Creative Theatre will return to Trailside on July 28 for a performance of The Imagine Nation Tour — a show exploring our nation's folk heritage. Tickets for this performance and all other Wednesday matinees may only be purchased at the door and cost $3 per person.

Please telephone Trailside at 789-3670 to receive a listing of other summer performances and programs or for group discount rates.

This will consist of lunch, a program and an opportunity to show appreciation for the Reverend Kritsch's years of service, including his fifth year at Redeemer Lutheran Church and School. Reservations for the lunch, which costs $18 per adult, are due by Sunday, June 20.

Miss Thiel New Director Of Lutheran Nursery School

Calvary Nursery School and Child Care, opening at Calvary Lutheran Church in September, has announced the appointment of Miss Barbara G. Thiel as the Head Teacher and Director of the new program.

Parents are invited to meet Miss Thiel at an "Enrollment Day" open house on Saturday, June 19, from 10 a.m. to noon at the school's location, 108 Eastman Street, Cranford.

Miss Thiel, a South Plainfield resident, has most recently been the lead teacher and Assistant Director at the Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center Child Care Center. She has a Bachelor of Science Degree in Early Childhood Education from Trenton State College.

She also has been an assistant teacher at the Jewish Community Center in Lawrenceville and an instructional teacher's aide at the Muhlenberg program.

Besides meeting the new Head Teacher and Director on June 19, parents may also complete enrollment for their children in the newly-created Calvary Nursery School and Child Care. A $30 non-refundable registration fee and one month's tuition will be required for registration to be complete.

The nursery school will offer a half-day program for children two- and-a-half years old through five years of age on a two-day, three-day and five-day-a-week basis, from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

The facility also offers a year-round child care program for young children, from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Spaces in both programs are limited, and parents are requested to act promptly.

Parents may pick up a brochure and enrollment materials at the church office before Enrollment Day or may call 276-2418 to have the materials mailed.

Calvary Lutheran Church is a member of the New Jersey Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, serving the Cranford-Westfield community for 65 years.

SCHOOL DAYS...Shown in the new kindergarten enrichment classroom at St. Paul's Day School of Westfield are Mrs. Linda Larsen, a teacher, and soon-to-be students Thomas Ard, Jane Ellbacher, Sam Moore, Kristina Fleckiewicz and Samantha Cousins. Please telephone Mrs. Arlene Burgess, Director, at 233-5417, for information about the program.

St. Paul's Will Begin Kindergarten Program

St. Paul's Day School will introduce a new Kindergarten Enrichment Program designed to be a companion to the half-day kindergarten class provided by Westfield and other school systems in the area.

Mrs. Linda Larsen, a long-time resident of Westfield, will teach the program in September. She has an extensive background in education and taught the first through third grades in public schools in Connecticut and New York and also has taught 2-year-old and 3-year-old classes at St. Paul's Day School for the past seven years.

Mrs. Larsen is a former Program Director for Expanded Dimensions in Gifted Education, an enrichment program for children in grades kindergarten through sixth grade, teaches language arts classes for kindergartners for the group and works as a volunteer parent for the program.

Mrs. Larsen is the wife of David Larsen and the mother of Jon Larsen a fifth-grade student at Franklin School and David Larsen, a sophomore at Westfield High School. She is active in the Parent-Teacher Association and a long-standing member of the Fine Arts Committee, which she co-chaired for the Westfield School District from 1985 through 1990.

The instructor recently met with many kindergarten teachers within the state to enable the development of a kindergarten enrichment program that meets the needs of children in the Westfield Community and surrounding areas. The setting of the program, therefore, is in an atmosphere in which children are encouraged to explore activities at their own pace.

Science and mathematics will be taught and students will cook, take field trips into the community, create "big books," play games, dramatize stories and sing songs.

Parents may register their child now, and then place their child in the morning or afternoon enrichment session, based upon the child's kindergarten classroom assignment.

Please telephone the Director of St. Paul's Day School at 233-5417 for more information.

Theater Ceiling Collapses, Leading to Evacuation

Westfield firefighters have been kept busy in the last two weeks.

The most serious incident occurred on Sunday afternoon, June 6, when a ceiling fell down in the lobby above the service area of the Rialto Theater on Central Avenue and East Broad Street, according to Fire Captain Raymond Luck, Jr.

There were no injuries, although the theater was evacuated, Captain Luck said.

The theater's Manager, when asked about the probably cause of the collapse, said it was company policy not to comment to the press on the incident.

On Friday night, the Fire Department responded to a fire in a trash compactor outside the Lord & Taylor store on North Avenue.

Captain Luck said there was some smoke inside the store and there were no injuries.

Thursday night, an attic fire believed to be caused by a ventilation fan, was extinguished in the building which houses Williams Nursery on Springfield Avenue.

The blaze was extinguished in about 20 minutes and there were no injuries, the Captain said.

As late as the 1700s, some people in Europe and America believed that lightning could be kept away by ringing church bells.

Union County Dedicates Natural Gas Station

The first natural gas filling station for a county government in the state was dedicated with the cooperation of Union County government and Elizabethtown Gas Co. recently at the county complex in Westfield, county Freeholder Chairman, Miss Linda-Lee Kelly, announced.

"The station cost about $100,000 and was paid for by Elizabethtown Gas," Miss Kelly said. "This effort between the private and public sectors is an example of what can be done to help our county and the people of our county."

Union County currently has four Paratransit System vans and one Sheriff's K-9 vehicle that were converted to use natural gas.

"The Paratransit vans transport the elderly and disabled to doctors' appointments and other places," said Freeholder Walter McLeod, the Liaison to the Senior Citizen and Disabled Resident Transportation Advisory Board. "The obvious benefit of natural gas is the reduction in air pollution. Exhaust fumes are not good for the elderly."

The Paratransit System vans cost $3,185 to convert, according to Freeholder Vice Chairman Frank H. Lehr. "They plan to purchase dedicated natural-gas vehicles, ones that are built that way, starting next year, as their fleet of 60 vehicles needs replacement."

The station at 300 North Avenue is a quick-fill station, which takes about the same time as a regular filling station stop. A slow-fill takes six to 12 hours to complete, and although cheaper, it is basically for companies that do not use vehicles at night and can fill them for the next day.

"We need the quick-fill now, at this central location, but if we expand our use of natural-gas vehicles, we'll have to look into slow-fill as well," Freeholder James F. Keefe said. "An attendant is not even needed, since the fill-up is as easy as a self-serve gas station."

"I understand there are almost 700 of these stations around the country, with over half in California," Freeholder Elmer M. Ertl said. "Maybe we can start a trend. One that is good for the environment and our citizens."

Town Woman Fights Sex in Advertisements

A town woman who volunteers at the Union County Rape Crisis Center has been waging a fight since March against television commercials in which she believes women are treated as sex objects.

The campaign, by Mrs. Teri Gerson, began when the Westfielder saw what she considered an offensive Revlon commercial while she was watching television with her 9-year-old son, Jonathan Gerson.

Starting with a letter to the company's customer service department about the commercial's emphasis on the model's body, Mrs. Gerson's effort has grown into a national petition drive.

In May, the petition was sent to the 12,000 members of the New Jersey Chapter of the National Organization for Women as well as the group's 49 other state chapter.

Mrs. Gerson has collected 300 signatures on petitions working alone and she plans to continue her efforts until companies stop using sex in their advertising.

The petitions, according to the Westfielder, will be sent to local retailers, corporation presidents and general managers of television stations.

Plans also are being made to picket retailers who refuse to stop carrying products whose advertising Mrs. Gerson considers objectionable.

Children, through this negative advertising, according to Mrs. Gerson, may be "poisoned" into believing a woman's worth is determined by her looks and women can be treated as objects rather than as people.

She added she is concerned images of women as objects affect the way women are treated and are connected to acts of violence against women and children.

Certain advertisements, according to Mrs. Gerson, contribute to low self-esteem in young women.

A spokeswoman for Revlon Cosmetics, however, said Revlon's "shake your body" and "I'm too sexy for my lips" advertisements are not demeaning to women.

The firm's research, she noted, shows consumers believe the advertisements create images of vital and self-confident women.

She said there has not been enough research to demonstrate a correlation between advertising and violence against women.

Mrs. Gerson's campaign, meanwhile, has expanded to include all companies that participate in advertising she considers objectionable.

Beer companies, automobile manufacturers and other cosmetics firms also are guilty of demeaning women in their commercials, according to the Westfielder.

Helpful Hints to Prepare Press Releases for Leader

A press release should contain the name, address and telephone number of the publicist, have the following essential facts and be typewritten and double-spaced on one side of an 8 1/2-inch by 11-inch sheet.

WHEN the event took place, an exact date;
WHERE it took place, an exact address or name of a building and its exact address;

WHAT it concerned and
WHY the event was held, if necessary.

The WHO means names spelled correctly following this style:

— James C. Scott, Jr., in other words, for a man's first name, middle initial, if he has one, and a last name.

— For a woman, supply Mrs. or Miss and give a first name, middle initial, if she has one, and a last name.

— Nick names are used in sports copy only or appear when the full name is already given.

The WHAT means explaining the purpose of a meeting or reporting what went on. Saying a speech was great means nothing; explaining what a speaker said is newsworthy, it is important.

Don't:

— Type all in capital letters.

— Expect that your release will appear just as you wrote it.

— Have skippy margins.

— Write captions on a photograph; use a separate sheet. Don't staple pictures.

All copy should be in our office by Fridays at 4 p.m. For events that occur over the weekend, press releases should reach us by Mondays at 10 a.m. Obituaries will be taken to Tuesday at 5 p.m. All matter is used, of course, as we have time to prepare it properly for publications. No guarantees are made.

FOR THE NEEDY... Casimir and Viga Howell of Westfield help load boxes of donations for Peruvian orphans.

Town Foundation Aids Poor Families of Peru

"Doctors, don't throw out your unneeded drug samples," requests Wayne Howell, the Director of Worldreach, the Children's Foundation, which is based in Westfield. "Donate them to us instead."

"Drug companies give doctors thousands of dollars' worth of free samples," Mr. Howell said. "Most of these samples sit in a closet in your doctor's office until they expire. Then the packages have to be opened up and pills flushed down the drain. The value of this wasted medicine is astronomical. We can prevent this waste by sending it to clinics in Peru where the medicine can do some good."

Worldreach, the local charity group which ships donated items to Peru for distribution to families of soldiers killed in the line of duty, makes a point of fitting American waste to the needs of the poor in other countries. The group collects used shoes, clothing — anything useful which can be packed in a box, and routes it to the poor.

A network begins with volunteers to collect and pack donations. Local scouts pack clothes and household goods, while adult volunteers collect and pack medicine.

Donated trucks take the shipments to Newark Airport, where an airline has provided cargo service to Miami. Once in Miami, Worldreach donations take an international flight courtesy of the Peruvian Air Force.

In Peru, a charity group run by wives of Army officers distributes the donations to the needy.

Suggested items for donation include: Clothing, cooking utensils, office equipment, sports equipment and toys.

Shipping supplies and printing services also are needed, as well as those interested in volunteering their time.

Inquiries should be directed to Worldreach at 1121 Prospect Street, Westfield, 07090, or by telephoning 233-4857.

Three Injured In Accidents In the Town

Three people were hurt in two separate accidents in the town this past week.

On Thursday afternoon, Irone Vasta of Colonia was taken to Overlook Hospital in Summit when her car was struck by one driven by Stephanie A. Gabriel of Westfield on Lenox Avenue near Stanley Avenue.

The town motorist, who was taken to Overlook with moderate injuries, was issued a summons for going through a stop street.

Friday morning, Mrs. Mary E. Lawson of Scotch Plains was taken to Muhlenberg Regional Medical Center in Plainfield with several broken bones after she was struck by a car driven by Stephanie L. Cilo of Westfield on North Avenue near Central Avenue.

Mrs. Lawson was listed in stable condition at the hospital on Tuesday morning.

No charges were issued in the accident.
