CONTRACTS ON LOTS EXPECTED TO BE COMPLETED BY WEEKEND

Woman's Club Set to Sell Adjoining Lots; Buyer Still Sought for Clubhouse on Euclid

By MARK J. YABLONSKY

Satisfied with two separate bids by two different bidders, the Woman's Club of Westfield is planning to sell the two lots adjoining its present site at 318 South Euclid Avenue, an arrangement that will probably be completed by this weekend at the latest.

In the meantime, the tax-exempt organization will temporarily retain possession of the century-old Colonial Revival house, since a separate bid on it proved unsuccessful at the close of business on March 26.

However, Robert H. Kraus of the Scotch Plains law firm Leib, Kraus, occur by this weekend. Grispin & Roth, who is representing 'The bid form is the contract, and the Woman's Club, said Friday that the only thing the bidder had to do was put in his name, address and the price he was willing to pay," Mr. Kraus explained. One of the successful bidders is local, while the other is not, he revealed.

The clubhouse, once owned by former Mayor Burl A. Towl, was purchased by the Woman's Club from his widow, Letty M. Towl, on October 27, 1955. It is adjoined by a lot directly east, located on South Euclid, as well as an adjoining lot immediately to the north on Tremont Avenue. That lot is sized at 100 feet by 150 feet, or exactly 15,000 square feet, Mr. Kraus said.

The adjoining lot on Euclid measures 150 feet by 92 feet, or about 13,800 square feet. Because the Planning Board of Westfield approved the subdivisions by a 6-1 vote on March 2, the signing of the contracts is all that is needed now to close the

In all, the entire property occupies some 45,000 square feet, or a "smidgen" above a full acre, the attorney noted. The bid on the house alone was deemed unsatisfactory, Mr. Kraus explained, because the prospective buyer wanted one of the adjoining lots along with it.

The Town Bank will become Westfield's first locally owned, independent commercial bank in over 70 years. The FDIC approval ensures its ability to function as a financial institution, Mr. Frigerio explained.

In making the announcement, Mr. Frigerio asserted that meeting this financial hurdle is a major step for-

"While the branches offer vast financial resources, they don't offer the kind of personal service and local decision-making we will provide.

There is activity at both ends of banking's size spectrum, with large banks continuing to merge, but the number of smaller community banks increasing as well, Mr. Frigerio said. Between 1994 and 1996, the number of applications for community bank charters quadrupled to more than

The Laws and Rules Committee of the Town Council is expected to soon begin taking up the issue of secondhand smoke and how it relates to public outdoor recreational areas such as the Westfield Memorial Pool and the various soccer fields in town.

Two Youths Charged With Having Handgun

Westfield, State Paying Tribute to Activist,

By SUZETTE STALKER

Two Roselle youths were arrested and charged with unlawful possession of a handgun at Beadleston High School last Friday after police recovered a .22 caliber revolver, along with ammunition, which the pair were allegedly carrying.

Detective Sergeant John M. Parizeau of the Westfield Police Department said authorities received a 911 call from the Lamberts Mill Road school at 9:04 a.m., after school administrators were informed that a student in the building had a handgun in his possession.

The unloaded weapon was discovered by police in the book bag of a 14year-old boy, which had been left in a classroom occupied by several students, Sergeant Parizeau said. Authorities located the youngster in the school gymnasium.

A 16-year-old student was found with six bullets for the revolver concealed in Saran Wrap in his pants pocket, Sergeant Parizeau confirmed.

Authorities believe the older teenager may have stashed the weapon in the book bag, he said. He stated that neither of the students had threatened anyone at the school, which is operated by the Union County Educational Services Commission.

An investigation revealed that the revolver had not been stolen, and authorities were still attempting to determine this week how the youths allegedly acquired it. The suspects were being held in the Union County Juvenile Detention Center in Eliza-

"We have been operating special schools in Union County since 1969 and this is the first incident I can recall where students were in possession of a gun," remarked Edward M. Hartnett, Superintendent, Union County Educational Services Commission, on Wednesday. Mr. Hartnett has been Superintendent since 1980.

"We had a quick reaction (to the emergency), the (two) students were removed from the building, and its a police matter; that's where it lies right now" he added.

Beadleston High School enrolls 50 students ages 14 to 21 who are classified as emotionally disturbed. It offers special education programs with therapeutic support services.

Mr. Hartnett said that both students have been suspended pending a placement review conference with child study teams from their home district. He said the commission planned to recommend that the youths be placed in an alternative Elementary Schools.

"He was an outstanding black man of that time," said Ms. Powell. "He was an advocate of equality, a noted singer and actor. He was among the first blacks to make movies and talkies (movies with sound).'

Academics was something stressed in the Robeson home. He received a scholarship to Rutgers, becoming only the third African-American to attend the school. He graduated as class valedictorian of 1919 and was inducted in the Phi Kappa Key (an academic society). While there he received three varsity letters in football, baseball and track.

Continuing his studies at Columbia University, he graduated with a law degree. He also met his future wife, Eslanda Goode, who was studying to be a chemist while at Columbia. Paul Robeson could have lived off the material comforts that his education afforded him, but instead he spoke out about injustice.

During his life, Mr. Robeson, the son of an ex-slave, knew the feelings of extreme racial discrimination first hand, since racial intolerance was more prevalent throughout the United States, historians agree. Mr. Robeson became an actor appearing in Emperor Jones, All God Chillun Got Wings, among others. He used his visibility to dispel myths at the time that hinted African-Americans were mentally incompetent.

His baritone voice, commanding appearance and dignified presence contradicted racial stereotypes, which at the time indicated that African-Americans were inferior to other groups, as many who have studied Usually rejecting demeaning roles, Mr. Robeson, historians and admirers agree, managed to emerge as a vibrant, commanding theatrical presence. Yet, he had to use the service entrance while performing.

His unforgettable portrayal of Shakespeare's Othello on Broadway

won him further acclaim and broke some attendance records. Mr. Robeson's ideals seemed a precursor for the civil rights movement later led by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

In his later travels throughout Europe and Asia, Mr. Robeson found he was treated better than he was at home. He spoke 20 languages,.and was treated with respect, those closest to him noticed.

This newfound feeling strengthened his resolve that racial inequal-

"My father was a slave and my people died to build this country, and am going to stay and have a piece of it just like you," Mr. Robeson once said. "And no fascist-minded people are going to drive me away from it, is that clear?"

When the McCarthy era of the early 1950s ruined or crippled countless young lives, Mr. Robeson found himself labeled a communist, even though he was never known to have joined the party. His passport and those of his wife, Eslanda, and son, Paul, Jr., were denied. Mr. Robeson, like many others, became ostracized.

"Paul Robeson was a renaissance man," Carol La Pierre, a member of the honoring committee said. "He wasn't able to use that talent in this country (because of racial discrimination).

Upon returning to the United States. Paul lived with his sister. Marian, in Philadelphia, Pa., where he died on January 23, 1976.

Westfield will temporary rename the Osborne Street in memory of Mr. Robeson, the man known for his battle to overcome injustices, with dignity. Many of the ideals now taken for granted were not available to Mr. Robeson during his lifetime.

But as many now agree, because of his great strides, more Americans became able to enjoy social, economic and political freedoms ban smoking at the community pool itself, given that kids and adults there should also have a smoke-free environment.

The question of enforcement was raised throughout the discussion. Ms. Blumenfeld said, generally, these types of ordinances are enforced by local health officers, along with police departments.

Third Ward Councilman Neil F. Sullivan, Jr. proposed that more of an effort needs to be made to remove easy access by children to cigarettes. He said this can be done by passing an ordinance to require that they be sold from behind the counter.

He said the ban on cigarette machines in Westfield, passed by the council several years ago, has had a 'very nominal impact" on curbing underage smoking in Westfield.

Ms. Blumenfeld said the best course of action a governing body can take to win the war against the tobacco industry is to tackle it on several battlefronts — such as easy access to cigarettes by minors, the impact on the environment and cigarette sales. Noting the council's previous action, she said vending machines are the first source of cigarette purchases among kids.

The attorney said a number of towns now require that cigarettes can only be purchased upon request. She said the passage of local laws that "change social thinking" by prohibiting smoking in public places has been proven as the best course of action for communities to lessen underage smoking.

Towns can also restrict the locations where billboard smoking advertisements can be placed, she explained. Town Attorney Charles H. Brandt noted that there are only about five places in town where these types of billboard advertisements can be placed.

Twelve communities in the state currently have laws on the books banning smoking everywhere from recreational areas, public places and restaurants

During a discussion later in the meeting, First Ward Councilwoman Gail S. Vernick, a nurse, said medical professionals she has spoken to indicate there is little danger from second-hand smoke in an outside environment, as opposed to an indoor environment.

Councilwoman Vernick called the proposed ordinance to restrict outdoor smoking "very intrusive" and portrays government as "big brother." However, she does support restricting cigarette sales to behind the counter.

She said she does not feel there is any "negative impact" from inhaling second-hand smoke when it is done outdoors "unless you are right on top of somebody.'

Mayor Thomas C. Jardim and Councilman Goldman both disagreed with this point. The Mayor said his wife, who is eight months pregnant, faces the danger of second-hand smoke every day while waiting on the platform at the Westfield Train

The Mayor, in disagreeing with the council woman, said that it should be the smoker who should have to move from the non-smokers - not the other way around.

Mrs. Vernick said in an outdoor setting it is easier for a non-smoker to move from a smoker than to ask that person to move or distinguish their cigarette. Mr. Goldman said Mrs. Vernick's argument clearly favors the rights of the smoker over the non-

"This proposed ordinance restricts smoking in narrowly defined areas. If the person wants to smoke, all they have to do is walk 25 feet away from the playing ground. We're not going to prohibit smoking," he said.

Councilman Sullivan said he would like to see the town increase enforcement of laws that ban the sale of cigarettes to minors. Fourth Ward Councilwoman Janis

Fried Weinstein questioned whether an outdoor ban on cigarette smoking could be effectively enforced. Mr. Goldman said he can't "buy" the argument that "we shouldn't do something good to protect people's health" because it would be difficult to enforce.

He said by passing such an ordinance, non-smokers will get over some of the intimidation involved in asking someone to stop smoking in a clearly marked non-smoking area.

Councilwoman Vernick said smoking is already prohibited around schools and the children's pool in town. She said the Recreation Commission did not want to alter existing laws in town regarding smoking at recreational areas with regard to the proposed ordinance. Also, the Board of Health has decided not to comment on the proposal Noting that the nicotine within tobacco is an addictive drug, Third Ward Councilman John J. Walsh said the council should "discourage its use as much as we can." He did say that the governing body needs to be sensitive to those persons who have the habit.

He also said there should be no smoking at the town pool.

In other business, Vivian's Kitchen, the Towne House, Brick Oven, Robert Treat Delicatessen and Bruegger's Bagels have all submitted renewal applications of their sidewalk café permits.

The council decided that these establishments must submit detailed plans of the placement of the cafés, including placement of trash receptacles if disposable service ware is used. Town Administrator Edward A.

Gottko explained that if the permits are not approved this Tuesday due to the lack of this information, the permits would be delayed until the Tuesday meetings of either April 21, when the public hearing on the town budget is scheduled, or on the next regularly scheduled meeting on April 28.

The café season was to have begun on April 1, but was delayed due to the adoption of a revised code for the The town is also continuing the process of drafting a proposed grant application for Union County's Pocket Park Program. The town is seeking to acquire the former Excellent Diner site for this purpose.

Also, the Board of Education has proposed leasing the former Lincoln School playground to the town, as opposed to deeding it over outright. This site would also be included in a grant request to the county as well.

Mr. Gottko noted that the window to enter into the county program ends on Friday, May 1.

another bidding process.

The Woman's Club, known for its many contributions to the community, including the awarding of scholarships to graduating seniors at Westfield High School since 1949, has been sharply criticized by many community residents, who have indicated the selling process has been conducted and consummated too quickly.

One town resident, in a recent letter to The Westfield Leader, suggested that the Woman's Club should at least "designate the site as historic," since many worry that once the five-year, single-family limitations on the house expire, there is no guarantee the house won't be razed or altered.

"The whole theory on what they did was to give as many people a reasonable opportunity (as possible) to step up to the plate and buy the property," Mr. Kraus argued.

They showed it for eight consecutive Thursdays. Stuff was sent out in the mail. So anybody and everybody had an opportunity to make a bid. But they didn't.'

When asked if the club could have sold only the house and kept the two parcels, Mr. Kraus responded affirmatively, but said the club could not sell the parcels and keep only the

Could the organization keep title to the house and just lease it out?

"That is something they could do," Mr. Kraus replied. "I don't think they will; I don't think they want to go into the business of being a landlord. There comes a time in life when it's time to sell and move on.

'There is nothing that says they can't sell," the club's attorney added. "The Town of Westfield will benefit from the good things they will do with the money.'

When asked if the organization will remain in Westfield, Mr. Kraus said, "yes."

Another resident has noted that one of the reasons he had selected Westfield in which to reside was because of structures such as the one the Woman's Club is selling; however, developing the two adjoining lots could have an adverse effect on property values.

"I think he's 100 percent wrong," Mr. Kraus replied. "I guarantee you that the property value of the surrounding properties will not be affected one iota. No way. The houses that sell on these properties will sell for some staggering prices that will knock your socks off. So how is somebody's property value going to go down?'

The organization, largely through

Township Continues Efforts To Obtain Former Zoo Land And Convert It Into a Park

By SUSANM. DYCKMAN

Despite the Scotch Plains Township Council's February offer to Warren developer Mitchell Berlant to purchase the former Scotch Plains Zoo property, "it was sold anyway," said Township Mayor Joan Papen.

The newest owners, Sunrise Assisted Living of Fairfax, Virginia, want to put a 76-unit senior citizen residence on the site at the corner of Terrill and Raritan Roads.

The township wants to create a park on the site, and preserve the "Frazee House" (c. 1720-1740), which was designated a historic site by the township's Historic Review Commission. According to local history, the British army visited the house during the Revolutionary

The township took legal steps to acquire the property on March 24 by introducing an ordinance to condemn the property for public purposes. Council members also authorized the engineering firm of Killam Associates to conduct a Phase I environmental study of the site.

In seeking to acquire the former zoo property, township officials are acting on a recommendation made by the Ad Hoc Recreation Needs Study Committee chaired by Lucille Masciale.

The committee reported the township has 11 neighborhood parks totaling approximately 90 acres, well below the National Recreation and Parks standard of 10 acres per 1,000 residents. Based on this standard, Scotch Plains should have about 200 acres of park land for its population of 21,160, based on 1990 census

In a letter to Mayor Papen and the council, Mrs. Masciale said, "If acquired by the township, it (the zoo property) could readily be adapted in the near term for walking and/or jogging trails as recommended by the Master Plan, and it is possible that in the future, consideration could be given to re-establishing a petting zoo for the education and enjoyment of children and adults alike."

For over 40 years, the property was the site of a recreational zoo

Mrs. Papen said the zoo's longtime owners, the Terry's, were "very happy" to hear what the township is Sunrise has offered to give the township approximately two of the 5.87 acres to use as a park.

"The portion Sunrise wants to give us is in a flood area," said Mayor Papen. "It's the lowest portion of the

If the township did not have its own plans for the property, what would the Mayor think of a senior citizen residence there?

"It's not a good location," she replied. "It's surrounded by roads, and there will be people in and out, lots of employees as well as visiting friends and relatives.

The committee backed up Mayor Papen's concerns about location. In her letter, Mrs. Masciale said, "The steep grades in a portion of the site, wetlands, flood plain, stream and pond all pose serious constraints to conventional development, but all may be preserved and protected if part of the township's park and open space system."

If its proposal is accepted, Sunrise officials said they would be willing to renovate the Frazee House, and help fund a petting zoo on the property it offered to donate to the township. The facility would also mean a new property tax ratable for Scotch

Fanwood Volunteer Rescue Squad Marks 50th Anniversary of Its Charter: 1948-1998

By RUSSELL R. WATKINS

Every day for 50 years the Fanwood Volunteer Rescue Squad has stood ready to help its friends and neighbors in an emergency.

And although most of the faces have changed since the all-volunteer squad was founded in 1948, the squad's 36 active members still maintain the same level of commitment to their community. On March 12, the Borough Council honored these dedicated public servants with three resolutions. The first recognized the entire squad for 50 years of dedicated service, while the second and third resolutions honored squad members Earl Phillips and Ruth Wegmann for their "outstanding dedication and commitment" to the squad and the community. Council President Bruce H. Walsh praised members for their "professionalism and dedication. The Fanwood Rescue Squad began operations in 1939 with a single LaSalle ambulance and operated out of the old Fire Hall as a part of the Fanwood Volunteer Fire Company. It was chartered as an independent volunteer force on January 29, 1948. In April of that same year, 30 charter members, including Earl Phillips, elected officers and adopted a Con-

John Yarnell was the first President and William Matthews was the first Captain. Then, as now, most of the male members of the squad also served as volunteer fireman.

Over the next 50 years the squad racked up an impressive record of service. It answered its first call for assistance on May 7, 1948, and its 100th in 1949. In 1977 it relocated to its current 123 Watson Avenue address, which was built with the efforts of squad members. To date the volunteers have answered almost 18,450 calls, 500 alone in 1997. Squad member Susan Davis noted this record is "not bad for a one square mile town."

Most squad members are registered Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs). To obtain EMT status, a squad member must complete 120 hours of specialized training, plus 10 hours of volunteer time in an emergency room, and pass a state-administered written test.

Once these requirements are met, members receive a license valid for three years. During that time they must re-certify their cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) training and supplement their training with additional courses.

Ironically, Ms. Davis cited this as a possible reason why more people do CONTINUED ON PAGE 12

Fanwood Planning Board Requests Modifications To Proposed Café Law

ByKIMBERLYA.BROADWELL

The Fanwood Planning Board met last Wednesday to discuss an ordinance that, if adopted by the Borough Council, will bring sidewalk cafés to the borough.

The ordinance is part of an effort to revitalize and attract business to the downtown area and is scheduled for a second reading and public hearing before the council at 8 p.m. on Thursday, April 9.

The proposed ordinance would place some restrictions on any business wanting to implement an outdoor café. Chairs and tables will not be permitted in front of doorways although they may be situated to the right or left of them.

Sidewalks must also have a minimum six-foot clearance for pedestrians. Because of this, the Planning Board agreed to ask that the cafés be called outdoor as opposed to sidewalk. This will enable restaurants to utilize the space in back of their property as well as the front.

Also, the board asked that the hours that restaurants can operate the cafés be changed to 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. instead of 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. In addition, the board felt that changing the application fee for restaurant owners from $100 to $50 was more "user friendly" for the borough.

Planning Board Chairman Gregory Cummings, noted that these changes were more "reasonable" for the Fanwood restaurants as well as pa-neighbors with his proposal, his request for a deck in the back of his house could not be heard.

According to the board's attorney Robert T. Mega, the board has no jurisdiction over a notice that is not served a full 10 days prior to a public hearing. The date of the public hearing cannot be counted as the tenth day. Mr. Mega, also stated that Mr. Sumislaski must give another full 10 days notice to his neighbors as well as re-submit the notice to the newspapers to apply for a variance.

In other business, Marcia Ann Spector of 5 Crest Lane applied for a variance to put an addition on her front yard. The borough requires that a resident must have 35 feet after the addition and Ms. Spector has 32.8 feet.

According to Richard A. Marsden, Borough Engineer, the new structure will overhang the back of the existing dwelling by one foot; and will overhang the front of the house by two feet. This, Mr. Marsden explains, will create an additional 101 square feet of space that needs drainage.

Mr. Marsden states "although the cover is small, it will not improve an already aggravating stormwater runoff condition that exists along the back yards of the homes from 3 Crest Lane to 11 Crest Lane.

"It is my recommendation that all roof gutters and leaders be directed away from the back yards and into a front yard seepage pit that will have an overflow drain through the curb and into the gutter of the road," the engineer explained.

Speaking about the concern over the additional impervious coverage, Joe Rosco, of 3 Crest Lane, concluded that he didn't have a problem with the addition to his next door neighbor's house as long as Mr. Marsden's stipulations were adhered recommendations. In other business, the board reviewed the final site plan that was approved in February to the LaGrand Square Partnership. not volunteer their time with the squad.

The board approved the variance with the addition of Mr. Marsden's

Many, she said, are "put off by the requirements" particularly the 120 hours of specialized training which must be attended in person. However, Ms. Davis noted that the training is not impossible, and can be worked into one's schedule. In fact, she also noted that a typical Rescue Squad member already volunteers their time to another organization. These commitments can have their rewards. During her 35 years with the squad Ms. Wegmann, affectionately known as the "First Lady" of the Fanwood Rescue Squad, has answered over 2,160 calls, attended 314 meetings and 123 training drills. She has given over 4,600 hours of service to the Fanwood community.

Ms. Wegmann proudly recalls receiving the governors award in 1971 for her efforts in saving a baby who had been thrown from the car in an accident at Terrill Road and Midway Avenue. Although the mother was killed, thanks to Ms. Wegmann and two other squad members' efforts, the baby's life was saved.

Ms. Wegmann commented that such incidents give one an appreciation of life. She recalls that once after she had responded to a call in which a child was hit and killed, she later came across a woman bitterly complaining about her son. With the accident, still fresh in her mind, Ms. egmann recalls being so angry that 'what I said wasn't even coherent."

Such dramatic incidents are not everyday fare for the members of the Rescue Squad. The organization responds to anyone who calls with a 911 emergency. Ms. Davis estimates that 80 percent of these calls concern medical emergencies such as heart attacks and diabetes attacks.

Members are authorized to give basic life support assistance, and in some cases advanced life support for trauma victims. When not on a call, members perform various tasks.

According to Ms. Davis the squad does not "farm out" any of their maintenance or administrative duties. They wash their own rigs and stuff their own envelopes for their annual fundraiser, which is held every May. No tax dollars go to support the squad. Ms. Davis noted with pride that every time the squad responds to a call it costs only $70, compared with an average of $400 a call for communities with a paid Rescue Squad.

For the most part, squad members are pleased with their place in the community. Ms. Wegmann has noticed that, "Fanwood is very concerned about its Rescue Squad."

She also noted some members of the community have, upon the death of a family member, donated money to the Rescue Squad in lieu of flowers. Such donations have allowed the squad to buy several pieces of new equipment in recent years.

Ms. Davis likewise praises the "nice working relationship" the squad has with the borough's police and fire

Also honored at Thursday's ceremony was Mr. Phillips, a lifelong Fanwood resident, former Fanwood police officer, and, of course, a founding member of the Rescue Squad.

During his 50 years with the Rescue Squad, Earl has answered 1,050 calls, attended 280 meetings, and 106 training drills. He has given an estimated 2,400 hours of service to the community. Currently the Chairman of the Building and Grounds Committee, as well as the squad's regular driver, Earl received the honor of "Badge 1" and was recognized as an "extremely loyal and dedicated mem-

Because the squad's badge numbers are based on seniority, Earl's "Badge 1" gives him a place of honor on the squad and serves as a visible reminder of all he has shown to the squad, and that the squad has shown to the community.

Like most of the squad, Earl is quiet and unassuming. Ms. Davis described the Rescue Squad as providing a service similar to insurance.
"You don't think about it until you

Parents again asked "what benefit" is derived from opening up space at Brunner when the space problem is most urgent at Coles. Coles would gain one classroom (in addition to the two modular classrooms being installed) if the PDD class is relo-

Mr. Russo and fellow board member Albert J. Syvertsen agreed that an elementary school setting is the better place for a pre-school program.

This recommendation has changed repeatedly in accordance with parents' concerns," said Board Vice President Jessica D. Simpson. "Every legitimate concern has been addressed, and the suggestion that it puts kids at risk is bogus.

"Finding space on the north side," said board member Richard H. Meade, "doesn't address the space issue on the south side. Since more children attend school on the south side than we have space for, we either build, or do some significant redistricting.'

"The modified relocation plan is an improvement, not a long-term solution," he added. "I suggest we tread water for a year, and look at significant redistricting for a year from September."

He also favored putting art and music classes on carts to free up needed space.

'Don't kid yourself," responded board member Morris H. Gillet to parents' applause at Mr. Meade's classes-on-carts' suggestion. He emphasized the disservice done to children when music and art are not considered an important part of their

A prepared statement from board member Edward J. Saridaki, Jr. also met with applause from the audience.

He began, "I am not making this statement lightly nor is it my intent to compromise the effectiveness of this Board of Education or Administration....'

"I cannot support this proposal," he continued, "because I have a distinct lack of confidence in the administration's ability to manage the environment into which these children, our district's most fragile and vulnerable, will be placed. ...In the last four years, two years prior to my being elected and the last 23 months that I have served on this board, I have had many occasions to examine the management practices of this administration and Board of Education.

"...I have not spoken to, or heard from, one member of the public or staff, outside of administrators, who feel this is the right or best thing to do for our children. I have heard from staff members who have children in the district who feel very strongly against this proposal, but will not come forward because they are concerned about their jobs.

"....I am not satisfied that the other options available to the district have been honestly and diligently researched. The prime example of this is moving the Administrative offices out of their current location...," he stated.

Board member August Ruggiero criticized Mr. Saridaki for not doing the superintendent the courtesy of forewarning her of his intent to deliver such a statement.

While Mr. Russo spoke of his "confidence in the administration and the diligence put in this (pre-school) proposal and other work" during his brief tenure on the board, he called for "real figures" regarding the creation of classrooms out of the board offices. "I want to make sure we have complete information," he said, "so the proposal I support will be closest to the best possible situation for all students.'

Discussion on the pre-school relocation proposal will resume April 7 at the board's agenda meeting.

In other business, the board authorized changes to the district's standardized testing program. The Stanford Achievement Test will replace the Iowa Test of Basic Skills as the district's standardized test for grades 3, 5, 6 and 7 beginning in the 1998-1999 school year.

The Otis-Lennon School Ability Test will replace the CogAT as the district ability test for grades 2 and 5, beginning in 1998-1999.

To avoid double testing periods, the board eliminated a national standardized test in grade 4 as the statemandated Elementary School Proficiency Assessment will be introduced this spring. Mr. Russo, Mr. Saridaki and Mr. Syvertsen opposed

The board also approved the administration of the Grade 2 district's developed test instrument beginning this spring, despite opposing votes from Mr. Russo and Mr. Saridaki and Mr. Syvertsen.

Mr. Saridaki sided with parent Victoria Manduca of Fanwood who called the district-developed test a 'meaningless base for parental information." Mrs. Manduca was part of the district testing committee that developed the local test for first and second graders.

In response to criticism that standards set by the district-developed test were not high enough, Mr. Ruggiero said, "We can only make adjustments to higher standards once we have experience with the test. It's not perfect, but I can support it. We should look at it on a year-to-year basis.'

Board members also approved the following grant applications: to Miles Hodsdon Vernon Foundation for $40,000 from fourth grade teacher Eloise Schundler to establish a technology-enhanced or prototype classroom; and to the Christie McAuliffe Foundation for $40,000 from seventh grade teacher Joyce Snyder to help students integrate mathematics and personal finances in a mock program entitled "Purchase An Automobile.

The board also recognized the following retirements: Linda Buonpane, 23 years, classroom aide, Park and McGinn Schools; Irene Clarke, 23 years, lunch/general aide, Terrill; Vito Cupoli, 37 years, teaching staff, Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School (SPFHS); Peter Hoskey, 31 years, teaching staff, the former Shackamaxom Elementary School and SPFHS; and Lillian Brenda Jackson, 23 years, teaching staff at McGinn, Coles, Terrill and Shackamaxon Schools.

Also recognized were: Roberta Kieffer, 28 years, teaching staff, Evergreen; Elaine Kolker, 30 years, Brunner School; and Anna Osborne, 12 years, bookkeeper, Business Department.

san, on the agenda to educate others

Paul Robeson was born in Princeton on April 9, 1898, the youngest of five children. His father, William, escaped slavery by running away at age 15. William Robeson used his ministry as a platform to advocate racial equality. He instilled that belief in his children. Before Paul Robeson moved to Westfield, his mother, Maria Louisa, had died in a burning accident. The then-youthful Paul played baseball with older athletes because of his athletic promise. His first experience in an integrated school system came while living in Westfield. According to Paul Robeson Committee member Ernest Powell, Robeson attended Lincoln (now defunct) and Washington Elementary Schools. "He was an outstanding black man of that time," said Ms. Powell. "He was an advocate of equality, a noted singer and actor. He was among the first blacks to make movies and talk-ies (movies with sound). Academics was something stressed in the Robeson home. He received a scholarship to Rutgers, becoming only the third African-American to attend the school. He graduated as class valedictorian of 1919 and was inducted in the Phi Kappa Key (an academic society). While there he received three varsity letters in football, baseball and track. Continuing his studies at Columbia University, he graduated with a law degree. He also met his future wife, Eslanda Goode, who was studying to be a chemist while at Columbia. Paul Robeson could have lived off the material comforts that his education afforded him, but instead he spoke out about injustice.

During his life, Mr. Robeson, the son of an ex-slave, knew the feelings of extreme racial discrimination first hand, since racial intolerance was more prevalent throughout the United States, historians agree. Mr. Robeson became an actor appearing in Emperor Jones, All God Chillun Got Wings, among others. He used his visibility to dispel myths at the time that hinted African-Americans were mentally incompetent.

His baritone voice, commanding appearance and dignified presence contradicted racial stereotypes, which at the time indicated that African-Americans were inferior to other groups, as many who have studied

won him further acclaim and broke some attendance records. Mr. Robeson's ideals seemed a precursor for the civil rights movement later led by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

In his later travels throughout Europe and Asia, Mr. Robeson found he was treated better than he was at home. He spoke 20 languages, and was treated with respect, those closest to him noticed. This newfound feeling strengthened his resolve that racial inequality was wrong.

"My father was a slave and my people died to build this country, and I am going to stay and have a piece of it just like you," Mr. Robeson once said. "And no fascist-minded people are going to drive me away from it, is that clear?" When the McCarthy era of the early 1950s ruined or crippled countless young lives, Mr. Robeson found himself labeled a communist, even though he was never known to have joined the party. His passport and those of his wife, Eslanda, and son, Paul, Jr., were denied. Mr. Robeson, like many others, became ostracized.

"Paul Robeson was a renaissance man," Carol La Pierre, a member of the honoring committee said. "He wasn't able to use that talent in this country (because of racial discrimination).'

Upon returning to the United States, Paul lived with his sister, Marian, in Philadelphia, Pa., where he died on January 23, 1976.

Westfield will temporary rename the Osborne Street in memory of Mr. Robeson, the man known for his battle to overcome injustices, with dignity. Many of the ideals now taken for granted were not available to Mr. Robeson during his lifetime.

But as many now agree, because of his great strides, more Americans became able to enjoy social, economic and political freedoms.

Democratic Slate Set For Freeholder Board

The Union County Democratic Organization unanimously named Sheriff Ralph G. Froehlich and three incumbent Freeholders, Chairman Daniel P. Sullivan, Lewis Mingo, Jr. and Mary P. Ruotolo as its county ticket in the 1998 elections, it was announced this week by Charlotte DeFilippo, Union County Democratic Chairwoman.

"This is the team that will continue strong leadership for the people of Union County," said Ms. DeFilippo. "I was very pleased to see the overwhelming support our candidates received from the 21 Democratic Municipal Chairmen. We are proud that our Democratic Party can offer the residents of Union County candidates of this caliber. Each of these individuals are bright, intelligent, hard working and have a clear vision for Union County's future."

The Democratic Party also endorsed Maryanne S. Connolly, the Mayor of Fanwood, who was selected to run against Bob Franks for the Seventh District Congressional seat.

Sheriff Froehlich, an Elizabeth resident, has served as Union County Sheriff since 1978. He has been a law enforcement professional for nearly 40 years. Prior to his election as Sheriff, he served 19 years in the Elizabeth Police Department, attaining the rank of Lieutenant.

"I feel fortunate to be running for reelection with this team. I have good working relationships with Dan Sullivan as Freeholder Chairman and I have been very impressed by the hard work Freeholders Mingo and Rutolo have done during their time on the board."

Freeholder Sullivan, a life-long Elizabeth resident, has been a member of the Board of Chosen Freeholders since 1993. He is a Data Processing Manager at AT&T. A former member of the Elizabeth Board of Education, he has served as President and Vice President and as Finance Committee Chairman of the board.

As Chairman, he has initiated the county's Access 2000 program, which is working to bring computers to every classroom in Union County by the end of the year 2000. Crime prevention, open space development and a renewed dedication to the arts in Union County are among his 1998 priorities.

"Our Freeholder slate brings deep community involvement, strong qualifications and great talent to County Government," said Ms. DeFilippo. "Union County voters can see that they are building a stronger economy in Union County, assisting our schools and municipalities and providing first-class services to all residents of Union County."

"As Chairman, I am directing the Board of Freeholders to focus on investing in better education, opportunities and leadership in the 21st century," said Freeholder Chairman Sullivan. "I am eager to bring Union County's story of growth, stability and fiscal responsibility to voters."

Freeholder Mingo, a Plainfield resident, is a retired NYNEX executive named to the Freeholder board this year. Freeholder Mingo served in the United States Navy during the Vietnam War and has been involved in Plainfield civic activities for many years, particularly in the area of youth services and recreation.

He is a founding member of the Plainfield Area Youth Development Tennis Association and has been active in the organization for more than 16 years. He also served on Plainfield's Planning Board and Economic Development Council.

"It is a great honor to serve the people of Union County, and I plan to do all I can to respond to the needs and concerns of the county residents," said Freeholder Mingo. "During the coming year, I intend to focus on improving services and facilities for the county's youth and senior citizens.

Freeholder Ruotolo, who lives in Westfield, also was named to the Freeholder board early this year. A strong advocate for education, she has served as an Executive Board member of the Westfield Parent-Teacher Organization, and was active in fundraising and publicity for school activities. She is also very active in scouting.

Her late husband, Andrew K. Ruotolo, Jr., served as Union County Prosecutor from 1991 until his death in 1995 at the age of 42.

"I am proud to be part of a team which is working to improve educational opportunities, bring more and better jobs to Union County and improve our quality of life," said Freeholder Ruotolo. "As Freeholders, we are working hard to promote the energy, talent and possibilities of Union County"

TAKING THE OATH...Union County Manager Michael J. Lapolla of Westfield, center, holds the bible, while June S. Fischer of Scotch Plains, left, takes the oath of office for her latest term on the county's election board. The oath of office for Ms. Fischer was administered by Union County Clerk Joanne Rajoppi of Union, right. Ms. Fischer has served on the board since she was named to fill the unexpired term of the late Catherine Lehr as an Election Board Commissioner in July, 1987. After the term was completed, she served her own term as Election Board Commissioner as well as Commissioner of Registration/Secretary of the board. Additionally, she served as Chairwoman of the board for four years and has recently begun her fifth time in that canacity.

Breast Cancer Awareness Highlighted by WHS March

More than 300 students and staff members from Westfield High School, along with members of the community, participated March 26 in a march for breast cancer awareness.

Sponsored by the Women's Studies Group at WHS as part of the celebration of Women's History Month, the "March for Life" was organized to honor those women and men who have fought or are still battling breast cancer.

With the support of many local businesses and the Westfield Police Department, which provided safety and traffic assistance, the march departed from WHS and proceeded along Summit Avenue, through the downtown along Broad Street, and across Mindowaskin Park before looping back to the high school.

During the pre-march registration, English teacher and football coach Ronald Barner played the bagpipes while students sold commemorative T-shirts with the logo for the march, and accepted donations for the Breast Cancer Research Foundation.

High school librarian Julie Walsh, who organized the march and co-advises Women's Studies along with English Department Chairwoman Paula Roy, thanked everyone who made the event "an overwhelming success" by helping to raise almost $1,600 for the Breast Cancer Research Foundation.

"The march reflected the generosity of spirit that is typical of our students and of what we see daily at Westfield High School," stated Principal Robert

David B. Corbin for The Westfield Leader and The Times WALK FOR LIFE...A multitude of Westfield High School students and teachers along with many concerned citizens march across North Avenue and Broad Street en route to Mindowaskin Park in recognition of Breast Cancer Awareness. The March began at the high school and had a special appearance of high school teacher Ron Barner, in traditional garb, playing the bag pipes.

GOP Picks Candidates For County Positions

By PAUL J. PEYTON

Members of the Republican Committee of Union County gathered this past Saturday morning, March 28, to begin the process of trying to gain back the party's representation on the currently all-Democratic Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

When the votes were tallied after the three-hour convention, George B. Gore from Plainfield, Juan "John" C. Fernandez of New Providence and Andy MacDonald of Fanwood stood victorious.

They were chosen from among four candidates for the Freeholder slate. Albert D. Dill, Jr., a Summit councilman described by Republican Committee Chairman Frank X. McDermott as a "very promising candidate," was not selected this year by the party.

The seats of Mary Ruotolo of Westfield, Lewis Mingo of Plainfield and board Chairman Daniel P. Sullivan of Elizabeth expire this year. All have been backed by the Union County Democratic Committee, along with seven-term incumbent Sheriff Ralph G. Froehlich.

Union County Sheriff's Lieutenant Esther Guzman-Malcolm was selected to run against Sheriff Froehlich on the Republican ticket.

Mrs. Ruotolo, the widow of the late Union County Prosecutor Andrew K. Ruotolo, replaced former Freeholder Carol I. Cohen of Westfield in January upon her resignation to become County Counsel.

Freeholder Mingo took the seat of Walter D. McNeil, who resigned in December to become City Administrator in Plainfield.

The past few years the Democratic slate endorsed by its county committee has withheld challenges from candidate slates from Elizabeth and Union in the June primary.

The Republicans have not won a Freeholder race since 1994. During the course of the past three elections, Republicans lost all five seats they had held on the board.

With the exception of Mr. MacDonald, a former councilman in Fanwood, this year's Republican Freeholder ticket has no previous elective experience. Mr. MacDonald said he is running for a number of reasons, among them being an attempt to gain a two-party representation on the board in 1999.

He also said he wants "to look out for the interest of the taxpayer.

"That is extremely important; after all, it is the hard work of the taxpayers that make the functions of government possible," Mr. MacDonald explained.

Noting the diversity of the county, he said the government must be able to deal with urban issues impacting cities like the county seat of Elizabeth, while also addressing suburban concerns in communities such as Scotch Plains and Summit.

"What holds everything together is taxes," Mr. MacDonald said. "I think our taxes are entirely too high." While not making a promise to significantly cut taxes, he did pledge that he would "do everything I can to see to it that taxpayers will be having a lessening burden than is currently the case."

Mr. MacDonald has been employed for 25 years in the computer industry, and is currently working as an area Sales Manager for Computer City in Springfield.

Mr. Gore, a Business Manager at AT&T and a former Chairman of the Union County Improvement Authority, said he believes that "there is a need to come up with a different direction in terms of how the Freeholders have responded economically to the cities."

He said the county needs to do more to help cities like Plainfield and "turn them to a more solid commercial economic base."

"They (the county) take a lot of tax money, but I don't (think) a lot of services come back to the community," he said. "To me it's a question of taxes and revenue sharing."

He also cited a need for more "clean" industry and environmental-problem free businesses, plus improvement for the county's roads and infrastructure.

Mr. Fernandez, who serves with a legal counsel firm for the Union County Improvement Authority, said there is "no checks" on the actions taken by the current board, since it represents only one party.

"My concern is that we have to be bringing government back to the people, and that promises be kept in the campaign," he said.

Mr. Fernandez asserted that Democrats broke a promise last year to voters that (all of) the Freeholders would stay on the board, referring to the resignations of Ms. Cohen and Mr. McNeil.

An attorney in Roseland, the 34-year-old candidate was born in Elizabeth and served as Assistant County Counsel for Union County from 1994 to 1997 under former County Counsel and Freeholder James F. Keefe.

The candidate said the Republican slate is going "to focus in on each and every municipality — not giving one away," and noted that he feels the GOP's chances of regaining seats on the board are "excellent."

Mr. Gore also emphasized the need for Republicans "to work hard" at the community level to get the GOP fall ticket's message out to the voters.

Westfield Curriculum Changes Focusing Intermediate Math

Last week, the Third International Mathematics and Science Study, a comprehensive international study of education, placed United States 12th graders among the lowest of the 21 developed countries who took part in the study.

The study showed great weakness nationwide in math beginning in the intermediate grades. The United States Department of Education has recommended steps that local schools should take to remedy these weaknesses, such as raising standards, ensuring that more students study algebra by the eighth grade and geometry by ninth grade, improving teacher training, and encouraging more high school students to take demanding math and science courses such as physics and calculus, said Ginger Hardwick, Chairwoman of the Westfield Board of Education's Curriculum, Instruction and Programs Committee, and a candidate for re-election.

Westfield public schools began to move in this direction long before the study was released, she said. Last year, the Board of Education approved broad changes to the intermediate school math curriculum. Under the new curriculum, pre-algebra skills receive far more emphasis in the sixth grade. In the past, most students waited until ninth grade to begin study of algebra, with honors students beginning in eighth grade.

Under the revised curriculum, almost all of our students are taking algebra as a two-year course during the seventh and eighth grade. Completing Algebra by eighth grade will give these students the option to take more advanced mathematics in the high school. The changes to the math curriculum are just one example of the ongoing effort to identify ways that our curricula can be improved, Ms. Hardwick said, noting that The New York Times on March 19 carried a front-page story about a report from the National Research Council about the teaching of reading.

That report suggests that rather than argue about the merits of phonics and whole language, reading is best taught by melding the strengths of each approach.

"As Chairman of the board's Curriculum Committee, I was very pleased to see this report, because the board is at this moment reviewing proposed changes to the elementary language arts curriculum, which will combine teaching of phonics with a literature-based curriculum.

'With board approval, the new reading curriculum will be in place next year," Hardwick added.

The achievement of Westfield students reflects the district's emphasis on improving curriculum and raising standards — not to mention the hard work of students, teachers and parents in meeting those standards, Hardwick said.

"Roosevelt School's scores on the Early Warning Test were the highest in the county last year, and Edison's scores showed the largest improvement in the county," the curriculum chairwoman said.

"Our SATs continue to rise, and our students are accepted into the most competitive colleges. These impressive results do not happen by accident. The Board of Education has been able to move forward with teacher training, investment in technology and more challenging textbooks, and limiting class size in the face of increasing enrollment because the voters of Westfield have supported our budgets for the past three years," said Ms. Hardwick.

"The administration and board have worked hard to present a lean budget that allows us to continue to seek improvement in the alreadyexcellent Westfield schools. We take these decisions very seriously, knowing that the education we provide today will affect the opportunities of Westfield students for years to come, and that high quality schools are an essential part of every resident's property value," she explained.

Residents are invited to call Ms. Hardwick at (908) 232-1229 or any other board member if they have questions about the budget.

Darielle Walsh Puts Support Behind Town School Budget

The Westfield Leader and THE TIMES of Scotch Plains - Fanwood

Endorsing the proposed 1998-1999 school budget, Darielle Walsh, Vice President of the Westfield Board of Education and an incumbent candidate in the Tuesday, April 21, annual school election, said that the proposed school budget "focuses on our most important asset — our children - and also strikes a balance between fiscal constraint and educational excellence."

The $52,016,848 budget represents a decrease in per pupil spending despite a projected increase of more than 2 percent in enrollment. Stressing that expenditures in the $52 million budget impact students at every level—elementary, intermediate and high school, Mrs. Walsh said, "The budget maintains the excellence expected by the community and includes some improvements and enhancements in a fiscally responsible manner." Mrs. Walsh, in her sixth year of board service, pointed out that the cost to local property taxpayers is an increase of 2.3 percent and the school tax increase is 2.4 percent, or just under six cents per hundred dollars of assessed valuation.

"This is the fourth consecutive year that the tax increase to support the school budget will be less than the rate of inflation," she stated.

Mrs. Walsh noted that local property taxes provide the most support for the school budget in Westfield where only 5.8 percent comes from

"I recognize and applaud the efforts of the board to control spending in the face of fiscal challenges: maintaining and improving both academic and enrichment programs in a time of decreasing funding and increasing state mandates," said Mrs. Walsh.

"Despite increases in enrollment, a substantial commitment to technology, and the need to provide capital improvements and maintenance for aging facilities, the school budget increase has been kept to 2.3 percent," she said. "Every item in the budget was subject to close scrutiny for efficiency and effectiveness.'

The budget includes $546,137 for technology, and $1,682,318 for necessary maintenance and capital improvements. Much of the capital work in the nine schools is directed at supporting the district technology initiatives

"I would like to publicly express my appreciation to the Finance Committee for its work in developing the budget," Mrs. Walsh stated. "I believe that the administration and Board of Education listened carefully to the concerns of the citizens of Westfield and responded with a reasonable school budget."

"I strongly urge every citizen to learn about the proposed school budget by attending board meetings, and by voting to support the school budget in the annual school election on April 21," the candidate concluded.

Caregivers' Group To Meet on April 6

A support group for those caring for elderly or chronically ill loved ones meets on the first non-holiday Monday of each month at 8 p.m. in the parish center of St. Helen's Roman Catholic Church on Lamberts Mill Road in Westfield.

The group's next meeting will be held this Monday, April 6.

Mrs. McAllister Stresses Community Involvement In Her Bid for SP-F Board

Jean McAllister, a Scotch Plains resident of five years, is embarking on her second campaign for a seat on the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Board of Education.

"My reasons for running this year are largely unchanged from last year," explained Mrs. McAllister. "I need to know first hand that the education every child receives is the best he or she can get for the dollars we're spending. This encompasses a broad spectrum of programs and services; and I have dedicated the last year to learning all I can about the district's operations.'

In addition to attending nearly every Board of Education meeting, including every special meeting on the Budget, Mrs. McAllister is a member of one of the school district's Cyclical Review Committees.

Enhanced communication between the board and the community continues to be an important goal for the candidate.

"Input from parents, taxpayers and students is extremely important, especially when the board is contemplating a major change in programs, curriculum or facilities," she explained.

"Everyone benefits from broader discussion with the community, as long as it is timed in such a way that it can impact critical decisions," the candidate explained.

Mrs. McAllister discussed her professional career in investments and banking, noting their direct benefit to the mix of talents on the board.

"I know that my work with general finance and investments, specifically cash management, can be an enormous asset to the board," she stated.

In conclusion, Mrs. McAllister noted her "unique perspective" as the only mother of two pre-schoolaged children running in this elec-

"Before the end of this next term, there will be no parent of pre-school or elementary school-aged children. To me, that creates a significant gap in parental oversight on the board. I want to be the board member who insures that the preschool and elementary levels are getting their fair share of attention," the candidate said in her weekly campaign press release.

Why is Town Woman's Club Conducting Business Like So Many Other Players of '90s?

Regardless of the position any of us take on the issue, the Woman's Club of Westfield's decision to sell its "home" at 318 South Euclid Avenue is a sign of the times. We don't mean that the time is right to sell at the highest profit.

We mean that today's society seems to defer to the seduction of profit above the values and grace of our forefathers. Society seems to accept the cloak of legal posturing to ordain what is right or wrong. Society seems resigned or distracted. Is society now weakened?

The 1990s, unlike the 1950s, seems far removed from that which some of us remember. It's not that in 1956, for example, that gasoline was less than 30 cents per gallon. Remember, the median family income was only $4,783. In the 1950s, father went to work and mother usually stayed at home and raised the family.

If mother had extra time, she joined an organization like, say, the Woman's Club. She put her talents and determination to work for the public good. Her clubs accomplished quite a bit across the country, and certainly here in Westfield. They fostered growth in libraries, education, first aid and rescue squads, to name just a

Now, in an era when $25,000 a year isn't enough to procure a mortgage on a home, both spouses usually work. Correspondingly, memberships in women's clubs have fallen significantly. And so, the Woman's Club of Westfield must sell its home dating back to 1955. The club says it simply cannot afford to hold onto the property. None of us like to see this, but we understand their plight. No one can dispute that these difficulties aren't becoming more commonplace in today's changing times.

We can't understand why this situation has just recently been made known. Nor, why matters are presented as being too late to do anything about it other than to sell the house and subdivide the property. Why is it that a well-respected organization such as the Woman's Club, which has enjoyed tax-exempt status all these years and has done so much for the community, now seems to be conducting business like too many players of the 1990s? Is this what the members really want to do? Who's advising them, and who's calling the

This swift action for sale of the property has left little time for other community organizations to present alternatives. Presumably, alternatives more in line with the heritage of the club home could be found. This past Thursday, the Women's Club received two separate bids by developers to construct houses at the subdivided lots (now 310 South Euclid and 435 Tremont Avenue). Construction could begin by June or July, the Woman's Club attorney said.

Municipal Land Use Law in New Jersey is complex - maybe too complex. We don't disagree with the Woman's Club's right to sell property. Nor does anyone feel that the club is acting outside of the framework of the law. But from a virtuous standpoint, we feel the Woman's Club of Westfield has allowed itself to be compromised just a bit. Sure, it's the way of competing in the 1990s for optimum material gain. But, the gift of the club to society from the past goes far beyond material matters. They nurtured society through promoting the importance of values. But, what are we learning now?

Sure, we enjoy many things in the 1990s that we didn't have in the 1950s. Polio is defeated and our children aren't hiding under school desks in response to nuclear attack air raid drills. We live longer and have seen the dark side of the moon. But, all that was made possible by society's unrelenting spirit and beliefs. We withstood the attacks from outside; but, we can't withstand the attacks from within.

Yes, the property will be developed after much discussion and outpour. We'll get used to it. But, where will the next attack come from? We're sure it will be perfectly legal and within the rights of the entity. Are you prepared?

Primary Colors: Shades of Political Reality

By Michael S. Goldberger

One Popcorn, Poor • Two Popcorns, Fair • Three Popcorns, Good • Four Popcorns, Excellent

3 popcorns

You won't need a scorecard to figure out who's who in Primary Colors, a glibly instructive primer on contemporary politi-cal reality based on the book of the same title by Anonymous, a.k.a. reporter Joe Klein. Adapted by Elaine May from that muchrelished campaign trail tome and directed by Mike Nichols, the largely convivial film delights in parading its hardly disguised zoo of political animals.

For instance, there's baby boomer Jack Stanton (John Travolta), the liberal governor of an unconsidered Southern state running for the Democratic Presidential nomination; his blond, power-savvy wife, Susan, portrayed by Emma Thompson; and Billy Bob Thornton as Richard Jemmons, the primary hopeful's corn pone sounding, axiom spouting, Svengali of spin. Recognize any-

One can't help but judge this film from two perspectives, BM and AM: that is, before and after Monica. Prior to the recent allegations of sordid misdoing emanating from Foggy Bottom, Primary Colors might have played like a slightly too-close-forcomfort, yet still hypothetical, parody. But that was way back when we were young and Alas, we are now jaundice-eyed and weary veterans of the Washington Sex Scandals of 1998. And in this light, the movie comports rather philosophically — part apology, part reminder on the hardball facts of life in the big city. Sympathetic, not so much to the jowled would-be President as to the confounded electorate who must suffer the woolly wiles of Mt. Olympus, the film achieves a friendly manner in its divulgences. Think of it as the Political Primary ride at Disneyworld: entertaining and eye opening, but no more profound than is commercially palatable.

Voracious with numerous appetites, in New Hampshire one night Governor Jack Stanton sits imbibing in a lonely doughnut shop with its minimum wage waiter, talking self-reliance and football. In this affecting, Hopperesque moment, Jack is a man of the people to an audience of one.

One who will carry to the grave his favorable impression of the regular Joe who would be President, no matter what dirty laundry the competition may flaunt to hang him. And there's the rub.

Some real, some imagined, when it comes to soiled laundry, Jack has it by the hamper load. For starters, his wife's hairdresser alleges an affair. And let us not forget the 17year-old daughter of Jack's favorite downsouth barbecue purveyor, suddenly in a family way.

Insofar as Libby Holden (Kathy Bates) is concerned, it doesn't much matter if the accusations are true or false. Practice has proven each must be mercilessly quashed with equal might. A can-do campaign operative with ties to Jack and Susan's first initiatives in the early 70s, the perfect meld of idealism and pragmatism humorously brings to mind the sort of gonzo girl crusader novelist John Irving is so fond of penning.

Since Miss Bates puts in the movie's best performance, it's only fitting her salty character serves at the moral crux of the tale. When the Stanton campaign must decide whether or not to use some terribly damaging evidence against a well-intentioned onponent (Larry Hagman in a very good stint), tough Libby shows her true mettle by lobbying for the fairy tale version.

My Fantasies Are Strictly

About Legal Matters

Unfortunately inert in these proceedings is Adrian Lester as Henry Burton, campaign prodigy and prestigious grandson of a black civil rights legend.

Wanting to believe in something, the strategist is drawn to the Stanton team.

But here's the $64 question: Is Governor Jack what he says, or just the most charismatic politician of his time? Pose a familiar quandary? In any case, Lester's proficient babe in the woods is barely interesting as the adopted outsider.

Attention, professors of political science. sociology and film! Here's an assignment for your classes: Compare Primary Colors to its genre superior, The Last Hurrah (1958), the astute recount of an old style mayor (Spencer Tracy) of a big city running for reelection. Have political realities really changed in America? Analyzing both films, have we come to expect a higher or lower personal morality of our elected officials and, if so, what should be the role of the media toward that end?

And finally, for extra credit, consider the following: Some of the fictional characters in Primary Colors contend Americans would be better off with a privately befouled President who has a strong sense of egalitarianism than with a personally moral chief executive who supports a conservative agenda. Could this happen in real life?

Primary Colors, rated R. is a Universal Pictures release directed by Mike Nichols and stars John Travolta, Emma Thompson, Billy Bob Thornton and Kathy Bates. Running time: 140 minutes.

BOYCOTT

Thomas Boycott was a retired English army captain retained by the Earl of Erne to be the estate manager for his properties at Lough Mask House in Mayo County, Ireland. In 1880, the Earl, an absentee landlord, directed Boycott to raise the rents paid by his former tenants. Many who had suffered ruinous crop failures could not pay the increased sums and thus were evicted.

This so enraged Charles Stewart Parnell, an Irish member of the English Parliament, that he formed the National Land League, an early organization devoted to the advocacy of tenant's rights. The league recommended lower rent scales and proclaimed that any man who demanded payment of the higher rents or any landlord who refused to accept the lower rent scales should be shunned "by isolating him as if he were a leper of old by leaving him strictly alone.

Boycott, in carrying out Lord Erne's instructions, refused to yield to the land reformers' demands, whereupon the citizens of County Mayo, acting on Parnells recommendations, so totally ostracized him that he was forced to flee to England.

A land reform bill was passed by the British Parliament in 1881. Within two months, the term "Boycott" was used to describe this Irish-style peaceful resistance movement, and within six years its use had become so widespread that it was no longer capitalized. Thomas Boycott had achieved the dubious honor of contributing an eponym (a word derived from a person's name) to the English language.

I have been married for 11 years to a very fine man; my daughter, his stepdaughter, whom he helped raise, is getting married this summer. "Renee" is planning the wedding with her fiancé and although she shares everything with me, and we agree with all wedding decisions, we have one major disagreement. We have agreed to ask you what you would suggest.

Renee wants to have her natural (biological) father escort her down the aisle. She would then like to have her stepfather and me join "Richard," her father, at the altar during the ceremony.

Bob, her stepfather has been very good to her through the years and I feel he will be rejected if he is not included in the ceremony. Doesn't she owe him this honor? I know she loves her father but he did leave me years ago because we were always arguing. Please comment.

Answer:

First, please separate the issues of the divorce with the present happy situation. Renee should not be caught up in the hostile divorce which occurred many years ago. A wedding is one of the most beautiful moments in a person's life. One has many options on how to structure it. I feel Renee's feelings must be considered as the priority in terms of making choices.

She seems comfortable in wanting to include her biological father, but she is also including both you and her stepfather. All of you will be part of the most joyous and binding moment of any wedding, the actual ceremony and related blessings. Renee seems to be making an effort to include all the persons she cares for, and I would strongly encourage you and Bob to feel positively and take part in the planning, rehearsal process, etc. Good luck to all of you.

important, but the most important ingredient in the communication process is the ability to listen. Do not judge, advise, or criticize. Listen to your child, be understanding, be sensitive. Before Voters on Parking Deck

I am writing to enlist your support and that of your readers for an idea I recently brought before the Mayor and Town Council of Westfield. I believe the time has come to put a referendum before the people on whether or not to build a parking deck in our downtown. I have recommended that the Mayor and Council work with the public and downtown interests to draft a referendum for this November's general election.

Westfield has debated the issue to build or not build a parking deck for the last 40 years. We have had numerous studies to research and render an opinion on a parking deck. Some have been done by volunteers, and some have been paid for by tax dollars. Our town has spent $21,500 dollars on a study and yet we still have not reached a decision.

In 1986 the Mayor and Council appropriated $1,000,000 for a parking deck. However, in 1990 it changed gears and withdrew this money to fund the renovations to the municipal building.

I know that good arguments can be made on both sides of the parking deck issue, but I truly believe that it has been studied to the

Our downtown is taken for granted by many, but the reality of the issue is that downtowns are disappearing. Shopping malls and strip malls have taken a terrible toll on many towns in our area.

Westfield has a great assist and must be protected. Parking is always a leading concern anytime surveys are conducted. It is time to act, not continue to perform endless studies and surveys that act as a pacification for the concerns of the town.

The Mayor and Council have until August to develop a referendum question that can appear on the November ballot. Let the voters and taxpayers have their say on this issue. This will be good for our town.

I am certain that groups will form that are both pro and con for building a parking deck. Letters to the editor will be written. Candidates for local office will be asked their opinion and will be held accountable. This is the exercise of democracy in action. The topic will be moved from the study phase to the decision stage.

I will continue to talk to our governing body, the downtown interests and public to move this idea of a referendum to a reality for this November's ballot

Larry Goldman Launches Council Relection Campaign

Westfield Councilman Lawrence A. Goldman, who represents the town's Fourth Ward, has announced that he will seek a second term on the Town Council.

"I believe that I have made a positive contribution to Westfield town government during my tenure on the council thus far, and hope to have the continued opportunity to serve the community," Mr. Goldman said in announcing his reelection bid.

Mr. Goldman was first elected in November, 1996 together with Mayor Thomas C. Jardim and Councilman John J. Walsh, who represents the Third Ward.

Since joining the Town Council in January, 1997, Mr. Goldman has served as Chairman of the council's Laws and Rules Committee. Under his leadership, the committee proposed and the full council adopted, an exterior property maintenance code, a shade tree ordinance and an ordinance regulating the location of cellular communication towers within the Town of Westfield.

Last month, the Laws and Rules Committee completed a revision of the ordinance providing for sidewalk cafés in Westfield.

"I am proud of the committee's accomplishments during the past year. However, we have some very important work ahead of us during the remainder of 1998, most importantly, completion of the revision of Westfield's land use law. We will also begin examination of an ordinance to address the unsightly proliferation of newspaper and other publication vending machines in downtown Westfield," Mr. Goldman stated.

Mr. Goldman has also advocated that the council adopt some form of smoke free air ordinance to protect non-smokers from the effects of second-hand smoke.

In addition to his service on the Laws and Rules Committee, Councilman Goldman serves on the Town Council's Public Safety and Building and Town Property Committees.

He also holds the position of Acting Mayor and was appointed by his colleagues on the council to serve as its voting representative on the Board of Trustees of the Downtown Westfield Corporation, which oversees the downtown Westfield special improvement district.

"I first ran for the Town Council two years ago because of my belief that Westfield government needed a greater exchange of ideas. I believe that the efforts of the new Mayor, Tom Jardim, and the new council members, Jack Walsh and I, to chart Westfield on a new course, have begun to bear fruit.

"In our first campaign, we were strong advocates of the necessity to begin the rebuilding of Westfield's infrastructure. The full council has signed on to a multi-year improvement program and this year's capital budget plan gets that process underway. The residents of our community will soon begin to see the tangible results of enhanced road repaving, playing field renovations and capital improvements in downtown Westfield," Mr. Goldman said.

Professionally, Mr. Goldman is a corporate and finance lawyer and a Director of the law firm Gibbons, Del Deo, Dolan, Griffinger & Vecchione, in Newark. He serves as a Subcommittee Chairman of the Small Business Committee of the American Bar Association and is the editor of "The New Jersey Limited Liability Company Forms and Practice Manual," a reference book used by lawyers throughout the State of New Jersey.

Mr. Goldman was a founding Trustee of the Education Fund of Westfield, Inc. He has also coached in the Westfield soccer and baseball programs. Since 1991, he has served as Chairman of the Westfield Democratic Committee.

SP-F School Board Should Reinstate Second Grade Standardized Testing

The Scotch Plains-Fanwood Board of Education approved, by a 6-3 vote, a motion to eliminate standardized testng for second grade students.

The first-time parents will get an accurate comparison of their child's performance will now be third grade. The State of New Jersey has posited that standardized tests are a waste of money. We have implemented a math curriculum so new that no national figures are available about its impact on educational performance. We still have a lot of well-meaning but rabid Whole Language proponents who are neglecting to teach our children to read properly — despite all of the evidence as to its failure. The state fourth grade test is totally new and unproven (aside from the fact that our 'standards" have been ranked the lowest in the nation). This is the worst possible time to eliminate standardized testing at this most critical juncture of a student's education.

Just like phonics and rote memorization of math facts, standardized tests are out of fashion in education circles.

However, all three have stood the test of time for effectiveness and accuracy.

Parents need this information early enough to secure outside intervention/ enrichment programs for their children — before it's too late. A local test, no matter how well designed, does not give us this information. As always, I am willing to share supporting documentation of any and all comments contained in this letter.

Mr. Meade spoke about problems with the district-wide local test, administered last year, and yet he oddly approved its extension into second grade along with the elimination of the standardized test. The other five votes were expected — this crew would support our superintendent in any motion because they apparently don't take the time to independently research the is-

Mountainside Republicans Name Council Candidates

The Mountainside Republican Club sponsored the first convention for the selection of candidates for the Borough Council on March 18.

After the group adopted the rules for the convention, Bill Van Blarcom, the Republican Chairman for the borough, introduced Dona Osieja, Second Vice President, who nominated incumbent Councilman Werner Schon for a sixth term.

Mr. Schon is a graduate of Upsala College and is President of Astro Molding Inc., as well as a partner in several other companies.

In his acceptance speech, he noted that he was part of a team that had renovated the municipal complex, which includes the Rescue Squad, pool, Borough Hall and Police Department, and had also been instrumental in getting the third turnaround on the westbound lane of Route No. 22 opened.

During his 15 years on the council, he has served on almost every committee. Councilman Schon cited the very low tax rate which Mountainside maintains, stating "I give you a word of caution — we cannot become complacent, we cannot take things for granted.

"There will be competition and we will combat the unwarranted accusations by those critical of the Republican Party. I pledge to you that I will make every effort to be sure we are elected in November," he added.

The Republican Chairman then introduced Dr. Marilyn Hart, Corresponding Secretary, who nominated Glenn Mortimer for the seat being vacated by Councilman David M. Hart, who is not running for reelec-

Mr. Mortimer, who has lived in Mountainside for 33 years, graduated from the Mountainside schools and from Drew University with a bachelor's degree in economics. He is a project manager for IBM.

The nominee emphasized his fond memories of growing up in the borough, the sense of community it fostered, and his desire to serve the people of Mountainside with a positive contribution.

He stated that "Mountainside is an efficiently governed town. Our taxes are low and our property values high when compared to neighboring towns. In a large part this is due to the dedicated people who serve our municipal government. The current members of the town government have indeed set a high standard."

Mayor Robert F. Viglianti spoke briefly, welcoming the candidates and pointing out that Mountainside now has the lowest effective tax rate in Union County.

The two candidates were unanimously endorsed by the group, and their names will appear on the primary ballot.

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders adopted an ordinance last Thursday which authorizes the county, through a bond ordinance, to acquire electronic voting machines and an electronic recording system.

The ordinance paves the way for the county to take advantage of its triple "Aaa" rating by appropriating the sum of $2,850,000 to pay the cost of, and make a down payment for, the

The machines, which are barrierfree, are currently in use in Ocean County, which has a large senior population. The new voting machines are expected to be in place for the school board elections in 1999.

Freeholder Lewis Mingo said an additional benefit will provide voting information in the voting machines in Spanish so that the county's Hispanic population would be better informed during the voting process, thus increasing the number of voters.

Freeholder Chairman Daniel P. Sullivan called the Freeholders' action a "a worthwhile endeavor." He said the current machines "are well beyond their years."

The current machines weigh about 900 pounds, compared to the new electronic equipment which weighs about 200 pounds per machine.

Freeholder Sullivan said the electronic tallies will now enable election results to be released within an hour of the time election polls close.

"I just think it's a move to bring us up to speed here in the county and we are going to accomplish that, and I'm sure we are going to roll them out in the proper manner and have them be effective here in the county," he explained.

In other business, the board introduced an ordinance which will limit Freeholder appointments to various boards to a specific date when they are to expire.

Freeholder Vice Chairman Nicholas P. Scutari, Chairman of the Policies Committee, said the committee felt that appointments should expire and not simply "roll-over."

The board appointed John Swindlehurst of Fanwood as a member of the Union County Environmental Health Advisory Board for a term commencing immediately and terminating on December 31, 1999.

It was announced that the county will hold a "Recall Round-Up Day" on Thursday, April 16. Director of Public Safety Harold Gibson described the program as an "effort by our consumer affairs agency to go around and collect items that were recalled by their manufacturers that have slipped through the cracks and got into people's homes and garages and other places that could pose a danger to those individuals and their families.' Among the items are cribs, small baby seats, etc. Freeholder Donald Goncalves, Chairman of the board's Economic Committee, noted that Congress has submitted a transportation appropriation bill which, if approved into law, would provide some $30 million for Union County's light rail project. A Task Force was created through the efforts of county officials to lobby the initiative on behalf of the county.

School Administrator Reflects Upon Budget

The Westfield Leader and THE TIMES of Scotch Plains – Fanwood

By MARK J. YABLONSKY

Dr. Gerard A. Schaller is indeed a busy man these days. As the Mountainside school district's first Chief School Administrator, he is essentially doing the job of both the superintendent of schools and principal of Deerfield School on Central Avenue

In between these dual roles, he also took time to speak briefly with The Westfield Leader last Friday concerning the district's proposed 1998-1999 budget.

Passed unanimously by the Board of Education on March 24, the $8,696,740 package is an increase of $268,505 over the current 1997-1998 tab of $8,428,235. It now goes to the public, which will either approve or reject it on Tuesday, April 21.

"I feel very positive about it," said Dr. Schaller, who began his first full day of work in his new position on November 10, 1997. "I think we've addressed not only the educational needs, but the facilities as well.

"And we have developed a strategic plan, which tells us where we are, and where we want to be in the upcoming years.'

Dr. Schaller, the former Assistant Schools Superintendent for the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional school district, explained most of the increase will go toward instruction. That's because, Dr. Schaller discussed further, the district is adding another class for both the first and second grades, which means at least one new full-time teacher will be needed come September.

Also, the district wants to hire part-time instructors for both computer resources and learning disabilities; officially, the district refers to these teachers as "50 percent" positions.

Other money is targeted toward the revamping of the Deerfield athletic field, which would include drainage, fencing and walkway improvements; also, some renovation work, including a plan to "skin" the infield, is listed.

Board of Education Vice-President Sally Rivieccio, one of three incumbents who is unchallenged in her bid for reelection, has mentioned that post-Union County Regional High School control has opened an "exciting" time and opportunity for Mountainside.

Dr. Schaller concurred, noting that under terms worked out when the old regional district was in the process of disbanding late last Mountainside pays only $12,500 to Governor Livingston High School of Berkeley Heights, the location district students now attend.

Years earlier, most Mountainside students had attended the then-Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, another of the four schools that now is financed by a local school board.

Sometime during the 1998-1999 school year, Dr. Schaller said, a new contract will be worked out with the Berkeley Heights school board for Mountainside's high school tuition

The total increase of the new district budget is itself "within cap," or no more than 3 percent higher than last year's spending plan, the administrator noted.

"(We want) to be as cost effective as you possibly can be," Dr. Schaller stated. "But I think if you're open to the public, then hopefully you will experience success and get the budget passed. I'm a firm believer that the benefits outweigh the costs. And I'll fight for it if I have to.'

Dr. Schaller also expanded further on his district's new "strategic plan," which is better known as a five-year

Usually begun before the previous five-year plan has concluded, strategic plans are essentially designed to be cyclical in nature, in case any adjustments arise along the way.

Indeed, much like a defensive coordinator in football who must often make adjustments to contain an opposing offense's top player, a school district must also be self-analytical in order to make adjustments by the third or fourth year of a strategic plan, Dr. Schaller agreed.

As of last week, Mountainside's student enrollment figure was at 568, slightly up from the start of school back in September, the chief administrator noted. If that figure were not to change before September of this year, then Mountainside's new cost-per-pupil sum would be $15,311.61.

Based on the current enrollment figure that usually changes several times throughout any school year, the previous cost-per-pupil amount was $14,838.44.

That, district officials agree, is largely because Mountainside remains a relatively small district; the Deerfield School, which has had two additions built since the oldest wing's 1950 opening, remains the district's lone operating public school, as it has for many years.

Widdows won the state competition and will represent New Jersey in the national competition. Matthew's grandfather Donald Widdows, right, and father Philip, left, have also been Eagle Scouts.

Matthew Widdows Honored As Scholarship Candidate

It was a "three-generation celebration" in the Widdows family March 25, as grandfather Donald, father Philip and other relatives watched grandson Mat-thew, an Eagle Scout with Troop No. 75 in Cranford, take the first step on the road to a $5,000 college scholarship offered annually by the National Society, Sons of the American Revolution (S.A.R.)

The occasion, the annual meeting of the West Fields Chapter of the S.A.R., was held at Echo Lake Country Club in Westfield, and it gave the local organization the opportunity to recognize Matthew as having been their nominee to the state competition.

George Gross, Co-Chairman of the chapter's Court of Honor Committee, presented Matthew with a special certhat the young man was the winner at the state level and would represent New Jersey in the national competition.

Mr. Gross said Matthew's Eagle Scout Service Project involved promoting organ donor awareness and the need for advanced planning for the distribution of those organs, and that he made presentations on Channel 9 and cable Channel 35.

Matthew Widdows will be recognized again on Saturday, April 18, at the New Jersey Society's annual meeting in Jamesburg.

His grandfather is a long-time member of S.A.R and a Past President of the local chapter. Matthew's father is Assistant Scout Master with Troop No. 75.

Nominations should specify ways in which the teacher has demonstrated outstanding teaching, interest in children and continued pursuit of professional growth. The nominee must be a full-time teacher in the Westfield Public Schools for a minimum of five years.

Students, parents and staff are encouraged to submit nomination letters to: Dr. James Fleming, President, Optimist Club of Westfield, Outstanding Teacher Award Committee, 245 Tuttle Parkway, Westfield, 07090.

The young lady has also expressed a desire to continue her education in the medical sciences and feels that her experience on the rescue squad will undoubtedly help her achieve any goal, Mr. Jackson added.

The squad has also developed a close working relationship with the high school. These efforts include the teaching of cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) to various students that have demonstrated a desire to learn this lifesaving technique, responding to emergencies at various sporting events throughout the year and a continued effort to recruit students as volunteers.

Several active members began serving as volunteers during their high school years, and have proven that the volunteer's commitment continues well into the future.

The squad is an all-volunteer organization serving the 6.29-square-mile community, Mr. Jackson said.

The rescue squad is now conducting its annual fund drive. Tax deductible contributions can be made to: The Westfield Volunteer Rescue Squad, 335 Watterson Street, Westfield, 07090.

Westfield Seniors Donate Decorations to Runnells

Green and white silk floral arrangements graced the tables this St. Patrick's Day at Runnells Specialized Hospital of Union County in Berkeley Heights, due to the efforts of a group of residents from the Second Westfield Senior Citizens Housing Complex on Boynton Avenue.

The 24 dining room table centerpieces are part of an ongoing volunteer effort by the group, which started making silk flower arrangements in 1997 for Runnells. This past year, they made and donated special pieces for Easter, the Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, Christmas, and for Valentines Day, according to tenant Marion Connolly, organizer of the group.

Ms. Connolly has been a volunteer at Runnells for a number of years. When she moved to Second Senior Citizen Housing she asked Runnells' Volunteer Services if she could do something special, and they suggested centerpieces, county spokespeople Margaret Salisbury and Dennis Panchyshyn said.

Ms. Connolly sought assistance in making the arrangements at one of the tenants' meetings in her building. Fifteen residents offered to help, and Ms. Connolly taught them how to arrange the flowers. Now the arrangements have become fixtures at Runnells.

Financing for the projects comes from their budget for activities, and funds collected by tenants in a "Coins for Charity" jar they keep on the main floor, the county added.

Union County Freeholder Deborah P. Scanlon, Liaison to the Runnells Hospital Board of Managers, said, "It was a pleasure meeting the group and talking to them about their volunteer work for Runnells. They feel that by making these floral arrangements, they do something enjoyable and benefit others. We thank them for their thoughtfulness and beautiful handiwork."

Volunteers at Runnells perform a variety of tasks each day, such as assisting with activities that include table and card games, bingo, arts and crafts, plant therapy and weekly coffee socials; acting as friendly visitors to residents who have no family or friendship contacts; giving residents manicures; accompanying residents on weekly swimming trips, assisting with religious services held in the facility that include playing the organ and assisting with bible study; escorting residents and patients to and from therapy, or the on-site beauty salon; and general office work.

Help is also welcome from anyone able to assist on the units with escorting/transporting residents, marking personal laundry, shopping for residents, and with making menu selections.

There are opportunities to help every day of the week, including weekends, both day and night. Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer is encouraged to call (908) 771-5848

Major Focus This Year By DAVID B. CORBIN

Written for The Westfield Leader and The Times

Offense with power was the name of the game last year for the Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School baseball team as they blended the long ball with a high team batting average. Although several of those impressive hitters have graduated, several have remained and several new talented hitters have come up through the ranks; however, the primary focus may be on developing the pitching depth.

With a total of 20 home runs and a team batting average of .379 last year, the Raiders had nothing to worry about offensively. The defense had an .863 fielding average and the Raiders finished the season with a 14-7-1 record.

Gone from the starting lineup are Kyle Atkins, John Luciano and Mike Pudlak. Atkins hit with power but was especially adroit with the glove as he led the team with a .955 fielding average. Luciano struck fear into opposing pitchers as he thumped eight home runs, stole 14 bases and finished with a steaming .438 batting average. Pudlak was the Raiders' king with the 'stick' as he led the team with an incredible .483 batting average. Pudlak was also great Burstein placed third at the Pirate Invitational in the 100-yard butterfly.

Aside from being the Raiders' ace pitcher, Gewirtz hit two home runs and batted .405. Baumwoll belted three homers and batted a sizzling .448. Bishop batted .357, Delmar Patterson blasted two home runs, stole eight bases and batted .444 and Buccola ripped one homer and batted .353 last year.

Offensive clout and effective pitching powered the Westfield High School girls softball team to a fine 17-8 record last season which qualified them for the state sectionals. Although some of their power hitters have graduated, the Blue Devils have several returning players. However, the offensive philosophy will take on a new look. On the mound, the Blue Devil girls will be blessed with the return of their ace pitcher.

Last year, the Blue Devil girls put up some big numbers, amassing 224 hits and finishing with a .324 team batting average. The Blue Devils were not the type of team to wait for the walk as only 46 were taken.

Kashlak Gets Named All-Public 2nd Team

Westfield High School junior Ronnie Kashlak has been selected to the Second Team All-Public Schools Hockey List for the 1997-98 season. For nearly the entire hockey season, Kashlal topped the scoring charts and finished as the state's second-highest scorer with 95 total points, netting 64 goals and setting up 31 assists.

The Blue Devil varsity hockey team finished 10th on the Public School list this season

ior second baseman Liz McKeon. Rachel and Becca Brendler both hit three home runs and batted .405 and 302, respectively. Greenwald was effective as a backup pitcher and also drove 20 Blue Devils across the plate. Hoesly thumped two home runs and crossed the plate 12 times. Tracy rarely struck out and also crossed the plate 12 times. Once on base, Asakawa owned the base pads as she could move from first to home in a flash. Asakawa batted a cool 333 and crossed home plate 15 times.

Wagner sizzled everywhere. As a pitcher, Wagner successfully fired the ball past 102 batters for a call of third strike, recorded a 2.44 earned-run-average and finished with a 15-8 record. As a hitter, Wagner blazed with a team-leading .455 batting average, led the team with 35 hits, scored 32 runs and ripped seven triples. Wagner will remain as the Blue Devils' ace pitcher.

Phillips will give the Blue Devils defensive security behind the plate. Last year, Phillips was selected to the First Team All-Union County List for her total package of abilities. Offensively, Phillips belted four triples, smashed one home run, drove in 20 RBI and batted .364.

Ryan, who will play first base, tied for the team lead with eight sacrifices, nailed four triples, scored 15 runs and batted .338. McKeon provided offensive muscle, hitting three home runs and two triples while driving in 15 runs and scoring 16. Defensively, this season,

McKeon most likely will play shortstop. Adding to the Blue Devils punch will be a wealth of talent from last year's 16-4 junior varsity squad. Junior Jessica Lutkenhouse possesses the speed necessary to swipe several bases this season. Paige Corbett and Abby O'Neill offensively and defensively. Our expectations are to do better than we did last year. I want to get the team more sound defensively and cut down on the errors that we had last year," emphasized Blue Devil Softball Head Coach Maggie McFadden.

"We have lost the Brendler twins who hit for a lot of power last year; especially Rachel. We won't have the power hitters that we had last year, so what I am really trying to work on is execution. We are going to work hard on singles, bunting and steals. I want everybody to be heads up on the bases. You don't necessarily have to be fast to be a good base runner, stressed McFadden.

"Our goals would be to get to the county finals and possibly win it. We obviously would like to qualify for the states and even win it," suggested McFadden.

David B. Corbin for The Westfield Leader and The Times PUSHING THEIR LIMITS...Raider junior Scott Paterson, left, and sophomore Dan Loomis plan to push the shot to the best of their ability this season

Raider Shot Putters Plan Plenty of Added Push

By DAVID B. CORBIN

For the past few years, the Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School boys have excelled in nearly all the aspects of the field portion on the varsity track and field team. Although several excellent sprinters, hurdlers and distance runners remain, the Raiders have taken a hit in power field events with several outstanding athletes having graduated.

With the biggest hit coming in the pole vault and in the discus events, the boys who compete in those events have their work cut out for them. Although shot putter Tom Stein, who consistently shoved the shot over 50 feet, graduated, powerful sophomore Dan Loomis and muscular junior Scott Paterson remain to bear the burden.

The 285 pound Loomis, who recently was named by The Courier News to the All-Union/Middlesex list for his shot putting prowess, has already shoved the orb 46 feet, 10 inches in winter track. So far this spring, Loomis has hit 47 feet and plans to increase his length much more. Loomis will also be trying his hand at the discus for the first time.
"My goal in the shot is to break 50 feet and in the discus I want to break 140 (feet)," stated Loomis. Paterson will add some muscle in the shot and the javelin. So far this year, Paterson has heaved the steel ball 43 feet, 6 inches and is confident, once he gets comfortable with the form, that he will be able to increase his distance significantly.

"My goals this year are to throw all three events (the shot, the javelin and the discus). In the shot put, I would like to hit 50 feet, the discus I am just learning and in the javelin I am trying to get into the 140's and 150's (feet)," expressed Paterson. The Raiders have several boys attempting certain field events for the first time in order to fill in the gaps. Because of the learning process needed, the Raiders will experience huge increases in their distances as the season matures.

Raider Pitching Will Be Major Focus This Year

ior varsity last year, may get plenty of action at third base and sophomore right fielder Dave Herrmann has been showing a lot of promise with the bat. The major stealing threats will be Delmar and Don Patterson, Melendez and Bishop.
"I think we have a pretty solid team.

You know, I'm concerned about our pitching, but I think defensively that we will by okay. I am sure we can score some runs; however, my main concern is pitching," emphasized Raider baseball head coach Briam Homm. 'Gewirtz is solid as our number one pitcher and, hopefully Baumwoll will step up to be our number two pitcher. Then it all depends on who else is going to step up in pitching. We have Franzone, Melendez, Cerchio, Herrmann and Ascolese who can throw," explained Homm.

Reflecting on the Raiders' most dan gerous hitters, Homm noted, Baumwoll is our best hitter. We have

In a showdown of top teams in Masters Basketball action, Merrill Lynch outfought the revamped Cumming Motors squad, shooting a higher percentage and corralling more rebounds. Six foot, eight inch bookends, Steve Solop and Howard Alexander were dominant on the boards. Shooting accuracy by Richie Sciallaba and Lee Shulman plus a deep bench, led by the return of Larry Gottlieb made the difference. Cumming's effort was led by Greg Smith on the boards, and Dan Jayson's shooting.

Plains behind three distinct runs. The first was provided by Smith in the paint, the second by Jake Higgins with a barrage of jump shots and the third capped by an amazing run by Jayson which included several long three-pointers. Lenny Braunstein was the only consistent scorer for Scotch Plains, registering 20 points.

Warren bested The Express in a battle of cellar-dwellers, outrunning and outshooting the losers. Steve Burger's shooting and Al Kroboth's rebounding paced the winning effort.

International Realty showed that they are for real and will be a playoff threat by recording their third straight win over Warren. The floor play was led by Carter L. Carter, Stan Zamorski, and Randy Fisher.

Dynamite Blasts SPF Jazz, 4-1

The Scotch Plains-Fanwood Jazz girls' under-10 intercity soccer team traveled to Thomas Edison Park on March 29 to meet the Edison Dynamite. The dynamite exploded to an early 2-0 lead but the Jazz fought back and closed to within one goal at halftime.

Lauren Hercel sparked the Jazz attack with a swift rush up the right side and a dazzling shot from just outside the right post to cut the Edison lead to 2-1. Bitsy Kipping made a leaping save to snuff out one Dynamite attack and keep the game close.

In the second half Gaby Falco made a sparkling rush up the left side and Shannon Hauser made a similar rush up the right side, but both were disconnected by the tightly wired Edison defense. Two late goals by Edison put the game out of reach for the Jazz, who played a spirited game and look to pick up a win in their next contest scheduled at Cranford on April 5.

SP-F Golden Eagles Snag Montgomery and Rahway

The Scotch Plains-Fanwood girls' Golden Eagles (Intercity U-11) squad remained undefeated for the spring season by besting two opponents at home this past weekend.

On Saturday, March 28, the Eagles took the field against a tough squad from Montgomery and won, 3-2.

Montgomery scored first, but Tayler Montagna soon tied the score when she fielded a rebound from a shot by Jenna Balestriere— which hit the goal post and slid the ball past the goalie's hands. Minutes later, Kelly Rigano put the Eagles ahead to stay when she fielded a kick by the Montgomery keeper and pounded it right back into the goal.

Montgomery tied the game just before the end of the first half.

The two squads played a defensive battle for most of the second half. Shannon Hassett and Jeanette Franzone looked strong for the Eagles in midfield and Jennifer Villas and Erin O'Connor anchored the defense. In the waning minutes of the game, Rigano intercepted a Montgomery pass, brought the ball down the field and fed to Balestriere, who sent the winning shot into the far corner of the goal.

On March 29, the Eagles scored within minutes of the opening kick-off in their game against Rahway, en route to a 5-1 win. Elizabeth Elko brought the ball downfield and sent a centering pass to Balestriere, who sent a high, fast kick into the upper corner of the net, well beyond the keeper's reach.

Rahway tied the game up early in the second quarter and the teams battled toward a halftime tie.

The Eagles found their scoring instinct in the second half and took advantage of every opportunity. First, Rigano took a shot on goal which rebounded off the post and was fielded by Elko. Elko passed the ball to Kristen Zyla, who pooted a shot under the goalie's outstretched hands, putting the Eagles ahead

Minutes later, Baker moved the ball towards the goal and sent a slick pass to Rigano, who scored the third Eagles'

The last two Eagles' goals were both scored by Karen Gassler, showing offensive abilities after playing keeper in the first half. Gassler had an unassisted goal when she intercepted a Rahway throw-in and drilled home a shot into the goal.

Minutes later, Gassler took a pass from Montagna and sent a high kick under the cross bar for the Eagles' final tally. Lauren Perrotta, Carly Wells and Stephanie Splendorio prevented Rahway from mounting any offensive drives in the second half. Gassler and Elise DeVries shared the keeper duties in both games.

ABC Quilt Project Saturday in Westfield The Sixth Annual Holy Trinity

Family Lenten ABC (At-Risk Baby Crib) Quilt Project will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., this Saturday, April 4, at the Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church Parish Center, located at 250 Gallows Hill Road in Westfield.

This event is a one-day Family Lenten Project designed for volunteers to assemble crib quilts for babies born with the HIV/AIDS virus, fetal-alcohol syndrome, drug addictions, and "boarder babies" abandoned in hospitals. The event is coordinated through the guidelines of ABC Quilts, a national, non-profit organization.

"Last year at our fifth annual event, 200 volunteers came and we made 230 quilts in one day. We hope to make at least as many this year, because the need is so great," said Helen Bozonelis, Chairwoman of the event.

All quilts will be distributed to area hospitals and transitional homes in Newark, Elizabeth and Plainfield.

All materials are provided free, but volunteers can bring in baby items as a donation.

Eight steps are followed in making the quilts. Volunteers do not sew the quilts, they will assemble them while a team of machinesewers stiches them.

Ms. Bozonelis noted that volunteers are needed to cut, measure, iron, fill, pin, and tie the quilts. A pre-school table is set for youngsters to color-in their fabric

Volunteers are invited to come for an hour or stay for the day. Volunteers should bring a pair of scissors and lunch.

Past Popularity of Hat Boxes To be Topic at Miller-Cory

Decorative band boxes and openhearth cooking to be featured at the Miller-Cory House Museum, 614 Mountain Avenue in Westfield, this Sunday, April 5, from 2 to 5 p.m. The last tour of the historic farmhouse will begin at 4:30 p.m.

Eileen O'Shea of Summit will demonstrate how hat boxes are made and will have a variety of boxes on display for visitors to view.

From 1820 to about 1850, hat boxes in all shapes were very popular as day suitcases, shopping bags, and glove and jewelry holders, among other uses. Made of pasteboard and hand sewn, not glued, hat boxes were covered with pretty decorative papers such as wallpapers and prints of mythical characters.

Often lined with newspaper, which was thought to repel moths, hat boxes held clothing finery and were carried by ladies traveling by stagecoach or canal boat to the city. Hat boxes were very popular and often times were decorated with commemorative papers printed specifically for the boxes and in honor of an historical event.

Hat boxes fell out of favor with the arrival of the steamship, due to their fragility, and were replaced by the more durable trunk.

Members of the museum's cooking committee will prepare foods, using authentic period recipes, over the open hearth in the Frazee building. Visitors may take tours of the farmhouse given by volunteer docents in period dress.

The gift shop has many Colonialera items including cookbooks, crafts and educational items. Admission to the museum is $2 for adults, and 50 cents for students age 6 and over. Children under 6 years of age will be admitted free.

The museum will be closed on Sunday, April 12, for Easter. It will reopen on Sunday, April 19, with a stenciling demonstration by Dorothy Weiss. For information about the museum and its schedule of events, please call the museum office at (908) 232-1776.

Introducing Area to Fine Cuisine, Culture of India Was Goal Behind Raagini

A passion for introducing others to the wonders of fine Indian cuisine, music and culture spurred Dr. Harmesh Mittal, to open the doors of Raagini in Springfield in 1994.

"After 20 years in America," said Dr. Mittal, a cardiologist, "we were looking to give back, to give something healthy and enjoyable to others that we enjoyed our-

"We" is Dr. Mittal and his wife, Asha, an internist.

Originally responsible for decorating the interior of the restaurant prior to its opening, Mrs. Mittal now keeps tabs on menu innovations and the maintenance of quality standards in the day-to-day operation of Raagini.

Dr. Mittal chose the name "Raagini" because of the different things the word means to different people. To some, Raaginimeans symphony or "Raaga," the centuries-old classical Indian music that delights Raagini's patrons.

To others, Raagini means "a most gracious woman with poise, elegance, power, valor, and kindness in the form of a beautiful princess." This feminine image fit neatly into the restaurant's opening on Mother's Day four years ago. Dr. Mittal has seen to it that Raagini melds these interpretations into an enticing blend of atmosphere, attentive service and fine Indian cuisine.

This amalgam is intended to transport patrons beyond the frenetic pace of the Route No. 22 corridor outside to the mystique of Royal India. It took about a year to transform the building into the showplace it

Trips to India yielded authentic Indian silver, decorations and serving pieces, while the uniforms worn by the wait staff were

According to Dr. Mittal, the dream embodied by Raagini was a dozen years in the making.
"I've always had a passion for this," he explained. "My pleasure comes from other people's enjoyment of my creation.' He likened his experience to a parent's nurturing of a growing child.

Dr. Mittal calls his Master Chef and Partner K. Bakshi "very seasoned" in the fine art of preparing Indian cuisine. Mr. Bakshi received much of his training within the hotels of the Taj group in India. Tandoor preparations from northern India account for nearly half the menu selections. The chef cooks these delicacies in an open clay oven, fired with hot charcoal.

Raagini's freshly-baked breads are cooked on the side of the oven. A traditional marinade for the cooked meats on the menuincludes yogurt and "lots of spices." These are cumin, ginger, coriander, red pepper, onion, tomato, garlic and a special combination of ground spices. Under the direction of General Manager Navin Shetty, Raagini cultivates a knowledgeable wait staff.

Looking ahead, partners Dr. Mittal and K. Bakshi are planning to write a book about Indian cooking that shares Mr. Bakshi's personal recipes. One day, they hope to open a culinary school in New Jersey. There, both professional and amateur chefs would have an opportunity to hone their skills under Mr. Bakshi's expert

Within the walls of his own school, the Master Chef would be able to devote more time to researching and developing skills in a kitchen custom-designed to his tastes and

Dr. Mittal envisions taking his dream a step further.

'There should be another restaurant (perhaps many more) that, on the interior and exterior, would offer a historical perspective on India through its cuisine and ambiance,

"The diversity of India would allow each restaurant to be independent, with its own individual personality," he added. "I like to create something unique.

"We all have a lot more in common than we think," he said. "We all share thoughts of joy regardless of our roots and origins.' Dr. Mittal believes wholeheartedly in Raagini's ability to spread that joy.

Eardly Petersen Introduces Fully Computerized System

The Eardly T. Petersen Co., 224 Elmer Street in Westfield, has announced that the company is now fully computerized.

"We have been on computer for our accounting needs and have had certain computerized inventory abilities for about 10 years," remarked Keith Petersen, spokesman for the company.

"But we are now fully computerized from A to Z. We now have a sophisticated, networked system that handles every item in inventory, and all purchasing, sales and repair work," he continued.

"This is a state-of-the-art system," said Mr. Petersen, "that will enable us to keep detailed customer records of every single transaction for a year, and enable basic tracking of repairs and customer purchases indefinitely after that. For example, we can enter a serial number of a product and find exactly when it was purchased."

"We have EDI (Electronic Data Interchange) abilities with many of our major manufacturers," Mr. Petersen continued. "Parts ordering and warranty reports can now all be filed electronically with Briggs and Stratton, Honda and others.

"This greatly streamlines these procedures. We are also able to access complete parts lookup screens via CDROM on linked computers for most of our Outdoor Power Equipment manufacturers," he added.

"In this way, we can pull up complete schematics and immediately identify specific OPE (outdoor power equipment) parts either for repair jobs or for over-the-counter parts supply."

"This system has been a long time coming," said Mr. Petersen. "We identified a need for this type of system about five years ago, and had delayed until we found the right system. It then took us almost a year to implement this current system, and we are extremely pleased to now be able to offer the conveniences of this type of computerization to our customers," he noted.

"We have a sophisticated system such as is used by the banking industry and other major corporations, and we feel we have further structured our business to satisfy our customers' needs well into the future," Mr. Petersen said.

The Eardly T. Petersen Co. is a 42-yearold family-run business offering sales and service in floor care equipment (vacuums and carpet cleaners), janitorial supplies and equipment, sewing machines, outdoor power equipment (lawnmowers, leaf blowers, chainsaws, line trimmers, etc.), and air and water purification equipment.

The company may be reached at (908) 232-5723, and may be visited at their web site address of www.westfieldnj.com/etpetersen or e-mailed at etpetersen@westfieldnj.com.

WSO Friends Offers Hands-On Course to Learn Faux Painting

A hands on course in faux painting is being offered by the Friends of the Westfield Symphony Orchestra on Saturday, April 4.

Joan Jardine, a West Orange artist, will teach the class in which participants will learn how to do ragging on and off, strie, painting and colorwashing with an emphasis on professional tricks and techniques to create beautiful-glazed finishes.

The course is being held in an artist's loft in Westfield and is limited to 25 people. It is being given as a "prelude" to the annual house tour sponsored by the Friends as its primary fund-raising event. This year's house tour is scheduled for Saturday, May 2.

There was a faux painting demonstration during last year's tour and the overwhelming response to the demonstration led to the idea of organizing a class this spring. Ms. Jardine has over 20 years experience and she has been commissioned to work throughout the New York metropolitan area, including Manhattan, Greenwich, Connecticut, and Westchester, as well as New Jersey.

The faux painting class will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. All participants are being asked to bring a bag lunch and a natural bristle paint brush, which most people have at home. There is a $60
