The Seeds of Understanding

WEST=O=RANGER

Published by the Students of
West Orange High School
West Orange, New Jersey

PREFACE

The 1960 edition of the West-O-Ranger possesses a far deeper meaning than that of a simple portrayal of our high school days. This yearbook emphasizes the underlying theme of all the yearbooks ever created, an underlying theme, an intangible, vital item called understanding.

Understanding is the exchange of ideas and the beneficial fruits derived from such an exchange. The exchange of ideas has, of course, two facets, giving and receiving. Applied to international peace, the exchange of ideas involves proposal and acceptance of another's proposal. Applied to science, it signifies teaching someone and being taught by him in return. The beneficial fruit resulting from an exchange of ideas consists of more ideas which are subsequently exchanged for more ideas. This process can repeat itself perpetually, forming an endless chain of increasing understanding. Herein lies the never ending story of human progress. For increasing understanding is progress.

An important feature of this book is international understanding. Understanding among men has meant, since the beginning of time, a better world. Today, as in the past, people of different lands are exchanging ideas across a peace table, at the Olympics, at a World's Fair, or at an International Science Convention, in order to insure world peace, scientific and cultural exchange, and, most of all, a better world. Since these international goals are ours also, we must help to widen the panorama of international understanding through our own ever widening understanding. We must do this by applying the fruit of our exchange of ideas in high school, and, most of all, the continually richer fruits of our exchange of ideas in later life, to a further exchange of ideas in whatever career we follow and with whatever people we meet.

The main feature of this yearbook is a portrayal of the development of our understanding. The dynamic story of the growth of our understanding is remarkably paralleled by the growth of a tiny seed into a mature tree. The story begins with a seed, the seed of our understanding. The seed swells just a little as a result of our pre-high school education. The seed yet must be sowed and our high school faculty are the sowers. In our freshman year they impart new knowledge to us and demand our knowledge in return. They provide a great boost to our understanding, so great a boost, in fact, that the seed shoots a tiny green stem into the world. As the plant grows, it is constantly nourished by the sun and rain. The "sun" and "rain" are our school athletics and activities, which extend to us further means for exchanging ideas. The plant soon becomes a tree.

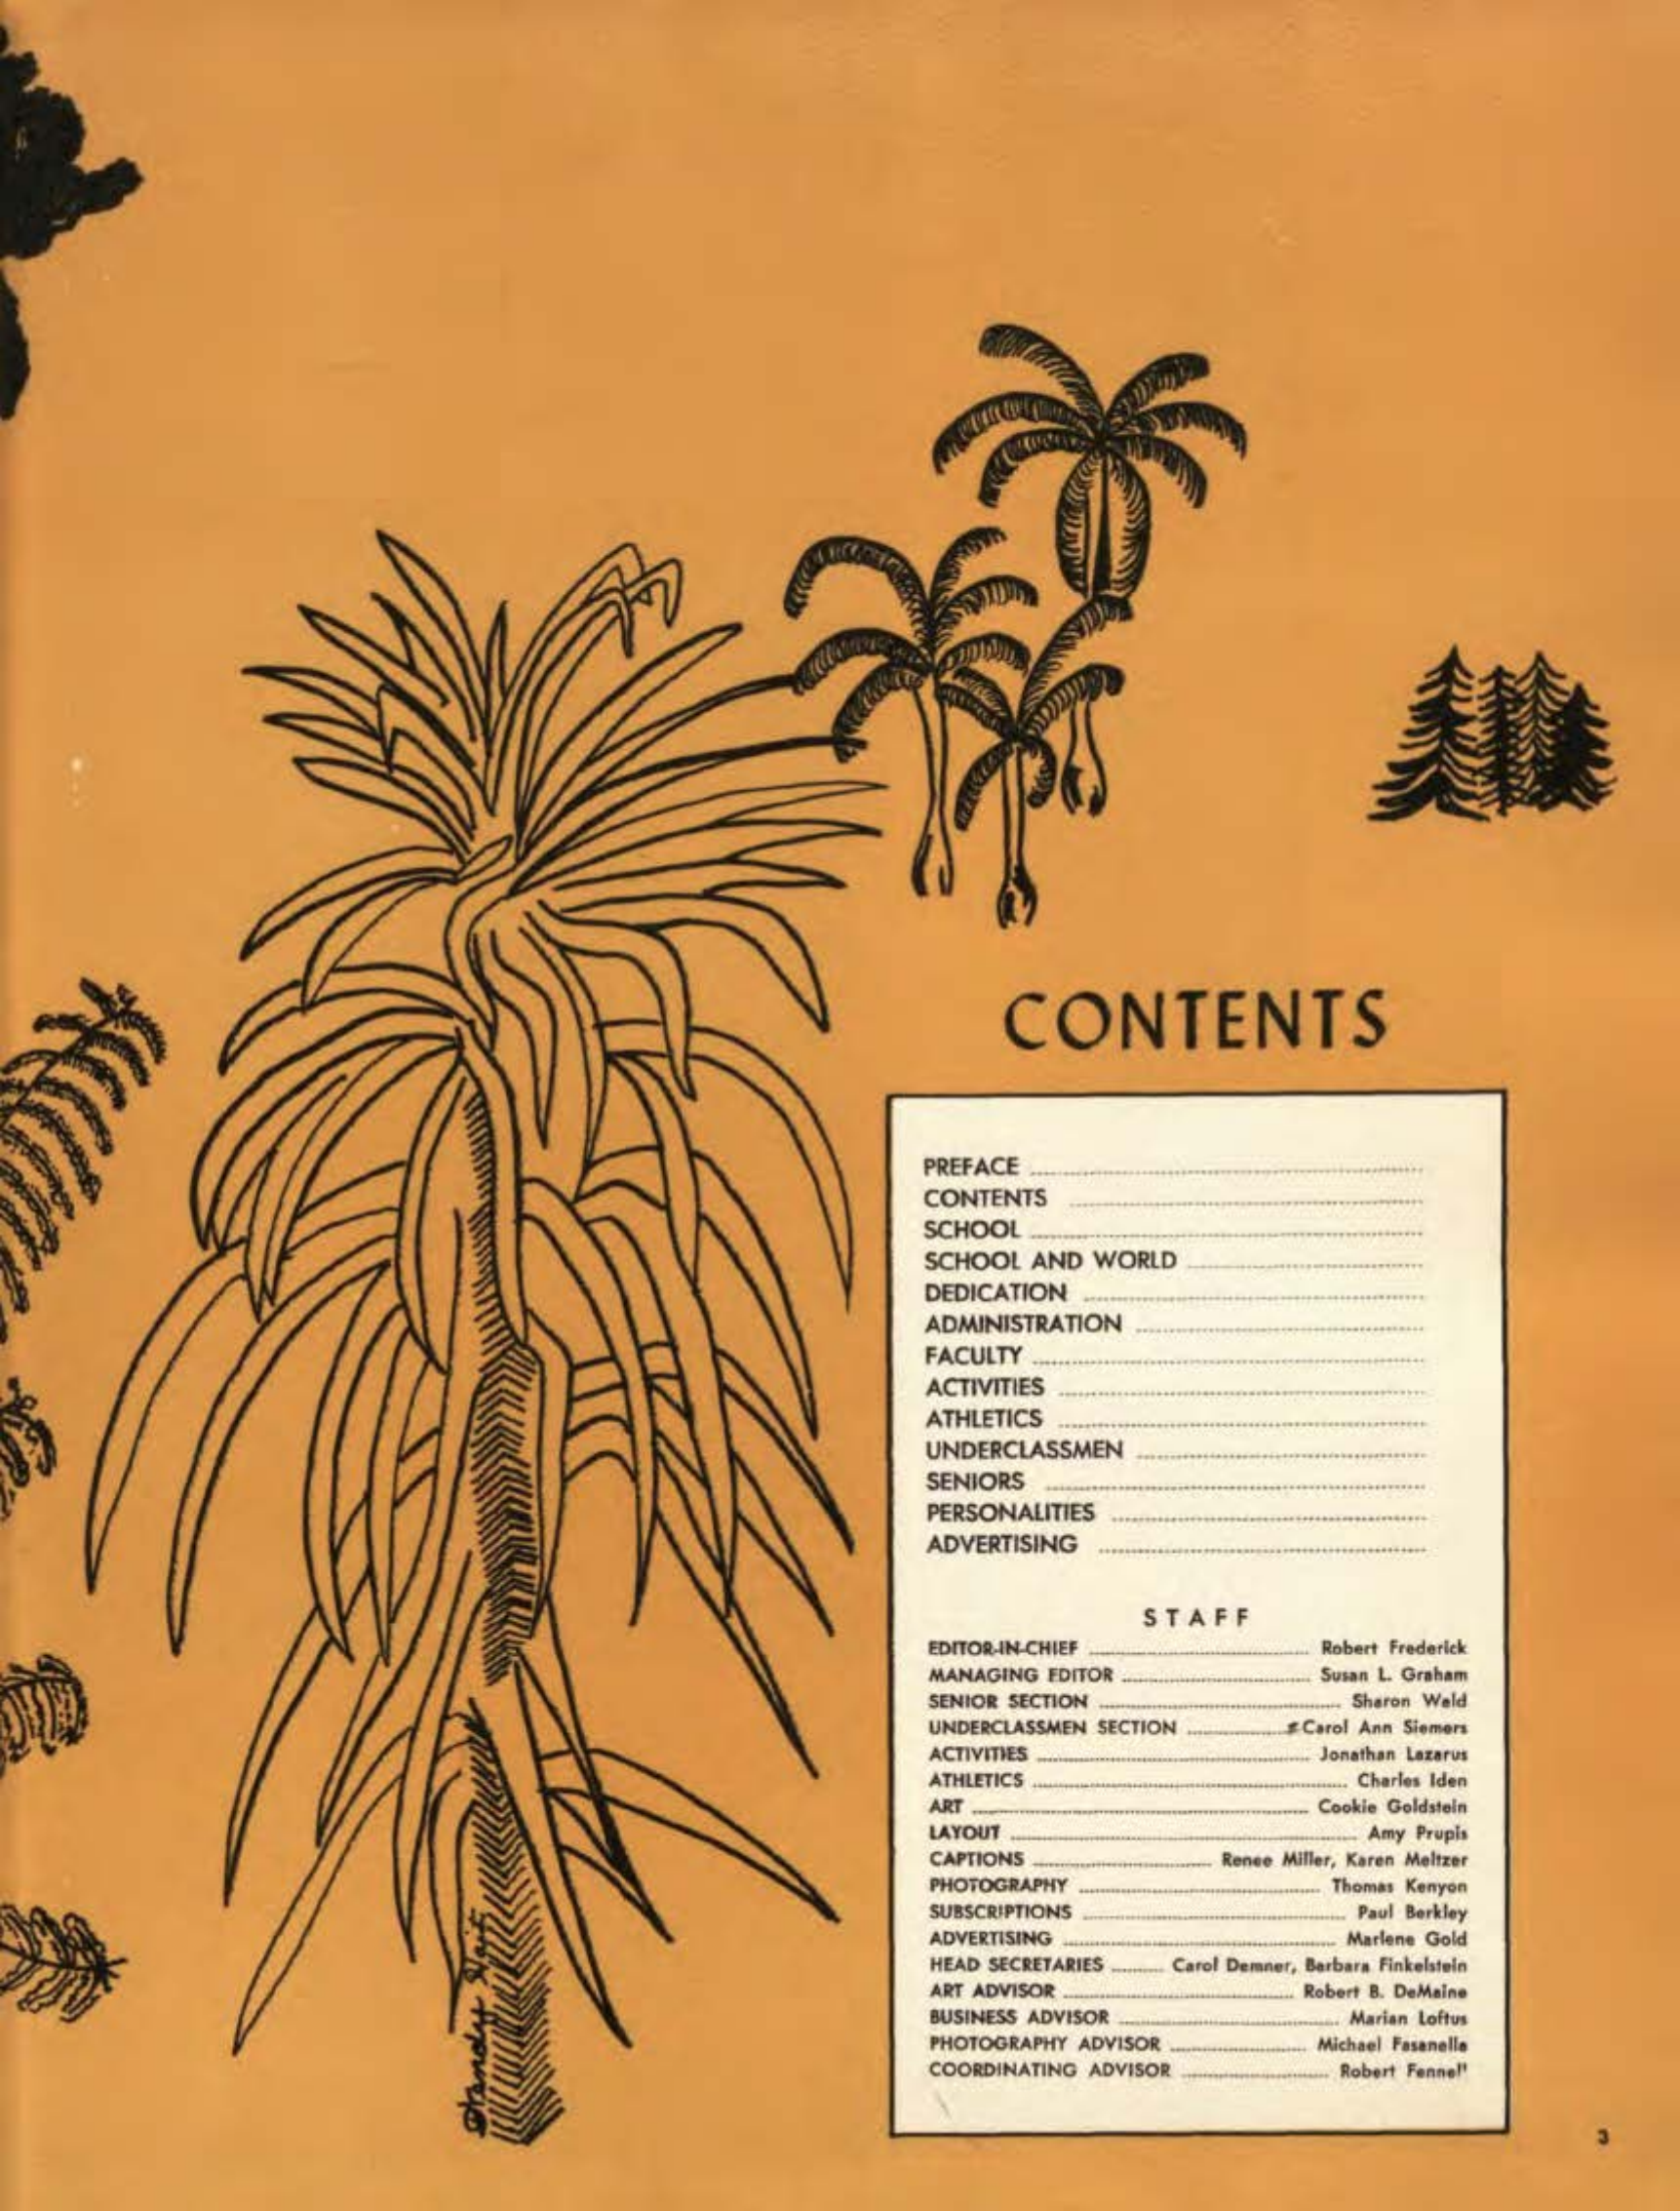

As underclassmen it is our duty to cultivate the tree by continually exchanging ideas. The tree bears fruit at the end of our senior year. The appearance of the fruit on the tree calls our attention to this, our initial exposure to the world, our great opportunity to use this first fruit of our tree.

The fruition of our tree is not, however, the end of our story. It is only the beginning. Our tree of understanding shall grow until the end of time. Our tree shall bear perpetually improving fruit, fruit that means progress, fruit that makes us certain that the story of the growth of our understanding will always be part of another far greater story—the endless story of human progress toward a better world.

DEDICATION

Raymond E. Hearn

One of the basic requirements in the growth of a tree is some power, be it human or divine, which sees that it is nourished; one of the most important factors in the well-being of a school is its principal. West Orange High School was especially fortunate in the years from 1944 to 1959 to have Mr. Hearn as its mentor and leader.

A graduate of Dickinson College, Mr. Hearn earned his master's degree at New York University. He served as principal of Gaston Street School and Roosevelt Junior High before coming to the high school.

While at WOHS, Mr. Hearn did much to enrich our school life. He was responsible for starting the Roundup, our school newspaper. He also received extensive praise for his origination of our club program; and clubs remained one of his favorite projects throughout his career in the high school.

It is with a great sense of humility that the Class of '60 dedicates the West-O-Ranger to Mr. Raymond Hearn in grateful appreciation of all that he has done for the students of West Orange High School.

REXFORD S. SOUDER

Superintendent

A graduate of Glassboro State College, Dr. Souder earned his master's and doctorate degrees at Columbia University Teachers College. A former New Jersey teacher, he has held administrative positions in California and Massachusetts. Since his arrival in West Orange in 1957, Dr. Souder has worked to guide and promote the school building program.

FRANK S. ALBRIGHT

Director of Secondary Education

Coming to West Orange from the Midwest in 1956, Dr. Albright tackles the important job of secondary education director. A graduate of Bradley University and the University of Illinois, he holds a PhD. from the University of Chicago. Among the many problems confronting Dr. Albright each day are those concerned with the development of the curriculum and inter-class coordination.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

SEATED: Dr. Charles Torlucci, Mr. John F. O'Brien, Mrs. Jacob T. Friend, Mr. John R. Shannon, Mr. Arthur F. Redmond. STANDING: Mr. Lennart T. Ericsson, Dr. Rexford S. Souder.

CHESTER H. WINE
Principal

A Lebanon Valley College graduate, Mr. Wine has served the West Orange School System in several capacities. He taught history, was principal of Hazel Avenue School, and served as vice principal of the high school before becoming acting principal last year. He enjoys working with the students and seeing to their happiness and well-being.

SAMUEL MEYER
Administrative Assistant

A graduate of Lebanon Valley College and Columbia University, Mr. Meyer formerly taught senior mathematics, algebra, and plane geometry at West Orange High School. This year Mr. Meyer serves our school as administrative assistant to the principal and as head of the guidance department. Having been a member of the faculty for many years, Mr. Meyer is well qualified in saying that, "West Orange High is a very fine school."

ADMINISTRATION

EDWARD E. JOHNSON
Administrative Assistant

Mr. Johnson, a graduate of Dickinson College, earned his master's degree at New York University. During his twelve years at West Orange High School, he has done much for the student body, especially in the field of extra-curricular activities. This year Mr. Johnson has helped students with schedule changes, has been responsible for our fine assembly programs, and has initiated our excellent club program.

HAYDN EVANS
Administrative Assistant

A Grove City College graduate with a master's degree from Montclair State College, Mr. Evans was formerly a teacher of Business Education. At present, he is in charge of attendance and discipline. In addition, he aids in the placement department. In his new position, Mr. Evans is pleased to be able to assist students who need help.

Mr. McRoberts pauses to meditate over the evils of corrupt government.

ACTIVITIES

D. COLNER

Rain is nourishing. Rain is lifegiving. Rain is sustaining. Rain completes the miracle of the growth cycle. If this helper of nature were removed from the surroundings of living organisms, their final structures and health would provide glaring examples of its necessity.

Our monumental tree of understanding would be rendered helpless and deficient in innumerable ways without this magic liquid. Its hard trunk would be mollified and made more susceptible to disease, the gentle boughs and numerous ramifications stunted and disfigured, and the leaves withered and lifeless.

A direct analogy can be made between our tree of understanding's need of rain and our participation in extracurricular activities.

It is clearly shown that a prime factor in allowing the tree to flourish and reach complete maturity is nutrition derived from water. Thus the activities in which we engage could be designated as the precious substances enabling us to lead a richer life, supplement our interests, and stimulate those traits, among which are leadership and participation, which will pave the way in making us conscientious citizens.

The activities program at West Orange High is augmented this year by the addition of numerous clubs that heretofore had been unheard of. The program that resulted is so wide and flexible in its scope that we are given the opportunity to journey to distant and exotic places on the globe with the Travel Club, contend with world tensions in the International Relations Club, or struggle with the problems of science that face the Electronics Club.

Some of us flex our muscles at the Physical Training Center while others who crave an atmosphere of silence seek refuge in the Chess Club haven. International Weekend, excursions, challenging assemblies, weekly dances, and rallies are a handful of other outstanding events classified under the huge category of activities being offered at our high school.

Activities, therefore, provide the enrichment, stability, and the additional training we should attempt to cultivate. The tree of our understanding might have barely existed without rain. We could complete our secondary education with activities. However, both would be lacking basic qualities. The tree would lack physical readiness; we, preparation for the future.

JONATHAN LAZARUS

At five in the afternoon on Friday, November 6, 1959, nineteen foreign exchange students from thirteen countries arrived in West Orange to be the guests of West Orange High School pupils and their families at the fifth International Weekend to be held here. The American Field Service and the high school Parent Teachers Association were the sponsors of the weekend.

During the evening the students were the guests at seven informal parties given by members of the student body throughout West Orange. While visiting all the parties with Sara Natelson, West Orange High's American Field Service representative to Japan last summer, I found that the guests and the cowboys and cowgirls had become well acquainted. Dancing as well as discussions seemed to be on a truly international level; and everyone had a wonderful time.

On the following day, we were supposed to be the guests of the school at the football game between the Cowboys and Montclair, but bad weather made it impossible to attend the contest. In the evening we met again at Roosevelt Junior High School where WOTAC sponsored an "International Weekend Hop." Before entering the gym to dance, all exchange students were individually introduced to the large crowd.

We all met on Sunday afternoon to make a tour of the Edison Museum. This was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Graves, foster parents to last year's American Field Service student, Irene Vourloumi of Greece. At six o'clock in the evening, International Weekend was officially over and the students returned home with pleasant memories.

linking students and faculty . . .

One of the most important organizations in West Orange High School is Student Council, the student government organization. Not only is the council the guiding force behind many school-wide activities, but it is also responsible for promoting better faculty-student relations.

Student Council, under the guidance of Mr. Thomas Guest and Mr. John Huber, is composed of one representative from each homeroom and an executive council. Election of officers takes place in the spring, complete with posters, electioneering, and campaign speeches in assembly. This year's officers include President Robert Mauro, Vice President Herbert Jacobsen, Corresponding Secretary Patricia Roberts, Recording Secretary Susan Lipsey, and Treasurer Michael Friedberg.

This year the Student Council has continued many activities that have become traditional student functions. The Janet Memorial Home, our adopted orphan home, attracts many West Orangers to entertain the children. Each fall the International Weekend takes place, during which many foreign exchange students get together with WOHS students. A recent innovation at the high school is the Safe Teen Committee, which supervises student parking in the school lot.

The Student Council is also responsible for the student "co-ed nights" held in the gym on various Friday evenings throughout the year. Each "co-ed night" includes a program of sports, dancing, and refreshments.

The price of admission, whether monetary or otherwise, is a donation to a worthy cause or drive sponsored by the council. One night this year an article of clothing for underprivileged persons was the required contribution.

A student government such as our Student Council is an important part of any high school. From participation in student government preparation is made for our future roles as citizens in a democracy.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Election to the National Honor Society is one of the highest honors that can come to a student of West Orange High School. Based on qualities of character, scholarship, service and leadership, membership in the Society is limited to 15% of the Senior Class.

A many-sided versatile organization, the National Honor Society fosters school spirit as well as scholarship. Led by President John Lang, Vice-President Bob Frederick, Secretary Sue Graham, Treasurer Sara Natleson, the National Honor Society put forth a vigorous program this year.

In its first activity of the year, the group sponsored a highly successful motorcade to the traditional Thanksgiving football game with Columbia High School. For this occasion the Society provided automobile decorations for mobile participants, and transportation for pedestrians.

Two traditional Society-sponsored activities are the posting of the honor roll and a tutoring service. The latter, completely planned and executed by members of the group, has proved an invaluable help to many students.

The outstanding project instituted this year is "work day." On a designated day, each Society member takes a job with the understanding that his employer will pay him according to his work. All earnings are then turned over to the organization to be applied to a special National Honor Society Scholarship. This award is given at graduation to a deserving student chosen by the faculty.

The National Honor Society traditionally ends its year with a banquet at a nearby restaurant which provides a fitting end to a busy year.

strengthening our ability to communicate . . .

As a climax to the 1959-1960 school year, the Roundup was awarded its usual first place medal at the Columbia Scholastic Press Association conclave. This honor acknowledges the publication's high standard of reporting significant scholastic news to the student body.

Editor-in-chief Ann Fleisher does an admirable job in coordinating and directing the efficient editorial staff which has brought seven news-packed editions of the Roundup to the pupils this year. However, her task is greatly alleviated by the efforts of associate editor Pat Fleming, and business manager Charles Hoffman.

Mr. Richard Evers assumes the duties of faculty advisor this year, a capacity which had been ably filled by Mr. Atwell Thomas since the inception of the publication fourteen years ago. Mr. Thomas devoted his energies and abilities into forging the paper into one of the finest scholastic publications of its kind in the nation.

The Roundup staff also released three "extra" editions this year. The timely information contained in them is greatly appreciated by the student body, and succeeds in engendering a great amount of school spirit.

In addition to their journalistic endeavors, the staff has continued its tradition of vending candy and other refreshments at athletic gatherings and after-school clubs. The money collected from the sales is put to good use by the paper.

Indeed this year's Roundup is one more fine example of the outstanding Roundup tradition which has well represented West Orange High School throughout the years.

Advisor, Mr. Atwell Thomas, calls an impromptu policy meeting with photographer Lenny Goodman and assistant editor Pat Fleming.

A troublesome underclassmen layout brings Amy Prupis, Sue Graham, Carol Siemers, Bob Frederick, Advisor Mr. Robert Fennell, Tom Kenyon and Charlie Iden together to solve the problem.

This year's yearbook staff has been challenged to present a memorable edition of the West-O-Ranger for the largest graduating class in the history of West Orange High School.

Faint memories become tangible experiences as the pages of the yearbook unfold. The publication represents the triumphs, trials, and tribulations of the students who have spent three years of their lives at West Orange High.

Guiding and coordinating the staff's effort in the right channels was a new member of the faculty, Mr. Robert Fennell. His work was lightened by the outstanding efforts of editor-in-chief Robert Frederick, and managing editor, Susan Graham.

The financial support for the West-O-Ranger has been solicited in numerous ways. Commercial establishments have purchased ads, and patrons have contributed generously.

Because of the greater size of the graduating class, a 9"x12" page was selected, representing a substantial increase over the size of the previous year's edition. A new spacious location has also harbored the staff, so that they, who have contributed their ideas, knowledge, and time, now present you with this lasting memento.

Cauldron financial problems are solved by an editorial summit conference consisting of Ann Carlucci, Julie Prupis, Steve Levitt, and Steffi Rosenbaum.

West Orange High School's creative writing magazine, The Cauldron, represents a fine outlet for pupils with aspirations to become poets, essayists, and profound thinkers, and affords those underclassmen who are not currently engaged on the school newspaper or yearbook a wonderful chance to see their names in print.

Each May, the familiar maroon cover makes its appearance at the school, and pupils are then treated to a host of witty stories, poems, and personal viewpoints for only a small amount of pocket change.

This year's edition represents a milestone in the five years that the magazine has been published. A greater number of writers contributed their talents than ever before, and a new feature was instituted this semester in that original artwork accompanies The Cauldron.

The amazing strides that the publication has made over the short span of time it has been published are due to the efforts of its permanent guardian, Mrs. Ruth Casey. Responsible for the magazine this year are editors Ann Carlucci and Stephanie Rosenbaum. A vigorous publicity staff has waged an effective picture poster campaign in trying to boost sales of the magazine.

All in all, this year's Cauldron marks one more giant step in the perennially increasing prominence of the magazine.

PRESS CLUB

The Press Club, under the direction of Mr. Evers, has once again extended its benefits to all pupils wishing to amplify their knowledge of the newspaper industry. Students planning to make journalism their vocation and those who attend meetings to broaden their knowledge are taught the fundamentals of constructing various types of news stories and conducting personal interviews. Valuable experience is afforded the participants as they are given numerous assignments which enable them to meet people from all walks of life.

As outlets for the material that they produce, the Press Club utilizes the facilities provided by the Roundup and the West Orange Chronicle. Among the many articles submitted to these publications are essays, editorials, sports coverage, and scholastic news. The voice of West Orange High School is strongly amplified by this creative and worthwhile club.

SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL CLUBS

Students who excel in the sciences and mathematics are given an opportunity to augment their knowledge by joining one of the various technical clubs offered in the activities program this year.

Future chemists meet every Tuesday morning in the laboratory room, under the supervision of Mr. Leslie Bauerle, to pursue their experimentation in organic chemistry. The laboratory preparation of numerous compounds is emphasized, and the participants do a large amount of individual research.

Exploring the wonders of nature has fascinated the Biology Club headed by Mr. Roy Carter. The science of taxidermy has been introduced by teaching the members the proper methods of mounting and exhibiting specimens. A good deal of dissection is performed, and not a whimper is heard from the feminine biologists.

Mathematics Club members are challenged by thought-provoking problems set before them by Mr. Harry Johnson. The numerically-minded members find that their added bits of knowledge benefit them in the regular mathematics classes.

The Electronics Club affords its members with a fundamental knowledge of that science. Many of the participants complete radio sets or other electrical apparatus during the year and do useful testing and repair work.

This group of clubs performs a vital function as their programs seek to instill in students an appreciation of science. In the atomic age, where science plays a prominent role, these clubs could provide the basis for the future vocations of their members.

LANGUAGE CLUBS

Today the world has been shrunk by man's scientific genius, bringing human beings from different regions of the globe closer together than they have ever been before. The understanding of the language and customs of certain areas is imperative for the establishment of a lasting peace. The language clubs realize this, and make great efforts to meet the challenge.

"Le Cercle Francais" has a truly full year planned for them this semester. Miss Lenox's "monsieurs and made-moiselles" produced two full-length reviews in French, one of which was presented to the student body. Other highlights of the year include the traditional induction ceremony, and a trip to New York, where the members view a French cinema and partake of French cuisine.

"Buenos tardes" is the password at the Spanish Club meeting as "los muchachos" and "muchachas", under the direction of Mr. Green, are treated to a host of guest speakers from the Spanish-speaking world. This organization also conducts its annual Christmas party in the traditional Spanish manner, and hears several recordings of famous plays and reading translated into "Español."

The German Club, advised by Mrs. Bender, had its inception at West Orange High School just two years ago. However, it has made great strides in alleviating the linguistic problems of many of its participants, and has attempted to familiarize them with the difficult pronunciation of conversational German.

The glory that was Rome remains as the Latin Club, sponsored by Miss Loughren, strives to remind us of that great civilization and the contributions it has made to the modern world. Historical studies in both the literature and history of the Roman Empire are among the varied projects embodied in its program.

The language clubs succeed in capturing the student's zealous interest because of their practicality and their ability to provide unique and interesting formats. It is a certainty that they will improve in this in years to come.

Eugene Timins cautions Susan Low and Kathleen Lee to beware of April Fool's Day in German Club.

West Orange High students and faculty members alike benefit from the industrious projects and aid unselfishly extended to the school by the service clubs, including the Art Service Club, the Visual Aids Club, the Library Council, and the Student Secretaries.

Mr. DeMaine coordinates the Art Service Club, where talented dabblers utilize their ability in designing the posters and scenery that bedeck the confines of the corridors, and heighten the effect of the special assembly programs. This organization also sponsors the lighting crew which is instrumental in the success of the weekly assemblies and the Student Production.

Another group of "men behind the scenes" is the Visual Aids Club, advised by Mr. John Brown. The twenty audio-men acquire a massive amount of technical knowledge during the semester and they are responsible for the fine films and documentaries viewed by the student body.

The Library Council, apprenticed to Mrs. Meyer, helps to keep our volumes of publications in tip-top condition. The job is a demanding one for the council members. The participants have to donate a minimum of one study hall during the week in addition to a mandatory amount of time required after school.

While performing such arduous tasks as shelving, mending and cataloguing books, filing, computing overdue accounts, arranging the bulletin board, and checking out books, the members also gain valuable experience for a possible future career.

Messages of importance are distributed to any portion of the building with great speed by the Student Secretary Club who do much to help the regular administrative secretaries. Such clerical tasks as typing and filing are also performed by this most practical club.

Art Service Club workers Lillian Stausland and Joseph Kleinchester keep students in the know concerning basketball scores.

SERVICE CLUBS

The Visual Aids Club supplements many of the regular courses of study with slide and film illustrations. Here, Roy Konwiser and Larry Dockery prepare a slide viewer for use.

CAREER CLUBS

Many students wishing to gain further insight into their chosen career, or seeking to decide on the profession they would like to pursue, participate in one of three Career Clubs offered in the activity program curriculum.

The Future Teachers of America, the largest club of the trio, boasts a membership of 120 students. Its well-rounded program of activities allows participants to foretaste what teaching is really like. Men and women in the field of education are frequent guest lecturers. For variety, as well as for experience, members make school visits at the educational level in which they intend to teach. Various other excursions are taken, one of which is usually to a teachers college. This year President Lois Rosenbaum conducted the meetings under the capable tutelage of faculty advisor Mr. Alex Maccia, and assistants Mrs. Florence Seward and Miss Marilyn Lenox.

The Future Nurses of America Club acquaints its medical-minded members with the different fields of nursing. This is achieved by means of guest speakers, usually nurses from a cross-section of hospitals, who relate their experiences in their profession. Many of the members gain first-hand knowledge of the job while working as aides in neighboring hospitals. The club sponsors visits to local institutions during the Christmas season, when the girls spread cheer to young and old alike. There are also numerous other opportunities to make observations of the duties that nursing entails.

President Dave Bernstein presided over the gathering of the Business Careers Club, which informs a group of thirty students about the scope of fields and opportunities of the business world. This is accomplished by showing various industries in operation and by having the students actually participate in them. Miss Marion Loftus often arranges expeditions to large business concerns in the Newark vicinity. Other highlights of the year include talks by various businessmen and discussions on the future careers of the individual members.

Fred Selzer, Bob Magno, and Mike Tull attempt to improve their typing skills amidst the busy clatter of pounding typewriter keys.

Future homemakers are given an opportunity to foretaste what lies ahead for them by joining the Needlecraft Club, comprised solely of feminine membership, or the Gourmet Club, which has graciously allowed the men to take part in the culinary capers.

Miss Quinn, the sponsor of the Needlecraft Club, limits the membership to girls who are not currently enrolled in the regular sewing course. Many girls have found the group particularly interesting, and have benefited from its aid in many instances. Instruction is given in the fields of knitting, embroidering, and sewing toys and bits of clothing. Although the femmes often exclaim "knit one pearl two" throughout the semester, and strain their eyesight trying to perform the exacting task of threading a needle, the majority of the participants terminate the year with a lovely new addition to their wardrobes and have with them the knowledge of a lasting skill.

Amidst the clattering of pots and pans can be seen the epicures of the Gourmet Club garnishing some appetizing platter every Tuesday morn. Mrs. Dennington's chefs have a truly full year planned for them. The six lads and twelve lasses have cooked many tidbits and have completed a full-course dinner. With pleasure comes responsibility; anything tarnished in the preparing process must be cleansed thoroughly and neatly put away. The chefs take pride in their cooking, especially when they all sit down to enjoy the fruits of their labors.

INTERNATIONAL CLUBS

Current happenings in the atomic age compel the International Relations Club to maintain a brisk pace in order to keep abreast of world events. Therefore, the club tries to obtain guest speakers who are representatives of the nations designated as the "hot spots" of the world. The organization of this club has provided the students of West Orange High School with the foundations for becoming more qualified, perceptive, and dutiful citizens of our country.

Vagabonds galore are present at the Travel Club every Tuesday morning as they attempt to junket to Buenos Aires, vacation on the Riviera, or trek to the Orient without having to spend a dime. Mr. Fasanella, the tour director, provides "tips for good travel" which illustrate to the globe-trotters in what ways in which they may travel, the proper methods of preparing for a trip, the necessary luggage to be taken, the varying currencies of different locales, and above all, the virtues of thriftiness. The knowledge gained during the semester is applied when the travelers plan individual "dream" excursions, correct to the smallest detail.

Dreams of traveling to foreign lands run through the minds of Travelers' Club members Brigitte Schmogrow, Marilyn Peterson, and Carol Portuese.

SKILL AND RECREATION CLUBS

Among the sundry clubs offered to West Orange High pupils in the enlarged activities program are those skill and recreation clubs which seek to augment the student's interest and proficiency in his chosen hobby.

Due to the increasing popularity of the game, the Bridge Club had to be divided into two sections this year. Novices to the game are included in the beginners division, which is advised by Mrs. Singer. Here the fundamentals of good bridge are taught, and promising players can look forward to joining the advanced club next year. This advanced section provides the type of instruction that produces talented players. Mr. Bayer supervises the dealing and bidding, and arranges for the group to compete in several round robin tournaments.

Chessmasters find a haven of refuge in which to pursue their favorite pastime as they invade the physics room every Tuesday morning and quickly cover the desks with checkerboards and miscellaneous rooks and knights. Some of the members did remarkably well this year in surmounting the challenge of the difficult game in numerous tournaments. Mr. Struyk, the advisor, aides the members with information concerning the technical aspects of the game.

Mr. Wear and Mrs. Craig chaperone the Social Dance Club which embodies the social aspect of the activities program. Boys and girls are given a chance to dance to the latest records, gossip, and have a wonderful time.

For those lads that are athletically inclined, Mr. Hince and Mr. Prach operate the Physical Education Club. Calisthenics, tumbling, and general physical fitness are foremost on the program. Individual progress reports of each boy's accomplishments are maintained, and this year the musclemen were given an opportunity to display their newly acquired skills at a highly successful sports assembly.

This difficult physical feat presents no serious problems for Ken Mandas as he goes up and over the parallel bars in Physical Education Club.

COMMUNICATIONS CLUBS

Debate Club members Nancilee Goodman, Jim Murphy, Jill Goldwasser, and Paul Bernstein confer on a topic for weekly presentation.

The communications clubs of West Orange High School strive to amplify the cultural and creative talents of the cowboys and cowgirls.

Students possessing forensic ability find an outlet for their chatter at the Debate Club. This organization greatly increased its membership this year by founding a Tuesday morning club, in addition to the after-school organization. Highlights of the season are the annual trips made to Temple University and the University of Pennsylvania Debate Clinics. The club also participates in numerous debate tournaments, the Springfield Student Congress, extemporaneous speaking contests, and poetry recitals. This club performs the vital task of teaching students the correct procedures of speaking, the art of thinking logically, and the proper methods of preparing and writing speeches and arguments.

Miss Avis Clarke's drama club is instrumental in the creation of the annual Student Production. The amateur actors review and give critiques on many dramatic works during the year. The main purpose of the group is not to create material destined for fame, but to expose the participants to the history and splendor of the theater, so that they will derive an appreciation of it.

Mr. Worthington's sound crew puts its technical knowledge to good use during the course of the year at the assembly gatherings. The audiomen enable the speakers' voices to be heard loud and clear by the audience. In addition to this, the club conducts much experimentation in perfecting new sound systems which will be serviceable to West Orange High.

Debbi Colner and Mark Eule deliver a rebuttal as Lynn Gilbert and Elliot Lokitz listen attentively.

Many forms of electrical apparatus are vital to the Sound Club. Here Larry Dockery and Larry Large try to find the "bug" in a volt-meter.

Musical buffoons Larry Large, Steve Gilbert and Lewis Coe comprise a very unmusical string trio much to the dismay of Myra Cohen, Edward Ehrenkranz, and James Capobianco.

Barry Rosenzweig, portraying the infamous Count Down, exasperates dinner party guests as he vividly relates a harrowing experience of a diamond thief.

"Tulliver's Travels," this year's student production, had all the aspects of a hit musical comedy. Under the skillful direction of Miss Avis Clarke and Mr. David Bayer, the cast presented a truly accomplished performance for the viewers.

Action centered around the plush Pomeranian Hilton hotel, at the approach of festival time. Olliver Tulliver, a renowned Broadway producer, and his family, were vacationing at the resort. The hotelworkers, in an effort to impress Mr. Tulliver with their wealth of theatrical talent, performed various acts for him at the hotel. Mystery thrust itself upon the show when the suave Count Down made his appearance. The Count was, in reality, an internationally notorious jewel thief. Romance manifested itself when pretty Terry Tulliver and muscular Hans Hansen fell in love. Comedy was liberally supplied by the zany antics of Junior Tulliver, and the neurotic reactions of his father.

The format of the show reverted this year to the style of two seasons ago. Instead of having a variety review as was done last year, the show had two acts with four scenes in each act.

Much of the success of the presentation depended on excellent work of the numerous people behind the scenes. The glamour of the fine choreography, singing, and specialty numbers would not have existed without a host of competent scriptwriters, costumers, and technicians.

The production's contribution to the dramatics made the evening a memorable one for those who attended. A fine tradition has been established at our high school for the superior quality of dramatic presentations, and this year's show was not an exception.

The eighteenth season of the West Orange Teen Age Canteen, commonly referred to as WOTAC by the student body, has just been completed. Probably the most successful year in its history, 1959-1960, marks an important change in WOTAC. The Saturday night dances, for years held in the Fairmount School auditorium, were moved during the late fall to Washington Street School Auditorium, located at Tory Corners, in order to accommodate the overflow crowds. The canteen is held at this spacious location throughout the year.

The annual March of Dimes benefit dance held in January and the International Weekend hop in November are the highlights of the season. Other special canteens include the crowning of the football queen, alumni night, and the kickoff dance.

Continuing the custom begun previously, many recording artists appear at various intervals throughout the season. This year's talent included The Monotones, The Chevrons, The Chippendales, The Argyles, The Delicates, and a host of others who helped make the evenings more enjoyable. Live bands furnish the music for every WOTAC.

The gatherings are operated under the guidance of an adult committee headed by Mrs. Germano Mauro and Mr. Robert McRoberts, faculty advisor. Under the leadership of the student officers, headed by president Donn Fileti, the many committees, which include door, entertainment, and refreshments, make certain that each dance runs smoothly. The sound crew, headed by Larry Dockery and Larry Large, deserve much credit for their outstanding work.

Since 1959-1960 may mark the close of a townwide canteen because of the high school division, it is gratifying to realize that the composite attendance at WOTAC exceeded that of previous years.

Good voices are always welcome. Here vocalizing for WOTAC are the Four Coachmen, former WOHS students.

COMMISSIONER ELECTIONS

Each year West Orange High School pupils are given a chance to participate in democratic elections as they select five students to act as student commissioners and direct the activities of the town for a day.

The qualifications established for the commissioners are quite stringent. A candidate must have been a citizen of the school for one year, have maintained a C average scholastically, and must not have been involved in any major offenses.

A period of great activity follows as the candidates obtain petitions, distribute campaign buttons, and leaflets, hand posters, and develop individual platforms. The campaigning is culminated when the aspirants deliver brief speeches before the student body.

This year's group of commissioners includes Mayor Barry Rosensweig, who was also Commissioner of Parks and Public Property; Richard Scola, Commissioner of Revenue and Finance; Dale Anderson, Commissioner of Public Affairs; Rose DeSantis, Commissioner of Public Safety; and Phyllis Colacuori, Commissioner of Public Works.

In addition to performing the administrative duties of their respective departments, the student commissioners have to make numerous political appointments, conduct a town meeting, and attend a testimonial dinner given in their honor.

The elections are run under the auspices of the history department. The student commissioner program is enjoyed by all the students and is also a valuable and practical lesson on how a democracy functions.

Dale Anderson and Fred Steinberg just might consider the politically-versed canine they've just found as a darkhorse at the next town election.

WE SERVE THE COMMUNITY

Nineteen-sixty marks the eighth year that the students of West Orange High School have been performing community service projects. In that interim, the pupils have served some sixty-six agencies, while donating a total of 14,347 hours of aid.

This undertaking, which requires each senior to complete fifteen hours of community service in order to graduate, has brought the school nationwide recognition. The January 31, 1959 issue of the New York Times contained an article entitled "New Jersey Students Learn to Serve". World Week, a noted scholastic magazine, published a full page story entitled "With A Song In Their Hearts". Both illustrate the community service projects at the high school.

In May of 1959, the United States Information Service contacted the school from Washington in order to obtain a pictorial story concerning the service project for overseas publication.

Cowboy pupils spread good will this year in various places in the vicinity. Among these are the Red Cross, the Janet Memorial Home, Kessler Institute, and various hospitals, children's homes, and recreational centers.

The underlying philosophy of this project places emphasis on giving rather than receiving. Students begin to learn that volunteer work must be done to create a community. The program has gained so much momentum that underclassmen, who are not required to give their time, have taken an active part in donating their services.

The senior history department, under whose auspices the program is successfully conducted, is proud of the pupils' efforts, as obtaining credits is secondary to them. The personal satisfaction that the students get out of doing something for a less fortunate human being has become paramount in their minds.

VOCAL MUSIC

A variety of offerings made possible by the vocal music department this year has stimulated West Orange High School pupils to broaden their musical education.

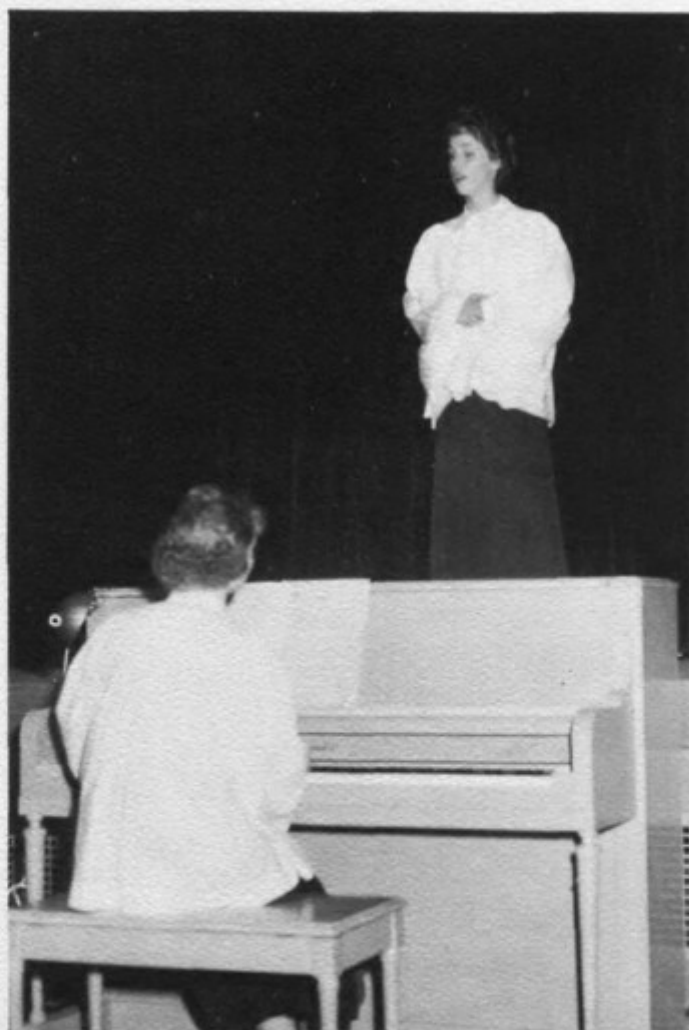

Mr. Barnes and Mr. Smyth did outstanding jobs in training and guiding the different choirs. The advanced choir and the regular choir performed superbly in advancing the Yuletide spirit at the Christmas Concert. Spring was sprightly ushered in by the choirs, the general chorus, and the sophomore ensemble at the Spring Concert. A chorus also sang a medley of old favorites at the student production.

The vocal music department has recently instituted two new courses, in music survey and in harmony. Music survey treats each composer individually and brings into focus the periods of musical history.

This year a group of the top twenty four vocalists in our school was organized into a special choir. These people represent the ultimate in vocalization at West Orange.

A few exceptionally talented West Orange choristers gained admission to the coveted All-State Choir this year. They include Gordon McCormack, Beverly Stapay, and Eleanor Landas. Robert Weldon, Bev, and Gordon also soloed at the operatic festival presented in Clark Township, New Jersey.

Now, more than ever, the vocal music department is conveying the beauty and joy of combining words with melody to an appreciative audience of cowboys and cowgirls.

Bev Stapay solos at the Christmas Concert.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

Music provides that additional magic touch to our football games, assemblies, and special productions. Its warmth and charm is spread by our instrumental music department which includes the Marching Band, the Concert Band, the Orchestra, and the Dance Band.

During the football season, the Marching Band, conducted by Mr. Kulp and Mr. Sost, takes to the field to bring that "cowboy spirit" to West Orange supporters. The band often has to perform this task under adverse weather conditions. After the Thanksgiving game, the marchers return their uniforms and form the Concert Band under the direction of Mr. Sost and Mr. Reifsnyder. The members then prepare a repertoire which is played at other schools under the musical exchange program and at the Spring Concert.

Directed by Mr. Sost, West Orange High's Dance Band performs some swinging melodies for the student body at the special dance band assembly. Until this year the band was not included in the activities program, and thus the practice sessions were extremely limited. However, this semester the musicians have been working assiduously during activity periods and at special practice sessions in preparation for the school production and various engagements in the vicinity.

Music for the weekly assembly programs is provided by the orchestra. Mr. Butterfield and Mr. Kulp lead the members through a bright medley of marches every Thursday morning, and the members reveal their array of talents at the Orchestra Concert and the Spring Concert.

BIG SWITCH

Li'l Abner and other illustrious citizens of Dogpatch, U.S.A. came to life at this year's Big Switch Dance held in the school gymnasium on April 1st.

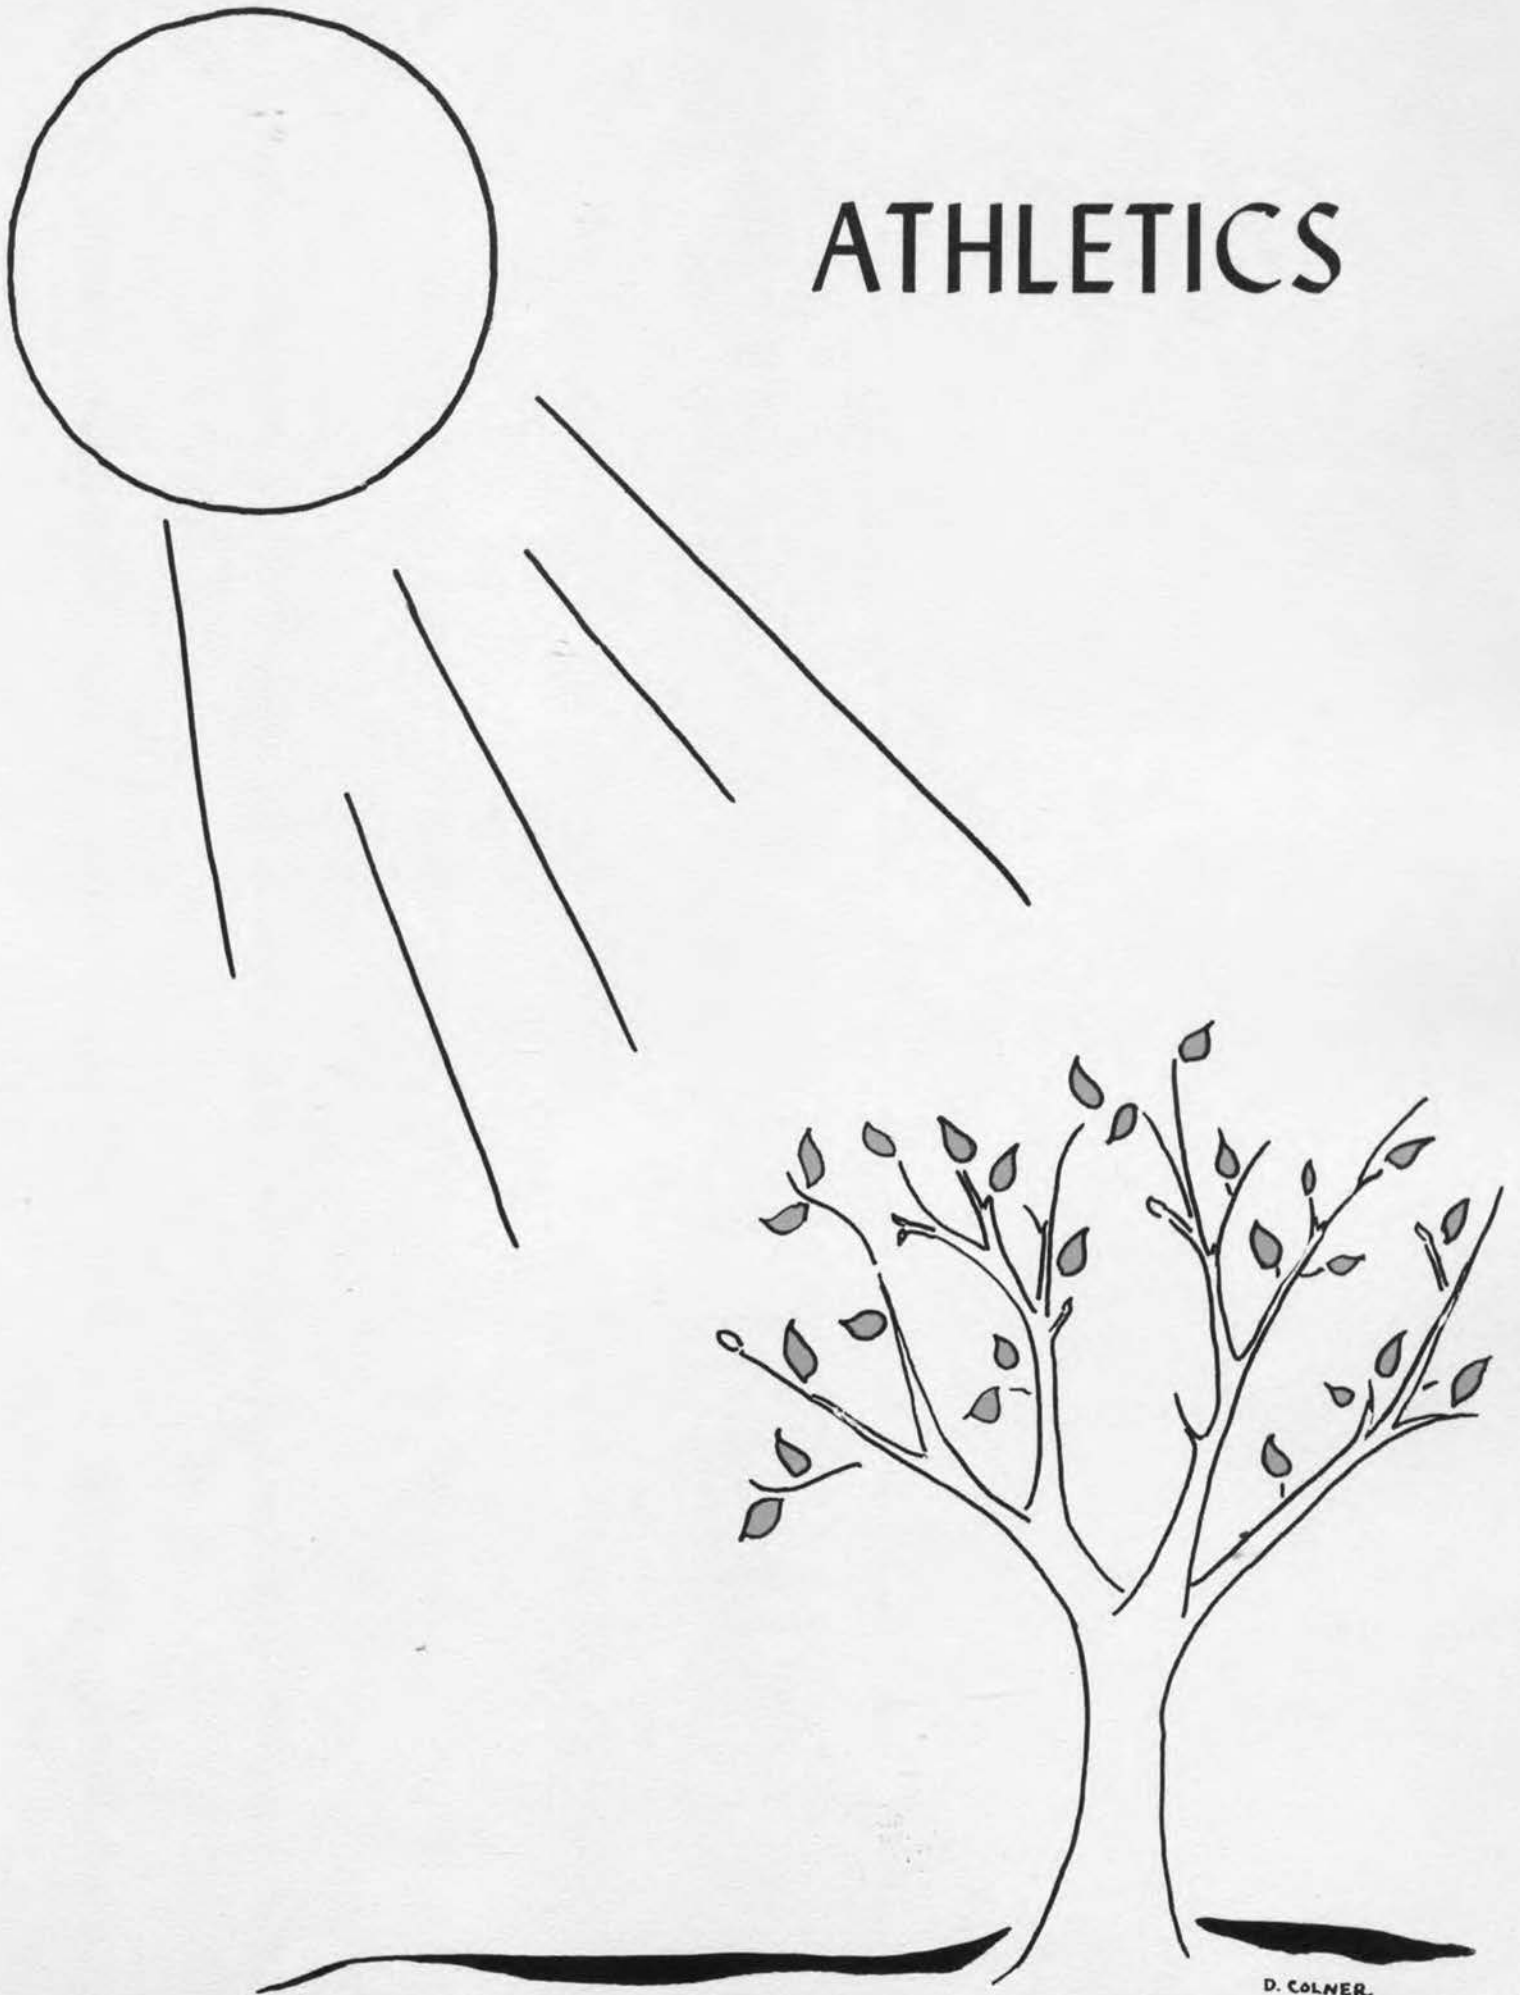

Al Capp's fictionalized comic strip characters became the theme of the annual event which imposes strict rules on the fairer sex. The girls were required to invite dates, provide them with corsages, perform all the customary social niceties that the boys would usually do, and provide enough monetary funds for the evening.

Gary Anastasia and his decorating committee transformed the gymnasium into a replica of that wonderful hillbilly town. Li'l Abner, Daisy Mae, Moonbeam McSwine, and Marryin' Sam were among the notables who decorated the walls.

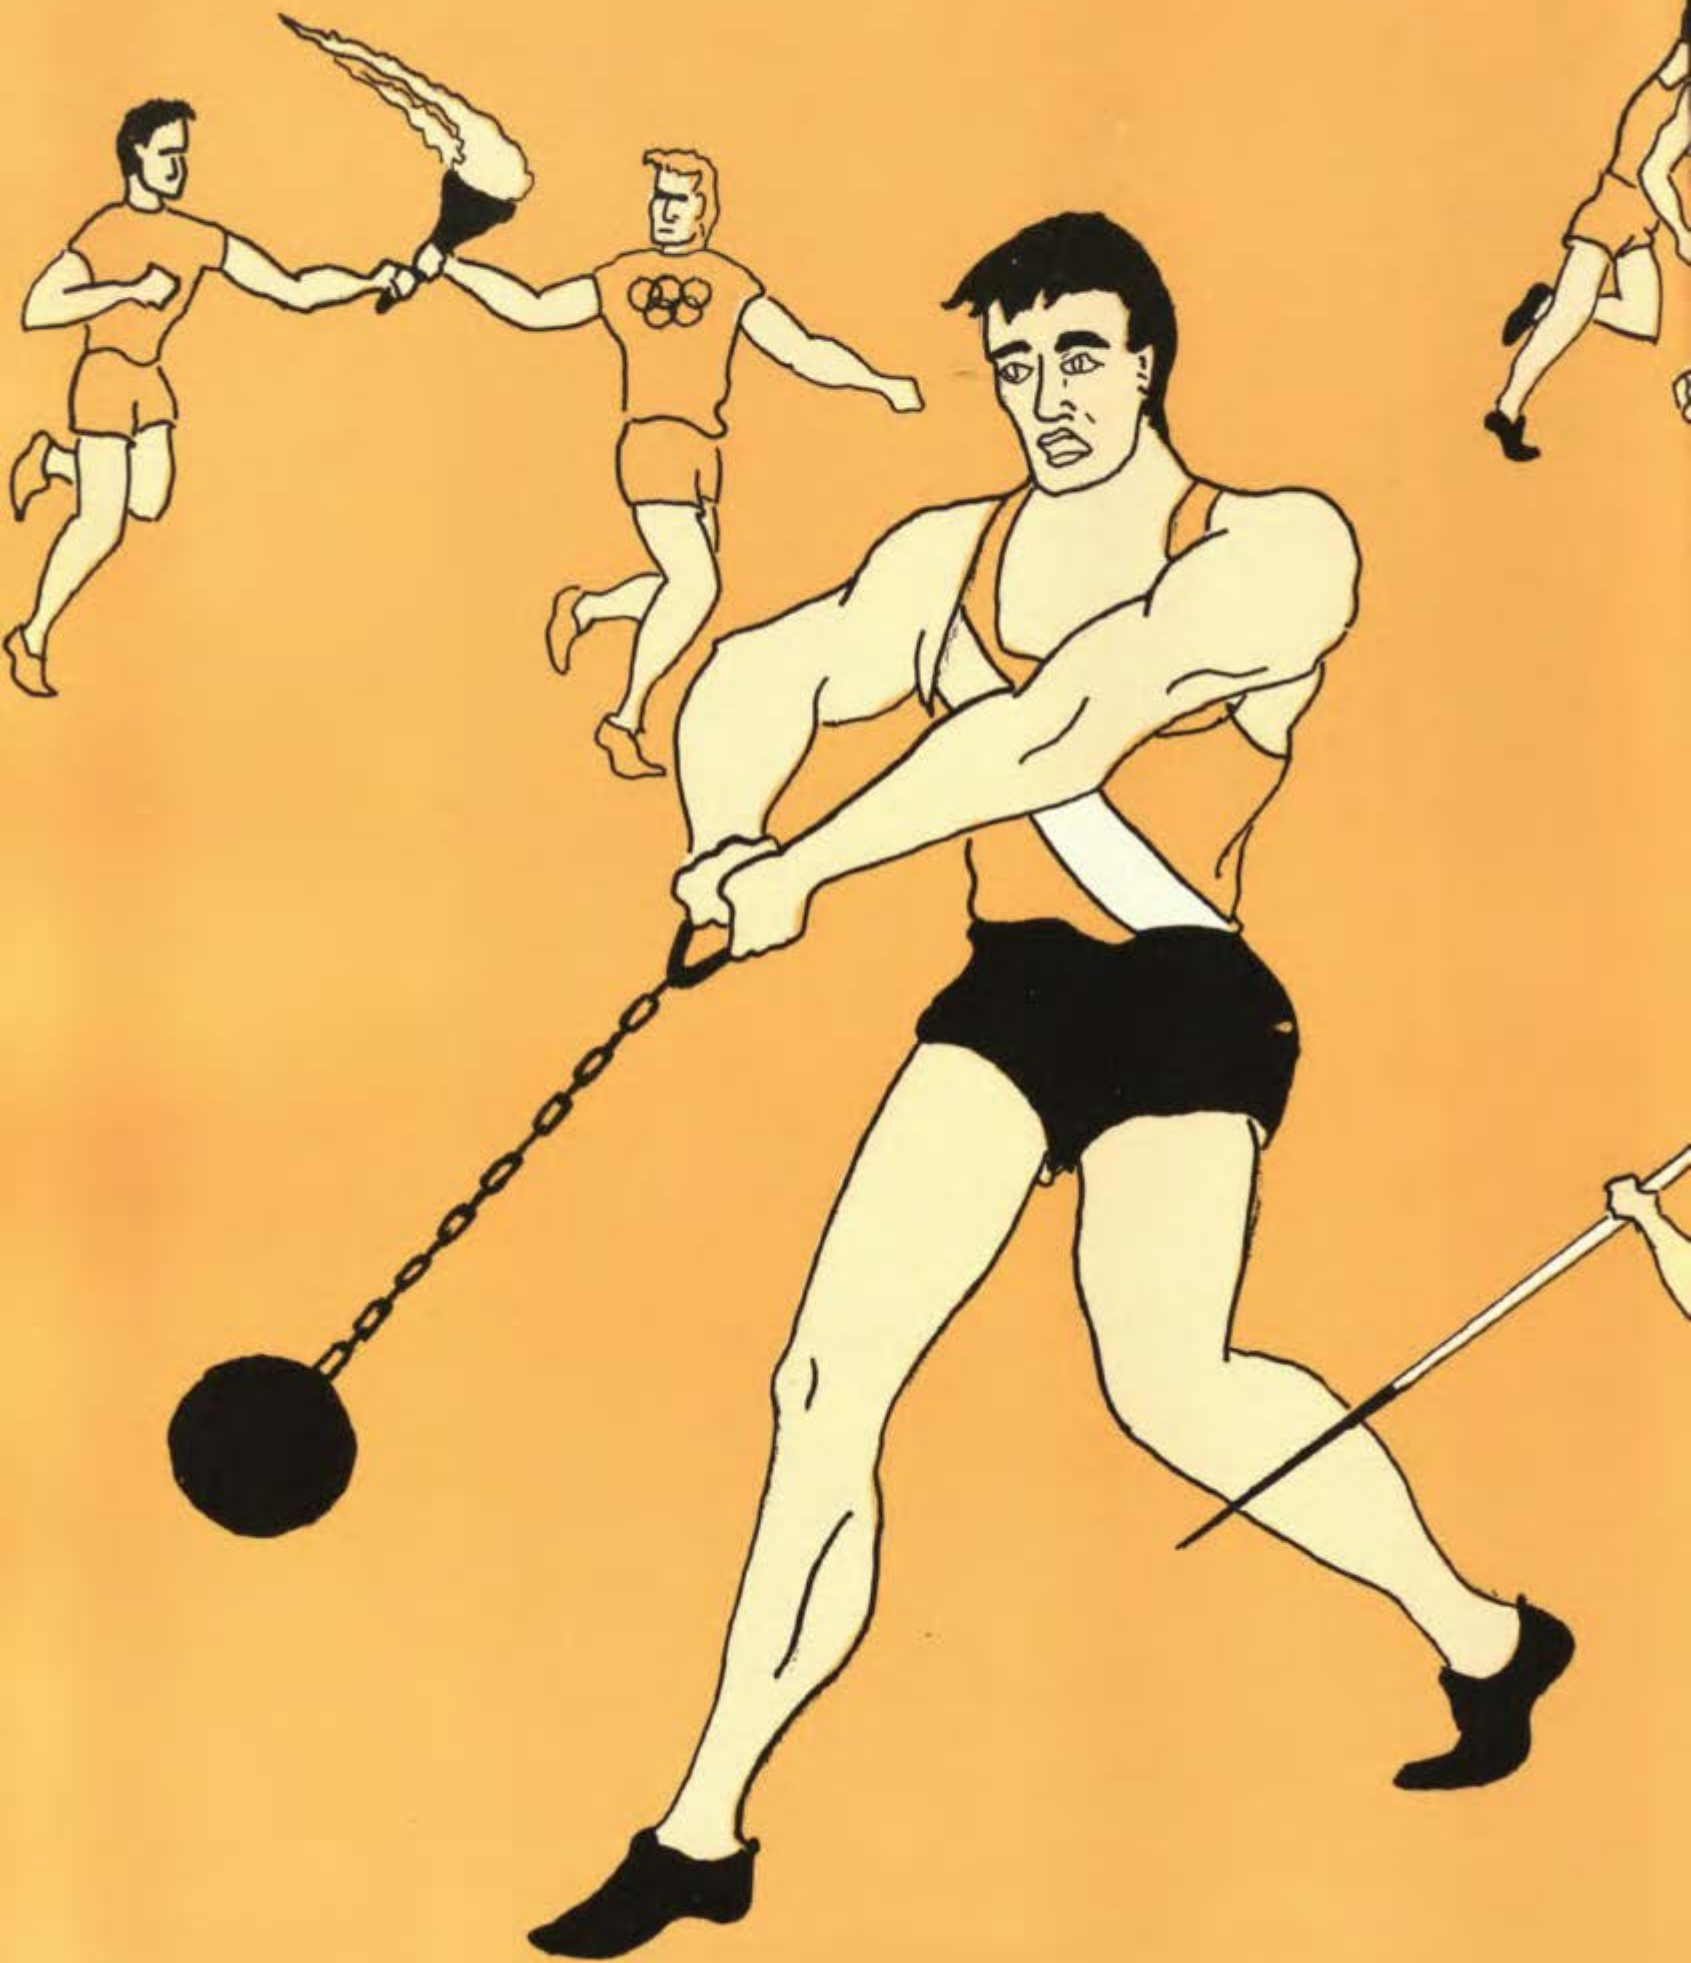

Ray Ferrone was elected this year's Li'l Abner. He was crowned in the center of the dance floor on a throne constructed especially for the event. David Dixon captured the award given for the best corsage, which was made for him by Phyllis Colacuori.

ATHLETICS

D. COLNER.

G. ANASTASIA

Life is a constant interdependence of people upon each other; and as the sun gives nourishment to the tree for strong growth, athletics matures the man and prepares him for his future life, whatever it may be. What is the connection between athletics and the growth of the tree of understanding? The program of athletics is developed to enrich one's life, to create a new way of understanding, to instill in a person a competitive view of life, and to establish the ability to work with others. The tree needs many things to attain a full growth: first, the seed sown by the teachers; second, the rain which is developed through a broad activity schedule; third, the sun to give the tree nourishment to grow. As this sun gives the food of learning to the tree, athletics encourages understanding. This understanding is constantly in demand for the rest of an individual's life. Harvesting this understanding is not a process which, once done, is completed; but it is stored for later years when one may draw upon it and reap its profits.

Athletic participation is essential to produce a completely mature person. Throughout life, the years of attaining this light of understanding through athletics are recapitulated in every movement that is made. Athletics is an enjoyable pastime; however, when it is done, great profits will be visible. Do not let the tree of understanding die, but encourage the sun to shine with a more luminous light to encourage its growth.

The inaugural game of the 1959 season found West Orange pitted against a top-flight Irvington eleven. The Campers emerged from the hard-fought affair with a 20-6 victory gained at the expense of numerous Cowboy fumbles. The identical ball-handling miscues plagued them in the ensuing game with Clifford Scott, allowing the Scotties to triumph 14-7.

Matters did not improve any the following week as the Hincemen encountered East Orange. The Panthers quickly turned the game into a rout with some timely groundwork and humbled West Orange, 47-0.

However, this situation was reversed abruptly when the moment that W.O. fans had been anticipating for two seasons finally became a reality. The offensive attack, spearheaded by Dick Duenkel and Ray Ferrone, allowed the Cowboys to upset favored Kearny, 7-6. The traditional customs of tearing down goal posts, having victory celebrations, and honking horns were enjoyed by all.

But the happiness that permeated the student body was quickly dissipated as the Hincemen succumbed to Orange 12-6 the following week. The traditional rivalry between these two teams was heightened by the fine play of Don Zink, Frank Colabelli, and Morrie Sutter. The muscular fullback was making his initial appearance of the year wearing a bulky, protective shoulder pad as a result of a painful collarbone injury sustained in a scrimmage against Plainfield.

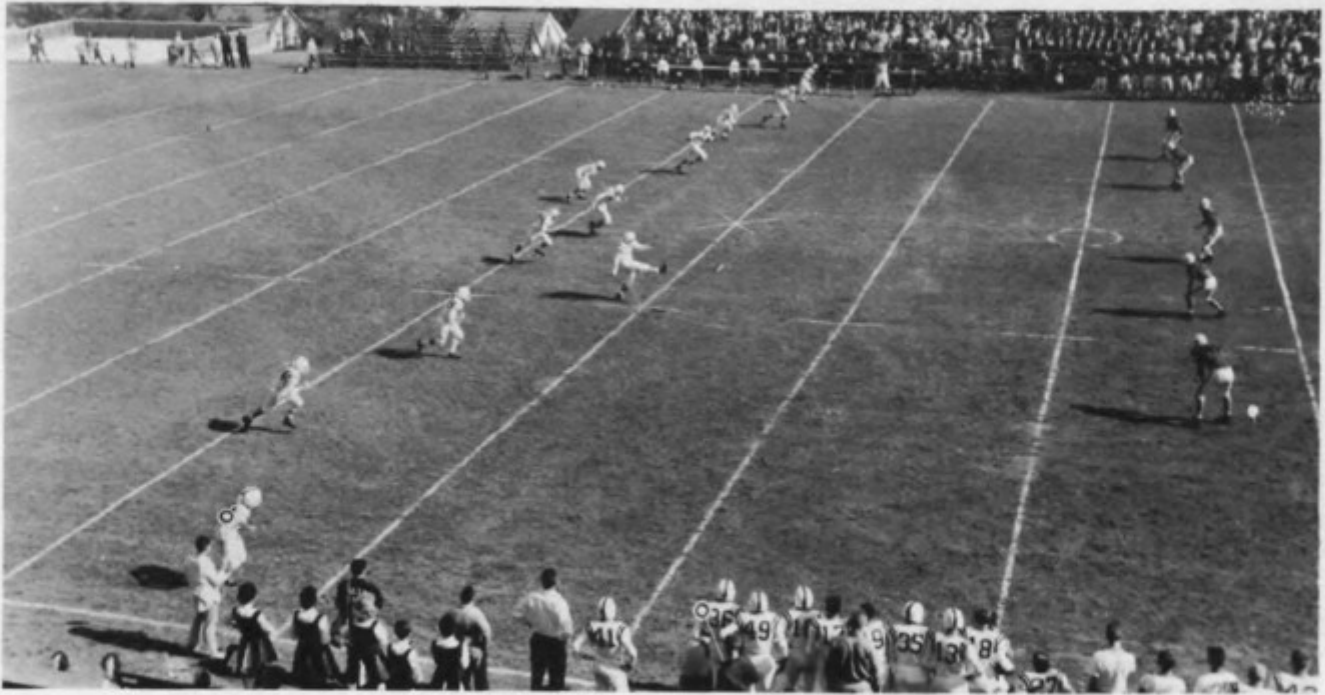

The pigskin proved elusive for the Cowboy gridmen for the duration of autumn as they were held scoreless in their next three clashes. Bloomfield by-passed them 18-0, while Montclair broke through the defense for 24 points. Vineland, making its first migration to the slopes of West Orange, did not make the trip in vain, as they managed to eke out a narrow 7-0 triumph.

The "turkey day" classic against Columbia saw the Cowboys struggle valiantly to end the season on a winning note. The West Orange contingent brought vociferous approval from the patrons of the sport as they stormed over for the first touchdown. But the Cougars soon got their superior aerial attack into high gear and went on to trounce the visitors 37-7.

This year the football squad was fortunate in having some fine individual talent. Sutter and Ougland combined to add depth and punch to the backfield, while the forward line of defense was bolstered by the services of Ferrone, Colabelli, Duenkel, and Cordes.

It is felt that this past campaign, although on the debit side, has provided the experience that will ultimately produce a winning team for the scholastic sport that engenders the greatest amount of excitement from a student body.

The Cowboy Hoopsters ended the 1959-60 campaign with what many called a successful season. After last year's discouraging 1-15 record, the Cowboys bounced back to a .500 season this year. Although plagued constantly with injuries to key players, the squad did quite well under Coach Wendy Wear, serving his first year as varsity coach.

The injuries to last year's top scorer and Coach Wear's brightest prospect, Dick Scola, caused the team to look for leadership elsewhere. This came mainly from two seniors, Bob Severinsen and Dewey Wagner. Paul Jones, the top scorer this season, and Jim Liccardo, a brilliant sophomore, also aided the cause tremendously.

Among the nine victories the Cowboys attained this year, they excelled particularly in three. In their first game of the season, they put a scare into a powerful Irvington team which already had won four, although coming out on the short end in the closing minutes; 47-43.

The two best wins came at the expense of a powerful East Orange squad. The Panthers, seeded 7th in the E.C.T. ratings, succumbed to defeat twice at the hands of the Cowboys, 46-43 and 49-44.

This season, after a lapse of a year, the Cowboys entered the Essex County Tournament. They were matched against the third seeded team, Montclair. After having a first-half lead of 21-18, they slowly fell behind because of lack of height and lost 47-36.

With nine lettermen returning next year, and with a good crop of Coach Pettit's J.V.'s coming up, the Cowboys could be one of the top powers of the county.

CROSS COUNTRY

Cross Country, a sport that had its inception at West Orange High School two seasons ago, certainly made its presence felt this year. The Cowboy harriers, under the guiding hand of Mr. Thomas Bradley, sprinted their way into third place in the Big Ten Conference and compiled an impressive 8-1 record in dual meet competition, the lone defeat being administered by a powerful Columbia squad.

Coach Bradley was extremely fortunate in having the services of several experienced participants. A trio of juniors, Bob Rothenberg, John Davis, and Mike Tull, combined to form the nucleus of the squad, as they displayed their fleet-footed prowess around the state. All three will return to help our team next year.

In addition to their fine dual meet record, West Orange also placed third at the Big Ten Classic, and in state competition proved to be the tenth best team in New Jersey.

Cross Country is a sport that demands peak physical condition and involves rigorous training. Our team surmounted these challenges and certainly represented West Orange well this past fall in interscholastic competition.

HOCKEY

Hockey, in its first year as a varsity sport, had a very successful season under the excellent coaching of Mr. Dave Bayer. The powerful first line composed of Bill Clark, second highest scorer in the league, Mickey Friedberg, and Charles Iden put twenty-six of the forty pucks into the opponents' goal. A good defense headed by Alex Clark, Jack Sheik, and goalie Al Giordano kept the squad on the winning side, and in third place in the league.

After opening the season with a 6-6 tie against Verona, the Cowboy pucksters came back to decapitate Chatham 8-2. The most rewarding victory came when West Orange upset the Morris Hills team 3-1 after losing a previous game 8-4. A similar situation occurred in the last game of the season against Livingston, the cup winner for this year. After losing 6-2 in an earlier game, the Cowboys held the Lions 2-0 for two periods. Then Livingston, came back with two quick goals to end the game in a tie. In the playoffs the first place Morristown team blanked West Orange 5-0.

Next season with a good nucleus returning to the ice at the early hour of 6 A.M., the team should again do well in the league standings, and receive good support from the students, as it did this year.

BASEBALL

Despite the many returning lettermen, West Orange found it rough going early in the spring, losing its first three ball games, two of them to powerful Montclair. This was largely because of the cold and wet weather conditions which hampered spring practice sessions. However, the Cowboys began to show their mettle by winning the next three contests. Their first Big Ten Conference victory was a grueling fifteen inning affair against Bloomfield, with Sam Penza driving in the winning run.

A combination of air-tight pitching, provided by Charlie Del Plato, Jim Liccardo, and Bill Hamilton, and a large amount of good hitting, brought the team to a better than .500 average.

Prominent hitters for this year's club are Pete Force, Stan Fessler, Don Zink, Wally Wissen, Dick Scola, Paul Jones, and Sam Penza.

Now, with good material, Coach Wendy Wear foresees an upper hand in the Big Ten and the Greater Newark Tournaments.

Coach John Pettit, in his first year as the Junior Varsity coach, is struggling to coordinate the players into a well-knit team. After losing the first three games, the squad started to hit and field together. By the season's end Coach Pettit should produce some ballplayers that will be good material for next year's squad.

Under the new head coach, Tom Bradley, there is a great deal of individual talent. Our outstanding high jumper, Ray Bury, is well-known throughout the county and the state. His jumps of 6'2" and 6'3" are enough to win in every meet. This versatile student also competes in the javelin and the hurdles, doing very well.

Junior Bob Rothenberg is also well known for running the mile in about four and a half minutes. Sprinters Louis Fischmann and Fred Steinberg are valuable assets who display their speed in the one hundred yard dash and the four hundred forty yard run. Despite our poor track conditions, Coach Bradley, with this excellent support, has compiled a superior squad. Mr. Bradley is looking forward to entering our top performers in the Orange Relays, the Essex County Meet, and the State Meet.

The many juniors composing the team should be an excellent core for next year's team. Altogether, our trackmen have displayed outstanding ability and excellent sportsmanship throughout the season.

GOLF

This year the golf team is directed by Mr. Atwell Thomas. Mr. Haydn Evans, after coaching the squad for 30 years, has retired on receiving an administrative position.

Returning from last year are senior Barry Markowitz, who is again captain, and junior Tom Meravi. Also, a new group of sophomores have shown recognition for the game and should provide a good nucleus for succeeding years.

The team has several players who are capable of shooting in the 70's. With this ability in reserve the linksmen anticipate compiling a satisfactory record, and entering the state meet for the second consecutive year.

TENNIS

Coach Merlin Finch, directing the tennis team for his thirty-fifth year, has most of his team from last year back. The squad is composed of three seniors, four juniors, and one sophomore. The support of the team comes from senior Vic Schwartz and junior Lee Landesberg. The remainder of the team is in top condition from their daily practices at Stagg Field and the East Orange Tennis Club. After losing their first two games to powerful Dickinson and Columbia, the netmen came back to beat Clifford Scott in both the doubles and the singles. Mr. Finch looks forward to a good season and to entering the state meet again. Next year West Orange High should have a strong team, losing only three players. The racketmen will have gained valuable experience this year, to help them in their grueling sets in the future seasons.

Lee Landesberg starts the game with a fast serve to his opponent.

Steve Mittler and Sid Bloom are set to beat Clifford Scott as Coach Finch observes confidently.

West Orange High School cheerleaders and twirlers are dedicated supporters whose sole reward is the display of a healthy morale among the student body.

Our cheerleading squad, under the capable direction of Mrs. Flaster and Miss Trainer, worked diligently this year in order to create enthusiasm and promote school spirit among the student body. The girls organized pep rallies and supported the football, basketball, and hockey teams.

The pep squad, consisting of ten girls, was co-captained by Hedy Berger and Beatrice Colantuoni.

The professional performance of the twirling squad was also a credit to West Orange High School. Co-Captains Joan Froisland and Ruth Caine led the group of twelve girls. The squad, guided by Mrs. Craig, spent a great deal of time and effort on their precision marching, and the result proved to be rewarding. With their spirit and grace, they contributed much to the support of our football team.

Diversification in girls' sports was the prime element that commanded a lot of attention this year. Many of the girls present after school participated in the ping pong games set up in the gym. Bowling, held at the new Eagle Rock Lanes, was also a popular after school activity. The other fall program was a basketball tournament, won by the fine ball handling team of Barbara Zolonas. The directors of girls' sports, Mrs. Craig and Mrs. Flaster, have scheduled a complete spring program. The sports will be held outdoors on the football field. Excellent participation is expected. Awards are given to the outstanding girls at the end of the school year.

This year we have come one step closer to a complete athletic program at West Orange High School. Thanks to two interested fathers and Coach John Prach, West Orange has entered interscholastic competitive swimming.

Actually, swimming is a club this year, rather than a varsity sport, but there are plans for a varsity swim team next season. The desire for swimming to become a varsity sport is shown by the fact that the boys travel to the local YMCA to practice in the evenings. Although competition was limited to practice meets, the team did remarkably well in compiling an unofficial 2-1 record. The swimming season was climaxed when outstanding seniors Mickey Saiber, Dick Duenkel, and Ted Blackstock lead the team to the final of the state meet.

In addition to swimming, diving was introduced. For the fair judging of competitive diving, at least four experienced officials are required. Unfortunately, qualified officials were not present at the meets, so the divers were not given an opportunity to compete.

CULTIVATORS

The seed of our understanding has been carefully sown and nourished, but before a bountiful harvest can be reaped, the soil must be cultivated. Without cultivation, even the richest soil will remain barren, and without culture, the human mind can never become productive.

When we first enter school, we are given the assignment of cultivating our understanding. The tree must be carefully tended every day of our lives, and, as the time of the first harvest approaches, our role as cultivators becomes increasingly important.

The underclassmen of West Orange High School are cultivating a very important tree, one which is rapidly maturing and is almost ready for harvest. This tree which they are now caring for is like a tree of understanding which was nourished in schools all over the world and carefully cultivated by students of many races. The fruit of this tree was the recent International Geophysical Year, a co-operative venture of sixty nations to solve the mysteries of the earth and surrounding space. The International Geophysical Year was a bountiful harvest of understanding from a tree which received the best possible cultivation.

Although the fruit of every harvest is not so prominent as the International Geophysical Year, every step toward understanding between people and nations is important. Our underclassmen must give diligent attention to their task of cultivation during their high school years, so their harvest may be rich in understanding.

HARVESTERS

AMY

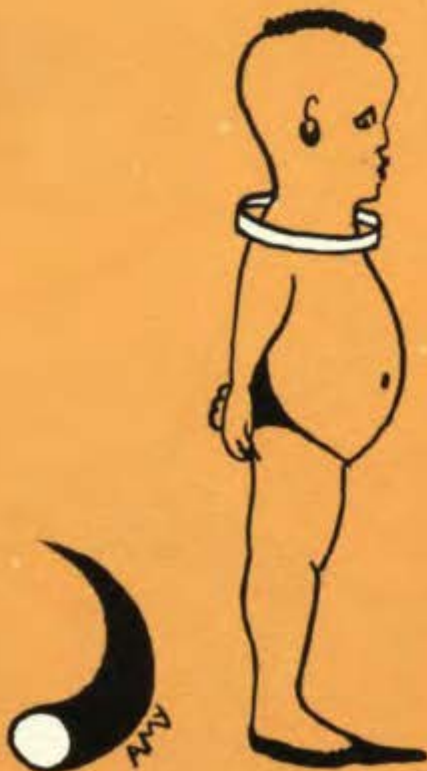

We are the Class of 1960. To us is given the harvesting of the fruit. Our tree of knowledge and understanding lies on the verge of maturity, that state when an adult reaches fruition. And we are at the point where we can harvest the fruit of our tree. Our teachers have sown the seeds for almost thirteen years; our activities and athletics have helped nourish the sapling. We have moved from cultivators to harvesters. For our labor we are rewarded. However, only through care and cultivation will the tree blossom. Those of us who have not cared for the tree will not reap the benefits.

With the reward comes a responsibility. We too must finally reach our maturity. Soon our fruits will be handed down to the next generation. We must be sure that our fruit will be good, full of wisdom and understanding. The tree should always be kept at its peak condition by replenishing it with knowledge.

The artwork in the senior section represents the first attempt at the harvest of the fruit by the senior art students. We feel that it is worthy to be called a good fruit. Some of us have harvested in other fields. Some of us will be looking for better fruit in the way of a college education. Perhaps someday all of us will have the satisfaction of knowing that we have picked the ripest fruit of the tree of knowledge and understanding.

We, the Class of 1960, constitute the first year of "war babies" graduating from high school. Born in turmoil, we fervently hope we can live with a fruit of peace. Therefore, the artistic supplement to the senior section has been selected as a blending of the civilization of many countries—a hope by all the graduating class that some day all countries will be one.
