An impressive testament to the young American's skeptical sagacity

was a letter to President Johnson sent last week by student leaders at 100 American colleges and universities. Polite in tone, but perturbed -and perturbing-in content. it questioned the conduct, rationale and very aims of the war in Viet Nam. Excerpts:

SIGNIFICANT and growing numbers of our contemporaries are deeply troubled about the posture of their Government in Viet Nam. A great many of those faced with the prospect of military duty find it hard to square performance of that duty with concepts of personal integrity and conscience. Even more are torn loyal and courageous young people choosing to go to jail rather than to bear their country's arms.

We write in the hope that this letter will encourage a frank discussion of these problems. If such a discussion clarified American objectives in Viet Nam, it might help reverse the drift, which is now from confusion toward disaffection. Some questions:

- · There is doubt that America's vital interests are sufficiently threatened in Viet Nam to necessitate the growing commitment there.
- · There is doubt that such vital interests are best protected by this growing commitment.
- · There is doubt that a war which

Reading Shakespeare . . . Milton, Pygmalion

. . . Godot

"You have one month to read Vanity Fair."

Finally I was done with grammar . . . or so I thought. But after a quick review of the fundamentals, I found out what was really involved in the English IV course. English literature and exercises in writing.

"Composition on Vanity Fair is due in two weeks."

"I haven't started reading it yet!"

I learned that there was much more to a book than the story. There were the author's life, philosophy, psychology and morals. Together they determined whether or not the book would last.

"Vanity Fair for tomorrow."
"Uh-oh."

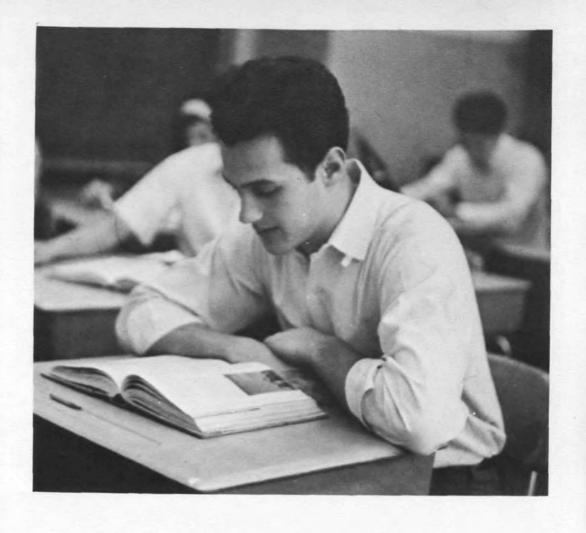

Mr. Evers

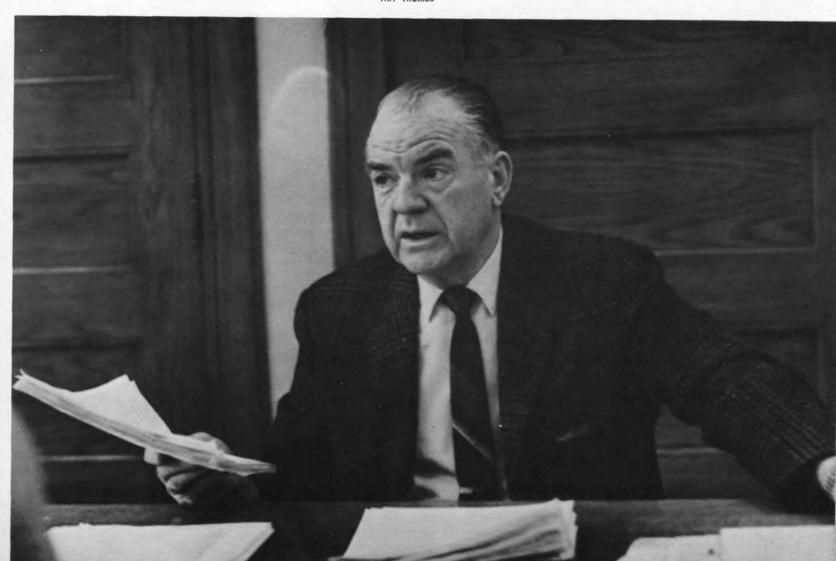

Mr. Thomas

Mr. MacRoberts

"Should the voting age be lowered?"
"Is the draft fair?"

Discussions were an important part of my history class, and for a good reason. Half of being a good citizen is taking a position only after both sides have been heard. We gave reports, examined various systems of government and expressed views. Now I realize the importance of being an active and interested citizen. "Who are you voting for?"

"I'll wait until I hear their speeches."

Mock elections and debates, I voted for ...

'What exactly is the Humanities course? What do they do anyway?"

A member of the Humanities course came to speak to my history class one day in January. He explained that fifty seniors were chosen to participate in this experiment.

"... two periods a day in place of the conventional English and U.S. History II courses . . . under the leadership of Mr. Fennell and Mr. Tarnoff," he said.

"And there are no tests? No homework? No exams?" I asked.

To this he replied, "Can't you understand? It's an experiment in learning. The current trend in modern education. A test of self-discipline. To promote thinking. To introduce the high school senior to Plato, Euripides, the Whitney, Freud, Sartre, the symphony."

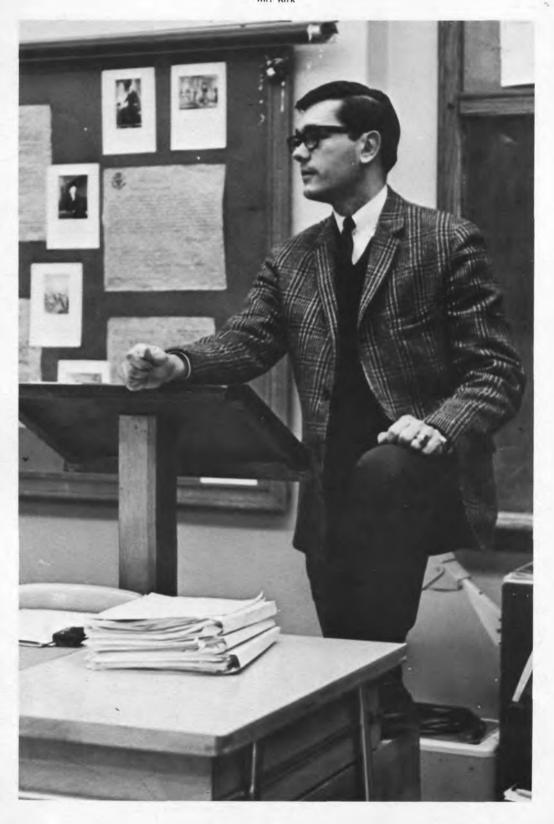

Mr. Fennell

Mr. Tarnoff

Mr. Kirk

"Just how 'modern' is Modern History?"

I wondered on that first day in room 401. I soon learned that we were to cover the history of Europe from 1500 to the present. We combined our studies with talk of Adam Clayton Powell, Bishop Pike and "Carlsonian philosophy."

"Why Viet Nam?"

"Why this type of warfare?"

Political Geography helped me to understand why things are as they are in Viet Nam. I never realized the significance of climate, topography, and boundaries in war before.

"Wait, first, consider that it rains every day. Second . . ."

Mr. Carlson

Science of man and his world

Miss Loughren

"Le Rhinoceros, is she kidding?"

I soon learned that this wasn't actually an animal story, but a modern existentialist play by Ionesco. And that was only the beginning. I found myself reading a wide variety of French literature.

"We're reading Le Misanthrope next."

"Do you have it in English?"

"We're skipping Book Three."
"How many books are left?"

In Latin IV we read selections from the Aeneid.

"Only nine more to go."

"Explique el problema de honor en Fuente Ovejuna."

I began to get a taste of Spanish life through Spanish literature. With the aid of dictionaries, we read fulllength works and held discussion's in class.

"Was Don Quixote crazy?"
"Can you find any symbolism in La Otra Orilla?"

Miss Radin

"If we're to sample German life, let's try some German beer. It's only fair."

"Nein."

Familiarity with German life, German stories and fluency in speaking were our main goals. I saw movies, read Einstein and learned vocabulary.

"I'll bring the steins, and you bring . . ."

"Nein."

Understanding through communication

Miss Myers

Mr. Chase

"Paul Klee? Who's he?" I asked
"A contemporary artist, stupid!"
was the art major's gracious reply.
The art major students combined the study of art history with museum trips and actual painting and sculpture work of their own.

Wordless self-expression

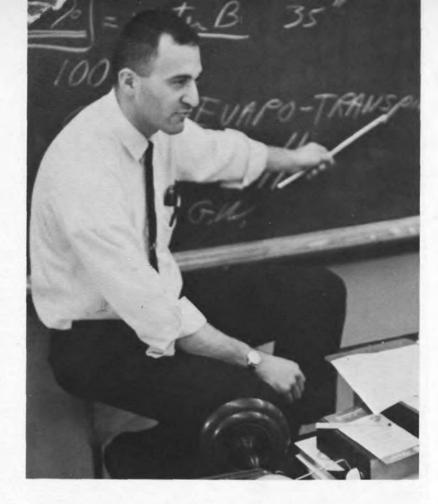

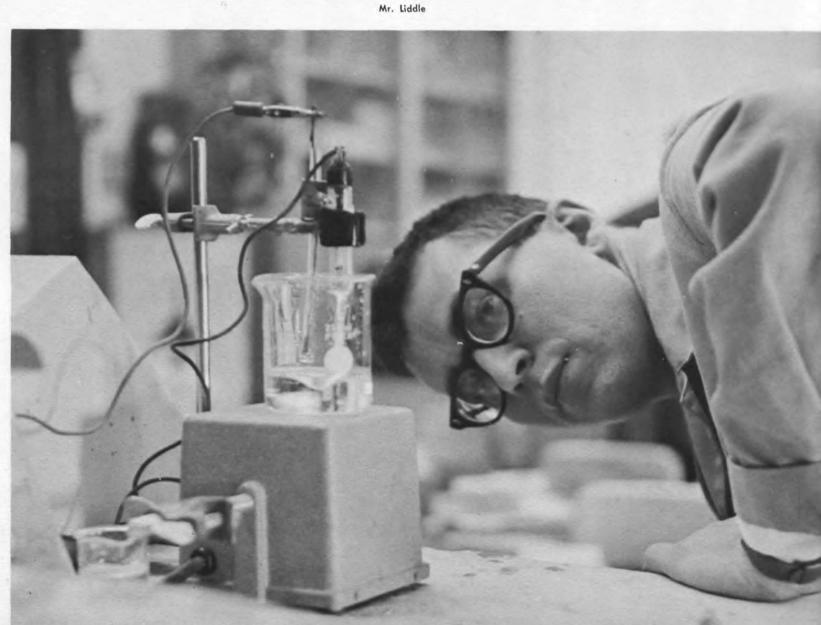

"What is a mole?"

"A mole is the number of mole-cules in exactly thirty-two grams of oxygen."

I answered questions, saw films, participated in lab experiments, took tests. We had a song contest at Christmas time. The first prize was a set of broken test tubes. They never announced the winners.

Satisfaction through discovery and solution

"Don't confuse the theta's, alpha's, and beta's."

In the beginning of the year, College Math was Greek to me. But as I became more familiar with trigometric symbols, a whole new world of math was uncovered. All that I had learned in the past—algebra, geometry, logs, everything—was put to use in order to solve the problem. "I'll put number 11 on the board, Miss Kunz."

"What should a wife do in that case, Mrs. Dennington?"

In Family Relations I learned practical solutions to everyday problems.
"Marriage has to be more give, less take."
"Oh."

Mrs. Dennington

Living with myself and others

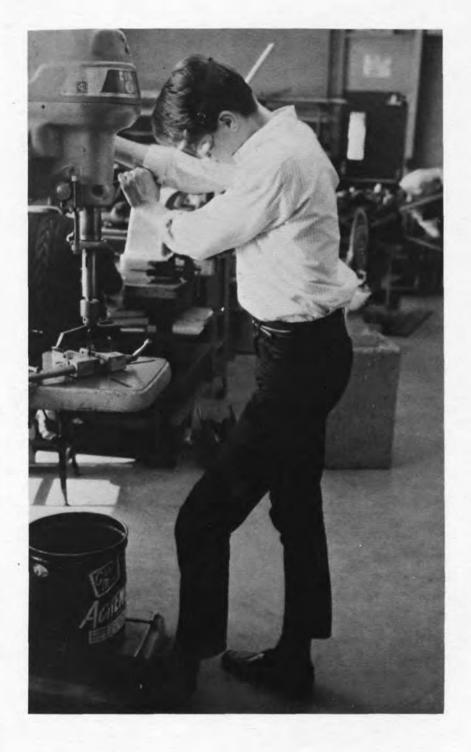

Miss Fillipone

"How does the tele-trainer work?"
"Do I really sound like that?"
When I first started this course I never thought I'd be able to give a speech in front of the whole class.
"Do I really sound like that?"
"It's a device which enables two individuals to talk to each other. They pick out one another's mistakes in speech.

Building with tools and words

Mr. Beisler

"Strip it down and clean it up."
Going outside for gym, I would pass
Power Mechanics and see the guys working on the car in shop. Not knowing anything about cars, I was tempted to say, "I got this rattle in the back, say could . . . ?"

Miss Pilone

A final preparation for the business world

"How would you determine the personal income in this problem?"

Business Math trains the student to do calculations relevant to business.

"What is the total profit gained?"

"Tabulate the business expenses for one month."

"How come you're dressed up to-day?"

"I'm going to court . . . with my class."

Business Law taught me first-hand information concerning individual rights as a citizen.

"I won my case!"

Mr. Shupper

Athletics: ability, character, friendship

"Mr. Prach, movie today?"

We'd see movies often in Health IV. T.B., heart care, driving tips, narcotics were all explained in hope that we would care for ourselves with more responsibility. "I never heard of emphysema before, did you?"

"Four minutes to dress."

We'd go downstairs and fight over our errors and fumbles, and rationalize the little mistakes.

"Ah, we would've lost anyway."

We'd shower, dress and run to beat the bell."

"Hey, I have a test next . . . I'd better hurry."

My first study of American literature

"Did you know who I saw?"

"You mean, whom you saw."

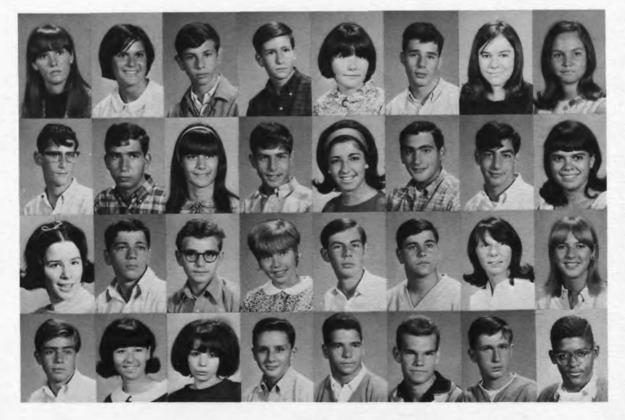

Back to the grammar book, but English III cured my grammar errors for good. After relearning for the n-teenth time the idiosyncracies of our language, we moved on to American authors.

"Wharton? Why don't we read Salinger?"

We read all types of novels, from those by Hawthorne, Twain, and Wharton to those by Steinbeck, Faulkner, and Salinger.

"Do you know whom my favorite is?"
"Oh, well, it looks like more grammar next year."

Mr. Kirk

"I'm living today. What good is talking about the 'Era of Good Feeling' going to do me?"

I was all wrong about U.S. History
I. I realize now that our contemporary scene is a direct result of our history and other nations' histories.

"What's your book about this year? Ours was on the Civil War."

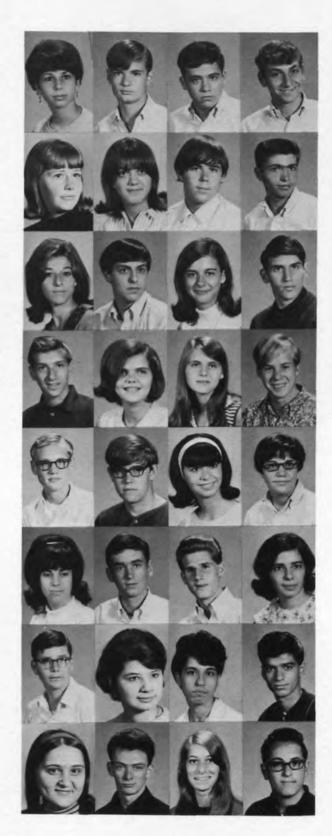

Our class wrote a book. Art work, business, typing, and research were all done by us. We gave it to the library as our own contribution to history.

"What is light?"

That question never bothered me until I learned of the theories on light. Through labs that involved velocity and momentum to labs that involved reflections and optics, we looked into the simple question, "What is light?" Mirrors, strobes, ripple tanks, and spectrums were employed to back up the theories.

Algebra II gave me a lot of problems, and not the type you get for homework. I was entirely confused by number system, graphing, functions, logs, and series.

By the end of the year my fears were conquered and the math benefited me, especially the chapters on probabilities and combinations.

Behind-the-scene direction of school affairs

Mr. Samuel Meyer . . . Assistant Superintendent of Schools

Mr. Tylus . . . Dr. McKinney

During my three years at W.O.H.S., I was completely unaware of the functions of Dr. Wallace, Dr. Albright and Mr. Meyer. Even though they have no direct contact with us, they are responsible for things that affect us every day: choosing teachers and curricula, looking into federal grants, and transportation.

Dr. McKinney instituted many changes during his second year here. I felt them all on the first school day, from the use of data processing to the elimination of homerooms. His changes represent a modern trend in education.

Mr. Tylus, our assistant principal, controls the student-faculty operations of our school. He manages the school calendar and supervises the scheduling of classes. As many of us have learned, his interest in us is profound. Mr. Groendyk is the administrative assistant. He is in charge of the management and control of the students. Sort of like a second father to us all, his goal is to promote a sense of responsibility in the students.

I never had real contact with the guidance department until my junior year. Then, PSAT's, College Boards, applications, and changes in schedule all seemed to come at once.

"It has only been two weeks."

The results reported, I'd go into my counselor's office:

"Mr. Slifkin, should I take them again?"
"It would be advisable."

This year was the first year I can remember the football team saying,

"We're going to win."

They did win. Irvington, Lodi, Dover, and Kearny all fell. The games were well played and I recall most of all, the frequent announcements over the P.A.:

"Tackle by Number 60, Filan."
When there was yardage to gain, the best combo was Phillips to Corby. After four games we were undefeated and tenth in the state. After eight games we were 4-4. The Columbia Cougars were next. The attendance, the spirit, and the motorcade all showed how important the game was. Picked to win, we did lead, but lost in the third quarter.

Endurance and determination

For the fourteen minutes a cross country meet lasts, we see only a minute of the action. But what we do see, well represents the sport and the runner. They're off at the line, each man sprinting, straining.

"Perry's third!"

They enter the woods; we run after them. We wait.

"There's a man over the hill. Two behind them!"

It's Perry, Taifer, and Auerbach. So it went, 11-3 for the season, the team's record was Mr. Congilose's best and for the first time . . . we beat Columbia!

Spirit ...

"Come on, why don't you yell?" one cheerleader asked of my friends and me.

This concern over spirit was typical of the eleven cheerleaders this year. I always thought that they cheered only at pep rallies, football and basketball games. But I was informed by one cheerleader that they sponsored cake sales and decorated buses and locker rooms.

"Hey, there's a time out. Should we do a cheer?"

"You're first, Lucille."

"Hey, who are those girls on the field?"

"They're the drill team — and they made their own uniforms." At one football game a mother so informed me. In their second year, thirty-two girls performed . . .

"Third from the left is my daughter."

"If Mr. Kirk joins, will you?"

Spurred on by this desperate plea, we, fifty-five Cowboy musicians, rallied to form W.O.H.S.'s largest and best band.

I saw the majorettes leading the band but never knew what their job was. When I asked, the answer was,

"Leading the band through maneuvers."

Intensified emotions

With the start of each sports season, and before each major event, we'd have a pep rally. Deafening drums, screaming kids, and utter chaos helped promote spirit.

"Cowboys, are you with us?"
"Yeah, Man!"

A "hard" pep rally before a hard game . . . Orange

Lois Leisentritt sparks the crowd.

Coach Imgrund instructs his starting five: John Freeman, Ron Shiffman, Jim Katz, Bill Buro and Captain Bill Theodore.

I've attended basketball games faithfully since ninth grade. Every year I've heard,

"We're so much shorter than the other teams!"

But every other year's teams did not react as ours did.

"All American, all American . . . what?"

Columbia, our biggest rival, had one of the state's best players. Yet in both games, our guards dominated him.

"Cowboys vs. Indians should be a slaughter."

Everyone thought Weequahic would kill us — everyone except us. Newspapers said we'd stall so as not to look bad from a scoring viewpoint. Did we? No. We came closer to the country's number 1 team than did any other opponent.

"Why?"

Spirit. Bill Theodore, Ron Shiffman, John Freeman, Bill Buro, Jim Katz, Ryce Stallings, and Coach Imgrund. Spirit.

"Hey, Ref. You're missing a good game."

No team in our school improved as quickly as the hockey team. We went from a 2-victory team to a winning team in three years. Once only a threat to the worst teams, this year we beat first-place Montclair and other perennial leaders.

"Who scored yesterday?"

A common question with an even more common answer.

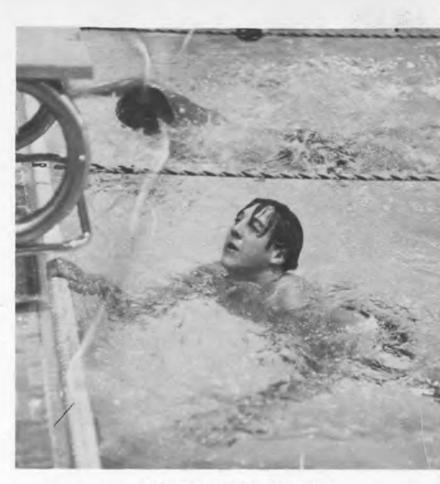

Cal Swan led the league in scoring with an average four points per game.

"Hey, you going to the hockey game today?"

"Of course."

... Devotion

I had a lot of respect for the swimmers. They practiced before school, often missing breakfast, and usually had poor turnouts at meets. Like cross country, it's a grueling sport, with satisfaction coming only when you beat the clock. But the swimmers had satisfaction this year.

"What's that rubber strip?"

I was informed that the rubber strip, an invention of Coach Prach, held the swimmer back, thus building endurance and power.

"How are your times this month?"

"Down three seconds."

"Sorry, bowling."

In their second year, the bowling team did surprisingly well, finishing in the top five of their league. I never saw a match but often heard Mr. Liddle and Fred Hyde analyzing their last one.

"That was our best series, 976."

"Do that against Bloomfield, and we could beat them."

AMERICAN FIELD SERVICE CLUB

"Emmy, who's our new exchange student?"

It wasn't long before I and everybody else knew Michel Bourquin. It was students like him that help perpetuate our interest in the American Field Service.

Housing Michel and helping to send Carol Waterhouse to Costa Rica were the big projects, but the A.F.S. assembly, and the bond drive were equally successful.

KEY CLUB

"Key Club? What's that?"

Mr. Kirk explained the ideas of the club during an assembly. In its first year, our Key Club accomplished many services. Collecting money for the Richard Cataldo Fund, aiding the Student Council, and sponsoring a basketball game were all part of a very busy agenda.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

"Are your parents coming to the Honor Society tea?"

Our Honor Society started with this informal meeting late in the year, but still accomplished a lot. We undertook projects such as tutoring underclassmen, researching on the Class of '61, and conducting an assembly.

Life in other countries is discussed by exchange students in an AFS assembly.

Evelyn Frieswyk and Miss Pilone: striking a rapport at the Leadership Conference

"This meeting is called to order."

Thus began every Student Council meeting this year. President Gordon Keil led us through a dozen activities. The magazine drive, the first major event, seemed ill-fated by student apathy, but the result was the most successful ever. The Council project, co-ed night, and color days were equally successful.

I was a little concerned about how the Council was going to function without homerooms. But this concern was unfounded. Participation was varied, interest widespread. Allaround support made our Council a busy and effective organization.

Thursdays, tenth period and after school, were set aside for the meetings. Everyone could attend. From the reports of standing committees to the varied new businesses, our Council shows what happens when students do care.

"If there is no new business this meeting is adjourned."

As a member of the Class of '67, I sold tickets for the senior play, "Harvey." Unfortunately, the main character, a six-foot tall rabbit named Harvey was not able to make either of our two performances. However, Debbie Danker, John Curry and other members of the cast managed to cover up his absence quite well.

"...a big white pooka?"

"Harvey"

Joe Marucci: the 3 and 2 pitch

We lacked depth in all categories: pitching, defense, and offense. But for some reason Coach Congilose's team had another fine season. I think I saw the reasons why at the very first game, when we beat Columbia . . . spirit and cohesion. These forces made our Cowboy team a winner. "Come on Jim, let's get him this time."

CAULDRON

THE ART STAFF OF THE CAULDRON: Patty King, John Curry, Jan Siegler, Barbara Katz

"Help!" Barbara Katz cried. "We need your poems, short stories, essays and reviews."

"Yeah, but what can I write about?"
The Cauldron is an impressive display of the writing and art work of W.O.H.S.

"I really liked this year's magazine. I'm sorry I didn't contribute."

Editor-in-Chief Barbara Katz evaluates a manuscript with Ronna Tillem.

Managing Editor Carolyn Stallings proofreads copy

"You have a deadline Thursday."

"We need $200 more in ads."

"Hey, Mitch, are there capitals this year?"

"Only $5. That's not bad."

"When do we get the yearbooks?"

"That's a good picture of me on page 72."

"Will you sign my book?"

"The book is great, Carolyn."

A class is remembered by its yearbook. A yearbook is a group effort of many people. Ours was a special. It was done totally by the students.

EPILOGUE

Love in the home.

Hope for the future.

Pain of defeat.

Fear of the unknown.

"Life is a series of emotions I have known since childhood. Each affects me, my attitudes toward life and toward others. I have grown and learned control of them — for that is the meaning of maturity. Now I take a new step in life, and this maturity must guide me.

just another contact lens solution?

no!

CONTA-LENS
WETTING SOLUTION IS DIFFERENT it helps make contact lenses fit more comfortably!

Any contact lens wetting solution provides comfort by forming a "cushion" between the lens and the cornea of the eye.

CONTA-LENS WETTING SOLUTION PROVIDES COMFORT ... BETTER!...FASTER!...LONGER!

Conta-Lens Wetting Solution lubricates the lens to make insertion easier, more comfortable. Its special, antiseptic formulation completely coats the lens...cleans...and is essential to good hygienic care. Conta-Lens Wetting Solution has "stay-power"...that's why contact lens wearers who use it report longer, more comfortable, wearing time.

Remember, too, that Conta-Lens Wetting Solution is indorsed by one of the nation's largest manufacturers of contact lenses ... people who know contact lenses best!

Conta-Lens Wetting Solution...in both 2ounce and 8-ounce sizes...is available at all outlets dealing in contact lenses and contact lens accessories. Ask for it!

Δ Δ

— A KELLER FAMILY ENDEAVOR —

We believe that education is the foundation of our community, and students the cornerstones of our progress.

We have seen it in the fifty years that Monroe has been a member of the Orange community. During that time, our city has grown not only in size but in wisdom and understanding as well. And our school system has helped produce the leaders who have led the way to a still-growing prosperity.

Monroe is proud to have grown with the community. In half a century we have changed from a small manufacturer of adding and calculating machines to the leading developer of electronic calculators in the world.

Our Orange office has become the headquarters of an international sales network with 400 offices in the U.S. and representatives in 93 countries abroad. And, finally, we have grown from a firm employing a handful of people to a division of Litton Industries that offers excellent working conditions and a fine future to a working force of more than 6000.

In seeking progress in the years ahead, we must first look to the schools and the students of today. There is where our future lies; there is where success has its beginnings.
