The line grows thinner between us and them.
Each side blends to develop a finer result.
Together, each will mature individually.
But . . . a fragmented unity finds no solutions.
We must strive for the perfect bond.

The rising pressures and strains are constant, whether physical or mental.

One's achievement provides another with a new standard — the result being competition.

Is this — merely an arena of tension, or, a necessary and vital addition to our high school existence?

A new awareness of things around us provides for understanding what is close to us. Inexperience no longer divides — the newcomer is the contributor and leader.

A peculiar optimism prevails in the face of untried circumstances; yet beneath this facade lie traces of uncertainty.

Impatience cannot be allowed to supersede achievement. Controlling impetuosity will raise the level of accomplishment.

Combining the existing factors:
awareness, optimism, and
youthful vitality,
immeasurable heights could be scaled.

Regardless of the optimistic possibilities; desire is a necessary last ingredient. Only when we are provided with adequate incentive can we truly achieve.

In Memory of Joe Milani

There are some forests that I haven't known.
Some tree trunks I've never wrapped my legs around and climbed.
A million branches I might have slid down
  had I had the time.
Still
some leaves trembled in the wood and caught my ear.
Some twigs beneath the hooves of deer snapped
  and signaled spring,
waking me from endless winter thoughts.

—Rod McKuen
