COMBINATIONS

Infinite: limitless, boundless, endless
Diversity: the condition of being different
Combination: the result of bringing together a united whole
Infinite Diversity in Infinite Combinations:

WEST ORANGE HIGH SCHOOL

As we looked around our school and counted the people who dressed alike or those who had similar hairstyles, we discovered something. Clones at West Orange High School were very rare. Each student had his own individuality in his appearance and in the way he thought. That is what made our school special. No group was set apart from the others and each individual was unique.

No group stood alone. The combinations of personalities were quite evident everywhere. As we looked around the halls, the classrooms, and the field we saw people laughing, thinking, and participating together. Yet each person in that group did what he wanted to be doing, and displayed his own unique personality. They showed a lack of conformity, but at the same time showed a great sense of pride — Pride in being able to be themselves without being afraid.

Throughout the years we were given opportunities and options, the choices which formed our personalities. The diversity in our senior class was shown through the various clubs and activities that were available to us. We were given the chance to teach children a foreign language or act in a theatrical production. We could have learned how to fix a car engine or how to write a computer program. The opportunities offered to us were numerous. We were able to open ourselves up socially as well as culturally. Our minds were given the chance to grow, to search, to soar. Those whose minds soared the highest received recognition. The special clubs and activities allowed our inner-most qualities to shine in the things we did best. Hopefully they will continue to grow.

West Orange High School was special because of the people who made it that way. Despite the various ways students spent their time, we were still one — the senior class of nineteen eighty-six.

Student life was very difficult to represent. We attempted to express everyone's involvement in all activities. We hope that we have been successful. The following pages serve as a permanent reminder of our personalities, their INFINITE DIVERSITY AND INFINITE COMBINATIONS.

STUDENT LIFE

PEP RALLY

Holy Seniors!

Raju Bhatia balances himself on the basketball rim while frantically urging on his classmates.

"I'm going deaf," complains Lori DeSantis, as Freddy Mancini, Donna Rose, Justine Scaturo and others scream into her ears.

Juniors, Mary Jo Picillo, Patti Marra, Julie Ann Contorsi, and Melissa Antonucci try to steal the show.

"Yeah", I'm a junior," says Jeannie Allaway.

Kim Adams, Cyndy Spruel, and Cheryl Fox yell, "One . . . we are the seniors!!"

Andrea Carella, Cyndi Sablon, Lucia Valentin, and Sue DeAngelis cheer on the fall athletes.

SPIRIT NIGHT

Every Monday night in the Degnan Field House, there gathered a crowd that was ready for fun and paint. With music playing in the background, with food and drinks laying around, and with friends rolling out long strips of poster paper, people who barely knew each other laughed together and worked excitedly on the projects of Spirit Night.

Starting at 7:30, students would slowly gather and mingle as the paint-brushes began decorating the signs. Mr. Prendergast and Mrs. Damiano, the supervisors of Spirit Night, would be prancing about and dancing to the music. Occasionally, some students would take a "Rat-run" while the others continued to work hard. The posters were painted to announce upcoming football games, soccer games, and other school events. This showed the support that the student body could offer its athletes and activities. Some Spirit Nights would attract as many as a hundred Mountaineers or more, other gatherings were smaller. In any case, each night produced a lot of fun for the students and a lot of support for the diverse activities going on in the school.

SENIOR PICNIC

On October 10th the first event of the year which really brought the senior class together was held. Here was the chance for seniors to exhibit their diversity, yet get to know one another better. Many different groups had the opportunity to interact and acquaint themselves with others through a truly memorable event.

The picnic was scheduled to begin at 2:30 and was held at Mayapple Hill. Seniors arrived throughout the afternoon in multi-sized groups and the turnout was excellent. Some students participated in the variety of games such as frisbee, football, and volleyball. Others gathered in clusters, talking and relaxing. Music could be heard, along with the clicking of cameras as everyone scrambled to get into photographs. Over on the picnic table there was a bounty of food, including subs, bagels, cookies, cakes, brownies, pretzels, potato chips, and soda. Needless to say, there were no leftovers!

The Senior Picnic was a huge success and was a very enjoyable event for all. It gave the Class of '86 the chance to display their infinite diversity. The picnic undoubtedly got the year off to a great start.

Halloween

After one hundred years of welcoming visitors to New York Harbor, Lady Liberty Karen Davis rests her weary feet.

Backstage at the Meadowlands, two members of KISS, Chris Monacki and Andy Hooley prepare to go on for their second set.

Returning from his debut in The Nutcracker, Freddy "Boom Boom" Mancini meets the press.

Dennis Melillo (or is it Denise?) waits impatiently for the girls' room to be unlocked.

There comes a time each year when the goblins lurk, the witches cackle, the pumpkins light their glowing grins, and a select group of students of West Orange High School come to school dressed as Playboy-Bunnies. This is Halloween, and for the 1985-86 school year, a wide assortment of school spirited people showed their creativity, originality, and courage by participating in "Halloween Dress-up Day".

The traditional ghosts and monsters and hairy things were seen throughout the halls. Modern additions of Rock Bands and Ms. Pac-man blended in with the inflated bosoms of (teacher) Mr. Prendergast. When the spirit of Halloween had filled our school, the melancholy organ music of the Grim Reaper (Harvey Silikovitz) added the touch of phantasmal dread that every Halloween needs.

The different forms that the costumes took exemplified the individuality that each student who participated wished to make apparent. In any case, whether we chose to follow the tradition of dressing up or just enjoyed the holiday by watching others, Halloween was a success at W.O.H.S.

Fulfilling his high school dreams, Mr. Prendergast shakes his pom-poms and gives us an S-M-I-L-E

Class Councils

Within the system of student government, there were the branches that represented the distinct interests of each class. Acting as separate structures from the Student Congress, the Class Councils were the principal determiners of the course of each class's student life.

In the foreground of activities which promoted school spirit was the Senior Class Council. Headed by the advisors, Mr. Thomas Prendergast and Ms. Maria Damiano, the Council initiated programs and continued traditions that provided the Seniors with a chance to enjoy themselves. The organized pep rally saw the dominance of the Senior class as they vocalized the chants which the juniors were busy memorizing for next year. The Senior Class Council sponsored such events as the Senior Picnic, the Senior Breakfast, the Homecoming football game and the famous Spirit Nights. They held fundraisers, senior shirt sales, the car-wash, bagel sales, and the body building contest. With the money, they were able to print a senior newsletter, sponsor midnight bowling nights, and powder-puff football games (in conjunction with the Junior Class Council). The Senior Trip was planned by the Council along with the aid of the Administration. The Senior Class Council was an effective organization which allowed the senior class to find opportunities to express their energy and excitement.

The Junior Class Council, with Mrs. Loretta Holmok and Mr. Lutkins as its advisors, was able to sponsor many fundraisers: bagel sales, carnation sales, and pen sales. In the Spring, the junior prom was organized by the Junior Class Council. Although not as active as the Senior Class Council, one officer commented, "We were well-organized and accomplished many things. In the course of a year, we all learned a lot, and know what we want next year. We're hoping to emulate what the Senior Class Council was able to do."

The Sophomore Class Council was learning how to lead and unite the class. They sponsored the ring sale, a candy cane sale, and a bake sale. Class advisors were Mrs. Eileen Lohan and Mr. Edward Jung.

Although the class councils acted to a great extent only in the interest of their own respective classes, they contributed to the overall quality of student life.

Important matters need important consideration. Chuck Wardell, Steve Starr, and Brian Geltzeiler, Junior Class Council members, discuss future activities for the Junior class.

Sara Jacinto and Blaise Verdi display class ring style options to fellow students.

There's nothing better than teamwork! Senior Class Council members Kim Adams, Barry Moscovitz, Kelly Ann McCann, and Jacki Peck prepare a chart displaying the number of seniors paid up for the senior trip.

Keeping the class informed is important. Carolyn Lucciola and Raju Bhatia plan a Senior Class Newsletter and update it on the computer.

Careful attention is essential during class council meetings. Laura Antonacas and Wendy Kaplan, Junior Class Council representatives, consider suggestions made at a meeting after school.

Many students buy class rings in their sophomore year. Phil Ende, Sara Jacinto, Blaise Verdi, and Melissa Starrett are responsible for informing the class about the purchase of rings.

Student Congress

The major branch of our student government was the Student Congress. Whereas class councils were restricted to their own classes in terms of support and jurisdiction, the Student Congress served the primary leadership role for the entire student body. Headed by an executive committee, the Student Congress consisted of various specialized committees that dealt with the different facets of student life, and of student representatives who acted as the voice of the individual members of the school.

General meetings were held monthly to discuss and vote on the varying issues with which the Student Congress concerned itself. With the welfare of the students in mind, the congress was able to bring about some of the changes desired. Senior parking for those students with parking permits was the result of Student Congress' lobbying, as well as the library media center's closing time being extended until 4:30. The Student Congress fundraiser, the sweatpants sale, was able to produce money for the several congress activities. One hundred dollars was donated to the Barbara Hecht Memorial Fund to encourage and allow underprivileged teenagers the opportunity to attend summer sports camps. In addition, the School Amelioration Project was initiated to clean up the fountains, the bathrooms and the school grounds. Other suggestions were brought up by the executive committee in their weekly executive meetings with Mr. Smeraldo and Miss Judith Risse, the Student Congress advisors, but were not accepted by a majority of the congress members.

The Student Congress, under the leadership of the executive committee, worked to make West Orange High School a more rewarding place to learn and to be.

(Top) Proper leadership is essential in conducting an orderly meeting. Andy Foster, Student Congress President, relays the ideas and feelings of fellow council members.

As Rebecca Odes makes a list of plans for the Executive Committee, Jeff DeCagna looks on.

The exchange of ideas is an important factor in the Student Congress process. Mark Policarpio and Karen Zivi prepare their thoughts prior to a meeting.

Conducting "Business as Usual" are Marc Pastiner and Billy Chodorcoff.

Publications

The PIONEER and the COBBLESTONE provided vehicles through which the students of West Orange High School expressed themselves. Working furiously to meet the deadlines, the newspaper editors and staff of the PIONEER were able to produce a top-notch, high-quality paper that made the student body aware of the special events, accomplishments, and opinions that were important to the school. In its first year of existence, the PIONEER was recognized by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association as an outstanding student newspaper, winning a first place award. Special mention was made of the strong writing, the graphic design, and the diverse content evident in each issue. The work began with discussions about prospective news-worthy stories, which often evolved into debates. Once a story was chosen, reporters were assigned the story, layouts were created, photographers were busy snapping pictures, and the rest of the staff became actively involved as they scrambled to finish their jobs before the deadlines arrived. Said one of the editors, "What was especially rewarding was that the scholars, the athletes, the activists and the 'ordinary' students all cooperated to create this award-winning publication . . . We're proud of what we've been able to accomplish together."

COBBLESTONE, the literary magazine, offered the students an opportunity to exercise their creativity. Students submitted poems, short stories and artwork to the staff, who then evaluated them and selected the best to be published. Many days, weeks and months went into the COBBLESTONE'S production and the quality of the work reflected the dedication and diligence of the staff. One staff member said of the COBBLESTONE writers and artists, "We pride ourselves in our creative abilities."

The journalistic and creative expressions that were produced by the WOHS students in the PIONEER and in the COBBLESTONE were integral parts of student life.

Smiling with pride, Editor Andy Foster and Andy Schildiner display a completed issue of our high school's newspaper, the PIONEER.

Getting ready to print a newspaper takes a lot of preparation. Editor-in-chief Amy Kind gives hints to classmates Ann Kamensky and Brian Reich.

Seriousness, enjoyment, and devotion is the formula needed for the production of the COBBLESTONE, our literary magazine.

Scrutinizing the most current issue of the newspaper, Editor-in-chief Howard Wasserman points out a detail to Harvey Silikovitz.

When it comes to the final draft of the literary magazine, Co-Editors Jeff Wildstein and Sharon Hutchins have the last words.

WOHS-TV

For those journalistic students who felt more comfortable with an audio-visual approach to reporting, there was WOHS-TV. The television staff provided its viewers with high-quality programming of both the sports and the news variety.

At various sporting events, a crew of news technicians could be seen reporting into a microphone, directing a television camera, or intensely following the action: "Down the right wing, number 11 shifts into high gear . . . thirty yard line . . . twenty, fifteen . . . shot on goal! Judd Dengler makes a spectacular diving save! West Orange still leads 2-1 . . ." Football, soccer, basketball, and hockey were broadcast.

With the addition of a bi-weekly news show, WOHS-TV was able to cover Halloween dress-up day, the Senior breakfast and the National Smokeout Day, as well as special interviews with students and faculty. Advised by Mr. Martin Kale, WOHS-TV had its studio situated in the Library Media Center.

Experimenting with various types of programming, the West Orange High School television staff was able to put together a successful show. Said Jeff DeCagna, a commentator, "If this year's work is any indication, the success of WOHS-TV is guaranteed for the future."

WOHS newscaster, Brian DeZavala, reviews his copy before taping the weekly news broadcast.

Many behind the scene actions take place before taping a program. Camera crew members Eric Sidel and John Carle prepare for the next taping session.

"As the publication responsible for capturing the memorable moments of the fleeting years of high school, the Yearbook was an incredible amount of work", according to co-editor-in-chief Peter Sarrett.

With the introduction of a Journalism 4/Yearbook class into the curriculum, the editors and associate editors were hoping for unhurried approaches to the formation of the book. Despite having 42 minutes of class time per day, they found deadlines that hung ominously overhead as editors and staff strained busily to fulfill the needs of each section. They found piles and piles of pictures to wade through in search of usable material; they found hundreds of pages that needed to be laboriously filled with layouts; they found tremendous hours of typing and information gathering for the written copy. In the end, everything was somehow completed and the deadlines were met. In fact, certain sections were completed well in advance of the deadline.

The editorial staff was proud of its accomplishments. It was hoped the Yearbook was able to thoroughly record the major events in terms of the school activities and sports. The faculty, with whom the students had spent the many important years of high school, had been captured in pictures to be viewed in the years to follow. The seniors, completing a major phase in their lives, were given the opportunity to make a final statement in their Senior section quotations. The compilation of all the variegated information was an arduous task. Even with the dedicated leadership of the Yearbook advisor, Mr. John McCarthy, the staff found itself with what seemed to be too much work and not enough time. Nonetheless, the staff was satisfied with the final Yearbook product. "The yearbook class was often frantic," said co-editor-in-chief Nancy Davis, "but we were able to accomplish something we'll be proud of for the rest of our lives."

Intense concentration is required by Sports Editor Karen Davis to produce startling sports layouts.

Hard work and dedication are the trademark of the Co-Editors in Chief, Peter Sarrett and Nancy Davis.

The task of typing over 300 senior directories and quotes is definitely not easy. Kim Adams and Cyndi Sablon are finding that out.

It's about time! Finally, Photography Editor Susan Hoffman is on the other side of the camera.

If there were only more spaces than pictures! Lisa Panayiotou, Ellen Rosenhaus, and Lynn Fauls try to narrow down the pile of pictures for a double page spread.

"Remember when you were very young and your mother bundled you up in a snow-suit?" Elise Gaidemak reminds the audience of those days, but continues on to talk about maturity and future responsibilities facing teenagers.

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society has always been a group which distinguished those seniors who displayed academic excellence during their high school years. This year was no different, and although the group was a large one, it was only because of the number of students who excelled scholastically.

Academic achievement was the primary consideration in determining the members of NHS. A grade point average of 6.0 was required for candidacy. This was not the only requirement. Eligible students were asked to write an essay discussing their most important non-scholastic contribution. Candidates were also evaluated by teachers in the areas of scholarship, leadership, character, and service.

The 1985-1986 National Honor Society was composed of the 48 students who best demonstrated these qualities. The induction date was Wednesday, January 8th. Four NHS members (Nancy Davis, Justine Scaturo, Elise Gaidemak, and Howard Wasserman) were elected as speakers. Gubernatorial candidate Peter Shapiro attended the induction as a guest speaker.

The National Honor Society members who graduated in 1986 continued a tradition of aiming high and succeeding.

Bands

The instrumental music department of West Orange consisted of three very accomplished and appreciated divisions: the concert band, the jazz band, and the marching band.

The concert band could be heard practicing every morning during period one. Incorporated into a class worth five credits, the concert band was led by director Richard Charwin. The fifty-five members, which included no string instrument players, performed show tunes, pop-tunes, and Big Band tunes. To promote a better appreciation of music, the concert band took extensive trips. In the 1984-1985 school year, the concert band went to Boston, Massachusetts to attend the New England Music Festival. In 1986, they planned a trip to Florida and spent all year having fund-raisers to raise the money for the trip.

The Jazz Band, also directed by Richard Charwin, consisted of twenty members divided into four sections: saxophones, trumpets, trombones, and rhythm (which included piano, bass, guitar, and drums). Practice was held once a week for these special members, who also practiced every day with the concert band. During the Scholarship Concert, the Winter Concert, and the Spring Concert, the Jazz Band provided a welcomed extra to the Concert Band. Besides performing for West Orange High School, the Jazz Band also travelled to various other schools to perform.

The most widely recognized of the bands was the West Orange Marching Band. Directed by Richard Charwin and assisted by James Robinson, the Marching Band consisted of seventy members. Fifty-four played musical instruments, ten were on the silks squad, and six were on rifles squad. All of them were seen throughout the football season as they provided half-time entertainment for the fans. Aside from that, they showed their proficiency by competing in two Marching Band competitions, taking a first place Group 2 in the Westfield Competition, and taking a second place Group 2 with a first place Band Front Group 2 in the Mount Olive Competition. They also made an appearance in the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

Mr. Charwin spends many hours helping the band to achieve perfection.

As a member of the marching band for many years, Barry Moscovitz reaches the zenith of his career as he performs a solo at halftime.

Drama and Chorus

As the curtain fell on the cast of Fame, the actors and actresses took the opportunity to reflect upon the experiences that brought them to that final moment.

It had all started weeks before the audition. Hopeful students from all grades practiced hours a day to get their routines as perfect as they were able. Slowly, the ominous date of the audition grew near. From weak knees to butterflies in the stomach, each student felt his nervousness express itself in different ways. On the momentous day, after all the aspiring actors, actresses, and singers had had their chance to give it a shot, the cast of twenty-nine was chosen. Although many students had to walk away with saddened faces and lowered heads, the twenty-nine dedicated and talented people waited eagerly for what was ahead.

Ahead lay hard work. Practice, at the beginning, started after school and ended at approximately four o'clock. As the performance of the play got closer, practice lasted from after school until four-thirty, and resumed at six and lasted until ten o'clock in the evening. While much of their time was spent working on the play, all the actors/actresses were expected to keep their grades up.

Mr. George DelMonte, the director, altered the script to include not only the instrumental music but also the songs from the movie version of Fame. In the days preceding the first performance, Mr. Charles Jordan and his out of class volunteers put the final touches on the stage set they designed. As the curtain closed on the final scene, the thundering applause offered everyone the knowledge that all the hard work had been worthwhile. Three performances after months of preparation: the end for some; only the beginning for others.

The sweet, melodic sounds that emanated from room 130 informed the school that the Chorus was again at practice. The voices of the Barber Shop Quartet and the Sweet Adelines would intertwine as their perfect harmonies rose and fell to early eighteenth century music. Aside from these special groups, there was the concert choir, whose soft pianissimo intonations could rise to emphatic forte booms. All ensembles were conducted by Mr. Dale Smyth and had a chance to perform in concerts, competitions, and exhibitions.

Practicing long hours around the piano is important for the concert choir to reach a peak performance level.

Hold the curtain! At this point Kim Adams and Tara Mahon are far from opening night with script books still in hand.

Foreign Language Clubs

This year, the Foreign Language Clubs at W.O.H.S. were very active. Their main goal was to interest the students in the language that they were studying. In keeping with this goal they sponsored many successful activities to encourage student participation.

In order to get the members of the club involved in their culture, the French Club had guest speakers, crêpe parties, and bake sales. On one occasion, a French chef was brought in to show students how the French crêpe was prepared. On Valentine's Day the Club celebrated with a croissant sale and a chocolate lollipop sale. To interest students in living and studying abroad, a guest speaker came from the Experiment in International Living. The Club Advisor, Mrs. Marianna Marchese, said, "The Club enabled all of its members to be exposed to the culture and traditions of France through various activities."

The Italian Club was active as well in spreading its culture. They held pizza parties, dances, and the annual Italian Dinner Dance. The advisor, Ms. Kristine Massari, said, "We all had the chance to have a little fun while we were learning about Italy and its culture."

Taco parties were, of course, sponsored by the Spanish Club. Advised by Mrs. Joyce Kalemba, the Club acted with the spirit and energy of its advisor. Trips to Spanish theaters in New York, to Cuban restaurants in Greenwich Village, and to art shows in the New York Public Library were only some of the club's activities. Guest speakers, slide shows, cultural eating experiences and meetings gave the members the opportunity to socialize and educate themselves in the Spanish culture.

Uno, dos, tres . . .

Un, deux, trois . . .

Uno, due, tre . . .

Numbers, colors, days of the week, and many other topics were used as part of the foreign language S.A.L.E. program. Students from WOHS made weekly visits to an elementary school to share their knowledge of the language they were studying. All three languages, Spanish, French, and Italian were taught as part of this program. The students enjoyed teaching and each developed his own methodology. One student, Cyndi Sablon, gave a sample of her technique.

"Hola clase!"

"Hola Señorita Cyndi!"

"Today, we will be learning numbers," The class of 4th graders responded with enthusiasm. Using a visual aid (numbers on flash-cards) Cyndi showed the numbers and instructed the children how to pronounce each number.

Holding up #1, "Uno. Repeat after me, uno."

"Uno."

"Dos, Repeat after me, dos."

"Dos."

Holding up both cards, "Uno, Dos, repeat, uno, dos."

"Uno, Dos."

This lesson featured numbers, but for Cyndi and many others who participated in the program the weekly visits added up to a memorable experience.

Library Aides and Quiz Team

West Orange High School fielded the Academic Quiz Team again this year. The team participated in the "Challenge" TV quiz program, sponsored by Suburban Cablevision. In the first round of the competition, the West Orange squad defeated JFK Memorial High School of Iselin. The second round, however, did not yield quite so positive results. West Orange lost to the team from the Kent Place School. The Academic Quiz Team also took part in the "Academically Speaking" competition held at Montclair High School. Teams from Verona, Montclair, Orange, and East Orange, went head-to-head in a single elimination tournament to decide a champion.

Seniors dominated this year's team, with three members each having participated since their respective sophomore years. Jeff De Cagna, Andrew Foster, and team captain Sharon Hutchins comprised the nucleus of the team, while Jeffrey Wildstein, acted as a substitute and scorekeeper. Other members included seniors Jon Richmond, Andrew Einstein, and Cliff Curie, and junior Karen Zivi. The Quiz Team advisors were Dr. Esther Bearg and Dr. Ruth Legow.

This year, four students performed a very important but greatly overlooked function — that of the library aide. These students gave up their study halls to help make sure the library ran smoothly, taking much of the pressure from the librarians, Mrs. Eileen Linehan and Ms. Catherine Evanik. Library aides worked behind the circulation desk, checking books in and out for students and faculty. They were also involved in shelving books, checking in magazines, and working in the card catalog. Sometimes they worked on special projects. For example, some of the library assistants have succeeded in finally consolidating the book collections of the former West Orange, Mountain, and Lincoln libraries. Two of the aides, seniors William Eng and Jim Fehon, worked with Mr. Martin Kale with the audio/visual components of the library's services. The other students involved in the library aide program were senior Michelle Raddi and sophomore Jennifer Schiller.

Math Team and Computer Club

The 1985-86 year was the most successful ever for both the math team and computer club. Advised by Mr. David Glatzer, Mrs. Helen Yuswack, and Mrs. Carol Sauer, the math team competed in several local, statewide, and national competitions. Although successful in all of their endeavors, the math team's season was highlighted by its victory in the New Jersey High School Mathematics Contest. The winning team of Andrew Einstein, Kevin Moore, Brian Reich, Peter Sarrett, and Eric Woods triumphed over 110 other schools in the state, with Einstein ranking third out of 3,300 participating students statewide. The team also made a strong showing in the American High School Mathematics Examination, an annual thirty question, ninety minute national competition. Kevin Moore, with a score of 131 out of a possible 150, achieved the highest score any West Orange student has ever earned in this competition.

The computer club also had a productive year. Mr. Tom Prendergast advised the club for the third year, and senior Peter Sarrett served his third term as President. The club had several fundraisers and, as a result, was able to help replace a piece of computer equipment for the library and to sponsor a trip to Photon, a high-tech game. The members reviewed software and assembled a list of all the programs available in the building. A team of three club members, Andy Einstein, Kevin Moore, and Peter Sarrett, entered a programming competition sponsored by Fairleigh Dickinson University. In its first computer competition, the West Orange team emerged victorious with an eleventh hour comeback, defeating teams from 20 New Jersey schools including nationally ranked Fair Lawn.

This school year was a rewarding one for the math department's extra-curricular offerings. The computer club provided a valuable service to the school, while both the math and computer teams gained recognition for their achievements. A fine trend has been set which future participants will endeavor to continue.

Fresh from a victory at a computer programming competition, Andrew Einstein writes a program to print, "WE BAD", the computer team's motto, a thousand times.

The math team's hard work paid off and proved to be very rewarding. The team became New Jersey State Champions this year.

Social Studies Clubs

The Close Up Club of West Orange High School was a group which concentrated on the study of the governmental processes, both federal and state. In order for the members to better understand the ways in which the governments work, the club went on two trips.

The first trip was to Trenton. There, the group listened to several lawyers and judges who spoke about current social issues, such as the terrifying AIDS disease and sex discrimination in sports. Next, the group observed the New Jersey State Senate in session. There the group saw many bills passed, including the passing of the new state jingle. "The trip was very educational," said club president Jill Perlstein. "It helped us to understand the processes which our state government goes through in making important decisions."

The club went on another trip later in the year to Washington D.C. There, the group learned about our federal government and observed the United States Senate in session.

The members of the Close Up Club learned about important aspects of society and its government. Particularly, they focused on reasons why we live by the laws we do and how these laws were made.

This year, West Orange High School students again attended Model Congress on the campus of Stockton State College in Pomona, New Jersey. Model Congress is a simulation of the actual United States Congress and has been held for the past seventeen years. Participants played the roles of senators and representatives by writing and debating legislation, learning and using parliamentary procedure, and working to forward the causes of their respective political parties. West Orange students began work in November and culminated their activities in March when Model Congress came into session. The ranking member of the delegation was senior Jeff De Cagna, who first attended the Congress as a sophomore. This year, De Cagna acted as one of two Overall Chairs of the House, the Model Congress equivalent of Speaker of the House. Other seniors who attended this year included Marc Millman, Marc Patsiner, and Erik Weingold. Mr. Sebastian La Sapio, Department Head of Social Studies, was the Model Congress advisor.

The Mock Trial team provided students with the chance to practice law before being given a formal education in law. The team participated in competitions, sponsored by the New Jersey State Bar Association, against several other schools in the region.

Prior to the first competition, the team was given a book explaining the case which they would be performing — although it really was not a performance, much of the hearing was acted upon impulse. This year's case was a murder case.

At the first competition, against Bloomfield High, West Orange played the prosecutors. West Orange defeated their opponent and later went on to the county finals, which they also won by defeating the team from Lacordaire Academy. From there, they went on to a tough battle at the Regional finals against the finest teams from each county in the state.

Each year the Close-Up Club convenes in Washington, D.C. Jill Perlstein, President, and Donna Rose flip through pamphlets about the trip.

Members of the team, as well as their advisor Mr. Carlson, study their case, developing new strategies for testimony.

Ski Club and Powerlifting

When people think of winter they usually think of cold weather, snow, sleigh riding, ice skating, and skiing. Skiing, even though not listed as a sports event within the school's curriculum, was one of the most widely participated-in extra-curricular activities. Forty to fifty students spent an average of two to three weekends out of the year in Killington, Vermont engaging in the skiing festivities. The students departed Friday after school after loading their equipment on the bus. The bus ride up featured loud music, food, conversation of how the weekend would turn out, and more food. Conversely, the bus ride home was very quiet and just about everyone slept the whole way home. All who participated, from those who skied the expert slopes, to those who were out for the first time, had a fantastic time and brought back with them some of the better memories of their high school year.

Everybody knew Coach Miller, if not as a Physical Education teacher or as a Football Coach, then they recognized him as the coach of the Powerlifting team.

The team, which has been in existence for ten years, became the state champions in 1983, and had another close run in 1985. West Orange was defeated in the final round by a margin of one point and had to take a disappointing second place in this year's state-wide competition.

As the Powerlifting team took to competitions, the Powerlifting Club staged a bench-a-thon. Each participating member in the bench-a-thon found a sponsor who pledged to donate a given amount of money for each pound that that member could lift. The money collected in the bench-a-thon was used to purchase new weights for the weightroom.

Coach Miller, who has been coaching the club for all of the ten years it has been in existence, was happy with the results of the club. "The club enabled students who were athletically inclined to expand upon their abilities and to gain a lot of self-confidence."

Working out in preparation for the power lifting contest, Gary Florio warms up.

(Left) The power lifting contest is the perfect time for the students to flex and show their muscles to the rest of the school. Chris Monoki shows his strength as Eneya Mulagha looks on.

Perhaps the safest place for skiers is on a flat surface.

A quiet moment on the slopes is captured at Killington, Vermont.

The ski club trips are a time for more than recreation. It's a chance for friends to get together and enjoy the snow. Dave Janowski, Barry Moscovitz, Andy Schildner, and Matt Handler relax in the snow.

Service Club and Health Careers Club

Whenever there was a need at West Orange High School, students always made themselves available to provide help. The members of the Service Club assisted at school functions such as guiding parents at "Back to School Night."

The Service Club not only provided help in school, they provided services for the community. One event involved the members participating in a walk-a-thon. The money they raised was used to aid in the research of Juvenile Diabetes. In order to prepare students for this walk, as well as other activities, advisors Charles Jordan and Bette Fort held meetings every other Wednesday to discuss how members could participate in upcoming events.

Among their many contributions to the school, the Service Club made posters to publicize the annual National Smoke-Out week, which took place November 17-23. This year, the Health Careers Club sponsored this activity by providing stickers, buttons, and iron-ons for the non-smokers in school. These items were used to discourage smokers from having a cigarette during the course of the day. Also provided were candy suckers for smokers who were trying to quit.

Other activities of the Health Careers Club included fundraisers for charity organizations, guest speakers on Health as a Profession, and visits to hospitals to observe doctors at work. The Service Club and Health Careers Club offered students with the desire to help others a chance to participate in events that satisfied this drive.

(Top) Newcomers learn their duties quickly and realize they're part of a prestigious club. Upcoming events are put on posters made by members, Andrew Keil and Howard Hoffman.

The Service Club is responsible for attending to projects concerning the school and the community. Mr. Jordan explains to Ellen Rosenhaus and Caryn Ritter the importance of printing up fire exit signs for the safety of the students.

Smoking is a habit easiest to break when supported by others. Vivi Hung helps West Orange High School prevent teens from smoking during the Great American Smokeout.

Many functions at WOHS depend on the service club to help work out details. Dawn Terwilligar and Liz Brennan help organize an upcoming PTA meeting.

Health Careers Club members Monica Kim, Chris Petrou, and advisor Nurse Joan Picini, aim to clean up the air by promoting the Great American Smokeout.

Awareness Projects

It all happened in one terrifying accident. Driving while drunk was the cause of a nightmare of a story that was all too true for Hector Del Valle from Dover, New Jersey. Sitting in a wheelchair obviously paralyzed, Hector kept an auditorium of W.O.H.S. students entranced by his story. Hector explained the fastmoving chain of events that started with driving a car full of his friends while he was under the influence of alcohol. One thing led to another as he first hit one car, then another, then a brick wall, before he broke his neck. From the secure life of a high school student to the uncertain future of a quadriplegic, Hector has traveled the state telling his powerful story and communicating with young adults his message about drinking and driving. However, even with becoming somewhat of a celebrity, traveling, appearing on T.V., and meeting the President, Hector would "give it all up just to be able to walk or feel the warmth of a hug." People should learn from Hector's message and make responsible decisions about drinking and driving. Life is too precious to waste. Those who were present during his emotion-packed visit to W.O.H.S. will never forget him or his message.

Often one can breathe the clean, crisp air and marvel at its refreshing qualities. However, just as frequently the air might be filled with smoke or smog. The A.R.P.ies, participants in the Air Research Project, dedicated many hours of hard work studying the air quality in West Orange. This group of ten to fifteen students were advised by W.O.H.S. science teachers Mr. Joseph Bonavita, Mr. Robert Middleton, and Mr. Lester Ray. The A.R.P.ies, sponsored by New Jersey Institute of Technology, (N.J.I.T.), analyzed the difference in air quality in the valleys versus the mountainous regions of West Orange as well as the difference in the smoking versus non-smoking rooms on the West Orange High School campus. Two field trips to N.J.I.T. provided students with the advanced machinery to test samples of air for various things such as the types of metals like nickel, lead and iron which are dangerous if inhaled in large quantities. At the time of printing, there was not enough evidence to draw a conclusive hypothesis, but the information gathered was put to good use in the study of air quality.

The holiday season lived up to its reputation even for the less fortunate this year. The students and faculty donated food to the needy residents of West Orange. Eric Rosencrantz, Michael Bilotti, and Liz Brennan aid Mrs. Picini in collecting the donations.

Washing cars might not be a unique idea for a fundraiser, but this car wash is different. WOHS students, including Barry Moscovitz, are raising money for the needy residents of West Orange.

At one of West Orange High School's most emotional assemblies, Hector Del Valle relays his tragic story about the consequences of drinking and driving.

Detailed instructions go hand in hand with learning the procedure for testing air for pollution. Sharvin Setoodeh helps Mr. Ray demonstrate this procedure to the ARPies club.

One of the rituals for inducting members into the newly formed ARPies club is demonstrated by Mr. Bonavita, shown here wearing the symbolic attire.

Over 350 students were brought together to comprise the class of 1986. During this information, extracurricular and curricular activities were incorporated in order to help introduce seniors to one another. Among the numerous activities offered to all West Orange High School students, many were devoted solely to the senior class, providing them with the opportunity of making new friends while gathering a myriad of unforgettable memories. Each student added his unique personality to the total diversity of the class.

As seniors, we were faced with more questions than ever before. Difficult questions like — “What do I want to do after I finish high school?” — entered our minds and occupied much of our thought. Pressure was put on many students, but they were able to answer the questions raised. Not all the students answered the same question alike. Each individual chose his own path.

Students showed their diversity through their character, expression, style, and in the way they interacted with each other. In this section of the yearbook the infinite diversity of our class in infinite combinations is reflected in candid moments and in the selection of individual senior quotations. While each student was very different from the others, the following pages show what happiness, accomplishments, and fun were produced when these diverse persons participated together in a variety of situations.

Many exciting events took place in West Orange High School's athletic programs during our three years. Many athletes met on fields, in gyms, in pools, and on courts to participate in a great diversity of sports. While each person was fulfilling his goal or following his individual preference, everyone had the common goal of striving to succeed. They were attempting to do the best they could do, to achieve victory for themselves, and for their team.

The extent of the success of each individual and team was often relative. The athletes, their parents, the school administrators, and the coaches each had a different perception of the games. To some, the most important part of the game was the score, the record, the victories. Unaware of the individual motivation and skill that drove our athletes, they cheered only when the numbers displayed a victory. They rarely applauded the determination, the dedication, and the diligence that our athletes offered to their teams.

The athletes, however, knew what they had accomplished. They had worked hard, and had worked together well. Even when the score went the wrong way for W.O.H.S., many of our athletes had "won". They had given 100% or more and that was what mattered. Looking back, we all agree that none were ever "losers".

Our sports program provided another dimension to our school and our class. It offered individuals an opportunity to display their diverse talents. Ultimately our athletes were all winners. In our three years they won as individuals and as teams. We celebrated their success and respected their dedication.

Mountaineers win last three

After a rough start, losing to Clifford Scott, the Mountaineers showed a definite improvement. They finished the season with a record of 4-4-1, winning their last three games against Marist (20-10), Lakeland (14-13), and Essex Catholic (20-5).

The Mountaineers were led by senior co-captains Dave Allaway and Eneya Mulagha. Allaway, at halfback, was the leading offensive player, with the most yards receiving (311), most touchdowns (8), and the most yards rushing in a single game (214). Mulagha accumulated a total of 190 yards rushing on 43 attempts. He also had 224 yards on 10 receptions. At quarterback this year was Billy Hettrick. Hettrick had 97 attempts with 46 completions, giving him a season average of 47.4%. Of those 46 completions, seven were touchdown passes for 466 yards.

The defensive team was quite stingy this season, yielding a total of only 68 points. They were led by seniors Marc Patsiner with 41 tackles and 28 assists, Martin Brown with 35 tackles and 11 assists, and Eneya Mulagha with 32 tackles, 23 assists and two interceptions. Several players were named to the All Northern Hills Football Team: First team — Dave Allaway, Marc Patsiner, Second team — Marty Brown, Eneya Mulagha, Andy Nelson, Lou Della Pia, Bill Hettrick, Honorable Mention — Peter Panucci.

Head Coach Ron Miller returns to the sidelines after huddling with his team. He has been coaching the varsity team for 11 years.

Tripped up after a sizeable gain in a 6-6 game against West Milford is Andy Hooey. Hooey and Allaway were the chief threats in the vaunted Mountaineer passing attack.

Following a block by Lou Della Pia, Dave Allaway gains a few of his 214 yards against Marist. Allaway set the record for the most yards rushing in a single game against Marist in a 20-10 victory.

Rich Allaway and Paul Barbato celebrate a fumble recovery by Martin Brown. The hard hitting defense forced numerous turnovers this season.

GIRLS' TENNIS

Girls have best season ever: 29-1

The West Orange Girls' Tennis Team had an absolutely incredible season. In fact, this team, at 29-1, was the best team that West Orange High School has ever had. When the pre-season state rankings came out, West Orange was second only to Red Bank Catholic, the team that captured the all-schools championship last year. West Orange was not to remain #2 for long, though, as midway through the season, they handed Red Bank Catholic their only loss, in the finals of the Montclair Kimberly Academy Invitational Tournament. In the exciting, deciding match, Jamie Greenberg, at third singles, defeated Kathy Decker 2-6, 6-4, 6-0 to lead her team on to a 3-2 victory.

West Orange had a truly formidable singles lineup and this was, indeed, the team's overriding strength. Some of the best tennis all year came in the pre-season challenge matches between first singles Cindy Greenberg and second singles Carina Rolley. Both of these girls had great seasons with Cindy ending up at 31-1, her lone loss coming in the semifinals of the State's 1st Singles tournament. Carina finished at 28-2, with the superb accomplishment of reaching the quarterfinals of the same tournament while being only one of a few 2nd singles players invited to enter. Cindy's sister, Jamie, the only freshman on the team, was undefeated at 29-0. She, too, was voted 1st team — All Conference, 1st team — Group 4, and 1st team — All State 3rd singles.

This lineup grouped with the 1st doubles team of Michelle Davis and Esther Drill, led West Orange to its first-ever Essex County Team Championship. Davis, a junior, and Drill, a senior, ended the season with a record of 23-4, being voted 1st team — All Conference, 2nd team — Group 4.

At .500, Liz Warnick and Audrey Seligsohn's record could be deceiving. They were a good 2nd doubles team that got off to a slow start. However, they improved with each match and, at the end of the season, they were playing 100% better than at the beginning.

Issued proclamations by both the town council and the Board of Education, the West Orange High School Girls' Tennis Team was the Northern Hills Conference champion, undefeated in conference play. The girls were Group 4, Section 2 State Champions, Group 4 State Champions, and Public School State Champions. Their only loss of the entire season came in the last match, the all-schools final between Red Bank Catholic and themselves.

"Have a ball" says Coach Laura Sherman as she readies the team for play.

Demonstrating her aggressive net play, Carina Rolley returns a forehand at the service line. Rolley finished at 28-2 this season.

Captain Esther Drill takes a break from play to mentally prepare for her next match. Drill's consistent, strong backhand from the baseline greatly helped the doubles team.

Second doubles player Liz Warnick follows through on a backhand from the baseline.

SOCCER

West Orange Upsets Montville

The soccer team, losing four of their first five games of the season by a one goal margin each time, showed their true ability by defeating Montville, last year's Conference Champions by a score of 2-1.

With eight players returning from last year's varsity team, the team had started with hopes of bettering the previous year's 7-11-1 record. (Returning were Judd Dengler, Louie Mignone, Matt Steiner, Ryung Suh, Timmy O'Boyle, Telly Fitandis, Andy Schildiner, and Pablo Moreno). Of the returning players, however, most were not dominant offensive players.

The resulting 2-12-2 record was attributed to this lack of an experienced offense. Without the leadership of a dominant offensive player, West Orange went scoreless in nine games. Still, the season could have been successful and it almost was. Of the twelve losses, seven were one goal defeats. Even without the strong offense, the consistent defense kept the games close.

Despite the record, players on the team were recognized for their outstanding ability. Co-captain Louis Mignone received First Team All Conference Honors and All County Honors while Co-captain Judd Dengler received a First Team All Conference Honorable Mention.

CROSS COUNTRY

Ragaza and Moore lead boys

The boys' cross country team was much improved this season. They ran competitively in all their meets and finished with a 3-9 record. Several veterans, including seniors Morris Ragaza and John Colagrande, and junior Kevin Moore provided the team with a solid foundation. Senior Raju Bhatia came off the injured list midway through the season to aid the team. Newcomers, Neil Manspeizer and Jarrett Abramson helped the team by giving them a solid top five runners.

Despite their disappointing record, the team came very close to victory in several meets. The boys lost a discouraging one point race against Clifford Scott at Delbarton, and by two points to Passaic Valley at home. Despite these defeats the boys were victorious over Essex Catholic, Bloomfield and Orange. In the meet against Bloomfield, Ragaza took first place and Moore came away with a second place.

Bloomfield took third, and West Orange's Manspeizer fourth, Bloomfield fifth and sixth, Abramson (W.O.) seventh, Bloomfield eighth and Colagrande (W.O) ninth. It was because of Colagrande's impressive finish that the Mountaineers came away with a victory.

After a disappointing conference championship race, the runners came back to finish fifteenth in the county. Due to their performances in these, and other meets, several team members including Kevin Moore, Morris Ragaza and John Colagrande came away with post season honors. Moore, a junior, was named to first team All-Orange and second team All-Conference. Ragaza, a senior and captain of the team, was selected as second team All-Oranges and Honorable Mention All-Conference. Colagrande, a senior, was voted honorable mention All-Oranges.

Girls plagued by injuries

The girls' cross country team was riddled early by key injuries to two of its top runners, Jean Ann Maffucci and Ann Kamensky. It became impossible to duplicate last year's 7-3 record, but the remaining team members ran with considerable determination and pride. The girls finished with a 4-6 record beating Montville, Millburn, Bloomfield and Orange. Montville proved to be an important win for the girls, placing them fifth in the conference. In the meet against Bloomfield the team was clearly triumphant. They clinched the victory by finishing in the top three positions: Zivi first, Davis second and Nonnie Gould third.

The Mountaineers were led by Junior Karen Zivi, and newcomer, Karen Davis. Zivi had several impressive performances placing first and second in many meets. She finished seventh in the Northern Hills Conference, (Northern Division) and eleventh in the Essex County Championships. She was named to the first team All Conference, second team All-County and first team All-Oranges.

Despite their record, many good things came from the season. With a small team, each runner knew she had to finish the race. They learned to compete under pressure and to understand the meaning of teamwork. They also gained experience, not only in running, but also in self-discipline.

WINTER SPORTS

BOYS' BASKETBALL

A Season of Almosts

Frustrating is the only way to describe the boys' basketball team's season. The Mountaineers finished the season at 7-14. Don't get the idea that West Orange wasn't competitive. Fifteen games weren't decided until the final three minutes, and the boys lost eleven of those games. Six of their losses were by three points or less, four of those losses coming within the Northern Hills Conference. The boys finished the conference season 4-6, good enough for a fourth place finish.

There were some very good moments for the Mountaineers, the best of these coming in a tense, 42-35 upset of Essex County power Essex Catholic. The key to the game was West Orange's foul shooting: the boys were good on 20 of 23 from the charity stripe. Later in the year, a major milestone was reached.

In a 50-27 drubbing of West Milford, Head Coach Bob Belcuore won his 275th career high school game.

Lack of size and experience hurt the team greatly. J.R. Gray, all six feet, three inches of him, played center and found himself outmatched throughout the season. Still, he did average eight points a game and led the team in rebounds with 125. Guard Alton Simpson, the lone experienced player, was the main leader. He averaged 11.9 points, grabbed a team-high 65 steals, and dished-out 57 assists. Other key offensive players included forward David Kole, who averaged 8.9 points, and guard Majied Pray, at 7.5 points. Pray, a junior, along with sophomore Adam Raditz (5.1 points) were key underclassman contributors.

Head Coach Robert Belcuore gives the signal for a timeout. The Mountaineers gave Belcuore his 275th victory this season.

Pushing the ball upcourt after a steal is senior Alton Simpson. As co-captain, Simpson had the most steals this season.

(Far left top) To avoid the Eagles' defense, junior Majied Pray takes a jumpshot from the key. Majied was primarily a ballhandler but was a capable scorer as well.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Girls qualify for States

The girls' basketball team was anything but boring this season. They had everything from the Christmas Tournament championship to overtime games. Despite their lack of height and dominant player, they still participated in the State Tournament and had two tough wins against Millburn.

After a devastating loss to Cliford Scott, 55-53 in East Orange, the girls came back to win six of their next seven games. They learned how to work as a team to cover up their limitations. Each player contributed. Tricia Lorimer led the team in scoring with an average of 14 points per game and a total of 153 rebounds. Liz Warnick contributed a team high of 63 assists. Justine Scaturo averaged 71% from the foul line. Because foul shots were the deciding factor in many games, this became an important factor. Keeshia Ingram was dominant from the floor, averaging nine points per contest; she shot 40%. Karen Davis and Sharon Pflug shared the fifth starting spot as center. Together they played tight defense in the center of the zone. Karen had a total of 54 rebounds and Sharon 50. Both contributed an average of two points a game.

The girls finished the season at 10-14. Seven of the wins came at home. They finished with a 4-7 conference record. Three of their losses were by a margin of three and a fourth loss came in overtime against Passaic Valley. To end a season of tough competition the girls took on Westfield.

Coach Judy Risse gives some last minute instructions to her Mountaineer squad. Although they lacked the height to match almost every opponent, the girls finished with a 10-14 record.

Known for her aggressive defense, Sharon Pflug takes the charge against Verona.

Leading scorer Tricia Lorimer adds two points to her impressive statistics. Not only did Tricia lead the team with 310 points, she also had the most steals (68).

WRESTLING

Individual efforts add up to team success

Led by co-captains Joe Petillo and Gary Klein, the Mountaineers finished third in the conference with a 2-2-1 record. While their overall record was only 4-13-1, many outstanding wrestlers went on to post season competition. Senior Joe Petillo placed second in the district which enabled him to move on to the regionals where he finished fourth. Telly Fitanidis finished third in the districts and qualified for the regionals while Gary Klein, Robert Boland and Art Ehrhardt each came away with a fourth place finish.

Joe Petillo had the most pins this season (12) and Paul Barbato had the fastest pin (:12). James Benemerito had the fastest pin in the Booton Quad and Brian Reich finished with an impressive 8-7 record.

On February 8th the Mountaineers hosted a traditional parents' day match. In addition to a fine wrestling exhibition against Lakeland, family and friends of wrestlers enjoyed refreshments and the opportunity to meet the coaches and their son's teammates.

While wrestling is considered a team sport and the record wasn't outstanding, the success of individuals must be included when one attempts to review a season. In this sense, this year's team was successful. Several wrestlers posted winning records and participated in the districts. Joe Petillo established himself as one of the top wrestlers in the schools' history. Several wrestlers also received post season honors.

Looking to repeat his fastest pin at :31, James Benemerito controls his man.

In control, as he was most of the season, co-captain Joe Petillo starts to break down his man. Joe finished the season at 20-5, placing second in the district and fourth in the region.

SWIMMING

Swimmers place 6th

The Mountaineer swimmers finished this season with a record of 2-8. Due to illness and injuries three top swimmers — Dolores Saporito, Kristina Emodi, and Byung Yoon — were unable to compete in several events this season. This forced several other swimmers to compete in events with which they were unfamiliar. Despite this handicap, the team finished sixth in the county meet.

The girls were led by sophomore Tracey Lutkins, who finished third in the county meet in both the 100 and 200 yard freestyle. Kristine Schwarz took 12th in the fifty yard freestyle. Coming back from illness, Kristina Emodi and Dolores Saporito placed in the 100 yard backstroke.

Charles Wahlers led the boys in the county meet by placing 4th in the fifty yard freestyle and 9th in the 100 yard freestyle. Paul DeBenedette contributed a fourth place in the 100 yard butterfly to bring the Mountaineers to their sixth place spot.

Unlike the majority of team sports the swimmers do not compete in a league. As a result the meets which were cancelled were not made up. With a limited dual meet schedule the swimmers lost out on valuable experience which was sorely missed entering the county meet.

Head Coach Edward Jung gives a bit of advice to his swimmers before sending them into the pool.

Demonstrating his speed in the 50 meter freestyle, one of the quickest races that takes place in high school competition, is senior Mike Weiss.

ICE HOCKEY

A marked improvement for skaters

This year's Mountaineer hockey team had everything — outstanding individual performances, improvement over last year and a female player. The Mountaineers finished with a record of 3-14-2 with two wins over River Dell and one win over Becton Regional.

The Mountaineer victory over River Dell showed the team's improvement and determination. River Dell scored the first two goals of the game, leaving the Mountaineers down 2-0 at the end of the first period. During the second period neither team had any luck at the goal. At the end of the second period the score was still 2-0 River Dell. In the third period, the Mountaineers showed their perseverance. First, Mike Tutalo scored unassisted, which left the Mountaineers only one goal behind. Bobby Rega, assisted by Dan Spino and David Scioscia, followed up the shot by Tutalo, to tie the game. With one minute and eleven seconds remaining Brian Ludwig scored the winning goal, unassisted. At the end of the game goalie Jeff Weaver had recorded twenty-four saves made on twenty-six shots.

Overall the Mountaineers had a good season. Several players had outstanding individual performances. Senior Mike Tutalo, who was the center, led the Mountaineers with eleven goals and ten assists. Behind Tutalo was Captain John Levchik with seven goals and four assists. Brian Ludwig followed Levchik with five goals and two assists. Senior goalie Jeff Weaver, had roughly 583 saves on 697 shots, which gave him an eighty-four percent average on saves.

This year senior Lisa Panayiotou played for the Mountaineers. Her outstanding skating ability was a great asset to the team.

BOWLING

Mountaineers finish 3rd

The Mountaineer bowling team, coached by Laura Sherman, started their season with a positive outlook. Even though there were only three returning bowlers — Terri Auletta, Kim Tutalo, and Ivan Zranchev — the team placed second in their pre-season tournament. The Mountaineers not only began their season well, but also finished on a high note. The team placed third in their league, which consisted of Summit, Madison, Orange, Millburn, Scott, Verona, and Essex Catholic. Despite the loss of their key bowler, Michael Robbins, midway through the season, the Mountaineers only fell by four and a half points to second place Madison. Although Robbins missed three key matches, he managed to lead the team with a grand total of thirty-six points, which placed him second in the league. Robbins also bowled the high game for the season, knocking down 224 pins. Robbins averaged a team high of 176 pins. Ivan Zranchev contributed to the team's third place ranking by bowling an average of 159.

WINTER TRACK

Urso sets new school and county records

Winter track was quite different than any other sport at West Orange High School. First, athletes competed both indoor and outdoor. Secondly, there was no team record. Athletes competed individually for personal records and usually for medals. Two individuals, Mike Urso and Mike Dawson, had outstanding accomplishments this season, setting new personal records, school records, and county records.

Michael Urso placed in several meets this season. He took a third place in the Passeralli Invitational — 600 yards, a third place in the Cliff Back Invitational 60 yards, and a second place in the 400 meter Northern Hills Conference finals. He finished third in the 400 meter Group 4 state finals and second in the 440 All-Groups final. He also set a new school record in the 400 at 50.6 and a new county record at 50.8. Michael Dawson finished fifth in the Northern Hills Conference finals in the 55 meter high hurdles. Although these two were the only individuals to receive medals for their accomplishments, other athletes competed for personal satisfaction, and to improve themselves both physically and mentally.

Greg Caldwell runs around the track to warm up before his race.

Beginning to make his move in the 440 is junior Mike Urso. Mike set a new school record at 50.6 and a new county record at 50.8, both in the 440.

CHEERLEADERS

Guinness record for cheerleaders

Although cheerleading may have appeared to be all fun and games, the W.O.H.S. cheerleaders also devoted much hard work and effort toward perfecting their squads. "Behind what everyone observes at games is a lot of hard work, determination and a definite obligation by a very special group of young ladies. Behind each performance were hours of practice working towards improvement and perfection of each cheer," commented Ms. Debbie Pratkan, the varsity coach of the cheerleaders. Also coaching, for JV, was Mrs. Gerri Harrington. In order to have a good squad, the cheerleaders practiced daily during both the fall and winter sports seasons to achieve precision and organization within the cheers. Additionally, they all contributed their ideas to create many new cheers for the 1985-86 school year. Aside from the time spent on improving the squads, the cheerleaders also became involved in various activities. In December, 1985, W.O.H.S. cheerleaders made the Guinness Book of World Records when they participated in a cheer, along with numerous other squads, at Rutgers, Newark during a basketball game. At half-time, all the cheerleaders, totaling almost 500, gathered on the court to perform the cheer, setting a record for having the most cheerleaders on the court at one time performing the same cheer. The cheerleaders were also involved in making posters for games, decorating senior football players' rooms for the Homecoming Game, marching in the W.O. St. Patrick's Day Parade, and raising money through sales such as keychains and teddy-bear candles.

The successful 1985-86 Mountaineer cheerleaders hoped that the spirit and enthusiasm will be carried on in future squads.

Looking to make a play at first is senior third baseman Peter Pannucci.

Using full body extension is pitcher William Varanelli.

SOFTBALL

Senior catcher Sharon Pflug prepares herself for the pitch.

Keeshia Ingram releases the ball during a pregame warmup. Keeshia was one of the starting pitchers for the Mountaineers this season.

Eyes on the ball, Toni Romayo readies herself to make a play.

Junior Maureen Mooney prepares to field a ground ball.

Kim Tutalo keeps a careful eye on the ball while making the catch.

Awaiting the pitch during batting practice is senior Justine Scaturo. As a returning letterman, Justine was a great asset to the team.

BOYS' TENNIS

Andy Foster comes to the net on a volley. This was Andy's third season with the team.

BOYS' TRACK AND FIELD

Keeping the discus in perfect position, Fred Mancini concentrates on his release.

Junior distance man Kevin Moore gets a speed workout in before moving on to the streets.

Distance runner Morris Ragaza works on his form.

Senior sprinter Dave Allaway keeps his eyes on the finish line. Dave, a returning letterman, was one of the top sprinters on the team.

Sprinter George Lane stretches his hamstring before moving on to his workout.

Senior Marc Patsiher prepares himself for his powerful shot put throw.

GIRLS' TRACK AND FIELD

Elbow up and javelin back, Lisa Shimamoto displays perfect form.

Sprinter Tatyana Vaynshteyn runs with a look of determination.

Beth Trimarco takes a lap around the track during a pre-season workout. The weeks before the opening meet were an important factor in the conditioning of the athletes.

Coach Minni explains the fundamentals to a hopeful newcomer.

Sprinters Marjolie Jean and Michelle McBride work together to drive each other toward better times.

Looking ahead is distance runner Lisa Makover.

Sophomore Marc McGowan drives the ball onto the fairway.

One hundred and eighty five days a year we came to West Orange High School and congregated with our groups of friends. We talked and we laughed about past days' events and planned for future activities. No matter how we spent our time in school we were all there for the same reason. We were there to learn.

Our learning experiences were greatly influenced by one group of people, the faculty. Through their efforts we were able to make decisions for our futures. They helped us cultivate our interests and identify our limitations. They helped us to discover our goals.

As the personalities of the students were so diverse, so were those of the faculty. The diversity of our faculty and administration was what made our learning experience so much more interesting. We were able to obtain guidance from those whom we knew we could depend on and those whom we knew really cared.

There was not only diversity in the personalities of the faculty, but also diversity in their knowledge. This made it possible for a variety of courses to be available to us. We had the opportunity to take part in many courses of study, and to learn about the things that each of us found interesting. Whether it was computer programming or auto shop, business law or child development, A.P. Composition or A.P. Physics, each found a place to suit his own interests. The diverse faculty covered all areas to suit the needs of the students.

The basis for our future was built during these past three years. It is important to remember the people who influenced us most, during the most important time of our lives. The faculty of West Orange High School gave us a direction and a desire, the direction to discover our surroundings and the desire to live our future to full potential.

ACADEMICS

Administration

Dear Seniors, Class of 1986:

Your theme for your yearbook, "Infinite Diversity in Infinite Combinations" suggests an infinite number of responses and reactions.

The theme is dazzling. To me, your theme becomes your personal view of yourself: your talents, your accomplishments, your hopes, your dreams. To me, your theme suggests how you will face the grand future in this grand universe.

The only limit placed on each one of us is the amount of time we have to live on this earth. But, how we view the meaning of life, how we enter into relationships with other people, how we solve problems, how we make decisions — all these infinitely diverse issues have an infinite number of combinations for responses, especially in our free society.

You already possess a great amount of information which influence your lifestyle. All I ask of you is, that as you live in that future of "infinite diversity and infinite combinations," you keep an open mind and continue to learn more and more.

As the Senior Class of West Orange High School, 1986, you have been a great class. From the beginning of this year, you have generated school spirit and pride. Your class leaders are to be admired.

Thank you for your cooperation and may you enjoy good fortune as you proceed into the limitless future. Sincerely,

Joseph J. Tylus
Principal

Dear Class of 1986:

In my position as Assistant Principal, I have had the opportunity and privilege to know and work with you towards a happy and successful future.

The system and the participants grow equally apart, as they work together, blending the knowledge and results of the past towards a better future. As we grow in our independence, we find ways to live together and make for the perfect bond of the future. To the Class of '86 best wishes for a future of happy and successful moments and achievements in life. Sincerely,

Frank Vogt
Assistant Principal

JOSEPH J. TYLUS, Principal

FRANK J. VOGT, Assistant Principal

Dear Class of 1986:

Human invention and creativity is based on the ability of a person to extend, expand and restructure knowledge beyond an existing reality to produce a new reality. This genius grows in a fertile field where structure and diversity combine with finite and infinite limits in ever increasing combinations and permutations. Your education has begun the process of establishing the structure necessary to allow you the fertile field. Sincerely,

Vaughn S. Avedian
Assistant Principal

Dear Class of 1986:

A review of your high school years will reveal many opportunities to develop academically and socially. On the formal side of the equation are the variety of course offerings, interscholastic sports, clubs, and special activities or events from which you were able to choose. Your participation in one or more of these experiences has hopefully taught you the value of interacting with others to realize common objectives and more importantly, has enabled you to internalize the desire to give your best effort in all that you do. Recognition for your involvement and achievements is usually given by your teachers, administrators, parents, and by your peers.

On the informal side of the equation is the day to day personal interactions that take place in your home, in school, at work, and in the community. These interactions have to do with the way you get along with others when the formal structure is not there to direct or guide you. Hopefully, you are pleased with this informal side and the way in which you have developed your interpersonal skills over the past few years.

It naturally follows then that your goal is to achieve a good balance between the formal and informal sides of the equation. Few, if any, are able to achieve "perfect" balance. Your success, therefore, is not measured in the achievement of perfection but rather in your ability to make progress toward that balance, to identify those specific areas within the formal and informal structures that require your attention, and to plan for your continued personal development as you move on to the next stage in your life.

I hope that you have developed a more optimistic view of life, one that allows you to look forward to each and every day with the desire to demonstrate that your past experiences will help you to face new challenges, that you have nurtured the desire to increase your knowledge and improve your skills, and that the very pursuit of trying to balance that equation will continually provide you with a warm and personal sense of satisfaction.

Best Wishes,

Jerry Tarnoff

Guidance

Mr. D'Aries, one of the guidance counselors at West Orange High School, recognized the individuality in the senior class. "They have a diversified student body and respect for their own identity," he commented. Despite the diversity of the class, Mr. D'Aries felt there was a high degree of positive interaction.

Mr. D'Aries has been in the West Orange school system since 1970, but has been in the teaching profession for nineteen years, previously working in Basking Ridge. He has coached many sports, such as basketball, football, wrestling, and tennis, and has been a class advisor during various years. During the school year of 1985-86 he did not have a direct or formal involvement with those activities. Even though he was not involved with school sports this year, he did not feel this had hindered his insight into the student body. Along with being a guidance counselor, he also participated in the Driver's Education Program. Most students have not regarded this as a school activity, which, he felt, encouraged them to talk more openly. Mr. D'Aries acknowledged the Driver's Education Program as an opportunity which allowed him to become better acquainted with some of the students.

His most memorable experience occurred during the consolidation of the two high schools. It was that year when Mr. D'Aries was switched from being a guidance counselor back to the position of social studies teacher. Although this change was brought about because of the seniority of the other counselors, he believed this to be an injustice. He was pleased to find much of the faculty agreed with, and supported him. As a result, Mr. D'Aries returned to the guidance department, starting the 1985-86 school year, and found he was eagerly accepted by everyone.

MRS. MARY PACIFICO

Little did Theresa De Gange know as a high school senior in Mr. Tylus' English 4 class that she'd be in West Orange H.S. 30 years after graduation. That's exactly what happened though, and those of us who have been helped by her are thankful that she made the career choice she did in 1956. While her job as a guidance office secretary has always been a tedious one, it has been a career she would begin again if given the chance.

When she first began, Mrs. De Gange performed many time consuming tasks which required total accuracy. All students' grades had to be checked manually against teachers' roll books. Today this information is stored in a computer along with factors which relate to scheduling. The advent of the computer was welcomed by the secretaries, but it didn't make a dent in the overwhelming workload they faced which resulted from the increased student population and the diversity of their needs. "Today everyone needs a transcript for some reason or other", remarked Mrs. De Gange. There is a non-stop call for transcripts for seniors and transcripts for former students who are transferring from one college to another. Each student transcript must be 100% accurate especially with regard to rank in class and SAT scores. Additionally, the secretaries must type recommendations from counselors onto each document.

While preparing transcripts occupied much of Mrs. De Gange's time, it was by no means her only duty. She assisted students with applying for working papers and filling out college and job applications. "I wish I had more time to help students," she lamented. "Today's students expect more from the guidance office. They expect us to meet their deadlines; they have no idea of the volume of work we face. I really wish we could do more," she continued. "I miss the one-to-one interaction I once had with students. I don't have the opportunity to just sit down and help them individually. We just try to do the best we can." She believed that the especially close relationship the secretaries shared with each other was the biggest factor in their ability to provide vital services to the school community.

When one considers the total picture of the services supplied by the guidance secretaries and the other secretaries, it becomes apparent that these vital jobs are often overlooked. Mrs. De Gange felt that "our reward comes when we see that we have been able to help even one student." For her, the best part of the job is seeing students who graduated several years ago, who may have struggled their way through high school, who have gone on to make something of themselves.

Despite the pressure of the workload Mrs. De Gange had positive feelings for the class of 1986. A year after consolidation, things had settled down to a point where she and the other secretaries were able to get to know the members of our class better than those of the previous year. "We're here to help the kids; that's why I'm still here after all these years," she concluded. It was lucky for us, in 1986 that she was.

Student Services

From band-aids to ace bandages, headaches to sprains, the school nurse, Mrs. Joan Picini was always there with an empathetic smile and a lending hand. After providing medical assistance to thirteen classes, the nurse witnessed a variety of personalities and combinations of these personalities. In reference to our class she commented, "I consider the class of '86 to be unique because it was the middle child." Her comment reflects the attitude that last year's seniors did not have the time to form combinations, while the incoming sophomores naturally combined because they were new to the high school scene. However, the class of '86 had the time to combine, and used its diverse qualities to form a unique "middle" class.

Anxious to be involved with the students on a non-medical level, Nurse Picini was the Junior Class Advisor from 1975-1977. During this time she reinstated the Junior Class dance. She had also been the Health Careers Club Advisor for thirteen years, encouraging students to go into health professions.

On a more personal level, Nurse Picini feels that there is more to a troublesome teenager than what appears from the outside. She realizes that they have their problems, but deep down they think and feel the same as everyone else. "I enjoy working with high school students. My only wish is that I could spend more time to listen to them."

Career Education

"Teaching is something which goes beyond the classroom," expressed Mr. William Lutkins. "Teaching involves being a part of the whole school environment."

Mr. Lutkins has accomplished that. He involved himself in school both academically and in the extracurricular areas. For the past eighteen years he taught accounting and business law at West Orange High School. During this time he also played an important part in school sports program as an assistant football coach and head wrestling coach.

There were many things which stood out in Mr. Lutkins' mind as being important in his career as a teacher. He enjoyed seeing students who came back to visit as they progressed in their own careers. He was a part of the realization of their goals and saw them as they approached these goals.

There were things which stood out in his mind about his coaching. He remembers the excitement of the wrestling team making it to the finals in Princeton. Although West Orange did not win, the importance was in the fact that "we were there as a team".

As Mr. Lutkins thought about his classes and his teams he saw the diversity in his students and his athletes. He saw the beginnings of unity among these different people, but felt that complete unity was something which we had to strive for. We all get along for the most part," he said. "The football player has to respect the soccer player and the soccer player has to respect the band member."

Through Mr. Lutkins' efforts we gathered a sense of the diverse human being he really was to us. We saw him through his knowledge of business and his knowledge of sports strategies. These qualities which he possessed were what made him part of our experience as the class of '86.

extracurricular activities. "It is important for a teacher to know students in different facets; if a student has the same interests as his or her teacher there develops a respect other than teacher-student respect. It then transforms into respect for each other as human beings."

Mr. Jordan, one of the art teachers at West Orange High School, has been in the West Orange school system for 19 years. He started out in Roosevelt Junior High where he was the class-book advisor for eight years and also advised the art club.

In 1981 Mr. Jordan was transferred to West Orange High School at the Northfield Avenue site, where he continued to teach art and also began to teach advertising. After the consolidation, Mr. Jordan also began teaching Humanities. Aside from all the various classes Mr. Jordan was involved in, he was also the advisor to the Service Club. The Service Club is an extracurricular activity in which students put their effort into helping the surrounding neighborhoods and communities by following through with different services.

Mr. Jordan believed that it was important for teachers and students to become involved in

Mr. Jordan's most memorable interaction with the class of '86 was watching his students mature in the past two to four years. "You develop bonds between each other which is the most important part of teaching." Seeing his students every day for four years, he hoped that they had learned something from his teaching. "You hope you give part of your knowledge to them when they graduate, not just as a teacher, but as a person also."

Foreign Language

"By teaching French at W.O.H.S., I am attempting to add cultural diversity to my students," said Mrs. Marianna Marchese, a very enthusiastic French teacher. "My teaching career has changed in many ways during the past few years." She had previously taught at the junior high but after the schools combined, Mrs. Marchese came to the high school. She taught French 2 and 3 and served as the advisor to the French Club. Many of the students whom Mrs. Marchese had taught were seniors this year. "I'm glad I had the opportunity to meet such a great group of students," she said. As a nominee for outstanding educator of the year '84-'85, Mrs. Marchese was recognized as a hard-working teacher who had the students interested in French and was regarded highly by them. "One of my objectives is to immerse my students in not only the French language but the culture of France," commented Mrs. Marchese.

To us, Mrs. Marchese was known as a French teacher, but she was also a very active lady outside of school. She participated actively in many sports, such as jogging, tennis, cross-country skiing, and aerobic dancing. On Sundays, Mrs. Marchese was a C.C.D. teacher at St. Joseph's Church in West Orange. There, she related a different topic to her students. All of these activities kept Mrs. Marchese busy with little spare time.

Mrs. Marchese gave extra help, support, conversation, and direction to all of her students. Her pupil relationships extended beyond the usual bounds. "I have a personal commitment to learning, teaching, and the interrelationships between students and their study of French."

GEORGE DEL MONTE gives his drama class a few pointers.

MICHAEL FEULA

KATHLEEN FLYNN KAY

Mr. Del Monte's love for West Orange High School started, co-incidentally, on Valentines day, 1969. On that day he began teaching. In the seventeen years that he's been at West Orange, he's advised the Broadcast Club, a group responsible for a morning radio show; he also sponsored trips to London and produced school productions. He was once an assistant football coach in charge of the J.V. team. It was the last time they played Columbia High School in 1971 that Mr. Del Monte became head soccer coach and held the position until the merge of high schools in 1984.

For Mr. Del Monte, the diversity of infinite combinations is most always seen and enjoyed in the production of our school plays and musicals. "Nowhere in school is diversity more evident." He claims, "The welding of personalities, intellects, emotions, and desires into a cohesive unit with a common goal is a fascinating process to watch."

When Mr. Del Monte was asked what the most memorable incidents were in a 26 year teaching career, two stood out. The first dealt with the class of 1986. "I have directed and coached many of them since they were in the 6th grade both in soccer and in school musicals and now I'm watching them as mature, responsible seniors making career decisions," he stated. "The second incident, though memorable, is not pleasant. Again it involves the class of '86. When West Orange merged with Mountain, the class of '86 was the "lost" class. Everyone touted '85 as the first graduating class; everyone spoke of '87 as the first unified class. Meanwhile '86 moved forward anonymously. How this class survived I'll never know. They have gone from the order, clarity and logic of the old high school to the architectural wasteland euphemistically called, "The Pleasant Valley Campus"; they have gone from an open lunch to closed lunch; they have experienced discipline and seen it eroded, they have known "a touch of class" and they have lost it. Perhaps the reason they've survived is because they have courage, determination, and hope. What happens to them remains to be seen."

Cobblestone, Pioneer, and Yearbook were the literary works that reflected the diverse talents of the 1986 graduating class. Although the students provided most of the work for the school's publications, they depended on their advisors to pull it all together. Dr. Legow, Mr. Ehrlich, and Mr. McCarthy used their experiences to help students publish memorable high school literature that would have to last a lifetime. The three advisors had the chance to work closely with many of us. Their diverse backgrounds and interests provided them with the opportunity to see our class in infinite combinations.

Dr. Legow taught a combination of English and History since 1969. Dr. Legow seemed impressed by the respect, unity and cooperation our class showed each other. "Proof of that respect (infinite diversity) was our high school where students cooperated with each other after a very difficult transition period." She also felt our class had indicated a "willingness" for each of us to be unique, but at the same time always be bonded as the class of 1986.

Mr. Ehrlich, another English teacher, was the advisor of the W.O.H.S. newspaper, the Pioneer. Mr. Ehrlich's most memorable experience was while attending the Annual Journalism Convention for student journalists at Columbia University. There, the name of the newspaper he advised, was posted under the medalist category. There were only two junior high newspapers honored that year in the nation.

Mr. Ehrlich feels the teachers direct activities and students generally sit still and follow directions. The process of the newspaper expands that space. No one sits still. Everybody gives directions. "The students and I get a chance to work cooperatively on a project that we all consider vital."

Mr. McCarthy advised our yearbook. Mr. McCarthy has been in the system for 15 years and has been an active participant in student council, J.V. soccer, J.V. baseball, and J.V. basketball. The most memorable experience of our class for Mr. McCarthy was at one of the first staff meetings of this year's staff. "In contrast to all the negative feelings I encountered last year from the general school population I was refreshed by the positive nature of the staff."

Who in this class could have honestly said that they had no idea who Mr. Prendergast was? How could anyone not recognize the man who acted as the advisor of all Senior Class activities, the man who formed the Computer Club, and the man who advised the Ski Club, the Spirit Nights, and the publication of the Senior Class News Letter? Any senior who showed any interest in our senior class would have undoubtedly known Mr. Prendergast, or "Prendo", as he was affectionately called.

Mr. Prendergast believed the class of 1986 to be a "together class, with lots of spirit." If so, he represented the best of the class of 1986. Every other Monday night, Prendo was seen mingling with the students who offered to paint at Spirit Night. Often, he'd be seen walking through the halls in his X-tra Large Senior shirt. In whatever way he was able to assist or guide the senior class, he was willing to help. "They're a bunch of great kids and I enjoyed working with them to make this year more exciting and fun for all of us."

As expected, Mr. Prendergast is very active and athletic in his spare time. He enjoys body building, weightlifting, running and skiing.

Mr. Prendergast has been teaching math and computer courses at West Orange High School for 19 years. He received his masters degree in mathematics from New Jersey Institute of Technology. He also attended Fairleigh Dickinson University.

As Mr. Prendergast reflected on his year with the class of 1986, he felt that his most memorable experiences were playing air guitar at Spirit Night, dressing up as a West Orange High School cheerleader, and making the seating arrangements for the Senior Prom. "The most important aspect of working with this class, however, was being able to meet so many different types of seniors and being able to work cooperatively to accomplish the things that were needed or desired to be accomplished."

"West Orange: State Champions:" This Star Ledger headline for the past two girls' tennis seasons was the most rewarding experience of coach Laura Sherman's eighteen years at West Orange High School.

"Sherm," as she was affectionately called by her students, was a veteran at West Orange High School, and a tough, spunky grandmother of two.

Sherm coached volleyball, bowling and of course, her pride and joy, the famed girls' tennis team. The team helped her earn the title, "the winningest coach of West Orange High School." In both the 1984 and 1985 seasons, the team placed first in the Northern Hills Conference and "took it all" in the public school state finals.

This 1985 season, the girls won the Essex County Coaches Tournament for the first time, and were the first team to win the new Steve Diamond's Girls' Showdown Tournament. The team and its coach were honored with jackets from the school Booster Club, and with commendations from the town of West Orange and Mayor Spina.

"A West Orange team has never come this far," said Ms. Sherman. "I'm proud to be the one on their side through it all."

As far as her gym classes are concerned, Sherman enjoyed being the substitute in an unevenly manned volleyball game, and chasing after runaway ping-pong balls. While in the gym she regularly taught tennis, recreational activities, and volleyball.

Sherman noticed a change in students' attitudes since she began teaching in 1967. The students, she felt, are more carefree than they had been and much more opinionated.

Observing the class of 1986, she stated, "Some students were spirited, some were not; together, they made each day exciting." Sherm added, "If we had all Casper Milquetoasts, it would be boring as heck!"

Science

It's hard to remember a moment when Michael Lawrence wasn't busy; there was usually a group of puzzled but entertained students hovering about his desk. "ML" began teaching in West Orange in 1974 after he graduated from NJIT and received masters degrees in Math and Physics, from the University of Florida and Rutgers, respectively.

Mr. Lawrence commuted to WOHS daily from his apartment in New York City. "Living in New York," he said, "is conducive to realizing your creative side; you have access to so many different cultural and artistic outlets." Not one to ignore available resources, ML practiced what he preached. He incorporated his knowledge of physics with his musical interest and talent (he played electric guitar and liked both New Wave and Classical Music). This unlikely combination manifested in ML's collaboration on a performance piece in which the principles of physics were used as metaphors for everyday social situations. The piece incorporated music, drama, and dance. About his work, Mr. Lawrence said, "I think it's important that you produce, rather than consume — in other words, make a T.V. show, don't watch one." In addition to his musical talent, ML was a longtime fan of old movies and independent films, and also an avid dancer. His immediate goal, he said, was to become the world's best Jitterbugger.

"My students keep me young," said Lawrence. "There is a youthful energy, if you get into it." He emphasized the importance of focusing on what is good about high school students. This, according to Mr. Lawrence, can make teaching a very stimulating experience.

Common interests are important links to good rapport between teacher and student. Music more than anything else, ML believed helped make a bond between him and his students. "Which says more," ML pointed out, "about the power of music as a generation liason than anything else." On that note he concluded. Mr. Lawrence had to rush to a Jitterbug lesson.

Social Studies

Decked out in his World War I helmet and brandishing his big stick, Mr. Carlson often prepared to go "over the top."

A member of the social studies department, he spent over twenty-five years as a teacher, all of them in West Orange. During his time here he has taught both Advanced Placement and U.S. History I and II, as well as The Law, and American Political Behavior.

Mr. Carlson's greatest interaction with the student body was with the A.P.B. classes. He attempted to instill in the students the feeling that they could accomplish anything. "Ninety-nine percent of the students have the potential to become successful and productive, and I believe most will," Carlson reflected.

Anyone who had ever attended a class taught by Mr. Carlson knew that his teaching style was unique. "Students are a pleasure to teach, that's why I enjoy teaching. Most students have a good sense of humor and this makes teaching fun."

In addition to his academic responsibilities, Mr. Carlson advised the mock trial team. In the past he had also been involved with the Lawyers Club, Close-up Club and Voice of Democracy competitions.

The combination of the two high schools was tough at first for Mr. Carlson because he was used to the close-knit atmosphere of a small school. "I look at our school today as a bag of marbles, everyone is different but they blend together well. While there are cliques, people still unite as one whole."

Outside of school Mr. Carlson relaxed with his family. He also worked as a realtor year round and felt his other job gave him a greater understanding of the problems that students would face when their education was over. For all his years at W.O.H.S. Mr. Carlson was a dedicated teacher and a true friend to the students of West Orange High School.

Special Education

"The more diverse a person is the more capable he is of handling the complexities of the world." Mr. Comune has shown this diversity through the activities he has been involved with during his eighteen years in the school. Having coached football, wrestling and baseball, in addition to teaching the EMR students, Mr. Comune has been involved with a diversity of students.

A history major at Bloomfield College, Mr. Comune first became involved with special education when he came off of active duty in the army signal corps. He taught at Montgomery School in Newark while working toward a masters degree in Special Education at Seton Hall University. He taught in Midland Park for six years before coming to West Orange. During his days at Midland Park he received several awards for his coaching.

The Special Ed department has increased its offerings considerably during Mr. Comune's tenure.

Their programs have grown and developed tremendously over the past years. The Special Ed Enterprise, which was supervised solely by Mr. Comune, has grown from the students just selling Christmas cards to running a Christmas store. Mr. Comune also helped the students to make the items which they sold in their Christmas store. He stated that the program "enables his students to learn about manufacturing and retailing." The majority of his students have gained meaningful employment upon graduation. He attributed this to the fact that students are exposed to the realities of world of work during their days at W.O.H.S.

One of the special moments for the EMR students is the presentation of an award to the outstanding special education student at the June Awards assembly. Mr. Comune felt that the class of 1986 was especially supportive of his students.

Talk about diversity! Mr. Comune had perhaps the most striking contrast in jobs he held during our high school days. On week days he was a supportive, patient special education instructor. On weekends he was a stern, authoritative corrections officer at the county incarceration annex in Caldwell.

I have to say school has brought me good friends whom I love with all my heart. Mom and Miss Hanzl have shown me that dreams can come true. Some kids don't realize that school is where you learn to be successful if you try.

The advertising section of the yearbook was indispensable to its overall success. The business staff therefore wishes to thank the students, parents, and all of our patrons, both in and out of the business community, for their support of the 1986 yearbook.

The reader of this book will find many different ads in the pages that follow. Not only was the student body of our school diverse, but the businesses that supported it were varied as well. This can be seen in the variety of ads that were purchased by the many different individuals and groups. More importantly than this diversity, however, was the fact that the entirety of our community was able to come together in an unselfish display of solidarity for our school by buying advertisements in the yearbook. This is a good example of how our theme, INFINITE DIVERSITY IN INFINITE COMBINATIONS, really describes the whole West Orange High School community.

Cycles,
Changing you, but preserving the best.
From clinging hands to reassuring grasp,
From questioning eyes to sure voices,
Eager to be on your way.
This is what we hoped for you
All those growing years.
But permit us one lingering look back
As we urge you on.
A moment's pause, to remember what you were Before you become what you are to be.
Then, go, conquer your worlds
And live your dreams.
You are our pride and our hope.

Best of luck to the class of 1986.

THANK YOU TO ALL OF OUR PARENTS FOR PUTTING UP WITH US THROUGH OUR HIGH SCHOOL YEARS, AND MAKING US WHAT WE ARE TODAY, WE LOVE YOU ALL!

THROUGH THICK AND THIN; FOUR FRIENDS FOREVER

This is how our story goes . . . Sit back, read on, and let your imagination run wild, cause we know we did!

In 1968, we entered this world and for some people it would never be the same. Thanks to our parents, we became the Best of Friends. At the age of 14, we decided that we'd rather "laugh with the sinner's than cry with the saints, cause sinner's are much more fun!"

In our first year at high school we were split up into two different schools but that didn't stop us from "Breaking the Law, Breaking the Law"

When we told our parents, "We were sleeping at Carla's house," Some of the strangest things seemed to happen . . . Battle of the bands, Renegade, say lips, and the forests will echo with laughter, does anyone remember laughter? On our own other things happened . . . Debbie we like the way the line runs up the back of your stockings, C&C, Patrice and Sue's favorite quote, "We'll start our diet on Monday", Uncle Bill, Can we please have something to drink with dinner?, "It's only teenage wasteland", Stink, Rat Pac, Archie Bunker, "So many men, So little time", "Round, Round, get around, we get around", Thumb goes up a car drives by the four of us are hitchin a ride, Sleeping at Jimmy Maresco's, temple 2-1, Deb — tonight's the night, Ricciardi's Ski-Trip 84; only 3 of us made it, 2 left happy, 1 will always regret going.

The one thing we'll remember the most from our 10th grade year our van accident with Jimmy McDonald, running from the cops up Rt. 3, and having McMouth rat us out.

Then came our favorite time of the year, "Those WILD summer nights." So you're spitting up blood, well you're going home tomorrow, "10", Fat, sun-burned, red-hair, Born in the U.S.A. Al — My summer love, Pork & Dirt — D.P. & P.R., yea — you didn't go with them, Trucker's there's no one like you, Pete — Tonight I'm yours, Don't hurt me — Sue, Get On, Mousie, O.B. man, Himalaya man, When you catch a wave & you want a good ride you ask it, "Hey bud let's party", T.K. & T.V. — We never went down the shore with you, Where's the disc camera?, "Under the Boardwalk."

When the schools combined we hung out everywhere possible . . . Bleachers, Caldors, Executive Drive, O'Conner Park, Colgate Beach, the Wall, Eagle Rock, Seaside, Ocean Beach, Southday, and Eagle Rock Diner.

We thought we knew what "Fun" was until we entered our Junior year. We went to a lot of parties but one we will never forget . . . Richie Kurdeks — Sorry A.R. for burning your pants, Sue's spitting up blood, Patrice's sneezing attack, Then the cops came, someone said the easiest way out was the bathroom, we took their advice. We ended up; ripping the shower curtain, pulling down the screen, getting stuck in the window, (Cause Sue couldn't fit). Our attempt failed so our next choice was to use the door . . . We hopped the fence — By the way, Who ripped whose pants?, Passing out in Friendly's, Sue spit gum in P.R.'s hair, Brawling at the center, P.R. getting kicked out of Trans Am, Then we went to Jackie Blume's (which is a story in itself, one hint, Lysol)

Four other parties we will never forget — all of our great sweet sixteens. Our biggest goal for our Junior year; Path Train — In the Air — by the way, none of us succeeded. This year was filled with a lot more wild times, read on — Ricciardi's Ski Trip 85, Where are the black sweatpants? M.C.'s wearing them again, St. Patrick's Day, who took Alma?, We left Stephon in the bathroom, Edna 4:39 Easter Morning — we know where you were (Kiss and Tell), Dan the Man with the Trans Am been to P.A. lately?, To an ex-friend, you've got a Big Mouth, a Big Mouth,

Once again our favorite time of the year, but this time we were more experienced . . . We got off to a bad start June 24th, "She's a little Run Away" Debbie, How close did it come? "It came this close!", Uncle Bill . . . Where's the fire? . . . On "The Roof", Partying on the train. Norton, Hollywood — "I believe the children are the future", Next stop Bayhead. Donna, Here today, gone tomorrow.

We are all so sorry for totalling your '85 Cutlass Supreme, "Won't you let me take you on a sea cruz", Keep it deep, where's the jeep, water's deep, let's eat. Buddy system, Bermuda Triangle, Play at your own risk, Golly Trolly, You got the shore attitude, Double-bi, Dunking machine, skinny dipping, Viking, 3-1, Rich MDW, Paul . . . D.P. & P.R. meet you on the beach . . . Later, I'm 80 miles away, 35 for all 4, Heather, Kim, Ciara, Nikki, "Girls just wanna have fun", "Put me in a wheelchair & get me to the shore — I want to be sedated", Edna, I tried but it didn't work, Club Farrogat, another one Edna,

After summer ended we were anxiously awaiting to return to school as "Seniors." It didn't start out too good considering we were fighting with at least half the senior class. But that didn't stop us from having fun . . . Party cancelled, try & find us, Billy Idol — September 30th We will never forget & never forgive, Party at Patrice's — R.C., M.C., J.Y., & T.K. — Object of my Desire, Patrice — do you have any vaseline?, Sue — whose brother are you going with now? What's life?, "Keep away from Runaround Sue!", Tennis anyone — Patrice, So how does it feel to be used, abused, and stepped on all your life?

As time went on we patched things up with most people. And the list goes on . . . C.A. — Is she really worth all the trouble? — E.H., P.R. & D.P., Mr. Potato Head — Debbie loves you, Now that's a fire, Oh no; Sue's overtired, Who hasn't drank in 6 months?, My Baby — where's the baby?, Debbie's car accidents, Patrice — she's going down, Big-Head, Phil — He's Hot, Lady with a baby paging Dr. Beat, Zucchini, Biffy's mom can't do the wash, P.P. with M.B., & B.K., pooh bear, I'm like totally P.G. but like I don't care cause like I'm only like 17, A.D. & D.G. — Did you really see the cops at Mt. Pleasant School?, Lies, Cruzin in the Monte, S.J. — Best Of Friends share everything, Let's analyze the situation, — V.N., C.A., T.K. — D.L., P.M., & L.M. nobody ever wins . . . , Senior cut day D.G.'s house Sue Breaking, Is anyone home?, New Years — Bringing in 86' with a bang — too bad it wasn't loud, Patrice finally gets her license, Class Couple, Deb — the dancer, The park's rockin, Edna's 18th B-day; T.B. & The Hall, Bahama Wama Party at Sue's, 6:15, Got some scoop.

This is where our page ends but our story will go on Forever . . . There are so many more memories forgotten & so many more left to come. To the class of 1986 who made most of these memories possible — Best of Luck in all you do. We want to especially thank the following people because they played a major part in the fun, S.M., T.P., T.D., S.M., J.G., A.D., C.B., D.M., E.S., V.N., M.W., D.W., D.G., & A.H.

United we stand, never shall we fall, united we stand one and all.

For as long as we live and as high as we fly for the smiles we give and the tears we cry, for all we touch and all we see, is all our lives will ever be . . .

All for one and one for all, we live, we give and we have a ball.

To Our Parents; What you didn't know didn't hurt you so why bother trying to figure us out now? We end this all with a Hug, a Kiss, and a whole lot of Love because you are the best!! We LOVE you all.

Dear Ora,

Well we've finally made it, Graduation — class of 1986! This year, 1986, means alot of things. It's the year you got your license, the year we graduated from High School. The year we got off to college, and the start of something really new. This year really changes our lives, for now our lives take on a different direction — college! The word means more than just a higher level of education. It means dorming, making new friends, the start of being on your own . . . the beginning of a career. It's the year we've been waiting for.

This year marks a change, but I know that even though there won't be those Saturday tales every week, that we will be just as close as we are now, if not closer.

I tried not to make this letter so serious, but you know me, I'm the serious type. I just want you to know that being your friend — your best friend, means a lot to me. I'll always be here for you, you know that.

Congratulations ORA!

From now on its bigger and better things for both of us.

Love, Beverly.

CYNDI & LAURA — OUR STORY:

"Don't Stand So Close" — 7th gr., that's where it all began. Then . . . Rescued! KD's parties & Laura begins her series of sleepovers: including the adventures of X-mas caroling & kicking doors, The "Sun," The Lone . . . , Michelle's roof, & Hank's at 3:00.

And summers were always a special time, starting w/Summer of '82: RK & many surprises under the rocks. Nights at Essex Green; meeting Brant & Tony; Cyn — don't ever say you're cold again! Water fights at Swensen's. Next came 9th grade, when the fun really began. Meeting MR, GW, & NN (disease) . . . "I can build a race engine, too!" THE Corner in Span. 2 & "Penny Girl" — choking on pennies. Backyards: Row, row, row & Kiss "Today" Goodbye. The most memorable date: 4/1/83 & what a story! Roller rink . . . Let's go tonite. I wanna see BT. LZ, now aren't you glad we went? Push, stumble, "Uh . . . hi!" Talk about embarrassing moments — I still gotta get ya for that. But wait, it worked . . . for better or for worse. Psyche — red camaro! Renny, asleep in the car. Brothers? Take a hint: LZ — cars & CS — no phone #'s. Lies: SS, LZ . . . maybe JS? For once, not CS. How old are you anyway? Spending much time at the library, 11:00? ED's parties: Fanny & locked doors, more embarrassing moments. "Stop Right There"; back seat w/second glances. Joe, did Steven come? Revenge, & then reunited . . . but for how long? Summer of '83: The most memorable yet! Starting off w/Virginia & the 1st of the curling irons . . . Busch Gardens & running into "my cousins", Day trips to Belmar . . . Dangerous Daryl — it's not safe in the water! Ew, look how Harry! "So Many Men . . ." & Hound Season: Nights & Spotlights at Redwood (The Beach); & overplaying Stevie Nicks & Meatloaf. 10th gr.: Same classes — Golddust Twins. Climbing the wall & lunch at Laura's. RF, TH, 2nd per. chem. & food . . . always. S.A.L.E.: spikes & splits; taxi rides; Derby & sitting on PVW; Toto & the Witch; messed up hair & still more embarrassment (RB). Sweet 16's & "Let's return it!" Summer of '84: Starting w/Mem. Day Wknd — Plenty of stuffed animals. Dodging KD & war btwn. nations. Friends return? The Cars Concert. More nites at the Green. Preparing for the Mountain. Goodbye Cowboys, we'll miss ya, Who? 11th gr.: The "new" school. More spotlights, this time at the Res. Many surprised looks. GN's parties: McD's & Polo; Thanksgiving Game & Cowboys reunite, & X-mas gifts (JS). Driving around. Apr. vacation: FLORIDA! — MTV, "Ya wanna know what?", Dave (neighbors), flashers, Boston's & locking Sara out. The end to a great vacation: playing jokes w/Penelope. LZ — 2 very long weeks. "So Many Boys . . ." Summer of '85: We can finally drive, up goes the age . . . again. Where's LZ working now? Down the shore, then back home? Getting sick & saying the wrong thing. Cyn's B-day & getting lost down the shore — Which way now? 12th gr.: SENIORS! What class do ya have now? Library Talks w/KE — Give me your leg! Bio. Trip — But how? Rotate? And, of course, all the fun we had writing this & the memories it brought back. We finally made it!

Summer of '86: The last summer; on to new beginnings, however, never forgetting all these special memories, HOW TIME FLIES!!! P.S. See ya at your wedding. Reception's at the rink!

it's a god-awful

And it all comes to an end for the boys.

That Was Then . . .

Cowboys: Jacki, Kim, Kelly, Donna, Andrea

Rams: Kathy, Amy, Missy, Laurie

September 5, 1984 was one of the worst days of our lives. Not only was it the first day of school after the summer, it was the first day of the consolidation of the two high schools, West Orange and Mountain into one West Orange High. It was like starting high school all over again. Having to meet new people and make new friends was not easy. Eventually we got to know each other over Memorial Day Weekend 85' — with the chocolate poparts, bologna, whose in what room? Doin' whatever, I'm going on a picnic . . . , stealing "his" shirt, riding in the cop car and the painful sunburns. Then we went to Missy's house to watch "A Nightmare on Elm Street". scream or laugh? pool parties. And at Donna's house singin' oldies, Chinese fire drills, quick lock the doors, Janis get out of the street, Eagle Rock, Eagle Rock, Eagle Rock Diner!!! McDonalds, "can we have a ride?" Even though we thought it wouldn't happen, it did and . . .

This Is Now . . .

Mountaineers: Jacki, Amy, Kim, Kathy, Kelly, Missy, Donna, Laurie, Andrea.

One night we were all at Kathy's house for the first of many times watching movies — everyone shoved in one room, A Christmas Story. "What do I look like?" Cookies, nose twitches, bleach blonde, (3:47), "It's not even in the fours yet." and spilling iced tea. One of our favorite projects was planning birthday parties — 11/22 American Fare, Wainsfield, "Don't eat the cheese." 12/13 — "But I don't want to go out!" 1/9 — The Office, 3 weeks late, "It hasn't even been 3 minutes!" Patience is a virtue! Betty Crocker, "water please", 3/14, 3/20, 4/3, 4/10, 4/13, 8/13 — who knows what's next?

When parents weren't home we really had FUN!!! (right Steve?) "Who am I?", one nickel and 2 dimes, stop the car! "What are they laughing at?", making fun of Kathy, plastic bag and breaking Laurie's nail. St. Elmos Fire, Pass-Out, Poker — Who stole Billy's chips? Sure you went to the movies Donna. Toasting marshmallows, we all roll over, snowball fight. Hi Meathead. BONZAI: Bagels and cartoons, hot chocolate around the fire, Who took my blanket? Truth, You take the spoon, I'll take the spatula, cheerleading. But there came a time when parents had to come home so we hit Eagle Rock Diner — "We'll just have water." singing, "Who has a quarter?" Three hour talk, french fries and gravy, "Do we have to pay minimum?" "There's more coming," syrup, Billy and Stephan, stop cheating.

Early one morning we dragged ourselves out of bed for the senior breakfast — but not early enough — right Justine? Cold food, sit here, bacon, coffee, "What, the game is cancelled?" Everyone back to Kathy's! Flashing Dave and Freddy, watching the parade, "Why are we here at 9:00 in the morning?" stuffed animals, "Same time next year!"

We all looked forward to Christmas vacation. — Billy and Steve, "Hot Dog", Frank, getting a ticket, a room full of boys, take out Eagle Rock Diner, mozerrella sticks (literally!) Kathy, Don't forget to lock the door!

The highlight of our vacation was New Year's Eve — truth, "Nice to come to your own party!" Piggin' out at 3:30 am, taking pictures, AS you're dead! "Who's sleeping where?" Mr. Brown's barn, "How are you getting home? — I live here!", parking in the middle of the street, Who's foot is that? smoking? When vacation was over we looked forward to lunch and gym where we could get together and talk — My Steve — not yours! gossiping, "What are you doing this weekend?" Mr. Jung, What's gym? cheating, "But that's not what I said!" classifieds, knitting, "You mean you actually change for gym?" Then hockey season began — "Brick this" "Get real Reeboks!" No one lives in Ramapo! the wave, leaving Jacki, ICING! face-off! Mr. Jung, what's gym? Narcs, Snoopy Sneakers, imaginary lines.

Although we spent lots of times goofing off we managed to get our work done — Pigs, Les Jeux Sont Faits quoi? "How do we spell that?" WOHS-TV uno dos, tres

. . . But we'll also never forget . . .

MDW 86 — 15 people in an 8 people house, 1 bathroom, limo's, nails on thursday, the Clique, Spiritnite, Football, the pep rally, "My ears are ringing." Dave Slick and Sly, Summer 83' The Fairfield guys "Amy, I think you owe me a favor." Holy hotness, Donna's horn, noise makers and confetti, paint fights, Jr. Prom, bowling backwards, Hippies, old people and us, How do we cut school? FRIENDS

A shoulder to cry on,
An ear to bend,
Money to borrow,
Clothes to lend.
Friday night movies,
Afternoon walks,
Being together,
Our "private" talks.
Mending our hearts,
Crying those tears,
Planning our futures,
Voicing our fears.
Our memories together,
May they never end,
Always together,
Forever FRIENDS!

Where has all the time gone, seems like yesterday when we became friends. It's been six years and maybe after high school we'll be roommates in college. We've met many people, some close, some not, but through all of this we could count on each other. We'll miss the high school and trips about, but we would like to remember it all. Well, it has arrived, no more closed lunches, no more strict study halls and no more hall passes, WE ARE GRADUATING! To think of all the changes we've gone through with the two high schools. Mountain Rams will always live in our hearts. Dave, we've gone a long way together. I hope the path never ends. John you have always been my friend and now that we are closer I hope that our friendship will keep growing. Good luck to every one and if you are ever in need or just want to say "Hi" call us and keep in touch.

Special thanks to Football 86, L.V., L.P., C.R., E.R., G.N., D.R., A.H., J.P., N.S., A.C., M.W., M.M., J.D., S.W. and all the others we might have left out.

We'll have some more of that!

St. Mary's	Won
Deerfield	Won
Andover	Won
Clifford Scott	Won
Harvard Prep	Won
Oxford Prep	Won

This year's yacht team came through again with another outstanding, unmarred record. Dominating their regular season races, West Orange swept the regionals and finally blew out Harvard Prep to win the National Title. Later that month, in London, West Orange bared its fangs in what has become an annual grudge match with Oxford Prep, taking an unprecedented third straight Trans-Atlantic Championship.

Dear Class of 1986,

Well, we managed to meet the final deadline. The after-school sessions of bagels and cream cheese, pizza, ice cream, Burger King, and oh yeah — pictures, layouts, and copy, have resulted in what we hope is the “quintessential yearbook.” These sessions augmented the yearbook class, offered this year for the first time, without which, the production of the book would have been infinitely more difficult.

This year's book represents a change in the trend of the previous years. In order to best present the theme of the book, “Infinite Diversity in Infinite Combinations,” we felt it necessary to utilize not only the pictorial image, but also the written word. As a result, it is not a book one can flip through in a single sitting. It is our hope that this combination of pictures and words has captured the essence of our years at West Orange High School.

We were fortunate to have been supported by a talented and enthusiastic staff, each of whom has contributed something significant to the book's production. Those staff members who took it upon themselves to do more than their share are especially appreciated. We would also like to thank the following people: Beim Photographers, for providing us with a place to put our nails; Mr. Roy Innocenti, for his invaluable expertise, suggestions, extra rulers, and movie reviews; Mr. Sebastian LaSapio, for loving layout; and most important; Mr. John McCarthy, for his constant support, understanding, and inspirational stories about his daughter, Erin.

Best wishes in the future.
