A year of firsts!

The class of 1987, the first full class of the new West Orange High School, demonstrated a level of unity, spirit, scholasticism, and talent that indeed set the standard for future classes to emulate. The year 1987 was the culmination of a conscious effort to put together a class whose accomplishments would go a long way toward unifying not only the school, but the community as well.

As sophomores, the class of 1987 was the only non-hybrid class in the school. Unlike the upperclassmen, they didn't have a separate high school experience. For this reason it didn't take long for the class to unite. Their strong showing at the first pep rally heralded the arrival of a new breed of student at the Conforti Avenue site. In their junior year, the spirit and camaraderie of the class was most evident in two special events, the Powder Puff Football game and the Junior Formal.

It all came together in their senior year. Four members of the class (Brian Reich, Jeff Gelb, Kevin Moore, and Meredith Goldsmith) were selected as National Merit Scholars; six students, (Kesinee Angkustiri, Laura Antonacos, Meredith Goldsmith, Carrie Jacobs, Mark Policarpio, and Karen Zivi) maintained a grade point average of 8.0 and were accordingly ranked number one. On the athletic scene, the girls tennis team was ranked #1 in the state. This marked the first time any athletic team from West Orange High School achieved such distinction.

There was a certain chemistry to the class of 1987, which was the product of three years together as a class. Everyone was waiting for their arrival in order to gauge the merits of the merger. A ten year master plan had reached its completion. The construction of a single, unified high school was finalized in a first class manner.

"GQ" readers would certainly be impressed by the Junior Formal attire of Jon Carle and Steven Starr.

Putting on a new face

1984 — "Students are reminded that they may not use the front hallway as construction workers will be working in the Library Media Center."

1985 — "Students are asked not to use the rear hallways as construction workers will be working on the auto-shop."

1986 — "Students are reminded that all physical education classes will meet in the auditorium instead of the gymnasium."

Add to the list a new home economics suite, additional industrial arts and science classrooms, and an elevator in just three years and one can get an idea of the scope of renovations which occurred over the three year career of the class of '87. Bricks, cement, and tractors were as prominent as textbooks, tests and teachers.

The overhaul of the building was directed by Mr. G. Lichtenstein, Assistant Superintendent of Schools and funded primarily by monies garnered from the sale of the Northfield Avenue site of West Orange High School to Seton Hall Prep. Additionally, the community was asked in December of 1985 to approve a transfer of $500,000 surplus from the Board of Education treasury. The total of $2.1 million was paid to Ingrassia Construction Company and several sub-contractors to complete the work.

The LMC, completed in 1984, was easily the most impressive facility in the school, and well worth any temporary inconvenience its construction had caused. The renovations in 1986 were more extensive, but again the finished products outweighed the hardships their necessity brought about.

More than any class before it, the class of 1987 had to endure the chaos of massive renovation. However, the building, like the class itself, was constructed in top flight fashion.

HIHO, HIHO, it's off to work we go.

Seniority

Our senior year at West Orange High School began with a big bang. At seven in the morning, most of the class gathered in the Essex Green parking lot. Balloons, streamers, and posters were displayed on every senior's car as we headed, single file, towards our first day of school. As we pulled into the parking lot, horns blared and people screamed. No one had to wait to see the cars lined up, spelling S-E-N-I-O-R-S, our presence was felt.

Starting from the first day of school, our senior spirit was overwhelming. Seniors united themselves through school activities in a way which had not previously been witnessed. The pep rally was a prime example of the bursting enthusiasm that we had for the upcoming year. We showered confetti throughout the stands as we cheered on our fellow classmates who ran onto the field. It was evident that a definite "senior attitude" had developed, and why shouldn't it have developed? We had much to be excited about.

Leadership was one of our strongest assets. Talented seniors paved the way. Our student council boasted two senior officers, Chris Monoki, President, and Mark Policarpio, Treasurer. Michael Urso displayed outstanding leadership qualities in both football and track. Michael Dawson exemplified supremacy in track during the fall, winter, and spring seasons. The backbone of the state champion girls tennis team was represented by four seniors — Cindy Greenberg, Michelle Davis, Liz Warnick, and Joanne Fernando. It was clear that the seniors were destined for a victorious year.

West Orange High School was unified at last. As we approached graduation day, we were not only excited, but sad that high school had come to an end. Our seniority, which had been exemplary, had finally run its course.

"Raise it to the sky!" instructs drum major Keesinee Angkustiri.

Only five more days until Jessica McManus takes her driving test.

"Up, up, and away," exhorts Bernhard Grunewald.

"Quiet on the set! . . . Take 87!" bellows Andrew Zilliox.

STUDENT LIFE

CAUTION: Wet Paint

Students Rock As Brushes Roll

It had become a habit. Every Wednesday evening at 7:30, seniors got together at the Degnan fieldhouse for the weekly Spirit Night. The unification of the class was easily recognized by the spirit and enthusiasm exhibited on these evenings.

Signs and posters were painted in smashing blue and white, advertising school functions and generating support for our athletic teams. Although we worked busily, Spirit Night sparked enthusiasm for a great deal more than school activities. Those evenings were relaxing and enjoyable. We danced, ate, drank, painted posters, and painted one another. In fact, there was not a night when Andrew Hooey didn't leave the fieldhouse without blue paint covering his body!

Spirit Night provided us with the opportunity to work productively with one another in a non-academic atmosphere. It was a social gathering, where the true spirit for West Orange High School was born.

"It's my turn to lead," insists Hayden Curtin to Jennifer Hoffman.

Are we having fun yet? Jason Solomon, Eileen McCann and Andy Nelson are wondering.
 "Let's go, W.O.!" cheers Mike McGuire. "Wait, I thought it was Let's go Mets?" responds Rich Allaway.

Mayapple Madness

Seniors Take To The Hill

On October 9, 1986, the weather forecast called for rain. Except the seniors at West Orange High School already knew that it would not rain. In fact, it was a warm, sunny day. This was the day of the senior picnic.

Students gathered on the slopes of Mayapple Hill for food, fun, and excitement. A pie eating contest revealed the fastest pie eater, not to mention the messiest! Volleyball games and hacky sacks were a constant sight on the fields. Many seniors participated in traditional races, with wheelbarrel races, potato sack races, and chicken races among the favorites. Football, however, dominated the fields most of the day. When the class, joined by the senior members of the football team, played football, one person screamed, "Look out Chicago Bears, here comes West Orange!"

Each student was an individual, yet part of the whole construction of the senior class. Different groups of people interacted with others and many made new friends. The spirit of the class of 1987 prevailed. The senior picnic was the first real activity of an enthusiastic class which foreshadowed a great year!

"I'm not finished yet," claims Mike Verlangieri as Brian O'Hare surveys the aftermath of the pie eating contest.

"Who's that monkey on my back?" Krissy Overgaard claims she "carried" Debbie Goldman throughout high school.

A smile is a great gift. Wendy Kaplan and Elaine Perlov are generous contributors.

Stacey Werner fills Danielle Gaudiosi, Lisa Zanfini, and Gina Colaluca in on this week's serious gossip.

"Ok Jon, we've seen enough of the form already. Now throw the ball," urges Victor Jucino.

Half-Time Entertainment

Maintaining the melody is one of the keys to finishing high in the Westfield Band Festival. Kim Cook knows that.

Full-time competition

The West Orange High School marching band not only entertained during football games, but made its mark in competitions. Although these competitions seemed sparse in comparison to the vast number of football games, these competitions demanded much time.

Lengthy practices occurred every day at the beginning of the year and then decreased to three times a week. This rigorous schedule helped prepare for half-time routines as well as competitions, but all the work did pay off. The band came in second place at a competition in Westfield, and placed once again in Linden. This finish earned the band an invitation to the Eastern Marching Band Association's annual competition where the band proved its outstanding ability by placing 15th in a competition that encompassed the crème de la crème of those bands on the east coast.

These competitions were tough and differed from the usual half-time routine. No longer was the band being judged by high school students and parents. The judges had sophisticated musical taste, as well as high expectations for the band. Musical ability, marching, and band front were all graded separately. As much fun as half-time shows proved to be, the overall feeling about competitions differed. Drum major Kesinee Angkustiri said, "Competitions have been a large part in the excitement involved with the marching band. They have helped me grow emotionally, intellectually, and musically."

“That’s My Kid!”

“That’s My Kid!” Sound familiar? It should, it was usually heard at a West Orange High School football game by the parents — the best fan club anyone could find for football, tennis, band and cheerleaders. They played an important role in all the student sport activities. To recognize these parents, West Orange High held the special event, Parent’s Day, before the Wayne Valley football game on November 15, 1986. On this particular day, the parents stepped into the spotlight, and the kids were behind them all the way. Now the students could proudly say, “these are my parents!” Before the actual football game began, all the moms, dads, and guardians received flowers to wear and “I Love the Class of ’87” bumper stickers and buttons to promote school spirit. Parents were announced one by one and then escorted by their children through the goal posts and then onto the West Orange football field. There were over 100 proud parents on the field being presented to the school. Although victorious this game, the support of the parents meant more than the team’s success. This day was very special for parents, students, teachers, and fans, and left an unforgettable mark in the minds of everyone. As Mike Urso expressed, “I was proud to have my parents honored at the game. It made the game much more special than any of the others.”

“Smile, mom,” says Michelle Rothbart.

A Senior I Am.

Tradition, and its unifying force, was the one thing that the newly consolidated West Orange High School lacked. After a three year period and the growth of the first full-fledged Mountaineer class, many traditions were brought into being. Thanksgiving is, by far, one of the most tradition-filled days of the high school year. Aside from the last football game of the season, which West Orange won 13-9, two other traditions prevailed.

Bright and early on Thanksgiving morning over one hundred and sixty Seniors gathered at the Livingston Holiday Inn for an "all you can eat" breakfast. This event was probably the only time Seniors willingly woke up early in the morning for a school function. This willingness to sacrifice sleep in order to spend time with friends and classmates has kept the tradition alive. After eating, socializing, tearing apart the blue and white decorations, and celebrating Thanksgiving morning together, Seniors moved to the football field to watch their final game.

During half-time of the final football game, Lauren Aker was selected Homecoming Queen. She and her court (Suzi DeAngelis, Eileen McCann, and Polly Margules) were saluted by the band, given roses, and photographed in order to capture the moment. The queen and her court then took their traditional ride around the field in first class style. To finish the traditional Thanksgiving festivities, the queen and her court returned to the stands to help cheer the West Orange Mountaineers on to victory.

"Hurry up, I'm hungry!" says Naomi Rippon to Maureen Mooney and Sherry Panucci.

Students Speak On The Responsibility Of Honor Students.

National Honor Society Induction.

On December 4, the National Honor Society inducted 53 West Orange High School students into its ranks. When these students were originally informed of their acceptance, they chose four student speakers to represent them at their induction. These four students spoke about topics they felt were pertinent to them and other college bound students.

Responsibility, and one's obligation to others as well as one's self, was stressed by all of the speakers. Kesinee Angkustiri spoke about a student's responsibility to learn as much as possible. She shared her fear of students "becoming mercenary 'grade-grubbers' instead of appreciating and understanding the knowledge presented to them." Her feelings were that only through learning can one achieve happiness and success.

Brian Reich took a different view of the responsibility which an honor student must take on. He presented the idea that honor students are the leaders of the future and have a responsibility and an obligation to the community. Because of this obligation, honor students "must be aware of the issues and remain well informed in order to draw reasonable conclusions and come to decisions that are in the public interest." Brian felt that, "... taken together all such people can, and do, have a major role in determining what course a Democracy takes."

The speakers stated that motivation was also a key characteristic of an honor student. Mark Policarpio felt that the initial motivating force is one's parents, but at some point the student takes over. The student's motivation comes from "The wish to fulfill one's self and to attain success. Through hard work a student feels a sense of accomplishment and achievement which motivates him to continue to work up to a high standard."

The concept of motivation leading to self-satisfaction was supported by Archana Hira. She felt that "honor students did not fall into 'Senior Slump' because only through challenges are they satisfied." One statement made by Archana sums up an honor student in simple terms, "They work to their potential and only when they have done this are they completely satisfied."

While describing the qualities of an Honor Student, President Meredith Goldsmith displays her own shining personality.

Guest speaker, John McCarthy, displays his skill as a speaker as he addresses the inductees on the merits of the teaching profession.

Advisor, Dr. Ester Bearg praises the efforts of the new inductees.

Layout editor, Stephanie Lane, moves the yearbook into the twentieth century.

HEADLINES, DEADLINES . . .

And What A Class It Was.

Under piles and piles of pictures, hundreds of possible layouts and a tremendous gathering of information, waiting to put into written copy came "The First Class" 1986 yearbook. Although the search of usable material was a big task, the editorial staff met each deadline well in advance. Overall, it was a fast-moving process which started in early September and was completed in late March.

A major factor in the completion of the yearbook was the Journalism IV yearbook classes. Within this group of students there were jobs assigned and specific responsibilities distributed. Laura Antonocas (co-editor) reflected on this system in the following manner, "Although putting the yearbook together was difficult and time-consuming, it was a worthwhile experience because I had the opportunity to interact with an excellent staff that was composed of various personalities."

The 1986 yearbook was aided by the expertise of Mr. John McCarthy, who for five years has served as the advisor. This year Mr. McCarthy felt that the students worked diligently with the money and materials provided. He stated that, "A $20,000 budget and the desire to be different from other years can be intimidating, but overall this didn't hamper the progress or success that came about from the yearbook. Due to the large number of students who worked on the yearbook we were able to draw more ideas for the layouts, copy, and different sections. Overall, Mr. McCarthy "was impressed by the widespread participation on this year's staff and their desire to put out the best possible product." Krissy Overgaard (co-editor) commented, "Working with so many people on a one to one basis and expressing ideas openly in the effort to turn out a yearbook to please the entire senior class was an invaluable experience. Not only did we learn yearbook processes, but we learned about each other."

"Explain layouts one more time?!" says Jon Carle.

"Stop laughing Krissy! We're never going to meet the deadline," commands Suzanne Stulowitz.

Let's Go To The Hop!

Seniors Turn Back The Clock!

In the year 1987, it was not unusual to see the senior class planning for a dance called the "Sock Hop." At first many wondered, "what is it?", "how do we dress?", and "what do we do when we get there?" The answers to these questions were turned into common knowledge as the dance approached. It was obvious that there was a great amount of enthusiasm in each student who attended. Most of the girls flaunted their poodle skirts and tight sweaters as the guys strutted around with greased hair, white tee-shirts, and short cuffed pants. Although the idea of a "Sock Hop" was never even considered in the past, it was a huge success. The turnout was tremendous and each of the two-hundred students who participated enjoyed dancing and listening to their favorite 50's and 60's music.

Another unique dimension of this activity was the participation of parents. According to Elaine DeAngelis, "It was a pleasure taking extra time out with other parents to organize something that the students enjoyed so much. The huge success was gratifying and I feel more activities like this should come about within the year." Deputy Principal, Mr. Jerry Tarnoff shared a positive outlook on the activity. "Since I went to high school in the late 50's, I thought it was a great idea, seeing the seniors dressed and dancing as they did in the 50's, brought back many memories of good times with good friends. I hope we do it again next year." Our senior class president, Polly Margules, stated, "The hard work that went into organizing such an unusual activity, paid off because it promoted senior spirit and enthusiasm for everyone."

The often heard criticism that today's youth are too caught up in their own music and lifestyle to develop an appreciation of the past was soundly dispelled on December 13, 1986. The class of 87' strolled its way back to the 50's and created its own personal history in the process.

"Don't talk, Cindy. I'm trying to count."

STUDENTS START A HEALTH KICK!

Breaking A Bad Habit

"I wanted to quit smoking, but didn't know when or where to start. Then, on November 18, 1986, I stopped smoking 'cold turkey' because I was inspired by the Great American Smoke-out Day." This statement was heard by many that day at West Orange High School.

This activity was sponsored by the health careers club, advised by Joan Picini and Christine Borkowski, who encouraged students at WOHS to quit smoking. Not only did the enthusiasm affect the students, but also family, friends, and relatives. Candy was supplied for people to eat to replace the desire to puff a cigarette. Pamphlets, balloons, buttons, and stickers were available as well to help smokers to "break the habit."

The health careers club continually focused on health related matters. Mrs.

Picini, the high school nurse stated, "Mrs. Borkowski and I aimed to expose the students to various fields in health. For example, we had a physical therapist from Kessler Institute speak to the club. We hope the students will remain interested in health careers."

The health careers club was more than just a "club", it was a service organization. Each year they helped prepare for the National Honor Society induction and raised food for the needy. In March, there was a daffodil sale for the Cancer Society. WOHS was the only school to receive a plaque from the Cancer Society for such loyal service. Additionally, members baked cookies and cakes for the patients at Theresa Grotta Rehabilitation Institute. The health careers club was undeniably an outstanding asset to West Orange High School.

Look out "Fruit of the Loom" guys, here come Linda LoSapio and Mike Bermingham.

"Do you think I would smoke and ruin a smile like this?" says Keeshia Ingram.

Ron Reister

Who were the only students in school who parked legally in the school parking lots? Yes we all know who they were — the students on the co-op program. The co-op program was very successful at West Orange High. There were about 100 students who left everyday at about 12:00 to pursue an everyday job, that would assist them in their future careers. These vocationally oriented students averaged fifteen to twenty hours a week while at the same time earning fifteen credits in school. There were four different work programs offered. Students chose from the Office, Industrial, Home-Economics and Marketing Education fields. Our co-op spotlight focused on Ronnie Reister. Ronnie worked at Essex Security from one to five, five days a week. Ronnie began his industrial career in November of his senior year and enjoyed it. Mr. Keyhays, the man responsible for overseeing this program, stated why this program was so successful. "The student learns if they like or dislike a certain occupation." He felt this program would assist students in their future careers. "Our program is more successful than other work programs because students are required to go to work and reports are kept as if they were attending regular high school classes." West Orange High is the only school with a vocational program in the district. Many students including Ronnie were very satisfied with the program. Mr. Keyhays summed it up by saying, "It's a good program for those students who wish to explore some career potentials. I've been very pleased with it."

Music Man Moves On —

Mr. Smyth Retires After 29 Years

There was a new and talented addition arriving in Palm Beach, Florida, in 1987. To our dismay Mr. Dale Smyth, West Orange's chorus and music instructor, retired after twenty-nine years of dedicated service to the West Orange High School system. He began his teaching career in 1958 at the Northfield Avenue site of West Orange High School and continued teaching at the Conforti site of West Orange High School after consolidation. Mr. Smyth felt, "The highlight of his teaching career was conducting the New Jersey All-State Chorus in 1969 in Atlantic City."

Among Mr. Smyth's many activities were directing the Barbershop Quartet and Sweet Adelines. Along with members of the West Orange High School

Chorus, they sang for many community organizations and functions, including the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

The annual Spring and Winter Concerts always met with great success. Mr. Smyth hoped to continue teaching privately after his arrival in Palm Beach. He also planned to continue choir direction and work as an organist in a church.

As aspiring student, Chris Gramm stated, "Mr. Smyth enjoyed his work thoroughly and I'll miss working with him in the future." Everyone at West Orange High School wished him the very best and hoped his talents would continue to be shared in his new surroundings.

In a crowning moment after the Winter Concert, Mr. Tylus presents Mr. Smyth with a plaque.

Mr. Smyth conducts another outstanding performance.

Mr. Smyth's 29 years of devotion deserved a celebration.

Together in harmony, the Winter Concert comes to an end.

AFTER HOURS

On The Night Shift

Fortunately, life in West Orange did not begin and end with school. When homework was done, or the weekend came, students began to look around their town for some fun.

During the warmer weather, everyone wanted to be outside. Gathering places included Stagg Field, Mayapple Hill, Eagle Rock Reservation, Essex Green, the Caldor's complex, and various backyards around town. Hacky sacks, frisbees, soccer balls, footballs, etc. brought out the athlete in many, while others were content to sit in the shade and socialize.

During the winter, students withdrew to more sheltered "hangouts". The movie theaters, the bowling alley, and the basements of friends became the favored places to spend the evenings. As it got later, one could often find friends and acquaintances at the Eagle Rock Diner for a late-night snack or a cup of coffee.

The colder weather reduced the number of places where students chose to spend their time. Many chose to spend some nights in places out of town such as nearby malls, restaurants, and, of course, New York City. Seniors enjoyed their new mobility as more and more of them got driver's licenses and cars. Once the novelty wore off, however, many preferred the convenience of public transportation into the city, where concerts, shopping, dancing, laser shows and many other diversions abounded.

Expeditions that took slightly more planning included skiing, visits to Great Adventure and other amusement parks, and, for some, travel. Aside from the usual sun or snow vacations, seniors traveled all around the country visiting colleges, and some took trips to Europe or other parts of the world.

What we did is only part of the story however. Probably what will be remembered the longest by the members of the class of '87 will be the friends and companions that we did things with.

Julia DeSena, Tina Catalano

"Buon Giorno!" This welcome, and other greetings were often bel-lowed to many West Orange High School foreign language students by excited and impatient elementary school children. The reason for this was the Student Alternative Learning Experience, otherwise known as SALE.

The SALE program allowed high school students to teach a foreign language to children in elementary school. Two such foreign language students were Tina Catalano and Julia DeSena, who worked together at St. Cloud Elementary School.
They taught a group of kindergarten children the basics of Italian. Although lessons were only provided once a week, for twenty minutes at a time, the children learned a great deal. Tina reflected, "They (the children) were so excited to learn.
When we would walk into the room,
they started yelling, "Buon Giorno Signora Tina and Signora Giulia!", to greet us. "It was a great teaching experience because we knew they wanted to learn, and they loved having us there."

Holidays were especially fun for the pint-size Italian students. Tina and Julia planned special lessons just for the occasion. Students learned words and expressions that related to the season. For example, two days before Valentine's Day, the kindergarten kids learned how to say "heart" and "love" in Italian.

This was followed by a small party that commemorated the special occasion. To show their appreciation, the children showered their student-teachers with valentines and original drawings that came from the heart.

Teaching Italian wasn't all fun and games. Each week the student-teachers had to write a new lesson plan to prepare for the class. These plans had to be approved by Ms.
Massari, who was the Italian advisor of the SALE program.

They also had to attend Monday meetings where they spoke to other student-teachers and got new ideas for future lessons. Tina stated,
"Even though the kids misbehaved sometimes, and a lot of time was spent preparing and presenting the lesson, it all paid off when they greeted me with such enthusiasm, gave me presents they made themselves, and really appreciated my effort."

MOUNTAINEERS ON PARADE

Band appears at Disney World

On an early Tuesday, three A.M. in the morning during February vacation in the school parking lot, there awaited two Vanderhoof charter buses ready to wisk some seventy tired but excited members of the WOHS Marching Band to the Philadelphia Airport. Their destination: Orlando, Florida.

For seniors and juniors of the band, it was the realization of a dream from three years ago. For freshmen and sophomores it was the fruition of a long-awaited trip: it was the Florida trip. Three years ago it was by longshot that the West Orange High School Marching Band sent a video tape of one of its performances to Disney World. There, after evaluation against many other marching bands, the West Orange High School Band was selected and invited to perform at Walt Disney World.

As special guest performers of the Magic Kingdom, the band was given a warm welcome. Members received dressing rooms and had an opportunity to see Walt Disney World from behind-the-scenes. But as Wednesday afternoon approached, band members grew fidgety from excitement. They would be helping Walt Disney World celebrate its 15th Anniversary. As the side gates opened at two P.M., the band proudly stepped forward, to lead the parade. In a route which went from Main Street U.S.A., looped around the circle in front of the Magic Castle, where it continued into Adventureland, eventually to terminate in front of the Runaway Train, the band had marched a distance much shorter than that covered annually in the West Orange St. Patrick's Day Parade. However, garbed in their white and blue wool uniforms on a February day, which reached nearly 80 degrees Fahrenheit, the parade was a greater challenge than expected.

Nevertheless, the band marched meritoriously and received a plaque of appreciation from Walt Disney Inc. Members posed for a group photo and received t-shirts. In addition, they did what any other visitors did: they went on rides in the Magic Kingdom and in Epcot, shopped and took pictures. Some were even fortunate enough to catch a glimpse of Epcot's own fabulous marching core, The Future Core, and cheered them on. Marching Band Members could be seen in Japan, France, Morocco and other countries. They frequented Space Mountain and saw Michael Jackson's 3-D video, "Captain EO." Also, while in Florida, the band saw Shamu and Baby Shamu at Sea World, witnessed shark feedings, and were placed within inches of them as they travelled through a enforced tunnel of plexiglass underwater.

Indeed the Florida trip provided many memorable experiences, but overshadowing all of the others will be the Magic Moment when drum majors, Kesinee Angkustsiri and Chris Herinya, brought out the band. It may have given the audience a thrill of the moment, but it brought pride to West Orange and gave members of the band an experience not to be soon forgotten in a lifetime.

Don't Stop Till You Drop!

Oh What a Night!

Early morning, March 12th, seniors piled on the five buses destined for the Tamiment Resort in the Poconos. It was just the beginning of a twenty-four hour, fun-filled adventure for everyone. Ms. Damiano and Mr. Prendergast were probably the ones most excited about this trip because of the tremendous amount of work they put into making it happen. The reason for the large amount of work was because it was a larger turnout than any other class in the history of West Orange Senior Trips.

On arrival to Tamiment, seniors ran to find their rooms, and awaited lunch after an hour and a half busride. As soon as lunch ended, the fun started; pillow fights flourished throughout the building, and some seniors immediately hit the pool area, where water volleyball and paddleboat races were held. After an exciting day at the pool, seniors relaxed in the saunas available. As the day wore on seniors "hung out" in rooms that seemed most inviting (usually where loud music and food were available). Other popular activities were: tennis, volleyball, video games, basketball and ping pong which kept many seniors occupied until it was time for the dinner and dancing to begin.

As dinner approached everyone became very anxious. This was probably the first time the chaperoning teachers and administration would see the real "class" in this year's seniors. After a generous dinner, it was time to dance the night away. Everyone headed to the dance room where flashing and colorful lights brightened the evening. Seniors had a great time, along with the teachers. Once the seniors got tired, everyone headed back to the pool area before all the after-midnight movies began. As movietime approached, hundreds of students with blankets and pillows snuggled in front of the big screen television. "Grease", "Ruthless People", and "Aliens" were just a couple of the movies shown. A video of the day's events was presented by Mr. Kale. The one night seemed more like a whole weekend. Finally, the trip was concluded with a morning breakfast and seniors departed at about eleven o'clock to head home.

The trip was very special for teachers and seniors because it was really the last chance for everyone to spend time together as a class. It was a memorable trip for everyone. As senior advisor Mr. Prendergast stated, "A successful trip was guaranteed because the class of '87 was the main ingredient. Co-advisor, Ms. Damiano stated, "we had the best time ever!"

Sweet Revenge

Girls reign on the court beating R.B.C.

The West Orange High School Girls tennis team completed a perfect season this year, 34-0, clinching the All-Groups State Champion title. After two years of finishing second, the Mountaineers overwhelmed second-ranked Red Bank Catholic, 4-1, in the final round. West Orange played inspired tennis and totally dominated RBC in the three singles matches. First singles (Junior) Carina Rolley demonstrated aggressive play as she defeated Regina Fagan 6-1, 6-1. Rolley intimidated Fagan with her forceful shots, causing the downfall of Fagan. Senior captain Cindy Greenberg outplayed Mimi Warendorf 6-1, 6-0. First doubles Seniors Michelle Davis and Liz Warnick brought in the fourth win for the Mountaineers after outlasting Christa Zusi and Hilary Debbs 6-2, 2-6, 6-1.

As Liz Warnick prepares her serve, Michelle Davis awaits the return. This spirited duo was Essex County Doubles champs and All-Groups Doubles First Team members with a perfect record of 30-0.

Talented Junior Carina Rolley demonstrates the concentration and balance which led her to be the Essex County First Singles Champion. Carina was selected Third Team All-State at first singles.

Second doubles player Joanne Fernando displays her powerful serve which helped her finish with an impressive 20-9 season record.

Closing in on the net for a return volley is captain Cindy Greenberg. An All-Groups First team selection, Cindy finished with an unparalleled 127-6 career record.

Breaking through the line nose-guard Joe Stefanelli closes in on the ball carrier. At offensive guard, Joe made first team All-Conference.

Easily avoiding a defender, running back and co-captain Mike Urso is on his way to a touchdown. Mike, with his total of 1034 yards rushing and 60 points scored, was honored as a first team All-County member.

Row 1: A. Nelson, S. Starr, M. Urso, J. Stefanelli, G. Lane, A. Hooley, L. Della Pia, J. McBride, C. Monoki. Row 2: M. Phillips, E. Shupak, S. Thomas, D. Jandoli, B. Pritchard, D. Levine, P. Strong Finish

Provides an impressive 6-3 record

Defensive end and co-captain Andrew Hooey sacks the Montville quarterback. Hooey's performance helped the Mountaineers hold Montville to a score of 16-10 for just one of their six victories. He led the team with 96 tackles. Hooey was named to the first team All-Conference.

After losing their first two games, the Mountaineer football team turned it around and ended the season with an impressive record of six wins and three losses. This team had its most impressive victory against Wayne Valley, whom they eliminated from the state playoffs. The Mountaineers had spotted Wayne Valley a 10-0 lead before co-captain Mike Urso caught a 25 yard pass in the end zone to make the score 10-7 at half-time. Urso gained 234 yards on the day (a new school record). At the beginning of the third quarter he scored another touchdown on a 77 yard run. This score left the rest up to the defense. Led by Andrew Hooey, the defense shut out the potent Wayne Valley offense the entire second half to preserve a 13-10 victory.

"Experienced Seniors: M. Coombs, L. Della Pia, A. Hooey, G. Lane, J. McBride, C. Monoki, A. Nelson, S. Starr, J. Stefanelli, and M. Urso led the team."

Returning an intercepted pass, George Lane sprints toward the end zone. On defense, George led the team with four interceptions.

"It was a great team effort and everyone worked 120%"

Kicking Up A Storm

Players make it to State Tournament

Under the leadership of Coach Sisbarro and Senior captains Al Infante, Mark Hamberlin, and Jason Solomon, the Mountaineer soccer team ended its season with a 6-6-4 record. According to Hamberlin, "we started off thinking it would be another unsuccessful season, but we proved our thoughts wrong and came up on the winning end." Hamberlin viewed the game against West Milford, an overtime 4-2 victory, as their best game of the season. During the middle of the season, Coach Sisbarro was forced to move Senior Chal Browne to defense, replacing captain Jason Solomon, a key man in the Mountaineer defense, due to a leg injury. Captain Al Infante, a Senior Melvin Dwyer, and Junior Rolando Soler proved that the loss of one of their captains was not going to stop the team from winning. Their play helped bring the team to a first round contest for the state championship.

Row 1: B. Taylor, R. Egozi, R. Soler, J. Pennetti, M. Powers, D. Crouse, M. Ginsberg.
Row 2: C. Guarino, J. Politan, M. Hamberlin, N. Manspeizer, M. Dwyer, E. Simon, J. Solomon, A. Infante, C. Browne, D. Deshmitt, Coach Sisbarro, J. Epstein.

Shielded by Chal Browne, co-captain Mark Hamberlin clears the ball from the goal mouth against Montville. An All-Conference selection, Hamberlin had 10 points on the season.

Ron Egozi surveys the field as he races to gain control of the ball. Egozi had two assists from his right halfback position.

Displaying speed and agility, co-captain Jason Solomon eludes a Montville defender. Despite a leg injury, he received All-Oranges and All-Conference honors.

Running Wild

Boys complete best season in four years

Dave Palmere and Kevin Moore concentrate on warming up before the Conference Championship. Kevin had an impressive tenth place finish at the meet for a medal and Second Team All-Conference honors.

Row 1: J. Moore, B. Fink, C. Carrion, R. Boettinger, B. Galpen, B. Reich. Row 2: Coach Culick, J. Dorey, E. McShea, J. Strulowitz, C. McShea, K. Moore, J. Abramson, D. Palmere, L. Cauvin, J. D'Allegro, Head Coach Suriano.

It was on the very hilly course at Delbarton in Morristown that the boys cross country team, helped by talented Freshmen and three new Seniors, proved

"Even when someone had a bad day, there was always another runner there to carry us through."

that a complete team effort would win a meet. There, against Verona, Senior Kevin Moore finished first for West Orange with newcomers Freshmen David Palmere running second, and Senior Chris McShea third. The close victory, 27-28, however, was decided in the last 150 yards when Seniors Jimmy Dorey and Eric McShea held off the charge of a Verona runner. Though young and inexperienced, this team, including Sophomore Jarret Abramson and Freshmen Jason Moore, worked hard and managed to finish 10-6 in dual meets, the best record in four years. Their conference record was 6-2 and was good enough for a fourth place team finish.

Striding smoothly Chris McShea, concentrates as he nears the finish line. McShea, a newcomer to the team, was the number three runner and was essential to a good team finish.

Picking up the pace, Jason Moore and Jimmy Dorey sprint at the end of the race. Dorey proved to be valuable as the fifth runner and Moore had an impressive Freshmen season.

Moving up through the pack are Kevin Moore and Chris McShea. The two runners gave their best effort and helped the team to a fourth place finish at the conference championships.

Row 1: Stephanie Sedges, Chrissy Heller,
Karen Zivi, Abby Mink. Row 2: Jean Ann
Maffucci, Nonnie Gould, Pam Levy, Vanessa Cahn.

Pam Levy, Abby Mink, and Chrissy Heller pick up the pace to catch runners from the other teams. Their effort helped West Orange to finish fourth out of eight teams at the Conference championship.

Out in front, captain Karen Zivi races to a first place finish against Madison. Karen, completing a successful season, was selected to the first team All-Oranges and second team All-County.

Not giving up until the end, Nonnie Gould concentrates on the finish line. Gould's performance at Delbarton contributed to the girl's victory against Montville.

On Their Feet

Membership rose as times fell

Though running on the infamous steps at Delbarton during a lightning storm was a highlight of the girls cross country team's season, it was the meet against Madison that best portrayed the team spirit. Lackawana Park was the site where the largest team of the past three years met Madison High School. The team, led by Senior captain Karen Zivi, had an impressive 26-31 victory. All team members, including Senior Jean Ann Maffucci, Juniors Nonnie Gould, Pam Levy, Lois Bernstein, Vanessa Cahn, and Abby Mink ran their best times with some taking as much as five minutes off previous records. Even though the team was inexperienced and held back by injuries to key members, they managed to complete a 5-10 season and placed fourth in the conference, beating West Milford, Orange, Montville, and Lakeland.

"Inexperienced runners gained confidence as individuals and competitors."

Despite a painful injury, Jean Ann Maffucci is determined to complete the race. Jean Ann's perseverance and commitment proved to be an inspiration for all team members.

WORKOUT

All the defenders could do was watch in amazement as Majied Pray left them baffled all season, averaging 18.3 points per game with a total of 312 points in 18 games.

Using a screen from Pray, Junior Leon Adams goes over an Orange opponent.

"Hit the Boards," is the only thought on Mac Weinstein's mind, as he tries to muscle in for rebounding position.

Pray Sets Record

Mountaineers Rebuild

Since head basketball coach Bob Belcuore only had two players coming back from the previous year with any varsity experience, he had to rebuild. The team was built therefore around his most experienced, and most talented player senior Co-Captain Majied Pray. "Majied", commented Coach Belcuore, "is probably the best offensive player I ever coached," and his statistics showed it. Majied broke three Mountaineer single season scoring records including the most points in a game with 29. Majied had a supporting cast comprised entirely of underclassmen: Blaise Verdi, the other guard, Adam Raditz, a returning starter at forward, Leon Adams, the other forward spot, and Mac Weinstein at center.

"Missed Free throws prevented the Mountaineers from a startling upset of ECT Finalist Orange H.S."

Defenders could only watch Tricia Lorimer this year as she surpassed 1000 points for her high school career.

Tricia Lorimer Scores 1000th

Guided by the experience of (tri)-captains, Keeshia Ingram, Tricia Lorimer, and Liz Warnick, the girls basketball team completed a successful season. The girls turned in a top-rate performance during their game against Mt. St. Dominic's. One Captain, Liz Warnick, stated, "I have never seen our team play stronger. The passes, the plays, and the set-ups were nearly impeccable. This was one of the best games of the season."

Head Coach Judy Risse, along with assistant coach Cathryn Welter, were pleased with the team's effort and dedication. Miss Risse believed that "these girls worked hard during practice, but more importantly, it was evident in our games. These girls had a lot of talent and ability and they were dedicated throughout the entire season."

The season was enhanced by the ability of senior Tricia Lorimer. She played varsity basketball for four years and accomplished an outstanding feat in her senior year. In a game against Wayne Valley Tricia, registered her 1,000 point over the four years.

Seniors Have Impressive Season

The Mountaineers Wrestling Team

Working hard for the takedown is Brian Reich at 122 pounds. He finished the season with a 12 and 8 record and was third in the Kearny Holiday Tournament.

For many of the senior wrestlers, training began three years ago as sophomores. Their hard work and commitment to the sport, including getting in shape in the fall by running, playing football, or playing soccer, paid off this season as the large team, 60 members, went 7-9-1. This record, including a third place team finish in the Kearny Holiday Tournament, and a seventh place finish in District 8, proved to be the best Mountaineer wrestling record ever.

This year's seniors, led by captains Jimmy Dorey and James Benemerito, helped set the good example of dedication to the younger wrestlers. Brian Reich, Steven Starr, Mark Coombs, and Arty Ehrhardt displayed outstanding leadership skills and unshakeable determination in a sport that became a way of living for many months.

"It takes a unique type of kid to commit to maintaining one weight for an entire season. Wrestling is a 24-hour-a-day sport."

Wrestling in the 148 pound weight class, Arty Ehrhardt controls his man. This season, with his 17-6-1 record, Arty placed fourth in the Essex County Tournament and fourth in District 8 of the State Tournament.

Captain James Benemerito drives his man to the mat. In the 129 pound weight class, James finished fourth in District 8 at the State Tournament.

On his way to just one of his 20 wins, Captain Jimmy Dorey goes for the pin. Jimmy had an outstanding season, wrestling at 141, finishing third in the County Tournament, second in District 8 and fourth in the region at the State Tournament.

"Can you surf? Because you'll be riding our waves!"

Warming up for the State Meet is 50 yard freestyle County Champ J.P. McChesney. He was also strong in the 100 yard freestyle finishing second in the County.

Diving into the water as the gun sounds is Captain Paul DeBenedette. Paul made All-County Honors and qualified for the State Meet in the 100 yard butterfly.

Countless laps in the pool and chlorine in the eyes paid off well for the 1987 Mountaineer swim team. They ended the season with a 7 and 4 record, the best record in 10 years and placed 4th in the county.

A highlight of this season occurred during the swim meet against Livingston High School, a long-time rival. West Orange won the meet 44-3, beating Livingston for the first time ever. The win was decided in the 100 yard freestyle race when senior, J.P. McChesney, upset the county champ, beating him by a touch of the hand.

Characteristic of this win, as well as the whole season, was the outstanding effort on the part of the whole team, especially the seniors. Under the coaching of Ed Jung, 13 swimmers went to the county meet and 11 received all-county honors, with six finishing in the top four. Three seniors: J.P. McChesney, Swimming the 50 and 100 yd. freestyle, Captain Charlie Wahlers practices for the State Meet. At those distances, Charlie made All-County Honors by finishing in the top four.

Coach Jung reviews the order of events with Debbie Goldman. As a third year member Debbie proved to be a source of leadership for the team and received All-County Honors in the 500 yard freestyle events.

Dedication and Leadership W.O. Skates On

The W.O. 1986-87 hockey team's record probably wouldn't impress many people, but the thing that would draw praise was their attitude and dedication towards the game. This year's team devoted a lot of time to playing hockey but not just during the regular season. In the off season, whenever the team could gather enough money, they would rent out an ice rink, and play on their own. The team's leadership came from two seniors, Bobby Rega, who lead the team with total points, and John McBride, the top defenseman. The most outstanding player on the team though, was found at the goalie position. John Lange and Chris Policarpio (both had a game of fifty saves) combined to produce a .857 shot save percentage. This statistic helped both of them to earn post-season honors. John was selected 2nd team all-division and Chris was named as an honorable mention.

"We were hard-working and dedicated, but the breaks didn't fall our way."

Slowing up an offensive rush and clearing the blue line, Anthony Carlini makes a great defensive play for West Orange.

Bobby Rega starts a breakaway with support from Jason Silverman. Bobby led the team in total points with three goals and five assists.

Urso also placed second in the Lehigh Invitational, which had competitors from five other states. The most surprising victories from the team were at the freshman level. The freshmen girls won their division at the Queen of Peace Invitational. They were paced by Leah Brownlee who placed first in the 60 yd. dash. Leah also ran at the Varsity level placing 3rd in the Passarelli Invitational. All in all, the team finished with a great season.

Bowlers Win Honors

The bowling season of 1987 proved to be a highly prolific one. Individuals, and the team as a whole, combined to establish a 2nd place finish in their division. This was a spectacular feat, considering the little amount of time that the bowling team was able to practice.

One bowler, Mike Robbins, had an outstanding season. He took high series, high average, and high games. Overall he totaled the most points in the division and obviously was a strong asset to the team.

Ms. Sherman, coach of the bowling team, stated, "All the players were determined and dedicated. They worked to the best of their ability. During practice and matches, they Have We Got The Spirit?

Yea Man!

It started in the fall with over 100 hopefuls. Thirty-four girls, freshmen to seniors, made the 1986-87 Cheerleading Squad and began a spirited and unified season. The cheerleaders were involved in activities from football games to the "Tailgate Party" at the Theresa Grotta Rehabilitation Center. Led by Captains Polly Margules and Stacey Werner, the cheerleaders got everyone psyched at The Pep Rally, made posters at Spirit Night, and cheered the Basketball Team on at the Glen Ridge Holiday Tournament. They made special trips to decorate football players' rooms before games and to cheer the Tennis Team to victory at the State Match. Meeting at each other's houses for breakfast helped keep this squad together and in good spirits so that they could spread that spirit through the school.

"Getting the school spirited and acting as a whole was a tough job, but a lot of fun also."

Suzi DeAngelis and Lynn Goldberger urge the crowd to get psyched.

Hayden Curtin follows co-captain Polly Margules in a cheer, as they help lead the football team to a winning season.

ACADEMICS

ADMINISTRATION

Established and Maintained the Bounds of the School

It is now time to look back on the people who had some of the toughest and most important jobs at West Orange High: Joseph J. Tylus, Principal, Jerry P. Tarnoff, Deputy Principal, and Vaughn Avedian and Frank J. Vogt, Assistant Principals.

Aside from the highly visible roles of setting and enforcing rules, the administration established the bounds of the school and supported the learning and growth of the students.

Part of this job included establishing a unified philosophy and goal for the school. The first priority was education. The students not only increased their knowledge and practiced skills, but were taught how to continue learning, exploring new areas and developing interests. They also learned how to focus on their own goals. High school was a basis for continued learning.

The other goal of the school was to help the student adapt to the world. This required developing an understanding of, and a tolerance for the different races, religions, lifestyles, and values in this society. A student had to decide where he fit in the world and reflect on tomorrow's possibilities.

GUIDANCE

Preparing Students For Their Futures

The guidance department at W.O.H.S. was always a multifaceted system. The single goal of this department was to aid students in every step of their high school and post-graduation planning.

The department helped freshmen and sophomores adjust to the new high school situation. In the junior year students turned to their counselors for help in beginning the college selection process or deciding what post-high school plans they would like to pursue. In relation to seniors, the immediate goal of this department was to help students finalize their goals for the next few years.

Regardless of grade level, the method of achieving this goal was the same. The counselors, headed by Mr. Thomas Shea, worked with students, parents, teachers, administrators and the community to promote higher self-esteem, a better understanding of others, an understanding of academic strengths and specific use of problem-solving behaviors.

The methods for achieving these goals included academic counseling, the Parent Conference System, and the "Evening for Parents" series. This program was a series of sessions wherein parents were able to discuss a number of common problems between parents of teenagers. It began in early October with sessions dealing with "Helping Your Child Say No," "Careers," and "Raising a Child Alone." As the year progressed additional sessions dealt with the college admissions process and financial aid.

Another vital program sponsored by the guidance department was "Mini-College Day." This program was a series of days when representatives of different colleges and universities visited the school and participated in information giving sessions with students.

With each passing year the needs of the student body increased. The guidance department at West Orange High School continually upgraded its services to meet those needs.

LIBRARY MEDIA CENTER

State of the Art Facility and Staff

"Excuse me, can you please tell me where the library media center is?"

The hallway filled with people became quiet. One-half of the students turned and pointed the man in the correct direction. Was it possible that someone didn't know where the library was located?

The library media center at West Orange High School was more than a typical high school library. Many different types of materials were available which enhanced the learning process. Besides the reference books and works of literature, typewriters, newspapers, videocassettes, filmstrips, and ten computers were available on a daily basis. Mrs. Linehan and Ms. Evanik, the library specialists, believed that the staff tried to, "Expand what students have already learned since kindergarten and build confidence, to be able to use college and public library media centers without any problems."

Another attraction of the library media center was the studio for the high school television show. Every Tuesday evening on Channel 32 at 7:05 P.M. West Orange High School News was aired. Under the direction of Mr. Martin Kale, head of the broadcasting department, students developed skills in speaking, writing, and producing shows. Mr. Kale wanted the students, in return for producing the show, "to feel pride in West Orange High School and to show the community that our high school was a place to be proud of. Students expressed opinions and concerns as well as addressing important issues in the studio."

The library media center was a newly-renovated area containing extensive information on many topics. The staff used their expertise to refine the students' library skills while preparing them for college and future goals.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Molding Better Citizens

When people think of the Social Studies department thoughts of history class come to mind. However, the department had a lot more to offer than the who, what, where, when and how of our nation's past. Classes such as Sociology, Anthropology, American Political Behavior and Shaping of Western Thought exemplified the diversity of the department's programs.

However, more than just dynamic teachers and a variety of classroom activities, the S.S. department, ably headed by Mr. LaSapio, aimed to teach students more than just the facts. Through a variety of extracurricular activities, this department's goal was to communicate to students the importance of good citizenship and respect for society. The S.S. department sponsored programs such as Model Congress, The Mock Trial Club and The Voice of Democracy contest in order to achieve this goal.

Another of the S.S. department's activities was Close-Up. This nationwide program was a lesson in government, public issues, international relations and several other aspects of our complex political system. The culminating event was a week long trip to Washington D.C. with students from states across the nation. According to Suzanne Strulowitz, "This was an invaluable experience. Not only did I see the sights and meet many of the key people in Washington, but I made friends in this state and two others. It taught me to be a lot more open-minded towards other regions of the U.S., if nothing else."

The S.S. department, with its diverse programs and animated teachers, went far beyond the classroom to achieve their goal. Future political leaders and responsible citizens were cultivated as a result of these programs.

LANGUAGE ARTS

The Medium And The Message

In the 60's and 70's students became more aware of the impact that mass media had on the public. However, their experience with the mass communications was restricted to reading about this rapidly developing field in slick paperbacks and jargon-laden production manuals. The professional worlds of broadcasting and publishing became very real to students involved in the Language Arts co-curricular program during the 80's and peaked in interest, participation, and quality in 1987. No longer were students limited to a second-hand exposure to visual mediums, which reflected and sometimes shaped their lives. In 1987 students participated in programs which stimulated the actual experience of professional writers, artists, graphic specialists, photographers, technicians and performers.

Some students produced, directed, wrote, filmed, and starred in a television newscast which was aired over a local cablevision network (TV- 32) whose signal was received by over seven million residents throughout the state. This bi-weekly student production, advised by Mr. Kale, covered the entire spectrum of student life as well as the overall academic program. Every other

Tuesday one could expect to see several interesting feature stories, including segments on Heavy Metal and drug testing of athletes, as well as coverage of such school events as Back to School Night, Halloween, National Smokeout Day and Mini-College Days. Additionally, there was sports programming and an overall review of school news. Michael Verlangeri was one of the many students who found his work with the television show to be rewarding. He commented that, "The knowledge I gained from my work here was not confined to books and lectures like in regular classes. I have learned how to run a small studio from hands of experience and how to take charge and get something done."

For those students who found the print medium more suited to their interest, the Language Arts offerings included the newspaper and the literary magazine. Here too, students were challenged to go beyond the limits of the classroom to cultivate their journalistic and creative writing skills. Ann Kamensky, editor-in-chief of the PIONEER believed, "Experiencing newspaper journalism through the PIONEER was invaluable. The demands of responsibility, and working with a staff of individuals taught me useful skills. It may sound cliché, but it opened doors for me that I didn't know existed." Kesinee Angkustsiri, editor-in-chief of the COBBLESTONE offered, "the magazine provided an outlet for creative talent in language and visual arts. It provided a medium for sharing and appreciating students' talents beyond the classroom."

The co-curricular program of the Language Arts department fostered development of lifetime skills in reading, writing, listening and speaking and nurtured interest in careers in the communications field by allowing students to receive simulated experiences. Indeed the medium had become the message in 1987.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

A Cultural Tool For The Future

The Foreign Language department, headed by Mr. Alvin Lubiner, brought the experience of different European cultures to the classrooms of West Orange High School everyday. More than just language instruction, the foreign language classes taught history, geography, customs, literature, and the way of life of several different countries.

However, the purpose of foreign language studies went beyond cultural and language appreciation. This department hoped to inspire students to pursue careers in fields that traditionally required fluency in a foreign language or to give this future generation of professionals an edge over others in the field.

Many different programs sponsored by the foreign language department hoped to stimulate the students' interests in foreign language. One particularly successful program was S.A.L.E — teaching foreign language to elementary school classes. This experience was multi-purposeful. It taught students responsibility; it sparked an interest in foreign language in children as young as five years old.

The foreign language clubs and field trips also offered lessons in native food, theatre, and art. It was easy to see the impact that the foreign language department had on students at West Orange High School. The Foreign Language department offered such varied activities that students were able to become involved intensely in foreign languages.

MATHEMATICS

Covering All The Angles

"Each day everyone is confronted with mathematical problems, either as consumers or professionals." According to Mr. David Glatzer, the mathematics department head, "All students were provided with a background in mathematics necessary for everyday life. There were also advanced courses for those students who wished to pursue their interest in math after high school." In contemporary society essential math skills also include computer literacy. Therefore, additional emphasis was placed on certain world problems which related math to real-life consumer situations. Through experience with these problems, the math department hoped students would become knowledgeable consumers and masters of financial skills.

Computers have become increasingly important and are widely used today. Computer classes provided students with a knowledge of the machines and their capabilities. The computer club and the math team offered students who demonstrated interest and ability in working with computers an opportunity to share their knowledge.

Students who investigated many of the mathematics department's co-curricular offerings found that math was not isolated theorems or equations, but was information that fit together in an applicable, unified manner. These students were able to apply the knowledge they gained from participation in out of classroom activities to many diverse situations that they would encounter in their futures.

SCIENCE

Keeping Pace With Technology

Our technologically advanced society has been continuously progressing since the turn of the century. The foundation for such an advancement was clearly based on the development of the sciences. The purpose of the Science Department in West Orange High School was to foster and nurture a student's natural enthusiasm in science. Teachers tried to expose students to the basic sciences and relate them to the progression of our advanced technology. Not only was this taught in class, but current events that dealt with science were discussed on a regular basis. Furthermore, science teachers advocated various activities to improve the students' science skills.

One of the extracurricular activities that gave students a broad range of knowledge was Science Expo. Every May, students, according to their respective science classes, presented a problem that dealt with society in a certain way, which related to their science class. People from the surrounding local area came to observe these projects. Students tackled these projects vigorously as they attempted to find solutions.

Another extracurricular activity that helped to improve the students' understanding of science was the science teams. Each team: biology, chemistry, and physics, met weekly to prepare for competitions. Students and teachers discussed how science affected the world yesterday and today, and how it would affect the future.

The Science department aimed to strengthen science skills necessary for leadership.

CAREER EDUCATION

A Realistic Look Into The Future

Career educators promoted interest and involvement in various fields among students at West Orange High School. Several skill-oriented classes were offered to the students to expose them to a diversity of fields, such as secretarial, sales, industrial arts, and advertising. Mr. Kehayes, head of the career education department, commented that, "We wanted to bring the reality of the outside world to students by having the students experience the jobs themselves. For example, some students worked for a lawyer and observed the daily tasks that lawyers had to face."

For the student, career education classes helped shape their ideas and thoughts for their future endeavors. Through classroom participation and extra curricular activities, students developed interests in many different fields. Cindy Greenberg, an accounting student stated, "Accounting class influenced me in the type of job I decided to pursue. I selected accounting only as an elective. However, this class influenced me to advance with accounting and I decided to major in it in college."

Additionally, the career education department directed the futures of many students through the Co-op, CIE, and COE programs. Career planning was realistically defined through on the job experience.

FINE ARTS

Spotlight On Talent

W.O.H.S. students had the talent and ability to demonstrate their creativity, to express personal ideas and to be unique. The Department of Fine Arts fused two areas of study, Art and Music, together.

Art students painted, drew and sculpted. They used mediums such as clay, acrylic paints, ink, and linoleum. Canvas paintings, pottery, collages and prints became finished works.

This year's art events included the reception for Art Studio artists, dramatic productions, related arts day in the Media Center and dozens of poster and decorating projects that made school life more pictorial.

Days, nights and weekends were alive with the sound of music that was performed by students in classes, at concerts, at football games and at competitions. These musically inclined students formed the Marching Band, Chorus, Barbershop Quartet and Sweet Adelines.

In addition to performances and long hours of practice, the marching band and chorus worked to raise money. From fundraisers that included sales of wrapping paper and candy, cake sales, bowling parties and a mammoth hoagie drive, eighty student musicians were able to finance a mid-winter trip to Orlando, Florida.

Participating in the department of Fine Arts offerings was very rewarding. Whether it was still life paintings that decorated the Board of Education building, or the Barbershop Quarter and Sweet Adelines' performance at the National Honor Society Induction, or a dramatic performance played out in front of hundreds, W.O.H.S. students' talents were recognized.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

A Focus on Lifetime Sports

The physical education department, headed by John Imgrund, provided students with an appreciation of physical fitness. The focus of the department was for all students to develop an interest in the "lifetime sports." Mr. Imgrund described "lifetime sports" as those sports anyone can enjoy at any point in their life. The department also heavily stressed the students' awareness of their health, body, and the growing dangers to their well-being.

The physical education teachers achieved their goals by incorporating interesting athletic programs in the gym classes, a supplemental intramural sports program, and many health course offerings. Physical education teachers hoped students developed skills and learned activities that would provide enjoyment.

Mr. Imgrund felt, "the sports program inspired competition, respect for fellow teammates, and taught its participants to work within the rules of a game." He was extremely supportive of the athletic teams which competed for West Orange High School. Mr. Imgrund described the intramural program as "an outlet for those students who demonstrated athletic talent and a major force in the high school community because of the high degree of school spirit the programs generated."

The students of room 219 were always busy at work, developing their holiday crafts. These special education students aided by teachers, Pete Commune and Robin Olson, began in September by assembling gifts which were sold before the December vacation. Their activities, however, were not limited to the crafts projects. Students learned vital business and personal skills.

Still, the crafts projects were of prominent importance to the students. Ideas from teachers took shape in students' designs. All levels of production were investigated, from the purchase of raw materials to the sale of finished products. Along with production, students were involved in learning advertising and retailing skills by printing flyers and selling products over the counter, using a cash register.

Items made by the students included wreaths, clothes racks and stained glass ornaments. The girls of room 219 baked holiday cookies which were placed in decorative tins. The boys printed advertisements.

The second semester of the year was devoted to vocational training. Students were taught skills such as typing and building maintenance. Mr. Commune regarded the occupational training program as "successful, with three of its alumni on the high school's janitorial staff."

Mr. Commune attributed this success to support from Dr. James Donovan, Superintendent of Schools, who had a background in special education, and to the West Orange School District, which recognized the need for a strong department to serve the various needs of the students.

The special education department provided an alternate learning environment with smaller classes and a strong concentration on individual attention. The special education teachers worked in conjunction with the child study team and other teachers to coordinate a complete learning program for each of the students.

SECRETARIES

The Backbone of Student Service

The secretaries of W.O.H.S. played significant roles in the education and future of students. Many responsibilities completed by the secretaries were unnoticed and taken for granted by the student body. The secretarial departments (attendance, guidance, and the main office) had specific duties and combined jobs to tackle. For example, each section tried its best to keep the students' records as accurately as possible. This was not an easy task due to the large number of students who attended West Orange High School. They worked well with each other and the student body as well.

The attendance office kept the records on the students who were present and/or absent. Students who were absent were called at home by the attendance office, a method of double-checking. After this information was gathered, it was compiled into a report and sent to the state government. The attendance office staff also handled the bus transportation and bus passes as well as acting as a liaison between the student body and administration.

The guidance office staff handled the academic records of the students. They maintained transcripts for the seniors to send to colleges. When a student was absent the secretaries collected the work missed by the student and sent it home. Additionally, they aided the guidance counselors by providing them with pertinent data for conferences.

The main office staff primarily dealt with the announcements, bulletins, and appointments with the principal or vice-principals. They dedicated their time equally to the students and the administration. All financial details and personal concerns were handled by this office.

The services provided by the staffs of these three offices were perhaps overlooked but never unappreciated. The class of 1987 will be forever grateful for the quantity and quality of assistance which was provided for them by these dedicated professionals.

STUDENT SERVICES

*Expertise and Dedication
Were the Trademarks*

Whether one needed a lozenge for a sore throat, a pamphlet on contraception, or nutrition counseling, he could always go to a school nurse. In addition to performing vision and hearing tests, and multiple sclerosis screening, the school's nurses, Mrs. Picini and Mrs. Borkowski, provided information on health care, nutrition, first aid and sex education.

The nurses dealt with contemporary problems such as AIDS and the homeless. Special activities, such as the Great American Smoke Out, the daffodil sale for the cancer society, and the collection of canned food for the homeless, made students aware of the needs of society.

When a sore throat wasn't the cause of our discomfort, it was the growling of our stomachs. As lunch time rolled around, the cafeteria aides prepared lunches and sold beverages and snacks.

After the lunch bell rang to dismiss the satiated students, the custodians went to work. Keeping the school clean was an important job, but they had other demanding functions as well. These included: maintaining the school grounds, fixing broken windows, removing graffiti and providing a myriad of services to the faculty.

Additionally, the members of the child study team delivered crucial services to the students. They provided testing, health care, and personal and family counseling to students.

It took more than teachers and administrators to make the school work. The students at WOHS benefitted immeasurably from expertise and hard work of all of the allied professionals on the WOHS staff.

AFTER 17 yrs of school I think I need a nice long vacation so in June when we leave here I'm going to relax for a long while. Then it's time to work and make money to buy things I need and want. I never liked school and I never will but I like something I did in tenth grade that I can't say. So later.

TO THE CLASS OF 1987

We need you, we need your youth, your strength, and your idealism, to help us make right that which is wrong. I know you have been critically looking at the mores and customs of the past and questioning their value. Every generation does that. But don't discard the time-tested values upon which civilization is built just because they are old. More important, don't let the doom criers and the cynics persuade you that the best is past — that from here it's all downhill. Each generation sees farther than the generation preceding it because it stands on the shoulders of that generation. You will have opportunities beyond anything we've ever known.

"I hope the day will be a lighted highway
For friends are found and never go.
Can you ever think of any better way
For the lost and weary travelers to go?
Making friends for the world to see
Let the people know you got what you need.
With a friend I have, you will see the light.
If your friends are there, then everything's all right.
It seems to me a crime that we should ache
These fright-out times should never slip us by.
A time you never can shout or rage,
As friends together watched their childhood fly . . ."

— Elton John —

Good luck to our friends & the Class of '87!

It all started back in Fairmount school. There were five guys named Mike, Andrew, Chris, John and Paul. As the years went on, we grew in many ways but, the biggest growth was McGwee's feet. There was the P.A.L. games and football and stickball at Jenkins Park. Fights on the hill and the sixth grade party, Mount Fuji and the Livingston Roller Rink.

Then, we became the "KNIGHTS". There were new colors, Green and Gold. There was hanging out at the back wall, Pool Hopping. Then there was Andrew's vacation in Minnesota and Mike's vacation in Pennsylvania. The football team was 6-1 and Paulie jeopardized Mr. Pizzi's coaching career.

Then the colors changed again when we started ninth grade. Andrew got married and we didn't hear from him for 2 years. There were Hockey games, Basketball games, Wrestling matches, Football games and Paulie's Presidential Election. During these years, we acquired nicknames . . . There was the "Rellicat", "Fiedell Castro", "Sta-J", "Phaetomiser", and "Criefer", we were established. We started hangin' out at The Green. The first Mountaineer football team had an 8-0 season. Then there was Monoki's toga party. To finish off the Edison years there was Kerri's farewell party.

Tenth grade began and Paulie still reigned in Edison. The group split up and we all went our separate ways. Then the summer after tenth grade came. Andrew got divorced. The group was reunited. We started hangin' at Hooey's. His room became our second home. We could not escape it. We began to get sick of it.

So, we spread our wings and Jesus came walking on water. Then it was Steve Bergman. He killed the Gangster and it was his heart. Then Ralph and Sally came into the picture. Look at the birds up in the trees. Then the bond became tighter. There was the lip-sinc. The football team, the beginning of the destiny. "What are you going to do . . . HIT. What are you going to do . . . HIT. What are you going to do . . . HIT. What are you going to do . . . WIN!! and that we did. Then Monoki and Mike got their licenses and we were mobile. We started cruzin' and exploring other towns. Tracks in Cedar Grove, Monoki's many accidents. Then there was the prom that McGwee missed. Party's at Monoki's, the Green and then Memorial Day weekend. "Oh, waht a weekend!" "Where's Rap and his car?" Tommy Vasta with the acee-ducee jinx. Watching the sunrise at 7:30 . . . What? McGwee's five trips back and forth.

P.B. & H.S., A.H. & L.K., M.M. & S.W., and J.R. & S.W., almost forever, nobody's perfect.

Then the summer came. Hooey's z-28 arrived at the Green. Paulie, working at Shop-Rite, hanging with the crue and everybody else. The summer of 86.

After the summer came and went, we were seniors. Our last football season set a mark for future teams at 6-3. Spirit night with Ms. Pratkanis, D-Woman and Prendo. "Oh what a night", is all that is needed to be said. Jessie coming for frequent visits and Paulie with Bonnie. New found friends and losing a lot of close ones. Johnny's accident with the Greek. "Oh breath mints! Our lips are too close!" Senior breakfast and Senior picnic, neither of which Andrew or Chris could enjoy. Paulie's papers 5:30 in the morning on sunday. McGwee having his group of followers Rellah and McGwee with their jokes. Shut up Monoki! Err is a mental case. Tennis #1, Butts ahhyes, the one and only. For with butts there must be tea for free. Cindi's football breakfast, Monoki's New Year's Eve party, Paulie's firebird, which will run on the thought of gas if he can ever get his spark plugs in. And, if the car is making a funny noise Paulie, find out where its coming from and rip it out. Valentine's Day! Puke blue firebird. Rell, what is it . . . ? . . . it's a bus . . . for horses! Led Zeppelin, AC/DC, Dio, Kiss, Van Halen, Triumph concerts that will always be remembered. The best of times that can never be forgotten and will continue forever. D.S. what really happened today? L.M. & M.M. 2/21 to —.

There are so many memories and all could not possibly be written down on paper. For what we have shared in our lives together will last forever. The memories of each, the laughs and the tears. But through all of these times we stuck together, helping each other in every way possible. What is the true meaning of friends? We can't answer that but all we do know is that through good and bad, we always came out strong, because that's the most important thing. There are many names that we did not mention but for good reason. We could write a book about the times we shared with the people we came in contact with but, there's just not enough room.

For each person we could write a chapter but, that's not important. What is important is that the people we hung out with (and you know who you are), whether good or bad times, they are still memories. And each time you think of it, anything you remember, it's a memory. And, it's worth hanging on to because it is precious. For when you are older, you can look back and smile and think of the person you talked to or held in your arms. We just wanted to thank all of our friends and to say, we have enjoyed the times that we spent together and we hope for many more in the future. The pain grows as the end comes near, for as life goes on, these times will no longer be there, all we have is memories. A memory that will bring a smile or . . . a tear.

Halloween — KISS, Christmas, New Years Eve 87 — none of will forget Mr. Monoki — Mrs. Livingston! Long live Carol Brady and the wagon! Mrs. Hooey teaching us to dance. Yea okay girls so we did sit by the phone and wait for it to ring Cindy stop getting naked? Changing in the parking lot humored everyone . . . Don't stop at a red light i'm not dressed yet! GIRLS — we've been through EVERYTHING and can you believe we made it — THICK AND THIN! Vic don't listen to Joe, Greeks aren't selfish — getting lost after Puzos, I have to call my mommy! Taking long walks at the Golf Course hoping he would come. Danielle it sounds like his car. Look the picture! see what we can do about sneaking him through the window then taking a cruise in Degnan Pond to the island. Mike M Thanks for all you've done, I'll never forget you . . . VV Em and Gette — I love you! Goya will never be the same without us! HIGH FIVE! Hurry I DONT want to be late for JIM! Vickie i have one question for you, you are past the age of sixteen, who are you waiting for? I want to come to all the volleyball games but not just to watch you play . . . Fotulas wedding . . . JUST YOU AND I. Thank God for the apricot! You talk too much, you better shut up! Christine, i luv ya, be good and stay sweet! We thought we would never spilit up . . . Lets hang on and give it ONE MORE SHOT! Guess who I like this week? Guys, he said, "hi" to me. i think i am gonna die! Its 11:11 make a wish — mine came true! Andrew's long party, it Lasted all week long — no one got any sleep 'cause they were all there! Vic and Cin did you really have fun — TRULY! BABE! Kelly — Shirley — Ween Be good i love ya, DD, MPL — We are here when you need us, VV CG DD Cindy did you really have to dump the garbage all over Andrew's floor! Hi-C that is. Don't u worry she'll SHOW YOU! Okay GIRLS — remember HEAVEN MUST HAVE SENT YOU . . . SO MANY MEN oh yea we'll be their FRIENDS AND LOVERS only if we could be in LOVE FOR JUST ONE NIGHT cause we are TRULY HOOKED ON them even as the BEAT GOES ON. RUMORS say that he's ALL CRIED OUT even though we're ONE STEP CLOSER but WE DON'T HAVE TO TAKE OUR CLOTHES OFF cause EVERYBODY just wants to WAIT ALL WHILE for the HIGH ENERGY or LOVE TO WALK IN. HE doesn't ENDLESS LOVE but OH NO some of us NEVER KNEW LOVE LIKE THIS BEFORE and others just want to work their way back — Once in a while yea girls they did BREAK OUR HEARTS but we — OPEN OUR HEARTS to someone else. The fights we had with them were because we weren't a MATCH MADE IN HEAVEN that's why AT MOMENTS there were TEARS ON OUR PILLOWS but we never LOST THAT LOVING FEELING because we decided to be TRUE BLUE and we didn't THROW IT ALL AWAY cause WE GO TOGETHER and we are NEVER GONNA SAY GOODBYE! Well, it doesn't look like he knows I'M ALIVE but thats ok cause i want to find someone who's SILLY and WISHES UPON A STAR and when we go out i want to feel like he's making a STAIRWAY TO HEAVEN and he's waiting for me with OPEN ARMS and then SUDDENLY he's RUNNING and tellin' me he's LIVIN' ON A PRAYER cause TONIGHT he wants to CHERISH ALWAYS AND FOREVER I WON'T STOP LOVIN' HIM and if we go our SEPARATE WAYS soon in time we'll be REUNITED cause LOVE IS FOREVER and the SECOND TIME AROUND is ALWAYS better. But the NEXT TIME I FALL IN LOVE IT'S GONNA BE SPECIAL, He just may be ALL I NEED! The story ends here although there were many more special times to mention, fun times to laugh at and sad things to cry about but most to of these were the most fun and memorable! If we could only add a few more chapters in this story . . . but we can't we can only have our special times to remember and cherish forever, when we think of these they will bring a smile to our face and a warm feeling in our heart . . . OH WHAT A NIGHT — 1987 . . . 88 . . . 89 . . . !

CONGRATULATIONS
CLASS OF 1987

WEST ORANGE HIGH SCHOOL
ATHLETIC BOOSTER CLUB

Dear Diary,

Sept.-June, 1987

Hi there! We are very sorry that we've been so neglectful. We do know that most people who keep a diary write in it everyday, but we've been too busy. However, there is no need to worry, we didn't forget about you, for we devoted this whole night just to fill you in on what we've been doing . . .

It all started way back when Ooey, Dooley, and Scooey met up with les deux amies and presto — "us a clique?" FINALLY TOGETHER — FRIENDS FOREVER!!!! When the sun went down — we were off. Sweet 16's — enough already, we all drive, we all drive! (well, sort of) Who's driving? Car trouble. Jode — anybody run into your car lately? Jen — third day, did you look? Pol — did you get the eggs off your car yet? Traditional hangouts — the green, caldors, TBR, MAH — (when I think of you) and Exec. drive, but soon the snow came and it was too cold to play outside so what was to do — we left it up to our imagination —

LA's — They had to come so soon,

TC's — Uh oh, busted again,

Thursday night at the Meadowbrook

SHP parties — think you could stare a little harder?

Midnight bowling

Rocky Horror

Club L.I.

Doc's — what a joke!

R.P. — bumps on a log

Spirit Night — Oh what a night . . .

New Years Eve — PS where did it go? Nice to find a ride.

Burger King — We'll trade you "16" for 4 chicken & cheeses?

And the all time classic — NJIT — the smurfmobile made it, Ei — killer stairs. Boom Boom Boom! Laur — Can I have A BDay kiss? Jode — I think it's past 1:30 And then there were those nights when there was nothing to do so — ERD to the rescue! FF & gravy.

Don't get into mischief — Partners in crime & fun — EM JP PM PD PM — 10/4. E.C.

— Holy packed! Breathe in any bags lately? Boy trouble — not us! Laur & Pol gotta luv those phone calls, firemen. St. Jo's boys — thanx Ei. PPD — Possible Prom Date, Homecoming queens — 30% off, my hearts divided my love's undecided. WOHS — was it that bad? Volleyball w/HS. Precalcueless, Francois cing, bagel-box, but it's Tue. Will you walk to school w/me? Out of town — Manasquan & Belmar Gee Gee's, creamiesides?

Well Jen ya tried, Lehigh, MDW, summer of 87 — Hotdogs, France — we'll zap them with our embrellas, Why? Subway, 7-11 Del, JO JP EM — Who ate the cookies? Bon Jovi

— We're there!!!

Well diary that's all we can remember, we're enclosing a photo for old times sake, see ya around.

GOODLUCK TO THE CLASS OF 87

WE'LL MISS YOU

ALL OUR LOVE

Jennifer, Eileen, Jody, Polly and Lauren

P.S. — Summer of 87

can't wait, the best is yet to come.

P.P.S. Can't forget Hangin with the guys: PD MD AN DH PM SM and MH, Thanx guys for being such great FRIENDS! WE LOVE YOU!!!

To all My Friends,

Through life's difficult times,
I hope you'll agree that it's better to appreciate the good times we had than to regret and blame each other for the bad times, and the happiness we've shared outweighs the sadness we feel now.
Ours was an experience from which to learn and grow.

CONGRATS TO THE CLASS OF 1987!

Dear Rod,

As long as there is time,
As long as there is love,
As long as there is you,
As long as I have a breath
To speak your name . . .
I will love you,
Because I love you
More than anything
In all the world.

Now 'n' Always,
Mary Jo

Congratulations!

Dear Class of 1987,

Well, here it is! Your very own, forever-to-be-treasured, yearbook. We're sorry if your picture does not appear more than once, but it's not our fault if you weren't in the right place at the right time. Hey, we tried our best. (It's not bad, even if we say so ourselves.)

Because of their effort, creativity, and style, the entire yearbook staff deserves a round of applause. Even though it was a shaky start, the staff got its act together and made this book a real FIRST CLASS CONSTRUCTION. A special thanks goes to Mr. Innocenti for his amazing insights on layout and his spectacular Newmark & Lewis performance. A special thank you also goes to Mr. McCarthy. Even though he drove the staff crazy with endless proofreading and layouts, he did amuse us with entertaining stories and put up with our endless battles.

Best of luck in the future.
