IMAGINE

THAT it's September 8, 1975 and you are bussed, driven, or walked to an imposing brick structure for your first school experience. Whether they call this place Gregory, Hazel, Fairmount, St. Cloud, Mt. Pleasant, Washington, Redwood or P.S. 14, you will come to know it as your home away from home for the next six years. As you struggle to make friends among a myriad of expressionless six year olds, you feel a transformation coming on. Whether you left your parents willingly, or with one shirt sleeve longer than the other, this transformation won't be easy. The desk you are assigned to, however miniature, becomes your domain as you begin to establish your own identity. Time passes quickly here and you can sense another change coming on. It's time to put recess and safety patrol behind you and take your rapidly changing body to a new location.

Whether they call this place Roosevelt, Edison, or Lincoln Junior High, you sense that more will be expected of you. You've lost several friends to arbitrary zoning laws, parochial school, or a corporate move. You get more homework now and you learn the enormity of something called "peer pressure". You get your own locker, your own schedule, and you move from room to room. School picnics, dances, hanging-out, and parties occupy most of your free time. Group identity becomes important, but being "cool" is paramount. For the first time a label is affixed to your name; you're a cheerleader, an athlete, a student, or a leader. Your classmates and teachers accompany you on a trip to Vernon Valley or Great Adventure. A type of bonding occurs, but it's short-lived and the security you've enjoyed for three years comes to a crashing halt on September 4, 1985.

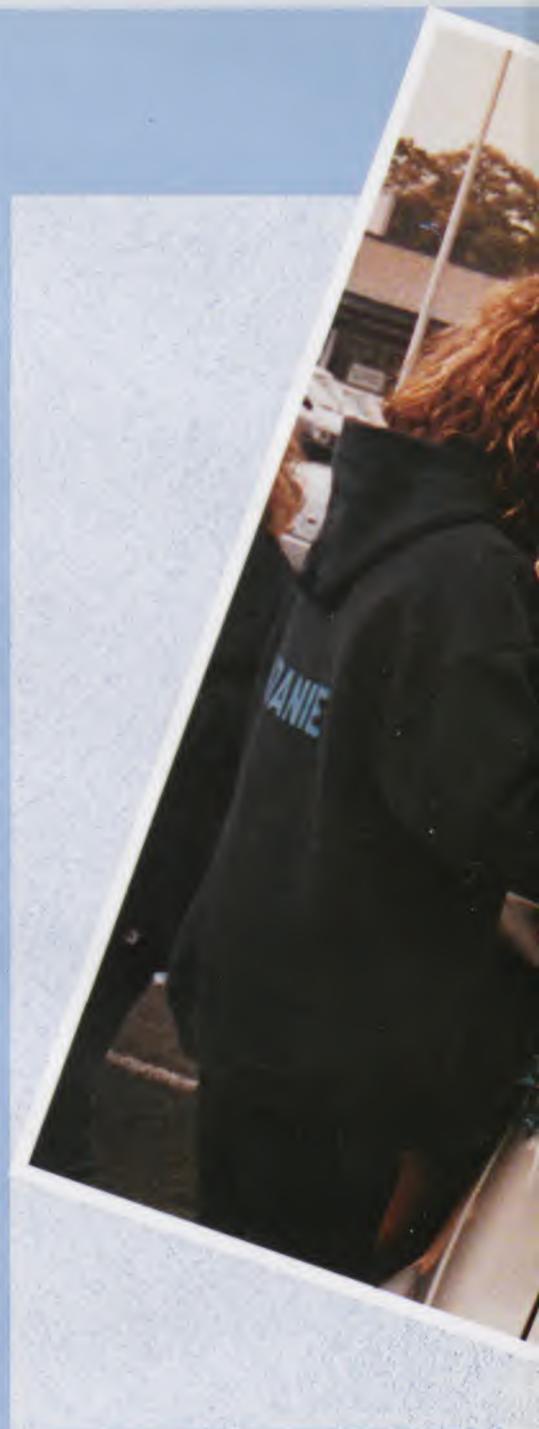

Your bus ride takes longer now. Your carpool is expanded. The edifice which you report to each day is larger and more intimidating than any place you have inhabited. They call this place West Orange High School. In previous years you knew the majority of your classmates by name. In this recently consolidated high school, you rub elbows with more than 1300 students who remain nameless for the majority of this phase of your life. Your semi-nomadic experience produces anxiety. Group identity is non-existent as where you are is as mind-boggling as who you are. You attend dances, parties, and sporting events in an effort to expand your circle of friends and increase your sense of belonging. It doesn't feel any different referring to yourself as a freshman, a sophomore, or a junior. You start to anticipate graduation as an escape, and you eagerly count the days.

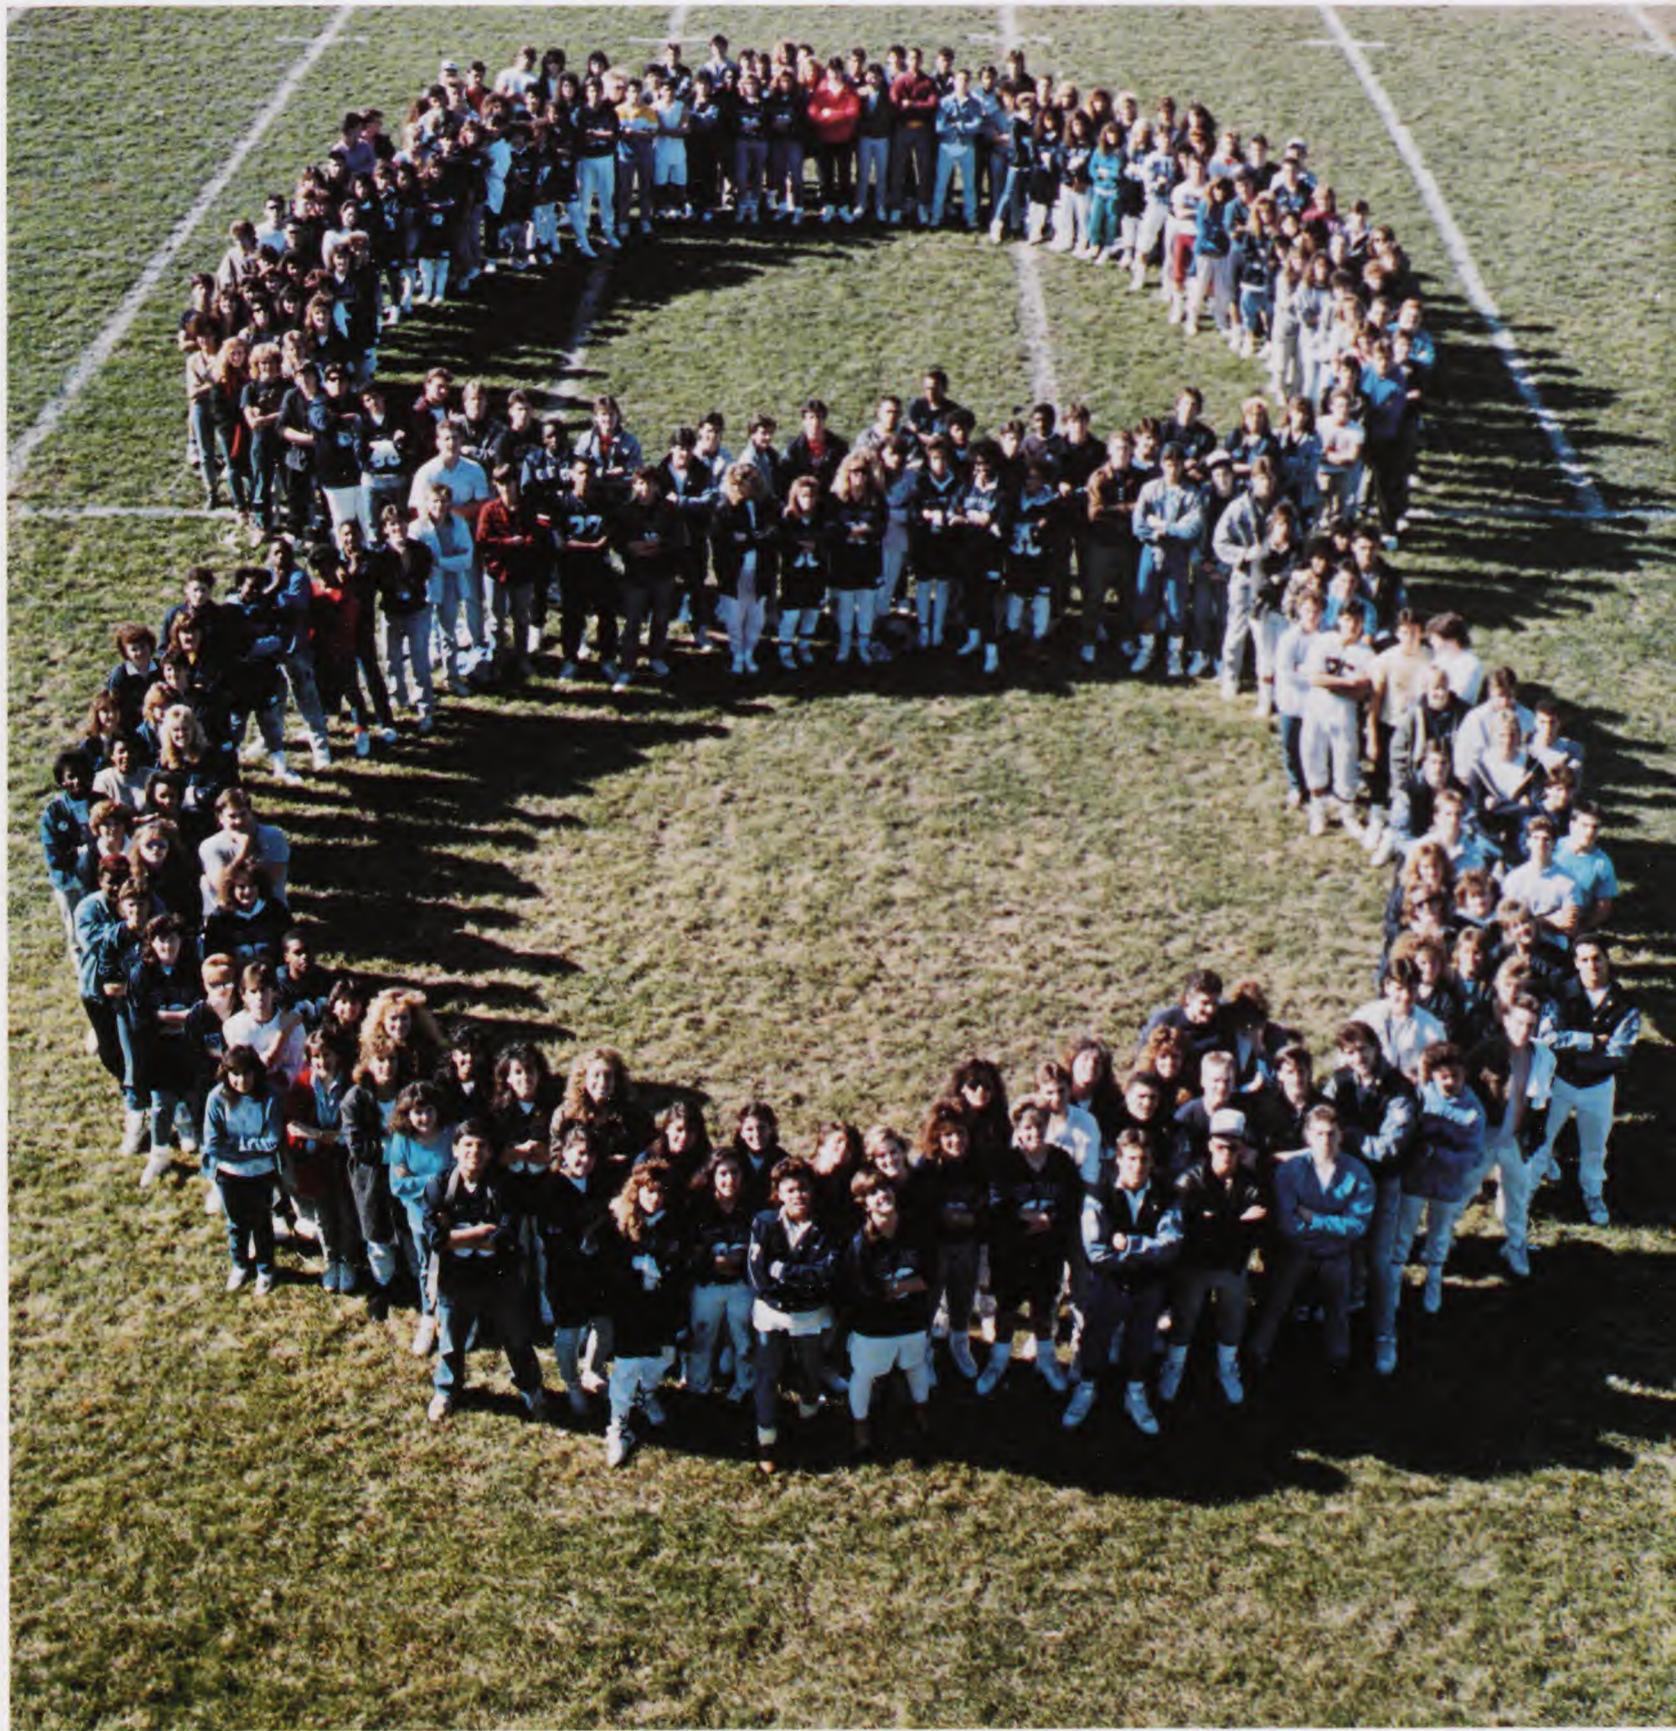

Then on September 8, 1987, something dramatic occurs. You are able to drive for the first time, and you have a place to go to where you will be instantly recognized and completely accepted. You are now a SENIOR! In the parking lot at Caldor's, you find yourself decorating cars for a motorcade to school. There are no strangers here, only friends you haven't met. You sense that the transformation, begun in 1975, is almost complete. As you ride along Eagle Rock Avenue, you are filled with the exuberance of your new identity as a member of the class of 1988. You possess pride and a new level of enthusiasm. There's a visible confidence in your step as you walk through the hallways — your hallways — in a manner which you never thought possible.

Just one year ago you couldn't wait to get out of high school. Now you want to slow the clock so that you can enjoy every moment of your memory-filled senior year.

Student Life

"What, me a pig?" says Sean McGinley, winner of the pie-eating contest.

"On your mark, get set, go!" Pam Johnson and Nicol Davis get set to run the three legged race.

"Senior Picnic Comes Home to Degnan!"

"Senior Picnic postponed" were the words that echoed through the halls of West Orange High School on October 7, 1987. This would have placed a damper on the spirits of other senior classes, but it was apparent that it hadn't for the class of '88. Plans for the picnic continued, and the enthusiasm was even greater for the upcoming event.

The picnic was rescheduled for the following week, on October 14, which in the minds of many, became a date to remember. For the first time since the consolidation of the schools, the senior picnic was brought home to Degnan Field.

As the first wave of seniors arrived, they excitedly moved towards the three six foot subs that bedecked the food table. Latecomers found that much of the subs had been eaten, and the desserts that some of the seniors had prepared for the baking contest had been devoured.

Once the seniors were satiated, activities from football and dancing, to just relaxing, ensued. Although many of the seniors basically "did their own thing", there were certain highlights which were organized by the Senior Council. Students baked sumptuous desserts in the hope of winning the baking contest. Though each dessert was excellent, Danielle Lemma's cake, baked in the shape of an 88, was victorious. Sean McGinely won the pie eating contest and the three-legged race was a tie between Pam Johnson and Nicol Davis, and Cheryl Wagner and April Tillis.

At the close of the day, seniors slowly began to depart, going their separate ways. Though it was the end of a perfect picnic, it signified only the beginning of the Class of 1988's spirited year.

"I've got it," shouts Romane Aristilde as he makes a great catch.

"We Painted The Town Blue AT SPIRIT NIGHT!"

In 1985, as sophomores, we arrived at the new West Orange High School, never imagining that anything could bring together our undoubtedly different class. But something did . . . Every Wednesday night, Mountaineers gathered at the Degan Fieldhouse for "Spirit Night". Though many of these students had not been friends previously, the feeling of school spirit, combined with the relaxed social atmosphere, sparked many new friendships and good times. As Maria Damiano, one of the Spirit Night advisors said, "These kinds of activities are necessary because students need to envision school as not only a learning environment, but as a vehicle in which to interact on a social level and have a good time." And have a good time, they did! The loud chatter rivaled the blaring pop music in the background as students painted bright signs in the school colors — blue and white. Some students danced and ate, while others painted the signs calling for class spirit, school spirit, and attendance at school events.

Not many students left Degan without splashes of bright paint and colorful "'88"'s covering their clothes and bodies. Spirit Night served as a time when all academic pursuits were put aside and students came together to spread school spirit and enjoy themselves. Co-advisor Tom Prendergast further commented, "We find it difficult to believe that with each passing year the amount of spirit and cohesiveness has increased in the student population and we are proud of our efforts to have fostered such enthusiasm. West Orange High School is really becoming the place to be."

"Spirit Night really lives up to its name. I can't believe all of the energy created by the student body." — Jeni Catarroja '88

"Now let's see . . . what team are we going to beat this week?", ponders Sue Kureshepi before she paints a stroke.

"Spare no body parts!" Anu Dewan displays her interest in foot painting.

Having fun is a serious business for Marcy Braverman and Lois Bernstein.

"You're supposed to paint the signs, not me!" exclaims Dawn Polito to Karen Corvelli.

"There's a lot to be said for a smile," agree Danielle Lemma and Lisa Cohen.

A quick stop at McDonalds for coffee before school, for Mike Byrnes and Tommy McGovern.

It took 17 Years, But We're FINALLY MOBILE!

Remember that significant day when you realized you were growing up? — That special day when you received that little Identification Card with a big meaning behind it? All of those years of waiting came to an end that day! You were finally mobile! There was a realization that you had gained a new type of independence. You no longer had to ask for rides or share a crowded bus. You had gained the privilege of driving.

You can probably still recall how nervous you felt at the Motor Vehicle Agency awaiting the dreaded road test. You reviewed all of the things that could go wrong as you sat tensely behind the wheel, with the instructor by your side. All of those negative feelings finally came to an end when you held your license for the very first time.

Driving alone felt strange, but nevertheless, you possessed a satisfied and confident feeling. Your destination, West Orange High School, was directly ahead. As you turned to pull into the new student parking lot at Degnan Field, you searched frantically for your very own space until you found the appropriate one. It was only fitting that the year you received your license was the first year that students had the privilege of parking in their own lot.

Leaving your car behind you flicked your keys at onlookers as you strolled down the hallway and enthusiastically told your friends about your new responsibility. You were finally as self-reliant as you had always wished to be. The long awaited day had arrived. You were Finally Mobile! IMAGINE THAT!

"Look . . . I've got my license," beams Scott Risse leaning on his car.

"See ya later . . . I'm outta here . . ." says Amy Solomon as she gets into her car.

"The more the merrier!" exclaim Rob Fink, Amy Solomon, Lisa Makover, Marc Schafner, and Tony Demasi as they "pile in."

Alternative School Broadens Students HORIZONS.

By Melissa Fehon

HORIZONS, a new edition in the fall of 1987, was specifically designed for bright sophomores who did not perform to their potential in the past. The program was developed in order to provide these students with more attention, so that they could gain positive attitudes towards school and achievement.

Dr. Donovan, Superintendent of Schools, proposed HORIZONS, and for fourteen months during the 1986-1987 school year, the program was developed by Mr. Feula, Mr. Mirandi, and Mrs. Perry.

There were four teachers who ran HORIZONS on a daily basis: Mrs. Shutkin taught Algebra and Geometry; Mr. Feula taught English; Mr. Krimmel taught Biology, and Mrs. Perry taught U.S. History 1. These four teachers worked as a team to reinforce what each was doing in the classroom, in order to benefit the students who participated in the HORIZONS program. "The team's efforts were rewarded by the progress and the accomplishments of the students," Mrs. Perry commented.

While HORIZONS' academic goals didn't differ from the mainstream of the school, it provided a more casual atmosphere, a varied, rotating schedule, and smaller classes. This allowed the students to have flexibility and individuality, while holding them increasingly more accountable. "In HORIZONS we have the freedom to combine counseling and teaching to better help our students," Mrs. Perry stated.

Homeroom ran from 7:55 to 8:25 a.m. During this time the students drank coffee, tea, or hot chocolate, in order to better prepare themselves physically for the rest of the day. Also, during this time, members of the teaching team were making phone calls to check on students who had not yet arrived and to express concern to parents. Finally, this time period was utilized for program extras such as, working with guidance or the health office. At 8:25 a.m., homeroom came to an end, and the academic classes began. At 11:15 a.m., Physical Education class was conducted. Mr. Jung was in charge of the gym period, and HORIZONS teachers participated in the activities. After gym, the sophomores moved on to their electives. Their school day was completed at 2:12 p.m.

HORIZONS was a pilot program designed to challenge previously unmotivated sophomores. Forty students volunteered for the program in 1987. One goal which these students followed was "To become what we are capable of becoming; to broaden our HORIZONS." All who participated felt that the first run of the innovative program was a success.

"Strive to be all that you can be."

Homecoming:

What a day that was!

Why would a cheerleader, a band member, a football player, a fan, and a test-taker all be nervous on the morning of November 7, 1987?

Many seniors began November 7th early in the morning, taking standardized tests. Some took the SAT's, others took achievement tests. Fortunately, after three hours of intense test-taking, students were able to put the November SAT's & Achievements behind them. The tension eased quickly, and the fun began.

At about 12:30 in the afternoon, excited WOHS student fans began to fill the stands of the football stadium adjacent to the high school. Many alumni joined the current students to cheer the WOHS football team in the important game against Clifford Scott's team. These alumni allowed the title "Homecoming" to live up to its name.

Proud parents of senior football players, band members, and cheerleaders paraded onto the field accompanied by their honored sons or daughters prior to the kick off, which was at one-thirty.

Halftime of the game provided much excitement. The senior class' choice for Homecoming Queen and her court was announced. Tension grew as the four nominees and their escorts, Doug Crouse, Jeff Wilkes, Tony DeMasi and Rolando Soler, as well as the spectators awaited the announcement of who was to become queen. The crowd cheered as Lisa Koplin was crowned Homecoming Queen. Her court was Arielle Brown, Solange Gould, and Sara Jacinto. Before the game resumed Lisa and her court were driven around the track surrounding the football field as the crowd saluted them.

The Mountaineers had taken a strong lead in their game against the Clifford Scott "Scotties" early in the Homecoming game. As a result of an extraordinary team effort, the Mountaineers defeated Clifford Scotts' team 26-0, making Homecoming an ever greater success.

Though most ordinary classes would have been satisfied with simply enjoying the Homecoming game and the crowning of the queen and her court, the class of 1988 felt that it was necessary to celebrate Homecoming further. Immediately following the football team's victory, many excited students proceeded to the West Orange High School gym and began to decorate for the Homecoming dance that was scheduled to occur later that evening.

The students who arrived at 8:30 for the dance were impressed by the gym which had been transformed. There were many "balloon trees" filled with silver, white and blue balloons anchored to the gym floor with mylar covered rocks. Also, there was an enormous balloon arch that extended from both ends of the gym. Dancers filled the room, commenting on how much they were enjoying themselves and the music. When asked what he thought of the dance, Howard Hoffman said, "The music was great-everyone was dancing. It was a real success!"

This comment was similiary made by many other students who attended the Homecoming Dance, proving that it was an excellent conclusion to a fun-filled day.

"Make way for the Queen!"-Lisa Koplin is driven around the track by Mr. Lorenzo after being crowned.
"Yo! Yo! Yo! you may be pop"-sings Lisa Makover at the dance.

"Homecoming was really a day to remember because it gave everyone the opportunity to get involved."

— Lisa Koplin-'88

"That's our son!" The proud parents of Paul Barbato escort him on the field before the game.

The queen, her court, and their escorts: Tony DeMasi, Arielle Brown, Doug Crouse, Solange Gould, Jeff Wilkes, Lisa Koplin, Rolo Soler, and Sara Jacinto.

Honor Society Inducts 55

On December 9, 1987, The National Honor Society inducted fifty-five new members. The ceremony was held in the cafeteria and included an introduction by Elissa Eisenberg, Chapter President; student speakers: Solange Gould, Mikos Grieco, Leslie Sherman, and Kathryn Rospond; guest speaker, Robert Bildner, and a musical selection by the members of the concert choir. Inductees were led in the membership pledge by Mr. Tarnoff and were presented with certificates and pins by Mr. Tylus. Refreshments were served by the Interact Club. Below is an excerpt from Mikos Grieco's speech, which he performed as a rap:

I would like to begin to deliver my speech
On where we've been, where we're going,
What it took to reach
This place, this point,
This present commendment.
We're thrilled-
But it's more than a transcript amendment.
It's the Honor Society, filled with notoriety
And I must add, with utmost piety
It compliments our confidence to be here now,
But it took hard work. Let me tell you how.
Striving for the grade,
Compromises were made.
Staying out on school nights moms forbade.
But we stayed, we remained.
We made sure we became educational stalwarts
Overcoming the mundane.
I talk of our climb throughout this rhyme.
Many edges were buffed so we could shine.
But that's all right.
We learned from our ways.
Without all of you,
We'd be walking in a daze;
A haze dispersed with your assistance,
But credit, I said it,
Goes to our persistence.
With good, there's bad; the classes we had-
Most were excellent, but a few, just sad.
Cry to the teacher when we miss by a fraction
Of a point. But that's good;
We cared and we should.
Intellectually concerned-
Dexters, if you would.
Ammunition for us is learning that's higher;
The gun is our mind, we're ready to fire.
We desire to aspire so we won't get stuck
We ignore the rabble, overstep the ruck.
This rap's about our confidence and gratitude
We're unsteady, but ready.
We've a good attitude.
Latitude to grow is what must be given.
This rap's about leavin', and it's about livin'.
Congratulations! Good Luck!
And to all a good night!

A smiling Mikos Grieco delivers his "Honor Society Rap"

*"Ambitious, sometimes vicious, is the competition,
But through challenge,
knowledge grows into fruition."*

— Mikos Grieco-'88

"Congratulations!" says Mr. Tylus quietly, as he hands Nicol Davis her certificate.

Seniors get an early start on Thanksgiving at the Senior Breakfast

By Vanessa Cahn

Before the morning of Thanksgiving Day arrived, many seniors were asking why the senior breakfast was scheduled to begin at 7:30 AM. After all, why should any person, especially a senior, have to get up so early when school isn't even in session?

Any person who was interested could have asked and found that the breakfast was so early because of the 10:30 AM kickoff that was scheduled for the Mountaineer's Thanksgiving Day Football game against Essex Catholic at Upsala College.

By the time the day of the breakfast arrived, November 26, 1987, most seniors knew why the breakfast was scheduled to begin so early. Spirited seniors were up early enough to go to the Holiday Inn on Route

10, where the breakfast was held, in order to decorate. By the time 7:30 AM arrived, the breakfast room was fully set up. Blue and white helium balloons were tied to every chair. A large sign in bold, blue letters announcing "Senior Breakfast '88" was hung on the back wall. Mr. Tarnoff said, "Walking into the breakfast was like walking into a sea of blue and white balloons. I was very impressed with the decorations, and it was wonderful to see that so many students had gotten up so early to decorate for their classmates."

Carloads of seniors began to arrive at 7:30 AM. After they found tables, seniors began to line up at the large buffet. The buffet was filled with a variety of foods including: bagels, eggs, bacon, sausage, muffins, and juice and coffee. Latecomers to the event had to search for the few remaining seats because of the unexpectedly large turnout (over 220 seniors). Danielle Lemma remarked, "It was worth getting up so early to be with my friends and to get into the class of '88's spirit."

After everyone had had enough time to enjoy the buffet and relax a little, seniors posed under the "Senior Breakfast" sign for a picture. Soon after, the picture was taken, many seniors began to leave for Upsala College to cheer on the Mountaineers in their last game of the season.

Though the breakfast lasted for a relatively short time, everyone felt that it had been a great success. As Claudine Ferguson summed it up, "We had a great time, it was something I can always look back on to remember my senior year."

"I never thought I had school spirit until the senior breakfast." — David Schlosser '88

Something in Commons

A New Twist to Study Hall

The Commons was a new study hall option open to students in the fall of 1987. It was located in room 255, adjacent to the cafeteria. The function of the Commons was to give the student body a place of their own. This gave them an opportunity to get away from the academic side of school. The Commons was also used as a central meeting place for senior class officers and advisors, and as a senior class lounge before and after school.

Two years ago, plans for the Commons were formulated. Mr. McCarthy felt that students needed a place of their own, with a less formal atmosphere. Then, in the summer of 1987, Mr. McCarthy met with Mr. Prendergast, Miss Damiano, Mr. Tylus, Mr. Tarnoff, Mr. LaSapio, Mr. Lorenzo, and Mr. Mirandi, in order to make plans to have the Commons situated for the upcoming school year. They realized that the Commons could not be just for seniors, and that during school hours it would have to be open for the entire student body. They also realized that the Commons would not be just a lounge. It would be divided, so students would have the option to do homework and study, or to use the time to relax and socialize.

The money used to fund the Commons came from a grant of $1,000 that Mr. McCarthy received in 1986 for being Teacher of the Year. The Commons also received individual donations of furniture that were helpful in establishing a relaxing atmosphere.

"My hope for the Commons is that ultimately the students will assume responsibility for the management of the room. I hope that it will be used by seniors more extensively before and after school," Mr. McCarthy stated.

The Commons differed from study halls in the past, because it was spacious and furnished. Also, in contrast to past study halls, talking was permitted in the Commons. "It makes study hall more sociable," Tommy McGovern stated. The design of the room was to give a study hall option, so students could learn to manage their own time. It enabled students to get away from the academic pressures, and to socialize without being disciplined by teachers.

The Commons was created so that it would eventually be a permanent part of West Orange High School. The students appreciated the new study hall option and the Commons turned out to be a welcomed change.

Lights, Camera, Action, It's WOHS TV!

It's Tuesday evening at 8:00. You're relaxing in the den searching the TV channels with your remote control. Entertaining sitcoms dominate the three major networks. However, you're eager to watch something new, different. By this time it's 8:05 and your scanner reaches channel thirty-two. Familiar faces appear on your screen as Kathy Rospond and Liz Kaufman introduce this week's episode of West Orange High School Television News, affectionately known by the students as WOHS TV. You put down the remote control, grab the chips, and lean back to watch thirty minutes of WOHS TV.

WOHS TV originated in 1985 and was advised by faculty member Mr. Martin Kale. Students enrolled in Journalism 4 were the reporters, producers, anchorpersons, cameramen, and editors for the news show. During the 1987-1988 school year the reporters included: Jim Goldfarb, Mac Weinstein, Tom Murray, Rick Massana, Paula Hartigan, Shana Goldfarb and Mikos Grieco. Phil Ende and Kathy Rospond were the executive producers. Together they formulated ideas for each news show and made sure that each reporter was completing his or her assignments. Anchorwomen Kathy Rospond and Liz Kaufman introduced and narrated each episode of WOHS TV. Seth Neiman and Dave Janowski worked behind the scene at the cameras. Billy Klein and William Bershad were the editors.

Reporters, cameramen, and producers worked together to create an original and amusing news show each week. Popular topics focused on music, current events, and students with special talents. Feature stories were reported by Craig Bernstein. Students were informed about upcoming dances, student council fund-raisers and club activities through announcements that were added to the news program during the 1987-1988 school year.

It's 8:35 on Tuesday evening. Your bag of chips is now empty and Kathy Rospond is concluding this week's episode of WOHS TV. You turn off your television and realize that you truly enjoyed the news program you just watched. You are impressed that your peers could produce and direct such an impressive television show.

"Testing: 1-2-3", says Billy Klein.

Anchorwomen Liz Kaufman and Kathy Rospond smile as they open their weekly production of W.O.H.S. TV.

Innovations

Publications Make a Difference

Every teenager knows the importance of being different. Students who worked on the publications were no exception. Student staff members of the literary magazine, the newspaper, and the yearbook, all felt the need to create publications that showed their individuality.

The yearbook's first stride towards originality was naming the book, "The Mountaineer." The staff also worked to create a different style in each section, thereby making the book as unique as possible. These changes included original graphic designs and tilted pictures.

Pioneer staff members were also determined to make the newspaper a different and better publication. For the first time, "Desktop Publishing" allowed them to literally print the newspaper themselves. The new system permitted Pioneer members to publish the newspaper, exactly as they saw it on their own computer screen. "Desktop Publishing" gave the Pioneer its first chance to be a truly independent publication.

Perhaps the most difficult publication to make original was the literary magazine. Cobblestone staff members had the advantage of starting from scratch, every year, to create a new collection of literary works by students. The Cobblestone staff worked to diversify the selections contained in the magazine and also planned a color cover for the first time.

"What about this one?" says Dr. Legow to Abby Mink and Brian Tacovelli.

It was more work than we ever imagined, but it was all worth it.

-Leslie Sherman- '88

Staff members of the Pioneer use Desk Top Publishing.

"I'm really proud of this issue!" exclaims Melissa Starrett to Mr. Ehrlich.

At a spanish club party, Jim Goldfarb holds up the pinata.

Something For Everyone

"Something for everyone," was the best way to describe the extracurricular activities offered to students. They could choose from clubs and activities which would enrich their educational experiences, afford them an opportunity to pursue a career interest, or involve themselves in community services. Others could gain further knowledge of government.

Perhaps the broadest based activity offered was Interact, a newly formed club. Interact members donated their time at many functions and events during the year, including sponsoring a fundraiser for Polio Plus, writing letters to children from Santa, attending the tree lighting at Town Hall and acting as elves for the children at the Community House.

Career-oriented students were also able to find clubs to suit their interests, such as the Health Careers Club. Members of this organization gained hands-on experience in health-related activities, most notably the Great American Smokeout. Other career-oriented clubs were the Mock Trial Team and Model Congress.

Foreign Language enthusiasts could participate in the French, Italian, or Spanish Clubs, or in the S.A.L.E. Program. Those who participated in S.A.L.E. taught French, Spanish, or Italian to elementary-school children.

Activities were also available for students who wanted to extend their academic experience. Math and Science team memberships were offered to interested students. Places on the Academic Quiz team were filled by trivia buffs, and chess enthusiasts found fellow players during club meetings.

During an Interact election, Andy Keil collects the ballots from Marcy Braverman.

"Repeat after me, "le bras" means arm," teaches Dana Peart.

"Lean on me,
when you're not strong,
and I'll be your friend,
I'll help you carry on."

We All Need Somebody to Lean On

Lean On Me was a part of the Student Assistance Program which began in September of 1987. In July of 1987, Maria Damiano, Martin Lorenzo, Thomas Prendergast, and Lori Vargo organized the program. Lean On Me consisted of peer counselors helping students who needed someone to talk to. All students who were interested in becoming peer counselors had the opportunity to participate. Of the four hundred students who originally signed up for the program, sixty applications were submitted, and thirty-two students were chosen to become members of the program. The students chosen had extensive training, beginning with a retreat weekend to the Stillwater Y-Camp in Newton, N.J. The weekend featured discussion of communication techniques, decision making skills, "wellness", existing referral sources, drug and alcohol awareness, and problem identification.

Lean On Me not only benefited the peer counselors with personal growth, but it also benefited those whom they touched. The peer counselors were able to see anyone who wanted to talk, anytime of the day. Many students had problems recognizing their feelings. The counseling helped the students to learn that it is okay to have feelings. They then learned how to handle them.

The Lean On Me Program differed from the service provided by the guidance counselors, and the school psychologist in that it was students reaching out to help other students. Everything was kept confidential, except in threatening circumstances. Students who felt they couldn't turn to an adult for advice finally had the option of turning to an objective peer counselor. "If I can touch these students in a special way, that's what matters. To me that's what success is," Lori Vargo the Student Assistance Counselor stated.

In the Spring of 1988, the Lean On Me members visited the middle and elementary schools of West Orange, to make presentations about the Lean On Me Program. With the cooperation of the West Orange High School staff, the advisory committee (Maria Damiano, Thomas Prendergast, and Lori Vargo), and Lean On Me participants, intended to organize other activities for the student body.

The students who participated in the Lean On Me Program were: Melanie Acuna, Kathy Baker, Kathy Bello, Denise Bolan, Michael Byrnes, Darlene Catalano, Jackie Chanda, Fabiola Davila, Samara Davis, Kim Derosa, Abigail Dyer, Colleen Fitzpatrick, Craig Forte, Solange Gould, Justin Holland, Liane Hollywood, Jill Katz, Andrew Keil, John Koutouzakis, Marian Lee, Delisa Lomax, Maggie Matts, Rick Massana, Tom Murray, Meredith Nash, Jessica Ragaza, Wendi Richmond, Dina Sforza, Christina Spino, Sherri Umansky, Kelly Walsh and Johnathan Yang.

Discussing the "Lean On Me" program, Miss Vargo sits with Lynn Settlow.

Standing with Mike Palardy, Sam Jandoli, Mr. Lorenzo, and Mr. Tylus, a smiling Lori Vargo accepts a booster club donation to help implement her program.

Students get head start in working world

"It is rewarding when customers are pleased with my assistance," Rae D'Allegrò commented. She worked part-time throughout high school at Walter Bauman in West Orange. Many other students who also worked part-time agreed that their jobs provided rewards in addition to their salaries.

Karen Markham worked after school as a chiropractic assistant for the Community Chiropractic Center in West Orange. She felt that she might be interested in the chiropractic field after high school. Karen said, "I think it's great to help people without using medicines or operations."

Sue Kureshepi was a cashier and salesperson at Pathmark in West Orange. Although her job didn't reflect her plans for the future, she liked it. Sue "enjoyed seeing new faces everyday."

Tom McGovern was a lifeguard and clubhouse attendant for the Eagle Ridge Health and Racquet Club. He liked his job and felt that the staff he worked with was great. Extra benefits including weightlifting, racquetball, and swimming were available to Tom. He remembered one particularly amusing incident that occurred at work. "One Saturday we had trouble with the fire alarms and the police and fire department came to the club. While they checked the fire alarm system one of the police officers walked onto the whirlpool cover. However, he didn't know what lay beneath it, and he left the club very wet and embarrassed. Everyone, including firemen, police officers, and Eagle Ridge staff members laughed."

Mark Castellano was a parking attendant for Mayfair Farms, located on Eagle Rock Avenue in West Orange. He said, "I like driving all the nice cars." Mark really enjoyed his job. However, the salary was most important to him.

Part-time jobs enabled many of our students to gain insight into the working world. It gave them an opportunity to earn money and learn responsibility beyond their academic environments. Holding a part-time job was rewarding.

"Are you ready to order?" asks Ginger Gaidemak at Don's.

"I like my job because it's fun. The work is challenging and interesting. It's different every day."

— Joanne Sutor '88

"Make way!" warns Tommy Gaynor as he pushes through the aisle at Pathmark.

"Gotta love it!" says Mark Castellano as he parks cars at Mayfair Farms.

Bands Boost Spirit

Throughout our years at West Orange High School, we were motivated to have school spirit in a variety of ways. One major factor was our award-winning marching band. Many times we went to pep rallies and football games and cheered for our teams as the marching band played in the background or performed at halftime.

The fifty-three band members were led by drum majors, Christine Herinya and Mark Berger. They played at every football game of the season, the pep rallies, and at the annual St. Patrick's Day Parade. The marching band began their hard work and dedication at the end of August at Band Camp. There, the band worked ten hours a day in order to prepare themselves for a successful season.

The marching band participated successfully in three competitions during the year. In the Pompton Lakes competition, as well as the Pascack Hills competition, they received an "excellent" rating. They also won "Best Music Division I," "Best Percussion Division I," and "Best Color Guard Division I" in Pascack Hills. In Linden, they placed first out of seven bands, and they also won awards for "Best Music Division I," "Best Percussion Division I," and "Best Drum Majors Division I."

The marching band was not the only successful band. Students interested in instrumental music could also participate in the concert band. Mr. Thomas Maliszewski directed approximately 60 members in the advanced band, and 30 members in the freshman band. The advanced band met first period every day to prepare themselves for the two major concerts of the year, which took place during the winter and the spring.

The jazz band was also directed by Mr. Thomas Maliszewski. He directed the twenty members who also played for the winter and spring concerts. In addition, the jazz band also played for award nights and several Board of Education sponsored dinners.

A new band in the 1987-1988 school year was the cocktail band. It began when several students were asked to play for a Board of Education Art Show. The group performed at special events sponsored by the school.

Mr. Thomas Maliszewski and the numerous band members contributed to a very spirited year.

"Being in the band was a fantastic experience."
— Christine Herinya '88

Playing her heart out, Nicole Fletcher-King rehearses for a concert.

The band marches onto the field led by Chrissy Herinya and Mark Berger.

"Hold that note!" cries Mr. Maliszewski.

"Drum roll, please?" exclaims Matt Kramer.

Another Side Of Mr. Lorenzo

by Elfrida Grant

We knew Mr. Lorenzo well in his many roles over the years as science teacher, guidance counselor, and Dean of Students, but his busy schedule never tied him down. He still managed to uncover a few otherwise hidden spare moments in time with which he could be involved in equally meaningful, outside activities. Who would guess that one of these was to dress up like that wonderful, jolly, old storybook character with the red suit and big black boots?

That's right! Every December West Orange High School's very own Mr. Lorenzo, as Santa Claus, and his company of Edison Junior High School ninth grade elves boldly marched into such localities as St. Mary's Hospital and Northfield Manor, singing Christmas carols and handing out gifts. Wide-eyed children and newly-spirited elderly crowded around him and his elves, expressing feelings of joy, happiness, and sincere appreciation as each individual received a gift.

All previous sorrows were instantaneously forgotten when Santa and his elves quickly filled the air with the joyous spirit of Christmas. Why did he do it? Mr. Lorenzo commented, he "wanted to have everyone get into the true spirit of the holiday: the spirit of giving."

by Josh Waldman

Ms. Garrett visited the White House on several occasions and met former President Carter and President Reagan. Congressman Matthew Rinaldo of New Jersey, a friend of Ms. Garrett's, invited her to the White House, where she had an opportunity to see the Presidents and their families as "real people".

One time, Ms. Garrett visited the White House for a barbecue hosted by former President Carter. She remembered that he was a very warm and friendly man. He was dressed very casually, and took time to talk to all of the guests. While visiting the White House for a second party hosted by former President Carter, she remembered seeing a young Amy Carter peeking around the corner at the White House guests. When Amy realized she was spotted, she quickly hid from the guests.

While Ms. Garrett was preparing to meet President Reagan, she attempted to remain calm and collected, but she was actually very nervous. Waiting in the reception line in anticipation of greeting the President made her even more nervous. As the President moved down the line closer to her, she finally turned to Congressman Rinaldo, who was standing next to her, and nervously asked, "What do you say to a President?"

She was also able to meet former President Ford and Vice President Bush, as well as many other governors, representatives, Cabinet members, and other important government officials. She felt "very fortunate to be a part of such an assembly of dignitaries," and looked back on the visit as a truly exciting experience.

"You're never too old to party" was printed on the box she carried. The old, dingy box was in her car at all times. Anytime she passed a supermarket, she distributed the box's belongings.

Dr. Georgetta Campbell's box contained over two thousand coupons at any given time. They were arranged alphabetically, by subject, in envelopes. The coupons were collected from newspapers and magazines, and some were given to her by friends. She believed in recycling. "Nothing should be wasted," she felt. Well, Dr. Campbell certainly did her part.

She began distributing coupons in 1975, when she was a librarian in Bloomfield. She noticed that many students had nothing to do, so she gave them scissors and newspapers and set them to work. She had an abundance of coupons, so when she shopped she gave them to people whom she felt needed them. It wasn't awkward because she enjoyed talking to people. "It all happened naturally," she recalled.

On an average shopping day, Dr. Campbell gave out almost ten dollars worth of coupons. By observing customers' baskets or carts, Dr. Campbell approached them with the coupons they needed. Most people were surprised at first, but, after realizing that she was sincere and friendly, they were appreciative.

Usually, Dr. Campbell's initiative spurred a conversation. She commented, "I find talking with people who have interests similar to my own most rewarding." Her hobby allowed her to meet hundreds of people.

One day in 1985 Dr. Campbell was looking at furs in Saks Fifth Avenue, with no intention of purchasing anything. A young lady approached her. "Aren't you the coupon lady?" she questioned. Dr. Campbell was shocked at the recognition, but the title made her realize her efforts had paid off.

Ms. Sebold—The Teaching Politician

by James Goldfarb

Many of us disagree with certain governmental policies and actions, but seldom do more than vote for our favorite candidate. Ms. Pat Sebold, an English teacher, was different. She believed that "the only way to change things is to get involved," and practicing what she preached. She was a political activist for much of her adult life.

Ms. Sebold first became involved with politics through her attendance at local, state, and federal meetings on issues that were important to her. In 1980, Ms. Sebold became a delegate for Ted Kennedy at the Democratic National Convention in New York City. Kennedy was also directly involved in one of Ms. Sebold's most interesting political experiences. Before going in to meet with him, not only was she frisked, but a background check was made and Ms. Sebold and the other guests were constantly watched by Secret Service agents determined to protect Kennedy's life. More recently, while taking a leave of absence from teaching in 1984, Ms. Sebold ran for the office of Freeholder in New Jersey's District Four.

Often in Washington, Ms. Sebold was able to meet former President Jimmy Carter, his Vice-President and 1984 Democratic candidate for the presidency, Walter Mondale, and many other important political figures. During 1987, Ms. Sebold spent much of her time deciding which Democratic candidate she would support to represent the party in the 1988 presidential elections. Among those whom she had met with were Governor Michael Dukakis, Senator Paul Simon, Senator Albert Gore, Representative Richard Gephardt, and Representative Pat Schroeder, who dropped out of the race early on.

As of November, 1987, Ms. Sebold was a member of the New Jersey Democratic State Committee and head of the Democratic party in Livingston. Considering the possibility of someday running for office again, she sounded much like a politician avoiding a direct response in saying, "In politics, you leave your options open."

Mrs. Dodds, Still a Kid at Heart

by Kristen Hooey

WILLIAM RADICK

While students of West Orange High knew her as Mrs. Dodds, social studies teacher, Troop 569 of the Greater Essex Council knew her as Mrs. Dodds, Girl Scout leader. In 1983, Mrs. Dodds decided to become a Girl Scout leader when her daughter, Kerri, wished to become a Brownie. She simply loved kids and she had always wanted to be a Girl Scout when she was younger, but was unable to because a troop didn't exist where she attended school. She devoted about an hour and a half, weekly, to the meetings, themselves. In addition, more time was spent planning the meetings and trips.

With her troop, Mrs. Dodds was involved in outdoor activities, including camping and hiking. Also, they took part in cooking and working to acquire badges. They spent time on the "Looking Your Best" badge, which required them to try new hairstyles, and a wildlife badge. Her fondest memories concerning Girl Scouts included the annual camping trips and a trip to the Bronx Zoo. The greatest disaster Mrs. Dodds had with the troop was the time that they were involved in a fingerprinting project. At the end of it, the girls were covered with ink! The ink couldn't be removed, and some of the girls were to make their first communion in two days.

"I wish more girls would stay in it," Mrs. Dodds commented, "because of the chance to learn more things." Mrs. Dodds said that she "loves it" and that the mothers of the troop members help with driving arrangements and are very cooperative. "It gives a girl the chance to achieve as a girl because of the wider opportunities offered."

Dr. Mora to the Rescue

by Katie Kobak

All of us who came into contact with Dr. Mora felt that we knew him well. He was a biology teacher who enjoyed kidding around. We never realized what a humanitarian he was. He was so involved in helping people that when he moved to the township of Washington he joined their ambulance unit.

Through his affiliation with the ambulance unit, Dr. Mora found a feeling of belonging and a true sense of accomplishment. He elaborated on this point, "I gain more than I give." Dr. Mora saved the lives of two men. That should convince anyone that he accomplished something.

During hurricane Gloria, a public serviceman was checking wires. The storm had damaged the wires, but not the insulation. When the man touched the wires, he received 100,000 volts of electricity throughout the upper part of his body. He had third degree burns over 18% of his body. Dr. Mora, along with the crew, was able to put out the fire and save the man's life.

More amazing than that was the time Dr. Mora revived a dead man. The unit received a call that a 62 year old male had experienced cardiac arrest. They attended to the man by employing CPR. When they started the CPR, the man's heart had stopped, but they were able to start the man's heart again, reviving him. It was very rewarding to Dr. Mora to give a man his life back.

Mr. Lubiner Exhibits More Than the "Art" of Teaching

by Rich Allaway

As the crowds sorted through the art pieces on exhibit at the Y.M.-Y.W.H.A., there was one that stood out from the rest. It was an impressionistic oil painting titled "No Hay Indios". The scene revealed a church. On its steps was a sphere. Passersby were intrigued that the title in English meant "there are no Indians". The sphere was in an area where one would expect to find people. The work was done by a tourist who was furthering his studies of the Spanish language and culture. When he saw the scene, he immediately wanted to sketch it as an abstract painting.

Who was this enthusiast who showed so much fervor and imagination for art? He was well-known to West Orange students as the head of the Foreign Language Department, Mr. Alvin Lubiner. Mr. Lubiner has been involved in painting still-life, impressionistic, and other forms of modern art. He explained that he was always interested in art as a youth, but until four years ago, had never taken an active part in it. With his busy schedule, the only available time for him to paint was in an art course, which provided basic instruction on paint mixing and paint type. Mr. Lubiner felt that this course was beneficial because "with a mixture of ages of those who came for instruction, you are exposed to different styles."

Although he was not a professional painter, he was flattered that, "some have said that my paintings most resemble those of Van Gogh because of the free-style I use." When he painted, he used some type of focus, such as a model, and changed it. Mr. Lubiner enjoyed painting so much because "it is a way for me to totally depart from daily events. It has nothing to do with the rest of life." He found art exciting, because it was a form of expression, and it added to his other professional achievements. "Painting," he felt, "was a source of inspiration, desperation, and frustration." There was more inspiration than anything else in his new found passion.

Miss Pratko — Can't Drive 55

by Tony Milner

Imagine yourself driving home after a long day of school, when at a red light, you suddenly hear a powerful roar of an un-muffled engine rattling in your left ear. At first you try to ignore the taunting vibrations dominated by the sound of music. The music is so loud that you feel Sammy Hagggar's presence in your car, singing his popular hit, "I can't drive 55!" As your windshield trembles from the powerful sound waves of Sammy Hagggar's voice, you slowly turn to your left and see a person whom you would never expect sitting in the cockpit of a black, souped-up Mazda RX-7 — Miss Pratko. Not the Miss Pratko you've seen in the halls; not the Miss Pratko you might have had for Typing or for a cheerleading coach, but someone distinct, someone who had abandoned the boring

"teacher-stereotype" after the last bell, to show that some teachers can be as "cool" as their students.

Miss Pratko is wearing the darkest shades you've ever seen, but you can see through them. You can see her eyes, glowing with determination to win. You feel a bead of cold sweat roll down your neck. The light seems to take forever to change. You get ready to plunge. As the light turns green both engines' thunder grows in intensity. Tires squeal, and you're ahead. You wonder if you might win this race, but Mazda's engine slips into turbo, and suddenly the RX-7 is ahead of you, and moving with intense speed. You stare at the car with disbelief as it gets harder and harder to see, until you can't see anything, but a pair of glowing eyes.

If you think that this was fiction, yes it was, but fiction not so distant from reality. Miss Pratko indeed had a Mazda RX-7 which she adored. She always loved sporty cars because, "They look cool and are fun to drive." If you are wondering if she drag raced, yes she did. When asked if she ever won, she replied confidently, "Of course I did!" And when asked if she had any problems with her car, she answered in an outburst (as she knocked on wood), "No! No problems so far, and there better not be."

Miss Pratko believed her car reflected her personality, which she described as sharp, energetic, and vigorous. Miss Pratko will always be the kind of person she is now, even fifty years later when she picks up her social security check and zooms away in her new 900ZX.

Another Side of Mr. Comune

by Vanessa Cahn

When most people think of ways they would like to spend a weekend, they think of relaxing activities such as reading the newspaper or watching television. Not many people would include working as a corrections officer in a county corrections facility on their list of relaxing weekend activities. Surprisingly, Mr. Comune used thirty-two hours of each weekend, as well as each summer, on the weekend squad at the Essex County Jail Annex in Caldwell, NJ. He worked as a corrections officer in charge of inmates whose crimes included breaking and entering, drunk driving, and shoplifting. Mr. Comune also came into contact with some inmates who were awaiting trial for having committed violent crimes. Fortunately, he never witnessed, or was involved in, any violent incidents at the corrections facility.

Mr. Comune began work at the Essex County Jail Annex after he passed a civil service test in 1973. There he used his educational skills to aid prisoners. He started and ran an educational program for inmates. This program allowed inmates to acquire their G.E.D. (General Education Diploma) for high school equivalency. For more ambitious prisoners Mr. Comune was also able to develop a college program through Essex County College in Newark, NJ. Through this program, inmates could obtain a college education, and possibly a college diploma.

Mr. Comune's efforts aided many inmates and he was pleased that the program he designed had worked so well for so many — quite an accomplishment for someone who was only working on weekends!

Try to imagine that you were once a gypsy somewhere in Peru. You were a fortune teller, a reader of the tarot cards, and a master jewelry maker. As a final twist, imagine that you practiced black magic and used your powers and skills for evil-doing. For most of us, picturing ourselves in such a scene would be extremely difficult, if not impossible. Not for Ms. Vlacich, a physical education teacher. Ms. Vlacich believed that she was a gypsy in a past life. She spoke to various mediums, people through whom one can communicate with spirits of the dead, who confirmed her beliefs.

Ms. Vlacich's mediums also confirmed that she lived many other lives besides her gypsy life. Her mediums introduced her to her "guides." "Guides," she contended, "Are spirits that have been assigned to help you through experiences in life. They assist you in making decisions; they don't make them for you, but they guide you in making them." Ms. Vlacich had three guides who followed her spirit from the beginning of time, because, the soul remains the same forever. Ms. Vlacich's guides were Tumask, a teacher of a temple; Purnell, a scientist in ancient Egypt; and Running Deer, an Indian.

Ms. Vlacich also believed that she knew her parents and her sister in past lives. She felt that she had a karmic, "same soul different body", relationship with her father thrice before. Ms. Vlacich discovered that she had known her sister in another life after her sister told her of a nightmare she had been having for many years. The nightmare happened to be exactly the same one that Ms. Vlacich had been having. The dream was of the two of them burning to death in a cabin or tent. Ms. Vlacich's medium spoke to the spirits and found that the two women were once sisters in an Indian village. The village caught fire, and the two perished.

Negative remarks and confused faces were usually what Ms. Vlacich received after telling others of her beliefs. Such actions usually arose because her ideas couldn't be explained logically. "No one ever believes it, because there are no scientific explanations."

Sauer Climbs the Pyramid

by Billy Klein

Game shows had always been a love of Mrs. Carol Sauer, so when her fellow teacher, Mrs. Chisim, told her about being on the $20,000 Pyramid, Mrs. Sauer figured it was worth a try to attempt to get herself on the show.

To get on the show, she first had to tryout. In February of 1979, she went to New York City to hopefully become a contestant. At the tryout, there were over 150 people. They were broken into smaller groups in which each person was put with a partner and they played out a normal game like the $20,000 Pyramid. After the trial games, the group was limited to twelve people. These twelve played a real game of Pyramid and, following this, the group was further limited to four. The reason why they picked her? "They said they liked how well I played and they liked the way I was always smiling."

Three months later, the actual shooting took place. Mrs. Sauer was in the audience when she was called up on stage to be on the show. She remembered being nervous when she was first called up, but once she started playing, she felt as calm as she would if she were playing at home. She played the first round with actress Di Di Conn and won $500 by getting seven correct in the "Lucky 7". After winning the first round, she got the chance to go to the big board where she won $200. She didn't win any money in the next round while playing with comedian Tom Driesen.

Although she only won $700 (of which 20% was taken away in taxes), she truly enjoyed the experience and said she "would absolutely do it again if given the chance."

Soles for the Soul

by Andrea Pannucci

By this time, most of us have experienced the "luxury" of driving. We are able to reach our destination in less time, but in the process we don't see what we've passed along the way. How many of us know what color the house on the corner is, or where the oak tree caused the sidewalk to crack?

Most people don't even consider walking as a means of transportation. The thought of having to strain our muscles or take an hour to get home frightens us. After all, we don't want to miss our soaps.

In our technological world, it's rare that people actually do walk. Even though we have been taught that Abe Lincoln walked to and from school everyday, most of us find that fact hard to believe.

However, there is living proof of this phenomena. Mr. Jordan, an art teacher, walked to and from school. This walk covered about four miles each way. He walked during all seasons, including winter. Unlike Abe, who had to walk, Mr. Jordan chose to walk.

One might wonder why someone who owned a car chose to walk. Mr. Jordan's reason was one of principle. He began walking during the gasoline crisis. He felt that it was ridiculous to wait in line for two dollars worth of gas. Walking was Mr. Jordan's way of protesting. Then, he discovered that the hour walk home helped to "transform him from the hectic school day to the peace of home." Mr. Jordan had found that walking was actually a pleasure.

Although Mr. Jordan found walking to be enjoyable, it did have its hazards. Once, while walking, Mr. Jordan lost a sole from one of his shoes, but he continued walking. Many miles and a new pair of shoes later, Mr. Jordan is still walking.

Mrs. Dezenzo "Romes" The World

by Sherri Umansky

CLARA MCENERNEY

Mrs. Dezenzo has travelled extensively, not only throughout the United States and Canada, but to Italy as well. In fact, she's been there fifteen times! She has always been interested in history, and that, coupled with working in an educational environment, motivated her to explore the world. Surrounded by all of the tours going on within the school, it was impossible for Mrs. Dezenzo not to get caught up in the excitement.

Mrs. Dezenzo got more excitement that she bargained for on two occasions in Italy. Once, while taking off from the Rome Airport, the plane's engine caught fire in the final thrust! She claimed that she wasn't afraid though, because of the confident attitudes of the pilots and the calm dispositions of her fellow passengers. On another occasion in Sicily, she witnessed the eruption of Mount Etna. A "red river of lava" was oozing right before her eyes, but again, she refused to admit to being afraid, saying, "My husband was very nervous, but they had barricades up, so I knew we were safe."

Mrs. Dezenzo did not enjoy the potentially life-threatening situations, rather, she was excited by the sense of history apparent in Italy. She visited numerous museum-like churches and cathedrals, and remarked that "Europeans treasure their history . . . their culture . . . their ancestry. So they don't tear it down," as is the case with many of America's historical sites. Italy also seemed alive with sound: "I could hear opera all through Italy, and in Pompeii, I could almost hear the chariots."

Perhaps the most powerful impression left on Mrs. Dezenzo by her travels, was the sense that the world was just a little bit smaller than she'd thought. Witnessing Mount Etna's eruption gave her a greater appreciation of the damage caused by the Mount Saint Helen's eruption. She reflected, "I think travel gives you a broader outlook. We cannot isolate ourselves from problems in other countries. We have to be aware because we are involved."

Ms. Vargo - - Every Dog Has Its Day

By Solange Gould

You are sitting at a party and someone approaches you with a look of recognition and exclaims, "Hey, you're that dog!" Most people would be offended, but not Ms. Vargo, our student assistance advisor. In her sophomore year at Moravian College, Ms. Vargo became school mascot for a football team called the "Greyhounds" and began her two-year career as a dog.

Originally, she had wanted to be a cheerleader. After tryouts, the cheerleading coach approached her and asked her if she would be interested in being the school mascot. She knew Ms. Vargo and thought she had enough positive energy and rowdiness to direct into a different type of cheerleading.

The only setback was her dog suit. At the time, Moravian had financial problems and certainly couldn't allot any money to a mascot outfit. So, a student sewed a grey flannel body suit with paws, and a tail, and an art student constructed a heavy paper mache head. In her effort to create the long, skinny snout of a greyhound, she produced something resembling a mule. "It was so ugly!" Ms. Vargo screamed, "I looked like a donkey!" Fortunately, the school was soon able to afford a headpiece truer to its namesake.

Sometimes she cheered with the cheerleaders, but most of the time she would jump around, wave, throw candy to the crowd, and mock and taunt the opposing team. It was her official duty to just act silly.

Sometimes, little children would approach her to "pet the nice doggy." "It gave me confidence in myself and helped me develop a strong self-image." Although one would think she would have developed some sort of split personality, Ms. Vargo contended that, "Being a dog helped me develop a strong identity."

Mountaineers Make the States

Whether at home or on the road, the Mountaineer football team was unstoppable. After tying West Milford in the season opener, the team rattled off six straight victories over conference foes. Under coach Ron Miller's leadership, the Mountaineers finished at 7-2-1 overall and captured the conference championship. The highlight of the season, however, came when the Mountaineers earned themselves a spot in the state playoffs. It was the first time in the history of West Orange football that a team accomplished this feat.

The Mountaineers offense was explosive throughout the season, setting numerous records. Co-captain, Tom Strowe, quarterbacked the team which amassed more total offense than any other West Orange team. Running backs Bob Pritchard and Stan Thomas, along with Co-Captain Rich Allaway, led the Mountaineer running attack, while ace receiver Quincy Jones pulled in a team record six touchdowns to bolster the passing game. The offensive line led by Co-captain Paul Barbato and Evan Shupak, opened holes all season for the Mountaineer running backs as well as protecting the quarterback.

While the offense set records for the most points scored, the defense set records of their own, allowing the fewest points ever by a West Orange team. The team also boasted three shutouts on the season as well as a record 18 interceptions. The hard hitting secondary was comprised of Rich Allaway, Doug Jandoli, Matt Palarly, and Tom Strowe. Pat Matts and Diego Parma led the linebacking corps, while the defensive line was anchored by Paul Casolaro and Dave Levine. All county player, Dave Levine, felt the team's success was due to, "their team unity and dedication to the game." With many returning players, Coach Miller felt the team would continue to be a strong competitor in their conference.

CAPTAINS TAKE A STAND

Leaders on and off the field

No one can deny the fact that tri-captains Richard Allaway, Paul Barbato, and Tom Strowe were excellent leaders of the 1987-88 mountaineer football team, but the thing that was most remarkable was that each of these captains was a leader off the field, as well as on the field.

Richard Allaway was a leader in the student government for the four years he attended West Orange High School. In addition, he maintained a grade point average that brought him recognition as a scholar-athlete.

Paul Barbato, a well-admired athlete by many, found time to assume a leadership role as Treasurer of the senior class council. Paul devoted many hours after school with his fellow officers, planning the events that made the class of 88 a huge success.

In addition to Tom Strowe's outstanding athletic abilities, he helped his fellow teammates reach personal goals, through support and companionship.

The Mountaineers will always remember and respect three great friends: Rich Allaway, Paul Barbato, and Tom Strowe.

(Top) All-State lineman Paul Barbato moves in for one of his many tackles.

Quarterback Tom Stowe looks for an open receiver. He completed 50% of his passes for over 900 yards this year, the best percentage ever for a Mountaineer quarterback.

"The boys worked together as a team and made tremendous progress as the season went on. It was truly a pleasure to return to coaching with a winning team."

Boys Press Montclair into Overtime

It had been three years since George DelMonte coached soccer at West Orange High, but one would never have guessed it from the outstanding record the '87 team had. The team finished with a winning record of 10 wins and 8 losses, which qualified them for the state tournament. After losing their first game to Lakeland 3-1, the boys rattled off three straight wins: against Montville, under the lights, by a score of 3-1; a forfeit from Orange, and a 4-0 victory over Barringer. According to Co-Captain Doug Crouse, "these games gave the team the confidence that they needed in order to be competitive in their conference." They also gave the soccer team a ranking in the Essex County top 10 listings where they remained standing throughout the season.

In addition to their team honors, there were many individual standouts on the team. Leading the offense were junior Joe Pinnetti and senior Greg Russo, who compiled over 15 goals combined for the year. The backbone of the team's strength consisted of Co-Captains Rolo Soler, Doug Crouse, and 1st-team all-conference player Matt Powers.

The defense was comprised of three sophomores and two seniors (Matt Kaplan and Mike Ginsberg) who engineered many victories for the team, landing them a fourth place finish in their conference.

Perhaps the most exciting game ever played or watched by a Mountaineer occurred during post-season play when West Orange earned themselves a berth in the 1987 State Tournament against Montclair. West Orange played Montclair who was 3rd in County to a 1-1 tie at the end of regulation sending the game into overtime. After two overtimes, Montclair picked up three more goals and defeated West Orange by a score of 4-1. "It was an upsetting loss," according to Matt Kaplan, "but we considered it a feat since we hadn't anticipated going this far anyway." Coach DelMonte felt that, "making the states for the second year in a row had laid the foundation for rich soccer tradition at the high school."

Girls Soccer Hits WOHS

For the first time in history, girls soccer was brought to our school. Under the supervision of coach Cathy Welter, the girls kicked off a tremendous season of six wins, four losses, and three ties.

At the beginning of the season Coach Welter had 21 prospects to work with, and by the end of the season she had a team of 23 girls. It was apparent that the interest level of the team members was sustained throughout the season, and according to Coach Welter, "the girls committed themselves 100% in practice and in each and every game." The girls team consisted of 22 underclassmen and one senior, captain — Joanne Sutor.

Andrea Trimarco led the team in scoring with three goals and three assists for the season. Lisa Woods and Kathy Bello also contributed greatly to the offense. The Mountaineers defense was superb, shutting out opponents four times. Goalie Nicole Vantuna and sweeper Joanne Sutor were largely responsible for the solid defense. This young team looked forward to next year when they would be able to compete at a higher level.

THE LONG RUN

Finland exchange student Tiina Juntunen prepares for meet. She placed first in every meet during the season earning her All-County honors.

Juntunen leads team to Finish

The girls cross country team was led this year by Tinna Juntunen, an exchange student from Finland. She joined the team a few weeks after the beginning of the season and was reluctant to admit that she had tremendous running ability. "I'm not a very good runner. I hope I'm able to keep up with you at practice every day," Tiina replied when asked by Marcy Braverman if she was an experienced runner. However, Tiina soon proved her running ability at daily practice and later at the meets which were held at Delbarton Preparatory School. She eventually finished seventh out of one-hundred fifty girls in the Essex County cross-country meet. Furthermore, she made first team All-Oranges.

Another important member of the girls cross country team was Solange Gould. For the past four seasons, Solange supported the team and reached personal goals as well as making the second team All-Oranges. Other important members included: junior, Chrissy Heller, and freshmen, Helen Sidiropoulos, Kathy Filanidis and Natalya Narymsky. All had outstanding seasons and coach Joe Suriano maintained an optimistic outlook for next year's season with these four varsity runners set to return.

Coach Suriano was selected Coach of the Year in the Northern Hills Conference this year and hoped that the season next fall would be equally successful.

"With three freshmen on varsity, we now have the nucleus of a solid team."

EXCELLENT STRIDES

Huge Turnout Brings Success

The Boys Cross Country Team paced themselves to an outstanding season of eight wins and two losses, placing them third in their highly competitive conference. Dedication and determination were the two aspects that contributed greatly to the success of the team, followed by hours of training every day, both on and off the track. Northern Hills conference Coach of the Year, Joe Suriano, commented that, "the team consisted of a very tightly-knit group of athletes", led by Dave Palmere who received First team All-Conference honors to go along with selection to the first team All-Oranges. Jarett Abramson and Jason Moore also posted successful seasons, earning second team All-

Orange honors. Senior runner, Robert Fink commented, "As a team we developed good work ethics, which was shown in our overall team performance."

The team competed in the Essex County Cross Country meet, which was held at Branch Brook park in Newark, NJ, and placed ninth out of twenty-four teams. Senior Andy Dezenzo showed an excellent performance and felt, "that this was one of the most exciting meets that he had ever participated in." With the outstanding turnout that the Boys Cross-Country team had this year, Coach Suriano was looking forward to the next season with twenty returning runners.

"We were very successful in developing a winner's mentality which embodies dedication and determination."

Girls Tennis Team Rebuilds

The girls tennis team continued the winning tradition of the sport by compiling a 13-11 record on the season. The Mountaineers were led by Captain Jamie Greenberg whose 24-3 record earned her 2nd team All-Conference Honors. When asked about the team's performance, Jamie commented, "even though this wasn't a championship team, overall, we did well, and, most of all, we enjoyed ourselves."

Sophomore Stacy Bunsavage, and junior Terry Kind, played 2nd and 3rd singles respectively, and felt that this season was more of a learning experience for them because this was the first year they played tennis on a varsity level. Audrey Seligsohn and Jennifer Stark had outstanding seasons playing first doubles with personal records of 17-5 and 16-5. They made the Essex County tournament, but lost in the 1st round to Verona by a score of 3-2. The girls picked up a win by beating Columbia in the consolation match, 4 games to 1.

Coach Laura Sherman was very pleased with the team unity the girls had, a factor that would continue to be present with most of the players returning for the varsity campaign the following year.

"I was very pleased with this years team. The girls worked very hard and steady progress was made during the season."

Reminiscing before a match is senior Kim Miele.

PATCHING THEM UP

Sports Medicine Crew gives aid to injured

The sports medicine staff was established in 1985. The contributions that it made to our athletic program were overwhelming. Mr. Errico, the trainer, or a member of his staff, was always at each home sporting event. Under Mr. Errico's guidance, the team was trained to treat injuries including sprained ankles and puncture wounds. Wendi Gallaway, a junior on the squad, recalled the first time she treated an athlete, "I was very nervous and scared at first, but I remembered all the things that Mr. Errico taught me. I was able to regain my composure and treat the athlete's injury."

Kathy Guarino and Cindy Katz were also members of the sports medicine staff. They spent many days after school in the training room preparing players for upcoming practices or games. These preparations varied from ice baths to ankle wraps. The time and effort that Mr. Errico and these girls contributed to the athletes throughout the year was greatly appreciated and highly commendable.

"Just relax now", Mr. Errico says to senior Michael Kuglin as he loosens up his back.

Ankles were one of the common problems that Mr. Errico treated throughout the year, as shown by his treatment of a member of the girls soccer team.

Girls Fight for Blue and White

Armed with confidence, sunglasses and a four-day supply of Ben Gay, an anxious cheerleading squad set out in mid-July on a mission to enhance their already flashy style of cheering. Four 13-hour days of aerobics, stunts, dance sessions and pepperoni pizzas paid off with a new cheerleading style that commanded attention and respect.

This eye-catching style that earned 12 ribbons at cheerleading camp, spread a contagious spirit that made the kickoff of the 1987-1988 season a dynamic event for the 48 member cheerleading squad.

The leadership of co-captains Cheryl Wagner and Amy Solomon proved to be the key to a successful season for all of the squads. The cheerleaders worked extremely hard during the week and on weekends to perfect the many cheers they performed at the games.

Beyond the ordinary pep rallies and spirit nights, the cheerleaders enjoyed numerous opportunities to support teams that made appearances in the state tournaments and playoffs.

The hard work and dedication of the entire squad helped create a true spirit of teamwork for all of the members. They learned "enthusiasm makes the difference" and communicated that message to the many fans that saw them cheer.

"Lets go Mountaineers" exclaims Bonnie Delp at halftime of a football game.

As the last half of the Homecoming game nears, Dawn Polito gets psyched.

PASSING THE COMPETITION

Young Team Excels

Perhaps one of the toughest challenges for a coach is working with a team of inexperienced players. This was a task which coach Judy Risse, along with her assistant Cathy Welter, handled with much success. Sporting a 13-11 record, the young team captured the Mountaineer Holiday Tournament by defeating Mt. St. Dominic before an impressive come-from-behind victory over Glen Ridge in the championship game. Beyond their superb play in the holiday competition, the girls qualified for the state tournament.

Center Tricia Spinelli led the Mountaineer offensive attack, averaging 14.2 points per game as well as 10 rebounds. With a well-balanced performance from the remaining players, the team proved to be a strong contender in the Northern Hills Conference, earning their ranking of third. Captain Mary LaChance remarked, "It was very difficult working with four new girls at the starting positions, but after learning each one's individual talents, our only thought was to win."

Aggressive was a key aspect of point guard Danielle Helminger's game. She led the team in steals and also contributed an average of 5.3 points per game. With strong efforts from Lori McDonald and Carrine O'Connell, the team overcame its inexperience.

"Through aggressiveness and constant hustle, the girls proved to be true winners."

Swimmers Top Columbia

It was a year of firsts for the Swim Team. The team had its highest finish ever, placing fourth in the Essex County Championships. For the first time in history, the Mountaineers outswam Columbia High School by a score of 48-24. Of the twenty-seven members of the team, fourteen swimmers attended the Essex County Championships, and ten of those fourteen earned All-County honors. Captain Tracey Lutkins finished second in the 100 yard freestyle competition. A four year member of the squad, Tracey provided a strong backbone for this 5-7 team. Dimitry Polyakov also had an outstanding season, finishing fourth in the 100 yard freestyle category. Senior Tom McGovern commented, "Although the team consisted of mainly underclassmen, a sense of comraderie was felt among all of the swimmers." This year's team consisted of excellent athletes, and with many returning swimmers, the future looked promising.

"This was a young team that became stronger as the year progressed. Victories against Columbia, Livingston, and West Essex helped to develop the West Orange swimmers into one of the top four teams in Essex County."

Individuals Excel

In many sports, the overall success of the team is measured solely by the final record, while other accomplishments are overlooked. However, this was not the case for the wrestling team. Despite their 5-9 record, the team displayed a sense of commitment and dedication which ultimately led to many outstanding individual feats. At the Kearny Holiday Tournament, the team placed fourth overall and junior Troy Henderson captured the championship at 160 lbs. Co-captains Rolando Soler and Cullen Church placed second in their individual weight classes.

Of the twenty-two teams entered in the Essex County Wrestling Tournament, West Orange finished in eighth place. Rolando Soler wrestled his way to a fourth place finish at the 140 lb. category. In addition to an impressive showing from senior Paul Casolaro, who finished with a 15-6 record, team standout Rolando Soler earned the distinction of being the first Mountaineer to win a district championship. Sophomore Mark Montuore received a third place finish in the 103 lb. class of the districts and held the team record for the fastest pin of 18 seconds.

Upon finishing the District tournament Rolando Soler, Troy Henderson, and Mark Montuore went on to represent West Orange in the Region II State Tournament. Although they lost in the first round, their efforts were proudly recognized by Coach Lutkins and the rest of the team.

"The 87-88 West Orange Wrestling Team will be remembered for its commitment to excellence and dedication to the sport. The success of the program was made possible because of the leadership role played by the seniors."

Team Earns Credibility

This was the year for West Orange Hockey! Having won only five games in the past three years, the team was ready to show that they were competitors under the leadership of first-year coach Chuck Wilson. The Mountaineers skated to an 8-7-4 record, which was good enough for a fourth place finish in the division, as well as qualifying them to enter the State Tournament for the first time. Teamwork was the key to their success; very little emphasis was given to individual stats. This unity produced a well-rounded scoring attack, spearheaded by Captain Jason Silverman, who led the team in goals along with David Scioscia, who was second in scoring with an almost even split in goals and assists. Senior Tan Denunzio, the team leader in assists, was third in scoring. Other players who contributed to this balanced attack were: Jon Moore, Mike Steiner, Brian Aker, and Jarrett Abramson.

A winning team, however, can't survive on scoring alone. The Mountaineer defense was extremely important to the team effort. Goalies Rick Carlucci and Lenny Polakoff deflected away potential scoring shots all season long. Senior Michael Johnson was the strongest defenseman on this year's team and consistently aided the goalie. The 1988 Mountaineers may have very well started a winning tradition.

"The season was a positive experience for everyone involved. We've gained credibility and respect throughout the state and most importantly, we learned to win and lose with class."

Echoes in the halls

On a cold Saturday morning, in the halls of West Orange High School, the sound of runners' feet could be heard echoing throughout the building. Who could it have been at this early hour . . . ? Coach Joe Suriano and his fleet of determined athletes. Dedication, along with great individual talent, sparked the team to a successful season. The team competed against a total of 25 schools over the course of the season. With strong finishes from runners Quincy Jones, Leah Brownlee, Lois Crawford, and Evans Aristilde, it came as no surprise that the team garnered over 25 medals at each individual meet. Essex County champion Quincy Jones added to the team's achievements by placing third overall in the Northern Hills Conference Indoor Track Championships. Quincy, along with Evans Aristilde, placed first in the Essex County high-jump relays. Evans also earned himself a fifth place position in the Northern Hills Conference Championships. Runners Lois Crawford and Leah Brownlee were also team standouts. Lois was a semifinalist in the Group IV 55 meter distance and placed second in the Varsity division of the Passarelli Invitational meets. Coach Suriano commented, "Crawford is a petite, sleek, fluid runner who seems to glide across the track. Brownlee is a strong, power runner who gains momentum with every stride. Both girls possess the most important ingredient in sprinting . . . Great speed."

STRIKING INTO FIRST

Bowlers Dominate Conference

The success of the school sports program continued into the winter season with impressive victories by the bowling team over conference foes, Millburn and Madison. With an overall record of 250.5 points won to 43.5 lost, the team won an average of 19.5 points per match. First Team All-Conference bowler, Brian Lawrence, held the title of first position on this year's team with a seasonal average of 159. Brian commented, "This was the first year I ever bowled on the team, and I felt it to be a very challenging experience." Along with Brian's individual accomplishments, there were several other standouts on the team as well. Sophomore John Hill was ranked third on the All-Conference team and was recognized as the bowler with the highest individual game, an impressive 226. Other notable standouts on the team were Richard Machado with an impressive 154 average. He also placed in the top three of the Northern Hills Championship. Despite the fact that the bowling team played all of its matches on the road, they were able to put together an undefeated season.

"They were a striking team."

In a pre-season practice, Chrissy Herinya awaits a pitch.

"The team this year was a very young team that consisted of mainly sophomores. The seniors that we had assumed leadership roles that helped develop a sense of team unity."

Catching pop fly is Lisa Bolen.

At the starting blocks are Kim Foster, Leah Brownlee, and Debbie Cadogen.

Senior Kim Wright prepares to race.

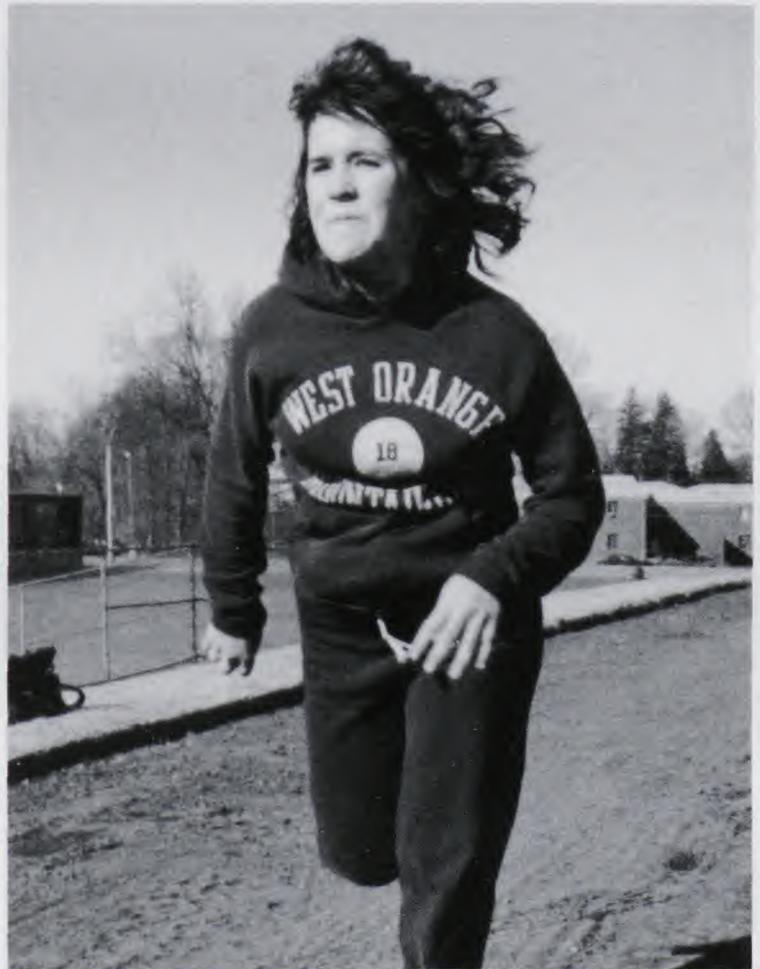

Track Star Leah Brownlee stretches out before a meet.

STRETCH TO THE FINISH

"Although this team was young, they gained valuable experience by competing on the varsity level. Captain Michele McBride was extremely instrumental in dominating a positive work ethic."

Sprinting down the straightaway is Michele McBride.

SPRINTING FOR SUCCESS

In a starting position, Quincy Jones anticipates the soundings of the gun.

"This year's boys team had the ability to compete on a conference, county, and state level. Senior co-captains, Greg Caldwell and Quincy Jones provided leadership and direction for all of the team members."

Three returning seniors: Rich Allaway, Greg Caldwell, and Quincy Jones warm up with a lap around the track.

Preparing to launch javelin is Isiah Gochet.

Flashing a big smile is senior Matt Scher as he aces opponent.

WHAT A RACQUET

Junior Eric Simon follows through on a forehand smash.

"With many of my players having had experience in tennis competition, my coaching task was that much easier."

Doubles player Chad Comiteau rushes the net.

Preparing a backhand shot is Calvin Eng.

Preparing to drive the ball is Marc McCaffrey.

Senior William Bershad putts for birdie.

THE GREEN SCENE

Teeing off is Mac Weinstein.

Three year players Marc McGowen and David Janowski discuss the proper gripping of the club.

"It was truly a pleasure for me to coach such a well rounded team. The boys were extremely dedicated to the sport and worked hard all season to improve their game."

Seniors Rich Giuditta and Marc McCaffrey attempt to read the putt.

To the Class of 1988,

Take time to work - - - - - It is the price of success.

Take time to think - - - - - It is the source of power.

Take time to play - - - - - It is the secret of youth.

Take time to read - - - - - It is the foundation of wisdom.

Take time to be friendly - - - - - It is the road to happiness.

Take time to dream - - - - - It is hitching your wagon to a star.

Take time to love and be loved - - - - - It is the privilege of the gods.

Take time to look around - - - - - It is too short a day to be selfish.

Take time to laugh - - - - - It is the music of your soul.

“Honestly I believe in you and through the years I will be a friend for always and forever”

Here's the story of four amigos each searching for their own place in this world. While we were searching this is what we found . . . First day of school stirred up hot flames. Helena's luau, who broke the flower pot? Where's Kell and Vin?, trip to the fire-house, lock the doors! Verona guys continued at May-Apple Hill — running scared! Together again at McD's. Disaster at the dance — goodbye Verona guys! Mar turns 17, the beginning of the nightmare on wheels! '87 ends and so does the romance with the surfer.

New Year's Eve — Helena's Party, Kell and Mar's endless miles. Hockey games, Cush cheerleaders, losing K, L, and B! Weekends became GUYS — Oh my God, follow them, beep, no a real beep! Easter! Adventures at Ray's, 7-11, midnite bowling, who has the most mileage? 12 o'clock empty handed, heartache hotlines. 4 Fools, Metro, and Stern's, hey guys it's money! REMEMBER . . . It's the cops, wait for me! I want a real man, headbanger, R and L stole our guys, let's take a curb, better yet the whole sidewalk, who's lookin', where's everyone? Come on, where's the parties? Mustangs and Daytonas, he's with a girl, so what!?, talking pizza, is he prom material? Italy, Pat you fashion model! Mexico!!!, Vermont, Mar are you comin' down yet? Where should we go now? . . .

In the end we found our true prize, FRIENDSHIP. Isn't it funny how such different people could become such good friends?

Thanks to our families for their love, support, and patience in these past 18 years. You've helped us build our dreams, now share in our lives as we live them. Best of Luck to the Class of '88.

HELENA, KELLY, MARYANN, & TINA

True friends are like diamonds, precious but rare
 Fake friends are like the leaves, found everywhere

It all started in 11th grade with MS coming to our lunch table, then Cin came along and from then on it was the 3 of us. 5/5/87-JS&LM — it ended too soon. Zora-Chem, 1-way, police; Senior year came: ZA's party-where it all started; LM's party-9/26/87 with Ted and GK. MS-sneaking out with TK; GK-you were a learning experience. MS & LM getting CM into school-Hi, this is my cousin from Boston! Di, Tan, Lori, Mary-going to Garfield, TD-wanna get lost? Physics-hey camper! New Year's Eve-Arabian woman, CM-saw yours, MS added mine! 1st pd. Humanities-MS writing the script & LM acting it out; Hockey and Basketball games-Why did we go? WE know! Jason-our second chase-you're always in my heart. Love you-Lori. Hey you 2-gotta lot of style-it should take you far (but never with these 2!) What was Rocky 4 about?-I'll never forget those who owe me-hey, he still owes me $2. GL-Primo-our games! MS: CA-5/9/86-Crazy for U-2 yr. eye-playing game-MS. Kakousi and Cin-Summer '87; Cin you'll never find the perfect man! MS-my Australian-taught me it all! Bill thanks for covering up for me! I didn't know Greeks were famous for that! LM & MS-Our daily notes-What were they really about? Natalie-we love you! Cat-we have Italy to thank-Love you, LM. BG, LD, TF, KB, NN, Never 4get ya! Thank you to our parents-whom we wouldn't have gotten along without.

This is our story.
 WE AIN'T
 AFRAID OF NO

Jennie Schiller
 — '88

Dear Diary;

Well, we know it's been a very long time since we have written and we are sorry to say that this will be our final entry. Since it's been so long, we figured we should clue you in on what's been happening the last four years.

It all started in Lincoln Jr. High-We were big freshmen then-we ruled the school. Anyway, this was when we met each other. We still remember that day, "Hey, Ya know, You look like my cousin." From that day on Jenine was called, "Lori". Sophomore year and most of Junior year went by then it came time for the Junior Prom. Jenine went with Al and Lori went with Carlos. Oh-What a night-slow dances, NO! fights, Eagle Rook Diner, highbeams. Mat-Did you lose your tongue? Joanna-How did you rip your dress?!

The summer vacation of 87 soon came. We both had mothers we wanted to get rid of. One mother simply moved away, but the other was taken care of as Jenine pursued her summer profession of washing cars. This is when we realized we were truly Best Friends! The summer and Sunday gatherings continued. We kept on working Americana and County Trust. Lori had her license, so we took off as soon as the sun went down. We began to hang around LM & TO. This is when the fun really started. We'll always remember visiting, curbs, gummi bears & favors that were never followed through. Action Park 8/18/88 with LM, GM, & AD. Treating with 15 hamburgers and fighting was a major deal that day. Jesus Rose!, Bobby Bunny, tagging. That night LM dropped his corn. We all began throwing it in and "I'm sorry" was overused. RICKITS not RECORDS! 8/30/87 the best night of our lives. Cobra, CGI, feather, business cards, the taping of CARRIE-How many times? Our book was formed that night too: Where and How-remember the beach-whipped cream-LEG ART 87 to be continued-Bubbles/hands, haha! Meatloaf and Bryan Adams were heard for weeks-Sing 2 us, Immy. Diner was not successfully played and the question was asked "What's dinner for four?" . . . We began to make stops at DQ. "Ben, Strawberry Bliz and a Choc. Sk" .-as usual-Hachoo! Oh yeah we can't forget about Howard Johnson's-"I'll buy something . . ." Chases of all kinds began and some ended. The dreadful Labor Day accident, "Sticker"-cones.

Summer ended and Senior year started. From the first day of school we had senior slump. MWPD-Walks from school-Halls addiction-continual lies-LM teaching JP to parallel park. JP's birthday and the stale cake.-Leather jackets-"What happened to my Coca-Cola sweat-shirt?" Jenine got her license, failed k-turn. Collect calls from Bahamas=$129.00 plus. Straighten out, the cup-NEVER!, Test driving cars, sound effects 2 weird 2 explain. Excuses, Excuses, Excuses-What should I do? Do what you want. Farewell to Al, Chinese fire drills. The Senior Picnic-L1 & L2. L2=JPPI, her new profession. Lori and Tim's professions continued-SHOPPING!, Football games, & 1/2 time.

We soon became couch potatoes with SL, MW, EA, MC, SK, & MM. We finally reached our goals. Never forget weekends at Steve's house-Lori's Roommate. SL&JP 11/17/87 to ?"Hi Steve" 11:30pm — "St. Cloud Playground, yeah!", "Who wet their pants?" MC & LW 12/23/87 "What happened to my white sweatshirt?" Calls from Florida-"Where's my Christmas present?" J-"I DID IT". Basketball games, driving vans, 500 antlers from BK. Lor, "You're in the Will". University of Delaware had a sense of humor. The snow fell and sleigh riding became a daily activity. Then we were corrupted, 1/15/88-1/18/88 and still going. SL-Were these wasted years? The endless circle driving, making problems out of nothing. "Steve, what fell off in the shower?" "Baby Steven, what a mess, Haw. Pu & Choc. Chips! The surfer, all he does is surf and make pizza. Our Hero, "Lighten up, Whatever", his T/A. "give me your opinion". "Make up your own mind"/ For Lori "C" is for Cookie for MC "C" is for CREMORA. Eric the walking TV guide and the Stop sign. Sam-Thanx for all the advice, We love you 4 it. M&D's vacations-Grandma, sneakin out to D&D, renting the Wall, wasted time, electric heater and "Steve, Lori hasn't forgotten the thirty bucks". Lori and her Caldwell College acceptance letters. "Lori-are you comfortable in my passenger seat?"

Linda, how can we forget about you. You are our dearest friend and words cannot express how we feel. We love you-apparently Tony does too-he loves us all! Those were good nights at Charlie Browns. Lori punching the glass for the salad bar and the black wig. Bow Craft and Lori's reckless driving. The Senior Picnic and Dr. Ruth trying to be in the spot light as usual. Who's Molly? All the lunches with Lori. Jenine's story about her last beating-"Come back here you — R!" Now onto a serious note. Thanks for the EARS; We don't think we would've made it without those talks. Good Luck next year. First Aid Squad lives. WILMA! Your Sesame Street albums will be returned, Someday! Rascals Comedy Club-We didn't get kicked out, but could Lori laugh any harder?

The end is drawing near, but is it really an end?-It is just a new beginning. We will never forget all the good times and the friends we have been lucky to have throughout the years. We have not forgotten about you. You have added something special to each of our lives. Never forget, We Love You! LD, TO, LM, JE, SK, SL, MW, EA, MC, MM, AT, KW, KS. An extra thanks to our families, who we think are the Best! Remember the Bahamas!

"LORI AND JENINE" Best Friends Forever!

Let others cheer the winning man,
There's one I hold worthwhile;
Tis he who does the best he can,
Then loses with a smile.
Beaten he is, but not to stay,
Down with the rank and file;
That man will win some other day,
Who loses with a smile.

*We ♥ you,
Mom & Mitzi*

After being rejected from every college he applied to, Jim Goldfarb got a full time job at McDonalds and eventually, with two years of hard work, worked his way up to McManager.

Marc Schafler was able to live out his dream of handling large amounts of cold cash and dealing with exotic sports cars while collecting tolls on the Garden State Parkway (exit 69).

Class of '88 in the year 2000

Returning to his native land, as a corrupt American, Kamal Gheit began insider camel trading, and was eventually caught. As punishment, he was forced to serve twenty years wandering the desert.

While attempting a backflip in the end zone during his football game, Rich Allaway permanently damaged his leg, so he took up a more challenging sport. He is now training with the U.S. Olympic Thumb wrestling Team.

Six months after being elected Mayor of West Orange, Phil Ende was caught committing plagiarism over a dozen times, making him a formidable candidate in the U.S. Presidential election of 2004.

Turning down a job at his father's law firm, Rob Fink's desire to relive memorable high school moments spurred him to start his own Limo company (proms only).

We the willing, led by the unknowing, did the impossible for the ungrateful. We have done so much for so long, with so little, we are now qualified to do anything with nothing.

Good X's, Rough X's — we've had them all. It started with Sweet 16's & of course "FAME". No lines, but hey, can we dance? Summ '86 brought us to CC-what a job! Then came jr. yr. There was Spa Lady, track, Gold Outlet, swim team, The Howard, Johnny C's Lois, A-noo RU & Crow magnon. Big bubba's fan club grew & grew and little bubba was w/MD '85-'87 on & off-but very special. Can't 4get "The Night" Missed curfew again huh? By the way LB, does your shirt still smell like mouthwash? How about slipping out the back door? LB's DT postponed. Jr. prom-Ugh! Let's send 'em a pizza! Summ '87 came & went. Senior yr. Early morning drives w/TN. AD gets her license. Oooh baby! XCountry-don't work too hard now! LB gets 'the Wabbit' & we're off! (almost) Learning to drive a stick! Sr. spirit at football games. Thanxgiving day-barely missed the breakfast. LB's late again! Homecoming at Upsala-calm down AD! Disaster strikes the Wabbit in EO w/JL & CR. Jess-this is no time to laugh! Can't 4get the Audi goes to Rider-all the way home in the rain w/ the window open. At least we got the door shut! Rutgers parties. 12/5/87-JC I literally fell for you! Had the time of my life. When will I see you next? Valentines day-the best ever! DC-you are so special. I will always love you. DC+LB 2/14/88 to-. Senioritis strikes! LB is legal-Surprise! To all our friends — JL, BT, MB, RG, SE, EE, CR, AS, VC, AMS, HS, JG, LS, AS, LE, TN & Nutty. & of course they guys — JC, DC, MD, PB, TM, CB, Cush, & MG (you rat!) Rutgers and Syracuse — here we come.

Congratulations & Good Luck to the Class of '88

Of the times you spent in high school, your senior year is likely the most memorable of all. This was the time in which you shared unforgettable experiences with classmates and friends — many for the first time. The times shared with one another brought smiles, tears, excitement, and hopefully a sense of accomplishment. It is impossible to remember everything you experienced and felt this year, but as you turn the pages of this book, you will be reminded of moments spent. Hopefully, the same emotions you felt during these moments will be rekindled. Ten or twenty years from now, those feelings of pain, pleasure, and fulfillment should enter your hearts once again. The Yearbook staff welcomed the challenge and the opportunity to share these memories with you.
