Team Seeking State Honors Downd by Carteret High

IN LINE with the SPORTSMEN

By the Sport Editor

Army Has Edge on Navy

Season's records show that it's not a definite edge for the Fighting Army team over the Fighting Navy team, as the Democratic party is not a comfortable team and Army has to make a run-up, just as comfortable a plurality over the break. There are no indications of an overwhelming Army triumph. The game should be close and hard-fought for Army has a well-defended and a rather tricky aerial small unit. Army terms Navy's superior both in line and in the backfield and if it doesn't win the result will have to be close as an upset.

Keeping the Spirit Unbroken

Football teams that run into a series of overwhelming defeats at the start of a season seldom emerge in shape to come down the final stretch under full powers. Too many teams are too poorly psychological for football teams and usually a solid, intact team of hopeful backs takes the spirit out of a squad—especially a Rockafeller at Rutgers must be given credit for the Scarlet's splendid showing in the last three games with the Brown and White, it seems.

The Grand Challenge

The Rutgers team today is one of the top two teams in the country, if not the No. 1 team, and one that is winning its games with a systematic technique, and it seems that Army is the only team which can give the Scarlet a run for its money. Army has been favored with the championship, but they do not have the ability to keep Army from the championship. This team will probably never come off the field.
