Armistice Day Rites Noted By Faithful Few

Only a small number of Summit residents turned out to participate in the observance of Armistice Day on Friday. As usual, the exercises were held at the monument in Bonnel Park, opposite the station, with the color guard of veterans marching from the Legion Home in Elm street to the park.

The invocation was pronounced by Aaron Mausko, rabbi of the Jewish Community Center, followed by Mayor Maxwell Lester, Jr., who said that, in part, "We are gathered here today to honor those who died 30 years ago in World War I and those who gave their lives in World War II. We celebrated the close of the first war with the hope that there might be a peaceful settlement of world affairs and that never again would there be war, and we now hope the same."

Mrs. Robert Johnson of 28 Caldwell avenue sang the National Anthem.

Wreaths were placed at the monument by Larry May, Sr., of Summit Post 138, American Legion and Peter Stabill, commander of Beacon Hill Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. John Toomey.

The carillon at the Presbyterian Church played before the start of the ceremonies at the monument.

Referendum Set on Liquor Licenses; Club Act Started

BOROUGH—New Providence is still "ragged over grog." Nearly 200 residents crowded into Lincoln School auditorium Monday for what was purported to be a public hearing on the second reading of an ordinance introduced at a similar session October 10 which would permit the granting of a club license for the consumption of liquor.

Before getting around to the business of the ordinance, Council instructed Borough Clerk Thomas C. Musson to submit a petition signed by 201 registered voters to County Clerk Henry G. Nulton to have it processed for a referendum on the question of consumption of liquor on the premises. It is the intent of council to have the referendum placed on the ballot for the 1950 general election.

Mayor Ellsworth R. Hensell in commenting upon the referendum said in effect the act of the petitioners indicated "a lack of confidence" on the part of a number of citizens in having council handle the situation. Proponents of the

Murder Charge For Summit Man Made in Error

Ward M. Cartee, 35, of 51 Evergreen road was released Monday on $500 bail by Bethlehem, Pa., police after he voluntarily surrendered as a witness in the death of a night club hostess, Mrs. Ruth E. Mickle. An erroneous report issued earlier by Bethlehem police said Cartee was wanted on a murder charge. A correction to a material witness was later made, although not until after the earlier charge had been printed by daily papers.

Two other men, Morton H. Derchin, 22, of Brooklyn and T. J. Schillerf, 30, of Greenwich, Conn., were put on similar bail. Both men are construction engineers and Cartee is field manager for the Lehigh Structural Steel Co. of Allentown, Pa.

Mrs. Mickle, said to be an attractive 31-year-old brunette, was found dead the morning of November 10 at the foot of the stairway leading to the basement Colonnade nightclub. An autopsy showed she died of a skull fracture. She was formerly employed at the club.

Bethlehem police said that Cartee told them he spent a few hours at the club and became engaged in an argument with an off-duty state trooper. He said that upon leaving he saw a woman at the top of the stairs fall, her body passing him when he was halfway up the stairs. Cartee told police he didn't know why he didn't stop after he saw the woman fall.

On Tuesday Cartee told a Herald reporter that he had witnessed the fall. He added that he left Bethlehem for Summit the next day unaware that the woman had been fatally injured. Meanwhile police of that city sent a teletype to Summit police asking for apprehension of Cartee on a murder charge. Local police said that Cartee, upon learning of the Bethlehem charge, immediately left for Bethlehem, Cartee explaining to the Herald that the murder charge was immediately dropped after he told his story to Bethlehem police.

The Northampton County District Attorney, Jacob A. Raub, said, "She may have fallen or she may have been pushed." But added that it now did not look like murder. "It will probably amount to voluntary or involuntary manslaughter at the most," he said.

Local Homes Will Receive TB Seals Beginning Monday

Monday is the opening date of the 43rd annual Christmas Seal Campaign conducted by the Union County Tuberculosis and Health League, Inc. It was announced jointly yesterday by Summit's officers, H. Donald Holmes and Franz A. Bohne.

This year's goal throughout the United States and territories is $80,000, an increase of $5,000 over last year.

Dr. John E. Rannels, president of the League and Superintendent and Medical Director of Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, yesterday joined the local men in stressing the importance of the campaign.

He emphasized that the purchase of Christmas Seals, which are sent to thousands of Union County residents, is the sole means of income to carry on the fight against T. B.

Declaring that tuberculosis is still more deadly than any other communicable disease, Dr. Rannels revealed that in the county during 1948 there were 150 new cases and 64 deaths from the disease.

"Tuberculosis is still a fight," Dr. Rannels said disclosing that Bonnie Burn is filled to capacity with patients from Union County.

In 1948, 170 patients were admitted to the sanatorium for the first time and 82 were readmitted. The remainder of the 232 patients have been there from one to five years or more.

Elks Present Flag to North Summit Group

Summit lodge of Elks presented a new flag to the North Summit Memorial Committee. The new flag will replace an old one which has been used on the pole of Washington School playground.

The memorial committee consists of former Police Lieutenant Thomas Reynolds, Joseph Sandillo and Anthony Soite. This memorial committee organized immediately after World War II and erected a flag pole and memorial to commemorate the boys of that section of the city who were killed.

CHORUS GIRLS in the floor show presented Monday night at the Overlook Hospital Auxiliary talent party rehearse a number for the more than 300 persons who attended the party. Preliminary screening and selection of the cast took place for the Follies to be held December 9 and 10 at Summit High School for the benefit of the Auxiliary's linen fund. Clifford F. Lindholm

Rotary Seen Aid To World Peace, Club Official Says

"Rotary Clubs in 51 countries throughout the world are united in an endeavor to promote international understanding, good will and peace," was the statement made by Clifford F. Lindholm, governor of District 259 of Rotary International, at the open luncheon meeting of the Summit Club at the YMCA on Monday. Gov. Lindholm was making an official visit. He lives in Passaic and is president of Falstrom Company, steel fabricator.

Continuing Gov. Lindholm said that in addition to 7,000 clubs in their own communities promoting this objective, during the next three years Rotary International will spend $250,000 principally to create better understanding among the peoples of different nations, mainly through Rotary Foundation Fellowships which enable graduate students to study abroad for one year as ambassadors of good will. Since this program was established in 1947, 111 fellowships have been awarded to student in 27 countries, grants totaling more than $250,000.

Similar to UN

He said, "Devoted to service, Rotary provides a common ground for 330,000 business and professional executives throughout the world, regardless of nationalities or political or religious beliefs."

There is a striking parallel, he said, between the program of Rotary and the United Nations Charter, and that since the organization of the United Nations in 1945, Rotary Clubs throughout the world have been active in the development of an informed public opinion on the objectives of the UN in an endeavor to make it an effective instrument for free peoples everywhere.

"Wherever Rotary Clubs are located," he said, "their activities are similar to those of the Rotary Club of Summit because they are based on the same general objectives—developing better understanding and fellowship among business and professional men, promoting community betterment undertakings, raising the standards of business and professions, and fostering the advancement of good."

Hearings on the proposed helicopter passenger and mail service to Summit and other New York City metropolitan areas have been set for January 9, the Civil Aeronautics Board said this week. Seven applications to provide service have been filed.

SA of hearing, for which a December 5 date had been originally set, has not yet been determined. The CAB said, but will "most likely" be held in Washington.

Applicants in the preceding are: Air Commuting, Inc.; Metropolitan Aviation Corp.; New York Helicopter Corp.; New York Airways, Inc.; Air Industries, Inc.; Interurban Airways, Inc.; and Aebury Park, (N. J.)—New York Transit Corp.

The New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development is one of several State and city agencies which has petitioned the CAB to appear in the proceedings as an intervenor.

The Post Office Department has told the CAB that on the basis of two surveys it has made, "no helicopter route in the New York City area would carry sufficient mail to justify its establishment."

In general, the applicants propose to carry mail and passengers to and from La Guardia, Idlewild and Newark airports and intermediate points in New York and New Jersey adjacent to the New York City metropolitan area.

Record Crowd Protests City Housing Authority Ordinance

Hearing Changed to Dec. 13 at High School Because of Interest

With an estimated attendance of more than 275 residents, believed to be the largest number ever to crowd into the present Municipal Building on a single occasion, Common Council unanimously introduced at first hearing Tuesday night an ordinance creating the "Housing Authority of the City of Summit."

Men's Groups of Churches to Study Housing Project

Study of the proposed slum clearance project was decided this week by the Men's Division of the Summit Council of Churches. At a meeting held last Friday at the YMCA the churchmen, after discussing the project with members of the Citizens Advisory Group on Public Housing and Councilman Rome A. Betts, made known their intention to give full study to the project. Earlier in the week the Men's Bible class of Central Presbyterian Church, through a resolution passed, went on record as favoring the creation of a local housing authority for Summit. The Common Council has been notified of the action of the Central Presbyterian group.

According to W. I. McNeill of Hillcrest avenue, chairman of men's division committee studying the housing project, the division will make every effort to publicize the benefits of a housing program for Summit. Men's groups of the various churches will be asked to familiarize their memberships with the program and attend the hearing to be held December 13 at the High School.

Local Report Made

The Advisory Committee on Housing, appointed by the Council submitted its report in August of this year stating that there were two solutions to the problem of removing substandard dwellings from Summit. The first, a properly constituted Housing Authority which would enter into a contract with the Federal Authority for funds; and the second, strict enforcement of the 1942 Rehabilitation Ordinance since all existing substandard dwellings are in violation of this ordinance.

An earlier report on housing made in 1948 listed the number of local substandard dwellings as 243. The same year a Federal report listed the number as 471. A representative of the Federal government, meeting with the Advisory Committee, advised that the minimum project for this city that could be self-sustaining even with Federal and local subsidies was 100 units. Locally, this could be made into two 50-unit projects by having one maintenance man serve both projects.

Loan of $300 per Unit

The Federal government would provide a preliminary loan of $200 per unit for studies, development costs and other preliminary planning. The city would own the project and bonds covering the cost could be amortized over a period of forty years. The project, however, must be tax free by the city.

Approximately half of the 243 houses are in three areas, Glenwood place, Weaver Arms and the Railroad avenue area. The balance

More than one of the citizens who spoke expressed fear of independent agencies responsible to no elected public official or representative body. This feeling was given further emphasis by former Mayor E. T. Snook who pointed out the fact that the housing authority is vested with the power of eminent domain in pursuit of its duties.

Mayor Snook again brought out the thought expressed by others that new low-rent housing will attract to Summit more low-income families, thus aggravating the housing shortage and forcing postponement of the slum-zapping program which follows the construction of new housing units.

It is within the power of the housing authority to extend at will the regularly constituted period of five years after which replaced substandard housing units must be destroyed. Speakers against the program pointed out that housing authorities in many cities have permitted these extensions for as long as fifteen years with the result that newcomers of low incomes are now enjoying the new facilities while the sub-standard dwellings still exist.

A Summit resident, R. M. Clark of Passaic avenue, raised the question of whether existing laws of the city were not adequate to control the slum problem; either

Community Chorus to Give Local Man's Composition

Selection of the date of December 13 for the annual Christmas concert of the Summit Community Chorus was announced this week. A feature of the event will be the offering for the first time in this city of an original composition by a long-time resident of Summit, Sydney Thomson of Passaic avenue. The concert will be given at 8:15 p. m. at Calvary Episcopal Church.

Mr. Thomson's work, "Postlude—In Eccelesia Gloria," is written for an eight part chorus without accompaniment. It was composed in 1938 and dedicated to the Community Chorus at that time. The composition was never sung before by the group because of the lack of voices. It was, however, presented by a Montclair choral group in that city a few years ago. This year, because of the growing membership of the Community Chorus, the number is being included on the program. Other selections will be works by Mozart, Buxtehude, Pearall and others. The group of eighty mixed voices will be under the direction of Steve Prussing of Plainfield.

The December 13 concert will be the thirtieth Christmas concert given by the group since the inauguration of the custom. The Chorus, which is supported entirely from membership dues and gifts of patrons, prepares early in the fall for a program of outstanding Christmas music to which the public is invited without charge.

Summit Man Ends
48-Year Career
With Weston Corp.

John A. Clark, 28 Duval Hill road, was honored at a testimonial dinner in the Essex House, Newark, last night, on the occasion of his retirement from Weston Electrical Instrument Corp., Newark.

John A. Clark

The career of Mr. Clark is a romantic industrial story. Starting in 1901 as a laboratory assistant, he soon progressed to foreman of the laboratory. In 1915 he was technical representative to Russia and hardly escaped through Siberia and Japan with Mrs. Clark following the Kerensky Revolution. During the first World War he was busily engaged with the Weston company's war expansion program and then was sent to Europe as the general representative in western Europe with headquarters in Paris, France. A survey study of the electrical instrument field in the U.S.A. and Canada occupied him for about three years and as assistant to Weston's president, he supervised the transfer of the Jewel Instrument Co. of Chicago to the Weston plant in Newark in 1932.

Japan was Mr. Clark's next stop and in 1936 he made a survey of the industry there; 1937-1938 saw him in England in charge of the Weston plant at Surbiton near London. From there he returned to Newark to manage the second World War expansion program. During the war years 1943-1945, Mr. Clark was attached to the radar and radio division at Washington, D. C. and was technical expert on instruments for the Air Technical Service Command, A. A. F.

In 1945 he was sent to Germany immediately after our occupation to inspect captured plants for improved techniques or procedures.

A new engineering building occupied his attention next and he was responsible for the functional layout and construction. The purchase of the Tagliabue Corporation, of Brooklyn, by the Weston Company presented Mr. Clark with another problem in the moving and coordinating of the Tagliabue business to Newark.

Mr. Clark is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Instrument Society of America.

Following his retirement, Mr. and Mrs. Clark will make their home at Lake Worth, Florida.

Industrial Strife
Told to Kiwanis

"How We Settle Industrial Disputes" was the subject of an address before Summit Kiwanians at their Tuesday luncheon in the Hotel Beechwood. The speaker was Professor Maurice Trotts, chairman of the economics department of Upsala College. He spoke under the auspices of Rutgers University Institute of Management and Labor Relations.

Explaining the importance of the existing machinery to settle disputes between labor and management, the speaker said that without this machinery to settle disputes, "we have economic warfare, strikes, slowdowns and physical violence. Without courts to settle disputes chaos would result. International warfare results because there is no supreme body to settle disputes between nations."

He commended the New Jersey Board of Mediators, likewise the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. The speaker also spoke highly of private machinery such as the American Arbitration Association.

United Campaign Falling Short of $139,919 Quota

The United Campaign fund will probably fall short of its goal by almost $25,000. Richard G. Moser, campaign chairman predicted yesterday. The quota is $139,919.

Cash, Checks and pledges to date total approximately $109,100 but a study of the records, Mr. Moser pointed out, provides a basis for estimating the final total which would indicate only $118,000 for this year.

Early this week Mr. Moser called a meeting of the heads of all the services represented by the United Campaign and its Central Committee for last night but as the Herald went to press no decisions were available.

Declaring that the member services need the full amount of their budgets, Mr. Moser said, "I have asked the heads of these nine agencies to consider with us what our next step should be at this time." The nine services are: YM-CA, Overlook Hospital, YWCA, Family Service Association, Mental Hygiene Society, Lincoln YM-CA, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Dessert will precede the program, and the public is welcome. Contributions and reservations are being made through Mrs. Frank Connell, Summit 6-2647.

Hickok Tells Newcomers of City Government

The Newcomers Club of Summit held their November luncheon meeting in the Audubon Room of the Hotel Suburban on Tuesday.

Ernest S. Hickok, president of the Common Council, welcomed all the Newcomers and explained the formation of the city government, the election of council members, and the purposes to which they adhere. He urged that all newcomers acquaint themselves with the community government by asking questions of the council members and by attending meetings. Two brochures were distributed concerning Summit: "It's Your Money" and "Summit's Story—A Chronicle for the City of Summit on its Fiftieth Anniversary."

Miss Catharine Manners was introduced by the chairman of the day, Mrs. Richard Wellbrock. Miss Manners is a fashion expert from L. Bamberger and Co. She is also a fashion editor of "Woman's Day" and has been affiliated with "Life" and "Woman's Home Companion" in a similar capacity. The theme of her talk was "Fashion Forecasts." Predictions for spring as well as color, line, and fabrics, were presented by a display of apparel and accessories.

Mrs. W. Knapp Baily, president, introduced Mrs. Paul Sharts who H. Oswald Jr., and Mrs. Roy A. will be chairman of the December Riddle.

meeting to be held at the Canoe Brook Country Club.

The committee for the day included: Mrs. Wellbrock, chairman, Mrs. William A. Smith, Mrs. William North, Mrs. Walter Harland, Mrs. Richard Lawrence, Mrs. R. H. Nichols Jr., Mrs. John Dempsey, Mrs. James Hoffer, Mrs. W.

The door prize, a ten dollar gift certificate from the Summit Food Market, was won by a new newcomer, Mrs. Maxwell Howarth.

In 1823 Captain Cornelius Jacobus May touched on the southern tip of New Jersey, but it was not until Nov. 19, 1892, that the New Jersey Assembly established the new county of Cape May.

"Not By Might Nor By Power"

STRIKES THEIR CAUSE and CURE

Strikes are the fever stage of an economic disease brought about by fear, greed and hate. They are contagious and the more the employees receive in wages the more is spent for the non-essential additives that feed the disease. Management is likewise a victim of these additives since the more they are tormented by day and night bargaining sessions and the pressure of stockholders and striking leaders, the more they are tempted to use the caffeine drinks, tobacco and liquor in order to dull irritated nerves and get a temporary release from reality.

Labor and management have for years been trying to settle their differences by might and power and to use force to do what should be done in a spirit of love.

Why not try a new scientific approach to this problem that will have just as powerful and instantaneous results as the atomic bomb had in helping to finish the war with Japan.

When people's minds are filled with fear, greed and hate, it finds expression in crime, sickness, accidents, poverty and strikes, and in the past where national interests have clashed, it has led to war.

Science has found that fear can be changed to courage, greed to generosity and hate into good will by avoiding and overcoming the use of all additives.

Here is a simple way to stop strikes. Let the President and all the Governors issue simultaneously Proclamations calling upon our 140 million people to fast for three days, especially from all additives, and at the same time to stop the sale of all non-essential nerve irritants such as tea, coffee, colas, chocolate, cigarettes, cigars, tobacco, beer, wine, all alcoholic beverages and any other habit forming drugs until such time as the malady has abated.

The $100,000,000 per day that is saved by this fast should be donated to the starving people of the world as a Christmas gift and thus generate a spirit of good will that our modern world so greatly needs.

Peace on Earth and Good Will to Men can easily be accomplished by the above simple formula. Try it. It is guaranteed to work both individually and collectively.

HOWARD B. BISHOP.

A Little Known Ordinance

There is a little known ordinance on Summit's statute books that is extremely pertinent to local slum clearances. This ordinance gives the city authority to compel landlords of "blighted" property to repair or remodel to bring the dwellings up to the basic minimum required for human habitation.

In our city, according to the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Housing, there are about 300 dwellings that should be immediately fixed up regardless of whatever is done about a slum clearance project. These homes are outside of the areas that would be affected by a housing project and are considered detrimental to the welfare of the inhabitants.

Back in 1938 the Board of Health recommended that eight of them be demolished but because of the war, legal technicalities, a housing shortage and other factors, they still stand and still serve as homes.

Not all of the sub-standard dwellings need razing. Most of them could be made livable by modernizing plumbing and heating. All of them could be made presentable by decorating both interiors and exteriors.

It should be a matter of civic pride for owners of these properties to make them as attractive as possible, but apparently the economic factor outweighs civic pride.

The ordinance, passed in 1942, relates to the "repair, closing and demolition of dwellings unfit for human habitation in the City of Summit." It defines such dwellings and provides for the remedies and procedures in connection with such work and authorizes the city to assess the cost of the work as a municipal lien against the land and premises.

In other words, the City may determine that a structure is unfit for habitation for several reasons, including fire hazards, dilapidation, lack of facilities, uncleanness or structural defects, and order the owner to make the property conform. If the owner refuses, or does not act within a proper interval, then the city may, after hearings, itself make the repairs, close the premises or demolish. The costs of any of these courses being a lien against the property. The ordinance definitely has teeth in it.

Phoebe Snow

Has there ever been a boy or girl—or even a grown man or woman, for that matter—who has never stood at a railroad crossing and gazed wistfully and spellbound as a roaring train whizzed past? Well, for the purpose of argument there may have been some who have been left unmoved at the sight of a train, but we've never met them.

There is not a morning that goes by (Sundays and holidays excepted) when more than one mother and child does not tarry at our station to wait and see daddy's train leave. The thrill is not in seeing pop depart for the day but in watching the train glide out of the station. To many small fry there is nothing like seeing one of the Lackawanna's red-streaked trains hurtle past Summit; and we are quite sure that the adults feel certain stirrings as they watch the massive cars roll past destined for distant places.

On Tuesday of this week the Lackawanna placed a new train in service. It is called the "Phoebe Snow" and is named after the Lackawanna's famed advertising character of the years from 1900 to 1914. The new streamliner is an ultra-modern train in daily two-way service between Hoboken and New York and will be passing through our town on each trip. Among railroad fans she will first be a subject of interest, and later, as they become more familiar with her goings and comings she will be an old friend, just as other Lackawanna "name" trains have become.

The communities served by the Lackawanna are proud of their railroad and take delight in bragging of its dependability and service to those unfortunate who are forced to commute and depend on the vagaries of less well-managed lines. Consequently we think Phoebe Snow will be welcomed by those who live "along the Lackawanna" even if they may never have the occasion to travel on this beautiful train named after a beautiful lady. The train is further indication of the progressiveness of the Lackawanna and we join with other towns along the line to wish Phoebe Snow the best of luck and many happy trips.

Another Playhouse Season

Quietly, with little noise or widespread publicity, but with a great deal of time and effort, a group of local people continue to do an excellent job of bringing good entertainment to the community. We refer, of course, to the Summit Playhouse Association who this week present "Make Way for Lucia." Throughout the season members of this amateur group, which ranks in the top bracket of similar organizations, plan, rehearse and present high quality shows.

The old library where the plays are produced offers many problems not ordinarily met by other community dramatic groups and it is all to the credit of our Association that they can make every show a pleasure.

Newcomers and others who have yet to see the Playhouse group in action will assure themselves of an evening of good theater at no inconvenience. Regular patrons are well aware of this. We congratulate the Association on the opening of their new season and publicly join in the applause that was so plentiful Monday night.

What's Wrong With Parents?

(Montclair Times)
Nothing that a little more kindly consideration could not cure, if we are to judge from the consensus of opinion expressed in this paper several weeks ago by local members of Boy Scout troops of the community.

In the article, it will be recalled, the boys complained of the fact that they did not see their parents, especially their fathers, as much as they desired. They indicated that the dinner table was about the only opportunity they had to get acquainted with their fathers.

It certainly is important to examine statements like this made by the parents of future generations of Americans. Man, being the habit-forming animal he is, tends to imitate his forebears. Therefore, if the young people of the present day are completely cognizant of the fact that time does not allow for as much of the genial, friendly family relationships as they want, it may be an indication that things will be different when they become parents.

On the other hand, the opinions expressed may be in a class with the old saying: "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it." With this in mind, let us examine the family unit today.

That type of family relationship which seems most conducive to producing future citizens of the type so needed in the world today may be said to be that wherein a group of people, mother, father and children, work and play together toward a common aim of gaining as much happiness from life as possible.

Perhaps one of the faults inherently responsible for the attitude of the young people is their realization that there are too many organizations and groups which are assuming more and more of the duties of character building which were limited in times gone by. Sunday School, school, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, YMCA, YWCA, Community House, Teen-age Club; all of these basically wholesome groups combine to give parents the feeling that the responsibility is being taken from their shoulders.

All of these facilities are excellent, but parents must realize that the chief job of building the characters of their children remains with them. It is time that parents re-appraised what they are doing for their children.

Typical of the times in which we live is a remark overheard by a parent the other day in a discussion on this very subject: "I give everything to my children. We have two cars in which they can ride. They get a very liberal allowance, for which they do not have to account to anyone. Every summer we go up to the Cape as soon as school is over and do not return until the school session is about to begin. Oh yes, my children are well taken care of."

Are they? Granted that it is nice to be able to give our children as much of the material things in life as possible, there are some more valuable attributes which all of us can give them, regardless of whether or not we can buy them the latest toys or take them to the latest Broadway show.

It is about time that parents realized that the idea that character is built in the home is not an out-moded thing, but that it is a way of life that is absolutely necessary if this country is to continue to enjoy the basic freedoms to which it is accustomed. Remember, despite the number of excellent character building agencies ready and willing to work with our children, it is in the home, and the home alone, that the terms, "a person of principle," "a noble character" and a "well-mannered individual," will be applied to the adult from which the child grew.

LETTERS

Free Liquor To Voters
Editor, Summit Herald:
According to the laws of the State of New Jersey there is not supposed to be any liquor or alcoholic beverages served on Election Day before the polls close.

In the eastern part of Summit there was distribution of free liquor to all "takers." Who can question their "good taste" in voting?

There is no intention of insinuation that votes can be bought in Summit. The idea is that voters under the influence of liquor might pull down all levers in the voting machine. It would be well if this situation could be corrected in the future so that each candidate will have an equal chance in winning the election.

And so the political campaign came to an end in Summit, and most everybody happy!

Urges Housing Project
Editor, Summit Herald:
Because of the housing condition in Summit I am in favor of the Federal Housing Program.

It would be an asset to Summit to clean up the Slums and make the center of the town more attractive.

It is said, building F. H. P. on Weaver street would overcrowd Washington School. There are not that many children on Glenwood place that would cause overcrowding.

I should also think that it would be appreciated by employers to know that their employees were living in clean and comfortable places.

Some people speak of F. H. P. bringing undesirables in the community, that statement is untrue, because we all know that, in order to be eligible to live in these apartments, people will have to meet certain requirements.

Begging, yes we are begging, please agree to build these F. H. P. so that we might have a decent place to live. Citizens of other cities agreed, what's so different about Summit?

There are some clean and there are some dirty, there are some respectable and some disreputable, there are some honest and some dishonest in every human race. So give every man a fair chance to live clean wholesome lives.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Ruth Lyles

SERVICES FOR ALL FAITHS

Often times, we hear of families who really wanted to employ our services but hesitated because of a difference in religious beliefs. The feeling exists, presumably, that we may be unprepared to fulfill the needs and customs of their faith.

Such is not the case. During the past years we have conducted funerals for families of many nationalities and creeds. It is part of our training to understand the needs of each. In fact, our personnel was selected with this thought in mind.

Welfare Dept. To Hold Sewing Session Monday

The Fortnightly Club's Welfare Department will meet on Monday in the club house for all day sewing. It was announced yesterday by Mrs. William Clarke chairman.

The department's special project for this month is mending for the Children's Home. Also the making of curtains, bed spreads and dresses for the girls. The material was donated by a friend of the Home.

Mrs. Clarke pointed out that the department, which now has a membership of more than 50, raises money for the welfare projects chiefly through the annual spring rummage sale. The articles are contributed by members. She said that this year the main contribution was $500 to the Overlook Hospital Building Fund. She added that an additional $300 is pledged for next year. The department also gave $50 to the United Campaign.

Disclosing that the department purchases its equipment from money earned at the rummage sale and from articles sold at club fairs, Mrs. Clark said that two sewing machines were purchased recently.

However, she added that additional ones are needed and that anyone wishing to contribute one "would be doing the department a great favor." The department also needs card tables and a large dining room extension table.

Cotton's a King in New Jersey

TEXTILE FINISHING
 ...an Important Industry

Some of the most popular cottons on the market acquire their fine finish in our state. The gray goods are shipped from the weaver to finishing plants here, where they are converted into beautiful and practical wearing fabrics. They are then sold to ready-to-wear manufacturers and to retailers for across-the-counter sales. These materials are in demand all over the country, and the home market absorbs a large percentage, as the garment trade flourishes in New Jersey.

The process by which gray goods are converted into attractively finished fabrics is a complicated one. True colors and clearly defined patterns are not the result of haphazard work. Machinery of a highly intricate nature is required. Washing, printing and pressing are among the tasks Electricity performs and Gas takes a hand in the singeing operations.

Referendum Set

referendum, who included Council President Robert Badgley and Councilman E. L. Kilpatrick strongly disagreed with the mayor on the question of "lack of confidence." Referendum adherents denied this saying their action was done in the same spirit in which a citizen would proceed when seeking an exception to a zoning ordinance. The mayor countered by saying he used the words "lack of confidence," possibly because of "lack of a better word."

Shelving Efforts Fail
The gathered multitude soon learned that the evening's proceedings were to be quite extended on the lone subject of licenses. Following the action on the referendum, Councilman Badgley moved that any action on the proposed club license ordinance be held in abeyance until after the results of the Referendum would be determined next November. His motion was seconded by Councilman Kilpatrick.

In making his shelving motion, Mr. Badgley declared: "A substantial number of citizens have asked for a referendum which is mandatory once it is submitted. The withholding of further consideration until the referendum is held is a practical and reasonable approach. Have the people themselves decide."

Councilman Carl M. Stuehler, chairman of the special committee named by Mayor Hansell in August to study the merits of drafting the club license ordinance opposed Mr. Badgley's move to shelve the ordinance. The chairman said he had lost sleep over the subject, not over the consequences, but rather the fact that the club people to be affected are "perfectly honorable people." Mr. Stuehler added: "These club people are working people. I have made a study of clubs here and in other towns. The members habitually get together to discuss mutual problems and buy drinks." Councilman Stuehler asked that the petition for the referendum should be withdrawn because of the ordinance he (Mr. Stuehler) was going to introduce to prohibit the issuance of any retail plenary consumption licenses.

Councilman Frank A. Pizzi, who with Mr. Stuehler formed the maajority of the special committee, joined in the request that the petition be withdrawn. However after Councilman Kilpatrick drew from Borough Attorney Frederick A. Lorents the opinion that the Referendum ballot next year would not in any way affect the introduction of the ordinance which would authorize club licenses, council took its action, 4-2, on re-introducing the ordinance, turning down Mr. Badgley's request to shelve it.

Borough Attorney Lorents said the referendum question on the sale of liquor for consumption on the premises is worded according to statute and does not distinguish between clubs and taverns. He said the question will be whether or not the retail sale of alcoholic beverages for consumption on the premises shall be permitted in the borough.

According to Mayor Hansell, if the vote on the question is "Yes," council will have a moral obligation to permit both club and tavern licenses. In an informal poll, each councilman said he would be guided by the results of the referendum. In the event the majority vote is "No," club and bar licenses will be prohibited, including any which may be issued between now and election time.

To Prohibit Taverns
After introducing the club license ordinance, Council unanimously introduced an ordinance which would prohibit the issuance of retail plenary consumption licenses. Councilmen Stuehler, Frank H. Pratt, John Wright and Pizzi said their purpose of wanting the ordinance prohibiting taverns was to put them "on record" as being opposed to the sale of liquor publicly in the borough.

Monday night's meeting was the second spontaneous "public hearing" on the club proposal. The first, October 10, preceded introduction of the original ordinance. The official public hearing on that ordinance was scheduled Monday night. After making changes which would make it illegal not only to purchase but to drink liquor in a club after set closing hours, the proposal was introduced as a new ordinance.

Sunday Closing Defeated
By terms of the club ordinance the annual fee for a license shall be $100. The hours during which licensees may sell shall be from 9

a. m. until midnight on weekdays; on Fridays and Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 2 a. m. of the following day; on Sunday from noon until 10 p. m. and on New Year's Eve from 9 a. m. until 2 a. m. of the following day.

Councilman Badgley and Kilpatrick asked that the Sunday hours in the club ordinance be stricken. However, they were defeated in the request.

The proposals for club licenses came as a result of a request by the Poca Club last July, a social group which has a membership of 100 and a ladies auxiliary of 75. The club has its own home off Livingston avenue.

Monday's "informal hearing" lasted nearly four hours. The legal public hearing will be held December 12.

At the initial "informal hearing" on October 10, opponents of the club license proposal argued on the merits of club licenses and liquor licenses in general. Monday night the debate turned to the referendum under the leadership of Clyde Noll, attorney, and consideration of a letter and the petition referendum for the voters to settle the issue at the polls.

Joseph F. Lavery, sharply clashing with the councilmen who at first wanted the referendum withdrawn, asserted to them: "You can't say, 'I am the law.' This is not Hudson County. The wishes of the voters should be respected. Councilman Wright in explaining his vote for the club license ordinance congratulated Mr. Stuehler in "extending himself to protect the best interests of the town and more permanently."

Rev. Reese R. Hill of the Methodist Church congratulated Councilmen Badgley and Kilpatrick for having the courage to be in the minority on the council in the question.

Motorists Warned Not to Impede Fire Department

BOROUGH—On recommendation of Councilman Carl M. Stuehler, chairman of the fire committee, Borough Council issued a stern warning at its Monday night meeting to local motorists and any others for that matter who have a habit of galloping off to any fire or bent on investigating fire alarms.

In a letter to council, Mr. Stuehler reported to Council Ernest Fischer, president of the Fire Department had reported to him an incident on Amistade Day. A motorist on Maple street, no name given, was cited for pulling out ahead of the fire truck answering the alarm. The guilty motorist plodded ahead of the fire truck greatly impeding its progress in answering the alarm. In making matters worse other motorists get on the road and retard volunteer firemen going to the fire.

The letter stated there was no desire at present, at least, to prosecute offenders for their conduct. Henceforth, motorists are requested to "pull over to the right" and allow fire trucks and the volunteers to proceed to the fire.

Sites that have been suggested for housing projects are on Weaver street across from the Weaver Arms, which was erected in 1908 as a "temporary" dwelling; the end of Clark street or Middle avenue. Other sites may be desirable but final selection of any site will rest with the Housing Authority. Projects in the above named areas will clear Glenwood place and the Railroad avenue section, leaving those sites available for parking lots or future development.

Motorists Warned About Hazards Of Skidding

TOWNSHIP—The approach of wintry weather with the attendant hazard of skidding should serve as a warning to motorists to drive at a speed befitting conditions, declared Charles M. Monica, chairman of the New Providence Township Highway Safety Coordinating Committee today. His reminder is part of this community's participation in the state-wide drive to prevent speeding accidents, which are No. 1 cause of highway fatalities.

"Nothing can create a greater feeling of helplessness in a motorist than to find himself in the middle of a skid. The best way to avoid skidding accidents is to avoid a skid," the chairman declared.

"Now that we are in the season of expected freezing rains and snow (hurries, motorists should be on the alert for unexpected patches of ice, which are so hazardous because they appear on highways which are apparently normal."

The Chairman called on motorists to remember that it often takes as much as ten times the distance to stop a car on an icy pavement as it does on the same pavement if dry, and consequently every driver should proceed at a speed suitable for conditions.

"However, if a driver does get in a skid the basic remedy is to get the wheels rolling again and stop their sliding motion. The front wheels should be turned in the direction of the skid, and avoid jamming on brakes which accentuates the skid. A light touch on the accelerator often helps to start the wheels rolling and aids in overcoming the sliding," he declared.

Chairman Monica declared that speeding was responsible for 1,038 accidents in New Jersey in October and November, 1943.

New Providence Township is one of more than 500 New Jersey municipalities cooperating with the New Jersey Highway Safety Coordinating Committee to combat speeding accidents in a uniform, concerted program, during October and November. Emphasis previously had been stressed on following too closely and right-of-way violations.

Besides the chairman, members of the local committee are N. J. Eich and Chief of Police D. V. Russo, Jr.

Public Housing Hearing Dec. 13

making possible the necessary new housing units or by forcing owners of sub-standard buildings to make alterations to bring them up to standard.

As a corollary to this question, it was asked if present laws are being enforced to achieve full results. The example of the City of Baltimore, whose slum-clearance projects have recently been publicized, was cited to show how a municipality can succeed in the elimination of sub-standard housing.

Councilman Betts, answering these questions, pointed out that the City of Baltimore is able, through a broader authority from the State of Maryland, to pass and enforce slum-clearance laws from the health and public welfare standpoint. No such broad authority, Mr. Betts said, now exists in New Jersey.

Few of those present failed to recognize the need for some kind of improvement in Summit's low-income housing situation, but many due to insufficient notice of the proposed ordinance, and lack of information on both sides of the question, held that a more thorough public discussion of the problem was essential before any action should be taken.

Stanley O. Morgan, of the Summit Interracial Committee, speaking from the floor, posed the question of alternatives to the housing authority. Emphasizing that something must be done for those Summit residents who are forced to live in sub-standard dwellings, Mr. Morgan asked, "If there is to be no housing authority, what is there to be?"

Terminating Mr. Morgan's statements as "the most intelligent made here tonight," Marlowe

Young of 211 Kent Place boulevard offered to take anyone on a tour of Summit to point out the number of dwellings without even a bathtub or a toilet.

Avowing himself a Democrat and referring to Council as composed entirely of Republicans, Mr. Young said that, in spite of his political affiliations, he was not necessarily in favor of a housing authority.

The question of a referendum on the housing authority raised by Howard Welsh of Evergreen Road brought the answer "Could be" from Council President Hickock.

C. J. Faherty of 100 West End avenue, addressing his remarks to the Public Affairs Committee in whose jurisdiction the housing authority lies, warned of the power which such an authority wields once it is formed, and appealed to the Committee not to form it lest they be unable to stop it.

City's Policy Not Decided

The creation of a housing authority by the Common Council does not commit the Common Council to a definite policy of having or not having low rent housing in the City. It is felt that the creation of a housing authority is desirable since that body can further continue to study the need for such projects. The housing authority has certain powers inherent in the law, which are not within the power of the Common Council. It is needless to point out that the work of the housing authority as proposed in the ordinance introduced this evening, will be burdensome and will entail a great amount of work.

At a request of council and by demand of many of those attending Tuesday's session of council, the remainder of council's comments on its action in introducing the ordinance follow:

Extended Study Made

Since the enacting of the Federal Housing Act of 1937, the Common Council has had the benefit of much work and study by

Cities Steady Growth

Each year, he said, the worldwide service organization continues to grow in numbers and in strength. During the last fiscal year, for example, 347 new Rotary Clubs were organized in 37 countries of North, South and Central America, Europe, Asia, Africa and the Islands of the Pacific.

In conclusion Gov. Lindholm admonished his listeners to "Carry on, build a better world in which to live."

At the request of President Peterson, the speaker was introduced by Dean Frank G. Lankard of Drew.

President Robert O. Peterson introduced Dr. Lankard, who is retiring from Drew, and George Fitzsimmons and Julius Rosenthal, who were in the Governor's party.

Visitors were introduced by Frank H. Pratt, member of the conference and conventions committee: Charles Dent, Dallas, Texas; Neil Elphick, Ray Haller, W. Kelton Evans, Preston A. Burroughs, Charles J. McDermott, Madison; Roland Ewan, Robert L. Benedict, Edward Lonergan, Millburn; John Squires, guest of Fred Behrendt; Ralph Hockman, Sidney J. Milligan, Newark; William E. White, guest of Erwin E.

Rachlin; Matty Mathewson, Plainfield; W. Richmond Tracy, Elizabeth Club; John A. Deltrich, Union; Percy Shaffer, Hillside.

On Tuesday evening Rotary Anns, and their husbands had dinner together in the YMCA after which they were taken by bus to New York where they saw "As the Girls Go," a Broadway hit. There will be no regular session of the club on Monday next, but a round table will take place at the New Hampshire House.

Cancer Facts

Do you have a cancer question which puzzles you? If it is not of a personal nature, and does not involve professional ethics, send it to the American Cancer Society, New Jersey Division, Inc., 700 Broad Street, Newark 2, New Jersey. Advice on available medical facilities for diagnosis and proper care will be made available to you on request.

Q—Is cancer of the prostate common and at what age does it generally occur?

A—Cancer of the prostate is one of the most common forms of cancer in older men. A thorough physical examination is the only way to discover this hidden cancer early enough for cure.

Q—What is the difference in the action of x-rays and radium on cancer tissue?

A—There is no essential difference. When properly used both will destroy cancer cells without seriously injuring the normal cells in which they come in contact.

Q—Can the spread of cancer be stopped or retarded temporarily?

A—At times it can. Certain cancerous growths, hopeless from the standpoint of cure, may be controlled temporarily by proper treatment. Sooner or later however, these growths may fail to respond to further treatment.

Customers' Corner

Why will food prices go up if the anti-trust lawyers win their suit to put A&P out of business?

Here is just one of a number of reasons:

We manufacture many of the quality foods we sell in our stores, such as Bokar, Red Circle and Eight O'Clock coffees, Ann Page foods, White House milk, and many others.

Because this saves us money we are able to pass along these savings to our customers in the form of lower prices.

The anti-trust lawyers have asked the court to order us to get rid of our manufacturing facilities, which would put an end to all these savings.

Make no mistake about it. If the anti-trust lawyers succeed in putting A&P out of business you will find your food bill is higher.

Club Members Hear UN Debates At Lake Success

Forty members of the Fortnightly Club took a bus trip to view the United Nations at work at Lake Success Friday, November 4. For many, it was their first experience with the instantaneous translator head sets. In the committee rooms, each delegate and each visitor is supplied with a set, through which he can hear by a turn of the dial the same speech in any one of five languages, the native tongue of the speaker of English, French, Spanish, Russian or Chinese, at the time it is being given. After visiting several committees at work, the group had lunch in the United Nations cafeteria. In the afternoon, since the Security Council was not in session, the group was invited to meet in the Security Council Chamber and hear William Agar, chief of speakers bureau of information of the U. N., address several hundred visitors on "The United Nations." The U. N. has to its credit great strides in the field of health and agriculture. Mr. Agar stated, and is now venturing into the field of technical assistance to the underdeveloped areas. The convention against Genocide (mass murder) and the declaration of Human Rights are two major achievements said Mr. Agar. Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt, U. S. representative in the U. N. General Assembly talked about the work of the Human Rights Commission.

Some members then listened to a discussion of the work and future of the International Refugee Organization, while others viewed films depicting the work of the U. N. Those who attended were: Mrs. W. K. Bailey, Mrs. Edwin Beech, Mrs. Loren Bennett, Mrs. Channing R. Dooley, Mrs. J. W. Dietz, Mrs. A. T. Duffield, Mrs. H. K. Dunn, Mrs. H. S. Haring, Mrs. W. A. Henderson, Mrs. A. H. Hearn, Mrs. W. L. Chamber Listing Area Firms for Overseas Trade

William Roe Crane, executive secretary of the Summit Chamber of Commerce said his organization is cooperating with the Economic Cooperation Administration in the compilation of a directory of small business firms for distribution overseas.

The directory, to be published by ECA, will list the names and products of small independent firms which desire to enter or continue in export trade under the Marshall Plan. It will be distributed by ECA overseas missions to European importers and other buyers, serving them as a reference to available American sources of supply.

To compile the directory, Mr. Crane said, ECA is asking small business firms to register during a 20-day period ending on November 30. Registration forms are available at the Chamber of Commerce office, located at 360 Springfield avenue.

Mr. Crane said listing in the directory will be without charge to the businessman. He said ECA was directed by Congress to make available to prospective overseas purchasers information regarding products and services produced by small American independent firms.

So that the small businessman in and around Summit can get benefit out of the directory, Mr. Crane suggested that only those companies register which have analyzed their potential success in export trade and have decided to enter the field for a long pull. Inclusion of other firms would defeat the purpose of the directory.

Methodist Church School To Mark Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving Sunday will be observed on November 20 at the Methodist Church school, it was announced this week.

The various departments have been asked to bring gifts for their Thanksgiving Service projects. The nursery and kindergarten children should bring canned food for needy families; primary contributions to help another Sunday school purchase kindergarten chairs, and other departments clothing and shoes for overseas; also money to pay for the transportation.

Party Hosts a Mystery

Mr. and Mrs. "John Alden" will be hosts of the First Baptist Church Couples Club Thanksgiving party and dance to be held at the church Friday, November 25. The identity of the hosts is being kept secret and members of the club are being furnished clues which will appear in the classified columns of the Herald.

Before the establishment of the first New Jersey school in 1664, most of the education was carried on by what we now call private tutors. These schoolmasters were bought and sold like horses and cows and often their treatment was harsher than the punishment given Indians or slaves.

Tour Made of Hemlock Area in Reservation

Dr. Murray Buell of Rutgers University conducted a tour of the stand of hemlocks in the Wachung Reservation Sunday morning for representatives of the garden and nature clubs of the area. About 25 people attended although the weather was threatening and finally rain fell.

Dr. Buell pointed out that the hemlock grove contains trees 250 years old near the brook, the age of the trees lessening as the top of the slope is reached. Many young trees were found from three inches to 10 feet tall, thus promising a continued growth. Dr. Buell stated, unless man seriously interferes with the natural spread of this tree which survives from the "forest primeval, the murmuring pines and the hemlocks." The hemlocks in the Reservation are the easternmost ones in the state.

A discussion of the proper future policy in regard to the Reservation led to the consensus of opinion that most species of flora and fauna should be preserved. It was decided that consideration should be given to the amount of land that should be left unspoiled for the protection of the wild life with necessary food supplies from natural sources.

To establish a sound basis for future action it was thought essential that a survey of the Reservation should be made, ecological in character, including studies of the soil, plant, animal and bird life, etc. A representative meeting will be held at Warinanco Park, Elizabeth, tomorrow evening to outline such a procedure and effect the necessary measures to carry it out.

Psychologist to Give Advice to Junior Hostesses

The second talk in the current training course for incoming members of the Junior Hostess group of the YWCA will be given Thursday, November 22, by Mrs. Ruth C. Boyle, Summit school psychologist, at 7:30 p.m. in the Y building on Morris avenue.

Mrs. Boyle will speak on phases of personality development, offering practical suggestions on how to put newly met people at ease, and how to feel at ease yourself.

In the first lecture of the training course, which was given recently at a dinner meeting in the YWCA, Miss Jane Cazort, assistant director of service clubs at Camp Kilmer, gave the background of special services and the value of the program to the Army. She stressed the important place groups such as the local Junior Hostess group play in such a set-up.

Any girls, 17 years of age and upward, living in Summit or vicinity, wishing to join the group are urged to contact the YWCA. Activities of the group include ward parties at Lyons Veterans Hospital, dances at service clubs in Camp Kilmer and Fort Monmouth, and visits to the station hospital at Camp Kilmer. Girls must be at least 21 years of age to attend hospital functions.

An expanded program is being planned for the future.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lee Surace, another sister, and Miss Josephine Occhiato. Their gowns were Nile green, fashioned like that of the maid of honor's, with matching hats and yellow roses. Brenda Lovetri, the flower girl, wore a frock of yellow satin with a crown and bouquet of red roses.

"Lucia" Pleases First Nighters With Usual Ease

The lovely setting and amusing costumes contributed greatly toward the enjoyment by the audience Monday night at the opening of "Make Way for Lucia," the first Playhouse production of the season. The early 1930s in their most graceful phase was reflected in the charming living room, giving rise to a series of mental "flash-backs" of the many settings arranged for the tiny stage in the past, from the battlements of "Elizabeth, the Queen" and the dungeon in "The Green Goddess" to a variety of parlors, all very different, ingenuity, imagination and patience are evidently necessary to attain such satisfactory results.

Jack Pyle played Major Benjamin Flint in a way high, wide and handsome. Those are not the adjectives for Miss Mapp, (Betty Myers) who was really quite caty and just escaped being biased. The audience became rather worried over the amount of chocolates eaten by Godiva Plaislow (Jessie MacWilliams) while admiring the unceasing flow of her remarks while consuming them.

Helen Stromenger made a beautiful "Lucia," the center of the plot reminiscent of countless English novels and plays, the newcomer to the village who arouses jealousy in the heart of Miss Mapp, the town gossip. George Pillsion (Rufus Searles) is the antithesis of the major and supplies the surprise to the surprise ending, handling with skill an unsympathetic part.

Grace Rose as Mrs. Wyse almost stole the show several times, although she had practically no lines and almost no action. But she was just perfectly funny. Her hats were funny and her dresses were funny and everything she did was funny. Mrs. Rose made her Cleopatra costume (for the pageant of course) and there was nothing serious about that, either. Jack Wiener as Mr. Wyse was his usual capable self, supplying a sureness of touch helpful on a first night.

Erva Hanschke, a newcomer to the boards of the Playhouse, was interesting as the maid, Grosvenor, speaking with a delicate appreciation of tone values. Rev. Kenneth Bartlett and Mrs. Bartlett were portrayed by Wallace Winslow and Marion Leavens with a nice balance and were quite believable as the village parson and his wife, he dignified and she cute, quite in the tradition. William Lamb was very volatile as the volatile Signor Corteses who responded to Lucia's request for a "little music" by playing for four hours.

About a third of the costumes, including Miss Mapp's shoes and white lace gown, came from trunks and attics in the Summit area. The play will continue through Saturday night.

ISN'T WORTH THE PAPER IT'S WRITTEN ON
By the overwhelming vote of 134 to 13, the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association has turned down an amendment to its constitution calling for elimination of the September 1 practice rule, which has been in effect since 1937. Under the terms of this amendment, football practice and play would have been permitted five months out of the year.

The vote was recorded among the member schools after the executive committee declined to act. The proposed amendment was offered as a direct result of the Nutley High episode in which high school officials issued football shoes to players before the official September 1 practice date. The edict prohibits formal drills or the issuance of football equipment other than footballs by any school before Sept. 1, and we like it.

We're well aware that the N. J. I. A. A. is a judicial body, not a police organization, but it seems to us that the State body should investigate any and all alleged violations. While there was no formal protest in the Nutley case, the Newark News printed factual evidence that Nutley had violated the Sept. 1 ruling, and Nutley School officials admitted football shoes had been issued prior to that date.

No school was willing to file a formal protest, for it would appear that no school had the necessary evidence. As we see it, unless some school is willing to turn detective, gather the evidence and file a protest, the Sept. 1 edict isn't worth the paper it is written on.

MORE FOOTBALL NOTES
The football pool has really become big business. The worst part of the play is that the sucker doesn't even get a fair shake. The odds are too low, bud, even if you do get a winner. Someone figured it out that when you get 16 to 1 you should be getting 239 to 1. Oh, well, pass me a pool sheet will you... If you think football isn't big business consider that three midwest football schools will pay the government $1,000,000 in tax alone!... The current pro football campaign probably will be the most embarrassing (to the club owners) on record... It's been figured that the Cleveland Browns, champions of the All-America Conference, may lose as much as $200,000.

SHS Gridders Trounced, 18-0, By Caldwell for Fifth Loss

Summit High School's footballers ended their 1949 schedule Saturday at Caldwell losing 18-0 to the Chiefs in a Suburban Conference game for their fifth loss in eight starts. All of Summit's wins were in conference competition against Verona, Millburn and Madison.

An estimated 1,500 fans watched the game in which the first stanza was a scoreless deadlock. In each of the succeeding quarters the victors put over a touchdown. There were no conversions.

The first TD came after the combined runs of Bob Yancey and Alan Pfister carried the ball 40 yards to Summit's four-yard line. Pfister carried off tackle for the score. Jerry Hoffman's placement went wide.

The Chiefs caught the whole Summit team asleep in the third period when Doran dropped back almost to his goal line for a fourth-down kick. He took the pass from center, faked the boot and scooted around right end for a 71-yard gallop for the TD.

In the final stanza, a pass interception by Yancey set up the third Caldwell TD. Two running plays carried to the Summit 45. A 15-yard penalty against the losers put them back to the 30 from where Walt Zoolkooski broke through tackle and dashed for a TD.

Maben's Topple Savages as Spring Lake Takes Loop Lead

In the tightest race the City Bowling League has experienced in years, Spring Lake went into the lead by taking two from Ciba on the Woodruff alleys in Springfield on November 9. Savage Esso Service, who had been tied with Spring Lake for the lead, dropped a pair on the following night to Maben's, to drop a game behind.

DeRonde-Brewster Shine
Added interest was given to the Savage-Maben matches by the rolling of DeRonde and Brewster, the only two loop bowlers to post 600 series for the week. DeRonde rolling fourth for Savage won high three game series honors with 661 for an average of 220.33. He improved with each game posting scores of 212, 215 and 234. Brewster, second player for Maben's, had a three-game series of 635 for an average of 211.66. He started off with 203 and followed with a pair of 216's.

Vohnoura Rolls 237
Vohnoura, a newcomer on the American Legion, Summit Post 138 team rolled a middle game of 237 to take high single game honors which enabled the Legion to take the middle game against Charlins, who only took one from the ex-servicemen.

"Foot" moved into a tie with Charlins and the Legion for third place by sweeping against Summit Buick.

Summit lodge of Elks, even with a full complement of players, is still looking for its first win in 21 starts, losing to Zotte's Esso Service in three. Garguios defeated Geddie Taxi in two.

Sanderson Writes "Pro and Con" On Correct Shots

In the November issue of Canoe Brook Country Club's monthly publication, The Putter, Harold Sanderson golf pro at that club writes a column on "Pro and Con" on how "to hit a correct shot" as follows: Millions of golfers, after hitting a particularly good shot, have uttered the classic rhetorical question, "Why the heck don't I hit 'em all like that?" Then, without any further reference to that profound thought, grimly proceed to cut and slash down the fairway.

Now we all know for an accepted fact, that to hit a correct shot, or one with the sweetest feel, two things must be executed by the club head at impact: (1) It must be square with the line of flight; (2) it must meet the ball squarely in the middle of the club face. For five hundred years, suffering humanity has been trying to do just that with an indescribable variety of swings that do not consistently achieve their heart's desire. Yet all of us know individuals who violate the classic traditions of the golf swing and meet the ball consistently well. Conversely, others with apparently good swings are mired in the "slough of despond."

If this be so, it would seem to prove that the only infallible part of the swing is the inch in back of the ball, and pursuing this same line of reasoning, some of you have seen the crazy looking backswing I can use (lifting the club in front of my face, turning the body and hitting the ball reasonably well). Obviously, the only answer to this is that the good golfer has the innate ability to remember the feel of the theoretical "last inch" and when he feels something wrong, is able to switch in time to produce the good shot.

At this point, the reader might well ask, "What are you trying to tell me—that a golfer could use a hammer thrower's technique with good results?" Not exactly! Good form is ever the main ingredient in a golf swing and certainly is the product of the practice tee. Let me give you the gist of the subject of this article.

Once you have taken your stance and commenced your swing at the ball, hit it with all your faculties centered on a rhythmic feel at impact; don't wonder whether your elbow is out or in or if your groove is upright or flat. You cannot time a swing with scattered concentration.

Then we have the second phase of faulty preparation. Here you see a golfer addressing the ball, taunt as a fiddle string, probably envying its dismal result and how well he betrays this knowledge as later on, full of vexation, he declares to all and sundry, "I don't care where this one goes; I'm just going to hit it" and promptly pates one 220 yards down the middle.

So, dear member, don't suffer from those "after lesson blues"—cure them by following this program, to wit: Think mightily of the parts of the swing you are working on but only as you decapitate a dandelion. When you square away at a golf ball, remember only the feel of a good swing, then crack it in the snoot!

Pingry Overruns Oratory, 31-0, in Summit Grid Game

Pingry School of Elizabeth handed Oratory School its sixth straight football defeat Friday afternoon on Memorial Field. The Elizabeth school romped to a 31-0 win. It was the fourth win in six starts for Pingry.

The passing of Bill Burks proved to be the difference as his aerials accounted for three touchdowns and set up a fourth.

Near the end of the opening period, he passed 11 yards to Dick Hnat in the end zone for the first TD. Midway in the third quarter, Burks tossed 12 yards to Hnat, who took the ball on the eight and went the remaining distance to score. The final play of this period found Burks passing to Hnat, who was stopped just short of the goal.

On the first play of the final period, Dick Peters plunged over center for six more points. Near the end of the tilt, Burks threw a nine-yard pass to Larry De Cesare in the end zone for the final touchdown.

Pingry's other score came on a pass from Hnat to Bob Lamal in the early minutes of the second quarter.

Oratory was so outclassed that at one time did it penetrate beyond Pingry's 20-yard line.

Grid Teams From Oranges to Help Alumni Close Out Card

The growing scarcity of the dollar, the impact of television and the downright indifference to local sports are proving no deterrent to the Alumni Football Club who will be at home on Memorial Field the next two Sunday afternoons to wind up their eight-game skein.

Observers are agreed that the Alumni gridgers put on better than average football. Not only are the players all Summit men, but they have behind all of them an excellent record from their high school days, while some of them have performed splendidly on college and service gridirons.

The attraction this coming Sunday in a game starting at 2 p.m. will be the South Orange A. A.

In conformity with the usual practice among the best administered ball clubs, the stellar attraction of the season will be the final game of the year. On Sunday, November 27, also at 2 p.m., the Alumni gridgers will be host to the East Orange A. A., generally recognized as one of the strongest amateur outfits of its kind in the State.

President Frank Sommo of the Alumni gridgers has previously announced that 50 per cent of the net proceeds of the November 27 game will go to the United Campaign.

Fans who have watched the Alumni footballers for two years don't have to be told that the locals have one of the best forward passing combinations in the business. Each week his program will be devoted to the use of a different club as well as how to best make difficult shots in golf such as how to play out of a bunker or how to play downhill lies.

Toots Shor will be Farrell's guest on his opening program, November 19.

Ridgers Smash Madison to Win Loop Title

The issue of who will win the Suburban Conference football crown was settled Saturday when Glen Ridge won the title by smashing Madison, 26-12, on the latter's field.

Even though Caldwell, which is in second place as a result of an 18-0 win over a hapless Summit High eleven Saturday, can tie the Ridgers in total points by defeating Verona in their Thanksgiving Day game, Glen Ridge has defeated Caldwell. Therefore, under conference rules that rule in case of a tie would be the decisive factor for the championship. Summit can now do no better than achieve third place in the final standings. The locals have completed their eight-game skein.

Caddie Scholarship To Honor Brook Caddie
One of Canoe Brook's most popular caddies, Paul McElgunn, has been awarded a four year scholarship to Rutgers University by the New Jersey State Golf Association.

Two of these scholarships are granted each year by the Association to outstanding caddies at the various member Clubs, and are based on all around ability as a caddie and scholar. They are financed by the proceeds of the tournaments conducted by the Association and by individual of Club donations. It has been the custom at Canoe Brook to give ten per cent of each Calcutta pool to this fund.

Public Housing Hearing December 13

boards established for the purpose of studying housing conditions in the City.

In August of 1938, a "Housing Authority" was created by ordinance. After making a thorough study, the local Authority succeeded in getting approval of a general loan in the sum of $129,000. The loan was turned down by the Common Council upon the ground that under the Federal law the City would be required

Council namely, the Advisory Committee on Low Rent Housing and the Citizens' Advisory Committee.

The Citizens' Advisory Committee in its report of August 1949, strongly recommended the creation of a housing authority and also recommended that low rent housing projects be constructed in various areas of the City. The Committee further urged that the local ordinance relative to the compulsory repair of dwellings unfit for habitation be strictly enforced.

Not Necessarily Committed

The Common Council is not necessarily committed to proposals made by the Citizens' Advisory Committee but feels that the creation of a housing authority is a necessary step for a more proper evaluation of the program.

ford to buy or lease good standard housing. The law defines low income, in that a person to be eligible for a project may not earn more than five times the annual rent to be charged, including utilities, less a $100 exemption for each minor dependent.

Housing Act Explained

The 1949 Housing Act is radically different from the 1937 Act in the following respects:

1. It provides for federal assistance in slum clearance.
2. A definite formula is written into the law setting forth the eligibility and priority requirements of housing project occupants.
3. The elimination requirement of unsafe or insanitary dwellings is now based upon the number of families living in a slum dwelling.

ing may make an application under the provisions of the law related to slum clearance and proceed simultaneously on both projects.

On slum clearance, the application of the housing authority is approved by the Federal Government and it enters into a contract to receive a Federal loan to finance project expenses by the housing authority and all commitments for the Federal grant to meet up to two-thirds of the loans of the housing authority incurred when the cleared land is sold or leased for redevelopment. The other third must be made up by the City.

A brief review of the law on the subject of low rent housing might at this time be pertinent.

The Federal Housing Act of 1949 is divided into two main categories: namely, low rent housing and slum clearance. The slum clearance program of the 1949 Housing Act is entirely new, and for the first time a means is afforded to get federal assistance to clear out slum areas.

It is apparent that the Federal program recognizes and provides the way for constructing low rent housing and at the same time clear out slum areas. The Act further recognizes (for the first time) that both programs are closely related to one another.

It should be observed that the term slum as defined means: Any area where dwellings predominate which, by reason of dilapidation, overcrowding, faulty arrangement or design, lack of ventilation, light or sanitation facilities, or any combination of these factors, are detrimental to safety, health or morals.

The low rent housing program further recognizes that families in the low income group cannot afford to buy or lease good standard housing. The law defines low income, in that a person to be eligible for a project may not earn more than five times the annual rent to be charged, including utilities, less a $100 exemption for each minor dependent.

ing may make an application under the provisions of the law related to slum clearance and proceed simultaneously on both projects.

Turkeys-from Pens to Holiday Table

By JOEHN COAD

One week from today on thousands of tables, in homes and restaurants in this area, the Meleagris gallopavo will be the center of attraction. Most of us, of less scientific bent however, call it just plain turkey.

The name of this fowl, which is of the pheasant family, throughout the years has become practically synonymous with the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday seasons.

Spurred by the thought that a week from today we, too, would be tasting of this fowl, we hied ourselves to the library where we did a bit of research on this critter.

First of all we discovered that the turkey (Meleagris gallopavo) was considered to be a native of North America. It came by its name, according to our information source, when Vasco de Gamma introduced turkeys, which he brought with him from this continent, into Europe in the early 16th century. It was then erroneously believed that the turkey came from the Moslem Empire, loosely called Turkey, and thereby received its name which has stood to this day. 25 Cents a Bird

As every school child knows, our Puritan forefathers reportedly feasted on turkey at the first Thanksgiving dinner in the New World. But it is perhaps not so well known that Benjamin Franklin once proposed the turkey replace the eagle as our national bird, or that 100 years ago turkeys sold for 25 cents for an entire bird. Nowadays, the housewife will pay considerably more than that per pound of turkey meat.

The majority of turkeys which are sold at the corner butcher store hereabouts are raised in the West; however, at one time, the Eastern Seaboard was the center of the turkey raising industry. But in recent years, the East again has started to raise its own fowl, principally through a comparatively new practice called "pen raising."

In this method the birds are raised in large wire cages, which are on stilts several feet above the ground. This keeps the turkeys free from the ground, and makes for better control of "Black Head Disease" which had previously been prevalent enough to force many of the turkey farmers hereabouts to either go out of business, or move operations to the West where the climate was more suitable for turkey farming.

Turkey Farmers
Last week, too, we chatted with two turkey farmers in this area, and gleaned some bits of information concerning the toll involved in rearing turkeys for the holiday dinner table. These two are not the only turkey farmers in this area, but were of more than usual interest since one was a young woman, Miss Martha Conlon, of Florham Park, who this year raised 2,000 birds, the other was 18-year-old Salvatore Casale, Springfield, who with his cousin, Kenneth Casale, have won several prizes for Thanksgiving and Christmas, Miss their turkey farm in state-wide competition. Miss Conlon started raising turkeys on her family's 15-acre farm some eight years ago. A trim 118 pounds, she nevertheless carries 100-pound feed bags with comparative ease, as well as doing many of the other chores around the farm. In recent years she has raised as many as 3,500 gobblers. Although the busy seasons are they are attempting to educate the public to the fact, as she says, "that turkey meat is good anytime."

Busy Seasons

Shortly after Christmas, Miss Conlon told us, she like most other turkey farmers, receives the first shipment of eggs. These are placed in a large incubator for 28 days, to develop and mature. Other shipments are staggered throughout the next few months. Since the first few months are crucial in the raising of a turkey, Miss Conlon has a bell in her bedroom attached to the incubator. The bell rings if there is change in the temperature or some mechanical failure. In effect this makes her practically a perpetual baby sitter to a brood of growing turkeys.

"That bell has awakened me many a night," she observed, but apparently without any malice toward the mechanism.

As the turkeys grow to maturity they are progressively moved from (Continued on Page 5)

A PIECE OF YOUR MIND

By KARL FLATZER, Psychologist

"You know," my wife said critically, "this bedroom has grown to look shabby. It really needs redoing."

Now it is a fact well-known to all husbands that when the Little Woman gets that appraising gleam in her eye, it's time to run. There was no use in my running, though, the children would only have tracked me down any way, so I had to stand and deliver.

A couple of days later, while my wife was busy downstairs, the children and I got to work. By the time she grew suspicious of our unusual quiet and came upstairs to discover what we were up to, she found the three of us scraping merrily away at the walls, and dangling strips of wallpaper gave the room a disheveled but oddly gaily effect.

Redo The Room

My wife stared at us and quavered, "What are you doing?" "Redoing the room," we chorused happily.

"Oh, no!" she moaned, "OH NO!" "Oh, yes," we said, "you wanted the room done over, and it's being done over!"

"You're going to do the painting?"

"Yep!"

"You're going to hang the paper?"

"Yep!"

She tottered over to the bed and lay there in a silence broken only by the gentle patter of pieces of wet wallpaper falling gently on her upturned face.

Despite her forbodings, she joined in the work, and it progressed. We stripped off the old paper, plastered up the holes and cracks, sandpapered the walls down, shellacked the newly plastered spots, and put on a coat of sizing. Then we went down to pick out paper and paint. As my own workman I proudly demanded the usual paperhanger's discount.

The painting did not proceed badly, as painting goes. We covered the ceiling and wood-work and congratulated each other on how pretty they looked. But then came the day when I could no longer put off the job of starting on the paper. Full of fear, I took up the scissors and made the first (Continued on page 6)

Chatham's Volunteer Fire Chief

By JANE BARTZ
Chatham Volunteer Fire Department's Chief Dudley Barber made front page news in Newark newspapers recently with a statement on the ten acre bog fire which has been burning unchecked in the Manor section of the borough for some five weeks. "There's nothing to stop the fire except a good rain," declared Chief Barber.

A casual admission of this kind coming from the head of the fire department might have been expected to draw fire of a different kind. Chatham residents, however, facing the record of their fire department as one of the best volunteer companies in New Jersey, are inclined to take Chief Barber at his word, and wait for rain. A big, unburied looking man with a thick shock of graying hair, Dudley Barber has been chasing fires for most of his 54 years. As one of the oldest members of the volunteer company puts it, "Dud is just a nut on fire!"

Chased Fires
Born in Chatham a few doors down from the old fire house which was located on South Passaic avenue, Dud Barber grew up listening for the sound of the sledge hammer ringing on a discarded locomotive tire, which served as Chatham's first fire alarm. That raucous clamor summoned the volunteer firemen and their equipment to the scene of a fire. It was also an irresistible signal for a horde of small boys living in the neighborhood of the fire house to drop whatever they were doing and follow the fire carts.

Living as close as he did to the fire house, young Dud Barber was on hand for every fire, and usually just about as soon as the fire company. He still, however, was only a spectator, because the rules forbade anyone but a member of the company to ride the fire carts or work the equipment.

This rather frustrating state of affairs persisted until 1916 when he was 21 and permitted to join the company. Thereafter, he not only rode to the fires, as one of the few members of the company who then knew how to drive, he was immediately made captain of an engine company in the recently mechanized department.

Having been given an unusually responsible job so soon after his entry into the company, Barber continued to rise in a steady, unobtrusive way which does, however, speak well for his popularity with the other firemen, since the company at this time elected its own officers.

Made Fire Chief
After serving in turn as third, second, and first deputy, he was elected chief of the company on January 1, 1929. The following year borough officials took over the task of selecting the fire chief. Acting on the assumption that it is well to stick with a good man, they have continued to reappoint Barber each New Year's Day for the past 21 years.

The Chatham Fire Department record under Barber has been astonishingly good. The Department is still a volunteer company, but in this classification fire underwriters rate its efficiency so high, that the borough's insurance rates are the lowest in its bracket in the state.

The Fire Department owes its efficiency in operation largely to the fact that under Barber it functions smoothly as a team with a minimum of formal organization.

and direction. The company now consists of 82 active volunteers. All of them live in Chatham, and most of them have grown up there, as did Dud Barber. Many represent the second generation of their family to serve in the department, and father and son combinations are fairly common. At least one of the charter members of the company, Charlie Heinrich, who is nearing 80, still responds to every fire call. By underplaying his role as chief in a manner only possible because he knows the abilities of each member of the company very well, and has a very genuine respect for them, Barber has managed to remain popular with the independent breed of men who make up the company, and at the same time to keep the department running at top level efficiency.

During the day, Fire Department deputies take all but the most serious fires in their stride, seldom find it necessary to interrupt the chief at his task of earning a living selling Ford cars in neighboring Morristown. At night, however, Barber answers all fire calls himself. Mrs. Barber has grown accustomed to the fire alarm signal which is installed in the chief's home at 134 Elmwood avenue, and resigned to seeing her husband's meals, family life, and sleep interrupted by it. The chief puts up a show of objecting to fire calls which come in the dead of night, but secretly he seems to find them more exciting.

Barber has a daughter who is married and living with her parents, and a son who has also married and moved to a nearby town. He notes somewhat wistfully that his son never was much interested in fires. "Never wanted to be a fireman, never even chased the engines when he was a kid!" he says with an air of surprise.

Trains Volunteers
As well as taking charge at all but the fires which occur during his working day, Barber is responsible for training new volunteers and maintaining the company's equipment. For the latter job, the borough has recently given him a half day's paid assistance from Kenneth Heater who doubles as a traffic cop during school hours. Heater is the only member of the company who receives payment for his services.

Even uniforms are paid for by the men themselves, and are seldom worn except when the company poses for a group picture, or turns out to march in a parade. Most of the men bought new uniforms for the festivities commemorating the department's 50th year of existence in 1944. Chief Barber who felt that the uniform he got 35 years ago, when he joined the department, still had plenty of wear in it, declined to order a new one for the celebration, and has taken a considerable of ribbing from the men in consequence. The company thinks that by next year they may get around to presenting him with a new uniform.

Chatham officials meet again next January 1 to hand out borough offices. Dud Barber prudently refuses to make any statement as to his chances for reappointment. Chances are, however, that the company will have the opportunity to buy him that new chief's uniform next year.

Mae: "Hold on, I said, 'will be.' We're takin' this old battle-ship out, and replacing it with a modern Lennox Heating System! And a Lennox is so compact it will take up just a tiny corner down here. We'll have plenty of space for a dandy play room."

Mae: "Special, my foot! Why, there are complete Lennox systems that can be installed in small recesses, inside walls, beneath floors, even up in attics! What more'd you want?"

Jack: "Not a thing, pal—except the name and address of my nearest Lennox dealer."

New Uses for the Traditional Cranberry

By MARION McCARROLL

These traditional cranberries go along with the Thanksgiving turkey might, for an interesting change, be served in some other form than sauce, and perhaps some other stage of the holiday dinner, as, for instance, dessert.

Here, for example, are two different suggestions, one for a festive and luscious Cranberry Cream Pie, one for a Cranberry Holiday Pudding.

Cranberry Cream Pie: Combine a saucepan 2 c. fresh cranberries, 1 c. stewed apricots, 1 1/2 c. sugar, 1/2 tsp. salt and 1/2 c. water. Cook until cranberries pop—about 10 min. Blend 2 egg yolks with the sauce and grated rind of one lemon. Stir rapidly into cranberry mixture. Continue cooking over low flame until slightly thickened, stirring constantly.

Soften 1 c. gelatin in a little water; add to cooked mixture and stir until melted. Remove from stove and chill until very thick. Whip 2 egg whites until stiff but not dry; whip stiff 1/2 c. heavy cream. Fold egg whites into mixture; then fold in cream. Bake into baked 9-in. pie shell and chill.

Spread top with Cranberry sauce and garnish with whipped cream.

Cranberry Glaze: Combine in a saucepan 1 c. fresh cranberries and 1 c. any fruit jelly or fruit preserve. Stir and cook over moderate flame until cranberries pop about 10 min. Cool and spread over top of pie filling.

Cranberry Holiday Pudding: Cut half the cranberries in two c. ones. Combine 1 1/3 c. flour, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. cinnamon, 1/2 tsp. cloves, 1/4 tsp. mace and 2 c. soda. Add cranberries to this mixture. Combine 1/3 c. hot water and 1/2 c. molasses; blend with the mixture. Stir in 1/2 c. silvered almonds and 1/2 c. chopped candied orange peel. Transfer to well greased pudding mold; cover and steam for 2 1/2 hr. Unmold; serve with hard sauce.

LET THE TANGY RED BERRIES make their appearance on the Thanksgiving table in the form of a Cranberry Holiday Pudding, served with hard sauce.

THE CLOTHESLINE

By Muriel W. Shonnard

The invention of "nylon" fiber in the late 1930s set in motion a train of events that is bringing both joy and grief to everyone concerned with the problem of providing coverage for homo sapiens.

Joy to the girls who love its fabulous washing, quick-drying, and little-ironing-needed qualities (until they discover that the magic fiber also has some serious faults.)

Grief to everyone who has a hand in converting the stuff from yarn to finished garment, up to and including the retailer who has two plants against woven fabrics.

(a) He can't get enough to supply the demand.

(b) He is on the receiving end of the woes of the customer who finds he is allergic to nylon, or complains because the fabric frays at the seams, is non-absorbent and non-porous.

Simple Holiday Fare Replaces 'Groaning Boards'

What a formidable affair was the old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner! But the pattern has changed, points out your county home agent. Nowadays it is generally accepted that gracious hospitality and a simple, attractive meal give more real pleasure than the old-fashioned "groaning board" and the after-dinner discomfort that usually followed. What a break this new outlook is for the mothers who have to prepare and serve the holiday dinner.

Because Thanksgiving is a day that centers around the table it's nice to highlight the table by using a centerpiece that brings out the Fifteen years ago, it was just a gleam in a DuPont chemist's eye and the tenth anniversary of production of the fiber on a commercial scale was celebrated this month. More recently, the ability to produce nylon fabric that had both texture and hand is only about two years old and it is the 1949 season that saw the introduction of nylon dress fabrics on a broad scale. The "infant" seems to be doing very well indeed.

But like all sturdy youngsters, it needs wise handling, and it needs understanding. This is particularly true of nylon blended with silk, wool, rayon or cotton. Conditioned to the quick-drying of nylon hosiery and underwear, women may expect the nylon blends to handle the same way. They won't.

This doesn't mean that materials constructed from a combination of the fiber with other fibers aren't excellent fabrics. Some of them are lovely, and better than materials made of 100 per cent nylon, since they combine the best features of each. A 50 per cent blend of nylon with pure silk, for instance, combines the luxurious feel and long wearing qualities of nylon.

However, it will take longer to dry, and while it will iron more easily than pure silk, it will still need more ironing than pure nylon. The same is true of other blends. The fiber content and proportions should be clearly indicated on the tag, together with cleaning or washing instructions.

Paul Douglas Shines as an Opera Star

By PAUL PARKER

If your wife has operatic aspirations, the best way to foil them is to become an opera singer yourself. This would seem to be the gist of Paul Douglas' film, "Everybody Does It."

After parts in two previous films, ("A Letter to Three Wives" and "It Happens Every Spring"), Mr. Douglas in this cinema gets a chance to show off his talents, and they are many, as a star in his own right.

A recent advertisement proclaimed Mr. Douglas as "The Greatest Discovery Since Bubble Gum." Now we don't have any particular liking for bubble gum, but Mr. Douglas certainly is one of the most pleasing "finds" Hollywood has made in some time.

As a comic, and we hope that he will be given a chance to prove that he has other qualities too, he seems to be naturally gifted, and in a manner which is not offending to the viewing audience. He does not have to do handstands, or act like a human jack-in-the-box to achieve comic effect as do some of his contemporaries (i.e., Red Skelton or Abbot and Costello). Mr. Douglas is satisfyingly humorous in perhaps an unreserved, but certainly very natural fashion.

"Everybody Does It," produced by Nunnally Johnson, producer of "The Senator was Indiscreet" and "Mr. Peabody and the Mermaid," was suggested by a James Crain short story. It concerns a house wrecking contractor (Paul Douglas) and his socialite wife, a frustrated concert songstress, (Celeste Holm).

When Mr. Douglas learns that his wife is determined to follow in the footsteps of Lily Pons, he promptly invites, in fact demands, all his friends and clients to be on hand for her debut. His short-lived hope is that his life-long partner will be satisfied with one performance, and then allow him to continue his demolishing activities uninterrupted by operatic arias. Her debut, however, only serves to goad her on to further activities in the singing field.

Faced with this dilemma, Mr. Douglas is happy to learn, through a chance meeting with a glamorous concert prima don (Linda Darnell), that he himself is equipped with a glass shattering baritone.

Somewhat skeptically at first, he experiments with his voice, then as he grasps the nature of the superlative defense weapon at his command, embarks on a concert tour in tow of Linda Darnell.

The culmination of his career is his own grand operatic debut, at which he becomes the victim of extreme stage-fright, and as a consequence blunders onto the stage with approximately the same effect as a ten-ton wrecking crane.

In the interim, there are delightful scenes, all a parody of husband-wife and in-law relationships. Through these sequences, Mr. Douglas gruffly batters and butts his way, to make "Everybody Does It" one of the top-notch comedies to date this year.

Teen-Age Televues

By BOB LAMBERT

When you're watching a horror show on television do the ghosts seem to have "ghosts?" While watching Hopalong Cassidy shoot it out with the bandits does it seem the action is taking place in a blinding snowstorm? In short, does your television picture suffer from poor reception?

We were troubled with poor reception on some channels before my father bought an electric motor which revolves the antenna.

The next morning I was up bright and early to help him attach the motor to the aerial. Now I know as much about electronics as a cross eyed aardvark and I'll admit I was dubious when my dad began sawing a long length of pipe. The morning wore on with my father working hard on the roof while I was following each various pursuit as reading the Sunday paper, swinging on the garden swing, and asking father when he'd be through. I was getting tired.

At last the momentous task was done. We eagerly raced inside to see the vast improvements this gadget had wrought. A minute of eager waiting and then I realized none of the stations were telecasting.

We waited until evening for the programs to begin, and after a bit of experimentation found that with the new antenna we were getting better reception on four out of five channels.

The price of these motors is about $40.00 including installation. Your father will find one well worth the price if your family likes to watch television.

Said to be the most hilarious girl-takes-boy escapade of the year, "MISS GRANT TAKES RICHMOND" tells the merry complications which result when a "dumb" secretary is hired by a hookie to work in his real estate office. The real estate office is in really a front for Holden's gambling activities. Miss Ball plays the secretary and Holden plays the hookie.

Muffins, hot and tasty, are appealing for any meal of the day. To make them all the more attractive, brown bulk pork sausage and add it to the muffin batter. Save time and yet have an appealing garnish to outline your roast platter. Simply cook fruit for garnish with the meat. South immediately accuses East of unethical play in hesitating on the opening lead, arguing

ANSWERS
1. This question comes from E.A.C. who was East. She feels that South's vitriolic accusations of unethical play were unjustified and we agree. East was entitled to take as long as she felt necessary to decide on her play. If West let East's hesitation influence her in her refusal to ruff the second round of diamonds, then West was guilty of un sporting conduct, not East.
2. Two diamonds. You are not strong enough to bid one no trump, which requires about a trick and a half with a stopper in the opponent's bid suit. You've got the stopper but not the honor count so you can't make the encouraging response of one no trump. Neither can you pass for penalties without running the risk of having your partner tried on a homicide charge in connection with your premature demise. The only thing left is to bid the diamond suit.

North and South let some fancy bidding talk them out of game and rubber in today's hand.

With North-South vulnerable, the bidding went:
NORTH EAST SOUTH WEST
1 ♥ 2 ♠ double 2 ♠
double 3 ♠ double pass pass 3 ♠ pass pass
double pass pass pass
West took six diamonds and three clubs in a hurry and North-South lost an easy rubber game at spades or hearts. South's double of the two club bid wasn't too bad, although many players would prefer a raise to two hearts with the vulnerability unfavorable for the double. West's runout to two diamonds was sound enough, but North's double was poor with only three diamonds to the queen.

East's three club suit was intended to keep North and South in a doubling mood. East was sure that South would never leave in the double of two diamonds. As expected, South doubled three clubs but when the bidding came around again and East bid three diamonds, the great awakening should have come to South—that East was very well-heeled in diamonds and was courting a double. Over the three diamond bid South should have bid three hearts and North would have gone on to four.

If the defense is careless North-South can make six hearts or six spades.

'Louder Please!' Opens at Opera House Nov. 21

LIONEL STANDER
Vilma Virag will appear opposite Lionel Stander in the farce comedy "Louder Please!" at the Newark Opera House, Monday, November 21, when that theater inaugurates a new policy of presenting a "play a week" with Broadway favorites headlining the casts. David Jester, Jr. is sponsor-producer of this new enterprise.

The new policy at the Newark Opera House is an endeavour to bring Newark back into the theatrical firmament, according to Mr. Jester.

"Louder Please!" will be the first of a series of weekly productions which will continue through to the end of June.

Although Miss Virag the show's leading lady, trained as a singer and has sung with the Chicago Civic, Salmaggi and San Carlo Opera companies, she began her career in the legitimate theater in the role of Sybil Vane, leading lady in "The Life and Loves of Dorian Gray," a Broadway production. Later she was cast in a role for Oscar Wilde's play, "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Her operatic career was launched as understudy to various principals in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas in New York, and she later made her grand opera debut with Alfredo Salmaggi. During the war she went on singing tours which took her through United States and Canada.

With this production Miss Virag returns to the legitimate stage for the first time in many years. Opposite her will be Lionel Stander, who has been seen in numerous Hollywood films.

one pen to another until they reach the outdoor cages. Care is taken that they never reach the ground from which they might contact disease.

In the outdoor pens, the turkeys are allowed to mature, and by Thanksgiving and Christmas time have fully matured for eating at the dinner table.

Began With 18 Turkeys
Salvatore Casale, Springfield, noted that he first became involved in turkey raising six years ago, at the age of 12. First it began as a hobby, he said, with 18 turkeys, but the project was pushed along by his agricultural teacher at Regional High School. Under the teacher's guidance, the flock shortly grew to 500 and this year Salvatore, in partnership with his cousin Kenneth Casale, a student at Rutgers University, are raising 1,000 birds.

In the past few years their project has been awarded second place for supervised farming and third place for rural electrification by the F.F.A., in statewide competition.

Modernization of the 50 acre Casale farm, however, was begun somewhat surreptitiously, Salvatore recalled. Originally, he said, the neat red and white barn adjacent to the turkey pens was a wooden structure used as a stable.

Without his father's knowledge, Salvatore sold the horses in the barn, and purchased a tractor for the farm—the beginning of modernization there.

"Although Dad was a bit skeptical about the tractor at first, all admit now that it was the best thing we ever did," Salvatore says. Other improvements included: fluorescent lighting in the barn, an electrical feed conveyor, picking and scalding machines, and an electrical brooder.

Both turkey farmers expressed the thought that pen raised turkeys are preferable to their Western counterparts. This, they attribute to the fact that Western turkeys, on the other hand, they point out, are reared in confinement, allowed to grow fat, and presumably are more edible.

And an encouraging note for the housewife was given by Salvatore. "It has been an extremely good season for turkeys," he said.

"Merry Widow" In Second Week At Paper Mill

Three musical highlights—the "Can-Can Girls" at Maxim's the famed Waltz and the unforgettable "Vilia"—are a few of the numbers which have gained immortality in Franz Lehár's "The Merry Widow" which begins the second week of its pre-holiday engagement at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn Monday, November 21.

A special group of six dancers support David Tihmar and Shirley Weaver in the "Can-Can" number, while the two principal dancers are again seen in "Vilia" which is sung by Marthe Errolle who plays the title role. Miss Errolle and Eric Mattson, the two stars of the production, are heard and seen in the unforgettable "The Merry Widow Waltz".

Marjorie Wellock and Davis Cunningham are heard in the duets, "A Dutiful Wife" and "Love In My Heart". The latter is also known as the "Arbor Song". A solo by Mattson is the ever popular "At Maxim's" and the great comedy musical number of the show is "The Women" in which a male sextette comprised of Clarence Nordstrom, Albert Carroll, Warren Brown, Lynn Alden, Hal McMurrin and Melvin Dacus virtually bring down the audience by their capers. It is one of the most hilarious numbers in the operetta repertoire.

"I Love You So" is another of the musical highlights in the Lehár score in which Miss Errolle and Mattson are heard in duet.

Without his father's knowledge, Salvatore sold the horses in the barn, and purchased a tractor for the farm—the beginning of modernization there.

"Although Dad was a bit skeptical about the tractor at first, all admit now that it was the best thing we ever did," Salvatore says.

Other improvements include: fluorescent lighting in the barn, an electrical feed conveyor, picking and scalding machines, and an electrical brooder.

Both turkey farmers expressed the thought that pen raised turkeys are preferable to their Western counterparts. This, they attribute to the fact that Western turkeys are allowed to roam the fields and develop muscles. Pen raised turkeys, on the other hand, they point out, are reared in confinement, allowed to grow fat, and presumably are more edible.

And an encouraging note for the housewife was given by Salvatore. "It has been an extremely good season for turkeys," he said.

Three Out of Every Five Say Hospitals Serving Communities Are Good Enough

By KENNETH FINK, Director The New Jersey Poll

A New Jersey Poll survey just completed shows that twice as many adult residents in the state say that the hospitals serving their communities are good enough as say not good enough (58% good enough to 28% not good enough).

Approval of the hospitals serving their communities is highest among those who live in New Jersey towns with populations between 25,000 and 50,000 — towns like Morristown, Somerville, Haddon Heights, Princeton, Prospect Park, Hammonton, Ridgewood, and Verona.

As might be expected, least approval of their hospitals is expressed by those who live in rural areas throughout the state. Here criticism is leveled principally at the fact that hospitals are too far away and that there are not enough of them.

Also worthy of note is that nearly one out of every three adults (32%) living in New Jersey's six biggest cities — Newark, Jersey City, Trenton, Elizabeth, Paterson, and Camden say not good enough.

When New Jersey Poll staff reporters asked a statewide cross-section of New Jersey adults: "Do you think the hospitals that serve this community are good enough or not?"

The results were:

| Good Enough | Not Good Enough | No Opinion |
|--------------------|-----------------|------------|
| TOTAL STATE 58% | 28 | 14 |
| Rural areas 53% | 35 | 12 |
| 2,500-24,999 62% | 23 | 15 |
| 25,000-99,999 56% | 25 | 19 |
| 100,000 & over 57% | 32 | 11 |

The need for more personnel — doctors, nurses, and others; for enlarged facilities and needed repairs; and for new hospitals are the principal suggestions offered by those who say not good enough.

A Newark housewife says, "One of our hospitals is overcrowded and antiquated. We need a new one."

A Paterson machinist puts it this way: "Sometimes they have two nurses serving a whole floor."

A Newark factory worker complains, "There's not enough nurses, and the rooms could be cleaner."

A North Bergen tailor states: "The hospital we have to use here is overcrowded and dirty. They can't keep it clean because it's too old, and they don't have enough help."

And an East Orange house-painter volunteers: "Our ambulances should carry internes when they go out on calls."

MAJOR COMPLAINT REGARDS PAYMENTS

A Trenton pipefitter says, "They're pushing the money too much. Who's going to pay? is the first question they ask you. They don't wait to cure you first."

A Newark cab driver told a New Jersey Poll reporter: "They're a little strict for people who don't have money. If you go in there and you don't have the money, it's just too bad."

A Hawthorne night watchman complained to another reporter: "They wouldn't let me out until I paid my bill."

An Elizabeth bus driver says: "It's money on the line."

A West Orange clerk puts it this way: "The poor and rich get it. The middle man can't afford it."

And a prosperous Haddon Heights broker sums it up as follows: "The hospitals around here are too expensive for the man in the street. I just want to get a break for the poor fellow who has children."

Piece of Mind

timid slash through the pattern. Then I started to apply paste.

"Paperhanging's Easy"

Everyone to whom I had spoken had assured me: "Paperhanging's easy; there's nothing to it!" However, you are now to picture me perched atop a shaky ladder, a 10-foot length of wet paper curling about my body like the serpents of Laocoon, with paste on my hands, paste on my hair, paste all over my good old dungarees that had surely never envisaged such a fate when they were honorably discharged from naval service. But somehow the first strip got pasted on and smoothed down. Then the next strip had to be matched and pasted into place. This was done with fair success. My spirits began to rise again; it wasn't so hard, after all! But that scurvy paper had more tricks up its sleeve. There are three doors and four windows in that room, every one with projecting woodwork to which the paper had to be fitted and cut. Also, the paper developed an alarming tendency to tear as soon as it was touched.

However, with patience, determination, care, a little teetering on the ladder, and a lot of cussing in the worst spots, the paper was hung. Oddly enough, the room really looks colorful and pretty. As my wife remarked today while looking at it, "Well, anyway, the room has character!" Although I took that as a compliment, somehow I felt it best not to inquire too closely as to just what she meant.

But the important fact is that the room is done, and, as my daughter says, "We did it!" Every member of the family had a share in the job. Our children learned anew the pleasures and rewards of working together toward a common goal. They saw demonstrated the truth of my attitude that given determination to do so, anybody can succeed in almost anything he is willing to work hard to accomplish. We have a legitimate feeling of pride when we look at the room, much more than if we had merely told a decorator, "Go ahead and redo that room."

"Was It Worth It?"

Of course, economically speaking, I don't know if it was worth while. A decorator might have charged us $75 or so for the room. The materials cost us about a dozen dollars. Figuring my time at usual rates, I estimate the job is worth somewhere around $400, so it's the most expensively decorated room I know of!

With that job over, I personally am ready to settle down again. But my daughter, a miniature edition of her mother, has already reminded me several times, "You know, Daddy, with the bedroom made new, the halls and stairways don't look so good now." And my wife has said, with that familiar appraising gleam in her eye, "You know, this old rug we had in the bedroom really doesn't match this wallpaper at all, we need a new one."

Where would we men be without women? But it's dangerous to pursue that line of thought too far.

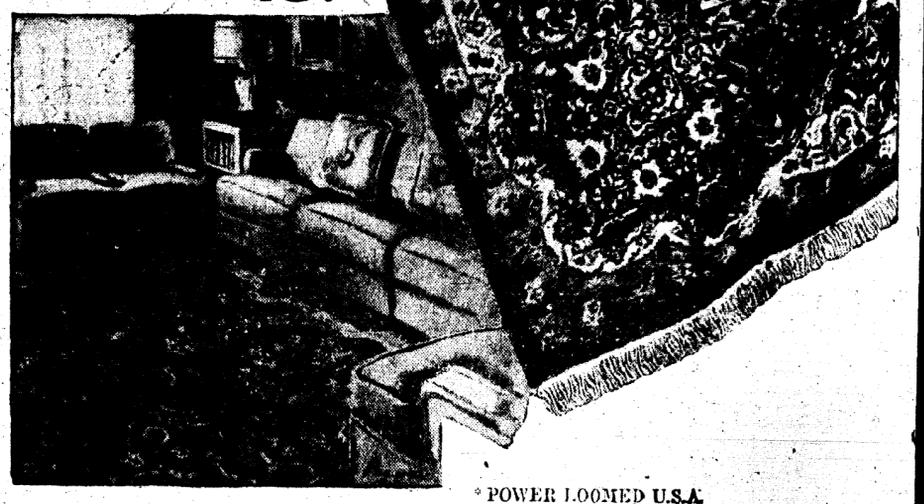

I surrender. It's still true that anybody can do just about anything he wants to, but when it comes to looming a rug, I draw the line.

We'll go out and buy one. After all, rug-weavers have to earn a living, too.

TB May Be Classed As a Rare Disease

Some diseases die fast, like typhus under impact of sanitation, pneumonia under impact of penicillin. Some die slowly, like tuberculosis and malaria, which have yielded even to control only stubbornly and in the last half-century, says Pathfinder news magazine.

However, last week at a meeting of communicable disease experts in Atlanta, Ga., U.S. Surgeon-General Leonard A. Scheele predicted the end of TB as a major threat in America within 10 to 15 years, thanks to mass screening, isolation of infected persons and vaccination.

As for malaria in the U.S., it is already a "ghost," Dr. Scheele said. Out of 28,000 suspect blood samples collected from all over the U.S. and tested last year, only four were found to be malarial.
