

Record High $3,127,367 School Budget Adopted At Brief Public Hearing

A record school budget totalling $3,127,367 was unanimously adopted by the Board of School Estimate Monday night.

The 1964-65 appropriation reflects a $124,443 increase over the current budget of $3,002,924 and includes a $5,100 minimum pay for new teachers and a 1 per cent boost for administrators and secretaries.

The new budget is expected to account for about two thirds of an estimated 39 point tax hike, bringing to $6.79 the estimated rate for 1964. Common Council introduced its municipal operating budget Tuesday night.

During the five-minute public hearing, Mrs. Webster Van Winkle of 271 Ashland road, protested the amount of salary increases for principals and supervisory personnel terming the 1 per cent boosts as "almost insultingly small" when compared to the teachers' salary guide that represents increases ranging from $100 to $200.

Robert H. Smith, a member of the Board of School Estimate and newly elected school board president, declared that the administrative personnel were in a "somewhat different category" than teachers, and as a result "should be treated differently with respect to wages." He added that although they may be passed up one year for raises, they could be made up the next year.

Cites 1% Ceiling
In answering Mrs. Van Winkle's statement, Council-at-Large Phillip N. Trowbridge, council representative on the Board of School Estimate, cited a statement made last September when Council asked that salary increases for both municipal and school personnel be kept to a maximum 1 per cent. He added that during the last 10 years, municipal costs have doubled and school appropriations tripled, and that "1964 had to be the year" for a leveling off of expenses. Mr. Trowbridge also reported that a seven-man committee has been named by Council to study both municipal and school salary guides.

The new budget calls for $2,864,867 the amount to be raised by taxation, an increase of $130,638 over the current year. State aid is expected to reach $262,500, a boost of $15,255 over this year. Contributing to the $124,443 budget increase is $49,000 for seven new teachers, and a $51,000 hike in teachers' salaries.

The largest item in the budget, $2,135,950, is an increase of $124,500, is earmarked for salaries of all regular, new and special classroom teachers, librarians, guidance and psychological personnel, bedside and substitute teachers and wage increases. The school board pointed out that "many unforeseeable but inevitable changes in instructional personnel throughout the given year make it impossible to forecast."

New Historical Society Elects Trustee Board

A board of trustees and officers were elected for the recently revived Summit Historical Society at a meeting held last Thursday evening at City Hall.

Trustees of the Society, are Mayor David E. Truckess, former Mayors Maxwell Lester, Jr. and C. Philip Dean, former Councilman and Freeholder Ernest S. Hickok, John N. May, Jr., Ralph H. Sayre, Jr., Mrs. Robert Zenker and Mrs. Webster Van Winkle.

Mr. Lester served as president of the original Historical Society which became inactive some years ago.

Elected officers were: C. Dale Whitesell, president; Mrs. Kenneth Robson, vice president; J. Alan Drummond, treasurer, and C. Baldwin White, secretary.

After discussion by those attending the meeting it was decided that members of standing committees would be selected by the trustees and announced at the next general meeting of the Society to be held at City Hall on March 5.

Center Asks $100,000 for New Addition

A campaign to raise $100,000 for a new sanctuary at the Jewish Community Center was launched on Sunday, at a congregation-wide rally. It was announced by Albert I. Brill, president. The drive will continue for two weeks and end on February 16.

The $100,000 fund will be used to build a sanctuary wing which will be physically attached to the existing structure and will house the sanctuary proper and an assembly hall.

In addition, several classrooms will be added to complete the Center's religious school.

"Our congregation now feels," said Mr. Brill, "that we have reached the stage where we must expand our facilities to accommodate our worshippers. We want all of our families to worship at the same place at the same time. We believe that families that pray together stay together. Because of this we decided to embark on a campaign for this purpose at this time."

Howard Popper has been named general chairman of the drive. Mr. Popper, a resident of Berkeley Heights, is associated with Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Serving with Mr. Popper and aiding him in the drive will be Hartley Finkel, Leo Stanger, Elio Cohen, and Harry Hammer. Women members of the Center's drive are represented by Mrs. Helen Blum and Mrs. Herbert Mantell.

"I feel that acting as chairman for this effort is a distinct honor," said Mr. Popper, "because it will enable our congregation, at long last, to fulfill its dream."

Mayor Names Seven to Study City Salaries

As a first step in his plan to set up a schedule of salaries for municipal employees consistent with those paid in private industry, Mayor David E. Truckess advised Common Council Tuesday night that he had appointed a seven-man committee to study municipal practices.

Named chairman of the committee was former Common Council President Fletcher P. Thornton, Jr. Others named to the mayor's committee include Dr. J. W. Cogger of Celanese, Robert Talbot, Board of Education member; G. E. Cobb of Kemper; Police Chief John B. Sayre, Hughe Ryder, proprietor of the New Hampshire House Restaurant, and Anthony Rathek, Ward 1 Councilman.

According to the mayor's directive, the committee is to make recommendations on or before August 1 in order for them to be considered by the public finance committee of Council and the various city boards and departments in preparation for the 1965 budget.

In studying municipal wage practices, the committee has been asked to prepare a salary schedule consistent with salaries paid in private industry in relation to responsibility, experience, education and training of the particular job classification.

When presenting his plan for the study in his State of the City address on January 2, Mayor Truckess said, "It has been my feeling that in some of the departments some of the personnel has not been compensated for their increased responsibilities to the city resulting from their experience, training, and dedicated service to the citizens."

In other matters, Common Council approved a resolution

New Building During '63 Highest in Three Years

New construction in the city last year topped the $3,000,000 mark for the first time since 1960 when permits issued then totaled $3,130,000, the building inspector's office has revealed.

With new building during 1963 reaching $3,276,800, additional construction in the city over the last ten years has now climbed above the $30,000,000 mark. Last year's totals represent a gain of $1,634,091 over the $1,642,709 in 1962, and an increase of $321,495 over the 1961 figure of $2,955,305.

Top years in new construction here were in 1958 when a record-breaking $6,264,955 in permits were issued and in 1956 when new building totaled $5,655,890.

Accounting for $1,952,275 of this year's new construction was CIBA for two new buildings including an administration building and a cafeteria.

The December total of $100,100 represented a $184,900 decrease from the November, 1963 figure of $285,000. In December, 1962 new building ground completely to a halt.

Top months in new construction in 1963 were July with $1,496,000 and August, $456,275. The least amount of new construction occurred in October when permits issued totaled $52,800.

Other month-by-month totals showed January, $119,300; February, $92,000; March, $70,750; April, $139,900; May, $161,575; June, $210,800, and September, $148,300.

While new construction in the city climbed above the $3,000,000 mark during 1963, alteration-addition permits went over the $1,000,000 for the first time in history.

New permits last year reached an all-time high of $1,025,461, representing an increase of $402,946 over the $622,515 reported during 1962. Top month in alteration-additions last year was May when permits totaled $482,855.

Lachner, Perry Resign in Dispute With United Fund

A stormy controversy on how this year's United Campaign drive should be conducted resulted in the resignations last weekend of Marshall S. Lachner, drive chairman, and Harold M. Perry, president of the board of trustees.

The squabble stemmed primarily from refusal by some agencies to go along with plans for opening the United Campaign drive during the spring and for a proposed raffle or sale of official Olympic jackets and towels as a part of the Campaign promotion.

The dissenting agencies felt that any activity by the United Campaign at this time of year would be an encroachment upon the Combined Spring Drive, which opens March 1. In the past the United Campaign has never started its solicitations until the early fall.

It also was felt that a raffle would be improper inasmuch as Summit had rejected legalized games of chance and also since some of the member agencies, such as Boy and Girl Scout and YMCA and YWCA, are character-building agencies and thus should not be identified with a raffle.

Both recommendations were part of an overall program submitted to the board of trustees by Mr. Lachner a month ago.

The resignations of the United Campaign's two top members were given impetus last Thursday night when a showdown meeting was held at the YWCA and the entire Lachner program was laid bare during a heated four-hour session that lasted until nearly midnight.

Voting against full implementation of the program were the YMCA, YWCA, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and SAGE. Although the seven other agencies as well as all the public members on hand voted to endorse all parts of the program, Mr. Lachner declared that he could not carry out the drive without "100 per cent support from the agencies." He added that the sale of Olympic jackets at this time was necessary in order to take advantage of the games now in progress in Austria, and pointed out that if the idea was dropped, the campaign stood to lose an estimated $100,000. In regard to the raffle portion of the program, Mr. Lachner said that each person buying a ticket was in effect buying a ball point pen of which he had ordered 4,000. He pointed out that the ticket each purchaser received could lead to the winning of a prize.

Since raffle drawings are illegal in Summit, the drawing had been scheduled to take place at Watchung where they are legal.

Mr. Lachner claimed that the sale would in no way hinder the drive and could possibly aid it.

Following a step-by-step review of Mr. Lachner's program Thursday night, which was made by Mr. Perry, public members and agency representatives voted 9 to 8 to endorse the program. But when Mr. Lachner declared that he would be forced to submit his resignation because of the close vote, three

Various Offenses Net $100 in Fines, Jail

Three persons were fined $100 last week in Municipal Court on charges ranging from larceny to speeding.

Alfred C. Imbimba of Orange was fined $50 and given a 30-day sentence in Union County Jail

$285,411 Grant To Speed Up Park Purchases

Increased activity in the acquisition of private property for the 427-acre park along the Passaic River in Summit, New Providence and Berkeley Heights, can be expected by a $285,411 grants made available last week to the County Park Commission by the Urban Renewal Administration in Washington.

The Park Commission already has been given $900,000 by the state from Green Acres funds. The total cost of acquiring the proposed park lands is estimated at $1,800,000. However several large tracts are owned by the municipalities, which have agreed to donate them to the Park Commission.

Appraisals of private property most of it in New Providence, have been started but were slowed down by a lack of funds. The new federal grant, according to Robert Krestan, general superintendent of the Park Commission, will "certainly spur our negotiations."

The federal grant of $285,411 represents 20 per cent of the project's cost.

Mr. Krestan said it will take some time, however, to acquire all the property in the complex dealings. An estimated 250 parcels are involved in an eight-mile stretch of the Passaic River covering 427 acres in Summit,

Junior Club Urges Firearm Registration

At a general meeting of the Junior Fortnightly Club on Wednesday, January 29, club members voted to write their legislators at Trenton and Washington to encourage new legislation both on the state and national levels to establish registration of all firearms.

According to a club spokesman, it is the opinion that "only persons with illegal intentions would not want a record of his purchase." The local Club added that the proposed registration will not eliminate all killings, deliberate or accidental, by firearms, but hopes that it would cut down on some.

The club also voted to send its contribution to the National Cultural Center as a memorial to the late President Kennedy.

Reservations for the "Guise and Dolls" masquerade ball on Saturday are still open and may be made by calling Mrs. J. Alan Drummond at CR 7-3122.

Nick Delmore, Once Of Heights, Dies

Nick Delmore, a notorious Prohibition-era figure and one-time resident of Berkeley Heights, died Sunday at Long Branch.

Delmore in the 1930s operated a speakeasy in Berkeley Heights and was engaged in local real estate business. Delmore avenue in the Heights is named for him.

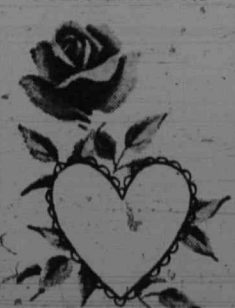

He was indicted, but later acquitted, for the murder of a Federal agent and he successfully fended off government attempts at deportation.

flameless electric range CONTROLS
HEAT more accurately than any other type

Yes, with a new electric range, heat control is so accurate that delicate foods such as sauces and frostings don't even require a double boiler. And, of course, cooking by wire rather than fire always assures you of even heat without fluctuation.

But don't take our word for it, check with a friend that owns one—better yet ask your Reddy Kilowatt Dealer to show you how the new electric ranges cook rings around the rest.

Check Baby

Food Jars

Before Using

New Providence — Mothers are asked by the local Board of Health to check the jars of baby food prior to purchase to assure its safety for consumption.

Manufacturers are now using two types of safety caps for glass jar baby food:

A cap with a flexible button in the center which is held in a depressed, concave position by the vacuum in the jar. If the jar is opened and the vacuum lost, the button pops up and can be moved up and down with pressure from the finger, making a clicking sound.

A two piece cap with three parallel lines. The lines are continuous across the two sections of the cap until the jar is opened. Then the lines in the center section no longer match with the lines at the rim. If you find a jar has been opened, call it to the attention of the store manager. When a jar is opened at home, listen for the characteristic sound of a vacuum. If there is none, do not use the food. If the jar is chipped, do not use it. After opening the jar, keep it covered in the refrigerator.

Auto Crash

Police said the accident occurred when Wellbrock's foot apparently slipped off the brake and hit the gas pedal, causing the car to lurch ahead into the tree. Both were treated at Overlook Hospital.

The car was towed from the scene. Patrolman Julius Dillingham investigated.

On Sunday, Richard G. Gar-ardi, 17, of 43 Woodland avenue, Murray Hill, was taken to Overlook Hospital for treatment of injuries when the car in which he was a passenger went out of control on Broad street near Middle avenue and smashed into two utility poles and a tree.
The car, driven by Cornelius Hal-lingse, jr., 19, of 366 Central avenue, Murray Hill, was described as a total wreck and was towed from the scene. Police said the car came to a halt near Gary road, about 175 feet from the start of the accident.

Mr. Garardi was traveling west at the time of the mishap. Investigator V. J. Crolihan Walsh and David Senior.

Randolph W. Wither, 37, of Newark, was taken to Overlook Hospital on Thursday when his truck jumped the curb at 758
So. Field avenue, near Passaic avenue, and crashed into a tree.

At the time of the mishap Mr. Wither was driving east on Springfield.

Damage to the truck was heavy and was towed from the scene.

Investigating were Sgt. Chu-doba and Patrolman Ralph Noll-ing.

Rocking the United Campaign Boat

The United Campaign, although not completely torn apart, has unquestionably been dealt a serious blow by the week-end resignations of Marshall S. Lachner, this year's drive chairman, and Harold M. Perry, president of the board of trustees. Their resignations stemmed from a stormy controversy as to how the 1964 campaign should be conducted.

Opponents of Mr. Lachner's program, who represent a minority feeling, object to selling Olympic jackets and towels at this time since they say it would interfere with the forthcoming Combined Spring Drive, and that a raffle to raise extra money, is morally wrong.

Because Mr. Lachner was not given an unfettered hand to carry out his program in the way he thought best, he submitted his resignation rather than compromise. Mr. Perry, who backed the Lachner program 100 per cent, found himself in a position where he felt his own resignation also was necessary. Although we admire both men for their stand, we must admit that their actions will have a harmful effect on this year's drive.

Now the question is: Where do we go from here? There will of course be a United Campaign drive this year in which each agency with the help of others will contribute time and manpower in an effort to meet the overall goal. However, it is the opinion of many that this controversy has opened the door to a much deeper problem than the mere issue of selling jackets or holding a raffle, and that is, can the yearly drive ever hope to succeed without ever changing its approach.

It should be an accepted fact by now that the usual ho-hum type campaign which we experience year after year is not hefty enough to carry the drive over the top. As it was pointed out by the majority including Mr. Perry and all the public members on hand during last Thursday's meeting: Something new, novel and original must be injected into the campaign if success can ever be achieved. Past campaigns have failed because we have shied away from anything that smacks of originality. The Herald deplors this attitude and feels that Mr. Lachner's very novel program should have been given a chance. We do not think the Spring

Drive would have been harmed since local residents would have been given a psychological push that agency support knows no seasons. As far as the raffle was concerned, we do not think it was one since each person giving a dollar was in effect buying a ball point pen. If the number on the receipt or ticket happened to correspond with a prize number, the purchaser was all the more remunerated for his contribution. We see nothing morally wrong in this. Because a minority opposed this type campaign, all of whom represented agencies, the program was abandoned. Furthermore, raffles for charitable purposes have been held in Summit on numerous occasions. In fact, one is in progress now for the benefit of the Summit First Aid Squad.

Such action leads to an important question, and that is how much say should the agencies which comprise the United Campaign have in conducting the drive. In our opinion they should have none. The yearly drive should be carried out by a committee of public members who have no affiliation with any agency. In this way, the agencies would not have the opportunity to inject personal motives or feelings into the campaign at the expense of others. Such a committee could be appointed by the mayor or by a group of past United Campaign chairmen who are no longer involved.

Since the agencies are emotionally and subjectively involved in the United Campaign, it is difficult at times for them to see the trees for the woods. A non-partisan group, given complete responsibility to conduct the drive, would go a long way in uplifting the United Campaign. Besides, we cannot see any agency spurning hard cash once it was collected. One does not look a gift horse in the mouth.

It is time for some serious soul-searching on the part of all concerned with the United Campaign. The recent controversy has uncovered a serious problem. Perhaps it is all for the best that it was brought into the open because now we know how a minority, representing agencies only, can torpedo a program that was basically created for the best interests of all agencies. We wonder how the giving-public will react in October when their doorbells are pushed.

Committing Syntaxicide

Have you noticed recently the growing trend of turning nouns into verbs? It is not new and has been going on for some time but lately there seems to be more and more of it. We are being verbed (or should we say "nounded") to the point of committing syntaxicide.

One of the most common examples that comes to us is the practice of using the word "chair" as a verb. Hardly a week goes by that we don't receive a release that says that "Mrs. Jones chaired the meeting."

You run across this sort of thing in almost every newspaper as well as on the air. Not too long ago the amusement editor of a large daily paper offered this gem:

"Michael Rennie, in the role of a debonair man-about-town, gifts Barbara Rush with a necklace . . ."

Another one picked up via TV concerned Jimmie Rodgers duetting "Night and Day" with a female singer. Most grammarians have long since been resigned to "solo" as a verb, but how does a single person duet? Could it also be said that Isaac Stern had symphonied Brahms' Double Concerto with Rostropovich and the Philharmonic. Or that Fats Waller had comboed with his band?

Only this week several radio newscasters frequently used the noun "bus" as a verb to describe New York City's newest school integration attempt, such as "parents are objecting to the bussing of their children to distant schools."

And a news release a few days ago from a large corporation concerning the promotion of a local man, states that "he will headquarter at the East Orange office."

Admittedly, in the long growth of the English language scores of necessary verbs have been fashioned from nouns. But why draft unnecessary ones like "chaired" or redundant ones like "gifts" ("gives" works quite nicely, thank you?)

Verbs, like taxes, are seldom revoked, but we'd prefer to confine the creation of new ones to useful purposes.

Wet Up to the Ankles

Richard M. Nixon (remember him?) has projected himself in the presidential race with all the daintiness of an elephant. When he recently announced that he would accept the Republican nomination, he voiced something just about everyone knew a long time ago.

Dickie is now wet up to the ankles in the political stream and it won't be long before he takes the plunge and becomes wet all over. He'll drop his coyness and become an all-out, no-holds-barred candidate, which might be some improvement of the foot dragging he now shows.

Nixon frankly admits at this time that he is the strongest potential candidate the GOP has, which isn't the sort of attitude one expects from a man who also maintains he is disinterested in the nomination.

Nixon isn't only interested; he is downright eager.

There is no better barometer of Nixon's interest than his admission that he would not even turn down the vice presidential spot if it should be offered. In other words, he wants a public office. He has had a taste of the limelight, he likes it, and he wants more.

Possibly Nixon is still trying to maintain the pose he displayed after his more recent trouncing in California when he vowed (and, oh, how he vowed!) that he was through with politics.

Mr. Nixon, in our opinion, should quickly remove himself from the political stream and confine his activities to the practice of law and nostalgic talks with Harold Stassen about the good old days. They both have much in common.

Focus on Open Housing

Editor, Summit Herald:
During the closing weeks of the old year, the Open Housing Committee of Summit, New Providence and Berkeley Heights held a public meeting at Our Lady of Peace Roman Catholic Church, New Providence. The moral and religious side of the question of integration in housing was thoroughly presented by leaders from Protestant, Catholic and Jewish fellowships.

We wish to commend this program sponsored by the Open Housing Committee and urge all citizens to focus upon the question of Open Housing from the religious and moral point of view during this year. In a time when social action or inaction can spring from many motives, we feel that it is important to keep always before the demands of justice, love, and equality before God.

We of the Christian faith are approaching Lent when we turn our eyes toward the cross and remember the love of our Saviour for all mankind. It is our prayer that the spirit that goes a second mile and the love that suffers long and is kind may direct us into a true experience of brotherhood in our community; that justice may outweigh pride, that love may triumph over hate, and that concern for persons may be of greater importance than concern for things.

Summit Ministers Association
Library No Rendezvous
Editor, Summit Herald:
The new $552,616 public library is a beautiful building and one of which Summit residents should be proud. Perhaps this pride could best be manifested through maintenance of the respectful silence that any library deserves. A library is a place for study, research and peaceful reading — not a rendezvous for high school students after 3 p.m.

The responsibility for enforcing quiet lies in the hands of the librarians. If they refuse this duty, the citizens of Summit, all of whom are part owners of the new library as taxpayers, should take action and insure that the building is being used in accordance with the purpose for which it was built.

Dismayed at City Plans

Editor, Summit Herald:
Some months ago, we were happy to view your published account of the proposed park along the Passaic River, together with a map of the areas to be included under a plan in which the communities, Union County Park Commission and State would all cooperate under the Green Acres program. Among the areas indicated was that section which is now used as the Summit city dump, together with the surrounding wooded area which abuts the cludes many hundreds of a variety of large, beautiful trees, — oak, beech, tulip, black birch, and dogwood, — to name a few. A rushing brook winds through the glen, flowing into the river. These woods furnish a home for many wild animals, including several deer. A number of youth groups, including the YMCA's Camp Canundus, use this wooded glen in its present natural state as a nature study and recreation area. Hence, I was deeply shocked to learn from the city engineer that the City plans to completely dispoil this area, piping the brook and filling in the glen.

Noted Woman Violin Maker To Speak Here

Carleen Maley Hutchins of Montclair, whose pioneer effort in the designing and constructing of stringed instruments of the violin family has merited the attention of professional musicians throughout the United States and Canada, will be the guest speaker at the February 14 meeting of the music department of the Fortnightly Club, scheduled for 2 p.m. at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Hutchins will present a demonstration lecture on the construction and acoustical development of the violin, viola, and cello. She will display professionally-tested and approved examples of her work, which in the past 16 years has encompassed the design and personal construction, from drawing board to finished product, of more than 60 instruments.

Mrs. Hutchins will be assisted in her demonstration lecture by Mrs. Thomas F. Clark and Mrs. D. F. Kautzman, concert violinists and teachers of Summit; Mrs. S. D. Fellows, concert viola performer, also of Summit; and Mrs. William G. Martens, concert cellist, of Chatham.

Studies of the violin as a circuit, one of the standard techniques of acoustics in which the various mechanically vibrating parts are treated in a manner analogous to the elements of an electrical circuit, recently made by J. C. Schelleng, formerly of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, have been incorporated into Mrs. Hutchins' research, and much of her testing equipment has been on loan from the various acoustical research laboratories known to scientists working in this field.

Mrs. Hutchins, a graduate of Cornell University, taught science at the Brearley School, in New York City from 1937 to 1947. In addition to a B.S. degree from Cornell, she has a M.A. in education from New York University.

Mrs. Hutchins began her first studies in the making of the violin, primarily in protest at the inferior tonal quality and workmanship of her own instrument, the purchase price of which was not cheap. Encouraged by an uncle who was himself a violinmaker of reputation, she pursued her studies, and produced her first violin, taking exactly two years from blueprint to finished product.

Finding enormous satisfaction in this new work, she enrolled as a student in violin making with Karl Berger, nationally known maker of fine violins, and later, studied with Simone Sacconi, an acknowledged authority on the manufacture of stringed instruments of the violin family.

Miss Horn is a graduate of Winter Park, Fla., High School and is now a junior at Stetson University, DeLand, Fla., where she is majoring in elementary education. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

Mr. Taft, a senior at Stetson where he is a member of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, is majoring in sociology. He is a graduate of Blair Academy, Blairs town.

Fortnightly Unit to Hear Talk on Art

"Color Through the Painter's Eyes" will be the theme of a lecture to be given to the arts and crafts department of the Fortnightly Club by Dr. William Arkwright Doppler on Monday, at 2 p.m. An artist, scientist, former pupil of Albert Einstein, Dr. Doppler is a teacher of art in the Madison Chatham Adult Education School.

Born in California and trained for a teaching career with a Ph.D. in physics, Dr. Doppler lived a number of years in Paris before World War I. His interest in art dates from that point.

Returning to the United States after the war, Dr. Doppler entered business, was one of the charter members of the New York Sales Executive Club, served as consultant to the Rutgers Institute of Microbiology and held management positions until his retirement in 1953. Since then he has devoted his time to study and art.

The tea following the meeting will be served under the direction of Mrs. Stanley O. Morgan. Her committee includes Mrs. F. Sherman Byland, Mrs. Frank G. Helander, Mrs. James McW. Kellers and Mrs. Leon Shechter.

reputation, its citizens must accept the fact that school costs everywhere are, and should be, the largest item in a city's budget. We are encouraged to understand from the hearing of the Board of School Estimates that the Council proposes to make a survey in 1964 of municipal supervisory salaries in comparison with other communities, and we would urge both the Board of Education and the Council to plan on keeping our teachers' salary scale really competitive with comparable communities, and especially to recognize the contribution of our school administrators.

School Pay Inadequate

Editor, Summit Herald:
We would like to question the wisdom of Council's recent policy of providing a one per cent salary increase for all municipal employees, including the administrative personnel of our school. Is this across-the-board increase merely a convenient formula for meeting municipal budget requirements? Does it allow the Board of Education to meet the basic objective of keeping educational salaries competitive with comparable communities?

It would appear to us that an arbitrary cost-of-living increase of one per cent for every employee — from clerk to school principal — is most unsatisfactory. At a time when the whole country faces a scarcity of educational talent, it behooves Summit to gear its school pay levels to individual incentive, merit and experience.

For an above-average school system, we would urge the Board of Education and Council to be willing to offer above-average salary increases to the schools' administrative and teaching personnel.

Summit Cagers Win Two Conference Tilts

Summit — The Summit High School basketball team continued its winning ways last week with two Suburban Conference triumphs over Verona, 52-56, and Millburn, 67-28. The victories kept the Maroon and White in a tie for first place in the Suburban Conference pending the outcome of last Tuesday's Summit-New Providence clash.

Tomorrow night the Hilltoppers will travel to Cedar Grove for their second encounter with the Panthers. That game should be an easy victory for the Maroon and White. However, next Tuesday the Hilltoppers will face a very difficult game against Cranford in their final non-Suburban Conference game of the regular season. This game should be very close.

Traditionally, one of the toughest games on the Hilltopper schedule is the contest at Verona, because the Verona team is always stronger on its home court. This year's game was no exception. The lead changed hands constantly in the first half and it ended with the score tied 29-29.

In the first quarter, John Mallory was spectacularly accurate as he connected for nine points, mostly on long jump shots from the corner. In the second period, Mallory and Brent Cromwell both scored four points to keep the Hilltoppers in the game.

When the Hilltoppers came back after halftime, they were a much-improved team. Jim Royer scored two quick baskets, both on set shots from the corner, to give the Maroon and White an advantage of four points. After a Verona foul shot, Hugh Moore scored on a jump shot from the foul line and Brent Cromwell sank two layups.

This gave the Hilltoppers a 39-30 lead. The third period ended as Sid Rhines scored on a long shot to give Summit a 40-39 lead.

Early in the fourth quarter, the Hillbillies began to catch up. With the score 51-49, Moore sank two foul shots to give the Maroon and White a four-point lead. After a Verona basket, Royer also sank two foul shots to regain the four-point advantage. After another Verona score, Cromwell came to life. He sank a layup, and after another Verona two-pointer, scored a three-point play. With 12 seconds remaining and a four-point lead, Jeff Hartlaub sank two foul shots for a 62-56 victory.

Two players accounted for 39 points in the Verona game and 36 in the Millburn game. Cromwell had his best week of the season. He scored 21 points against Verona and 22 against Millburn. Brent also was spectacular under the boards as he pulled down 11 rebounds in each game.

Mallory scored 32 points in the two games. He was the team leader, the man who always came through with the big basket when it was needed, and also set up the great scoring attack of the Hilltoppers.

Royer also played an excellent game against Verona. He scored 10 points and brought down a team-high 12 rebounds.

The game with Millburn was a complete rout. In the first period, however, the Hilltoppers put up a stiff fight. At the end of the quarter, the score was only 12-8 in Summit's favor.

In the second quarter, Cromwell came alive and scored eight points to give Summit a 32-17 halftime lead.

The Hilltoppers dominated the third period. Cromwell started things off with a layup, followed by a jump shot by Mallory. Then Cromwell scored eight points in a row on jump shots and layups.

Royer and Hartlaub both scored on jump shots, and Mallory hit on a three-point play. Then Royer scored the final two points of the period for Summit. With eight seconds remaining, Millburn cracked the net for the first time in the quarter.

In the final period, the second string took over. They picked up five more points for the Hilltopper cause. Mike Bloomstein led the second unit with six points, which he picked up on two perfectly executed three-point plays. Fran Scatessa also had an excellent night as he scored on two jump shots and Paul Prather also scored four points.

The junior varsity also had a very good week last week. Larry Scott played his best game against Verona as he scored 20 points. Two of these came with three seconds left in the game to give Summit a 58-56 victory. Dennis Swick scored 11 points.

Against Millburn, the junior varsity won 47-42. Pete Moroney scored 14 points and Gary Shearon and Larry Scott contributed 10 points for the victorious Hilltoppers.

Badgley Sparkles; Pioneers Rout Foes

By Roger Smith

New Providence — Around New Providence Rick Badgley is known as "The Quick" — and any follower of the high school basketball team can tell you why.

Coach Ed Lieder has developed the Pioneers into one of Union County's most powerful offensive units. The main spring of the Green and White's attack is a devastating fast break. The sparkplug of the running game is, of course, "Rick the Quick."

Judging from his performance last week, Badgley, who is only 5-9½, 150 pounds, may be considered one of the finest players of his size ever to grace a basketball court in the area. "The Quick" passed the 20-point mark twice last week as he led the Pioneers to two smashing victories. The fiery senior tallied 21 points as the Green and White crushed Madison, 75-40, and 25 points in New Providence's tremendous, 76-62, triumph over Verona.

The starting five of Badgley, Ted Garrison, Larry Rovelstad, Bob MacDonald and Rick Severson has been truly outstanding during the last three contests. Over that period, the Green and White has averaged 76 points-per-game. New Providence supporters were hopeful that they could maintain their hot pace against a tough Summit team here last Tuesday.

Entering the Summit game, New Providence has a distinguished 11-2 overall record and a fine 7-1 showing against Suburban Conference competition. After Summit, the Pioneers will face Caldwell tomorrow and Chatham next Tuesday. Both contests are away.

The Pioneers waited until the third period before catching fire against Madison. The Green and White assumed a modest 28-16 advantage at halftime as weak defense and poor shooting hurt the Lieder men.

The New Providence five took the floor in the second half, however, and broke the game open with a record third-quarter surge. The fast-breaking Pioneers swished the nets for 33 points (including 15 in a row), while the overpowered Dodgers could score but five. The Green and White second string played the entire final quarter and coasted to the 35-point victory.

Badgley connected on nine of 13 shots from the floor and three of five from the foul line. The other front-liners looked great too, as Ted Garrison tallied 16 and Larry Rovelstad and Bob MacDonald 10 apiece. Gary Rice chipped in with six and Bill Royland with four while Rick Severson, John Ellinger, Bill Caruso and Dave Conroy each contributed a bucket.

In field goal percentage, the Pioneers outgunned Madison 41 percent (31 of 75) to 28 percent (18 of 64). New Providence also dominated the backboards, as Garrison picked off 17 caroms

CELLARDWELLERS SWEENS LEADERS IN G & D LEAGUE

Berkeley Heights — Last place Berkeley Recreation took on first place William Pitt in the Guys & Dolls Mixed Bowling League at Berkeley Recreation and when the smoke had cleared the mighty had fallen and Berkeley Recreation garnered all four points.

In other matches, Blue Hills Beauty Shoppe took three points from Lucky Five; Stashluk Heating and Plumbing took three points from Pine Tree Inn, and Lord Stirling Inn and Hill City Delicatessen split two points each.

Harry Jenkins continued to knock over the pins at a "red hot" pace by leading all the bowlers with a 586 series, which included games of 214 and 200. He is well out in front in average, leading the league with a 177-plus mark.

Highlanders Nipped By Undefeated foe

Berkeley Heights — Governor Livingston Regional High School basketball team probably is the best team in New Jersey with a mediocre record. The Highlanders sported only a 50-50 record at the start of this week's play but five of those six losses have been to three of the State's leading teams — South Plainfield (twice), Summit (twice) and New Providence. These three teams have lost only three games among them all season yet each barely escaped with a one-point victory over Governor Livingston.

South Plainfield won its 13th straight game here last Friday, staying off a late Highlander surge to win a thriller, 50-49. It was the Tigers' second win over the Highlanders this season but their closest shave in an all-winning year.

This week the Highlanders who had a four-game winning streak snapped by the one-point loss, will be trying to boost their win-loss record to assure a seeding in the upcoming Union County Conference tournament.

Coach Don Wodock's cagers figured to handle North Plainfield (3-7) without too much trouble last Tuesday afternoon at the Cahucks' court, but tomorrow night will be a different story at the Highlanders' gym. St. Mary's of Elizabeth will invade Berkeley Heights with a deceiving 4-12 record. The perennially powerful Elizabeth team is far better than its record would indicate.

The Hilltoppers actually have a 12-4 record this year, but were forced to forfeit eight victories due to one of its players being declared ineligible on a residence technically. St. Mary's rolled up a county record of 119 points last week in routing Edison Tech of Elizabeth with Bob Skarecki tossing in 57 points.

A victory over St. Mary's would go a long way towards assuring Governor Livingston of a tournament seeding and a berth in the State Tournament. It will be a severe test of the Highlanders' defense, but Governor Livingston is capable of avenging last season's close loss to the Hilltoppers.

Governor Livingston also will play Clark Regional next Tuesday afternoon in Clark. A victory in this game also is vital to the Highlanders' hopes for a county tourney seeding and a State Tournament berth.

South Plainfield jumped off to a six-point lead in the first period and held it through most of the first three quarters. The Tigers moved ahead 46-37 in the fourth period, but the Highlanders battled back with a 10-2 spurge to cut the lead to 48-47 in the final minute.

Goals by John Adamiak and Dave Jubanowsky left Governor Livingston trailing 47-45 with 90 seconds to play. After a South Plainfield foul, Bob Heuer scored on a driving layup and was fouled.

Bob missed the foul and the Highlanders missed a chance to tie the score. This proved fatal as South Plainfield gained a three-point edge with 31 seconds to play on two free throws. These were enough to offset Jim Benedict's basket in the final two seconds.

Fouls again hurt the Highlanders, with South Plainfield scoring on 14 of 18 attempts to only nine of 16 for Governor Livingston. The Highlanders scored two more goals than the Tigers.

Jubanowsky scored 14 points for Governor Livingston, while Heuer tallied 12 and Benedict 10. Adamiak added seven and Bob Lynch five in the well-balanced Highlander attack. Meredith Rice accounted for the other point.

Esso Tops Shop Loop

Berkeley Esso took over first place in the Berkeley Heights-New Providence Men's Industrial Bowling League by sweeping three games from J.K. Smit. Berkeley leads Nick Grice & Sons by one game and Arrow Lounge by three.

Bill Huizing led Berkeley into first place with a 219 game. Chatham Floor Covering scored the only other sweep, blanking Grace & Sons. Chatham had a 2,797 series, with Danny Bace rolling a 606 "honor roll" series including a 235 game. Joe Kawan had a 214 game and a 584 series.

Della Liquors, Arrow Lounge and Rebels Chemical were two game winners. Other high scores: Art Brattlof, 226, 562; Joe Mandato, 202, 557; Art Percario, 206, 556; John Markevich, 232, and Bob Waechler, 213.

2 Regional Wrestlers Lose First Matches

Berkeley Heights — The hopes of two Governor Livingston Regional High School wrestlers for undefeated dual-meet season records and the team's hope for a winning season were snuffed out last week.

Coach Jim Nedoff's Highlanders ran into two of the State's better teams in a three-day period and were dealt two severe whippings. Hanover Park Regional walloped Governor Livingston, 40-14, scoring eight pin victories, while South Plainfield turned back the Highlanders, 33-7, limiting the Nedoff grapplers to a single victory.

The pair of setbacks left Governor Livingston with a 4-5 record and three matches left. One of the matches, however, is with powerful Westfield High so the best the Highlanders can hope for is a .500 record. That could be achieved with victories over Rahway here last Tuesday afternoon and over Springfield Regional next Wednesday afternoon in Springfield.

The Highlanders were favored to whip Rahway, which is having a sub-par season, but are no better than an even choice against arch-rival Springfield. Bob Johnson, 105, and Phil Hof, 122, were the boys who had their hopes for unbeaten seasons shattered. Both were pinned by their Hanover Park rivals and dropped decisions to South Plainfield opponents.

Tom Massa, 114, was the only Highlander to win two bouts last week. He scored 6-2 and 1-0 decisions. Rick Johnson, 129, and John Ferrazera, 177, won decisions against Hanover Park, while heavy weight Roger McMahon won by default.

Massa won the only decision against South Plainfield. Bob German, 147, and Bob Hof, 167, accounted for the Highlanders' other points by wrestling to draws. Tom Piccinino dropped a 2-1 decision in the 156-pound class.

Mihal Builders Win, Regain League Lead

Stirling — The Mihal Builders regained first place in the Stirling A.A. Bowling League by sweeping Sorg's Esso, the only sweep in last week's action. The Builders hold a slender one-half game lead over the Doris Store, which split its match with Hotel Suburban. Spartan P.P. Company, the league leader most of the season, continued to slump, losing two games to Goss Printing Company. Goss came up with a 1,121 game and a 3,079 series.

Spartan still is only one game out of the lead, but only two games in front of fourth-place Stirling Hotel, which won twice from Archie's Resale. The Millington Fire Company also gained on the leaders, winning twice Stirling Hardware.

The Fire Company took undisputed possession of fifth place by winning and is only four games out of the lead. Stirling Department Store took a pair from Homestead Rollers.

Ed Falasco and Joe Barter rolled "honor roll" series. Falasco had a 608, with games of 205, 202 and 201, while Barter bowled a 602, including a 219 game.

Other high scores: B. Goss, 236; G. Goss, 220; J. Falzarano, 218; R. Sepe, 202; L. Delir Paoli, 218; R. Sepe, 202; L. Delir Henry, 204; B. Banhardt, 214; B. Drins, 241; W. Hendershot, 204; R. Piano, 203; R. DiPaolo, 200, and C. Christiansen, 202, 200.

Summit — The top three teams in the Summit Recreation Bowling League all won two games in last week's matches at Echo Lanes. West Penn Oil leads the league, with Larry's 1½ games back in second place and Ciba four games back in third place.

West Penn squeaked through its first game with Jim's Chevron by a seven-pin margin, dropped the middle game by a good margin and then won the final game by more than 100 pins.

Ciba just missed a sweep over Charlines as they dropped the final game by a single pin. John Hunt, with 228-596, and Dick Sabra, with 550, were high for Charlines. Ciba had a steady performance from all five men, with Rudy Burger tops with 218-211-573, while Bill Behre had 217-571.

In the final match, Merchant's rolled the high three games of the night with games of 914-951-914 for 2,769. Pete Hasney of the Merchants had 190-210-212 for a 612 "honor roll" series and Joe Kawan had 213-600. For Werner's Al Swick had 218-220-604 and Sedgie Phillippi had 560.

the city will be required to raise by taxation $2,864,500 for Board of Education needs during its fiscal year. The total is $209,771 over this year's $2,654,729.

Because the Board of Education operates on a fiscal year ending June 30, one-half of this increase will be reflected in the municipal tax rate for the year 1964 and the other half in 1965.

The tax rate for 1964 will include half of the 1963-1964 increase covering January 1 to June 30 amounting to $96,940 and the first half of the 1964-1965 increase covering July 1, 1964 to December 31, 1964 amounting to $104,855.50. The school budget will therefore require the city to raise by taxation an additional $201,825.50 in 1964, as compared to 1963.

It was further stated by Mr. Trowbridge that the budget only includes appropriations for municipal operations, debt service, and capital expenditures and school debt service including school emergency appropriations. It does not reflect the Board of Education's budget which was passed by the Board of School Estimate on Monday, the County budget or the special $109,000 item for veterans and senior citizens exemptions granted by a state-wide referendum last November.

Of the total, $1,287,156 has been set aside for wages and salaries as compared to the $1,283,156 last year. The $4,000 increase is based on a 1 per cent cost of living increase for all municipal employees.

Other expenses have been estimated at $322,066, a reduction of $592 from the $322,658 allocated last year.

Capital Cost Drop
Capital expenditures for 1964 are fixed at $72,700, a decrease of $28,100 from the $100,800 appropriated last year. The top capital expenditure for 1964 is a Garwood loadpacer with accessories for the garbage and trash department costing $12,500.

Pension contributions for the year have been set at $157,500 as compared to $152,422 last year, while the municipal debt service, which includes payment of bonds principal and interest on notes and bonds, stands at $105,235 as compared to the 1963 appropriation of $115,536.

Of the 39 categories, 16 departments showed decreases from the 1963 budget, 15 reflected increases and eight divisions showed no change from the previous year.

The complete municipal operating budget will be published in the February 13 edition of the Summit Herald. A formal public hearing on the budget is scheduled for Tuesday, March 3 at 8:30 p.m. in City Hall.

persons on hand reversed their stand until 12 were in favor and five were against. Another hour of heated discussion failed to bring a unanimous vote and his program. He said he could not remain on as drive chairman when he lacked full cooperation from all agencies.

On Saturday Mr. Perry submitted his own resignation through a letter to the board of trustees saying that "a majority approved the program, but the minority included the two largest beneficiaries of the campaign who receive more than half of the funds and this lack of full support from them presents a problem from the outset." He referred to the YMCA and YWCA.

In his letter, Mr. Perry said his resignation would become effective no later than May 1. At the same time he appointed a nominating committee to select a new president and campaign chairman. The committee includes Earl Lamb, chairman, representing Family Service Association; Stephen Ransom, president of the YMCA; Mrs. Phyllis Amberg, president of the YMCA, asking permission to excavate on city owned land directly opposite Altman's.

In his letter, Mr. Fields indicated that the Society, in the light of new research, believes that "valuable artifacts" from the Revolutionary War era, including original bake ovens of the troops, are still located there.

Mr. Fields added that the area is also an ancient Indian site and "quite a few" artifacts have been found by various residents of the area. He pointed out that the excavation would involve a preliminary survey of the area by experienced personnel and would be followed by leveling of the land.

Other business included granting taxi driver's licenses to T. J. Rillo of 37 Ruthven place; Tyler Proctor of 133 Prospect street; Ray Smith of 144 Broad street, and A. L. Gargiulo, Jr. of New Providence.

HO Model Rail Club To Note 15th Year
Following its successful open house which attracted almost 1,000 visitors, the Summit-New Providence HO Railroad Club, Inc. of 94 Oakwood drive, New Providence, will celebrate its 15th anniversary with a birthday party on February 15.

All former members of the club, numbering about 100, have been invited to attend, as well as representatives of other New Jersey model railroad clubs. Also present will be Mayor Francis Farley of New Providence.

The club is the fifth oldest in New Jersey and has the oldest HO gauge lay-out in the state.

Mr. Lachner tendered his resignation but added that he would be willing to work with another drive chairman in an effort to implement "what remained" of YWCA. Mrs. Conover English and Lawrence Zahn, public members.

The proposed program also included a competition of agency support between Summit and Westfield. Although the idea was accepted, some thought other towns should be chosen instead, such as Scarsdale or Montclair.

It was pointed out that the Olympic jackets would have been given free to anyone who contributed $50, while a $10 donation would provide the donor with a free Olympic towel. Both items would have been available at cost on a consignment basis and no money would have been invested.

Mr. Lachner had also proposed that public elections be held for the most popular merchant, and that the store proprietor who sold the most chances would receive the most number of votes.

Those supporting Mr. Lachner's program included Walter Ulicny, assistant United Campaign treasurer, who claimed that "the town must be shaken up" and John Leavens, a former chairman of the Campaign who described the program as "a stroke of genius."

Others on hand, including Roger Ward, representing the YMCA, sought a compromise on the program and urged that the raffle be dropped on moral principles. Mrs. Amberg of the YWCA said her agency could never be involved in a raffle and voiced fear that the Combined Spring Drive would be hurt if Olympic jackets and towels were sold now.

Mr. Lamb declared that he saw nothing unethical about the jacket or towel sale and urged that Mr. Lachner be "given his head within reason."

At the beginning of the meeting, several agencies and public members offered qualified approval of the program, but when it became evident that Mr. Lachner would resign unless he received full support, unqualified approval was offered.

The controversy began about two weeks ago when some agencies had second thoughts regarding the program after it had been introduced on grounds that "Summit was not ready" for such a type campaign.

GUEST SPEAKER—Dr. Lawrence E. Noble, Jr., associate professor of political science at Drew University, will be guest speaker at a public meeting of Greater Summit Section of the National Council of Jewish Women, to be held at Temple Sinai, on Tuesday, at 12:30 p.m.

Dr. Noble will speak on the University of Mississippi where he was a member of the faculty at the time when James Meredith integrated the university, triggering a year of demonstrations among the student body and faculty. Subjected to harassment because of his integrationist views, Dr. Noble resigned in order to protect the welfare of his wife and children. Mrs. Samuel Jaffe is chairman of the day and Mrs. Michael Zelkind will preside. Coffee will be served before the meeting.

Summit High School's basketball team avenged its only loss this season and established itself as the favorite to win the Suburban Conference championship Tuesday afternoon by defeating New Providence High, 62-56.

The victory, achieved before an overflow crowd, at the Borough high school, gave Summit undisputed possession of first place in the conference with an 8-1 record. New Providence is one game back at 7-2. Both teams have five more conference games.

Summit scored 20 points in each of the two middle periods to build up its winning edge. Brent Cromwell paced the Summit attack with 24 points, including 10 in the second period when the Hilltoppers grabbed a 31-25 lead.

How "Necessary" Is College? BY SLOAN WILSON
Round Table: Should Your Town Welcome Industry?

2 Suburbia Today, February 1964

Last December local ski areas were feeling the effects of a severe snow drought, according to a ski buff from Boulder, Colorado, and Mr. Robert Parker, the assistant manager at Vail Ski Area, decided that his resort, at least, would take matters in hand.

What did he do? He pulled in 15 Ute ceremonial dancers from the Indian reservation, headed by one Eddie Box, and asked them to do a snow dance. Actually, it was a rain dance, and, of course, rain would have been more of a disaster than inadequate snow, but Mr. Parker, being a wise man, went through with it anyway, relying on Ute magic plus the temperature at Vail.

"Don't you want me any more?" "Are you going to take home a new baby instead of me?" Because fears like these terrify small children who have to go to the hospital for the first time, Dr. Albert J. Beckmann, chief pediatrician at Franklin General Hospital in Valley Stream, Long Island, has developed a program with the local school district which he hopes will reassure the very young. He begins by observing the children's reaction to the word "hospital" on tapes and in essays, then they're given a tour of the hospital and afterward he records what the children have to say. "We are trying to provide a factual and unemotional experience for them," the doctor explains. "Unlike their parents, we trust them to come to a good conclusion." With their teacher, the children visit the pediatric wards, where they find beds with side rails and remote-control television. The food-preparation room comes next—Dr. Beckmann knows his public—and on to the convalescents' playroom filled with toys. "Why, you could live here," said one nine-year-old boy. "I could have no better proof of the program's success than that one little statement," said Dr. Beckmann.

Thanks for the tip, Mrs. Jo Ann Carpenter of Chagrin Falls, Ohio. If your house plants lack vitality, droop, wilt, lose their color, there's hope yet. Like human beings, says

Mrs. Carpenter, they need calcium. So save the water from your morning boiled eggs (there's calcium in it) and give your plants a big dose. Presto, green in their cheeks!

When a new car comes out, people like to know what's new. On this one, everything you see is new, including a new profile and new interiors. The deeper qualities are sensational performance and a 5-year/50,000-mile warranty.*

Another tip (housewives are getting smarter all the time)—this one from Mrs. James Mc-Masters of North Hollywood, California. Want to keep white silks from turning yellow? Just a dash of baking soda in the rinsing water will do it. White, white—no yellow.

At 8 p.m. one dark night in Birmingham, Michigan, this winter, a woman's screams caused her neighbors to call for the police. Within minutes they arrived on the spot and found the victim being threatened at gun point—but by a water pistol. Apparently Dad and the kids (all in pajamas, and all by now soaking wet) had decided to have a water-pistol fight and had ganged up on Mom (who was just a bit damp, too). Like any woman, she tried to defend herself by screaming for help. None of her attackers was arrested, police say, because the victim refused to press charges.

Lore Fiedler of Morris County, New Jersey, tells about a town in that state with the unlikely name of Piscataway, which let the students name their own junior high school. And, wouldn't you know, they named it after an Indian chief, Canackawack, who lived in the area three centuries ago. The cheerleaders there, however, won't have any more trouble with this tongue-twister than those at another junior high school in town—Quibbletown

School. And then, nearby, there's Possumtown, and who knows, there may be a new school there one day, too. Jawbreakers, anyone?

We wonder where the traveling brothers, Leigh and Joe Hopkins, of Bloomington, Minnesota, are now. Last fall, when Leigh was 87 and Joe was 85, they sold the big working farm that had been in their family since 1876, and where for 60 years they had produced their famous cottage cheese. Now they're out to see the world. "The world is a big place," says Joe, "but we can find a home in it somewhere. I think we'll start with California for the winter."

A mother in San Marino, California, writes how the day came when her children, as usual, complained, "We haven't anything to do," and, as usual, she said, "Make paper dolls." When they only groaned, she had an inspiration: "Well, then, make MONSTER dolls." Within minutes the kitchen table was mobbed with her own as well as other tv-saturated youngsters from the neighborhood, sketching, cutting out, and appropriately dressing their favorite horrors while Mom retired in peace with a good whodunit.

Overheard from a small boy in Richmond Heights, Ohio, who had just been shown his new baby brother—"Gee, Mom, I'll bet you got a lot of trading stamps with him."

HOW "NECESSARY" IS COLLEGE?

BY SLOAN WILSON

Author of "Georgie Winthrop," "A Summer Place," "The Man in the Gray Flannel Suit"; formerly special reporter at the White House Conference on Education.

ILLUSTRATION BY JOHN WOOLHISER

A man without a diploma may be a little more hungry . . . a little less smug.

NOWADAYS more and more youngsters are being urged to go to college. It's almost impossible to get a good job without a college degree, they are told, and are reminded that on the average, a college graduate makes $100,000 more in his lifetime than a person who ended his education with high school. We are also told that graduates make better citizens, have happier marriages, read more, and, in general, lead more fruitful lives.

All this is a relatively new development. In my father's day, only people who wanted to enter the learned professions felt it necessary to go to college. When, in 1900, he went to the University of Virginia in hopes of becoming a physician, he was one of only about 300,000 college students in the nation. When I went to Harvard 38 years later, everything had changed. I was one of about three million college students in the United States, and precious few of us had any clear idea of why we were there. Now my children are preparing for college or for something. If they go, they will be among ten million college students in this country, most of whom will have a fairly clear idea of why they are there: to get a better job afterward.

It undoubtedly is true that college graduates find it easier than high-school students do to get a job the moment they graduate, but I have a feeling that the over-all values of a college education are being vastly exaggerated. Conversely, the terrors of embarking upon life without a sheepskin firmly clutched in one's right hand like the broad sword of yesteryear are overestimated.

Perhaps one reason so many people think college is indispensable is that they don't compare it to other things a young person can do between the ages of 18 and 22. What if the same money put into college were used for living a few months in several different countries? Certainly one could learn modern languages better that way than in an American classroom. Four years as a copy boy on any good newspaper staff or as a boy of all work on a small paper is still better than any school of journalism in my opinion, and I doubt if any "Drama School" could give the kind of education that 17-year-old professionals get by going right into the chorus and making the rounds on Broadway, fighting for parts. Really serious concert pianists and instrumentalists of all kinds rarely can find time for much "general education." For most young people with real talent to perform an art, not just to "appreciate" it, the rigorous training they need is hard to find on a campus.

All this may seem to be beside the point for youngsters who have little real interest in the arts or in a life of the intellect and who just want to get as good a job as they can, buy a nice house, raise a family, and go to the beach on weekends. Even if, for such people, colleges are only a kind of club where they can meet the elite of their area and get a label which will make them acceptable to the personnel men of large corporations, a diploma still serves their purpose, and a turn-down by an admissions officer or financial difficulties which make college impossible is bad news, indeed. But in all honesty, how hard is it to overcome the handicap of having to write "None" in the blank that calls for college degrees?

SURE, SOME CORPORATIONS have a firm rule against anyone but a college graduate in executive training programs, but the practice is not universal. There are some corporations which are more broad-minded, and almost any corporation will make exceptions for a young man who has found a way to prove himself useful. The trick, of course, is to discover the way. Girls can easily get into offices by learning to typewrite. If they are intelligent and conscientious, people will begin to stop caring whether they went to college or not. Most youngsters nowadays have no idea how hard it is to find a person who takes an active interest in the work of an office, instead of just serving time. The girl who uncomplainingly stays late to make sure that the mail is out does not go long unappreciated. Of course, if she's pretty, that helps, but college doesn't have much to do with that.

For young men, it's harder to get any job at all in an office, but it is still possible to become a shipping clerk or a mail boy, and although things aren't exactly as Horatio Alger would have liked them, records prove that many a vice-president started that way. It undoubtedly is harder to rise from the ranks than it used to be, because of the insistence on diplomas, but one would be brash, indeed, to predict that none of the hungry young men in mail rooms today will ever get that vast expanse of carpet everybody seems to yearn for so much.

Even if corporations in their blindness eventually decided to require college diplomas of everyone, including elevator operators, all would not be lost for the bright young man who wanted a career in business. A good salesman is always in demand, and if a man has the guts and intelligence to start his own business, he never has to fill out personnel forms. After knowing a good many men who have spent their lives as employees of big corporations, never having any independence or real freedom, no matter how much money they make, I can't understand why more people don't start when they are young to build some tiny empire of their own.

If a youngster had, say, $8,000 set aside for college and had no real intellectual bent, he might be wise to work in stores for a few years and save his money for the day he can open a small establishment with his own name on the door. The day of small business is fortunately not entirely gone in America. Small grocery stores may be giving way to super markets, but in every town there are men who are fully in charge of their own operations and who make a comfortable living at it. I, for one, would rather run a successful garage or shoe store in a pleasant suburb than to get behind the wheel, bound for an office every morning, with my stomach aching in preparation for the latest crunch of company politics.

The lack of a college diploma is less and less of a handicap as a man grows older, if he can find a way to prove himself when he is young. Nobody cares what a 30-year-old's education has been, if he has a record of accomplishment of any kind. In trying to find a way to prove himself, a youngster without a diploma has the advantage of being a little more hungry than others, a little less smug, a little less convinced that good things will come to him without much effort. The same is true in a man's intellectual life. All too many college graduates acquire the curious notion that their diploma is a certificate proving that they are educated and, therefore, don't have to work at self-education for the rest of their life.

It is common to meet college graduates who read little but the sports page but who are sure that their opinions on literature, politics, and the arts are important because they've got a good education, and they can prove it with a sheet of simulated sheepskin, often written in Latin, which they can't understand. Anyone who bothers to read even five or six good books a year will be far better educated when he is 30 than a college graduate who stops trying, and a person who uses his local library will soon find it hard to regret his lack of a diploma. He will be simply too wise to attach false value to a piece of paper.

ALL THIS, OF COURSE, does not contradict the fact that college is necessary for many kinds of training, helpful in many more kinds, and at least enjoyable for the thousands who learn hardly anything at all. Colleges are fine institutions and among the proudest inventions of mankind, but things are getting a little out of hand when youngsters start to feel that if they don't go to them, all is lost. The human spirit is, at its best, invincible, and a bright boy or girl remains bright, with or without a college degree.

Colleges help a lot of people, but there are many roads that lead to the promised land.

The new sound of music

Why children learn music better on a Hammond Organ

Most children are born with a sense of rhythm, an ear for pleasant sounds, an instinctive response to melody.

Music lessons, therefore, can be as natural for a child as learning his native language.

Read how a Hammond Organ fosters this natural process and gently disciplines his musical instincts.

When a child presses a certain key on a Hammond Organ he hears a certain note. When he releases it, the sound stops. Simple, natural, cause and effect.

Whenever he presses that key, he hears the same note. Natural, predictable, reassuring to a child.

With the keyboard spread out in front of him, he can quickly grasp the natural relationship between the position of the printed notes of music and the sequence of the keys. He quickly learns this relationship, but, more important, he understands it because it is natural and satisfies a child's strong sense of logic.

But the genius of a Hammond goes beyond its logic. The instrument satisfies him with its rich, mellow tone. What he plays sounds important. Even scales and finger exercises don't bore him because they sound like music. And when he sounds good, he knows he's making progress.

A Hammond Organ introduces him to the fascination of many instrumental voices . . .

teaches him how to identify brasses, strings, woodwinds, and he goes quickly from identification into a growing ability to blend them into magnificent orchestral effects.

No other organ gives him such a variety of tones. No other organ allows him to manipulate them as easily.

In addition, a Hammond Organ gives him rich echo effects, brilliant percussion accents, subtle vibrato expressions . . . more total music than he can explore in a lifetime.

Hammond dealers provide excellent lesson programs for children. Patient and knowledgeable teachers will instruct your child individually, or in exciting group classes. Many dealers have plans for teaching children and parents together.

Nurturing your child's instinct for music is the most natural thing in the world. You'll give him more music, more understanding, more lifelong satisfaction, if you start him on the natural instrument—a Hammond Organ.

BRINGING UP BABY,®
HINTS COLLECTED
BY MRS. DAN GERBER,
MOTHER OF FIVE

Waking up to the world

Think newborns do nothing but eat and sleep the first few months? Any expert baby-watcher will tell you that your baby is busy learning right from birth. He blinks at light and startles at sharp sounds. (Why, at one month he can follow light and sound and starts to learn from what he sees and hears.) Taste buds begin to develop by reacting to sweet, sour, bitter and salty almost immediately. Through skin sensations a wee one learns the comfort of warmth and cuddling, the discomfort of cold and pain. A do-nothing? Indeed not. All this activity is practice for future development.

Solid facts. When your baby's about to embark on cereal, you'll find Gerber Cereals ideal for several reasons. The mild flavors have a way of waking up tender taste buds gently. The texture has an easy-to-swallow smoothness that's designed to please a delicate palate. In addition, the nutrition your baby gets from Gerber Cereals will stand him in good stead throughout babyhood. All five are enriched with iron and calcium. Plus important B-vitamins... factors in sparking appetites and spurring growth.

More busybody activities. Apart from learning through his senses in the early months, a baby is busy with other things. For example: clenching and opening fists lead to eventual graspability. Flexing of legs and arms are trial runs for creeping. Coos and gurgles are the forerunners of speech. Yes, being a baby is a full-time job.

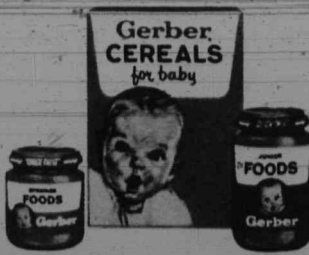

More early dietary data. Special baby juices come early in the modern baby's diet for the vitamin C they provide. Gerber Strained Orange Juice and Apple Juice are ideal starting juices because they're ever so mild and well-tolerated by babies. The Orange Juice has natural vitamin C, the Apple Juice is enriched with vitamin C to the same degree. Can't think of two more refreshing ways to help keep your baby's gums and other body tissues in good condition.

P. S. Gerber offers seven other combination juices (vitamin-C enriched) to teach your tyke the delights of different flavors.

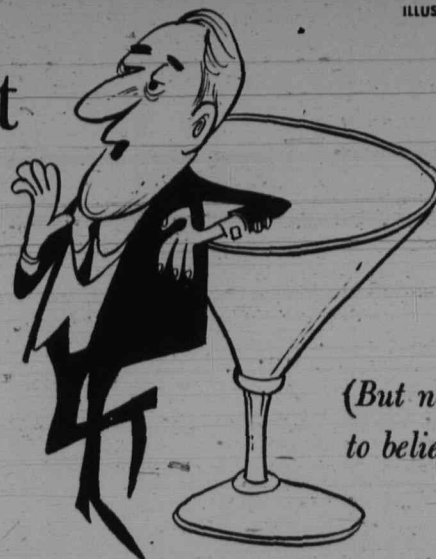

For your baby's well-being: Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods — infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods — to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

FOR SOME YEARS NOW, for reasons that have no bearing on this treatise, I have not taken any alcoholic beverages. I am not going into the advantages of such an attitude. My wife will be glad to expound on the matter at length. I would like to point out, though, for anyone who is considering this drastic step, some of the discomforts involved.

Women, particularly, seem to resent my sobriety. I recall a cocktail party not so long ago where I met a charming girl, glass in hand, eyes a-sparkle. We got along famously for 10 minutes when she said abruptly, "What are you drinking?"

"Ginger ale."

"With nothing in it?"

"Nothing in it. I tried an olive once, but I didn't like it."

"Hmmm." The girl pulled down her skirt and moved a little away from me. For a while she just sat there staring at me. Then she said, "It seems kind of sneaky," and walked away.

At another gathering, this time of businessmen, I was trying to put over a good commercial idea and sat down with a stout fellow who had had quite a few, which was his privilege. We began discussing my idea, and it impressed him favorably. In the midst of the conversation he asked me what I wanted to drink.

"Just ginger ale."

He scowled, ordered a double shot of something and cooled off. Somewhere something wasn't quite right. He couldn't put his finger on it, "y'unnerstan?" He had a few more doubles and then gave me a firm, logical reason why I couldn't sell him. "I got news for you!" he shouted. "Fellish not drinkin's out o' tush wish hish fellow men. She? Out o' tush."

You may be sure I am constantly under this sort of pressure. Religious friends quote the Bible about taking a little for your stomach's sake. Medical friends point out that moderate drinkers live longer than abstainers. ("Married people," I point out, "live longer than single people, but that's a damn poor reason to get married.") Psychologists attempt to convince me that alcohol is the great smoother of interpersonal friction, the great social catalyst. (I happen to think ginger ale is.)

Lovely young ladies try to tutor me into understanding that drinking improves the relations between the sexes and that if they are drinking and I am sober, it gives me an utterly caddish advantage. (As a matter of fact, it does not. Under the influence of alcohol I felt I was irresistible to women and when the women had enough, they thought so, too.)

The non-drinker lives in a world of prejudice and intolerance. He is made to feel a little like an illegal Chinese immigrant; guilty, uneasy, and not quite the possessor of any constitutional rights.

NOW AND THEN there is a rift in the clouds; a gleam breaks through and someone seems to understand. About three nights ago I was dancing at a night club, feeling quite gay on trout, chocolate parfait, and coffee, even sitting in with the band for a few numbers. A friend came over and said, "Man, you and your wife look like you're having a ball! What're you drinking?" he asked, calling the waitress.

"Nothing, thanks. I don't drink."

He stared at me a moment and then smiled. "I want to shake your hand. Anyone who can get up on the bandstand like that and make a jackass out of himself sober deserves a lot of credit."

So, you see . . . ?

What I mean is, most of the times I enjoy being sober, but there are infrequent moments when I almost feel I'll have to get drunk to do it.

Should Your Town Welcome Industry?

AS YOU WATCH your taxes doubling and tripling, are you becoming resigned to what one commentator calls "cohabitation with industry"?

Granted, industry nowadays does not have to mean noise and smog and fuming chimneys. We are all familiar with the industrial park that "looks like an art museum, sounds like a symphony orchestra, and smells like Chanel No. 5." Even so, is your town going to put up with it? And possibly even welcome the presence of brisk commercial traffic—and the additional revenue—where there used to be only the plain-living quiet of a country field?

When we explored this question with a Round Table of suburban editors and publishers, we got every kind of response from icy rejection to eager approval.

Excelsior, Minnesota, reports on the one hand: "We have no industry here, and we want none of any kind."

Pasadena, Texas, boldly proclaims: "This is an industrial suburb. Every aspect of our community life is geared to the needs of the industrial worker."

Between these extremes, we found every sort of approach. Take zoning restrictions, for example. Palos Verdes, California, has just one type of industrial zoning—"the tightest in Los Angeles County." It is called SR&D (Scientific Research and Development). Only one firm has accepted the austere restraints: Activities are limited to thinking.

Outside Atlanta, De Kalb County, Georgia, has—and we quote—"some of the most effective, dynamic, and expanding industry anywhere in the nation. There is a major automobile assembly plant of General Motors, a regional Chevrolet-parts depot, and many varied industries—Singer Sewing Machine, American Cyanamid, Eastman Kodak, and many others."

The industries have come, but in other "zones" the graces remain. Business expansion is definitely encouraged, but there are strict laws to protect the town's character and keep space for quiet byways and pleasant houses, for swimming pools and mocking birds and magnolias, as well as for lathes and presses and parking lots.

By contrast, we hear from Macomb County, Michigan, in the Detroit metropolitan area, that its zoning codes are apt to prove "flexible by amendment" when a city council fears the loss of some desirable prospect to a neighboring community. (Industry-happy Pasadena, above mentioned, just laughs and laughs—and makes jubilant claim to being one of the biggest cities in the U.S. having no zoning regulations of any kind.)

The case for industry is plainly stated by Mountain Lakes, New Jersey: "Our generally favorable attitude toward industry nowadays is born of the realization that $20,000 homes on 1/3-acre lots cost us more in services and education than they pay in taxes."

Industry, on the contrary, produces more tax revenue—in some cases a great deal more—than it requires in services. Industrial property is likely to have a high assessed valuation and to take up relatively little space compared with the taxes paid, in contrast to the wide dispersion of residential properties. For instance: a generating plant at Milford, Connecticut, with a 50-family education load pays taxes on a $30,000,000 valuation—$600,000 per family, a valuation matched by few suburban residences indeed! One of two new plants locating this year in Trenton, Michigan, will add $1,000,000 extra school-tax revenue. (Trenton now has the third highest per capita tax intake in the state.) At a new industrial park at Smithtown, New York, the planned investment in buildings is $40,000,000—"a big boost in tax revenue both for the town and the adjacent school districts."

THE ADVANTAGES to the suburban community of having a reasonable number of industrial taxpayers are only one side of the story, of course. There must be economic advantages to industry in seeking suburban locations, or they would not be sought.

The search for more space at reasonable cost is perhaps the most important of the urges that brings industry out from the city. Modern industrial processes emphasize a straight-line flow of materials along a single level. Often in building a new factory it is necessary to plan the complete processing layout first, and then build the factory around the process. Enough additional ground space to permit future expansion is usually sought as well. Since that kind of space is rarely available in cities any more, industry is moving out, with the further result that workers must often come considerable distances to their jobs, which in today's terms

Almost every town would like to have this kind of "industry"—the home office of General Mills in Golden Valley, Minnesota.

Obviously, local governments could use the revenue—but some would rather go hungry

Edited by

means still more space for adequate parking facilities.

Another requirement of modern industry is research, experiment, test, and evaluation. New industrial laboratories to meet this need have tended to seek suburban locations because they are welcome there, relative to other types of industry, and because such locations are favored by the scientists, who are the key personnel. Central and regional offices of large corporations also find suburban locations congenial and convenient.

Even the United States government gets into the picture. A few eyebrows were raised in Chamblee, Georgia, when the Regional Center of the Internal Revenue Service moved in, bringing carloads of data-processing equipment and hundreds of new workers to house. But as a focal point of the Atlanta metropolitan area, Chamblee takes pride in its careful planning for the accommodation of new enterprises, and now town and Center are getting along "very happily."

But before the welcome mat goes out in a congenial, convenient location such as Chamblee, the civic authorities must still consider the views and attitudes of the people who came there to find, not promising industrial developments, but open space where they could enjoy life. It is still the exception when a suburban community goes after new industry, regardless of type, and the local zoning laws are made in order to spell out what is acceptable and what is not, sometimes in general terms but often in minute detail. Some zoning codes simply state what types of industry are forbidden—usually barring odors, smoke and other forms of air pollution, noise, and also in some cases heavy additional motor traffic. Other codes prescribe precisely what types of industry (down to products and methods) may be admitted. Zoning is also used, of course, to control the quality of residential properties; in connection with industry there is some suggestion that zoning limitations on low-cost housing may be intended to induce low-income workers to live elsewhere, thus "having the industrial tax revenue for ourselves and letting some other town educate the workers' children."

HOPKINS, Minnesota, offers an interesting example of the best of both worlds. Hopkins has some rather choice industries—"we encourage 'em, fight for 'em, and generally do everything we can to help them grow." The industries located in Hopkins actually have more workers than the total resident population of the town; most of these workers live elsewhere. Hopkins also has a flourishing retail trade—industry pays one-third of Hopkins' tax bill, the retail community another third. Money is therefore available to finance an elaborate parking system, which serves the "commuting" workers.

Industry

back; the deal was pushed through despite opposition, and now the park is a showplace of its kind and has attracted some welcome industrial taxpayers.

An occasional barrier to new industry is high land prices. In Maple Heights, Ohio, some desirable land parcels — unimproved — were being held by owners for higher prices, but a determined community spirit was aroused to take action in order to open the door to industry. The county tax authorities were pressured into reevaluating the land upward — "so either the owners will be inclined to sell and we'll get needed industrial taxpayers, or at worst we'll get more tax revenues from the unimproved land."

So, in detail, local issues are of infinite variety, and yet they all turn on a single pivot: Rather than see their towns and schools deteriorate, people are coming to accept the compromise that admits industry and its tax money to their community, and some are finding that the imagined evils are not so dreadful after all.

Many communities, indeed, are paying substantial sums to professional planners and consultants to lay out a future course intended to keep Our Town in good financial health without sacrificing beauty or happiness — and it takes a professional, in these complicated times, to plan the best use of land and location for the continued welfare of all who live there. The frustrated village manager in Illinois who resigned with the angry statement that "the ideal suburban village 10 years from now is going to be an industrial park run entirely by automation" missed the whole point. The suburbs and industry are joining hands because each needs the other, but industry is learning to live in the suburbs by suburban standards — to the benefit of all.

Could Gordon's possibly be older than the London Bobby?

Surprisingly enough, yes. It was in 1829 that Sir Robert Peel reorganized the London Metropolitan Police, who promptly became known as "Peelers" or "Bobbies". But this was sixty years after Alexander Gordon had introduced his remarkable gin to London and given it his name. Happily, the Gordon's you drink today is based on that original 1769 formula. That explains its unique dryness and delicate flavour. Explains, too, why Gordon's is the biggest selling gin in England, America, the world.
