Mayor's Picture Goes All Over Country

When He Greeted Morrow
It Was Signal For
U. S. Broadcast

When Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy greeted Ambassador Dwight Morrow here Thursday on the Ambassador's tour of Essex towns, little did the Mayor dream that the occasion would be told in pictures all over the country.

Four New York dailies, the Boston papers, Chicago and California copies have reached our desk. Each time Belleville gets a great, big free ad.

Says P. A. Del Tufo in a letter from the Commonwealth, Chicago:

"I have mailed you under separate cover a Chicago newspaper, advertising our honorable Mayor and town."

"I think he should have a little write up on that asking the Anti-Kenworthy League if they were ever known before as they are today through our Mayor."

"I sure was happy to hear the results of our last election. Give our Mayor a real write up. He deserves all the congratulations the citizens of Belleville can give him."

Republican Club Hears Candidates For County Register

Alibis, "I Told You So's"
And What Have You
Feature Meeting

"Well, its all over—referring to the late lamented town election, and now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the party and take a more active part in the affairs of the Belleville Republican Club," says Lawrence E. Keenan, secretary.

The club met at Masonic Temple last evening, at 8:30 o'clock. A very interesting program was given by the three candidates for Essex County Register, W. Howard Demarest, George Stickle and William H. Rawson.

President Floyd Bragg staged a very short business meeting. After the meeting there was a general raw chewing conference on the town election. Alibis, "I Told You So's," congratulations, and condolences were in order. The President believes that the club offers an opportunity for better acquaintanceship between the good Republicans of Belleville; hence, the suggestion of friendly discussion of politics as discussed.

The club now has 250 members in good standing.

Humpty-Dumpty Tells His Political Story And He Sticks To It

On one of our inside pages today "Humpty Dumpty" appears in letter form. He is one of our most useful citizens. He feared his letter was only for the waste basket—and told us to use our discretion. Humpty, we thank you and we now ask our readers to please read this letter—it is excellent to read and study. It is clever, witty and our humble selves thoroughly enjoyed it.—Editor.

Carragher High On First Choice Votes

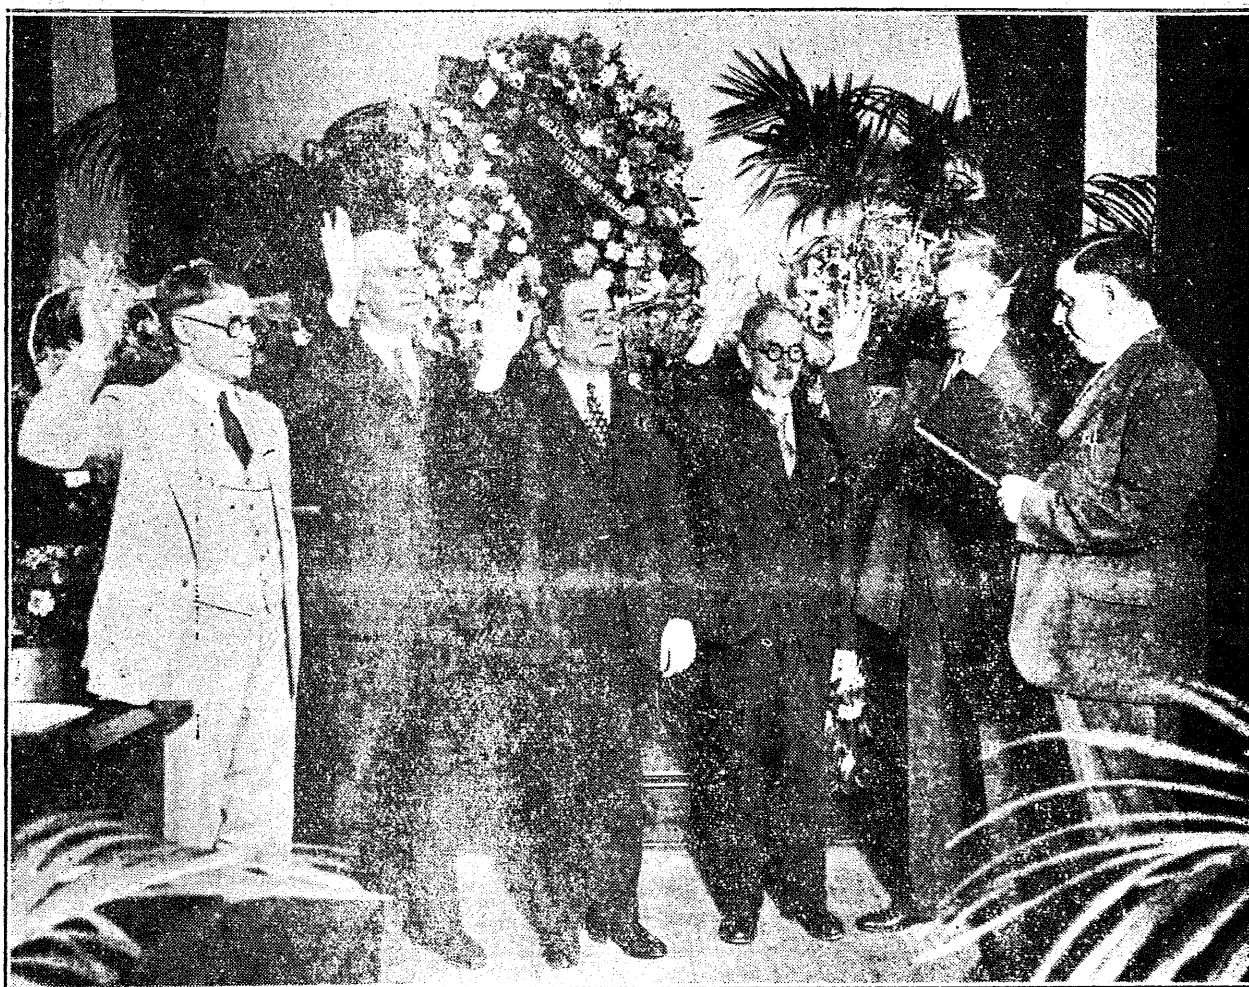

According to first choice votes Commissioner Frank J. Carragher was high man in the election, May 13, although he was topped by Commissioner William D. Clark in total votes from all choices.

Mr. Carragher received 4,357 first choice votes and Mr. Clark, 4,354, the difference being three votes.

In total votes, all choices, Mr. Clark had 5,072 and Mr. Carragher 4,909.

The editor of a weekly, who personally supervised the make up of the latest issue, to avoid any possible errors, was chagrined, mortified, terrified and what have you, when he discovered at least 20 of the names of those attending the annual banquet of the Ladies' Thursday Evening Educational Club stuck under a price current heading "Beef and Pork."

Clark And Carragher Escort Mayor To Seat

Commissioners William D. Clark and Frank J. Carragher were named by Town Clerk John J. Daly Tuesday as a committee to escort Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy to the rostrum.

Entertainment Planned For Cast Of Posers

The cast of the recent sketch, "The Posers," will be entertained Monday evening by Court Caritas, Catholic Daughters of America, at Bloomfield. The will repeat the performance at the social hour to be held at Sacred Heart auditorium. The affair was held two weeks ago at St. Peter's auditorium under the auspices of St. Peter's Social Society.

Town's Youngest Commissioner Greets The Oldest Resident

Belleville's youngest commissioner, William H. Williams and the town's oldest resident, Mrs. Rose Harden, 98 Garden avenue, who was 105 Monday, met yesterday to have their pictures taken jointly. Mr. Williams presented Mrs. Harden with a basket of flowers.

"Bill" Williams When He Gets A Box Of 100 Cigars

Inauguration of the new Board of Commissioners Tuesday was marked by the largest display of bouquets and floral pieces ever witnessed at a similar occasion in the town's history. Flowers of every description, from painted daisies and rose buds to peonies and carnations, adorned the desks and space of each commissioner. Estimates on the cost of the exhibition placed the value at about $1,000.

Memorial Day Plans Have Been Completed

Church Services, Exercises,
Parade And Luncheon
The Features

As told exclusively in this paper last week, a parade, in which members of civic and fraternal organizations will take part, to be followed by a luncheon, will feature Memorial Day exercises.

The line of march will form at 9 A. M. at the Town Hall, where exercises will be held at the Victory monument. Stops will be made at the monument at St. Peter's Catholic Church, at the old cemetery of Christ Episcopal Church, Main street, and at the Belleville bridge, where services in honor of the sailors will take place. The program will end with a luncheon at the Belleville Reformed Church, at which Commissioner William H. Williams will speak.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion comprise the arrangements committee, of which Thomas W. Fleming, business manager of this paper, is chairman.

A memorial service will be held at the Wesley M. E. Church Sunday night. The Rev. Edgar M. Compton, pastor, will preach.

Belleville police and firemen will join the annual memorial church service at the Belleville Reformed Church also Sunday night. The Rev. John A. Struyk will speak.

Commissioner Waters held the honors on receiving the greatest number of posies. There were horseshoe wreaths from the Road, Sewer, and Engineering Departments, and bouquets from Mr. and Mrs. James Waters, Recorder Fitzsimmons, Mr. and Mrs. John Holden, Mrs. Fanny Rhoades, Mrs. Clair O'Hare, Mrs. Josephine Jackson and others.

Mayor Kenworthy was joined by the commissioners in passing out "hand-picked" bouquets to persons in the audience who paused to offer congratulations. When the gathering broke up Tuesday night, there were left only skeleton frames on which the flowers had been mounted.

The Mayor's flowers were from the Original Kenworthy Boosters' Club, the Richards family, the Building Department, the Shade Tree Commission, Recorder Fitzsimmons and others.

Commissioner Clark got a "good one" — from "Jackson, Jackson, Jackson and Jackson," also from the Health Department, Mrs. Clark, Fitz again, and others.

Everyman's Class To Visit Sunday At Old First Church

Cars Will Leave Academy Street Promptly At 9:15 O'clock

The members of Everyman's Bible Class will visit the Men's Class of Old First Church, Broad street, Newark, next Sunday morning, leaving Wesley M. E. Church, corner Washington avenue and Academy street promptly at 9:15, in cars which will be provided.

Tomorrow, the annual outing of the class will be held at Glen Wild Lake. Cars will depart from the point mentioned above at 1 P. M. Rev. P. H. Carmichael, leader of the class for the past four months, will receive the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Southwestern College, of Memphis, Tenn., while enroute to his home in Alabama, after a two years' engagement at New York University.

He has under consideration an offer of the Presidency of Silliman College, located at Dumanget, Philippine Islands.

Colleagues Extol Work Of Gibson

"Highly Constructive" Is Term Applied In Resolution By Group

A diamond stickpin and a gold police badge were presented former Commissioner James Gibson Tuesday by his four colleagues at the final meeting of the old commission. The stickpin was set in platinum with six sapphires.

Commissioner Clark presented the police badge.

Mayor Kenworthy presented the stickpin to Mr. Gibson who took up the Revenue and Finance job when Edward Nelson resigned due to ill health.

"It is just as possible for an official to give patriotic and loyal service as a man in military service," said the Mayor in presenting the pin. "You have given that service, Mr. Gibson."

Mr. Gibson said no thanks are needed for his work; that he only did his duty and suggested the new board carry out "the plain, good government," the old board gave.

Mr. Gibson's work was extolled by his other colleagues, as well, and in a resolution which termed the work, "highly constructive."

Dress Is No Topic For School Board To Handle It Seems

Can it be done? Can a Belleville girl upon graduation from school be prevailed upon to dress uniformly with her classmates, in the interests of equality, without sacrifice of personal liberty?

Ask Supervising Principal George R. Gerard and members of the Board of Education. They approached the subject at the board meeting Monday night.

Mrs. Judson K. Stickle desired the information from Mr. Gerard. The latter tried to point out how busy he was without delving into such feminine mysteries. Mrs. Stickle was insistent, saying she knew the answer, but wanted the recommendation to come from the proper quarter.

Watson Current commented the matter was similar to the Prohibition Law, as involving personal liberty. John P. Maher, board president, threw up his hands to relieve himself of ever voting on the subject. And the rest of the board dropped it like a hot coal.

So, whether vanity shall triumph—as it is rumored to have done in the past where girls are concerned—we shall see.

With Approach Of June School Children Look To Graduation

And School Board Looks For Disappearance Of Gym Apparel That Has Caused Much Consternation

Dates for commencement exercises in the public schools were announced Monday night at a meeting of the Board of Education. Superintendent George R. Gerard stated that class night exercises at the high school will be held June 6, and commencement will take place June 26. Graduation exercises at grammar schools No. 5 and No. 6 will be held June 24; Nos. 1, 3, and 4, June 25, and No. 7, June 27.

Two hundred and ninety will be graduated from the grammar schools and eighty-eight from the high school.

Disappearance of gymnasium apparel from students' lockers at the high school has become a problem of such "vital importance" that it involves the administration of the school, in the judgment of the board of education, which Monday night directed supervising principal George R. Gerard and Business Manager James J. Turner to study and report on a new locker system. About 100 pupils were said to have dropped out of "gym" classes because their outfits had been taken in part or whole.

John P. Maher, president, said, when the matter was called to his attention, he had done a "little pilfering myself," to prove how the steel-plate doors could be bent and opened, though locked. Mr. Gerard said the situation had caused such concern to Charles L. Steel, high school principal, the latter had used a strong word to describe his feelings. The principal could not force pupils to purchase additional equipment it was stated. Watson Current, chairman of the building and grounds committee, recommended a new system.

Placing of sixty additional desks where space permits in the high school will be done by September. This will augment Mr. Gerard's new plan of creating study rooms in place of the old study hall, where two many pupils gathered in the assembly hall were unable to study properly and which tended to mar the furniture used for public occasions.

The building and grounds committee was authorized to obtain estimates on the cost of laying a temporary flooring over the high school swimming pool, to provide needed space for administrative purposes. The flooring could be lifted whenever it might be decided to place the pool in a condition for use again.

William W. Stewart, chairman of the health committee, reported appointment of a school physician to take the place of the late Dr. F. S. Bootay would probably be held at the next board meeting.

Mr. Current said estimates on the cost of constructing tennis courts in Clearman Field having run as high as $4,000, he had returned the plans and specifications for revision. The amount appropriated for the purpose was $2,500. The fence at No. 4 School will be repaired at a cost of $85, he stated.

Business Manager Turner was instructed to purchase portable platforms for schools where needed for graduation exercises. The rostrums are in several cases too small to accommodate the number of graduates, Mr. Gerard said. Mr. Turner was also directed to purchase eight dozen camp chairs for graduation use.

The resolution of James L. DeRoset was passed to advertise for bids for the next school year supplies.

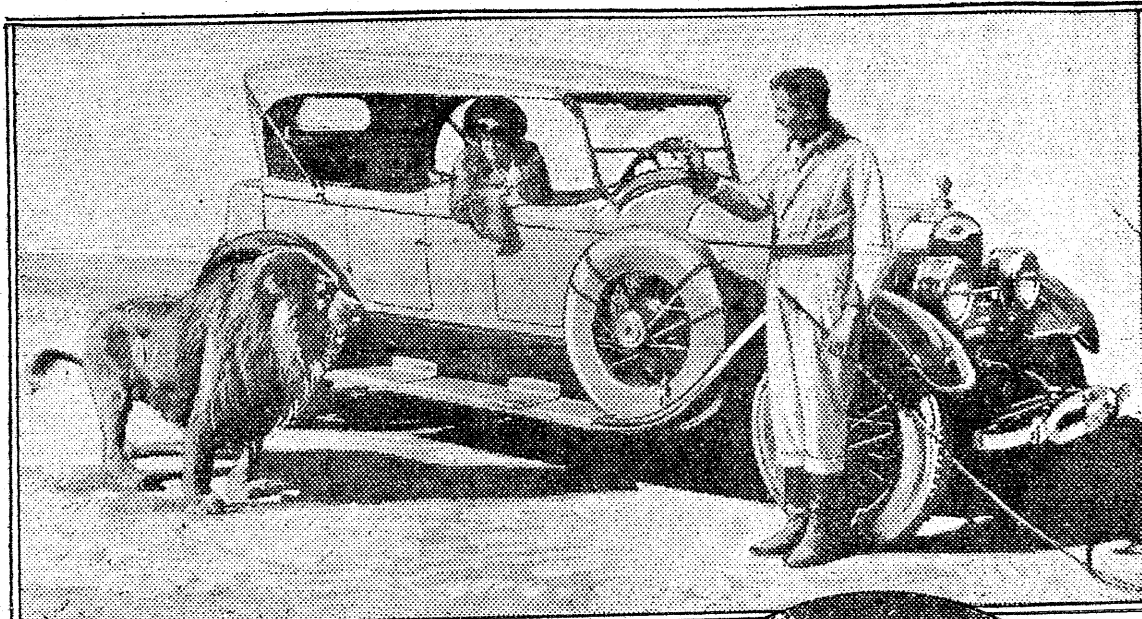

The enrollment last month was 5,673 pupils, an increase of 412 over April, 1929. Attendance was 95.2 per cent with 3,953 pupils present every session and 1,641 absent for the year. The per cent of passing pupils in the grades was 90.5 and in the high school, 90.7.

Numa, King of Movie Lions, Likes To Ride in Master's Automobile

Huskey and Rosey Also Were Motor Enthusiasts Often Seen On California Roads.

NOT every lion can sport an automobile.

But Numa does, or thinks he does, which is the same thing. As emperor of all motion picture felines, he appropriates what he wants in quite the kingly manner.

So it isn't strange that when the people of El Monte, or of any section in Southern California, spy one of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gay's three Lincolns coming along they disregard those in front and look beyond for a glimpse of Numa yawning complacently in the back seat.

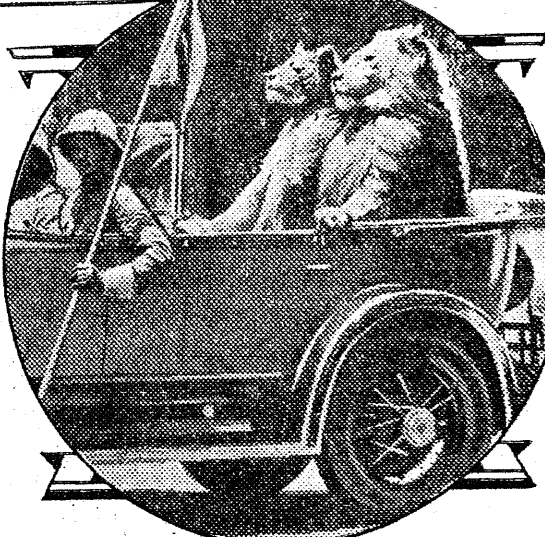

Numa enjoys those drives as much as did Huskey and Rosey who played their last roles for the pictures some months ago. Huskey and Rosey were remotely related to Numa by devious jungle lineage, going back to some remote and common ancestor. Before she died, Rosey, during her sojourn of seven and a half years with Mr. and Mrs. Gay presented forty-six cubs to the lion farm.

That gave the feline screen colony a population of about a hundred great tabby cats and made it the largest in the world. In all that population Numa reigns supreme. He's the most famous of all Hollywood lions and during the past ten years has earned sums running into five figures.

Apparently, however, all he wants is just a ride now and then along the salubrious open roads and an occasional glimpse of some of his little worshipping friends playing along the roadside.

Numa is privileged to ride in any one of Mr. Gay's Lincolns, the two open touring cars, which he prefers, or the limousine which Mr. Gay bought in 1921 especially for transporting his lions from location to location. There must have been lots of locations since 1921 because that car now registers well over 100,000 miles.

When Huskey and Rosey were alive they enjoyed riding in the lion farm's Lincoln cars. Above: Numa, the movie lion, negotiates for a ride in his owner's Lincoln.

MISS MAY WINCHELL IS CANDIDATE IN NATIONAL ORATORICAL CONTEST

Miss May Winchell a former teacher in the Belleville schools whom we mentioned three weeks ago as having won the oratorical contest in the Eastern Salvation Army Training College located in New York, has become the candidate for a National contest.

We are pleased to announce that against the representative from San Francisco, representing the Pacific slope, one from Chicago representing the mid-western states and one from Atlanta representing the Southern states, Miss Winchell has again received the honor of being the victor.

The contest was held in the Town Hall, New York City, on Thursday, May 15. Delegates of the Salvation Army were from every part of the country to witness the contest. It was the event in the great Golden Jubilee Congress, celebrating the Salvation Army's fifty years of its kind ever held in the annals of the Salvation Army and it is an event which will be heralded in the uttermost parts of the Salvation Army world. Commander Evangeline Booth is especially pleased with Miss Winchell's victory. Miss Winchell will receive an additional $100 and a special certificate of honor.

No Nox Bowling Club

No Nox bowling club held a rather exciting meeting at Elks' Club as they ended work for the season Friday afternoon last.

Prizes for the year were given as follows: Mrs. William Frey, gold piece for the largest number of strikes, also one for the number of spares. She also won the gold pin for the season's highest average, the silver pin going to Mrs. George Hunkeler for second highest average, and the bronze to Mrs. Daisy Coeyman.

Mrs. Hunkeler won the money prize for making the most holes for the season, and she donated two gold pieces for the highest and lowest scores of the season, the first going to Mrs. L. Shiffman, and the lowest to Mrs. Coeyman.

Officers for the club are Mrs. Clifford Faust, president; Mrs. George Barnett, vice president; Mrs. William Frey, secretary; Mrs. Victor Hart, Sr., treasurer; Mrs. Alvin Case, corresponding secretary and publicity. Other members are Mrs. Thomas Reilly, Mrs. George Siebold, Mrs. Wayland and Mrs. R. M. Libbey.

Mrs. Shiffman is entertaining members of the club at a bridge to be given at her summer home at Greenwood Lake this afternoon.

Newark Browns Will Be Tested Sunday

Harrison-Hudsons In Stellar Attraction Scheduled For Sprague Field

The Newark Browns, who have won five consecutive games at General Electric Field, Bloomfield, will be put to the test Sunday afternoon when they take on the Harrison Hudsons in the second game of a double header at the Old Sprague grounds. The Newark Ravens will be encountered in the first game.

The Hudsons, who are the undefeated leaders of the Tri-county league, embracing the best teams of Hudson, Bergen and Passaic counties, have always been represented by a fast team. Managed for fifteen years by George Hughes, a master leader, they have never failed to make a creditable showing.

The game will mark the end of either team's winning streak as both have won all their games played to date. The first game will start at 1:45 P. M. with the second tilt going on about 3:30 P. M.

Commissioner Carragher received them from "the Mrs." the Loneran Family and others whose cards he carried off with him before they could be noted.

Whereas, Commissioner Williams received not only flowers from the High School Football Committee, the Williams' Boosters of Belleville, friends of Mrs. Williams, Passaic friends, his campaign committee of fifty-two and Charles Lowe, the "original Democratic booster of a Republican," and others, but received, too, 100 cigars. "That's practical," he said.

Congratulations to "The Big Three" were offered on a horseshoe piece from the Angelo Domenico Association, who "picked the five winners" told it to them with a flowery horseshoe. The Greylock Cleaners and Dyers sent each and every one a basket bouquet, and another offering came from the Belleville News.

enumerator, whose nomination has been filed as temporary.

Renomination and reelection of Representative Fred A. Hartley of Kearny in the Eighth District and Representative Frederick R. Lehlbach in the Tenth District was recommended.

Nomination and election of George Stickle for county register was approved.

The remainder of the slate recommended for renomination and reelection follows: For Assembly, Assemblymen David M. Litwin, George W. Grimm, Jr., Charles Basile, Fred W. Fort, Jr., George V. Bradley, Frederick G. Kautz, Arthur W. Smith, Frank S. Hargrave, Homer C. Zink and Assemblywomen Agnes C. Jones, Florence L. Haines and Ida M. Stelle.

For Freeholders — Freeholders Louis F. Dodd, Elizabeth A. Harris and Arthur T. Muir.

For County Supervisor — Ernest A. Reed.

In announcing the slate County Chairman Salmon said sixty-two executive members of the county committee unanimously suggested the slate last Friday. When he was chairman in his previous term, he said, he always called the executive committee together to make recommendations to the committee as a whole and that was what he did this year.

The chairman said he would welcome any remarks on the ticket. A motion to concur in the ticket was offered by Joseph C. Caprio of the First Ward. Mr. Salmon asked if there was any opposition. He said he wanted to give anybody and everybody an opportunity to be heard before calling for a vote.

Asks Was It Unanimous

Warren Davis of Bloomfield asked the chairman if he understood him to say that the vote last Friday by the executive members was unanimous. Mr. Salmon replied that Victor Bleeker, chairman of Bloomfield, made a plea to have Recorder William H. Rawson of Bloomfield the choice for county register. He said that Bleeker did not vote on the selection when the question was called for.

The chairman also said that he understood that there had been criticism of him for not calling a meeting of the executive committee for several months. He explained there was no reason for a meeting, that the committee had grown so large the headquarters in Academy street were too small to accommodate it. He said that it cost $300 to $400 to hire the theatre, that there was no funds in the treasury and that he did not see any reason for a meeting.

Budgeting Calories - Jane Rogers

Thrifty Housewife Knows Trick of Balancing the Diet to Obtain Maximum of Food Calories

THE housewife of today is much more likely to budget her expenses than the bride of fifty years ago. In those days it was only necessary to step into the garden and pluck a generous helping of fresh vegetables for the evening meal or stop by the smoke-house and procure a sizeable ham at a minimum of cost. Today, the problem centers around making so many dollars purchase so many calories of food, so many articles of clothing and on through the whole line of living expenses.

Selection of foods is one of the most important considerations in budget making. Each member of the family needs a certain number of calories per day—varying according to the amount of manual work or labor indulged in and unless the housewife knows a little about the caloric value of foods there is great danger that her meals will be lacking in some of the most important elements which make up the well balanced diet.

With a market list showing prices and a calorie list, the housewife can work out a very interesting little problem in economical buying. A pound of butter contains 3600 calories and at the average price of fifty cents a pound it is possible to obtain 72 calories for one cent. A pound of bacon at fifty-five cents will furnish 61 calories for each cent; roast beef at thirty-five cents will furnish 27; macaroni at fifteen cents will give 110 while sugar at an average price of six cents a pound will furnish no less than 310 calories for each cent spent. Because of the great number of calories it contains, sugar is one of the cheapest of all foods in addition to being one of the most valuable. It furnishes fuel which keeps the body engine burning, supplies much needed energy and its importance as a sweetener and flavorer, especially when used in the cooking of fresh or canned vegetables is universally recognized. "A dash of sugar and a pinch of salt" have become twentieth century household words. Of course no one food can be used to the great exclusion of others even though it provides enough calories to meet the average demand but the housewife soon learns this and other little tricks that eventually lead to the preparation of well balanced and at the same time economical meals.

Intertowns Win Fifth From Border Aces, 9-2

The Intertown A. C. won its fifth game of the season by defeating the Border Aces, 9-2 at No. 7 School, Sunday afternoon. The Intertowns played a good brand of ball with the good pitching of O. Natale. The game was interesting throughout as a 2-2 tie lasted till the fifth inning.

In the fifth the Borders got two hits and a man walked to fill the bags but a strikeout and a double play by DeBrowski to Cappy ended the rally. The Ints became invincible and played a bunting game which netted three runs. In the last inning the Ints scored four more runs to make the count nine. In the Borders' half of the inning they were held scoreless by a fly putout which J. Tuozolo ran considerable distance for and a brilliant catch by DeBrowski of a hard hit ball on which he made a double play. The Ints played big league ball, many long distance hits to the outfield being made putouts by perfect relays to the infield. O. Natale held the Borders to five hits and two runs which were scored in the first inning. He also received five strikeouts in his growing credit. Sunday, the Ints are open and would like to hear from a heavy midge team. For games write to L. Luzzi, 14 Federal street, Belleville.

THEM DAYS ARE GONE FOREVER (A New Tune Each Day)

Youngest Commissioner Grooms Town's Oldest Resident

commissioner was inspired to remark that he was afraid Mrs. Harden might walk out on him to play a round of golf on the links opposite her home.

Mrs. Harden said on her birthday: "No cake for me, no flowers, I don't need them. I have flowers. Look," and she pointed out the windows each way from her kitchen, where pansies and irises are blooming. She did, however, direct attention to a potted hydrangea presented by her granddaughter, Mrs. May Osak, who helps her keep house.

Mrs. Harden related the escape of her father from capture during the wars in old Poland and Russia. "The Russians killed so many," she said. "My father, he lay down like dead, too. That night he got up. He stole a bottle of whiskey, some bread and cut a steak from a dead horse. Ach—He said it was good. And he went out in the swamp. For six days.

"At last, he met another soldier. So hungry, 'Friend,' the other one said, 'I don't think I'll live.' 'No eat, drink this swamp water.' Oh, my father, he give him little whiskey, little bread and little steak. 'I feel better,' the man said. 'Please give me some more.' So, finally, they walked two weeks and came home, near Posen, in the country.

"They didn't know him, my father, his own home. 'Tramps,' they said. 'Get out.' My father said, 'No, I want something to eat.' Well, they gave him a little. He wouldn't go. 'I sleep here,' he said. 'No,' they said. 'Yes,' my father said. So he slept in the kitchen. Next day they finally gave him a little to eat. He wanted to go in the bathtub. They said 'No.

but he went.

"When he was washed all clean, they could see it was my father. He had a mark on his side. 'My son,' they said, 'we thought you killed.'

"That was 150 years ago," and her eyes were dreamy.

Mrs. Harden was also rapt in the story of her great grandson, Edward Petzel, nineteen, a student electrician on the U. S. S. Marblehead. Another favorite great-grandson is Edmund, eighteen, who lives at the home.

The old lady is active. She does her own housework.

"If you can't work, that's too old, better die," she said. Work is her formula for longevity. She still uses her own teeth. She bought eyeglasses when 100 years old, "because the electric lights are so bright."

Among those who visited the home were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Zeblesky of 67 Lindsley avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Newsky of 504 South Fifteenth street, Mrs. Catherine Redusky of 490 South Eleventh street, all of Newark, and William Harris of Myrtle avenue, Irvington.

Born near Posen, Mrs. Harden came to this country with her husband fifty years ago. They had $7. They cleared the acre and three-quarters and built the house where she now lives.

Plan Original Review At St. Peter's Hall

Dramatic Club Will Present Affair Wednesday Evening, May 28

An original musical review "College Comedette," in two parts, will be given by the members of the St. Peter's Dramatic Club on Wednesday evening, May 28, in St. Peter's Auditorium.

The performance is under the personal direction of J. Emile Chartand assisted by James Leonard.

The principals in the short sketch preceding the review are Bill Herkness, Emily Marshall, Teresa Sullivan, Frances Larkin, Dot Connolly, Terry Carragher, Marguerite Marshall, Joe Comesty, Bill Friel, William Brady, John MacDonald and Willis MacDonald.

Solos will be rendered by Catherine Broderick, Richard Flanagan, president of the organization, James Leonard, Mary Clark, William Sullivan and several others.

The Committee in charge of the affair consists of J. W. Westlake, chairman; James Leonard, Secretary; Greta Kinnally, treasurer; Agnes Jordan and Winifred McCoy, music; Justin Maguire, wardrobe; John Breen and William McGonigle, printing; Teresa Sullivan and Marguerite Marshall, refreshments. It is also anticipated that a matinee will be given for the school children on Sunday afternoon, May 25.

Sunshine Group Held Social Wednesday

Circus On Schedule For Tomorrow At Recreation House

Roof Tree Branch held a most enjoyable social afternoon Wednesday in the Recreation House with the social afternoon chairman, Mrs. Louis P. Baurhenn, in charge of arrangements. More than thirty-two members and friends were present.

First came a program headed by little Jean Fells, daughter of the treasurer, who sang a solo, carrying the air perfectly in spite of the fact that she will not be three years of age until July. Mrs. Marion Fells gave a vocal solo, followed by a piano solo by Miss Mae Livingston. Mrs. W. D. Lemon, who is a prominent elocutionist, gave three recitations. Helpers included Mrs. F. J. Schweitzer, Mrs. H. W. Jacobus, Mrs. Rudolph Luhrs and Mrs. Joseph McCarthy.

The Sunbeams, a junior group, will present a circus at the Recreation House tomorrow at 2 o'clock. There will be an indoor parade in circus costumes. Twenty children will appear in the stunts, which consist mostly of novelty dancing.

The children are planning the program, assisted by Mrs. Fred Ruff, president of the senior society; Mrs. Baurhenn, Mrs. Luhrs, Mrs. Fells, Mrs. Alfred Adler, Mrs. E. S. Moniot and Mrs. J. F. King. Candy, soda and soft drinks will be on sale.

A hand painted jug donated by Mrs. Anna Meyer of Newark was won by Mrs. Ethel Littell. Punch, coffee and cake were served.

The closing meeting of the season will be held at the same place on June 13 and will again be in charge of Mrs. Baurhenn who proposes to hold a card party, admission to be the size of your waistline measure in inches.

Waters' Department Now Public Works

The Department of Public Improvements which is headed by Commissioner Patrick A. Waters will from now on be known as the Department of Public Works as per a resolution passed on recommendation of Mr. Waters, Tuesday.

PROPOSALS For pads, paper, pencils and other educational supplies will be received by the Board of Education, at a meeting to be held in the High School, Washington Avenue, Belleville, N. J., on the evening of Monday, June 2, 1930. Proposals will be received until eight thirty P. M. Specifications and full particulars may be obtained by applying at the office of the Board, High School, Washington Avenue, Belleville, N. J.

NOTICE PUBLIC NOTICE HEREBY GIVEN that the following proposed ordinance was introduced and passed on first reading at a meeting of the Board of Commissioners of the Town of Belleville held Tuesday evening, May 20th, 1930 and further notice hereby given that second and third readings of said ordinance will be held at a meeting to be held at the Town Hall, Washington Avenue and Belleville, N. J., Tuesday evening, June 2nd, 1930, at 8 o'clock P. M. when all objections to the passing of the same will be heard and considered.

AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO SALARIES OF THE MAYOR AND COMMISSIONERS OF THE TOWN OF BELLEVILLE.

The Board of Commissioners of the Town of Belleville do ordain: 1.—That pursuant to Chapter 221 of the Laws of 1911 and the amendments and supplements thereof the annual salary of the Mayor of the Town of Belleville is hereby fixed at $2,250 and the annual salary of each member of the Board of Commissioners is hereby fixed at $1,800. 2.—These salaries shall be payable monthly in the same manner as the salaries of officials of the Town of Belleville are paid. 3.—All ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent herewith be and the same are hereby repealed. 4.—This ordinance shall take effect immediately.

IN CHANCERY OF NEW JERSEY TO CHARLES V. MEEHAN:—By virtue of an Order of the Court of Chancery of New Jersey, made on the day of the date hereof, in a cause wherein Essex Mortgage and Investment Company, a corporation, complainant, and you and others are defendants, you are required to appear, answer or plead to the bill of said complaint, on or before the fourteenth day of July, next, or the bill will be taken as confessed against you.

The said bill is filed to foreclose a mortgage given by you, Charles V. Meehan and Alice Elizabeth Meehan, your wife, to complainant, dated July 26, 1928, on lands in the Town of Belleville, Essex County, New Jersey, and you, Charles V. Meehan, are made a party defendant because you, together with your wife, executed said mortgage and the bond accompanying same and because you are the husband of the said Alice Elizabeth Meehan, and therefore have some interest in said lands and premises.

Zoning Commission Says Ordinance Is Adequate For Town

Report Is Referred For Discussion Next Tuesday

A report that the present zoning ordinance is adequate for proper development of the town was made to the Town Commission by the Zoning Commission Tuesday night. The report was referred for discussion at the board's 5 o'clock conference next Tuesday.

Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy expressed thanks to citizens who served on the zoning commission. He, in conjunction with improvement associations, had made appointments to the commission in January, believing a new ordinance and map might be necessary.

Zone changes recommended by the commission were: Union avenue, east side, Division to Malone avenues and Overlook to Campbell avenues, from residential to business; Joralemon street, Baldwin place to Essex County Parkway property, from business to residential and Main street entirely, from industrial to residential, due to creation of Route 21, State Highway, without disturbing existing industries.

A petition of citizens was also referred to conference requesting the proposed zone change in Union avenue from Division to Malone avenues, be extended to both sides of the county thoroughfares.

Kearny thanked Belleville through the Board of Commissioners for the help given by the Belleville Fire Department in the recent fire in the former town.

The resignation of William H. Williams from the Belleville Adjustment board was accepted by Mayor Kenworthy. "In view of the fact he has been promoted to this board."

Members of the board and the mayor will receive increases in salaries in accordance with an ordinance introduced at the reorganization meeting of the board Tuesday afternoon. The resolution calls for an additional $600 for the commissioners, and $1,100 for the mayor, making the respective salaries $1,800 and $2,250.

One Ward Missing Census Shows 18,118 Population In Town

Census Men Estimate That About 6,000 More Will Be Added

With census returns still missing from the fourth ward Belleville has so far returned a population of 18,118. About 6,000 more names are expected to be added by a poll of the missing ward.

Soho, Silver Lake, and Belwood Park are a part of the fourth ward. In 1920 the population was 15,660.

ADVERTISING GOT THE GRASSHOPPERS

An Advertising Salesman bet a man that He could insert a one-inch advertisement in the most inconspicuous corner of the paper, offering a prize to the boy or girl who brought in the most grasshoppers on a certain day and get results that would surprise one. The man agreed that if there was a good response he would be sure that people were readers of papers and would become an advertising customer.

"The ad was inserted and a certain day specified. Before daylight boys and girls by the score swarmed around the office. An hour later they grew thicker. There were grasshoppers of every description, big, and little. They swarmed over tables and chairs and all the while the doubtful merchant became more astonished and convinced. He is now one of the biggest advertisers."

Tires by FISK

Watch the Other Fellow

THE accident statistics show that motorists do not realize that an automobile improperly driven or not well kept is a dangerous vehicle.

Racing drivers keep their personal cars in the best possible adjustment. Most race drivers are able to handle their cars perfectly but they give a great deal of attention to brake adjustment, tire inflation and proper lubrication.

It may seem strange that the average American highway should be more dangerous than the speedway, yet, this is the fact, due largely to thoughtlessness of many otherwise normal people.

On the race track we know what our competitors are going to do under most circumstances or emergencies. But who can tell on the highway whether or not the driver in front of you is going to swerve out at you just as you are passing him? This sort of thing is done times without number, in order to avoid holes, an animal, a hat, or what not.

It is all right if the scene is a country road and the next car is fifty or more feet back, but thoughtless or incompetent drivers do it in congested traffic, when cars are running two and three abreast. They have no consideration for anyone else on the road. And the result is accidents.

They turn corners without giving proper signals to those behind. They turn corners too fast in ninety cases out of every hundred. And when stopped by the traffic lights, they cut in behind the line, and this is the latter practice which causes a large number of minor accidents and some serious ones.

Here now, I want to ask you a question. Think of ten people you know best who have automobiles. Do you know how many times they have received tickets for traffic violations? How many have you received? Now listen carefully. I know, personally, ten race drivers who have never been in an accident on a public highway and who have never been arrested for breaking traffic rules. One of these drivers has been driving since 1898. (He drove the second automobile ever to come to this country). He has been driving different makes of cars for 32 years and has never been in an accident nor caused one.

He doesn't drive around corners fast. He doesn't drive right up to another car and slap on his brakes; he doesn't weave in and out of traffic; he doesn't go any faster than he considers safe for himself or the public on the highway; he never races to beat a light, and in all these years he has never had an automobile accident. Think of it!

In these days of super-luxurious, full-vision, all-steel bodied cars, equipped with the best brakes American engineers have been able to design, the papers are still full of descriptions of fatal accidents—due to others.

Taxi Fare Question Not Settled Here

Complainant Fails To Appear And Case Is Dismissed By Judge

The question of how much Diego Buda of 10 Gless avenue, Belleville, paid for his taxi fare from Newark, home early Monday morning was scheduled to be settled before Recorder George A. Fitzsimmons, Monday night. Buda told police he gave James Archer, driver for the Brown and White Operating Company, $20 and received no change. Archer said Buda had been drinking and was mistaken, having paid only $1.35, the proper amount.

Buda said he would appear Monday night and make a complaint against the driver. He appeared all right, but before opened. He did not see the taxi driver and left for the Eighth Precinct, Newark, believing his case could be tried there. When the local recorder called the case it was dismissed because of Buda's absence.

School News

By JAMES REILLY

The Junior Prom was a great success due to the cooperation of everyone. The decorations were the most splendid of any Junior prom to date. The high school marched in a body to the front of the town hall, where they stood en-masse and sang "Old New Jersey" to the Dwight W. Morrow procession of many cars which stopped for a few minutes and then passed on its way, Thursday.

Freshman assembly was in a way a bit extraordinary, for it had two entertainers, one, a tap dancer, and the other, a public speaker.

The Faculty play is to be enacted tonight at 8:15 o'clock. All the players are well versed in what they are to do and say and will present an interesting play.

Mrs. Close Tendered A Surprise Party

Mr. O. B. Close, wife of the pastor of Fewsmith, was tendered a surprise party in her home on Monday evening. About forty members of the church Fellowship Circle and their friends attended. Mrs. Close was presented with a purse as a birthday gift. A huge birthday cake had been brought by the guests and was served as part of the refreshments.

Mrs. Close is an active worker in the Fellowship Circle as well as many others of the church groups.

Strawberry Festival

The Ladies Auxiliary of Grace Baptist Church will hold a Strawberry Festival on the parsonage lawn, 171 Overlook avenue, Wednesday afternoon and evening, May 28. A good time is assured to all who attend. If stormy, the festival will be held in the social hall of the church, Overlook avenue, corner of Bremond street.

Correction

Editor News:
In a Newark Paper of May 3, there appeared an article that a political meeting held in the Recreation House on May 2 was called under the auspices of the West Belleville Improvement Association. This we wish to correct, since the West Belleville Improvement Association had nothing to do with this meeting as a body. Said meeting was called by H. Boutillette, County Committeewoman, and Mrs. Flemming, committeewoman. Publicity Committee of West Belleville Improvement Assn.

If We Had A Prize For The Best Letter Of The Year We Would Give It To Humpty Dumpty

He Was Almost A Candidate, He Declares, Adding He Had Many Planks That Could Have Been Used At Random

Editor The News:

As you have heard (Oh, haven't you?) I was almost a candidate in the Commission election just concluded. So, it seems to me that I owe it to the people who were going to vote for me, to tell them: (1) what my platform would have been, if any; (2) the nature of my campaign; (3) the quality and quantity of alibis that would have been necessary to explain my defeat, if I had run.

To begin with, I have always felt that this country really needs something besides a five-cent cigar. In my opinion, more than anything else a Venice of America is needed. That being so, what more natural than that a candidate for commissioner should promise to make this town the Venice of America—a Venice, so to speak? In the first place, we have on the right or left, depending on whether we are walking up or down Washington avenue, the well known Passaic River, which contains vast quantities of water as wet as any water that flows through the well-trodden streets of Venice.

Why Not Gondolas
With this as a start, it would be a simple matter to widen the sewers in all of the streets and open them up and put gondolas in them. From what I hear, the effect of this would not be much different from Venice, anyway. Of course, to be consistent, it would then be necessary to do away with cellars and to put all the houses on piles. Oyster beds would be substituted for asparagus beds and day beds. Gondoliers could be secured without much exertion, and I venture to say there are enough ukuleles in town to serve for mandolins, or whatever instruments of torture gondoliers use. There is a uke in my house that could well be spared.

A Bridge of Sighs could be constructed from the Town Hall to Valentine's Day, or vice versa, although, personally, I would advocate importing the original Bridge of Sighs from Venice, including Shylock, and two or three of the Doges. In this way, we could take care of our floating population—especially during dog(e) days.

Assuming that a Venice needs Municipal Piers, the float of the Neroid Boat Club might well be widened, deepened, heightened and strengthened to permit the berthing of any ocean steamers that happened to get into the Passaic River instead of the Hudson during a bad foggy spell. That would necessarily mean making a port of Belleville, with its consequent Customs House, customs duties, jobs, and the opportunity to get good liquor for wet candidates like myself.

If you have followed me so far without getting seasick, you are ready to hear about the next plank in my platform, which has to do with the peat bog. And this would have been a particularly strong plank, as it relates to a pe(a)t project of mine. I would arrange to build a great stadium on this bog, and would promise to have the Harvard-Princeton football game played there during odd leap years. Of course, I know that Harvard and Princeton no longer play football, but that would be alright, because, if they didn't play anywhere, they very naturally couldn't play in Belleville, and I would have a perfectly lovely excuse for stumbling over this plank of my platform. I know a stadium would cost money, but you know it doesn't cost anything to promise to build a stadium. Don't be silly!

Painful Splinters
If you are still with me, you may be interested to learn of the constructive nature of my next plank, involving nothing less than the removal of the 35-story Lefcourt Building from Newark to Belleville, where I would set it up on the Town Hall and its contents. It had been my original intention to arrange for the removal of the new National Newark and Essex Banking Company Building, but, anticipating that this might hurt my credit with the two local banks, I was forced to accept the Lefcourt Building instead. You see, a candidate must look far to the future in his search for platform planks. All too often, it develops that the planks have sharp and very painful splinters.

Planks All Wet, Anyway
I had a lot more planks, but, during the recent cold spell, I was obliged to chop them up and use them in my heater. I realize now that I should have saved them for the future in the event that I should some day conclude to run for Congress or the Assembly. All things considered, most of the planks were all wet, anyway.

Having fallen off my damp, slippery platform, which really doesn't mean a thing, except to afford a perilous footing for a dive into the political whirlpool, I shall now discuss the kind of campaign that would have been conducted from my headquarters in Overbrook. In the first place, no money would have been spent, because my Scotch guardian has just cut my allowance in two; that is to say, from nothing to twice as much. Still, there are some things

I could have done without money. For example, if I had discovered, by some miracle, that my friends were not voluntarily and gladly spreading unkind stories about me, I might perhaps have induced them to take such steps, so that I could have rushed out and denied everything, which is said to be good politics. You'd be surprised to know what some of my political friends really think and say about me! So would I.

Oh! (Owe!)
Then, during one of my campaign speeches, if I could have found any audience to listen, I would have told how a certain man in town has owed me $12.57 for three years, five months, four days, (naming him) and has never offered to pay it back. This, of course, has nothing to do with politics, but neither have most campaign speeches. There is no answer to a political speech, for obvious reasons.

Most important of all, I could have pretended that at least one of my opponents was a Yogi philosopher, and thus the religious question would have been lightly introduced in a place where it did not belong, but where some people insist on dragging it, willy nilly, and Annie Laurie.

Need I say that I would have promised jobs to all, male and female, regardless of age, size and qualifications? By giving jobs to children, I would have built up a machine for the future, so that I might have expected to stay in office for the rest of my life, if I lived that long.

Assuming that you have skipped down to this point and know only that I ought to be beaten to a pulp, you have got to listen to my alibis, for they are really good.

Too Many Candidates
First of all, there were too many candidates in the field for me to win. When there are five places, there should be only five candidates, so that everybody may have a chance.

Next, too much money was spent, thus defeating the will of the greatly beloved people, as distinguished from the voters. If 25 cars were used in each of 22 districts at a cost of $25 apiece, the answer must be stupendous, whatever it may mean. Assuming that each car held five people, the result would have been colossal, although I am frank to say that I don't know whether the answer should be expressed in dollars or miles per hour.

Finally, there were too many voters. If the number of voters had been limited to the three people who were under the duty of voting for me whether they liked it or not, I'd have been unanimously elected, if I had run, of course, and if none of the three had double crossed me as sometimes happens, but ought not (long breath here!) unless, naturally, all three had been jailed for illegal registration, fraudulent voting and revoking, as charged.

Belleville's Not Bad
Leaving serious matters for the time being, may I say that Belleville is not such a bad place, after all? I, for one, am not willing to believe some of the things that were said during the campaign, about local conditions. If I did believe them I would do more than talk about them before election—I'd go out every day and make a serious effort to have them changed. Do you suppose some of the candidates really believed everything that was said during the campaign?

It was gratifying to many, on Election Day, to observe that the making of idle charges of unsportsmanlike conduct, the tendency to make speeches of a rather personal nature, and the definite effort to affect the campaign of a certain candidate by reason of religious feeling, were all rebuked, as evidenced by the results of the vote.

Now, in conclusion: The old board of commissioners is conceded to have done a pretty good job, and the new board is expected to do an even better job, all things considered. Let's cooperate—There is a splendid future for Belleville, just around the corner, and, with our excellent system of red, green and amber lights—to say nothing of pink and lavender ones—I feel that there will be less and less confusion at the corner in question. But don't ask: "What Corner?"

Forever yours,
HUMPTY DUMPTY.

Negotiations Made By Public Service For Generating Station

Largest Electrical Station In Territory Would Be Located At Burlington

Negotiations now in progress between Public Service Electric and Gas Company and the City of Burlington for the purchase by the company of city owned property upon which the company proposes to erect what will eventually be one of the largest electric generating stations in its whole territory, emphasize both the growing demands of New Jersey for more power and the rapid expansion of the Public Service system.

The new Burlington Generating Station is designed as an important unit in the extensive Public Service electric development and will provide not only for the southern division of the territory served by the company but for the northern division as well. The new station will have an initial installation of two 60,000 kilowatt turbo-generators, each larger than any units now in the company's service. At least three more units, of equal or greater capacity, will be added, as required and a total expenditure of $50,000,000 may be reached for the completed station.

The station will be the last word in efficiency and will employ about 200 men at the start of operation. In addition about 500 men will be employed in the construction work over a period of approximately two and one-half years, for the first two units.

In the last ten years, yearly sales of electric current by Public Service have nearly quadrupled, in the last five years they have more than doubled. To meet this increasing demand the company has built the great Kearny Station, opened in 1925, has improved and extended its Essex Station and is constructing an interconnection with the Philadelphia Electric Company and the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, which makes Public Service a participant in one of the world's largest power pools, fed by hydro-electric and mine-mouth power stations as well as other steam plants. In addition interconnections have been made with other adjacent systems.

Recently the so-called southern zone of the territory was connected with the company's northern zone by placing in operation a double steel tower line between the Trenton and Metuchen Switching Stations. This permitted the flow of current from the northern power stations to those in the southern zone. The company's system in its southern division is inter-connected with the Philadelphia Electric Company, the electricity being transmitted by cables laid on the bed of the Delaware River between Philadelphia and Camden and by a steel tower line between Philadelphia and Trenton Switching Station.

The extent to which the Public Service electric system has been extended and improved is indicated by the fact that net capital additions representing betterments made during the last five years amounted to nearly $111,000,000 and in the last ten years to more than $164,000,000. The reason for the company's intention to build a new station at Burlington is attributed to the rapid development not only of Camden, Gloucester, Burlington and Mercer counties, but to the increasing demand for electric service in the entire Public Service territory in New Jersey.

How the capacity of generating station units had increased in the past forty-five years is shown by a comparison of the following figures. In 1885 the People's Electric Light Company of Trenton was housed in a carpenter and wood working shop and the largest unit had a capacity of 240 Kw. When Public Service Corporation of New Jersey was organized in 1903, Coal Street Station in Newark was the largest station taken over. The capacity of its largest unit was 1,800 Kw. Marion Station was built in 1905 and its largest unit was 5,000 Kw. The capacity of the largest unit in Essex Station, when opened for operation in 1915, was 25,000 Kw. In 1924 a 40,000 Kw. unit was installed at Essex. In 1925, Kearny Station was opened and its largest unit at the time was 39,500 Kw. Recently two units at Kearny were enlarged to 47,250 Kw. The new Burlington Station will have an initial installation of two 60,000 Kw. units.

Economic and engineering advantages will accrue to the company and therefore to its customers by erecting the new station adjacent to the existing Burlington Generating Station and to do this requires land belonging to the city. If this cannot be obtained it may be necessary for the company to locate the new plant to the south of Burlington. A communication outlining the company's proposition was presented to the Common Council on May 6. The city property needed lies between the westerly line of the Company's present property and the easterly line of the holdings of the Standard Oil Company.

Demarest Announces Platform For Register

W. Howard Demarest, Newark lawyer and resident of Essex Falls, Republican candidate for Register of Deeds of Essex County has issued the following statement of his position, and the platform on which he seeks the nomination:

"I believe in party organization for all lawful purposes, with power vested in its regularly convened meetings.

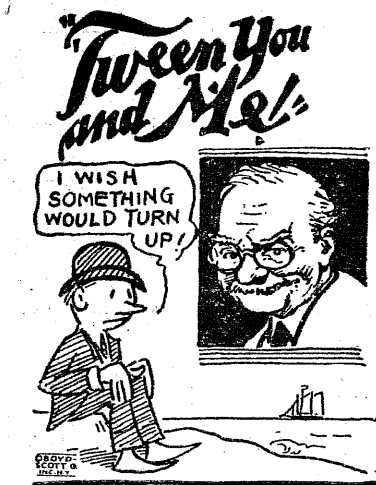

"I believe the direct primary law should be observed and that the voters should select their candidate by ballot free from unlawful direction. A candidate in the primary should be free from the influence of other candidates for unrelated office.

"The present divided condition of the party in Essex County with the corresponding division of leadership and effort, destroys the force of Republicanism in the county and prevents this large and populous county from resuming its rightful place in state affairs. Dissatisfaction with these conditions is heard everywhere. Therefore I advocate: 1—A coalition of the republican voters as an effective means of restoring party harmony; 2—A definite expression of the desire of the voters for a representative and responsible leadership, through which Essex County may have a proper voice according to its size and strength; 3—An expression of the hope that honesty is not barred from politics.

"I am not against anybody; nor do I aspire to leadership. I am for party harmony and the strength it brings. A leader must follow the mandate of the voters, when the voters dictate a policy by their ballots.

"I offer my candidacy for the office of Register of Deeds on this platform: Qualifications which fit me for the office; 8 years experience in actual work in the office; 20 years' practice as an attorney and counsel.

Alpine-Yonkers Ferry Increases Its Service

Because of the remarkable increase in its vehicle traffic, it was learned today that, commencing last Sunday, and continuing for the rest of the year, as long as traffic will warrant, the Alpine-Yonkers Ferry will operate an additional ferry boat on Sundays, making a three boat service, on a seven minute headway, from 6:00 A. M. to midnight.

This is in keeping with the policy of the management to maintain a "no waiting" service.

The Ferry Company maintains a bureau where routing and touring information can be obtained free, upon request, made either in person or by mail at their office, 26 Main street, Yonkers, N. Y. The ticket agents, also, at the terminals at either side of the River, will be glad to give free maps and running directions to destinations.

Foresees Better Roads As Citizens Learn Economics

High Upkeep Costs Take Money Away From New Pavement Construction

One of the outstanding difficulties in the provision of pavements that really serve the automobile and truck, is the lack of knowledge on the part of citizens concerning the high cost of the vast mileage of unstable pavements now in use.

Cities and towns, particularly, are burdened with high pavement upkeep costs. For the most part, city governments do not keep accurate tabulations of street repair costs. Street repair funds usually come out of vehicle license income or general taxation; thus the citizen is not faced directly with the cost, else he might insist on the replacement of these inferior roadways that year after year soak up as much of his tax money as education.

In the absence of accurate street repair costs on unstable surfaces, data collected by state highway departments on rural road costs indicates the possible savings through construction of properly built pavements. Recently the Illinois Department of Highways announced that only $75 a mile per year is required to keep the network of hard-surfaced pavements in first class condition.

During Indiana's 1928 fiscal year the cost of maintenance of hard-surfaced pavements averaged $72.40 per mile. The Ohio State Highway Department reports that in 1927 hard-surfaced pavements cost $168 per mile.

Waukesha County, Wisconsin, installed 129 miles of hard-surfaced pavements and immediately upkeep costs were cut by two-thirds.

A survey was recently made in British Columbia which revealed that the average maintenance costs on roads and streets was but $43.20 a mile yearly.

Upkeep costs naturally vary with the volume of traffic and the type of surface. But there is sufficient evidence to show that too much of the motorist-taxpayers' money is being spent on maintenance with very little actual betterment of highway surfaces.

Veteran Disability Rate Increases

Veterans' Bureau statistics reveal that the number of disabled veterans of the world War is increasing as the men grow older and their powers of resistance finally crumble under the post-war strain of securing a livelihood for dependents and themselves.

This fact has been evident locally as well as in other portions of the country, and as a result, the 1930 distribution of poppies takes rank as one of the most important activities to be sponsored by Stuart E. Edgar Post No. 493, of this town.

The sale of V. F. W. Buddy Poppies provides Edgar Post with an available fund for relief work among disabled and needy veterans and their dependents. The proceeds from the sale of Buddy Poppies make it possible for the Post to administer emergency medical and hospital treatment for veterans unable to secure this care for themselves. The Post is also enabled to carry on welfare work among veteran patients at government hospitals in this regional district.

Aside from these objectives, the poppy relief fund offers a source of help for the widows and orphans of deceased or disabled comrades. It contributes to the maintenance and expansion of the V. F. W. National Home at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, created for the care of widows and orphans of deceased veterans; service bureau work, including Veterans' Bureau liaison in this district and at Washington; special equipment for hospital patients and the use of hospitals; military funerals for deceased ex-service men and the acquisition and maintenance of burial plots and graves.

Every year scores of needy veterans and their dependents are given relief through the V. F. W. poppy fund, administered by a committee of members, within easy access for instant action whenever the emergency arises. In this way, the public has been saved the annoyance of solicitations and pleas for relief contributions throughout the year.

The annual Buddy Poppy drive is the V. F. W. method that makes it possible to "honor the dead by helping the living."

Sleeveless

THE smart shops are full of them — adorable gowns with no sleeves at all. Once in a while Dame Fashion does relent and give the Fair Sex something that is comfortable as well as smart. How good these sleeveless gowns will feel when the thermometer is creeping upward to ninety in the shade! Nevertheless, many women are hesitating to wear them. Last year's sun-tan left the arms all fuzzy, and the fastidious woman hesitates to expose them to sight. The New York debutantes have solved the problem for themselves, and others are fast following suit. They simply zip their arms free of hair and then enjoy the comfort of sleeveless frocks throughout the summer months.

Rawson Gets Support In Register Aims

A group of county Republican leaders, also County Register Howard S. Dodd, are supporting the candidacy of Recorder William H. Rawson of Bloomfield for nomination as register in the primaries June 17. Mr. Rawson has been recorder for the last eleven years and was elected a member of the Republican County Committee when twenty-one years old.

He has been active in the party ever since.

Edward D. Duffield made this statement on Mr. Rawson: "I want to congratulate Recorder Rawson and his committee on the character of the campaign he is conducting."

County Counsel Arthur T. Vandervilt: "Bloomfield has not had a county office in some time and has been modest in her requests. She has brought out a strong Republican vote in the past campaigns and we want this opportunity to reciprocate and aid in giving our support to Mr. Rawson."

Mayor Charles H. Demarest: "The residents of Bloomfield have been long appreciative of the work of Recorder Rawson, now the dean of magistrates of Essex County, also his loyalty to the Republican Party. His splendid qualifications should commend his candidacy to every voter in this county."

Representative Fred A. Hartley, Jr.: "I am backing Rawson for register and will make every effort to have each of my friends in the Essex section of my district support him. Mr. Rawson has shown himself to be qualified for the office and deserves this nomination."

State Labor Commissioner Charles R. Blunt: "In all my political experience, I have never seen an aspirant for office enter upon a campaign under more favorable auspices than those attending the start of the candidacy of Judge Rawson."

Mrs. Rawson was born in Bloomfield thirty-eight years ago, is married and has three children. He was graduated from Bloomfield High School, Stevens Preparatory School and New York University Law School. He was admitted to the bar in June, 1916, and in the following years was assistant supervisor of bills in Trenton. He served in the World War and was honorably discharged as chief petty officer of the U. S. S. Northern Pacific. On the same day he was named recorder.

A large part of his practice consists in representing clients who buy, sell and deal in real estate and he is connected with several building and loan associations.

High Peak Reached In Revocation Of Licenses By Hoffman

The high-water mark in revocation of licenses for failure to comply with the Financial Responsibility Act in the State of New Jersey, was reached during the past week, when Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, Harold G. Hoffman, was obliged, under existing legislation, to revoke two hundred forty-one licenses.

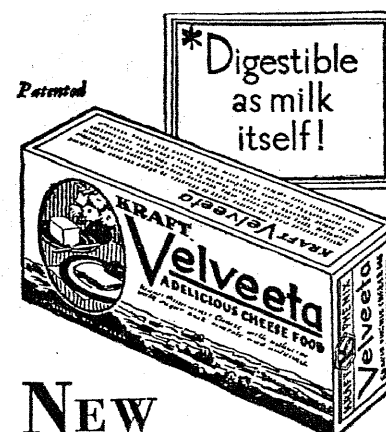

Commissioner Hoffman has expressed the opinion that a large number of these revocations are due to failure to understand the provisions of the law, and he is moving to correct this by the compilation of a non-technical pamphlet explaining the provisions of the act, to accompany the original notice sent each person who becomes subject to the financial responsibility law.

"There are also cases," said Commissioner Hoffman, "here, because of an apparent injustice in the law, certain motor vehicle operators are placed in a frame of mind that prompts them to refuse to comply with its provisions and their driver's licenses, under the act, must be revoked."

"Under this act, for instance, a person operating a car in a perfectly legal manner, at a moderate rate of speed, and on the right side of the road, can have his car struck by a vehicle being driven wildly by a 'drunken driver.' When the report of this accident is made, I am obliged under the law, to call upon the innocent operator, as well as the guilty one, to furnish proof of financial responsibility—for a period of three years. This must be done, because the law requires a certificate from any person 'concerned' in an accident."

"This apparent injustice may, however, be an administrative necessity; unless both parties were required to furnish insurance, we would be placed in a position of determining just who is right and who is wrong in all accident cases. The insurance companies charge 10 per cent for filing a certificate, where the owner or operator has previously been insured, and the insured loses his merit."

Growth brings a change in the Telephone Number System of Metropolitan Northern New Jersey.

A half-century ago neither Telephone Number nor Central Office name was needed ("Get me Mr. Brown, please"). When the Operator no longer could remember people by name, numbers were introduced ("124, please"), and when it became possible to talk to other towns, Central Office names came in ("Orange 1109").

Now the Central Office names themselves are being numbered ("OR ange 3—1109").

The change is slight. Yet with it, Central Office names long familiar as community names can be retained; Dial Service can be introduced in new places from year to year; and people will be able to dial their calls over a wider and wider range.

Just an added numeral—yet it is the keystone of plans to meet telephone needs for years to come—one more step in keeping pace with New Jersey's growth.

New Jersey Bell Telephone Company

"A NEW JERSEY INSTITUTION BACKED BY NATIONAL RESOURCES"

BEGINNING Midnight Saturday June 7th, a Central Office numeral will be part of every telephone number in Metropolitan Northern New Jersey. "Orange 1109" will become "OR ange 3—1109" which you will call as "Orange-three, (pause) one-one-oh-nine". Numbers under "1000" will have zeros prefixed to give them the necessary four figures, "Bloomfield 99" for example, becoming "BL oom-field 2—0099".

CHURCHES

CHRIST EPISCOPAL

Rev. Peter R. Deckenbach

Fifth Sunday after Easter. Holy Communion at 7:45. Morning Prayer and sermon at 11 o'clock. Topic, "The Ascended Christ." Evening Prayer and sermon at 7:45. Topic to be selected.

Thursday, May 29, Ascension Day. Holy Communion at 10 o'clock A. M. The candidates of the Girls' Friendly Society accompanied by the now famous Kitchen Orchestra and Bridal Procession, will go by special bus to Grace Church, Orange, on Saturday afternoon, to attend the annual Diocesan Service and party for candidates, usually attended by some three hundred children. The orchestra and Bridal Procession have been asked to entertain on this occasion, and will present for the seventh time "The Courtship and Wedding of Paddy and Rosie." Next Wednesday evening the Society will be entertained by a demonstration lecturer from the Castle Ice Cream Company.

The luncheon, to be followed by a card party, under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild, will be held at the parish house on Wednesday. Luncheon will be served, commencing at 12 o'clock noon, to accommodate any teachers or students, who may care to attend. Following is the menu: Cold boiled ham, spaghetti, baked beans, cabbage salad, rolls, Jello with whipped cream, cup cakes, coffee and tea. The price is fifty cents.

At the close of the luncheon, Mrs. John J. Manger will take care of the Card Party which will follow, at a cost of fifty cents additional. Mrs. Manger will be assisted by Mrs. George R. Morey and Mrs. William S. Moulton. Miss Elizabeth S. Moore is general chairman, and other members of the committee are: Mrs. Joseph Lane, Mrs. Guy R. Lemmones, Mrs. Charlotte M. Littlefield, Mrs. Elizabeth Lloyd, Mrs. Mary J. Lloyd, Mrs. Daniel Mellis and Mrs. H. W. Mumford.

The play "Young Mrs. Winthrop," given by the Actors' Guild, at the parish house, on Thursday evening of last week, was attended enthusiastically received by the large audience which was present. Each player fully entered into the spirit of the drama, and appeared at ease and natural. Much credit is due Mrs. J. A. Tempest, the coach, who has the ability of bringing out the best in her actors. The Musical Art Trio composed of Christina Wellington Phillips, violin; Maxine Moore, cello, and Eleanor Bacon-Peck, piano, added very much to the enjoyment of the evening, by their beautiful music, rendering a short program preceding the play, and between the acts.

The regular monthly meeting of the Altar Guild was held on Monday evening. The Directress, Mrs. Harry Edwards, presided. A satisfactory report of the concert given recently by the New Providence Grammar School Band, was submitted. At the close of the business meeting, refreshments were served.

Victor H. Schleicher, of Union avenue, a Newark lawyer, and member of the club, was the speaker at the Men's Club, at his meeting on Monday evening. Mr. Schleicher's topic was "The Making of Wills, and Providing for One's Dependents."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Soul and Body" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 25, 1930.

The Golden Text is: "My flesh and my heart faileth: but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever." (Psalms 73:26).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." (Matthew 16:24).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "It is not wise to take a halting and half-way position or to expect to work equally with Spirit and matter, Truth and error. There is but one way—namely, God and His idea—which leads to spiritual being." (p. 167).

Teachers' Conference—First Monday.

Notes

At the morning service the pastor of Grace Church will endeavor to lead the congregation to a meditation of our blessed heritage of the past. In the evening in keeping with the spirit of the day, Mr. McCombe will speak from the subject, "The Soul of America." We are inclined to think that our nation lacks a personality; lacks a soul that thinks and acts and feels even as we do. Perhaps you will not agree with the pastor of Grace Church. He cannot help that, but do not make a hasty judgment, until you have listened to what he has to say on the subject. We shall look for you next Sunday.

Monday evening the women of the church and community listened with delight to the story of Miss Macguire of the Home Mission Society, as she unfolded the needs of our new neighbors. Miss Macguire is an able speaker and brought to the audience the greatness of the task the women of America have to keep the country safe for the coming generation. The coming to our shores of strange people with different customs, habits and ideals, presents a peril that the average citizen gives little thought to and offers a challenge that the women of America cannot afford to ignore if they would keep America safe for the coming generation. The following program was carried out. Mrs. George Wierick, presiding.

Singing—Congregation.
Address of Welcome, Mrs. G. Wierick.
Scripture Reading, Miss Irene Fuller.
Prayer—Mrs. Edythe Thomson.
Violin Solo—Miss Ida Bruegman.
Miss Madeline Thomson, accompanist.
Address—Christian Americanization.
Miss Ruth Macguire.

Singing—Congregation.
Prayer—Mrs. Douglas Clark.

Social Hour

During the social hour, Miss Helen Hagerman sang "Mother Macree," accompanied by Miss Ida Bruegman, violin, and Miss Madeline Thomson at the piano.

The restricted immigration bill caused much uneasiness, to many of our people, when Congress in 1924 passed the bill, in order to give the country a chance to assimilate the stream of foreign blood flowing to our shores. At that time we were receiving a new population at the rate of one million each year. We could not go on and allow such a large number to come to our shores without paying the penalty in unemployment and the shattering of national ideals. The restricted immigration bill is giving us a chance to educate the stranger within our gates in our national traditions and ambitions. We are also receiving a larger number of people from Great Britain, Germany and Scandinavia; while the overflow from Southern and Eastern Europe has decreased.

So great has been the change that if the restrictions are enforced for the next forty years the nation will again become predominantly Anglo-Saxon. Fellowship meeting Tuesday evening at which the study of "Great Thoughts from Great Minds" will be resumed. Any one desirous of studying the deeper things of life will enjoy these fellowship meetings with profit. All are invited.

We do not hear much about the frontier of the United States these days. We hear so many orations regarding our wealth and resources that we are inclined to think of our Republic as one vast compact of cities with their teeming thousands. A ride by train or auto of forty-eight hours West of Minneapolis or Omaha or Kansas would quickly undeceive us. As we travelled toward the West or North West we would soon be convinced that there still existed a frontier. The government estimates that there are still about 350,000,000 acres of Western land available waiting for some man to till as virgin soil. The development of the frontier has slowed up decidedly and very fortunately since the war. It is too apparent that we are raising more agricultural products than we can possibly consume or market with profit abroad. The government has postponed many of its great reclamation and irrigation projects owing to the present condition of the West.

The Ladies Auxiliary will give a Strawberry Festival on the parsonage lawn, 171 Overlook avenue, Wednesday, May 28, afternoon and evening. A good time is assured to all who may attend as the ladies are making plans to have this go down as one of the big events of the year.

The excitement of the election is over. Many things have been said that would have been better left unsaid. Friends of many years' standing will feel hard towards each other for a little while. This is childish. The true sportsman will accept the verdict of the people and try and forget what has transpired during the campaign. Life is too short to nourish a grudge. All should look at things in the large. The victors would do well to remember that they may be the vanquished in the near future. The defeated; that they may wear the victor's crown at the next election. The better way for all will be to endeavor as far as their dispositions will allow them to put into practice the "Golden Rule." It will be best in the end. Washington Irving has well said, "Who can look down upon the grave even of an enemy and not feel compunctions throb that he should even have warred with a poor handful of earth, that lies mouldering before him." Life has too many sorrows for any mortal. Too many burdens to bear without adding to them. Many a man is carrying hidden from the eyes of his fellows a burden that may be crushing his soul. Why add to it? It does not help us and it only makes it worse for the other fellow. Let us be men doing men's work, while we have the strength of men. The world will be happier and we will have the satisfaction of doing something worth while.

FEWSMITH CHURCH

Rev. O. Bell Close

Sunday, 11 A. M.—"Rubbish and Reality in Religion." Sunday evening, 8 o'clock—Old fashioned hymn singing. Christian Endeavor, leader, Mr. William Fleming. Topic, "How Missionaries Advance in World Peace."

Sunday evening will mark the last of the evening services for this season and an "old fashioned hymn sing" will be followed by a fellowship hour with the Fewsmith Collegiates acting as hostesses. All members of the congregation and their friends are urged to attend this last evening church service and join the singing of old and favorite hymns. Special selections will be sung by members of the choir. After a short service, the congregation will adjourn to the church auditorium for the fellowship hour.

Christian Endeavor

"The Kiddie Party" planned for Friday evening, May 23, has been postponed to Wednesday evening, May 28. This will be the last C. E. activity for the season and members and their friends are invited to attend the party. Dancing and refreshments will be in order.

The last devotional meeting for the season will be held on Sunday evening with Mr. William Fleming as leader.

Holy Name Breakfast

At St. Peter's Church

400 Catholics And Non-Catholics Attended Affair Last Sunday

The invitation of religion and the respect for the Holy Name of Jesus, plus the assurance of an educational and moral treat, where the compelling reasons that were sufficiently magnetic to draw 400 men, Catholic and non-Catholic, to the annual breakfast of St. Peter's Holy Name Society on Sunday morning, May 18.

Prior to the breakfast the communicants and friends, headed by St. Peter's Pipe, Drum and Bugle Corps, marched through the parish park, and the impression created was decidedly favorable.

The mass was sung by an augmented choir under the direction of Professor Reginald Ball. The scene of 400 men at the communion rail was an inspiration for all lovers of morality and good citizenship, and the pledge of personal cleanliness was an assurance of further national strength gleaned from the family as given by the individual. The church was as usual, filled to its capacity, with the addition of hundreds standing to witness the annual collective renewal of faith by the men of the Society. The singing of the National Anthem was the introductory feature of the breakfast. The signal for service revealed fifty ladies in white service costumes at the platform ready and happy in the serving of the good things prepared by them.

During the breakfast the Maplecrest Orchestra interspersed with popular and old time songs. The K. of C. Glee Club introduced vocal and instrumental numbers with all joining in singing the choruses.

The introduction of the Hon. T. J. Brogan, Corporation Counsel of Jersey City, by the toastmaster, John T. Burke, was the signal for silence. The pleasing personality of Mr. Brogan, accentuated by a masterful oration, dealing with the need of cultural, reasonable and divinely established religion, suggested a hush that was compelling. The ideals of religion, supplemented by historic proofs and scriptural confirmation, gave Mr. Brogan a background upon which the unity and beauty of the Catholic Church was suggested and revealed resplendent in its history of two thousand years. The presentation of the theme, as masterfully revealed, forced the acknowledgment of the master mind in full domination of the subject. The consensus of the auditors agreed that Mr. Brogan had given a literary and historic charm worthy of the scholar and student.

The additional speaker was the Hon. John A. Matthews of Newark. Mr. Matthews was himself and more. The elegance of language, the originality of treatment, the personal touch of charm and the solidity of argument, plus the native eloquence of the gentleman, compelled the thought "it is well for us to be here." Mr. Matthews deplored the loss of the old fashioned appreciation of religion, and was sorry to admit the disposition of many to confound the law of man with the law of God.

Miss Teresa Salmon, President of the Social Society, supported by the ladies of the society and of the parish prepared and served the breakfast to the satisfaction of all and deserving of our thanks.

Mr. Thomas Lukowiak, President of the Holy Name Society ably supported Mr. Burke, chairman of the committee, and was an inspiration to the members of the general committee.

The members of the Police and Fire Departments who are members of the Holy Name Society, appeared in uniform.

Salad a la Reine—Chop fine one-half of a small Bermuda onion. Add twice as much chopped parsley as onion. Mix with eight green peppers, chopped fine. Add one-half cup olive oil, one-third cup vinegar, one-half teaspoon powdered sugar, and one teaspoon salt. Mix thoroughly with the onion, parsley and peppers, and let stand for one hour in a covered glass dish. Just before using, shake hard for five minutes and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Baked Fish Piedmont—Place in a baking dish four alternate layers of sliced potatoes and sliced onions, seasoning each layer with salt and pepper. Clean and wash any large fish, such as a haddock, and place on the layers. Cover the fish with a layer of potatoes, a layer of onions and another layer of potatoes. Season as before. Pour over the dish one cup olive oil and three cups canned tomatoes to which has been added one tablespoon sugar. Bake until the potatoes are soft.

JUSTIFIED SALARY INCREASES

When the new commission passed an ordinance Tuesday providing salary to the commissioners in the amount of $1,800 a year and Mayor $2,250 it did just as most of us would have the board do. The justification of the increase to these totals should not be questioned.

Salaries equal to what Belleville commissioners now get is taken care of by law which allows a fifty per cent increase over the old salaries provided an ordinance is passed at the organization meeting. Otherwise four years must elapse before any increase may be had.

Each year finds increasing demands made upon the board members. It is so now that official duties of the members carry them well into the wee small hours of the night as well as giving much of day time to the job.

We cannot expect to find men public spirited enough to neglect their own business and private affairs for the town if they are not reimbursed for it. We have seen the members working into the night, every night of the week, and some all day, too. This should not be allowed if these men are to maintain their health. Former Director of Revenue and Finance Edward Nelson broke his health for the paltry $30 a week for the town and Commissioner James Gibson is none too well now over his hard work.

Maybe the day will come when the salary will be large enough to permit these men to give nothing but their entire time to the job. It certainly should be that way when we consider the job is handling the biggest business in town and a business that is larger than most in the cities. Give these men you have elected half a chance to do the job right and Belleville will take its place in the lead of all Essex. Even with the raises the officials get less than most employees in the town—which is inverted to our way of keeping with the other progressive towns that have taken advantage of the fifty per cent increase which the board failed to do four years ago.

COLOR IN THE KITCHEN

All sorts of kitchen utensils and containers are now colored. But much still remains to be done. Such ingredients as salt and flour and baking powder are still white, instead of mauve or lavender or old rose; and the hues of the packages of some products do not harmonize at all with any acceptable scheme.

ONE NIGHT WILL CURE THEM

The modern efficiency apartment undoubtedly may have its drawbacks, out and in-a-door bed battling for a spare room certainly does discourage relations dropping in on you for a prolonged visit.

COUNTING THE RADIOS

The census takers have reported that they have encountered some difficulty in securing an answer to their question as to whether or not a household owns a radio set. People seem to be suspicious that if they give the information that is demanded they may be subjecting themselves to some additional tax burden. The statement that the information which the Government seeks is to be regarded as confidential has not served to allay the fears of those who are questioned on this subject.

It appears to be something of a mystery as to just why the Government has undertaken to discover how many radio receiving sets are in use. The manufacturers of these sets have given out the statement through the secretary of their association that the question is being asked by the census takers because they requested that the information as to the number of radio sets be secured. The reason the manufacturers wanted to get the information was, so they say, to get some knowledge of the market for radio products.

If this particular question is being asked solely because the radio manufacturers wanted to learn about their market it would appear that the Government is unduly favoring them and may have established a troublesome precedent. Why should the question concerning radio sets be asked rather than questions as to who owns an electric refrigerator, a vacuum cleaner, a washing machine or any of the other things which are now to be found in many homes and which some day may be found in every home in the land? Manufacturers of these products are as much entitled to know some facts pertaining to their market as are the makers of radio sets.

But the real reason for asking this particular question probably is not to please the manufacturers of radio receiving sets but to obtain information which may be of real value to the Government. There is a mystery concerning the distribution of radios which can only be solved by some such means as is now being employed. If we know how many radios there are in service we may get some idea of how large a proportion of the population may be reached directly by broadcasting. In time of an emergency it would be important to know this fact and it might happen that the Government would take over the many broadcasting stations so that it might be able to control the information which is distributed in this way.

There will be great curiosity in the part of many people to learn how many radios there are in certain districts. Some think that the number of machines in use in all localities is over-estimated and many believe the number may be under-estimated. All kinds of claims have been made by those concerned with radio broadcasting stations as to the "pulling power" such stations may have. Many persons who employ the radio to put forth propaganda of all kinds may be assuming they can reach many thousands of homes in this way when, if the facts were known, it might appear that they can only reach comparatively few. Some persons speaking over the radio have been heard to declare that they are talking to thousands when, if the truth were known, they may be only talking to hundreds and not at all certain of reaching all of them.

Good-bye Stained Teeth

New Safe Treatment Bleaches Dark Teeth in Three Minutes

Dentists have discovered a new safe treatment which bleaches stains from teeth, giving yellow discolored teeth a beautiful shining whiteness. It is called Bleachodent Combination, and consists of a remarkable liquid which cures or softens the stains; and a new kind of paste, which instantly removes the softened stains, and prevents new stains from forming. Simply brush the teeth with a few drops of the liquid; then use the paste—and even the dulliest teeth are quickly whitened. Tobacco stains disappear after first few applications. Bleachodent Combination was first made for children's teeth to avoid the use of harsh gritty pastes which are so harmful to children's soft, sensitive teeth. While Bleachodent Combination will instantly remove surface stains, do not expect it to remove stains caused by silver fillings, as these are below the enamel, and Bleachodent Combination is not intended to act on the enamel in any way. Fine for the gums. Bleachodent Combination is widely used and recommended. Costs just a few cents, and money back if not delighted. Get it today at all good dealers, such as:

UP AND DOWN BROADWAY

By BOYCE BROGDON

UP and down Main street

It was a dark and stormy night, which is a fitting introduction to any sailor story, and Captain Giuseppe Turchi, the genial skipper of the Conte Biancamona tied up at its New York pier, decided to take a stroll to town. We met him in one of New York's stay-up-late places. He is a very likeable old man, or perhaps we shouldn't say old, for we judge him to be about sixty, but he doesn't look a day over fifty-nine, perhaps you would judge him to be about fifty-eight, but his age hasn't a thing to do with the story he tells.

On one of his previous trips to the Big City, when leaving the ship, he saw a pier guard, at the end of the gang-plank, chasing a small, white-pup black pup which had strayed on the pier.

"He tried to bite the cop at the end of the pier, Captain!" the guard explained, and impressed by the small animal's unusual intelligence Captain Turchi called the dog over to him.

Slowly the little pup approached with the wheezing sidelong motion of an animal that had been well-kicked, and the whimper of a lonesome little fellow who badly needed a friend.

"Look out, he'll bite," cautioned the cautious pier-guard.

"Well, perhaps it is that we should give him something good to bite," said Captain Turchi. "He looks very hungry," and picking up the pup he carried him back to the ship where a momentous decision was made.

"If he likes Genovese stew he is an Italian citizen and we keep him," said the skipper as the chef set a large plate of the stew on the floor. Three minutes later the pup was declared an Italian citizen, and on the next voyage to Italy he occupied a kennel on the bridge deck constructed by the ship's carpenter.

A few months on the high seas Whimpering black pup which had developed into a big, belligerent dog dashing up and down the bridge deck barking his challenges to the other pups in the dog houses on the adjoining deck.

But, despite his educational advantages—he understands two languages—Morro, as he has been dubbed, still has a sneaking sort of regard for the country that mistreated him so in his puppyhood, and his Italian citizenship is very much in question. At Naples and Genoa he positively refuses to go ashore, and each time he returns to New York he spends his time barking his derision and vituperation at the buildings on the waterfront. He cannot be induced to leave the ship.

Thus he spends his days, this dog without a country, sailing back and forth across the ocean, and there are a number of us who wouldn't mind changing places with him.

A noted author, returning from a couple of years in Europe, says Americans don't know how to live. A lot of 'em, he says, don't know they're alive. We could name some relatives and friends who don't even know they're dead.

American, he contends, have not yet learned the art of enjoying life. They spend all their time making money. Their wives remedy that condition by spending all their time getting rid of it.

Nevertheless, it is a fact that in the gentle art of living we of the new world have a great deal to learn from our European cousins. Take the French, for instance. Their thrift has become a tradition. They can teach the Americans how to save their money. In fact, they will save it for them.

Italy has taught us most of all. The control of the press is an example. In Italy when a lady carries her initials on her husband with a butcher knife all she gets in the way of publicity is mention in the court records, with all newspaper stories strictly taboo. When a devoted American wife puts a permanent wave in her lord and master's bean with an

Would You Sell Your Eyes?

A ridiculous question surely, for your eyes are your dearest possessions.

Then in buying service for your eyes, glasses that will help them in their daily performance of providing you with vision, is price more important than assurance that you are giving them their best aid?

We are equipped to give you a professional and scientific service, at a moderate price. Cheap glasses mean cheap eyes—don't let a few pennies stand in your way to perfect vision.

COUNTRY STORES GET QUALITY FOOD

GOOD oranges grow in California—but try and get them, if you happen to be in California. If you live in Seattle, or in New York City, or someplace else—that's different. The best of the California crop comes to you, fat and heavy with juice, autographed in colored ink, tissue-enclosed and all.

But tourists who go out to California to enjoy the sun and the sun-kissed, most all come back with a story like this: the vegetable truck comes along, you stop it to buy the world's best oranges, and the truckman tries to sell you a bucket of culls—the fruit which is too small to be shipped out and is saved for the native sons.

And if you become insistent and drive out to the groves to obtain the best fruit, you are presented with a beautiful view of myriads of the choicest oranges, some on the trees and some lying temptingly on the ground. Of course, none but the rankest amateur regarding California laws would dare pick up an orange and sample it. And as far as buying a crate of these perfect specimens—it doesn't take a fortune-teller to tell you that these are oranges of destiny, and will soon take a long trip.

Farmer Now Fares Better

It's just the old story of the shoe-maker's children. The farmer's wife, as a rule, doesn't eat the best cabbages. She prefers that the city woman should have them for her cole slaw, while she takes the profits. Time was when the farm was often a poor place to live—dietetically speaking. One had too much of what was in season, and too little of what was not. But something has come along which has changed the aspect of the whole affair.

Canning. Today, the same wide variety of quality canned foods are available all year round to the person who lives in the outlying districts, just as they are to the person living in the big city. And canners' reports show that the consumption of quality canned foods is increasing very rapidly in the country.

The president of one of the largest food distributing firms in New York City makes the following statement:

Quality Grade Popular

"Quality canned foods are probably sold in equal percentage in either rural or urban communities, according to the prosperity of the community. We sell a very large percentage of our very highest quality canned foods to country stores in prosperous towns or villages."

Quality canned foods are the choicest of the pack. The canner grades his products according to quality, and the needs of the housewife.

Fruits are packed in five grades: fancy, choice, extra standard, standard and fruits for pie. For the fancy or quality grade, the fruit must be of very high color, ripe yet retaining its form, free from blemishes, and of uniform size. In the case of fruits which are cut in halves, as peaches or apricots, these halves must be very symmetrical.

There are not so many grades of vegetables as of fruits, the fruit grades generally being fancy, extra standard, and standard. The fancy or quality grades are the choicest vegetables, uniform in quality, very tender and of the best flavor and color. There are, however, many varieties of certain vegetables and these varieties are marked on the labels. Peas, for example, come in two varieties—"Early Variety Peas" and "Sugar Peas," sometimes called "Sweet Variety Peas"—and in ten different sizes of peas, from "Size One" which must be small enough to pass through a screen of 9/32 inch to those marked "Ungraded for Size," or "Pod Run," which are very good peas but of different sizes.

Housewives are urged to read the labels on their canned foods carefully before buying, so that they may obtain the right quantity and quality for their purpose. The woman who is making cherry-pie, for example, can economize by buying the pie grade of fruit, and use the money saved for buying the best grade of cherries for her other desserts and salads.

Today's Diet Varied

The diet of the average man today is richer and more varied than that of the wealthiest nobleman of 300 years ago, according to James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, and the country dweller is no longer limited to the products of his neighborhood but can get as great variety and high quality as anyone else.

EXCELLA

PAJAMAS FOR THE KITCHEN

The lounging pajamas which found such favor with the smart world last year because of their comfort, non-chalance and generally relaxed air now invade the kitchen—as witness this new model. The blouse has a trim V-neck finished with contrasting rever collar and a bow. The trousers hang straight and loosely from a yoke, giving plenty of freedom. The back belt buttons over in front. The trousers may be converted into short trunks; and sleeves are provided. Here it is attractive in printed cotton; it would be equally happy in gingham. Excella Pattern No. 3157. Sizes 14 to 40, 25 cents.

MAN-SIZE MEATS

"MEAL and Am Pie," beloved of Sam Weller, may strike a sympathetic chord in the longing of many a modern American husband. But not many men, today, are willing to let their wives remain in the kitchen on holidays, as they did in Dickens' day, to prepare these sturdy dishes. There are movies to be seen, motor tours to be taken, golf matches to be played, and a score of things more amusing to do than to putter among pots and pans.

Providing, of course, that something in the nature of "Weal and Am Pie" does now and then make an appearance. Men like fairly substantial meat dishes. This fact is evidenced every noon in a certain English chop house in New York City, where unbelievably bulky mutton chops, knockwurst, brauwurst and other wursts are daily consumed by a patronage almost exclusively male.

Meats for Everybody

Canny canners, knowing these things, have provided in canned form an assortment of meats which men like, along with such delicacies as boneless chicken and ham loaf which are favorites of women. In fact, Sam Weller, himself, might not fare so badly today with cans of mutton roast, boiled tripe, roast veal and Irish stew ever ready. Here is a list of meats available in cans that will appeal to both sexes:

Bacon, Sliced
Beef, Boiled
Beef, Corned
Beef, Dried
Beef, Roast
Beef Steak with Onions
Beef Stew
Brains
Chicken, Boneless
Chicken, Deviled
Chicken, Tamales
Ham, Deviled
Ham, Loaf
Hash
Irish Stew
Kidney, Stew
Liver with Bacon
Liver with Onions
Mutton, Roast
Pig's Feet
Potted Meats
Sausage
Sausage with Sauerkraut
Tongue, Calf's
Tongue, Lamb's
Tongue, Ox
Tripe, Boiled
Turkey
Veal, Loaf
Veal, Roast

The following recipes offer some nourishing and appetizing dishes that can be prepared with canned meats:

Beef and Mushroom Pie: Drain the mushrooms from a 4-ounce can, slice, and sauté them for five minutes in three tablespoons butter. Add enough water to the mushroom liquor to make two and one-fourth cups of liquor. Smooth three tablespoons of flour to a paste with this liquid, add slowly to the butter and mushrooms, and cook until creamy. Add one bouillon cube, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one and one-half cups of small potato balls and the contents of a 12-ounce can of Roast Beef cut in cubes. Pour into a baking dish, cover with a crust, or with small baking powder biscuits, and bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for 35 to 45 minutes. This serves eight persons.

Other Good Recipes

Corned Beef and Potato Puff: Boil and mash one and one-half pounds potatoes, add two tablespoons butter, one-fourth cup hot milk, salt and pepper, and beat till light and fluffy. Shred half the contents of a 12-ounce can of corned beef, and add and heat again. Pile lightly in a shallow, buttered baking dish. Sprinkle one-eighth pound grated cheese over top, and brown in a very hot oven or beneath the broiler flame. This serves four persons.

Ox Tongue Omelet: Combine one cup of finely-chopped canned Ox Tongue with one cup of medium white sauce. Make an omelet with three eggs, three tablespoons milk and one-half tablespoon salt. Just before folding, spread over the hot creamed tongue. This serves eight persons.*

A. Harry Moore At Lions Club Affair

Adult Responsibility To Youth Is Subject Of Ex-Governor's Talk

The Lions Club Thursday was addressed at the Elks Home by A.
Harry Moore on "Adult Responsibility to Youth."

Mr. Moore stressed the value of close contacts between parents and children as a factor in character building. Careful supervision of youth from early age by their elders would lessen delinquency greatly, he declared.

The most distressing moments in his life, said the speaker, were when, as Governor, he had to listen to the vain pleadings of parents on behalf of youths condemned to death. Their interest in their sons' welfare came too late, he said.

Addressing himself to six boys from the public schools who had won in an essay contest conducted by the Lions Club and who were guests, Mr.
Moore told of witnessing a ceremony of welcome to a crown prince visiting this country. He was impressed by the show of respect, also by the thought that the young man would some day be a king. But the thought quickly gave place to the reflection that "his blood was no redder than ours. Kings are only born. In this country we make our own honors."

Referring to his own struggle, he remarked: "I had to sell myself from the rear end of a truck."
Supervising Principal George B.
Gerard, who accompanied the boys, thanked the Lions for the cooperation and interest manifested in the contest.

The meeting was in charge of A.
Edward Locher, second vice president. The president, Thomas McCabe was ill.

The program was in charge of Raymond Smith.

Inclement Weather Is No Barrier To Bridge Players At Club Affair

Fifteen Tables Were In Play At Games At Woman's Club

Inclement weather does not discourage bridge players if the card party held at the Belleville Woman's Club last Monday afternoon can be used as a criterion. There were fifteen tables in play with Mrs. A. S.
Blank acting as card party chairman and the hostess committee including Mrs. William Engleman, Mrs. William F. Entekin, Jr., Mrs. Joseph Miller, Mrs. Earl Woodnorth, Mrs.
G. D. Haslam and Mrs. S. A. Allen.
The players making high score for the afternoon were Mrs. W. J. King, who played bridge; Mrs. J. Penner, whist, and Mrs. A. Dey, pinochle.
This was one of the most delightful card parties held this year. There will be two more afternoon parties this year, the first one being June 2, and the last, June 16, and it is hoped that the good attendance will continue.

Mrs. R. C. Whitfield, president of the club, is in charge of arrangements for the visit to the Essex County Vocational School for Girls which is scheduled for May 23. Luncheon reservations must be made before that date.

Mrs. W. P. Adams, who has been made general chairman of the Annual Fall Bazaar, is now busy selecting her chairmen for the various booths and committees and the earnest cooperation of all the members is urged.

Mrs. Whitfield and Mrs. O. T. Breunich were guests of the Friday Afternoon Club of Nutley last week at their Annual Presidents' Day reception.

Mrs. W. P. Adams, who has been made general chairman of the Annual Fall Bazaar, is now busy selecting
her chairmen for the various booths

operation of all the members is urged.

Population Doubles Over That Of 1920

Preliminary Reports Show Nutley Has 20,442 Inhabitants

The population of Nutley numbers 20,442 in the preliminary reports of census enumerators, it has been announced by E. Mortimer Harrison, director of the census in the Fourth District. At the time of the census ten years ago Nutley had 9,421 people.

Mr. Harrison reiterated his desire that any persons living in towns where the census has been completely taken who have not been visited by an enumerator to get in touch with him at his office in the Montclair
Post-office building.

Boy Hurt By Auto

Joseph Prestiano, 12, of 47 Eu-

Hospital with possible fractures of the ribs and internal injuries as the result of being struck by an auto driven by Samuel Carsagno, 19, of 56 Honiss street. The accident happened on Heckel street, when the boy according to police report, rollerskated backwards into the path of the car.

P. S. Dividend

The board of Directors of Public Service Corporation of New Jersey at its meeting in Newark last Tuesday declared the regular quarterly dividend of 85 cents a share on the outstanding no par value common stock, payable June 30 to stockholders of record May 31, 1930. The regular quarterly dividend of $2 per share was also declared on the eight per cent preferred stock, $1.75 on the seven per cent preferred stock and $1.25 on the no par value $5 preferred stock. The regular monthly dividend of 50 cents a share was also declared on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock. All dividends are payable as of the same dates.

Marble Championship Won By No. 5 School

The public and parochial school Marble Tournament was brought to a close at the Recreation House grounds last Saturday morning. Vitale Aiello of No. 5 School won the championship. Joseph Shannahan, of St. Peter's Parochial School, and Angelo Cataldo, of No. 2 School were second and third respectively.

Almost 300 boys participated in the tournament as follows: No. 1 third, Angelo Cataldo, No. 2 School.

The Recreation Playground open-end the first of this week under supervision. The other playgrounds will be in readiness about July 1.
The Board of Education has very kindly consented to the use of the
No. 5 School grounds as a playground as well as No. 1 School. New equipment has been purchased for No. 5 School grounds. This will necessitate an enlarged staff of playground instructors to meet the needs of increased facilities for supervised play.

Are Playgrounds Worthwhile?

More than three million people a day took part in activities at public outdoor playgrounds last year, according to the year book of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, just issued. This figure was estimated on the basis of attendance reports received from 565 cities. Not included were the patrons of thousands of recreation areas other than playgrounds, such as municipal golf courses, athletic fields, and recreation centers.

A total of 945 towns and cities in the United States and Canada reported leadership for their people's play. The expenditure of $33,539-$85 in 890 cities was the largest yearly sum ever spent for public recreation. It exceeded the 1928 report by more than two million dollars. Thirty-seven cities voted $4-$501,127 in bonds for recreation purposes during the year.

The number of employed recreation leaders mounted to 22,920 or 2,158 more than the previous year.
For the first time the salaries and wages paid such leaders were recorded and the amount reported by 657 cities was $7,059,865. Volunteer leaders, who numbered 7,411 showed also a marked increase. During the year, 14,046 persons were enrolled in training courses for recreation leadership.

A growing trend to provide recreations for adults as well as for children in the municipal program was revealed. The spare time activities 1928 figures. Nine league sports commanded during the year 1,230-003 players and 38,364,745 spectators. Tennis enlisted the most players, reported at 331, 208 by 325 cities; baseball was second with 247-645 players in 414 cities; playground baseball was third with 200,790 players in 325 cities.

The opening of 1,137 new public play areas was an achievement never before equalled, the year book points out. These new recreation sites included ninety athletic fields, twenty municipal golf courses, ten bathing beaches and 648 outdoor playgrounds. They brought the 1929 total of directed play areas to 13,397 which was 4,346 more than the total reported five years before.

"Demonstrated values in health, child safety and crime prevention, and as a factor in attracting industries and residents, account for the rapidly increasing municipal provision of land and leadership for play," states the P. R. A. A. "Eighty-four per cent of the expenditures last year were met from municipal and county funds, twelve per cent from fees and charges and only four per cent from private sources."
