REPUBLICAN CLUB GATHERING AT SEIDLER BEACH

BLUE AND GOLD TO OPEN SEASON AGAINST CENTRAL HIGH TOMORROW

After Three Weeks Of Drilling 1930 Model Football Machine Seems To Be Ready To Answer Whistle

Tomorrow afternoon at Clearman Field Coach Carl A. Erikson's 1930 model Belleville High football machine will be seen in action for the first time, with Central High of Newark furnishing the opposition.

Central did not have a strong grid team last season for the first time in years, but this year is a different story according to all reports from the Newarkers' camp. They are expected to show plenty of fight before the Bell-boys annex their first victory of the campaign.

The locals, after three weeks of drilling, seem to have rounded in to shape for their season opener in fine style. Little hope was held for the backfield this year, with "green" material composing it. Three positions on it are "sure things." "Tony" Biase, new Blue and Gold scoring threat, at fullback and "Fritz" Plenge and Nick Bonavita at halves seem sure of their jobs. The quarter-back situation, however, is a different matter. "Fuzzy" Ryder has shown up best to date and will start the Central Games. Both Santamassimo and Joe Roberti, though, are sure to see service before the final whistle blows. The former youth is extremely fast and possesses "football brains." Roberti is an adept forward passer. Bill Griffin and Billie Daly are two other men who have shown up well in the second team backfield. The former is a line-plunger, as is the latter, a big man who is quite fast for his poundage. Bill Brumbach may also get a chance to show his wares in the back-field.

Coach Erikson need have no cause for gray hairs with his line, an all-veteran affair. Casale and Bonavita are fixtures at the wing posts. Captain Louis Galluba and Homer Estelle form a pair of the nicest tackles hereabouts, while Bade and Mc Master look and act like champion ship guards. "Butter" Brand is due to enjoy his best season this year at the pivot position, where he has been a mainstay for the past two years.

The reserves for these men are also of the best, comprising such fine football material as Morris Usdansky, Eddie O'Neil, "Chuck" Plenge, Stanley Goodrich, Harvey Brumbach and "Tony" Vuono. All these players were on the squad last year and should see service tomorrow.

Coach Erikson, in commenting on the Central game, says that his team has yet to be trained in various plays and other phases of team work, but that it has been a pleasure to work with them, due to their co-operative spirit. He feels confident that his boys will put up a good showing against the Newark school in their first test tomorrow.

Board Holds Up Grant Of Land To Park Board

This Time Hilltop Group Asks As Regards Public Dock

The Town Commission, by request of the Hilltop Improvement Association, Tuesday night delayed for another week the granting of two small strips of land along the Passaic River. About one hundred and ten persons, including Two Democratic officials, Saturday attended the shore dinner and outing of the Republican Club at Seidler's Beach. The Democrats were Recorder George A. Fitzsimmons and Town Clerk John J. Daly, who accepted the invitations the club made to Democrats as well as Republicans.

Assemblyman Homer C. Zink, Freeholder Joseph King, Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy and Commissioner William H. Williams were present. A baseball game, won by the married men, 12 to 11, and other athletic events provided entertainments. George E. Stewart Jr. was chairman of the arrangements committee. William Outcalt was treasurer and Lawrence E. Keenan, secretary. Frank Fuselle headed the athletics committee and Walter P. Weiss the publicity committee.

Plans were made with Freeholder King for a visit to Overbrook Hospital next month and for a golf tournament October 11 at Forest Hill Golf Club.

The effect on recreation of the shorter work-day; the automobile, radio and "talkies;" the increase in the average family income; the freedom of women to share in business and other trends in modern life will be discussed. The delegates will consider the standards of recreation for today's American family, and how city recreation departments may foster more play at home. Dr. E. A. Flynn Is Vice President And Dr. Martin Meehan Attending Physician. E. A. Rung And John Breen, Lay Officials

St. Vincent's Nursery and Babies Hospital, 45 Elm street, Montclair, is on the way to becoming a general hospital. Heretofore it has been devoted to obstetrics and to the medical and surgical care of women and children, but provision has been made whereby patients of both sexes can be accepted and already several male adults have availed themselves of its facilities.

Announcement of the expansion was made Wednesday night by Dr. Edward S. Pope, newly elected president, at the first fall meeting of the medical board, held in connection with a dinner at the Montclair Golf Club. Dr. Pope also reported: "The hospital has had a more prosperous period during the last three months, in number of patients and in income, than in any corresponding period of its history."

"A lay board of trustees is being formed, with T. Albeus Adams of Prospect terrace as chairman. The members, representing Belleville, Bloomfield, Glen Ridge, Montclair, Upper Montclair, Verona and Caldwell, will act in an advisory capacity and aid the sister superintendent in financing the institution and in solving hospital problems."

Publicity Campaign Planned
"In the fall a publicity campaign will be undertaken and steps taken to call attention of the public to the facilities offered the sick at St. Vincent's."

"The Ladies' Auxiliary, under the presidency of Mrs. Mary J. Arthur of Upper Montclair, is planning a constructive fall campaign of unusual activity. In other words, an attempt will be made to organize and correlate all the various activities and interests in the community in a constructive manner."

"In addition to those already in existence clinics in gynecology, surgery and internal medicine will shortly be initiated."

Dr. Pope, a resident of Montclair, succeeds Dr. Martin J. Synnott as president and Dr. Synnott becomes executive officer and director of medical service. The election, which followed the dinner, resulted also in the choice of the following by unanimous vote:

Vice president, Dr. E. A. Flynn of Belleville; secretary-treasurer, Dr. J. P. Kienk of Bloomfield; director of surgical service, Dr. Royale H. Fowler of Montclair; roentgenologist, Dr. Joseph H. Wyatt of Newark; director of obstetrics and gynecology, Dr. Flynn; director of specialties, Dr. Pope; anesthetist, Dr. Richard P. Tomee of Montclair; Dr. Martin Meehan, Belleville, attending physician and Edmund Rung, vice president First National Bank of Belleville and John Breen, Lay Board of Trustees.

Runaways Land Back Home After Trip To South

And If They Had Gotten That Ten Spot—But That's Another Story

The Sunny South is not "so hot," in the opinion of three Belleville youths who returned Sunday night after a week's runaway auto trip. With $30 among them they reached Cape Charles, Va., picked a few pods of ripened cotton and decided home was the best place after all.

They were Joseph Restivo, eighteen, of 24 Raymond street; Samuel Weiner, seventeen, of 3 Davidson street, and Thomas Card, sixteen, of 61 Little street. The first man borrowed the car of his uncle, Frank Desantis, last Monday and the other two drew their savings from the bank, police said.

Police Sergeant Leighton and Patrolman Scott accosted the weary crew as they drove hesitatingly through the streets before announcing their prodigal return. The uncle did not want to press a charge and Recorder Fitzsimmons let them off with a reprimand.

If Samuel had collected $10 due him from a past employer in time the odds are 10 to 1 the boys would be heading westward, 'tis reported.

Pass Stop Streets And You'll End Up In Headquarters

Eighty Motorists Find They Pay After Raid Saturday

A two-hour drive by police to end stop street violations at Belleville and Hornblower avenues resulted in issuance of eighty summonses. Forty-two motorists paid $2 fines each at police headquarters and the remainder were ordered to appear Wednesday night.

Police Chief Michael Flynn stated similar concentration would be made at that and other intersections at frequent intervals. The patrolmen detailed were Christiano, Bride and Rowe.

Burned

A fire which started about the motor of his automobile when he was working on it at his home Monday afternoon, caused severe burns to both hands and arms of J. E. Becker of 34 Sanford avenue. Firemen responded to a telephone call and gave first aid until a doctor arrived.

More than two hours were spent by firemen earlier extinguishing a rubbish fire in a vacant lot near the Belwood Park station of the Erie Railroad.

"PIPE DOWN"

The best time to stop talking is just before you have told all you know.

A fool's mouth is his destruction. Wise men talk because they have something to say—fools because they wish to say something. Think all you speak—but speak not all you think.

To talk without thinking is to shoot without aiming.

There are a thousand good talkers to one good thinker. The less a man thinks, the more he talks. They always talk who never think. When a wise man and a fool are thrown together, the fool does all the talking. Birds keep still and let the frogs sing.

To listen is to compliment! So when you've nothing to say—"Pipe Down!"

GERMAN PEOPLE

What a splendid race of people are the Germans. They seem to possess every likeable trait in a human being. The great men they have produced seem to be conspicuous in every field of endeavor. Any great genius has some trace of German in his ancestry. They are home loving, decent, generous and thinking people as a whole.

I have never met a German who has not had a "trade" of some sort. That is at least an accomplishment—and what they perform, they usually do it well.

AUTOMOBILE HORNS

Automobile horns were placed on autos as a signal warning especially for pedestrians. To toot your horn at some people seems to be insulting them by the expressions on their face.

If you should accidentally hit them—the first thing they say is: "He didn't toot his horn."

Toot your horn whether they like it or not. Some people walk about the streets like half-witted nanny goats.

OLD PEOPLE

Anything old or worn out, isn't of much account anymore. This same attitude seems to apply to elderly persons, according to the view point of some of the young "squirts" of today.

Such expressions we hear today as "the old lady" or the "old man" meaning their father and mother are disgusting to say the least. Some parents are blamed for this modern stuff—but we disagree. Every parent who has reared a boy or girl to a thinking age has done his or her bit very fine.

The young person who cannot find the time to respect their parents or, in fact any elderly person, can be made into the sweetest creature by a good crack over the mouth. School teachers especially, should be given every opportunity to correct some of these thirty to forty children—some of whom want to be the everlasting bad apples in the barrel.

Voltaire once said: It takes twenty years to bring man from the state of embryo—and from that of a mere animal, as he is in his first infancy to the point when his reason begins to dawn. It has taken thirty centuries to know his structure: It would take eternity to know something of his soul.

It takes but an instant to kill him. —Newspaper Arts Service.

REVIVES BOY

When Mike Luciano, 15, of West Oak Hill, Jamestown, N. Y., was taken from Cassadaga creek near the Falconer Pumping Station by other boys who were swimming with him, he was thought to be dead. Bernard Hodge, 221 Pearl street, Falconer, a member of Troop No. 28, Boy Scouts of America, and Edwin Larson, 315 West avenue, Falconer, affiliated with the same Troop, rendered artificial respiration until the arrival of the Jamestown Fire Department inhalator which finally brought the boy to consciousness. The firemen reported that undoubtedly the work of the Scouts and other volunteers had kept the boy alive until the arrival of the inhalator crew.

FIRST AID

Members of the Boy Scout Troop of Little Falls, N. Y., had an unexpected opportunity to put one phase of their first aid training in practice, and did so in excellent manner. The boys were holding a meeting in Moreland Park and, shortly before it was over, were attracted to the pavilion by the cries of a small boy who had fallen and broken his left arm, between the wrist and elbow. The youngster was John Le Grande of Porteus street. Two of his older brothers are in the Y. M. C. A. Troop, and he had followed them to the park. The Scouts applied first aid methods and then took the boy to the office of a doctor where the fracture was set, after which the lad was taken home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Young, formerly of this town, have returned and are at the Kingsley House.

The Nature Study Council of Troop 472, Manhattan, N. Y., Kips Boys' Club, 340 East Fifty-fourth street, has taken over the policing of the Palisades Interstate Park from Edgewater-Alpine, a distance of twelve miles, at the invitation of Major D. W. Boy Scout Troop No. 88 went on a hike Saturday afternoon at 2:30 when several members took tests. Eight boys were present at the first meeting of the troop held recently at the Christ Episcopal Church with Scoutmaster Ira Shattuck.

Troop 89 met Tuesday evening at Belleville Reformed Church with Scoutmaster Frank Holmes. Harry Brumback, district commissioner, was present with a guest, Mr. Leach, scoutmaster of Troop 4, which meets at Wesley Church.

511,195 Merit Badges in scientific, vocational and general subjects, the greatest number issued in one year since the founding of the Boy Scouts of America, were awarded to Boy Scouts during 1929, according to a report recently made public by Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive.

To win a Merit Badge in any given subject a Scout must prove his efficiency by passing an examination arranged by the Committee on Badges, Awards and Scout Requirements, of the Boy Scouts of America. He must also have a working knowledge of each of the subjects studied. The purpose of the Merit Badge program is to give every Boy Scout an opportunity to obtain a working knowledge of the different trades, vocations and professions, so that he may have an opportunity to choose as his life work that which particularly appeals to him. Other subjects for which Merit Badges are given provide an opportunity for a boy to develop himself physically and mentally.

Ninety Subjects

There were ninety subjects in which a Boy Scout might earn a Merit Badge during 1929. Effective January 1, 1931, two more Merit Badges, in Wood Turning and Zoology will be available. In addition to the vocational aspects of the Merit Badge program it is so designed that it gives a Scout general education in many subjects which would not be touched in his regular schooling.

It is interesting to note that this year again the Craftsman Merit Badges which boys obtain for working in Basketry, Bookbinding, Cement Work, Leathercraft, Metal Work, Pottery, Wood Work and Woodcarving, appealed most to the boys, collectively. In these subjects 72,593 badges were issued, an increase of 6,674 in the same group over the previous year.

The study of firemanship appealed to many Scouts and 41,200 badges were awarded in that subject. Next in line were the Personal Health and Handicraft Merit Badges, 31,276 and 26,037 respectively being awarded to Scouts.

Water Activities

The progress made in water activities is recorded by the fact that 20,886 badges were awarded for exceptional proficiency in Swimming and an additional 11,983 badges for Life Saving.

The Life Saving Merit Badge is given only to those Scouts who prove that they are adequately prepared to save the lives of drowning persons.

The arts, too, attracted the attention of many Scouts. 2,550 Merit Badges were awarded in Art, 6,243 in Music, 4,193 in Painting and 14,859 in Woodcarving. Marked increases in the number of Merit Badges won by Boy Scouts of the farm areas of the nation is noted. Among the merit badges of great interest to farm boys are Agriculture, Animal Industry, Bookkeeping, Beef Production, Corn Farming, Dairying, Farm Home, Farm Layout, Farm Mechanics and Farm Records. Others are Fruit Culture, Gardening, Hog and Pork Production, Nut Culture, Poultry Keeping, Sheep Farming and Soil Management.

SCHOOLS

School banking has been started and is under the direction of Paul F. Brennan, newcomer and teacher of Belleville High School. Mr. Brennan is also assistant football coach and together with coach Erickson is whipping the team into shape.

All applicants for cheer-leader were hauled into the assembly Tuesday and with the assistance of a willing body of students showed their rah-rah ability. Those aspirants who shouted and gurgled are Joseph Evangelista, Angelina Piccolo, George Biller, John Schmaltz, Annabelle Collins, Catherine Barnes, Isoletta Totitt, George Sturges, Dorothy Hall, Pearl Katzen, Alene Schenck, Barbara Tate who got a big hand from the students, Ruth Donnelly, Marion Davis, Jean Reynolds, a newcomer from a nearby state who showed fine spirit in participating, Elizabeth Donnelly, Ruth Caul, Robert Michaelson, Ena Holden, Irene Lynch, George Price and others. One young lady who wiggles in a class all by herself is Lillian Price. As a cheer-leader Miss Price gave the best illustration of a Hawaiian dance ever seen in Belleville, it was so funny and so unexpected that most everyone present laughed so hard they cried.

It is the readers of this column are interested enough to find out for themselves who won, as judged by Miss Tempest, Miss Lockward and Mr. Galphin, they will attend the home game tomorrow and give a little support.

Mr. Steel, principal, says that Friday morning will be given to the practice of cheers and team yells. Each Friday hereafter will be added entertainment morning in which Mr. Steel expressed his hope that the students would participate as much as possible.

George Biller, Joseph Evangelista, Richard Peterson and George Haslam are back in school taking post-graduate courses.

Many students bring their cars to school, so many, that restrictions have been made as to where they shall be kept. Joseph Evangelista has the most tired looking car on four wheels that ever staggered up Holmes street. As it stalls along one naturally thinks of the Amos 'n Andy taxi. On the contrary Louis Galubha has a new Ford roadster that keeps the high school femmes hopping.

To Lovers Of Chow Mein

North Star Chapter, O. E. S., will hold an ever popular Chow Mein banquet followed by a card party with all games played at 711 Broadway, Newark, in the banquet hall on September 30. The banquet will be from 6 to 8 followed immediately by the cards with all games played. Seventy-five cents will be the admission for both.

The affair is under Group 1 with Ella Guerin as captain. She will be assisted by Ellen Down, Anna Carpenter, Marie Thomas, Emily Gerold, Dorothy Lott, Elizabeth Brine, Edna Clause, Laura Svenson, Jeanette Neerhoff and Gertrude Brauer. Mrs. Caroline L. Fisher of Oak street who is Worthy Matron, will also assist Mrs. Guerin.

CAMP PRESENTED

G. A. Weaver of Thomaston, Ga., announced the donation of three hundred acres on Pine Mountain, twenty miles from Griffin and ten miles from Thomaston to the Flint River Council Boy Scouts. The site extends from the top of Pine Mountain to the valley below. A cold spring on top of the mountain and a clear stream at the base make it an ideal camp site.

It will be improved with permanent buildings and a large lake will be built at the foot of the mountain. It is planned to make the camp not only a recreation place for the boys but a game and bird preserve. J. M. Molder is Scout Executive for the Flint River Council. There are eighteen troops in the area, representing half a dozen towns. New troops will shortly be formed in three other towns in the area.

RESCUE BOAT CREW

When the tug Iroquois of New York City was destroyed by fire near Camp Barton, the Boy Scout Camp at Frontenac, New York, recently with a loss estimated at $25,000, the crew of seven men, led by Captain Miller, were taken from the sinking craft by Boy Scouts just before the fire broke out.

The boat was on its way up the lake to the plant of the Cayuga Rock Salt Company at Myers, to pick up a string of barges. It began to leak badly near Frontenac point and the captain attempted to beach it there, but ran aground on the piles of an old dock at the campsite. The Scouts heard the boat run on the piles at 10:15 P. M., and led by Quartermaster Irving Beach a party took the crew from the 90-foot steamer.

Fire broke out in the cabin immediately after the collision with the piles caused by the explosion when the galley stove slid forward to come in contact with a tank of gasoline. The craft was afire all night and the following morning was still sending up huge clouds of smoke. The members of the crew were quartered at the Scout camp and the following morning were taken across the lake to the barges anchored off the salt plant.

Nature grows the wheat but WHO makes the FLOUR?

- Between the wheat fields and the food you serve on your table are the millers.
- The millers make flour.
- Some make cheap flour for the cheap market. Some make "pretty good" flour.
- Others make the very best flour that human honor and brains can make.
- Heckers' Flour is in the "very best" class.

- Good cooks avoid cheap flour and "pretty good" flour. For two reasons . . . 1—Cheap flour and even "pretty good" flour vary too much and thus ruin other expensive materials. 2—The good cook's hard earned reputation can't afford to take chances.
- Heckers' Flour is dry, satiny in texture, rich in body and flavor . . . and has that working "feel" expert cooks appreciate.

Soho School Row Again Stirs Board

Parents Are Advised To Wait For New Grades At No. 2

A delegation of ten citizens from the Soho section of Belleville Monday night pressed demands for seventh and eighth grade classes in School No. 2, Mill street, at a meeting of the Belleville Board of Education.

The board refused to take action on the grounds that the expense of constructing classrooms, estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000, would be unjustified.

J. Gordon Gant, secretary of the Soho Civic Improvement Association, reiterated arguments used two weeks ago when he criticized the board for forcing some forty pupils of the Soho neighborhood to walk a mile to attend the two upper classes at School No. 4 in Magnolia street, Silver Lake.

Bus service was denied Monday night because the distance was under the minimum of one-and-a-half miles.

Harp C. Fredericks of 59 Brighton avenue scored the board for "not spending enough money" on the old Mill street schoolhouse.

Watson Current, former president angered by other criticisms of the Belleville system, defended it in a heated controversy.

"The five members of this board are interested in the welfare of 6,000 children, and don't care what section of town they come from," he declared. "The Soho children are just as important as the rest, but no more so."

Board Funds Limited
"The board's funds are limited and improvements must be made in proportion to the number of pupils who attend each school. No 2 will follow the same trend in time."

John Lanza of 60 Brighton avenue declared many residents of Soho move out of town after their children complete the sixth grade because the school does not offer higher classes.

Until the Board completes purchase of property adjacent to School No. 2 and studies a forthcoming state survey of its entire school system, no steps can be taken on the demand for seventh and eighth grade classes in School 2.

The residents, including Mr. Gant, Mr. Lanza and Mr. Fredericks as spokesman, were asked by John P. Maher, board president, to "give the board a chance."

"I wish to close this discussion," he said, "and stop all beating about the bush. We have made a change in principalship at No. 2; we have cleaned the building up. You know what conditions were. Why not give us a chance? We may surprise you."

"You would not ask us to build an addition costing $30,000," Watson Current said. "When the main building is so old. You might better wait until the school reaches the stage where we might tear it down and build anew. Regarding the purchase of adjacent property, it would be poor policy for us to announce the intended use of it until we take title, which we expect to do in a few days."

The residents compared Soho conditions to those of Belwood Park where a new school was built last year, saying they were entitled to "as much consideration."

The district line dividing the Soho and Belwood Park sections was changed from the old Morris Canal to include the end of Brighton avenue west of Harrison street, that two seventh-grade pupils might continue attendance at School 10 instead of changing to School 4.

The recommendation of William W. Stewart, chairman of the health committee, was approved to distribute free milk to pupils under the fifth grade from September 29 to October 21, thereby using $800 of a $954 surplus in the milk fund.

A resolution of the health committee was passed expressing thanks to the Police Department for cooperation in the training of the Junior safety patrols under the direction of Patrolman Robert Anderson. Recommendation of George R. Gerard, supervising principal, was passed to give the patrol members passes to home football games.

Miss Laura M. Boetticher of Hazleton, Pa., was appointed a teacher at School 4 to succeed Miss Mary Pease.

COLE STUDIO ANNOUNCEMENT

Bob Cole, of Cole Dancing Studios, 56 Overlook avenue, wishes to announce that he is giving a free lesson to every child who cares to attend Wednesday, October 1, from 5 to 6 P. M.

Mr. Cole will present pupils from his class at the Franklin Theatre, Nutley, within a week or two.

High School Stars Make Good At College

Two Pauls, Schwieker And Short Are Doing Well

From companions of Paul Short we learned that last year's star football captain and quarter-back of Belleville High has gained a berth on the Frosh team at Lehigh University, where he matriculated two weeks ago.

Paul Schwieker, the throwing end of that startling forward passing combination of Schwieker to Short, has entered Dean Academy, Franklin, Mass., and is making good on the first team of that institution, where each man of the team attends on a scholarship. This makes the team the pick of the countryside.

Cadet Watters Mixes Pleasure And Duty

Is Good Football Player As Well As Excellent Student

John Edward Watters, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Watters of 202 Union avenue, combines duty with pleasure by being not only a good football player, but a remarkable student as well.

John, who is nineteen years old, and in his yearling year at West Point, is making good at right guard on the second team of the Army, having played all last season at that position on the plebe team.

He will probably play in several of the big games this fall, as he is second choice for the guard position. Last fall, Watters went with the Army team to Leland Stanford University at Palo Alto, California, as a regular member of the plebe team, who were guests of the varsity squad. This trip was the longest that an Army football team has ever been called upon to make.

In his studies last year he distinguished himself by standing twice during the year in eighth position in mathematics out of a class of 377 members. He finished at the end of the term in twenty-second place. In other subjects, while not having such a remarkable showing, his work was creditable. In French he placed sixty-third; in English, eighty-third, and in conduct, sixty-sixth. The second year is considered the "stiffest" of the whole course and with last year's marks as a basis, Watters is expected to come through with flying colors.

Rosh Hashanna

The 5691st anniversary of the world, according to Jewish tradition, was formally observed in synagogues and homes beginning at sundown Monday, when the festival of Rosh Hashanna, or New Year, was ushered in with appropriate ceremonies. Shops were closed and all the faithful observed the holiday, Reform Jews for twenty-four hours and Orthodox and Conservative Jews for forty-eight.

Preparations were made for overflow throngs of worshippers in many synagogues through extension services in other rooms and buildings.

In New York Christians formally joined Jews Monday night in commemoration of the holiday at a meeting in the Grace Protestant Episcopal Church, under auspices of the Fellowship of Faith. Representatives of Christianity, Judaism, Mohammedanism, Buddhism and the Sixth Faith spoke.

Scaine-Walker

Richard H. Scaine, of Greylock parkway, son of Richard and the late Mary E. Scaine, was married Wednesday, September 17, at 9:30 A. M. at nuptial mass in St. Patrick's Church, Jersey City, to Miss Lillian E. Walker, daughter of Mrs. John Walker of 39 Clinton avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Hughes. Palms and white gladioli decorated the sanctuary and streamers of white satin ribbon festooned with lilies of the valley formed an aisle for the bridal party.

R. C. Walker, of Westfield, an uncle of the bride, gave her in marriage. The bride wore a Bendel model gown of white bridal satin, princess fashion with long cape and her tulle veil four yards long with cap effect of real lace, was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book showered with valley lilies. The bridesmaid, Miss Grace Walker, sister of the bride, wore a flesh toned dress of taffeta made princess fashion with velvet hat and satin slippers to correspond. She carried a bouquet of Killarney rose buds and blue larkspurs.

Joseph Dacey of Belleville, a boyhood friend of the bridegroom, was best man.

A wedding breakfast for one hundred guests was held at the Elks' Club, Jersey City.

Sunday 11 A. M.—"The Potter."

7:45 P. M.—Miss Daisy Bates.

Amidst all the changes that have come to industry and the different crafts one branch, that of the potter, has resisted all the advances of science and modern inventions, and remains as he has been for centuries past. Perhaps the reason is that the work of the potter requires the personal touch, to make his work complete; and as we know no machine has yet been invented that can take the place of the warm pulsation of our personality. However, we will not stress the argument here; but if you desire to enter into the thought of the discussion, come to Grace Church, Sunday morning, and hear Mr. McCombe discuss the subject of the potter and his work.

The evening service will be of unusual interest. The service was planned for a week night; but the pastor induced those in charge to transfer it to Sunday evening, in order that those who could not attend the service on a week night might have the privilege of enjoying it. The women have secured an accomplished speaker, one that is in great demand all over the state for such services. Miss Daisy Bates is one of those speakers that you never tire of hearing and she will bring a message that will be worth while, next Sunday evening. You will be sorry if you miss this service. The service will start promptly at 7:45 P. M. No seats are reserved for all are welcome.

Huckleberry Finn, says: "Conscience is the most troublesome thing in your stomach, and it ain't no good anyway." Lots of people will agree with Huckleberry. The supreme problem is the problem of the conflict between what the soul says God ought to be and what in nature seems to be. The things which are supremely real are also things that cannot be expressed in words. All our words relate somehow to time and space and causality, and the things which are supremely real cannot be said in that way.

Fellowship Night, Tuesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, at Grace Church. At this service we discuss the serious things of life. We have no fads. We are agreed that there is some good in all religions, in all creeds. Life is too short to be spent with the wild imaginations of the faddist's brain. The faddist is concerned with his own little world. He sees nothing beyond. He cares nothing about the world happier or better, pretends to hold the key to Eternal happiness forgetting that the great law of the universe is, service for others. Life without service is but hollow brass or the tinkling symbol. The key that unlocks the heart of humanity is service.

Have you noticed the new department in the columns of the News? It is called the "Poet's Corner." It is worth reading. Many a beautiful thought is expressed in the work of the poet. Many a helpful word given in the heart language of poetry. We congratulate the editor on the introduction of this department, "The Poet's Corner" and feel that it will be a valuable contribution to the columns of the News.

Thursday afternoon the Mission department of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Grace Church met in their rooms at the church for an interesting discussion of the World's needs and opportunities. Plans were made for larger service to the world's unfortunate. An afternoon of profit and inspiration was enjoyed by the ladies.

Mr. Irving Russell, the energetic superintendent of the Bible School would like to have all the old scholars that are in town next Sunday present in the classes; as he desires to speak concerning his plans for the coming Rally Day, which is to take place soon and for which much planning is being done. New-comers to Belleville will find at Grace the right sort of Bible School for the training of their children.

Wonders will never cease. Here we have the ice dealers of the town asking the commissioners to pass an ordinance, forbidding them to sell or deliver ice, on the Sabbath Day. What is the matter? Are they making too much money and want more time to spend it? Or maybe they have gotten religion and want to attend the church services. But seriously why is it necessary for the commissioners to pass such an ordinance? If any dealer does not desire to sell or deliver ice on the Sabbath Day he does not have too. Law fails to hold its dignity and respect when it is used to advance the cause of class legislation.

Miss Irene Eller, of Linden avenue has returned from a vacation spent in Vermont. Miss Eller, when in Vermont, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Chaffee, who were former residents of Belleville and who now make their home in Saint Johnsbury, Vermont.

The writer of these notes is slowly recovering from the vacation inactivity and hopes soon to be able to give the readers some worth while thoughts.

Look out for the big event of the season. The Men's Club of Grace Church are planning big things for the evening of October 30. A banquet is to be served. A speaker high in social, civic and political life is to be present and entertain the diners. Better get your ticket now. The number of those privileged to attend the banquet and hear this distinguished gentleman is to be limited. All tickets will be sold in advance and no tickets will be sold on the evening of the banquet.

Most fairy stories begin "Once upon a time," but this is not a fairy story but a true one, and it begins, one day last week:

Miss Elizabeth Halstead of 301 Washington avenue found a very rare insect, known at "The Praying Mantis," on the inside of her window screen. This is an insect something like a Katydid or grasshopper, only very much larger, and of a brilliant green with a bright red stripe down its back. Probably no other insect has been the subject of so many and widespread legends and superstitions as the common "praying mantis." The writer was very much interested to learn that the ancient Greeks endowed it with supernatural powers, and called it a diviner. The Turks and Arabs hold that it prays constantly with its face turned towards Mecca; the Provencals call it Prie-Dieu, (prayer stool) and numerous more or less similar names, such as preacher, saint, nun, mendicant, soothsayer, and so forth, are widely diffused throughout South Europe. In Nubia it is held in great esteem, and the Hottentots, if not indeed worshipping the local species, as one traveller has alleged, at least regard its alighting upon any person, both as a token of saintliness and an omen of good luck. Yet these are "not the saints" but the tigers of the insect world.

The front pair of limbs are very peculiarly modified—the coxa being greatly elongated, while the strong third point has on its curved underside a channel armed on each edge by strong movable spines. Into this groove the stout tibia is capable of closing like the blade of a penknife, its sharp, serrated edge being adapted to cut and hold. Thus armed, with head raised upon the much elongated and semi-erect prothorax, and with the half-opened fore-limbs held outwards in the characteristic devotional attitude, it rests motionless upon the four posterior limbs waiting for prey, or occasionally stalks it with slow and silent movements, finally seizing it with its knife-blades and devouring it. Authorities say that although apparently not daring to attack ants, these insects destroy great numbers of flies, grasshoppers, and caterpillars, and the larger South American species even attack small frogs, lizards and birds. They are very pugnacious, fencing with their sword-like limbs, "like hussars with sabres," the larger often devouring the smaller and the females the males. The Chinese and the Japanese keep them in bamboo cages and match them like fighting cocks for wagers. The common species fixes its nut-like egg capsules on the stems of plants in September. The young are hatched in early summer, and resemble the adults, but are without wings. The green coloration and shape of the typical mantis are prophetic, serving to conceal the insect alike from its enemies and prey. The passage from leaf to flower simulation is but a step which, without interfering with the protective value of the coloration so far as insect foes are concerned, also attracts flower-feeding insects within reach of its raptorial limbs. This method of alluring its prey, has been perfected in certain tropical species, by the development of expansions so colored on the under side as to resemble certain blossoms, to which the likeness is enhanced by a gentle swaying kept up by the insect to imitate the effect of a lightly blowing breeze. Examples of another species when standing upon the ground, color-deceptively imitate in shape and color a greenish white anemone, tinted at the edges with rose; and Bates records what appears to be a true case of aggressive mimicry practised by a Brazilian species which exactly resembles the white ants it preys upon. The name "praying insects" has been derived from the attitude which they assume when at rest or when waiting to grasp another insect; the knees are bent and the front legs are held as though supporting a prayer book. The commonest North American species is the rear-horn or mule killer, but the European has been introduced into the United States by accident and has become acclimated. The young, when hatched, begin immediately to feed upon plant lice or other small soft bodied insects, the size of the insects attacked increasing with the growth of the mantis.

They have always been recognized as beneficial insects, but they are indiscriminate in their diet and will feed upon other beneficial insects as well as upon injurious forms. In Southern France the peasants believe that the praying mantis point out a lost way. They are remarkable for their grotesque form, and for holding their stout anterior legs in a manner suggesting hands folded in prayer. The head is oblique and generally three-cornered. They are perfectly harmless. The one which entered Miss Halstead's room measures four inches in length, and in life, with its wings wide spread looked quite formidable. A friend of Miss Halstead's saw one of the insects about three years ago, when it was caught in a hotel at Ocean Grove. In view of the characteristics of Ocean Grove, we may well believe the praying mantis was a token of saintliness, and as for Miss Halstead, not wishing to be called a saint, we take her visitor as an omen of good luck! Anyone interested, or who is making a collection, may have the "Praying Mantis" by communicating with Miss Halstead.

The regular business meeting of the Roof Tree Branch of the International Sunshine Society will be held next Wednesday afternoon, October 1, at 2 o'clock, at the Recreation House, Joralemon street and Garden avenue. All members are asked to please try and come out as there is very important business to take up.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Reality" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 28, 1930.

The Golden Text is: "Then spake Jesus again unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life" (John 8:12).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and thy dominion endureth throughout all generations." (Psalms 145:13).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the divine Mind and His ideas." (p. 331).

Opening Concert At Schools Is Set For Sunday, October 26

Belleville Talent To Be Used As Far As Possible

The first public concert of a proposed series in Belleville schools Sunday afternoon under direction of George E. Stewart, Jr., is scheduled for October 26. The musical director made this announcement Monday night when he appeared before the Board of Education to arrange supervision of his plans.

A committee comprising William W. Stewart and Watson Current was appointed by John P. Maher, president, to work with Mr. Stewart. He stated his plans were to provide Belleville talent as a means of cultivating appreciation for good music.

"I think the citizens will be glad to cooperate in this effort," Mr. Maher said.

A tentative program has been arranged by the associate director, Arthur S. Ackerman, which will consist of a vocal quartet, string trio and vocal soloists.

P. S. Files New Tariffs With Utilities Comm.

Public Service Electric and Gas Company filed with the State Board of Utility Commissioners Tuesday, new tariffs, one of which provides a reduction in rates for gas house heating and the other new rates for users of gas in large quantities.

Both new rates are optional. The gas house heating tariff establishes a rate of 7.5 cents per 100 cubic feet provided that the customer guarantees a use of 200,000 cubic feet during the heating season of eight months. The present rate is 8.0 cents per 100 cubic feet with a guarantee of $160 instead of $150 a season.

The optional wholesale demand rate for large users filed, provides a demand charge ranging from .55 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 50,000 cubic feet to 15 cents for all over 600,000 cubic feet a month and a commodity charge of 6 cents per 100 cubic feet for the first 500,000 cubic feet of gas used; 5 cents per 100 cubic feet for the next 500,000 cubic feet; 4 cents for the next 1,000,000 cubic feet and 3 1/2 cents for all over 2,000,000 cubic feet used per month. It further provides that the monthly minimum charge shall be in no case less than $500 per month. The rates will be effective with bills rendered after October 1.

State Highways As They Relate To Broad St. District

The Broad Street Association, Newark, is greatly concerned at this time with how much, "or rather how little of the state highway funds have been used for the benefit of Essex County of which Broad street is an integral part."

The group points out that whether "you are an owner or lessee these figures vitally concern you as you pay the taxes."

The association in a letter to all members states:

"They say there are only two things we can be absolutely sure of in this life. Death and taxes. The former we can do little about and most of us do not seem to pay much attention to the latter."

"We believe you will be interested in the attached statement which shows how much or rather how little of the state highway funds have been used for the benefit of Essex County of which Broad street, Newark, is an integral part. Whether you are an owner or a lessee these figures vitally concern you as you pay the taxes."

"Three of our state highways planned by the Highway Commission are of special interest to our members."

"Highway No. 25 from the Holland Tunnel, Jersey City, to Camden (that is from New York to Philadelphia) was originally planned to pass around Newark on an elevated structure without any provision for travelers to come into the city."

Through the efforts of the Mayor of Newark and Chief Engineer of the Highway Commission was persuaded to include in its plans ramps from this elevated highway to Newark streets. The Boulevard Committee of the Broad Street Association urged a direct connection between Broad street and this highway and the Mayor saw to it that a proper exit and entrance at the southern end of Broad Street was included in the Highway Commission plan. This highway was never intended for the benefit of Newark but for a highway between two neighboring states.

"Highway No. 21. — This road is to begin at the Belleville Bridge running near the Passaic River, along the Pennsylvania Railroad and will connect with Highway No. 25 at or near the same point as the south Broad street connection."

"Highway No. 10 from Jersey City via Kearny and Newark through Essex County to Dover in Morris County. In March 1925 the Boulevard Committee of the Broad Street Association suggested a highway from the Holland Tunnel direct to the heart of Newark and thence westerly through the county. This suggestion was brought to the county officials and Senator Wolber had it included in the routes ordered by the 1927 legislature. If this highway should be constructed as suggested it would make an easy, convenient and attractive way for travelers both from the east and west to come to the business section of Newark. During the past three years the location of this highway has been widely discussed throughout the county and it was understood the Highway Commission's plan was to make this another by-pass of business Newark running it about three and one-half miles from the Four Corners thereby constructing a highway making it easy for those to whom Newark looks for much of her business to go direct to New York City.

One of the excuses given for building highways No. 25 and 10 around the city is that Broad street is already congested and that no further volume of traffic should be brought to the street. Up to this time no protest has been heard from the business houses of New York or Philadelphia against the building of either of these highways because the traffic coming over them will congest their street and the association does not believe the merchants in the city relish paying taxes for highways which will take business away from them.

"Now let us get down to brass tacks," the association continues. "Broad street is not congested. With the new traffic lights which are soon to be installed traffic will be so regulated that there will be room for many times the number of vehicles now using this great street. You cannot do business in a graveyard but it is no use to think about these things and do nothing. Through our Mayor, who has always shown his willingness to do everything in his power to help us maintain our reputation as New Jersey's main commercial thoroughfare, we must let the State Highway Commission know what we want and insist on getting it."

What we want is one State Highway which will bring the people direct to the business center of Newark. We want them here and not in New York.

New Jersey is justly proud of her state highways. The State Highway Commission has created a wonderful net work of roads throughout the state. The location of these roads has been determined by action of the legislature. During the past thirteen years Essex County has been neglected and Newark practically forgotten.

The association concludes: "We, on Broad street, are carrying a heavy load of taxation and need all the help we can get in our efforts to retain and expand business on our street. Newark furnishes about sixty percent of the tax budget of Essex County. Broad street carries about one-sixth of Newark's load."

Board Holds Up Grant Of Land To Park Board

er to the Essex County Park Commission for inclusion in the river bank beautification project.

The association desired, according to a representative, time to determine whether the town should retain the privilege of constructing a public dock. Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy reminded the representative the town owned sixty feet frontage at the foot of Academy street where a dock might be built. Commissioner Patrick A. Waters opposed "holding the matter up" any longer saying the Valley Improvement Association was heartily in accord with the parkway plans.

Commissioner Frank J. Carragher who previously asked postponement of action, felt the town should retain rights for a dock or swimming pool. He said the giving away of many parcels of its land was the reason Belleville's taxes were high. Waters said valuations in the Valley section had risen as a result of the park program and the town would gain in real estate.

Carragher, armed with records and a roll of engineering maps, again attacked the opinion of Corporation Counsel John B. Brown that the raising of the Erie Railroad tracks at street intersection was a matter of "small moment." Carragher insisted the railroad was at fault for raising the track and hence creating a hazardous condition for motorists. Brown did not reply, though last week he said he believed the town and railroad had agreed largely on the levels prior to 1895.

Reports of Waters and Inspector of Combustibles Frank Fulleon on conditions complained of last week by citizens as existing at the United Fruit Products Company in Cortlandt street were to the effect that "things appeared to be in order" at the plant.

Chanceman Leroy Hilton was appointed a third grade patrolman by Commissioner William D. Clark. Clark's resolution for the town's sharing installation costs with the county for an automatic traffic signal at Union avenue and Joralemon street was passed. The application of Angelo Piana of 44 Garden avenue for an indoor miniature golf course was referred to Clark.

THE FAMILY BUDGET

Everyone is, of course, aware that the general standard of living has been considerably raised since before the war. There is more general use of the automobile, the movies, telephones, electric lights, bath tubs and central heating plants and of the radio, which was then almost unknown.

The National Board, however, has undertaken to show just how the family budget has changed in the past 20 years. Taking 100 Detroit families, for which pre-war figures had been compiled, it found the average income from factory wages was a little over $1,700.

Under the pre-war budget this income would have been divided as follows: Food, 43.1 per cent; housing, 17.7; clothing, 13.2; fuel and light, 5.6, and all other things, 20.4. Today the budget would take 32.3 per cent for food; housing, 22.6; clothing, 12.2; fuel and light, 6, and all others, 26.9.

This shows that while clothing, fuel and light consume about the same proportion of income as they did 20 years ago, there has been an amazing reduction in the amount spent for food. For each dollar spent for food before the war this average family now spends only 75 cents. On the other hand, for every dollar spent then on housing the average family now spends $1.28.

Looked at in another way, the average family finds it necessary to spend a smaller proportion of its income for the bare necessities of food, clothing, light and fuel, while 11 cents more of every dollar earned are available for better homes and the comforts and luxuries of life.

CARAVAN TO AIRPLANE

Speed has become second nature to us, but in the near east it is even more dramatic. For in the Biblical lands locomotion for the most part has not advanced much since the days of the Old Testament.

A recent despatch to an English weekly states that the regular motor route over the Syrian desert is proving very popular. It connects two of the most famous cities of the world, Damascus and Bagdad. The busses run twice weekly and cover the distance in 24 hours. The native caravans take 24 days. And now the French have inaugurated a flying service for mails and passengers which cuts the time down to four and a half hours. That is an acceleration of speed on an amazing scale.

RESTRICTING AIR TRAFFIC

The New Jersey State Board of Commerce and Navigation has ruled that aircraft flying from the water "constitutes a menace to surface navigation and will not be permitted to land on any New Jersey inland waters."

This decision has naturally caused a good deal of concern to the manufacturers of aircraft. They have regarded flying on inland waters as one of the most promising fields for development of commercial and pleasure aviation, and if this decision stands and is followed by other States it might well prove a severe blow to aviation.

Of course, all reasonable means to protect other craft from erratic flying by inexperienced aviators are justifiable, but on the other hand care should be taken that restrictions on the newer means of locomotion should not stifle a new industry.

Those of us of middle-age can well remember the many restrictions and penalties that were put on the early use of the automobile. Thirty years ago and for years thereafter the roads were considered as mainly for the horse-drawn vehicle and these were favored in every way over the motor car. Now it is the horse-drawn vehicle that tends to interfere with traffic.

Indeed the automobile might have come into general use several generations ago if it had not been for the law passed in England prohibiting the first steam carriage to move faster than four miles an hour through the streets. Even at that slow pace the steam carriage had to be preceded by a man on foot ringing a bell and carrying a flag to warn pedestrians and other vehicles.

IMMIGRANTS AND JOBS

President Hoover's order to restrict immigration wherever possible so as not to aggravate the unemployment situation can be, of course, but of relatively little aid. Even if all immigration were suspended there would still be plenty of persons out of work and his proposed restriction applies only to those entering who might become "public charges."

The immigration problem tends to solve itself to some extent by the influence on conditions in this country operating upon the immigrant and also upon the emigrant. Before the war when immigration was at its flood the tide ebbed and flowed within a wide range whenever business boomed or became depressed.

The economic influence has evidently had some effect this year. Figures just given out from Washington show that for the fiscal year ended June 30, last, the number of immigrants was 241,700. This is quite a sharp falling off from the 279,678 in the 1929 fiscal year.

Practically all this reduction came from countries outside of Great Britain. England, Ireland and Scotland sent more immigrants here this year than last. Evidently conditions were so bad over there that they felt they had nothing to lose by coming here.

HOW CAN HE?

Henry Ford is reported in Paris as saying to an international gathering of newspaper men that he expects shortly to begin manufacturing his automobiles in France, and to do away with the assembly system he has previously employed.

There must be something wrong about this, for Mr. Ford is on record as saying that if the Eighteenth Amendment were repealed or the Volstead Act nullified he would instantly cease the making of automobiles, as he could not produce them satisfactorily with beer flowing free. We have not heard that France, where up to now alcoholic beverages have been the daily drink of the workmen, has adopted prohibition. Yes, sir, there's something wrong about it somewhere.

if possible. Under the circumstances it seems hardly likely that William V. Hodges, defeated candidate, will lend his whole-hearted support to George Shaw, the winner, against his Democratic opponent.

The Democratic candidate is Ed-ward P. Costigan, former member of the Tariff Commission, who once described himself as "a Progressive with Republican antecedents and Democratic consequences." Mr. Costigan will be remembered chiefly as the man who fought valiantly to keep the Tariff Commission a non-partisan, semi-judicial body that would not be subject to the pressure of commercial interests. His exposure of the forces that operated to thwart the Commission's recommen- dation for a lower duty on sugar was front-page news for days.

Colorado is the foremost beet- sugar producing state in the Union. Surrounded by states sending Pro- gressives to Congress, Colorado has voted on tariff schedules as if the were a suburb of Pittsburgh. In fact the retiring Senator Phipps was of- ten dubbed "The third Senator from Pennsylvania." Mr. Shaw had the whole-hearted sponsorship of Senator Charles Waterman, former attorney of the Great Western Sugar Com- pany. Any split in the Republican ranks as a result of the primary cam- paign bitterness will be so much gain for Mr. Costigan. Here is a situa- tion, that the American consumer will do well to watch.

INTERIOR DEPARTMENT SEEKS WORK

If anybody can suggest more and bigger jobs for the Interior Depart- ment, he had better do it right now. Almost every purpose for which the Department was created is rapidly being achieved, and at present the National Park Service is the only growing bureau in the organization, according to John H. Edwards, Act- ing Secretary.

It is thought that the Indian Ser- vice will complete its work in another twenty-five years, since about half of the government's 30,000 wards have already been declared com- petent. The General Land Office has seen the fertile acres under its jurisdiction turned into settled com- munities. Establishment of a new veterans' administration marked the passing of the Bureau of Pensions from the Interior Department's su- pervision. Both the Patent Office and the Bureau of Mines have been trans- ferred to the Department of Com- merce.

Injection of new life into the De- partment before it passes away en- tirely may be accomplished by the transfer of bureaus to its jurisdic- tion. The Forestry Service, the Bi- ological Survey and the Public Health Service have all been suggested in this connection.

A WORD ON STRAW HATS

An increasing population on one hand and a growing tendency among men to "go hatless" on the other just about balances things for the hat industry. The number of straw hats tossed away at the end of this summer season will not materially exceed the number discarded in pre- vious years, states the Department of Commerce.

The hats that do go into the trash can will consist largely of the stiff straw "katie" that rarely last more than one year. Panama hats serve their owners for five seasons or more. The Department explains that the latter type of headgear is made, not in Panama, but in various countries of South America. During the build- ing of the Panama railroad, hats made of toquilla straw were purchased by a dealer in Panama who sold them to resident Americans and Euro- peans. The new headgear was ex- tremely popular, and its sale spread from Panama to the United States and other countries. It was then that the name, "Panama hat," originated and it has stuck ever since.

Both the stiff straws and the Panamas have varied in style from time to time, but conservative modes have generally held their own. One can pay almost any price he wishes for a Panama hat, judging by the testimony of a dealer whose stock includes hats ranging in price from $1.50 to $500. The latter, however, are bought mostly by "distinguish- ed persons desiring to make a pres- ent to another equally as distinguish- ed."

MORE "BIGGEST-IN-WORLD"

When Costes and Bellonte added their latest exploit to the world's air records for France, patriotic statisticians added to those achievements these other "biggest" things:

The Eiffel Tower: highest struc- ture in the world.

The biggest reinforced concrete bridge: at Saint-Pierre-Duvalay.

The biggest metal viaduct: at Vi- aur, in the Cevennes mountains.

The biggest aviation hangars: at Orly.

The biggest airport: Le Bourget.

The biggest underground canal: on the Rhone just outside Marseilles.

The most powerful searchlight: that at Mont Valerien, just west of Paris, developing a billion candle- power and throwing a beam of light over 100 miles.

The world's fastest warship: the cruiser Tourville.

The biggest wireless station: at Saint-Assise.

PRESIDENT, FISHERMAN AND AUTHOR

Mr. Hoover, author and fisherman, rather than Mr. Hoover, President, is introduced to the public in his new book, "A Remedy for Disappearing Game Fishes." The philosophic view- point of disciples of Izaak Walton finds expression in numerous pas- sages from the president's pen.

Because "all men are created equal before fishes," Mr. Hoover regards as an ideal sport for democracy. He also believes that an abundance of fishermen means fewer criminals.

"Unless we can provide for at least fifty fish per annum, including the oc- casional big ones for recounting, and memory purposes," the President says, "we may despair of keeping the population from further moral turpitude."

"Next to prayer, fishing is the most personal relationship of man . . .," Mr. Hoover writes. "Fishing seems to be the sole avenue left to Presidents through which they may escape to their own thoughts and may live in their own imaginings and

As it was yet some time before services, he entered Grace Church and seated himself in a pew to rest. Before long a well-dressed gentle- man came in and seated himself in the same pew. The man became rest- less and looked at Evans with mani- fest annoyance. At length he took a card, wrote upon it and requested the usher to deliver it to the man at the other end of the pew.

The card bearing the name of one of New York's 400 carried this in- formation: "I pay $1,000 for the ex- clusive use of this pew." The word exclusive was underlined.

"Fighting Bob" drew out his own card and sent it back with this reply: "You pay too d— much."

Vivid August days at the beach, when the water is a deep vibrant blue and the sand a broad stretch of in- tense white, simply cry out for clothes that will be colorful enough to fit into this amazingly brilliant back- ground. Jackson looked around as if to make sure that no one was listening, and asked earnestly, "My dear Sir, can you keep a secret?"

"Oh, yes, the gentleman replied, "you can trust me, General. I tainly can keep a secret."

"Well," said Jackson drily, "so can I."

IT ISN'T THE WORLD— IT'S YOU

By Gertrude Stewart

You say the world is gloomy. The skies are grim and gray. The night has lost its quiet. You fear the coming day.

The world is what you make it. The sky is gray or blue. Just as your soul may paint it— It isn't the world, it's you.

Clear up the clouded vision. Clear up the foggy mind. The clouds are always pass'g. And each is silver lined.

Mr. and Mrs. Franke will spend their honeymoon in Michigan and cruising on the Great Lakes. They will reside at 59 Lindley avenue, Newark, on their return.

Mrs. Lucy L. Bootes of DeWitt avenue, Overseer of the Poor for the town has returned from a most enjoyable vacation of two weeks spent with relatives and friends in the West, or to be more definite in and around Denver, Colorado Springs, and Cripple Creek.

Mrs. Anna Ruff of Bell street is entertaining a number of women who are working for the donation party of the Homemaking for the Ruth Lang fund. They will meet with her at 2 P. M. Monday. Mrs. George Fitzsimmons, one of the table chairmen, will be there to make arrangements and explain the work to Belleville women.

This is the annual donation party and will be held October 16 at the Newark Evening News building. Other women expected to be present are Mrs. George Vintere, Mrs. Fred A. Ruff, Mrs. C. B. Martin and Miss Alina Steidel.

It's The Dogs

"You often hear fish stories," Police Chief Michael A. Flynn said Friday, "but dog stories have them all beat. I'll bet all the dogs that died yesterday would fill this headquarters."

Recorder George A. Fitzsimmons imposed 116 fines of $1 each on owners, nearly every one of whom offered a different reason for not purchasing a license. After paying the fines they were ordered to obtain licenses and more than sixty were issued by Town Clerk John J. Daly and Miss Dorothy Crisp, clerk, during the evening.

Fifty who declared they no longer had dogs will be investigated by Patrolman Harry Scott. These dogs, it seems, were never licensed because the had been lured away, run away, died, were poisoned, hit by automobiles or picked up by the Humane Society. One was in Canada, as police could prove by telephoning, and another in Brooklyn.

This Whirl Of Sport

By Arthur Bloemke

"Just why is a gridiron star? Why does a fellow go out for a football career?"

This question has been propounded numerous football stars and the answers have always been abstract and varied.

One of the greatest quarter-backs that inter-collegiate football ever knew was once asked and he answered simply, "I'll be dog-goned if I know." And thus goes the trend of most of the replies. They go out for it, without having anything but a hazy idea of just why they do it.

Some stars, though, have definite thoughts on the subject and express themselves accordingly. "One very prominent figure in local scholastic football ranks the last few years gave as his answer the fact that the reason most of them go out for it" is the glory gained thereby.

There is probably more truth than poetry in that remark. However, there are other reasons. One remote reason, of course, is that the enjoyment of playing motivates their gridiron debuts. But this is hardly ample. Football is probably as different from other sports as day and night. A football player is, more often than not, only the eleventh part of a grid machine. Hard knocks are plentiful, with the ever present chance of serious injury nearby. Individual recognition is also forced usually to the background. No fun in that.

Another reason is the "Keeping Up with the Jones" idea. A student will see one of his chums enroll for the squad, and thusly enhance his scholastic reputation. Immediately he realizes that his pal has got the "jump" on him, and forthwith joins the squad to make up for lost time.

Oh, there are sundry minor reasons, too numerous to mention. But the glory end of it seems the most plausible of all.

After all, what does every working man or woman cherish above all else? What motivates their working day and night with but a certain small amount of visible compensation. We all cherish the idea of making a success of ourselves in some line or other. We may be a success by simply raising children, who have been given a good start on life's road. We may be successes in business, athletics, or in fun.

The football clan is of the same order. They go through long and arduous football practices, with the smell of amica and like liniments a familiar one. Their recognition at that time is nil. Oftentimes they are not sure of a place on the first team, or the second team either for that matter.

But back of it all they can picture themselves some day in the not too distant future plunging through enemy lines as if they were paper, throwing forwards like a Benny Friedman, and doing other things to help their team on the road to victory.

Whether or not glory is the reason for our embryo football stars in local scholastic ranks, they will be sure to receive their share of it from many fans who have promised to attend their games this fall.

Glory at best is an elusive and unstable article, which cannot be bought or sold, so that we do not recommend it as the goal for our football men.

Stangers At Football Practice
The attendance at the high school practices is being enlarged daily as the Central game draws near.

The business men of the town, many of them with youngsters on the team, are coming out each day to view the work-outs of our lads. Among them are Town Clerk John J. Daly, Joseph Kaden, John Mazza, Alfry Calhoun, Thomas W. Fleming, Joe Mazza, Dr. George Kaden, William Wagner, William Wells, Gus Plenge, and Tom Walker.

Discussions of every available topic ensue while the men watch the practice. The main topic last Friday was the question of why more assistant managers were not appointed to guard the gates of Clearman Field, thus to prevent strangers from other teams watching our practices.

We know for a fact that other schools employ this system of appointing managers and we pass this suggestion on to the officials of Belleville High School for the betterment of our team.

Hot Shots
Gus Altieri has at last secured permission from his dad to attend Belleville High and looks like the goods in a football uniform. He certainly can toss a mean football. Shades of Paul Schiewer... Fritz Plenge canounded into the second team line last Thursday, was dazed for a while, but reported for practice next day. Bill Daly was on the sick list for a while. Handsome Louis Jannarone is the genial manager of the football team. Phil Taylor, caretaker of Clearman Field, spent last Saturday putting numbers on the five yard poles. Eddie Taylor, prominent local journalist, will be back with us this fall with his reportorial work.

Though football is king-pin now and baseball is well on the way to the moth balls for this year, several local ball-players continue to invite admiration in outside baseball ranks.

"Tommy" Dunn and Gene Gelsen, two prominent members of the cast of the third-place Elk aggregation in the local League league the past season, are still showing the Oranges how, with their fine playing with the strong West Orange A. A. Both boys played regularly most of

Valley Aces Split In Bargain Bill

Nose Out West Sides And Lose Game To Watchungs

The Valley Aces split even in a double-header Sunday, nosing out the West Side A. A. at Capitol field, 3-1, in the afternoon, after dropping a narrow 4-3 margin to the Watchung A. A. at Bloomfield in the morning.

Jack McCall pitched brilliant ball for the Aces in the afternoon tilt, striking out ten of the West Sides and allowing but six widely scattered hits. The one run they were able to total from his offerings was an unearned one.

Johnnie Merbler, late of Splittorf's, tossed 'em over for the locals in the morning tilt against the Watchungs and several tough breaks aided considerably in his 4-3 defeat. The Aces had previously defeated the Watchungs and they will play the series final in the near future.

Bill Murphy, ace center-fielder of the Bellevillites, was the big siege gun of the Aces' attack in both games. He connected for a double in the morning tilt, and added two more hits in the second game. Art Bloemke banged out a double and two singles in the aftermath, while Byrnes and Baldwin were also effective with the willow.

the season for this strong semi-pro squad and both have been high-lights in the team's many successes. Next Sunday, these boys will be in the line-up of the West Orangettes when they oppose the noted Orange A. A. in a double-header for the mythical championship of the Oranges. The following Sunday they will probably wind up the season against the strong South Orange nine, reputed to be the best semi-pro team in the state.

Tommie and Gene are certainly helping immensely towards enhancing Belleville's reputation of developing good ball players.

The Belleville American Legion Post No. 105, following its usual procedure of providing athletic development for the youth of the town, has announced its intentions of organizing a senior basketball circuit, this year, modelled on the order of last year's successful Recreation League.

Commander Thomas W. Fleming of the local post will be on hand to preside over the league. Mr. Fleming has been interested for many years in basketball and was one of the chief actors in the Legion's movement towards starting a court league.

The Recreation Commission and the Board of Education have offered him their invaluable assistance towards making a success of the venture and he has gladly accepted.

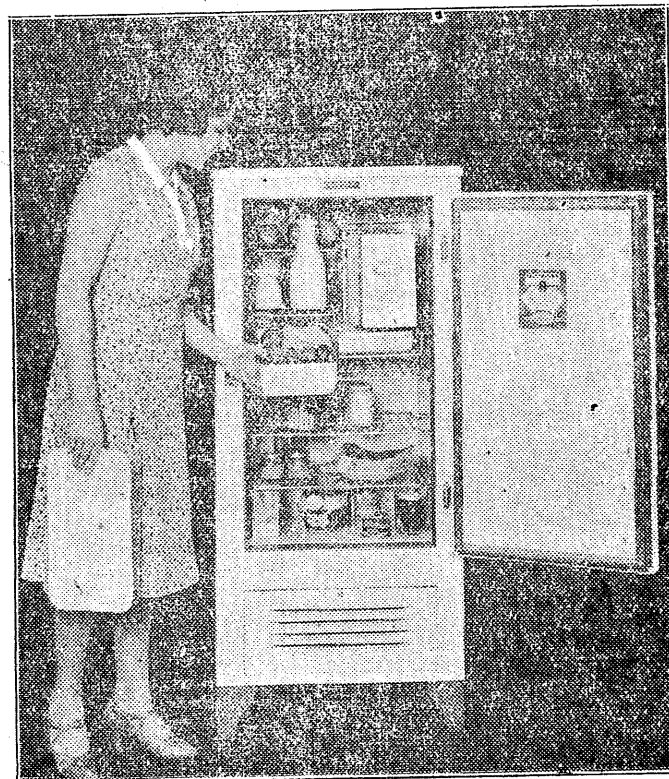

All the teams entered in last year's Recreation Basketball League are requested to file their names with the new Legion court circuit immediately as they will be given first preference. These teams may do this by getting in touch with President Fleming or with any member of the athletic committee of the Legion.

All other teams are also solicited and the Legion promises that their requests will be given every possible attention.

Newcomers are Pomaco, who played on the Imperial Championship Team and Hancox and Vitello who were subs.

George "Mule" Hass And Other "A's" To Attend Banquet Here

Last Year's World's Champs Agree To Attend Legion Affair

George "Mule" Hass and several other of his Philadelphia Athletic teammates will feature the guests' table at the second annual banquet of the Belleville American Legion Baseball League at the Elks' home on Washington avenue, tomorrow night.

Hass, who resides in Montclair, has expressed his willingness to attend, as well as to bring along several of his mates. He was one of the heroes of last year's World Series and is again expected to star for the A's in this year's classic.

Another guest of honor, who has promised to be present at the dinner is none other than Loren Murchison, he of the flying feet. Murchison has been for years one of the country's leading sprinters and middle distance runners and has attained nationwide fame with his running ability. Many players prominent in the cast of the Newark Bears of baseball fame and the Newark Tornadoes of the gridiron are also being sought to fill to capacity an unexcelled galaxy of athletic talent.

Commander Thomas W. Fleming of the local Legion post will serve as toastmaster this year and will have the honor of presenting as principal speaker, David I. Kelly of Essex County Park Commission. Mr. Kelly is widely known hereabouts for his entertaining talks and his witticisms are always the spice of the program.

Other speakers, who will probably assist in the many presentations of players' awards, will be, in all likelihood, picked from the Board of Commissioners, the Board of Education and the Recreation Commission, all of whom will be represented almost in their entirety.

The players' prizes are composed about equally of merchandise and loving cups with the individual prizes coming under the former class and team awards under the latter. The leading base-stealer, home run hitter, batter and pitcher will all be honored with awards in addition to the most valuable player on each team. The first four teams in the league standing, St. Peter's the

The Intertowns defeated the Belleville Comets, Nutley Cardinals, Belleville Trojans, Nutley Red Wings, Border Aces, Middletown Juniors, Silver Lake, and Nutley Red Caps to win the championship of Nutley and Belleville. The Ints also were Belleville champs the past season but were defeated by the Cardinals for the Nutley title.

The Ints played many heavier Belleville A. Gold watch charms to each player in the league complete the lists of prizes for the senior loop, while the junior league will receive similar prizes, though on a smaller scale.

A goodly crowd is expected and the dinner for entertainment value alone will be well worth it. President Joe Williams, Secretary Larry Keenan, of the league itself and Dick Dolan, in charge of arrangements have done their jobs well and everything looks rosy for a successful finale for the popular local league.

The Intertown pitching staff was led by Cappy, winning eight and losing one. Cappy also pitched two shut-outs against the Nutley Cardinals and Belleville Comets. Natale won four and lost none; J. Tuozolo won one and lost none and H. Wilde lost one. Jack Tuozolo was the batting star hitting the .610 mark followed by Vitello with .520, Liguori, Riccardi and Natale.

Liguori and Zampano helped the Ints plenty at the home plate by making many spectacular plays. De-browski who was later replaced by J. Tuozolo was promising as some nice stops were made by him. Vitello was good at bat and in the field. Riccardi, the heavy-weight, also played good ball. The Ints have one of the best records in this section by winning forty games and losing seven in its first two baseball seasons. It also went undefeated in football to win the Nutley junior championship.

Harold G. Hoffman,
Commissioner of Motor Vehicles

Editor's Note: This is the tenth of a series of articles by the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles presented by the News as its part in the campaign of education to familiarize motorists with the laws which regulate their conduct on the road.

State Comm'r. of Motor Vehicles

X.—DRIVING SIGNALS

Perhaps it is laziness, perhaps it is downright bad manners, at any rate, whatever the cause, the widespread failure of motorists to signal their intention to drivers behind when about to start, stop or turn results in probably as many accidents as many other single bad driving habits.

Many motorists apparently consider it an indication of overcaution or inexperience to give hand signals. It isn't. The best proof of that is furnished by professional chauffeurs of private cars. Watch how scrupulously they signal when they intend to change their course, and then let the non-signaling motorist ask himself if there isn't a reason, based on long experience, for their careful action.

As a matter of fact, signaling when turning or stopping isn't primarily an unselfish act to protect the other fellow. It's actually a measure of self-protection. How many drivers have had their fenders crumpled, their bumpers ripped loose, rear end and transmission damaged, often beyond repair, because they failed to signal oncoming drivers?

It is a simple precaution, requires little effort, and in countless instances has prevented serious accidents and property damage. So important is it that it has been made a part of the traffic law.

Many motorists seem to think that it is a matter of courtesy, a custom that has grown up among drivers. It isn't. It is legally mandatory, and failure to signal can be prosecuted as reckless driving.

The law on the subject is direct and easily understood. It provides that the "driver of any vehicle upon a highway before starting, stopping, backing or turning from a direct line, shall first see that such movement can be made in safety, and if any pedestrian may be affected by such movement, shall give a clearly audible signal by sounding the horn, and whenever the operation of any other vehicle may be affected by such movement, shall give a signal, as required in this section, plainly visible to the driver of such other vehicle or pedestrian of the intention to make such movement."

What signals should be given? The subject is not a matter of individual choice. Carefully and explicitly the law sets forth the signals the motorist must give.

After providing that approved mechanical or electrical signal devices may be used, the law stipulates that wherever the signal is given, by means of the hand or arm, the driver shall indicate his intention to start, stop, or turn by extending the hand and arm from and beyond the side of the vehicle.

"For a right turn," the law says, "make a sweeping motion from the rear to the front to indicate to drivers of vehicles behind that they may pass to the left. For a left turn, point with index finger to the left, to indicate to drivers of vehicles behind that he intends to turn in that direction. When stopping or slowing up, keep the arm and hand in a steady position, with palm to the rear."

This doesn't mean signaling by poking the fingers over the window, nor does it mean hanging the arm limply along the body of the car, as many motorists think. It means the hand and arm must be fully extended, so as to be clearly visible from behind. A signal given half-heartedly, or the wrong signal—for instance pointing to the left when a right turn is contemplated—often can be as dangerous as no signal at all.

The effort required to give proper signals is insignificant. The resulting good is tremendous. It is little enough to ask a motorist as a gentleman and as a citizen holding a valuable privilege so to conduct himself on the road that he causes no unnecessary inconvenience and danger to others. General adoption of signals will prevent many accidents. Continued failure to signal soon will call for drastic police action.

C. W. Nash Outlines Plan To Increase National Prosperity

Kenosha, Wis.—National prosperity can be increased during the next six months, not by the arbitrary slashing of commodity prices, but through the immediate building of high quality products to fit a reduced public purse, in the opinion of C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors Company.

The industrial leader, whose consistent advocacy of higher automobile values at moderate costs has brought his manufacturing organization remarkable success through three decades and himself world recognition as one of the soundest of American producers, went back to pre-stock-inflation values today in estimating the business situation, following a careful study of the motor car market.

"There is but one certain method of overcoming the unemployment problem, the loss of confidence which has affected practically every section of the country, and the general business depression which we all must acknowledge," he said, "It doesn't lie in high sounding theories, political promises or anything of that sort. The one thing to do is to begin building things that people in this country need at a cost which eliminates a maximum of the old, easy going overhead and brings out the highest possible value at the lowest possible selling cost. Such a manufacturing policy serves to keep American made products at the high standards we have all learned to demand. It is the one way to increase the value of the dollar to the point where buyers will reenter the market in volume; the one way to put labor back to work and to refill the national dinner pail.

"Our days of speculation are over, and well over in my opinion. But, with a plentiful supply of money in banks in all sections of the country, and with crops and national resources in fair condition, there is no reason why we cannot produce a high level of prosperity, this time on a solid and sound foundation of honest values rather than speculative values.

"It is along this line that The Nash Motors Company is concentrating its manufacturing efforts. We plan, in the near future, to introduce a new line of Nash automobiles which, we are confident, will do their full share to extend the capacity of the automobile dollar as well as adding something finer to the usefulness and enjoyment of motoring.

"One series of these new Nash cars has been engineered to the point where its typically high Nash quality can be offered at a price lower than that of any former Nash product. Other cars of the entire line represent higher value accomplishments in their various fields.

"I look upon these new cars as the correct answer to the question of how to build back high, stable and lasting American prosperity. I should like to recommend a similar slow but certain building to all of our great industrial branches. It is a sound policy which retains the highest standards at reduced costs; makes it possible for more people to buy, more people to be employed, more production gained, and a real and lasting structure of prosperity erected."

Detroit, Mich. Sept. 20.—If one were to stretch taut a rubber band and strike it with a ruler, the band would be depressed and then, on release, vibrate as a whole. If different sections of the band are struck with two or more rulers, each section has its own vibration while the band, as a whole, picks up another series of vibrations.

Just such vibrations, although much less in intensity, are set up in a crankshaft by piston force, points out the Hupp Motor Car Corporation. When the fuel charge is exploded within the cylinder head, the piston is forced downward and the connecting rod, attached to the piston at one end and to the crankshaft at the other, transmits this downward impulse to the crankshaft to start it in rotation. If it is a six-cylinder engine, there are six such impulses to each rotation of the crankshaft, and so forth.

In reality the transmission to the crankshaft and its bearings of this piston force constitute millions of sledge hammer blows which increase in direct numerical proportion to the speed of the engine. It is only natural that the crankshaft must both be made strong enough to eliminate breakage and, at the same time, resilient enough to absorb these blows without bending "out of true." Engineers long ago proved that the number of crankshaft bearings does not necessarily determine the smoothness with which an engine operates. Generally speaking they are agreed that a four bearing crankshaft is preferable in a six-cylinder engine, because of the accuracy with which the shaft may be aligned, with the five bearing crankshaft, by the same token, is more desirable in the straight eight engine. Likewise it has been determined that the diameter of the crankshaft bearings, the design and size of the crankshaft "cheek" (that portion of the shaft lying between the bearing surfaces), control the rigidity of the shaft.

In adhering to these principles in all 1931 models, Hupmobile has gone a step farther and added specially designed counterweights to provide the maximum balancing effect with a minimum of added rotating weight eliminating possibility of the shaft bending because of centrifugal forces and thus reducing the bearing loads. The shaft is also statistically and dynamically balanced. Engineers claim that the Hupmobile crankshaft is one of the most scientifically designed and accurately installed shafts now being used. The new Century Six four bearing crankshaft is steel forging, double heat-treated weighing 76½ pounds. Proportionately strong and heavy is the five bearing shaft of the new Century Eight which weighs 92½ pounds. That of the 100 horsepower Series "C" weighs 108½ pounds. It is also of the five bearing type. In both the Series "H" and "U" the five bearing crankshaft weighs 115 pounds. In all 1931 models, Hupmobile has taken every precaution to assure the owner of trouble-free service, long life, and smooth and quiet operation.

Hupp Bureau Recommends Fuel System Inspection

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 20.—Following summer and vacation driving of many hard miles and in anticipation of winter driving, motor experts agree that a thorough inspection and overhaul of the fuel system is a desirable thing to do at this time of the year. Hupmobile's Service Bureau gives the following recommendation for this work.

"The carburetor, fuel pump or vacuum tank, and the fuel tank proper should be completely drained. The first step then is to remove the Gasolator or fuel filter and thoroughly clean both the sediment bowl and filtering screen.

"In draining the fuel tank, stand on the running board joggle the car sideways until the remainder flows from the tank. Always remember to stand on the side of the car on which the drain plug is located. This agitates and helps to remove the sediment and water that has accumulated in the bottom of the tank. The tank filler cap should also be checked to see that the air vent is open.

"On those cars equipped with a vacuum tank, the drain plug should be removed from the bottom and all sediment drained away. All fuel line screens should be removed and thoroughly cleaned, as sediment often clogs them and restricts the flow of gasoline."

Man Tells Police Sister And Married Man Eloped

Said to have eloped Sunday with a Newark married man, Miss Margaret Marchesini, seventeen, of 68 Columbus avenue, was reported missing to police Wednesday night by her brother, Joseph Marchesini, Jr. The brother said the man, who is twenty-five, ran away with his sister from another sister's house at 171 Verona avenue, Newark, at 5 P. M. Sunday.

According to the brother, the wife of the man told him her husband had only $10 Sunday. His sister had no money, nor did she wear a coat or hat, the brother said.

The girl was described as five feet one inch tall, weighing 105 pounds, with blond bobbed hair. She wore a black dress and black shoes.

Clinton A. C. Held First Workout Of Year Last Sunday

Twenty-Three Huskies Out In Answer To Call Of Coach Monaghan

The Clinton A. C., Belleville's foremost senior football squad, held its first work-out under the direction of its new mentor, Andy Monaghan, at Belleville Park, Sunday morning. Twenty-three huskies, most of them hold-overs from last year's successful campaign, reported to their new coach, who will be assisted by Gil Howley, late of the Capitol football squad.

The squad still has a week to devote to intensive practice drills before their opening game of the season, Sunday afternoon, October 5, when they clash with the Anokas A. C. at Belleville Park. Manager Monaghan's tentative schedule also calls for games with the Arlington Red Jackets, Newark Trojans, Bloomfield Originals, Quincy Laurels of Passaic and the Nutley Comets. The latter game is an annual battle and every effort is being made to arrange the tilt for the last of the season, to climax their campaign.

Among the twenty-three who have been reporting for practice to date, there has appeared but two new faces, Jimmie Cancelosi, recruited from the Parks to plug up one of the guard positions and Murray, a local lineman of some repute.

The regular back-field quartet will be picked from six familiar faces from last year's squad. Marty Malack, "Sus" Howley, "Bungo" Gorman, George Ashworth, Howard Irving and "Monty" Monahan will fight it out for the berths. Irving is one of the best passers and drop-kickers on the squad, while Monahan has been showing quite some ability at the art of punting in the practices so far. It is probable that Malack, Howley, Gorman and Ashworth will compose the regular four, with Irving, also a wing man, and Monahan, a guard, filling in on the line. They will be called to the back-field when necessary to utilize their specialties.

Four ends, all of whom have been showing fine form, have been making the selection of two a tough one for Coaches Monahan and Howley. Howley, Howie Irving, Herb Otto, Jim Clark and Wirtz all were veterans last year and assure the Clintons of their end positions being well taken care of. Cancelosi, Murray, Spillane, Hannan, Dacey and Perry have also shown ability on the line. The Clintons are endeavoring to secure the services of Roy Stewart, Belleville High flash of a few years back, and if they do their back-field will be made.

There are still a few open dates on the Clinton grid schedule and any senior team in the state, desirous of bookings should get in touch with Monahan at 120 Belleville avenue.

Ridgways Back From Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Ridgway of Little street returned Sunday from a vacation of two weeks spent in the Sunny Southland. Several days were spent in Washington, D. C. where they stayed with Miss Annie Hurley at 309 Third street N. E. They were sent to Miss Hurley by the Travelers' Aid of Washington several years ago and found the place so attractive that they have returned many times. They left Newark on the Greyhound bus for Washington September 6 at 9 and reached their destination about 7.

The next place visited was Winchester, Va., where they journeyed again via Greyhound bus, and a very pretty trip it was across the country but the South has suffered far more severely than the north from drought. Streams are dry and pastures burned dry. Crops have been very poor, and meeting people from North Carolina, they were informed that many families hitherto well-to-do were selling their furniture in order to live.

Winchester is one of the most interesting places in the way of history in the "northern south." Visiting the old house where Washington made his headquarters while surveying for Fairfax an interesting story was told by the caretaker about a group from Ohio who where there the day before. An old Confederate Veteran was there who resided in Winchester, having been brought in by his daughter, and when introduced by her to the tourists was insulted by them and then ignored, but another story told later on at Frederick shows the other side, when a woman would not buy a Lincoln car on account of the name. The mystery is, who continue these old time feuds for the Southern people are certainly "the salt of the earth."

While waiting for the bus in Washington a unique manner of announcing was heard "Bus fixin' to leave for Winchester." Almost as good as at Buffalo last year when the operator was told to "leave town."

On again to Frederick, Md., after a stay of nearly a week in Winchester. They found the town very friendly and overstayed the time limit by a few days. Here the stay was with Mrs. Anna Schuler on South Market street. While looking around after leaving the bus the town seemed utterly devoid of tourist signs so they interviewed the policeman at the "corner" and he very kindly sent them to Mrs. Schuler. Afterwards they learned that Mr. Miller was the Democratic candidate for sheriff so they stopped again and congratulated him after thanking him for sending them to such a desirable place. Seemed to them that an officer who would take the pains to look after visitors so carefully should make a good sheriff. While in Frederick Mr. and Mrs. Schuler motored them to the Battle Field of Manassas just outside of Frederick, and while the Union forces were here defeated they held the Southern army and saved Washington. "Tis said that the battle was so bloody that the Mopacacy river ran blood. Today the peaceful fields hold no hint of those troubled days.

Another motor trip with the same kind people was to Braddock Heights the playground of Washington and Baltimore folks. The ride was through beautiful scenery and overlooked the wealthy fertile Middletown Valley.

Barbara Fritchie's home was most interesting and they leaned from the window where she so pluckily waved our flag, and looking at her picture one would realize the bravery of the woman. The center of interest was of course, the original flag, preserved since 1862. They also visited the spring from which Barbara Fritchie obtained her drinking water, and this was also used by the northern and southern troops.

Along the line came their visit to the home of Chief Justice Taney which is now open as a National Shrine and Museum since April. Taney inaugurated seven presidents whose pictures on the wall are of interest, Lincoln being the last and most dramatic. The wine cellar, slave quarters, the old Taney kitchen detached from the main dwelling house and equipped with century-old utensils, and the work shop used by the slaves.

On the second floor is the "Key Room" named in memory of Taney's wife, sister of Francis Scott Key, famous author of "The Star Spangled Banner." Be it remembered that Roger Brooke Taney was born in 1777, and that his home was built about 1799, and that Justice Taney penned the decision in the Dred Scott case that was revised in the Civil War.

Leaving Frederick with regret, and the famous cooking of Mrs. Schuler on the morning of September 19, they returned to Washington again by bus stopping with Miss Hurley until the morning of the 21st when they again left by Greyhound for Newark and thence home.

The travel by bus they declare is comfortable, clean and the very best of operators who drive carefully always on the lookout for the well-being of their passengers. Frequent rest and luncheon stops are made. The dinner stop both ways at Havre de Grace, Md., finds the best of cooking and plenty of sea food. The dining room faces on the Susquehanna river and is cool and comfortable. Account of visit with Mrs. Blaydes, former owner of The Times, will be found on another page.

MYSTERY BLAST DESTROYS HOUSE

Flames Follow In Vacant Local Dwelling; Vicinity Rocked

An explosion, followed by a fire, destroyed a frame dwelling at 27 Maier street, early Friday. The house, owned by Pasquale Ippolito, was unoccupied, the family having been absent for two weeks. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The police and fire departments are making an investigation on the theory it was a bomb.

It was 1:50 o'clock when the neighborhood was rocked by the explosion. About 1,000 persons were attracted to the scene as the firemen fought to save adjoining homes. The Ippolito home was a mass of flames a few minutes after the explosion. Low water pressure hampered the department.

According to neighbors, Ippolito was last seen at his house Wednesday evening, when he was picking tomatoes in the back yard. Most of the furniture had been taken from the house, and only a piano, a bed and a couch remained. Firemen pulled the couch from the flames in the search to determine whether any person was in the house. The neighbors thought Ippolito's wife had been in a hospital several weeks and the two children living with an older brother or sister.

Vincent Turtarello of 112 Garden avenue, Belleville, who built the houses, said Ippolito bought his two years ago Christmas. The house was fully insured, as a $5,000 mortgage is held by a building and loan association, and a $900 second mortgage by himself, Turtarello said. The house to which the flames spread had been vacant several months. Chancesman Rowe awakened in his home a block away in Parkview avenue by the explosion, turned in an alarm, as did several other persons. The firemen said the house where the explosion occurred could not have been saved by any means, so quickly did flames envelop it. The adjoining house was damaged on the side and roof. The blaze was extinguished within two hours.

Police and firemen discovered nothing in the house to account for the explosion.

Holzman—Fuchs Plans

A very quiet wedding will take place Saturday, September 27, when Miss Alice Fuchs, daughter of Mrs. Leo Fuchs of 104 Division avenue will become the bride of Bernard Holzman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Holzman of New York.

The couple will be married at the Town Hall at 11 o'clock in the morning with Judge Fitzsimmons performing the ceremony. Owing to the recent death of the bride's father, the reception at the Robert Treat, Newark, will be attended only by the family.

The bride will wear an afternoon frock of green chiffon, with close fitting green hat and green shoes. For going away she will change for a suit.

At the conclusion of a two weeks' honeymoon at Atlantic City, the couple will reside at the Division avenue address.

Miss Fuchs is a graduate of the Fawcett Art School, Newark. Mr. Holzman is in the advertising business.

How Many a Fireplace Has Returned to Usefulness

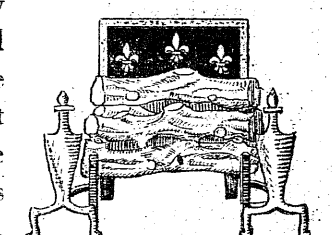

THE gas coal basket or wood fire is bringing back to our homes the charm of an open fire—the warmth and cheer of sitting around the fireplace. Housekeepers like gas fires from which the heat pours out at the touch of a match without work, dirt or dust.

Modern gas fires are so designed that the heat comes straight out into the room, taking the chill from its furthest corners.

Gas heat is clean, odorless, and instantly available. No work with a gas fireplace heater. Many attractive styles to choose from—any heater can be installed quickly, and will be connected without charge in any fireplace where there is a gas outlet in the fireplace, or where not more than 25 feet of piping is required.

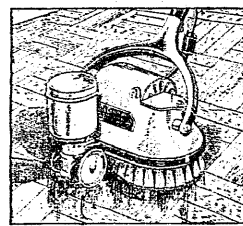

Homestead Coal Fire No. 13 is delightfully mid-victorian in design. Its price is $50 or $55 on terms of $5 when ordered, and $4 monthly for 12 months.

Homestead Woodfire No. 3 closely resembles a fire of birch logs. Price $49 or $51.80 if bought on terms of $5 down and $3.90 monthly for 12 months.

FASHION SUGGESTIONS--TIMELY FEATURES FOR HOME

GARDEN SCIENCE

By R. E. HARMAN,
Essex County Agricultural Agent,
State College of Agriculture

Have you been visited by "Peeping Toms" or have you seen "Night Prowlers" on the premises? If you have then the brown Oriental Garden Beetle is at work on your premises.

These beetles which feed at night are attracted by any bright lights which may be burning on the porch or in one of the rooms in the house. They would be observed climbing up the screen door, window screens or sides of the house if they were on the premises and the attracting light was of sufficient strength.

This "cousin" of the Japanese beetle has become pretty well established in all parts of Essex County and the time will come (about next summer) when we shall have to do something about it.

The grubs injure lawns and the adults feed upon the flowers and foliage of many favorite plants. This summer they did a lot of damage to rose, dahlia and zinnia blooms.

There is no other all-brown insect nearly the size of the rose-bug so that identification is not difficult. The life-history is identical to that of the green-bronzy Japanese beetle except that the latter feeds by day.

Plants In The Rockery

By A. C. McLEAN
N. J. Agricultural Extension Service

For New Jersey conditions the early, spring-blooming bulbs rank among the best of the rock garden plants. Such bulbs must be planted fairly early in the fall for best results. Plant them in groups in the rockery about two or three inches deep. Then, around the bulbs or between them, plant some of the low-growing, trailing plants such as veronica, thymus, or others that are not deep rooters. These will make beautiful ground covers for summer.

Among the best of the early-blooming bulbs for the rock garden are the squills or scilla. These come in most shades of blue, sometimes in pink, and in white. The crocus comes in yellow, white, purple, and striped. Snow-drops are a very early flowering white bulb. Branthia is a very early blooming yellow bulb which sometimes resembles the buttercup. The Chionodoxa, or glory-of-the-snow is a very beautiful blue blooming bulb.

To be successful with most early, spring-blooming bulbs, it is essential that they be planted so there will be sufficient time to obtain a good root growth in the fall.

Gives Rules For Making Muffins, Quick Breads

The approach of cooler weather leads Miss Marie Doerman, New Jersey extension service specialist in nutrition, to suggest to home-makers that they serve more muffins and quick breads as a means of adding variety to the family diet. Cornmeal or whole wheat flour and bran offer variety from the usual white flour muffin or bread, she advises, and buttermilk or sour milk may be used for quick breads. Recipes for cornmeal muffins, whole wheat nut muffins, and quick coffee cake follow.

Cornmeal muffins, with their crisp crust, will be enjoyed on a cool day. Sift together 2 cups of cornmeal, 1 teaspoonful of soda, 1 1/2 teaspoonfuls of salt, and 3 tablespoonfuls of sugar. Beat 1 or 2 eggs until light and add 2 cups of sour milk. Pour the liquid mixture into the dry ingredients, mix well, and add 2 tablespoonfuls of melted fat. Beat well. Pour into hot greased muffin tins, and bake in a hot oven from 20 to 25 minutes.

Whole wheat nut muffins are appetizing for supper or lunch. Mix well 1 cupful of whole wheat flour, three-fourths of a cupful of white flour, 1 teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of chopped nut meats. Beat 1 egg and add 1 cupful of sour milk. Combine the wet materials with the dry, mix thoroughly, then add 2 tablespoonfuls of melted fat. Beat hard. Pour into hot greased muffin tins and bake in a hot oven 25 minutes.

Quick coffee cake is made as follows: Sift together, 2 cups of flour, 3 teaspoonfuls of baking powder, 1 teaspoonful of salt, and one-fourth cupful of sugar. Cut in 4 tablespoonfuls of shortening with a fork until the mixture is fine, like meal. Make a hollow in the bowl and add three-fourths of a cupful of milk and 1 well-beaten egg; then mix with a knife to form a soft dough. Grease a baking pan and spread to 1 inch thickness, leaving the top irregular. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle the top with a mixture consisting of one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Bake in a moderately hot oven for 25 minutes.

This same recipe may be used in making nut and raisin rolls. Roll the dough one-quarter inch thick in a rectangular shape, brush with melted butter, and sprinkle with sugar, chopped raisins, and nuts. Roll like a jelly roll, cut in one-half inch pieces and place on a greased baking pan, and bake 15 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

Serve Sherbets with Meats

By JOSEPH BOGGIA, Chef
The Plaza Hotel, New York City

A SHERBET with the meat course is a most welcome addition to the hot-weather luncheon or dinner. Adding to the diet the healthful fruit juices, and through its sugar content, one of the most important energy elements, the sherbet's cooling qualities and delicate flavor help to make the repast a noteworthy occasion whether dining en famille or entertaining honored guests.

Another point not to be overlooked by the wise hostess is the aesthetic factor. Served in footed glasses in pastel shades of rose, amber, azure, green or topaz, the iced cup strikes a note of color that does more than its share in assuring the colorful charm demanded for the perfectly arranged summer table.

RIDING THE LINE IN A "BOS'N CHAIR" IS PART OF TRANSMISSION LINE INSPECTOR'S JOB

RIDING the line in a "bos'n chair" a hundred feet or so above the ground is all a part of the day's work for the Public Service inspectors whose duty it is to watch out for possible injuries to the aluminum conductors which carry the current on the company's tower transmission lines.

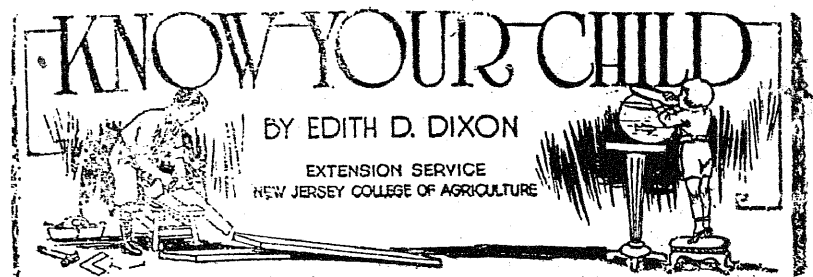

The "bos'n chair," as the inspectors themselves have dubbed it, is a movable seat resembling more than anything else a breeches buoy used to rescue passengers from stranded vessels. It is securely suspended from the cable to be examined on pulleys which allow it to be moved freely in either direction. A rope is attached to the chair, passed through a pulley fastened to the top of the tower, and dropped to a helper on the ground below.

When a section of the cable is to be examined the inspector to do the work climbs to the top of the tower, fastens his "bos'n chair" in place, sits down in it and after adjusting a safety belt which fastens him securely in, slowly lets himself slide down toward the next tower. This is not a difficult job, as the downward sag in the conductors helps to pull him along.

After the examination of a section of the conductor is completed, the inspector's helper on the ground pulls on the rope attached to the "bos'n chair" and hauls it back to the tower.

Teaching Children To Buy

By EDITH D. DIXON,

"What is an adequate allowance for two girls, one ten years old and the other twelve? There is no need for them to buy any school supplies or any of their clothing."

What is in the mind of the mother who asks this question? Probably the fact that all children want to spend money and her daughters should have a fair amount to satisfy their personal desires.

But consider her statements, "there is no need for them to buy," which shows she has no plan for definitely teaching the girls how to purchase wisely.

Children should be buying their clothing by the time they are 14 or 15 years of age and in order to do so successfully, they must begin much earlier to learn how to buy.

Many parents take their children on shopping expeditions at the age of 8 or 10 and allow them to assist in making purchases. The training helps a child to evaluate the cost and durability of articles. Thus a child who has had practice in choosing clothing may be given an allowance to buy one article such as shoes. He learns to economize by proper care of his shoes. When the child is ready to handle an increased allowance, additional articles such as gloves and stockings may be added.

There is always the possibility that when a child begins to buy his complete wardrobe he will use up all his money as fast as he gets it, and not save enough for the large things that have to be purchased occasionally. In anticipation of this event an account could be kept of the cost of his clothing over the previous year. This will help to determine the amount necessary as well as its distribution.

The age at which a child is capable of taking on the responsibility of buying all his own clothes varies with individual children. Some children at 12 years are more successful at handling a clothing budget than others at 18. But one reason why the adolescent period is a logical time to begin is because usually the child of this age is anxious to conform to the conventions, and is desirous of dressing as well as his companions. It is important that the parent give the freedom necessary for the child to realize not only the possible mistakes he may make in selection, but also the cost of what to him seem necessities. Many parents complain of the selfishness of children at this period in the heavy demands they make upon the family purse. As long as parents continue to do the purchasing they cannot expect the child to realize what he costs the family.

Next week — "Children Will be 'Noisy'."

Note: These weekly articles on child training are furnished to the Belleville News by the Essex County Extension Service which, with Miss Dixon's co-operation, is prepared to answer letters of inquiry on child training problems. Address such letters to Mrs. M. C. Shepard, County Home Demonstration Agent, Park Theatre Building, Caldwell, N. J.

IN VOGUE TODAY

By CATHERINE GRIEBEL,

Now that the Paris openings are over and there has been time to contemplate the offerings of the various couturiers, it is easier to make general statements; to get a perspective, if you will.

The silhouette that caused so much commotion only a year ago is now an accepted fact. At first we protested, insisting that "we will never wear clothes with such lines" but our minds changed readily enough when we got over our prejudices.

We are becoming accustomed to the new silhouette which was introduced last fall and which is still with us. We note, however, a greater attention to details—more elaboration in seamings, and subtle low-placed flares.

Street dresses are longer—about 13 inches from the floor. Some houses showed sports things 14 inches from the floor, but a little shorter is permissible. The length selected depends on you and your activities.

Afternoon dresses may be 12 inches from the floor but for formal wear most women drop theirs to 8 or 10 inches. All evening gowns are really long; for dancing, ankle-length; and for other affairs either just clearing the ground or with trains. More than 90 per cent of all dresses seen at the openings had even hemlines. A few houses offered uneven lines for evening, but their numbers were so small that we need not be concerned over them.

Belts are usually at the normal waist line but at least one of the well-known couturiers dropped hers to the top of the hip bones, which is a comfort to mature women. On the other hand, some houses showed belts higher than normal.

I have always maintained that within fashion one may always find lines, colors, and fabrics that are becoming. I think this is as true now as it was in 1925. There is a wide choice of colors, and fabrics were never lovelier.

Outing Plans Shaped By Huelsenbeck Group

The Harry L. Huelsenbeck Association met last night in Bohemian Hall, Seventeenth street and Nineteenth avenue, to complete plans for next Sunday's outing in United Singers' Grove.

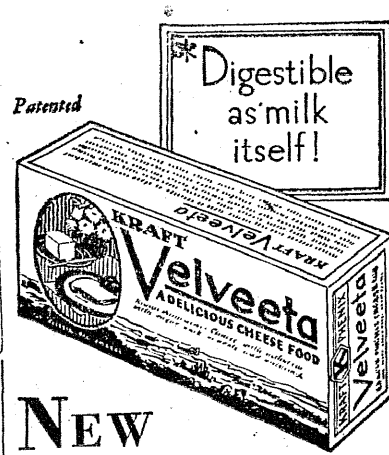

The outing committee, headed by Warden Charles A. Steadman of the county jail, reported on obtaining radio and vaudeville performers to provide entertainment. The committee has hired an orchestra.

Judges Dallas Flannagan and Walter D. Van Riper of the Court of Common Pleas are among county officials who will attend. All candidates for election in November will be guests. Sheriff Huelsenbeck is standard bearer of the association.

Second Annual Dance

The P. E. P. Club which recently met at the home of Miss Gwendolyn Bennett of Greylock parkway, plans its second annual dance at the Masonic Temple, October 18.

Miss Muriel Feldhuessen of Kearny was elected general committee chairman; Dorothea Goodwin, finance; Mary Griffen, decorations; and Madeline Thomson, publicity. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the club.
