Tax Relief Action Stirs County Merchants After Fly-By-Nights

Uniform Closing

Fly-By-Nights Get Cream

And Skip Shop

Folks Say

Uniform closing of stores nights in town and the control of fly-by-night merchants were subjects discussed by the Merchants' Association at the Town Hall Tuesday night. Twenty-five attended. Patrick A. Fort presided.

It was agreed to advocate the closing every week day except Saturday of stores, except food stores, at 9 P. M. and the food stores an hour later. The Town Commission will be asked to act on regulation of transient merchants.

This does not affect drug stores, delicatessen, or candy stores. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, March 15, and all merchants of the town are invited to attend.

The question of curbing the "fly-by-night" pedler, who pays no taxes and is not responsible, was discussed and a committee appointed to draft a resolution to present to the town commissioners to stop this evil.

Civic Forum Hears

Williams And Coogan

Commissioner And Assessor

Address Group At Church

"The Civic Forum," an organization sponsored by Theodore Wells and a committee of ten additional prominent townspeople from the Valley section, met at their temporary quarters, Union Methodist Church on Stephen street, last Friday evening.

The object of the forum is purely enlightenment of its members and friends on matters of public concern. No disposition is allowed at these meetings to register the attitude of those present either for or against any subject, but to learn both sides that they may act intelligently at the proper time and place. Mr. Wells has shown great ability in selecting his committee. The majority are ladies, who, from every indication, are deeply interested, so much so, that they come and the babies go to sleep in their mothers' arms while mother is earnestly seeking information that she may later impart to that baby when it gets old enough to understand. It was our pleasure to be a visitor on this occasion and we have never seen a group of folks more attentive and eager to receive and appreciate of that which is taken then to enhance their judgment.

Our colored people, not alone in Belleville, but over our entire country, have been sadly and shamefully neglected, in the matter of extending a helping hand, which is the chief hurdle they have to contend with in the race for personal improvement. Others have had every opportunity and are still years behind civilization. We are sure if these progressive members of our colored citizens relax from their backwardness in letting it be known of this organization, and request instruction on questions of the hour, there are many who will not only consider it a duty but a pleasure to give assistance along this line upon being requested to do so. This night they were interested in the matters of taxes. Commissioner William H.

Cast In Little Theater Guild Show

Parents, Attention

Belleville High School teachers discovered instructing pupils in the art of make-up!

Ninety pupils detained after school, forced to subject themselves to the improprieties of lip-stick, paint and powder!

Boys are compelled to wear violent red suits!

Girls taught to dance in wooden shoes and Dutch dresses!

Names of these ninety pupils will appear in next week's local papers. Will your daughter's name be among them? If so, she will appear in Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts" March 18 and 19 in Belleville High School.

Many Will Take Part In Testimonial

Dinner Planned For Henry Underwood

Popular Resident Who Has Lived Here Many Years Was

Connected With Town For

Over Thirty Years

Henry W. Underwood, one of the oldest residents of town and for thirty years an official of the town, will be honored at a testimonial dinner to be given him by friends at the Elks' Home Wednesday. Mr. Underwood resigned January 23 as official tax searcher, his last post, which he held six years.

Julius S. Rippel and David L. Kelly, secretary of the Essex County Park Commission, will be among the speakers. Andrew L. Boylan will be toastmaster. More than 100 of the older residents of the town and county are expected to be present.

Mr. Underwood lives at 9 Stephen street with his daughter, Miss Anna Underwood, an English teacher in Belleville High School. He also has a son, A. Gideon Underwood, who is traveling in the South.

The Stephens street home, where Mr. Underwood was born April 17, 1847, was built by his father, Timothy Underwood, who bought the property in 1835 when it was part of the old Stephens estate. Mr. Underwood's father was born in Pennsylvania but his maternal grandfather, John N. Jorammon, was born in Belleville. On his mother's side Mr.

Hillcrest Group Changes Its Name To

Belleville Taxpayers' Association, Inc.

Action Was Taken Because Of The Popular Response To Organization Which Is Town-Wide

In Its Scope

At a special meeting called for the purpose on Monday evening, February 29, the Hillcrest Taxpayers' Association voted unanimously to change its name to Belleville Taxpayers Association, Inc. This action was taken because of the popular response to the idea of forming an association of this sort and to remove the idea of sectional interest. In the future the association will direct its activities to town wide taxing situations.

Final arrangements were made for the mass meeting to be held at the Recreation House on Monday, March 7, at 8:30 P. M. Senator William H. Parry, well known to Belleville residents will be the guest speaker and will speak on taxation and organizations of taxpayers. In addition to this speaker, there will be members of the state association of taxpayers in attendance who will speak on affiliation with the state association.

The public is invited to this meeting and no one will be under obligation to file membership application. Information can be obtained by any Belleville citizen at this meeting as to the aims, ideals and future program of the Belleville Taxpayers Association.

Patrons of the Little Theatre Guild and their guests attending the presentation of "First Night" tomorrow will find it necessary to present their tickets to the "Warden's Office," before being allowed to enter the auditorium of Sing Sing.

Armed guards will protect the safety of the visitors and prevent any of the cast (or audience) from escaping. "Convicts whose good behavior have justified the honor, will act as ushers.

Those playing the part of ushers will be Russell Hoff, Charles Mudl, Archibald MacInness, Harry Estelle, Jr., George Hansen, Alfred Cocks and Robert Aird. Theodore Clarke and Richard Snyder will act as trustees in the Warden's Office.

Guards will be Harry Gimbel, Hugh O'Toole, Richard Fletcher and James Lee.

Committees active during the preparation of this play have been Stage Manager, Donald Collard; Costumes, Alice Chappel, Properties, Kathryn Conklin, Make-up, Katherine Eska, Art Director, Helen Just, Tickets, Mrs. Theodore Clarke, Patrons, Robert Sutherland and Publicity, Mrs. C. W. Morgan. Supervising the coaching has been Mrs. Donald Collard and Mr. C. D. Lewis.

Second row: Gordon Eska, Martin Sauer, Harvey Thompson, Corbin Lewis, Thomas W. Fleming, William Chapman, Hudson Faussell, Fred VanNorden, William Rachel, Ian Munro, William Knowles, Robert Sutherland, Samuel Figurely, Eugene MacNabb and Joe Evangelista.

Others in the cast not in the picture are Eleanor Gleck, W. R. Farmer, E. B. Collard, Donald Collard, Joseph Lay, Fred Evans and Paul Brennan.

William McCartney, sixteen, of 137 Belleville avenue, suffered dislocation of the left collarbone when struck Tuesday night near his home by an automobile driven by Charles A. Schmidt of 23 Irving street, Newark. The driver took the youth to Dr. H. B. Vail of Belleville for treatment.

Upsets County's Equilibrium

John F. Coogan

In an interview with Tax Assessor John F. Coogan, Jr. the Belleville News has learned that he is in favor of a plan which might be well considered for the drafting of a law as regards county properties.

Mr. Coogan states that he believes all county property should be taxed at the prevailing rate in each municipality. The amount of taxes to be added to the present cost of county operations and the cost distributed to each municipality in the same manner as is now in vogue, that is, by the county tax levied on municipalities. This would equally distribute the county cost and relieve a town such as Belleville from an over burden of lost ratables.

If taxes appeared in county budgets it would reflect the real cost of operation and would have a tendency to hinder extravagance in acquiring lands and in limiting elaborate building programs.

Belleville needs relief, and if public sentiment can be aroused sufficiently to demand it, we will get it.

DIGS UP LAW OF 1922 TO

GAIN $100,000 FOR TOWN

Newark And West Orange Follow Suit Based On Coogan's Appeal To County

Tax Board

Wednesday afternoon, before an array of interested county officials and representatives of Essex County municipalities, Belleville ended its appeal to the Essex County Board of Taxation in an effort to regain for Belleville a $100,000 rebate from Essex County.

This, according to Coogan, would mean the equal to a 30 point deduction from the 1932 tax bill.

The decision on the appeal will probably be hurried so the county rate can be determined.

The action was started when on February 4, Assessor Coogan reported to Commissioner William H. Williams the result of this survey of exempted properties, pointing to the burden county property was placing on Belleville.

On February 24 Coogan filed an appeal with the County Tax Board, asking for the benefits the law provided.

If the appeal is granted it will result in a complete upset in the county taxing system.

Commissioner William H. Williams and Assessor Coogan were witnesses in Belleville's behalf with John B. Brown, town attorney, as their legal representative.

In his testimony Coogan brought out that Belleville has 241 acres of County land out of its total town area of 2,050 acres.

He stated that some 23,300 front feet were unoccupied by the County and that while the County Golf Course collected about $52,000 in 1931 from players, Belleville received no part of it.

Coogan's testimony further showed that many houses, tax exempt, due to ownership by the county, were rented to tenants producing revenue to the county, and that one factory exempt since 1930, has been occupied by a manufacturing concern since that time while the town has been deprived of its taxes.

Despite the fact that County Counsel Arthur T. Vanderbilt had branded Belleville's action as ridiculous and absurd, he personally appeared to defend the county with Senator Harrison appearing for the Essex County Park Commission.

At the hearing County Counsel Vanderbilt argued that the laws under which Belleville was appealing were unconstitutional and therefore Belleville could not be granted the rebate.

Town Counsel A. J. Gross appeared for West Orange to enter formal appeal for rebates as West Orange also has the necessary number of acres to receive the rebate.

Arene Chapter Will

Hold Silver Tea

Mrs. Ellen Davis Will Be

Host At Her

Home

Mrs. Ellen Davis, junior past matron of Arene Chapter will give a silver tea at her home, 37 Tappan avenue for the benefit of the Ways and Means committee, Mrs. Mary Page, chairman, the afternoon of March 15. Mrs. Alice Pelz, past matron, will be assisting hostess. The speaker of the afternoon will be Mrs. Norma Bingham of the Newark Evening News. Her subject will be: "The Charm of Living." Open house will be from 2 until 5.

The English tea given by Mrs. Mary Page in her home Friday for the benefit of the Ways and Means committee was well attended and most enjoyable.

The last of the series of six card parties given at the Recreation House by Mrs. Agnes Rainie and her committee for the benefit of Arene Chapter, O. E. S. will take place on March 8, play beginning at 2 P. M. These parties are very companionable and Mrs. Rainie is anxious to have a good attendance at this last for the season.

The second annual banquet of the Fewsmith Men's Club was given last Friday evening with an attendance of 125. Dinner was served in splendid fashion by the wives of the members of the Men's Club. The banquet hall was tastefully decorated in the Club's colors, red and white. The Mosaic Orchestra furnished the dinner music. Community singing was indulged in during the courses, with Frank Siegler leading. Wm. Fleming, Club President, presided as Toastmaster. Mr. Stokton, President of Cumberland University, gave a snappy talk on the South and complimented the Metropolitan area on its hospitality. Mr. Lloyd V. Rawlings, who is connected with the National Guard Flying Corps at Newark Airport, gave a very fine talk on aviation. He has had many years experience as a practical pilot. He told of events in flying all the way from the early days air liners. He insists there is no thrill in flying, however he gets his thrills riding on the Roller Coasters in the amusement parks. Rev. Wm. L. Tucker, connected with one of the large churches in Newark, gave a descriptive lecture on Prison Camps in Siberia. Among the numerous facts and figures about that far away land, we are informed that they have developed Music, Literature, Art, and social service to a very high degree. He told about the entangling influence of politics as applied to these camps. He told about the intimate home life of some of the best families in Siberia. Ex-Judge Fred J. Stickle, Jr., gave a talk about "Relation of the Home to the Court." In his position as Judge he came in very close contact with all kinds of criminal and juvenile cases. He sums it all up in the influence or lack of proper home environment.

"MAN" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 6, 1932.

The Golden Text is: "O man greatly beloved, fear not: peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong" (Daniel 10:19).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Have we not all one father? hath not one God created us? why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother, by profaning the covenant of our fathers?" (Malachi 2:10).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man is not absorbed in Deity, and man cannot lose his individuality, for he reflects eternal Life: nor is he an isolated, solitary idea, for the represents infinite Mind, the sum of all substance" (p. 259).

Next Sunday morning, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. Other services will be held as usual.

CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.
Rev. Peter R. Deekenbach, Rector.

Fourth Sunday in Lent. Holy communion at the 11 o'clock service; sermon topic, "Discipleship."

Evening prayer and sermon at 7:45. Rev. J. Foster Savidge, rector of the Church of The Holy Communion, Norwood, will be the preacher.

Mr. Deekenbach was the preacher at last evening's Lenten service. His topic was "Neither Do I Condemn You."

"Modern Problems in the Light of Scripture Teaching" will be the subject of the last lecture in the course, which Mr. Deekenbach will deliver his afternoon, before the Rutherford Women's Interdenominational Bible Class.

Wednesday evening was Rector's Night at the meeting of the Girl's Friendly Society, and Mr. Deekenbach spoke to the girls, taking for his subject "The Best Pilot." Mrs. Martha Beck and her group of high school freshmen, assisted by Miss Ruth L. Williamson as deputy, are in charge of the March meetings. There will be a trip through the Mountain Lee Company's plant at North Newark, on Thursday afternoon of next week, March 10, at 2 P. M. Open to everyone, and it is hoped a large number of G. F. S. mothers and others will attend as tickets are only thirty-five cents, and the proceeds are to purchase articles for a missionary box, which the G. F. S. takes care of. Delicious refreshments are served by the company, and a lecture and tour of the plant, complete the program. On March 16, a box of partly worn, and second hand clothing is to be packed and members and friends of the G. F. S. are asked to contribute any such garments, as may be available.

The following named women will represent Christ Church, at the New Jersey State Commission for the Blind: Mrs. J. Harry Edwards, Mrs. Mary J. Lloyd, Mrs. Edward Nelson and Mrs. George Schmeltz. The week given over to this purpose is March 14 to 20 in Newark, and Episcopal women are in charge on Tuesday, March 15. The Woman's Auxiliary will hold its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, in the club room of the parish house. The president, Mrs. Edward Nelson, will preside. Plans are to be made for the layettes to be given to the Church Mission of Help in Newark. This is comfort club work, and members are asked to contribute money, if they feel they can.

William J. Brady is in charge of general arrangements.

Every Man's Bible Class

Every member of the Every Man's Bible Class who could possibly be present turned out for the annual stag party of that organization last Monday night. What a night. To start with the tables were arranged in shape of the letter U with chairs on both sides, during a snappy overture by the Mosaic Orchestra lead by George Snodgrass, about a hundred of the members took their places, then things started to happen and didn't stop until eleven thirty.

Chester Roraback chairman and Master of Ceremonies with the help of Frank Siegler organized an impromptu Minstrel show, lined up some chairs and picked their talent out of the audience with the following line up. John Ray and Frank Siegler, end men; William Moulton gave a recitation of civil war days; Tom Davenport sang "Home." Clarence Brower a clever acrobatism was well received, Jerome Conti gave an up-to-date reading, Frank Siegler sang "River Stay Away From My Door" and Doc Cairns finished off with ten minutes of limbericks. Between the above numbers a constant cross fire of gags took place between the two end men and Mr. Roraback who acted as interlocutor. Most of the gags were directed at members of the class. During the action of the minstrel a comedy sketch "The Federal Agent" was enacted by Siegler, Ray, and Roraback.

Immediately following this program lunch was served and Doc Cairns was introduced as Toastmaster instead of William Bradshaw who was slated for the job. Mr. Bradshaw being called away on account of sickness. Several men were called upon in this session and gave a good account of themselves. There was a large amount of food left over and this was turned over to Mr. Fitzsimmons chairman of a committee who will give it out to the needy. We understand plans are underway for a ladies night in April.

A special and a cordial invitation is extended to all those who have in any way been connected with the work and the life of Grace Church through the past years.

Local Girl Engaged, Brother's Marriage Told

The engagement of Miss Gertrude Riskey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Riskey of 116 Mill street, and Edward Kuiken, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuiken of Fairlawn, was announced at a bridge party at Miss Riskey's home Saturday night. A large red and gold mail box, used as a centerpiece, held heart-shaped announcement cards from which ribbons ran to small replicas at each place. At a signal each guest pulled a streamer and received an announcement card.

Miss Riskey was born in Belleville and is a graduate of St. Vincent's Academy, Newark. Mr. Kuiken is a graduate of Fairlawn High School.

Mrs. William F. Riskey Jr., of the Mill street address, whose marriage to Miss Riskey's brother took place January 3 at Sacred Heart Church, Lyndhurst, made the party the occasion for public announcement of the wedding. The bride was Miss Jean Demkow of Lyndhurst and is the daughter of Benjamin Demkow of that township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. J. McDermott of Sacred Heart Church. The marriage was kept secret a month and then was announced to the families only.

The bridge party guests were the Misses Agnes Tryna and Jennie Kuiken of Fairlawn, Helen Dzurilla of Carteret, Mrs. J. B. Durant, Miss Dorothy Durant, and Mrs. David Hurley of Lyndhurst, Miss Agnes Gray of Maplewood, Miss Alice Healy of Hillside, Miss Jean Powers of Nutley, Miss Betty Kirby of Bloomfield, Miss Peggy Boylan and Miss Marie McNally of Newark, and the Misses Marjorie Hageman and Lillian Shanahan and Miss Riskey's mother of Belleville.

Two Chicago Bankers Prominent In Drive Against Depression

Charles G. Dawes (left), Chairman of the New Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago Banker.

CHICAGO and the Middle West have a double interest in the success of the gigantic Reconstruction Finance Corporation which is now being organized in Washington following speedy action by Congress.

Charles G. Dawes, whose name is almost synonymous for the business community of Chicago will sit in the driver's seat as the active head of the great $2,000,000,000 Federal corporation just authorized by Congress.

Another Chicago banker, a Democrat who is being repeatedly mentioned as a man of Presidential timber, has the distinction of making a vital contribution to the initial strength and success of the Reconstruction Corporation. That man is Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, who was the first to visualize and propose that the Reconstruction Corporation render some service to thousands of depositors of small banks which had failed during the past two years. The gist of Mr. Traylor's proposal before a Senate Sub-Committee was that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be authorized to make loans to closed banks as well as to financial institutions and others needing its aid. Such a step would release substantial amounts of money to depositors whose funds had been "frozen" by the failure of such banks.

Mr. Traylor's suggestion made such an impression that it was embodied in the Bill as finally passed by Congress. He, more than any other man, is responsible for the timely assistance that will now be possible for many depositors of small banks throughout the country.

Features You Read In Big Dailies Now Appear In The News

Starting with this issue the News presents a complete magazine and woman's feature section to its readers.

Each week there will appear a column by the world famous Arthur Brisbane and two columns by Fannie Hurst, the novelist, as well as a Beauty Talk by Marjorie Duncan, famous beauty expert. In addition to comics, world pictures and woman's features, its four-page section contains a serial story, The House of the Three Ganders by Irving Bacheller.

Three youths were arrested Saturday night in Belleville on charges of carrying concealed weapons and conspiring to hold up a Nutley butcher shop. They were held in $25,000 bail each for the grand jury by Recorder Fitzsimmons of Belleville.

They were trailed several miles by Belleville policemen. Upon their arrest they are said to have admitted planning to hold up the store of William Elser at 92 Center street, Nutley. Frank Rose, one of those held is a Nutley youth. He resides at 55 King street.

Williams and Tax Assessor John P. Coogan, Jr. explained the way assessments are determined. Commissioner Williams, Director of Revenue and Finance explained why the tax rate is either high or low.

Besides the instructive talk by these gentlemen, they volunteered to answer any questions not covered. Several were asked and answered to the entire satisfaction of all present.

This meeting was opened with a song, joined in by all present, followed by prayer by Rev. George

Wilson. Vocal and instrumental music augmented the enjoyment of the evening.

Some of the artists participating were as follows: Piano, Miss Bessie Burns; violin, Miss Cora Stout; bass solo, Edison Satter; violin solo, Miss Cora Stout; piano accompaniment, Miss Audrey Robinson; vocal duet, James Bunn and James Lyons; benediction, Rev. Andrew Gale, pastor of the church, who afterwards used his prerogative to continue the religious custom, by taking up a collection. Refreshments were served in the church basement. Meetings are held the last Friday in the month and a cordial invitation is extended to all friends.

The folks should be encouraged in every way in this commendable undertaking.

All's Not Quiet

tractors appeared before the local commissioners in conference Tuesday afternoon and requested that his client be relieved of his contract as town scavenger and that the certified check put up for security, be returned.

Mr. Gorman's request was based on the fact that James Couzzo, another garbage bidder was at present bringing action against the town, claiming that the bid was not awarded fairly. He also said that his client due to financial difficulties had to borrow the money to put up the check as security and that he now needed said cash, but could not get his check due to the existing suit.

As a possible means of settling the question, Mr. Gorman suggested that Couzzo withdraw his suit upon Viola's assurance that he (Viola) would not accept a contract with the town, thus, giving everyone a choice to rebid.

After considerable discussion the fact was brought to light that all checks had been returned to the unsuccessful bidders and the town was free to do business with Viola and Sons. Couzzo asked how come he was out. He said that his attorney had submitted a check in place of the bonds originally offered for security. Mayor Kennworthy explained that such a move was not permitted and that he (Couzzo) would not get a chance to rebid even if he won the court decision. The Mayor added: "You haven't a ghost of a show anyway."

The problem was turned over to Town Attorney John B. Brown and William Gorman, Viola's attorney for discussion.

Another Job
Mayor Kennworthy announced the appointment of Doctor Goldberg of Washington Avenue as a temporary assistant to Doctor Vail at a yearly salary of $1,000. The mayor stated that the salary would be taken out of the unemployment relief fund and that Doctor Goldberg could be considered as an assistant in the Poor Department.

Williams succeeded in placing $65,000 in short-term tax revenue bonds with the First National Bank and $35,000 with the People's National Bank & Trust Co. The teachers waited after the school closing hour to receive their checks and the town employees received theirs during the late afternoon and Tuesday night.

The nine New Jersey railroads submit 3 timely questions to the other property owners of the State

1. Why are the property owners of New Jersey required to contribute $86,249,471 annually for the maintenance and improvement of New Jersey's highways, when ALL the motor vehicle owners of the State pay only $26,794,757?

Those figures do not include the heavy annual expense of policing the highways or the yearly cost of the activities of our Courts in highway cases.

$26,794,757 is the annual highway tax contribution of ALL motor vehicle owners in the State. But the records show that less than 5% of the State's total automobile registration is represented by motor trucks of the size usually operated for profit on our highways.

2. Why should the property owners who are footing 75% of the State's annual highway bill hand over the entire New Jersey highway investment to the motor truck carriers for their free use in an unregulated, almost untaxed and purely profit-making enterprise?

In order to carry on their business, the railroads of the State have had to make a total investment of nearly $600,000,000, on which they are paying annual taxes of $23,468,371. Of this sum, $12,336,335 is used for educational purposes, $1,485,477 for highways and $9,646,559 for all other purposes; whereas virtually all the money paid as taxes by the motor trucks is definitely earmarked for the highways. Moreover, though New Jersey ranks 43rd in the amount of taxes levied on motor trucks operating for profit, it collects in taxes from the railroads two and one-half times as much per mile of railroad as any other State.

3. Is it fair that the railroads of New Jersey, operating a semi-public enterprise which is vital to the welfare of our citizens, should be regulated strictly and taxed more heavily than the railroads of any other State, when their competitors — the motor trucks operating for profit — are absolutely unregulated, relatively untaxed and heavily subsidized?

These motor truck carriers are free to charge what they will; they can skim the cream of the freight business and laugh at the rest; they are unrestricted as to the wages they pay and the hours of service they require; they run where they please and at their own convenience, and they can hammer and pound away on the costly highways of the State secure in the understanding that the taxpayers foot all bills for road maintenance and replacement!

Make no mistake about the viewpoint of the railroads. It is not their desire that unnecessarily burdensome taxation, regulations or restrictions should be imposed on their competitors. What they do seek, and what they feel they deserve as a matter of plain justice is an equality of opportunity to compete in the transportation field which they have developed and in which they are and always will be indispensable to the welfare of the State and its people.

BELLEVILLE MEN "ON THE JOB"

THE appeal of Belleville to the Essex County Tax Board has created county-wide interest. The legal staff and officials of every municipality in the county are studying statutes as well as their local costs incurred by county property as exempt property.

The appeal for $100,000 of credit or rebate, based on over 200 acres of property heretofore considered exempt from taxation is based on Chapter 130, Laws of 1922, and an amendment to above law, Chapter 176, Laws of 1928.

County Counsel Vanderbilt submitted an opinion that both above laws were not constitutional; that the Essex County Park Commission is not a county institution; that the appeal of Belleville was impractical.

Former Senator Harrison representing the Park Commission stated this body was a separate political entity and corporate body as distinct as the State of New Jersey or the City of Newark.

Town Counsel Grosseau of West Orange disagreed with Counsels Harrison and Vanderbilt, quoting court decisions that specifically stated County Park Commissions were part of County Government and quoting opinions that defined a public institution as any organized activity, operated for benefit of county.

Can our taxpayers agree that it is impractical to establish an equitable distribution of the exempt burden as recommended by Tax Assessor John F. Coogan, Jr., and Director William H. Williams? Are not the taxpayers of Belleville entitled to practical treatment, or must we conclude that the town should continue without our officials seeking every possible aid our laws appear to offer. Lack of initiative in the past and many impractical moves and errors of omission as well as errors of commission indicate that initiative of this type must be encouraged by taxpayers and business people.

The effort to aid taxpayers on the part of Messrs. Williams and Coogan is further supported by their study of the acreage on Joramelon street now utilized as cemetery property and operated as a private corporation without taxation. No other private business appears to be tax exempt, and the assessment of $50,000 on this property develops another interesting question.

The work of our financial department officials impels us to state that men of initiative and ability are available for public office. An initiative of similar type on the part of voters on their once-in-four-years' opportunity may produce a business regime at the Town Hall through which economical government and tax relief can develop.

LUNKHEADEDNESS AND INDIFFERENCE

A RECENT speaker in a nearby town attributed much of the economic distress in local government to LUNKHEADEDNESS on the part of the officials.

Lunkheadedness isn't expounded by Mr. Webster, but it seems to describe perfectly the conduct of several of our public servants.

In another part of his address, the speaker also bemoaned the INDIFFERENCE of the people. Everyone, whether he owns property or not, is a taxpayer. He should, therefore, make certain that the proper men are given the office of distributing his taxes. He should see that, through his indifference, LUNKHEADS do not attain such positions.

HOME TRAVEL GREATER

THE transporation of the Department of Commerce assures us that tourist travel is not being much affected by economic conditions, in fact that it has increased within a year. But that means home travel, it is proper to state.

The assistant chief of the division told the International Travel Federation the other day that "just now, when many industries are experiencing difficulties, it is of interest to note that travel and its related activities is showing the least effect from such conditions. In fact, some indication point to the remarkable anomaly that tourist travel in the United States increased during 1930 and 1931. One of the causes advanced for this increase in domestic travel is that American tourist travel abroad had decreased and that many who heretofore spent vacations in foreign countries decided that it was the opportune time to visit the many attractions which we have right here in the United States."

That's it precisely. Home travel is cheaper and, natural wonders considered, as interesting as foreign. "See America first" is a slogan that has not yet outlived its value.

"ROAD MOPES" SAFER

WE hear a great deal from time to time about the danger created on our highways by the "road mopes," the men who drive their cars slowly and cautiously. The common saying is that they are a constant menace by reason of their deceleration, and that they hold up the whole line of traffic and arouse the temptation of faster drivers to cut out of line, and thus make dangerous conditions for others.

There is something in that argument, of course. The road mope may be a source of irritation to the general run of motorists, but the reckless driver is a much more dangerous type.

The attempt to show that the man who operates his automobile slowly is a greater potential danger to others than is he who drives with excessive speed, flies in the face of common sense and logic.

Covered Luncheon

The covered dish-luncheon given by group 2 at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Gertrude Blum of Tiona avenue, Wednesday, was just another of the pleasant successes that featured all affairs of Belleville Chapter during the past year.

The table was spread beautifully and fifty-six jolly women thoroughly enjoyed the lunch. Cards were voted "off" for the afternoon as those present thought the day too beautiful to spend indoors. Mrs. Dorothea Herrmann, Worthy Matron, was busy greeting members and friends and everyone was made so welcome. Mrs. Blum made an ideal hostess.

Objects To Federal Gasoline Tax

February 24, 1932

Editor News:

The proposed Federal gasoline tax of one cent per gallon should be vigorously opposed, not only by the automobile and petroleum industries, but by all interested in an early return to prosperity. The extent to which the country is dependent on a prosperous automotive industry has been amply demonstrated during the past two trying years. The general use of the automobile, whether for business or pleasure, is an immeasurably important factor in our economic structure.

The following figures are from an address of W. R. Boyd, Jr., executive vice president of the American Petroleum Institute, before the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives at Washington recently:

"The 26,523,779 motor vehicles registered last year were valued at approximately $5,460,000,000. The aggregate tax paid by the owners amounted to $1,046,000,000 or 18.5 per cent.

"This aggregate special, or class tax upon the motor vehicle owner was about 10 per cent of all the taxes of all kinds collected in the United States by all governmental divisions. "And, remember, the motor vehicle owner also paid the same ordinary taxes paid by all other citizens."

"The gasoline tax alone cost him $549,150,000, yet this proposed federal tax of a cent a gallon would take another $160,000,000 from the motor vehicle owners."

"Who pays the gasoline tax? Two-thirds of all car buyers have annual incomes of $3,000 or less; 93 per cent of all cars sold last year had a wholesale value of less than $1,000 each, 85 per cent sold for less than $750 and 65 per cent less than $500. In other words, of the 1,900,000 new car buyers in 1931, 1,600,000 purchased cars costing less than $750 each.

"The average price of all new cars sold last year was $768 and of trucks $824. More than 5,000,000 cars and trucks are owned by farmers; 85 per cent of the commercial motor trucks were owner operated, 26 per cent by farmers. Thus it can readily be seen, that any federal tax on gasoline will fall most heavily on the farmer and the wage-earner, the men who can least afford it."

The original gasoline tax bill was proposed in the Oregon legislature by Louis Bean, of Eugene, Ore., in 1917, but failed of passage. In 1919 James S. Stewart, of Fossil, Ore., and C. C. Chapman, of Portland, Ore., interested the Committee on Roads and Highways in sponsoring a gasoline tax bill, and it was passed virtually as drawn by L. M. Graham, attorney of Forest Grove, Ore., a member of the Committee.

Becoming effective February 25, 1919, with a tax rate of only one cent per gallon, the levy produced $290,796 for Oregon in 1919. Colorado, New Mexico and North Dakota, adopting similar bills in 1919, collected enough more to lift the motorists' first contribution to roads through such a levy to a total of $1,022,514. Last year it is estimated motorists in forty-eight states and the District of Columbia paid $549,150,000 in gasoline taxes. Total gasoline tax revenue since 1919 has been $2,314,147,064.

Here are some more startling facts:

Gasoline tax rates now range from two cents to seven cents per gallon. The average gasoline tax now imposed throughout the United States exceeds four cents per gallon. The average price of gasoline received by the refiner is approximately four cents per gallon. Hence, the present tax is 100 per cent of the wholesale price realized by refiners.

The average price of crude oil at the well during 1930 was 67 cents per barrel. The gasoline tax in 1931 was $549,150,000 which is equal to 64½ cents per barrel on the entire crude oil production of the United States, or 97 per cent of the gross value of the crude oil.

The tax is already so exorbitant that it has produced fraudulent tax evasion which, in many parts of the country, has reached the proportions of a criminal "racket."

The tax burden upon gasoline imposed by the several states is already unfair, exorbitant and discriminatory. This burden is a contributing cause of the depression in both the petroleum and automotive industries. In the interest of economic recovery every citizen should protest against the proposed Federal tax on gasoline.

Yours very truly,
TAXPAYER.

SPENDING OUT OF TOWN

The fact that the local Teachers' Association will hold its annual banquet at the Down Town Club of the City of Newark, on March 15 has already caused some rumors of resentment among certain groups. It was learned from authentic sources that members of the house committee of the Elks' Club did not receive the news in a very jovial manner, but rather answered in the parlance of Broadway: "Oh Yeah? How about our club?" at first hearing of the event.

The Elks Club is in a position to serve groups ranging from one to five hundred persons. Recently it handled the dinner tendered John J. Daly, catering to a group of 300. It also joys and prides itself in having a noted chef who received his training in Berlin and London.

There is some justification for the annoyance since the taxes on the Elks Club amount to about $3,000 yearly or practically $40 per week. This circumstance only recalls the displeasure the local jewelers enjoyed when last year George R. Gerard was presented at a teachers' banquet in Newark by the local teachers, without even consulting Belleville's jewelers. It is understood one of the more popular watchmakers and jewelers pays the town a tax of $600 annually on his real estate holdings.

Perhaps the teachers follow the good old Jeffersonian philosophy: "Life, liberty and present happiness" and do these things without malice or intent for really "where there is no intent there is no crime."

CITIZEN.

Now It's "Passaic"

In line with the buy out of town policy of Mayor Samuel Sampson Kenworthy, Commissioners William D. Clark and Patrick A. Waters trucks labeled "City of Passaic" are collecting Belleville garbage.

Probably the next step of these men will be to give away Belleville to Nutley or Newark. Who knows what they will do?

PUBLIC HEALTH

by Dr. Edwin F. Hahn

ORDINARY SORE THROAT

This rather common affliction is most prevalent during the late winter and early spring months. It occurs most frequently in the early years of life although no one is exempt.

The cause primarily is some form of infection in the vast majority of instances. Many of the so-called diseases of childhood are ushered in by a sore throat. This is readily understood when we remember that a great many infectious diseases gain entrance into the body by way of the nose and throat. The parts most frequently involved are the tonsils, although in severe instances, the entire throat including the walls of the pharynx, the soft palate, the adenoids and vocal box is involved. Severe throat infections are often accompanied by inflammation and enlargement of the glands of the neck, the so-called cervical adenitis.

The symptoms of sore throat are too well known to merit mention here, but a word of caution—in children too young to describe their symptoms or complaints during either acute or chronic attacks, the nose and throat should always be investigated.

Individuals subject to repeated attacks of throat infection have in all probability one or more foci of infection in that neighborhood, as for instance the various nasal sinuses, adenoid growths or the tonsils themselves. These should carefully be sought out and removed. If it is established that sinuses are the offending factors they should be promptly treated either surgically or otherwise. If tonsils, removal is the treatment destined to give best results. Permitted to remain these sources of infection render any local treatment of the throat of little or no avail. In addition they frequently act as excellent media for the growth of germs and production of their poisons which from here are taken into the system by way of either the blood or lymph streams. As a result there follows sooner or later anemia and in many cases inflammation of the joints (arthritis, acute or chronic) inflammation of the delicate membrane of the valves of the heart, causing valvular heart trouble; serious kidney involvement and other conditions.

A sore throat therefore should not be looked upon as a trivial matter and permitted to remain untreated. Copyright 1931, Medical News Service.

Health questions will be answered by Dr. Hahn. Write him in care of this paper. The answer will be published in our next issue.

About Books

by Cyrus Wood

By CYRUS WOOD

Today's review written by a guest reviewer,
MR. ALEXANDER TAYLOR.

Foolish blunders in great historical situations seldom become common knowledge because of our irremediable habit of making either heroes or villains of the great men who direct those situations. We can easily, it seems, believe either great good or great evil of our major historical figures, but we have trouble persuading ourselves that they are merely human, and sometimes, even, not quite bright. "Revaluations," (Oxford University Press) is a collection of short biographies which, while not given to idol-smashing, seeks to give a truer conception of some of the great and near-great.

In the last year war leaders on both sides committed blunder after colossal blunder. The Germans' first surprise gas attack, for example, opened a hole miles wide in the Allied line which went entirely undetected for nearly 24 hours, but the Germans failed to take advantage of their opportunity. Similarly, the British tanks, instead of being kept secret until large numbers could be used in a smashing surprise attack, were sent into action in half-dozen at first, so that the Germans were fully prepared for them when they were used in quantity six months later. Perhaps the greatest blunder of all was the foolish misuse of the British army, a blunder which this book lays to the dominance of French military opinion in British war councils, and to the fixity in the mind of Marshal Foch of the erroneous principle that mere morale and weight of numbers can be effective against an entrenched enemy. For three hundred years the British arm, though small, had been highly effective because it had functioned more or less as an auxiliary of the peerless British navy. During the great war, the half-hearted and mismanaged effort at the Dardanelles was the only semblance of its traditional "amphibious" action. Instead, British manhood was wasted in the Flemish meadows, under the unhappy campaigning of a command that did not understand the nature of trench tactics until the war was nearly over. Of course it is easy to pick flaws after the shooting is over, and if Captain Hart's essay on Foch did only that it would be worthless. But he is not "debunking" the Allied Generalissimo; he is rather showing how his military schooling determined his strategy, and how that schooling had to be supplanted before victory could come.

That luckless woman, Mary Queen of Scots, is the subject of a penetrating evaluation by G. K. Chesterton. "I wood like to be a collehmist," writes R. H. Val, old haly yoo out, R. H. end wan yoo make copple millions yoo cood pay me. Vot yoo say hott dot, eh?

A bit of wisdom: "It's easier to court in jest than it is to jest in court."

By MORRIS UDANSKY

For jeers and jeers and jeers peepul have believed that the sun and the moon and the revolving of the earth and some more of that stuff that astronomers fill us with was what caused us to have Leap Year—but folks, you have—and I have—been all wet about that—and as a member in good standing of the Hot Air Company I must believe and live up to the code of helping and enlightening humanity and localities—so if you'll sit tight for a couple shakes ("Go away Volstead")—I'll help and enlighten you on the wise and wherefores of this thing called Leap Year—

In the first place there's three hundred and sixty-five daze in every year—I know because I counted them—and everybody sleeps about eight hours every day—except school kids—they do a lotta sleepin' in school—but we'll forget that—now if you sleep eight hours that means you sleep a hundred and twenty-two days every year—which leaves two hundred and forty-three daze, dope—and then we have to work every day—if you forget there's a depression—and we work about eight hours every day—which puts the skids to another hundred and ten daze or so—now what have we left—let's see—a hundred and ten from two hundred and forty-three leaves—wait a minute, I'll get it—110 from 243 leaves 133—yea, that's it, there's a hundred and thirty-three left to figger with now—and a person has to eat—and it takes about two hours every day to do that—which knocks off dirty-dree daze—gooness gracious, how time flies—we've only got a hundred daze left now—and we girls have a lotta dressin' an' undressin' to do you know—we dress when we get up—we dress when we go out—we dress when we come in—then we dress to go out again—or we dress to stay in—and then we top it off by undressin' to go to bed—and that means we spent considerable time "dressin' and undressin' but we'll figger it light and say we spent an hour and a half every day at it—which means we spent about forty-five daze dressin' and undressin'—that leaves us with fifty-five daze to get rid of—that's an easy thing for this town to take care of—it takes a gud hour to go to work from these parts and it takes another hour to get home from work—that takes off another fifty daze or so—glory be, there's only five daze left to this year new—and what an awful backache I've got or maybe its grippie—anyhow I'd better stay in bed for a few days—no tellin' what I might get if I don't take care—and we stay in bed for those five daze while we think we're sick and there's not a minute left to make plenty whoopee or get soused or go to the movies or anything—that, my dears, is the reason we have a leap year—in that one day you can go out and enjoy yourself—if you're not broke—so don't believe all you hear about the sun and the earth and the moon causin' it—the bookin' agents and the show peepul are the guys behind it all—and they're not payin' me to explain it to you cyether—honest.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile
—Without CalomelAnd You'll Jump Out of Bed
in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not being freely, your body doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, this often breaks out in blisters. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes the good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, assisting when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

Sponsor Open ForumCommissioner Williams and Judge Fitzsimmons Will Speak At Affair

The Progress Club of the Congregation A. A. A. will sponsor an open Forum Monday evening, March 14, at the Community Center. The Ladies Auxiliary and the Junior league have given their entire cooperation in order to make this affair possible.

The entertainment committee of the Progress Club consists of Samuel Lindbaum, Morris Gottschalk, Samuel Kalishman, Jack Goldberg and Barney Miller. They have secured the utmost assistance and cooperation of Mrs. Morris Berkowitz and Miss Bertha Udsansky who are respectively the chairladies of the Ladies Auxiliary and the Junior League.

Commissioner William H. Williams and Judge George Fitzsimmons will be the speakers of the evening.

There will be dancing, refreshments and many forms of entertainment.

The Progress Club is planning to run a great number of social affairs in the near future.

Boy Scout Leaders Wanted

Editor Belleville News:

Those who having seen the work of the Boy Scouts of America from the inside know its inestimable values, should work to the end that the time shall come when the influence will be more widely extended over boys. At present there are ten boys outside its ranks for every one within them. Added leadership would mean greater numbers of Scouts. The activities of Scouting are run almost entirely by volunteer man-power and it is the lack of leaders that prevents its nine out of ten from not becoming Scouts. Every Church, School and Community Centre is a potential Scout meeting place for boys. There are thousands who are clamoring to get in. All Scouting in Belleville lacks is men to lead them on.

Belleville Scouting has the facilities for making a good Scout leader out of any man who is sufficiently interested in the boys to give of his time. All that is necessary is the desire to do one's "Good Turn Daily". There are dozens of men in Belleville who would welcome the opportunity to enter Scouting if this matter was brought to their attention. We, who are serving in Scouting, can assure them tenfold payment for their efforts in the comradeship of the boys and the joy of accomplishment.

We would appeal to any of your readers who are interested in joining Scouting in some capacity or other, to get in touch with the Deputy Commissioner of the Belleville District, Harry Brumbach, 100 Little street, Phone Belleville 3-2677 for particulars as to how they might be helpful.

A. A. BUCKLEY, President, Belleville District.

Business Girls Play

At Moose Court

Tomorrow Night

The Belleville Girl All-Stars, a basketball team composed of local business girls will take on the girls' quintet of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, at the local Moose Hall Saturday evening.

The game will be a preliminary to the usual Saturday night game at the hall.

Both teams are of short existence and are well manned by some of the finest of local feminine basketball players and an exciting contest is promised those attending Saturday night's game.

This marks the first appearance of the teams on the Moose floor, so let's give the young ladies a big hand by coming out and rooting for them.

BREEZY BITS

The Thursday luncheon and bridge club including Mrs. Albert Bormann, Mrs. W. George Hunt, Mrs. Robert Ball, Mrs. Lathrop VanOrden, Mrs. Frank Giraud, Mrs. William Robinson, Mrs. Ernest Hodgson and Mrs. Griffith Casler are meeting today with Mrs. Giraud, and next week Mrs. Hodgson will be hostess. Wednesday the group spent the day in New York, shopping, luncheon and matinee, and in the evening husbands met them for a dinner and a pleasant time afterwards.

Mrs. Helen Kellenbence of Stephens street was hostess to a sewing group Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Charles S. Smith, president of the Belleville Woman's Club, attended the annual legislative luncheon at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, in Trenton, Monday. She thoroughly enjoyed the day and the many interesting speakers. Mrs. Katherine Case presided, and Mrs. M. Caswell Heinie, State Federation President, gave greetings. Governor A. Harry Moore spoke on economy and co-operation. Dean Douglas of the Woman's College at New Brunswick addressed the women on colleges, and especially the library connected with the New Brunswick College. She stated that fourteen people from Canada visited the library and complimented it highly. James Brooks, vice president of the Sanitary Milk Association of New York, gave an interesting talk along the lines of milk sanitation. Senator A. C. Reeves, president of the Senate, gave a brief address on taxation and economy. The old serious question of unemployment was discussed by Spencer Miller, Jr., of the work and education bureau of New York.

The chorus of the Belleville Woman's Club rehearsed in the high school Tuesday morning. They are preparing for the concert to be given in April for the benefit of the Woman's Club.

The sample ballot is out for election of officers in the Belleville Woman's Club, and the ticket looks interesting for there is opposition for all offices. Delegates for the convention also alternates have no opposition.

Mrs. George Bergstreser of Division avenue entertained at luncheon last week for her sister, Mrs. William Likfield, also Mrs. Anna Groves and Mrs. Charles Breeze of Paterson, afterwards Mrs. Bergstreser took her guests to a card party at the home of Mrs. George Cannon given for the benefit of the Grocery Booth for the bazaar to be held in Pewsouth Church March 10-11.

Mrs. Edgar Noble of Division avenue will be hostess to a bridge group Tuesday afternoon. Members are Mrs. Harry VanOrden of Newark, Mrs. Henry Day, Mrs. John Weber, Mrs. Horace B. Winslow, Mrs. Frank Cure, Mrs. Margaret Norris of Belleville and Mrs. Arthur Waller of Glen Ridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Meriz of Union avenue, entertained at dinner Friday night for Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Peoples, and Fred Whitesell of Newark. Mrs. Marian Parker of Flemington and Kenneth Baldwin of Bloomfield.

Mrs. Frank Cure of Belleville avenue, entertained a group of friends at luncheon and bridge Tuesday. They were Mrs. Horace Winslow, Mrs. John Weber, Mrs. Margaret Norris, Mrs. Roy Brooks of Belleville; Mrs. Arthur Waller and Mrs. Arthur Waller, Jr., of Glen Ridge, Mrs. Fred Baldwin of Bloomfield. At the last session honors went to Mrs. Weber and Mrs. Norris.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Adams and daughters the Misses Esther and Hazel Adams of Rossmore place attended a twenty-third wedding anniversary dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Colin MacKenzie Ferguson of New York City Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hozack and son James Hozack Jr., of Union avenue and their father Robert Hozack of Little street have returned from a motor trip of three weeks to points south. They visited St. Petersburg, Clearwater, Miami, Palm Beach and many other points of interest. They found the trip most enjoyable and the weather clear and warm.

LIBRARY NEWS

Many people coming into the library in their search for books, fail to look around and see the other advantages offered.

Do you know the magazines on building and house beautifying that may be found on the magazine racks?

American Home, Arts and Decoration, Country Life, Delicacies, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Bazaar, Home and Garden, Ladies' Home Journal, McCall's, Pictorial Review, Vogue, Women's Home Companion. Can you afford to miss seeing them when they do not cost you anything?

To Elect

Election of officers will feature the Tuesday evening meeting of Good Will Council, Royal Ladies of the Royal Arcanum at 137 Broadway, Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Corbin Lewis of Tona avenue had as week-end guest Mr. Lewis' mother, Mrs. D. Ward Lewis of Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Meriz of Essex street are at the Hotel Morton, Atlantic City for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porter of Belleville avenue entertained Mr. and Mrs. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Belanske on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hozack and sons Robert and Jack of Tappan avenue are leaving shortly for a motor trip to Florida and points south. They probably will not return until warm weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Proven and son Thomas Proven Jr., of Little street, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Francisco of Belrose, L. I. formerly of West Orange. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Westbrook of East Rutherford.

Miss Katherine Eska of DeWitt avenue gave a surprise birthday party Saturday evening for her fiancé Robert G. Sutherin. Eighteen guests were present from Belleville, Newark, Yonkers and Montclair. Games and dancing with a late buffet supper passed the time very pleasantly.

There was an Ice Carnival and Exhibition by the Olympic Figure Skaters at the Ice Club, New York City, sponsored by the Foreign Language Department of the Montclair State Teachers' College, on Monday evening, February 29. Miss Bertha R. Mumford, a student, and Kenneth M. Crossley of Newark, were among those who attended.

H. W. UNDERWOOD

Underwood is a descendant of Anneke Jans, over whose grant of land where Trinity Church now stands in New York City much litigation arose, and on his father's from Israel Underwood of Revolutionary War service.

The evolution of transportation from river barges and stage coaches has been witnessed by Mr. Underwood. He has known only three days' sickness in his life.

In 1894 he was elected to the Township Committee, soon afterwards became chairman and was re-elected to that office four consecutive terms. He has been chairman of the Board of Health, a member of the Board of Education, town assessor and treasurer and a trustee of the Essex County Hospital. It was his experience to sign a bond for improvement bonds to the amount of $65,000 in 1895 and to pay off the last of them as deputy director of the Department of Revenue and Finance seven years ago.

Mr. Underwood refrains from "looking backwards." His interests are wholly modern and during the last three years he has flown thousands of miles by airplane. He possesses a number of antiques and is presenting to the New Jersey Historical Society a pulpit Bible, published in 1748, used in the old Dutch Reformed Church of Belleville.

The committee arranging the dinner includes Homer C. Zink, August Plenge, George A. Phasimmons, Floyd F. Bragg, William M. Cagg, Mr. Boylan, Martin Griffin, Sr., John P. Maher, George E. Stewart, Jr., James Frank, Samuel and Francis Gibson, George E. Gerard, John J. Daly, Charles Kelly, John Breen, Philip Dettelbach, Edward Mathes, E. W. Bechtoldt, Michael J. Flynn, Charles Pearl, Thomas Berry, Joseph Weston, Thomas Fleming, Martin P. Cosgrove, Cleveland Perry, Henry Mason, David Boyd, Alva A. Buckley, Edward W. Jackson, Dr. Herbert B. Vail, John Condon, Joseph King, Dr. E. A. Flynn, George Barry, W. Brand Smith, Herbert Hardman, Dr. Ernest Roock, Frederick Mase, William Hirdes, Joseph Jowle and Raymond Yerg.

Royal Arcanum

Meeting at 137 Broadway tonight. Woodside Council, Royal Arcanum, will feature initiation followed by the usual social hour.

Surprise Party

Charles W. Tarbox of 37 Tona avenue, was guest of honor at a surprise party given at his home Saturday night by friends from Montclair. Old-fashioned games were played in which winners were Arthur Bush of Kansas City, Kan., and Mrs. Nora Reilly of Belleville. John Miller, also of Belleville, entertained with vocal solos accompanied at the piano by James Reilly of that town. Miss Armina Tarbox, daughter of Mr. Tarbox, gave piano selections.

Rainbow Girls Will Hold Meetings in Masonic Hall

Roseville Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls will meet hereafter at Masonic Temple, Jerusalem street, Mrs. Fanny C. Black State Supreme Deputy decided, Tuesday evening at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Helen Proven. Mother Advisor of the Assembly, that Belleville would be a larger field for membership. The Roseville meeting place was between the Orange and Newark Assemblies and both were drawing on nearby members.

The meetings will be held the first and third Tuesdays of each month. Daughters of Master Masons and Eastern Star members, also girls well recommended by members of these orders between the ages of thirteen and twenty are eligible. For further information call the Mother Advisor Mrs. Helen Proven, 163 Little street. Telephone Belleville 2-4587.

SCHOOLS

By WILLIAM GRAY

At the assembly at the high school Tuesday morning, Elmer Struyk made the following announcement. The Little Theatre Guild of Belleville, will hold its dress rehearsal for the guild's play, in the high school auditorium tonight. They have given the seniors at the school the privilege of increasing the class bankroll for the Washington Trip this Spring. This is being managed in the following manner: All high school students have been invited to view the rehearsal free of charge, but programs will be sold by the Seniors for fifteen cents per, and anyone not buying one will not be admitted. In other words the Seniors are charging a thin dime and a thick nickel to all who wish to view the guild's latest adventure into the field of drama.

Charles L. Steel Jr., high school principal devoted a short time to praising the school's basketball team Tuesday morning. A glance at the following short summary will convince anyone that they deserve plenty of praise. Total games played up to date, 18 total lost to date is 4 and total won to date is 14. The latter ten games played by the Blue and Gold quintet have been won. How's that for a record? Ten successive games. Not bad, eh?

Mr. Steel also announced that sometime in the near future several school groups will have their pictures taken. Among the lucky ones will be the following: The Senior Class of 1932, The German Club, The Varsity Club and the cast of this year's musical comedy "Sweethearts."

The local high school has about fifty pupils interested in the National Oratorical contest this year. Nearly all high schools in New York City, Long Island and Northern Jersey are represented in this contest which is sponsored by the "New York Times." Mr. Charles L. Steel Jr. is the supervisor of the local entrants.

The contest is open to all high school students under nineteen years old. As in other years, the subject of the essays and orations must deal with some phase of the Constitution of the United States.

In addition to the major prizes of $1,000 and a trip to Europe for first place, $500 for second place, $250 for third place and five prizes of $50 each; there are two local awards to be given. The first local prize is $10 to the writer of the best essay and $10 to the boy or girl to be chosen the "school orator." The National Oratorical Contest is made to serve a double purpose: first to stimulate interest in the Constitution; second, to develop talent in the art of public speaking.

The third annual presentation of the Music Clubs of Belleville High School will be Victor Herbert's comedy, "Sweethearts." This is one of Victor Herbert's most popular, because its style is typical of his productions, and its tuneful melodies, elaborate costumes, and beautiful settings make it unusually attractive.

Belleville is the only High School in this locality to attempt a production of this type, which is generally considered only by professional groups. A cast of ninety has been carefully selected from two hundred members of the Music Clubs, and includes some of the best musical talent Belleville High School has developed in years. The music critics of the town are still talking of the successful presentation of "Captain Crossbones" in 1930, and of the excellent musi-

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES

The fifth game in the bridge tournament will be held at the club house on Monday at 2:30 P. M. sharp. Mrs. Fred Idenden, Mrs. John S. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Harvey Mumford, Mrs. William T. Robertson and Mrs. Sidney Scott will be the hostesses, a large attendance is expected.

On Tuesday, March 8, the Civics department of which Mrs. William Entekin is chairman will meet at the home of Mrs. A. S. Blank. The board of directors of the club will hold a meeting in the club rooms Friday March 11.

A large crowd attended the vanishing bridge last Friday afternoon, which was under the direction of the Ways and Means department. Mrs. J. J. Schaffer and her committee were the hostesses.

Mrs. Lionel Phillips, Mrs. Fredrick Streeter and Mrs. E. Fredrick Bootay have been selected as the judges for the play-writing contest which closed last Tuesday. The contest is being sponsored by the drama department. Mrs. H. V. Hardman chairman of the drama department has donated an award, and Mrs. W. P. Adams, a silver dish. The drama department will meet March 15 in the club rooms.

Banquet Planned

Mrs. Edward Swick of Little street is chairman in charge of a banquet to be given by Companions of the Forest at the Knights of Columbus Home 43 Rossmore place the evening of March 9. Mrs. Swick will be assisted by Mrs. Mary O'Neil, Mrs. Katherine Burns, Mrs. Josephine McKenna, Mrs. Mary Whelan and Miss Ida Kane. All honorary members are cordially invited to attend.

Companions of the Forest meet at the Knights of Columbus Home the first Wednesday of each month.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kroesen of Belleville avenue motored to Camden Thursday, for a short stay. Mrs. Kroesen is Worthy Matron of Arene Chapter, O. E. S.

Mrs. A. J. Bruegman of 101 Malona avenue entertained at cards on Wednesday night for the benefit of the Apron booth for the bazaar to be held at Pewsouth Church March 10 and 11. Refreshments were served after the games were over. Guests were Mrs. George Bergstreser, Mrs. A. C. Haines, Mrs. C. S. Martin, Mrs. Robert Brinkerhoff, Mrs. George Cannon, Mrs. George Morey, Mrs. George Nixon, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. George Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Molkenstien, Elwood Ferguson, Jane Babin, Ida Bruegman, Gwen Bennett, Howard Schreyer, Jay Saderly, H. THE TEAM THAT CAME BACK

AFTER witnessing Monday's thrilling triumph at Clifton, following so closely on the heels of Friday's equally notable win at Orange, one can hardly blame Belleville High rooters for exclaiming, "That's a team, a real team!"

The two week-end victories give the Bell-boys, the brilliant record of ten straight wins, and fourteen in eighteen starts. Wednesday's game at Lyndhurst, the season's finale, was too late for this week's issue.

Probably the main feature of this extraordinary slate is the come-back angle.

Just picture the low ebb in Belleville High's basketball fortunes in the early stages of the campaign. Four wins; four losses, at the end of the first eight games. Three of the defeats suffered at the local court. A mediocre record. More like the results of an in-and-out.

In the face of that wobbly start, all the rose-colored predictions, ancient local prospects, seemed to fade into nothing. But, the saying, "You can't keep a good man down," seemed to apply just as aptly to this basketball team.

What was a poor start to a good team? A winning finish would more than off-set that ill effects of such a beginning.

With that thought in their minds, the Bell-boys were unstoppable. The many pre-season words of praise for both Coach McBride and the team were more than merited, as they came back with a rush to make the victory welkin ring ten times in a row. Over the course of this streak, every team on the schedule, with the exception of Passaic, which was met in but one game, was defeated. Orange, West Orange and Clifton, a trio of victors over the Blue and Gold earlier in the season, all succumbed before the prowess of the locals. The Orange and Clifton wins were made all the more praiseworthy by the fact that both were recorded on difficult away courts. Bloomfield, winner over vaunted Montclair, was another strong squad to taste defeat at the hands of the rampaging Belleville squad.

Victory is always to be cherished, but the team that can come back to win, after a shaky start, is doubly relished.

Moose Court Five Back In Win Column

Meadowbrooks 39-35 Victims Here On Saturday

The local Moose court five used the Meadowbrooks of Irvington as its means of breaking into the win column, Saturday night, at the Moose hall, as the Campdowners bowed, in 39-35 fashion.

Blue And Gold Win At Clifton, 21-17

Tenth Straight Win For The Local Netsters Monday

The unwavering Belleville High basketball combine, headed by Coach McBride, traveled to Clifton, Monday afternoon, and registered its tenth consecutive victory, in downing the vaunted Clifton High squad, 21-17.

This winning jaunt, too, brought to an end that well-known Clifton jinx. A typical, rousing Bell-boy finish proved to be once more the guide to Belleville's well-trad victory trail. Trailing at one time in the first period, 0-9, and behind 9-11 at the end of the first half, things looked hardly rosy for the locals in the opening stages of play. The second half, however, unfolded a radically different story, as the Blue and Gold out-scored their opponents, 12-6.

Lon Westra, subbing for Eddie O'Neil in the first quarter, opened the local scoring with three successive points after Clifton had scored nine times, before Belleville could get its bearings.

Once the spark was touched, however, the Belleville machine of Captain Lamb, Smith, Bohrer, O'Neil and Bonavita, gained momentum with each succeeding minute. Hen Bohrer, the high scorer of the game with six markers, was the particularly effective cog.

Orange Conquered By Bell-Boy Netsters

Notable 20-16 Win At Orange Was Ninth Straight

One of its most notable victories of the season was chalked up by Belleville High's valiant basketballers, at Orange, Friday night, as they brought to an abrupt end an eight game winning streak of the Golden Tornadoes, as well as evening an old score with their opponents. The 20-16 triumph marked Belleville's ninth straight win and thirteenth of the season.

The feature of the battle, which made victory all the sweeter, was the Bell-boys' manner of coping. Trailing at the end of the third quarter, 12-13, the Blue and Gold staged a speedy offensive in the last period that shattered Orange completely. The locals out-tallied their strong opponents, 8-3, in this final semester, for a comeback spurt that sent the Belleville rooters into delirium.

While the entire team contributed to the generally smooth play of the Bell-boys, Ray Smith and Nick Bonavita were the heavy scorers of the fray, with nine and six points respectively. Several of Bonavita's counterparts were of the sensational long range variety.

The one sad note of the evening's performance was Belleville's loss of the second team game, 23-18, after an extra period of play. Eddie Match did yeoman work for the locals in this one, which was but the second game the Jayvees have lost this season in seventeen starts.

Clintons Down Wesley 21-13, Monday Night

Cop Senior Basketball Championship Of Town

The Clintons, winners of the Wednesday night Recreation court league, were crowned senior champs of the town, Monday night at the high school gym, as they turned back the Wesley Church five, 21-13. The Wesley Church had capped the Monday night Recreation diadem.

Pat Dunn, husky center of the Clintons, was the individual star of the game with twelve points. "Sonny" Hosking, eagle-eyed forward of the Clintons, did best for his team in accounting for four sensational field goals.

The season's court finale, conducted by Mr. Nebrik, Recreation Director, also included wrestling and boxing bouts, and a musical program supplied by the Wandering Troubadors of the St. Anthony club of Silver Lake.

Kid Sharkey won over Jerry Patria, Tom Spillane and Jim Kennedy battled to a draw, and Jim Ferrara defeated Joe DeVito in the boxing bouts. Bert Bado and Bob Burnley of the Stayward Club were the wrestling victors. Johnny Nelson and Gunboat Williams acted as referees, while Henry Abramson, Thomas Proven and Harold Bado officiated as judges.

ROBITUARY

Aaron J. Henry

Aaron Joseph Henry, of 417 Jordanmon street, local dairyman died suddenly Tuesday of a cerebral hemorrhage while working in his barn. Born at Bound Brook forty-five years ago, he had lived in Belleville since an early age.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, Charles and Albert of West New York; a sister, Miss Bessie Henry of Belleville, and an aunt, Mrs. A. B. Henry with whom he lived.

Funeral services will be held at the home this afternoon. Rev. Dr. Lester H. Clee, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Newark, will officiate. Burial will be in Glendale Cemetery.

Son To Couple

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tiger, of 214 Stephens street. The child has been named Walter Cecil.

Daughter Born

A baby girl named Kathryn Farrell O'Mahoney was born to Mr. and Mrs. Denis O'Mahoney of Elizabeth February 20. Mrs. O'Mahoney was Miss Kathryn Brennan a teacher in the English Department of the Belleville High School before her marriage. Wednesday Miss Florence Kelly of Washington avenue visited her at the St. Elizabeth Hospital, Elizabeth.

Mrs. Carls To Address
Y. P. FellowshipGroup Were The Guests
Of St. Barnabas' Chapter Sunday

Mrs. Helen Bailey Carls of the Belleville High School faculty will speak before the Young People's Fellowship, Sunday night, at the Christ Episcopal Church, at its regular weekly meeting, scheduled to start at 7 o'clock.

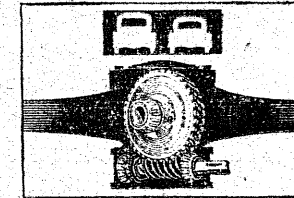

Mrs. Carls, who will have many of her ex-pupils in her audience, will address the group informally on a topic yet to be selected.

Last Sunday night, the members of the Fellowship were the guests of the St. Barnabas Church chapter, at its Newark chapel. Rector Montgomery of St. Barnabas spoke to the combined groups, in the absence of J. Henry Wheat, the scheduled speaker. The rector's talk was both forceful and interesting, as he outlined, sketchily, some of the history and purposes of religion.

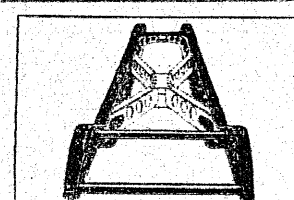

The regular meeting of the Trustees of the Community Service Bureau will be held, Wednesday evening, March 9, 1932 at 8:15 in the office at 228 Washington avenue.

Ahead

Slip-Stream Body
V-Radiator, sloping windshield and Beavertail back reduce air resistance, thus increasing speed. (All models.)

Underslung Worm Drive Axle
Lowers center of gravity without decreasing head room or road clearance. (Ambassador, Advanced, and Special Eights.)

X-Dual Frame, Super-rigid Strongest type of frame. Extends practically entire length of chassis, giving car, virtually, a double frame. (All models.)

The new Nash models today make their bow to the American public. They are entirely new in appearance with complete Slip-Stream body design, Slip-Stream fenders, V-radiator, and Beavertail back. They are new in performance with greater power, greater smoothness, greater speed, greater driving ease and riding comfort. They are larger, longer, lower, roomier cars with important basic advancements in both chassis and body design. We believe that when you see the new Nash and drive it you will accept it—and prefer it—as a new kind of car with a new type of performance.

Stop Getting Up Nights
Physic the Bladder With Juniper Oil

Drive out the impurities and excess acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Juniper oil, bladder physic, it works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25-cent box from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of "getting up nights" go back and get your money. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep.

Insurance

We cannot call ourselves Insurance Specialists because it covers too much ground, but we assure you that we have made an intensive and honest study of the various branches of insurance, exclusive of Life Insurance, and we feel that we are qualified to advise you as to whether you are properly covered or not, at a minimum cost, and with the proper companies. We would consider it a privilege and a pleasure for you to permit us an opportunity to assist you with your insurance needs. It is just as important to protect your possessions by insurance as it is to protect your legal rights by consulting an attorney, or your physical well being by consulting a physician, and as insurance is our job, we trust that you will consider us when you are placing any new insurance, and in the meantime, if you so desire, allow us the opportunity to analyze your existing coverage.

Real Estate

There are so many important details in determining the value of a parcel of Real Estate that it requires a very careful analysis, which is the result of very extensive experience, to set an actual value upon same—the location—the size—the type of the land—the public improvements upon the street or road that the land is located on—the materials—the workmanship—the accessories in the house itself—and with so many things to be taken into consideration, it is most unwise for the average person to trust their own judgment as to what or what is not good value for the money they are spending when they are in the market to purchase real estate. We therefore, would be glad to offer our services to anyone who is in the market now or who is contemplating a purchase in the near future. We have listed very exceptional buys even for these times, in all classes of real estate—in homes—in apartments—in business properties—and in vacant land. Our services are at your command. We also have for rent, at very reasonable prices, apartments, houses, stores, etc.

Polite Japan.
Earthquakes from Holes.
The Old Age of Women.
De Valera's Victory.

The League of Nations, tired of repeating "Please stop fighting," asks Japan, "Where's your sense of honor?" Japan, politer of nations, does not laugh or ask, "What about your European scraps of paper?" Japan calmly builds a large new flying field, near the Foreign Settlement, and with the gracious permission of the Mikado sends in thirty thousand more men and more airplanes.

Two British sailors killed accidentally by Chinese shells complicates the Shanghai problem. Britain takes the incident calmly. Our Government talks of removing all Americans from the fighting zone if conditions get worse. Why wait for a "Remember the Maine" incident?

Von Wiegand says the Chinese are directed by German military men, engineers, gunners and aviation experts. That explains, perhaps, the number of Japanese killed and the stubborn defense of the Chinese fort.

The sooner we move out and leave Asia to its private fight the better. We have enough to do at home.

Little things make big differences. Calvin Coolidge, writing of George Washington, mentions, but does not sufficiently emphasize, two important facts in Washington's career. First, he was the youngest son, therefore he inherited a very small part of his father's property. Had he inherited more he might have taken less interest in public affairs.

Second, and most important, Washington's father died when George was 11 years old. This sounds like misfortune, but it may have been extremely important for George.

Two older brothers had been sent to Oxford, by their father, who lived twelve years in England as a boy. If the father had lived George might have gone to Oxford also. And he might have come back in a mood never to think of raising a hand against the dear mother country. Environment makes a difference.

The United States Navy submarine S-48 discovers in the Caribbean Sea a hole almost five miles deep that proves to have been the centre of the earthquake area in the recent Santiago earthquake disaster. In other words, the banks, or sides, of that great hole, caving in, probably caused the trembling of surrounding earth masses that we call "earthquake." It is known that such deep "sea holes," with very steep sides, exist near the coast of Japan, causing frequent earthquakes in that country.

It is encouraging news, for it means that in ages to come men will provide against earthquakes, as they now provide against landslides in mountain passes. They are doing that now in the Blue Cut of the Cajon Pass, near Hodge, California. Giant submarines, strong enough to bear the water's weight, scouting on the sea floor will level off the steepest, most dangerous gorges in the ocean's depths.

High explosives held down by the unyielding water will be doubly effective in such work.

A young authoress says "Women live too long," and writes a book to prove it. Some women, unhappily, do live too long, when they outlive the gratitude of children, forgetful of a debt that never can be paid. But the later years ought to be the best in a woman's life, the happiest and, apart from creating the race, the most useful.

Life insurance experts tell you that a woman's life probabilities are better than a man's after the child-bearing period. Providence would not have given more of old age to woman than to man if these later years had not been intended for useful happiness.

Women past middle age find happiness in guiding and encouraging those that are younger, in setting a good example, and in studying the strange vanity of man, whose conceit outlives his years.

What man will deny that there are one hundred conceited old men for one conceited old woman.

George Bernard Shaw suggested that he was a better writer than Shakespeare. The public smiled. Shakespeare could not answer. In South Africa Shaw took a few lessons in automobile driving, asked his teacher how long he had driven.

"Thirty years," replied the teacher. Shaw replied, "Then you will soon drive as well as I."

A little later Mr. Shaw, driving alone with his wife, was in a ditch, his automobile wrecked. There is such a thing as too much optimism.

De Valera, the fighting Irish radical who says Ireland should not recognize King George or England in any way, has won a great victory in the Irish elections. His party, Fianna Fail, leads the Cosgrave party and De Valera may succeed Cosgrave as President of the Irish Free State. The ability of De Valera, who was once sentenced to death, and his present victory are not surprising. He had an Irish mother, and it is said his Spanish father was of Jewish blood, which makes a good combination. The famous Mr. Dooley says every Irishman needs a Jewish partner. De Valera has that combination within himself.

Senator's Son and His Fiancee

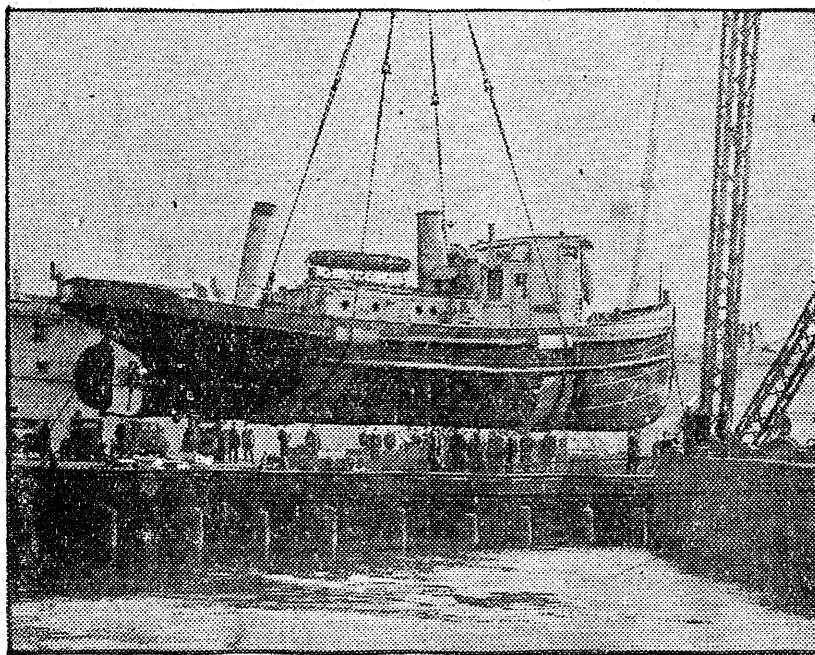

Lieut. Royal S. Copeland, Jr., son of Senator and Mrs. Royal S. Copeland of New York, photographed at the home of his parents in Washington with his attractive fiancee, Miss Virginia Duryee of New York, to whom he will be married in the fall.

When Jim Preston Was Impeached

The Washington newspaper correspondents took over the senate chamber to hold a mock court of impeachment of James D. Preston, who retired as chief of the senate press gallery after 34 years of service. The photograph shows Miss Ruth Finney, of Scripps-Howard newspapers, presenting Mr. Preston with a silver coffee service as a token of the Washington newspaper corps' esteem.

Navy's First All-Welded Vessel

The first all-welded vessel in the United States navy got an "aerial" launching, when a powerful floating crane hoisted the craft from the dock on which it was built and lowered it into the water at Boston. The vessel is the Yard Motor Tug 15 and will be used at the Portsmouth navy yard. She is 65 feet long, powered with Diesel engines and entirely welded, with not a bolt or rivet in the hull.

Habits of Boll Weevil

The boll weevil is entirely helpless and without power of locomotion in its larva stage, when it infests the scales and bolls of cotton plants. In its adult stage it moves from place to place by flight and flies at night as well as in the daytime. However, the boll weevil, unlike other weevils of the same group of insects, is not attracted by light and consequently cannot be snared in this manner.

Given Polish Honor

The ambassador of Poland, Tytus Filipowicz, decorated Mrs. Woodrow Wilson with the Grand Cordon of the Order Polonia Restituta at a ceremony held at the embassy of Poland in Washington. This high decoration was bestowed upon Mrs. Wilson as the latest mark of gratitude for the influence of the great war President of the United States in the unification of Poland.

FASTEST MILER

Gene Venzke, Pottstown (Pa.) schoolboy, broke the world's indoor one-mile record when he captured the famous Baxter mile feature track event of the sixty-fourth annual meet of the New York Athletic club in Madison Square garden. Gene was clocked in 4 minutes 10 seconds.

HELPING FATHER

James Roosevelt, son of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, who is in charge of the Roosevelt headquarters in Massachusetts and working hard to secure his father's nomination by the Democrats for the Presidency.

SIAM'S NEW ENVOY

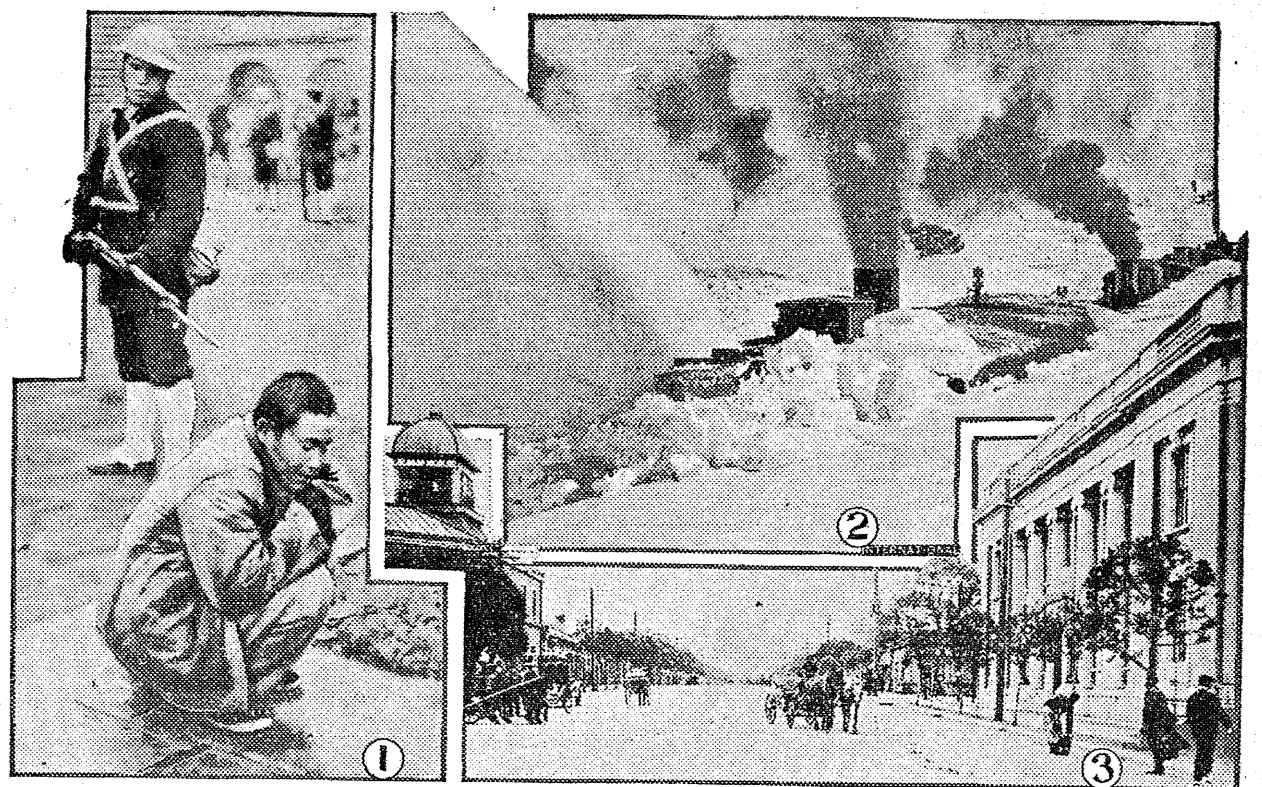

An especially posed portrait of Phya Subarn Sompat, the newly appointed minister from Siam to the United States, who has arrived in Washington and assumed his post.

"Holiness Church"

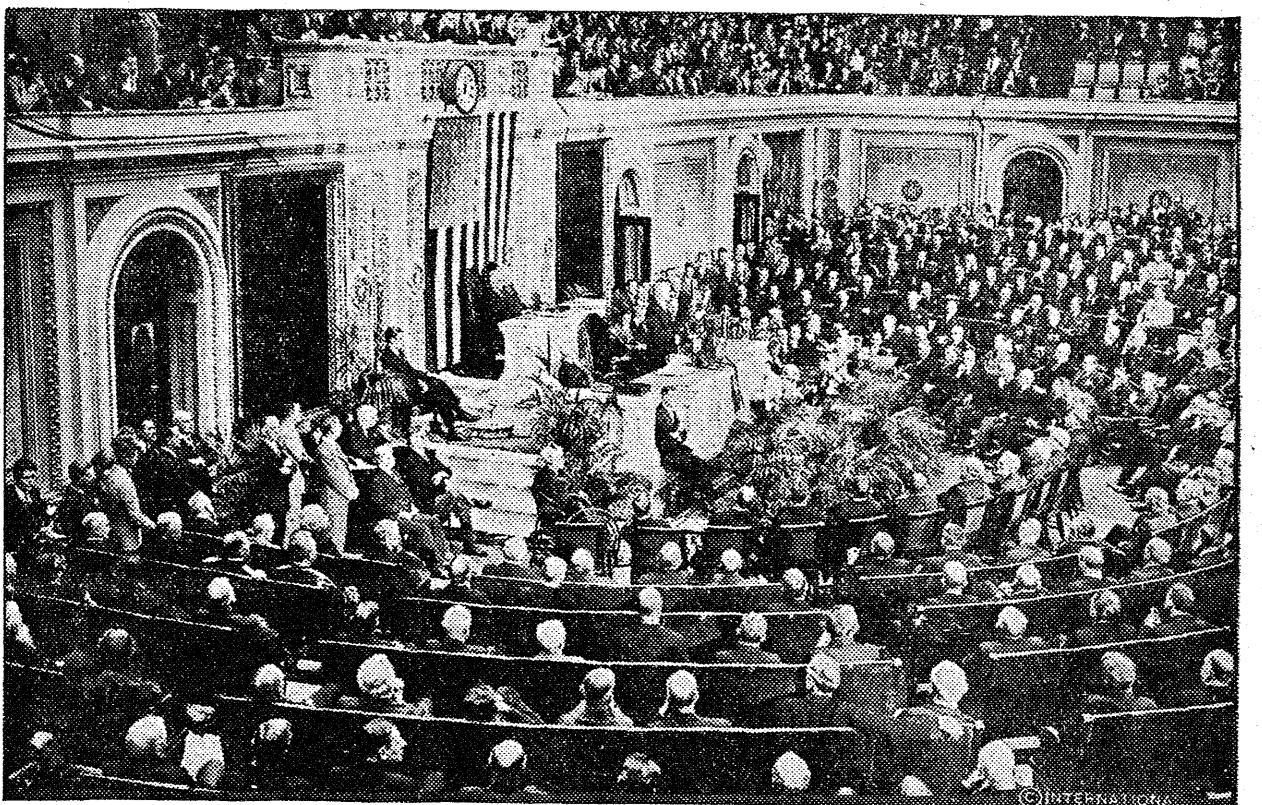

About 1890 three clergymen, Rev. Hardin Wallace, Rev. James Singer, both of the Methodist Episcopal church, and Henry Ashcroft of the Free Methodist church, conducted a tour of the southern part of California, preaching repentance and remission of sin or justification by faith of the sinner, and for believers sanctification or heart purity, which also might be received by faith, subsequent to regeneration or justification, and which could be advanced into personal holiness. Numerous bands of adherents were formed under the name of Holiness Band, the members of which, however, retained their membership with the churches of which they were already members. There were also many new converts. By 1896 the movement had grown large and property had been acquired, so that incorporation was necessary and was effected under the laws of California.

Scenes and Persons in the Current News

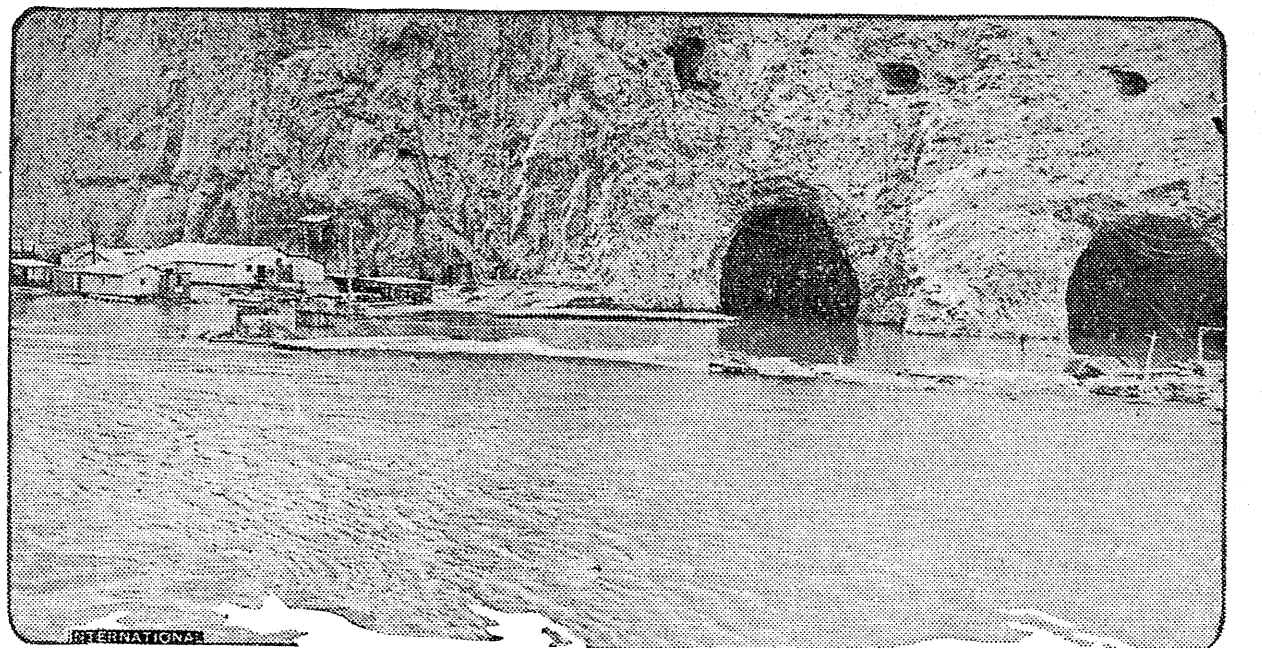

1—Japanese marine in Shanghai about to execute a Chinese coolie accused of sniping. 2—Locomotives pushing a rotary plow through the high snowdrifts after a terrific blizzard that tied up transportation in southwestern Colorado. 3—View in Changchun, the capital of the new Manchurian state, Ankuo, organized under the auspices of Japan and of which Henry Pu-Yi, former emperor of China, is to be the ruler.

President Opens the Washington Bicentennial

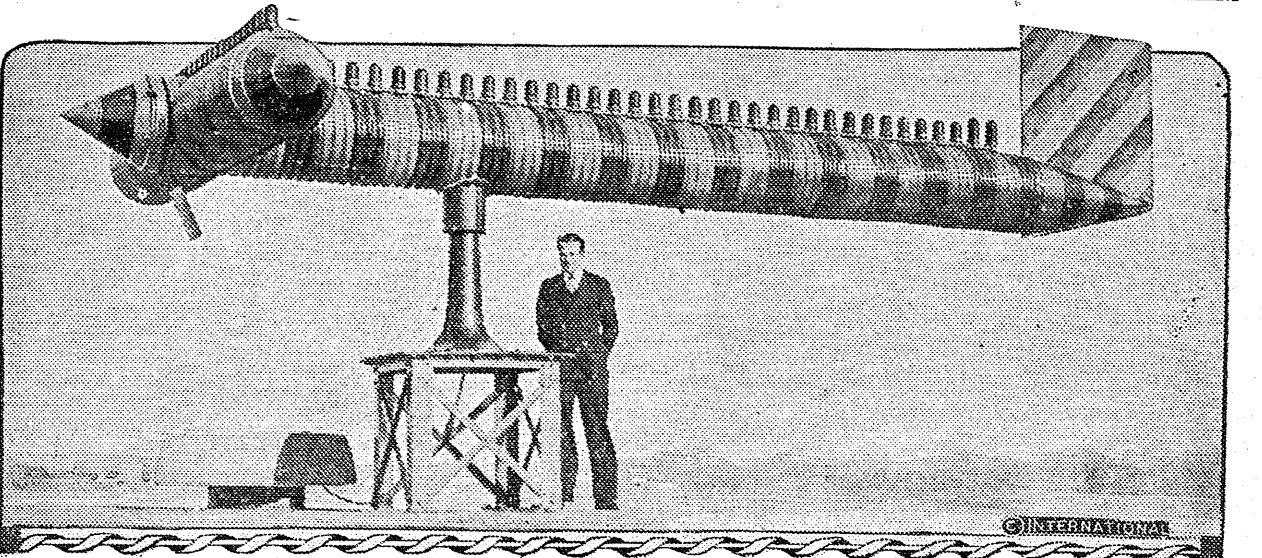

President Hoover addressing the joint session of congress, the Supreme court and the diplomatic corps at the opening of the George Washington bicentennial celebration, which will continue through nine months.

Site of the Great Hoover Dam Is Flooded

Following heavy storms in the mountainous regions of the upper Colorado river the site of the Hoover dam in Boulder canyon was flooded, the water submerging the open air garage and entering the tunnels under construction. Property damage was rather severe.

This is the newly installed wind tee atop a hangar at the central airport in Camden, N. J., replacing the outmoded wind sock. Rows of lights operated by pressure denote the force of the wind and are visible at a distance of three miles.

These facts and figures have been secured and compiled by Town Clerk John J. Daly, under the supervision of the Board of Commissioners of Belleville, with the idea of informing the citizens of Belleville as to the official family of the Town Government. Some of the past history of the Town.

To those outside of Belleville whom this may reach, Belleville is located outside of Newark, between it and Paterson, ten miles from New York City, surrounded by other beautiful towns such as Bloomfield and Nutley, and is bounded on its eastern side by the Passaic River. It is partly industrial and residential, being fortunate in having many sites still left for desirable industry to locate. The residential sections are of high type and are protected by a zone ordinance.

These men have served Belleville as Mayors since that office was instituted,
as follows:
C. LYMAN DENISON, 1912-1914.
JOHN C. LA FAUCHERIE, January,
1914 to November, 1914.

JOHN H. WATERS, November, 1914, to January, 1925 (Died in office).
JOHN DE GRAW, January 1925, to May, 1926.

SAMUEL S. KENWORTHY, 1926-1930;

The Three Hortons

By FANNIE HURST

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
(WNU Service)

NIMBLE-footed, nimble-witted, were the Three Hortons, and their long bookings on wide vaudeville circuits testified to
it. The Three Hortons were a cheering part of any bill and almost invariably second only in importance to a headliner like Friganza, Erice or San Francisco.

There were Beatty Horton, whose patter was as nimble as his soft-shoe dancing. Alicia Horton, who could outpattern but not outdance her spouse, and, from the age of seven on,
Winstead Horton, who could fling himself in a bridge from maternal to paternal shoulders, and sing in a choir-soprano that had captivated his audiences from the days he had toddled on stage with lifted hands balancing unsure feet.

All that was changed now. Winstead was grown, his father Beatty had developed a gouty tendency and had been obliged to cut out the soft-shoe work, and Alicia, while she still made up to something of the old dazzling blondness and was adorably cute in her slip line of patter, was nevertheless subject to the relentless eye of her audience to the extent that they simply did not want the "young stuff" from her any longer. Alicia, in rather severe togs and a slight comedy make-up, was getting around that, these days, by doing the young matron sort of thing, and to a point making her audience like it. But the fact of the matter was that by the time he was eighteen, and his parents were in their forties, Winstead, single-handed, was carrying the act.

And carrying it brilliantly. A flying contortionist, voice for comic, character and solo singing, a baffling ventriloquist and a soft-shoe dancer who seldom failed to get his six recalls, the Three Horton act practically rested on his slim young shoulders.

Not that anything of the kind was ever admitted in the confines of the Horton family, however achingly Beatty or Alicia might long since have realized it to themselves. Regularly, the Three Hortons held confab for the refurbishing of their act; periodically rehearsals were called, changes inserted, songs revamped and costumes freshened for each and every one of the three of them, with emphasis on the requirements of each. Beatty's audiences wanted his sure-fire bombardment of patter; Alicia's wanted her blond and graceful; Winstead's wanted him the flying, dancing, comic, vocal young devil.

The Three Hortons. Up to the bitter end, until Beatty's patter began to crack in his throat, and Alicia's ankles to twist and turn as she danced, there was no out-and-out admission on the part of the older Hortons that they were finished.

The situation racked Winstead and tore at the very vitals of him. They were such a gallant pair in his eyes;
the dudish, rakish, old Beatty who would limp to the wings from his dressing room, with his face made up into a grin and the darts of pain through his ankles like fire; the prankish dear-beyond-the-telling, Alicia, whose role in life was to pamper everyone except herself, from her husband and son down to the most obscure performer on the bill. To see them slowly disintegrate, to see a merciless public grow cold to them, to behold the hurt in the eyes of his father and the bewilderment on the face of Alicia was pathos beyond the telling.

Not but what they gloried in the rising success of their son, and stood back with their faces perspiring and their hearts hurting from exertion and something else, for him to take the honors for the act, but there came the time when there was simply no easing the fact, for the two of them, that they were finished. Managers were clamoring for Winstead, and for years had been tolerating the presence of the older pair for the simple reason that he would not book without them.

But the time had come when it was apparent even to Winstead himself that there was imposition in any longer asking for bookings for the older pair. Beatty was winded almost before he reached stage, Alicia, poor
dear, no longer had the stamina.

Strangely, this realization dawned, nearly simultaneously, upon the three of them, sparing Winstead the almost unbearable pain of telling them their hour had struck.

"We're finished, Beatty," Alicia announced to her husband one evening, as they sat around trying wholeheartedly to discuss plans for a next season's act. "What's the use beating around the bush? They don't want us. We're dead weight around Winst-ead's neck. Let's face the music."

It was with a sense of what seemed positive relief that Beatty capitulated.
Actually, his old face seemed for the first time to allow itself to fall into the luxury of wrinkles.

"I guess you're right, Alicia. We're done."

There was not any money scare.
Winstead, of course would see to that,
and besides the Hortons, Beatty and Alicia, simple-living, simple-minded folk, had but by their little penny.

It was fear of Winstead that lay in their hearts. This boy, never out of his parents' tracks, suddenly alone on the road! Fear of Winstead had squatted on their old chests, both of them, ever since the shadow of this day of their retirement had begun to cast itself across the circuit. He was such a child, Winstead was. A helpless, confiding genius-like fellow. No good at money, for instance. Had to have it handed to him every morning.

So much for taxicab. So much for lunches and little luxuries. So much for tips. No good at watching himself against colds, to which he was subject.
It took all his mother could do to keep after him effectively with muffers, rubbers and precaution about drafts.
No good at eating well. His father was forever giving him the second helpings of food without his even knowing it, stacking his plate when his attention was diverted and then insisting that he eat.

"But I have eaten, father. Didn't you slip some more potatoes on my plate?"

"Nonsense. Eat, I say!"
Imagine a boy like that, a helpless, off-in-the-clouds fellow who had never had to think much for himself about the creature phases of life, off suddenly by himself on a circuit. It hurt the heart of Alicia so that she cried most of her nights. It threw such a dread into Beatty that his efforts to pretend to Alicia that all was well were pathetic to her almost beyond endurance.

Well, it had to be faced and the sooner the better. The Hortons purchased for themselves the inevitable chicken farm in New Jersey, that haven of all good retired vaudevillians, and Winstead, bewildered and a little frightened with his released, began rehearing a new act with a young girl with the stage name of "Yvette," whose singing and dancing had attracted the admiration of the Three Hortons.

It was a whirlwind turn of fast, amusing young-blood talk, really exquisite and highly diverting soft-shoe and toe-dancing, and some pretty dazzling that marked them for almost instantaneous success.

After a tryout in Newark, Winstead and Yvette were booked over a forty-week cycle and the pair of the older Hortons settled down to what gallant resignation they could muster.

And muster they did, except it actually did seem that with the letting down of the strain and excitement of their life-time of years on the circuit, Beatty and Alicia were destined to fall apart like the proverbial one-hoss shay. Ead health set in for both almost the month after retirement. An old pair were nearing the final turn in their road.

It was quiet and peaceful and even beautiful in a way. Sweet, come right down to it, growing old out of a youth that had been so long and tumultuous and vigorous. It was Winstead that brought dread to the heart—Winstead, who had been so babied.

His first visit home after the forty weeks brought peace to the heart on that score. He and Yvette had come back to the farm to be married. She is a tumultuous little thing. Dances like a whirl and can fling herself in a horizontal bridge from the neck of Winstead and start whirling.

She is young, vivacious, beautiful and a whirlwind for making Winstead toe the mark. Rubbers! Let him try to venture out on a damp day without them. Appetite! Let him try to skip that glass of fresh cream with his lunch. Money! Yvette holds the purse strings and does out to him as if he were a child.

There is nothing left for Alicia and Beatty to dread about the twilight.

Dogs With Titles

The amazing history of Pekinese has been told by Mrs. A. C. Dixie who spent a long time in China. A thousand years ago these small bundles of trouble were worshipped as symbols of Buddha, and invested with the highest titles an emperor could devise. They were created princes and dukes. They were granted gigantic revenues. They were honored with literary degrees.
To steal one was to run a certain risk of enjoying that death known as "Death by ten thousand slices." Today the Pekie is guarded with something of the same stringency, but in Tibet and not in his native birthplace.
China last her hold on him when the Summer palace in Peking was sacked in 1860, and an English general brought a "steeve dog" home in his hat as a gift to Queen Victoria.

Britain's Red Tape

The sleepy little village of Upper Trent, between Uttoxeter and Stoke-on-Trent, is where the government obtains its red tape. Officialdom ties itself up with tape from Upper Trent.
It also uses the same tape to tie up the parcels of restrictions which go to make Britain what it is. Old women with kindly faces turn out tape by the mile. It falls in cascades from the looms and, on the floor, great piles of red tape may be seen. There is enough tape to trip up the nation when handled with the cunning dexterity of Whitehall.—Montreal Herald.

Dying Request Denied

Though England has produced great painters, oddly enough the only one commemorated in Westminster abbey is Sir Godfrey Kneller, portrait artist from the time of Charles II to George
I. Still queerer, Kneller's dying words were: "By G—d, I will not be buried in Westminster." To make absolutely certain he designed his own monument and paid $15,000 for the stone and work and chose a spot in Twickenham churchyard. But due to a dispute of his widow with Pope over the rights to this plot, Kneller was buried in the abbey in spite of himself.

CHAPTER I

The Fugitive and the Pocket Eye.

That dam on the Racquette so increased the prosperity and size of the small settlements on either shore of the river that a bridge became necessary. It was built. The two communities separated by flowing water had long been at war with each other. The bridge drew them together into one village. Their petty jealousies vanished. It was unregenerate Colonel Spenlow, the miller and local Republican boss, who gave the new place its truthful and euphonious name. He called it Amity Dam, thus visiting on its inhabitants a certain curious penalty for the sins of their fathers. They were soon known as Amity Dammers.

Long after that the little village was the home of a far-famed mystery out of which came a murderer convicted in the face of unexplained difficulties and against the testimony of three eye-witnesses. It was, moreover, for a time the home of a number of remarkable characters related to the mystery. One of them was the boy Shad Morryson whose courage and shrewd intuition served the state and put him on the road to fortune.

Shad was discovered on a bright June day in 1896. He lay asleep on a bed of moss under a group of pine trees. Two fishermen who had come ashore for luncheon found him. Nobody knew exactly when he was born—a matter of slight importance. Shad's life began the day he was discovered. It is likely that he had been eating and drinking a little more than sixteen years.

The fishermen came upon him suddenly. He lay sprawled on his back with an ancient, long-barreled, muzzle-loading shotgun at his side. He was a pale thin lad in ragged clothing. Both big toes protruded from holes in his boots. The fishermen aroused him. He sat up and rubbed his eyes and stared in confusion at the strangers looking down at him. The odor of frying bacon came to his nostrils. Kindly faces were before him.

"I guess I must be dead," he mumbled.

They saw to the heart of the boy when he asked from the lifting cloud of his slumber:

"Is God here?"

One of the men put his hand on the boy's shoulder and gave him a gentle shake as he said:

"Wake up, young man. You're still dreaming. You're not dead yet. Come. Lunch is most ready."

Still it was a fact that the old Shad Morryson, known to a few people in the forest township of Blair, was dead, that the water at his feet was in effect the River Jordan. Moreover, it would seem that God was really there.

"Well, I kind o' expected to be dead when I woke up," said the boy as he arose. "If I ain't, I'm glad of it. I want to live."

What a pitiful look of drooping discouragement and supplication was in the figure of the lad as he arose!

"What's the matter? Are ye lost?" one of the strangers asked.

"Run away from home."

"What's your name and where do you live?"

"Don't dast tell ye."

"Are you hungry?"

"Starvin'. Ain't had nothin' to eat for days but one pa'tridge an' a chipmunk."

"Well, you're in luck! Here's sandwiches and bacon and eggs and fish. The fish are fryin'."

As he spoke the fisherman was undoing packages of food from the pack basket.

The boy trembled with eagerness as he saw it. His face quivered.

"Oh, mister, can I have a sandwich now?" he asked.

"You bet. Take two."

The boy devoured them. He ate like a hungry dog just returned from the chase.

"I feel better already," said the boy. "I'll go an' wash. I'm dirty. I ain't fit to eat with nobody, not even myself."

He hurriedly undressed on the river bank. The fishermen observed that the back of his shirt was slashed and bloody, the skin of his back ridged, red and swollen.

"—d, boy! What has happened to your back?" one of the men inquired.

"Does it look bad?" the boy asked.

"Bad! I should think that some one had used it for a chopping block."

"Well, they did. My dad gits mad awful easy when he's drunk. He ain't always so mean. I guess I'm purty mean myself. I don't take no interest in the work. What's the use? It don't do no good. He got home an' ketchin' me fishin' when I should 'a' been hoein' potatoes."

Shad swam around a moment, came out of the water, dressed himself hurriedly and sat down with his new friends. They were afraid he would eat too much and compelled him to stop before his appetite was appeased.

"I want to pay ye for what I et," said the boy.

"How can you pay us for all that food?"

"I guess I can pay ye. I've got five dollars. I earned it workin' out. It was hid in the clock. I stole it when I run away."

"We don't want your money, but we rather like your company."

"I ain't got nothin' else but a top an' some brass wheels that come out of an old clock, an' four lead bullets, an' three fish-hooks stuck in a cork, an' a glass eye that my uncle give me the day he died."

Shad took the trinkets out of his trousers pocket as he spoke, with a fond look at them.

The men laughed, saying: "No, we only want to get better acquainted with you. You must come to our camp with us. Perhaps we can help you."

That night he went with the fishermen to their camp at High falls. Three days later the party moved to Lost lake where they put up in the log cabin camp of the famous guide, Philo Scott, familiarly known as Phide.

Now, one of these sportsmen was slim and a bit undersized. He gave the boy a respectable suit of clothes and shoes and stockings, a cap, a flannel shirt, with collar attached, and a necktie. All these fitted fairly well. Shad came out of the camp in which his benefactor was lodging a new human being, his face clean, his hair trimmed and combed and brushed. Those who saw him were astonished.

Shad was well put up, as they used to say in the north country. In spite of his leanness and lankness he was now good to look on. The shapely outlines of his head and face were pleas-

"I Guess I Must Be Dead," He Whispered.

ing. The expression of his face was cheerful. He was like a scrawny, ill-fed colt of a promising size and pattern.

The boy took the glass eye from his pocket and held it in the light of the lamp and looked at it.

"My uncle was an awful good man," said Shad. "He told me that this eye would help me to remember that God is a watchin' of me. It's a smart ol' eye. It can see a long ways ahead, an' it can tell when good luck is comin'."

Phide Scott blew his whistle. Supper was ready. The old guide came in with a platter of fried bacon and a plate of giddle cakes steaming hot.

"Mr. Scott, this is a boy we found asleep on the shore of the river," said one of the fishermen. "He was about starved."

The old guide shook the boy's hand and asked:

"Be you Bat Morryson's boy that's run away?"

Shad was frightened by this unexpected query. His face changed color. He shook his head and stammered:

"If—I if I was I—I'd be 'shamed to tell ye."

"His boy has stole some money an' run away," the guide went on. "I was over to Wanakeny today an' Bat was there. He's run on the tracks o' the boy an' is searchin' the woods. Be comin' through here in the mornin'!"

Then one of the fishermen let go as follows:

"We don't know whom this boy belongs to. If it's Bat Morryson, I want to tell you that Bat can't have him any more. I'd as soon trust a boy in a cage with a tiger."

"Bat Morryson is a tough ol' wildcat of a man," said the guide. "Had a good woman an' broke her heart. Died years ago. He's drunk half the time. Don't git into no fight with him. He bites like a dog. He'd just as soon take an ear off ye as not."

"I know how to handle that kind of a cur," said the sport, a big powerful man. "Don't worry."

After supper these gentlemen took the boy to their sleeping camp. One of them cut off a piece of an old moth-eaten buffalo robe that lay on the floor. He trimmed and shaped it neatly with a pair of scissors. Soon he took the measure of Shad's upper lip.

"I'm making a mustache for you," the man said.

Some liquid glue was applied to the skin side of the mustache. Soon it was fast to Shad's lip. It made a surprising change in the look of the lad.

"Nobody would know you," said one of the men. "It's put ten years on your head. We have a plan for you. Remember you're a man now. You will get a good rest tonight and a good breakfast in the morning. Then you'll take the trail to Bog lake. My camp is there. I'll give you a note to the guide in charge. He will show you across country to the railroad. If you should meet your father, he wouldn't know you. We're going to stake you with twenty dollars. Take a train going west for some point beyond the woods. You'll get a job somewhere. I hope you'll make your fortune. Here is my card. Write me now and then and let me know how you're getting along."

The card bore the name and address of the steel magnate:

"Edmund C. Converse,
17 Wall Street, N. Y."

Shad put the money and card in his trousers pocket with great care.

"I'm much obliged," he said. "I'm kind o' scared to have so much money. Hope I don't git robbed."

"Don't show it to anybody or let anybody know that you've got it. Keep your small money in one pocket an' your big money in the other, and don't have much to say to strangers."

The boy's heart was full, and these friendly interested men encouraged him to open it.

They were interrupted by Phide Scott, who entered, closing the door behind him. He spoke in a whisper.

"Bat Morryson is over to the cook house. Just come in with a lantern from Dead Creek doe."

Mr. Converse turned to the boy and said:

"You sit right over there out of the light and don't say a word whatever happens. You needn't be scared. I'm going to take care of you."

Turning to the guide he added: "I want to hire your camp for twenty-four hours. I'll give you a dollar an hour for that period. I want to be the boss here for just twenty-four hours. What has Morryson got to say?"

"He wants to spend the night here."

"Tell him you've rented the camp an' he'll have to see me."

"Shall I bring him here?"

"Bring him here but say nothing about the boy."

The guide vanished, returning presently with Bat Morryson—a hairy, powerful Cyclops of the foothills. His one eye was red, his face flushed. He had been drinking but was not drunk.

"What do you want?" Converse asked bluntly.

"I'm lookin' for my boy Shad who run away an' is somewhere in this part o' the woods."

Converse stopped him.

"Why did he run away? Couldn't you make him happy at home?"

"I tried to."

"No, you didn't. I know all about you. You abused his mother. When she died you married a strumpet who abuses your children. You go off and get drunk and spend about all you can earn while Shad plants and hoes the potatoes and corn. You come home and get mad and beat him until his back bleeds. I saw the lad. He was a mile or so below High falls on the river bank. I saw his wounds, too. D—n you, Bat Morryson, you care for nothing but that greedy, dirty, hog's belly of yours!"

Bat Morryson sat leaning forward on his elbows, looking at the man who thus addressed him, his brow deeply furrowed. His attitude was that of a great cat ready to spring. He knew that he was in the presence of his master. No one had ever talked to him like that. No one had ever dared to.

He rose from his chair with a serious look on his face. He turned to the old guide, saying:

"Give me a bite to eat an' I'll go to bed."

"Not here," said Converse. "Not on your life. This is my camp. I don't want you anywhere near me. You pike off and take your chances just as the boy has done. There's a camp at High falls."

"That's fifteen mile from here, an' it looks like rain," the ruffian muttered.

"Good! I wish it was twenty and that it would rain hard enough to wash your dirty soul. For once in your life you're going to do some work."

Sauce for the Gander

There was a tired business man, a member of that busy clan that shields itself from prying eye behind that good old alibi.

In conference, he rested in his office chair and ducked a lot of toil and care, and smoked cigars in sweet content and thus his busy hours were spent.

In conference, he came anxious strangers by the score to camp outside his office door, and angrily they went their way for he was busy all the day.

In conference, And so he died and at the gate an angel bade him stand and wait, and said to him with frowning brow, "St. Peter's mighty busy now."

In conference, "Nobody would know you," said one

Latest Frocks of Lacy Open Mesh

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FASHIONLAND is enjoying the thrill of a new enthusiasm. It's for open lacy mesh effects, if you please. Seeking shoes, hosiery, gloves, dress goods, sports frocks, evening and afternoon gowns, wraps, suits, sweaters, or a blouse, millinery, handbags, or "what have you" in shops, you will be reminded every day in every way that open mesh effects are "it."

Some of the woolen materials are woven so open and lacy one has a feeling they surely are knitted or crocheted. Often these "meshy" weaves are made up with touches of hand crochet to finish them off. At any rate, if madam or mademoiselle aspires to follow in the footsteps of fashion, an openwork knitted or mesh-fabric gown on the order of the up-to-the-moment models pictured is inevitable for midseason and spring.

The good-looking spectator sports dress which you see to the left in the illustration is of bright orange woolen in a knitted patterning which looks very much like allover lace. Its smart tailored handling adds "class." The coat repeats the white accent which occurs in the yoke of the dress, a whole fox skin forming the collar. The swanky shoes enter into the color scheme most beautifully. Observe that they are very smart open-shank sandals made of exquisite orange toned kid. According to the style program a big vogue is in promise for dainty footwear of finest kid in very lovely coloring.

Black, tangerine and white are cleverly combined in the early spring street costume shown to the right. The open square-mesh material is in tangerine. Its many-gored skirt which slenderizes at the hipline and flares at the hemline is one of the outstanding features of the model. The surplice yoke of white mesh is also voguish.

The kid opera pumps, knitted turban, and abbreviated fur jacket are in black. A chain motif in gray beige to match the hose trims the shoes. Waist-length jackets of every type of flat fur or of velvet, corduroy or velveteen are outstanding in the new modes.

It is not only for the dress entire that mesh fabrics are scoring a triumph, but for the making of the suit-bouse these loose-woven effects are the rage. In this connection mention should also be made of the latest blouse as per Schiaparelli and other Paris dressmakers, which is hand-crocheted of coarse mercerized cotton and worn with the new spring suits.

Another use of French square-mesh hand crochet or of the materials which simulate these effects is that of making of them the deep yokes and sleeves such as top fashionable frocks this season, in contrast or of like color.

So popular has the theme of openwork novelties become, some of the shops are displaying accessory sets that include gloves, scarf and bag, all of matching mesh material, either in black, white or bright colors.

Likewise, latest footwear plays up to the flair for open mesh in that ultra chic shoes made of suva cloth (open mesh that looks like lace) are shown at all leading booteries.

Not only are the now-so-voguish mesh and lace-effect fabrics sponsored in street colors and in vivid shades, but they are apropos to spring and summer in a series of delicate colorings designated by stylists as "water lily shades." These include such delectable tones and tints as pink petal, water lily green and other as fascinating colors.

VELVET IS SMART FOR SPRING WEAR

Many velvets are popping up here and there in the shops.

One of the most effective suits for formal wear combines a white velvet jacket with a black satin skirt. The velvet of the jacket is the new dull-surface variety, and very smart.

Short velvet evening wraps are to take the fashion trenches by storm this spring. They are being shown in every conceivable color, from black and white, through the pastels, to the bright jewel tones.

A black velvet coat for spring wear has barrel sleeves starting to flare at the elbow, and gathered into a tight cuff of white ermine. A standing white ermine collar is finished by a black velvet bow, like a Windsor tie.

Spring Suit Must Have Jacket to Be Success

You must have a jacket with your new spring frock if it is to be a grand success. Of course, the jacket is sometimes a long coat, especially when it comes to the ensembles that are so liked just now. But it is jackets and nothing but in the evening, when the younger set, almost to a girl, steps out wearing some sort of jacket, however brief, with her frock.

Mostly the jackets are of the same material as the frock, and what they lack in length they make up in chic. But to put back to the frock with its coat, that does not match in color or material and yet manages to show that it is the soul-mate of the accompanying frock.

Plaid Gingham

Another southern fashion that will bear watching is the shirt made just like a man's, of brilliant plaided gingham. These are worn with trousers or with sports skirts and have a chic all their own.

HIGH WAISTLINE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The built-up waistline is important this season. This smart black and white check wool suit achieves the desired silhouette via a skirt which is brought up high over the blouse. The lining and the blouse are a vivid green crepe. Even when there is a belt, the newer skirts are made to look as if they extend above the normal waistline by means of tabs and various other clever devices.

ANGLICIZED

At a recent election a returning officer was questioning a Chinaman, who had been naturalized.
"What is your name?" asked the officer.
"Sneeze," said the Chinaman.
"Is that your Chinese name?" demanded the officer.
"No," said the Chinaman. "I had it translated into English."
"Then what is your name?" demanded the officer, getting angry.
"Ah Chew," said the oriental.—Exchange.

A SELLING PROPOSITION

Reggie—"I'm thinking of selling my brain, at my death, to the scientists, Miss Sharp." Miss S.—"Quite a selling proposition." Mr. Sapp—"The scientists will be sold, too."

Applications

Over one building in the group of machine shops was the sign, "Castings." The general manager, making his quarterly rounds, noticed that this had been removed.
"We had to take it down," explained his assistant. "People kept applying for movie work."—Louisville Courier Journal.

There's a Limit

"Are you invited to her fourth wedding?" asked the first woman.
"No," replied the other one. "I've had to give her wedding presents three times and when I heard she was tripping up to the altar for the fourth time I managed to start a bitter quarrel that ended our friendship."—Los Angeles Times.

New Motor Accessory

Friend—What's the big box on the front of your machine?
Automobilist—That's a camera for taking movie pictures. You see, I go so fast I don't have time to look at the scenery, and so I photograph it as I go along.—Watchman-Examiner.

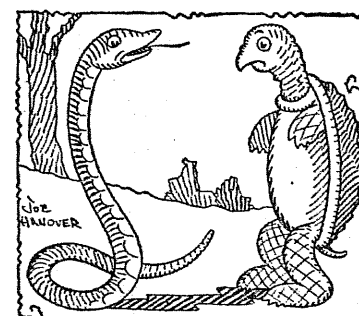

Sense of Suspicion

"So you are inclined to suspect the man who makes a profession of being an idealist?"
"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum. "An idealist nearly always tells you he doesn't care about money. And a man who says he doesn't care about money is nearly always just fooling."

The Fortune Teller

"What do you read from my palm?"
"You are on bad terms with soap."

A BORN WIGGLER

Snake—I'm going to quit going to parties. None of the girls will dance with me.
Turtle—How is that?
Snake—They say I wiggle too much when I dance.

Reminder

Wife (at busy crossing)—Now, remember, Herbert, the brake is on the left—or is it the right?—but don't—Harassed Husband—For heaven's sake stop chattering. Your job is to smile at the policeman!

Crude Critic

"What is the plot of that play?"
"The only plot I could discover," answered Mr. Lobrow, "is a conspiracy to get money at the box office."—Washington Star.

Sage

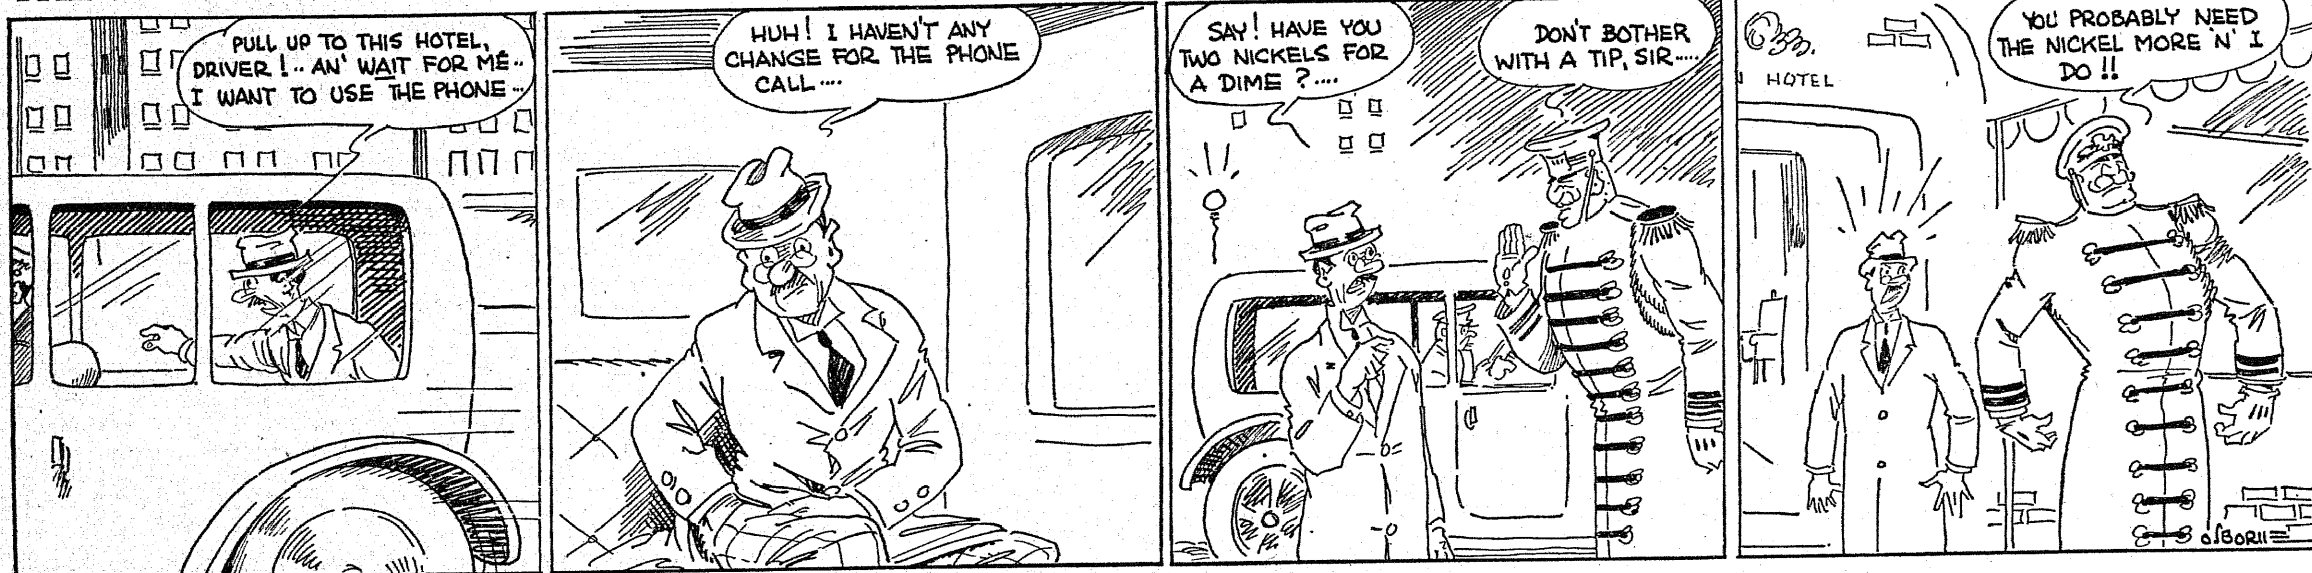

"That fellow has a reputation for wisdom."
"And well earned, too."
"Eh?"
"When he has no remedy for a problem, he keeps his mouth shut."

Another Theory

Teacher—Who can tell me where few comes from?
Max—The earth rotates so rapidly that it perspires.—Deutsche Illustrierte (Berlin).

Historically Correct Sketches

By CALVIN FADER

Hard by the crumbling homes of Yesteryear still runs the old "King's Highway"—the road of Washington's early youth. Today it is Virginia State Route 37. As this scene was sketched on a gray November day, the tinkle of cowbells could be heard from back in the woods—a peaceful prelude to the stirring scenes that lie ahead.

Farther along the road are incidents of great moment when read in relation to Washington's after life. At a place called Oak Grove, near Wakefield, he was advised by a Mr. Williams to take up the study of surveying. Next, in Marye School which stood on the site now occupied by the First Baptist Church in Fredericksburg, he began the reading and practice of "Rules of Civility"—minor incidents, perhaps, but watch for their unfolding later in the Washington mind.
