BELLS OF CLARK TOLL WARNING FLY-BY-NIGHTS NOT WANTED

MERCHANTS BAND TO CURB UNFAIR COMPETITION HERE

The Merchants' Association, meeting Tuesday night at the town hall, was advised on ways of regulating fly-by-night competition in a talk by A. Edmund Williamson, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Civics of the Oranges and Maplewood. The association will make use of the data next week in presenting a proposed method of control to the Town Commission.

Mr. Williamson traced the success attained in the Oranges through legislative appeal, local ordinance and prosecution in the courts. William J. Horgan, chairman of the committee dealing with the subject, presided in the absence of Patrick Fort. Nathan H. Berger spoke on the uniform closing of all except drug and food stores at 9 P. M. and a committee was appointed, headed by Herman Solomon, to acquaint the merchants of the benefits of the plan.

Rainbow Girls Meet At Masonic Temple

House Warming Tuesday
Was An Enjoyable
Affair

The house warming given by Roseville Assembly, Order of Rainbow Girls at Masonic Temple, Tuesday evening was thoroughly interesting. The Mother Advisor Mrs. Helen Proven was in charge and at this first meeting received a telegram of congratulations from Mrs. Fanny Mack, Supreme Inspector of the State. Already four petitions for admittance are in and many more are expected from Nutley, North Star, Forest Hill and Belleville Chapters, as the membership will mostly draw from these Chapters. There are already fifty girls in this Assembly and how those present did enjoy looking over every inch of their new quarters. Games were played and refreshments served. Mrs. Proven is bringing an enthusiastic heart to her new work.

March 28 the Rainbow Girls will exemplify their work for Areme Chapter, O. E. S. Worthy Matron Mrs. Stella Kroesen of Areme was present. Mrs. Teresa Mack former Advisor sent word she was ill and so sorry she could not be present.

Music Club Ready To Stage 'Sweethearts'

Show Goes On Tonight And Tomorrow At The High School

"Sweethearts," by Victor Herbert, is the title of the musical comedy to be presented at the high school tonight and tomorrow night, by the music club. The cast is composed of 120 high school students and is the largest ever in a local school production.

From the dress rehearsal held on Wednesday night, we can safely prophesy that this year's performance will be the finest musical program ever carried on in Belleville High School.

The outstanding roles will be taken by the following: Gertrude Davis, George Barnes, Margaret Shaulding, Leonard Hodgkinson, Robert

Mr. Williamson informed the association of the experiences with, and final control of the fly-by-night merchants. He stated that the state legislature recently passed a law definitely defining a fly-by-night merchant as a person who establishes a business in a town with the intention to move on when business slows up. Another state law, sets the maximum fine for such merchants, at $1,000. This law gives each municipality the right to set its own fine by ordinance. Continuing, he told the group of an ordinance which his organization is planning to present to their city officials for adoption. This ordinance divides merchants into six classes. Three of these classes, are forced to pay a fee to do business in the Oranges, while the remaining three classes are listed as non-profit making businesses and are only required to have a permit. The latter classes include inter-state merchants, solicitors for charitable organizations, and new merchants. One feature of the "new merchant" permit is that he will be required to place a bond amounting to ten per cent of the value of his stock, to insure his remaining in business for at least a year's time. If, at the end of the year he is still in business, the bond is returned.

Finger printing all applicants for peddlers' licenses, was also suggested.

Discuss Overcrowding Regards High School

Lack Of Funds Seen As Obstacle To Overcome
Condition

Relief of overcrowding at the High School was discussed Monday night by the Board of Education at a conference requested by the building and grounds committee. Lack of funds, due to economic conditions, was seen as the greatest obstacle to a solution, but it was agreed some measure of relief must be found by fall.

The board will await reports of Supervising Principal Wayne R. Parmer, High School Principal Charles Steel and Business Manager James Turner, and will acquaint taxpayers with the situation before taking action. The school enrollment of more than 1,000 exceeds the building's classroom capacity by nearly 200.

Board Of Estimate Urged For Schools

Town Needs Clearer View
Of Financial Situation

A conference of the Town Commission and Board of Education will be called in the near future to consider the creation of a Board of School Estimate. Recommendation of the move was made to the commission Tuesday night by Director Williams of the Department of Revenue and Finance.

Williams' opinion was that school and town officials would have a "clearer view of financial requirements" through the agency of a

The rate was figured by Tax Assessor John F. Coogan Jr. and Town Treasurer T. Russell Sargeant as follows: Town $2.14; school, $1.35; county and state, $.97.

CITY MANAGER PLAN WAS DISCUSSED MONDAY BY COMMISSIONER WILLIAMS AT PROGRESS CLUB

Rule Of Five Individual Monarchies As Now Quite Independent His Discussion Points Out

A trial of city manager form of government in town was advocated Monday night by Director William H. Williams of the Department of Revenue and Finance. He addressed an open meeting of the Progress Club at which the Congregation A. A. A. the Hebrew Ladies' Auxiliary and the Junior League were guests.

Although the commissioner said he was "not sold that city manager government is a perfect panacea," he believed it would be beneficial in attracting to public office men who would not engage in "the usual political scramble, knowing the business and personal abuse heaped on the heads of political office holders." Commission form of government, he said, he had found to be in Belleville "the rule of five individual monarchies that can be pretty nearly as independent as the United States is from France."

His speech in full was as follows: "I believe the time has arrived when our taxpayers may well give consideration to the adoption of the City Manager Plan. This plan can not be accepted as a perfect panacea for all municipal ills, but with the same business principles and the same character of ability applied to the business of Belleville as our suc-

FOR ELEVEN MINUTES BIG SHOT STANDS BY AS LIGHTS FLICKER AND BELLS CLANG AT NIGHT

It's What Snoop Terms A Break For Burglars If Clark Spots Them That Much Handicap

Big Shot has been smothered off the front page of the Belleville News due to causes beyond his control—recent world events—but he is back on the job again.

Just to prove that Big Shot hasn't forgotten his Public he jotted down some notes two weeks ago. He was snooping along Hornblower avenue near Oak street two weeks ago next Monday.

Big Shot is accurate. It was exactly nine minutes to eight in the evening. There was an awful racket, a bell was ringing—"42"—"42"—"42"—like the very dickens and lights were flashing the same number of times—42—

It must be a murder soliloquized Big Shot. He waited and the bell rang and rang and rang. They were the Bells of Clark and the Lights of Clark from Police Headquarters. Big Shot scratched his head as he waited for something to happen. One minute went by—and the clang of the bell clanged on.

Two minutes. Three minutes. Four minutes—Five—Six—Seven—Eight—Nine—ten minutes and out at two minutes past eight that there gadget stopped. Eleven minutes had passed.

Big Shot hasn't taken the trouble to find out what was going on—what a policeman was needed for—who the "42" call was for or why it was put in.

This snooper of snoops has his own

questionnaire:

1. What could a burglar have done with those eleven minutes?

2. Why was the bell clanged at night?

Big Shot, Mr. Clark, understands that there are two ways of throwing the switch on your "efficient" police alarm signal system. One switch is for day use, isn't it? This switch rings the bells and operates the lights; the other, for night use, right? This latter only operates the lights and isn't supposed to wake up the neighborhood or any one on mischief bent.

Whereupon Big Shot once more laughs with his public and like an apparition disappears to unearth some more data for his public to be printed in a succeeding issue—Big Shot has not yet determined which political tree his hatchet will cut into next.

Belleville Judaism Celebrate Purim

Festival Starts Monday
After Sunset; Tuesday
Also Holiday

Belleville Judaism will celebrate their Purim Festival this year on Monday, March 21. The festival will begin after sunset.

It will be inaugurated by the reading of the "Megillah." The "Megillah" is the story of Esther, the heroic Hebrew orphan who endangered her own life in order to save her brethren from total extinction during the reign of Asherius, King of Persia and Medes.

The plot to annihilate the Hebrews was planned and originated by the villainous Haman, prime minister in the court of King Asherius.

The children of the Belleville Hebrew School will be furnished with Jewish crickets or noise makers in order to drown out the name of Haman, whenever it is mentioned during the reading of the "Megillah."

The ritualistic reading of the "Megillah" will be performed by Joseph Greene the "Gabbai" or deacon of the Synagogue. Supervision of the pupils during the rituals of the Purim services will be taken care of by Irving Rosenfeld, rabbi of the Belleville Hebrew School.

At the conclusion of the services a banquet will be tendered the pupils by the congregation. A committee composed of members of the Ladies Auxiliary will act as hostesses.

On Tuesday morning services will be performed at which a special Purim Prayer, entitled "Al-Hanisim" or "The Miracles" will be said. "Al-Hanisim" refers to, of course, the great miracle which God performed in preserving the Hebrews from utter eradication. The services will also consist of a second reading of the "Megillah."

In addition to the services the Purim Festival will be celebrated by the exchange of gifts or "Schalach-Mones." These services will be carried on in the same manner throughout the entire universe.

The purpose of "Schalach-Mones" is to manifest a complete unity and harmony amongst the Jews in contradiction of Haman, the villainous conspirator who claimed that the Hebrews were a divided and unharmonious people.

LEGION DECLARES WAR

FIND BEST WAY TO END DEPRESSION IS TO PUT WAGE EARNERS AT WORK

In a combined effort to end depression the American Legion, the American Legion Auxiliary, Federation of Labor and Association of National Advertisers are attempting to put 1,000,000 or more wage earners back to work.

They do not ask that these wage earners be service men but that every employer make an effort to employ one or more wage earners with the prospect of putting that much more money in circulation to purchase his or some one else's product and eventually kill depression.

Carl Boyer who organized the correspondence activities for the government during the World War, as associate chairman of the United States Committee on Public Information, has volunteered his services and has said that in three weeks it has been possible to bring together for this work a greater force than it was possible to bring together in four months during the World War.

The President of the country has heartily backed the movement and has expressed the desire that every forward looking organization in the country would join with the associated groups in their way against depression.

He could have added that every forward looking employer add as many wage earners as possible to the payroll as this is the end which is in view.

The Belleville Post of the American Legion has for its unemployment chairman Thomas W. Fleming, who can be reached at any time in the day at the Town Hall and if any employer wishes to cooperate with the American Legion by putting to work one or more wage earners, it will help in New Jersey's record, which at the present is very low as the records will show from the statement just received from headquarters. Other statements will be printed in the Belleville News.

With eighty-one communities in 28 states reporting jobs found for 9,660 wage earners heretofore unemployed, the total number obtained to date has been swelled to 212,236, according to advices from headquarters of the War Against Depression Campaign at the Hotel Baltimore, New York.

California led the van with jobs found for 3,460 men and women in six communities while New York was second with jobs for 1,169 found in five cities and Ohio was third with 1,112 in seven communities. Of the eighty-one reporting communities, 60 were "first time" job-finders, it was stated at headquarters.

Twelve hundred and sixty-six communities out of 6,260 which have a population of 1,000 or more, have reported to date, Pennsylvania standing first with 109 reporting communities, New York, second with 88 and Wisconsin third with 69.

Minnesota continues in the lead with the greatest number of jobs secured, 23,006, closely pressed by New York with 22,042. Wisconsin is now a poor third with 16,216, hard pressed by Pennsylvania with 15,346.

Reports by states to date follow: Alabama, 4,158; Arkansas, 884; California, 8,282; Connecticut, 2,080; District of Columbia, 128; Georgia, 3,839; Illinois, 12,350; Indiana, 9,216; Louisiana, 1,916; Massachusetts, 5,950; Michigan, 4,957; Minnesota, 23,006; Missouri, 6,022; Nebraska, 767; New Jersey, 2,632; New York, 22,042; North Carolina, 6,151; Ohio, 13,073; Oklahoma, 4,316; Oregon, 3,401; Pennsylvania, 15,346; South Carolina, 865; Texas, 1,592; Vermont, 373; Virginia, 1,086; Washington, 4,694; West Virginia, 6,854; Wisconsin, 16,216.

This is the latest report from headquarters. Will the employers of Belleville help the cause, asks Arthur H. Christie, Commander of Belleville Post, No. 105.

PUZZLE CORNER

When the Browns married eighteen years ago, Brown was three times as old as his wife, and today he is just twice as old as she. How old was Mrs. Brown on the wedding day?

SOLUTION TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE:

The average speed is twelve miles, not twelve and a half. Take any distance you like, say sixty miles. This would have taken six hours going and four hours returning. The double journey of 120 miles would thus take ten hours, and the average speed is clearly twelve miles an hour.

Hyman Solomon Recuperating From Auto Accident Friends Glad To See Him About After Serious Injury

Five months ago while on a motor trip to Syracuse, New York, Hyman Solomon, proprietor of the New York Five and Ten Cent Store, located at 82 Washington avenue, suffered severe injuries that have incapacitated him ever since.

Mr. Solomon accompanied by his wife and Miss Juanita Taffet were on the way to Syracuse University to visit Mr. Solomon's son Julius who is a medical student there. Mr. Solomon who had already driven about two hundred miles over roads that were covered with ice and sleet was about five miles outside of Binghamton, New York, when the car skidded and overturned plunging his left arm to the ground.

He laid there for about fifteen minutes before help arrived and freed him. Mr. and Mrs. Solomon were rushed to Binghamton Hospital where X-rays showed that his arm was broken in two places. Mrs. Solomon suffered a cut in her forehead that necessitated six stitches to close. But Mr. Solomon was not so fortunate, the X-ray showed that a plate would have to be screwed on to the broken bone. This was done but five weeks later another X-ray showed that the screws had worked loose and pus had formed in the bone.

Mr. Solomon underwent another operation in which the plate was removed. He remained in the hospital another three weeks—ten weeks in all—before being discharged to be further treated by Dr. A. A. Rubin, prominent local physician. With characteristic good humor, Mr. Solomon, upon leaving the hospital, asked to have the plate as a souvenir. It was given to him and now occupies a prominent position in the rear of his store.

Ever since his discharge from the hospital he has had to have his arm in a cast.

Until two weeks ago he has had his arm in a brace that held it straight out from his body. Now that the brace has been removed, Mr. Solomon says that he feels like a new man and assures every one that he can lick his weight in wildcats and only with one hand at that—the left one.

in municipal operation—sound attention to outstanding debts and application of sound judgment regarding increasing such debts, have rarely been known in detail by taxpayers. While tax rates were decreasing, apparently indicating good government, a study of the records shows unwarranted increases in indebtedness, heavy increases in annual interest charges, non-payment of bills as required by law, exclusive of mandatory items from budgets—radical fluctuations of municipal payrolls at election periods—all of which when the day of reckoning arrives, can help to explain why a rate of $4.46 is necessary today. Lincoln's words are as true today as in 1865—tax rates also took some of the people some of the time, but an increase in seven years of our debt, exclusive of School Debt, from $2,369,000 in 1925 to $5,629,000, an increase of $3,260,000 or 137 per cent cannot continue to fool all of the people. I submit this data to you to aid in making our property owners conscious of the condition their affairs can get into. Economies recommended by me last year were voted down, but with substantial public opinion focussed on municipal operation, costs will be more definitely controlled in the future.

The creation of a Board of School Estimate was deemed desirable by the finance director. He said he would recommend it to the Town Commission in order to more closely weld the money-spending units of the town. The Board of Education, he pointed out, last year "requisitioned" $483,000 of the town's tax levy, the county and state $322,000, debt service $300,000, leaving but about $300,000 for new expenditure by the Town Commission.

Other speakers were Nathan Berger, president of the People's National Bank & Trust Co. of Belleville; Edward Abramson, president of the Progress Club, and Wilfred Yudin, master of ceremonies. Mr. Berger cited the success of the Jewish people in the arts and professions despite oppression and handicap.

that signature on a cartoon in these columns look carefully at the cartoon. It will have been drawn by M. G. Ketner, one of the leading cartoonists of America. We are proud of the fact that he is numbered among the contributors to our columns, and know that his work appeals to all of our readers. In a kindly way he pictures our kind of "folk" and his cartoons are never of the offensive type. Call them to the attention of your friends.

DO PARENTS DOUBT?

"PARENTS," says Miss Leta Hollingsworth of Columbia Teachers' College, "are unusually poor judges of the intellectual gifts of their children and are frequently surprised when told that one of their offspring has exceptional mental powers."

That runs counter to popular belief. Most parents seem rather certain that they have a young genius in the family. Miss Hollingsworth should be an expert on the subject but this seems to be a case where further proof is desirable.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

ALL GOOD DRUG STORES

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up."

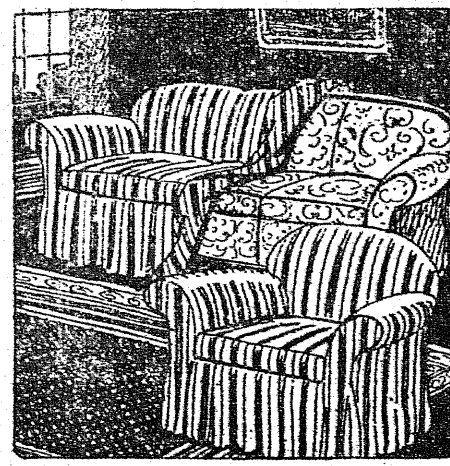

They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

Baked Beans Fine Substitute For Meat on Lenten Menus

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Heinz Food Institute

BECAUSE they are rich in protein, Baked Beans may take the place of meat in the menu. The food iron and other minerals in Baked Beans make them worthy of the high position they receive in the food world. Nutritionists advise us to include more Baked Beans in the week's menus, as they recognize Baked Beans an economical source of many valuable food elements. We are urged to serve beans that have been thoroughly baked, since long slow baking makes them tender and meaty.

In the Lenten season when many meals are served without meat, recipes for preparing this valuable food in easily-made dishes are especially interesting. Here are some recipes for all homemakers planning appetizing meals without meat.

Oven Baked Beans in Green Pepper Cases: Wash four large green peppers, cut in half lengthwise and remove seeds. Place in boiling water and allow to stand for five minutes to remove sting from the peppers. Fill with Oven Baked Beans (1 medium can) sprinkle with buttered Rice Flakes or crumbs, place in a deep baking dish, add ¼ cup water and bake in a moderate oven until peppers are tender and the crumbs brown. Serves 4.

Tomato Welsh Rarebit With Kidney Beans: Melt 4 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, remove from fire and mix with 4 tablespoons flour. Scald 2 cups milk and stir into the butter and flour. Season with ½ teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. Cook in a double boiler until the mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Beat in 1½ cups grated American cheese, and when the cheese melts, add ½ cup Tomato Ketchup and drained Oven Baked Red Kidney Beans (1 medium can) and allow beans to heat through. Serve on slices of hot toast or biscuit. Serves 6.

New England Roast With Tomato Sauce: Mash 1 medium can Oven

Baked Red Kidney Beans or put through food chopper. Mix with 1 cup soft crumbs, 1 cup grated cheese, 1 medium size onion, chopped fine, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 egg. Bake in a greased baking dish in moderate oven until firm and nicely brown. Serve with Tomato Sauce. Serves 6.

Tomato Sauce: Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add 1 tablespoon flour and blend thoroughly. Add ¾ cup milk slowly and cook until thickened. Add ½ cup Tomato Ketchup gradually and remove from fire.

Baked Tomatoes Stuffed With Oven Baked Beans: Scald and peel 6 large tomatoes, and cut a slice from the top of each and scoop out inside. Turn upside down to drain. In skillet, fry 2 green peppers, chopped, and 6 slices finely cut bacon, if desired. When slightly brown, add to 1 medium can Oven Baked Beans and the drained pulp from the inside of the tomatoes. Season with salt and pepper and fill the tomato shells. Bake in a moderate oven until the tomatoes are tender. Tomatoes prepared in this way look lovely and make a substantial supper dish. Serves 6.

Board Of Estimate

board of estimate than under the present procedure.

Mayor Kenworthy suggested the joint conference. Corporation Counsel Brown was directed to check the legal steps necessary for the change.

An "objection on principle" was made by Williams against including in the employment relief program the maintenance and repair of public grounds for the purpose of giving jobs on school properties. He felt it to be a subterfuge in that the school budget had been cut with the understanding maintenance of grounds would be neglected because of economic conditions.

Mayor Kenworthy upheld the work as useful, saying taxpayers would lose in the end if public property was not cared for. He introduced the amendment to the town's program, he said, at the request of school officials. The measure passed 3 to 2. Commissioner Carragher objecting also because the board had decided previously against going ahead with his planned addition at the rear of the Town Hall.

The raising of $4,000 for employment relief and $3,000 for dependency relief was authorized.

No bids were received for $450,000 of 1931 tax revenue bonds, offered, for four years at six per cent interest. The lack of bids leaves the town sixty days in which to dispose of the issue by private sales.

Mayor Kicks Over Traces

An amendment to the zoning ordinance, providing for a change of zone at Main and Bayard streets from a residential to a business section, was passed on first reading, over the objections of Mayor Kenworthy.

The Mayor based his objection on the fact that the communication received from the Valley Improvement Association objecting to the change, should be given consideration. As every citizen in the affected area is in favor of the change, the remaining members of the board refused to consider the objection. The amendment passed by a four to one ballot.

A communication addressed to the board, notified the commissioners of the objection of the Taxpayers Association to the appointment of Dr. Goldberg, as an assistant to Dr. H. B. Vail, the town physician.

Peace looms soothingly over the "Barber Front," as the Board of Commissioners in conference Tuesday afternoon, were notified of the decision reached by the local barbers and their comrades in cutting the Silver Lake barbers.

James Colaninno, representing sixteen local tinsmiths, stated that his faction did not care to remain open for a half day on Sunday, as they would have to if the Silver Lake group's petition was adopted, but Silver Laker to remain closed. A happy medium was reached upon his suggestion that the ordinance be amended to suit both parties. This could be arranged by including a phase in the ordinance, which would set a boundary line between the Silver Lake section and the rest of the town. The closing ordinance would be in effect in Belleville, while the opening ordinance would be in effect in the Silver Lake section.

Objection to the sanitary sewer assessment of seventeen years ago, was the purpose of the Manufacturers Association's communication to the board, Tuesday.

The association felt that the inclusion of the interest on the assessment, in the yearly budgets, was an unjust method of distributing the expense. The suggestion made by the association is: "Assessments should be made so as to equalize the tax burden and if necessary, employ additional help to straighten out the manner of equalizing the assessments." The communication also suggested that the board meet a committee of the association members and discuss the question.

Stories by Fannie Hurst Leaders in Short Fiction

In offering to our readers the stories by Fannie Hurst we are giving them the very best in short fiction produced by any writer of today. For Fannie Hurst is the acknowledged leader in the short story writing field, as is proved by the fact that she is the highest paid writer of short fiction in the world.

A native of St. Louis, Miss Hurst began writing while she was a student at Washington University and continued it while she was doing graduate work in literature at Columbia University in 1910 and 1911. She soon won recognition for her work from editors of magazines and published her first book of short stories, "Around the Corner," in 1914. This was followed by "Every South Hath Its Song" the next year, and "Gaslight Sonatas," in 1916. Her most important work, "Humoresque," appeared in 1918, followed by "Stardust" in 1919, "The Vertical City," in 1921, and another outstanding success, "Lummox," in 1923. Two years later she published "Appassionata," and in 1926 came her "Mannequin," which was awarded the $50,000 prize by the Famous Players-Lasky corporation. Her more recent books include "Song of Life," 1927; "A President Is Born," 1927, and "Five and Ten," 1929. She is also the author of several successful plays and has lectured successfully, but it is as a writer of short stories for magazines and newspaper syndicates that she is internationally famous.

Fannie Hurst knows human nature. She knows people because she has made special studies of the stage and of the shop girl and her environs while she was working as a saleswoman, waitress, etc. She once made a trip across the Atlantic as a steerage passenger for the sole purpose of gaining experience which would furnish her with material for a novel. In private life Miss Hurst is Mrs. Jacques S. Danielson of New York City.

car dealers has been shifted onto the health officer for settlement, is possible.

Town Counsel John B. Brown submitted two ordinances to the Board, Tuesday, for consideration. Neither of them seemed to satisfy the commissioners.

The Mayor stated that "all except local dealers should be excluded."

"I think we're headed for complications," was the statement submitted by Commissioner Williams.

CITY MANAGER PLAN

WITH keen interest we note the recommendation of Commissioner William H. Williams to the taxpayers to give serious consideration to the adoption of the City Manager Plan. As Director Williams states, this plan will not be a panacea for all town problems, but we heartily endorse plans which substitute strong business-like rules for political expediencies. An enlightened public opinion can more easily review the next group seeking public office, and we predict able qualifications will be more carefully checked by the voters.

At the present time over 400 cities and towns in the U. S. are operating by the City Manager Plan. It is interesting to note the bonds of Rochester, N. Y., which city is so managed, are rated as among the finest bonds obtainable.

Are freedom from political influences, closing up of scores of subterranean openings to the municipal treasury, orderliness of finances, stability of personnel, selection of employees on basis of qualification, not worthy of study? The benefits can be obtained. Belleville property owners should study a plan which has interested citizens of Dallas, Texas; Flint, Michigan; Oakland and Berkeley, California; Charlotte, N. C.; Norfolk, Va., and over 400 other cities.

We predict that within the next decade or two, our present plan of municipal management will be referred to as the plan of "the dark ages of city government."

O. P. M. MAKES IT EASY

EVERY time we hear some politician get up to tell what he has done for old John public we are forced to yawn—a good, big yawn.

All any of these "world beaters" have done, so far as we can see, is to soft soap people, and how!

It is easy for a politician to tell you he has given the town this, that or the other thing. But what has he given? What have any of our present three bosses, Mayor Samuel Sampson Kenworthy, and Commissioners Patrick A. Waters and W. D. Clark given the town in a big way, as an example?

We have heard of streets constructed, sewers, fire engines, unemployment and such bunk, and believe us it is the bunk. They did this work with O. P. M.,—other peoples' money. O. P. M. is a great thing to use, especially old Jawn Taxpayer's. So when these chaps or any others in the realm of politics tell you what they have done, remember they have done it with your good old dollar bills, which anybody could spend.

It is O. P. M.

Once, not so far away we heard our Mayor, Sammy, say that he would prefer to handle the unemployment via benefits, etc., without taxing Jawn's pocketbook further for Poor Department needs. The unemployment, poor relief and what have you gets a big nick out of Jawn's frayed trouser pockets this year, we note by glancing over the budget, and no benefits supply the funds. How about it, Sammy?

CHILDREN FIRST

MORE laurels would be added to those who are responsible for a proposed underpass in Belleville avenue if these proponents would consider local school children in preference to golfers. Children who attend the school opposite the Essex County Hospital for Contagious Diseases, near the golf course, are a secondary consideration, it would seem.

Mayor Kenworthy has long and loud told how dangerous it is for golfers to cross the thoroughfare—golfers from other parts of the county, as well as Belleville. Why didn't the Mayor have in mind local parents and their children instead of the golfers?

To our mind local people come first especially children. Isn't the Mayor interested in home town children? Let's have the underpass placed for the benefit of these tiny tots and, if the golfers want to use it, let them walk to an entrance and exit near the school.

Perhaps, NOW, this underpass may be located near the school. Who knows? Let us think more of the children and less of the golfer. If it were our doing children first would be the slogan.

THE CAUTIOUS PUBLIC

BROKERS in New York are reported as feeling disgruntled because the public has not swarmed in to buy stocks during the recent rise in the prices of securities.

Human memories are proverbially short but the plaint of the brokers seems to imply that people should not have any memories at all. A few months of rising prices probably would bring in another rush of speculators but, after recent experiences in the stock market, it is expecting a good deal to think that the public should be stampeding to buy stocks on every little upturn.

WHERE IS IT?

WE see very little of the old large size paper money in circulation; yet, according to the Treasury Department records, there is approximately $75,000,000 of it that has not been returned for cancellation.

Where is all this currency? It is now two years and a half since the department called it in, and the end is nowhere in sight. A large portion has been lost, burned or otherwise destroyed, it is believed. Perhaps some of the bills are kept as souvenirs. At any rate, a steady slowing down in the retirement of the big bills has been noted as the amount outstanding diminishes. When they were first called in, in June 1929, extra forces of clerks had to be employed to count and sort them, and the macerators which destroyed them were worked overtime. Now the regular force is handling the redemption activities easily.

Still money is money, no matter what its size, and it is a mystery where the millions of dollars in old-style bills are reposing—if anywhere. It is the same with bonds; even now there are hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of Liberty bonds that have been called in, and are still out and probably always will be. Human nature that loves money can never be persuaded to get all that is coming to it.

About Books

by Cyrus Wood

If through some gross mismanagement the entire space in this paper were to become available for the publication of book reviews, it would then be possible to give reasonably adequate attention to most of the important books published. But the paper seems to be in very capable hands and, as I'd like to draw your attention to some of the books that I'll probably be unable to review, I'll limit myself to brief description and quotation.

Proponents of the Patterson-Coughlin bill in Congress might be interested in the following paragraph from Clarence Darrow's newly published autobiography, "The Story Of My Life": "A few years before this a case of kidnapping of a child in Illinois attracted a great deal of attention; indignation and discussion, at which time, in obedience to the demand of the crowd, the legislature passed a law providing the same punishment for kidnapping as for murder. If they had used a grain of sense people would have foreseen that the statute would tend to the killing of everyone kidnapped in order to destroy the evidence; murder could not add to the penalty if the offenders were caught. But the public and the legislature did not think so far."

Leonard Woolf, in his study of the democratic mind, "After The Deluge," which Harcourt, Brace & Company have just published, takes H. L. Mencken to task for his false and too facile triumph over democracy. Mr. Woolf maintains that Mencken's arguments are old ones, correct but unimportant, and he reminds him that: "The psychological discoveries of Mr. Simon and Binet and the sedulous investigations of intelligence testers have proved that the population of the United States consists largely of morons, out-numbering those born with the intelligence of a Mr. Mencken in the ratio of perhaps 500,000 to 1." At the same time Ludwig Lewisohn in his survey of American literature "Expression In America," says of Mencken: "When he leaves music he is intellectually lost. Henry Mencken has simply no organ for perceiving the character of great literature."

Although the real names are not given, "Headlines," (Harper) is the true story of a woman whose husband was tried for murder and electrocuted. Mildred Gilman, newspaper reporter, who interviewed the wife at the time of the murder, writes in a foreword to the book: "Headlines is the autobiography of a faithful person, a devoted wife and mother, who was flung into the arena of our criminal courts and tortured by our criminal courts and tortured by our criminal courts and tortured by our criminal courts." I saw her fight the inexorable machinery of justice as it ended her husband's life. She bade Larry farewell a few hours before he went to the electric chair; wanted to die herself. But for the sake of her children and because of Larry's last appeal to her, she consented to continue the struggle for existence. This book has been her greatest effort." The author declares that she has written "Headlines," as "an emotional release and because every one has told my story but me. I've been misquoted in a hundred different versions. For Larry's sake I wanted to write his real story and mine."

HIGHLIGHTS and HEADLINES

By LILLIAN THOMAS

The cub wrote "hate" instead of "late." His copy was a mess: And when he came to "as" he went And added on an "s." He said the young man was a "slob." He really meant a "gob." And when he called his chief a "thief" The poor cub lost his job.

In 1928 we were told that this country would "soak" in prosperity. Looks as if we got soaked by it.

According to the Republicans the only thing Al Smith will get out of running for President will be a few ballot boxes to add to his collection. Women have been urged to study politics. Doesn't that make a man wish he could be anywhere but in the land of equal rights?

Do teachers lie? We'll say they do! Especially the one who said we'd grow up to be President of the United States.

After seeing the new styles in men's suits, we doubt whether we'll be able to tell the difference between an old suit and a new one.

Depression hit some people so hard they've decided to go in for fur trapping. The first thing they'll do is set a trap for the wolf at the door.

AN ALL-ELECTRIC HOUSE

Photo-cells and Telechron Motors Operate Automatic Devices That Lessen Labor and Increase Comfort.

AND now we have the all-electric house in which automatic devices do just about everything from opening the garage doors to turning the radio off at night.

Walden Woods, the 1922 model home of Creston H. Caldwell near Greenwich, Conn., probably has more electrical equipment per square foot than any other house in the country. Electricity furnishes music, chimes, entertainment, refreshment, accurate time, and, to a considerable extent, it even takes the place of routine thinking. And Mr. Caldwell, former member of the U. S. Radio Commission, now editor of Electronics, is continually thinking up something new.

Photo-electric cells, which operate delicate relays when anything intercepts a beam of light, and Telechron motors of the synchronous type used in electric clocks furnish most of the "magic" on the Caldwell 50-acre place. Drive up the lane and the shadow of your car will cause a Telechron to be started. This little motor will allow you time enough to park your car and, as you alight, it will cause Westminster Chimes to peal you a welcome. The same chimes, operated by an electric clock, usher in each hour at Walden Woods. Arrive at night, and your car intercepting a photo-electric cell beam not only sounds the chimes but floods the grounds and garden with light.

In the bed rooms radios are equipped with telechron controls so that one can set the switch ahead and then drop off to sleep confident that the radio will be turned off at the designated time. One set is so controlled by one of the little motors that it is automatically turned on for the morning setting-up exercises.

Another clock control on the electric dish-washer permits it to operate just long enough to wash or rinse the dishes and then turns it off. Another turns on the electric range at any hour desired, even though the family be absent. Still another turns off the electric refrigerator and starts it again after the proper interval for defrosting. Others control the furnace and keep a supply of hot water always at the proper temperature in the electric water-heating system.

Several score electric clocks, from that in the stable tower to boudoir alarm clocks, furnish time with their never failing accuracy. Several of them are rare old Colonial time-pieces whose brass works have been supplanted by simple synchronous electric motors.

The total investment in electrical devices, according to Mr. Caldwell, is but a few hundred dollars and the cost of operating them averages $15.00 to $16.00 a month.

SCHOOLS

By WILLIAM GRAY

The student council of Belleville High School will shortly be reorganized as a permanent school organization. A committee composed of three students will meet with Charles L. Steel, Jr., the school's principal, and work out a constitution.

Those on the committee are: Joseph Evangelista, Raymond Smith and Barbara Tate. Upon its completion, the constitution will be submitted to the student council who in turn will submit it to the student body.

Up to the present time the student council has merely been a temporary body, recruited for experimental purposes.

Inter-class debates will soon get under way in the high school. The seniors will stake a team against the freshmen, and the winners will meet to decide the school champions.

Mr. Steel announced Tuesday that all boys attending the high school, have been invited to attend the services of the Everyman's Bible Class at the Masonic Temple, on Sunday, April 3, at 9:30 A. M.

During the past two weeks several members of the musical comedy cast, have presented short skits of the production at the various grammar schools. They were well received and we feel safe in predicting that "Sweethearts" will be a well patronized show. Many of the grade school teachers as well as parents and pupils are planning to attend either Friday or Saturday night's performance.

"Believe it or not," teachers in the high school are gradually breaking away from their usual coldness and assumed dignity. Recently the male members of the faculty have actually taken their coats off and played volley ball with the students. Now it is rumored that Paul A. Brennan amused his colleagues at the annual teachers' banquet, by tap dancing.

"Wild Nell, the Pet of the Plains," or "Her Final Sacrifice," was the title of the pantomime barbeque presented by Miss Allen's home room in the assembly, Tuesday morning.

This was truly one of the best home room presentations this year. The play was a combined comedy and tragedy. It dealt with the suicide of an American pioneer woman because the hero (Handsome Harry) fell in love with an English heiress. The cast was as follows: Wild Nell, Jennie Martello; Lady Vere de Vere, the heiress, Jean Mac Kay; Handsome Harry, Warren Knight.

AUTOMOBILE OWNERS THIS IS IMPORTANT TO YOU

We ask you to please read the following as it will save you about 35% in your Liability Insurance. You know that the Liability rates in Essex County have been increased about 25%, and that the 10% Merit Rating has been eliminated. This amounts to about 35% increase which already has become effective.

BUT

We can write your policy, with a substantial Company, not a Mutual Company, at the old rates, providing we are privileged to do so prior to the first of April, 1932. This means, as you realize, a very considerable saving and is at least worth investigating. We would be pleased to have you get in touch with us so that we may outline this proposition.

As A Further Consideration

We can arrange time payments on the premium, if you so desire.

Henry W. Underwood Is Given Testimonial One Hundred Old Friends At Testimonial Affair At Elks'

One hundred old friends attended the testimonial dinner given Henry W. Underwood of 9 Stephens street, at the Elks' Club Friday night. He has served Belleville thirty-eight years as a municipal employee, resigning January 23 as tax title searcher. His last post was held six years.

David I. Kelly, secretary of the Essex County Park Commission, and Edward W. Jackson, vice president of that commission and a former resident of Belleville, were guests who spoke. Julius S. Rippel of Newark was unable to attend and sent a telegram of regret, as did Mayor Kenworthy.

Mr. Kelly said the town should be proud of its extensive park area. He believed the program of beautification underway along the Passaic and Second rivers would one day rival the charm of the Thames through London.

Mr. Jackson called Mr. Underwood an "old crony" with whom he had many times in corner stores "settled the affairs of the country." He told of Mr. Underwood being of aid to the Park Board in matters of record requiring research, without accepting remuneration.

George R. Gerard, former supervising principal of Belleville schools, presented an ebony humidor to the honored guest. Andrew L. Boylan acted as toastmaster.

Mr. Underwood, who will be eighty-five April 17, said he had found "life has a silver lining." He said his attachment to town affairs through the years had been based on the inclination to "be of cheering and cheerful service" to his fellow citizen. His main object had ever been to "accomplish a smile" on the faces of those he met in the Town Hall.

Solos were sung by Arthur Ekins and Miss Catherine Scane Ward. Miss Agnes Wharton led group singing.

Wemec Show

The Wemec Dramatic Club on April 3 will once again present a former Broadway success, "Cook Robin," a mystery, the play chosen and is by the work of two famous playwrights Elmer Rice and Philip Barry.

This play is the first of its kind attempted by the Wemec and no little work is going forth to make "Cook Robin" as entertaining and enjoyable as its six predecessors.

A well selected cast has been assembled by E. Tempest Lowry, the director, and with both forces working as wholeheartedly as they are doing now, there is no reason why "Cook Robin" should not be as much a success on the stage of the high school as it was at the Forty-Eighth Street Theatre. And the Wemec also can be as confident and pleased as Guthrie McClintic, the original producer, that another hit has been scored.

There will be dancing after the performance. Tickets may be procured from any club member. Reserved seats go on sale March 28, at Kaden's Drug Store.

Junior Music Study Club

The Junior Music Club of Belleville will be known hereafter by the natty emblems they will wear and they are quite pleased at the distinction. The meeting Saturday afternoon at the home of the director Eleanor Bacon-Peck was thoroughly enjoyed and the program while short was well rendered by "A two part invention" by Bach—Janet Millen, "Nocturne" by Beethoven—Genevieve Holland and "Amour ette by MacDowell—Margaret Jones. Mrs. Peck gave a talk on Hayden. Hostesses served refreshments.

LIBRARY NEWS

Newer hues make books attractive. The Public Library is experimenting in bright and attractive shades to replace the dull reds, browns, blues and greens which have been used in rebinding for many years past.

The plan is not altogether new, but is being used by some of the largest libraries.

In connection with this experiment what we believe to be an entirely new scheme, has been worked out in marking of books in certain classes.

This consists of a die-stamped symbol done in gold leaf similar to the author and title stamped on the back of the book.

It is believed that the new colors and new stamping will make the rebound books much more attractive and that the plan will serve to stimulate circulation of the older books.

Women Voters League Plans To Hold An Institute On Taxation Mrs. Frederick H. Sanford Of Nutley Is President Of State Group

The New Jersey League of Women Voters, of which Mrs. F. H. Sanford of Nutley, is president, has completed plans for an "Institute on Taxation" to be held in cooperation with Rutgers University, during March.

It has been planned to divide the institute into six sessions. These sessions will be held on the Campus at the New Brunswick College. The dates, location and topics to be discussed at each session follow:

Mrs. F. H. Sanford will be chairman at the first session, at which "The Why of Taxation" is to be discussed. The institute will open at 2 o'clock Monday, March 28, for registration in the Queen Building. At 3 o'clock the first session will be held in the Fine Arts Room. At 6:30 P. M. the second session will be held in Winants Hall. Tuesday, March 29, at 10 o'clock the third session will be held in the Queens Building. At 2 o'clock the fourth session will be held and at three there will be round table discussions. The social evening will be held at 6:30 for the fifth session in Winants Hall.

The concluding session will be in the Queens Building at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. "When Proposals for Change in the New Jersey Taxation" will be discussed.

Prominent persons will take part in all discussions. In the Institute of Taxation at Rutgers which is probably the most serious and extensive study of the subject ever to be coupled with the forces of adult education, it is proposed to assemble the leading economic and educational authorities of the field before a gathering of the representative taxpayer groups. Each session will provide a searching and exhaustive examination of a separate phase of the subject, progressing toward a final session in which the earlier findings will be applied against the summary proposals for hypothetical changes in New Jersey Taxation. This institute, modeled on other such conferences which have produced widespread attention, should mark a sharp and decisive advance in the knowledge of taxation.

In taking this step the New Jersey League of Women Voters has enlisted the aid of Rutgers University, as the educational medium of the institute, through its Bureau of Economic and Business Research, which has arranged the program, and the University Extension Division, which will be in general charge.

Later Mrs. Smith asked for reports on the Conference at Newark last week. Mrs. Entekin, when unexpectedly called upon to tell a little about the Conference said, "she was told as long as she was chairman of civics she should go to that departmental discussion—she went, although inclination called elsewhere, but she found it more than instructive and interesting, especially the work for down and out men."

Mrs. Smith said she could have said many more nice things about the Club, but being limited to two minutes she did the next best thing. She laughingly admitted practicing "before the clock."

Mrs. Dudley Drake and her committee served dainty cakes and tea while awaiting the closing of the polls. Sharply at 4 P. M. Mrs. Smith sounded the gavel and counting was begun. All was very businesslike, from the presentation of cards to the admission to the polling tables. Mrs. William V. Irvine permanent treasurer for the Club sat in the hall with

The Golden Text is: "Be Still, and know that I am God; I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth." (Psalms 46:10).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." (1 John 2:15).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "When we learn in Science how to be perfect even as our Father in heaven is perfect, thought is turned into new and healthy channels,—towards the contemplation of things immortal and away from materiality to the Principle of the universe, including harmonious man." (p. 276).

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Last Saturday night the Girl Scouts entertained at the High School gym in honor of the twentieth anniversary of Girl Scouting. Each troop presented a demonstration of Girl Scout work, that did full credit to their officers. Troop No. 1, singing, sang many well known Scout songs in an engaging manner, acting many of them. Troop No. 2 showed how one party of Girl Scouts could follow others with wood craft signs.

Troop No. 3 showed how to administer first aid to a companion, and carry her home on a stretcher of ropes. Troop 4 displayed "Compass" with an aviator flying around the world, touching at a big port for each point of the compass. Troop No. 5 demonstrated knot tying. Troop No. 6 as "hostess" showed how to receive and introduce visitors and guests.

Troop No. 8 gave a drill in signaling. Girls in union, sent a birthday greeting in Morse Code. Two girls using flash lights signaled each other the length of the gym with all other lights out. Troop No. 10 played several games. Troop No. 11 gave a demonstration of a troop "on a hike."

The Patrol Leaders' Association gave a full report of the past year's activities in Belleville month by month, marching in costume or uniform carrying the emblems of badge work, characters from the International rally, the George Washington Pageant, the field day in June. Others told of hikes, over night camping trips, a week's camping in South Orange Mountains. Still others demonstrated collection of used clothing, Easter baskets, parties baskets of food for welfare work window display, baseball, basketball and one girl covered with newspaper clippings displayed from many papers, posed as "Publicity."

Mrs. Adams, commissioner, made a gracious and pleasing address of welcome. She read a very gay telegram — "Congratulations to that pleasant young lady, Miss Girl Scout, on her twentieth birthday. Signed S. S. Kenworthy."

The gym held twenty tables arranged around the room in a hollow square, each table containing twenty cakes, each holding a lighted candle. There was a huge two-tiered cake holding twenty candles. This cake was lighted and cut by Wayne R. Farmer.

Each table was marked for the Troops and also one for each of the following: Ladies of the G. A. R., the clergy, the Board of Education, principals of the schools, instructors and examiners of the Court of Awards, Community Welfare Bureau, Community Federation, Commissioners of Belleville and Council members.

THE PRIZE RECIPE for PEANUT BRITTLE TRIFLE

UNUSUAL in flavor, easy to make, nourishing, economical —this recipe was a first prize winner out of hundreds of tapioca favorites sent in by housewives competing in the prize recipe contest.

1/2 cup crushed peanut brittle
1/2 cup quick cooking tapioca
1/4 teaspoon salt
4 cups milk
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 or 2 eggs whites, stiffly beaten
1 or 2 egg yolks, slightly beaten

Add tapioca and salt to milk, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Pour small amount of tapioca mixture over egg yolk, stirring vigorously. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from fire and add vanilla. Fold small amount into egg white. Add to remaining tapioca mixture and blend. Fold in peanut brittle. Chill. Serves 8.

Afternoon Silver Tea Was Huge Success

Affair Was Held At Home Of Mrs.
Ellen Davis

The afternoon silver tea given by Mrs. Ellen Davis Junior Past Matron of Arer'e Chapter in her home on Tappan avenue was just another jolly social success. Mrs. Alice Pelz of Malone avenue Past Matron assisted.

The feature of the afternoon was a talk given by Mrs. Norma Bingham of the Newark Evening News. Mrs. Bingham says she has given this talk "The Charm of Living" three thousand times, but never twice alike. She is a charming speaker, and carries her audience with her whether it be laughter or tears. Many of her quaint stories carry one back to childhood days, especially the "red flannel."

One who has heard the old adage that "Opportunity knocks but once at the door" will soon change their thought, as Mrs. Bingham says "It knocks every day and every hour if we only are looking for it." Her reminiscences of her old ninety year grandmother, sitting in her chair by the fireside and singing the songs of Iceland—of the old family umbrella brought from England, and coming down to the present when she reminds her audience that she will broadcast a series of talks over WAAT Tuesday mornings at 11:15 on child and home problem were all "deal stories." Mrs. Bingham is well fitted to advise mothers as she has seven children and a few grandchildren. Come again Mrs. Bingham.

Refreshments were served and everyone went home happy and contented. Worthy Matron Mrs. Stella Kroesen was present.

Mrs. Teresa Mack of Fairway avenue gave a departure luncheon Wednesday in honor of Mrs. William Jamfeson of Bloomfield, who, together with her husband will sail for England March 30, returning in the early fall. Other guests were Mrs. Frank Champion and Mrs. John Ord of Weequahic Park. Mrs. Fred Weismuller of Elizabeth, and Mrs. Carrie Steils of Newark. Decorations were in honor of St. Patrick.

Mrs. Adams, commissioner, made a gracious and pleasing address of welcome. She read a very gay telegram — "Congratulations to that pleasant young lady, Miss Girl Scout, on her twentieth birthday. Signed S. S. Kenworthy."

The gym held twenty tables arranged around the room in a hollow square, each table containing twenty cakes, each holding a lighted candle. There was a huge two-tiered cake holding twenty candles. This cake was lighted and cut by Wayne R. Farmer.

..This Whirl Of Sport..

BY ARTHUR BLOEMER

VOLLEY BALL'S POPULARITY

IN this in-between sports season, with basketball and bowling's star on the wane and baseball still in the offing, the ancient and honorable sport of volley ball is finding its share of avid enthusiasts in town.

The high school boys have just finished an inter-room volley ball tournament that met with whole-hearted response. Twenty-four home rooms were represented in this tourney, making a total of more than 144 participants. This tourney was staged in place of a proposed basketball elimination.

With the Recreation Commission conducting so much basketball activity this winter, Physical Director A. K. McBride hit on volley ball as a fitting substitute. He couldn't have chosen a better-liked, more appealing sport. The students took to it, like a duck to water.

The rules of volley ball, too, permit more players at one time than basketball. This, naturally, makes for greater mass participation. The preparation and skill, so essential to good basketball performance, are not so exacting in volley ball, which concentrates almost entirely on team play.

Volley ball is finding many followers among the older sports-lovers, as well. The members of the Moose lodge serve as a striking example of this. For the past several weeks, now, these men have gleaned much enjoyment and recreation on their lodge volley ball court.

It certainly is an ideal game for mass activity.

THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH

ONE of the current surprises of the rapidly closing bowling season is the genuine success both the Bachelors and Knights of Columbus have encountered thus far in the Legion three-man team tourney.

The Bachelors, notorious tail-enders during the regular league season, have found the handicap affair exactly to their liking. With the benefit of thirty, forty, and fifty pins over some of their opponents, by virtue of the handicap ratings, they have acquired some much-needed confidence in themselves. The result has been that in some cases they haven't even required the handicap to down their opponents. Their latest conquest, the defeat of the pennant-winning Oldhams, Monday, marked their fourth straight win, without a defeat, and the tourney has but three more weeks, or six games to go.

The Knights of Columbus bowlers have been the only ones to match the torrid pace of the Bachelors. The Caseys boast of the same record as the Bachelors, four victories and no defeats.

The tail-enders are enjoying one last laugh at the expense of the leaders as these post-season duals of three-man teams progress.

New Kidnaping Laws.
Sugar and Foreign Labor.
Briand Was for France.
Railway Merger?

It is proposed in Congress that kidnaping be made "a Federal crime" and that death be made the penalty.

No punishment, not even the most horrible tortures that the ancients inflicted, could inflict upon a kidnaper the suffering that he inflicts on the mother and father of a child.

And there is no doubt that kidnaping should be made a crime against the laws of the nation. It is a direct attack on the Constitution. It deprives a human being of liberty and often of life, taking away his freedom without "due process of law."

It is an interstate crime, as almost invariably the criminals pass from one State to another.

As to the death penalty, that might prove to be more dangerous for those kidnaped than for the kidnapers.

In eight of the forty-eight States death is now the legal penalty for kidnaping. In New Jersey, kidnaping can be punished with life imprisonment, or a minimum of five years, at the discretion of the judge.

It is important that kidnaping should be made a Federal crime, because of the persistence with which the Department of Justice follows criminals, as shown in counterfeiting cases.

This country is disgraced by its lawlessness, its supine submission to the rule of criminals, gangsters, racketeers of all kinds.

You might think that we were a nation of idiots, to see our Government busying itself with the affairs and needs of other countries, while showing not the faintest ability to suppress crime at home.

There is no nation on the earth calling itself even half civilized in which there is not better, more efficient internal government, with greater safety for the citizen's life and property, than in this country.

The House Ways and Means Committee indorses a sales tax of two and one-quarter per cent. This, it is to be hoped, does not mean interfering with the business of retail shops or of business men generally. The right plan is to tax manufactures at the source, which would automatically increase prices by the amount of the tax.

Since the government cannot get the money that it must have otherwise, this tax probably is necessary.

Through the window of the newspaper office in which this is written you could see a steamer of the Ward Line, just below the old Brooklyn Bridge, unloading 30,000 sacks—three million pounds—of refined sugar, brought from abroad. This sugar is landed opposite to the American refineries of the Arbuckle, National and American sugar refining companies on the other side of the East River.

This means that American supplies were not bought, American labor was not hired, American machinery and capital were not used to refine that sugar which Americans will eat.

This country supplies the world's great market for raw sugar and has been a refiner of sugar for two hundred years.

Countries that produce raw sugar should be content to find here a market for their product and not seek to destroy the refining industry, which is the United States' share of sugar production.

Law makers should see to it that refining, which pays over seventeen million dollars for labor and over four hundred millions for materials used in this country, is properly protected against cheaper competing labor represented in sugar from foreign refineries.

Aristide Briand, who dreamed of creating a "United States of Europe," is dead at sixty-nine. He was a French statesman, and he worked for France. He did not worry about the United States; would not have sent a French soldier or a French franc to this country if it had been on fire from Alaska to Florida. He was French, worked for France and had no thought for anything else.

The power of France, her domination in Europe, the fact that she is the greatest "gold country" in the world, are due to the fact that she produces such men as Briand.

Nine billion dollars' worth of railroads, namely, the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, may be merged in one great system. The Interstate Commerce Commission would have to give its consent. This it will do if it has the intelligence of one full-grown mosquito. What this country needs is to save money, avoid waste in overhead and otherwise. The combination of these great railroads could mean the saving of hundreds of millions a year.

Russia, whose army is the most powerful in the world as regards numbers and well equipped as regards machinery and especially airplanes, is massing troops as near as possible to Japan.

The idea is to be ready for anything the Japanese may do. Japan, well informed by her secret service, will probably do nothing against Russia.

China seems enough to handle just now.

It was used by Mrs. Hoover for her recent cruise in southern waters.

High Honors Accorded Champions of Olympiad

The Olympic games, forerunners of the modern international contests bearing that name, date back to the year 776 B. C. in Greece. They were originally held on the level plain of Olympia and were limited to Greek contestants. Once in five years the Olympiad was held, and during the period of the games and the pre-game training period of ten months war was forbidden among the Greek states.

The contests were held over a period of five days, and the various tests of skill included running, jumping, wrestling, throwing the spear, throwing the discus, boxing and chariot racing. When the champions were designated they appeared in a grand review on the fifth day, at which time their names and feats of skill were announced to the crowds and they were awarded palm branches and crowns of olive twigs.

After the Romans conquered the Greeks, they, too, were permitted to take part in the contests, which were of the nature of a national festival, as the contest winners were exempted from taxes and were maintained during the period following the games at the expense of the state. The erection of statues to the winners was also common.

The games were finally abolished in 394 by Emperor Theodosius.

And in the record time of 7 months 24 days 6½ hours.

Eel Remains Mystery

These facts and figures have been se-

J. Daly, under the supervision of the Board of Commissioners of Belleville,
and with the aid of informing the citizens of Belleville as to the official family of the Town Government and some of the past history of the town.

To those outside of Belleville whom this may mean, Belleville is located outside of Newark, between it and Paterson;
ten miles from New York City, surrounded by other beautiful towns such as Bloomfield and Nutley, and is bounded on its eastern side by the Passaic River. It is partly industrial and residential, being fortunate in having many stills left for desirable industry to locate. The residential sections are of high type and are protected by a zone
ordinance.

These men have served Belleville as Mayors since that office was instituted,
as follows:
C. LYMAN DENISON, 1912-1914.
JOHN C. LA PAUCHEBRIE, January,
1914 to November, 1914.

The Mild Madness

A Story of Ambition
Realized

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
(WNU Service)

LEOPOLD knew that his family was right, and yet, throughout the years of the early childhood
of his children, he held out stubbornly against the often angry im-portunings of his wife Anna, her relatives, and his.

For a man who had been trained to the lucrative trade of master-plumber, suddenly to turn waiter was not only a matter of supreme humiliation
to the Dagmar family, one and all, but,
as Anna and his own sisters expressed it, sometimes they actually feared for the sanity of Leopold.

It was not as if he had been lazy.
Even his sisters said of him that as a boy he had never given symptoms of a lazy bone in his body. And dear knows the servile work of waiting table in the small Russian restaurant
where Leopold took up his new labors was no easier than that of a plumber who hired men to work under him. On the contrary, the hours were practically as long, and certainly more arduous. On his feet, carrying hoisted trays, polishing crockery, even sweeping out, and doing servile chores
for patrons, from five in the evening
until two and three in the morning,
was work of an exacting, if less skilful nature than the plumbing.

Wringing her hands, deploring the lack of dignity his work as waiter implied for his young children, and over again Anna sought to wrest from Leopold the secret of his sudden decision to abandon his skilled work for the less remunerative, less ambitious vocation of waiter.

Not for worlds, after his five years
of life with her, could Leopold have been brought to reveal to her the secret reason for this amazing abandonment of his well-paying trade, for the lesser vocation of waiting table in a small Russian restaurant. Like his sisters, she would have cried and screamed her derision of his selfish,
wastrel ways.

The secret motive was neither so profound nor so complicated as that imputed to him by those who felt themselves to be the victims of his vagaries. "He is after women," shouted Anna, knowing in her heart that women were not the cause of Leo-pold's defection.

"He is crazy after the low-life of the cabarets," accused his sisters, knowing that nothing of the kind was characteristic of Leopold.

The reason, meanwhile, lay snugly
imbedded in the silence of Leopold.
A simple reason; so simple that it
shamed him.

The great advantage of waiting table in a restaurant, over the more dignified, more remunerative work as master plumber, was the music! As a waiter, you worked to music! Your work was servile, yes, often in a way that was hateful and revolting, but as a waiter you worked to music!

A five-piece orchestra played at Kosta's from 7 p. m. until 2 a. m.
Russian music for the most part, with a balalaika or Russian banjo accompaniment that was as melancholy as wind in autumn trees, and yet at the same time sweet and plaintive and filled with a certain wild lust for life.
Music that was as real as the beautiful black hair on the head of Leo-pold's two-months-old baby daughter.

You worked to music at Kosta's.
At 7, the patrons began to come. At 7:15, in the troped the five-piece orchestra. The dinner went something like this. Zakuska, a hors d'oeuvre, which consisted of chopped liver served usually to the accompaniment of a song
that wrung the very heart out of Leopold; a piece called "Ochee," which clumsily translated into "Languorous Eyes." Then the borsch course; thick soup dotted with sour cream, to strains that to Leopold were almost the most beautiful in the world: "The Volga Boat Song," filled with the dirge and the urge of those who sweat and toil. Polarsky, cutlets of chopped chicken, served to the aria from "Eugene Onegin." And so on through an evening repetitiously crammed with melodies that never seemed to pall.

You could not very well go home
and say to the most practical wife
in the world, and to sisters to whom life was a serious day-by-day business: "I cannot play a note, I do not know one note from another, but one day, while fixing radiators in the home
of a famous violinist, and hearing him practice as I worked, I realized that music can lift life from the hum-drum affair it has always been, into something that makes it worth living. I will work twice as hard as a waiter.
I will dump every cent of my earnings into your lap. Let me live in my trance!"

Of course the wife and sisters of Leopold did not let him live in his trance. There were children to rear, clothe, educate and feed, and shortly after the startling defection of Leopold Anna developed a nervous illness,
induced by worry.

Life stepped in and took a hand in the mild madness which seemed to have got hold of Leopold. Within a month after he had gone to the role of waiter in the Russian restaurant,
he was back again at his work of soldiering lead, laying pipe and fixing

the drains and faucets of people's bathrooms. It must be said for him that he took it philosophically. After all, it was uncontroversial that there were children to be reared, and Leopold had seen too much of the struggle of poverty in his own boyhood not to feel imbued with the desire to spare
his offspring as much as possible of pain and deprivation.

The children of Leopold, the four of them, justified his sacrifice. There were three boys and a girl, all of them with their mothers' and sisters'
square, practical heads on their young shoulders. And all of them held the same attitude of tolerance toward the parent who spent his evenings and holidays picking out futile and unfat-ished melodies on the flute that time
after time, in despair or in the spirit of practical joke, had been hidden from him by his tormented family.

When Betty, the black-haired baby, reached her maturity, there were four young people in the Dagmar family earning each a good living wage, and contributing to the by no means inconsiderable daily wage of the plumber, Leopold.

Five years later the four children of Anna and Leopold between them were in the proud position to give the sum of one thousand dollars to their father on his sixtieth birthday. That accomplished two really triumphant purposes. It sealed by deed, their loving regard for his generosity to them.
It increased the nest-egg of Leopold
and Anna from four to five thousand dollars. Four of this Leopold presented to the astounded Anna on the occasion of their next wedding anniversary.

With the remaining one thousand,
he made the first down payment on a little run-down restaurant in a Russian neighborhood, where for sixty-five cents one could eat a table d'hôte dinner, to the strains of a three-piece orchestra that boasted a balalaika.

ALWAYS THERE IS ROOM AT THE TOP

Even Where Professions Are Overcrowded.

Mexico is one country where the people get action from their government.

In the state of San Luis Potosi, for example, the local legislature passed a law the other day suspending higher courses in law and medicine for five years.

The reason was simple. The lawmakers decided that there are enough practicing lawyers and doctors in the state. So why spend money preparing others for these overcrowded professions? they asked.

Which, considered from the standpoint of economy alone, is an unsatisfactory position.

But suppose for a moment that such a philosophy of government prevailed
in the United States. Both the medical and legal professions are overcrowded in this country, too. Many physicians and lawyers are eking out a bare existence and every year the colleges, universities and night schools
turn out more doctors and lawyers to increase the competition.

Should we pass laws to prevent the teaching of law and medicine just because we have too many lawyers and too many doctors?

Of course not. And the reason is just as simple as the reasoning of the legislators in San Luis Potosi.

We have too many lawyers and too
many doctors, it is true, but no one will deny that we have too few good lawyers and too few good doctors. The legal and medical professions are crowded at the bottom, but there is plenty of room at the top.

It is an inexorable law of human nature that mediocrity prevails, even in the skilled professions. Thousands of young men are studying law and medicine. Most of them will land in the crowded bottom ranks of their profession. A few will go to the top and do great things for humanity. In American medical colleges young men
are studying who will make discoveries which will prolong the span of life. In law schools of today future justices of the Supreme court are learning the rudiments of law.

It is quite obvious that we would lose something of inestimable value if we closed down the law schools even for five years to gain a few dollars in lowered expense.—Houston Post-Dispatch.

Jewish "Baptism"

Baptism as it is understood by Christians is not practiced by the Jews.
There was, however, an ancient Jewish rite known as Jewish baptism or proselyte baptism which bears a striking similarity to Christian baptism.
When a pagan became a convert to Judaism he was compelled, after submitting to circumcision, to go through a purificatory washing. This washing symbolized the removal of all pagan impurity and the stranger who so journing among the Israelites did not become one of them until he had completed with this rite. Orthodox Jews still require gentiles to comply with this rite when they become converts
to Judaism.—Pathfinder Magazine.

School Robbed of Oranges

The Granada (Calif.) grammar school is probably the only one that has its private orange orchard, but even that has its drawbacks. Late at night while teachers and pupils were away from the school grounds, and the school closed, thieves entered the orchard, where more than 400 boxes of Valencia oranges had been gathered and stored. They took away the entire harvest.

Beauty Talks

MARJORIE DUNCAN
Famous Beauty Expert

A Few Mistaken Beauty Impressions

Two or three mistaken beauty impressions prevail to such an alarming extent that they merit discussion
and correction. The first, to my mind,
is the matter of the soft, silky, light
down on the face which is so often mistaken for superfluous hair. Innumerable women are suffering self-indicted misery unnecessarily because of this misconception.

Another common impression is the mistaken idea many women have that anything bordering on gloss is excessive oiliness. This applies to hair as well as skin, but because of advertising and preaching many women are now preserving healthy hair luster.
Not so with the skin, however. It is a far cry from the moist, dewy glow
so alluring an attribute of youth, to the excessively shiny, greasy appearance of the very oily type of skin. I have seen powder puffs rubbed so vigorously over naturally lustrous faces that it seemed the skin would soon become shreds. One marvels at the skin's resistance to such rough treatment. And one wonders why women are ambitious to rub away the glow that only youth and beauty are heir to.

Look at the skin of a young child.
Glowing with health and color, and not dry as a four mack, but a suggestion of moistness, "dewiness" I like to call it, and a lovely luster, a delicate sheen, not a high, ungroomed and unwholesome looking shine. If yours is the lovely, dewy glow of youth, preserve and guard it as a precious possession and do not attempt to rub or pat or powder it away.

So much emphasis has been laid on superfluous hair and its destruction of feminine loveliness that a great many women mistake the natural down as an unnecessary afflic-tion. A soft, silky covering is nature's way of protecting the skin.
Look closely at a young child's face
or stroke the skin and you will notice
this soft covering.

Of course, too much is too much
and if the growth is dark and very noticeable, then you can either bleach
the hair, or in extreme cases see to its removal.

At the sign of the first little scale
many women are terrified. "Dandruff, it must be," they think. As a matter of fact a slight scaling of the dead
outer layer of skin is not only natural and normal but desirable.

Many a brush has been relegated to the scrap heap because it revealed a few stray hairs after the proverbial hundred strokes. Old, dead hairs must fall when new,
young ones take their places—so
never be alarmed by a few falling,
stray hairs. 'Tis the healthy scalp
that sheds them.

Advice of General Interest

ALWAYS advocate bleaching hair
on the face before attempting to remove it. Many women have found that this bleaching not only makes the hairs lighter and lighter until gradually they are scarcely perceptible, but the bleaching also serves
in many cases to devitalize the hairs
so that gradually they fall away and further growth is checked. Only if the growth is very heavy and apparent, therefore a cause of embarrassment, should it be removed.

Rope jumping is a splendid exercise—providing heart and lungs are perfect. Otherwise, it is much too strenuous.

If your physician sanctions it, by all means jump and skip rope to your heart's content. Begin slowly and don't jump for very long. Stop if you find yourself panting for breath. Skipping and jumping rope brings practically
all the muscles of the body into play,
and it is excellent to trim down flabbi-
ness around the hips, back and waist.
It makes for more shapely legs, too.

Massaging and molding movements,
patting the skin and kneading it, help
to bring a new supply of blood to the surface of the skin and this clears, rebuilds and rejuvenates. The skin of the face, however, is much too sensitive for dry massage. The continued friction without a cream or oil would soon irritate it. Dry massage may be done on upper arms, ankles, thighs,
back, but even on these parts of the body dermatologists and specialists in massage advocate using a cream such as lanolin or cocoa butter, or a lotion
such as rubbing alcohol.

There are any number of effective deodorants on the market. I cannot mention trade names in this column.
Choose one that has a national reputation and apply it exactly according to directions. It is important to remember NOT to use a deodorant immediately after the removal of superfluous hair from underarms as the skin is usually quite sensitive for a day or two. After two or three days, the deodorant may be used. These directions will no doubt be included with the preparation you purchase.

Locomotives That "Bend"

Building railway locomotives larger and larger finally has made some of them too long to go around sharp
curves without leaving the track.
Now a British builder has developed a new type of locomotive built in three sections which enables it to "bend"
around the sharpest of curves.—Capper's Weekly.

SYNOPSIS

Exhausted, ragged, and starving, a boy of about sixteen is found in the woods by a camping party. He has fled from his brutal father, Bat Morrison. Bat comes after him, but his new friends conceal him. Fed, and in clean clothes, the boy, who gives his name as Shad (Sheridan), is sent on his way to Canton, with a letter to Colonel Blake, the colonel, his wife, and their young daughter Ruth, are impressed by the boy's manner.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Her hair was like spun gold, her eyes were as blue as violets, her voice was as musical and care free as the song sparrows. They were in that wistful stage of joyous, mutual discovery. The boy had found in her eyes a something which he could not forget.

She was wiser than he, for he knew nothing of that mysterious power in the eyes and form and graceful movements of a maiden which had produced the singular emotion now in his breast. Yet he had the soul of a poet, its love of beauty and its quick perception.

She told him of her school and her studies.

"Oh-h!" he said wistfully. "I'd like to go to school like that an' learn to talk good like you an' wear shiny shoes an' nice clothes. I want to be a gentleman like yer father and Mr. Converse."

She looked into his eyes, saying: "You are an interesting boy. I never saw anyone like you."

"I'd just like to stay here," he said. "If I had a thousand dollars I'd give it to you."

"What for?"

"I dunno. I'd just like to. That's the way I feel. I'm not exactly sure how it feels to be happy. I wouldn't wonder if I had got it."

This curious variety of love-making filled the most delightful day that Shad had known. That evening Colonel Blake returned. After supper the colonel told of his adventures in the wild West hunting Apaches and grizzly bears.

In the morning when the boy stood with Colonel Blake by the buggy which was to take them to town, Ruth called to him from the door. He went to her.

"Will you write me a letter?" she asked.

He promised to do so. She shook his hand and ran away into the house. She did not even say good-by.

Shad returned to the buggy blushing and smiling; his blood was flowing fast. The colonel laughed. Mrs. Blake kissed her husband and the lad.

"They'll watch you in that store," she said. "Of course you'll work hard and be strictly honest. We love you and we want you to succeed."

Those were the best words that Shad Morrison had ever heard. He did not forget them. The first timber in the real structure of his life had found its place. Now for the first time happiness had come to him. He was no longer a lonely, discouraged, life-sick lad. He was at last fully alive.

In town the colonel bought for Shad a supply of shirts, socks and underwear and new shoes.

The Blakes had much to say of a singular charm in the personality of the lad who had thus come to them. The colonel's inquiries soon led to the discovery of an interesting fact. The boy's mother was said to be a great, great-granddaughter of that brother of Napoleon Bonaparte who, late in the eighteenth century, had had a hunting lodge in northern New York and who for a time had occupied the throne of Spain. It helped to explain the mental keenness of the boy and the noble shape of his head and the beauty of his countenance.

In his office Colonel Blake was not at all like the man Shad had met at the farmhouse. He was dignified. The rude Yankee dialect which he had used on the farm was dropped when he entered the office. Business was mostly a serious matter with him. In his view the farm was a joke, and there he played. A part of his play was the rude dialect of the countryside.

He took Shad to the inner office, and, calling a stenographer to his desk, dictated a letter of introduction for the boy to Mr. Ephraim Smithers of Amity Dam. When the letter was typed and signed he put it in Shad's hands, saying:

"Take a train to Ashfield at eleven. When you get there inquire your way to Amity Dam. It will be a five-mile walk for you. Have you money?"

"I've got twenty-one dollars in my pocket," was the proud answer of the boy. "Mr. Converse give it to me."

"Keep it a secret and hang on to it. Good-by."

The boy had almost two hours to spend before train time. He walked around the village, to him a wonderful place, with its town hall and houses and stores that looked large and important. He had never written a letter. He had seen only three or four letters in all his life.

"I don't know how I'd go to work to write a letter," he said to himself, "I'm too ignorant. I've got to learn something. I've got to."

The store windows interested him. It is significant that he should have stopped longest in front of a book store gazing wistfully at a lot of books. The merchant observed him and came out with the familiar query: "Is there anything we can do for you?"

"I want to learn a lot o' words I don't know."

Soon he had bought a pocket dictionary, a small diary, a lead pencil and a cheap watch. With these treasures he went to the station and began at once, while he was waiting, to study the dictionary. He arrived at Ashfield and learned his way to Amity Dam. The day was far spent. Mr. Smithers read the colonel's letter. He was a bearded solemn-looking man of middle age with a gentle voice that

"If You Go a Step Further, I'll Turn You Into Hay."

softened the price of dry goods and won the confidence of women.

"I'll give you a trial," he said. "Ten dollars a month and board is all I can pay you."

Shad agreed to these terms. "Sit down here and rest yourself," said the merchant prince of Amity Dam. "We'll go home about nine o'clock."

After Shad rested a while, Mr. Smithers showed the boy his establishment from cellar to garret. It was the usual country store of that time. Mr. Smithers wrote out for the boy a list of his many duties. Before they went home the merchant gave Shad a lesson in wrapping packages.

Mr. Smithers lived in a frame house near the store. His wife was a kindly gray-haired woman. With a candle in her hand, she led the boy to his room above stairs, where she lighted a small lamp and put it on a little table at his bedside. Two books lay on the table. One of them was the story of Toby Tyler. He had learned to read, but he had never read any book save the First and Second Readers. Before he slept he made this entry in his diary:

"I love Kurnel Blake an' all his folks. Walked from Ashfield to the store in an hour and 20 minits."

It was an entry of greater importance than he knew.

The days were filled with joy for the homeless lad. He was quick to learn. He enjoyed his work.

One day a tall brown-bearded man entered the store. Shad was alone talking with a boy known in the neighborhood as Bony. The man had a serious face and a brisk manner.

"Hurry up, boy, and give me a pound of the best tea," he commanded.

He paid for his purchase and hurried out of the store. This stranger was not like any other person Shad had seen in Amity Dam.

"Who is that?" he inquired of Bony. "That, sir? It's Cyrus Doolittle. He hurries more an' does less than any man I know of. He's a politician. He's the great man of the town."

Bony was a born satirist. A slim hatchet-faced lad with a sense of humor, he worked at odd jobs here and there.

"If you want to know more about Cy Doolittle, you ask ol' Bumpy Brown 'bout him."

"Who is Bumpy Brown?" Shad asked.

"He's the best dammer in Amity Dam. Now an' then he takes a holiday an' sets down comf'able an' spends it cussin' Cy Doolittle."

This somewhat fanciful introduction being ended, the boy endeavored to restrain his imagination with no great success, while he presented the outstanding facts in Mr. Brown's biography.

"Bumpy is an old feller with a wooden leg who lives 'bout three miles away in the cur'usest shack you ever see. It's on the shore of the river. As a liar he'd take the first premium at the county fair. Nobody believes him."

"Don't he like Mr. Doolittle?"

"Hates the ground he walks on. He'll start from Piermont sober and, with no help that anyone knows of but the scenery, he'll be drunk when he gets here. He never carries a bottle. It's a mystery. He'll set an' lean ag'in' the telephone pole opposite this store an' laugh an' cuss Cy till the cows come home. When he thinks he's ruined Cy enough he'll limp off down the road. He can walk as fast as anybody."

The boys laughed.

That day Shad received a package of books from Colonel Blake: school books and some tales by Oliver Optic. The kindly Mrs. Smithers began to help him evenings with his grammar and arithmetic. He wrote many letters to Ruth Blake. They did not satisfy him. They violated a hidden growing sense of artistic propriety. He studied and burned them.

On a September afternoon Shad got leave to go with Bony to the fair in Ashfield. There Shad came face to face with the sister of his stepmother—a young French woman of the name of Ba'tiste. Shad treated her to lemonade and she promised not to tell anyone that she had seen him.

One day Bumpy Brown came out and sat in his accustomed place on the corner at Amity Dam. Shad went out of the store for a look at him. Old Bumpy was in an advanced stage of inebriation. He was muttering, "Rascal!" "Dirty sneak!" and like words of bitter scorn. As Shad approached the old man looked at him and nodded with a smile. He was about sixty years of age.

"Hello, boy," he said.

Bumpy Brown was not often drunk. Three or four times in a summer he went on a spree and when that happened he came always to Amity Dam. He was then so harmless and quiet that no one interfered with his pleasure.

Shad was deeply interested in the curious man. He had to hurry back to the store. As he left, the drunkard called out laughingly: "And there lay round upon the ground great heaps of so'gers."

Bumpy's assessment of Doolittle did not agree with the sentiment of the countryside. While people thought Doolittle a showy man, not overfond of work, who was deeply indebted to the bounty of his father-in-law, with whom he lived, everybody respected him or seemed to, everybody but Bumpy Brown and the boy Bony Squares. However, Bony was nobody.

He came from nowhere. Moreover, he was down on the whole village. Mr. Doolittle was the friend of every great man in the county. He was a supporter of the church. He spoke at political meetings.

That evening Shad was probably the happiest boy in the county. The mail had brought him a letter from Ruth Blake. Three times he had read it and then had put the treasure very carefully in his pocket. Often he touched it with his fingers. Ruth and her mother and father had invited him to their home. He felt like a person of importance. Looking at the letter had brought back to him the singular elation which had come from looking into her eyes, from the feel of her hand. Shad was getting along. He had better manners. He had studied the grammar and dictionary. He had shaken off his rude dialect. He had not yet learned how difficult it is to shake off the thing called background. History is often like a wolf on the trail of a stag.

Shad and Bony were alone in the store that evening. Suddenly the door opened. Shad's heart sank within him when he saw his father, Bat Morrison, and the village constable approaching him.

"You d--d runaway! At last I've found you!" said Bat. "What are you doing here?"

"Working," Shad answered.

"You're going to come with me, I've got work enough for you at home."

"Is he your father?" the constable asked.

"Yes, sir."

"Then I expect you'll have to go with him."

Bony picked up a pitchfork from a stack of tools.

"I'll get my coat and hat," said Shad as he hurried into the rear room.

Bat started after his son. Bony halted him with the pitchfork saying, "If you go a step further, I'll turn you into hay."

The Five Ages of Man

"Daddy, I know how to do everything," said the little boy of five.

"What I don't know isn't worth knowing," said the young man of twenty.

"Well, anyway, I do know my own trade A to Z," said the man of thirty-five.

"There are very few matters, I am sorry to say, that I am really quite sure about," said the man of fifty.

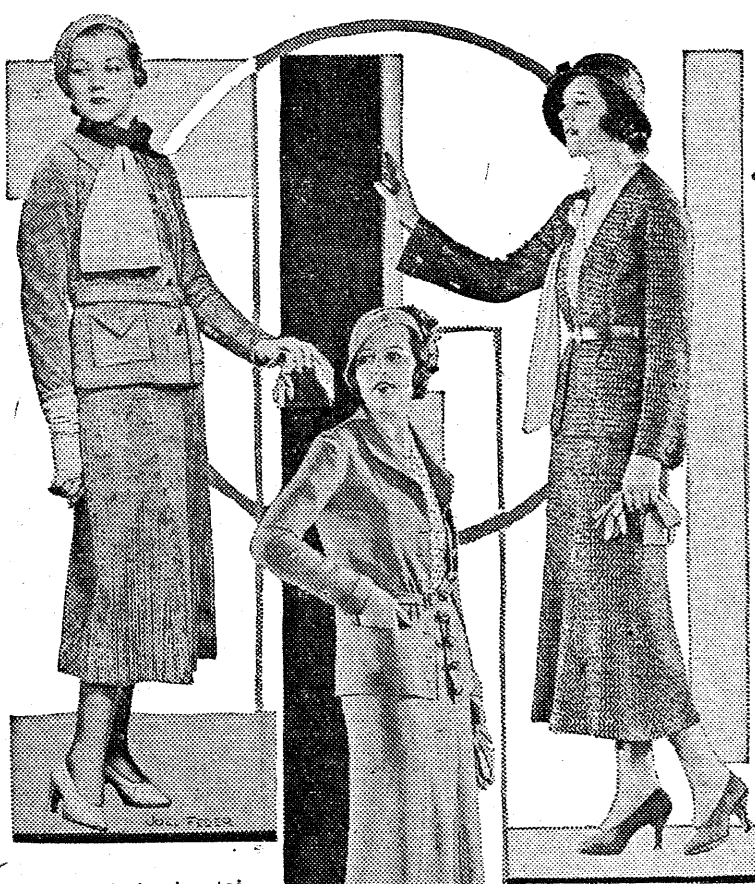

"I have learned a bit, but not much since I was born; but knowledge is so vast that one cannot become wise in a short lifetime," said the man of sixty-five.

Superheated steam is steam at a temperature higher than the condensing point corresponding to its actual volume and density, so that it will expand and do work without being condensed.

Smartly Tailored Is Spring Edict

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT is smart to be tailored this spring, but tailored "just so," with regard to all the little elegancies and niceties which go to make up a perfect tailor. There is an air of sophisticated simplicity about the new spring suits which bespeaks the touch of master hands. There is a subtlety in the handling of color, texture and details which satisfies the critical eye at a glance.

True, there is no lack of novelty in the realm of the suit, this season, a great play being made on military types reflecting the spirit of the Washington bi-centennial celebration. This trend involves high-waisted, double-breasted silhouettes and works out patriotic color schemes in navy, with white, with red or buff. However, these novel expressions do not detract from the prestige of the conservative types which though not startlingly new as to "lines," nevertheless carry a this-season conviction in matter of striking woollens and other materials of which they are fashioned with especial emphasis being placed on the up-to-dateness of the accessories worn with them.

In the matter of details which give "class" to the spring tailored suit we would especially call attention to the blouse worn with the good-looking tailleur posed in the foreground of the picture. It is one of the very much talked-of Irish crochet blouses which may be worked either of mercerized cotton thread or of thin woolen yarn. Women who crochet are making their own, although, if one prefers to buy, the shops are displaying very attractive types. Those crocheted of mercerized cotton tub beautifully. The new fashion advocates pastel pinks and blues for these in Irish lace or crocheted stitch or in simple square mesh. And it adds greatly to their appeal from a practical standpoint that they are color-perfect when it comes to laundering. The suit itself is of royal blue wool crepe finished with self-colored buttons. The fetching little street hat is also blue trimmed with a choux of milliner's velvet, which is tres chic seeing that many of the smartest chapeaux this season are straw with either a velvet bow or a velvet crown or at least a touch of velvet somewhere in their makeup.

Again, in the tweed suit illustrated to the right we see the vogue for blue emphasized, and in a very new way, in that the loose-woven and quite sheer woolen material which fashions it interweaves black with a bright blue, adding a scarf of powder blue, a black leather belt completing the color alliance. The hat is a black rough straw with velvet twist and bow over the right eye—thus again is the importance of velvet on spring straws stressed.

There's a revelation of new ideas in the suit shown to the left in the group. In the first place it is tailored of cornflower blue corduroy, a material which is staging a triumphant comeback, in that leading designers are sponsoring it for coats, for the little separate jackets, for pajama costumes as well as for sleeveless two-piece tennis frocks. Then, too, the fact that this suit is a tailleur a la militaire is significant. The military influence is going strong in fashion's realm at the present moment. Braid trimmings, wide shoulders, epaulets and metal buttons galore together with red, white and blue color schemes are sounding the patriotic note throughout all fashiondom. It is the dropped yoke and diagonal-cut raglan sleeves which give smart width to the shoulders of this stunning corduroy model. Brass buttons and the trig, high-waisted belt add martial flavor.

Fashion has gone that patriotic that even the stars and stripes are used in a trimming way. A new silk jacket suit in the junior department has a striped scarf and four star-shaped buttons. Young girls are wearing red and white printed blouses with their blue suits accentuating the military theme with the addition of a red, white and blue scarf.

SANDALS FOR ALL OCCASIONS, STYLE

Sandals for all occasions is the decree of shoe designers who have looked over the summer trends. And the more original the material out of which the sandal is made the better.

Sports sandals are shown in pasteltta, suva, linen, shantung and basket weaves, combined with a touch of leather. The linen and shantung are the only fabrics used alone. Buck, calfskin kid are the predominating leathers.

But bright colors combined with white will be in good taste this season—red, green, blue and the pastel shades may be used for striping, piping and heels of the new spectator-sports shoes.

And for evening, sandals so cut out that you practically have no shoe at all will be the rage. These will be shown in every possible fabric to match your gown.

Epaulettes New Effect in Silhouette Gowns

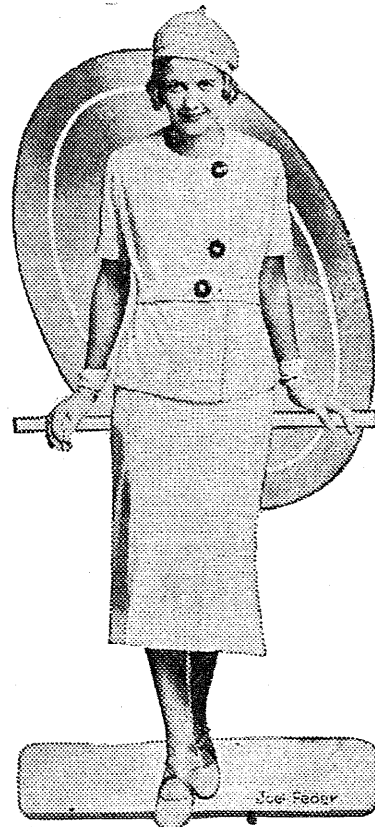

The slim, soldierly silhouette is certainly the darling of the French dress-makers this season. Epaulettes in some form or another and trim, strict lines convey the wooden soldier effect.

These are sometimes designed simply on top of the shoulder seam to tip the point, but more frequently lap over into short tabs. Reminiscent of Elizabethan shoulders in one instance, the motif changes to a twisted roll of the material.

A tiny jacket closing in sharply at the waist resembles a caraco, the brief jacket worn by the French peasant woman. It comes in velveteen and is worn over a fine wool frock. Short cap sleeves over long ones give width at the shoulders.

MODISH WHITE

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The supremacy of white for sports-wear has already been established in winter resorts, the same setting precedent as to what will be worn later on when spring leads into summer.

The attractive two-piece dress pictured is a likable style, fashioned of white corduroy. White, usually impractical because of cleaning expense, meets budget requirements in corduroy because it can be so easily successfully washed.

Advertising a Sale!

YOU don't leave your rig in the middle of the road and go to a fence post to read a sale bill do you? Then don't expect the other fellow to do it.

Put an ad in this paper, then, regardless of the weather, the fellow you want to reach reads your announcement while seated at his fireside.

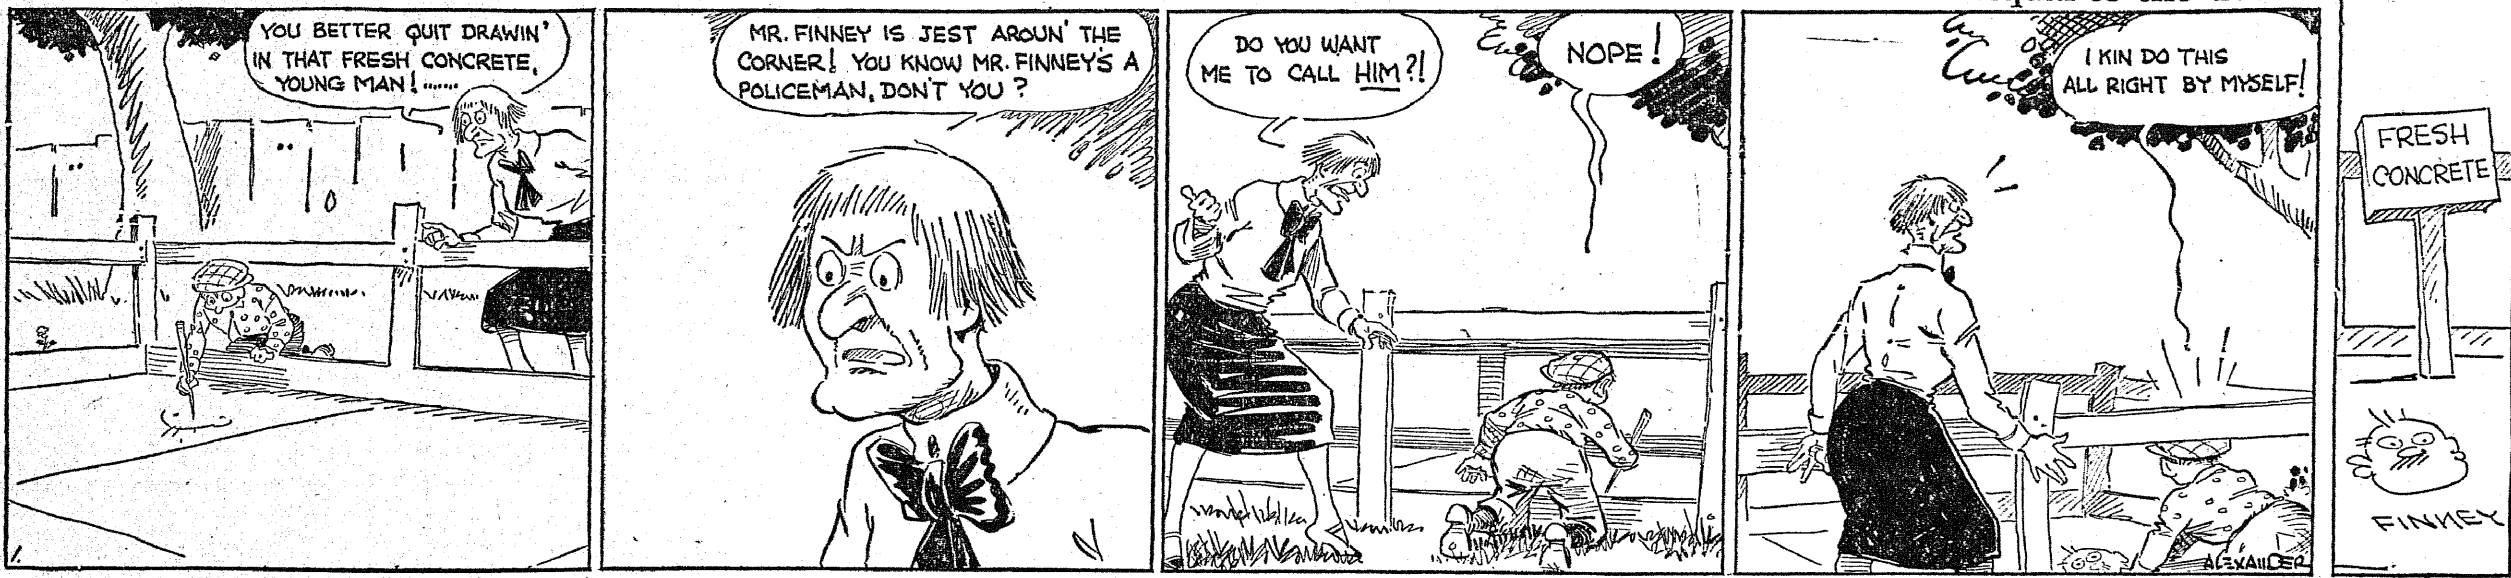

If he is a prospective buyer you'll have him at your side. One extra buyer often pays the entire expense of the ad, and it's a poor ad that won't pull that buyer.

An ad in this paper reaches the people you are after. Bills may be a necessity, but the ad is the thing that does the business.
