Memorial Chimes Ring Out at Wesley M. E.

Miss Alice G. Compton Gives Broadcasting Outfit To Church

Miss Alice G. Compton, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edgar M. Compton, 134 Academy street, has donated to Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church a broadcasting outfit to send out chimes from the church.

Miss Compton is doing this as a memorial to Emmett Fowler, her fiancé, who was killed about a year ago.

Another daughter, Mary Elizabeth Compton, plays the chimes on the organ which was recently installed in the church.

The chimes are broadcast by means of four loud speakers, which are attached to a microphone, which, in turn, is set close to the chimes.

The latter are placed on the second floor of the church above the organ, and the broadcast unit is in the tower of the church.

The chimes were first heard Christmas Eve when Mary Elizabeth played all the well known Christmas carols, which were heard as far as the Nutley line. They also were broadcast New Year's Eve.

The chimes are now being heard by residents of Belleville each Sunday from 10:30 to 10:45 A. M., and from 7:30 to 7:45 P. M.

Money at Work Means Men at Work

Money on deposit in the First National Bank does not remain idle. It works for the community and you.

A portion of each dollar is kept on hand for your immediate needs. A portion is invested in United States Government and Municipal Bonds. Another portion is loaned temporarily to manufacturers and merchants in this community that they may buy materials and pay their employees. Still another portion is loaned to individuals on short-time and installment loans. As the money comes back to the bank, it is again sent forth. It is kept constantly at work.

The modern bank places responsibility of KEEPING MONEY WORKING at maximum efficiency, second only to its responsibility for safeguarding funds of its depositors.

FROM THE PULPIT

Rev. Edgar M. Compton, 184 Academy street, pastor of the Methodist Church, came to Belleville in 1927 from the Park Methodist Episcopal Church, East Orange.

His sermon last Sunday morning is appended.

"Ye Are My Witnesses"

By way of observation and illustration we are told that a traveling salesman walked confidently into a hardware store, set down his brief case and bag, and when he had opportunity, eagerly approached the manager in the following manner: "You do not sell our line of goods, but want you to see their quality and acquaint yourself with our prices and I believe you will be interested in putting them in."

There was a pleasing assurance and straightforward certainty about it all that was convincing. That salesman was obviously successful; his very appearance and manner spoke it. He very evidently enjoyed representing that concern.

I cannot help but think of the results in Christian work if all of us were witnesses, or let me put it this way; if all of us were salesmen like that firm's representative in spirit, for the concern in the world, and work at it with the same joy that was evidenced in him.

That salesman worked within certain limitations and there were certain fixed standards for him to follow. So it is with us in our efforts to spread the Gospel and find the response we seek after. We are to carry the Good News, not only in truth, but in spirit. Our hearts should rejoice in obeying the Lord's last great command "Go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations." How glad we should be to know that our Master is depending upon us and to know that we have something the world really needs, and something for which there can be no substitute, something that has no synthetics. The Master said, "Ye are my witnesses."

The story is told of an infidel master who was reprimanding his Christian slave. He said: "Jim, you are the biggest fool I ever knew. You are always talking about faith in God, and I suppose you think that if the Lord would tell you to jump through that stone wall your faith would take you through." "Massa, dat's easy mon," was the answer. "If the Lord tell Jim to jump through dat stone wall, it's Jim's business to jump, and de Lord's business to get Jim through." This is the way our Lord works. He has told us to do it and He will see us through, if we are obedient to His command. Too many of us are more or less rebellious in spirit in that we want to do things our own way rather than in the way the Lord wants us to do them and thus lose the joy of witnessing in His name.

Perhaps the thing that brings most happiness in our Christian living is that of helping others. Selfishness has gone more to keep us from having a happy Christian experience than anything I know. We shall never find all of our own lives within ourselves—we find them only in the lives of others. Such is the common experience of mankind in our better moments, at least. Professor Edwin Lewis, returning from a year's travel in foreign lands, recently addressed a large gathering of churchmen in a neighboring town. He very vividly portrayed many of his experiences—one of which was a visit to a leper colony in China. After describing some of the effects of that loathsome disease, he paid a glowing tribute to the physician who had voluntarily exiled himself to be among those suffering people and minister to them as best he could. The beautiful thing about it all was the sense of happiness on the part of the physician found in the consciousness that he was, in the Lord's name, helping. He impressively laid upon the minds and hearts of that group of men that much of the glory of a Christian life comes from meeting the obligation of Christian discipleship without regard to race, color, creed or boundary. He visioned a glorious future when all Christians shall find fullness of life in helping others, and thus find their own better selves.

The desire of David C. Cook to help to find Christ was most intense. One of his employees, the head of a large publishing house said, "I remember that we once had in the editorial department a very bright and capable young stenographer. Her father was an infidel and very outspoken in his unbelief and she had been brought up in that atmosphere. One morning Mr. Cook called her to his room and kept her there until noon. When she came out she said to me, 'What do you think? That busy man has spent the whole morning trying to make a Christian of me!' In time she did become a very happy Christian. The willingness to help, the patience of a faithful helper thus won a new disciple for the Master. It is interesting to note that every member of the Cook family is a happy faithful worker in the Methodist Church, in one of our mid-western states. If we should cease living our self-centered lives and take interest as disciple helpers, how quickly we should find the larger and better meaning of our own lives. 'Ye are my witnesses.'"

Then there is the happiness that comes in reward. "My work shall not return unto me void." "Though the sower weeps as he sows, he shall come again rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him." Cast thy bread upon the waters for thou shalt find it after many days." One day when James Brainerd Taylor, then a young man, was out driving, he stopped at a watering trough. Another young man was watering his horse at the same trough. Taylor said, "I trust you love the Lord; if not, let me commend Him to you as your best friend." The stranger went their way. The young man was converted, entered the ministry, went to Africa as a missionary. Many times did he wish that he knew who the man was that spoke to him at the watering trough, but he never knew until some one sent him in Africa a box of books. Opening one of the books at the title page he saw a picture and exclaimed: "Oh, that is the man. That is the man who preached to me at the watering trough." It was the portrait of Brainerd Taylor. A word of witnessing for Christ had brought an abundant reward.

Some of the things done mechanically today are astounding. Iron ore delivered to a certain factory on Monday morning at 8 o'clock is transformed into a finished automobile, ready for the purchaser, by five o'clock Tuesday evening. When we realize that man can now stand at a given point in the world and be heard by every human being in the world who has a radio set, we marvel and thank God that we have been born in such amazing days. But what of our souls? Of what consequence is it that we can turn iron into a finished automobile in thirty-six hours, or be heard around the world when we speak, if the inside of our lives has shriveled up? We may give witness to the marvelous development of our age, but how much more important it is to give time and thought to the development of the human soul, which is a thing both of time and eternity. Well may we give witness to great achievements in the material world. Christ calls us to witness for great achievement in the spiritual world.

I like the word given by Edgar Dewitt Jones, president of the Federal Council of Churches, when he says of man, under the title of "Approving ourselves as witnesses for God"—He should get religion like a Methodist; experience it like a Baptist; be sure of it like a Disciple; stick to it like a Lutheran; pay for it like a Presbyterian; conciliate it like a Congregationalist; glorify it like a Jew; be proud of it like an Episcopalian; practice it like a Christian Scientist; propagate it like a Roman Catholic; work for it like a Salvation Army Lasses; enjoy it like a colored man. "Ye are my witnesses." That ought to mean you.

Famous St. Olaf Lutheran Choir Appears Sunday in Sacred Concert in East Orange

The famous St. Olaf Lutheran choir, which will make its only New Jersey appearance at 3:30 P. M. Sunday afternoon in a sacred concert in East Orange High School, is recruited each year from the student body of St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn. In its present membership, the choir consists of twenty-five men and thirty-five women voices.

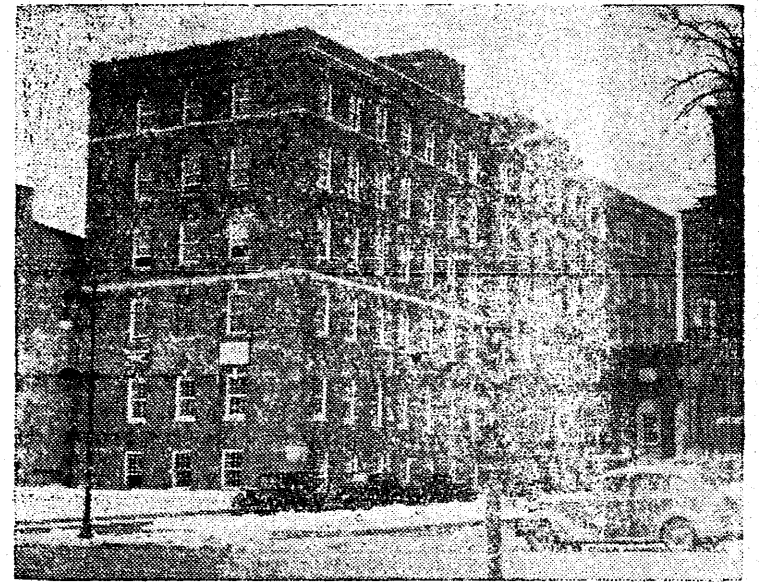

The few who are chosen each year

1. Circumcision, January 1; 2. Ascension Day, 40 days after Easter; 3. Assumption, August 15; 4. All Saints, November 1; 5. Immaculate Conception, December 8; 6. Christmas, December 25. Lenten devotions, two evenings each week.

from three hundred or more applicants must come up to a high standard in voice quality, truthfulness of ear, general intelligence, musical feeling and ability to do concentrating and grueling work. As graduates, these singers have carried the message and the meaning of noble music into widely spread schools and communities. Many hold influential positions in the musical life of America.

Dr. F. M. Christiansen, composer and director, occupies a position among great masters of choral. On the many national concert tours of his choir, critics and audiences have hailed him as a wizard of the baton. A veritable renaissance of choral music in America has been started by his influence.

New St. Barnabas Hospital Unit, Newark

This is the new "south wing" building of the Hospital of St. Barnabas and for Women and Children, High street, Newark. Its construction and equipment, along with renovating and modernization of the old building, cost more than $500,000.

The newly erected building, known as the South Wing of the Hospital of Saint Barnabas and for Women and Children, High street, Newark, was opened for the immediate care of patients for the first time yesterday. Present pressure for increased facilities makes immediate use of the building necessary, it was announced by Rev. Dr. Charles L. Gomph, S.T.D., president of the hospital. The first operation in the new wing was performed at 9 o'clock yesterday morning by Dr. Edward J. Ill, a member of the staff for over half a century.

It has required seven months and eight days to provide the new facilities from the time the corner stone was laid on June 9 last. In addition to the entirely new construction of the South Wing and its new equipment, the old building, now known as the North Wing, has been completely renovated and several new features have been added. The two wings are connected by passage ways on three floors, providing utmost accessibility. The entire project cost in excess of $500,000.

The complete facilities, equipment and apparatus of the South Wing are: the ground floor, diet kitchens and entire culinary department, store room, and nurses' dining room; the first floor, main entrance in which will be the administration offices, staff room, conference room, X-ray laboratory, tea shop; the second floor, the east end comprises four operating rooms, anesthetizing room, nurses' work room and surgeons' dressing room, surgical supply room, which will serve the entire hospital, and is fitted with the newest and latest sterilizing equipment and water distilling apparatus; the West End comprises two delivery rooms, four labor rooms, nurses' service room, utility room and physicians' rest room.

The third floor is devoted to the care of maternity patients and has an air-conditioned nursery; also a solarium with southern exposure. The operating, delivery and labor room are air-conditioned and treated as constantly to absorb sound; four and fifth floors contain private and semi-private rooms for general hospital patients and a solarium with a southern exposure. The South Wing is also provided with the latest type elevators of which there are two. They are equipped with an electric cycle for controlling the opening and closing of doors, as well as push button and attendant type of operation. The west end of the roof is floored with red ceramic tile for patients and nurses' use.

The ground floor passage connecting the two wings leads also to the physical therapy department. Part of the equipment of this department is a room containing a Hubbard-Curran underwater therapy tank for treatment of arthritis, poliomyelitis, and other ailments requiring that type of massage treatment.

The new features of the North Wing are: a complete sprinkler system has been installed throughout the building; there are all new electric wiring and fixtures; all wards and rooms have been redecorated; the clinics have been renovated and most modern equipment installed. This wing also contains a new oil burner steam heating plant which heats all units of the hospital.

The members of the building committee are Henry B. Rogers, chairman; Morrison C. Colyer, Stuart A. Young, Percy S. Young, Waldron M. Ward, J. H. Bacheller, Rev. Gomph, S.T.D., and Rev. John G. Martin, superintendent of hospital.

YOU AND YOUR FINGERPRINTS

By JACOB LEVINE

In collaboration with Andrew Monaghan

Starting with this issue of the Belleville News, Andrew Monaghan and the writer will collaborate on a series of articles pertaining to a subject of vital importance to every American citizen—the fingerprint.

To some the very word "fingerprint" carries with it a dreadful and direful meaning. They refrain from even discussing it, as if it were a contagious disease of some sort.

To others who habitually look at both sides of an issue the fingerprint has come to be tolerable. They will grant you, these broad-minded individuals, that it may be man's only positive means of identification. But even they have their fears; even they cast quizzical glances at this problem; even they, peculiarly enough, link the fingerprint with something antagonistic, something criminal. Even I, dear reader, was a bit wary of this thing called a fingerprint—that is, until I met Mr. Monaghan.

Through his enlightenment I have come to realize the full importance of the fingerprint, not only as a means of tagging the most infamous of criminals, but as an infallible protection for you and you, Mr. and Mrs. Citizen.

You are living in a push-slam-hurry-hurry age. Who knows but that tomorrow you will be the victim of an automobile accident...or kidnapped and murdered by ruthless gangsters...or a victim of amnesia, completely losing your memory...or the possibilities are limitless.

These are brutal words, dear reader, but, undeniably the facts. But—on the other hand—if your fingerprints were on record in Washington, your prints could be taken and then checked with those at the Capitol—and all the difficulties could be avoided.

An unusual case was that of a merchant, Budweg Antoon, of 44 Washington street, Chicago, who died two weeks ago.

A week before his death Antoon drew up a will at the suggestion of his physician, Dr. Paul J. Dunn. On his death bed he was suddenly stricken with a severe heart attack—so paralyzing, in fact, that he was unable to move his fingers. There was his will in the drawer "I do hereby bequeath all my money and earthly possessions to my wife, Mrs. Anna Antoon," but without his signature! What was to be done?

Finally, it was decided to have Antoon's fingerprints impressed on the document instead of his signature.

In this way, three fingerprints in lavender ink disposed of a $17,000 estate.

Every day men are found on the street, dead, lost, dying—and unidentified.

At the height of the noise and gaiety of the New York Fire Department's annual ball at Madison Square Garden last Saturday night, a gray-haired man suddenly slumped down in his chair, and was dead.

He was six feet, two inches in height, weighed 235 pounds, wore an oxford grey suit, no collar or tie, and a brown fedora hat.

The morgue had a new occupant Sunday morning because the man was unidentified.

All of which seems to prove quite conclusively that the small irregular blotch known as the fingerprint is fast proving itself necessary in the life of every human being. In Argentina men, women and children are all fingerprinted. Other countries are now beginning to see its value and are almost ready to step in line. The taxpayers of the United States every year pay approximately $4,600,000 for the burial of 46,000 unknown dead—an expense easily done away with were the men identified.

What do you think about fingerprints? Do you think they will benefit mankind? What do you know about fingerprints—or, rather, what don't you know about them? Let us know! We will be only too glad to answer any of your questions.

If you have any questions please address them to Jacob Levine, in care of the Belleville News and we will endeavor to answer them.

Next week the second in a series of articles on fingerprints will appear in the Belleville News.

Community Service Bureau Details Told

By Mrs. Julia O. Reiner at Eighth Meeting

Approximately 100 Members Attended Gathering of Group Tuesday Evening in Belleville

Woman's Club

The eighth annual meeting of the Community Service Bureau was held Tuesday evening at the Woman's Club and was attended by approximately 100 members. Rev. Edgar M. Compton presided.

Miss Mary Biller proposed for honorary membership Mrs. Herbert B. Vail, describing her early interest and activity in founding the Community Service Bureau. Town Commissioner George R. Gerard, in seconding the motion, eulogized Mrs. Vail's continued interest in the welfare of Belleville and she was unanimously elected the first honorary member.

Election of trustees took place as follows: William Abramson, Philip Dettelbach, John J. Hewitt and Dr. Ernest C. Reock, for three years. New trustees elected for the three-year period are H. F. Hieck, Dr. George Kaden, Mrs. Georgia Peterson and Walter Warrick. Those elected for one year are Elmer S. Hyde and Mrs. Irene McCorkle.

Work Increases. Mrs. Julia O. Reiner, executive secretary, in her annual report, stated that 233 applications had been received during the past year, indicating that the community is calling on the agency for consultation in increasing numbers. A point of significance is that more than one-third of the applications received were personal. In addition to many cases referred locally, requests came from the Federal Children's Bureau in Washington and from Scotland for services of the agency.

Mrs. Reiner said, "in reviewing the many kinds of human needs that come to us we have become aware that these needs are all related to the fundamental desire for security. We have learned that security means more than money, home or food. Security means a place in one's group. It means being wanted and being useful, first to the family and then to the community. In other words, the things which threaten a person's security can be lack of the maintenance needs, but they frequently are disturbances within the individual. One person is hungry because there is actually not enough to eat and another is so mentally or emotionally upset that he cannot eat even though the food is there. One man may need a job in order to provide for his family. Another may need to work despite physical handicaps, so that he will not feel useless.

"Our work is not to provide maintenance needs such as rent or food. These things are taken care of by the public agencies, supported by the taxpayer, through the Municipal Welfare Department, the State Board of Children's Guardians, the Essex County Welfare Board and the Works Administration. The work of the Community Service Bureau is that of a voluntary agency in the community.

and in his community. We attempt to make available to those who come to us, resources which they can use in working out their difficulties.

"Obstacles arising from outside sources may be overcome by meeting needs in tangible ways and often this can be done quickly and simply. Inner or personal difficulties are more complicated and may involve weeks or months of consideration by the client and worker in seeking a satisfactory solution. In brief, our purpose is to assist families and individuals to lead useful and satisfactory lives, depending on the type of problem they bring to us and the kind of help they want. The people who come to us have the same needs as all of you have had. We have the parent who is puzzled about his child, the young couple on the verge of estrangement, the young person insecure, because he cannot find his way to a satisfactory future.

Means of Help. "You may wonder what concrete means we use to help people. Our help falls into various groups. Frequently the need is vocational guidance. For example we have the child who is not getting along in school. In this instance we can adjust the child to the school situation by leading the family to an understanding of his difficulties. Some times we show an adolescent to a vocational school, where he can learn to qualify for a job. Sometimes we secure jobs for adults. Directing persons to agencies for health care is another of our services. Family and domestic problems are our most difficult. Sometimes as simple a service as budgeting can clear up an unhappy domestic situation. Always working out family differences such as misunderstanding between parent and child or between husband and wife must be done by a disinterested third person, who can gain the confidence of both parties in order to unravel the tangle.

Voluntary Agency. "Our bureau is a voluntary agency, set up to be helpful to individuals who have some recognition of the fact that they want help in working out their difficulties. We know from long experience that to attempt to suggest plans to another person is useless unless there is a real desire on the part of the individual to bring about some change.

"We have been able during the past year to place or make plans for neglected or dependent children, which will assure them of a decent chance for growth and development in their formative years. We have done such things as assist young couples to start homes of their own, consulted with a number of widowers in regard to their children's needs and helped many people to utilize existing resources of which they had not known previously. In fact we have tried to see and solve each problem through the individual.

which required his cooperation to bring about a solution. It might be said that we open doors for people but they themselves have to take steps in their own behalf.

Financial Assistance.

"Financial assistance was given to twenty-two per cent of our families amounting to twenty per cent of our total expenditures. This went to families on marginal incomes who were ineligible for public assistance. There were also instances where it seemed advisable to meet relief needs as a means of understanding and treating a perplexing situation. It has been our experience that early aid in steering can keep a family from seeking public assistance. This effects savings of public money.

"The greater part of our expenditures, sixty-two per cent, is for what our name implies, service to families. In order to recognize the individual's problem and thus guide him to security, we must have repeated interviews with the applicant. The interview then is our chief tool in practice. To this end we have held 2,584 interviews with clients and with those interested in them, such as employers, relatives, physicians, and other agencies. As against 700 home visits we had more than 1,000 office interviews. This, we think, reflects an important trend in practice, since it indicates the confidence our clients have in us as they come to us voluntarily.

Two Held in Bail

After Raid of Still

State agents and local police Saturday raided a two-story frame building at 18 Holmes street and found a 150-gallon still in operation, one 75-gallon and one 50-gallon still not in use, 35 50-gallon barrels of mash, and 100 gallons of alcohol.

Francis Jones, 24, of 216 Broome street, and Nelson Bell, 39, of 98 Camden street, both of Newark, were arrested in the place and held on a charge of illegal operation of a still. Both said they were just "visiting" the place. The house is owned by a Red Bank resident.

The stills and mash were on the second floor of the building. The first floor contained living quarters apparently in use. Police said the weight of the apparatus was so great it was a "miracle" the floor did not give way. If it had done so, they said, a serious explosion might have resulted.

Jones and Bell were arraigned Friday before Recorder Smith and held in $1,000 bail each for the grand jury.

"To sum up may I say that we believe the following facts are true of the Community Service Bureau:

1. The agency has developed a service which is not available elsewhere and for which there is an increasing demand.

2. We have a responsibility for helping to establish better knowledge of the extent and character of the needs of families and individuals who are our neighbors."

Dr. Morris Rochlin, treasurer, gave his financial report, indicating that during 1937 we had had more adequate funds than in previous years and for this reason had been able to do a most extensive and constructive piece of work.

Judge Osborne Speaks.

Judge Harry V. Osborne was the speaker. He said that he had had the privilege of consulting with the founders of the Community Service Bureau and was pleased to note the progress made in eight years. He commented especially on the fact that so many applicants come to the agency of their own free will, feeling that this is a clear indication of the confidence which people have in making use of the Community Service Bureau.

Leonard Katchel sang and refreshments were served. Mrs. W. P. Adams was chairman of arrangements for the program, which was heartily enjoyed by all present.

ARE YOU WASTING YOUR TIME?

Why do you go to school? Is it because you have to, or because you like to? The question may be enigmatic if you have not given it much thought. Some of you go to school because you are anxious to learn the problems it has to teach; some because it's the fashion, others because you are made to by your parents who realize the necessity of education which prepares you for the competition you will meet later in life.

Whatever your reasons, realize that you can never recall the hours or years you have spent in your daily classes, hours that should be fruitful in absorbing facts, in reasoning, and pursuit of knowledge that is your privilege to receive. Are any of these your objectives? If not YOU are wasting your time; YOU are not being fair to yourself. YOU are the loser!

Are you laying a foundation for a habit of "getting by" in being "just average?" Are you the type that is forever blaming the teacher for YOUR low marks? Do not fall into that line of thought; it will become a precedent for judging your future failures.

If you are, pull your shoulders back, straighten up and smile. "For if you weaken in the day of adversity, your strength is small." Nobody loves a failure, except misery. Is the other person better than you? He is not! Go ahead and show him, prove to him that you can do whatever he can, just as good. You will experience that glow of satisfaction running through you, for you have attained what you have set out to accomplish.

The maintenance of the educational system is a great financial problem, to both your parents and supervisors. The sum expended yearly for your benefit is contributed by your parents. Have they a right to expect something in return? Your instructors are chosen with great care for their ability and training to guide you toward the building of good citizens, facilities are provided for your transportation, rules and regulations are drawn for your mutual protection in relation to the common good of others, discipline, not for the purpose of fear against doing acts that are selfish and creators of nuisance, but as a constant reminder of your transgressions against the innocent parties.

In view of the efforts expended by those who are interested in your welfare, and in fairness to yourself, don't you think it is your duty to give something in return, no matter how little, in enthusiasm and thoroughness, prepare yourself for next day's lesson. Consider your neighbor by rendering the common courtesies. Give yourself a break!—Edward Ostroski.

HOW TO JOIN THE STAFF

By Richard Stinson

The best way to obtain a position on any newspaper is to submit samples of your work.

Everyone in the school is a reporter for the BELLEVILLE HIGH SCHOOL NEWS. Just write a news or feature article about something that pertains to the school and hand it to the editor in charge at the library after school. Literary articles or editorials may also be turned in at this time. You will be given credit for any articles printed in the staff box at the upper left-hand corner of this page.

THE BELLEVILLE NEWS is put on sale each Friday and all material for the high school page should be submitted on or, preferably, before Tuesday of the same week.

There are always openings on the staff for good writers and editors.

The Interrogator

Q.—Do you think student government would be advantageous to Belleville High School?

A.—No, it is my opinion that if the power were placed in the hands of the students it would not be used to its best advantage. There would be too much favoritism involved, exclusively.—Bill Fehon.

A.—Yes, I think it would, because it would give the students more confidence and help them to be more cooperative with each other.—Hermine Wehrle.

Seen and Heard

About the Print Shop

"PI" is a printer's term meaning jumbled type. The pi box is a receptacle for "pied" type.

For a period of five years, John S. Charlton, printing teacher, has been collecting letterheads from schools and business concerns all over the United States. His collection now numbers over 500 different samples.

Mary E. Santasieri, office practice student, has been serving as Mr. Charlton's secretary. She has written letters requesting free books and pamphlets pertaining to printing and the graphic arts industry. Many organizations have complied by sending information about type faces, colors of ink and paper, letterheads, etc.

William Holland is printing money in the print shop! No, there are no arrests and no federal agents have been investigating. But the print shop has been making money—money for a monopoly game.

Since the print shop received a package, the material can be separated into these main classifications: material for Subjects of Current Events, Books Purely on Printing, National Guidance, and Professional and Magazines.

Since the beginning of the term, Charlton has been experimenting with various means of fastening instruction cards to the title slip of the print shop. He used black electricians' tape, rubber tape, adhesive tape, and cloth and paper book binding tape. Finally he decided to use transparent cellophane tape.

In the Camera World

A Note of Thanks

We, of the Bellboy staff, thank Frank A. Spotts for the development of our high school camera club.

At present the camera club pertains mostly to general science classes, which Mr. Spotts conducts. But we hope in the future that this club may have a day to meet at other high school clubs do. This development of the club is of interest to most all students of this club. The day of the meetings will be held in our student page at a future date.

We, of the Bellboy staff, thank Mr. Spotts for having such a club, because this club will enable us to have many pictures in our school page, which will be taken by the members of this club.

Mr. Spotts also will give us material for a column called "In the Camera World," which will appear each week in our school page.

Big Apple Dance

The Juniors will hold their Big Apple dance Saturday, January 22. The price for admission is only twenty-five cents. The time is 8:30 P. M. to 11:30 P. M., and the music will be furnished by Russ Seville and his orchestra.

The Juniors have been quite original in preparing for their dance, and are going to continue their original ways by presenting many more dances.

Looking at Football

The Correct Way

Daniel Stettella

"I was asked by the Editor-in-Chief of the High School News, which appears in the Belleville News, to write a story about 'Football.' While thinking over what I should write, I decided on this topic and received some help in writing this by one of the football players—"Looking at Football the Correct Way."

"Football, of course, is a game very much enjoyed by the spectators and also the players. A player must put everything he has into the game if he wants to win. He may put all he has into it, and lose, but that doesn't mean he is not a football player.

"Some people go to see the team play and when they lose the players who are considered a bunch of no-good players. When this is said the persons saying it should go out and do better, if possible. Nine times out of ten, they don't know the first thing about football.

"Playing some high school football last season, I witnessed some of these incidents myself with a few other boys on the team. One incident was when the team was enjoying a winning streak some one said, 'You fellows are good this year, you ought to win all the games.'

"The players only said they hoped to win.

"The Irvington game was the first defeat the Belleville players had. The same person, who congratulated the players, turned around and called them a bunch of 'no-goods.'

"This is the wrong way to bark at the boys. They fight with their heart and soul to win. The real way to look at it, is that the boys fought the game all the way through and did their best."

Math Classes Study

Drawing Instruments

Miss Keitzman has been instructing her classes in the use of the carpenter's square, T-square, slide rule, dividers, and protractor. For this reason they were especially interested in the Chevrolet motion picture, "Precisely So," which was shown in the assembly Friday, January 14.

In this course of study they drew artistic geometric designs, using arcs and circles. They were taught to use colors which go well together.

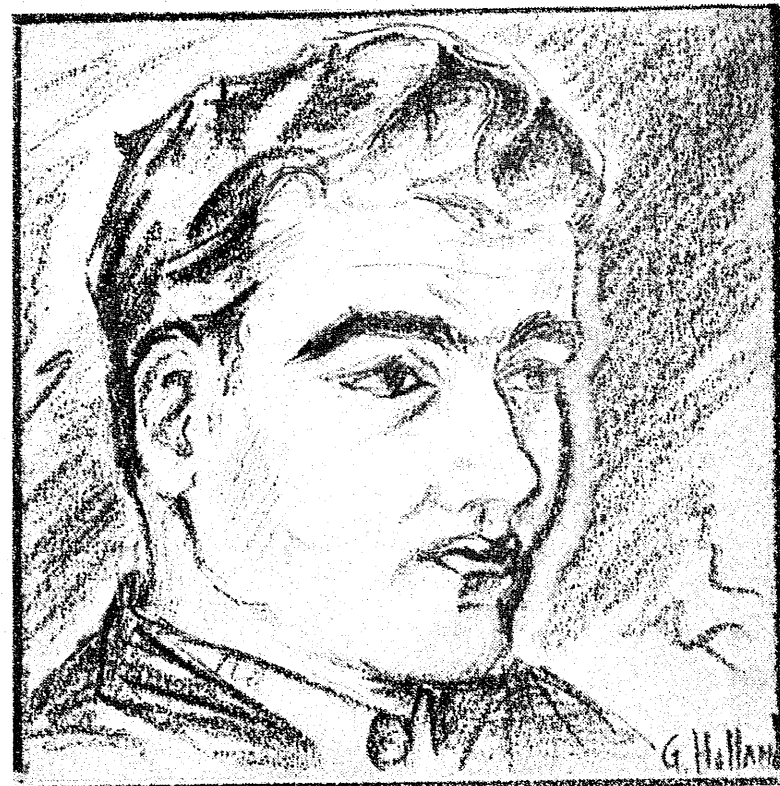

Oral Recitations Used

In Study of French

The French classes, under the direction of Miss Mary Dye, are progressing rapidly.

Miss Dye, teacher of French two and three, has oral discussions in classes regularly. These discussions enable her students to understand French composition matter more clearly, and to learn more definitely the vocabulary of the previous

Belleville High's Own Accordionist

As we all know, Albert Wade, a Junior at Belleville High School, is our best accordionist. During our freshman and sophomore years he brought us very excellent entertainment during our assemblies.

Now, our well known accordionist will play in a concert sponsored by the Silver Lake division. Albert is competing for a trophy.

We students, especially the orchestra, give him our firm confidence and good wishes to win the trophy.

Biology Classes in Interesting Studies

Shells, Corals, Parasitic Worms and Starfishes Under Scrutiny

In the biology classes, under the guidance of Mr. Richardson, shells, corals, parasitic worms, starfish and the like, seem to be the nature of the material now being studied. These materials are supplemented by many stereopticon slides, a few living specimens and by numerous examples of crayfish and earth worms used in laboratory anatomy studies.

A developing culture of protozoan and bacteria will make possible laboratory examination of some of these smallest of the animal kingdom.

In the class work some of the objectives are: Familiarity with some of the practical points of each in relation to man; recognition and ability to name; understanding of ways of living by the different types, and the ability to place each as a member of one of the more prominent phyla or groups of animals.

High School Riflemen Hold Practice Shoot

Challenges of Hillside and Cranford To Be Accepted

Surprises were the order of the day at the practice session of the High School Rifle Club recently.

The members, left from last year, showed a decided increase in their averages, while a new member took fifth place in the final listing.

Fred Johnston turned in an average of forty-four points to lead the list, while Dick Schlichting ran a close second with forty-three and one-third. There was a tie for third place with De Allaire and Bill Fehon, both shooting a forty-one. Howard Garland took fourth place with forty and two-third points, to be followed by Don McAleese, a new member, with thirty-six and two-third points. The highest possible score is fifty points.

Although handicapped by the lack of a home range, the club is hard at work preparing for matches to be held with Hillside and Cranford High Schools next month.

Big Apple Feeney Steals Show

His Popularity Comes to Front in Assembly Program

Charles Feeney's popularity was quite evident in the assembly dramatization last Friday. His clever interpretation of the "Big Apple" was received with appreciative laughter by the student audience.

The rumor, that he will teach "How to be Popular in Ten Easy Lessons," has been denied.

As an added feature, motion pictures, furnished by the Chevrolet Motors Corporation, were shown. "Seeing the Green" was a study of traffic signals; "Riding the Film," explained modern lubrication, and "Precisely So" depicted the exacting measuring instruments which our science has developed.

Mathematics Studied

By Chemistry Groups

The chemistry classes, under the direction of Walter Hack, are studying the mathematical part of chemistry. Mr. Hack's classes have had previous work on the chemical composition of matter.

Office Practice Students Act As Secretaries

The Office Practice students, under the direction of Charles Schultz, are at present engaged in secretarial work.

Each student of Mr. Schultz's classes act as a secretary for one of the teachers.

This practice, not only enables the students to do secretarial work, but enables them to keep in contact with events of the present day.

Previous to the Christmas vacation, Hugh D. Kittle had a professional office teacher, Miss Kaye, address these classes on topics that were of benefit to them.

Another Class Reaches

Change is always taking place in this world.
If this were not so there would be no progress.

DIVERSIFIED INDUSTRY

Belleville is fortunate in having a diversity of manufacturing plants, rather than concentration of one particular line. Take for instance Passaic, with its woolen mills, Paterson its silk mills. In times of business recession or labor troubles, both of these cities and many others in this great metropolitan industrial area are faced with economic stress, because they have not planned wisely in the matter of a more varied set-up. Belleville is just now beginning to realize on the advertising campaign to induce more industrial plants to come here. As the town grew industrially, in the past, varied lines located here. Just last week three more concerns decided to locate in Belleville, a wire and file concern, a novelty corporation and a laundry. Such diversity will go a long way toward elimination of suffering here among workers, as, if and when the industrial expanse of the town becomes what is visioned in the minds of those who are glimpsing into the future. Careful planning now will spare the Belleville to be. Evidently this thought is back of the broad invitation to industry to come here. Last week's activity will eventually provide work for about 150 persons, most of whom will be Belleville residents. Twenty girls will find employment. Belleville's unemployment problem should be solved if stipulation, to the effect that Belleville residents be given preference in jobs, is followed out. There will not be much gain for Belleville, if firms which locate here, bring their help from elsewhere.

GLAZED STREETS

The recent snowfalls sent children running to cellars and attics to bring forth their sleds. The coasting season actually got underway. Meanwhile, the streets became glazed with ice, making it extremely difficult for motorists to drive and keep their machines under control at all times. Both the children and the motorists have a new duty right now—the motorists to proceed slowly and with great care and the children to coast at spots where there is no danger of them riding under the wheels of automobiles. The coasting death toll will be negligible if this is done. Otherwise the consequences will be great.

CONTRAST

In Washington and in business circles today constant conferences are going forward seeking means of clearing away the obstacles that have impeded business progress and led to unemployment.

The Senate's Special Committee on Unemployment and Relief is receiving advice and counsel from industrialists and others. Hopefulness is in the air as all groups pit their minds against the recession to halt it before it becomes a major depression.

Meanwhile, in Arizona the United Press interviews John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., head of the Mine Workers Union, head of Labor's Non-Partisan League, etc. And Mr. Lewis contributes:

"Perhaps it is time something else is tried."

Mr. Lewis was referring to something new in government and business. He was referring to democracy, which he said is on trial, and he stated, according to the United Press, "that some people have found they could live happily and successfully in a communal form."

And what is a "communal form?" Communism?

Between those efforts in business circles and Washington, on the one hand, and Mr. Lewis' statement on the other there is contrast of the sharp-kind.

It takes but one guess to know which the American people want.

UP-SE-DAISY!

CAUSE AND EFFECT!

THIS WEEK

By "GUARDIAN"

This week the President held a conference with forty-nine members of his Business Advisory Council and told them of his plans to form a group representing big business, little business, labor, transportation, distribution, agriculture, banking, capital and consumer. That's fine and may such a conference speedily take place—and in the spirit of which we have previously written. Such a conference, conducted with the sole object of finding the way to correct our present economic difficulties, should start us well on our way to better times and bigger accomplishments.

But we fervently hope that this encouraging news will not be followed in a day or two by another tirade against business, either from the President or one of his immediate group in the Cabinet or among his advisors. If a group who have not been friendly with each other sit down in an effort to start afresh and leave the meeting with more friendly feelings toward each other, and then in a day or two read a derogatory statement that has been released by one of the parties to the conference, most of the good that the conference accomplished is undone. "A still tongue indicates a wise head"—and this surely is one of the times for considered silence.

In fact, we wonder if this is not a good time for less talk about all of our troubles and if a little studied silence wouldn't be a mighty good thing for the country and for the state. Studied silence on the part of some in Belleville has paid big dividends in the not distant past and will, we predict, continue to do so.

Homer Zink of Belleville, chairman of the powerful Appropriations Committee of the Assembly, will be a big influence in Trenton this year. An able, vigorous, honest, straight thinking man—Homer is a credit to Belleville, to Essex County and to the state. We trust, Homer, that you will lend the prestige of your position to trying to bring about as short a session of the Legislature and as speedy an adjournment as possible. This idea of having a Legislature which goes into office the first part of January, theoretically remaining in session until the last week in December, may be for the good of the political party in power, but we question if it is for the good of the state.

And Homer, won't you do what you can to keep the number of new laws down? We have far too many laws now. Though Governor Moore is not of your party, he has shown himself to be a steady, conservative Governor.

He will lend constructive dignity to the office and, as he has proven in the past, will ride along with the majority party on anything he is convinced is for the good of the state.

There is going to be another matter, however, that will probably come before the Legislature this year, of great interest to Belleville and to all of Northern New Jersey. That is the question of future water supply. Experts who have made careful analyses of the situation predict that with normal growth of population and industry, our present water sources will not be adequate ten years from now. The acquisition and construction of additional water supplies is a long process. Ten years may even be too short a time for its accomplishment. There will probably be legislation introduced to bring about a combination of the two existing bodies—the State Water Policy Commission and the North Jersey District Water Supply Commission in an endeavor to end the stalemate which has prevented real progress being made in the past two years. Lots of opposition can be expected from some political groups and from the counties that would be directly affected by the creation of large impounding reservoirs. No community can grow, however, without an adequate, safe water supply and genuine, constructive leadership will speed the day that it is brought about.

May we commend John P. Dailey for the sound, restrained and conservative statement he made at this week's Board of Education meeting and for the clear demonstration he gave, that with him Belleville's interests are paramount. It took courage to ask his successor to attend, as an observer, a meeting of the Board of Education one month before he was to take office to which Dailey was not reappointed, but that showed that Dailey appreciated appointment to the Board of Education required many months of association to become acquainted with the problems to be considered. In the interests of Belleville, Dailey asked Mr. Lynch to sit in at the meeting. It was a fine gesture of co-operation. Insofar as we know John P. Dailey performed his task as president of the Board of Education in an efficient and earnest manner. We must bear in mind that appointment to the Board of Education is solely the responsibility of the Mayor, and if the Mayor wanted new blood in that branch of the town's activities, that, after all, was a decision for the Mayor to make.

Yours 'til next week,
"GUARDIAN."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A Petition

Pertaining to Compulsory Automobile Inspection.

Editor, the News:

We, the undersigned, do hereby voice our disapproval of the Compulsory Automobile Inspection Law, because of its discrimination against the man of small means in its application and operation.

The ever increasing number of cars, and the raising of speed limits creates an increasing number of hazards along the highway, and we acknowledge the need of cars in good condition regardless of the owner or operator, and we also believe the State Motor Vehicle Department, because of its equipment and power, should oversee this.

However, the average person, because of limited earnings, cannot afford to purchase a new car, but must buy one that is used because it is a little older and within his means. This car is used for transportation to and from his work and very often is his means of making a living.

Most cars, especially the older ones, need repairs and adjustments, which we know are necessary to meet a fair and impartial examination. In the event the car fails to pass the test, the owner is obliged to make adjustments and return. He now faces the loss of from one-half

PIQUANT POLITICS

By MEADOR WRIGHT

THE political astuteness of A. Harry Moore was never better exemplified than in his inaugural address at Trenton Tuesday night. Moore read the Republican platform plank by plank and called upon the Republican legislators publicly assembled to hear his address to carry out their own program. In view of the fact that both houses are firmly in Republican control, Moore could have done nothing better than he did. His strategy was obvious, but thereby none the less clever. The burden is left on their shoulders where it belongs. Moore knows that much of this program will not be carried out. Later on he will make specific recommendations as opportunities present themselves. But at one masterful stroke he puts his opponents thoroughly on the defensive without in the least hampering his own course of action.

If Moore displayed political astuteness of a high order in his address, Mayor Hague likewise took the prudent course in finally deciding not to go to Washington as senator. In sending John Milton, Hague has a personal representative whom he trusts implicitly. Milton, more than any one else, is the Tallyrand of New Jersey Democracy. He will not make the impression in the senate cloak-rooms that Hague, himself, would have made. But it is possible that he will advance the Hague policies better than Hague could have done himself.

Decision to send Milton, however, was, I am told, prompted less by Jersey City's needs than by William H. Snathers' threats. Several days ago Snathers is said to have sent a message to Moore requesting that he be consulted before decision was finally made on who should be senator. This innocent appearing communication was actually loaded with enough dynamite to sink one of Charles Edison's proposed battleships. For it was known both in Jersey City and Washington that Snathers spoke with the direct ear of James A. Farley. Roosevelt did not want Hague in Washington for several reasons, and Snathers' message turned out to be nothing less than an ultimatum to Moore not to appoint him. As late as last Saturday night Moore was bent on naming his lifelong political colleague to succeed him. But when the full import of Snathers' threat was seen, Hague prudently decided that he had enough enemies at home without taking on Washington as well. Milton was a last minute selection. I do not think he will be the candidate for the general election this fall. That doubtful honor may yet go to James Cromwell, provided he is willing to make the run. As things look now, any Democrat nominated stands nearly a certain chance of losing. But the tempo of American politics is so fast these days that conditions may change radically between now and next November. The change that took place in the year between 1936 and 1937 was little short of incredible. When Snathers ran for the senate in 1936, he could not possibly have lost. Yet a year later even such an excellent vote-getter as Moore came within an inch of losing to a man who was being systematically knifed by his own party at the same time he was fighting the Democrats. And had the election been held one month later, Moore would have lost regardless of the type of campaign waged, either by himself or his opponent.

It is these lightning-like shifts in public opinion that makes political strategy these days so perplexing. There is no security in either politics or economics. Prior to the cataclysm of 1929, changes occurred more slowly. It is as though America today was taking its cue from the military nightmare that has engulfed Europe. We have reasonable protection from armed invasion, but we have no protection from the psychological neurosis that military insecurity has brought to Europe. An appreciation of this condition is necessary to a proper understanding of present politics. All predictions are subject to change. There is no security, even for the political prophet. He, too, must tread warily, as though the firing squad or the barricade were just around one of Mr. Hoover's immortal corners. His choice for senator may fall down between Saturday night and Monday morning.

Senator Lester H. Clee and his associates appear well satisfied with the half-loaf of bread they got when the assembly voted an investigation of the recent election in Hudson. Authority is given the committee to be appointed to subpoena the poll books in which the alleged dissimilarity of signatures exist. I have heard it suggested that a certain proportion of the pages, say ten per cent of those that look most questionable, be photographed and reproduced in quantities that will permit the general public to betake itself to a magnifying glass and pass its own judgment on the validity of the signatures. Mr. Hague, himself, suggested such a technique when he gave out for publication, the rogue's gallery photographs of Republican election officers in Hudson, allegedly recommended by Paul Williams of Essex. At stake in both cases is the validity of the adage that pictures do not lie. Whether public sentiment will be more favorable to signature facsimiles of Mr. Hague's political protégés in Hudson, or to photographs of Mr. Williams' political cronies in Essex involves a guess that I had rather not make.

Much speculation centers around the lady who accompanied Governor Hoffman when he visited Bruno Hauptmann in his cell in Trenton. Hoffman has promised to give the name of the lady and the reasons why she accompanied him, in one of his subsequent articles in Liberty Magazine.

New Jersey Today

Erosion at Island Beach.

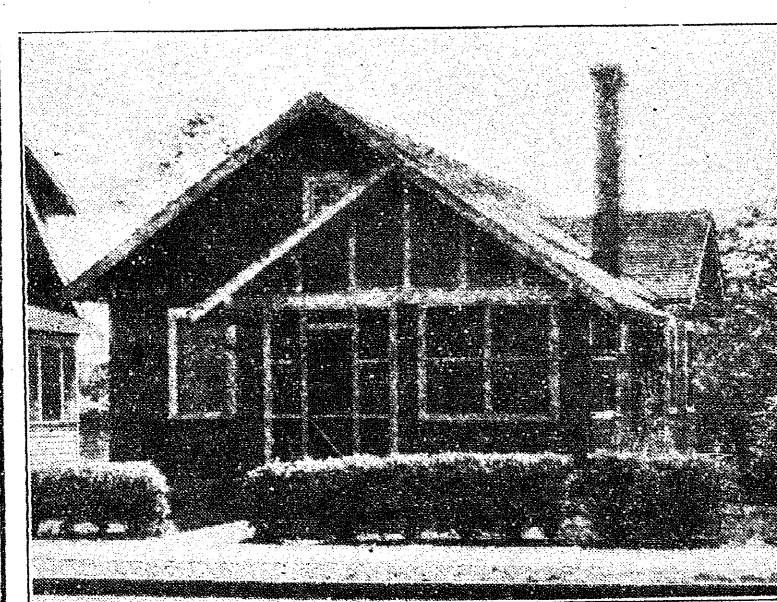

Prepared for the Belleville News by John W. Hyde, assistant planning engineer, New Jersey State Planning Board.

Island Beach, recently proposed by the State Planning Board as a State ocean-front park, in comparison with other sites, offers a minimum erosion problem. Data on hand at the board offices indicate that the problem of beach erosion here is not acute and that damage to dunes due to winds can be controlled, although storms cause occasional serious damage, especially at the lower end of the island.

A reasonable allotment for beach and dune maintenance should preserve the area in its original condition since serious shifting of sand, due either to periodic storms or gradual erosion, has in the past been kept in check by a minimum of constant watchfulness and intelligent care.

The problem of beach protection from wind and wave action is common to all New Jersey beaches and deserves constant attention. The 1937 State Legislature appropriated $375,000 for the deepening of Barnegat Inlet and the prevention of erosion around Barnegat Light. This appropriation will be supplemented by Ocean County and by the Federal Government. Deepening of the Inlet is decidedly pertinent to the possible development of docking facilities at the lower end of Island Beach. The light, although on the farther side of Barnegat Inlet, and entirely aside from its utilitarian purpose, serves as a landmark and as a focus of interest for miles around. Immediate steps should be taken for its preservation.

At Island Beach, the grouping of people in relatively few areas would simplify the problem of maintenance and policing, and at the same time is highly necessary to the preservation of native dune and beach vegetation. Rather than to allow people the run of the dunes, definite lines of pedestrian traffic in the form of walks and paths from one camp ground or picnic area to another, and from all points of attraction should be encouraged. Concentration of people in areas definitely planned for their use could be influenced on a good part of the island by the retention of the natural growth of cat-brier and other natural dense and formidable growths. Actual details and costs of maintenance and policing would largely depend upon the character assumed and the plans finally evolved for an ocean-front park.

THE GREAT IMITATOR

By Health Officer E. T. Berry

Eugene T. Berry

Like the criminal fleeing from justice, syphilis is a persistent traveler. If the disease is not treated promptly and efficiently, it may be carried to all parts of the body in the blood stream. Modern medicines are the physicians' weapons for checking this invasion.

The first sign of syphilis—that small sore, "chancre," may heal even without medical treatment. But, even if it does, the disease is not cured, the germs are still active in the body.

What are the next symptoms? A few weeks later, unless the patient has treatment, there may be a rash on the skin, sores in the mouth and throat, swollen glands, headache, fever, pain in the bones. The hair and eyebrows may fall out.

What is the "tertiary" or late stage? The disease may attack the heart, blood vessels, brain, nervous system, bones, eyes—in fact, any part of the body. Many years later paralysis, heart disease, or insanity may result.

It is to checkmate these malignant tricks of "The Great Imitator" that physicians and health officers urge prompt and adequate treatment. This, they assure, will prevent the development of many serious later effects such as paresis and locomotor ataxia. The former, known also as general paralysis of the insane, is responsible for 10 per cent of the admissions to New Jersey's institutions for the mentally afflicted. The latter, as its name implies, attacks the organs of locomotion and causes partial or complete loss of use of legs.

Fortunately with the tests and medicines that science has discovered, the well-trained doctor of today is able to save his patients from these more serious consequences. Particularly is this true when the patient seeks aid early. And even in the later stages, wonderful progress has been made toward holding the damage to a minimum and preventing further advances of the disease.

Heart disease is another favorite disguise of syphilis. Physicians estimate that from 8 to 12 per cent of all heart disease is due to this cause. Authorities in the field of sight conversation say, "Probably the most serious of all infectious diseases which may result in blindness is syphilis. Unlike other infectious diseases, it can even be passed on to a baby before it is born, so that the child may come into the world with seriously defective or blind eyes. Or the child may apparently be healthy but carry in its system the germs which will affect its eyes several years later."

Many volumes are devoted to descriptions of the various guises under which syphilis operates. But such detailed knowledge is not essential except to the physician. If the average citizen knows the major facts regarding the physical, social and economic loss due to the disease, he will promptly join the hosts of those who are waging the fight for its elimination.

Prudery, ignorance, taboo, and fear—the malignant Four Horsemen which so long have served as a bodyguard for syphilis—are on the retreat.

Science and administration working together can banish this great plague from the United States. Future years should see the army of afflicted, now "filling our hospitals, prisons and other institutions," reduced to a mere corporal's guard. And an informed cooperating public can be a major factor in attaining this most desirable goal.

Junior Woman's Club

The Junior Woman's Club of Belleville will have a drama meeting Tuesday evening.

Through the courtesy of a Newark department store, the speaker will be Mrs. Samuel Scott, who will give an informal discussion on the Contemporary Theatre.

The drama department, under Miss Vivian Kilpatrick, will present a short play. The cast will be the Misses Barbara Tate, Catherine Comiskey and Jeanne McClelland.

This will be an open meeting and all are invited to attend with a friend. On Saturday, January 29, the Eighth District drama conference will be held at the Belleville Woman's Club, 51 Rossmore place, at 2:30. Mrs. John H. Barry, Arlington, will be the speaker. Mrs. Barry is the author of numerous successful plays, among them "The Bond Between." This play was presented by the Hoboken Junior Woman's Club in the Little Theatre tournament last spring.

Presidents and drama chairmen of all Eighth District clubs will be guests and Mrs. J. Russell Wardell, junior state chairman of drama, will be guest speaker.

James Lynch

Mr. Lynch was formerly president of the Recreation Commission. He resigned from that board five years ago. He also was president at one time of the High School Parent-Teacher Association.

Born in Newark, the new appointee attended schools in that city and is a graduate of Newark Business College and attended New York University. Mr. Lynch is vice president of the Forest Hill B. & L. Association and assistant superintendent of the mortgage loan department of the Prudential Insurance Company.

During the last twenty years Mr. Lynch has lived here. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Elks. Mr. Lynch is married and has three daughters, Eileen, a student in Montclair Teachers' College; Miss Regina Lynch, a local teacher; and Nancy, a pupil in the high school, and a son, James J. Lynch, who teaches in Ridgewood.

Mr. Dailey, it has been rumored, would seek election to the Town Commission in May. He has no intention of being a candidate, stating that the rumors have also reached him.

The appointment of Mr. Lynch followed discussions of the Mayor with school and town officials, it is reported.

No word was conveyed to Dailey that he would not be reappointed and he was desirous until the last minute to learn what the Mayor's deliberations would bring forth, although neither he nor his friends made any overtures to the Mayor in that connection.

Another angle that has developed is a reported idea of the Mayor that the Recreation Commission should be abolished and the activity supervised by the school board. It is said the Mayor suggested this six years ago.

Grace Baptist Plans 'Better Church Forum'

The speakers will be Dr. W. S. Booth, Newark Baptist Extension Society, who will make the introductory presentation and lead the forum discussion, and Dr. A. A. Gordanier, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Roselle, who will summarize the discussion and give the closing inspirational message. All members and friends of the church are cordially invited to attend.

Washington Snapshots

by JAMES PRESTON

There's a clause in the farm bill that is going to create some pretty perplexing situations if it ever becomes a law. In so many words it says, for instance, that if a farmer's chicken eats grass or grain from land that has been "retired" (taken out of production by crop-control orders) any eggs laid by that chicken cannot be sold.

If any crop grown on forbidden lands, such as grass or grain or beans is fed to livestock or poultry, says the clause, then "such poultry or livestock or the products thereof" must be consumed by the farmer's family, employees or household, and must not be sold.

Farmer Jones, therefore, is going to have a pretty tough time of it keeping his pigs, chickens, etc., legally fit for the market. A chicken that has nibbled at a grasshopper in the forbidden fields, or a pig that has been tainted by eating roots from the same land, can have but one legal destination—Farmer Jones' own table, or that of his employees or household.

We can imagine that Farmer Jones and his "family, employees and household" are going to get mighty tired of fried chicken, eggs, pork chops, etc.

There has been some public discussion lately about how the Post Office wouldn't have such a big deficit if newspapers and magazines paid full postage rates.

A lot of things are being overlooked. Among them is that the government itself mailed out without any postage 73,000,000 more pieces of literature—called "propaganda" by some—last year than it did the year before. Referring to this and other federal publicity appropriations, the House Appropriation committee said:

"The committee views with disfavor the tendency to expend disproportionate sums for the printing of publications, often on high-priced paper and under expensive covers, on the preparation of press releases, magazine articles, broadcasts, motion pictures, etc., the primary purpose of which is to build up a public demand for the services of the agency issuing the publicity."

Speaking of habits, the budget seems to have developed one too—it will teeter and totter, but it won't balance.

As a "depression" cure, the budget was deliberately unbalanced. That, many monetary experts say, brought an artificial stimulation which had to be followed by a "recession." But now we apparently plan to cure the "recession" with another unbalanced budget.

Meanwhile, the taxpayer who is fortunate enough to have a job is the guy who gets stuck. In 1930, the federal debt was $540 per family; in 1938 it will be $1,186 per family. Which means an average of $1,186 in taxes per family to pay off the federal debt. And, of course, the government's running expenses are collected in taxes, too.

Reports are floating around that the new Borah-O'Mahoney industry licensing bill would be acceptable to the powers that be except for the fact that it "doesn't go far enough."

When one Congressman heard that, he said: "Gosh! How far do they want to go? Why under that bill they can force practically everybody, down to laundries and dry cleaners and retailers, as well as factories, to come to Washington for a license to do business. Looks to me like that's going pretty far."

A House Press Gallery habitue remarked the other day that some legislators who were yowling about high prices were guilty of fixing some themselves.

The House runs its own restaurant for Congressmen and their guests. About five months ago prices were hoisted almost thirty-six per cent nearly all along the line. And the explanation was: "We've got to do it or lose money."

Apparently what's sauce for the goose makes the gander taste bad.

The Good and Welfare Committee of Good American Council, Daughters of America, will meet at the home of Mrs. E. B. Brink, 354 Stephen street this evening.

Final arrangements will be made for budget programs for winter and spring, and also arrangements for the meeting of February 7 will be completed when state councilor Stella Hayward and her staff of officers will pay their official visit.

Local Officers Aid Police Reception

Superior Officers' Association To Entertain in Kreuger's Auditorium

Captain James Flynn and Sergeant James Hannan of the local police, are aiding in plans for the first annual reception, entertainment and ball of the New Jersey Superior Police Officers' Association, to be held Friday, February 25, in Kreuger's auditorium, Newark.

Ernie Krickett's orchestra will play for dancing. There will be many acts of radio and stage entertainment. Proceeds of the affair will go into the association's death benefit fund.

The state association's membership is drawn from every part of the state, from Cape May to Interstate Park. Most of it is concentrated in Essex, Bergen and Passaic counties.

Hartley to Fight Dutch Elm Disease

Urges Continuance to Keep Trees in Jersey From Being Denuded

Congressman Fred A. Hartley, Jr., of the tenth congressional district, said today he believed the Agriculture Department appropriations for control of the Dutch Elm Disease in New Jersey, New York and Connecticut should be continued unabated during the next fiscal year.

"This disease has taken a heavy toll throughout Northern New Jersey," Mr. Hartley said. "Many of our parks have been denuded of their elms. We feel the loss keenly."

"However, experts in the agriculture department have made rapid strides in checking the scourge, and have stated that if funds are continued, the disease may eventually be stamped out and elm trees on the North American continent saved from the fate which destroyed the chestnut trees many years ago."

"The Budget Bureau has recommended an appropriation of $378,489 to continue the Dutch Elm Disease fight during the next fiscal year and I have every hope this money will be approved by Congress."

"Similarly, I believe Congress will realize the necessity of approving budget estimates of $400,000 to continue work of protecting our plant life from the Gypsy and Brown Tail Moth, and $395,000 to maintain quarantines against the Japanese beetle, the best known insect pest in New Jersey."

Congressman Hartley also advocated today an adequate appropriation by Congress to assure a Navy capable of efficient National Defense.

"The present day Navy Department Appropriation Bill before the House of Representatives, provides funds to start construction on twenty-two Naval vessels and auxiliaries," Mr. Hartley said. "There is every reason to believe that the Naval program planned under this bill is the minimum required to insure our coast against invasion from abroad."

Since 1933, Congress has appropriated $1,443,643,280 for 119 new battleships, cruisers, destroyers, submarines, aircraft carriers and other ships necessary for the efficient operation of our Navy. The amount provided for the next fiscal year would be $138,063,150.

"Because we are a peace-loving people in the midst of a war-torn world, this sum does not seem out of proportion to the needs. In fact, the majority in Congress appears ready to listen to proposals from high sources for increasing the appropriation for new naval vessels this year."

"In the tenth district, we have one of the major shipyards of the country, we have built many vessels for the navy there, as well as for the Merchant Marine. We are capable of building more, and it seems probable that our shipyards will benefit materially by this new Naval construction."

"Unemployment will be relieved and our national defense served by this appropriation for new ships. This fact makes the present Navy Appropriation Bill a double edged sword in the fight to stabilize our national economy."

"Loath as are the American people to engage in a Naval race with the other powers of the world, it is imperative, if we are to maintain the peace we prize so highly, that we present a front of national defense sufficiently formidable to guarantee against invasion."

"Today, we can best serve the cause of peace and prosperity by making our nation an impregnable fortress, high above the warring factions all about us."

COMPULSORY INSPECTION LAW

By J. ALDEN De RONDE

It is to be regretted that certain persons, in their desire to see the compulsory inspection law eliminated from our statute books, have proceeded in their efforts in a manner which can not accomplish their commendable purpose.

To attack the law as an inconvenience is being narrow minded and selfish.

If it was capable of decreasing accidents and deaths appreciably, no thinking person would complain of the inconvenience.

If we had not already paid for highway safety (millions of dollars worth) the fee of one dollar per year for these inspections could not be found fault with.

We are not in sympathy with those who attempt to blind our public to the facts in connection with this law, by a profuse expression of irrelevant claims.

Cease demanding that our assemblymen and senators act to repeal this law on the ground that it is an inconvenience or a hardship.

Let's request its repeal on the grounds that it is misrepresented as a safety measure, and offer available statistics to substantiate our claim. Let's request its repeal on the

Auxiliary Notes

Many members of Belleville Unit No. 195, American Legion Auxiliary, attended the showing of the pictures of the New York convention parade as guests of Belleville Post Monday night at the Elks' Club. Dancing followed.

Mrs. Elsie Kant represented the Belleville Juniors at the meeting called by the county chairman at the Service Men's Club, Irvington, Tuesday.

Mrs. Helen La Baugh, Mrs. Julia Huemer, Mrs. Irene McCorkle and Mrs. Maude Christie were unit representatives at the annual meeting of the Belleville Community Service Bureau Tuesday when Judge Harry Osborne, president of the Bonnie Brae Farm for Boys, was guest speaker.

The Child Welfare Conference held a three-day meeting over the weekend in the Hotel Douglas. It was well attended, and addresses made by national and department welfare leaders did much to enlighten the delegates in this phase of legion work.

Mrs. Eliza Ackerman, legislative chairman, is in possession of a petition, requesting Congressman Hartley to vote in support of the Universal Service Bill. She would like to have the signature of everyone in Belleville on the petition.

Mrs. Ackerman says: "Inasmuch as this bill, if passed, will not involve any expenditure of money and will save the government millions and, possibly billions of dollars, in time of war (and only in effect upon declaration of war) by giving the President of the United States power to conscript everything necessary to carry on a war, it should rightfully be on the statute books and every peace loving citizen should do all in his power to see that it is passed and thus eliminate the enormous profit of war and bloodshed."

Mrs. Huemer, membership chairman, calls attention to the fact that "we must equal our 1937 membership by January 31 in order to get a national citation. We now have 60 per cent of the quota. Will all eligible to join the auxiliary help us in getting that other 40 per cent? Contact Mrs. Huemer, 170 Cedar Hill avenue, Belleville, for further information."

The unit meets Monday in Legion Chateau. A social will follow a short business meeting at which Mrs. Huemer and Mrs. Christie will be hostess.

Rescues Many in Local Man's Log But Never Received "Word of Thanks"

Martin Essayan's Latest Help Was Rendered Sunday Afternoon When "Brae Burn" Picked Up Three Brooklynites

Martin Essayan, 120 Floyd street, in his thirty-nine years of life, has experienced many thrills.

For instance, he was aboard the steamship "President Lincoln," when it was torpedoed off the coast of France, in 1917. He has taken an active part in the thrilling rescues from certain death at sea. He was on a ship that rescued the crew of the U. S. S. James, during the World War, and he has been in many terrible storms at sea.

Mr. Essayan is captain of the 110-foot submarine chaser, the Brae Burn, which he acquired five years ago, and now docks it at Commercial fainted on the deck of my boat immediately after he was rescued."

Mr. Essayan, who has rescued six other persons from drowning, remarked casually that he never received a word of thanks from any person he had saved.

Latest Rescue.

His latest rescue was Sunday afternoon, when he saved from drowning Vito Navarra, Joseph Damara and Angelo Damara, all of Brooklyn. Their boat, containing fifty gallons of gasoline, blew up in New York Bay. They were forced to jump overboard, suffering from severe burns.

Mr. Essayan came to this country from France, in 1913. He joined the U. S. Navy in 1917, when nineteen years old. It was while in the navy, as a member of the crew of the "President Lincoln," that he experienced being torpedoed. The entire crew escaped in life boats and were picked up by passing steamers and brought to Brest, France, where Mr. Essayan was transferred to U. S. S. Carola.

He was put in charge of the motor launches, plying a regular schedule from the dock to the American ships in the harbor.

Six months after the armistice was signed, he was transferred to the U. S. S. Marietta, which was one of a convoy of ten ships, bound for the United States.

The first day out, a terrible storm arose and when the ships returned to Brest, four of them had sunk, including three mine sweepers. It was during the storm that the "Marietta" saved the crew of the U. S. S. James, due to the fine work, Mr. Essayan said, of the captain, H. G. Hamlet.

He later returned to this country and signed up for a three-months' cruise aboard the U. S. S. Frederick, which was taking naval athletes from this country to Antwerp, where they were entered in the Olympics.

Mr. Essayan is married to the former Miss Elizabeth Bakalian, Belleville. They have one daughter, Alyce.

Active in Affairs of Legion Auxiliary

Mrs. R. Graham Huntington, Essex County President of the American Legion Auxiliary, will attend the National Defense Conference to be held in the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. AIMING WISELY

Aim high, my son, but not too high.
Let not your target be
The moon that shines up in the sky
You can but faintly see.
Hitch not to some far distant star,
That glitters 'till the dawn,
But to some force, down where you are
That faster speeds you on.
For President, my son, don't aim
To be some future day;
Of all our Presidents none came
To office in that way.
They'll tell you that they reached that height,
By nearer goals they planned,
Thru tasks performed with all their might,
They found quite close at hand.
It's well to try for higher goals,
And step by step to rise;
The way of progress comes to souls
Thru aiming that is wise.

Police On The Job.

"The 1937 report of the Police Department shows that there were 1,148 arrests during the year for many different causes, of which a large proportion were for violation of motor laws. Among those were twenty for reckless driving; thirty-seven for improper parking; sixty-nine for driving on wrong side of road; 389 for parking without lights; seventy-three for passing red lights; and 307 for speeding. Beside these auto violations, there were thirty-nine arrests for assault and battery; eight for desertion; fifty-six for disorderly conduct; thirty-five for drunkenness; seven for petty larceny; five for robbery, and ten for parole violation.

"In addition to the foregoing, the Belleville Police Department recovered forty-three stolen automobiles during the year, of a valuation of $13,675; seventeen sets of stolen license plates; four stolen bicycles and tools and jewelry valued at $800. Members of the department reported a large number of street lights out during the year. The department housed 739 transients during 1937. The men of the department answered 649 calls from citizens during the first twelve months, twenty-seven missing persons were reported in 1937, and all have been returned to their homes. The police court handled 89,471 in fines, bail, and court costs during the year just closed," Commissioner Gerard continues.

"The report of the Recreation Department shows the great number of activities carried on last year, being forty-five in all. These were attended or participated in by 134,895 persons. For the largest numbers were reported for the community centers 38,848, the play grounds 58,191, and the swimming pool 9,883. In the field of games, basketball led with 8,320 attendants, with baseball 1,420, tennis 1,941, touch football 201, and softball 240.

"We believe this report shows that every department has been very active, and the results obtained show high efficiency.

"I am pleased to present this statement before my fellow citizens and to commend the heads of these departments and the various members thereof for the good work done," Director Gerard concludes.

Little Prospect of Nutley Radio Tie-in Conference Discloses That Individual Systems Are Advisable

A conference of Belleville and Nutley officials Monday night on the advisability of joint radio hook-up for the police departments of both towns resulted in little further along that line than had previously been reported by Public Safety Director George R. Gerard, who said the plan did not seem feasible.

Mayor Young, Nutley, said the matter was left open and the local board will take formal action at a regular meeting. He believes their opinions were that separate systems would be more satisfactory.

Radio experts called by both town bodies, Young said, stated a saving of about $1,000 could be effected by combining the proposed systems. Young said it was his belief and apparently that of others that a separate system would be worth the additional $500 expenditure for each town. The system Nutley is considering is estimated to cost between $4,000 and $5,000.

All Nutley commissioners except Public Safety Director Stager, and all Belleville commissioners except Public Works Director Waters attended. Stager is ill.

The WEEKLY CONSTITUTIONAL

by MAX BERNIS

The People's Protection

Have we any protection against acts unauthorized by our Constitution? Under our Constitution, "we the people" are supreme. We are the principal and we create the Congress and make it our agent with power to act within the limitations we enumerate in our charter, but with no power to go beyond those limits. In addition we specifically prohibit it from certain acts.

Under these conditions, what recourse do "we the people" have if the Congress, as our agent, exceeds the limits we specify or enacts legislation which we specifically prohibit? If left to itself "to determine such a case, the Congress naturally would approve its own acts. It would not pass an act and disapprove it. Thus the agent would authorize what the principal prohibits.

To prevent this, "we the people," in our Constitution, provide the simple means commonly provided where the principal challenges the acts of his agent in court. The court—in the case of our Constitution, a federal court and finally the Supreme Court—tries the case by hearing both sides. If the Court finds the agent's act in accordance with the agent's power, the act is upheld. But if the Court finds that the agent acted beyond his authority the Court so states, whence such act is declared unauthorized, and therefore void, or in other words unconstitutional.

Scout Leader Speaks At Local Meeting

Arnold Sorenson Addresses Rotary and Lions at Joint Meeting

Arnold Sorenson, executive of Robert Treat Council, Boy Scouts, which includes Belleville, Newark and Irvington, yesterday addressed Rotarians and Lions at a joint meeting of the two local clubs in the Forest Hill Field Club. The Rotarians were guests of the Lions.

Mr. Sorenson spoke briefly on the advantages of scouting in character building, pointing out that Belleville has four representatives in the council. Two of the four, Frank Chambers, Rotarian and John P. Dailey, Lion, were at the meeting.

"There are 225 scouts in Belleville, but there should be twice that number," said Mr. Sorenson, urging the two clubs to get behind the movement.

Piano Ensemble
Eleanor Bacon-Peck presented the piano ensemble of the Contemporary of Newark in an evening of two-piano music, Friday, at the studios. Forty guests were members of the student-artist group of the studios and friends prominent in the musical circles of Belleville and nearby towns.

Mrs. Le Roy Gruman, chairman of the ensemble, announced the program, which was opened by Dorothy Brigham and Margaret Adams. The second group was played by Helen Potts and Helen Rathgeber. A Mozart Concerto in A major was performed by Sarah Hill, with Ruth Mills as accompanist. Donald Gauss, tenor, sang a group of three songs with Mildred Drentlau at the piano. This was followed by Elsie Gussweiler and Ruth Mills. Evelyn Beers and Helen Van Ness ended the program.

Mrs. Rudolph Weyrich of Nutley poured.

THE LOW DOWN

from HICKORY GROVE

Here lately, it seems like a good many folks figure that if somebody has something like ten dollars or fifteen dollars or maybe a full sack of flour ahead, that they kind of need watchin'—and are maybe not the best type of person. And this idea, it got started, because somebody got himself elected by hoppin' onto anybody with two-bits, and it looked easy, so more fellows have been tryin' it.

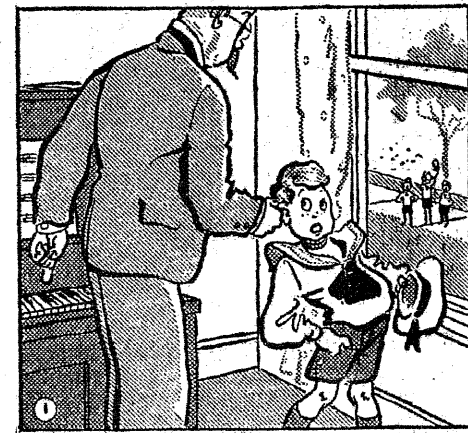

But if we did not have some folks who figure on a rainy day, we would not have any savings banks, or life insurance, or railroads, or much of anything.

And you take the railroads, it is different from what it was 100 years ago, when if you wanted to go from Cincinnati to Salt Lake, you could walk, or ride a horse. And it would take you six or eight months, and at 100 dollars per month, it would cost 600 or 800 dollars, and also use up a good horse, to boot.

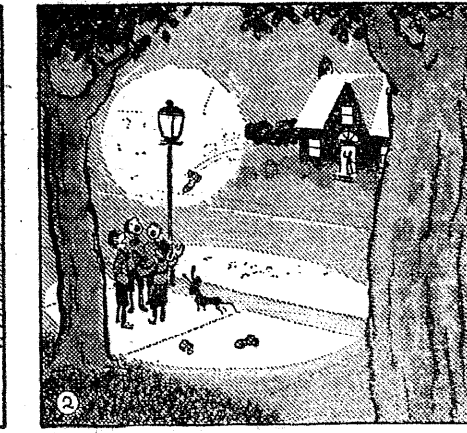

And our grandfather, who went west with a musket on his shoulder, he would not be findin, fault with the railroads, and everything—he would be givin three cheers.

Yours, with the low down,
JO SERRA.

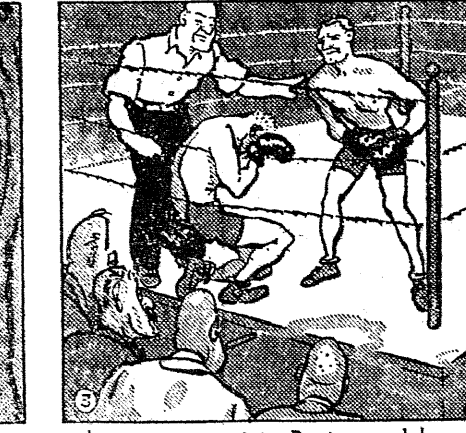

BIRTH OF A SONG

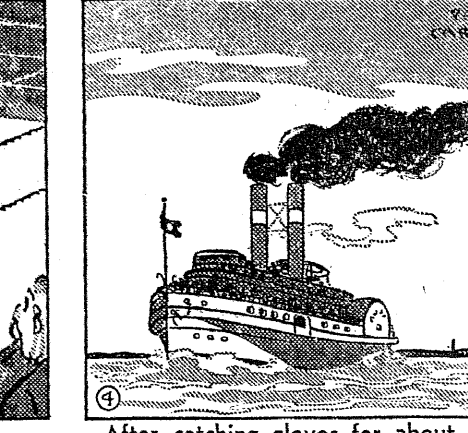

HARRY ARMSTRONG is a Massachusetts boy, born in Somerville. His family moved to Cambridge, but still Harry wouldn't play the piano. Or when he did, he ragged the music, which hurt his other ear.

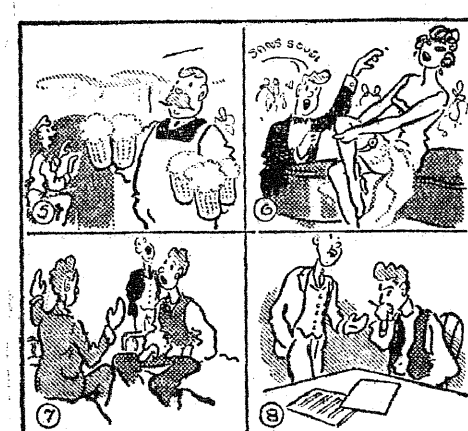

Down on the corner he formed part of a conspiracy to collect old shoes, tin cans, etc. For bait they used the old songs of the day.

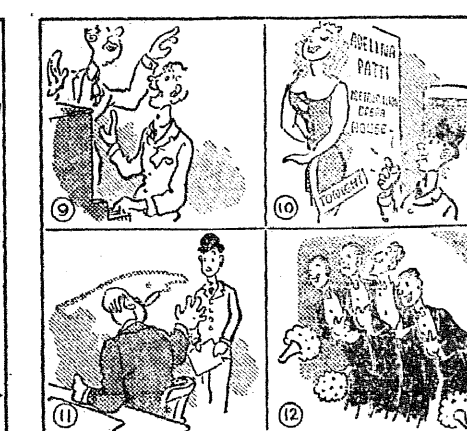

Armstrong went to Boston and became a pugilist, perhaps in preparation for a wish-fulfillment campaign against the fellow who threw the No. 12 shoe.

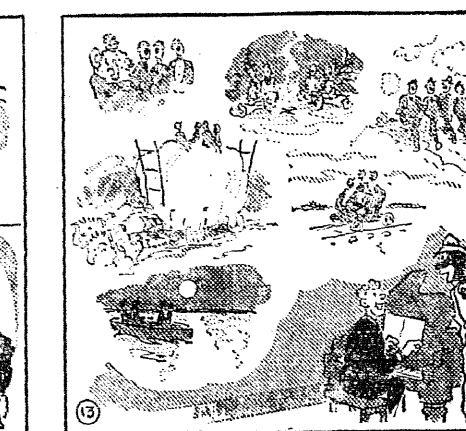

After catching gloves for about a year, Harry caught the Fall River Line to New York with $2.65, the fruits of his pugilistic career, in his jeans. In his inside pocket was a song he had written at the age of seventeen, called "My Old New England Home".

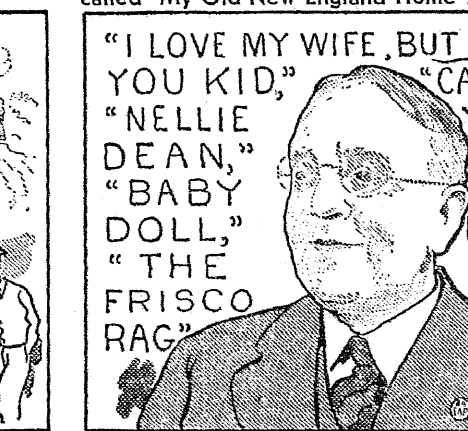

Prizefighters were a dime a dozen in New York, so Harry went back to music, performing in beer gardens and music halls. But there was that song in the breast pocket of his heart and it had to come out.

He played his song for Charles Lawlor, author of "Sidewalks Of New York" and for Jimmie Walker, future Lord Mayor of those sidewalks, but no lyrics came. A poster of Adelina Patti gave inspiration and a new title, "Sweet Adeline", to the New England melody. Dick Gerard supplied

The song lay dormant until the Quaker City Quartette performed it. It became the close-harmony song of the world. While Armstrong toured in vaudeville, his songs were performed without payment, in hot cabarets, theatres and other places of amusement.

By his membership in the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, Armstrong's melodies have been licensed to commercial users, and he derives payment for the performance of his works.

Life Saving Course In Montclair Y.M.C.A.

First Aid Also Will Be Demonstrated Under The Red Cross

Sponsored by the American Red Cross and the Montclair Y. M. C. A., two courses of instruction in first aid and life saving will start at the Y. M. building, 25 Park street, Montclair, on January 24. L. Grant McCubbin, first aid and life saving representative of the Red Cross, will be the instructor.

Long active in canoeing and sailing, Mr. McCubbin has a practical background which thoroughly qualifies him to teach instructors. He has an impressive record in water rescue work, swimming instruction and special work with the surf board, which has recently taken such a prominent place in life saving.

While in Jacksonville, Fla., where he resided for several years, he was a member of that city's volunteer life saving corps. He served in the corps for six years and was its quartermaster for two years more. Serving also as an instructor of the corps, he specialized in teaching the use of the surf board in rescuing drowning persons. He was also a member of the Seminole Canoe and Yacht Club at Jacksonville.

After the 1926 hurricane he aided Red Cross in its disaster relief work at Miami. Ten years later he attended the Red Cross aquatic school at Annapolis, Md., receiving advanced instruction in safety methods, boat handling and water rescue work. Before joining the Red Cross staff he taught several groups, including Boy Scouts, Sea Scouts and Girl Mariners.

The courses will be given for the benefit of lay instructors in first aid and life saving living in West Essex and parts of Union, Morris and Passaic counties. An entry fee of $1 will be charged for the first aid course, to cover the expense of certain equipment, while no expense will be attached to the life saving course, except the optional purchase of a handbook on life saving.

The courses are standard courses of the Red Cross, for which certificates will be issued. They will be restricted to persons who agree to act as instructors in either subject after completion of their training. First aid will be given on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, from 7 to 10 o'clock, for ten nights. Life saving will be given on Tuesday and Thursday nights during the same hours.

The value of Red Cross certificates is recognized all over the country to such an extent that many camps refuse to employ instructors or counselors who do not have them. In view of this, and the fact that the only expense to those taking the courses will be the cost of materials, A. K. Franklin, chairman of the life saving and first aid committee of Montclair Chapter, Red Cross, and physical director at the Y. M. C. A., agreed with Red Cross national officials that the courses should only be given to persons who would pledge themselves to teach other persons after becoming instructors.

The Red Cross has been trying for years to spread the general knowledge of first aid and life saving, to cut down the number of fatalities and serious injuries resulting from failure to take precautionary first steps after an accident and from the lack of life saving ability displayed at many beaches. Courses are being given throughout the country, but the present limited number of instructors makes it difficult to hold enough of them in one area to help every community.

Clark Albey Places In Skating Events
Wins at the Ice Club; Gets Third Spot at Monticello

Clark Albey, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Albey, 44 Malone avenue, captured two signal honors in ice skating this week.

At Monticello, New York, he placed third in a two-mile event, sponsored by the Southern New York Association.

At the Ice Club, New York City, Monday night, he placed first in the three-quarter mile race. The winning of these two events gives him a total of fifteen points. A trophy will be awarded to the member of the Continental Club, of which Mr. Albey is a member, to the skater acquiring the highest number of points, at the end of the skating season.

"Speed" Albey, as he is known in New York, has been a member of the Continental Club for the past three years. To qualify for membership in the club a candidate must be an expert skater and have won several events of major importance.

BELLOWING ABOUT BELLEVILLE

By JACOB LEVINE

Class 1932, Belleville High School

An Inventive Neighbor.

To me, the word inventor, has always taken on a strange and unnatural meaning. I have always pictured one as a weird, old man, eccentric to the one thousandth degree, a bent-over figure with a flowing white beard—as reticent as the oyster in its shell, as awkward as a college freshman.

But I was wrong all the time, so it seems. I must have had the bookish interpretation. The fact is he is much the same as you and I. He is the shirt-sleeved, shirt-open-at-the-neck type. He relaxes in the rocking chair after a hard day's work, a pipe dangling from his lips. He gets a huge kick out of the homespun humor of George Jessel talking over the telephone to his "Mama." He roller skates and swims and his voice booms: "Strike 'em out!" at the ball game. He has no humpback, nor has he any white beard. All in all, I'd say he was just like Everett Lorne "Jack" Whenham.

Jack, as he is known by his intimates, is now a boarder at Mrs. Tucker's home, 39 Schuyler street, and a metal worker at the Lloyd Engineering Company on Stephen street. His home town is Los Angeles, but it has been so long since he last visited there, that it would be difficult for him to term it as home. The innumerable ups-and-downs in the life of an inventor have caused him to take to the road and to search for suitable markets for his inventions. He has traveled through every province in Canada, and practically every state in the Union. A refusal of the patent office in Washington to patent one of his inventions, sent him scurrying to the capitol. Here he spent a comparative fortune endeavoring to obtain a patent, and even took his case to the Supreme Court—but again, he was turned down. Penniless and crestfallen, he wandered aimlessly about and finally (last September) settled down in Belleville.

In almost every nook and corner of his apartment is a gadget of his fabrication. The invention he prizes most is called a Wall-Insert Shoe Shiner. This device is a cabinet-like contraption (about the size and shape of a medicine chest) meant to be recessed into the wall when a home is being built. When junior shines his shoes he doesn't have to ransack the closet, looking for the polish and then besmear a kitchen chair (much to mother's screaming anguish) with shoe blacking. He merely opens the Wall-Insert, takes a can from the shelf, puts his foot on the iron support and goes to work. Very simple, isn't it?

In California this device is now a household necessity, on the same parallel with a medicine chest or a vacuum cleaner. In fact, when one moves into a new home in California, one doesn't ask the owner whether or not he could be furnished with a Wall-Insert. That is taken for granted.

Other inventions of Mr. Whenham, include the All-in-one-shoe-shiner, the same as the Wall-Insert with the exception that this contraption may be put into the house after it is built. A certain party in Chicago conceived the idea of organizing the shoe-shine boys, giving them clean, snappy uniforms, discarding their slovenly cloths, supplying them with chrome-plated shoe-shine boxes, and in short, making the shoe-shine boy more presentable to the swanky, fast-stepping folk of today. It was Mr. Whenham who supplied the boxes for them.

A tobacco can with a hinge at the center, allowing the smoker to use one-half of the tobacco while the other half remains fresh.

A "dauber-shoe-can" which does away with the rags necessary for polishing shoes. In the center of the can is the dauber—a small plug-like affair—which one uses in applying the polish to the shoe.

These and numerous other gadgets (which weren't too hard at the time) have evolved as a result of Mr. Whenham's inventive mind. Last June at the National Inventor's Congress, which was held in the Hotel Edison, New York City, Mr. Whenham's inventions were exhibited along with over 500 others. Mr. Whenham walked away with third prize.

It is interesting to note that on the Harp's Basketball team of the Recreation's Intermediate League, with such Irish-sounding names on their roster as McCourt, McNally, Ryan, Travers, Connelly, and McCarthy, the name, Candura, is indeed, very lonely on the score card. It is almost like Melinkovitch playing with the "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame. Anyway, fellow-players have fast caught on to the ludicrous situation, and now have dubbed him, "Nick Candura, the Black Sheep of the Harps."
