John M. Rainie Enters Commission Race

Deputy Director of Public Safety Is Ninth Candidate

John M. Rainie, deputy director of Public Safety, has announced his candidacy for election to the Town Commission on May 10.

And, now there are nine hopefuls, waiting for something to happen that will make Belleville's municipal election look like a campaign. There are just about two months left before the race will go to the post.

The News has invited all candidates to furnish the paper with biographies, so that voters may better study their qualifications. This paper has offered free to the candidates, as a service to taxpayers, one page a week from now until election. There are only two in the race, Town Commissioner Patrick A. Waters and Edward G. Smith, who have availed themselves of the opportunity to present their story to the voters, thus far.

Rainie has lived in Belleville fifteen years. He is married and lives at 103 Tappan avenue. He is an inspector at the Forest Hill plant of Tiffany & Co. He is a past master of the Belleville Lodge of Masons and a member of the Exempt Firemen's Association, Wesley and Fawcett Church Men's clubs, Everyman's Bible Class and Belleville Glee Club. He also is active in the Civic League of Belleville. He has been Director Gerard's deputy four years.

"During this time," Rainie said in announcing his candidacy, "I have attended all board meetings and conferences, becoming thoroughly familiar with all its problems, and acquiring an experience in town management which in my opinion is absolutely necessary to one seeking public office."

The other candidates are Michael A. Flynn, retired police chief; Frank Carragher, Louis A. Noll, Elmer Hyde, William F. Entekin and Andrew Boyajian.

New P.-T. A. Increases Membership to 115

Passaic Avenue Organization Aims to Reach Total of 150 Members

The recently formed Passaic avenue P.-T. A. Thursday evening heard a committee report that a profit of approximately $97 had been realized from a recent party.

This money is to be used for the purchase of books for the school library. Donations of books by various members have helped to increase the facilities of the library which are severely taxed at all times by the many youthful readers at the school.

The newly formed unit staged a membership drive and boosted its membership to 115 regular members, with the membership committee still working to put the figure at 150 or better.

A travelogue, "Safari on Wheels," was shown during the meeting and also various shots of the American Legion convention in New York. A brief business session was held preceding the showing of the pictures, during which the president, Mrs. Albert Benz, told of the forthcoming tuberculosis test for children in Belleville schools and urged parents to cooperate in this fine work. Mrs. August Plenge, who was elected treasurer, declined the office and was succeeded by H. O. May, who gave a report of the financial standing of the unit.

The project committee, of which Miss Regina Lynch is chairman, held its initial meeting Monday afternoon in the school library.

The building committee reported the need of plastering in various rooms of the school and the need for painting and decorating in the auditorium. A committee, headed by Donald MacPherson, first vice president of the unit, was named to contact the Board of Education Building and Grounds Committee, Walter Gilby and Charles Gebhardt, to see what can be done to have this work attended to.

At the next meeting it is planned to have Supervising Principal Wayne R. Farmer speak on the school system.

Stuff Police Box

With Match Sticks

Mischief makers stuffed with matches the police patrol box No. 63 at Wallace street and Brighton avenue, Sunday night.

This caused Officers Thomas Cruthers and Frank Christiano to telephone to headquarters from a box in a different locality, as they could not get their keys into box 63.

The signal department head, William Dunleavy, was forced to work the night, cleaning out the box.

Meeting Arranged for Parents To Learn of Proposed "Tuberculin Testing" in Schools

Board of Education and Parent-Teacher Council Sponsor Affair, Scheduling Prominent County And State Speakers

In the near future "tuberculin testing" will be given in the Belleville public schools to the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades and high schools, and, as a means to disseminate knowledge of the testing, all parents are requested to be present at a meeting jointly sponsored by the Board of Education and the Parent-Teacher Council in the high school auditorium on Friday evening, March 11, at 8 o'clock. There will be prominent state and county speakers.

"This meeting will give every parent an opportunity to hear the facts about this important health matter and also to discuss it from every angle. Questions from parents will be definitely urged and frankly answered. This is the parents' opportunity to meet their obligation to become properly and fully informed in this important matter concerning the health of their children," says Mrs. Mary Sheldon, school commissioner. Health Officer Berry says, "Belleville public school pupils are as healthy as the average, and tests are in no sense a reflection on our population. It is an indication that our Board of Education is progressive and wants to use up-to-date methods of prevention."

"The evidence that tuberculosis can lurk in a strong young body is now complete. It is all too common to find young football and basketball players with hidden tuberculosis. The disease may hide in the lung for months without a tell-tale symptom. Quietly it digs in like a treacherous enemy. Suddenly it may show itself by a hemorrhage from the lung. Or it may only hint at its presence by a cough that hangs on, loss of weight, indigestion or unexplained fatigue. By that time serious damage has already been done."

"But it need not happen to any Belleville student! He can take advantage of ways of discovering tuberculosis while it is yet in the 'silent' or relatively harmless stage. Should the evidence show that danger is ahead, prompt action will in most cases head off the disaster of serious tuberculosis. There is a way to find out if silent tuberculosis lurks in the body."

"It is to have a tuberculin test made. This test, simple and harmless, shows whether or not the germs of tuberculosis have invaded the body. If it is positive, take the next step—have an x-ray picture taken of the chest. This penetrating ray reveals on the x-ray plate damage that may have been done in the lung by the invaders. "In some high schools and colleges all students are offered the tuberculin test and x-ray—an excellent plan! The cases of serious tuberculosis discovered by these tests are fortunately few. But for these few, the gain is great. The others are given assurance that for them, tuberculosis, the disease that wrecks careers, does not threaten. Remember, it can happen—but it not likely to if the opportunity is taken to uncover tuberculosis by modern methods!"

Mrs. John F. O'Brien, Jr., Newark, Entertains Executive Board of Woman's Republican Club

On Advice of Physician, President of Local Club Will Be Forced to Forego Her Activities in Various Organizations

Mrs. John F. O'Brien, Jr., president of the Belleville Woman's Republican Club, entertained the members of the executive board at her home, yesterday afternoon.

The purpose of the meeting was to appoint a nominations chairman, and a chairman of elections. They, in turn, will each select five members from the club to serve on their committees. There are three officers and four board members to be elected in May. Mrs. O'Brien offered her resignation as president at the Christmas party, due to illness and impaired health, and upon the orders of her physician, O. G. Matheke, who said she must also resign from other civic and charitable institutional boards in which she has been active. She was, persuaded, however, to continue until May. She regrets her inability to longer continue, and appreciates all the assistance and cooperation which have been extended to her.

As the founder of the club, she has seen it grow, prosper and make a name for itself, and hopes this good name and efficiency will long continue to be a factor in Belleville affairs.

The club is planning for its monthly meeting on Thursday, at which time there will be two guest speakers, Mrs. Constance Hand, assemblywoman of Essex County, who will address the club on "The Minimum Wage Bill," and Mrs. Abbie Magee, vice chairman of Essex County, whose theme will be "Women in Politics and Their Splendid Opportunity."

The club will also have a "Candidates' Night," upon which occasion all candidates for the Town Commission election in May, will be invited to speak.

A public card party will be arranged to take place early in the spring.

"Anatomus-Anatomous, Rasbora"—Aw, Shucks

Anatomus-anatomous, Rasbora Lateristriata, Belonesox Belizanus. No, this isn't a lesson in Latin. It's merely the names of tropical fish that trip lightly from the tongue of Mrs. William McNeen, who conducts, with her husband, a pet shop at 558 Washington avenue.

Mrs. McNeen knows all the answers when it comes to talk of fish and she can tell you about them, too. For instance, take the Belonesox. Of them, she says, "They are the largest known live bearers and belong to the Garpike family. They have a long row of teeth on their lower jaws, which extend nearly one inch beyond their upper jaw. At birth the young are nearly one inch long."

They are a very rare fish and are very expensive to keep for they live only on other fish. The Belonesox have received a cup for being the best live bearer in the Passaic show in October.

Agents Raid Still And Nab 4 Men

House Here Had Been Under Scrutiny for Last Several Weeks

Alcoholic tax unit agents raided a house at 208 Brighton avenue Tuesday night and confiscated a still and mash, arresting four men, after weeks of investigation.

The still was opposite the National Grain Yeast Company plant, authorities believing odors from the plant were used to hide those of the still.

Those who were arrested are William Farinella of 106 South Twelfth street, Newark, and Joseph Misuraca, who said he lived in the raided premises; Alex Camarata of 74 Fredericks street, and Achille Gagliato of 12 Fredericks street, both Belleville.

Misuraca, agents said, is the brother of Big John Misuraca, who last year negotiated a lease for the old du Pont estate at 574 Mountain avenue, West Caldwell, ostensibly for raising chickens. The place was raided April 24 and was found to have been used in illicit still operations. At that time, the Misuraca brothers were arrested and have been at liberty in $5,000 bail awaiting trial.

The raid came after agents followed a car driven by Camarata from the Brighton avenue house to Bloomfield avenue, Nutley, where it was stopped. Inside the car, agents said, they found seventeen five-gallon cans of alcohol. After arresting Camarata the agents returned to Brighton avenue where they discovered the others operating a 1,000-gallon still on the second floor.

Besides the still, ten 1,000-gallon steel vats filled with sugar and molasses mash were found. Quantities of the finished product, 190 proof alcohol, also were uncovered. Agents estimated the plant could defraud the government of $3,800 daily in taxes.

The men were arraigned later Wednesday before Commissioner Holland on charges of defrauding the government and possession and operation of an unlicensed still.

To The Smallest Pin

The Public Building Project is now getting under way. The first meeting was called Monday by Miss Anita Keating, East Orange, who is branch technician of the Women's and Professional Project Division.

The object of the project, which will take about a year to complete, is to make an inventory of everything in the public buildings in this town.

For instance, the workers will go into the firehouses and count every bed, every chair, every piece of hose, every ladder and, without going into detail any further, about everything movable.

Monday's meeting was attended by Supervisor Thomas H. Hartman and squad bosses, David Sundheimer, George Snodgrass, Daniel Booth and Everett A. Hicks, Jr. Hicks is statistician and draftsman.

At a meeting Wednesday, four of the thirty to be retained were hired. They are Henry Abramson, Mrs. Gladys Rugg, H. Elmer Cross and Joseph Russell.

Bloomfield Detective Nabs Youth Who Admits Robbing Two Homes in This Town

Acting on Hunch Lieutenant Whelan on "Motorman's Holiday" Locates Lad Who "Went to Well" Once too Often

Victor Kaminski, seventeen, 38 North Spring street, Bloomfield, who mailed back loot from robberies in two homes here, as well as other places in Essex County, has landed in the arms of the police.

"Vic," as he is known to fellow pupils in Franklin School, Bloomfield, "went to the well" once too often. Saturday night he was captured by Detective Lieutenant John Whelan, Bloomfield, who took a "motorman's holiday" to follow a hunch that the elusive housebreaker might be in the vicinity of the town, that has learned Belleville High School has a football team.

Whelan had an idea that while off duty Saturday evening it would be an excellent time to cruise in the neighborhood of Forest avenue, Glen Ridge. He felt something might happen. It did. The detective saw Kaminski emerge from a yard, just after the lad had left the home of John C. Wright, 222 Forest avenue, Glen Ridge, according to police. Kaminski had a handful of nickles, the police report. Whelan picked up the youth for questioning.

Whelan told Kaminski he had some fingerprints which might implicate him in several Bloomfield burglaries.

"They're not my prints," Kaminski answered. "I wore gloves."

At Bloomfield headquarters, Whelan learned of the Glen Ridge robbery and Kaminski was questioned further by Whelan, Detective England and Chief Jensen.

Finally Kaminski, according to Whelan, admitted he had broken into fourteen homes in Bloomfield, two in Glen Ridge, two in East Orange and two in Belleville since January 9. Whelan said that Kaminski admitted taking jewelry worth $1,400 and $112 in cash. The cash he lost gambling. The jewelry, save for a few trinkets which he threw away, he hid in glass jars, boxes and paper bags in the attic of his home until he began to mail it back to his victims. Kaminski said he had not made any attempts to sell or pawn the Mazzara said the quartet entered his store shortly after 7 o'clock in the morning, one of the men asking for a package of cigarettes.

"I told him I didn't sell them," said Mazzara, explaining the stickup then followed.

Mazzara said the men had an automobile with Bergen County plates. All were well dressed.

Legislators Accomplished Little in 2 Months At Trenton, Assemblyman Homer Zink Says

Tells Members of Rotary Club That Fish and Bird Bill Was Passed, Allowing Women to Kill Game With Bows and Arrows

"There aren't any."

This is how Assemblyman Homer Zink explained away the topic, "Accomplishments at Trenton," which had been assigned him to discuss Wednesday at a meeting of Belleville Rotary Club in the Forest Hill Field Club.

Facetiously the assemblyman said that he would change the subject assigned to "Current Events at Trenton—If Any."

"After two months in Trenton the Legislature hasn't accomplished much," declared Mr. Zink, explaining "except to pass a bill which made it possible for ladies to go to kill game with bows and arrows—evidently some one thought it time for Robin Hood to come back."

Speaking seriously the assemblyman stated that "it was an amazing thing that by two or three words a bill appropriating $39,000,000 passed the House of Assembly."

Mr. Zink explained that the bill, however, which was in his hands, as chairman of the Appropriation Committee, had been studied for twelve hours before by a committee.

"I can't make a prophecy on relief," said Mr. Zink, explaining Governor A. Harry Moore's plan to finance relief by appropriating $3,300,000 state funds for materials to be taken from the relief rolls. "Some think this takes care of relief, but it is not so at all," said Mr. Zink, adding that in the final analysis municipalities will still have part of their relief problem. He declared that the housing bills have been loosely drawn, are dangerous

Circulate Petitions For Director Gerard

Commissioner King Will Be In Race, He Tells His Friends

Although he had no inclination that such would be done, petitions are being circulated about town urging Director of Public Safety George R. Gerard, to seek re-election. The commissioner knows nothing of the plan to draft him for service.

Mr. Gerard has not decided to run, leaving the decision in this connection to his physician, who has not yet rendered a verdict. The former superintendent of schools stated that if petitions are out he has no knowledge of them and the circulation is being done without his sanction.

Recently the director obtained from Town Clerk Florence R. Morey some petitions of nomination for friends, who intend to run, he said.

"Several people had asked me if I intended to run," said Commissioner Joseph King yesterday. "I told them I had not officially declared myself, but I would most certainly be in the field for re-election."

Mayor William H. Williams has not yet announced his intentions, but it is felt certain he will be in line, as will Director of Parks and Public Property William D. Clark, who also has withheld formal announcement of plans, although friends of all the commissioners are busy making plans for campaigns.

While John M. Rainie, deputy director of Public Safety, officially clocked in as candidate No. 9, it is safe to say that the addition of Messrs. Williams, Gerard, King and Clark makes the total thirteen, at present. Perhaps the official family will wait until another candidate throws his hat into the ring before the figures add up to that superstitious total, which reminds us that Alfred Letourner, famous six-day and former motor paced champion, would not enter a race unless No. 13 was sewed on his jersey. Be that as it may, signs at present point to the jinx number of candidates, with the possibility that twenty or more will face the barrier on May 10.

Commission Votes Temporary Expenses

Special Meeting on Monday Authorized $20,500 for Present Needs

The Town Commission Monday night at a special meeting appropriated $20,500 additional to an earlier appropriation to temporarily carry on operations until the budget is ready for submission. The local budget act permits the authorization of temporary funds.

The latest appropriation includes: Health Department, $2,000; Poor Department and hospitals, $5,000; salaries, Engineering Department, $1,000; salaries, Police Department, $5,000; salaries, Fire Department, $3,000; recreation, $500; Mayor's appropriation, non-departmental, $100; salaries, Board of Commissioners, $500; Town Attorney, $50; insurance, autos, $150; contingent, $200; water, $2,000 and elections, $1,000.

With its temporary relief budget practically exhausted because of an increase of almost 100 per cent in the number of relief cases, the Town Commission Monday night appropriated the additional $5,000 to meet the relief bills.

In January, the commission approved a temporary budget on which the town could operate until the 1938 budget is adopted. This included an item of $20,000 for relief, but because the state has not yet paid its share of relief, the $20,000 has been spent.

Mayor William H. Williams pointed out that in November there were 235 families on relief, comprising 964 persons. The relief cost, exclusive of administration, was $8,494, of which the state contributed about $6,000.

The relief roll for February contained 482 families, comprising about 1,700 persons. During that month sixty-three cases were closed by obtaining work in private industry or with the WPA. The cost for the month was $15,467. Some of this money will be paid back to Belleville by the state when a relief program is adopted.

Mayor Williams said he had been informed that the state's share of the December relief bill, about $8,500, shortly will be credited to the town. "This, with the $5,000 we have appropriated, should see the town through until we either adopt the 1938 budget, or the state works out a relief plan," he declared.

At the same time, on recommendation of Director of Parks and Public Property William D. Clark, John H. Banta was reappointed for a five-year term to the Library Board.

Andrew L. Boylan, Bank's Counsel, Recalls Scenes When Passaic Went on Rampage

Local Lawyer Who Studied Under Late Judge Alfred W. Skinner Has Served Town in Many Civic Endeavors

Born and living practically all his life in Belleville, Andrew L. Boylan, 72 Cortland street recalls with interest 1903 as the time when Main street of Belleville was flooded by the overflowing of the Passaic river.

He relates a graphic account of his maneuvers as a reporter for the Newark Daily.

"The water, he says, reached to the first step of the Belleville Reformed Church and went no higher, seeming that God in his wisdom, spared the church as an omen of its sanctity."

"John H. Eastwood," he tells, "refused to leave his house until the first floor was flooded, and was then taken to higher ground in one of the many row boats which plied a brisk trade in transporting people to dry ground."

Mr. Boylan, who is a lawyer, specializes in drawing up wills, probating and settling estates. He studied law under the late Judge Alfred F. Skinner, Newark. He was graduated from St. Peter's Parochial School in this town, following which he took examinations which resulted in a scholarship for St. Peter's Prep School, Jersey City, which he attended for three years.

Obtaining enough credits in three years to enter Fordham University, he entered a scholarship contest which ended when he received his tuition free to attend that school.

He attended Fordham for three years and decided to study law. While at law school he became interested in newspaper work and besides writing for a daily, he also covered sports for a Sunday paper.

While at Fordham he covered sports for a New York paper. He was graduated from New York Law school in 1902 with the degree of Bachelor of Law. In 1902 he was admitted to the Bar.

He was township counsel. He has also been counsel for the Board of Education. These two offices were the only political positions Mr. Boylan ever held. He is a keen student of local governmental affairs and while not taking an active part in them, is aware of every move made in the town commission.

Mr. Boylan is a believer in Building and Loans as a means for the average man to save part of his earnings with a steady increment of savings.

He is at present counsel for the Belleville Building and Loan Association and has held a like position with the Security Building and Loan Association, Harrison, for the past ten years.

He is a director of the Peoples' National Bank and Trust Company, and counsel for that institution.

During the war he was a member of the Draft Board, member of the Liberty Loan Committee and vice chairman of the Belleville Chapter, American Red Cross. Since then he has been chairman of the Red Cross unit up to the present day.

He was first president of the Lions Club, which office he held for two years. He was grand knight of Belleville Council, Knights of Columbus, and also district deputy of that order.

He has had thirty-four years of experience and land title searching at which he is an expert.

Scout Troop Takes

Hike to Newark

Boys from the Episcopal Church Visit Plant And Store

Eighteen members of Christ Church Boy Scout Troop 88, accompanied by their scoutmaster, Raymond Patrick, hiked to a Newark plant Saturday morning. The scouts were taken on an inspection tour of the plant, and given nature study souvenirs. They were then called upon to do some entertaining, and Roy Wager responded with two vocal solos, "Home On the Range" and "Bury Me Not On the Lone Prairie."

The scoutmaster was presented with a carton of soda and gave it to Roy in token of the troop's appreciation of his ready compliance to entertain. About half of the number present then went to a department store, to inspect the recreation week exhibits of the New Jersey state exposition. They were especially interested in the scouting display, part of which was contributed by local troops. The rest of the scouts hiked home to Belleville.

Four older fellows, Joseph Caskey, Edward M. Dunham, Jr., Daniel and William Herb, went on a week-end camping trip to Scout Acres, Boonton.

Scholarship Offered At Rensselaer Poly

Award Carries Complete Tuition for Four Year Course

A scholarship carrying free tuition at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., oldest engineering and scientific college in the country, is available to candidates in high and preparatory schools in Essex, Union, Middlesex, Monmouth, Mercer, Somerset and Hunterdon Counties, New Jersey. The scholarship is awarded through the Central New Jersey chapter of the Rensselaer Alumni Association, with E. P. Abbott of 1295 South avenue, Plainfield, as chairman of the committee in charge.

The scholarship carries complete tuition for four years, provided the winner maintains a high standard of work and conduct, and is therefore the equivalent of $1,600 in cash.

'Independents' Lose Shack in Flames

The Carmer avenue Independents have lost their clubhouse. No obstreperous landlord closed the doors for non-payment of rent, but fire, with its greedy tongues of flame, destroyed the shack which resembled the one in Toonerville Folks.

The Independents, a group of boys ranging in age from eight to twelve years, were about to enter politics and select a man to be their standard bearer.

But all that is changed now for the club is without a shelter since Tuesday.

Annual Meeting Held By Press Association Governor Moore Addressed Members of 4th Estate At Trenton

TRENTON, Mar. 1.—The newspapers of the nation should propagandize the American traditions of struggle and sacrifice; to combat the growing tendency toward demanding that the government solve the problems of living, A. Harry Moore, Governor of New Jersey, told members of the New Jersey Press Association Monday.

Ruth Glover

Governor Moore addressed the association at the luncheon meeting of its eighty-second annual gathering in the Stacy Trent Hotel in Trenton. The address marks the seventh successive appearance of the Governor as guest speaker at the press meeting.

"A demand psychology is not the psychology of this nation," Governor Moore said. "Traditionally, Americans have overcome obstacles by struggle and sacrifice."

The Governor warned the newspapermen, stating that today people look to columnist instead of editorial pages for opinion on what is happening in the government. The tendency is for newspapers to foster this attitude, he said.

The Governor made reference to the new Federal grant which will put 20,000 people to work on New Jersey roads, defending that action on the grounds that the money for such work would come out of all tax-payers' pockets whether New Jersey shares in the benefit or not.

Denying that he had Presidential aspirations, Governor Moore announced that he expects to retire at the end of his present term as "undefeated champion."

The dinner meeting of the press association was featured by the award of a one hundred dollar scholarship to Ruth Glover of Westfield, a senior at New Jersey College for Women, by Rudolph E. Lent of the Jersey Journal. The award is made annually by the New Jersey Press Association to the senior in the Rutgers University Department of Journalism judged to show the most promise for success in a journalistic career.

Miss Glover has been a staff member of the Campus News, undergraduate newspaper at the College for Women, for four years and is associate editor. She also served on the New Jersey College Handbook committee. She has specialized in the business advertising sequence in the School of Journalism.

The guest speaker at the dinner meeting was Colonel William Haskell, assistant to the president of the Herald Tribune.

D. Howard Moreau of the Flemington-Hunterdon County Democrat was elected president of the New Jersey Press Association at the business meeting. Other officers are: Vice president for dailies, Wayne D. McMurray of the Asbury Park Press; vice president for weeklies, Ray D. Gill of the Dover Advance; honorary secretary, John W. Clift of the Summit Herald, and treasurer, Hugh Boyd of the New Brunswick Home News.

Honorary membership in the press association was awarded W. R. B. Mason, the retiring treasurer, for forty years of service.

Chairmen of the various committees of the association named at the meeting are: advertising, Patrick H. Feeney of the Newark News; circulation, Harry G. Kallop of the Newark News; Metropolitan weeklies, Garvin P. Taylor of the Montclair Times; northwestern weeklies, Ray D. Gill of the Dover Advance; South Jersey weeklies, Carl H. Johnson of the Woodbury News.

The committee at large: James Kerney, Jr., of the Trenton Times Newspapers, chairman; Edward H. Roomley of the Passaic Herald News, Walter Lee of the Westfield Leader, Walter Cushingham of the Camden Courier-News, Rudolph E. Lent of the Jersey Journal, Miss Helen B. Smith of the Ridgewood Herald, and Irving Reimers of the Bound Brook Chronicle.

Refreshments Served By Secretarial Club Constitution Adopted and Report Made on Rules Of Order

By Peggy Luby

The constitution of last year's Secretarial Club was revised by Grace Faust and adopted for this year. A report on "Robert's Parliamentary Rules of Order," prepared by Marjorie Hanlon, Gertrude Godleski and Peggy Luby, was presented by Gertrude Godleski.

A shorthand game, very similar to the old-fashioned spelling bee, was played. It was conducted by Mrs. Snedeker. Marjorie Hanlon was the winner.

The members were pleased to see that the membership had increased since last month and they hope that all those who are eligible will join. Wonder was expressed that few boys joined the club although a few of them have received Gregg awards.

They are all invited to attend the next meeting, March 31.

Refreshments were enjoyed and a social hour followed the meeting.

Explains Motion In Public Speaking

Typewriter and Sewing Machine Are Instruments Chosen by Pupils

In the public speaking classes of Leonard B. Kachel, each student was given his or her own choice of demonstration of an instrument in operation. The chapter of motion was fully explained by Mr. Kachel.

Two of the outstanding instruments chosen were the typewriter and the sewing machine. Miss Kay Connell chose the typewriter and gave an excellent demonstration of its motion.

Miss Edith Atkinson took the sewing machine as an example and also gave a good demonstration.

Classes to Visit Sweeney Company

Mr. Charlton has made arrangements for the printing classes to visit the Sweeney Lithograph Company during class time in the near future. Before the trip these classes will study lithography. Recently some of the boys visited the Belleville News plant in the evening.

Before the end of the year trips will be made to a small job printing shop, a large printing shop, a large newspaper, and a book printing plant.

Printing Department Cooperates

A fashion booklet is being prepared in conjunction with the art classes and the programs for the all-sports dinner will be printed in the high school.

The printing and English departments will combine for an illustrated lecture soon on newspaper printing. Mr. Charlton, the printing teacher, is preparing stereopticon slides both for this specific purpose and also for use in future printing classes. They will illustrate the sizes, groups, and styles of type; printing equipment, and typographical harmony and design.

For Musicians and Musicians Only

By Al Vada.

"A good instrument and a poor instrument."

An accordion with forty-one treble and 120 bass keys is commonly used. The value of any musical instrument rests in its "listener appeal," in other words, what goes into the ear of the audience. So a beautiful rich tone is of very great importance. Large sums are paid for an accordion because it has certain tonal richness and mellowness, and an instrument with a loud rough tone may be bought for a small sum. Choose your instrument first for its tone, and "listener appeal," regardless of model or size of the instrument.

DISARMAMENT OR REARMAMENT?

By Robert Ryan

Many persons have advanced their ideas on the question of armament or disarmament. The question that faces our law making bodies is this: Should the United States enlarge its fighting forces, or keep them down to the same level at the present time?

In answering this problem a few different problems have to be solved. What part of our forces should we build up? Some favor the air corps, others the Navy. Are our coastal defenses strong enough to hold back a foreign invader? Could our air force defend us against an attack from the air?

Last week a request was made by Britain, France, and the United States to Japan asking that she divulge her tonnage and plans on the Navy boats she is now building. Japan flatly refused saying that it would be going back to the 5-3-3 treaty which Japan had broken and forgotten about long ago. If Japan does not give out these plans, the largest peace time armament race will start.

In my opinion the United States should increase its armaments to such a great extent that it will level the world in armaments. This way it would be suicide for a foreign nation to attack us, and all nations would stay clear of us. If the United States were not properly armed, some nation would start a war under some pretext or another, and we would be as bad off now as the thirteen colonies were under England's rule.

The main trouble with this is the cost. The country is bad enough now financially without putting more burden on the taxpayer. Still the United States is big enough to stand more taxes. If the U. S. wants peace, there will have to be more money, otherwise we will pay in blood.

By Robert Jackson

This is one of the greatest problems that the modern world has ever faced. Upon it may hang the tale whether the world will again be disrupted by a great, and probably disastrous, world war.

Let us look into the past in the world's steps towards security from future world wars. In 1924 came the Geneva Protocol only to be defeated by Great Britain. Next, in 1925, when that had failed, came the Locarno agreement which was an attempt to establish security in certain regions. The Kellogg-Briand pact announced war as an instrument of national policy, this meaning that a nation will not become an organizer. However, this pact received severe criticism as it did not denounce defensive wars, nor does it define what nations would be considered aggressors or defenders, but it did do some good in the fact that it made nations believe they were morally bound to condemn war. At this time we find the world moving in the direction of disarmament but numerous instruments were to block its course. At the Washington conference in 1921 the 5-3-3 treaty was put forth stating no new battleships built until 1931. Next in line came the Geneva conference with attention to smaller vessels; however, this failed despite Coolidge's suggesting an extensive naval program. In the London naval conference, Italy and France would not agree but finally they decided on no battleships for five years longer, an Escalator clause and England, Japan and United States limited their navy to small vessels. The Geneva disarmament clause failed as Germany demanded equality.

Despite all these controversies the world at that time was taking steps in the right direction—disarmament. However, certain nations, namely Japan, Germany and Italy, could not follow this treaty, breaking its rules flagrantly in its hurry to begin rearmament among its people. At present Austria is also being drawn into this against its own will.

Thus with such powerful nations as these rearming, the other nations must do likewise to protect their interests. England, United States and France are the three great nations fighting for disarmament, but it seems they are fighting a losing cause. One must beat these rearming nations at their own game.

By Robert Moreland.

I really think that if the other countries increase their navies, munitions, and air forces that the United States should also do it in case of an emergency. The United States, however, should let every nation know that she does not do it with belligerent intent.

The United States should be tactful in dealing with those other nations. She should keep out of their affairs as much as possible. The more the United States gets involved with those countries the more likely war is. The United States should have enough protection to practically isolate the western world, if necessary, to keep us out of war.

The United States should also be armed with common sense. Every one knows that Communism, Fascism, Nazism, and many other isms against our form of government are slowly but surely gaining a foothold in our country. The people of our country who are loyal to the government should do all they can to stamp them out. They will plunge us into war if they can. The people must thoroughly re-arm themselves with the ideals that the fathers of our country stood for to keep these things out.

I further think that the United States does not have to answer to countries that have broken their word with her regarding armaments. United States can increase or decrease as she thinks is best, and as she thinks will contribute most for the cause of peace.

I believe that no amount of thought is great enough regarding this matter. Those whom we have voted into office should look at both sides of the question and consider every possibility of war from the standpoint of disarmament or rearmament, and figure out some plan that will not lead to war.

The Golden Rule

By Leo N. Culkin

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

It was not so long ago that a little piece of mine became five years of age. It was at her party, after the food was devoured, that I sat down to rest my weary limbs after the early evening dancing. While in this reclined position, my little grown-up lady hit me with this question, "Leo, is the God we have the God all over?" She took me by surprise but thinking the topic for discussion over very rapidly and also sliding out of it I replied in the affirmative. She seemed very satisfied with my answer and so off she went to pester her Grandpa.

This little question stayed in my mind for the following two months. During this period I watched, through my newspapers, the great nations of the world dicker with each other about how powerful the other fellow is.

The last war was supposed to have been fought to end all wars. Those old timers who went over the top for us seem to forget that a new generation is growing up and if a good peppy band marched down the street playing "America," the younger generation wouldn't take but a minute to join up and fight another war to end all wars.

A certain Reverend Naylor once said, "Please Lord, help me this day to keep my damn nose out of other people's business." In my way of thinking this motto should be placed next to the flag of each country, then have an endurance contest to see who could hold out the longest.

Yes, we have the same God as other peoples of the world do. It's just that we don't react toward Him in the same manner.

Armament Problem

By Louis Battaglia.

1. The United States recently has had cause to suspect Japan of building ships, thereby violating the 5-3-3 treaty. The United States has asked Japan whether she is guilty of this accusation, but Japan has not given a satisfactory answer and the United States does not have any ground for taking advantage of the "Escalator Clause." One of our Senators has proposed an arms parity, to be held between Japan and the United States for the purpose of coming to an agreement or making a new treaty. However, most of the members of Congress are against this proposal on the ground that it would be to show "signs of weakness" on the part of the United States and that it would be futile to expect Japan to obey a treaty after all the treaties she has broken.

Problems:

1. Should America refuse to decrease armaments?

A. I do not believe that the United States should decrease her armaments. It would be suicide for us to decrease our armaments as other nations, such as Germany, Italy, and Japan would not decrease their armaments because of their rivalries. We would be open for attack by any nation. To decrease our armaments would be a good idea only if other nations would follow suit.

2. Should America reduce as rapidly as others?

A. Yes, I believe America should reduce as rapidly as others. If other nations reduced their armaments and the United States did not, we would be considered a menace to the peace of the world and other nations would have a right to unite against us.

Music Column

"Johann Sebastian Bach."

During the first half of the eighteenth century there were two prominent geniuses, who in their own separate ways were going to reorganize the musical world. Different from minne-singers, they didn't form guilds or groups to reform the art, but labored in different fields of composition.

The first of these geniuses was Johann Sebastian Bach, who gave to the world the greatest of contrapuntal or polyphonic forms, both instrumental and vocal, religious as well as secular. The Choral, a form of sacred chorus; the Passion, a form of oratorio; the Fugue, a composition for the clavichord in which the voices, or parts, enter successively and others were forms of which Bach became master, and his labor in those fields has given him the name of "Father of Composed Music."

Bach was born in Eisenach, Germany, in 1685. He came from a long line of musicians, and at an early age exhibited talent as a singer, violinist, and organist. His childhood was spent where he could make use of his knowledge of music in a very practical way. At the age of eighteen he began to hold responsible positions as organist in several churches as well as concert master in the private orchestras of Prince Johann Ernst of Weimar and Prince Leopold of Anhalt.

After his marriage to his cousin, Maria Barbara Bach, he began his career as a composer. His works, while he was employed in the court were mostly chamber music or music for use in small auditoriums, small orchestras and string quartets. His later positions as cantor in St. Thomas School at Leipzig and his connections with the University of Leipzig, inspired him to greater efforts. In his last years his successes gave much to the world in the realms of vocal and instrumental ensemble numbers, among them many organ works.

Following are some of his greatest works:

1. The Well Tempered Clavichord—a collection of forty-eight fugues and preludes for the Clavichord, an instrument later supplanted by pianoforte.
2. St. Matthew's Passion, St. John's Passion and St. Luke's Passion, three oratorios, the subject of which is the passion of Christ's sufferings in words taken from the gospels respectively of St. John, Matthew and Luke. These oratorios are often given on Good Friday or during Holy Week in some churches every year.
3. French and English suites for the piano, and the Suite in D Major for the orchestra.
4. Concertos and partita (sometimes like a suite) for violin.

"Tromboners."

1. Stokowski received a letter addressed to him as "To the commander of the Philadelphia Orchestra."

2. Jazz composer to symphonic composer: "Does your work yield returns?" Symphonic composer: "Practically all my work is returned."

3. Why is conductor X immune from lightning? Because he is a non-conductor.

4. Question. What is the difference between an orchestra and a band? Answer. An orchestra plays sitting and a band plays marching.

5. Musical terms: Scherzando, with measured gravity. Largo, jumping with gaiety and good humor.

Con fuoco, with amorous warmth. Staccato, short-winded.

Home Rooms Form Basketball Leagues

"A" and "B" Leagues Have Been Organized Among Students

The home room league, which started March 1, in the new gymnasium, is composed of forty home rooms. Two groups have been formed so that the freshmen and sophomores will not have to play against the upper classes. The freshmen and sophomores make up the "A" league and juniors and Herman Wische seniors, the "B" league. The gym will be used sideways so that two teams may play at once. Eight teams will play each afternoon. The first games will start at 3:10 and the second at 4:10. Herman Wische, who is in charge of these leagues, expects them to be a big success. When a team is beaten it is eliminated from the league.

When there are only a few teams left there will be semi-finals. Then the winners of the semi-finals will play for the championship of their league. When both leagues have their winners these teams will meet for the championship of the school.

May the best team win.

Stamp Column

Texas Centennial.

Since the beginning of the nineteenth century, Americans had been crossing the Sabine into Texas, until by 1830 there were nearly 20,000 of them in the province. The Americans at first had been welcomed and given large tracts of land by the Mexicans, partly in return for the aid they furnished the latter in their revolt from Spain. But when the number of Americans increased to the point where they threatened to rule the province, the Mexican president Bustamante, issued an edict forbidding all further immigration from the United States into Texas. Incensed by this edict and other treatment, the Mexicans rebelled, under the leadership of Stephen Austin. Santa Anna, the new Mexican president, a man of perfidious and cruel character, led an army in person to punish the rebellious province.

His march was marked with horrible atrocities. At the Alamo, a mission building in San Antonio, a garrison of 166 Texans was absolutely exterminated. Santa Anna with some 1,500 troops was met by a force of 750 Texan volunteers, under General Sam Houston, a veteran of the War of 1812 and an ex-governor of Tennessee. The Mexican army was utterly routed, and the Independence of Texas was won. A republic was set up with Houston as president and Austin as secretary of state.

A special postage stamp in the three-cent denomination was issued to commemorate the centennial anniversary of Texas independence. The stamp is arranged horizontally. Within upright oval panels on either side of the stamp are portraits of Sam Houston at the left and Stephen F. Austin at the right. The lower part of the central design is a reproduction of the historic Alamo. The new stamp was first offered for sale at the post office in Gonzales, Texas, on March 2, 1936.

Students Pleased with Lions' Book Donation

Many Volumes Never Have Appeared on H. S. Shelves Before

Nobody may say that our high school students don't enjoy new books. We've had dozens of requests for the bright, new books bought for us with the Lions' Club money. All of the titles are new to our library and although most of the books are fiction several of them are biography and travel. Among some of the titles that never have appeared on our school library shelves are: Marie Dressler's own story, "Varmint," a story of Lawrenceville Prep School; "Thirty-Nine Steps," a mystery; "Paths to Glory," a vivid story of an incident in the World War; "National Velvet," a story of an English girl who raised horses; "House that Jill Built," about a girl who wanted to become an architect.

We are sure that these new books will be enjoyed and read by many students, and we want to thank the Lions' Club for their interest in us and in our school library.

Local Grads in N. J. C. Junior Show

Original Musical Presentation Is Feature of Week's Program

NEW BRUNSWICK.—This week is an important one socially for New Jersey College for Women junior class members. Last night they presented their original musical comedy, "From Pen to Coop." Today 150 juniors and their escorts will attend the junior promenade, the most important social event of the college year. Tomorrow there will be matinee and evening performances of the show, and the final event of the week-end will be a supper dance after the show tomorrow night.

In "From Pen to Coop" the juniors satirize life on their own campus as well as at Princeton and Rutgers and the scenes include class rooms and dormitories. The plot deals with the adventures of an escaped criminal who is welcomed to New Brunswick collegiate circles because he is mistaken for a Princeton undergraduate, due to his "crew" hair cut. "Coop" has been Rutgers jargon for the N. J. C. campus for many years.

The show is written, produced and acted entirely by members of the junior class at New Jersey College for Women and will be presented at the Little Theatre. Miss Jane Parker of Shrewsbury is the director, and the Misses Georgianna McGill of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Muriel Albers of Newark are the authors. Song writers are the Misses June MacArthur of Hightstown, Marie-Louise Calahan of Pennsylvania, Pa., Florence Payne of Belleville and Rebecca Reed of Morristown. Among those participating in the show are three Belleville girls, the Misses Alice Helminger of 24 Essex street, Myra Zink of 24 Rossmore place and Mildred Payne of 149 Academy street.

The Interrogator

By Bill Rame.

Do you think a minstrel show would be a success in Belleville High School?

An interview with Bill Parmer and Mr. Hack finds their answers are the exact opposite. In his own words Bill Parmer says: "No, I don't think it would go over, because it wouldn't go under." Smart stuff, eh!

Janet Waldie: Janet quotes that there is such a nutty bunch of kids in this school that it would succeed in a big way.

Carmen Meccia: Carmen thinks that a minstrel show would be a "flop," because, due to previous plays and shows, only a small part of the school cooperates.

Wilma Planson: Quotes she: "Yes, a minstrel would be the tops for Belleville High to have because there has never been such entertainment and it would be a novelty."

Elwood Volpe says: "A minstrel wouldn't go over because our audiences contain to many kibitzers."

Gloria King: "A minstrel would go over because Belleville High contains plenty of talent. I wonder if she means herself?"

WHAT DO YOU LIKE TO DO?

We'll bet a plugged nickel that you have some story tucked away that your teacher thought was pretty good, but never was printed. Or, perhaps you take to writing verse. We like both serious and humorous poems. Bring whatever you have to one of the editors and when you pick up a News the next Friday you may see your masterpiece on the high school page!

What do most boys do in study period the day before a test? They draw airplanes! And the girls are drawing pretty faces! Well, why not share these pictures with others? We could use a few.

If you don't take to any of these arts, at least you have opinions. Every one does! Put these in the form of a letter and we'll print them (provided, of course, they are interesting to the majority of the students).

Come on! Turn in something, and see what a kick you get out of seeing it in print!

ACT FIRST—TALK AFTERWARDS

"Tuberculosis constitutes both a challenge and a threat; a challenge because there has been a cessation in the mortality decline; a threat because our lives are not secure against an invasion from this disease." So spoke Dr. Thomas Parran, U. S. surgeon-general.

Next Friday the Board of Education and council of Parent-Teacher Associations will hold a meeting relative to "Tuberculin Tests" in the schools. Parents are invited. Here is an opportunity to learn. Belleville school and health authorities are to be congratulated for their interest in the health of school children.

Smug confidence of the individual in the belief that he is immune to such disaster, and dogmatic ignorance, are chief allies of tuberculosis. Scientific weapons exist with which to fight it. States, counties and municipalities are equipped to care for those unable to pay for medical care.

If in doubt as to your physical condition, act first and talk afterwards. Even if you are lucky enough to have life insurance—don't force your heirs to collect any sooner than is necessary.

MENACING OUR TOWN

Police discovered this week that some mischief maker had stuffed one of the call boxes to headquarters with matches. This may seem funny to the hair-brain idiot or idiots responsible, but to the police and every thoughtful person in Belleville, it is nothing short of a misdemeanor that should be handled with the sternest prosecution if the culprit or culprits should be caught. There are occasions when the call boxes are the only thread upon which hangs a life. To wilfully put out of commission one is about the worst thing any one could do. There have been far too many false alarms and tampering with boxes maintained in the interest of safety of our citizens. Smoke out those responsible and give them the limit of the law.

END RELIEF AND RECESSION

Cooperation of the Legislature, industrial leaders, municipal officials and the general public should be wholeheartedly accorded Governor Moore's program to provide employment for all "employables" now on relief. Success of the plan will eliminate the threat of new major taxation for relief financing; men will be given work instead of a dole, and New Jersey business and industry will receive a new lease on life.

Legislative action already has given impetus to the portion of the plan contemplating employment of 20,000 men in secondary road construction projects. By appropriating $3,300,000 of state funds, it is hoped to obtain from $20,000,000 to $35,000,000 WPA revenues. In this manner, the shortsighted past policy of diverting road funds to direct relief payments will be replaced by a beneficial road construction program, providing definite returns to the taxpayer and work instead of charity to the unemployed.

Another 20,000 "employables" now on relief can be returned to private industrial employment, Governor Moore believes. To carry out this program of the plan, mayors of every municipality have been requested to name local committees to solicit cooperation of industries in their areas and to ask residents of their communities to provide temporary work where possible.

Direct and indirect employment opportunities for 15,000 persons can be provided through participation of New Jersey municipalities in the current Federal slum clearance program, it has been pointed out. If enactment of enabling legislation is not delayed at Trenton, it is believed $30,000,000 of Federal funds can be obtained. Besides alleviating the relief burden, such action will strike an effective blow at the menace of blighted housing areas now imperiling public safety as the breeders of crime and disease.

Still further means of providing employment are seen in the possibility of obtaining Federal revenues for water supply construction and conservation projects. Here again, the Legislature should waste no time in enacting measures necessary to solve the state's vital water supply problems and at the same time return men to beneficial work.

Carrying these plans into effect will leave New Jersey with some 15,000 "unemployables," who still must be cared for through direct relief. However, as contrasted with the present relief total of 77,000 cases, involving three times that many individuals, it may be seen the comparatively small number of remaining "unemployables" would not constitute an undue strain on the fiscal resource of state and local governments.

The Moore program is a workable and American way of chasing relief and recession worries out of New Jersey. Every one should get behind efforts now under way to place it into full operation.

NO HOLIDAY FOR DEATH

Last year accidental deaths in the United States declined four per cent from 1936. But there's nothing in that to cause us to throw out our chests—Nature, not man, was the cause of the drop. The mild, cool summer, according to the National Safety Council, was responsible for almost all of the decline, inasmuch as heat deaths were 4,500 below normal.

In fields where man is the governing factor, the death and injury total, with the exception of home accidents, continued to rise. The greatest killer of all time, the automobile, claimed four per cent more victims than it did in 1936, for a total of 39,700. Occupational deaths climbed six per cent, to 19,000. The grand total of deaths from all accidental causes was 106,000—with 375,000 persons permanently injured and 9,400,000, eight per cent of the whole population, temporarily injured. The direct cost of these accidents is estimated to have reached the staggering total of $3,700,000,000.

There is 1937's accident record, expressed in cold figures. It is bad enough looked at that way. It is infinitely worse if you regard it in terms of human values—mutilated bodies, widowed mothers, orphaned children, blinded and crippled individuals, gore and carnage. And perhaps the most sombre reflection of all is that ninety per cent of the accidents were in all probability easily preventable—somebody was careless, somebody was ignorant, somebody took a chance, and there was no holiday for death.

Will 1938 repeat this grisly toll of life, health and dollars? It's up to us, all of us, to answer that question through our actions.

"BIG SHOTS!"

THIS WEEK

By "GUARDIAN"

This cold, raw March day is particularly cold and raw if you have just come up from the south, where the peach trees are in bloom and the Camellias Japonica and Azaleas are vying with one another to lend beauty to a spring full of promise so far as nature is concerned.

So don't let us be disturbed too much if just at this time of the year the weather is a bit ugly for that beautiful spring is on its way NORTH and will soon be here with us. As Helen Hunt Jackson put it—
"Ah, March! we know thou art
Kind-hearted, spite of ugly looks and threats,
And, out of sight, art nursing
April's violets!"

If we only were as sure that the dawn of the new spring would put as encouraging a face on man-controlled affairs in this world as it will upon the face of nature, we would be much happier—for daily the world situation seems to become more involved, more confusing and no more hopeful. But let us hope that the coming of spring will bring more tolerance and more understanding among humanity.

Just at this time of year when most of us are busily engaged making out our income tax reports, trying to understand what the forms mean and make honest returns (and possibly that is one of the reasons why so many people do not like the first part of March) it is interesting to note that the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives in Washington have reported to the House, a new Revenue Act for the year 1938 which, when it is finally passed probably some weeks or months from now, will take effect as of last New Year's day. As we have mentioned before a preliminary analysis indicates that taxes on the whole will be increased rather than decreased and how could it be otherwise, so long as we, as a nation, are spending more money than we receive?

CANDIDATE FOR PITY

If figuring out your taxes seems somewhat difficult and troublesome, have a word of pity for the corner grocer or the other businessmen who will have to figure theirs under these provisions in the new Federal tax bill:

"If the dividend credit is a percentage of the adjusted net income which is more than fifty-five and less than seventy-one, the tax shall be a percentage of the adjusted net income equal to the sum of nine, plus three-eighths of the amount by which seventy-one exceeds the percentage which the dividend credit is of the adjusted net income."

"If the dividend credit is a percentage of the adjusted net income which is more than seventy-one and less than eighty-six, the tax shall be a percentage of the adjusted net income equal to the sum of four, plus one-third of the amount by which eighty-six exceeds the percentage which the dividend credit is of the adjusted net income."

If such things as the above were not of such a serious nature, it would have to be admitted that the author of these provisions should be entitled to the fur-trimmed bicycle.

CLIMBING THE LADDER

Opportunity is not less today for the young man or woman in business than it was yesterday. To substantiate this direct statement comes to mind the ascendancy of George H. Bucher, former Nutley man, to the presidency of Westinghouse. He arrived at the job the hard way. He started in at eighteen cents an hour, but it took him thirty years to climb to the top. His first job was on the assembling aisle and he only got that because he persisted in asking for a job. America is still the land of opportunity. But it is up to the young man or woman to make the most of it when one comes knocking on the door.

Books on Eskimos are also on display, available for young readers.

and socialistic in nature. "It leaves the door open to what I call racketeering unless we watch our step," he said.

"The Governor is a smart man," he said, "and gets some smart advice from John Milton and Frank Hague, who consistently put us Republicans in a hole—they didn't need much help. Seriously, however, the Governor has shown his willingness to co-operate in good government."

President Thomas McHale designated a nominating committee as follows: Joseph King, chairman; P. A. Fort, Rev. Peter R. Deckenbach, Willard Sawyer and James Whitmore.

Next week Rotarians will be addressed by the chairman of the State Budget Committee, and the following week by William Albright, state treasurer.

Ladies' night will be observed next Thursday in the Field Club with a dinner followed by cards.

and Corporation Counsel Lawrence E. Keenan will consummate with the Erie Railroad a contract permitting the town to cross beneath the tracks with the forty-two-inch Greylock storm sewer. The cost to the town will be $20 per year. Work on forcing the huge pipes under Washington avenue, which project was fully and exclusively told in this newspaper, has been completed. Westinghouse and Federal Leather Company plants are making arrangements to shunt pipes into the sewer to relieve flood conditions in the section east of Washington avenue. The sewer extends from Greylock parkway, through Riviera Park, under Washington avenue, Erie Railroad and east to Passaic River.

Because it was deemed too low for a 40x100 foot lot in Sunset avenue, north of Tremont street, the board rejected an offer of $650 from Joseph and Gerard Frunzi, Belleville avenue, who planned to build there at once. The particular plot is assessed at $700, and $932.41 is owed the town on it in back taxes. The board felt that, inasmuch as the section is developing along good lines and all improvements including paved streets are in the neighborhood, the price should be higher.

PIQUANT POLITICS

By MEADOR WRIGHT

W HITHER Clean Government? I have asked this question periodically during the past four years, but not in a spirit of unkindness. My perplexity about its future is genuine. Both as an organization and as a movement, Clean Government deserves attention. It is eminently newsworthy. Its strength as well as its weakness has a spectacular tinge. It is easy to overestimate either.

Viewing the multiplicity of cross currents in other years, I have erred in interpreting dissent as being synonymous with weakness. Such is not necessarily the case. "When thieves fall out, honest men can rejoice," runs the proverb. But thieves, on the other hand, should not smile too broadly over the differences of opinion among men of virtue. They are likely to be judged more by their conduct toward the public than by their misconduct toward each other.

I am inclined to think that this is the attitude of the rather critical voters of the Essex suburbs toward Clean Government. They smile at the hair pulling among the various factions, but feel nevertheless that the movement gives better government than would its likely successor. So long as this belief prevails, Clean Government is not going to be dislodged very easily. The movement is larger than the sum total of its component parts.

This is what confounds it would be destroyers so badly. They add up the parts and they get weakness. Yet the movement itself totals strength. It is as confusing to politicians as it would be to mathematicians.

Clean Government leaders use the same system of numbers as do their opponents, and they are at times equally confused. Several times during the past four years these leaders have become panicky about the prospects of success of their regime, and have resorted to hurried and—or so it looked later—ludicrous maneuvers to strengthen it. Many times these maneuvers actually did harm rather than good. Looking back at the movement, one would be justified in concluding, in fact, that had the leaders simply safeguarded their slogan and arbitrarily selected their candidates, they would be stronger today than they are.

But these observations do not answer my first question of where Clean Government is headed. That answer, however, is simple so far as the immediate future is concerned. It is headed for complete victory at the polls this fall. What will become of the movement eventually depends largely upon its two strongest figures, Lester H. Clee and Arthur T. Vanderbilt.

Clean Government opponents have made many miscalculations, but the greatest is in underestimating the ability of these two men. Both are extraordinary figures. It is rare that a county, even as big as Essex, produces two such unusual men at the same time. Political leaders, both in and out of Clean Government, have been too close to both of them for proper appreciation. It is possible that they do not properly appreciate each other. The instincts of the masses, however, have been more accurate than the judgments of their leaders. On the whole, they have backed both of them and, if I do not mistake, they will keep on doing so.

If Clee and Vanderbilt would keep at the one job of governing Essex they would be invincible. But both have the handicap of ambition. Vanderbilt would like to be Attorney General or Supreme Court Justice of the United States. Clee wishes to be Governor of New Jersey. Both have made many mistakes, as superior men are prone to do. Many of their policies have been unwise, as I have tried many times to point out in this column. But I would not be intellectually honest were I to permit differences of opinion to affect my judgment of them. The laudatory comments I am making now are merely by way of attempting to correlate Clean Government's seeming weakness with its actual strength.

On the surface, everything appears to be in confusion. Clee's colleagues in the Senate are giving him no support. There are mutterings against the political leadership of William H. Seely and W. Stanley Naughton, as usual. Vanderbilt is abroad—the guest of the Lord Chief Justice of Great Britain. The Hudson ballot investigation is lagging. The smart of last fall's narrow defeat for Governor is still on Clee's soul. The present personal feud with the Governor is painful. But even so, Clean Government's strength is greater than its weakness.

New names are being mentioned daily in the battle royal that is developing for Republican nomination for Representative from the 11th District. One of the most interesting that I have heard lately is that of Spencer Miller of South Orange. One of the nation's leading authorities on social and economic problems, Miller is precisely the type of man whose death in Washington is so often lamented. Here is a man with ideas concise, exact and gigantic—who possesses the facility both of speech and pen to put those ideas into effect.

The man who is not unlikely to be Miller's strongest opponent should the latter run is Albert L. Vreeland of East Orange. Vreeland's personality is in strong contrast to that of Miller. Handsome, genial and popular, Vreeland exemplifies perfectly the type most likely to succeed in politics. With his usual disarming candor he would be the first to admit a general lack of the intellectual capacities of Miller. Other things being equal, Vreeland's candidacy should make more progress than that of his South Orange neighbor. But poised in contrast between the two men—a contrast not intended to be unkind to either—is the basic question of how democracy is to function. Unless the legislative branch of our national government gets better leadership, government by the executive—in other words, dictatorship—is inevitable.

New Jersey Today

Fire and Traffic Accidents.

Prepared for the Belleville News by Russell Van Nest Black consultant-director, New Jersey State Planning Board.

It is not so hard to understand why sixty per cent of the national loss of property by fire is sustained in rural areas and that the per capita fire losses in cities are less than half those of rural communities. In the cities fire fighting and fire prevention is a highly organized business and one that never sleeps. Police and night watchmen are supposedly alert for the first sign of vagrant flame or smoke. Water is always at hand. In many towns and villages, dependence is placed on volunteer fire companies the members of which must be assembled from their places of business or homes before organized action can be had.

It may be less obvious to many why, as investigators for the National Resources Committee have determined, the cities suffered seventy per cent of the national total of 3,500 lives lost through fires in 1935. The answer may be found in the inexcusable proportion in many cities of flimsily constructed "fire traps" with their overcrowded occupants which pass for homes and the damage or destruction of which may entail small monetary, but great human loss.

When it comes to motor accidents the record is against the country though it should be noted that the cars involved frequently show city registration.

For the last twelve years, motor fatalities occurring in rural areas have been consistently higher than those in urban areas. The rate of increase in rural areas from 1924 to 1935 has been 150 per cent, contrasted with an urban increase of only twenty-seven per cent. In the last few years the urban areas have actually decreased their auto fatality rates, whereas the rates for rural areas have continued to increase. It is a notable fact that pedestrian fatalities are higher in urban areas than in rural areas, although the trend in pedestrian deaths seems to be downward in urban areas and upward in rural areas. The smaller cities have had the greatest increase in motor fatality rates, whereas cities over one-half million have had the lowest increase. In order to cope with this situation many cities have utilized such safety devices as the preparation of accident records, traffic planning, modern traffic codes, accident investigation, traffic-signal systems, elimination of grade crossings, auto inspection, drivers' licenses, compulsory insurance, street widening and improvement, and education. The wide variation in the accident rates between cities which have become conscious of this problem and those that are apathetic furnishes ample proof that the hazards of traffic can be effectively reduced.

WRIT BITS

A "MOUTHFUL" SAID.

"Some folks stay in fifteen minutes. Longer'n some do in a week." "Uncle Ezra's" thought was in its best form uttered, and unique. Thus, across the air there bounded, Hot from Rosedale airman's lips, Truth upon our ears that sounded, Of the sort that somehow grips.

Fifteen minutes solid chatter, Makes hosts wish they'd steal away; It with others doesn't matter When guests come, how long they stay. Much small talk just tends to weary, Idle words get "on the nerve." Conversation proves more cheery, When it's moderate, we observe.

Visitors may prove vexatious, As our social contacts teach, Not those who are tactful, gracious, In their manners and their speech. Time is swift when with us present, Are our choicer guests, no doubt; But time "drags" with those unpleasant, Who soon wear their welcome out.

Gasoline Price Fixing Places Big Burden

On Motorists, Conference Group Declares

Assembly Bill 185 Which Would Create State Board
Would Place $20,000,000 Increase Annually
On Consumers

TRENTON, Mar. 4.—Mounting opposition to Assembly Bill No. 185, which creates a state board to fix the retail price of gasoline, was indicated here today, when the New Jersey Highway Users Conference announced that it would undertake a definite state-wide campaign to arouse consumer protest against the measure.

The bill will be opposed by the conference on the basis that it will force an immediate three-cent jump in the retail price of gasoline, that it will mark the beginning of an era of state price fixing in other retail fields, and that the higher retail prices which will follow passage of the bill will place an additional burden of $20,000,000 annually on the gasoline consumers of New Jersey.

David H. Agans, chairman of the conference and master of the New Jersey State Grange, representing the farmers of the state, announced that decision to start a state-wide campaign against the price fixing bill had been made at a meeting of the Highway Users groups held here in Trenton this week.

Groups allied with the conference and sponsoring the state-wide drive to stop passage of the bill include: New Jersey State Grange, New Jersey Farm Bureau, N. J. Motor Truck Association, N. J. Conference of AAA Automobile Clubs, N. J. Furniture Warehousemen's Association, Iron-bound Manufacturers' Association, New Jersey Industrial Traffic League, Central New Jersey Fuel Exchange, and the Newark Chamber of Commerce.

These various groups, Agans said, represent more than 100,000 New Jersey motorists who will be affected by Assembly Bill No. 185.

Agans said that meetings with legislators sponsoring the bill would be sought by the Highway Users Conference and that the bill was "serious enough in its effect on New Jersey citizens to warrant public hearings at the State House."

Formal opposition to the bill was contained in resolutions of protest unanimously passed by the conference, Agans announced.

Outlining the conference opposition to the bill, Agans made the following statement:

"Are you aware that this artificial attempt to defeat the law of supply and demand will cost the motorists of this state twenty million dollars? Government control is justified only when it regulates the price of services or commodities in the public interest. Most certainly, Assembly Bill No. 185 is not legislation to provide safeguards for public interest."

"It is class legislation sponsored by a small high-pressure group for their own selfish interests. Such legislation would pave the way for similar requests for price fixing by the druggist, the grocery store, the shoe man and all other types of retail business."

"One out of five employed persons now work for government, and if price fixing for all types of business is the trend of the day, then we can foresee a time when everybody will work for the government."

"At that time," continued Senator Agans, "the small matter of no tax-payers to provide revenues for governmental operations must act as a curb rein on the wild horse of class legislation. Un-American legislation of the type recommended in Assembly Bill No. 185 has no place on the statute books."

"The more we read this bill and understand its purpose, the more amazed we are," continued Senator Agans, "because Assembly Bill No. 185 as originally submitted, empowered the Governor to appoint four members of a regulatory board, provided two members were selected from each of the two major political parties. This could be changed to read, 'Jobs for Politicians Only,' and to complete this picture the bill was amended by the Assembly, empowering the Speaker of the House to appoint a member, the President of the Senate to likewise appoint one member, and two appointments to remain in the jurisdiction of the Governor, provided they are equally distributed between the two major political parties."

"This is a most unheard of procedure," said Senator Agans. "Appointments to the various State Commissions are made by the Governor, usually with the concurrence of Legislature. The bill, as amended by the Assembly, is a direct slap at normal accepted procedure. Besides the many bad features of this bill, there is the important question of enforcement. How the small State Department set up under conditions of this bill could possibly hope to police and supervise 12,000 service stations is beyond comprehension. The $100,000 estimated budget could be expected to increase each year, if there were only a partial attempt at enforcement."

"It is reasonable to assume that in a relatively few years, if such a law were on the statute books, that the enforcement costs would run to millions of dollars a year. Price fixing has been tried and found unenforceable, and it is quite probable that the same people, who want this legislation today, will desire no part of it a year or two from now. Likewise, careful thought should be given by the members of our Legislature to the constitutionality of price fixing when the public interest is not concerned."

Senator Agans urged the representatives present at this meeting to immediately contact their members and create a state-wide protest of consumers against the enactment of Assembly Bill No. 185.

"Consumers," concluded Senator Agans, "must be awakened to the fact that class legislation of this type fixing prices for a small group will cost motorists of New Jersey twenty million dollars annually."

Fuller's Spring

We wonder how many old timers remember Fuller's spring that was located at Essex street and Washington avenue.

The spring got its name from Dr. Fuller who analyzed the water. Its outlet was in a faucet at Essex station of the Erie Railroad, where many a thirsty resident of Belleville slaked his thirst from the cooling waters.

Dr. Fuller was a New York physician, who came to Belleville for his health about thirty years ago and built a log cabin between Adelaide and Preston streets, in the Greylock section. There were only five or six houses in the Greylock section at that time and four in Floyd street. One was the home of Commissioner William D. Clark at 121 Floyd street. Another was that of W. Brand Smith, in Union avenue.

There were only five letter carriers and there are about twenty now.

National Drive Is Started to Pull Out Automobile Industry From Current Recession

Campaign Has Been Titled "National Used Car Exchange Week" and is Scheduled to Start Tomorrow

NEW YORK, Mar. 4.—A national drive to sweep the American automobile industry out of the current recession and stimulate American business generally has been announced by Alvin Macauley, speaking for every American automobile manufacturer and the nation's 46,000 automobile dealers.

The campaign, to be known as "National Used Car Exchange Week" and scheduled for March 5 to 12, is an outgrowth of recent conferences at the White House, between President Roosevelt and leaders of the automobile industry. Mr. Macauley said. The President has been advised of plans for the campaign, which is the first cooperative effort ever undertaken in which all American automobile manufacturers have taken part.

The campaign is timed at the outset of the spring selling season when both new and used cars usually begin to move in greatest volume. Mr. Macauley said. It is aimed primarily at stimulating the disposal of used cars stocks now in dealer hands. Once this is accomplished, a substantial increase in car manufacturing schedules and employment of wage earners in the automobile factories is anticipated.

To support the campaign, Mr. Macauley announced, the manufacturers will spend $1,250,000 in newspaper, radio and outdoor advertising and in other promotional channels. Two-thirds of the advertising budget will be spent in newspapers.

"The motor car industry," said Mr. Macauley in making the announcement, "is generally credited with showing the way out of the last depression."

"Today, the automobile manufacturers, their suppliers, the nation's 46,000 dealers and allied industries are launching a similar drive."

So far as the automobile industry is concerned, the most serious barrier to business improvement is the large stock of used cars in dealers' hands, Mr. Macauley pointed out.

"Until these cars can be sold, it is impossible for dealers to handle a normal volume of new-car business," he explained. "This means that factories will be forced to continue on part-time, and thousands of men in the motor car plants and in allied industries must remain either out of work or on part-time schedules."

The primary purpose of the campaign, he said, is to make known to prospective owners the remarkable used car values which now are being offered by automobile dealers in all parts of the United States.

"The present situation has resulted in the best used car values in the country's history. We are confident that used car stocks will be reduced sharply as soon as the public becomes aware of the fact," he added.

During the last few years vast improvements have been made in motor cars and this improved transportation is available on easy terms to those who take advantage of the bargains to be offered during "National Used Car Exchange Week," Mr. Macauley stated.

"Too many unsafe, wornout, unreliable cars, without modern safety brakes, safety glass, large tires and steel bodies, are in operation today," he continued. "Too many are costly to operate. Eleven million seven years old or older are licensed for operation throughout the country."

"Many of these cars can be replaced during 'National Used Car Exchange Week' to the great advantage of the buyer and of the public—with newer, 'up-to-date' cars, without initial investment beyond their present car and on terms to suit the average pocketbook. These new cars offer modern equipment and are a good investment in comfort, safety and economy."

Townfolk Invited To Recreation Center

Caretakers Are Proud of Recently Renovated Structure

Mr. and Mrs. Michael P. Carragher extend an invitation to all to inspect the recently renovated Recreation House, of which they are custodians.

The building reaches the height of cleanliness. In the kitchen glasses sparkle and dishes display a brightness that glitters from tidiness. One of the interesting features of the house is a 6x14 foot, hand-carved, oak bookcase that was donated by the president of the Recreation Committee, Henry Mason. It was obtained from a brownstone mansion in New York City, and dates back about sixty years.

Among the clubs and organizations which meet at the Recreation House are the Little Theatre Guild, the Royals, Capitals and Senators, Athletic clubs, Belleville Art club, Girl Scout club, Belwood Park Taxpayers' Association, Citizens' Taxpayers' Association, Jesse E. Armstrong, International Sunshine Society, A. & P. Laundry, the Belleville Glee club, the Scout Mothers, the Belleville Chess club, the Cameo club, two sewing clubs, the Bethany Lutheran Church Guild, Men's Club and the Sunday School of Bethany Church.

The activities of the Recreation Commission, under the directorate of Edward J. Lister, includes senior and industrial basketball leagues, the intermediate and junior leagues which hold forth at the recreation center, Veterans' Hall, ping pong tournament, checker tournament, miniature shuffle board, miniature polo game, girls' basketball league of six teams at the high school, social dancing and instruction at School No. 5, the second and fourth Fridays of each month; the playgrounds at the Recreation House, School No. 1 and School No. 2; baseball field at Terry and Main street; Belleville camp at the Third river and swimming pool.

FROM THE PULPIT

By Rev. John A. Struyk, D.D.

Pastor of the Old First Church of Belleville (Reformed)

Rom. 8:14.

"For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

When the question, dear friends, is advanced in our day, who really are the sons of God, then many and various are the answers received.

"Sons of God," some say refers to all, good or bad; old or young; gentiles or Jews. We are all sons of the same God, who is our Universal Loving Father. This is taught, as you are aware, by all who are associated with the worshippers of the Common Fatherhood of God.

No, others say, not all are sons of God! Only the moral, honest and good among us. This is, as you know, the sentiment of the great mass, who do not understand Scripture, nor do they know themselves, nor God.

A third group confessors, in answer to this question say that those only are the sons of God, who are members of a church, who by or through baptism were regenerated. Thus Rome teaches and in part the Lutheran Church teaches.

And again others adhere to something that comes a little nearer to the goal of true Christianity. No, no, they say, not all people are sons of God. But only the busy Christian confessor. Those who are very active in the Lord's work, who operate a practical Christianity by membership in all the different movements on which the church places so much stress now-a-days.

But to be a son of God means more than being a mere human being, a moral man, a church member or an active Christian worker. We know of no better answer than the one Paul gives as a solution to this question. Rom. 8:14. "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

Our text is a part of Paul's address that exhorts to a Godly walk according to the Spirit. If such a condition is manifest, this, to be sure, will bring glorious results. This also, that they from their life according illuminates his mind? How oratorical he makes the tongue which formerly seemed tired.

Finally, the Holy Spirit is also given to the church as head, as leader. As leader, not only in all truth, but also as a guide through our entire life. As one never deserting, never cheating, but always an uplifting, admirable and a lovable chief.

(II) Who are the fortunate ones, who possess the Holy Spirit as a guide? By far not all people, how many children of the world exemplify by their lives to have an entirely different leader than the Holy Spirit.

Let us see who the recipients are, clinging to the picture in our text of leader or guide. Who in our physical world make use of a guide? All men? By no means. Only a certain class of people.

First of all, a guide is employed by children, then by strangers, further by blind people, also by weak ones and finally by travelers through a hostile country.

Now apply this in the spiritual world, then we notice who are recipients of the leading of the Spirit.

1—First used by children. Indeed, so it is the spiritual world. He, who possesses the Holy Spirit, has become children, children in the spiritual sense, as Jesus signified when He placed a child in the midst of the multitude and said that no one could enter the kingdom of Heaven, except he became as this little one. That signified, truly to become little, insignificant before God, truly loving God as Father; confidence in the Father's love; soon satisfied as a child's hand which is easily filled, and all needs and wants with childlike simplicity make known.

2—In the second place, we named strangers as participants of a guide. Friends, if we are led by the Spirit, then we have become strangers on earth. As the patriarchs are called by God (Heb. 11:13). What is the distinguishing mark of a stranger in the physical or natural world? Speaking a different language, having different customs, wearing other garments, admiration for another king, and feeling strange in a foreign land. So it is also in the spiritual world. They are strangers in that they speak another language, namely the language of Canaan. They can speak of sin and of grace. They wear other garments, the garment of righteousness of Christ, yes, the whole armor as Paul describes in Eph. 6. And their king they love, God and Father and Christ their Saviour. And the laws of the king they cling to.

3—The blind are also led about by a guide. This fact is so far true in the spiritual sense that God's children are convinced of their blindness which causes them to utter in the words of Psalm 43:3: O send Thy light and Thy truth; then lead me; Let them bring me into Thy Holy hill, and to Thy tabernacles. And many times a sigh comes from the heart which is uttered in Psalm 119:33.

Teach me, O Lord, the way of Thy statutes.

And I shall keep it unto the end.

4—In the fourth place we named weak ones making use of a guide. Sick ones, just recovering. Any one led by the Spirit is conscious of his own weakness in spiritual things. Therefore, the spirit is called in as an aid and to assistance to enlighten our hearts and minds which are distorted by sin to a strong, vigorous, healthy spiritual insight and strength to overcome all weakness and sin, which may hinder our religious life.

5—And finally, we saw that travelers needed a guide. Those who travel through many parts of Asia and Africa with all its robbers and wild beasts are foolish, if they do not make use of this means.

God's word relates and experience establishes the fact, that there are evil spirits in the air; and the devil and his angels

FISH and GAME

By De Allaire

This town of ours is a pretty good little place. But one thing is lacking, however, in the eyes of the gunners. That is a public rifle range.

Spend a minute of your time some day talking with a policeman and you will soon find out that one of their main problems is keeping dangerous firearms out of the hands of juvenile, backyard or corner lot, marksmen.

Every red blooded boy should not be denied the right to a knowledge of firearms and their correct use. The training a boy gets from shooting develops a keen eye and steady nerves. Learning to hit the bull's eye five times out of five would also take his mind from criminological ideas.

The boys of the town are by no means the only ones who would benefit by a rifle range. There are numerous adult members of the paper punching fraternity who would be grateful and glad to pay a small sum for the convenience of a nearby range. It would also provide "John Law" with a place in which to practice.

The sportsmen had their day, or should I say days, this month at the National Sportsman's Show in Grand Central Palace, New York. Everything the sportsman would want to see was there.

Practically every kind of sporting equipment was represented. Rods, reels, lines and every other kind of fishing equipment, cars, airplanes, guns, ammunitions were exhibited even hunting dogs put on their retrieving acts.

Every type of sportsman was represented, big game, fisherman and hunters, north woods guides, lumberjacks, and both fly and bait tournament casters.

To name everything one could see would be an utter impossibility.

Contests were held daily in log rolling, canoe tilting, casting and many other outdoor sports.

Live animals such as deer, bears, raccoons, foxes, wildcats, several species of birds, and many species of snakes.

Of the whole show, I can honestly say I think the exhibit sponsored by the New Jersey Fish and Game Commission, was the best individual exhibit of the show.

New Jersey exhibited every species of its upland game including pheasant, grouse, chuck or partridge, quail and rabbits, which roamed free in a natural setting of trees, fence posts, and earth. In reality it seemed as if one were momentarily in the fields to hear the birds cackle and whistle and see the rabbits hopping about carefree as if they were in their natural home.

Local High School
Star Trips Lyndhurst

Bill Farmer is the leading foul shooter in Essex County. In sixteen games this season, the Belleville High School forward has tossed in forty-five charity throws. Friday night Farmer enabled his team to wind up its season with a victory, when he tossed in a last minute one-pointer to provide the margin of victory over Lyndhurst at the Bellbros court, 21-20.

This victory gave Belleville its eleventh triumph in sixteen starts. The locals won over the alumni, Dickinson, Lyndhurst, Kearny, Good Counsel, Hillside, and Irvington. With the exception of Good Counsel and Hillside, the Bellbros defeated each of these teams twice.

Jim Caskey, Belleville center, was the leading factor in the win over Lyndhurst. Belleville trailed, 14-11, going into the final quarter, and then 20-14 late in the period. Caskey then came through with three field goals to knot the count, and Farmer sank the winning foul.

Shades of Shakespeare

William H. Smith, local truckman, 568 Washington avenue, has a plaque in his office entitled, "What Shakespeare Knew About The Great American Game of Draw Poker."

Some of the quotations from that noted author include "What does that Knave here—get you gone, Sirrah" (which is designated by the King of Diamonds, King of Hearts, Jack of Spades, Queen of Diamonds and the Queen of Hearts); "a diamond gone costs me 2,000 ducats" (being the four and five of diamonds, nine of clubs and the seven and eight of diamonds); "tis a consummation devoutly to be wished (noted as the four Aces and the six of diamonds); "here stands a pair of honorable men," (shown as the King of Hearts, the King of Clubs, nine of hearts, six of spades and the ten of diamonds).

BELLOWING ABOUT BELLEVILLE

By JACOB LEVINE

Class 1938, Belleville High School

A Visit With the Fire Eaters.

I called the gentleman standing on the running board of the Seagrave fire engine Mr. Gilchrist. He resented it, but good-naturedly.

"For the luvva Mike, will you please call me 'Becky,' and not Mr. Gilchrist? Why, if the boys inside heard you call me that I'd never hear the end of it!"

By his intimate reference to "the boys" Mist-Becky evidently had in mind the night-shift brigade of fire-eaters, who were, at the moment, busily chatting in the rear room of Firehouse No. 2, a red brick building on the corner of Washington and Division avenues. I looked through the window pane and there sitting around a table were "the boys": Battalion Chief William Cullen, Mike Carr, Jim Dunleavy, Oscar Reid, and Teddy Cyphers.

"Is that you, Mr. Gilchrist?" came a voice from within, humorous emphasis on his surname, which almost gave it the air of effeminacy.

The fellow standing on the running board of the Seagrave engine winked knowingly to me. It was an "I told you so" wink. And you may well rest assured that from that moment on, as he guided the writer around the firehouse, it was Becky this and Becky that.

The Firehouse a Home.

As you walk through the building you are at once aware of the fact that the firehouse is not only a place of occupation for the fireman, but also a home. He spends, on an average, twelve hours every day in the firehouse (off duty, too, he must attend everything from a false alarm to a ten-story building blaze). Since such is the case, that he spends as much time in the firehouse as in his own home, everything in the place—from the linen on their beds upstairs to the big red engines with their hook and ladders, booster tanks, hoses, nozzles, lux, pyrene, and soda and acid extinguishers—everything is as immaculate as Granny's kitchen floor on a Sunday morning. Meals must be cooked, pots, pans and dishes washed, floors swept—and day after day everything moves along with unfeigned regularity.

Midnight Alarms.

What caught my eye immediately, as we walked into the sleeping quarters upstairs, were the boots lined up before each bed. Becky saw that I was a bit stumped and explained.

"What you see there," he said, "is a pair of boots fastened to a pair of trousers. This combination is called a quick-hitch."

Still, why the boots beside their beds?

"He started from the beginning, to relate chronologically the steps taken when a fire occurs while the night-shift is sleeping."

The bell over 'Teddy Cyphers' bed clang-clangs, automatically arresting them from the serenity of slumber-land, and in the very same instant thrusting them into the boots beside their beds. Almost simultaneously they pull up their trousers and each makes for the pole which extends downwards to the bottom floor. Chief Cullen slides down first, as it is his duty to record the fire alarm number as it is sent in on the tape. The others follow in lightning-like rapidity, hitting the floor with a resounding thud, which arouses them out of their slumber (some actually are still dozing as they slide down) and sends them, scurrying to their engines.

Their helmets and coats? These are donned while the engines are already on their way to the fire.

The amazing thing is that the interval between their awakening and departure from the building is only ten seconds! Still more amazing, perhaps, is the fact that on innumerable occasions such as these the usually anticipated blazing spaghetti factory or drug store turns out to be a diabolical prank of some "wise guys" who just love to hear the exhilarating song of the siren, the screech of brakes, the shrill blasts of factory whistles, and the inevitable crowds of people (yes, even in the middle of the night) rushing madly out of their homes, asking, "Where's the fire?"

It never fails to happen.

On the other hand, however, many alarms really are no expressions of youth's vanity, but urgent pleas to quell some raging fire and save the lives of helpless people.

When the fire brigade scrambles out of bed in the middle of the night no one stops to ponder, "Well, suppose it's only a false alarm?" To them it's a burning building until proven otherwise.

Just Talking.

When Becky and I joined Chief Cullen and the boys in the back room we sat down and had a long chat. One moment our thoughts drifted reminiscently back to the horse and buggy days. The next moment we were talking about the up-to-date fire apparatus, noting its marked improvement over the unwieldy fire utensils of years ago. From the following items you may well infer that our conversation ran in many and varied streams; a leisurely, informal chat with the men of Belleville's hook and ladder department.

The firemen's bowling team, captained by Chief William Reid, the anchor man, have played the revenue and finance bowlers, who are led by James Dunn, three times and each game resulted in a tie. Jim Dunleavy avers, however, that the next time the two teams meet the firemen will cop the match.

A training base is now being built in the rear of the firehouse. When finished the firemen will use it in practicing the art of catching persons jumping from a burning building. A model of the net to be employed has already been made.

If you are, at any time, uncertain as to the location of any street in town, there is no better authority to go to than the firehouse. While we were talking a man came in, asked the location of a certain street, and Battalion Chief Cullen promptly rattled off the directions with all the alacrity and sureness of a boy scout giving the scout's creed. But, after all, such information is part of the fireman's make-up.

The father of Oscar Reid and the chief operated the first gasoline station in the rear of the firehouse. When Reid himself is dubbed by his mates as the "crooner" of the firehouse. He is also a crackerjack bowler.

The boys have organized a hill-billy orchestra. Oscar Reid plays a banjo, Becky Gilchrist a guitar, Chief Reid a tenor banjo, Mike Carr a saxophone and Teddy Cyphers a harmonica and base viol. Battalion Chief Cullen is an old time base drummer, but he and Jim Dunleavy look on as the audience.

We took time out at nine o'clock as Mr. Cullen rang in the curfew bell. It is interesting to note that the firemen's mascot of a few years ago, a big, black spotted dog, was wont to howl nine times at curfew time.

The boys call Teddy Cyphers "the lawyer of the fire department." Besides his regular duty as fireman, Cyphers drives the ambulance. Before taking his position in the fire brigade, he was a reporter for the Newark Star Eagle and an employee of the Prudential Life Insurance Company. His pet hobby is rabbit hunting.

Becky was strangely reminiscent. He recalled the days when he would sit on the bread box in front of Becker's store, rendering lustily, "Down By the Old Mill Stream" and "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree"; when his father, a politician of some repute, brought home a mule from a Democratic convention, and how people from all over town would congregate about his house on Cortland street just to get a glimpse of the animal, and to hear its inimitable hee haw! When he saved the local attorney Edward J. Abramson, who, when only a tiny shaver, had fallen from a raft into the Passaic river, and how he brought him to the surface by the end of his tie! When Mr. Cullen would trek through the streets of Belleville, not bedecked with fire helmet, but attired in a mailman's uniform; when Mme. Stanley (where have I heard that name before?) used to tell fortunes at Riviera—then Hillside Park; how the kids twenty-five years ago celebrated Hallow'en; recalling their visits to the home of Mrs. Anderson (mother of Sergeant "Bob" Anderson), for her delicious home-made candy; when—

"Say, Levine," piped Jim Dunleavy, "did he ever tell you about his experience in the navy? Yes, sir—Admiral Becky!"

Ambulance Call.

As the writer was about to leave the telephone rang. Teddy Cyphers picked up the receiver.

"Hello...Yea...What's that?...Yea...Be ready when you come over..."

"Who was it?" asked the chief, as the fireman hung up the receiver.

"The police station. Have to take some fellow to the hospital. As soon as the cop gets here we'll shoot right over."

Seconds later Patrolman Jim Anderson walked into the firehouse. The two stepped into the ambulance and sped away.

Battalion Chief Cullen looked up and smiled.

"There, son, is how the fire department works. Split seconds often mean the difference between life and death with us."

As we sat there in momentary silence, a latin phrase, meaningless up until now, struck home with all its terse significance. Tempus fugit.

'Snow White' Held Over at Proctor's

Attendance Records Broken As Movie Goes Into Third Week

Walt Disney's "Snow White" and the "Seven Dwarfs," which has broken theatre attendance records wherever it has been shown, has made no exception in Newark. For the first time in the history of the theatre, the management of RKO Proctor's Theatre, Newark, has announced that the picture will be held for a third week.

No other attraction has ever been held for three consecutive weeks at Proctor's Theatre.

A comparison of the attendance records the past two weeks with other high marks has proved to be interesting. The first week at Proctor's, "Snow White" was seen by 100,204 people, an all-time high. The Tuesday of that week, 19,840 attended the performances. This is the largest number of persons ever played to in one day.

While figures for the second week are not yet complete, all indications point to the conclusion that the first week will be almost equaled. The previous high for the theatre was "Frankenstein," which played many years ago. The total for the week was 89,738, more than ten thousand less than "Snow White."

When Joe Penner appeared in person, he was seen by 71,504 people, almost 30,000 less than last week; and the biggest day saw only 13,446 enter the theatre.

Another unusual feature of the attendance at "Snow White" and the "Seven Dwarfs" is the number of adults attending for each child.

Starting today there will be a new program of shorts in addition to the feature. The new March edition of the "March of Time," a three-stooge comedy, "Wee Wee Monsieur," a musical with Rio Rita and her Girl orchestra, screen snapshots with the Ritz Brothers, Jack Benny and Mary Livingston, Burns and Allen, Sonja Henie, Eddie Cantor, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy, Kenny Baker, and many others in the cast, and a sports reel, "Winward Way."

Catholic Juniors Notes

Trop No. 2, Junior Catholic Daughters of America, held its regular meeting on Monday night in the home of Dorothy Kastner, Joralemon street.

Complete returns were made for the candy which the girls sold for the benefit of St. Anthony's Orphanage. It has been decided not to recede candy until after Easter.

Application for membership has been received from one of the girls' classmates. This will be taken up later and if approved, the girl will become a member of this troop.

Following the business meeting there was a rehearsal of the two short plays which will be put on sometime in April or May. Parts were assigned and regular rehearsals will get underway at the next meeting.

Despite the slight "chill" in the weather on Monday evening, it is reported that only one Junior was absent—and this only because she was at home ill. It is hoped she recovers soon.

jewelry.

"I offered a watch to a friend of mine one time," he said. "He told me he would give me ten cents for it so I figured I might as well send the stuff back to the people I took it from."

He first used the mails to return stolen goods February 16, when he mailed to Merrill Bigelow of 159 Williamson avenue, Bloomfield, most of the $500 worth of jewelry stolen from Bigelow January 15 and also some jewelry belonging to Charles Ross of 81 Fairway avenue, Belleville.

"Why shouldn't I send the stuff back? I figured those people needed the stuff more than I did so I took it out of the glass jars and mailed it back to them," Kaminski said.

Wild Goose Chase.

Except for the jewelry, Kaminski threw away or returned, Whelan and England recovered all of the loot which he had hidden under two loose boards in the attic of his home.

In addition to the jewelry the attic cache contained a .32-caliber Smith and Wesson revolver stolen from W. S. Hering of Glen Ridge, a blackjack stolen from Patrolman R. Stanley Trebilcock of Bloomfield and ten large old-fashioned dollar bills and a collection of silver dollars.

Police said the prisoner, on parole from the reformatory, had committed his twentieth robbery just before his arrest.

Kaminski lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kaminski. Kaminski was arrested two years ago for participating in three Bloomfield holdups. He served ten months at Jamesburg Reformatory and has been on parole since.
