'Office' Jail Doomed By Land Offer

Charles Goettert Would Buy
"Sally Parks" Hoosegow
From Town

The land adjacent to "Sally Parks Jail" is going under the auctioneer's hammer soon. Charles Goettert, 185 Cortlandt street, has made an offer for the property of $150 for the strip of land, 25 by 108 feet, which is north of Rutgers street and east of the Erie Railroad.

The plot is landlocked with entrance only through nearby property. The jail got the name of "Sally Parks" from a town character who was the first one to be incarcerated in the building. Judge John C. LaFaurie was the first judge to send a person to this edifice thirty years ago.

The cells in the building were sold in 1914 to a Bergen County town.

The Belleville police department was formed in 1906, with Michael J. Flynn as chief. Charles Pearl was sergeant and William Swinn and Joseph Hannan were patrolmen. Flynn retired as chief two years ago. Pearl is still sergeant and Hannan and Swinn are dead.

The police department had to have a jail. The town built a two-room brick building which was reached by a path along the railroad fence. A frame addition later was built, as a police headquarters.

The small jail and headquarters were used until the erection of the present town hall in 1913. The exact date when the jail was razed is not known, but the frame "office" still remains. It will be torn down by the new owner.

Waters Seeks Paving Of Cortlandt Street Would Lay Penetration Where State Withdrew $18,000 Grant

A penetration pavement will be laid on Cortlandt street if Public Works Director Patrick A. Waters can have the job made a WPA project.

The State Highway Commission last week withdrew its grant of $18,000 for paving the street with concrete, following a Supreme Court ruling it was not a proper state-aid project because the street was "improved," a penetration pavement having been laid twenty-five years ago.

With state aid, the cost to property owners would have been approximately $1 a front foot. As municipal project it would cost $7. With WPA labor the cost will be less than $1.65.

Waters said it is essential the job be completed, as much of the preliminary work had been done, including the laying of water and gas connections, and the street has been made impassable.

Progress Noted on Inventory Project Fire Headquarters Now Scene of Group's Activities

The Public Property Project of the WPA is progressing in fine style, the scene of activities being at present the fire headquarters in Washington avenue.

Those appointed recently to the project are J. J. Kyle, Cornelius Mulholland, Marie Gallagher, Helen Kanouse, Josephine Van Duke, Madeline Musco, Thomas Noonan, Mrs. Gladys Rugg and George Wagner.

Unusual Fire

An unusual accident Tuesday morning caused a fire at the gas station at Rutgers and Main streets, owned by William Lawrence, Glen Ridge.

It seemed that Lawrence was backing up his car preparatory to driving away when he backed into a gas pump, knocking it over.

The electrical wiring in the pump was short-circuited causing a spark which ignited the gasoline. The pump was totally destroyed at a loss of about $200.

Clerks Confer With Board of Elections Uniformity Sought for Municipal Balloting Next Month

A voting machine will be put on demonstration in the town hall to show voters how to cast their ballots via machine.

This was decided after a meeting of municipal clerks of Orange, West Orange, Irvington and Belleville Tuesday, with the Essex County Board of Elections officials.

Mrs. Florence R. Morey, town clerk, represented Belleville.

The meeting was called to prepare for the coming municipal elections in these towns on May 10, and this will be the first time the machine will be used for municipal contests. They were used in November for the general election, however.

The county board, headed by Mrs. Edith H. Kreutzinger, Republican, wants uniformity among the four municipalities on the type and general setup of the machine ballots.

"Expect To Find Things" Story Develops Into "Some Ways To Make Economies"

Mayor William H. Williams Deplores Publicity in Newark
Paper "That Savors of What Is Not Expected To Be Nice"

"What things did you expect to find, sir?" This query was directed Tuesday night at a special meeting of the town commission, for a hearing on the budget by Mayor William H. Williams to Joseph Dunn, civic chairman of the Belleville Taxpayers' and Civic Association.

Mr. Dunn was quoted in a Newark newspaper that day as saying Monday night at the association meeting in Public School No. 8, that "we are going to examine the books and records and I don't mind telling you that we expect to find things."

"If you have in mind any inaccuracies or dishonesty, now is the time—before election—not after, to look into it. It is your duty as a citizen to say, and the taxpayers are entitled to know whether the quotation was correct."

"I believe I did say it, Mr. Mayor," replied Mr. Dunn, adding, "not to find anything crooked, but to find some ways to make economies."

The Mayor's question came after he had explained various changes in the budget and the fact that increases in county and state taxes, beyond control of the local authorities, are making it difficult for municipalities to keep tax rates within reasonable bounds.

"It has been the desire of this board and the Department of Revenue and Finance to offer the broadest understanding of the budget to every citizen," said the Mayor. This budget will not be adopted tonight. There is a whole week left to question any item. Last Saturday I left a sick bed to discuss the budget with taxpayers. I will use a gracious word 'disappointed.' I am disappointed that any one is quoted as saying ours is a 'lump sum' budget. There are 131 items, broken down into 607 detail items. Every record and every book is wide open in every department. I am disappointed if Mr. Dunn is quoted correctly. I say the State Auditor's office is available to check up. It is too bad that five weeks before election some one feels the books

A fall from a ladder in the plant of the American Dyewood Company, 374 Main street, caused the death of Joseph Fenton, a fireman in the company, 52, 13 Howell place, Kearny, at 11:30 A. M. Monday morning. The accident occurred Sunday night.

Fenton was fastening nuts and bolts on a manhole plate on the top of a boiler when the ladder teetered, throwing him to the concrete floor, on which he landed head first.

Boys Spread Alarm For Fredericks' Fire

Fire Chief's Son, Robert,
and Joseph Weiss Win
Admiration

Two boys, Robert A. Reid Jr., son of Fire Chief and Mrs. R. A. Reid, 90 Van Houten place, and Joseph Weiss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Weiss, 15 Hornblower avenue, prevented possible tragedy when they pulled a fire alarm box near the home of Frederick "Fritz" Fredericks, 134 Hornblower avenue, last Thursday night.

The boys saw smoke issuing from Fredericks' home and both made a dash for the fire alarm box. This, young Reid's father told him, was wrong, as one of them should have notified the Fredericks family.

However, this does not detract from any of the credit which has been heaped on the boys by Chief Reid, for their quickness in pulling the box.

The fire engines arrived almost simultaneously with the first notice Mr. Fredericks had of the fire.

The blaze which caused $1,000 damage was confined to the attic in the roof by the fire department. The house which is rented by Mr. Fredericks is owned by William Gilliland, 339 Stephens street.

Seven children were asleep in the house at the time and all escaped without injury or burns. Mrs. Fredericks carrying the baby down the stairs.

Bolster Guard Rails For Midget Races Doodlebug Jumps into Stand Injuring Eleven Persons

Following the harrowing experience Sunday when one of the "Doodlebugs," midget racing cars, hurtled over the guard rail on the east turn at Park avenue, Nutley Velodrome, injuring eleven, Manager John Kochman, Paterson, avers a reinforced guard rail will be erected, extending eight feet high over the track at a right angle.

Manager Kochman says the rail has been approved by the A. A. A. officials and they are confident it will prevent accidents similar to the one which occurred last Sunday.

All in all, twelve were injured Sunday at the opening meet, including two drivers, one of whom was hurtled along the track when his seventy-two-inch machine, weighing 750 pounds, somersaulted on the same turn, where a few minutes later another driver rammed over cables into a section of the bleacher crowd.

The driver and three of the spectators, who were detained at St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, were reported in fair condition.

In the hospital are: Kenneth Fowler, 41, 268 Seventeenth avenue, Paterson, the driver, broken right arm; Raymond Hetzel, 22, 110 Broadway, Hillsdale, scalp laceration and skull injuries; Mrs. Libby Hetzel, his wife, lacerations of scalp and ear; Clifford Holly, 28, 43 Wayne avenue, Paterson, scalp laceration.

Others Hurt.

Treated and released were: Raymond Marshall, 18, 638 River drive, Passaic, bruised back; Philip Maurio, 38, 365 Highland avenue, Passaic, leg abrasions; Matthew Maurio, 9, his son, head bruises; Edward Ryan, 23, 422 Green avenue, Elizabeth, head abrasions; Gladys Hatch, 20, 82 Williamson road, Bergenfield, shock; Clifford Strom, 26, 85 Rivervale road, Park Ridge, shock; David Mueller, 25, 171 North Seventh street, Paterson, usher, head injuries.

Vern Orenduff of Tallahassee, Fla., another driver, was treated for cuts and bruises after his car had crashed into the rail earlier in the program. He was not detained in the hospital.

Fowler's crackup came during the first semi-final for the fifteen-lap feature event. At the east turn Fowler's car rode high on the steep bank, crashed into the guard rail. The heat was declared over at the point of Fowler's crash, and after the track was cleared the rest of the card was run.

The Nutley Town Commission will not revoke the permit, despite protests. In a telegram to the board, a man, who signed as John Alexander, said:

"Legalized Slaughter."

"I hereby want to make a protest against the legalized slaughter at the Nutley Velodrome last Sunday. If you allow this to continue I am certain you will have people killed. A Newark theatre today is showing moving pictures of the Nutley disaster. In my opinion it is 'legalized murder' and if you allow it I intend to go before the Grand Jury to have it stopped."

"The fact that the place is partly owned by an Essex County freeholder should not give the place a right to run. We were lucky a half dozen people were not killed last Sunday and this slaughter should stop."

Alexander gave as his address 341-351 Park avenue, Nutley, but a check-up of the apartment there revealed that he was not listed as living there.

Sanford Silverman of 269 Chestnut street asked at the meeting of the board Tuesday night, what precautions were being taken to protect spectators.

Mayor Frederick H. Young said that Kochman has promised the reinforced guard rail.

Wilson Kierstead of 42 Daily street, Nutley, chairman of the County Republican Committee there, asked whether the town would be liable for injuries to spectators and Young replied that Kochman had agreed to assume full responsibility.

In connection with the auto races, Commissioner George A. Rogers, director of parks and public property, said he considers the $50 fee paid to the town each week for permission to run the races to be "entirely too modest."

"More than 7,200 persons attended the meet Sunday," Rogers said. "In view of the attendance I think the town should benefit to a greater degree and suggest that we raise the fee for the permit."

The suggestion was not acted upon. Thousands clamored to obtain admission to the races, which are packed with thrills. They were turned away because every available seat was taken. In comparison, bicycle races, which have held sway at the Nutley saucer are tame, fans aver, and if the "doodlebug" fancy continues the future of the bike game seems problematical.

According to rules of the races when the ambulance carries out an injured person the races are temporarily halted until the ambulance returns from the hospital. Despite the chill winds Sunday, two such trips, involving inactive periods, aggregating almost an hour, did not upset the fans in the least. During the lapse in action nary a fan left a seat, such was the tense grip in which the races held the sport lovers.

Miss Elizabeth F. Gibson
Entertained Smith College Chum

Miss Elizabeth F. Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Gibson, 57 Fairway avenue, returned on Tuesday to Wilson College, Chambersburg, Pa., after spending the spring vacation at her home.

Miss Gibson had as her guest during vacation Miss Mimi Pedersen, a fellow student at Wilson, whose home is in Oslo, Norway. Miss Pedersen has had one year at the University of Oslo, before coming to the U. S. A. Miss Pedersen did quite a bit of sight seeing, while in Belleville, and was greatly impressed by her trip to New York and visit to the Empire State Building, Radio City and Metropolitan Museum of Art, and especially by the five and ten cent stores which were entirely new to her, and by the reasonable prices of most clothing here; while in her country silks and cotton dresses are much more expensive than ours.

Among the new experiences Miss Pedersen enjoyed while here, were a visit to Newark Airport, a barn dance at Towaco, a hike along the Appalachian Trail, in the vicinity of Greenwood Lake, in the company of some twenty-five other young people, members of Beta Alpha Theta Fraternity of Newark College of Engineering and their women friends; and a Girl Scout rally in the high school gym, in the preparation for which event, she and Miss Gibson assisted, that morning.

Miss Gibson, who is a first class scout, was one of two to receive the highest award, presented by the Belleville Girl Scout Council, that evening, for faithful service.

Miss Pedersen will return to Norway in June, at the close of the college term, well satisfied with her year in America.

Waldron, Union; Miss Doris Rankin, Paterson; Miss Helen Busch, Elizabeth; Mrs. Archie Brown and Miss Eileen Heberer, Nutley; Mrs. Jack McDonough, Orange; Miss Elsa Geiser, Short Hills; Mrs. Neil Campman, Mrs. William Boland and Miss Alvira Campman, Passaic; Mrs. Thomas Lynas, Mrs. Douglas Crabbs, Mrs. James Clark, Mrs. Charles Kier, Mrs. James Frazer, Mrs. P. Rainie Group Urges Free Use of Schools "Imposition on Taxpayers" To Make Charge Says Brumbach

A resolution was adopted this week at a meeting of the John M. Rainie Association, urging the Board of Education to allow free use of the Belleville schools for meetings of civic and other affiliated groups. Under the present arrangements, a fee is charged for using auditoriums, gymnasiums or classrooms.

The resolution was offered by Harry F. Brumbach, who is active in Boy Scout work, and who is also campaign manager for Rainie in the present deputy commissioner's race. Brumbach pointed out that the Parent-Teacher Associations, Boy Scouts and other groups are charged for the use of school facilities for their meetings.

"I feel it is an imposition on the taxpayers to charge for this small accommodation," Brumbach said, "because each one of these organizations are interested in the welfare and development of Belleville. They are closely related to the town and its activities. They are altruistic in their aims and purposes and the Board of Education should recognize the important part they play in the community. In other neighboring communities such organizations are allowed free use of the schools."

Urges Playgrounds.
John M. Rainie addressed the meeting and stated he favored more playgrounds in neighborhoods where they are needed and using town owned property for the projects. He said he believed these areas can be graded and placed in shape as a WPA plan with little cost to the town.

"Health, safety, cleanliness, recreation and education are collective needs in every community," he said, and "they must be administered and supervised in a business-like manner. Ignore the subject as we may, the citizen's daily comfort depends in countless ways upon the quality of the government in the town in which he lives. To be liveable a town must be many sided. Its economic prestige must be maintained and increased. But it also must be wholesome, healthy and cultured."

"Citizens demand certain services, but it is not to be supposed that as a consequence they want the budget to become top-heavy. Instead they desire to see the revenues of the town so equitably distributed among the various functions that the physical, economic and social needs of the community may each be given the maximum amount of development out of the tax which the citizens are assessed."

"I repeat, I will make a serious effort to reduce the budget of the department of which I may be assigned, and I will vote only for major expenditures which are absolutely necessary for the public welfare. In this manner the tax rate can be kept

Invite Commission To King Meeting Association Will Hear Each Member on "Stewardship"

In 1931 he became personal pilot for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and a personal friend of Mme. Kai-Shek. Except for the four months in which he piloted Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, who started the historic kidnapping of Chiang Kai-Shek in December, 1936, Smith was pilot for the general for four years.

Before the actual outbreak of the Sino-Japanese warfare, Smith returned to Belleville with his wife and their two children, Robert, 11, and Frances, 13, and became sales manager of the auto sales agency here.

Last July Smith and his family returned to China.

Family in California.
Arriving nine days before the bombing of Shanghai, Mrs. Smith and the children were evacuated on the liner President Jefferson, and sent to Glendale, Cal., where they now live.

Several reports to the effect that Smith had been evacuated from China were made, but apparently he never left the war-torn area. His death was reported by the Reuter News Agency. A graduate of Simpson College, Smith leaves a brother, Professor Frederick C. Smith, dean of the University of Tennessee.

Mayor Tells Lions Of Survey Bills

The Mayor is executive secretary of the Citizens' Committee sponsoring the bills, which were passed by the Assembly in amended form recently and are now before the Senate.

at the lowest possible figure, consistent with good management."

Rainie said he favored a detention room at police headquarters for women. Under the present arrangements, a woman held as a material witness, or for any other reason, must be placed in a cell or sent to the House of Detention in Newark. He said a room now used for storage purposes could be furnished at a small cost.

Mayor W. H. Williams

Mayor William H. Williams as finance director, has been guiding the financial policies of Belleville for the past eight years.

Born in Massachusetts, he at an early age joined the thousands of aspiring youths in textile mills, and while working, attended schools in Boston for several years, studying engineering, law and accountancy. His first experience in governmental activities began with his appointment as Assistant Secretary to the Massachusetts State Commission on Economy.

His experience in the field of industrial engineering gained for him a position as general manager of one of the largest plants in the textile industry. His years in this industry developed a wide acquaintance throughout New England and the metropolitan area, and he is frequently called upon as a consultant in the printing, dyeing and engraving branches of textile work.

In 1923, he purchased his home at 82 Rossmore place and in 1926, former Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy appointed him as a member of the local Zoning Board. In 1930, he was elected to the Board of Commissioners and chosen to fill the position of finance director. This was at a time marking a low ebb in the financial standing and municipal credit of Belleville. A previous ten-year period of substantial public spending without corresponding payments of bills, followed by the serious business depression, presented to the taxpayers and officials such a serious financial situation that many people believed that Belleville could not avoid joining the list of 112 municipalities whose affairs were taken over by the New Jersey State Municipal Finance Commission. The struggle that followed is vivid history to the taxpayers of Belleville.

The constant and determined effort of Finance Director Williams to maintain the credit of Belleville and his insistence that every essential municipal and school service could be maintained if his financial policies were adopted, won the approval of the members of the previous Board of Commissioners, and since 1932,

Mayor Williams

Belleville's credit and prestige have constantly improved.

Criticized for the economies he insisted upon, opposed in his program that our municipal financial obligations must be honored, criticized for his baby bond plan by which $1,264,000 of baby bonds were issued to employees and merchants, his policies soon became recognized as a program that enabled Belleville to redeem all the baby bonds in twenty-two months and to emerge from a virtually bankrupt corporation to a position where Belleville is recognized as having a high credit rating and where Belleville bonds are selling as high as $112.00 for a $100.00 bond.

Desiring to continue the development of his financial policies, Finance Director Williams sought re-election in 1934, and in appreciation of his efforts in behalf of the town, the voters gave to him high vote of twenty-two candidates, and his elected colleagues honored him by appointing him as Mayor. Confronted with a Town Debt of over $6,000,000, of which seventy-five per cent was in an unfunded status, Mayor-Finance Director Williams followed his previous funding of $1,098,000 at four and one-half per cent, by funding $1,445,000 at three and three-quarters per cent and $1,055,000 at four per cent, so that today the average interest rate of the town municipal bonds stands at 3.95 per cent, among the leading municipalities of New Jersey. The value of these funding operations is proven by a decrease in the interest charges of 1937, and again in 1938, over $130,000 less interest in our 1937 and 1938 budgets than in the 1932 budget.

Since 1931, over a quarter million dollars has been expended on WPA projects, $136,000 has been expended for an urgently needed addition to our local high school, $259,000 of the Bradley Act deficit of School Funds and $450,000 of delinquent County and State taxes have all been added to the municipal debt—notwithstanding these additions, the town gross debt has been reduced from $6,289,900 to $4,989,531—a net reduction of $1,300,369—with our School, Town, Recreation, Library and Water Division activities all rendering services.

An advertising program undertaken by Mayor-Finance Director Williams has created unusually favorable publicity for Belleville and has brought to our town the Carson-Newton Company, Rowe Manufacturing Company, Upson-Walton Company, Crane Distributing Company, Pettit Paint Company and many home owners.

In addition to his supervision of the Department of Revenue and Finance, as a recognized authority on municipal finance, he is constantly called upon to address civic and governmental groups throughout the state. The municipal and financial management policies of Belleville have on several occasions been cited in newspaper editorials as examples of good municipal management.

Mayor-Finance Director Williams was selected as President of the New Jersey Municipal Finance Officers' Association for two years and was recently honored by appointment as Executive Secretary for the Princeton Local Government Survey Committee to develop a legislative program for better financial control for municipalities.

Analysis of the unusual qualifications of Mayor-Finance Director Williams to supervise the administration of municipal financial and management problems, and the record of his accomplishments for Belleville during eight very difficult years, are worthy of the consideration of the taxpayers on Election Day.

Hyde Would Combine Business - Judgment Candidate Is Gratified at Response With Which Workers Are Met

Working until late at night in behalf of Elmer S. Hyde, candidate for commissioner at the May 10 election, a flying squad of workers is canvassing each district in town.

"I am gratified with the response in my interest," said Mr. Hyde last night. "I only hope that the voters of Belleville have enough confidence in my ability to place me in office. I assure all that I will do my level best to keep Belleville in the honored place in the limelight which rightfully belongs to this town."

"The splendid campaign which is being conducted by all the candidates is worthy of note. Our town is a fine place in which to live and to work. I appreciate the hard work many of my friends did in the last campaign, when I was just a little shy of being elected. I trust that those who have since become acquainted with me and know my qualifications, will be in my camp, as workers. I have made many new friends who have assured me of their support and, who believe as I do, that Belleville is the town in which we are all concerned."

"I know of only one pledge to make—an honest, fair deal for all, combined with common sense and good business judgment. I offer just that in the interest of each and every taxpayer."

WRIT BITS by John E. Smith

ESTRANGED

She met an old man ninety-one,
With dog, on New York City street
And conversation was begun,
As each the other chose to greet.
"You must be fond of dogs," said she,
"To give this one such special care."
And then this incident spoke he,
Which seemed to her as rather rare.

"In my young manhood days back home,
On farm, near Sacramento, Cal.,
My dog and I would often roam,
And we together used to pal.
One day when father's chicken flock
Stirred 'round as usual in the yard,
Dog Touser eyed a Plymouth Rock,
In fun, chased after it quite hard."

"He caught this bird right by the wing,
Its feathers very soon were spread;
Toiled playfully with this frail thing
And lo! behold, poor chick was dead.
Father rushed to the house, with shout,
Brought out his shot-gun, feeling sore;

A moment—then a shot rang out,
And my dog Touser was no more."

"Into the house I then withdrew,
My spirit crushed, to say the least
Packed my effects, and journeyed to
Some destination in the East,
From that far day I never was Back home again—no time there spent;
Needless to say, I often pause,
And ponder o'er this incident."

Association Formed By Entekin Group Purpose Is Set Forth As "Constant Civic Interest"

A group of citizens, who have been associated with W. F. Entekin in many worth-while civic endeavors, met at the home of Howard J. Virtue, 30 Mertz avenue, Monday evening, to effect a permanent organization, which has grown out of the present election activities of this group, has been stated as one of "constant civic interest."

The following officers of the permanent organization were elected: President, Arthur F. Kunze; vice presidents, Mr. Virtue and Herbert V. Mihlon; treasurer, Charles H. Thompson, Jr., and secretary, Arthur F. Kneer.

Mr. Kunze, in elaborating upon the purposes of the group, said: "This group, or essentially the same group, has over a number of years been interested in everything worth while in Belleville. Within the workers in the present campaign are numbered those, who from the inception of the Community Chest have been amongst its most constant supporters. The Fourth of July celebration, the original Kindergarten Association, the Play School Association, and many of the P-T A's, were organized either as a result of the effort of our members or with them listed as active workers."

"Many attempts have been made to form civic organizations. The Civic League offered chances of perfecting a non-partisan organization, and, as such, it gave its contribution to the well-being of Belleville. The problem of what to do with children who are graduating each year from our public schools and who, because of current conditions, are unable to secure employment, the awakening of civic conscience in the town, which in itself has more major advantages than any of its sister communities, the sponsoring of those cultural things that today are dependent upon a little group of enthusiasts for their sustenance and constancy, and many other similar affairs need the continuous and constant support of some group of citizens. It is felt that there is always necessary an organization that will retain a constant civic interest beyond the period immediately preceding an election. It is for this purpose that we propose to maintain this organization for a better Belleville. Members will be added and additional committees formed as the activities of the organization expand. The present membership should be ten-fold and it should include people from all parts of town and embrace all those who are for a better, cleaner community."

Mr. Kunze announced the following committees: Membership, John H. Banta, chairman; B. N. Coleman, James Whiteford and George L. Frally; entertainment, Mr. Thompson, chairman; John Ray, Norman Strauss, George Davies and Robert J. Gardner, and youth development, James M. Lynch, chairman; Harry Bennett, Elmer Gibbs, J. R. Myers, Robert Bramhall and Harold C. Peterson.

The organization of a woman's auxiliary was discussed and a tentative committee suggested for this purpose.

YOUR LAND and MY LAND

By CHARLES E. POTTER, L.S.

Article Two.

Property owners frequently ask why an accurate survey of their land should be made before new garages or other structures are erected, feeling that their lines have been established for many years and are hence not subject to question.

The answer to this is that property lines, as fancied by land owners and their neighbors, can and do shift over varying periods of time. Of course, the true lines, to which the owners have legal titles, remain constant and this frequently leads to great expense to the unwise builder.

The average home owner, when building a garage or shed, seeks to erect it as close to the rear or side lines of his property as possible, in order to conserve space. Frequently this leads to disaster when he learns that he cannot mortgage or sell his buildings, since he does not own all of the land upon which they are erected, or a new or unfriendly neighbor insists that the encroaching structures be moved.

A line fence may have been constructed on the boundary many years ago and be accepted as the present boundary. Forgotten is the time it was blown down by a gale and subsequently erected a foot or more from its former location. Hedges marking lines, through growth or replacement, frequently creep one way or another. Even stakes driven in the past by surveyors are subject to movement, as they are frequently lifted and replaced by children and careless workmen.

Contrary to the opinions of most laymen, encroachments of buildings upon the land of surrounding property owners are not rare. Daily, surveyors find, when measuring and locating boundaries, that structures have been erected, at least in part, on property not rightfully belonging to their owners.

Such mistakes are expensive. If they do not lead to bitter neighborhood quarrels and litigation, they result in a home owner's not having a clear title to his property. This may not appear important to him at the time, particularly if he and his neighbor are on good terms and the neighbor condones the encroachments, but often results in future embarrassment and hardship.

Lawyers frequently, in settling estates, find that heirs suffer through lack of proper titles. Many widows, forced to sell their homes to provide living expenses after the death of a breadwinner, find that the receipt of badly needed funds is delayed because the deceased failed to build his home and other buildings solely on his own land.

WHAT THE NATION IS READING

AUTHORITATIVE NOTES TO SAVE YOU TIME IN FINDING GOOD BOOKS

Publishers are awakening to the fact that the present generation must live in a six-continent world rather than in the Europe-North America world of other generations. The first phase of this awakening brought a number of histories of separate countries—of China, of Japan, of India. Now begin to appear histories of regions. The Far East, it is realized, is a geographical and historical and economic and cultural unit, and unlike old Gaul, cannot be divided into "partes tres." Within two years have appeared G. Nye Steiger's "A History of the Far East" (Ginn and Company, N. Y., $4.75), Harold M. Vinacke's "A History of the Far East in Modern Times" (F. S. Crofts and Company, N. Y., $6.00), and Paul H. Clyde's "A History of Modern and Contemporary Far East" (Prentice-Hall, Inc., N. Y., $4.50).

This latter text of 858 pages limits itself to two features particularly: First, the impact of western imperialism upon the Far East in the 19th Century, and second, the challenge to western imperialism brought about by the rise of Japan to the position of a "so-called great power" in the 20th Century. To understand either of these one must know China—so, "the scene is essentially China, which in a very true sense has been called 'The Middle Kingdom'—the center of the Orient." Four opening chapters attempt to set the stage scenery for the 19th and 20th centuries' drama. The writing is factual and clear, aided by maps and pictures. It leaves the reader to make his own interpretations.

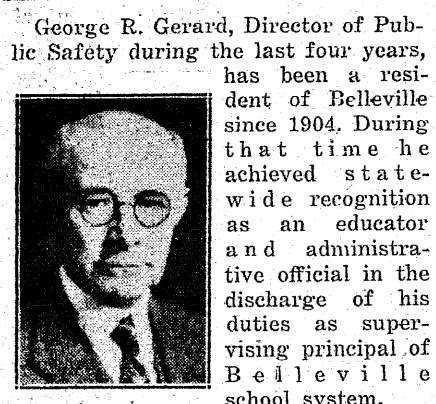

The Oxford University press has recently republished the well-known translation of the "Analects of Confucius" by the late Dr. Soothill, former missionary in China and later professor of Chinese Literature and Language in Oxford University. It was originally published in 1910 and soon went out of print. Now it is restored in a new and attractive and inexpensive edition (80c), edited his daughter, Lady Dorothea Hosie, whose own writings on China are classics.

With Palmer's translation of the "Koran" and Soothill's "Analects of Confucius," both in these delightful little volumes of the World's Classics Series, there is no excuse for a world-minded man if he does not share in the wisdom of the Wise Men of the East. These words of Confucius—sagest of the sages—simply mellow with time. "The Master said: 'He who works for his own interests will arouse much animosity.' The Master said: 'The man of honor thinks of his character; the inferior man of his position. (The man of honor desires justice; the inferior man favors.' The Master said: 'The wise man in his attitude toward the world has neither predilections nor prejudices. He is on the side of what is right.' These are three little gems found on one page (p. 31), yet they describe centuries of Chinese aspiration. The break-up of China is the break-up of these.

Probably the most unexpected and most amazing development in the post-war period is the rejuvenation of the Turkish people. The old decadent Turkish empire has become the "organized, well led, strong, and prosperous. This miracle of shifting a whole people from being the western frontier of Asia to being the eastern frontier of Europe is the work of one of the most remarkable men of history—the erect, soldierly Mustafa Kemal Pasha, now known as Kemal Ataturk (Father of the Turks). The story is told vividly in a biography of Hans Frobenius—in fact so vividly that it reads like a historical novel. (Kemal Ataturk, N. Y., Hillman-Curl, Inc., $3.00). It cannot have happened in just this way and with just these details—and yet, one knows that this is what happened. So we shall not quarrel with a book so easy to read, so informative, and to which the publishers have contributed so greatly with their skill.

G. R. Gerard

George R. Gerard, Director of Public Safety during the last four years, has been a resident of Belleville since 1904. During that time he achieved state-wide recognition as an educator and administrative official in the discharge of his duties as supervising principal of Belleville school system.

Born in Long Valley, Morris County, Mr. Gerard was reared in that wholesome rural atmosphere and while acquiring a formal education he assimilated most of those substantial, homely precepts which have influenced his judgment in public affairs. To this rigid early training, may be attributed his level-headed insistence upon not spending more than he—or the town—can afford.

Evidence of Mr. Gerard's insistence upon economy may be drawn from his record as supervising principal. Year after year during the twenty-seven years of his administration, the cost of education per pupil to Belleville ranged from $20 to $30 below that of neighboring municipalities, Essex County, and the state.

Recognition of his capabilities as an educator came when Mr. Gerard was elected president of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association. He also was made chairman of the founders' committee of the State Schoolmasters' Club.

Mr. Gerard's service to Belleville has not been limited to the schools and the town commission. During the World War he directed each of the Liberty and Victory Loan drives, he was director of Thrift Stamp sales in northern Essex County, chairman of the Belleville Red Cross chapter, chairman of the permanent Belleville Patriotic Committee, and had charge of the various patriotic demonstrations and parades.

Mr. Gerard has served as campaign manager of the Belleville Community Chest. He was a charter member and still is a director of the Welfare Federation and is a director of the Community Service Bureau. He is a past president of the Belleville Rotary Club and a director of the Central Building & Loan Association.

Standing on his record of public service and as head of the Public Safety Department, Mr. Gerard is justly proud of the fact that the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, in a recent survey, determined that Belleville spends less than other New Jersey towns of comparable size for police and fire protection and that Belleville's crime toll and fire loss are among the lowest.

Forrest P. Kaiser

The resume of Forrest P. Kaiser's life is as colorful as that of Abraham Lincoln. He was born in New Orleans 67 years ago, a descendant of a prominent old Louisiana family, the members of which contributed much to the commercial and civic growth of that state.

His father, a drummer boy in the Civil War, became a prominent influence in political activities. His father before him saw service in the War of 1812. In 1896, Forrest joined the State Militia and served for three years during the Spanish-American War.

At fourteen, he had an unquenchable thirst for knowledge, and an abundance of ambition. After school, he worked until 9 o'clock, learning the fine points of shoe manufacturing, and after that, diligently studied the works of Shakespeare by candle light.

However, at seventeen, the shoes and Shakespeare were temporarily discarded. The bequest of a relative suddenly made him the owner of a wallpapering, painting and picture framing business.

Between times he studied law in the office of Judge Louis Paquet. The dramatics of law renewed his interest in Shakespeare and he played many prominent roles which included Casca in Julius Caesar and the ghost in Hamlet.

By this time he had money enough to take unto himself a wife. He married a St. Louis girl. They were blessed with two children, who both became school teachers.

Seeking new fields to conquer, Forrest sold his business and moved north, first to New York City and then to East Orange, where he carried on his occupation as a decorator. There he made many friends and entered politics, becoming a member of the Democratic County Committee and Democratic leader. He was nominated twice for the mayorship.

He was also offered clerkship of the civil district court and the Assembly in Essex County.

Michael A. Flynn

Twenty-nine years and six months without a complaint from a resident of this town against him is the record Michael J. Flynn made as chief of police of Belleville. He was born in Bridge street, Belleville, when there were no numbers on the houses. He attended St. Peter's Parochial School, leaving there when thirteen years old. His first job was winding bobbins in the DeWitt Wire Cloth Company. For seventeen years he was employed in the Heller Brothers Steel Mill, Newark, as a roller, when a man had to be a man to hold down a job of that type. The chief was a famous baseball player with the old Woodstocks.

In 1906, after a strike at the Heller Brothers plant, he went to the Belleville Copper Rolling Mill for only a few months.

In November of that year he was appointed a constable here with Sergeant Charles Pearl. Three months later, January, 1907, the Belleville police force was organized with Chief Flynn, Sergeant Pearl, William Swinn and Joseph Hannon. The last two now are dead.

Chief Flynn's biggest case was the breaking up of the arson ring, in Silver Lake section, when eleven convictions were obtained, but only five served sentences.

He retired as police chief July 26, 1936.

Double tragedy visited his home in 1918 when word came that his son, Michael, was killed in France and at the same time his daughter, Theresa, died at his home, 24 Van Rensselaer street.

He has besides his wife, who was Miss Mary Conroy, two sons, John J., a patrolman on the police force, and Joseph, a lithographer, at Sweeney Lithograph Company, and two daughters, Mrs. Everett Sooy, 21 Howard place, and Margaret, who lives at his home.

officer of the Knights of Honor, a fraternal organization now defunct.

With a keen understanding of municipal government and a wealth of experience, plus a credulous reputation, Forrest P. Kaiser offers himself as a candidate.

BIOGRAPHIES OF CANDIDATES

ANENT BIOGRAPHIES

The Belleville News offers weekly this page for candidates to set forth biographies. Each candidate may write his own biography and it will appear from now until election on this page. This is in keeping with the policy of this newspaper to maintain its independent attitude and to show a fairness to candidates and taxpayers, alike, who are interested in municipal election on May 10. This newspaper takes no part in preparation of the biographies and leaves it to the candidates to set forth as fully as they desire, within reasonable limits, what they have accomplished. We believe that such biographies, if properly prepared, will afford Belleville voters a better opportunity to study the qualifications of each one who seeks public office. It is our aim to see, that as far as this newspaper is concerned, Belleville's municipal campaign is conducted on a high level. We are pleased to offer this service for the good of the town.

Elmer S. Hyde

Elmer S. Hyde, 275 Little street, is a highly successful broker with offices at 87 Maiden lane, New York City. He specializes in surety bonds. He is president of Elmer S. Hyde, Inc., which firm he organized and developed to the largest of its kind in the United States. He is also president of the Beverly Corporation, and is a member of the finance board of the New Jersey Baptist Convention.

Born in New York City, February 6, 1897, Mr. Hyde attended public schools there and reached the top of the ladder the hard way, starting in business at thirteen for the Illinois Surety Company at $2 per week. When he was fifteen he was soliciting business for the same company and continued in that line until the time of the World War, when he enlisted in the 417th Telegraph Battalion, which immediately found its way to France, where Mr. Hyde was engaged in much of the severe fighting. After the Armistice he went into Germany with the Army of Occupation, returning to America in May, 1919.

At that time he continued in business where he left off and in 1921 married Miss Jessie Barber of New York. The couple moved immediately to Belleville and took up residence in Little street, where they purchased the home which they now occupy. Subsequently Mr. Hyde purchased other property in Belleville.

The same year he started his own business, which was successful from the beginning. From that year until the present not only has Mr. Hyde been active civically, but his wife also has played a part in Belleville's civic growth.

Mrs. Hyde is vice-president of the Woman's Club and has been interested with her husband in many charitable projects in Belleville and elsewhere in the state, as well as church activities. Mrs. Hyde is president of the Newark Home for the Aged. Mr. Hyde is president of the board of trustees of Grace Baptist Church and has played a very important part in its financial affairs.

Mr. Hyde is a member of Belleville Post, American Legion; Newark Athletic Club and fraternal organizations. He is a member and one of the organizers of the Community Service Bureau and president of the Men's Club of Grace Baptist Church.

The Hydys have seven lovely children, Helen, Judith, Margo, Audrey, James Irwin, Arthur and Beth.

Joseph King

Commissioner Joseph King, director of Public Affairs, is a former Essex County freeholder and has long been active in civic affairs.

During the past four years Commissioner King has served the town as head of the health, welfare and building departments. He also has had direction over the Shade Tree Commission and the Zoning Board of Adjustment.

For nearly four years Commissioner King has served as building inspector without extra compensation, effecting a saving for the town of over $10,000 in this department, alone. He has inaugurated other economies and has increased efficiency in all town departments under his administration.

Perhaps Commissioner King's most difficult task has been that of handling public welfare. Early in 1936 when the full load of the relief burden was placed on the town, Commissioner King assumed responsibility of caring for those in need. Administration of relief in Belleville has been effective and efficient under his direction.

Soon after his election to the Town Commission in 1934, Commissioner King tackled the problem of eliminating dumping grounds in the Silver Lake and Valley sections, which has long been a source of annoyance to Belleville residents. Within six months the dumping grounds were completely filled in and covered over with earth at his direction. He has since insisted that dumping of garbage be prohibited within the limits of the town.

Although Commissioner King devotes much of his time to his duties as town commissioner he also has other civic and business interests. As a member of the firm of Davidson and King, builders, real estate and insurance company, and as president of the Clover Building and Loan Association and the Belleville Realty Investment Corporation, he has had much to do with the development of Belleville.

Commissioner King is a director of the First National Bank of Belleville and a charter member of the Belleville Welfare Federation. He has been a director of the Community Service Bureau and has served in every Community Chest drive. He also is a past president of the Belleville Rotary Club.

A resident of Belleville nearly thirty years, Commissioner King makes his home at 28 Malone avenue with his wife and son, a high school student.

Andrew Boyajian

Andrew Boyajian, 246 Washington avenue, who conducts a tailor shop at that address, was born in Lowell, Mass., thirty-one years ago. He has been in Belleville since he was seven years old, attending Public School No. 1, Belleville High School, Class of 1925; New Jersey Law School for two years and Columbia University, College of Fine Arts.

Mr. Boyajian worked for Westinghouse, Belleville Base Plant, three years and then entered the tailoring business which was conducted by his mother, Mrs. Ponia Boyajian. He has written for the Hairenik, a newspaper devoted to interest of Armenians in this country. He also wrote poetry and short stories for several magazines.

During the twentieth anniversary of the Sinclair Oil Refining Company he wrote the technical copy for their minstrel show of the air.

His only effort at writing a scenario was sent to Universal Studios. He heard no more of the incident.

Mr. Boyajian says: "I want fair representation for the younger element in town. This group represents the majority in voting lists and should be ably represented by a young man."

He has besides his mother, two brothers, Joseph, Maplewood, and Sarkis, Arlington, Mass.

Edward G. Smith

Edward G. Smith, a citizen and taxpayer in Belleville during the last twelve years, was born of humble parents on a farm at St. Mary's, Pa., on May 10, 1894. His father died in 1899, leaving his mother with seven children who had to struggle along at tremendous odds to make a livelihood.

Edward, who was a precocious child, was the only one in the family to graduate from high school. Being conscientious, energetic and persistent he finished high school with the unique distinction of neither being absent or tardy during four years, although he was forced to walk to and from school a distance of three miles, daily. Besides his studies he helped with his share of the daily chores, morning and evening.

Upon graduation he completed a special course at Penn State College. He taught school four years at the meager salary of $40 per month. During vacation and off days, he was employed as clerk and carrier in the post office.

Then came the World War. Mr. Smith offered his services and enlisted in the U. S. Regular Army. His promotion was rapid. Within eleven months he was promoted from private to sergeant, first class. He successfully passed a rigid test for entrance to the Officers' Training Camp at Jacksonville, Fla. Had hostilities not ceased on that memorable day, November 11, 1918, Sergeant Smith, undoubtedly, would have been commissioned. His handling of men and conscientious efforts in saving government supplies gained for him the respect and confidence of every officer and enlisted man in the camp.

Mr. Smith has been conducting a successful restaurant business in Forest Hill section of Newark the last seventeen years and attributes his success to his diligent and tireless efforts and irresistible command of confidence and respect.

Mr. Smith lives with his family at 232 Ralph street. He is the proud father of three children, Edward, Jr., 14; Marilyn, two and one-half; and Richard, one. Mr. Smith will be forty-four on election day.

Patrick A. Waters

Seeking his fourth term on May 10, Patrick A. Waters stands out as a commissioner who has, at all times, held the welfare of Belleville and its citizens as the paramount issue in every controversy that has arisen during his incumbency.

Born sixty-two years ago on the same spot at which he now resides and from which he has never moved, his name and the name of his brother, John Waters, who served as Mayor for twelve years has, during that period, spelled progress to the Town of Belleville.

His mother and father settled here seventy years ago in 1868 and the family has since then kept an uninterrupted residence.

Commissioner Waters has served as Director of the Department of Public Works for the twelve years he has been in office and is justly proud of his accomplishments during that period. He points with pride to the pamphlet recently published by the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce showing the per capita cost for the operation of his department as the second lowest in the State of New Jersey. This cost of $1.61 per person is a decided contrast to a neighboring municipality with a cost for similar functions of $3.05.

The commissioner has the enviable record of being employed by the Eastwood-Neally Corporation of Belleville for the past forty-five years and is now superintendent of the weaving division of this plant.

His charitable works are known from one end of the town to the other and many a desperate family have been sent back on the road to happiness by the aid which he has always so freely given.

Living in Belleville all his life, working in Belleville all his working life, and serving Belleville conscientiously all his political life, he can be justly termed as a real Belleviller in every sense of the word.

Samuel Figurelli

Samuel Figurelli, who served for a full term as recorder, was appointed to that post when he was 24. He has been a life-long resident of Belleville, having attended public schools here and graduated from Belleville High School in 1918, after completing a four-year course in three years. Death of his father, while the former recorder was in his junior year of high school, placed the burden of supporting his mother and family on Sam's shoulders, during the World War, when his brother was in service of Uncle Sam.

Mr. Figurelli, from the time he was a youngster, wanted to be a lawyer. He says he wanted to "champion the cause of the underprivileged and neglected," because his own life had been such a difficult one. During his high school career he worked from 6 o'clock in the morning until 8, when he would dash off to school. Without any study periods in his last two years of high school, he always knew his lessons by sitting up studying, sometimes as late as 4 o'clock in the morning. After school and until 9 o'clock at night, Mr. Figurelli also worked. After graduation he attended New Jersey Law School, from which he was graduated as an attorney, later becoming a master in chancery and counselor-at-law, thereby qualifying to practice before all the courts of the state. During his law school days he also worked long hours, before and after school, and walked many miles, through lack of transportation facilities to and from his place of study. Perseverance won for him and he passed his bar exams the first time, as he was later to do as a master in chancery.

Back in high school days Mr. Figurelli was called "dependable Sam" by his teachers, because, despite his handicaps, he always had his lessons completed on time.

He has been a practicing lawyer the last fifteen years with offices in Newark.

He was a member of the high school debating team and won in prize declamation contests. After graduation he became president of the Belleville High School Alumni Association. He was interested in the original Parent-Teacher movement in Belleville, almost twelve years ago, has been connected with all civic movements, interested in welfare matters and active in the Community Chest drives. He is a member of several civic and fraternal organizations, including the Belwood Park Improvement Association, in which section he lives.

Mr. Figurelli is thirty-eight. His wife's name is Marie and the couple have two children, Anthony, six, and Paul, four. His mother, Jané, seventy-seven years old, resides with him.

W. D. Clark

Director of Parks and Public Property William D. Clark has lived in Belleville thirty-five years, at 121 Floyd street, moving here when there were only one or two houses in the entire Greylock section. He has been interested in civic affairs ever since he came to Belleville, organizing the Greylock Hose Company, Greylock Improvement Association and being the first president of the Board of Trade.

In 1915, Director Clark became the first president of the North Belleville Building & Loan Association and has been its only president since then. He is a member of the Rod and Gun Club and enjoys outdoor life, especially fishing activities. Belleville's town ambulance, the best equipment of its kind, was provided the town by the ingenuity of Director Clark, without any cost to taxpayers.

Director Clark is proud of the fact that his children, who were raised in Belleville, attended Belleville schools, are all married and all now live in Belleville.

Mr. Clark, who completed forty years in the employ of the Fidelity Casualty Insurance Company, New York, on January 3, is an executive officer of that firm.

The director is a firm believer in Belleville.

His public life includes two terms as Director of Public Safety, head of the police and fire departments, and one term as Director of Parks and Public Property. He feels that this experience is invaluable to any one seeking public office.

Library Exhibits Fine Arts Display Elementary Schools Present Second Annual Creative Project

The fine arts work of the children in the elementary schools of Belleville is now on exhibition at the Belleville Free Public Library and will continue until April 15.

All the work has been arranged by Miss Helen P. Simpson, elementary art supervisor, with the idea of showing the development from the kindergarten's symbolic forms through the pseudo realism of the children from eight to eleven years, to the realism of the years immediately following.

The boy in the picture from the kindergarten, taught by Miss Flynn at No. 8 School, is a different form from that of the "Deep Sea Diver" by the eighth grader, Donald White, at No. 7 School. One, however, is impossible without the other.

"It is most important that the parents know what children can express and the form in which they express themselves," says Miss Simpson. Fathers and mothers should be in a position to encourage their efforts. The more they see, the more they will help in the development of these children through praise and understanding.

"The pictures give some idea of the group work that is done in the art field. The children will later have to work with others and it is important they experience this before they are too mature to be able to adjust to other people. The pictures from Shakespeare's 'Midsummer Night's Dream,' done by Miss Dorothy Davis' eighth grade class at No. 5 School, and those from No. 4 School, the 'Desert Life,' by the fourth graders, Mrs. Roll's class, and the series of pictures by the children in Mrs. Mara DeLeeuw's fourth grade give a varied idea of the children's reaction to material correlated with the other subject matter in the school.

"The children are given the opportunity from time to time to choose what they would like to draw. Hence, we find such timely things as 'The Big Apple' by Jane Hicks at No. 3 School; 'Playing Outdoors,' Suzanne Seiler, No. 7 School; 'Ice Skating,' Ludwig Lukowiak, No. 9. They are learning to live in democracy and hence should have some chance for free expression.

"Decorative objects, as the box, by Lois Webber, No. 5 School; the painted gourd, Robert Pudney, No. 9, were painted with tempera paint and shellacked. Book ends by the sixth graders in class of Miss Helen Just, show what they can do with wood carving. The soap carving gives some appreciation of sculpture. The metal work from Miss Abbott's class at No. 9, gives them some idea of repousse.

"Helen Bendell, at No. 1 School, has given a delightful interpretation of the poem, 'Miles Standish.' Music, as well as poetry, forms a source of art expression in the schools.

"Finger painting, which is a comparatively new medium in school art work, has been done with considerable fine results in the classes of Miss Dorothy Ferris and Miss Evelyn Racioppi, at No. 2 and 10 Schools, respectively. With this the children are entirely free, since their fingers can move over the paper and the picture changed several times before it is dry.

"Art is an integral part of the program through the cooperation and interest of the various school principals and teachers."

Parties Discontinued
Belleville Political and Social Club has discontinued until next fall, parties which have been held each week at headquarters, 280 Belleville avenue.

Conditioning Your Hair for Spring

By Eleanor Rowlands

If you are planning on a spring permanent, a few conditioning treatments beforehand will prove a real beauty investment. Remember that spasmodic attention won't achieve your object, but a day in and day out, week in and week out routine will soon produce a real improvement, so that your permanent will "take" more easily than ever before. A thorough brushing night and morning will provide the necessary stimulation to send the blood coursing through the scalp while the use of a good shampoo and hair tonic are all important.

Shampoo your hair once every week or ten days, first using the tonic to loosen dirt or dandruff. One which comes in an easy to handle bottle with a pin-point opening which can be tipped against the scalp and run easily through the hair without parting, is a great time saver. Now, place the fingers flat against the scalp and rotate circular fashion until the scalp tingles.

Even if you don't use a tonic daily apply it before your shampoo. A liquid shampoo is most convenient and one of the new foamy oil type which combines an oil treatment with a rich foamy cleansing lather, even in the hardest water is ideal. Wet the hair first, apply a small quantity of the shampoo and in a trice you have a rich cleansing lather. Rinse and repeat the lathering, then rinse again. You need no after rinse of vinegar or lemon as this new type of preparation is so processed as to eliminate the necessity for such rinses.

The combination of oil and cleanser leaves the hair soft, shining and easily manageable, while this simple daily routine plus your weekly shampoo will soon bring results in added luster, lovely highlights and a texture as soft and smooth as satin. Your hair will acquire new life and vitality so that your permanent will be more natural in appearance, more lasting and easier to manage than heretofore. Worth spending a few minutes a day to produce such results, don't you think?

FOOD MARKET

Advice-

GOOD cooking, and the free use of EGGS and BUTTER used to be synonymous. The woman who enjoys cooking may well be trying out foods rich in eggs and butter for both these foods are unusually reasonable, several cents cheaper than a year ago at this time. Sponge and angel cakes and custards use eggs but not butter, pound cake uses both, Hollandaise sauce, so delicious with many seasonable vegetables and with fish, also combines these foods.

Most Vegetables Reasonable
Most VEGETABLES are reasonable and promise to be more so. Those that are particularly good with Hollandaise sauce are ARTICHOKES, ASPARAGUS, BROCCOLI, CAULIFLOWERS and SPINACH. This sauce is not nearly so difficult to prepare as many people suppose—just avoid overcooking, and, if it should curdle, stir in a little cream or top milk and it will "come back."

ICEBERG LETTUCE is still high but BOSTON is of good quality and reasonable. ROMAINE or COS LETTUCE is also a good variety to use this week.

CARROTS are particularly cheap and good. PEAS have been higher but new Southern crop peas are expected to bring lower prices shortly.

Oranges, Apples, Grapefruit All Cheap

ORANGES and GRAPEFRUIT prices continue low and the fruit is of excellent quality. It is not only a good time to enjoy them but they help prevent bouts of spring fever. Although in average years the APPLE season tapers off after the end of March large supplies of cheap good quality fruit are still available.

The PINEAPPLE season is at its height. Louisiana STRAWBERRIES are neither as plentiful nor as cheap as the earlier Florida berries.

Fish Reasonable
A wide choice of FISH is available at reasonable prices. Fresh PORK prices have come down a little while BEEF prices have increased sufficiently to raise retail.

Here is a menu made up of seasonable foods.

Appetizer Salad
Roast Loin of Pork Apple Sauce
Baked Sweet Potatoes
Broccoli Hollandaise

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

EGGS and butter are both considerably cheaper than last year at this time and reasonable for any season. This makes it advisable to use them freely for table and cooking purposes.

Many varieties of fish are available at reasonable cost. Pork is somewhat cheaper while beef and lamb are higher than they were last week. Boston lettuce and cos lettuce or romaine are both better values than iceberg. Asparagus is more plentiful and less expensive. Broccoli, cabbage, carrots, spinach and tomatoes are excellent values.

Scout Work Gets High School Job

Training Here Beneficial to Harry Schnieber As Teacher

Because he was once a Belleville Boy Scout, Harry Schnieber, formerly of Preston street, has been successful in obtaining a position as a high school teacher in South Jersey.

This was the determining factor among the candidates. When the superintendent of schools in the town, in which Harry now teaches, scanned applications, he noted only one had scout training. The one was Schnieber, whose parents still reside at the Preston street address.

Harry received his tenderfoot test from W. Douglas Clark, Jr., local scout commissioner, twelve years ago and then went on to become scoutmaster of Troop No. 86, Grace Baptist Church. He now has his own troop in the town in which he is teaching. Harry visited Mr. Clark recently to tell this story.

Dodge Dealers Report Increased Sales

Used Car Exchange Week Boosted Turnover 35 Per Cent

Reports of rising business activities continue to come from the Dodge Division of Chrysler Corporation. Figures tabulating retail deliveries of passenger cars and trucks made by Dodge dealers during the week ending March 12, show a gain of 7.3 per cent over the records of the two preceding weeks, which were marked by appreciable upturns of their own.

In an analysis of the week's overall gains in sales reported by Dodge dealers, Dodge passenger cars lead with 9.6 per cent, closely followed by Dodge commercial cars and trucks which register an increase of 9.2 per cent.

An especially bright spot in the latest Dodge sales report is made by the figures of the week's used vehicle deliveries, which are given as 13,128 compared to 9,707 the week before, the gain being 35.2 per cent.

To up-going sales figures Mr. A. Van DerZee, general sales manager of Dodge, adds the information that factory orders received from dealers rose to a point enabling the company, in the week ending March 13, to increase its shipments 28.6 per cent over the level of the preceding week.

The gains made in Dodge dealers' deliveries in the latest report week are said to be fairly evenly distributed so as to affect eleven of the sixteen sales regions. Continued surveys made among the company's dealers are said to indicate mounting buying interest on the part of the public and a continuation of the upswing into higher sales brackets.

THE OUTDOOR WORLD

By Bob Bangert

Now that spring is here we all forget the signs that we had been watching for so eagerly. For instance, I'll bet some of you ran out on the front lawn every morning to see if the crocuses were coming up yet. And others of you walked miles looking for a glimpse of a robin. Robins are considered a sure sign of spring anywhere. But did you ever notice the color of a robin? "Sure, you say, he has a red breast." The next time you see a robin on your lawn, study him. Watch his actions and look at his colors. First you will notice that he is about nine or ten inches long. He has a reddish brown breast and a black back. He has a yellow beak, and white under tail coverts. Watch how he stands on your lawn looking through the grass for worms. Down goes his bill into the ground, and after a slight struggle, comes up with the worm. She flies away to her young with the worm. Notice that as she flies away you can see two tips of white on each side of her tail. Then there's another sure sign of spring. This is the Forsythia Bush. It can't wait until winter is over to start blooming that exquisite yellow. But the surest sign of any is too see someone walking around in a daze. Half asleep and wanting to lie down under some large tree and watch Mother Nature in her work. Ah! SPRING!

Speaking of robins, did you ever watch a robin build her nest? The beginning of a robin's nest is very interesting. Much strong grass, fine straw, leaves and rootlets are brought War solves nothing, but lays the groundwork for bigger and better wars.—Alfred E. Smith.

NOT AS IT LOOKED

When Joseph Dunn, civic chairman of the Belleville Taxpayers' and Civic Association was quoted Tuesday in a Newark newspaper, that he had said Monday night at a meeting of the association his committee would investigate departments at the Town Hall and expected "to find things" it appears, from later developments that the wrong construction was placed on the chairman's remarks.

At a special meeting of the Town Commission Tuesday, Mayor William H. Williams questioned Mr. Dunn, who was present, as to the authenticity of the remark. Mr. Dunn replied that he thought he had been correctly quoted, but his committee did not "expect to find anything crooked," but possibly some things that might bring about economies.

The board is glad to accept all recommendations for economy, but there is no denying the fact that "cold type," such as set forth the story of the Monday meeting of the association, without the qualifying explanation of Mr. Dunn Tuesday, created in the minds of many readers of the newspaper that something might, as Mayor Williams put it, "not be nice." Belleville, thank goodness, has been removed from the front pages of the dailies as a town to be shunned. Let's not inadvertently place it back in the same spot. The town is moving ahead, as few in New Jersey are. Let's keep the ball rolling in the right direction. If our statements have a constructive background, let's make sure that, where type is concerned, our meaning is fully explained.

MIDGET RACING

Belleville commissioners can thank their lucky stars that they have no midget auto racing track to contend with, as have our neighboring town fathers up Nutley way. While some may not look at it from the light of a "headache," it virtually is such when twelve persons, including two drivers and ten spectators are involved in one afternoon in accidents, fortunately none fatally injured.

Last week the midget cars, which are labeled "doodlebugs," had their inaugural at the Nutley velodrome, which previously had opened its doors to the less thrilling bicycle and motor-paced races, and on several occasions, boxing bouts, one of which ended in a general free for all, curbing for a time any further permits. The "doodlebugs" took Nutley, Belleville and surrounding towns by storm. Each available seat was occupied and thousands were turned away last Sunday, cold as it was. It is our guess, and this, of course, is only one's opinion, that the accident, instead of keeping away patrons, will draw even bigger crowds the next time the races are held, which, if the weather does not interfere, will be Sunday. It is common knowledge that the rank and file crave excitement and thrills, and this veritably was poured into their laps last Sunday, as the midgets spluttered about the track. Accidents are deplored, but it is accidents such as occurred Sunday that draw crowds.

The intense interest of fans was shown when the ambulance made two trips to St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, races meanwhile being halted and activity suspended, according to rules. Nary a fan left a seat, which reaches the 'nth degree of interest—or something. According to promoters, the guard rail will be reinforced this week as a further safeguard to fans. Here is hoping that there will be no further crashes, although this is almost too much to expect. At any rate, the situation is Nutley's problem, which bids fair to become a real problem.

WE OWE MUCH TO THE MOTOR VEHICLE

With the return of Spring the family automobile receives increasing attention and once again our highways become dotted with recreation seekers. Older members of the family, recalling pre-automobile days when recreation was confined largely to a game of croquet on the front lawn unless the family could afford an expensive and lengthy train trip to some resort, may be aware of a few of the benefits brought by motor transportation. It is doubtful, however, if most of us ever give the matter much thought.

Too little realized by the general public is the extent to which New Jersey's agricultural, industrial and recreational resources are dependent upon the motor vehicle. Few, for example, know that thirty-four per cent of our communities are not served by railroads and must rely entirely upon motor transportation for both pleasure and commercial transportation.

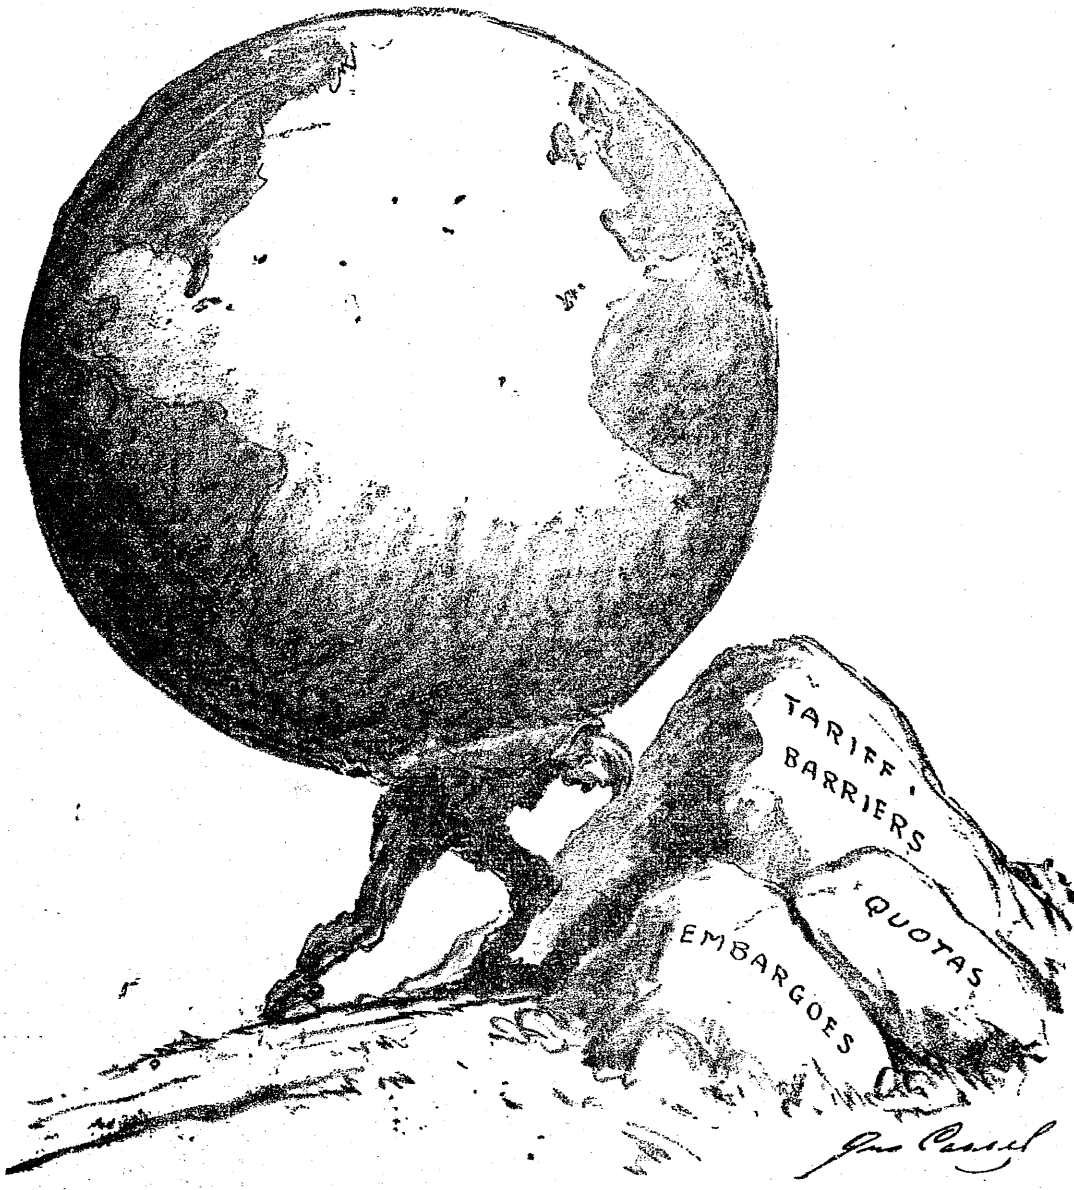

New Jersey, although urban residents may not realize it, enjoys vast annual agricultural production, the value of which is outranked only by the State's oil industry. Both may thank the motor vehicle for their development. New Jersey's annual milk shipments by motor vehicle to Philadelphia and New York exceed 180 million quarts. Since 100 per cent of all New Jersey milk shipments to Philadelphia and 95.2 per cent of the shipments to New York depend upon motor trucks, it may be seen that our dairy farmers would be distinctly out of luck without highway transportation. Two million cases of eggs and seventy-two per cent of their fruits and vegetables also are shipped by truck into New York and Philadelphia each year by New Jersey farmers.

Shipment of other agricultural produce and industrial goods both from and into New Jersey is dependent to an equally surprising degree upon motor transportation. Our seashore and lake resorts also have benefited greatly from the motor vehicle, bringing not only the visitors which are their life blood, but also food and other commodities at reasonable prices.

Besides enabling the rapid industrial, agricultural and recreational expansion of the State, the motor vehicle is second to none as a contributor of tax revenues for support of our State government. That it has contributed its fair share and a good deal more in addition is apparent from the fact that in recent years more than $80,000,000 of motorists' tax revenues have been diverted to non-highway purposes and the bulk of the annual State highway budget comprises general items.

Both the commercial and passenger motor vehicle truly have been our benefactors and should be considered as such rather than merely as a stimulant for abusive language when the traffic gets heavy. Let's keep this thought in mind as we start putting more mileage on our speedometers during the welcome Spring season.

THE ROAD TO RECOVERY

THIS WEEK

By "GUARDIAN"

The views expressed in the column, "This Week," are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

Though a couple of weeks ago we promised to remember the beautiful, warm, sunny days which we were having when the cold, raw days returned, it is a bit difficult to take our own medicine when it comes in the form of a post-season snow storm as disagreeable as the one we experienced on Wednesday and Thursday. Let's hope that it will be the last time we will need to say, "Hello" to the overshoes and heavy overcoats before next winter comes.

There seems to have been some sound thinking done in connection with the Reorganization Bill before the Congress—which has been our theme for the last two weeks. We must not let partisanship or a prejudice for or against our President influence our thinking blindly in connection with this proposed legislation. We have consistently taken the position that reorganization of our federal government was certainly needed, and that, if a bill could be passed which kept to the Congress the power to act as a check upon the President—which power is theirs under the Constitution and should continue to be theirs—we would vigorously support such legislation.

It now seems to be indicated that this is just what is going to happen, and that changes by executive order of the governmental administration must be approved by a majority of the Congress. That is Democracy—that is representative government—and, if the bill is finally amended so as clearly to provide for such control by Congress, then in our judgment it should be passed.

Of course, once it is passed with such a proviso, we will all witness a pretty demonstration of log rolling and of lobbying by various departments which will lose position or appropriations or prestige by being transferred or consolidated with some other department. But that is politics! Probably there will be so much of this that little really effective reorganization can be secured. Let us hope not!

What a joy it would be to see a man elected President of these United States of ours, who was dedicated simply to the task of doing the very best job he could do without any regard as to the effect that job would have upon the voters of his political party and without having constantly in his mind the necessity of keeping that party in power and of getting himself re-elected! Somehow it doesn't seem to work out that way. Men with the best of intentions are elected into positions of political power and, more or less, become intoxicated with that power and pull their punches because of that. Possibly that is the penalty we pay for the two-party system which seems to be a necessity in a democracy.

"Why don't you take sides in the Belleville Commission election?" we were asked the other day. What is there to take sides about? So far as we can see it, there are no real issues in this campaign, save the personal preference of the voters for the gentlemen who are running for office. There are no real issues—and that is why this election is one of the tamest in our recollection. The compulsory features of Chapter 60 exact certain requirements in the financial operation of this town that cannot be changed no matter who is on the Town Commission, and that takes away an issue which is always uppermost in the mind of the voter.

There have—praise be—been no scandals in the present administration; there has been very little external evidence of friction between the present commissioners. They have managed pretty well to keep Belleville out of the headlines, save where those headlines were favorable, and the result of it all is that there is no issue about which to get steamed up.

There are some mighty good candidates in the field, and, so far as we can learn, they are making a dignified, high-type of campaign, which cannot help but react to the prestige of Belleville. May they continue to conduct their campaign on the same plane—just as the present commissioners have successfully carried on a dignified administration of their duties during their incumbency.

Everyone owes it to themselves to appraise the qualifications of the various candidates and to vote for the men whom they feel would best serve as the municipal trustees of their interests during the coming four years. Any one who can but does not vote, does not deserve the privileges of citizenship, and the efforts of every interested citizen should be directed toward getting out the largest possible vote.

Yours 'til next week,
"GUARDIAN."

CLEAN CUT CAMPAIGN

Belleville's municipal election is just about five weeks off. To date a dignified campaign, devoid of harsh words and personalities, has been conducted by all the candidates, which produces a condition that augurs well for the future of Belleville. None of the so-called political "mud" has been hurled in any sector—and none is required or wanted. The tempo of the campaign evidences the fact that Belleville has been capably managed. Each candidate has a perfect right to think that he is qualified to manage the affairs of the town, capably and well. To assist all candidates in setting forth qualifications, this newspaper has devoted a page each week for biographies. Voters have a right to know the qualifications of all who are in the race. It is a healthy sign from a civic standpoint when a clean-cut campaign arrives. Belleville is marching forward.

PIQUANT POLITICS

By MEADOR WRIGHT

The views expressed in the column, "Piquant Politics," are entirely those of Mr. Wright and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

PERSISTENT rumors are afloat that the Clean Government leadership of William H. Seely of Newark, is in jeopardy. Substantiation of these reports is difficult, but there is considerable evidence to support them. It is known that Seely is very much worried about the turn of affairs within the past three weeks. In this brief period a potentially powerful opposition movement has come into being. The movement of such a movement goes back further, of course, but it was only during the month of March that it began to loom as a serious threat to Clean Government hegemony over the Republican party in Essex.

A number of factors contributed toward changing a standing minor threat against Clean Government into a major one. The first was opposition within the Clean Government official family to the proposed freeholder slate. This opposition was led by Sheriff James A. McRell, who has long sought a place on the slate for himself. McRell's activity would most likely have made little headway had not his forces been joined by those of Freeholders Philip Lindeman and Philip Van Dune, both of whom were denied places on the tentative Clean Government slate. Although he does not expect to win a place himself, Van Dune was chagrined at being dropped without explanation. His feelings were shared by Lindeman, a veteran of the original Clean Government movement of eighteen years ago. Unlike Van Dune, however, Lindeman has definite hopes of being elected freeholder for a seventh term, even though he would be well past eighty when that term would have expired. McRell originally proposed that William H. Rawson be the candidate for sheriff, and that he, himself, should take Rawson's place on the freeholder slate. Politically shrewd and alert, Rawson quickly saw the danger of acquiescing in this scheme, and started a personal campaign to line up support in his home city of Bloomfield and elsewhere, that Rawson's inclusion on the slate eventually decided upon is all but assured.

The determined sheriff next made contact with Lindeman, angry at the fact that, despite his eighteen years of service, he had not (so he claimed) even been consulted about running, or about who might succeed him. Here, the standing opposition to Clean Government came into the picture in the person of William C. Cope of Glen Ridge, leader of the last open campaign to defeat Clean Government at the polls. Cope's number one protegee in politics is white-haired and urbane Walter D. Head of Montclair, widely known as headmaster of the famed Montclair Academy. Head was one of Cope's candidates for freeholder in 1935, and his name was bracketed with those of Lindeman and McRell on a tentative opposition freeholder slate.

While these things were going on, an Italian group led by Joseph Giuliano, was persistently lining up strength to have the latter named as the Clean Government candidate for sheriff. For a long time Seely hesitated, but finally the pressure became so intense that he gave in, and let it be known that he favored Giuliano. This immediately alienated the followers of at least a half dozen other candidates for the post; and offended not a few of the more "clean government" Clean Government entities, who favor a suburban "front" man for the candidate. Many of this latter group were also offended at Seely's alleged pledge to back Robert W. Kean of Livingston as a candidate for Representative for the Twelfth District, with the hope of a large campaign contribution from Mr. Kean's father, former Senator Hamilton F. Kean, in the offing.

But more serious, perhaps, than any of the above defections was the growing belief among the followers of Harold G. Hoffman, that Clean Government, in general, and Senator Lester H. Clee, in particular, could be defeated. To the friends of Hoffman, long hostile to the whole Clean Government movement, were added those of Governor A. Harry Moore, who is personally offended at Senator Clee over the timing and methods of the Hudson ballot investigation.

There have been two schools of thought among Clean Government followers over the Hudson investigation. The first, led by Seely and Clee, has insisted that the election was stolen from the latter and that the investigation of it should be pushed to the bitter end without thought of the effect such a probe might have on the fate of other legislation desired by all. The second, while not condoning Hague, has argued that there were not enough fraudulent votes cast to have changed the election result, and that hence any probe would be nothing more than a moral crusade, which should be pushed or dropped as psychological results might dictate. The latter school, to which Arthur T. Vanderbilt is said to belong, has concluded that the probe is not paying dividends and should be dropped.

Firmly convinced that he is in the right, Clee is said to have demanded that the probe go on, and to have threatened not to seek re-election should it be dropped. Unable to persuade Clee to alter his decision, the former group is said to be urging that his ultimatum be refused and that Clean Government seek a compromise with its foes on the basis of a new candidate for senator. Clee's position is not unlike that of the Prophet Jonah, who was cast overboard by his fellow sailors to appease the wrath of Heaven, only in Clee's case, it is the wrath of the Children of Darkness that his colleagues would placate.

How these divergent views within the Clean Government ranks can be adjusted, or whether they can be adjusted, the next few weeks must determine. But not since the movement came into being four years ago has a schism so large been evident. As the active leader for the past year, Seely must either bring about the adjustment or face the consequences. To bring about a compromise, Seely may be compelled to yield active leadership to some one else. And if a compromise is not reached, many shrewd strategists are willing to bet even money that Clean Government will either disintegrate or be beaten at the Republican primary in September. My own decision in the controversy is reserved. I have merely reported the opinions held by others. But this much is certain: the heretofore united front of Clean Government is hanging precariously in the balance.

New Jersey Today

Tax Collection in Boom Years.

Prepared for the Belleville News by Dr. Maurice F. Neufeld, acting secretary, New Jersey State Planning Board.

Widespread tax delinquency has its roots in the financial climate engendered by boom periods. During the high years of prosperity, interest in government costs and procedures was at its lowest level. It was a frequent practice for citizens to defer tax payments even when they had the money to meet their obligations. They preferred to invest in seemingly sound ventures because they found they could profit through such operations even after paying the penalties for delinquent taxes. The disagreeable job of forcing collections was avoided by public officials because it was not considered necessary. Neither individuals nor communities during those years of grace, which preceded the depression, had any difficulty in obtaining easy money. Local governments could borrow even in anticipation of future tax collections. The collectors knew, moreover, that the owners of delinquent property were actually solvent.

The depression consequently found the taxpayer often owing taxes for three, four, or five years, while the municipality was caught with a top-heavy burden of floating indebtedness. Sources of easy credit were closed, and citizens awoke suddenly to the realization that the cost of government had increased during flush times and that bonds for schools, sewers, water works, and streets, along with floating debt, had to be paid. The cry then came for the more efficient administration of tax collection.

Civic bodies, which until the depression were interested only in greater receipts for the business community, shifted their attention to local government and created tax abatement committees. The Legislature which had steadily refused to put teeth into tax laws through penalty provisions awoke to the gravity of the tax problem. Newspaper editorials became wise and knowing. But by that time, of course, no system of tax collection, however perfect, could be successfully applied. The taxpayer had no money, and confiscation of property by the municipality would not produce cash. Private individuals could not be induced to buy in tax title liens except upon the best investments. The only recourse municipalities then had was the taking up of tax title liens themselves—a procedure which produced no current revenues. This situation for the most part still continues, despite moderate recovery, because much of the rural delinquent property in the pine land area of New Jersey is scarcely worth the amount of accumulated taxes plus the cost involved in the necessary legal procedures to foreclose.

Despite the fact that even good laws are not sufficient in themselves changes in the tax laws in New Jersey have produced results. Later, the main features of New Jersey's 1918 basic tax laws will be reviewed along with a resume of recent amendments and additions illustrative of the administrative problems involved.

MY GARDEN OF MEMORIES

I have a garden of memories rare,
Each plant bestowed by the hand of a friend,
There's honeysuckle, roses, lilies fair,
Daffodils, peonies, flowers without end.
The friends who gave me these beautiful flowers,
Have left me, and gone to a life
above,
But their flowers live on, and bring to me,
Sweet memories of them and their love.

PICKING BELL-BOY ATHLETES

By Bill Englemann

In all my previous articles I have written about senior boys on the basketball team. This week, for the first time, a junior enters our list. He is Bob Gibler, another member of this year's basketball team. He can be well remembered for his smooth performance in the last Irvington game. With less than two minutes to play and Belleville on the losing end of the score, Bob came through with two beautiful shots to win the game for the Bellboys. During the season Bob scored over fifty points. He is a tall fellow and helped the team greatly by getting the ball off the backboard consistently. The letter he received at the banquet Saturday night was his first, but will probably earn another next basketball season for he is only one of the few returning varsity men.

Other Sports Topics.
The boys in school this week were all "breaking in" new sweaters which they received last week at the All-Sports banquet. They look very fine. Many of the girls have taken a liking to them. Track practice officially started Wednesday. It was so cold the boys were pretty well bundled up. At this time I'd like to make a note of the very fine record that the second team made in basketball this season. Of their fifteen games they lost but two which is very good and brings to life some hope for a fine season next year.

SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC VALUE OF THE INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Professor A. B. Mays, Professor of Industrial Education of the University of Illinois says:

"The educated man is the man who understands. As the biological sciences make meaningful the organic life of one's environment, the physical sciences the physical forces and phenomena, and the social sciences the social life, so the industrial arts is intended to serve as interpreter of the industrial life of the community and of the nation as accurately and completely as possible. The old manual training was inadequate to such a service, but enriched industrial arts, filled with significant information and activities relating to and drawn from the great American industries, is admirably serving this function. Were all the vocational training values shown to be missing in industrial arts, its interpretative function in general education would fully justify its presence in the educational program of any industrial nation."

It is hoped that this article will make some contribution to the clearer understanding of industrial arts, printing, etc., its magnitude, and its vital significance in our educational program in the solution of modern, social and economic problems confronted by our American youth of today, and yes—tomorrow. Tomorrow, because many of our educators and thinking public, have not become aware or cognizant of the possibilities that such an integrating, correlating and socialization of our school program that is possible in a program of industrial arts if properly organized and administered. These courses could play a dominant factor in the later social and economic life of our citizens.

During the past quarter of a century many changes in our social, economic and industrial lives have caused our public schools and many other agencies to formulate new programs, make new adjustments and make many possible solutions to this myriad of problems confronting our youth of today. The public schools have been slow in recognizing and in assuming its responsibility in the social and economic problems of today. The awakening consciousness of the obligation of assisting our boys of printing as follows: Printing, graphic arts and its allied industries rank among the top six leading businesses of the United States. It is hardly possible to find a town of any significance or of any great importance that does not have one or several print shops. The industry has grown very rapidly in the past twenty-five years and is still growing and employing thousands of workers all over the civilized world. Many new inventions are taking place daily, new processes, new types of machinery, etc., so that we have an opportunity for a continual progression and change.

Many notable men and women have and still are using printing as a stepping stone for some other profession or better paid position. Printing has a direct connection with many of other industries and many occupations are impossible in the modern day without its aid. It is the medium of expression of ideas in all the other trades and professions. It has in its hands the opportunity to educate the people, have a great influence on their social life, to make or break a great faction—to preserve knowledge for all posterity—or destroy by propaganda through a vast devastating war.

Printing lays the world at the doorstep for those who are qualified and for those who wish to enter.

Food for Thought.
The printing industry is one of the greatest factors in the development of our social, intellectual, economic, religious and political life. Printing has always attracted great men and scholars to its fold. Such famous Americans as Benjamin Franklin, William Dean Howells, Mark Twain, Horace Greeley, Thurlow Weed, Walt Whitman, Thomas A. Edison, Warren G. Harding and many others. This list would be sufficient for a minute study of biographical and historical study of great men and their contribution to the "art preservative." It is a type of work that is food for the intellect and it offers many avenues for creative ability and inventive or literary genius. You might spend a life time in any of its hundreds of occupations and each day find a better way or a more economic way of doing the same thing.

Movie Teaches Students

Manufacture of Crackers

An educational movie, "Something About Crackers," which was shown Wednesday in the high school, brings into American school rooms the varied processes which go into the making of that famous American food product—the cracker.

Educational value of this picture produced by the National Biscuit Company, is enhanced by the romance and color of the Far East, whence come the spices; by scenes of the sugar cane fields of Cuba, the beet sugar fields of Colorado, the waving wheat fields of America's midwest, the pineapple groves of Hawaii, the coconut jungles of the Philippines, and the cocoa bean vines of Caribbean shores.

Science plays an expert part in this vivid lesson in geography, modern business methods and home economics. Revealing every step necessary in the vast National Biscuit Company operations, in which 17,000 workers daily produce 175,000,000 crackers, the picture moves from gleaming dairies through the laboratories in which skilled chemists scientifically test every ingredient. Then through great mixing rooms to the 200-foot ovens, from which long streams of crisp, brown crackers pour onto conveyors, to be packed in moisture-proof packages, ready for their trip through the food store into millions of American homes.

Pity, the Poor Teacher

By Peggy Luby.

Pity the poor teacher. If she dances she is too flighty; if she doesn't, she is a wallflower. If she plays cards she is a gambler; if she doesn't, she is a gossip. If she asks for salary commensurate with her training ability, and social position, she is money conscious; if she works for what she is offered, she is only worth that much anyway. If she punishes a child, she is hard boiled; if she doesn't, she is an easy mark. If she dresses in keeping with her position, she is living above her income; if she dresses within her income, she can't do it. If she prepares programs, she likes to appear in public print; if she doesn't, she lacks interest in community affairs. If she puts on a play, she has to cater to a certain few; if she doesn't put on a play, the entire school is disappointed. If she goes to church, she is there for show; if she doesn't go, she is a skeptic or pagan. If she pleases the children, she offends the parents; if she pleases the parents, she offends the children. If she pleases the school board, the community gets down on her; and if she pleases the community, the school board fires her. If she refuses a salary cut, she is unpatriotic; if she accepts, she is spineless. If she gets an increase in salary, her board increases; if she gets a decrease in salary her board remains the same. If she visits the homes the parents think she comes to rubber; if she stays away the children misrepresent her. If she goes to community dances it is beneath her dignity; if she doesn't, she is too slow. If she goes out of town to affairs the local community is not good enough for her; and if she stays in town the people get tired of seeing her around. If she goes home for week-ends the community doesn't like it; and if she stays in town, the landlady doesn't like it. If she expresses her opinion, she is a radical; if she doesn't, she is a dumbbell. If she says what she thinks, she is a disturber and fails to cooperate with her superiors; if she doesn't say what she thinks, she is a copy cat, and allows some one else to do her thinking. If she teaches a year or two, it is only a stepping stone; if she makes teaching her life work, she soon becomes too old and has to make way for younger blood. If she spends her money out of town, she is disloyal to the local community; and if she spends it in town, she is dissatisfied, for the local merchants overcharge her, or offer her a poor selection of merchandise. If she becomes a member of the civic club, she is a joiner; if she doesn't, she is unsocial and lacks community spirit. If she saves her money, she is a tightwad; if she spends it, she is foolish and thrifless. If a cut is made in salary, she is the first one to get it; if an increase in salary, she is the last one to receive it. If she uses rouge, she is a painted doll; and if she doesn't, she is anemic and pale, not strong enough for her job. If she is a real teacher, she is in the profession because of her love for the work; if she is not a real teacher, she is in it because she can't do anything else. If she gives the best years of her life to the cause, she has to make way for others; if she doesn't, she is no teacher. Pity the poor teacher. What is she to do?

Mrs. Snedeker Talks At New York Univ.

Tells of Value of Business
Experience to Class
Room Teacher

"I believe that the value of business experience for the classroom teacher is incalculable. Actual business standards, acquired first-hand may be used as criteria in setting up goals, in planning lessons and in classroom work."

Thus spoke Mrs. Anne Snedeker, Belleville High School faculty, at N. Y. U. on Saturday, in a program arranged to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of business education there.

"Since shorthand has never been validly justified, except on a vocational basis, we must never lose sight of the fact that our results can only be properly measured by the vocational efficiency of our pupils," Mrs. Snedeker continued.

"Miss Irma Ehrenhardt, while discussing the national certificates which will be awarded to the successful candidates in the national clerical ability tests, states that the day is near when business experience will be required of every commercial teacher. California now requires one thousand hours of business experience for a state teaching certificate."

"Business teachers should have business experience, so that they will know what to teach; they can then concentrate on worth-while practical subject matter. A business teacher cannot conscientiously recommend pupils for employment until he knows what business wants of its employees. I am firmly convinced that a business pupil deserves an opportunity to be successful and a teacher, with a background lacking in practical business experience is unfair to the pupils."

"By applying for the substitute jobs available during the summer months, office experience is made readily available. I have worked for the past eight summers in many of office positions and frequently in responsible jobs. My employers have ranged from insurance companies to an opera star. During the past summer I used the services of employment agencies almost exclusively," she concluded.

A Swiss Patriot, William Tell.

Years and years ago, the Swiss people were ruled by Austria. For a while they were contented, for a governor was kind, and never unjust. But when he died, Austria sent a new governor named Gessler, who was cruel and tyrannical. He taxed the people shamefully, and made such unjust laws that the Swiss lived half the time in fear of their lives.

Now there was one man in this land of the Alps who was greatly loved by all the Swiss. His name was William Tell. He was a mighty man, tall and strong. In all the land there was none who could draw the bow as he did. In those days the only weapons were bows, which shot long shafts with sharp tips. William Tell lived not far from the governor's palace.

One day he made ready to go to town. He took with him his oldest boy. In the town he passed a tall pole, on the top of which was perched a cap. The guard ordered him to bow to this cap. The governor rode up in time to hear William Tell indignantly refuse. Gessler ordered him to be seized by guards; then, curious to see if Tell were really such a marvelous archer, he ordered the boy to be taken some distance away. An apple was placed on the lad's head, and William Tell was told that if he could not pierce the apple with a shaft he would be beheaded.

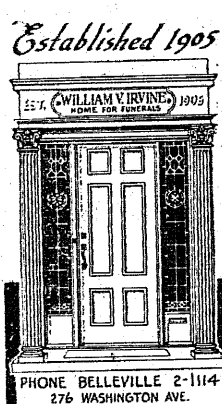

But William Tell was really an amazing archer. Very deliberately he selected two shafts from his quiver. One he fitted to his bow, and, pulling it taut, sent it whizzing into the heart of the apple.

He might have been free, had not Gessler curiously asked what the second shaft was for. "For you," replied William Tell, "Had I missed the apple and killed my boy."

Gessler was furiously angry and ordered Tell thrown into a boat while a great storm was raging. But Tell escaped by jumping from the boat as it neared shore, and hiding in the woods. Soon he found his way to his friends.

William Tell sent his runners in all directions. The Swiss patriots banded together and at a given signal rose in revolt. They fought the Austrian invaders and freed themselves. Since then Switzerland has been a free country.

FROM THE PULPIT

By Rev. B. Pascale
Pastor First Italian Baptist Church

In the First Italian Baptist Church last Sunday, the Rev. B. Pascale preached on the subject, "Where Is Your Faith?" taking that text from the words of Jesus to the Apostles in the Gospel of Luke 8:25. Rev. Pascale said:

"These words were said by Jesus to the twelve Apostles on the Sea of Galilee, after He had calmed the tempest by His divine power. 'Where is your faith?' Jesus implied, with these words, a rebuke to His apostles because they had been thrown into confusion and fear. True faith generates courage, but incredulity breeds fear. Herein, then, we find the creative value of faith.

"The narrative describes beautifully the passage of this divine company on the other side of the sea. It was evening when they embarked. What a magnificent picture that is! How pleasant to stand upon the shore and contemplate the three greatest scenes in God's nature, namely, the sunset with Town Engineer Matty Sheehan walking down the steps of the town hall, his hair ruffled by an inclement April wind... Staid, or Reverend Harris ambling along, resplendent in Sunday attire, beaming benignly on little Sunday school children, and asking: "How is my all today, chil-lum?"... Bud Breen goin' to town on Andy's shuffleboard... Patrolman Don Smith motoring it down the avenue, seemingly in chase of a speeder... Peeping into Tony Maffia's shoe shop on a Sunday morning, catching a glimpse of Tony, Jr. shining up his dad's leather... Old Time Belleville—Albert W. Caskie, resident of Belleville for forty-seven years, and now in his seventy-second round-tripper, hale and hearty as ever, has been around in his day and has seen plenty. Now retired and living the life of frugal contentedness, he was formerly hatter, rancher, gardener, locomotive machinist, dog, rabbit, and pigeon breeder, and what have you. As a young man ("I was a devil as a youngster," he says), Mr. Caskie got the wanderlust urge and, on a minute's notice, would impetuously board a train for Florida or points west. His odyssey covered almost every country in Central America. In the Yucatan peninsula, Mexico, he recalls, as it were only yesterday, when he worked in a manila hemp firm. In many of the western states he was employed as a rancher, and in the east as a hatter, working in McCall and Allen's hat factory in Hyland avenue, West Orange, and a few years later, in Hogan's hat factory on Main street.

Of the blizzard of '88, his recollections are vivid and striking. It was his harrowing experience to be almost frozen to death in this veritable avalanche of snow and ice. He tells of how he and another fellow, coming home from work at the height of the storm's fury, had to cover their heads and legs with bags and tie a rope around each other, the bags serving to ward off the icy onslaughts of snow and ice that blinded and cut one's face, and the rope as a preventive measure in case one fell down in a drift (and they were drifts), the other could pull him up.

In more recent years Mr. Caskie was a breeder of Bostons, rabbits, and pigeons. Of the former two he speaks with more or less nonchalance, but of the latter he speaks with a proud and accomplished air. And rightly so, too, for Mr. Caskie imported pigeons from England and Germany, and numerous trophies in his china chest are ample testimony to his proficiency in raising pigeons. In the exposition at Philadelphia in 1922, he walked away with sixteen awards for his pigeons, seven of which were first prizes.

Grapes from Le Vine—Pete Blummetti, six-foot southpaw pitcher, was recently working out with the Bell-boy baseballers at Clearman Field... At present he flings them for the Binghamton club of the Yankee farm system... He was formerly a pitcher on the Manhattan College nine, when Frank Smith, present Belleville mentor, coached there... Speaking of Manhattan College, I suppose you all know that Jack Daly has the catching job all sewed up this year... A bulletin in the window of the First National Bank reads: First National Bank—Serving Belleville Since 1906... Better late than never: Congrats to the Pals' basketball team, who copped the duke in the Intermediate Recreation League... This club, captained by Jerry Ferrar and coached by "Bub" Welsh, has a record of twenty-five won and five lost for the past season, losing no outside games... Two colored gentlemen with short, pointed beards walked into a butcher shop on Washington avenue recently and addressed the proprietor in unmistakable Hebrew... Funny thing was they couldn't speak any other language... Just wondering why "Cocky" Miller thinks he can spot Jean Gelsen ten points on the shuffleboard... Okay, Gunner!... Needed: a traffic light at the corner of Academy street and Washington avenue... Junior prom: "Honest John" Monaghan and Margaret Mallinson.

Ain't It So?—Those who have kicked the past four years about the town's administration and those who will continue to kick the next four years, are usually those who think it is not their duty to go to the polls and cast a ballot. Instead, they will stay home on election day and kick, kick, kick! It reminds me of the lazy mutt, tied to a pole, who instead of using his teeth on the rope, just sits and barks.

Personalities—Bob Cole radiates personality. He is a squat, though well-proportioned type of fellow, with glossy, black hair, ample chin, and a candid smile that displays a set of molars which almost vie in whiteness with the piano keys on which Bob accompanies his dancing pupils. Apparently, there is none of the stern, disciplinary stuff about him in his teaching make-up. That would be contrary to all his exterior features, if it were. When one of his pupils doesn't do one of the steps in a manner which quite satisfies Bob, I imagine he doesn't bellow, in the lashing tones of a surly demagogue, "Awright, you—you're not getting out of here until you get that step correctly—do you understand?" No, I imagine he takes a pupil by the hand, rather good-naturedly, points out her (or his) weaknesses with a downward shake of his finger, and then produces a lollipop (seemingly out of nowhere), as reward to the pupil if she (or he) does the step correctly. He's that type of fellow. And I imagine—well, I know Bob gets results.

Fred Wolff, middle-aged and bespectacled, is no ordinary book reader. He chews 'em, swallows 'em, and digests 'em—figuratively, of course. At least, that is my impression.

From seven o'clock in the evening until the Belleville Public Library closes at 9, it is very seldom that you will not find him there. Whether it is solitude or knowledge or diversion that Mr. Wolff craves, I don't know. I doubt if it is solitude, because the library is always crowded with high school students. Nevertheless, all one need do is to step into the library some night, and there in the back room, sitting at a table, one will see this slightly bald, slightly red-headed gentleman bald, slightly red-headed gentleman of a printed page. Sometimes, he looks up from his book, a merry twinkle in his eye, nods, and offers you a jovial "good evenin'." But his conversation usually ends at that point, and he again resumes his "book larnin'."

Ernest Dikrestine, better known as Ernie the barber, is pretty silent as barbers go. Practitioners of the tonorial art are, as a rule, loud and loquacious, as they clip your hair or run the razor over your beard. Some are even wont to break out into song. Ernie, on the other hand, is silent and methodical. He speaks when spoken to, but when he does you are the recipient of valuable bits of information. His topics are diversified and timely, ranging from politics to the best foods for the human body. He is a far cry from the usual run of barbers of today, a veritable throwback to the barber of ancient days whose striped pole proclaimed the fact that he was not only adept at cutting hair, but also in medicine, law, economics, surgery, and what have you.

Frank Buck Congratulates No. 10 School Pupils

Miss Kathryn Fullerton of the School No. 10 faculty, took her fourth grade students recently to a Newark department store to see Frank Buck's menagerie of curious and rare animals. Every one was thrilled with the strange sights and more than pleased with the courtesy and interest shown them by the guides.

Several days later in an art lesson the pupils decided to draw pictures of the animals and the guides, not that there was any similarity, but the latter, too, made a big impression on the youngsters. The teacher wrapped the young artists' masterpieces carefully, and sent them to the head guide.

Soon a letter was received, signed by all the guides and Minnie, the elephant. They promised to send them to Mr. Buck, who was in California and to be patient for a reply. They enjoyed seeing themselves through the eyes of nine and ten-year-olds, the guides said.

"But Frank Buck was far away across the continent and then Frank Buck is a very busy man," thought the children, and immediately dismissed from their minds any further idea of hearing from him. But in ten days came the following letter:

"Fourth Grade Class, School No. 10, Belleville, N. J. Dear children:

The very nice pictures which you made of my jungle camp display at Hearn's department store in Newark, were forwarded to me, and I was certainly glad to receive them. They were swell!

I am glad that you were sufficiently interested in the animals to go to the trouble of making these nice drawings.

With very best wishes and kindest regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

FRANK BUCK."

must be checked up." At this point Mr. Dunn took the floor, as the Mayor pressed with the query as to the authenticity of the statement in the paper.

"Mr. Mayor, I think you have the wrong conception of it," said Mr. Dunn, as he explained what he meant.

Mr. Dunn further declared he spoke at the meeting of the association Monday night and explained "the commissioners offered to open all departments" to the Civic Committee.

"That time will not be until after election," continued the chairman.

It was here that the Mayor declared that the matter should be settled before election.

"Can Stay All Night."

"We can stay here all night, all day tomorrow, all tomorrow night to study the budget," said the Mayor. It will not be adopted until next Monday. We welcome a study of any item or series of items. We will accept any recommendation that will not impair any essential service.

"We have the largest paper in the state, leaving in the minds of thousands of its readers, something that savors of what is not expected to be nice.

"This is not the first time such statements have been made. Even before the newly organized group started I am informed it was misquoted. My office is glad to open its records to any one who wants to see them. To curb the trend toward inaccurate impressions, my office will give any information in writing. It is not right to publicize conditions that do not exist.

"The Town of Belleville is not entitled to these statements that it will not do justice to the town. I will not sit by and see statements like this printed that create the wrong impression.

"I will not sit by, either, and see any candidate use the good name of Belleville for personal ambition. I appreciate the attitude of every candidate in the commission race. Every one is conducting himself in a gentlemanly manner. No one will tolerate any one who is unkind to his home town."

The Mayor read from "the official records of the State of New Jersey" figures showing that Belleville is fourteenth in a list of forty-one municipalities with budgets over $1,000,000 in the matter of tax collection percentages. Belleville's percentage is 76.24. Others ahead of Belleville show percentages of from seventy-eight to ninety-six.

The Mayor said that he wanted to "commend Commissioner Kruttschnitt, Irvington, for suggesting a conference with county officials, to point out" what a rising county budget is doing to "injure municipalities."

Due to county and state requirements, the Mayor said, "the board has no control whatever over a twenty-four point increase in the tax rate."

"The money spending agency of Essex County" requires as much consideration of taxpayers as local government, he added.

The quotation of Mr. Dunn, referred to by the Mayor, follows: "We were treated courteously by the commissioners," he said, "but we were presented with a lump sum budget of which there was no breakdown. We were told $40,000 was spent by the poor department, of which $15,000 was for administration. We were told the public works department spent $12,000 to administer expenditures of $31,000. We were told we had to have $700 more in the budget for the signal system, although the work was fifty per cent completed.

"We recommended the engineering department be abolished and a superintendent of public works be appointed in its place. The commissioners didn't think much of that."

"Expect to Find Things."

"We didn't expect to get very far at the budget conference, but we were promised a breakdown of the figures and that every department would be open to our committee at any time in the future. We are going to examine the books and records and I don't mind telling you that we expect to find things."

The association adopted a constitution and by-laws. Dunn, Andrew L. Boylan, Herman A. Schweikert and Joseph Kilpatrick, were elected to the executive committee.

A lively discussion took place about dues, which were set at fifty cents per member, per year. Some were of the belief that the amount was too low, others stated that $1 would be a sum which every one could pay.

It is the intention of the association that next year, when the budget is made up, to confer and cooperate with each department commissioner, with a view of offering suggestions.

A. E. Chiappari, secretary of the association, states that no future meetings are scheduled, but that each member will be sent a news letter which will describe fully what is going on in town that is of interest to the taxpayers, what the association intends to do, and what it accomplishes.

A special meeting of the town commission was held Wednesday night for the purpose of adding $4,500 to the anticipated revenue from state franchise taxes, in the 1938 municipal budget. The same amount was then appropriated to cover unfunded fixed capital items in the water division. This permits payments from the water division current account for several small jobs completed in 1937.

Sentence Reduced

A sentence of one year and a day in a federal penitentiary, imposed March 22 on Joseph Bada of 20 Heckel street, by Federal Judge Fake, was changed to six months in Hudson County Jail Tuesday. Bada was convicted of aiding in operation of an illicit still in March, 1935, in Wartsville, Hunterdon County.

Learning Bada had served a jail sentence of several months on a state complaint in the same case, Judge Fake ordered the federal sentence reduced.

Some Problems of Family Life Today

By Mrs. Julia Reiner, Executive Secretary, Community Service Bureau

Special Knowledge of Behavior.

It is only in recent years that the problems of personal adjustment have become the focus of specialized study. In the last decade medicine, psychology, psychiatry and sociology have made notable contributions to a fuller understanding of the individual and his response to his various social relationships—his family, his work, his friends, and his larger community group. Social work in its traditional role of dealing with problems of personal adjustment, is being greatly enriched by the developments in these related fields. The addition of this new technical knowledge to the skills and insights which have been developed in the practice of social work through the years is adding greatly to its equipment and usefulness.

The life history of every person is marked by shifts and changes of various kinds, each having its effect on his responses and development. It is the exceptional life career that starts with a comfortable childhood, passes through an easy and happy adolescence, and arrives at a serene middle-age. In almost every life there are periods of distress, of strain, of misfortune. Sometimes the difficulties are concrete ones—financial reverses, vocational failure, periods of ill-health. But frequently these misfortunes affect the person's inner feelings and limit his capacity for meeting other life situations. These experiences may create exaggerated fears about the future, doubts in the person's mind about his competence, questions about the continued affection of his family. When the difficulties are more personal in character—the loss of loved ones through death, mental breakdown, estrangement, etc., the emotional upsets are likely to be even more severe. At such points, the doubts, fears and anxieties often become completely overwhelming, leaving the person helpless to resume his ordinary way of life.

Sometimes disturbing experiences overtake people early, before they are emotionally able to meet them. The loss of parents, the lack of understanding at home, the strains created by family difficulties, often leave their tragic mark on the growing child or developing adolescent. The reactions of fear, uncertainty or resentment engendered by these experiences sometimes remain with the person after the actual circumstances, and are revived at times of increased stress. These feelings of the past, expressing themselves in the present, often make the immediate behavior seem confusing and irrational to those about him. The person, too, may not be fully aware of the inter-connections of his various experiences or of the reasons for his excessive worry and anxiety.

Often changes in feeling or attitudes come only after a series of gradually evolving interviews with the social worker, based on a developing trust in her and on the person's growing capacity to speak more freely of his hidden doubts, confusions and fears. In other instances, only a few discussions may lead to a wise plan of action and may give the person sufficient self-assurance to take an important step. Even in comparatively simple situations, an understanding of the personal factors involved is essential to sound treatment. Such problems as temporary illness, need for vocational training, difficulties of school adjustment, etc., sometimes can be cleared up quickly by contacts with proper medical, vocational, legal or other community agencies. The skill involved, in such instances, is a combination of having reliable information at hand, and of relieving the worry created by a new and perhaps frightening problem. It is often important, in the process of steering to appropriate resources, or of granting aid at the time of an emergency, to sense the degree of strain under which the person is laboring. Such understanding frequently leads to a prompt and timely service that is a means of protecting the family from more serious difficulties and consequences.

This statement of the nature of our service to people who seek us for help, leaves much of the delicate process undescribed. The following illustrations may throw some light on this. They show the connection between a person's practical difficulties and his reactions to them. Both must be understood if he is to receive real help.

FATHER TIME Complains

charges Port Authority with Atrocious Assault

He claims that the opening of the new Lincoln Tunnel has provided another short cut that permits hurrying humans to cross from New Jersey to Mid-Town Manhattan so rapidly that all former travelling habits have been disturbed.

Father Time further charges through his secretary and official spokesman, James Slopoke, that the Port Authority has made the new tunnel so handsome, so brilliantly illuminated and convenient and trained its operating staff so thoroughly in courtesy and efficiency that there is little expectation that the motorists will return to their old tolerance of slow and antiquated means of travel.

Midget Racing Provides Myriad of Thrills As Doodlebugs Open at Nutley Velodrome

Promoter John Kochman Presents a Field Sunday
Augmented from Various Sections
Of the Country

Midget auto racers, the lid lifted on the season, will line up again at the Nutley Velodrome board track Sunday afternoon when Promoter John Kochman presents a field augmented by many additions from various sectors of the country.

Ernie Gessell, the Long Island star, who is national circuit champion. Defending that title and bidding for another crown, he is regarded as the most potent threat among the entrants for Sunday's racing program with his speedy car rated as possibly the best job in the ranks.

Gessell traveled a rocky road to reach the top in doodlebug competition, lurking in comparative obscurity until last season, when he clicked off a sensational string of victories to mount to the championship. Now that he is up there, he intends to retain his laurels.

A definite success, the Nutley track has been pronounced probably the country's fastest track by the midget car drivers, who have been amazed by the speed which they can coax out of their machines on that board surface with its forty-five-degree banks, its wide curves, and its ample latitude for cars in competition. Officials of the American Automobile Association placed their stamp of approval on the speedway, enthused by the warm reception accorded the drivers of the mite machines in their appearances at the

FISH and GAME

By De Allaire

Due to the recent cold weather the trout fisherman are skeptical as to whether or not trout will be rising on opening day, April 15. A much hoped for change, however, would bring them up and make it more pleasant for the anglers.

North Jersey streams are rather low now and the water is clear, with trout hugging the bottom, but the fish are there in plentiful numbers and I think limit catches will not be out of the ordinary on opening day, whether the fish are rising or not.

Trout season is now open in New York state and Jack Riddell, George Carter and Ralph Smith journeyed to the neighboring state last Sunday to try their luck. Their good catches were attributed to a combination of spinners and worms (plus their skill, of course). The fish were rising and seemed plentiful.

Ray Hageman, aide de camp to Frank Spotts, tells me that founders were being taken in goodly numbers last week-end in the Manasquan river. Sandworms and bloodworms got most of the good results.

Flounders don't seem to be running very big yet in any of the New Jersey bays and rivers and average from two and one-half to three-quarters of a pound.

A new junior sportsman's club has been formed by some of Belleville's outdoor-minded youths. The club has been named "The Sea Devils." Members are Al Thymieroff, Herb Jenkins, Bob Ward, Bob Hodgson, Fred Faas and Ray Hageman. The boys all plan to be out April 15.

A new fisherman's magazine is now on the market, "The Metropolitan Angler." It sells for ten cents a copy and is well worth its price. The magazine is composed of articles and stories written by famous eastern sportsmen and is written especially about eastern waters and fish, both fresh and salt water.

The Brokaws were treated by a private physician. The dog received treatment from a veterinarian for a broken leg.

Emeralds Win from Heller Bros. Club

Regular Season To Open
This Sunday with Blue
Comets, Newark

The Emerald A. C. defeated the Heller Bros. E. B. C., in a practice game Sunday, 10-9, and will open the regular season Sunday at Preston Oval, opposing the Newark Blue Comets.

The practice game was featured by the hitting of Bill Lister and Jim Lynch, who obtained three and two hits, respectively, and the fielding of Jim McDonald, Emerald shortstop, who fielded his position without an error and handled several very difficult chances.

Bill Harbaugh, who had just returned from Warm Springs, Florida, where he had worked out with the St. Louis Cardinals, under a Rochester contract, did part of the Emerald catching. He is to return to Florida next year for another trial and will probably play in the Lackawanna League this summer.

Bill Waldron and George "Fip" Urna starred for the Heller Bros., with three and two hits, respectively. Urna is a former Emerald performer, having left the club last week to join the Heller Bros., where he will see more action as he is to first string catcher for that club, rather than third string for the Emeralds. Urna played with the Emeralds for three seasons and was well known for his constant friendly arguments with umpires and opposing players. His batting average for his three seasons with the Emeralds was .366, .262 and .219, respectively.

Manager Ryan of the Emeralds will probably start either "Lefty" Sullivan or Bob Wingate on the mound against the Blue Comets, with Alex Young or Jerome McGlynn doing the catching.

Auto Racing at Hankinson Track

Major Circuit Debut is Scheduled Two Weeks
Hence

READING, April 8—Automobile racing will make a major circuit debut in Reading on Sunday afternoon, April 24, when Hankinson Speedway, the colossus of promotional organizations identified with high speed competition, will stage a six-event program over the fast fair grounds half-mile course.

It will be the first auto race program in the Eastern States this year under the burgee of the contest board of the American Automobile Association and will launch the 50 miles scheduled over Hankinson's wide flung circuit that covers the eastern half of the United States.

Entry blanks for the inaugural classic have already been mailed out to every licensed driver in the country, sent direct from the Washington office of the contest board. Dozens of Western aces, now readying for the Indianapolis 500-mile classic on Memorial Day, are expected to invade the East for the occasion and drive in the Reading events as a tune-up for the international sweepstakes.

Practically all of the veteran drivers who featured the A. A. A. competitions last fall in the East will be back again, according to Ralph A. Hankinson, head of the organization which bears his name and who this year is beginning his 28th year as a sponsor of motor contests.

New specifications adopted by the contest board this year for entries at Indianapolis are expected to make many new cars available for dirt track competitions and it is possible that several of the machines now being groomed for the Hoosier grind will be given first tests on the Berk's speed path.

Work has already been started on the conditioning of the fair grounds course and many tons of calcium chloride will be applied to make it dustless.

Bears on Way to Ruppert Stadium

Newark Grizzlies Will Pack
Up Tomorrow for Trek Home

After a successful training season in Florida, Manager Johnny Neun and his Newark Bears are ready to begin their trek northward. They will depart from Sebring tomorrow and the next day will stop over in Savannah for a game. The Bruins will be at Spartanburg, S. C. Monday and Tuesday for games with the Birmingham Triplets and the next two days will oppose the Tars of the Piedmont League at Norfolk.

The Bears are due home a week from today (Friday), to put on the finishing touches of their training in preparation of the opening of the International League race, Thursday, April 21. Their followers, however, will get their first peek at the machine Manager Neun has moulded before that day. They are to clash twice with the Philadelphia Nationals at Ruppert Stadium. The first game is scheduled for Saturday and the second Easter-Sunday.

While there are many new faces with the Newark team, it is said, the Bears are as strong as last year. The Bruins appear to be as strong on the defense and some contend their defense is better than in 1937, when the team won the flag and the Little World Series.

Les Scarsella, not a stranger in the league, is the new first baseman. He is a slugger and a clever fielder and is expected to be one of the powerhouses. Ham Schulte, the new second sacker, is a polished fielder and handy with the bat. Some experts contend he will capably fill the shoes of Joe Gordon. Some declare he is faster and has a better throwing arm. Buddy Blair was obtained from Birmingham to take over the short-stop position. The youngster is fast, has a good arm and can hit. His work at camp pleased Neun and the Newark club officials. Covering third base will be Morrill May, who was with the club for several years. Last season he was with Oakland in the Pacific Coast League and was recognized as the leading third sacker of the loop. May is a finished fielder and is hitting much better.

The outfield will be the same as last year. Charley Keller, leading hitter of the league and the outstanding rookie of the year will be in right field, Bob Seeds in center and Jimmy Gleason in left. They form the best balanced trio in the International League. Buddy Rosar the second best receiver in the league in 1937, will be the number one catcher and either Clyde McCullough or Chris Hartje will be the second man. Both are capable, but McCullough is the better hitter.

Manager Neun has a good pitching staff at present. Phil Page, Marius Russo and John Fallon are the holdovers. During the winter the Bears obtained Frank Makosky, the Boonton boy, from the Yankees. Dins was with the Bears for several years and is certain to be a regular. The skipper also has John Lindell, Cecil Spittler, Fred Gay, Xavier Rescigno, Nick Stinecovich and Ernest Bonham, who look as if they will be able to stick in International League company.

To Hold Card Party

The Belleville Park Association will hold a card party this evening at 8:30, in the Recreation House. The committee in charge is made up of Peter Johnson, E. W. Downing, Mrs. Peter Johnson, Mrs. Michael Volpe, Mrs. Frank Thalheimer and Mrs. George Newman. The public is invited to attend.

Eugene T. Gavey Has Seen 4,000

Couples Obtain Marriage Licenses Here

Prior to 1910 There Was Little Red Tape Before Pairs

Appeared To Go Through with

Ceremony

Prior to 1910 it was not necessary for a couple intending to get married, to take out a marriage license in Belleville. All this was changed, however, with the induction into office of Eugene M. Gavey, as Registrar of Vital Statistics.

Mr. Gavey, who lives at 38 Essex street, and conducts a real estate and insurance office, at 162 Washington avenue, said that the first marriage license which he issued was made out to William Hacker, 59 Winthrop street, Newark, and Mrs. Helena Miller McDough, High street, this town, on July 27, 1910. Rev. Lalor McLoughlin, of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, officiated.

Before 1910 all a couple had to do to get married, was to present themselves before a magistrate, priest or minister and announce their intention of so doing.

"It was easier to get married in the old days," said Mr. Gavey, "but now it is easier to get a divorce."

Mr. Gavey was born in Brooklyn and attended the Bedford Street High School, and had every intention of becoming a lawyer, until he obtained a position with D. and M. Chauncey, a real estate firm in Brooklyn.

Thirty-eight years ago he came to Belleville and opened an office at the Washington avenue address for the practice of the real estate and insurance business and has had his office there ever since.

During 1910, 1911, and 1912, he was tax assessor. In 1912 he was also custodian of school funds and was town treasurer from 1912 to 1914. From 1912 to 1915, Harry Coeyman was registrar of vital statistics, because of the onerous duties that were given to Mr. Gavey.

He also served as secretary of the tax adjustment commission during 1914 and 1915, being appointed by a Newark judge.

4,000 Marriage Licenses.

He was appointed as registrar in 1910 by the late mayor, John H. Waters, and has issued 4,000 marriage licenses since that date.

He served as chairman of the Essex County Tuberculosis League of which he is at present a director. He married, forty years ago, Miss Eleanor Sweet, Brooklyn.

Home From Syracuse

Miss Marcella Ferguson, a student at Syracuse University, is coming home tomorrow to spend the spring vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ferguson, 131 Beech street.

Dividend Voted by No. Belleville B. & L.

Five and One-half Per Cent Paid Installment Shareholders

A dividend of five and one-half per cent on installment shares for the last six months of the year was voted by the board of directors of the North Belleville Building & Loan Association, at a meeting in the association's office, 500 Washington avenue, Friday evening. In addition to the declaration of the dividend, which will distribute approximately $17,000 to the saving members of the association, a substantial sum was added to the surplus and reserve account from the earnings for the six-month period, John P. Dailey, secretary of the association, stated today.

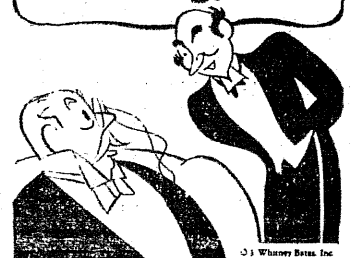

During the last six months, the association made substantial progress in every phase of its activity. The financial statement as of March 31, shows assets of $435,387.48.

The appeal to the public of insurance of savings share accounts by the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the government, was credited by W. D. Clark, president of the association, for the remarkable increase in the volume of share payments during the past year. This made available a larger sum for new loans. The new liberalized loan plan adopted by the association during the past six months has attracted a large number of persons interested in home ownership. Mr. Clark reported that over 1,200 new investment shares had been secured during the past year, and, in addition to the five and one-half per cent paid to installment shareholders, three and one-half per cent had been credited to the income shareholders.

The officers were authorized to arrange for the payment of the thirty-fourth series of stock to nineteen shareholders on Monday, April 11, and also to open the fifty-ninth series of stock on the same date.
