Edward J. O'Connor, chairman of the entertainment committee, announced that arrangements had been completed for a party Tuesday evening, October 25, at the Elks, the proceeds to be used for the children's charity fund. Tickets may be obtained from members or at the association headquarters.

Offers 3-Day Trip

Congressman Fred A. Hartley, Jr., who explained the value of the Constitution as against one-man dictatorships in Europe, criticized operation of the WPA set-up as told elsewhere in this issue. He offered to the association a three-day trip to Washington to be given to some Belleville school pupil, selection of whom will be made by the association.

A committee was appointed by Mr. Chamberlain, consisting of Director King, John J. Hewitt and Harry Machette to handle details.

ST. PETER'S PLANS MONSTER PARTY

In celebration of the 250th weekly affair of the Social Society of St. Peter's Church, a monster party will be held next Friday night, October 21, in the new school building. The members of the committee in charge of the arrangements are sparing no efforts to make this event one of the largest of its kind ever undertaken by the society. It is anticipated that approximately 1,000 persons will be present, and the committee is prepared to accommodate that number.

These weekly parties, sponsored by the Social Society, were inaugurated in 1932 and have continued down to the present time. The revenue derived from them has aided materially in financing the new school. Friday night's party will follow in form the usual Friday night affairs, with many added attractions.

Miss Teresa K. Salmon is chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Thomas McNair, Mrs. Harry Donnelly, Mrs. Maurice Conway, Mrs. Frank O'Neill, Mrs. Katherine Paxton, Mrs. Walter Garvey, Mrs. Joseph Nygard and the Misses Mary Glynn and Helen Kelly.

Weston Appeals to Groups To Back Community Chest

Asks Lodges And Clubs To Do Their Part This Year

Belleville civic, patriotic and fraternal organizations received this week a communication sent by George H. Weston, chairman of the club and lodge division, Community Chest campaign, asking for contributions to that fund. The communication follows: "The Community Chest campaign, conducted by the Welfare Federation of Belleville, will open on November 3 and will close November 15, 1938, during which time the citizens of our town will be asked to contribute to the support of the various agencies of the Welfare Federation of Belleville for 1939.

"The agencies that are maintained by the Chest are American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Community Service Bureau, Girl Scouts, Visiting Nurses' Association and Silver Lake Community

House. During the past year these agencies have operated on decreased budgets due to the failure of the full realization of the last Community Chest campaign. Considering this handicap, all these agencies have functioned in a capable manner.

"Your organization in the past has given its whole-hearted support and cooperation in this worthwhile movement. We are asking again for your financial support. We also ask that consideration be given to increasing your contribution this year over the previous year's.

"Will you kindly act promptly and send in your contribution? Make checks payable to the Welfare Federation of Belleville, 338 Washington avenue, Belleville."

Mr. Weston further states: "While the drive for funds for the Community Chest officially will start November 3, the committee decided to send out the appeal at once so that organizations that meet only once a month would have the opportunity of contributing their share."

Mayor To Write On Municipal Management

Following the policy Mayor—Finance Director William H. Williams started when he was first elected as finance director in 1930 to have our citizens acquainted with the many phases of municipal management, covering the numerous services required to operate a modern community and the necessary costs, Mayor Williams will conduct a column in this paper each week. The Belleville News is glad to make this space available to citizens and the mayor wherein questions and answers, pertinent to town management and town costs, can be set before our readers. We request that all questions be confined to non-political subjects and legal questions only as affecting municipal problems.

We believe a forum of this type will be helpful to taxpayers and to our town. This column will start in our next issue, October 21.

HEART ATTACK IS FATAL AS MAN PAINTS HOUSE

Joseph T. Dassbach Falls From Scaffold To Cellar Entrance

Stricken Saturday with a heart attack while painting his house at 147 Forest street, Joseph T. Dassbach, Sr., fifty-five, died as he fell from a scaffold seven feet high to a cellar entrance. Death, according to Chief Medical Examiner Martland, who conducted an autopsy, was caused by the heart attack and not the fall. The fall resulted in minor injuries. Mr. Dassbach was attended by Dr. Barney Schaffer, who pronounced him dead.

Funeral services were held Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. in the home with Rev. Edgar M. Compton, pastor of Wesley M. E. Church, officiating. Burial was in East Ridgewood Cemetery, Delaware.

A diamond setter, Mr. Dassbach for forty years, had been employed by several Newark firms. He was born in Providence and had lived here thirteen years. Besides his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Louise Dassbach, he leaves a son, Joseph T., Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Gladys Lauer, all of Belleville.

HELIKER KILLED AT NUTLEY TRACK

Midget Racer's Car Catches Fire After Crash Into Rail

Hurling through space and landing on the flat of Nutley Velodrome race track Sunday evening Charles Heliker, Long Branch midget automobile driver, was pinned beneath his car, which caught fire. He died shortly after in St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic.

While 7,000 horrified fans looked on, Heliker, driving a borrowed car, drew position No. 2 in a consolation race. He had been eliminated from the feature in the time trials. His car swerved on a banked turn and went into a spin as Heliker tried to avoid collision with another machine piloted by Lou Volk, Newark. Heliker's car plunged wildly into a twenty-foot gully and bounced to the flat with Heliker beneath it.

Mechanics and track attendants rushed to Heliker's aid but were unable to extricate him from the wreckage immediately, due to the flames. All hands, including Nutley firemen, pitched into extinguishing the blaze and Heliker was then rushed to the hospital. He died fifteen minutes after being admitted. It was said a lung had been punctured and all his ribs on one side broken.

The accident occurred on the ninth lap of a fifteen-lap race when Heliker and Volk were battling for third position.

Mrs. Heliker, who was sitting in the stands, collapsed and was also taken to the hospital, where she was attended for shock. She was not told immediately of her husband's death. Heliker, who was thirty-one, broke into the game last year at Long Branch.

CONGRESSMAN FRED A. HARTLEY

Hartley Hurls Charges At Democratic Foes

Alleges "Kick-In" Plan

Here is the schedule of campaign levies which Congressman Hartley says the Essex Democratic organization headed by Chairman James J. McMahon is attempting to make against WPA workers:

For those making from $60.50 to $71.50 a month, a $5 assessment.

For those getting from $71.50 to $83 a month, $10.

For those getting from $83 to $94 a month, $15.

For those getting from $94 to $103 a month, $20.

And for all those getting above $103, "all the traffic will bear." Hartley terms the assessments "blood money."

Says Relief Workers Forced To Make Ward Canvasses

Congressman Fred A. Hartley, Jr., Saturday night told members of the Joseph King Association that Essex County WPA workers are "being herded into a political machine" and ordered to make a house-to-house canvas for the Democrats to "convert" Republicans.

"I have positive evidence," said the congressman, "that relief workers threatened with the loss of their jobs, have been ordered to make a door-to-door canvas of their neighborhoods and ascertain the political beliefs of all their neighbors.

"Given blank forms to be filled out telling the names and politics of the occupants of all households in their respective districts, they were told by ward chairman: 'We don't want these cards filled out in your own homes. You positively must make this house-to-house canvas. We are not G-men, but we'll know whether or not you visited every family in your district.

"WPA workers were ordered in no uncertain terms to attend these ward meetings, and many of them have told me since that they were fearful of losing their jobs, if they failed to show up.

"But this is only a beginning. The real job to be assigned to the WPA worker, I have learned, will come during the 'convert' period. There's a new one. The 'convert' period is to be the last three days before election in November.

The Period

"At that time the WPA workers are to be ordered to visit every Republican in their neighborhoods, as discovered through this present canvass, and they must try to induce those Republicans to vote the Democratic ticket. That is just one of Mr. McMahon's present plans, but you can rest assured it will never be carried out after the federal agents get through with the Democratic chairman.

The congressman also told that (Continued on Page 6) company which has employed them.

Ramifications have developed through the prolonged strike which cannot be adjusted immediately. As, if and when the plant turns to production again, it will be some time before it can operate at top speed. Orders have been shunted elsewhere, it is said, and before all employees go back—even all the wire weavers—a period of six months may elapse. Each day the strike continues, therefore, difficulty is being encountered as far as future production is concerned.

Tickets for the affair may be obtained from Thomas Kiernan, Philip Hargrave, at the Elks, or Jerry Tilkin, at Yudin's Paint Store, Washington avenue.

Noll Gets Back Some Duties

The Town Commission has adopted a resolution giving back to Director of Parks and Public Property Louis A. Noll some of the duties which were stripped from him at the organization meeting of the board last May.

Supervision of all public buildings, which has been in the hands of Commissioner of Public Works Patrick Waters was to be transferred to Noll's department.

THE CONFERENCE TABLE

One virtue the business man can certainly be said to possess, when it is apparently lacking in other quarters, is the ability to sit down around a conference table and dispassionately try to solve the problems of the day—and do it without using the occasion to hurl brickbats at antagonists who, for the most part, are responsible for the problems.

This thought comes to us from several angles—a meeting in Washington of approximately 2,000 business men, most of them from the United States but others representing industries of twenty foreign countries, who have just concluded a discussion—study of the ills that have beset the world's business—strikes similar to those at the Eastwood-Neally Corp., and Crowhurst Leather Co., plants and an interesting article which we read in Printers' Ink for October.

Said the magazine article: "The recent threat of war, the method by which four men sat around a table in Munich and gave a frightened world at least a respite from its present fears, offers a stirring challenge to men of good-will in each city and town to set up now their own local machinery for industrial peace. Let it be stated emphatically that such machinery should be set up before there is trouble. When management and men in local communities get to understand each other's viewpoints, future difficulties are forestalled."

Does this not seem to be just what is needed in Belleville and each other community that is faced with industrial discord? A local board, conversant with local conditions, a smart board that could discuss in an unbiased manner such strife, indeed, would maintain the ideals that have led America along the paths of real democracy. Any other method may lead to dire consequences and, if imagination cares to stretch that far, to Communism, Fascism or any one of several other "isms."

Certainly Belleville employers and employees have been and are on a friendly working basis. Strikes here are few and far between and usually caused by some slight misunderstanding. For instance, in the case of the two plants mentioned, they have gone down through the years as Belleville institutions, employing Belleville folks. The management of both plants want to operate here and the employees want to work in the plants. Something locally is amiss in the way of a conference table if these employees and employers remain at loggerheads.

All of which leads us to say of the Washington gathering that, it was a foregone conclusion that economic problems have to be solved in a business-like manner, that criticizing their critics would be valueless and that disproving the panaceas of incompetent theorists would be of no avail. Therefore, they outlined for themselves a program of constructive thought and action. In other words, their meeting was for critical analysis of themselves in an effort to learn where business management could be improved and strengthened to withstand present and future economic ills.

In December some of the business leaders and many others will gather again for further constructive study of the problem. The December meeting, known as the annual Congress of American Industry, will be in New York.

Perhaps there is a lesson for the world, and certainly for many groups of individuals in the United States, in this example of self analysis rather than mud-slinging.

From all angles, it appears the conference table is the thing—for management, for labor, and for the good of municipalities and the country. Belleville could set a fine example if some of its officials stepped in at this stage of the game to establish local machinery for peaceful business relations. Belleville has its opportunity to show the way.

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS

The individuals, who realize the value and advantage of keeping well dressed in the current mode, are generally accepted as doing pretty well—they are well regarded—in short, they increase or maintain their value in the eyes of the people with whom they are in daily contact.

The same principles apply to our residences—our business places, our automobiles and our other marketable possessions. If they are well kept—properly maintained—they are more attractive, and, therefore, have greater value.

The home, in the great majority of cases, is the most valued possession to the average family. It is in their home that their largest interest exists. It is not uncommon at all that savings are tied up in homes and the safety of savings dependent upon the value the property maintains.

The individuals who appreciate that "nothing succeeds like success" and "nothing prospers like prosperity" apply this principle to their holdings, as well as to their person.

The value of property, to a great extent, is determined by the owners, themselves. Value is determined by the amount of interest an owner shows in his property—the amount of comfort his family can enjoy through the proper use of their house.

Interest is shown in the amount of attention given to keeping the house attractive, modern, and in good repair. This adds value.

We hear of properties having been sold at very low prices, but when we analyze the matter, we find the property has been permitted to deteriorate through lack of maintenance and care. In other words the owner lost interest, neglected his home and investment and, finally, lost both.

Every home owner to enjoy the pleasures of home ownership in its fullest measure and, incidentally, protect his investment, should endeavor to keep its interior and exterior in first class condition by such painting, decorating and repairing as are necessary to preserve the property value.

It costs very little more to keep your property looking prosperous than it does to let it slide into a neglected, poor-looking investment.

The primping-up of houses is infectious. When one goes through the process of pretying-up others, through dictation of pride, start to bring their properties up to the new and better standard established. Soon the entire neighborhood takes on a more attractive aspect and properties are better held by owners because of the renewed interest—and values are placed at a higher level.

There is an old slogan—"Take care of your property and your property will take care of you." Try it—it still works!

A SPLENDID IMPROVEMENT

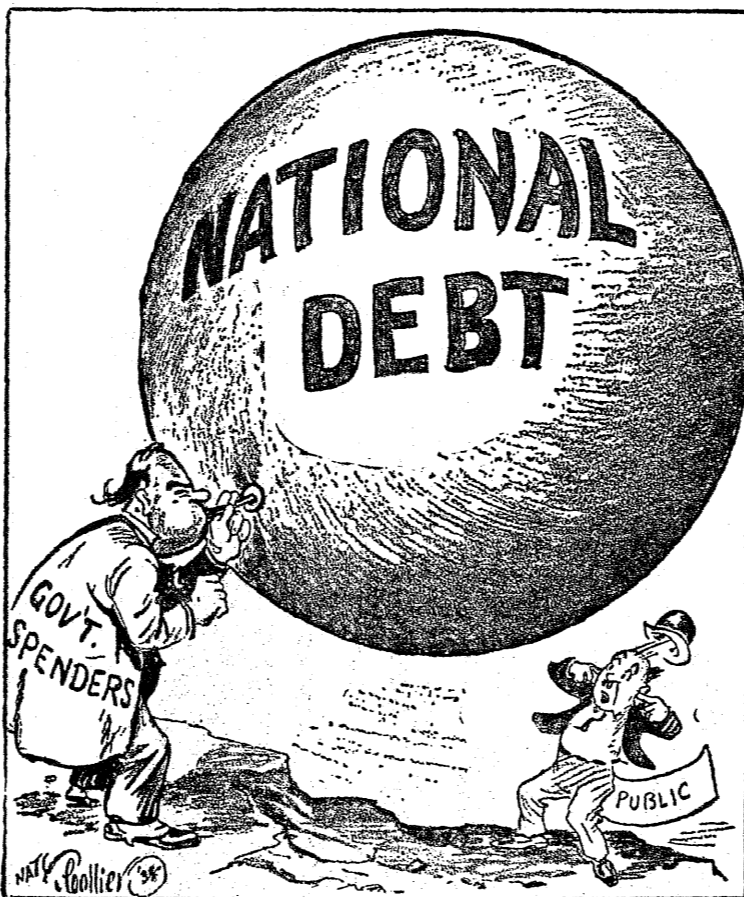

It is noted with satisfaction that a traffic signal is being installed by the County at Union avenue and Mill street where the new Branch Brook Park road forms a dangerous intersection. Much east and west-bound traffic cuts through the parkway and, as time goes on, this will increase. Union avenue always was a heavy traffic artery. The new installation is more than pleasing to this newspaper, which feels it should give itself a gentle pat on the back. We hesitate to say "We told you so," but if memory serves correctly, we urgently suggested such an improvement over a year ago. We are glad to have made the suggestion.

DEWEY DESERTING

It is not the fault of Mr. Dewey that he was halted in the middle of the first top-flight case that he took to trial in his attack on the rackets. But he was halted, and if he is a public servant before he is a Dewey career man, he will complete his job in New York before accepting a nomination for governor. As district attorney he has given ample evidence that he is honest, and really desires to put crooks in jail. He was accomplishing something toward making political life more decent.

If he takes a nomination for governor it shows that he merely took a different route toward grasping political power than the men he prosecuted. The goal and the result are not very different. Our hope is that he achieves great success if he stays in New York and completes his work. If he runs for governor no adverse majority against him will be quite large enough to be satisfactory.

NEWS ITEM: National Debt Reaches New All Time High, and Still Going Up.

THIS WEEK

by "Guardian"

Naturally, this week, Columbus Day causes our thinking to dwell on the Spanish-financed pioneer trip of Christopher Columbus which ultimately resulted in the discovery of the Western Hemisphere to be followed by the settlement, under many flags, of various colonial empires and the ultimate formation of this our country.

Columbus ventured to sail westward because of a new theory in geography—a theory that the world was round and not flat. He had the courage to test his theory and sailed ever westward. Whether or not he got exactly where he was headed doesn't matter much—in view of subsequent developments, because he proved his theory and overcame much of the terror of the vast unknown which characterized his predecessors and gave others the courage to start subsequent exploration and circumnavigation which brought a new knowledge—and a "new" world.

And those explorations found a new land to pioneer, a new land to conquer, a new land to develop—and no small part of the energies of the whole world in the past four centuries have gone into the pioneering, the conquering, and the developing of the Western Hemisphere.

Many of our early settlers, many of our early settlements were made up of "minorities" from lands over seas—minorities who were not happy where they were living—minorities who could not get the freedom to do as they chose—minorities who in many cases were not wanted. So, they sailed westward to start a new land of opportunity.

The minority problems in certain sections of the world about which we have been reading so much of late and the right to "self-determination," etc., are not new problems. They are as old as humanity—and in them grew many of the seeds which caused the founding of this continent.

Just as the discovery of this continent resulted from a new theory of Columbus with reference to geography, so did the developing of this country, when the time came, result in a new theory of representative government out of which grew our democracy.

Yours 'til next week
GUARDIAN.

Washington Snapshots

by James Preston

There was a quickening of pulses in the Department of Agriculture the other day when press wires brought news to Washington that Farmer Otto Gray, of Stillwater, Okla., had developed a breed of midget cows.

Here at last, it seemed to some AAA planners, was an answer to all their prayers. If Farmer Gray could breed bovines one-half the size of normal Jerseys, surely the idea could be extended to other farm products, they joyfully reasoned.

"Why not midget cotton plants to eliminate the annoying surplus of cotton; half-sized hogs, ears of corn, potatoes and grains of wheat?" they asked themselves. Here, indeed, seemed the answer to the ever normal granary problem without the red tape of referendums, marketing quotas, export subsidies and farm regimentation.

But lo! The cloud with the silver lining suddenly drenched their hopes with rain. Farmer Gray's midget cow only eats half as much hay and actually produces more milk than her full-sized competitors.

So now it seems that Farmer Gray is to be accused of nothing short of treason against the AAA, for just when the government's agriculture experts were wrestling with the problem of making two-thirds of a crop grow where a full crop had grown before, this incorrigible non-operator points the way to still greater production with less effort.

Tsk, tsk, Farmer Gray, we are told by the theorists that Utopia is not in that direction!

The M. D. Says

Health Question: Is it fair to judge the medical profession by such novels as "The Citadel"?

Concerning the picture of medical practice presented by the novel "The Citadel" two things should be kept in mind. One, it is a novel. Two, it presents a view of certain phases of medical practice in Great Britain, not in America. It is a sociological study of certain conditions in England and as such it is interesting.

The best novels supposedly portray characters and events that are true to life. However, for the sake of dramatic effect it is sometimes necessary for the author to give disproportionate or undue emphasis to certain interesting situations. This is true of novels about physicians as it is of novels dealing with other professional groups.

The best standards for judging the medical profession of any country are the morbidity and mortality rates of various diseases as compared with other countries.

GEORGE ROY

Roseland, N. J.

Meador Wright's PIQUANT POLITICS

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

Slow Start

Try as I may, I have been unable to detect anything resembling enthusiasm for the success of the Essex Republican ticket three weeks hence. To date, more emphasis has been put on getting the Republican factions together than on beating the Democrats. Harmony is a result of party discipline over a long period of time, not a pursuit to be achieved in one month. It is entirely possible at any time if enough attention is given to the task. But in the month preceding the general election this major attention should be directed at the common foe.

Under the direction Herbert S. Waters of Kresge's and the Newark Ad Club, the Republican machine is rapidly being geared for action. Publicity director for the Kresge Department Store, Waters is an excellent business organizer. His presence will insure that the party's headquarters at 744 Broad street will be efficiently run, but party headquarters are little more than a symbol of the invisible campaign that wins or loses elections. If there is no psychological will to victory, efficient organization is not likely to achieve it.

There are a number of factors that point to indifference on the part of Republican voters, chief of which was the small total vote in the Republican primary. This vote was indicated in advance by the small crowds that turned out to meetings. During the entire campaign, I never saw candidates of either group speak to a sizable audience of voters. There were impressive gatherings of party workers, but not a corresponding turnout of voters. In the final analysis it is the latter who count most.

No Meetings As Yet

The second discouraging factor from the standpoint of the Republicans is the absence of meetings at the present time. When political gatherings are not held it is usually for the reason that they are not popular. It is easy to hire a hall, and candidates just love to make speeches. But campaign directors hesitate to call meetings when they have every reason to doubt that voters will come to them.

The campaign conducted for Dr. Lester H. Clee last year in Essex was far from a model of efficiency. More than one political Ajax sat sullenly in his tent because he did not like the Newark minister's brand of politics. There was considerable opposition among honest independents to a minister being governor. W. Stanley Naughtright, Republican chairman, was not exactly a political Napoleon in either campaign strategy or tactics. But, even so, there was more enthusiasm for Clee than was apparent this year for either W. Warren Barbour or the remainder of the ticket.

Aunt Flo's Column

Mrs. J. writes: Our daughter is about to marry and leave us. She is only twenty-four years old and although the young man she intends to marry has a splendid character and is ambitious, he is not making a big salary and will not be able to give her the luxuries that her father and I have provided for her. We feel that she is foolish to marry and struggle along through the years when she could stay with her father and me and have no worries or cares and, when we passed on, we would leave her well fixed and independent. We are trying to get her to change her plans. If you could only say something that might help, we would be thankful.

My dear Mrs. J.—Have you ever asked yourself how you would have felt if your father and mother had made the same suggestion to you when you and your husband planned to marry? I am sure you have not. There are ever so many things which you should take into consideration before you ask these young people to make so great a sacrifice.

I am going to paint two word pictures for you of the things that might happen over the years and let you decide for yourself which one you would rather look upon.

The first is one that will please you for a time. Your lovely young daughter has decided to remain at home with you and father. You shower her with attention and give her a life of ease. She is popular with the young people, they have grand and glorious times and your home is a merry place—UNTIL the day arrives when all her friends have married and transferred their interest to their own home, husband and children. It is then that you are going to have a very sad and forlorn maiden on your hands and she is going to upbraid you and her father for depriving her of all the joys of life. The three of you will then spend the rest of your life growing old together, magnifying your many ills, becoming more narrow through the years until finally you quarrel among yourselves and life becomes bitter to you. Not all the luxuries in the world, nor all the worldly goods you can store up will recompense you or this daughter you claim to love so much, for the sorrows of a blighted life.

And now the other picture. You say this young man has a splendid character, is ambitious—you do love your daughter. You and father decide to give these happy young people your encouragement and help—you are gaining a son. You and father are in ecstasy over the wedding plans—the wedding takes place—you cannot forget how lovely Dorothy looked—the joy of opening the wedding gifts with her—the plans for their own little home, the bustling about in helping her settle the place—the pride you felt when it was finished—the joy of visiting back and forth with these young people—exciting happy days—you and father seem younger than ever before.

Of course I could go on and on with this picture and it would grow more beautiful every day—but after all there are other things which must be printed in the newspaper and so I must say "Good-bye" and leave you with your thoughts. However, I do hope that you will choose the right picture.

Family Life Problems Today

By Mrs. Julia O. Reiner

Executive Secretary
Community Service Bureau

Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary

A year ago Mary's mother thought she was just contrary when she stayed in bed and refused to get up and go to school. But when the doctor came he told Mrs. Smith that she was a very sick child, and should not be sent to school. This was following an attack of rheumatic fever which had weakened the little girl's heart.

Finally the doctor asked our help in sending Mary to the hospital for some special treatment which might help her. We were able to arrange this and after many weeks in the hospital we sent Mary away for three months to a convalescent home.

By this time Mary had begun to feel that she was different from other children. Although she regretted missing her school work and thought that she could never catch up with her class, she had come to enjoy all the attention she was receiving from her parents, doctors and nurses, and ruled her little world like a rather imperious, little queen.

Back To School

This fall Mary was so much better that the doctor said she could go back to school, but only for a few hours a day to start.

At first she was not too happy at the prospect, but her friend, the Case Worker, who had done so much to arrange for Mary's care, told her what fun it would be to see the other children again and reminded her that in this way she could begin to catch up with her classmates. Then the Case Worker made a visit to the school where she found that the principal was glad to help work out a program for Mary which would not be too strenuous for her limited strength.

Mary's family had always been able to support themselves modestly until her illness occurred. However, they did not have the means to obtain the treatment the doctor ordered, without which Mary might have become a permanent invalid. The Community Service Bureau knew how to make the arrangements which will eventually result in her having every chance to grow up as a healthy girl.

One out of two families who come to the Community Service Bureau ask help in problems of physical health. The individual attention which give to these requests is possible by the support of the Community Chest and individual voluntary contributions.

A SINCERE APPEAL

for the

Civic Welfare of Belleville

October 13, 1938

The Eastwood-Neally Wire Company has been operating continuously in Belleville for 62 years. This plant is the largest as well as the oldest wire weaving plant in the United States.

Seven weeks ago this plant closed down. $45,000, which could have been paid out in wages if the plant was running, causes a loss not only to the employees and their families, but to every one with whom these families do business.

187 employees have not been working for the past seven weeks.

Part of the production workers are on strike and are represented by pickets at the plant. Another group of production workers have expressed an opinion they desire to work.

The 67 weavers who have been organized at this plant for over 50 years, are not working. They are not on strike, but some of them have advised me they cannot go through a picket line of production workers.

As in all labor troubles, many and varied reports are circulated. The weavers have a contract with the management covering various conditions of employment. The production workers have recently organized a union, some of the production workers have withdrawn from this recently created union.

No issue exists regarding wages. Methods exist by contract for discussing shop conditions. Some former employees do want to work. Other employees are making certain demands.

I believe on wholly reliable authority this old and highly respected industry may close down permanently. Some employees state the management has no intention of closing down. They are entitled to their opinion.

I do know the company has cancelled thousands of dollars of orders they are unable to fill. They have stopped purchasing raw products. They have offers to sell some of the machinery. The competitors of Eastwood-Neally Corporation will have less competition if this plant is closed permanently, and may desire this result.

No one gains by a prolonged strike or prolonged refusal to return to work. Very few strikes ever gained a great deal for anyone. A closed factory is about as profitable to workers and plant owners as a war between nations, usually a net loss to everybody.

Over $4,000,000 have been paid out in Belleville in the past 10 years to employees of this company.

Over $150,000 have been paid in taxes during the past 10 years to the Town of Belleville for local taxes.

Over $90,000 has been paid in taxes during the past 10 years to the United States Government for Federal taxes.

Scores of thousands of dollars have been paid for local taxes by the employees on their homes.

As your Mayor, I am trying to get new industries for our Town. One of my strongest selling points has been our freedom from labor troubles. During past month, I am forced to explain a labor situation that is almost without a comparison.

I believe in labor unions, the right to organize for mutual study and advantage, and the rights of employees should be respected sacredly. This is a fundamental American principle.

I also believe that the rights of men investing their dollars and their experience in business ventures should be sacredly respected. This is also a fundamental American principle.

Very few occasions justify a lengthy strike or refusal to work. An orderly American method of approaching and solving this problem will be a civic contribution on the part of all giving his sincerest efforts.

With over 20 years of industrial background, both as factory employee and in management position, I feel I have an understanding of industrial problems.

I am asking the 67 members of the Weavers' Union to meet with me Monday, October 17th. at 10:00 A. M. at the Belleville Elks Club.

I am sending a telegram to each member of the Weavers' Union asking each member to attend.

I am hopeful that this conference will lead to action to resume manufacturing operations at an early date.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM H. WILLIAMS

Mayor

Adding Years of Health and Beauty

At forty our grandmothers were usually prematurely old and worn.

More often than not, a large family of children used up every ounce of energy, and seldom did you find a mother who was anything but a "home body." Women in those days were more than middle-aged at thirty-five and forty.

During these last two decades health education, proper diet, scientific care before, during and after child-birth, more sensible and balanced living, have done wonders for the average woman, in adding years of health and beauty to her life.

Women at thirty-five now are at their best — they retain their youth, beauty, interest in life and sports, and are far more companionable mothers, wives and friends.

Yearly examinations and following the Doctor's advice, will add more happy, healthy years to the life of modern women and men.

THIS IS No. 16 OF A SERIES "TELLING THE PUBLIC ABOUT THE DOCTOR"

Come SEE why the Moderns are saying: "Buick's the Beauty!"

Looks fine for '39!

WHAT: Four Series of ultramart new Buicks, the Special, the Century, the Roadmaster, the Limited—18 models in all

WHERE: Any Buick Dealer's Showroom

WHEN: On display NOW

WHY: The most modern chassis, the ablest performer, the handsomest carriage, and

BUICK 1939 PRICES ARE LOWER
—lower than last year, lower than you'd expect.

Star Performer ushers in new Style Cycle with stunning designs that key- note next year's mode

IT all started with "catwalk-cooling" on the costly racing cars of Europe.

They were shooting at better aerodynamics, not new styling—but they touched off something that will re-pattern cars everywhere before it's done.

Not that looks alone ever come first with Buick. What's really Buick is underneath all that, down deep in the good true metals, the split-hair precisions, the tough alloys.

But everyone goes for beauty, and you would be less than human if you didn't thrill to an eye-ful of the smartest dressed automobile you ever saw.

So let your gaze take it in.

Spot the radiator grilles... down low. They're the key to new-day design.

They're also placed where air pressure's greatest—your engine cools under forced draft!

Under that comely bonnet is the engine with more abundant life—that quick quiet Dynaflex valve-in-head straight-eight!

Under that roomy Body by Fisher are the great slow spirals of Buick Coil springing, to give you the true "full float" ride. And in that body, is new wide-paned visibility—up to 413 more square inches of glass.

The whole staunch, firm, beautiful car looks like what it is—a car to love and live with.

Come see it. Just as it stands there, tuned for your service, it seems to be ready to fly!
