REPORT GIVEN ON CHILD HYGIENE PROGRAM HERE

Fifteen Years Progress
Shows Health Has Been Improved

The fifteenth anniversary of the Child Hygiene program in Belleville was observed Monday.

"In 1920, the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health placed a nurse in Silver Lake section, Belleville. She visited the expectant mother, the baby, and the pre-school children in the district, and also assisted in the conduct of the prenatal clinic in the Silver Lake Community House. No attempt was made to do school work in 1920," says Ellen Smith, district supervisor.

"In 1925, a representative of the State Department of Health, the Boards of Health and Education and representatives of the Woman's Clubs, met to discuss a health program for Belleville that would meet the needs of the community and include the supervision of the expectant mother, the baby, the pre-school and the school child. Several meetings were held by this group. It was then decided that the Board of Health would pay the salaries of two nurses, and the State Department of Health would pay the salary of one nurse.

"Three districts were outlined and the work started. Nurses were placed in districts and made responsible for the health of the children in these districts. A complete health program was outlined which included the supervision of all the children under school age in Belleville and the children in the parochial and public schools.

"For about ten years, the salary of one nurse was paid by the State Department of Health. The staff in Belleville was increased by one nurse, making a total of four. This program has been continued up to the present time. Belleville now pays the entire salary of all the nurses in the community.

"In addition to the Child Hygiene Nurses, there is a special nurse for the high school pupils, salary paid by the Board of Education.

Complete Health Program

"This gives a complete health program and has resulted in improved conditions in the health of the Belleville children. Because of the pre-school work when mothers are visited regularly through this period by the nurses, many cases of minor defects and illnesses are discovered and corrected. Practically all of the children in Belleville are immunized and vaccinated before they enter school. This sends the child to school in a healthy condition and there is less reason for absences due to minor defects.

"In addition to the established program, the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health furnishes an Advisory Nurse to the local health department. She is responsible for the technical and professional direction of the nurses and visits in the field with them, making regular reports to the health officer."

The following are the nurses located in Belleville: Misses Angela Chapman, Mary Miller, Ethel Akersten and Helen C. Gilman.

In 1923 there were 463 births and deaths under one year totaled twenty-two. In 1938 there were 400 births and ten deaths under one year.

The infant mortality rate for Belleville for 1938 was forty-seven and for 1933, twenty-five.

Belleville Man Out on Bond; Approached Juror, Charge

Newark Trial Inquiry Will Go To New Essex Grand Jury

Released in $10,000 bond on a charge of embezzlement of one of the trial jurors in the Newark Meadowland trial is a Belleville man, Frank Matt, forty-seven, ice and coal dealer, 71 DeWitt avenue, who was arrested Friday by Prosecutor's Detectives Sklarey and Afflitto.

Although officials refused to identify the juror allegedly approached, it was reported it was Xavier Du Mont, an engraver and also a Belleville man, near whom Matt formerly lived and for whom he was working on house renovations. Prosecutor Wachenfeld and Special Assistant Attorney General Dixon visited Du Mont's home, 20 Hornblower avenue, when Matt was present.

The basis of Matt's arrest was said to have been conversations with Du Mont over the land trial, but Matt insisted he had talked to Du Mont only about work to be done. He was reported to have told Dixon and Wachenfeld at the time of their visit that the trial did not mean anything to him.

Sought Lower Bail

Matt pleaded not guilty to the complaint, which was made by Sklarey. When bail was fixed at $10,000, Matt's attorney, Edward J. Abramson, also this town, appeared before Common Pleas Judge Daniel J. Brennan and asked that the security be reduced.

Abramson declared Matt had been a resident of Belleville for many years, was married and had a family and that he conducted his

GLEE CLUB HOLDS ELECTION AT FEWSMITH

Samuel H. Cocks Is
Re-elected Head
Of The Group

The annual meeting of the Belleville Glee Club was held Monday night in the recreation room of Fewsmith Presbyterian Church where reports of committees were read. Increases in both classes of membership were reported.

At the start of the 1938-39 season in September, the active membership totaled forty men. At the close of the season, it was fifty. The associate membership list showed an increase of ten.

The treasurer reported that dues from both classes of membership were slow in coming in and a full final report could not be made. If all outstanding dues are received, the club will be successful in balancing the season's budget, which again was greatly reduced through the generous assistance of the National Grain Yeast Corp.

The following officers were elected for the 1939-40 season: honorary president, Dr. Daniel E. Kavanaugh; president, Samuel H. Cocks; vice-president, Mark Main; treasurer, Harry F. C. Howard; recording secretary, John Gleim; corresponding secretary, James McCall; librarian, Robert De Groat; and assistant librarian, Louis Deel.

Plans for entertaining the Rahway Glee Club and associate members Monday were completed. Refreshments will be served. No admission fee will be charged. All members of the club, associate and active, are urged to attend.

MANY ENJOYED FINE PROGRAM ON 'AMERICANIZATION'

Was Held At High School By Ladies
Of G.A.R.

Hundreds of Belleville folks enjoyed a very fine Americanization program, commemorating the sesqui-centennial of the inauguration of George Washington which was staged Friday night in the high school under the auspices of Henry Vreeland Auxiliary, G.A.R., and other patriotic organizations.

Following talks by Congressman Fred A. Hartley, Jr., Mayor William H. Williams and Judge Walker, representing Governor A. Harry Moore, who was unable to attend due to a prior engagement, a splendid tableau of Washington days was presented by Girl Scouts.

The Wesley gowned choir sang three numbers and was earnestly applauded for its fine showing. There was a massing of about thirty flags and standards on the stage in the auditorium, singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Miss Alethea Struble and Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag by the assemblage.

own business. He further pointed out that the purpose of bail was not punishment, but simply surety for appearance when wanted. He said he was confident Matt would appear whenever ordered to do so.

"What do you think is the likelihood of the appearance of a defendant in a case of this kind as compared with other cases of a similar nature?" Judge Brennan inquired.

Abramson repeated his belief that Matt would appear when wanted, to which the court replied that it seemed there was "greater possibility that an accused in such a case might not appear unless there were a reasonably high guarantee."

The judge denied reduction of the bail. Neither Dixon nor Wachenfeld would disclose the identity of the juror Matt is alleged to have approached. It is understood the complaint against Matt does not disclose the name of the juror.

Next Door Neighbors

Until about two years ago Matt and Du Pont were next door neighbors. Matt had lived at 18 Hornblower avenue a number of years. Then he moved two blocks away to the DeWitt avenue address.

Before coming here, Matt,

Walter G. Price Named Chest Campaign Manager

Was Head Last Year Of House - To - House Committee

Discontinue Camp Carragher Due to Lack of Finances

Will Be Used Temporarily As A Playground Center

Camp Carragher, that idyllic little spot along the Third River to which the late "Fightin' Commissioner" devoted some of his best days and in which hundreds of Belleville's underprivileged children found some modicum of pleasure during the hot summer months, this week passed out of existence, that is temporarily, at least. At its meeting Wednesday night the Recreation Commission regretfully admitted that there were no funds available for continuance of the camp.

The reasons for dropping the camp, whose worth has never been questioned, are painfully obvious and common. Frankly it would require $1300 to put the camp in shape and run it for the summer. There was no provision made for it in the final budget as it was approved.

According to the Commission, the people of Belleville have never appreciated having a summer camp within the town limits - the only town in this position east of Los Angeles. Last year it was necessary to canvass the town for contributions to keep it going, but few contributed. The cost of running the camp was slashed out of the proposed budget before the latter was approved. Then the question of raising money for the benefit of persons or organizations outside Belleville while neglecting our home projects came in for its share of condemnation at the commission meeting. Funds were raised by one Belleville group to send children away to another camp during the summer - a worthy cause were it not to be detriment of our own camp. A large

George Haslem Tells of Insurance Benefits

"The National Casualty Bureau in an effort to reduce insurance costs to the motoring public and increase the number of insured vehicles has made several drastic reductions in premium rates," says George Haslem of Davidson and King, Realtors and Insurance, 414 Washington avenue.

In several classifications discounts ranging from twenty to twenty-five per cent off manual rates have been made according to nature and use of the vehicle.

"The reduction which will prove most popular calls for a reduction of twenty per cent in which the number of drivers and mileage is not limited. A reduction of twenty-five per cent can be obtained where the mileage covered in one year is less than 7,500 miles and limited to two drivers in one household.

"The safe driving reward of fifteen per cent is still retained and should the motorist drive with care he can obtain this further reduction at the end of the year.

"On the basis of a standard limits policy with all the above reductions it is possible to reduce the cost of public liability and property damage insurance to $35.06," he states.

"WHY SHOULD I CARE about New Jersey's Railroad Taxes?"

The railroads of New Jersey employ about 34,000 people. They pay over $56,000,000 a year in wages. One family out of every 28 in the State is directly dependent upon the railroads for its livelihood. Bankrupt railroads will employ fewer people.

Each figure represents 1,000 workers employed by New Jersey Railroads

The railroads of New Jersey in 1938 bought about $24,000,000 worth of materials and supplies from New Jersey merchants and manufacturers. The railroads are the most important customers of many businesses. Only if the railroads remain solvent can they continue to make these huge purchases, and, indirectly, give employment to many thousands of additional men and women.

Each case represents $1,000,000 of local supplies purchased by New Jersey Railroads

The railroads of New Jersey provide transportation daily for about 325,000 New Jersey residents.

When New Jersey railroads are in difficulties, it hurts:
every one of their employees
every one of their suppliers every one of those dependent on their services every home-owner in the State.

The existence of almost every New Jersey railroad is threatened today by the heavy taxes levied against them.

The New Jersey railroads were able to pay large amounts in taxes in an earlier day, and the State benefited through huge tax receipts year after year. Today the conditions that made this possible no longer exist.

The railroads used to be almost the only transportation agency in New Jersey. Now they must share the available business with trucks, buses, airplanes, pipe lines, and inland and coastal waterways.

Since 1926, the New Jersey railroads have suffered losses in traffic and revenue of 50 to 60%. The value of the railroad properties is only from 30 to 50% of the valuations still used by the State in assessing taxes. Since 1926 most of the New Jersey railroads have not earned enough money to pay in full the taxes imposed on them. There is no reason to hope that they can do so in the future.

The experience of these railroads in recent years is that wages, fuel and supplies, and other expenses relating strictly to the maintenance and operation of the lines, consumes about 85% of every dollar of revenue earned. In addition to these expenses, the taxes levied by the State of New Jersey average about 20¢ per dollar of such revenue. Obviously the railroads cannot continue to meet necessary operating expenses to provide public service and pay taxes that total more than revenues earned. They have no credit left.

Several New Jersey railroads are already bankrupt. Other railroads are threatened with bankruptcy, which means further curtailment of railroad service, unemployment for their workers, reduced purchases from their suppliers, and a decline in the value of real estate in the areas affected.

This is why it is in the interest of the people of the State to compromise the back taxes owed by the railroads on a basis of 75% of the taxes levied since 1926.

Such a compromise will

1. Give the State the largest possible amount of back tax money from the railroads.

2. Keep the railroads going.

If these railroads are forced to go into the hands of receivers, as they will be if this compromise is not made, the receivers will not be able to borrow money to pay their New Jersey taxes, as the Companies have done heretofore, and therefore the State of New Jersey will get substantially less money in railroad taxes in 1939 than in previous years.

PARKING METERS

Rhode Island's legal ruling against the use of parking meters marks the end of another experiment in the problem of what to do with automobiles in busy streets.

The revenue derived from the parking meters at a nickel an hour amounted to $400 a day in Providence. Doubtless the summonses issued for overtime parking brought in more money.

The experience of Providence traffic experts with parking meters showed that despite the nickel an hour charge for the use of the city streets as parking places, there were still motorists who tried to evade payment of that sum.

What to do about parking automobiles in big cities has skilled traffic experts at their wits' end. There had been high hopes for parking meters. The Rhode Island Supreme Court seems to have killed them.

And, perhaps, this is just the information Belleville officials may want before they go too far with such meters here at various spots. Belleville hears that Montclair and Passaic have had great success with the meters. Well, that is a horse of a different color. The business sections of the three places are not analogous. Belleville's business is scattered all over two miles of Washington avenue, and elsewhere. Imagine a parker's chagrin if he had to pay a nickel to park, we will say, in front of a store in Washington avenue between Belleville and William street and, then had to pay out another nickel because he wanted to stop in the same avenue near Joralemon street. And to make matters worse had to "come across" again if he wanted to continue business in the same street near Overlook avenue. Fifteen cents for a few minutes' parking. Belleville needs to give more study to its parking problem before it installs parking meters. Personally, we believe they are splendid in the proper places, but as Barnet Yudin suggested a few years ago at a Merchants Association meeting—"no parking" signs strategically located—might be better for Belleville—if the officials place the signs on the basis that the public must believe in them. The parking situation here isn't helped by merchants, either, who usurp available spaces in front of their stores with their own cars and trucks. If the merchants want more business it would be a good idea to give customers a chance to park near where they want to trade.

Let's get out of this horse and buggy stage and render Belleville a business service in a business way. The merchants next Tuesday will meet in the Town Hall to discuss the parking meter plan. The Town Commission has been invited to sit in. The Merchants Association slipped practically out of existence a few years back because it had "nothing to talk about" when it met. Here is a parking matter that is of extreme importance to all business men. It would not be surprising to note that this issue will lead the merchants into an active association—which they need.

CLEAN-UP WEEK SIGNIFICANT

Belleville has seen from early this week the start of the expected 1939 influx of visitors to the World's Fair in New York. There is every reason to believe that in volume and spending power this year's flow of visitors from outside will be great. Belleville stores are bound to benefit if the owners remain wide awake. Most of the fair traffic will trek eastward in Belleville avenue, Mill street from Branch Brook Park Extension, Joralemon street and our north-south main arteries, Main street, Washington and Union avenues. Belleville, geographically, is the "port of entry" to the fair. Traffic seeking approach to New York via the Holland and Mid-Town tunnels, ferries and George Washington Bridge will pass through Belleville—that is, the bulk of it. This section cannot but benefit by the drawing power of New York's big fair.

Belated Spring weather has tended to slow down our annual Spring cleaning in many places. The next fortnight, however, should see the "sprucing up" that is annually associated with Spring. Belleville is no exception and Director of Public Affairs Joseph King has designated next week, starting May 7, as "Cleanup Week." A little paint here, a little attention there can do much to put ourselves in the mood for a new season and enhance our appeal to visitors. Belleville has a chance to not only clean up its rubbish accumulation from Winter months, but show visitors from the rest of the United States that it actually is the Town Beautiful. Belleville on the Passaic, Mr. and Mrs. Fair Visitor, with one hundred years of progress behind it, as a separate community, welcomes you.

WHAT ABOUT THESE RAILROAD TAXES?

The State Assembly must decide shortly to accept or reject the offer of seven New Jersey railroads to compromise back taxes due the State from 1932 to 1938, inclusive. Rejection means bankruptcy for at least three important New Jersey carriers.

Our railroads have had mighty tough sledding for the past eight years. They used to be almost the only transportation agency in the State. Now dwindling depression-level business must be shared with trucks, buses and other carriers. Since 1926, New Jersey railroads have suffered traffic and revenue losses of fifty to sixty per cent.

Now, the railroads, making their final stand, submit they cannot pay heavy prosperity-time taxes imposed without regard to losses in traffic and revenue. The State still continues to value railroads on the basis of cost less depreciation, without considering today's economic conditions. The earnings aren't there to justify this kind of taxation. Total deficits from 1932 to 1938 aggregated about $103,000,000. You can't get blood out of a stone.

Recognizing the dangers in this situation, the Senate already has passed a measure accepting the offer of the carriers to make additional payments of $14,263,000. This sum, together with the $47,427,992 already paid would bring the total tax payments for the years involved up to seventy-five per cent of the original levies. Final approval of this settlement now is up to the Assembly. It must accept or reject the compromise okayed by the Senate.

There is one essential question involved in this problem. And one only. That is the capacity of the railroads to pay. Competent railway representatives insist that the offer now before the Legislature represents the last dollar New Jersey carriers can pay the State. Failure to accept the compromise or postponement of acceptance, they insist, will force at least three important railroads into bankruptcy.

The ensuing chaos with unemployment, curtailment of service, and wholesale destruction of real estate values in affected areas is something for all of us to think about. And, remember, bankruptcies would mean that the State would get little or nothing from the insolvent railroads in the way of taxes for an indefinite period of time. Wouldn't this mean a heavy extra burden of taxation on the harassed homeowner or serious curtailment of essential governmental services?

The problem is a perplexing one. It should not be allowed to become a political football. The decision the Assembly must make is of importance to all the people of the State. It would seem essential that the railroads be preserved so that they may continue to serve the people and produce more revenue for the State.

Alexander H. Elder, Glen Ridge, who is general solicitor for the Central Railroad of New Jersey, summed up the situation in a nutshell in a recent statement. He said: "There can be only one answer to this question. Anyone who votes favorably for Senate No. 304 is voting to get the last red cent out of New Jersey's railroads. Those who oppose the bill are unwittingly trying to 'kill the goose that lays the golden egg'."

NEW INVENTION

The weight of gasoline tanks, which have been made of metal, has been a serious factor in airplane design, but a new development is destined to solve the problem. A fabric tank has been successfully manufactured by one of the big airplane firms. It is practically indestructible by vibration, in contrast with the metal tanks now in use, and is "leak resistant"; that is, the fabric tends to close up leaks. The new fabric tank has been thoroughly tested and has even been subjected to war experience. It will have an important part in the future development of air transportation.

BOGGED DOWN

THIS WEEK

by "Guardian"

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

After a good deal of study of Hitler's speech of a week ago, we still lack adequate comprehension of what he said. It seems to us that with one arm he was shaking the fist and with the other offering the hand of friendship. Probably the fist shaking was for home consumption and the hand offering for foreign consumption.

He did do a considerable amount of ribbing of our President in his point by point answer but it is indicated that there will be no response from Washington to the speech since it is not regarded as a formal reply to the President's telegram.

In any event the tension is eased considerably though the world still seems to be sitting on a powder keg and the current question continues to be "What next?"

We have never been particularly impressed with Heywood Brown, the columnist whose daily chatter is printed in the New York World Telegram and other papers but one day this week he wrote something that caused a smile and also a lot of thinking. It seems that Brown had written rather critically of a certain play and that shortly thereafter he was invited to a private dinner party to find himself and the author of the play the only guests. The author—doubtless in retaliation for Brown's criticism—diverted the conversation to the press, to reporting, to newspapers generally and finally to columnists. He went on to point out that the late Arthur Brisbane was probably the greatest of all columnists and then rather naively asked Mr. Brown what in all the millions of words of columnar comment that Brisbane had written could now be remembered and what would be remembered in the years to come.

Brown replied that the question stumped him and then the playwright followed with the observation that one verse or sentence or phrase from an author like Ralph Waldo Emerson would live for centuries whereas the writings of columnists would be very short lived. So, what's the use?

The New York World's Fair 1939 took the spotlight in this part of the world this week and its fine conception and magnificence—new completion have caused all who have seen it to marvel. Everyone will want to go to the Fair. Possibly the way to do it best is to go over now before everything is finished and before the crowds get too enormous, get a general idea of what it is all about and then later on after it is finished to make several visits, doing a section of the Fair at a time. This is truly an opportunity for education which we believe should not be missed by anyone able to make the visit—and if you want to visit the Fair in the most comfortable way, go to Newark and take a Pennsylvania Railroad train up town to the Pennsylvania Station and then take a train direct to the World's Fair. That will save a good deal of time and energy.

There isn't much to write about of the doings in Washington these days because the Congress seems to be making, for them, very little noise and even less progress. The encouraging observation is that more and more the spirit is growing that this country must remain at peace. That is a bright spot and the more that sentiment spreads throughout the country, the better for us.

Peace possibilities are indicated by the World's Fair, the building of all of the nations on the Legion symbolizing peace in a beautiful setting, almost as though they were representing the possibility of permanent peaceful relations between them.

If you haven't driven through Branch Brook Park extensively, starting West on Mill Street from Washington Avenue, we recommend that you do so within a very few days. The Park Commission has transformed what was once a far from attractive spot into a scenic paradise. The trip is well worth the time and effort and you will want to go again and again.

Yours 'til next week "GUARDIAN"

Aunt Flo's Column

"Home is not a place of splendor, but rather an abode for loved ones we would long remember."

One who signs herself "Discouraged" writes:

Dear Aunt Flo:—You have helped others with problems in every kind but you have never happened to discuss one such as I am faced with.

We were people in comfortable circumstances, always lived in a nice neighborhood and had a home to be proud of. Today I am ashamed to tell you where we live except to say that it is in a little old one-family house in what is considered the lower section of the town and it was this situation that sent us here. We lost almost everything.

I feel so bitter that I have no interest in my home or family and do not even try to keep up old friendships. What's the use, there's nothing to live for. I am sure even you have no solution to offer but it helps me a little to talk it over with someone, that is why I wrote you.

My dear I do want to help you if you will let me, and so, I am going to tell you how I feel about a HOME.

Have you ever, during your lifetime, picked up a book with a very worn and old cover, and thrown it aside for another with a new and glamorous cover, and then all at once decided that you would rather read the old book anyway? And when you had finished it there was a feeling of happiness and satisfaction about you that seemed to say, "How much I would have missed if I had not read that beautiful story."

Now that is the way you should begin to feel about this old house you are living in. Do not give so much thought to its appearance on the outside but busy yourself with the good that you can accomplish on the inside and I am willing to wager that within a month's time you will feel so much like living that the days will not be long enough.

I would suggest that you begin with one room at a time and see what you can do. Walls, window and door frames as well as floors can be painted so very cheaply. Then, too, sparklingly clean windows help so much and some bright little curtains that you may be able to make from those that you had in your better home, will transform the place. Meanwhile your interest will be growing, you will forget your troubles, eagerly working each day to transform these old rooms—and pretty soon you will wonder how you could ever have been unhappy.

I am not talking theoretically—I am talking from experience, for twice I have transformed an impossible place into a HOME so I know it can be done, but of course one must work. While the work is going on the cure of our supposed ills takes place and we are again happy.

You speak of old friendships. My dear, any person who does not like to visit you as much in this quaint old house you speak of, as they did in your better home should surely not be called a friend. I would suggest that you renew friendships only with those whom you know are truly interested in you and your family, not in what you have. There are many good people in this old world despite all that is said to the contrary; true, honest friends who will always love you for what you are, and it is for these people and your family that I want you to start right now COMING BACK.

I am sure they will marvel at your ability to transform this old place you speak of and as your pride in your home returns, you will find yourself entirely cured of this discouragement of which you complain and your family and friends will be as dear to you and you to them as when you lived in luxury on the hilltop.

No doubt you will think I am eccentric to the point of being queer when I tell you that very often I drive slowly through the parts of the town that are considered the worst. Yet I am not looking for the worst things I can see—I am looking for the clean and shining window panes in the little homes that on the outside seem impossible, windows hung with daintily well ironed curtains, tiny plants on the window sills smiling at me from these homes that have no outside splendor to boast of, but wherein real people dwell—people who could not be submerged or annihilated in a matter where they lived and whose light of life is always shining whether they live in a house of splendor on the hilltop or a tiny old run-down cottage in some valley.

It is nice to strive to be that kind of person.

Address your problems to Aunt Flo, care of Belleville News Office, 11 Mill street, Belleville.

Hartley Essay Winner

Miss Marion Eisenbrown, 30 Beech street, has been announced winner of the Congressman Fred A. Hartley, Jr., essay contest on "The One-Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the United States," and, accordingly, will be given a three-day trip to Washington, all expenses paid by the Congressman. She will take her mother along as chaperone. Miss Marion is a close second to Miss Eisenbrown. Only a few points separated first and second places. Seventy-five essays were submitted. The local Hartley Association, which sponsored the contest for the Congressman, extends thanks to all who cooperated.

Belleville's Fields and Factories More Than A Century Ago

This is the third of a series of seven stories compiled and written by the Federal Writers' Project of New Jersey. These stories are excerpts from the forthcoming "History of Belleville," sponsored by the Town of Belleville to commemorate its centennial.

When Belleville in the Spring of 1839 assumed the full prerogatives of an independent municipality, it was still largely a rural community. Industries, though producing annually two million dollars worth of manufactured goods, were just beginning to change the township's economic pattern. Most of its population was still following agricultural pursuits. Quaint little notices cropped occasionally into the public prints of the day, speaking of stray cows, stolen horses, crop conditions and other rustic matters.

Yet Belleville was launched on its career as an independent township at a critical period of American history. The country was in the throes of the Revolutionary War. In 1837 Belleville was by no means immune from the depression that was bogging down the life of the nation. The industrial establishments of the new township were either closed down altogether or had to curtail their production considerably.

Idle stood Hendrick's Soho copper mill that had been operated without interruption since the close of the Revolutionary War. Idle, too, stood the new ironery that Josiah Rhodes had erected a few years earlier near the lower bridge over the Second River. The stamping and mixing apparatus of the Hinton & Moore white lead factory was silenced. The smoke stacks of the brass works and mint of Stephens, Thomas & Fuller stood without their dark fumes. In fact, the senior partner of the firm William Stephens saw so little hope for the future that he offered for lease "the premises formerly occupied by the subscriber as a Lamp Factory and Brass Foundry . . . being situated in the Main Street and in the center of the village, and having a spacious Dock in the rear."

And the latest addition to Belleville's industries had failed altogether. It was the Eagle Printing Company which occupied a "stone factory of several hundred feet in length" on the old Stout tract, where a bleaching and calico printing business was carried on. When it closed its doors "more than one hundred hands" were thrown out of employment.

For most of all, Belleville's shipyards were laid idle. The town had been known for its shipbuilding even in Colonial days. On April 20, 1769, the New York Journal had advertised:

AT PUBLIC VENDUE
On Wednesday, the 3rd of May next, Colonel Schuyler's, Second River, will be Sold a Red Cedar framed Boat, that will carry about 11 Cords of Wood, and has good new Rigging.

By the beginning of the 1820's, Belleville's shipbuilding had attained the proportions of a major industry. The Morris Canal had been opened in 1832. Neighboring Newark had become a port of entry in 1834. Both events provided a mighty incentive to Belleville's shipwrights.

Meador Wright's PIQUANT POLITICS

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

Essex County is the hub of some very effective opposition to the proposed election reform bill, and the man who is mainly responsible for this opposition is Bert Lamb of East Orange, superintendent of elections.

The bill, introduced by Assemblyman Mahr, provided originally that the chief election officer in the first class counties of Essex and Hudson should be a commissioner of registration to be named by joint session of the Legislature. Until such joint session should be called, the present commissioners of registration would be in full control of election machinery.

In this plan there was a joker only slightly less conspicuous than Mr. Whalen's trylon and perisphere. By blocking a joint session, Hudson Democrats and any allies they might enlist could keep that illustrious Jersey City invalid, Mr. Stoecklin, in sole charge of Hudson elections indefinitely. One would have suspected from this that Mr. Hague, himself, had helped draft the bill, or else that Mr. Mahr was taking no chance that the measure would not pass. The Republican caucus quickly raised objections, and now the whole matter has ten more days of grace.

Loss of Jobs

But the objection of Lamb and the members of his staff was based on the elemental fact that most of them would lose their jobs under the new set-up. The cry of "ripper" legislation was raised and telephone wires in both Trenton and Essex began to hum. Lamb is said to have enlisted even the support of W. Warren Barbour in his campaign to defeat the Mahr bill. Barbour is said to have expressed the opinion that the main purpose of election reform was being subordinated to the desire of the Essex Clean Government to get control of the election machinery in that county. Barbour has stated more than once that he was well satisfied with Lamb's conduct of the election last fall, and that he did not want him to lose his job.

Barbour Fears Hudson Vote

But it is not clear how far Barbour will go to back up Lamb. He is known to desire election reform in Hudson, and may not risk jeopardizing this major purpose just to favor one friend, or a small group of friends. The report has gone out, moreover, that Barbour will head the election bureau and Lamb will be made his deputy with an increase over his present salary. Lamb contends that he has not been given any assurance that this will take place.

As the readers of this column may have suspected, the Ethiopian in the election reform woodpile is Harold G. Hoffman. Lamb and Hoffman have been friends for a long time. While this friendship would not necessarily deter Lamb from making definite terms with Clean Government, he dares not do so at this stage of the game. He would not for the very good reason that his term as superintendent of elections has already expired and he dares not enter a joint session of the legislature minus all of his Hoffman friends.

Long standing in insisting that he commit himself definitely against Hoffman's candidacy for governor next year, Clean Government leaders have put Lamb—and his staff as well—in a particularly cruel spot. All he can do is to strive desperately to stay neutral, meanwhile doing what he can to prevent his job from being abolished by the passage of Mahr's bill.

Vanderbilt Stands Pat

It is said to be the present plan of Clean Government—or more specifically of Arthur T. Vanderbilt—to run for re-election the next state of office holders whose terms expire this year. This plan even embraces Vanderbilt's arch foe, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Harris of Glen Ridge. The hope is being expressed that Mrs. Harris may agree not to seek re-election. But if she insists on running Vanderbilt will acquiesce. The other freeholders whose terms expire are Burnett, Gray and Supervisor of the Hudson River, Mr. Short Hill. He will be backed for another term as surrogate, as will all twelve of the assemblymen unless one or more of them should retire voluntarily.

In following this plan, Vanderbilt and his advisers believe that they can thwart William C. Cope and Dr. Paul Keller by making it appear that these men wish to earn good money out of office just to give them an opportunity to select their successors.

Time, it appears, is on the side of Commissioners Ellenstein and Franklin in their determination to keep their jobs and also to keep out of jail. It is practically impossible to bring them to trial again before fall, and the season is getting late for a recall election that requires new legislation. Hot weather tends to dampen the ardor of those who would throw them out of office.

others besides had sustained heavy losses when the Manufacturers' Bank of Belleville was forced to close its doors. Nicholas Joralemon, Abraham Spear, William Stephens, Joseph and George Kingsland, Cornelius Van Riper, John Williams and other prominent Bellevillians had been among the incorporators of the bank in 1834 and had taken substantial portions of the capital stock of $100,000.

There must have come rather suddenly. It was announced on January 14, 1839, that "an election of thirteen directors of this bank will be held at the banking house in Belleville on Tuesday, the 5th of February, next." But hardly two months elapsed and, "upon the representation of Abraham V. Spear, one of the bona fide stockholders, that the company had become insolvent," the bank was closed by an injunction of the Chancery Court.

However, not even the failure of their first bank could deter for very long the enterprising men who had launched their little community at the very height of the depression. Even while the Manufacturers' Bank was being closed, Spear introduced a bill into the Legislature chartering the Belleville Mutual Insurance Company. Business confidence was returning, and soon new industries were added to those already established in Belleville. A silk dyeing and printing factory came, and eventually became the largest establishment of its kind in the country. Clock manufacture was added and the brothers Peter and William Stanlar came over from England and brought with them a new process for rolling fine wire and weaving wire cloth which put the Hendricks plant and several other rolling mills back on their feet.

By the beginning of the 1840's, when Morse conducted his first telegraphic experiments, Belleville had again become famous for its copper manufacture. The wire used for the first telegraph line Morse constructed between Washington and Baltimore were made in Belleville.

LAUNCH

On Wednesday, October 8th, at 2 o'clock P.M., near the residence of Mr. Anthony Rutgers, Esq., Belleville, the well built Schooner — built by Cornelius Kingsland, and to be named by a gentleman on the premises.

Kingsland also constructed in 1834 the 300 ton brig "John H. Stephens" for the famous New York mercantile firm of Stephens, Condit and Tomkins.

But the depression had silenced the saws and caulking hammers at Belleville's shipyards. Auxiliary industries were as much affected by the slump as was shipbuilding. Idle lay the forge of William Gibbs who had produced anchors and other hardware for the shipbuilders, and brass buttons for the coats of master marines and their mates at the same time. Idle also lay the North Belleville quarries of Cornelius Thomas, William H. Harrison, John D. Robinson, Abraham Joralemon and Alex. Philip.

And the old mill building, stone and road foundation material, but also the stone ballast used by the sea-going vessels that came off the ways in Belleville.

Nor were Belleville's farmers saved the consequences of the economic depression. Sheriff J. Osborn, Jr., was kept busy advertising that he would "expose for Public Vendue" some well-sacked farms or town lots. One occasion he "levied on 70 Building Lots of Land . . . part of the farm lately owned by H. Holmes."

These foreclosures and tax sales were usually held either at T. A. Seaman's Mansion House, on the corner of Rutgers and Main streets, or at Nicholas N. Joralemon's Hotel, situate in the village of Belleville, and more specifically at the corner of John and Main streets.

The wide-spread Joralemon clan that had its interests in anything from shipbuilding to brass casting, seemed to have felt the pinch of hard times just as much as less well-situated contemporaries. For Nicholas N. Joralemon and his sister Jane, were named among the defendants in a "sale for mortgaged premises," held at Joralemon's own inn. However, the Joralemons were not quite as hard pressed as the owner of Belleville's third inn, John Van Rensselaer.

His property, at William and Main streets, was advertised:

House and 3 acres of ground for sale. A large and convenient two story house with a wing 24 feet by 30 feet, standing on a very eligible lot containing about 3 acres of ground situate in the centre of the village of Belleville. This place is at present occupied as a Hotel.

Christian Science Building at Fair

While the New York World's Fair presents and acclaims to the world the progress mankind has made along all lines dealing with things mundane, yet the things of the spirit, the religious interests and progress of humanity have in no wise been overlooked in this great presentation.

A visitor to the Fair grounds, strolling towards Constitutional avenue or the Avenue of Patriots, may pass the Perisphere and Trylon. The Perisphere is symbolic of the infinite, without beginning and without end; and the Trylon, white symbol of the finite, points upwards as a symbol for the citizens of the world to look beyond materiality to the infinite universe of Spirit.

As the visitor proceeds along the Avenue of Patriots, he arrives in the Welfare Section. Here is situated the Christian Science Building, having as its immediate friendly neighbors the Y. M. C. A. Pavilion directly across the street, the Jewish Palestine Exhibit nearby, and the Temple of Religion with its surrounding gardens.

The Executive Committee in charge of Christian Science activities at the New York World's Fair announces the completion of all construction and decoration of their edifice. The exterior conforms to the general color scheme of the Fair and presents a gay, joyous picture with its varying shades of yellow and violet. This building is typical of a religion of joy and good will for there is nothing somber in its expression. The Christian Scientists have endeavored to unite beauty and simplicity in their building. Over the entrance portal, in chaste lettering are the words "Christian Science." The roof has three circular setbacks, on the lowest of which are the words in large blue letters, "The Christian Science Monitor, An International Daily Newspaper."

The fountains on either side of the entrance are each composed of six crystal tubes of varying height, from which water will cascade into elliptical pools lined with blue, and will be brilliantly illuminated at night from below the surface of the water. These fountains, with their sparkling freshness, invite the visitor to enter the building.

Within the building will be found two Reading Rooms where the Bible, the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, and all other Christian Science literature may be read or obtained.

There are two other rooms, which visitors may use as a meeting place. These will appeal especially to visitors from other lands for here attendants speaking many languages will act as interpreters.

The Christian Science Building at the World's Fair will prove an attractive picture and a welcome refuge for those seeking quiet and peace.

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientists, on Sunday, May 7.
The Golden Text is: "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." (1 Corinthians 15:22).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be. But the meek shall inherit the earth; and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace." (Psalms 37:10, 11).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The real man being linked by Science to his Maker, mortals need only turn from sin and lose sight of mortal selfishness to find Christ, the real man and his relation to God and to recognize the divine oneness. Christ presents the indestructible man, whom Spirit creates, constitutes, and governs" (p.216).

Eddy Bros.' Circus Shows What Idea Can Do

Forty-seven years ago in Kings-ton, New York a circus was born. It probably sounds odd to say a circus was born, but certainly at that time it was only a baby in size. Charles T. Hunt, the owner, was then a young man imbued with certain ideals. He started his little circus convinced that the public wanted good clean entertainment where folks received more than their money's worth.

How well his idea was received can be better told by saying that every season without interruption the circus owned and managed by Mr. Hunt has grown in size and importance. Today it stands as a monument of achievement not equalled by any other circus in the world. The size has grown from a small tent held a handful of people and was carried on a wagon drawn by one horse, to where now its beautiful big, white top can hold thousands of people, and it now travels on an entire caravan of big, modern trailer trucks. The show was originally given by Mr. Hunt and his family, but now the acts are drawn from the four corners of the earth.

The circus is presented on three big bigs and in a manner that only a veteran of Mr. Hunt's experience can exhibit them. Of course there are elephants, lions, bears, dogs, horses, ponies, etc., etc., and the air and ground is a profusion of aerialists, pretty girls, gymnasts, clowns, freaks.

Eddy Brothers, the title under which they travel, will show in Belleville on Monday but, will be on the lot at Bellwood Park all day Sunday. Eddy Bros. comes to Belleville under auspices of the Women's Club.

Free Course Offered in Dramatic Arts Study
For the first time in this town, a complete course in dramatic arts, stage diction, direction and makeup, will be open to the public free of charge starting Tuesday evening at 7:30 in St. Peter's Auditorium under auspices of the Belleville Recreation Commission, cooperating with the Federal Theater projects.

Qualified professional directors in each position will direct the courses. The course will be open to any adults in Belleville and its environs and to high school students in their senior year. Members of other dramatic organizations are invited to attend.

Mrs. Ellen Daw
Funeral services for Mrs. Ellen Daw, eighty-six, widow of Robert Daw, who died early Tuesday morning in her home, 12 Division avenue, were held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the William V. Irvine Funeral Home, 276 Washington avenue. Burial was in Christ Episcopal Church Cemetery.

Born in England, Mrs. Daw came to this country in 1908 and lived twenty-seven years in Nutley and Belleville. She was a member of the Ladies' Guild of Christ Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Daw leaves a daughter, Mrs. E. M. Ford, Belleville, and five sons, Richard and Ernest Daw, Belleville; Joseph and Robert, Jr., Newark, and William Detroit. There are twelve grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

EVERYMAN'S BIBLE CLASS
Everyman's Bible Class will hold its last meeting of the season Sunday in Masonic Temple from 9:30 to 10:30.

Last Sunday fifty men of the class visited the Rutherford Bible Class in the Rivoli Theatre, that town, and had an attendance of 1,001 men.

The local delegation who went to the convention of the New Jersey State Federation of Men's Bible Classes in Camden, last Saturday reported that it was well received. The motto of the State Federation is: "Serving Men to get Men to serve." The next State Convention will be held in Newark, in April, 1940.

Miss Josephine Rossi

Miss Josephine Rossi, 188 Heckel street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Rossi, was one of the eight selected among several hundred in an audition several weeks ago in the Star-Eagle-R-K-O Proctor's Gateway to Hollywood Talent Search. Besides Miss Rossi there were three other young women who appeared on the stage of R-K-O Proctor's Theater. Each of them was supported by a full orchestra. On Tuesday evening Miss Sossi sang "Giannina Mia." On the basis of this performance the audience will select the two artists who will advance to the finals, which will be held May 9. Besides the four young women, four men were heard.

Miss Rossi has already been heard by competent judges and has been found to have a spark of ability which may make her very famous. She graduated from the Silver Lake Public School No. 4 and Belleville High School and is now a student in the Juilliard School of Music, New York City, and has been organist and soloist in St. Anthony's Church until recently, when the Maestro Pie Filippini Sisters came to this church and the singing is now under their jurisdiction. Miss Rossi has a soprano voice which is very rich and powerful, and is known for her generosity in singing at different benefit affairs.

Carmen Rossi, 188 Heckel street, has just returned home from the Columbus Hospital, Newark, after an appendectomy, and is feeling much better.

After thirty-two years living at 186 Heckel street, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Alvino have moved to 288 North Belmont avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Domenic Pascheria, 266 North Belmont avenue, have returned from a motor trip to Washington, D. C. and Virginia.

George Wilson and Benny Ferraro and the Misses Sara Luzzi and Grace Sinapole attended the opening day at the World's Fair on Sunday. Mr. Ferraro will soon announce his engagement to Miss Sinapole.

Archery Contest Features Lag B'Omer Celebration
An archery contest will be the feature of the celebration planned by the Religious School of Congregation A.A.A., 317 Washington avenue, in observance of Lag B'Omer, Sunday morning, at 10:30, in the Social Hall of the Synagogue, 317 Washington avenue. Rabbi Rubin R. Dobin, is preparing a program for the occasion.

Lag B'Omer, a semi-festival which occurs during the forty-nine days between Passover and Pentecost, is the thirty-third day in the counting. It is largely an historical holiday, and many historical events are associated with the day. During the second century A.D. the plague which was raging among the disciples of Rabbi Akiba, and which took its toll in thousands, eased up for a while, is one of three events accepted by some historians.

Another version is that the Manna, which first descended to nourish the wandering Israelites in the desert, started to fall on the eighteenth day of Iyar, which corresponds to the date of Lag B'Omer.

Still another version is that before his death Rabbi Simeon Bar Yochai revealed the secrets of the universe to his pupils; and because no rainbow had ever appeared during the lifetime of Rabbi Simeon, bows and arrows are to be used to signalize this day of his passing.

All parents and children are invited to attend the celebration. Admission is free.

Walter Mathes Visits With His Parents
Walter Mathes, Cleveland, O., has returned home after a visit with his parents, former Town Commissioner and Mrs. Edward Mathes, 104 Little street. Mr. Mathes, who is an executive with the Erie Railroad, also visited his sisters, Mrs. Shirley Vought, and Mrs. Pauline McDaniel, both Montclair.

Daughters Of America
Good American Council No. 102, Belleville, has changed its time and place of meeting to the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month. The group will meet this Tuesday evening at 8 in the Legion Chateau, 170 Washington avenue.

Local Senior Gets Honors In National Art Competition

Leonard R. Willette Is Two-Time Winner At Pittsburgh

Leonard R. Willette, a senior in Belleville High School, was informed today that he was a two-time winner in the National Scholastic Art Competition. P. Webster Diehl, who is in charge of art education in the high school and under whose supervision the entries were made, received official notification this morning that Willette has been awarded first prize in the Spencerian Division, and honorable mention in the Colored Inks Division, of the National Competition.

This is an unusual distinction. Because of the great number, and the high quality of the entries submitted, it is considered an honor to have a drawing merely accepted, and hung. To have submitted work of such high quality that it is not only accepted, but two awards are made to the same student, points to superior ability and reflects favorably upon the school which provided the training.

For his fine pen point drawing Willette was awarded first prize, $25, by the Spencerian Pen Company and $15 first prize by the Strathmore Paper Company. Higgins Color Ink Co., awarded him honorable mention and a set of color inks and the Strathmore Company also honorable mention which carried an award of a sketch block. Three other honorable awards got a place for three of his exhibits in the Fine Arts Galleries, Pittsburgh. The competition was in arts, crafts, music and literature. 10,000 exhibits were listed.

The scholastic competition is national in scope and is conducted yearly under the supervision of the Scholastic Magazine. Thousands of pieces of art work are sent to the committee from outstanding high schools from Maine to California. Since practically every large city in the country and many of the smaller ones are represented, it is obviously impossible for the committee to accept all work submitted. A jury of outstanding artists and educators select the most outstanding for exhibition and return the remainder. From the work chosen for exhibition in the galleries of the Carnegie Institute, the selection of prize winners is made.

After the work has been on display in the museum galleries for several weeks, it is broken up into smaller exhibits (Traveling Exhibits) which are made available to high schools and clubs through out the following year.

Belleville High School Art Department had a winner in the Scholarship Competition, and the World's Fair Poster Contest (State Division) last year, and Belleville is proud that Willette has brought this additional honor to the department this year.

Troop No. 2, Junior Catholic Daughters of America, held its regular meeting Monday evening in the home of Dorothy Kastner. A cake sale will be held by this Troop tomorrow afternoon in St. Peter's new school building at 4 o'clock.

following letter to all organizations in town: "We are celebrating this year the 100th anniversary of the founding of Belleville. Numerous plans and ideas have been discussed and I think it fitting that a committee representing the entire town be called together to formulate these plans."

This letter resulted last night in a meeting at the municipal building at which committees were named and other details worked out.

The Mayor said today: "The combined Flag and Americanization Day celebration of the County of Essex will be the largest affair of its kind ever held in the State."

Churches, schools, clubs, industrial plants and business houses, in fact, groups touching on all phases of Belleville's social and business life have been asked to participate on the general committee. Any groups or individuals, who have not been included are invited to communicate with the mayor, whose one desire is to make the affair truly representative of all interests in Belleville.

Seek Light Cruiser

While it is not definitely decided, it is planned to have a squadron of airplanes circle the town during the parade and following the program, with possibility that the War Department may send a small craft up the Passaic River to fire a salute of guns at the start of the ceremonies.

Belleville Man

whose nickname is "Sugar," had lived in the Woodside section of Newark. Born in that city he had grown up near Verona and Summer avenues. He came to Belleville about fifteen years ago.

Statements attributed to Matt in which he was said to have declared that detectives kicked him in the shins, were characterized as ridiculous by Dixon. The assistant attorney general said that no complaint had been made by either Matt or Abramson, his attorney, while Matt was in custody.

Acting Warden Mulvaney of the Essex County Jail, where Matt was held, is reported to have said that no complaints were made by Matt while he was there. Neither did he ask for medical treatment, Mulvaney is quoted. In fact, Mulvane said Matt denied making the statement.

The mistrial in the city land case was ordered by Common Pleas Judge Dallas Flannagan when defense counsel rejected a proposal that an eleven-man jury return a verdict in the trial which involved four members of the 1933-1937 Newark City Commission and five others. The jury was reduced to eleven men when Michael F. DeRosa of 355 Mechanic street, Orange, was stricken with appendicitis during the jury's deliberations.

DeRosa and another juror were reported to have stood for acquittal of the defendants when the third and last ballot was taken by the jury. During his application for reduction of Matt's bail, Abramson told the court that the juror Matt was charged with having approached "was not one of those who voted to acquit."

Findings of the inquiry by Prosecutor Wachenfeld and Special Assistant Attorney General Dixon into reports of tampering with the jury will be placed before the new Essex Grand Jury.

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES

By Joe Duval

TONIGHT the battlin' bowlers step up to the line in The News' first sweepstakes and we extend a cordial invitation to all bowling enthusiasts to come up'n see us. There ought to be some pretty good pin-knocking down. There are few big handicaps. The vast majority of the boys will be given between 18 and 22 pins.

Some time ago we were asked why we called it "The Belleville News Sweepstakes" in preference to just plain "Belleville Sweepstakes." The answer is now evident. The News sponsored the event, but the interest among Belleville bowlers was almost pathetic. Even Newark had entered more than the home town by the middle of this week and Belleville kepters form only one-third of the total entry list.

All told fourteen communities are represented: Belleville, Newark, Garfield, East Orange, Irvington, Bloomfield, Nutley, Clifton, Arlington, Kearny, Clifton Hill, North Arlington, New York City and Woodside, Long Island.

But we'd like you all to come over to see us anytime this evening or tomorrow from two till midnight. Drop in and follow the competition pin by pin.

Ancient Auto Racing
You folks all know Charley Feeney. Sure, you know Feeney. You folks all know Charley Feeney who managed the High School basketball team last winter but who is probably better known as one of the town's speed demons. Well, we hear Feeney's going to cash in on some of that speed.

Charley's getting a brand new Continental Beacon midget racer. It's being built for him by Red Jeffries right here in Belleville. He is going to enter it at Long Branch a little later in the month, according to the story, and expects (of course) to clean up with it. Charley, who lives at 24 Prospect place, got quite some experience as a pitman out at the lately-defunct Nutley Velodrome.

The Truth Always Hurts
Our civic pride is hurt. Because Belleville High School lost a game after having won its first two in rather conclusive manner, one of our colleagues was moved to jump into print with all sorts of accusations and inferences as to the stupidity of the baseballers here at the High School. He claimed that the material which reports to Coach Smith every spring is just about the poorest one could expect in a town of 30,000. Read between the lines and you gather that the writer thinks very little of Belleville and the things it does.

Our first reaction was violent. If we hadn't been on our way out for the evening, we might have beat it down to Newark and tried to jam his statements down his throat. Simply because our civic pride was hurt. But now, looking at the article from the perspective of almost a week, while we still believe that the writer's caustic comments were somewhat unjustified, we can see that there is a certain amount of truth in them.

Here in Belleville we do have an extremely short-sighted athletic policy for the High School. We expect to get it absolutely nothing for the athletic training of our youth until they get into High School and then: "Oh, the coach will teach them. That's his job." That is not his job. The coach in a high school is not there to teach fundamentals, he is there to teach the finer points. How much time he is going to be able to give the team if he has to be stopping all the time to help some rookie find home plate?

But beside the point of the difficulties caused the coach by our policy, we must face the fact that we are failing in our duty to the boys and girls of Belleville. The scope of the athletic training in the High School is cramped enough, but in the grade schools it is limited to marbles! Can growing bodies be expected to develop by knuckling?

We like to have winning teams in the High School as a matter of civic pride, but the question of juvenile athletics goes much deeper than that. Children need exercise and if it is not given them as a matter of policy by the school authorities, they are going to get it where they can. And where they get it is often a source of sorrow and concern not only to their parents but eventually to the town authorities also. It is much better for youth to expend its energies running on the track than on the streets.

And now let us inquire why the High School cheer leaders were the only ones left out of the awarding of the letters at the all-sports dinner. They were not even mentioned for any honor. Yet there is scarcely a harder-working group at the school. Give it to 'em, Belleville.

Belboy Trackmen Trip Arts As Holloway, Elliot, McKay Each Win Two Events

Scoring heavily in the sprints and field events, Belleville's tracksters had little difficulty turning back Newark's School of Arts at Wequahic Park last Friday 54-36. It was the first meet of the year for Coach Winnika's boys.

Ed Holloway, Wally Elliot and George McKay were the standouts of the afternoon with a pair of victories each. Holloway showed his heels to the field in the sprints events, with Howard Cullen right behind him both times.

Elliot, completing in his first interscholastic meet, turned the experts topsy-turvy by chalking up two clean-cut wins in the hurdle events. McKay scored in the high and broad jumps.

The only other Belleville first was taken by Ed Dyson, who romped home the winner in the half-mile. All told the striped Jerseys finished on top in seven of the ten events.

At Orange

Donald Budge

Donald Budge, the red-headed Californian string-bean who has beaten the world's best amateur and professional tennis players in the past two years, makes his final American appearance at the Orange Armory, Sunday night.

Thus will be climaxed the greatest tennis record in the history of the international sport.

Budge, after winning four championships in different countries and retaining the Davis Cup last summer for the United States, turned professional. Since January he has beaten Ellsworth Vines, heretofore the world's pro champion, in 22 out of 38 matches.

In more recent weeks Budge, who will oppose Fred J. Perry of England in the feature match at Orange, trimmed the colorful Fred in 21 out of their first 29 matches.

They'll play best of three sets at Orange and will engage in doubles with Ben Gorshakoff and Walter Senior, California pros, picking their partners. The first of three matches will start at 8:30 o'clock.

Gorshakoff and Senior will open the Orange program with a singles match.

BELLBOYS SPLIT WITH WEST SIDE, GARFIELD NINES

Scare Undeclared Newarkers Before Succumbing 8-5; Avazier Champ Again

The High School's first defeat of the year came last week at Clearman Field at the hands of West Side's potential champions. The score was 8-5 in as much of a see-saw affair as Belleville has seen in many years.

Far from disheartened the Bellboys sprang right back into the winning column by trimming Garfield High Tuesday 4-2.

Belleville took the lead over the Newarkers in the second inning by scoring two runs without getting a hit. Three walks by West Side's John Curtis helped no end.

West Side went into the lead in the third with a three-run rally. Belleville tied it up in the fourth, West Side went ahead in their half of the fourth, 4-3.

Belleville took a 5-4 lead in the sixth and the visitors changed positions again with two in their half of the same frame. Then a pair of runs in the eighth ended the scoring, for the game was called at that point because of darkness.

Reversal of Form

The Zebras played heads-up ball Tuesday to turn back the challenge of Garfield. Jack Avazier turned in another masterful performance in winning his second straight. He limited the visitors to seven scattered hits and was never in trouble.

Avazier was not only the pitching star of the game but the outstanding man with the stick as well. He pasted out three safe hits to lead the Bellboy attack. Big Red Handley was right on the scores with three of the four Blue and Gray runs.

Joe Sullivan entered the record books with two hits and a run scored to give the bottom of the batting order almost a clean sweep in the honors. Jackie Clark had a brace of hits while Bob Gibler had the other.

Colonel B. Mills PLEASES MR. NEUN
Shipped Over From Yanks Buster's Stick Work Slates Him For Majors

Manager Johnny Neun has discovered one cause for real joy this season at his Newark Bears continue their uneven path toward a third straight International League flag. That bright spot is the work of Colonel Buster Mills, a 30-year-old major leaguer who was shipped to the Bears outright by the New York Yankees last fall.

The veteran balked at reporting to a minor league team, and while young Bud Metheny was stealing his thunder down South this spring, Mills was back home in Ranger, Texas, tending to his oil business.

Out of the opening game lineup because of his lack of practice, Mills stepped in the following day as a replacement for Frankie Kelleher. Though appearing in only six games, he has batted in one-quarter of the Bears' runs so far and his batting average is crowding .300. His heavy stick-work is taking up much of the slack left by the failure of Wally Judnich, Ed Levy and Claude Corbett to hit in their accustomed styles.

Triangles Troupe Hotters
The Triangles ended their practice season preparatory to their official opening Sunday by trimming the Heller Brothers A. C. of Newark 12-7. Lou Long and John Costa divided the twirling duties with George Zoppa and "Mush" Marshall behind the plate.

The Bloomfield Mohawks will visit the Triangles at Capitol Field Sunday at 3 p.m. The boys with the three-cornered insignia will put a completely uniformed nine on the field and expect their most successful season in many years.

Hilltops Near Top Form
Reports from the camp of the Hilltops claim that the "Toppers" are rounding into A-1 shape and are preparing strenuously for the coming season. All of last year's squad has returned and several new men have been added to the line-up.

Owls In 12-Inning Tie
It's a good thing the rain came or the Belleville Night Owls and the Polish-American club would probably still be playing their baseball game. When rain forced the cessation of hostilities it was the twelfth inning and the score was 2-2.

The Owls nicked Kero of ten hits but were unable to bunt them. Meanwhile Bucco of Belleville allowed but three bingles and fanned twelve.

Templars Drop Close One
The Templars entertained the Rangers at Riviera Park Sunday but the guests were not very considerate. They walked off with a 10-9 victory, all due to a wild throw in the final innings.

The Templars are at home at Riviera Park every Sunday afternoon and play hosts to some of the best teams in this section.

Cobras Break Up
Due to the fact that many of their players are attending college and others will be unable to play for various reasons, the Cobras, one of the leading baseball teams in Belleville last summer, will not field a team this year.

Camera Club Movies At W. & T. Plant

The Wallace & Tiernan Camera Club will present at 8 o'clock Monday evening in the recreation room of the plant the new, five-reel talkie, "Highlights and Shadows," by Dr. J. S. Watson, Jr., in cooperation with the research laboratories of the Eastman Kodak Co. The picture, it is said, "vividly portrays the romance in the art and science of photography."

The marvels of precision machinery and mass production graphically portrayed and a graphic, dramatic story of the part played by expert workmen and precision machinery in the creation of photographic materials will be presented.

Added attractions will be two short sound films produced by the General Electric Company: "A Ride on the Burlington Zephyr" and "A Trip Through an Electric Ship." There also is a possibility that DuPont's remarkable film, "The Wonderland of Chemistry," also may be shown. There will be 200 seats for employees and friends who desire to see the talkies.

Three More Softball Teams Join Vet-Recreation Circuit

Three more teams have been added to the roster of junior softball entries in the league to be sponsored by the Recreation Department and the Veterans of Foreign Wars this summer. They are the Pirate Juniors, the Silver Lake Community House and the Recreation House.

This brings to nine the number of teams who will compete for the championship. A meeting for final arrangements will be held Tuesday night at 8 in the Vets' Hall, Belleville avenue. The schedule will open a week from Monday and games will be played on the grounds of School Seven.

SENATORS OPEN WITH PITT MINORS

Pitching Staff of Five Heartens Manager Mallack In First Year as Tutor

The Senators, champions of the town and winners of last year's Belleville-Nutley series, will take the field tomorrow in the opening of its season under the guidance of a new manager.

Marty Mallack, who has been well-known in baseball circles in this section for the past ten years, has taken over the tutoring of the Senators and expects to lead them to their second straight championship.

The game tomorrow brings the Senators face to face with the Pittsburgh Minor Leaguers, the former Emeralds. The fracas will take place at Branch Brook Park extension.

Main gap for the Senators to fill this year has naturally been that of Bernie Barnett, the hero of last year's campaign. Barnett, after pitching and winning every game in the town championships and the series with Nutley, signed a contract with Akron of the Middle Atlantic League.

Taking his place are three veterans and two newcomers: Zig Winkowski, George Fred, Jack McCann, John Wiscey and Les Dunham. The remainder of the roster includes Ken Bedford and Al Schriener, catchers; Lee Edner, Mitch Mosier, Harry McCourt, Frank Boryszewski, Doc Maurillo, infielders; Joe Metz, Tony Icona, Steve Lukowiak, and Ed Strijewski, outfielders.

In GOOD WEATHER or BAD -
You're SAFER on NEW Firestone CHAMPION TIRES

The Only Tires Made With the NEW SAFETY-LOCK CORD BODY and GEAR-GRIP TREAD...

Stronger Cord Body—More Non-Skid Mileage

YOU'RE safer on any road in any weather when your car is equipped with new Firestone Champion Tires. They give you greater protection against blowouts because of the exclusive Firestone Safety-Lock Cord Body and they give you greater protection against skidding because of the amazing new Firestone Gear-Grip Tread.

The sensational new Safety-Lock Cord Body is the result of a new and revolutionary means of locking greater safety into the cord body of the tires. This is accomplished first, by the use of a new type of tire cord called "Safety-Lock," in which the cotton fibers are more compactly interwoven to give greater strength. And then the fibers in each individual cord, the cords in each ply and the plies themselves are all securely locked together by a new and advanced Firestone process of Gum-Dipping, which provides amazingly greater strength—and greater strength means greater safety.

The new Safety-Lock cord construction gives added strength that makes possible the use of the new, thicker, tougher, deeper Firestone Gear-Grip Tread, which provides remarkably longer non-skid mileage. This sensational new tread is called "Gear-Grip" because of its unique design which has more than three thousand sharp-edged angles that grip the road with a sure-footed hold to protect against skidding and to assure a safe stop.

In good weather or bad, in winter or summer, you need all of this extra protection—and you need it NOW! Let us equip your car with a set of new Firestone Champion Tires—the only tires made that are safety-proved on the speedway for your protection on the highway.
