The greatest menace in the world today is not poison gas, but poisoned ideas.

THURSDAY, JUNE 1, 1939

ANOTHER MEMORIAL DAY PASSES

Tuesday was Memorial Day once again and Belleville veterans and auxiliaries remembered those who remembered us and our happiness in the greatest way man can act — by giving up his life for liberty of country and its people. Memorial Day recalled these heroes to us in all the poignancy of their sacrifice and we hope that they know the depth of our gratitude and the sincerity of our remembrance of them.

The day of memorials was begun by the men and women who were shocked and devastated by the Civil War, and made the decoration of the graves of the departed an honored, annual custom.

The custom has widened with the years and broadened in its significance.

Now it has become a national rite. We try to pay our debt to the founders of the day, and, in addition, we have made it a day of high honor to all our dead, in war or in peace.

Thereby Memorial Day has achieved a stronger beauty. As a firing squad sounded a salute over the dead of the various wars in one section of our cemeteries, Tuesday, simple and devoted people were placing blooms on other graves.

It is good for our souls to feel this fervor.

It is fitting to wish, for all departed, rest.

A FINE JOB

While the heavy loss of life on the sunken submarine Squalus is a deplorable tragedy, the navy must be given great credit for speed and efficiency in rescuing survivors. The success of the diving bell in its first real tryout is most gratifying. It greatly lessens the danger in a crippled submarine.

But, to a Belleville man, Arthur W. Weber, 193 Forest street, the man who filmed the "History of Belleville" for The Belleville News some years ago, goes credit for conceiving the idea of the marker buoy and telephone for submarines. The device of "Art," as he is best known here, aided in the rescue. It made possible location of the "sub" and was the brain-child of the local man after the S-4 disaster when all members of the crew perished. For his invention "Art" received a navy citation.

The members of the crew showed splendid courage in keeping with the traditions of the navy.

The men of the rescuing squad, particularly the divers who worked under great handicaps in considerable depth of water, are entitled to special credit.

All in all — with Belleville in the limelight — the rescue job was admirably done. The one regret is that all could not have survived.

RABIES

Since the beginning of 1938 three human deaths from rabies have occurred in New Jersey. Last year a total of 563 dogs were found to have been rabid, and ten cases were reported in other animals. In January of this year, 106 cases were found, which was more than the entire 1937 record.

Accordingly, the State Department of Health directed the imposition of quarantine regulations in several of the North Jersey counties, where the disease was most prevalent, requiring owners to pen their dogs or to keep them leashed. Adopted from a three-month period, the regulations have produced such results that continuance of the order in modified form for another period of ninety days has been ordered.

Records of the department disclose 416 persons bitten by rabid dogs last year and eighty-two in 1937. Animals, mostly dogs, reported bitten by rabid dogs in 1938 numbered only 289 in 1938 and seventy-one in 1937. Obviously, twice this number were actually bitten last year, probably many more, since all dogs bitten by a rabid animal do not develop rabies. Local health authorities reported 12,338 persons were bitten by dogs in New Jersey during 1937.

"The greatest menace in the spread of rabies is the stray dog," declares Dr. J. Lynn Mahaffey, State Health Director. "We are hopeful the present restrictions may have the effect of making dog owners more conscious of their responsibility for the care and protection of their pets; to take precautions against their mingling with ownerless animals, or stray dogs.

"There is adequate municipal authority to take care of stray dogs, for their impounding and destruction humanely. The reason for non-enforcement is often the public's opposition. Local officials will become increasingly dog-conscious as the public insists upon enforcement of regulations."

Rabies, as described by literature of the State Health Department, is a dreaded disease, because once its symptoms have begun, it cannot be cured and practically always results in death. It is usually transmitted to humans by the bite of a rabid dog. Fortunately, rabies in man can usually be prevented if the person bitten receives prompt and proper treatment.

"If the dog is obviously mad, kill it without delay. Often, however, this is not the case. Unless it is almost certain the animal has rabies, it should not be shot at once but should be securely confined for ten days. If the dog has rabies in the early stages, symptoms of the disease will be seen in a few days, after which a laboratory test of the brain will prove the animal is rabid and all doubt is removed. If the dog be killed too early, the test is likely to be uncertain and from two to four weeks may be lost before other tests prove the dog actually had rabies.

"If the dog is rabid, or is suspected of being rabid," concludes the department warning, "take the Pasteur treatment at once in addition to other precautions. This is the best preventive measure of all. Remember, there is no cure after the disease develops."

WHAT ABOUT WEDNESDAY CLOSING?

Several Belleville business men and women are wondering whether there will be a general closing of stores on Wednesday afternoons this Summer. Particularly interested are the proprietors of the one-man or woman shop — those who are confined to their work six long days a week without much opportunity of relief. Many of these proprietors are forced to work evenings, as well. While they are vitally concerned about one-half day off when they will be able to relax during the hot days to come, there are other stores that feel Wednesday closing would not matter one way. These stores are the ones which are able to maintain adequate help so that the proprietors may "take off" when, as and if they desire, or are the type that must remain open, or put a little differently, should remain open. Drug stores, for instance, fall in this classification, and there are others.

It would seem, however, that most of Belleville stores could regulate business so that Wednesday afternoons could be taken off. Housewives, we are sure, could arrange affairs, if given ample notice, so that they could co-operate. Maybe those who feel they do not want to close could stretch a point in favor of their less favored neighbors. At least, it seems that this is a matter of sufficient import for the merchants to call a meeting to discuss the matter. There would be some unanimity of thought and no one could say that the merchants were not working together, as they should be for their own best interests.

SOUND ADVICE

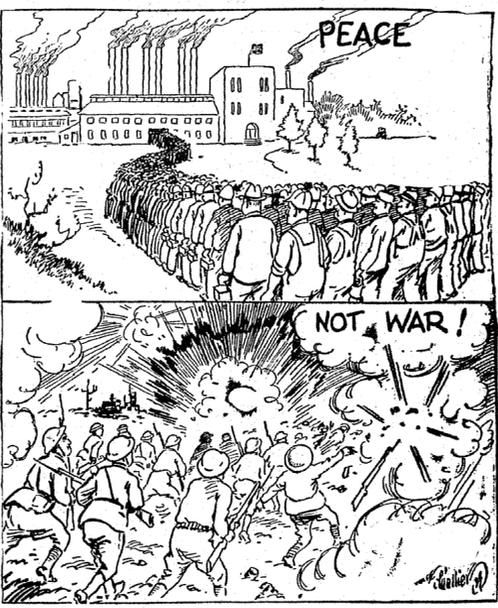

There has existed in Washington for the past several months a special Congressional committee investigating the nation's economic ills. This committee, known as the Temporary National Economic Committee, but more frequently referred to as the "Monopoly" Committee, is endeavoring to find a formula that will put the Nation back on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. In other words, what is sought is a guide to real recovery.

A recent witness before this committee was the head of one of the country's largest automobile manufacturing corporations. And the advice he offered is worth considerably more than just passing notice by Congress and everyone else interested in prosperity. It is noteworthy, not because it is some new fangled economic panacea, but because it is just plain easy-to-understand economics and common sense.

In a few words, the witness' economic theory was this: Release the economic structure of the country from its bonds of regulation, taxes and abuse and let there be a profit to be gained from legitimate effort. When people can make money by business activity, money will flow freely again and recovery will be in sight.

It wouldn't take any experimenting or complicated legislation to follow that theory.

NO STOMACH FOR WAR

News Item: "I want to make it plain that American industry has no stomach for war."—Howard Cooney, President of the National Association of Manufacturers.

THIS WEEK

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

The American Association of Social Workers after a survey of relief conditions in 35 cities and in Porto Rico and Hawaii has placed its report before Congressional Committees in charge of the Works Progress Administration appropriation for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1939.

The report on the whole is very critical of so-called "relief conditions" in this country and the survey disclosed the surprising figures that in January last twenty-three million persons in seven million families were dependent upon public aid.

The report says that "shocking human misery" is a reflection of the failure of many local governments to meet the problems of relief and unemployment — and that in some areas local officials have been trying to at a hundred year old relief machine to the present day "emergency."

The continued use of that word "emergency" accounts in no small measure for the situation. Emergency in my dictionary is defined as "a sudden condition calling for immediate action." Now this relief situation is not an "emergency." It is a CONDITION. Federal and local governments have continued to treat it as an emergency rather than as a condition — and until we recognize it as a condition which is with us and has been with us for ten years and is going to continue to be with us to some degree for many times ten years to come, we are going to continue to blunder and muddle along.

I know many professional social service workers — and all those I know are people of high ideals, commendable objectives and earnest sincerity. Most of them are working for a mere pittance as compensation goes, and have dedicated themselves to the creation of the ideal social state and to the alleviation of suffering and misery on the part of their fellowmen. On the whole they are not practically minded people — they give little thought to the source of the ways and means necessary for relief because they are so sincere in their feeling that something must be done.

And I agree that something must be done — but it must be done along lines that have proven to be most desirable in conditions of this kind. To continue our present relief machinery, to continue to give out relief in money and in food and in shelter and in food tickets and what not to those capable of working and who refuse to work — to continue to keep those in political favor in relief jobs when they don't need them, — to continue to permit our relief machinery to be as haphazard as it is, is to continue to treat relief as an "emergency" — and not as a condition.

I feel that for those physically and mentally incapable of self support and who are found, upon critical investigation not to have the means of self support and not to have relatives who under the law can be compelled to support them — that that class of folks should come under a system very much like the English do to provide them with the bare necessities of life. I feel more definitely, however, that for those capable of working and doing things, the Government should provide — through construction of necessary and useful public works — work for them to do and that unless they do it and do a full day's work for a day's pay, they should not receive financial assistance of any kind whatsoever.

The relief situation is not an "emergency." It is a CONDITION and until the country realizes that and places it on a long term, sound basis, we are going to continue to have these "shocking revelations."

Yours 'til next week,
"GUARDIAN"

Belleville, In The Revolution

This is the seventh of a series of stories compiled and written by the Federal Writers' Project of New Jersey. These stories are excerpts from the forthcoming "History of Belleville," sponsored by the Town of Belleville to commemorate its centennial.

When New Jersey became the theatre of the Revolutionary War, Belleville, like many another peaceful settlement, found its quiet existence disrupted by the tread of marching and countermarching men, the shouts and curses of foragers, the blazing of skirmishers' guns. While not occupying a particularly valuable strategic position, the little town on the Second River drew the wrath of the British on various occasions. Its inhabitants, still predominantly of Dutch stock, in their majority openly embraced the cause of the revolution.

For to the grievances that all other American colonials had against the English crown were added the specific wrongs that these Dutch-Americans had endured. The privileges extended them when New Netherlands passed into the hands of the British were soon revoked. The promise of unhampered free trade with their native Holland and of duty-free imports were forgotten almost as soon as made. Even their churches did not always enjoy that measure of self-government that had been granted to them.

However, neither Dutch nor English Bellevillians entered into the conflict lightlyhearted. Nobody could foretell the outcome. Despite Stamp Act and Port Bill, the cause hardly seemed to warrant the effort. One contemporary chronicler could still explain: "There is great disturbance abroad in the earth, & they say it is tea that caused it. So then if they will quarrel about such a trifling thing as that, what must we expect but war?"

At the same time there appeared the deep cleavage that was to rend Second River's people into two opposing camps. The New Jersey Council of Safety declared that Abraham Van Gieson, a substantial landowner of the Third River section, "went over to the enemy." His lands were ordered sequestered. Edmund W. Kingsland, his wife and her father, Captain John Richards, also were openly hostile to the Revolutionary cause and "could not stay within the American lines." Even some of the Schuylers were British sympathizers, while the head of the clan, Philip Schuyler steadfastly served the Revolution as brigadier general in Washington's army.

Girl Scout News

More than one hundred fifty girl scouts, with leaders and other adults in the party, will fill their chartered buses to capacity when they leave on Saturday to attend and participate in Girl Scout Day at the New York World's Fair.

Scouts from various troops were busy on Sunday decorating graves and placing flags in the church cemeteries in preparation for Memorial Day.

Mrs. C. K. Perkins, Mrs. John Charlton and Mrs. Ward Lay have recently become members of the local Girl Scout Council.

tells of "rebels who lately plundered the Store of Captain Drummond at Aquinac Bridge," and goes on:

About the same time, these or some others of the Frater-ty, advised the Honorable of Capt. John Richards of Second River and carried off seven young Slaves, with his Sheep, Oxen, Cows, Horses, &c. to a very considerable value. Daily Accounts are received of their Ravages in the back Country.

Washington Camps At Second River

Belleville barely avoided becoming the scene of a major engagement during Washington's retreat from Fort Lee. It was reported that "the whole of Washington's Army that Marched from the Clove by Second River last week for Philadelphia amounted to about 4,500 Men with four pieces of Cannon, the Remainder took the upper Road thro' Morris Town."

Conwallis, obviously afraid of an ambush laid for his forces pursued the Colonial forces cautiously. On the night of November 22, 1776, the harassed Americans came to rest at Second River. Washington himself is reported to have occupied one of the grist mills close to the road to Newark, probably the Kingsland mill.

Much of the sporadic guerrilla warfare that accompanied the War of Independence was witnessed by Belleville. Some American and British forces faced each other across the Passaic and made frequent sallies into each other's territory. British reports had it that "there is a scouting Party (of Americans) three times a Day on New-Barbadoes Neck; 100 of the Rebels are billeted at Second River."

Militia Guards Belleville

The small American detachment that guarded Belleville was part of the Jersey militia raised for the "Defense of the Frontiers." Its commander was Abraham Speer, a native of Second River, who was commissioned captain in the Second Essex Regiment on May 28, 1777. Speer's guardhouse was located near the ferry across the Passaic, not so much because the ferry was owned by the young captain's father, John Speer, but because the flat-bottomed boat was the only permanent means of communication between the two shores. Here was the spot most in need of defense against a possible British raid on Second River.

Men on horseback were constantly patrolling the river front to guard against such raids. A watch was maintained in the bellery of the old Dutch church. At the first sign of the enemy's approach an old mortar would be fired. The boom of this signal gun called on Second River husbands to drop their tasks, take their old blunderbusses from their walls and turn soldiers in defense of their homesteads.

He Got His Man

Particularly vigilant whenever his turn came to mount guard in the church bellery must have been John Speer, the terryman and father of Captain Abraham. Tradition has made him the hero of a classic spy story.

It seems that one day as old John was sitting on his high perch scanning the landscape, a one man hailed the ferry from the opposite shore. Speer promptly recognized him as a spy, picked up his musket and shot him dead — truly a remarkable feat of marksmanship when one considers that his trusty gun was nothing better than a smooth-bore muzzle loader, and that the Passaic is approximately 400 feet wide at the spot.

But, so the story continues, Speer's vigilance was rewarded. In the spy's cowhide boots were found incriminating papers. In recognition of his watchful patriotism the American authorities presented Speer with the dead man's "bull's eye" pocket watch and the brass buttons from his coat.

"Father, The British!"

Second River's ferry also featured largely in at least one attempt made by the British to capture old Josiah Hornblower. This Staffordshire mechanic had come as a young man to America to serve as an engineer in the Schuyler copper mining venture. By the time of the Revolution he had acquired considerable property, was the father of a large family and, as one of the most prominent citizens of Second River, had become a justice of the peace. He was an ardent patriot, and though too old to carry arms himself, he served the Revolutionary cause with advice, financial aid, and as a member of the Provincial Assembly.

Rightly the British regarded him as a very dangerous man, and several times Hornblower barely escaped arrest. It was small wonder that he watched prudently from the porch of his dwelling a rather large party of men being ferried across to Second River by James H. Kip, Hornblower's own son-in-law.

At first the score of strangers seemed offensive enough to Kip. "They were dressed in tawny labors and had told him plausible stories of why they wanted to cross. But in the middle of the stream the young ferryman discovered that the supposed gang of migratory farm workers was aimed to the teeth, or rather to the waistbands. They pulled their pistols from under their greatcoats, primed them and otherwise got ready for action.

Kip put two and two together but kept his peace until the ferry was near enough to the shore to enable Hornblower, still seated on his perch, to hear his call. Then Kip dropped his oars overboard, rose to his feet and shouted: "Father, the British!" History holds no record of what the British did to Kip. But the ferry, drifting rudderless by the current, must have made shore by good luck. By the time the British party reached the house, Hornblower had flown once more and his daughter, Kip's wife, had been able to hide the family silver. The foiled enemies searched the house thoroughly and even set fire to it. But neighbors and a providential rain helped extinguish the blaze before much damage was done.

Adventurous Raiders

The story is still told of a few adventurous spirits who set out on a cold, dark winter night from Second River for Bergen Heights to capture a few British officers.

Bergen Heights was garrisoned by the British and it was known that they found relaxation from their drill and guard duty at an occasional school house dance. Captain Henry Joralemon, his brother Haimach, Jacob Garland, with Captain John Kidney in the lead, after tying their sleigh-horses to a fence nearby, heard the stamping and fiddling as they stealthily drew nearer.

Placing themselves in strategic positions, the quartet began a march of ducks to make the dancers believe that they were surrounded at least by a battalion. Martial orders were given with stentorian voices and the fiddlers broke off with a sudden screech as Kidney threw the door open, a brace of pistols in his hands, and shouted:

"Surrender or die! Everyone here is my prisoner."

The Redcoats were ordered to fall in line and Kidney selected the highest ranking officer present and a Loyalist refugee, had the two bound, gagged and bundled off to the waiting sleigh. Warning all that "The first man who attempts to escape is a dead man!" Kidney closed the door again and ran after his friends. The horses were whipped up and before the surprised Redcoats could recover, the sleigh was well on its way to the waiting Second River ferry with its two prisoners for the Morristown jail.

The Battle of Second River

Attempts to dislodge this small but annoying American force in their flank were made by the British on September 2 and 14, 1777. History has dignified at least the second one of these engagements by the name of Battle of Second River, though like the first one, it was hardly more than an extensive foraging expedition. Sir Henry Clinton, the English commander, reported a few days later to General Howe that he had been able to take 400 head of cattle, some sheep and several horses to replenish the larders of the New York garrison.

Belleville's militia men were not willing to have their cattle driven off under their very noses. Some enforcement under General Philip Schuyler came up from Elizabeth and the skirmish developed into a stiff fight that lasted all day. Ironically enough, it was from Schuyler's mansion at Schuyler Heights on the opposite bank of the Passaic that Clinton and his staff watched the progress of their own forces under General Campbell and Colonel Abraham Van Buskirk, a former Hackensack physician.

Their superior numbers forced the Americans to withdraw slowly up the Second River. But at every gust of wind a new stand was made; every stone and stone fence became another fortress. By evening the British had gained no more than the area between Main street and what is now Summer avenue. Nightfall saw the Americans retire in good order. The British were able to bivouac undisturbed in the deep ravine of the Second River. But on the woe of the battle was not exactly a success for them. Several days later Clinton withdrew his troops behind the Passaic.

The major casualty on the American side that day was Harmonus Brown, a lad of nineteen, who was struck down by a cannon ball as Clinton's artillery began firing on the village to cover the crossing of Van Buskirk's battalion.

Two markers commemorate the heroic stand made by Schuyler's handful of Jersey militia. One, erected by the New Jersey Commission for Historical Sites on Highway No. 21 at the approximate spot where Clinton's forces landed, reads:

SECOND RIVER
NOW BELLEVILLE
BATTLES WERE FOUGHT
HERE SEPTEMBER 2 AND
14, 1777. SIR HENRY CLINTON OCCUPIED SCHUYLER MANSION WHILE DIRECTING RAIDS NEARBY
IN SEPTEMBER 1777
TROOPS OF BOTH ARMIES
REVOLUTION.

The second plaque, dedicated by the Sons of America order, is inset in a boulder standing in Branch Brook Park Extension at about the place where the opposing forces fired their last shots.

Another engagement fought on Belleville soil was the rear guard action of General "Mad" Anthony Wayne on a winter day of 1779. Wayne's men were exhausted and starved, many of them were without shoes and left bloody footprints in the ice and snow. However, undaunted they stood off the pursuing British between Second River and Elwood avenue. For many years after the ditches that had been dug by the exhausted host for shelter were shown to growing children.

A year later, when Newark and the whole surrounding countryside was occupied by the British, a great success in getting off the ground had occurred that must have caused many a chuckle of satisfaction among Bellevillians. A British party camped during the night on the now extinct Keene's Lane, a small throughfare on Washington avenue opposite present Carter street. Another party coming up from Newark along the River road, stumbled on the pickets of the campers and immediately began firing. A skirmish ensued and it was not until a number had been wounded on either side that the respective commanders learned the true state of affairs and could induce their men to cease firing.

Snoop's Snoops

"Snoop's" snoop was at the Belleville Recreation House recently. Was his face red from what he saw when he peeked through the keyhole at the meeting of the Belleville Art Club. After that peek, Snoop has decided to take up art because this meeting certainly had nothing on Sally Rand's nude ranch.

Our Atlantic City correspondent had rather a busy week. He observed on the boardwalk Mrs. William Entriken, Mrs. Elmer Hyde and Mrs. John Denike, who were attending the Women's Club Convention at Haddon Hall, recently.

He also saw Albert Luscombe, vice-president of the Peoples' National Bank & Trust Company; John P. Dailey, secretary of the Essex County Bankers' Association; Wilbur W. Brooks, executive vice-president of the First National Bank; and Francis J. McPadden, cashier of the First National Bank, all of whom were attending the New Jersey Bankers' Association Convention at the Ambassador.

Albert H. Boreman, Mertz avenue, and his wife, and W. Brand Smith, Academy street, were also observed on the boardwalk. It was learned from good authority that they were attending the Master Plumbers' Convention at the Hotel Chelsea.

Nelson Webb of Eastwood-Nealley Corp. was also seen on the boardwalk, but your correspondent was unable to find out what convention he was attending.

We understand that Charles A. Gebhardt, Jr., past president of the Belleville Lions Club and member of the Board of Education, put in quite a strenuous day at the Ferncliff Golf Club, Caldwell. "Gebbie" was playing in the club tournament and from what we can learn, his score was 138 — at least that was the number of strokes that he counted. "Gebbie" was asked if this was not a mistake and if it wasn't his bowling score. "Gebbie" replied that his bowling average was well over 150 and that he felt with a few more years of practice he would be able to at least break 125.

Our reporter also noted that Johnny Carough, playing in the same tournament, did not throw one club.

Harry "Dutch" Ziegler, secretary of the Belleville Lions Club, was also playing in the same tournament and was having wonderful success in getting off the tees. His drives were averaging well over 200 yards, but in adding up his score on the green, he had to stretch his conscience to mark 8's and 9's.

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday.
The Golden Text is: "The Lord reigneth, he is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith he hath girded himself: the world also is established, that it cannot be moved."
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "I will lift up mine eyes, unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made heaven and earth."
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As a material, theoretical basis is found to be a misapprehension of existence, the spiritual and divine Principle of man dwains upon human thought, and leads it to 'where the young child was,'—even to the birth of a new-old idea, to the spiritual sense of being and of what Life includes."

CANDIDATE FOR DEGREE

Porter F. Sheldon

Special to Belleville News
Syracuse, N. Y. — Porter F. Sheldon, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Sheldon, 221 Joralemon street, Belleville, N. J., is a candidate for a degree at the sixty-eighth annual commencement of Syracuse University Monday.

deed to four plots in Cortlandt, Little and Stephen streets. According to Town Counsel Keenan the price paid for the deeds is less than the cost of foreclosure of the tax liens which the town holds. The property is to be put up at auction at the Town Hall June 2.

A six-room bungalow offered at public auction recently by the town was bid in by the Byram Holding Company, Newark for $2,225. Five bids, starting at $2,000, were received on the property on which the town foreclosed several years ago.

The bungalow is located at 37 Baldwin place and is badly in need of repairs. The offer was presented to the Town Commission Tuesday for approval.

County Road Bids
Bids were received last week by County Engineer Stickle for construction of a highway forty-four feet wide from North Sixth street and Heller parkway Newark, to Mill street.

Construction of the road was one of the stipulations made by the Andrew Jergens Co. under which it will construct a $1,000,000 factory on the site of the old Belleville Copper Works. The street also would serve the proposed low-cost housing site at Branch Brook Park.

Franklin Contracting Co. of Newark offered to lay a highway with six-inch concrete base for $105,664, or eight-inch base for $110,659. Next lowest bids were by Lay Fere-Greco Contracting Co. of Newark, which were $107,305.30 and $113,780.30, respectively.

Seven contractors participated in the bidding. Bids will be received June 1 for a one-track Erie Railroad bridge across the proposed highway.

PLANS MADE FOR VISITORS AT CAMPOREE

Belleville Troops Have Part In The Program

Allan R. Cullimore, vice-chairman of the Robert Treat Council in charge of the Camporee on June 2, 3 and 4, at the Schiff Reservation in Mendham, announced today that arrangements will be made to handle visitors at the Reservation after 10 a.m. Sunday of that weekend. It is realized by the committee that the parents and friends of the boys may want to visit the camp site. Guides and a parking space for cars will be provided for visitors on Sunday only.

On Saturday the Scouts will be busy with their camping activities and visiting will result in disorganization and interference with the competition. Parents who want their boy to do his best Scouting work will not visit him until Sunday.

The committee on transportation and communication under Paul P. Coggins and Robert Widford has issued the following memorandum: "It will simplify getting to the Camporee field if all cars will take State Route 24 from Morristown to Mendham, turn left at Mendham Center, and enter the Schiff Reservation through the South Gate. Along the way from Morristown and inside the Reservation to the camp site white signs will show entrance and red signs will show the way out of the Reservation." Belleville troops will take part.

ART CLUB HAS HISTORY SKETCHES AND PAINTINGS

Belleville Art Club, through sixteen of its members, has prepared twenty-five oil, water color paintings and sketches to be exhibited during the week of the June 18 centennial celebration and veterans Flag Day observance.

Although it has not as yet been formally requested, use of the public library will be asked by the club, which features in its exhibit pictures depicting some historical beauty spots in Belleville. Ajay Hull, Newark Star Eagle staff artist, is president of the group, which has limited its enrollment to fifty. Several members have won distinction through exhibits. William Burns, Paterson, recently was awarded third prize at the sixth annual Irvington art exhibition on May 15 for his "Design in Rock." At the same exhibit Matthew Geddes, Montclair, formerly Belleville, was awarded a prize for "The Road" painting. Maxwell Kimball, sculptor and member of the club, has several works on exhibition at the New York World's Fair.

The club was organized several years ago to promote the advancement of art in Belleville.

Plans Drawn Up For New Tract Development

The Conforti Engineering Construction Corp., developers of the Evergreen Homes Tract which adjoins the Forest Hill golf links will construct twenty-four homes. They are to be of frame, stone and brick combination, and will sell from $5,990 upward on the FHA insured mortgage basis.

A model dwelling has five rooms, oil heat, tiled bathroom and kitchen (the latter of the so-called approved domestic science type with many labor-saving devices and ample cabinet space and table-top gas range), cellar adaptable for recreation purposes, copper screens, brass plumbing, complete insulation, attached garage and other features included in FHA construction standards.

WANTS CLASS REUNIONS

James Tully

James Tully, president of the Belleville High School Class of '36, who recently was responsible for a successful class reunion urges other classes to follow in the footsteps of the '36'ers. He feels that the '36 group, many of whom came from far away places to attend the reunion, may be setting a precedent.

News Clipped And Sent All Over The World

Special to The Belleville News
New York, June 1. — If you were to visit Burrelle's Press Clipping Bureau in downtown Manhattan, you'd find a hundred young girls doing nothing but reading newspapers and magazines. The offices, which overlook the Hudson River, are as quiet as a library reading room, and all you see are newspapers stacked in piles ready to be read and clipped. Harold Wynne, a young college graduate who is the president of this unusual organization says: "Our girls enjoy reading the Belleville News, and you will be interested in knowing that we send clippings from your paper to all parts of the world. Today, in far-off China or Japan, and some government official is reading the articles which were published in the News, about the Chinese-Japanese War." Burrelle's Press Clipping Bureau was started back in 1888 with two readers and a handful of papers. Frank Burrelle, the originator of the clipping bureau, idea, and founder of Burrelle's overheard one man ask another if he had seen the article in the morning paper which mentioned his name. From this conversation began an organization which today has branch offices all over the world and spends more than $40,000 a year for newspaper and magazine subscriptions.

Community Service Bureau Makes Known Services

Editor, The Belleville News: Dear Sir:

May we, the signers of this letter, use the columns of your esteemed newspaper to carry a message to our fellow townsmen who have so generously endorsed the activities of our Agency?

At a recent meeting of the Belleville Community Service Trustees, it was decided that those citizens of our town whose moral support and financial generosity make this work possible are entitled to and should be given complete and full information regarding their Bureau's services and its regrettable but unavoidable limitations.

The Community Service Bureau of Belleville is a private Family Welfare Agency in that it receives no funds through the media of public taxation but relies for its support solely on the voluntary contributions of our many public-spirited citizens. We are of the opinion, moreover, that most of our townfolk contributed what they believed they could reasonably afford during the past Community Chest drive, but the Community Service Bureau's allotted share for this calendar year is such that we have found it absolutely necessary to curtail operating expenses to the extent of releasing one professional worker at the end of June. Obviously, such action will reflect itself in lessened public service, but we are more than hopeful that the success of the next Community Chest drive will make it possible to again reinstate this missing assistance and thus permit us, your board, to help the executive secretary and her staff render that kind of service which our members have every right to expect.

Yours for a better Belleville through better fellowship and mutual understanding, THE TRUSTEES OF THE BELLEVILLE COMMUNITY SERVICE BUREAU, WALTER WARRICK, President.

7 Modern Musts

- 1. For best results two different paints are needed: a proper undercoat, a specially designed finishing coat. 2. The first coat must seal oil-thirsty surfaces retaining vital oils in the paint film. 3. Top-coat must have great hiding power. One coat of Devoe's covers a blackboard. Widely used for one-coat jobs. 4. Must resist destructive ultra-violet rays. Devoe uses special pigments to do this job. 5. Raw linseed oil is not enough. Devoe uses generous amounts of specially processed oils to insure a long life. 6. Must combat four main evils—Checking, Cracking, Peeling, Fading (abcd). Devoe 2-Coat System (c) wears smoothly and evenly. 7. Must be "self-cleaning." Devoewhite jobs, for instance become even whiter as the years go by.

Activities of Belleville Lodge, 1123, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks

There will be a regular meeting of Belleville Lodge of Elks, No. 1123, Monday evening at 8:30 in the home, Washington avenue and Van Houten place. Among other business to be transacted will be a discussion of plans for the lodge to participate in the Flag Day parade on Sunday, June 18. The Elks, which is a distinctively American organization, has a set of American flags from the earliest days of the country. These may be carried in the parade by past exalted rulers of the lodge. The parade committee is composed of Joseph McGrath, chairman of the Board of Governors; Thomas McNair, vice-chairman; Harold A. Gahr, Arthur E. Mayer, William Priestman, Exalted Ruler Emil Kastner, Harold A. Cavanaugh, William Whitten, Victor Hart, Andrew Kenneth, John Manger, Raymond Yung, Milton Shifman, James Ferguson, Wallin H. Masten, Edward Mathes, E. T. Sadlock, Jack Denny, Joseph Reilly, Robert Anderson and Frank Strassburger.

State Elks Reunion

Many from the local lodge are planning to attend on Friday and Saturday, June 23 and 24, at Long Branch, the annual reunion of the New Jersey State Elks Association. There will be an assembly of delegates followed by a dinner on Friday with the reunion parade scheduled to start at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The following members recently celebrated birthdays: Herbert J. Scott, Burton C. Lyons and Harry Minard. During June the following will have birthdays: Frank Bangert, M. C. Garrabrant, William Lawson, Charles W. Cullen, Matthew J. Sheehan and Herman Jacobson.

"The Coolest Spot"

"The coolest spot in town," this is how Joseph McGrath, chairman of the Board of Governors, describes the Elks bar and grill, which is open to the public in surroundings that are congenial and friendly.

Herman Wiese, a member of the lodge, is still confined to his home after several months' illness. Exalted Ruler Emil Kastner has asked all members of the lodge to pay visitations to incapacitated members. During July and August the lodge will hold one meeting each month instead of the usual bi-monthly meetings. These meetings will be on the fourth Monday. Officers are requested during the Summer and, until further notice, to wear white flannels, blue coats and purple ties. In the Fall the regular tuxedo regalia for officers will be followed as usual.

Feeling that a great many prospective members are not conversant enough with Elksdom, Exalted Ruler Kastner says: "I feel that the Elks would grow in great numbers if more realized that the American flag is the basis of Elks' ideals." "And you know that over in France," adds Mr. McGrath, "the Elks paved the way for much of the good work done in behalf of the American Expeditionary force? Many of the agencies operating over there were recipients of assistance from the Elks and in those days it was the subject of much publicity in the newspapers. Of late years the Americanization work of the Elks has been carried on consistently and well, but the rush of modern times has seen publicity attending such matters dwindle. Our charitable endeavors and crippled children's work also get far too little publicity. I think the public is entitled to know of some of our activities and we therefore appreciate the courtesy extended the Elks in this column."

National Publicity For Belleville The June issue of the Elks' National magazine will carry a story on the recent state ritualistic finals in Belleville. The Passaic County Executive Committee of the American Legion has invited Belleville Elks to participate in the Flag Day exercises and Americanization program there on Saturday afternoon, June 10.

Another immortal character joins the motion picture gallery of the great when "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" is presented at the Capitol Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Don Ameche (as Bell) Loretta Young and Henry Fonda head a stellar cast. The screen play brings out of the past of America a drama of accomplishment and stirring romance that symbolizes American tradition. Bell's is a story that only could happen here — of a young dreamer who struggled against powerful odds, loved and achieved. Simple, human and inspiring, "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" is a magnificent motion picture tribute to his genius and to a woman's devotion.

In the co-feature "The Lady from Kentucky," George Raft and Ellen Drew are teamed together for the first time. It is a picture crammed full of racing thrills, and notable also for the quality of its humor, dispensed by those inimitable zanies Hugh Herbert and Zasu Pitts.
