NEWARKER GIVEN AUTO AWARD IN AMBULANCE DRIVE

Appeal For Funds
Will Have To Be Continued

Belleville's ambulance drive for funds came to a partial close Monday evening when Michael El-limo, 674 North Sixth street, Newark, was declared winner of a two-door sedan, the first award. Meantime, Fred B. Handlon, court clerk, says further plans will have to be devised to raise more funds. The drive netted $2,300 and expenses were about $1,200, leaving a balance of $1,100. It will be necessary to raise approximately $4,000 for the new ambulance to replace the one which was obtained a few years ago also by popular subscription by Director of Public Safety William D. Clark.

Belleville folks who came near being declared winners, but were counted out according to rules of the award, are Joseph A. Dunn, 186 Malone avenue; Mrs. E. R. Klein, 37 Division avenue; James Keegan, 96 Belmore street; J. H. Wilson, 386 Washington avenue; Eleanor Crymhall, 136 Division avenue; Martin, 487 Union avenue; Paul Robinson, cartoonist; and W. Weiner, 521 North Sixth street, Newark.

VETS TELL RIFLE GROUP TO MIND OWN BUSINESS

"Keep Out Of Local Affairs" National Outfit Told

When C. B. Lister, secretary-treasurer of the National Rifle Association, wrote the Board of Education in favor of rifle ranges for children "he put out his chin for a rap," says Herbert J. Scott, adjutant of Private George A. Younginger Post, V. P. W., which opposes establishment of a "pistol" range in the basement of the proposed addition to Public School No. 3.

"In the future, your organization will do better if they keep their officers and would-be dictators out of local affairs until they know what they are talking or writing about," said Mr. Scott in a scathing letter to the official at Washington. But here is the letter in full:

"Dear Mr. Lister:

Under date of July 13, 1939, you were kind enough to yourself to put your chin out for a rap. In your communication of that date you took the liberty to censor our Post for opposing a pistol range in the schools of Belleville under the jurisdiction of the Board of Education.

"The membership of Younginger Post, at a regular meeting of the post held on July 19, voted to use every means at their command to prevent any pistol range from being built in any public school in Belleville. They also ordered the adjutant of the post to notify the National Rifle Association of America to educate their secretary, the difference between rifle ranges and pistol ranges.

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars have never advocated a pistol range in the public school system. It is true we have advocated rifle ranges but not in a school building.

"What the American Legion or the Boy Scouts of America does is their own business. They can make mistakes as well as the National Rifle Association of America. In the future, your organization will do better if they keep their officers and would-be dictators out of local affairs until they know what they are talking or writing about.

"Trusting that it will not be necessary to continue this controversy,"

H. J. SCOTT, Adjutant.

Pianist Awarded Certificate

Twelve-year-old Helen May Juras, 175 Floyd street, recently was awarded a certificate of merit from Trinity College of Music, London, on completion of an examination in pianoforte playing.

The examiner was Sir Granville Bantock, noted composer of London.

Helen also was awarded a silver medal in the New York Music League Association piano contest in June. She is a pupil of the Amy G. Stratton Studios, 335 Union avenue.

Rec House Show

There will be a doll and crepe paper show tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Recreation House playground, Mrs. Lucille Donaldson will be in charge.

"Pete" Stevenson Gets License To Operate Chateau Tavern

"Broad Assertions" Of Neighbor
Given Airing By Town
Commission

"Pete" Stevenson received his tavern license from the Town Commission Tuesday night to operate a tavern under his name at 170 Washington avenue, where the Legion Chateau, a corporation, had had its ups and downs. And therein lies a story. The ABC restrictions which had been placed on the Chateau were plastered by the board on "Pete," which establishes a precedent — or something — for taverns in Belleville. No other tavern owner thus far has been singled out. The restriction, however, is live.

"Pete" He intends to live over his place of business with the "Missus" and his son and the board feels, that in due course of time, the owner may apply to the board to have the restrictions lifted. All confidence reposes in "Pete" and soon the glasses will be tinkling once again on the Chateau bar.

But this doesn't tell one-half the story which, because of its ramifications, had the board near prostration from a four-hour session on the muggiest evening of summer.

To tell the story in its entirety would be rehearsing in part the objection which Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Greaves and his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Greaves, 172 Washington avenue, have had to the tavern for these many years. Thomas started to give a clear picture of his side of the case when Director of Public Affairs Joseph King of a sudden put a complex on the scene that threatened to bring down the roof, as if that were possible.

"Broad Assertions"

Be that as it may, the director said that Frederick Greaves, another son, had appeared at King's office and made "some pretty broad assertions about this board" that King resented.

"What were the assertions?" queried Mayor William H. Williams.

"I got the impression that some members of this board took money. Money can't buy my good name. By innuendo and inference he said that the commissioners held a secret meeting and told the police what to do in respect to the Chateau."

"Don't hold me for what any one else says," stated Thomas Greaves, explaining that any act by his brother was not representative of the family, but his own actions as a citizen.

"This is probably a good time to bring up this," said the Mayor. "This is how ninety-nine per cent of the slander starts against public officials — on street corners and other places."

By a direct statement and inference he told me in my office that the police were told to stay away from the Chateau and someone here was interested personally. It is difficult enough for many tavern owners to raise the $350 license fee without having such slanderous remarks passed. If the incident had occurred in private business he would have been escorted to the door quickly. But in public office one is forced to take such gross insults. I'm about tired of the petty slander about this board. If that had happened somewhere else you would have been first threatened and then put out in the street."

Frederick said he had intended the symbol of fingering he demonstrated to King to mean "votes," not acceptance of graft or money as King had taken it to mean.

This was explained when the Mayor asked him if he had "any basis on which you want to say to this board there has been any sign of graft."

"I'll only tell you what has been repeated to me," said Frederick.

The Mayor started to say something, but Frederick continued: "If you let me talk in my own way I'll talk. I'll tell you what was told me."

"That's only rumor," said the Mayor. "I will institute action immediately if you have one bit of proof of something wrong."

"I can't prove my statement of what other people told me."

"What's this mean?" queried King as he showed Frederick the sign he made in his office with his fingers.

"Yes, what did you intend to mean by that?" asked the Mayor.

"Votes," he meant.

"Well, you're covered, if nothing else," replied the Mayor. "It is a very subtle way of doing things."

Director of Parks and Public Property Louis A. Noll said Frederick had "button-holed" him trying to influence Noll with a fraternal hailing sign, asking Noll "Where do you hail from."

Thomas speaking to Noll said:

"I didn't speak to you or Mr. King or Mayor Williams. I didn't instruct him to speak to you."

"Your brother made a botch of the whole thing, I think," replied Noll.

Thomas said that the police had been to the tavern on numerous occasions, but there had been "no report, or one not quite right or not as strong as it should have been."

He said that when complaints had been made of a radio playing loudly the police blotter showed it as "radio playing softly or stopped."

"Pete" Gets Riled

"I'm entitled to live the same as Greaves," said "Pete." "They come in here and make a lot of assertions and can't back 'em up. Where are these neighbors? They are the only ones objecting."

Thomas said his neighbors were with him, but they did not want to appear before the board. "Like an army going up to the front," he said.

"There's a lot of noise, but when you look around the army isn't there."

"Sort of a Mexican army," rejoined the Mayor. "A general without an army."

And thus this was the substance of the debate which took some two hours. "Pete" even went so far as to produce a next-door neighbor who had moved to prove that it wasn't "on account of the tavern, but rent."

"I didn't say he moved due to the tavern," said Thomas. "I said he was glad to get away from the noise, etc."

So "Pete" is shining up the glassware, the radio and bar in preparation for a gala opening of Belleville's most publicized tavern. If publicity means anything "Pete" should pack 'em in on opening night. Following the meeting Tuesday the license was the subject of much discussion about town.

The board decided to grant police powers to the janitors at the High School and Public School No. 5 where there have been breaks.

REPORT TELLS OF WORK OF NURSES IN SCHOOLS

Rise Is Noted
In Vaccinations
Among Children

The report of activities of local nurses for the last school year indicates an increase over previous years in vaccinations and diphtheria immunization of preschool children and forecasts greater stress during the coming year on these measures.

The report, which has just been made public by Miss Ellen W. Smith, district supervisor of the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, points out that every child in Belleville attending either parochial or public school is under the supervision of the Child Hygiene Nurses employed by the local Board of Health.

Fifteen Years' Growth

The child hygiene program, which had its fifteenth anniversary May 1, has grown from one nurse employed in the demonstration district in Silver Lake and paid from funds supplied by the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health, State Department of Health, to four nurses who are employed full time.

The report calls to the particular attention of mothers that pre-school years are those in which contagious disease takes the greatest toll of lives. It emphasizes the importance of immunization and vaccination at an early age.

During the coming school year, Miss Smith reports, the Child Hygiene Leagues for girls from ten to fourteen years will be resumed in Belleville schools. Last year forty girls received certificates for completing the course of ten lectures in elementary care of babies, home care of the sick and sanitation.

The report praised the cooperation of existing agencies in Belleville in the follow-up of social and welfare problems reported by nurses. All cases referred by nurses to relief have been cared for, it stated.

St. Peter's Folks Planning Gala Parish Excursion

Affair Will Be By Boat August
24 To Roton Point
Park

Reports of the various committees in charge of the arrangements for the fifth annual parish excursion of St. Peter's Church indicate that this year's boat ride will be even more popular and successful than previous ones. It is estimated that approximately 1,500 parishioners and friends will avail themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a very delightful day.

The sail this year again will be up Long Island Sound to Roton Point Park, Conn. Roton Point Park has good bathing facilities and many diversified forms of amusements. Those who attended last year need no urging to repeat the venture. Those who were unable to go have a treat in store for them.

The Steamer "City of New York," which has been chartered, will leave Port Newark Wharf, Newark, at 9 a.m. sharp, on Thursday, August 24. There will not be any charge for children up to five years old. While the boat, which has been chartered, is much larger than any in previous years, accommodations are limited. Tickets may be had from Mrs. Thomas McNair at Belleville 2-2209-J.

For the convenience of the excursionists, chartered buses will leave the church at ten-minute intervals from 7:45 to 8:30 a.m. on the morning of the excursion. Those desiring to reach the boat by bus should procure their tickets in advance. They will entitle the holders to bus transportation to and from Port Newark. Only enough buses will be hired to accommodate those who procure their tickets in advance.

Very special music has been engaged for dancing for the young folks and for the amusement of everyone. An excellent program, including group singing by the young people also has been arranged.

Rev. Joseph M. Kelly and Rev. John S. Nelligan are honorary chairmen of the committee on arrangements. Miss Teresa K. Salmo is general chairman, Miss Grace Kinnealy, secretary, and John Callahan heads the men's group. Mrs. McNair is in charge of tickets. Mrs. Thomas Dillon, music committee; Mrs. William Sullivan, assisted by a corps of workers, chairman of refreshments; Mrs. Mary Roberts and Mrs. Joseph Donnelly, coffee and soda, respectively; Miss Helen T. Kelly, ice cream, candy, etc.; Mrs. Thomas Dillon, program of amusements; and John A. Sullivan and Mrs. Patrick Gelshen, refreshment tickets.

Blotter Jottings

A truck driven by Russell Samarco, thirty-two, 37 Magnolia street, Saturday struck the rear of an automobile owned by Morton Nolan, 14 Bellevue avenue, and parked across the street from his home. The car was pushed into the rear of another owned by John Nolan of the same address. Miss Hazel Nolan, forty-two, 148 Howe avenue, Nutley, who was sitting in the first car, suffered back injuries. She was treated by her family doctor. Samarco received a summons.

Mrs. James Swan, 557 Washington avenue, reported Monday to local police that while walking in Broadway, North Newark, a young man had attempted to snatch her purse. She was referred to the Newark authorities.

Patrolman Singer reported that someone on Sunday had broken into his cellar and stolen an iron valued at $8.50.

On Friday a thief or thieves turned their likes to bicycles. Thefts were reported at 11 Stevens road, 102 Washington avenue and 32 Elena place.

Charles Dowd, seventeen, 31 Stuyvesant avenue, Newark, was arrested here Monday by Captain Leighton and Detectives McGuinness and Lee on a robbery charge. He will be arraigned before Recorder Smith.

Dowd, posing as a salesman of eggs, would travel from house to house, according to Captain Leighton, and would use a pass key to enter those where his knock brought no answer. He was arrested in connection with several complaints in and is on bail on a Newark charge, according to Captain Leighton.

Milton Colbeth, chief chemist of the Baker Castor Oil Company, yesterday addressed Rotarians at lunch in the Forest Hill Field Club on "Castor Oil." Samples were passed around.

Last week W. Douglas Clark, Jr., was inducted by Rev. Peter R. Dechenbach as a member of the club.

Belwood Parkers Protest Against Proposed Mill

Durkin In Lumber Case Comes To The Fore In Controversy

Shades of the Durkin Lumber Co. case which went against the town in the Court of Errors and Appeals on a writ of certiorari, after having a successful journey through the local police court and Supreme Court appeared Tuesday night at the Town Commission meeting when Joseph Slifkin, a Bloomfield attorney, representing the Bloomfield Lumber Company, stirred the ire of residents of Belwood Park when he said his concern plans a planing mill.

Durkin won from the town in court, through an able attorney, Merritt Lane, when it was ruled the company had the privilege to continue operations here under the State Constitutional Amendment, authorizing zoning. It was ruled the company had a business under non-conforming use in a residential zone which had been established one day before the amendment passed.

Slifkin used his best appeal on the Belwood Park folks when he said that his company had a building permit and right under the law — amplified by a book under his arm — to legally proceed with the mill on property, which is partly in Belleville and partly in Bloomfield.

But it didn't work so well. George Beach who sat on the Zoning Board of Adjustment when the Durkin matter was aired couldn't see eye to eye with Slifkin.

"Militant" Neighbors

Said Beach: "These crabbing taxpayers and militant neighbors you speak of come also armed with the law. Durkin lost clean up to the Court of Errors and Appeals and then won because the firm had been established one day before the State Constitutional Amendment went into effect. The company went out of business and the Bloomfield Trust Company took over the property. The trust company wrote us regarding the property and we told them — I think it was in 1931 or 1932 that the property was in a Class 'A' residential zone. I believe the part of the building in Bloomfield fell down. Anyway it was five, if not seven years ago that the company ceased to function and I have a law here which I will read, Chapter 274, Laws of 1928, Article 2, which is more powerful than that cited by Mr. Slifkin."

Beach read the law which set forth in effect that if a company ceases to use the property it can not later operate under the non-conforming classification.

"Some people have a poor conception of what is good for our town," said Beach. "Certainly a planing mill is not. A lumber yard is a fire hazard, trucks with heavy loads of lumber ruin our streets. This company saying it is showing an interest in the homeowners is just ludicrous."

Corporation Counsel Lawrence E. Keenan will check up to determine the time element so far as non-use is concerned, obtain all the facts and review the law.

This was suggested by Mayor William H. Williams, who served on the Zoning Board with Beach.

"I think you've got something there," the Mayor said. "I don't blame the people objecting but we want to be sure we don't spend $2,000, $3,000 or $5,000 by rushing into something."

LAMB REPORTS VALLEY DANCE A SUCCESS

Dancers Should Help
By Contributing
He Declares

Through the splendid cooperation of the committee members the first Valley block dance this year at Little and Stephens streets was a success Wednesday night, reports David Lamb, WPA worker of the Recreation Department.

For the next dance a larger area will be laid out for dancing and another light erected. Dancers also will be solicited to support the dances, Mr. Lamb says, many believing that there is no charge for these affairs. He points out that dancers in the future will have to contribute if the affairs are to be financial successes.

Mr. Lamb extends sincere thanks to committee members, Mrs. Elsie Lundy, Mrs. Hazel Breen and Mrs. Elizabeth Gray for collection of contributions. He also extends thanks to the Crowns and Cardinals for the benefit softball game, announcer Red Smith and The Belleville News. The Crowns and Cards played a ten-inning 6-6 benefit game recently, the proceeds of which went toward the dance.

HONOR DR. REOCK AT CONVENTION OF DENTISTS

Local Man Given
Fellowship In American College

Dr. Ernest C. Reock was honored by the American Dental Association, in convention in Milwaukee last week, with the presentation of a fellowship in the American College of Dentists. This is the highest honor awarded in the United States to dentists.

Dr. Reock received the honor for pioneer clinical work in dental prosthesis, which he has demonstrated before dental groups throughout the East, including previous meetings of the American Dental Association. Dr. Reock is president of the Essex County Dental Society and chief of the prosthetic dentistry department of Beth Israel Hospital, Newark.

Painter Seriously Injured When Flag Pole Snaps Off

Jack Cryan Takes Drop Of Thirty-Five Feet In
Park

Dropping thirty-five feet — fifteen feet from the top of a flag pole which he was painting Tuesday near the field house in Belleville Park, Jack Cryan, thirty-eight, 52 First street, Newark, was seriously injured when the pole snapped off at the base.

Cryan was made aware of his predicament a scant few seconds before he fell when William Corne, foreman of the job, shouted a warning that the pole was snapping.

Cryan was rushed in the police ambulance to the Essex County Hospital for Contagious Diseases nearby where he was given first aid. He was then taken to St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, by Patrolman Fletcher and Fireman McKillop. Cryan received two broken ankles, a possible fracture of the right elbow and left wrist and abrasions of the forehead and nose. He is married and has six children.

CHILDREN ASK FOR RETURN OF SWIMMING POOL

Town Decides Nothing
Can Be Done
This Year

Belleville children miss the old swimming hole out at Camp Caragher on the banks of Third River. Lack of funds to provide counselors and guards has resulted in closing the pool.

Therefore, the kiddies learned that the best method to do something about the situation is to petition the Town Commission.

This week a girl spokesman for 211 children appeared before Mayor William H. Williams with the following letter:

"Belleville is offering us an ideal education, by enlarging the High School and supplying our schools with able and dependable teachers."

"Now that school has closed for the summer months we, the children of Belleville's taxpayers, have very little means of recreation. The few recreation places that Belleville offers are not convenient for all of us."

"Since we have no conveniently located playground we appreciate the Belleville Swimming pool at Franklin avenue very much. We have been told, however, that the pool would be destroyed this summer as Belleville cannot afford to supply it with pure water."

"Our parents feel that they are paying higher taxes than before and feel that the pool should continue."

"We appeal to you, Mr. Mayor, to help us, as we think you know how we feel, since you were once a child yourself."

"We sincerely hope that you will look into this matter and see that our pool is not destroyed, but supplied with pure water so that we can have a happy summer."

"Trusting that you will help us, we are,

Respectfully yours,
Children of Belleville's
Taxpayers."

The board decided nothing could be done this year, but — next year — well, that's another year.

WOMAN KILLED BY HIT-RUN DRIVER IN SILVER LAKE

Licensesless Woman Operator
Later Apprehended
By Police

On her way home from Branch Brook Park where she had spent the afternoon with her three children, Mrs. Vitina Caso, forty-two, 23 Bloomfield avenue, Bloomfield, was killed almost instantly Sunday night by a hit-run driver, who later was apprehended at her home. Two of the children also were injured.

Mrs. Caso, it is said, threw her four-year-old son, Angelo, to safety as the car mounted the curb in Franklin street near the Newark City line.

A daughter, Phyllis, eight, is in serious condition in Presbyterian Hospital with internal injuries and fracture of the left leg, while the other daughter, Lillian, six, has a fracture of the right leg. She is in the same hospital.

Louis Berrello, eleven, 20 Rose avenue, Newark, who was riding a bicycle in Franklin street, was taken by a brother to North Newark Hospital where he was held over night for observation following the accident.

It is said the accident occurred shortly before 8 p.m. when the driver of the car, Miss Maria Marchione, twenty-one, 142 Grove street, Bloomfield, swerved to avoid hitting Berrello, skidded over the curb and struck the woman and her two children walking with her on the sidewalk. The car also struck the cyclist, went through a wire fence and into a lot where it was said to have been abandoned by the driver and three companions who fled. They told police later they feared violence from the crowd which assembled at the scene.

When Miss Marchione was apprehended at her home, it is said she admitted being the driver of the machine. She was turned over Monday to the Prosecutor's office where bail was set for causing death with an automobile.

It is expected tomorrow night that she will face charges in police court here of driving without a license and leaving the scene of an accident.

Also riding in the car, according to police, were Miss Marjorie Levin, eighteen, 16 Floyd avenue, Bloomfield; Thomas Malone, thirty-one, 322 High street, Newark, and George Cottone, twenty, 198 Hecker street, Belleville, who voluntarily appeared at local police headquarters about 10 o'clock Sunday night and said he was riding in the car at the time of the accident. Police Chief George Spatz and Patrolman Demgard later brought in Miss Marchione.

The passengers were turned over to the prosecutor's office as material witnesses. Cottone also faces charges of leaving the scene of an accident and allowing an unlicensed driver to operate a car. The car was owned by Cottone's father, Anthony Cottone, 198 Hecker street.

After the accident Rocco Colombo, 17 Bloomfield avenue, Bloomfield, a neighbor of the Caso family found Angelo in the crowd at the scene and took him to his home and later to the Caso home where relatives took care of him.

Relatives of the stricken family sped to Presbyterian Hospital after receiving reports of the accident, and three were given blood tests, in the event a transfusion was required for Phyllis, who was most seriously injured.

The relatives who offered aid were: Lawrence Caso, thirty-one, 10 Augusta street, Bloomfield, a cousin; Michael J. Moran, forty-one, 3 Lava street, Bloomfield, step-brother of Mrs. Caso, and James Zamro, forty-one, 9 Arthur street, Belleville.

Blood tests met requirements and they remained at the hospital in the event a transfusion was necessary.

Charles Caso, the father, left home earlier in the day to go to Staten Island, where he played in an orchestra. He returned late Sunday night to find a crowd outside his door and to learn of the accident.

Mrs. Caso had lived in Bloomfield about twenty-five years, relatives said. One of her greatest ambitions, they said, was to return to Italy sometime to see her father and mother.

Blood tests met requirements and they remained at the hospital in the event a transfusion was necessary.

Charles Caso, the father, left home earlier in the day to go to Staten Island, where he played in an orchestra. He returned late Sunday night to find a crowd outside his door and to learn of the accident.

Mrs. Caso had lived in Bloomfield about twenty-five years, relatives said. One of her greatest ambitions, they said, was to return to Italy sometime to see her father and mother.

The passengers were turned over to the prosecutor's office as material witnesses. Cottone also faces charges of leaving the scene of an accident and allowing an unlicensed driver to operate a car. The car was owned by Cottone's father, Anthony Cottone, 198 Hecker street.

After the accident Rocco Colombo, 17 Bloomfield avenue, Bloomfield, a neighbor of the Caso family found Angelo in the crowd at the scene and took him to his home and later to the Caso home where relatives took care of him.

Relatives of the stricken family sped to Presbyterian Hospital after receiving reports of the accident, and three were given blood tests, in the event a transfusion was required for Phyllis, who was most seriously injured.

The relatives who offered aid were: Lawrence Caso, thirty-one, 10 Augusta street, Bloomfield, a cousin; Michael J. Moran, forty-one, 3 Lava street, Bloomfield, step-brother of Mrs. Caso, and James Zamro, forty-one, 9 Arthur street, Belleville.

Blood tests met requirements and they remained at the hospital in the event a transfusion was necessary.

TO MOVE TO BLOOMFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Stockton, daughter Dorothea and sons, Richard and Thomas, will be leaving Belleville on August 1 to enter their new home in Brookdale section of Bloomfield.

MILK as a beverage has long been popular, but this milk bar business that suddenly has sprung into popularity has given new glamour to the highways. Most magnificent of these new roadside rendezvous is Alderney Dairy Company's Milk Barn, with its red-and-white-striped shutters, graciously snug at the intersection of Routes 10 and 202, Morris Plains. Unlike most highway attractions, the Milk Barn has an all-day and well-into-the-night trade, with business so extraordinary that it has been necessary at times to ask customers to wait a bit for space at the counters. There is no slump in the Milk Bar business, and it is a revelation to see the parked cars from many scattered States as fathers, mothers, children pause to refresh themselves—with milk.

SPEAKING of things that are good for you—and hit the right spot at the right time—how about the Swedish pancakes at the Kungsholm in West Orange? These flaky, delicate paper-thin cakes positively melt in your mouth. Try them for dessert next time you're up there. Incidentally, the Kungsholm in West Orange has no connection with any Kungsholm restaurant anywhere else, and is the only Swedish restaurant operated by Nils Bruhn.

NEW and delightful is Charlie English's Circle Garden at the Livingston traffic circle. Decidedly cool on these warm evenings is the new "sidewalk cafe," and decidedly enjoyable, too, is the smooth music of Bennie Fairbanks and his boys. A really swell new stop for the boys and girls riding through the mountains, and one that is gaining popularity by the minute.

THERE are few places, indeed, that have the many features Colonial Inn has to offer over Singac way. Here you have dinner, floor show, dancing, all in a setting that is strictly glamorous, yet homey. Situated, as it is, high up in cool surroundings, you soon forget the humid temperatures of city and town, and relax as you dine and dance. Always a popular spot, summer or winter.

RIDING in cool comfort to the World's Fair (via L. I. R. R. connection) is via DeCamp Bus. These new luxury-type conveyances instantly won popular favor, and whether you live in the Oranges, the Caldwelles or Montclair, there they are—the big orange and blue buses—ready to take you without nerve-racking jolts or sudden stops, to your Manhattan destination.

THINGS I Liked This Week: Dinner (Michigan frogs legs) in the Robert Treat's new main dining room... Lunchon (baby soft shell crabs) at the Kungs... The coffee frosted route at Alderney's Milk Barn, Route 10... And the fresh peach ice cream there!... The "Exclusively Yours" sandwich as served at Howard Marsh's Mayfair Club... Pancho Diggs' orchestra... And Irene Faery's dancing at Union City's Melody Club.—Adv.

AT THE CAPITOL

The feature attraction at the Capitol Theatre starting Sunday for three days is "Young Mr. Lincoln," a story of Abraham

Henry Fonda

Lincoln that has never been told. It is the story, told with wit, simplicity and power, of the gangling young man fighting for the lives of two innocent boys and saving them in the dramatic revelation of the famous "moonlight murder" trial. It is the story of young Lincoln's wrestling, storytelling, courtship and lightning wit. It reveals the real and human Lincoln. Henry Fonda portrays the title role, supported by George Brady, Marjorie Weaver, and Whelan and directed by Henry Award Winner John co-feature "Five Came Back" deals with the efforts of a group of airplane-crash victims escape from a foreboding jungle near the headquarters of the River in South America. Players in this stark drama are Chester Morris, Lucille, Wendy Barrie, Allen and Joseph Calleja.

JUNE BRIDES are July homemakers. Orange blossoms, bridal bouquet, shower of rice—all have been filed away among the precious memories of the occasion. Little Mrs. Bride has settled down to her job of creating a home for her husband, of offering him the sort of meals and comfort which his mother has always provided.

It's not an easy job, this running a home. But we know one way to help the June bride save money on the food bill and prepare the kind of tempting meals which she longs to do. Buy her an Electrolux gas refrigerator on the deferred payment plan or for cash and let it be her helper. Low operating cost, silent freezing principle, and all the conveniences which scientific refrigeration can bring are built-in features of the Electrolux. ## A YEAR AGO

While vacationists are loud in their praise of the weather, farmers, flower-growers and those who enjoy green lawns, have definite and serious complaint against it. A continuance of the lack of rain will shortly become dangerous. But it is interesting to note that at this very time a year ago we were being deluged with rain. For more than a week it poured daily, and in some sections of the state, including Belleville, there were damaging floods. Vacations were ruined for thousands and the downpour was even too much for the agriculturists. At the moment we can only hope for a happy medium of rain and sun.

NEWARK'S FUNNY, BUT NOT ORIGINAL

For some time now Police Chief George Spatz has been urging that the town acquire a metal rowboat which could be kept on a trailer at Police headquarters for emergency use along the Passaic River and Third River over near the Plenge Farm. Charles Watson, assistant to Tax Assessor John F. Coogan, has placed at disposal of the police his rowboat which is docked at Belleville Bridge. It was noted that Newark last Saturday decided to establish a patrol in a boat along the river to chase youthful bathers. We are inclined to put our tongue in our cheek when we say that two days prior to that time and on several occasions in the past we have urged just that in Belleville. Newark may be funny, to quote a good friend of ours, but it's not original. It looks like all that city does is what it reads in the newspapers. Due to the fact that Belleville owns very little land along the Passaic River, much of it being County Park property, it is doubtful whether a patrol could be established here, although in case of drownings, it is the local police who are called upon for aid.

RELIEF COSTS DROP TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT

Continued decreases in the cost of administering relief in New Jersey show clearly what can be done to reduce public expenditures where persistent and determined effort is applied. Latest reports on relief costs show that from a total of $2,074,841 in the month of January, they fell to $1,554,263 in May, a reduction of twenty-five per cent.

Since early last Fall, the movement initiated by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association, to expose and eliminate relief chiseling and laxity in the local administration of relief, has been pushed energetically by the State Financial Assistance Commission and by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association. The success of this movement can be intensified, and still greater reductions in relief costs realized, if the drive to eliminate unworthy cases is continued, but on an even broader scope.

An important accomplishment of the drive against relief chiseling is that it has given the public an entirely new conception of the question of providing aid to needy persons. It has brought out emphatically the need for individual effort and responsibility by relief recipients.

One example of this is the new policy of giving relief on a "non-recurrent" basis. This policy has been put into effect successfully in a number of New Jersey communities, and it is planned to install it in more and more municipalities, as a practical, efficient way to control relief costs.

Under the old practice, a needy person placed on relief on the basis of preliminary questioning, but once on relief was a strong tendency for him to stay. Giving assistance became a routine that often allowed a person to continue receiving aid long after the need had passed.

The new system requires a re-application for relief twice each month, at which time the applicant must give proof that aid is actually needed. Standardized records and forms provide for complete information about every applicant. Accompanying the application is a statement of income which every applicant must fill out. It records the amount of income of every employable member of the family, and must be signed by each member.

Another feature of the non-recurrent plan is that the applicant must report what effort he has made to secure employment and to care for his family. He is told to secure whatever part-time employment he can — jobs that may be humble, but which give honest employment and give him an opportunity to help himself.

The tendency to create among relievers a feeling of self-responsibility is a wholesome one. Likewise is the growing tendency to regard "chiseling" as dishonesty, calling for severe penalties. While every effort should be made to assist deserving needy persons, it is important to continue to cast off the relief rolls all who are undeserving, and to insist upon frequent and thorough check-ups of all those who apply for and receive public assistance.

THE WPA STRIKE

The public's attitude toward the strike of WPA workers is not one of sympathy toward the strikers. It is one condemning them. However, before adjudging guilty these who are biting the hand that feeds them, some thought should be given to the fundamentals and policies that underlie the whole vast relief structure. Those fundamentals and policies are in Washington.

When thought is given to that factor, public contempt for the WPA strike may well turn, for it should not be difficult to see that the strike is an inevitable offshoot of a Federal relief policy as deplorable as the strike itself.

The relief system has operated on a theory that relief workers in the skilled trades should be paid the wage prevailing in private industry. That means they have received the same wages as workers in private employment doing the same kind of work.

No one will begrudge a worker getting as much for his labors as possible, but it is an unsound policy for private employers who have to earn payrolls to have to bid against relief projects supported by money exacted from taxpayers. It is unsound simply because it kills initiative and makes employment on relief more attractive than honest labor at a real job. This has been reported from many communities where employers, especially farmers, complain they cannot get workers to quit relief projects and take private employment. Reports from many sections of the country tell of crops rotting in the fields because of this intolerable situation.

The bone of contention now, and the thing that has precipitated the strike is simply that Congress has ruled that WPA-ers must work 130 hours for their pay. That is not an unfair demand, and those who are striking are only aggravating an already weary taxpaying public.

STORY WITH A MORAL

In a Philadelphia court six joyful refugees who had just been granted U. S. citizenship offered to buy an American flag to hang in the court room. There were three Italians, two Czechoslovakians and a Russian. The Russian was a refugee from a Communist country, and the others from Fascist countries.

Said the six after being granted their citizenship papers: "We are so happy to become American citizens that we thought Your Honor wouldn't object if we put our money together and bought a flag for your courtroom." The judge thanked the new citizens but refused their offer and ordered that a flag for the room be purchased immediately with the proper funds.

The plea of the refugees was a fine gesture, and they should prove to be valuable Americans, for they may help to convince some in this country that life in the "ism" countries is not what the dictators would have us believe that it is. Further, it should stir other Americans to vigilance to fight down the spread of these "ism" doctrines in the United States.

SALVAGE GOES ON

The Navy will not be deterred because of the hard luck suffered in the first attempt to lift the submarine Squalus from the ocean floor off the Isles of Shoals. Every day since the submarine went to the bottom divers have risked their lives in salvage efforts. These divers are heroic men. Moreover, they are experts in their particular line of work. Everyone regrets that they have been given a set-back, but the public appreciates, too, that these men expended their best efforts. The Navy will succeed in salvaging the submarine, although it is a tremendous task.

PIQUANT POLITICS

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the author and are not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

It Will Take a Political Revolution To Oust Hague

Mayor Hague.

The Jersey City mayor may be in the dog house as far as the electorate is concerned, but he is coming pretty close to running the government of New Jersey. He is running it for three basic reasons: through the appointment of judges, through the judiciary, he controls the executive branch of the government, and in Governor Moore has one of the smoothest and most subtle political strategists in the state as a trusted ally; through his covert alliance with Harold G. Hoffman, or by direct understanding with individual senators, he exercises a complex veto of undesirable legislation in the Senate.

Only Negative Power

What do the Republicans control? The answer is virtually nothing. Through the power of confirmation, the Republican party has a fair share of patronage. But aside from this, the rewards it is getting by reason of being in nominal control of both houses of the legislature are pitifully small. Not only does the Hague machine have a veto power over legislation, but it has the power to get a surprising amount of favorable legislation. The horse-drawn act is almost certain to be satisfactory to the Jersey City mayor.

NEW JERSEY TODAY

Prepared for The Belleville News by

Chairman, N. J. State Planning Board and Chief Examiner and Secretary The State Civil Service Commission

A particularly interesting trip for the motorist who, having left State Route 25 and reached the Jersey Coast on 33, has visited the beaches, will be possible following State Route 35 through Shrewsbury, Red Bank, Perth Amboy and Woodbridge and to the junction of that route with State Route 25 which is now also U. S. Route 9.

At Shrewsbury one may see Old Christ Church on the spire of which still rests the Crown of England though bearing many scars attesting to the marksmanship of patriots in days when the symbol of British rule was not popular historically or otherwise. The present building dates back to 1789 and among the relics it contains and which may be seen, is a copy of the "Vinegar Bible," so called because of a printer's error in using "vinegar" for "vineyard."

Then there are the Allan House claimed by some to be the oldest frame house in the state; the churchyard in which are the graves of the "ten little Joneses" all of whom expired within ten days after they were born; and on Rumson road, some of the most magnificent estates to be found in New Jersey.

Just to the north one comes to Red Bank, where King George and Queen Elizabeth detained for their sea trip to New York upon their recent visit to the United States and where they were welcomed by Governor Moore and a representative party of officials and other citizens. A little farther along a worth isfactory to the Jersey City mayor. Governor Moore's plan for a fifty million dollar bond issue has a very good chance of being adopted eventually. Election reform, one of the main planks in the Republican platform, has about as much chance of passing as Norman Thomas would have of being elected Mayor of Jersey City. Minor legislative objectives, like the Newark charter bill, will pass or fail according to the wishes of the Democratic boss.

Future Under Control

The Democrats will continue to control the governorship until January 8, 1941. They will continue to have key men on the judiciary for many years. Their veto power in the senate will continue just as long the party has the means to pay for favors that receptive senators from a number of counties are only too willing to extend.

How then can Hague's power be taken away? The answer is that under normal political conditions, it cannot be diminished very much. Unless there should be another Democratic National landslide, or the Republican party should be openly divided, Mayor Hague is resigned to losing the governorship next year. But he hopes to lose it to his Republican ally, Hoffman.

If Hague is to be overthrown, it will be by a series of victories by his actual opponents within the Republican party. First of all, a governor must be elected who will not make deals with the Democrats. Second, a systematic campaign from county to county must be waged to elect legislators who will support this anti-Hague governor.

Only time will help the judiciary. But with minor exceptions the state's justices keep pretty well out of politics. Practically every Democratic judge in the state was named by A. Harry Moore, who Moore has represented the best side of the Hague machine for the last fifteen years. Hague must find a substitute for Moore to keep his machine respectable enough so the voters will not rise in open revolt and overthrow it. It will take a little less than a revolution to get rid of Hague.

with water washes away or renders ineffective the mucous membrane of the nasal passages. This membrane is a secretion which protects the nose and throat from infection. If the membrane is injured or removed, the way is opened for infection. The swimmer who breathes through his mouth is also less likely to swallow water. A mouthful of water is easier to eject than a noseful of water.

Snoop's Snoops

W. D. Clark, director of Public Safety, has dressed up the Police Department with three or four new Ford's. They certainly look swell and were badly needed. Apparently George Mead was able to use quite some persuasive powers on the commissioner to get him to switch back to Fords.

We note that Dr. Ernest C. Reock has been granted a fellowship by the American Dental Society. This is the highest award that can be given to a dentist. "Pat" is at the present time president of the Essex County Dental Society and the award was made in recognition of his free clinic work.

"Charlie" Gebhardt, Jr., school commissioner and newly elected Deputy District Governor of the Lions Club, is becoming quite a traveler. "Gebbie" is getting a lot of fret trips this year—his most recent as a delegate of the Belleville Lions Club to the International Convention at Pittsburgh. Of course you recall "Gebbie" made an airplane trip to Chicago as a representative of the Board of Education and another to Atlantic City as a delegate from the local club to the State Lions Convention. I guess the single men get all the breaks, don't they "Gebbie"?

Douglas Clark, scout commissioner of Belleville, has recently been elected a member of the Rotary Club. We hope that Doug will use his persuasive powers to convince more of the Rotary members of the value of Scouting and to obtain their financial and moral backing.

We understand that Johnny Carrough made a bet with Vic Hart, vice-president of the Lions Club, that he would be able to beat him at the Lions Tournament last Thursday at Ferncliff. Johnny was a little rash in making this bet because Vic came in with 100 on his card while Johnny had 102. The part that makes Johnny sore is that they did not play in the same foursome and Vic has been known to forget to count all the strokes. We are still trying to find out whether or not Johnny paid off the bet.

Al Luscombe and Tom Aitken of the Peoples National Bank & Trust Co., last Saturday came out tops, it is reported in a gold match with Dr. Dick Davis and O. B. Bart. Tom completed eighteen holes in 119 and Luscombe in 87. The "Doc" had an 89 and "O. B."—well, that's another story. It also is rumored that Tom forgot to keep count of his score after the fifteenth hole. Tom will leave on Tuesday for a vacation at his summer home at Buick Hill Falls, Pa.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINTS

How to Avoid Malaria

By Dr. James A. Tobay

MANY years ago malaria was thought to be due to bad air, chiefly from swamps and marshes. Since about 1893 we have known, however, that this disease is spread only by the bites of infected mosquitoes of a certain species known as anopheles.

In order to avoid malaria, therefore, you must dodge mosquitoes of the anopheles tribe. This mosquito travels about mainly at night, and only the female can spread malaria. This she does by biting an infected person, developing the germ in her body, and then biting a well person several weeks later.

Anopheles mosquitoes breed in stagnant water in swamps, pools, streams, and in barrels and other open containers. Oiling the water prevents this breeding, and screens on houses keep the pests away.

In malarious districts, the daily use of quinine is a necessity, and a wise precaution wherever cases of the disease occur. The customary preventive dose is six grains a day. Quinine has many other uses in medicine, particularly as an efficient preventive of colds and influenza, but it is outstanding as a successful remedy for malaria.

Persons who get malaria are usually anemic and so need plenty of iron in their diets. They can obtain this food-mineral by eating liberally of whole wheat bread, egg yolk, dried fruits, meat juices, and green vegetables.

stands on its head when it bites. Other mosquitoes alight horizontally on you, but the anopheles rests on your skin at right angles, with its tail in the air.

Do and Don't

How often we say to children, "Don't do that," "Don't go there," "Don't answer back," "Don't make such a noise," "Don't play with So-and-So," etc. Life seems to the child like one don't after another. Since all this "Don'ting" seems like plain dictatorship under some simpler name, the child resents it like any infringement of liberty.

When a child hears too many don'ts, he only gets a lot of inhibitions. These negative commands are unpleasant stops that affect his whole attitude. He thinks you are unfair, taking advantage of your position of authority. If he finally gets used to "don'ts" he stops thinking for himself and becomes dependent on your will and permission. Thus he loses his resourcefulness and initiative.

Whenever you want to say "Don't," stop first and see if you can avoid it. Better yet, see if you can say "do" instead. Let the child "do" as much as you can. This gives him confidence in himself. It shows him that you are cooperating with him, which is what he wants above all things. It shows him you are on his side. It helps him express himself and gain the interests and experiences that attract him. And it gives more value to a "don't" when one is really necessary.

Make it a practice to have the "do" attitude toward what your child wants to engage in. If it is something actually wrong or bad, re-direct his interest and absorb his time in the different thing. Merely to prohibit one thing without substituting another leaves him at a loose end and discontented at being deprived of his chosen activity.

Often what has been called "masterly inaction" is a good procedure for parents. It is a good practical rule to ask yourself in a given situation, "Is it necessary that I do anything? What will be the consequence of my refraining from action?" Generally unless you are sure that either positive good or the prevention of harm will result, action in the matter may well be withheld. More parents interfere too much than too little. Indirect influence and suggestion are more apt to be effective than arbitrary orders that leave the child no chance to use his own mind.

Savings By Child

Mrs. L. O. K.: What are some of the main points as to saving by a young child?

Even the smallest allowance should include something to be saved. This amount should be put aside regularly. Better two cents a week, each week, than once three cents, once one cent, once nothing. Only thus can a habit and conscience be developed on the subject. The savings should be only a small part of the total, for he learns nothing from saving unless he also learns from spending. What the child saves should be for some immediate purpose—a toy, an admission ticket to a game, a present for mother. He gains real pleasure from something he has saved his own pennies for and it gives tangibility to his purpose. Money which is saved should be put in the bank by the child himself. If in a savings bank, he should go with his mother or father to deposit the money and should see the book in which the deposit is entered.

Local Girls At World's Fair

Helen McNair, Belleville, and Betty Rydman and Helen Olin, Bloomfield, members of a Swedish folk dancing group which performed at the New York World's Fair recently, found time to visit the Bell Telephone exhibit before they completed their tour of the Fair. Here they are shown testing the Voice Mirror, device which gives visitors opportunity to hear how they sound to persons at the other end of the wire.
