Taxpayers' Group Opposed To $21,000,000 Bond Issue

State Senator Zink Also Says Measure Should Be Defeated

Members of the Belleville Taxpayers' and Civic Association are aroused to a white heat by the attempt of the State Legislature to saddle the people of this state with a $21,000,000 bond issue to be voted upon at the next general election, November 7.

The organization's president Paul de Hagara, announced that the association has committed itself to fight to the finish against the adoption of the referendum. "The burdensome load of 350,000,000 yearly in taxes," declared Mr. de Hagara, "is enough. It is every taxpayer's duty to make certain that No More State Bonds shall fall upon the overworked shoulders of the taxpayers."

Wilfred Yudin is Chairman of the Committee against the proposed $21,000,000 bond issue.

Zink's Stand

State Senator Homer Zink endorsed today the campaign of the association in a letter to de Hagara, local attorney.

Said Zink, "Day after day, in and out of the Legislature, I have opposed bond issues. Bonds for relief or other current expenses are inexcusable at any time. Indeed, this is no time for New Jersey to issue bonds for any purpose at all."

"Therefore, the $21,000,000 bond issue authorized by the Legislature in a bi-partisan deal last month should be voted down by the people on Election Day, November 7."

I shall appreciate it greatly, in view of the seriousness of the issue, if you will make this announcement in this week's issue of The Belleville News."

ELKS WILL HOLD DANCE AT COCKTAIL LOUNGE OPENING

Grille Room Renovated In Mexican Fashion

Belleville Elks are planning a gala affair for Saturday evening, October 21, when a subscription dance will be held in the auditorium as a side issue to the formal opening of the New El Dorado Cocktail Lounge in the grille in the lower part of the club which has been entirely renovated.

A ten-piece orchestra, augmented by a piano-accordion player, will furnish the music. There will be vocal numbers.

Elks and their friends will be invited to inspect the new lounge which is replete with indirect lighting effects, booths and a Mexican orchestra pit done in bamboo. The color scheme of the lounge is blue and red and the grille is air-conditioned.

It is expected that over 500 will attend the affair, which may be followed by regular monthly dances in the auditorium.

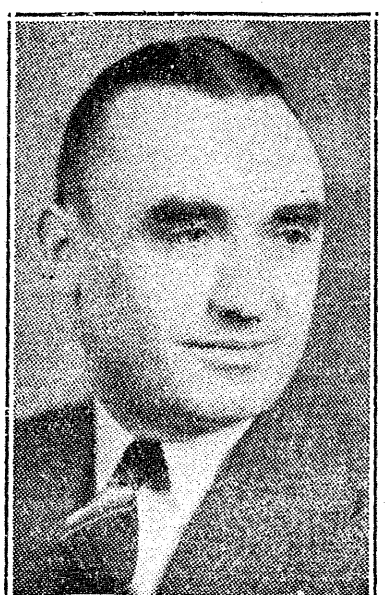

Local Elks, who have been named to important committees by State President William Jewett, include: Grand Lodge, Frank Straesburger; Public Observances, James Ferguson; traffic safety, Robert Anderson; inter-lodge visitation and special activities co-ordinating, Harold L. Cavanaugh, and Ritualistic, Jack Deeny. All are past exalted rulers.

Pizzi was committed Monday to County Jail in default of $1,000 bail to await Grand Jury action after being arraigned before recorder Smith. Pizzi at that time waived further examination.

Lost And Found

Little five-year-old Charles Tatz, 489 Franklin avenue, gave his mother considerable concern the other day when he disappeared. Mrs. Tatz hunted "high and low" but Charles appeared to have ambled off to parts unknown.

Came the police and Charlie. He had been hiding "under his mother's nose" in the hedge near his home. "A stubborn little fellow," say the police.

WOMAN INJURED CROSSING STREET WITH DAUGHTER

Daughter Also Injured When Pushed From Path Of Car

Mrs. Louis Martin, forty-two, 328 Cortlandt street, was bruised about the back and knees Saturday when struck by a bumper on a car being driven by Freda Stout, 61 Rossmore place, at Rutgers street and Washington avenue.

According to police, Mrs. Martin was crossing Rutgers street, north to south, when the Stout car came in Washington avenue and attempted to turn east into Rutgers street. Mrs. Martin, who was thrown to the pavement, pushed from the path of the car her daughter, Marian, who received abrasions of the right arm. Both were attended by Dr. Martin Meehan.

Synagogue Will Observe Feast Of Tabernacles

Special services, commemorating the Feast of Tabernacles, will be held by the Congregation A.A.A., 317 Washington avenue, Wednesday and Thursday nights at 5:15, and Thursday and Friday mornings, September 28 and 29, at 9 o'clock. Rabbi Rubin R. Dobin will officiate at the services.

Succos, which falls on the fifteenth and sixteenth days of the Jewish month Tishre, lasts for nine days. The last days of the holiday will be observed Thursday and Friday, October 5 and 6. The holiday is of agricultural, as well as of historic importance to the Jew. While the Jews dwelled in their own land, Palestine, the adults made the tri-annual pilgrimage to the Temple in Jerusalem, during the time of the fruit harvest. The festival is observed as a thanksgiving at the completion of the entire harvest.

Succos also commemorates the wanderings of the children of Israel in the wilderness after their deliverance from Egypt. During their trip to Palestine, the Jews lived in booths or succos. This is remembered by erecting booths in which appropriate prayers are recited during the days of the festival.

One of the beautiful customs of the holiday is the use of the "Arbosh Minnim," the four kinds of plants, the lulav or the festive palm branch; the esrog, a Palestinian lime; the hadassim, myrtle twigs; and the aravos, or the willow branches.

All these serve to remind Jewry of the agricultural significance of the holiday and of the eternal bond that exists between the Jew and Palestine. A succah, or booth is built on the side of the synagogue and will be decorated by the Sisterhood of the Congregation. On Thursday afternoon, September 28, a party will be tendered to the children at 4 o'clock to take place in the succah. All are welcome to attend.

Was Verner's Face Red?

When Snoop snoops, he snoops. Listen to Verner Forgie, former postmaster.

"Say, Mr. Editor, that bird who writes snoops got me in a jam. Was my face red? Last week I walked from Belleville avenue to the Post Office and five people stopped me to ask me if the leaves were falling.

"The first one I met, was informed with my innocent stare upwards and resulting remarks that it was too early for the leaves to fall. After the fifth person, a lady had accosted me on the subject, I became skeptical.

"What's this leaves falling business?" I asked. "Don't you read the papers? Where's your Belleville News? In there this morning it says you will head south when the leaves fall. It must be near time."

"Gosh," said Verner, "I was dumb. Can you beat it?" We can't even tie it Verner, old top, except we recall a fellow who once started off in the morning with one black and one tan shoe on.

Mrs. William Schindler And Son Went Foodless Five Days

Their Third War

Miss Indra Bryant, music supervisor in the grade schools, on a recent trip to Paris was the guest of Mr. and Mme. Michel Benisovitch, at their Paris apartment and summer home at Thoiry, outside of Paris. This marks the third war the Benisovitchs have experienced. They were in Russia during the first World War and later during the Red Revolution. Mr. Benisovitch, a White Russian, is Art Historian for a Paris Museum.

High School Supervisor Also Back After Study In France

Two Belleville women are safe here today, following trying experiences enroute home from war-torn Europe during the past two weeks. Miss Indra Bryant, music supervisor in the grade schools, arrived four days late for the opening of schools on the Holland-American liner Veendam after experiencing numerous delays in transportation throughout France.

The other local woman, Mrs. Katherine Schindler, wife of William Schindler, butcher, 80 Overlook avenue, accompanied by her ten-year-old son, William, Jr., arrived last week after a nerve racking ordeal fleeing from Germany. She came back on the Holland-American liner Volendam, which carried 846 passengers, 473 of whom were Americans.

Mrs. Schindler and her son were visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Schlosser, at Benslast, when she was forced to flee the country, practically penniless, due to the German ban on taking currency out of the nation. Mrs. Schindler went to her former home town to recuperate from an illness suffered last winter and was paying expenses with money belonging to her husband which had been impounded by the German Government to prevent removal from the country. As she had used what little United States money she had with her, she and the boy arrived in Holland with twenty marks, less than $4.00 in our money.

Upon arrival by train at Utrecht, Holland border town, Mrs. Schindler and her son were questioned as to their financial status by the Dutch police. When it was found that she was practically penniless, the Dutch authorities were for sending them back to Germany. Only the timely intervention of Mr. James Henry Howe, Walnut Creek, Cal., wife of a British news correspondent, who loaned the stranded local woman $20.00, saved Mrs. Schindler and her son from being refused admittance to Holland. The $20.00 permitted Mrs. Schindler to continue on to Rotterdam where she cabled her husband for money and put a deposit on steamship tickets with the Holland-American line.

Foodless Five Days

After paying for the cablegram and the ticket deposit, Mrs. Schindler had but $1.00 American money on which to provide food and a place to sleep for her son. Arranging with the Salvation Army for sleeping accommodations, Mrs. Schindler then tried to get food credit from that organization for herself and son until money arrived from this country. She was told that she would have to pay for the sleeping room and that all food was to be paid for in cash. As a result, she and the boy went without a meal for five days, living on a loaf of dry bread and a half-pint of milk daily for almost a week in Amsterdam.

She was rescued from this predicament at the end of five days by an American Government employee, who gave her $15.00 enabling her to move into a decent hotel and provide adequate food for herself and the boy for another three days, at which time money arrived from her husband on the steamship tickets and financed the remainder of the trip home.

"Every day I went to the steamship office to find out if they had any word but they told me they had so much work they were not able to find out. Finally, September 1, they told me to come back the following Monday. They were getting a ship off and would be able to look at the other cablegrams by then. When I did the man in the office told me 'I have good news for you. Your cablegram has come,' said Mrs. Schindler. 'It's an experience I'll never forget!'"

Calm Along Moselle

"Everything was calm and peaceful along the Moselle," Mrs. Schindler said. "My family butchered two pigs and there was plenty of food. But the German people were terrible, mad. When it was time to shrink. The boys and an Englishman while the women were in their work clothes. We were home, but trouble August (Continued)

Carpenter Injured In Fall From Scaffold At Local Plant

Falling from a scaffold on which he was working as a carpenter at the Federal Leather Company plant, Main street, Friday, Harry Small, thirty-three, 103 DeWitt avenue, injured his left leg near the thigh and cut his lip.

He was taken in the town ambulance to North Newark Hospital.

Greased Car

When John Matt, Valley street, tried out his ancient vintage automobile a few days ago, it was hard of steering. Pronto, he applied some grease and, according to Verner Forgie, former postmaster and Ed Vandemark, who tell the story, the steering knuckle loosened up, in fact, it operated a little too freely, it would seem.

As evidence of this, say the pair, John heard a fire alarm sound for a blaze at William and Main streets. He hopped in the old gas buggy and headed south in Valley street, attempting to turn east over the Erie Railroad tracks. The wheels turned, says Verner, but too far and too suddenly. In an attempt to right his direction, John went south along the train tracks, at just the right time to meet the 6 something o'clock express.

Fortunately John's car was spared. The gateman at William street flagged the express with a red bandana.

"'Twas nothing at all. Don't mention it," said John. "I was out of the car so I wouldn't have been hurt. Now? Oh, now? Well, sir, I've gone and got me a new car."

WHEN (and if) American Airlines leaves Newark Airport for North Beach, Newark will lose its most beautiful girl traveler. She is Miss Margaret Goff, stewardess, from Denver, frequently called more beautiful than Hedy Lamarr. Virtually a newcomer to the airlines, already represented by pretty girl stewardesses from all over America, Miss Goff was recently selected by "Look," the national picture magazine, to play the star role in a picture spread to be titled "The Life of An Airline Stewardess" for a forthcoming issue. More recently Miss Goff was selected for a series of pictures at the Alderney Dairy Company in Newark. A blue-eyed brunette, slim and chic in her perfectly fitted and tailored uniform, Miss Goff commands almost breathless attention wherever she goes — at the airports, in the lobbies and dining rooms of the Robert Treat, and in the shops along Broad street. She loves her work with the airlines, flying between Newark and Memphis twice a week, and has no thought of going to Hollywood. But we would like to bet that if Hollywood ever sees her it will be good-bye stewardessing for gorgeous Margaret Goff.

JOHN TOS' exquisite Condor restaurant and cocktail lounge on Northfield road, Livingston, is undergoing a bit of a face-lifting, so to speak, and in a week or so will come out with a brand new set-up in the way of a cocktail bar. It will be adjacent to the Condor's delightful main dining salon and will offer another luxurious feature to this already artistic club. There will be music and dancing, of course, with Italian foods featured in addition to the regular menus.

PUT a big "X" on your calendar for the evening of Friday, October 6, for that is the night you will want to have dinner at Nils Bruhn's fascinating Kungsholm restaurant in West Orange — especially if you like Swedish folk dancing with seven or eight Swedish couples in colorful native costumes performing all of the most popular native dances for you. Really quite a treat, for it costs no more than night than any other for the Kungsholm's excellent dinner and carafe blanche to the smorgasbord table. Better make October 6 a "must" for the Kungsholm.

AND while on the subject of beautiful women, beautiful night clubs, etc., now is the time to tell you about North Jersey's most delightful means of bus travel. When you take a DeCamp bus, you at once have service, courtesy and a smooth ride, and should you live in the rural sections of West Orange, Livingston, Roseland, Essex Fells, a DeCamp bus, virtually takes you to your corner — if not to your door. And through some of the most beautiful country in Essex County. And have you ever noticed the spic-and-span cleanliness of a DeCamp bus?

ALDERNEY Dairy Company's plant in Bridge street houses many miracle mechanical devices that perform with super-human genius. Noted among them is the one that seals and caps Alderney milk bottles with the precision of a Music Hall ballet, without the aid of a human hand. In the Alderney ice cream plant is another that lifts and dips ice cream on a stick into the rich chocolate coating which is as fascinating to watch as a ninth inning rally in a World's Series game. Tours of this great plant can be arranged for church, school and other groups by arrangement at the company's offices, 26 Bridge street.

ASIDE, to John Maddox: Suggest you try the Robert Treat's new main dining room... (Mrs.) F. C. McConnell: The Alderney Milk Barn, Route 10, Morris Plains, would prove most enjoyable for the children. Thomas Stokes: Lloyd G. Robinson is vice-president and general manager of the Treat... Donald Everard: Definitely no... D.J.K.: Try Alderney Brooklawn Farms' Guernsey milk... Sam Retlick: Stop off at Colonel Baumgarten's "Jungle" on Pompton Turnpike, Cedar Grove. —Adv.

Activities of Belleville Lodge, 1123. Benevolent Protective Order of Elks

The bowling alleys were opened for the season Thursday night and quite a few of the boys limbered up, rolling one or two games. Of course, the scores were nothing to brag about as the boys were trying to find the groove and it will take a week or two before the bowlers are able to locate that all important pocket. Among those striving to get "three in a row" were Tom MacNair, Harry Scott, Cliff Faust, Bob Whitten, Bernie McManus and Johnny Mallack. Now let's hear from Jim Dunn. Who said he moved out of Belleville? You couldn't get Jim out of Belleville for all the tea in China. He's probably waiting to give Pat Moroney a chance to get into form, before proceeding to take Pat over the hurdles.

Harry and Joe

Who said Harry Byrnes was digging up top soil on the links? He avers it was Joe McGrath, boss pencil pusher of this column. "Why I'll take him over at golf any day," says Harry "or anybody at the club. Digging up top soil? Why, the boys, I was on the fairway at No. 1 when who comes along but Joe who had just driven from No. 7. His ball lighted as pretty as a picture over one-half mile off its course. Where do these fellows get that stuff? That's what I call golf. One-half mile off the course, Joe says his ball was deflected from a tree. Be that as it may, etc. etc."

It is safe to assume Harry was hot under the collar. In fact he threatened to refuse to feed us at his Washington Diner believing we had written all this stuff about the Antlers. Well, Joe, take him up now. We'll stand behind you — but quite a ways back.

"It pays to advertise," says an Elk. "If you don't believe it drop down to Harry Byrnes. Listen to him rave about his golf game."

"Listen to this: I'll play any member of Belleville Elks a match and I don't mean duffers like Bill Whitten, Philly Hargrave, Joe McGrath or Frank McGee. Bring on the stars such as Em Kastner, Tom MacNair, Bob Gordon or Tom Kiernan," says Harry.

Everyone's eyes popped two sizes larger than normal from their sockets until they heard Harry in a soft voice: "I'll take a stroke a hole."

Well, here is a chance for the stars. The caddies will be the duffers — no holds barred.

About seventy-five members and friends Sunday enjoyed the club outing at East Hanover.

One of the swiftest quartets of pinocle players gathered around the table the other night. Included were Commissioner Louis A. Noll, former Commissioner Edward Mathes, School Commissioner Charles A. Gebhardt, Jr., and Henry Watters. You could hear a pin drop, as scarcely a word was uttered. They take their pinocle seriously and each believes himself a champ.

But getting down to business the following morning a fellow asked: "Who was that bird yelling 41, 42, 43?" And then adding "You won't get it if you bid 60." I guess it was Charlie Oliver.

The pinoclers certainly toss decorum to the winds, though. The kibitzing is something to write home about. If a fellow makes a miscue he is apt to hear about "that play" for the next three or four hands.

If you want to hear a set of officers go through the ritual just remain after the next meeting and listen in. Police Captain Robert Anderson acts as the one to be initiated and Bob knows the work from A to Z. If a brother officer leaves out an "if" or "but," Bob just checks him. With this team work, I would not be surprised to see us in the State finals.

VAN LOON SPEAKS SATURDAY IN NEWARK

Will Address Institute On "Music In The Community"

Hendrik Willem Van Loon, author of "The Arts," "The Songs We Sing," and a number of other well-known books, will deliver one of his few lectures of the season at the evening session of the all-day institute on "Music in the Community" at the Griffith Auditorium in Newark Saturday. Mr. Van Loon, who has been a popular platform and radio lecturer for many years, has this year de-creased his schedule of talks to those few he considers most important. His talk before the institute will be on the subject of "Folk Music as it Reflects the Life of a Community."

Before Mr. Van Loon attained fame as an author he was a lecturer on history and art for various universities throughout the United States. His first book, "The Fall of the Dutch Republic," appeared in 1914. Mr. Van Loon has then served as correspondent for the Associated Press in Washington, Warsaw, St. Petersburg and Moscow. When the World War broke out he became a Belgian correspondent for the same organization.

Born in Rotterdam, Holland, Mr. Van Loon learned Dutch at the age of two and two years later learned English. As a child his parents tried to interest him in the army, the navy, medicine and the law, but Hendrik Van Loon was determined to become a writer and he chose to express himself in English. At the age of twenty he came to the United States and attended Harvard and several universities.

His first great popular success as an author came through his book "The Story of Mankind," which appeared in 1921. "The Story of the Bible" was published two years later. His more recent books include "Van Loon's Geography," "Ships," "Around the World with the Alphabet," and "Christmas Carols."

airy, roomy place to shop literally located on the bulging point with five floors. And, best of all, it's a new low price market—a big food store that offers low prices every day of the week.

And, as Mr. Coelin showed a reporter from this paper about the store, he came upon Stephen Komayko, meat department manager, who displays the very latest in meat equipment and refrigerators with indirect lighting. The reporter was taken into the cold storage room where meats are kept at a temperature of from thirty-two to thirty-eight degrees. An employee is constantly in the room preparing meats for display as stocks outside are depleted.

Departments Immense

The coffee, cigar, candy and chewing gum departments are immense in themselves and the dairy department carries a full line of imported and domestic cheeses. Each department in the great building is designated with signs making shopping easy and convenient.

The set-up was arranged in two days, attesting to the efficiency of the A&P force. Whenever a super market is opened and a smaller one closed employees find work in the super market, with no letting out of employees. In fact, the personnel is increased and there is a constant demand for trained help.

There are fancy groceries, fresh fruits and vegetables, choice meat, and dairy products and baked goods.

"This new market is unique! It cuts out all hills—saves selling expenses usual to retail food stores—and passes the savings thus made on to its customers in every day low prices. You'll be amazed at the bargains you see! Thrilled with the savings you can make!"

Rev. Theodore S. Key of St. Matthew's, Newark, organized Redeemer Church in 1917. He will officiate at the service.

was no use trying to reach Hamburg. The trains were so crowded that at Coblenz we climbed through the window to get on."

Sherwood Eddy Abroad

The Volendam Thursday arrived in Hoboken under rules of strict neutrality imposed by Captain Jan P. Wepster after Sherwood Eddy, American author and lecturer, regaled the passengers with a speech on the war. Captain Wepster prohibited further speeches.

There was a prohibition posted on the bulletin board by Captain Wepster against propaganda meetings. A complaint had been made to Captain Wepster by Amedeo Barletta, Italian Consul General in Santo Domingo, that Eddy's talk was offensive to his government.

It was said Eddy's address was anti-Nazi and pro-British. He talked for ninety minutes and announced he would talk again the following night. But Captain Wepster posted this bulletin the next morning:

"This ship is Holland territory. Holland is neutral in the present war. It is strictly forbidden by our government to make propaganda or have meetings for or against any country with which our country remains friendly relations. Therefore, I cannot allow any lectures or meetings to be held for propaganda for or against any government. And please do not forget that we have twenty-two different nationalities aboard."

French and Germans Embrace

Mrs. Schindler, an American citizen, was decidedly impressed with the friendly feeling prevalent throughout the Bernkastel-Trier region toward the French. It is her opinion that the average German citizen wants only to be let alone to pursue his daily work and that war with France is the last thing they desire. She told of German and French citizens meeting on bridges across the Moselle and Rhine rivers and embracing one another.

Miss Bryant, who had been attending the American Beaux Arts school of music at Fontainebleau, was visiting a cousin, Mme. Michel, Benisovitch and her husband, at their country home, in Thoiry a small village about forty miles from Paris, when she had to begin her dash for home. Finding it impossible to purchase even a gallon of gasoline in the village, Miss Bryant piled her luggage by the roadside and sat on it to wait for a bus to Paris. After waiting in that manner for hours, two buses came along filled to capacity and the local teacher had to resort to the good old American custom of "thumbing" a ride into Paris.

Got Lift to Paris

Getting a lift to Paris from a French couple, Miss Bryant offered them 150 francs in payment for the trip and was courteously refused. Said the Frenchman, "We French have never and will never forget what you Americans have done for us. To accept payment for such a small favor would be un-patriotic."

Enroute from Paris to Boulogne, northern France seaport, Miss Bryant saw many soldiers enroute to their stations on the Maginot line and witnessed thousands of residents of Paris and other cities evacuating their homes for safer havens in the country. Her cousin's home in Thoiry was rapidly filling up with friends as she bid farewell to that village.

Close Shave

A mistake on the part of the Holland-American lines office staff in Paris gave the local teacher an exasperating morning as she prepared to catch the boat-train from Paris to the seaport. They had stamped her ticket stub for the Nieu Amsterdam instead of for the Veendam. The Nieu Amsterdam sailed the day before the Veendam was due to leave and the rail official in charge just would not be convinced that a mistake had occurred. After many set-backs and numerous trips hither and yon in the vast Paris railroad station, Miss Bryant finally made her train with about ten minutes to spare. On board the Veendam, Miss Bryant said the passengers heard of the sinking of the Athenia over the radio, after which passengers were requested to refrain from using the radio. The ship was brilliantly lighted during the crossing with a large spot light focused on the Dutch flag.

"STAY OUT OF WAR!"

American industry hates war. Its leaders and the rank and file of its membership have again and again reiterated the truth that wartime profits are largely fictitious, and do not repay the subsequent wreckage of a nation's entire economy. But with the big guns actually roaring in Europe, it is exceedingly timely and important to have industry's attitude made plain again.

Recently the National Association of Manufacturers went on record on this subject. We can do no better than to quote highlights from its statement, merely pointing out that the N. A. M. is the largest organization of industrial leaders in the country:

"American industry wants peace," the statement declares. "Peace is the life blood of progress. Peace must be the national objective."

"Industry's position on this matter has been stated repeatedly and there must be no misunderstanding about it."

"The United States can stay out of war. Emotionalism can betray us into war."

"A public will to peace, coupled with wise public policies and affirmative action to this end by our government will keep us out of war. A fatalistic attitude that was in inevitable for us is absurd. It presupposes that America cannot conduct itself intelligently to preserve peace and its own interests."

"Europe's problems do affect us, but our domestic problems still must come first."

"If yesterday industry was the only source of prosperity and reemployment, today it is as well the keystone of preparedness and peace. Under any conditions, America must depend on a smoothly functioning, efficient industrial system."

"Manufacturers will not relax their efforts to achieve and maintain sound improvement in our domestic economy."

At any rate, in a war-troubled world where so many values are being lost or obscured, industry's position is plain. And it can be summed up in four forceful words that all Americans would do well to heed: "Stay out of war!"

HORSE RACING LEGISLATION

Although the Legislature has had the audacity to ask the public for approval of a $21,000,000 bond issue to finance relief because of so-called lack of funds, proposed legislation for control of horse racing follows the usual lines of lavish expenditures for salaries and administration.

It proposes, for example, the creation of a four-man commission with salaries of $5,000 each, even though competent, experienced men are available who are willing to serve without pay. It is just such imprudent features as this that build up the cost of government, that keep taxes on a high level, and that make relief financing difficult.

At the public hearing on September 11, Mark M. Jones, horse breeder and taxpayer, of Princeton, presented a capable analysis and criticism of the proposed horse racing legislation. Frankly, he inquired whether the bill under consideration was intended to control racing and betting in the interests of the people or whether it is intended to provide the front or camouflage behind which political machines will be supported and will operate.

No other state, he pointed out, in reference to the proposed four-man board at $5,000 each yearly, has so extravagant a set-up. "At a time when the government of New Jersey is hard pressed to find revenue," he said, "and when it is resorting to increased indebtedness to finance current requirements, it would seem reasonable to utilize necessity and adopt a more prudent financial basis for compensating racing officers. The State cannot go on forcing the issue with respect to postponing the day of judgment. After the facts must be ascertained, the law must be changed. To continue on an expenditure commission on an expenditure basis is unnecessary and without justification."

It is unnecessary and without justification to continue on an expenditure commission on an expenditure basis. It is unnecessary and without justification to continue on an expenditure commission on an expenditure basis.

dent administration of the public business."

Among the many creditable suggestions advanced by Jones is that all revenue accruing to the State from racing and betting be paid directly to the State Treasury rather than to the Commission, as provided in the bill. Already too much of the State's revenues are pre-dedicated and exempt from proper fiscal control.

Many other important features of the proposed legislation were analyzed and discussed by Jones. He suggested a revision of the amount of the State's share of the "take," proposed consideration of public examination and record of candidates for commissioners, discussed the advisability of adding a provision prohibiting political contributions by track operators, and in addition pointed out several features of the proposed bill that he considered commendable.

His views and recommendations follow closely many principles of economical and competent management long advocated by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association, and, if adopted by the Legislature, would be a constructive approach toward sound and impartial control of racing and betting.

IT'S AUTUMN

The fall season is on us with a rush. Daylight saving ended Sunday, the World's Series is not far away and, this week, football season will be in full swing. The summer has gone quickly, but while it lasted the weather was reasonably kind in this part of the country at least.

The fall season, with not too much "zip" in the air, is a glorious season, usually, in New Jersey. The Indian Summer is a delightful period preceding the coming of winter.

Happily winter has been robbed of some of its terrors in the last twenty-five or thirty years and we can enjoy the favors of autumn without much dread of approaching winter. For winter is becoming more and more an open season.

SCOOTERS AND BIKES DANGEROUS

About this time of year children propel their scooters through various sections of the town, usually in streets that are hilly. No one wants to deny youngsters the pleasure of the scooters, but using busy thoroughfares for such relaxation may prove very dangerous indeed. There are not many places where children may operate scooters in Belleville except on highways or busy streets, but it would spare parents many heartaches if they would warn the children to be careful. Not only are the scooters dangerous but the problem of bicycles on busy streets is equally as dangerous to those whose pleasure may be cut short through an accident.

COMPARISONS ARE MISLEADING

Attempts to measure the efficiency of relief programs by a comparison of administrative costs in terms of percentages are in most cases giving false answers, declares a report by the American Public Welfare Association.

A check by the association of sixty-seven cities of over 100,000 population showed public welfare agencies engaged in fifty-five different activities and figured administrative expense in proportions varying from four to twenty-six per cent.

"The serious flaw in using administrative expense percentage as indexes of relief efficiency," states the report, "is the fact relief standards vary greatly from one community to another. Two relief agencies employing the same number of persons at the same expense to meet the relief needs of the same number of people will show variable percentage figures, if the standards of relief in the two cities differ."

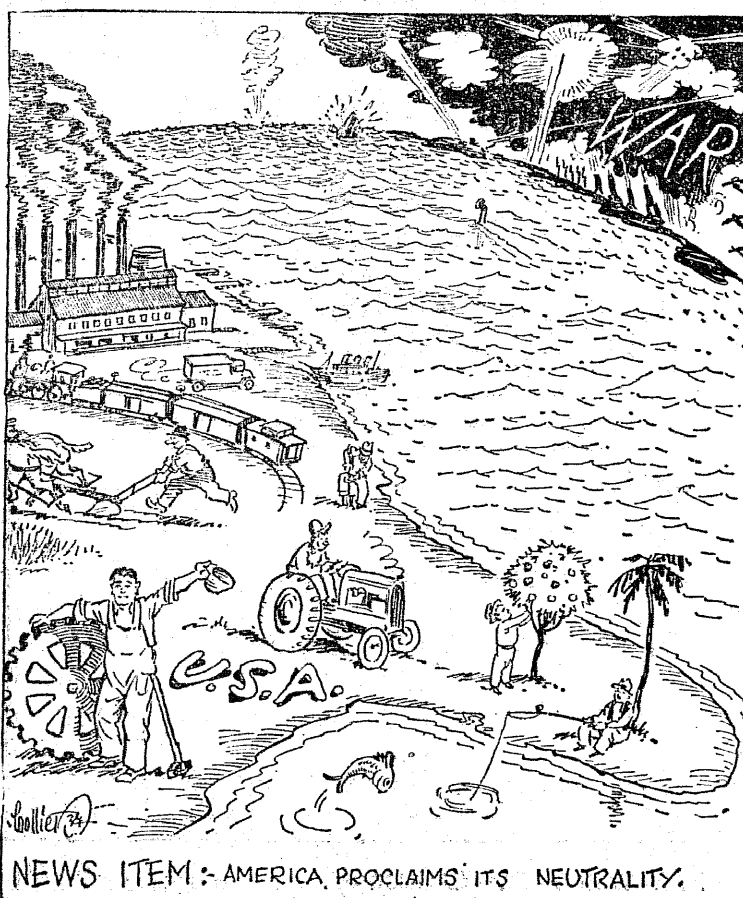

The report disclosed, moreover, that cities do not agree generally on the definition of "administrative" expenses. Some cities, for example, lump together under this label all expenditures aside from money given relief families. Other city relief agencies ignore the fact their duty of investigating applicants for certification to Federal work programs is "obviously unrelated to the amount of relief granted," as the association puts it.

One eastern city has separated non-relief expenses into administrative, operating and special services. The last category shows costs of certifying to work programs, medical and nursing services, and other unusual functions.

Another disclosure of the survey was a lack of agreement on the definition of assistance payments. Some agencies make allowances in the cash relief grant for necessary medical care, it was found, while others employ a group of salaried physicians to provide such care. In some cities, relief recipients get free water from city mains.

Some system tending to uniformity is important in order to obtain a true picture of the situation and eliminate the faults exposed. Another reason making it desirable is the general belief relief will be a problem for many years.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Senator Barbour Says --

By W. Warren Barbour
U. S. Senator from New Jersey

The views expressed in this column, are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

Washington, Sept. 27 -- The United States faces one of its gravest crises. I am not going to predict the outcome. Certainly we do not want war and should not have it. The question before the country and Congress is how best to promote the cause of peace and serve the best interests of the United States. On the question of procedure my mind is still open.

Specifically, as most of us know by this time, we are called on to decide whether it would be best to sell planes, guns and munitions to Italy, Japan and the Latin American countries, or even to Russia and Germany if they have any way to deliver them or to refuse to sell these war materials to any belligerent, whether an aggressor or not.

So long as England controls the seas, a policy of unrestricted trade in war materials would of course favor England and France. If the British fleet should be wiped out we should perhaps be confronted with offers by Germany to buy war equipment in the United States, and under the President's cash-and-carry plan would be obligated to sell to Germany and Russia on the same basis as to England and France, provided they could pay cash and carry their purchases away in their own ships. I doubt very much whether American public opinion would sanction such a course if that situation should arise, and point out the possibility only because it is one of the many factors we must take into consideration in passing judgment on the serious issues before us.

As I have said many times, in speeches, statements and letters addressed to constituents, I shall be guided on all of these questions by my own conscience and the views of the people of New Jersey, so far as it is possible for me to ascertain them.

My mail on the general subject of neutrality and the cash-and-carry proposal is tremendous. In two days I received almost 10,000 letters. Some of the writers support President Roosevelt. Others are against cash-and-carry. Still others just say "Keep us out of war," and express no conviction as to how this can best be done.

A great many letters bear all the earmarks of organized effort. I am following these closely. There are, in addition, a large number of equally sincere people in the State who are willing to let me know how they would like to have me vote, and I shall give great weight to these communications, covering a very diversified field of thought, in reaching my own decisions.

Opponents of the cash-and-carry plan argue that to sell munitions and planes to the belligerents would inevitably drag us into war. This of course is open to argument. It is true that we were dragged into the world war after pursuing a similar policy, but after Germany began to sink American vessels and by other overt acts made war on our own country. The present cash-and-carry program would explicitly prohibit the shipment of war materials in American vessels, and put the sole responsibility for delivery on the purchaser.

Moreover, it may be recalled that two groups of the smaller nations successfully remained neutral in the last world war, while doing business regularly with the belligerents.

The President's Message

The situation is becoming graver and more the world war after minute and is changing so rapidly that I am beginning to feel that all one in my position can do in good judgment is to try to study everything dispassionately and conscientiously.

The President's message sounded all right in a way, but to me it was a disappointment especially as far as the cash-and-carry thesis is concerned, for I felt it should have been more specific and definite in outlining an actual legislative formula for its application. However, as I have said, this is the time to make haste slowly. I know what I want to see done, but far more than that, I must know I am right before I do it. And, regardless of running the risk of being designated in this or that group, I am going to all conferences I can and am getting all the information I can, still keeping an open mind. It is too early with safety to follow any other course.

NEW JERSEY TODAY

This Way to the Fair—Ringwood Mines Prepared for the Belleville News

By

Dr. Charles P. Messick, Chairman
N. J. State Planning Board and
Chief Examiner and Secretary
The State Civil Service Commission

With the approach of cooler weather, an appreciable increase in motoring tourists making use of New Jersey's attractive highways to reach the World's Fair is reported as is the case also, in the number of those taking advantage of the opportunity to visit the famous seashore and inland resorts of the State.

Noticeable are those entering the State from Port Jervis, N. Y., and coming largely from northern Pennsylvania, central and western New York, and points further west. Many of these are continuing on State Route 23, which takes them through High Point Park, the highest point in the State, and a forest section, rugged and picturesque. Not far from the State line and in Sussex County, where a number of forts were built during the French and Indian Wars, is Hamburg, the over-night camp site of Washington's Army while enroute from Newburg to Morristown.

In modern times, Hamburg has become better known for "Gingerbread Castle" patterned after the stage settings of the opera "Hansel and Gretel." The building was erected by a philanthropist, who loved children, and wished them to visualize popular fairy tales. Scenes and characters from the story are reproduced as those of other children's stories including "Three Bears, Humpty Dumpty and Little Red Riding Hood." The Castle is open daily and guests are present.

Those who find a thrill in historic spots will be rewarded by a diversion from Route 23 at Pompton and proceeding north ten miles to Ringwood Manor State Park. The 230 acres and the historic Manor were deeded to the state by the descendants of Peter Cooper. Here are the Ringwood Mines and iron works which supplied much of the ore which was forged into the Hudson River "Blockade Chain" which was stretched across the river at West Point as a barrier to the British fleet returning down the river. It is usually stated that this chain was forged at the Andover Iron Works in Sussex County though records of the Sterling Forge at Sloatsburg, New York show that at least part of the chain was made at that place. A liberal conclusion would be that the chain was forged in sections at several works as the magnitude of the job would have sorely taxed the capacity of any single ironworks of that day.

Snoop's Snoops

We took a peek behind that wooden fence on Washington avenue opposite the High School over the week-end and find that quite a building is being started as an addition to William V. Irvine's Funeral Home. With this addition Bill expects to have one of the most complete funeral parlors in the county. It certainly should be a valuable addition to Washington avenue.

We ran across Russell (Butch) Sanford. He took a great amount of time to tell about his son, Russell, Jr., who recently started his internship at the Mountaintop Hospital, Glen Ridge. Russell, Jr., was graduated from the Holy Cross and has now finished his medical school. Upon completion of his internship at the Mountaintop Hospital, he expects to start practice as a doctor in Belleville. We wish him lots of luck.

While talking about doctors, we ran across Dr. G. L. Yates, formerly associated with Dr. James Irwin. He stated he is now living in Glen Ridge but was stopping in Belleville each day on his way to Columbia University where he is taking extension courses.

We had a chance to talk to James Clark, father of Hugh (Water Department) Clark, and really think that he's about "tops" when it comes to exercise. Jim has been walking for years and thinks nothing of walking ten or fifteen miles on a Sunday merely to keep in trim. He has for years walked back and forth to his job at the Essex County Court House and he is willing to recommend this form of exercise to anyone who wishes to keep young.

Belleville was well represented at the Ferneliff Golf Club, West Caldwell, Sunday morning. The Elks had a tournament and five or six of the Lions were also playing. We have been unable to hear anything about the scores, but know that Dr. William Fabris, Harry Ziegler, John Carrough and his father, Allan Sexton, and Vic Hart were among those who took part in digging up the course.

We also spied Wayne Farmer, school superintendent; Philip Dettelbach, of Sonnenborn & Sons, and Harry Cooper, the so-called "Three Musketeers," on their way to the Branch Brook golf course on Sunday morning.

While on the subject of golf, can anyone tell us what Belleville Lions Club president's wife has now seriously taken up the game of golf and is receiving instructions from Clarence Clark, professional at Forest Hill Field Club? If our information is correct, we feel rather certain that before many lessons are over, she will be well on her way to being one of Belleville's best women golfers and will without a doubt be able to take her husband in tow.

Here's an odd one for the books. For almost twenty years Wallace & Tiernan has been using as its mailing address 11 Mill street, Belleville. This address was used when the concern first came to town, although at the present time the building fronts on Main street and the address should be approximately from 1 to 11 Main street. The odd part of it is that even 11 Mill street is incorrect, because the numbers on the north side of the street are even numbers. 11 Mill street is across the street from the Wallace & Tiernan plant, or on the property of the Crowhurst Leather Co.

Listen and we will let you in on a secret. Younginger Post, V.F.W., has challenged Belleville Post of the Legion to play baseball. The Vets are afraid the members of the Legion will turn it down. What do you say Legionnaires?

PIQUANT POLITICS

The views expressed in this column, are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

The impact of the European war on American politics is strikingly indicated by the hesitation shown by the backers of Thomas

E. Dewey. The New York district attorney still has all of the elements of strength that made him the outstanding Republican candidate two months ago, but in that brief period the country has come to think differently. The crimes and whereabouts of Dewey was a product of the American newspaper front page and today the front page is given over to the bloodshed of Europe. True, the intense interest of the past time in foreign affairs will probably grow less as the conflict drags on. A kind of political normalcy may return to this country. Even so, new political heroes will have been born. The extreme political sagacity shown by Dewey in the race for governor last year may bring him again to the front. He may have the abilities that are needed to be a candidate for the highest office in the nation, and he may demonstrate those abilities in a way that will capture the imagination of the electorate.

More Critical

But, the country will be far more critical of him than would have been the case had not the European war broken out. Once it looked almost like he would get the nomination by default. Now he must battle for it in the dangerous waters of a deeply disturbed public opinion. Rivals who otherwise would have remained quiet may now come forward. Such a potential rival was heard by the whole nation two weeks ago when Charles A. Lindbergh spoke over a radio network.

I mention Lindbergh as a candidate for President with some close to an apology to my readers. His limitations have been advertised almost as widely during the past six years as was his fame in six previous years.

But, the public mentality acts strangely during periods of great crisis. There can be no doubt of the favorable reaction to his speech of last month. He put into words the feelings of the nation more surely perhaps than President Roosevelt has done at any time during his whole political career. Nor has the last word been said on American foreign relations. Other opportunities will come.

Lindbergh in Jersey

I mention Lindbergh in this column because of the local influence his possible candidacy might have. As a citizen of New Jersey, Lindbergh has long been under the watchful scrutiny of Arthur T. Vanderbilt. The latter has been a close friend of the Morrow family since before the late Dwight W. Morrow ran for Senator from New Jersey. He is known to have sounded out the possibility of Lindbergh being a candidate for state office years ago. Like most others, Vanderbilt during recent years dismissed the Lindbergh idea as impractical.

Very likely he still considers it so. But nothing would gratify better the Short Hills lawyer's passion for mystery and surprise than to announce backing for an entirely new figure for the Republican nomination — whether it be Lindbergh or someone else.

W. Stanley Naughton's victory over Percy A. Miller for Republican county chairman of Essex was more impressive than the actual majority would indicate. An analysis of the vote by communities indicates that Clean Government has an organization in suburban Essex that can be depended upon. It is significant that in the towns of Millburn, West Orange, Verona and Caldwell, Miller did not receive a single vote. This shows that such Clean Government opponents as Fred Herge, Mayor Joseph Dosch, George Sticker and Alexander Waugh either have joined Clean Government or lost their influence. It all adds up to a tremendous fight here against Harold G. Hoffman next May.

Turning The Clock Back

FIVE YEARS AGO

Fearful that children and adults riding unlighted bicycles through Belleville streets at night would meet with serious accidents, Public Safety Director George R. Gerard warned cyclists that the state law requiring lights on such vehicles after sundown would be strictly enforced.

Belleville Council, Knights of Columbus, planned a card party under direction of William Noonan, Alexander Derbyshire, George Froehlich, William F. Herkness, Corwin Stickney, Eugene Cuklin, Philip O'Toole and Harry Morton.

William Friel was president of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Belleville which opened headquarters at Washington avenue and William street. John Baney, Tim Monaghan, Oliver Brown and Raymond Peck were the other officers with Theodore Bellet as counsel.

TEN YEARS AGO

The News and Belleville regretted the loss from its newspaper ranks of Mrs. Mary H. Biaydes, editor of the Times, now merged with the News, who retired from her work to enter a convent at Frederick, Md., where she joined the Sisters of the Visitation.

Plans were in the embryo to form a community chest in Belleville to eliminate the necessity of drives during the year by various organizations for funds with which to operate. Leon Beekowitz, of the Bracher Co., Main street, was active in forming a group from the Rotary and Lions Club to push the matter.

Maurice M. Abramson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Abramson, 500 Washington avenue, left for Cornell for a pre-medical course.

Local Girl Will Be Soloist In Nutley Symphony Concert

Carol Carswell Intrigued By Study Of The Clarinet

Carol Carswell, daughter of the Charles Carswells of DeWitt avenue, will be soloist in the "Concertina for Clarinet" by von Weber, Friday evening, October 6, when the Nutley Symphony Society presents its "Pop" concert in the auditorium of the Nutley High School.

Women clarinetists are somewhat rare, and it was this fact which intrigued Carol into the study of the instrument seven years ago, under Charles Thetford who is still her teacher. Since that time Carol has made a notable record for herself. Two years ago she represented Belleville High in the New Jersey All-state Band, and in the All-eastern High School Orchestra. Last year the All-state Orchestra claimed her, and this year Carol will be soloist in several cadenzas in this same orchestra.

A senior in Belleville High School, Carol spends her time to be able to practice two hours a day, and still have time for dancing and fun.

Directed Full Orchestra

For three years Carol has been enrolled in the Essex County Summer School. This summer her study of conducting gave her the opportunity of directing a full orchestra in the Mozart G. minor Symphony. To gain all-around musicianship, one must listen to music as well as perform. Carol develops this side of her music education by listening to the symphonic works presented over Station WQXR, and by dialing the NBC Symphony. Three years ago she attended a broadcast of the NBC Symphony and thrilled to Toscanini's phony and thrilled to Toscanini's phony and thrilled to Toscanini's phony.

fine conducting. Last Spring when the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra was brought to the Mosque, Newark, Carol was there. After the concert, she had the pleasure of going backstage and meeting many of the members of that famous orchestra.

Next year Carol plans to attend Curtis Institute of Music—there to continue on her way to becoming a concert clarinetist, her ambition. A goodly number of Belleville musicians and friends will be in the audience for the Nutley Symphony concert to wish her well, and enjoy her performance.

The M. D. Says

Health Question: What are some activities which injure the quality of the voice?

The larynx, and consequently the quality of the voice, is injured by forcing it—as in cheering madly at football games; drinking alcoholic beverages; and smoking. The degree to which any of these things is done naturally affects the seriousness of the injury.

The owner of a naturally pleasant voice can help to retain his asset by avoidance of over-indulgence in any of the above mentioned practices. The quality of the voice can be improved by careful enunciation; speaking slowly and distinctly and taking care to pronounce letters and syllables that should be pronounced.

C. C. C. Enrollment

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 1.

The Golden Text is: "There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing: there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches." Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not: for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name; thou art mine. When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee: when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee." The Lesson-Sermon also in-

At The Capitol, Belleville

The greatest adventure known to man is thrillingly reconstructed in "Stanley and Livingstone" coming to the Capitol Theatre, Belleville, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, with twice Academy Award winner Spencer Tracy turning in another masterful performance, co-starred with Nancy Kelly and Richard Greene.

The film follows Stanley from a hard-boiled reporter through all the thrills and dangers of his great adventure in the heart of Africa in search for Dr. Livingstone. Walter Brennan is grand as the old Indian scout; Charles Coburn is splendid as Lord Tye, and Sir Cedric Hardwicke offers a truly great portrayal as Dr. Livingstone. Three years in the making, much of the film was shot in the actual locale in Africa.

On the same program thrills, chills and laughs harmonize in "Miracles for Sale," starring Robert Young, Florence Rice and Henry Hull.

Starting Wednesday, October 4 for four days, the theatre presents "The Wizard of Oz" in glorious technicolor. With 9,200 living players, it is the biggest sensation since "Snow White" and features Judy Garland, Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr and Jack Haley. On the same program is the new comedy-drama of college life, "These Glamour Girls," starring Lew Ayres and Lana Turner with Anita Louise and Tom Brown.
