

Commissioners, Police Combine To Prevent Auto Fatalities

The town commissioners and the police officials, alarmed over the deaths of three people in automobile accidents on Washington avenue during the past two weeks, are studying plans to eliminate traffic hazards and improve safety conditions for both the motorists and the pedestrians along Washington avenue and in other parts of town where there have been serious accidents. The third name was added to the fatal accident list Thursday night when Oliver J. Barrett, forty-seven, of 307 Greylock parkway, was struck and injured fatally by a car driven by Norbert P. Barny, twenty-six, of 231 Randolph avenue, East Rutherford, at the intersection of Greylock parkway and Washington avenue.

Police Chief Spatz denied that the police were making any special drive on motorists along Washington avenue as a result of the accidents. He said the issuing of summonses to speeding motorists or reckless drivers is part of the routine work of the department.

Many car owners were surprised over the weekend when they found tickets on their cars for all-night parking. The chief estimated that police had given out more than 150. The drive on illegal parking will continue until the condition has been overcome, Spatz said.

Will Cost $2

The tickets will cost the holders $2 and may be paid before the session of the traffic court which is held on Wednesdays. If they are not paid by that time, a summons will be issued.

Both Public Safety Director Clark and Spatz said they would make a renewed effort to have the state and county install additional traffic lights at certain dangerous intersections. The chief said that he had been attempting for several years to have lights placed at Main street and Mill, Rutgers street and Main at the bridge crossing the Passaic River, Franklin avenue and Joralemon street, and Union avenue and Holms street.

It is a problem in which both the county and state figure since they own the roads. The bridge intersection at Rutgers and Main streets presents a serious problem, the chief believes. He has advocated that a traffic circle be built there.

Want Signal At Greylock

Francis J. Daly of 195 Greylock parkway appeared before the board Tuesday night in behalf of some of the residents, asking that the commissioners see what could be done about a traffic light at Greylock and Washington. Daly pointed out that the lighting at the corner was very poor.

Clark said a signal would be put there. It was taken out three years ago as an economy move, he said, much against his wishes. This was due to the fact that the state would maintain only nine signals on the avenue in Belleville, claiming that more than that would snarl traffic.

Cars Are 'Hell Bent'

"It is regrettable that the light was ever taken out," Clark said. "As soon as the light at Overlook avenue changes, the cars come up there hell bent for election and Greylock doesn't have a chance. A new signal will cost $600," he added, "but Greylock is going to have one. I am going to ask for a good deal more for lights in my new budget."

Mayor Williams said that he

SOLOIST CHOSEN FOR GLEE CLUB

Eleanor Searle, Soprano, Guest Artist For Concert On April 17

Eleanor Searle, well-known soprano in New York musical circles, has been selected as soloist to appear with the Belleville Glee Club at its spring concert at School No. 10 April 17, James McCall, secretary of the club, announced last night. Miss Searle has been singing in the metropolitan area for several years and is a favorite with concertgoers.

The Glee Club resumed regular weekly rehearsals at Fewsmith Memorial Church Monday and started to lay plans for the concert, the second and concluding one of the season. The feature of the program will be the rendition of Alfred Noyes' poem, "The Highwayman," which was set to music by the late Mark Andrews of the Montclair Glee Club.

Arthur E. Jacobus, club director, this week issued an appeal to all men who desire to become members to "come around to rehearsal any Monday night." The club is in need of first tenors, he said.

WANTED

Somebody Who Has Some Love For Pigeons

WANTED—Someone who likes pigeons and wants some. Come and take them away, for heaven's sake!

If you fit this description scamper up to the home of George J. Rellim at 54 Perry street. The Rellims are unwelcome hosts to a score of their feathered friends and are not at all happy about it.

About four years ago, the birds started to appear and liked it so much they have been back regularly. The Rellims have put up invisible wire and taken many other precautions but the pigeon family has evidently decided that the Rellim residence is just about the nicest in Belleville and are determined to stay.

Last week Mrs. Rellim appealed to the police and is considering taking her problem to the humane society.

Must Be Repaired

Investigation by Engineers Substantiates Jacobus' Complaint Against Chemical Company on Damage to Sewer Main Along River

Some of the pipes in the sewerage system on the Passaic river frontage at the foot of Terry street will have to be replaced or repaired shortly, Commissioner of Public Works Waters said this week after Town Engineer Matthew J. Sheehan and Henry Jacobus, superintendent of the Passaic Valley Sewerage Commission, had reported on their investigation of the situation.

Jacobus charged at the conference of the Town Commission two weeks ago that sulphuric acid alleged to have been dumped into the sewer lines by the New York Color & Chemical Company over a period of four years, had deteriorated the pipes so that repairs are necessary. Arrangements were made at that time for the joint inspection of Sheehan and Jacobus which, after a week's delay, because of bad weather, was made early Sunday morning.

Waters said the investigation showed that the "sewer was shot" and that the bottom of the town manhole at that point has been eaten away about four inches as has been the channel. The chamber of the Passaic Valley Commission, which was built by the town, has lost about two inches. "The eighteen-inch tile pipe has not been affected," Waters said, "but the concrete joints are eaten out and there is a great amount of infiltration."

Caused By Acid

The report of the investigation attributed the cause of the erosion to the sulphuric acid from

Williams To Attend Conference With Serner On S-3 Highway

Mayor Williams will represent Belleville when officials of municipalities in Passaic, Bergen and Essex counties confer in Montclair next Thursday night on the completion of State Highway S-3. The route would provide communities in the northern section with easy access to the Lincoln Tunnel and Manhattan. State Highway Commissioner E. Donald Serner will attend the meeting which is a follow-up of one held last Thursday night at the instigation of Mayor Speers of Montclair.

Preliminary Work Done

The preliminary work has been completed on the road through the meadows in Rutherford and East Rutherford. It is planned to bring the route along Rutherford avenue, Rutherford, and across the Passaic river along the Essex-Passaic County Line to Allwood where it will connect with the traffic circle and a portion of the road that has already been completed. From there it will go on to Montclair and eventually connect with Route 6.

"The completion of this highway vitally affects Belleville," Williams said yesterday. "It would take away much of the heavy weekend traffic during the summer season to the lake and country resorts which now clogs our roads." He added that it would give local residents and business and industrial firms another fast route to uptown New York.

The conference which Williams attended last Thursday night passed the following resolution which was sent to the State Highway Department and other officials:

"Whereas, there is at the present time no direct route from the municipalities of Essex, Passaic and Bergen Counties to midtown Manhattan, and

"Whereas, there are partially completed highways throughout the entire area of Northern New Jersey that are not in any way connected and

T. B. SALE HAS NETTED $1,611

Returns Are Still Coming In; Receipts Slightly Behind 1939 Figure

Returns from the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals in Belleville has amounted to $1,611.37 to date, according to Health Officer Eugene T. Berry, who is chairman of the Belleville-Nutley Tuberculosis Association.

"Of course, it is too early to give any final figures," Berry said this week. "Returns will be coming in at irregular intervals constantly from now until at least June. Often," he commented, "the seals received before Christmas are overlooked and forgotten until housecleaning time the following fall."

This year's receipts are only fourteen dollars behind 1939, Berry said. The drive had netted $1,625.83 by this time last year and the final figure was $1,836.29, the last return being made in November.

Mrs. McCorkle Is Executive Secretary of Federation

It was stated in the story last week dealing with the report that welfare officials in this town and Nutley were considering the possibility of combining their annual money-raising drives that Mrs. Lester D. McCorkle was part-time secretary for the Community Chest.

Mrs. McCorkle is the volunteer executive secretary of the Belleville Welfare Federation. During the past Community Chest campaign, Mrs. McCorkle was chairman of the house-to-house campaign workers for the Federation. Several local welfare leaders have denied that there was anything to the report of a contemplated consolidation with the neighboring town's welfare groups for money raising purposes.

That's Question Being Asked Belleville H. S. Graduates

The high school is conducting a follow-up of the graduates of 1936, 1937 and 1938. Double postal cards are being mailed to all of them so that the desired information may be easily supplied.

There is space provided on the card to list the schools the graduate has attended and the work in which he has engaged since leaving the high school. A summary of these findings will be useful in the guidance work with the present high school pupils. The directors are interested in finding out how their program is functioning out in life.

Graduates of 1936, 1937, and 1938 who do not receive a card, or their parents, are asked to get in touch with Earl W. Seibert, guidance director, at the high school.

S.S. Kenworthy To Write New Feature Column

Former Mayor and Municipalities League Executive Will Write on State Affairs; Weekly Review on Popular Music and Radio Will Start

Two new features will start with next week's issue of The News which should appeal to many readers. Samuel S. Kenworthy of Lavergne street, former mayor of Belleville and at present executive secretary of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, will begin writing a weekly column to be known as "This Business of Government." Mr. Kenworthy, who is well known in the affairs in this state and Trenton in particular because his present position demands that he spend virtually all of his time there.

He is known by municipal officials from one end of the state to the other and is personally acquainted with everybody in the official family at the State Capitol from Governor A. Harry Moore down to the boy who polishes the gold door-knobs at the entrance to the legislative chambers.

For a number of years he has written and edited the monthly magazine of the State League of Municipalities, which is the "Bible" of many officials throughout the state. He is a former newspaperman and editor and has lived in Belleville for a number of years. Mr. Kenworthy was mayor of this town from 1924 through 1933. In addition, he served in the State Legislature. His weekly column will appear on the editorial page.

For the young people and those who are interested in popular orchestras and radio, The News will present the first of a series of weekly columns next week by Jeff Jefferay, a musician who has a wide acquaintance in both the radio and the music fields. He has worked with the Columbia Broadcasting System and is at present doing free lance work on the production end at several radio stations. He has directed his own band, both during and after the four years he spent at Rutgers University.

Getting Lion's Share

Freeholders Kick In With $175,000 to Extend North Sixth St.; State Highway Funds Allocated; Protest From Delavan Residents

A large part of the funds apportioned for highway work by the county and a portion contributed by the state will be used to open new streets and improve some of the present roads in town during this year. Belleville received the lion's share of the appropriation made by the County Board of Freeholders in their budget for bonds to be issued for road improvement, while County Engineer William Stickle announced that $18,500 would be allocated to Belleville from the state aid project for dirt roads.

Of the $200,000 bonded appropriation earmarked by the county for street improvement, $175,000 will be spent here for the extension of North Sixth street from Mill street through the Essex County park property to connect with Franklin avenue at its present terminus in Belleville avenue.

North Sixth street has already been extended from Heller parkway north across the city line to Mill street. The continuation of the road, which will be concrete, from that point to Franklin avenue will cost approximately $140,000, the county estimates. The remaining $35,000 will be used for the construction of an underpass for the street under the tracks of the Greenwood Lake Branch of the Erie Railroad.

Was Requested

The improvement of the road ways in that section of town was one of the requests by the Andrew Jergens's company officials before they would consent to locate a million-dollar structure here. Their plant will be located near the junction of the new highway with Mill street.

County Engineer Stickle defended the application for the bonds against the attack of Freeholder Van Duyn, who opposed it. The latter's contention was that the obligation of the county to the Jergens Company and the Town of Belleville ended when North Sixth street was pushed through to Mill street and that the county was not called upon to carry it all the way to Franklin avenue. He claimed that there are "more important jobs to be done."

Stickle, after estimating that the remaining work would cost $140,000, countered that "it is one of the habits of the road committee to start something and not finish it," and he cited examples of street and highways which have been started in various localities and never completed.

When completed, the new road will open another through and faster route to Newark for the northern communities in the coun-

First Budget Confab Is Held By Board; Mum On Tax Rate

Board Members Are Tight-lipped Departmental Figures; They Will Introduce It February 6th

The town commissioners held their first conference of this year's municipal budget at Town Hall last evening. The board members were tight-lipped on what taxpayers might expect would be the tax rate this year, although several of them indicated that they hoped for a decrease from the $4.77 rate of 1939. Mayor Williams, who is revenue and finance director, said that frequent conferences on the budget would be held until the time for introduction. To keep within the provisions of the state law, it is planned to introduce the new budget February 6.

The regular Town Commission meeting is scheduled for February 13, but because of the budget, has been moved ahead a week. The commissioners will not comment on whether their departmental requests for this year would be up or down. The various town branches have been working since mid-December on the preparation of figures for 40 requests.

Belleville, like many other municipalities, will be in a bet position financially this year, the anticipated revenue columns the dispute between the public utilities and State Tax Commissioner Thayer Martin is settled. Two years ago Martin re-appointed the distribution of gross receipts and franchise tax paid by the utilities.

The companies, principally Public Service and the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., have the commissioner in court, case is now before the New Jersey Errors and Appeals. In the interim, the new legislation passed over Governor's veto a bill to adopt Martin's plan of distribution. This result in a court fight, it is anticipated that so will be worked out so municipalities will receive which is due them for 1939 and this year.

Collections Should Be

Tax Collector William reported to the town board night that Belleville, collecting more than eighty per cent of the amount levied for 1939, had enjoyed its best in history. While not as high percentage as reported by municipalities, it is a gain may be reflected in the rate. Better tax collection that in the following appropriation included in the budget as a reserve against delinquent taxes may be reduced.

COMMUNITY HOUSE DREW 56,000

Employment For Boys Serious Problem, Mrs. Herkins In Annual Report

Nearly 56,000 adults and youngsters used the various activities and facilities offered by the new Lake Community House 1939, according to the annual report released yesterday by Martha S. Herkins, director. Biggest attendance was not the club and team divisions accounted for 14,449. The ground drew 11,300, while more than 10,000 flocked to the nasium.

"In looking back upon the which has just passed into history," Mrs. Herkins commented, "one cannot fail to realize the Community House and which it stands for, is positively exerting a beneficial influence, not only upon the life of the neighborhood but its moral life as well. That is, both political and industrial in the community also realize should be a source of great satisfaction to us all."

"As I live longer in this town," Mrs. Herkins commented, "and I come to know the boys and girls, I myself can't find a vast difference between those who are not. Even the clubs one can note the difference between boys and girls who have been members but a short while and those who have been through their school years."

Employment Is Problem

The most serious problem confronting the Community House director believes, is the of employment for their boys are beyond the school age. "Yet," remarked Mrs. Herkins, "this very unemployment demonstrates the usefulness of the Community House."

Young Operatic Baritone's Name Rising Above The Horizon In Music World

Belleville's best known operatic star and the youngest leading baritone in the country, John William Meade, Jr., of 124 Bell street, will leave shortly with the New York Opera Company under the direction of Ralph Errolle on a three months' tour of South and Central America. The trip is expected to start in mid-March and probably will not end until June. Meade has built up a sturdy reputation in his five years in grand opera, during which he has scored hit after hit with the Essex Opera Company, the New York Opera Company and the Chicago Opera. He has amassed a repertoire of parts in twenty-five operas in six different languages.

Meade was born in Jersey City but moved to Belleville at the age of four and has lived here since. He attended Schools Nos. 3 and 5 and was graduated from the high school in 1929. He resides now with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Meade, his sister Jane and Grace, and his brother Albert, at the Bell street address. His father is an accountant with Railway Express in New York. His sisters both attended Belleville High, Grace being valedictorian of the Class of '39. Albert will be graduated in June.

Started in High School

The young baritone began his musical career while he was still attending high school. He sang as baritone soloist then for St. Paul's Church in East Orange and St. John's in Newark. His vocal training started under Ralph Errolle, former Metropolitan tenor and impresario of the Hippodrome Opera and present director of the National Opera. His present instructor is Mme. Anna Treputi, "one of the finest teachers of Italian Bel Canto," Meade knows.

His operatic coach is Maestro Del Greco of the Metropolitan.

After leaving high school Meade studied for four years and then joined the Thornton Murdock Stock Company and played dramatic roles for the next year. During this time his name began to be known for his radio work over New York stations.

An audition before Errolle, then director of the Essex Opera, led to an immediate position with that company. He played with it as leading baritone soloist in all its concerts in the east until last year when he joined the New York Opera for an extended engagement at the Boston Opera House. While with Essex, Meade scored a success in the regular program of condensed operas over Station WOR. The climax was his performance with James McInton in "La Traviata."

Other highlights of the ether programs were his Valentine in "Faust" and Amonasaro in "Aida." Another event during this period which stands out in his mind was the night he created the leading baritone role in the world premiere of the new American opera "The Messenger" at the Mosque Theatre in 1938.

His performances in Boston sent the critics to their dictionaries after each. He achieved success in "Pagliacci," "Traviata," "Carmen," "Faust," "Romeo and Juliet," "Tosca" and many others. Other members of the company included Jan Peerce, Carlo Morrelli, Mario Cozzi, Armand Tokatyan and Rose Marie Brancato.

His Biggest Thrill

His biggest thrill, however, came when he made his debut in the role of Valentine in "Faust." After the opera the audience stood and cheered him for many minutes and even the orchestra rose and applauded while he made numerous curtain calls.

A tall, well built, athletic young man, who looks like a football coach's ideal, Meade takes his success well. He has a modest, unassuming manner not often found around the footlights. Characteristic is the latest type of recording equipment he purchased so that he might better detect his faults. Also typical was his conditioning treatment for the breath-control and endurance needed in his profession. When Meade was about to begin his operatic career he went to work as a lumberjack in a pulp mill on the Canadian border in Maine. The ideal for which he strives is "some day to be like John Charles Thomas," whom Meade considers the finest baritone in America today.

"Truth" is the lesson-sermon subject for Sunday in all Christian Science Churches and Societies.

The golden text is: "O Lord, thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithful, and true."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "O praise the Lord... For his merciful kindness is great toward us; and

Other Belleville members of the club include Miss Mae Livingston, Mrs. Raymond Peck, Miss Doris Scharfberg, Miss Marie Warl and the Misses Lynch.

Bellevilles who are patrons for the dance are: A. Doris Solaun, Betty Sheehan, Ina Belle Collins, Dorothy Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Browne, Virginia Kepler, Walter Lambert, Harry Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Lynch, Raymond A. Peck and the Belleville members of the club.

I TALKED with a milk man the other day. The same kind of a fellow who leaves your quart of milk and half-pint of cream on the doorstep every morning. And by every morning we mean those biting, bitter cold mornings when, even inside the house, the goose-pimples come out. This fellow, like most of the others, has a wife and children, but unlike most husbands and fathers, starts out for work when most sensible people have tucked in for the night.

Sounds like a pretty colorless job, but this fellow tells me it isn't. He says there's a lot of glamour to it. The glamour, he says, comes from seeing what fools some people make of themselves after dark—that is, the after dark after midnight. It taught my friend, for instance, never to drink. In three years driving a milk route he has seen three intoxicated motorists drive themselves into fatal accidents.

"It taught me a lesson I shall never forget," he says. Once he saw flames coming from a house at 3 a.m. He roused the family inside. They fled in their nightclothes. The house burned down. Another time a punch-drunk playboy offered him a $10 bill to let him drive the milk truck around the block with his flapper companion aboard the horse's back, and when he refused he took a punch on the jaw from the indignant young smart-aleck.

But that was nothing to the time when he was mistaken for a burglar when he flashed his pocket searchlight to find a doorstep; or when the big police dog broke loose from his chain and took part of his trouser leg—and a bit of the leg, too. "It's plenty glamorous," he says, "but nights when the moon's full it's swell for thinkin'. Sometimes I think the job's better for thinkin' than fishin'."

The Parking Problem

Before Belleville's business development goes much further, a definite plan and regulations to ease the parking problem along the main street should be made. Merchants are losing business because people are unable to find a place for their cars while they are doing their shopping. No future business projects should be permitted along Washington avenue until proper facilities are found for handling the cars.

The traffic problem has been made difficult not only by the long parking periods in some spots, but also by double parking. The merchants are the ones who suffer most. Belleville can take a tip from the police chief in East Orange, who recommended to the Council there that no plans for apartments in the future be considered unless provisions were made for the parking of cars so that they would not clog the streets.

Route S-3

Mayor Williams has joined with officials of numerous municipalities in this region in a drive to get some action from the State Highway Department on the completion of Highway S-3 from the Lincoln Tunnel along the Passaic-Essex County line to Montclair and on out to connect with Route 6. The road would be of indirect benefit to Belleville. As the Mayor has pointed out, during the summer season it would take away some of the traffic for lake and country resorts which clogs local roads.

Although Essex County is the most heavily populated county in the state, it has taken a back seat when it comes to highways. With few exceptions we are just as far from New York today as we were ten years ago. Although the Lincoln Tunnel has been opened, it is not of easy access for motorists in this section.

The steady growth of Belleville's industrial and residential population demands that we be within easy reach of key centers. New York is the most important. To industry, the new highway would mean a shorter and faster route for the transportation of goods by truck. For the resident, whether it is for business or pleasure, it would make the trip to New York less tiring and lengthy than it is now.

Numerous attempts at cooperation between municipalities have failed in the past because they lacked leadership. Mayor Speers of Montclair, who has proven by his actions in his own community that he is a capable municipal administrator, first called the officials of a number of towns together. We trust that under his guidance their efforts will be successful.

The Return of Bingo

Some of the local charitable organizations have joined a movement for the return of bingo or some similar game which will permit them to renew their activities in this line. Bingo without a doubt demanded some shaking up when Prosecutor Wachenfeld took the matter in his hands and closed down the games in this country. He was out to get the racketeers who were robbing the public for solely personal gain. Legitimate organizations such as the Elks, St. Peter's Church and the Veterans of Foreign Wars suffered. Their charitable programs which benefited from the proceeds derived from the games have been seriously handicapped.

It is the old story over again of poor regulations permitting the chiseler to step in. There is nothing wrong with bingo if it is legitimately conducted. Many people apparently are highly entertained by it, although we personally gave it up after the first attempt. If these organizations can get the prosecutor to institute regulations to confine bingo games to legitimate organizations and keep out the racketeers, then we will agree that we have another chance.

We Do Not Apologize

We have no apologies to make for the cartoon on the front page. It may be sordid and revolting to some of our readers, but from a long association with the public we have learned that unless they are hit over the head hard few things seep in deep enough so that they will be impressed by them. We intended that this drawing should be as gory and sanguinary as it is. We hope that our readers will be jolted and that it will make an impression on every motorist and pedestrian who sees it.

Three people have been killed in Washington avenue in five days. This tragic fact not should be regarded with just passing notice. It is shameful that the lives of two young women and a man with a family have been rubbed out in such rapid fashion. That the automobile death rate should be so high for such a short period is alarming.

Who is to blame? From casual observation of the accidents we believe that the responsibility cannot be shouldered by any single group. Just as much care and common sense must be exercised by the pedestrian as by the motorist. The natural inclination in all accidents in which pedestrians are injured or killed is to place the blame on the motorist. This is wrong for in many cases those who are walking take too much for granted regarding the motorist as some sort of a magician at the wheel.

Of many drivers, it must be said that they depend too much on the mechanical devices of their automobiles for protection against possible accidents. They always seem to feel assured that in spite of the rate of speed at which they may be traveling, they will be able to stop before it is too late. They usually discover, much to their sad regret, that this is not true. A type of driver who causes many an accident is the fellow who always tries to save a few seconds by beating the amber light before it changes to red. He endangers not only himself but other drivers on the road.

Washington avenue presents few problems that are different from any other heavily trafficked road. It has many lights, perhaps too many. There are some motorists who run a race with themselves to see how many lights they can beat.

Many educational safety campaigns have been aimed at the motorist but few have been given for the pedestrian. In the plans which the town commissioners and the police are making to remedy the situation, we trust that they will include some talks or hints on safety for the walkers as well as the drivers.

Travel America Year

This has been proclaimed as "Travel America Year." Such a proclamation was hardly necessary for there is no place else for folks to go with most of the rest of the world dropping bombs on each other. But, the President's recognition of the fact adds something official to it which the travel agents hope will be a selling point for them. Steamship, railroad and airplane lines, hotels and agencies have been quick to realize that they stand the possibility of doing a land office business this year.

In fact, most of them saw that as soon as Adolf Hitler screeched early last fall that he was going to march his boys into Poland, Florida and California are already showing the proof of this fact. One of the country's leading steamship lines increased its advertising appropriation the other week, taking to the radio in addition to plugging their cruises in newspapers and magazines. To include all of us, they launched a new venture — a cruise that could be paid off on the installment plan. Ten per cent down at the start of the trip and the rest in ten monthly payments.

Some are not happy unless they can go in for long distance travelling so South America should get a bigger slice of the American tourist trade than it has previously. It should work the other way, too, especially with the New York World's Fair making a bigger play for South American exhibits and features.

For those of us who must stay at home and depend on the family buggy to carry us to whatever vacation spot our pocket-book will fit, the New Deal is suggesting that a visit be made to the new vacation land along the Tennessee River which has been developed by the TVA. A recreational paradise which is second to none in the country, according to the New Dealers. Its virtues as a play haven have been extolled to Congress by President Roosevelt, who has told them that the TVA should not be regarded only as a project from which electrical power will be manufactured for the South.

TVA boasts of a chain of lakes, tourist camps and cabins which are of the latest design for the vacationer. Anyway, it seems that most of America will stay at home this year drinking in some of the natural wonders of the homeland which have previously been passed up for a lot of high-sounding foreign titled places.

MUSICAL SILHOUETTES

A Musical Commentary by Leon Carson

Style is the most intimate expression of the personality, and very possibly is not to be at all deliberately acquired. —Paul Rosenfeld.

MUSICAL REVIEWS

The Realm of Music

After a five-year absence from the concert stage, Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, returned to inaugurate his concert tour with a recital at the Mosque, Newark, last Wednesday evening. Having been labeled a superb technician with little of expressiveness to his playing, Mr. Horowitz seemed determined to prove his capabilities as a mature interpreter, and in this he was most successful. Appearing somewhat nervous at first, he soon warmed to his program, treating his audience to an amazing exhibition of technique and dynamics, coupled with sympathetic readings. Serious, with not a smile throughout the evening, he nevertheless seemed young. The audience was thoroughly appreciative of his talents.

Socially it was a brilliant evening with Mr. and Mrs. Parker and the center of attention O. Griffith the center of attention through the magnetic attraction of their guests of honor: Maestro and Madame Toscanini, and their daughter, Wanda Toscanini Horowitz. As people gathered in the foyer at the conclusion of the concert, one might have imagined oneself in the midst of a huge fashion show, with everyone who is important socially or professionally as gorgeous mannikins. Truly, it was a triumphant evening.

Wednesday morning Eleanor Bacon-Peck resumed her lectures being given before the Contemporary of Newark. The subject was "The Folk Dance as the Forerunner of the Suite." Ruth Mills, member of the club, and pupil of Mrs. Peck, illustrated with a Handel, "Suite" for piano.

Edwin Hughes, noted editor of "Classics For The Young," and various other compositions, was the speaker at the January meeting of the Music Educators Association, held in Sayre Hall, Newark, on Tuesday evening. Using the recent convention of the Music Teachers National Association in Kansas City as his topic, Hughes stressed the need for organization among private teachers of music, citing the other professions as models. A musical program was given by members of the organization.

A luncheon honoring Helen Wyeth Pierce, president of the New Jersey Federation of Music Clubs, was held in Newark, on Saturday. Prominent officers and presidents of music clubs in this vicinity were present to greet Mrs. Pierce. John Earle Newton, head of the music department of

done to bring the Community House up to the needs of the section, she believes. There is a demand for a real gymnasium, Mrs. Herkins said. Their principal effort is now being directed toward creating an increased interest in the neighborhood for the house activities.

Mrs. Herkins handed out bouquets to the nine N.Y.A. workers who have assisted her and Miss Angela Pucillo in conducting their program. She also thanked the Welfare Bureau, headed by John Hewitt, which during the year cooperated by sending relief workers to keep the Community House and the Grey House clean. She also thanked the house president, Mrs. Robert Teace, and the officers and board of managers for their efforts.

She also thanked Miss Ethel Akersten, nurse for the Baby-Keep-Well Station, and Dr. William H. Fost, the physician. Appreciation was also noted for Mary and Tony Christiano and Jennie Biasi.

Thirty-nine groups met regularly at the house during the year. The Baby-Keep-Well Station does not have as large a turnout as previously, Mrs. Herkins said, principally because the younger generation does not seem to be having as large families as their parents had.

Many Social Events

There were 232 social and athletic affairs which were attended by 7,964. Nearly 9,000 used the game rooms and 597 the library. Fourteen trips were made on which 231 were taken. More than 400 visited the Baby-Keep-Well Station and twenty-two groups, with an attendance of 1,523, used the house's facilities. More than 500 visits were made to homes by Mrs. Herkins and her assistants.

Sally Sheridan Says:

(This is one of a series of articles of interest to women. They will include tips on gardening, interior decorating and other household suggestions.)

What will you have to show for these long winter evenings? A knit bedspread, a large hooked rug or needlepoint seats for all your dining room chairs? These may not be too ambitious for you, but I admit they are for me. However, I am going to start a piece of needlepoint which can "grow up" if I become sufficiently intrigued. One of the New York stores offers 14 inch by 18 inch canvases of assorted floral designs for $1 each. The wool for one costs about $2.25.

The idea is that the finished canvases are to be sewed together, block fashion, to form a rug. The advantage to me is that until I finish the first one, I can say I am working on a foot-stool cover and at no stage will I have to state the size I hope my completed rug will be.

If you find it fun to make your own needlepoint and embroidery designs, and like to look at the original work of others, you will enjoy the display of Amateur Needlework of Today, Inc., held at W. and J. Sloane's January 17-27. It is their fifth exhibition and is for the benefit of the New York Association for the Blind.

ROUTE TO TUNNEL WOULD BE HELP

said S-3 Highway will materially alleviate traffic by providing a direct connecting route for traffic from Route 6 to the Lincoln Tunnel connecting midtown Manhattan, thereby ensuring to the benefit of practically all of the municipalities of Essex, Passaic and Bergen Counties, and affording a great convenience to residents of these municipalities by providing a ready access to midtown New York and Garden State.

"Whereas, the roads now being used for traffic between these municipalities and midtown Manhattan are not designed, nor were never intended for such traffic, and results in using congested thoroughfares for carrying through traffic, which is dangerous, decreases property values and puts an unfair maintenance expense on the counties and municipalities;

"Therefore, be it resolved that we the representatives of the municipalities affected as per list appended, respectfully urge that State Highway S-3 be completed at the earliest possible date, and "Be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to E. Donald Sterner, State Highway Commissioner, members of the appropriations committees of the Senate and Assembly, and also to the legislative representatives of the counties of Essex, Bergen and Passaic."

Want More Money

They passed a second resolution requesting members of the Appropriations committee of the Legislature to approve the $250,000 appropriation for the completion of S-3 from Route 2 to Route 3 (exclusive of bridges) and to transfer from the secondary budget to the approved budget $500,000 for the bridge. They also asked them to approve the transfer of $1,000,000 for the right of way of Route S-3 from Route 2 to Route 6 and money sufficient to complete Route S-3 from Route 2 to Route 6.

Three Recent Fiction Releases Added At Public Library

Added to the adult department of the Public Library this week were three new fiction books. They are:

A Half-Inch of Candle by Hamilton Gibbs, the story of an ex-soldier who tries to find happiness and peace in a small French village amid the threats of a new war.

Moment in Peking by Lin Yutang, the story of two daughters of an upperclass Chinese family in contemporary China, which depicts the intimate family life of these people in a period of great social change and adjustment.

To the End of the World by Helen White, an historical novel of France in 1788, the story of Michel who wanted to stem the tide of the Revolution through the awakening of the spiritual life of France.

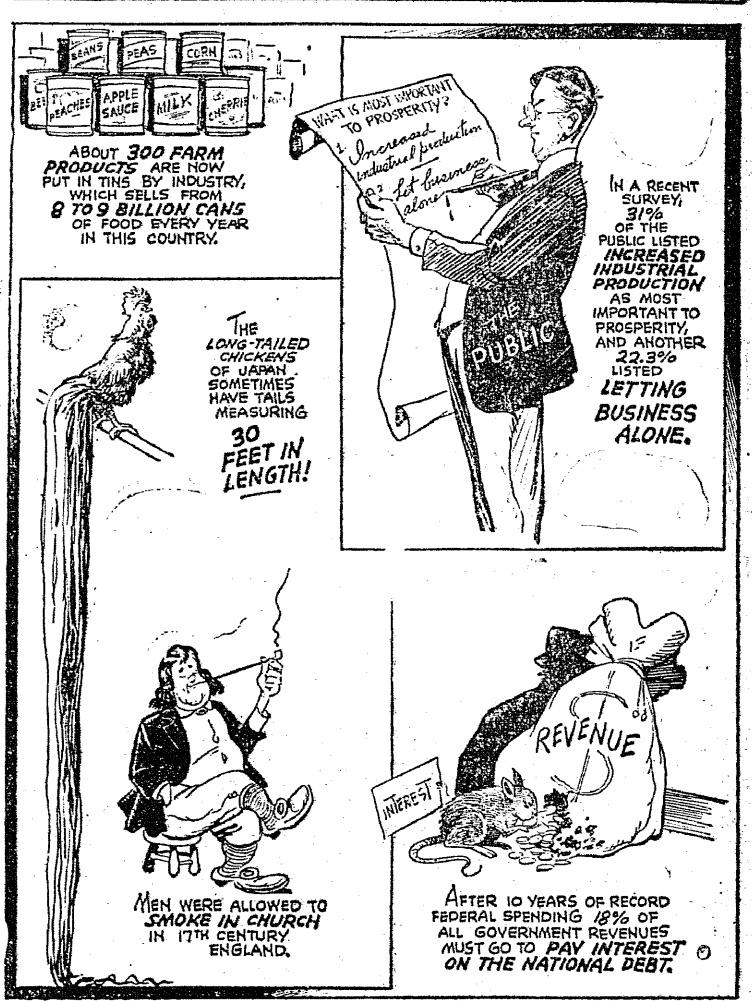

G. A. R. Corps Meets Today

The Henry Vreeland Women's Relief Corps No. 32, G. A. R., will meet today at Montgomery Presbyterian Church, at Mill street and Montgomery place. Mrs. Gertrude Revere will preside.

will hear the first chamber music program this evening in the Nutley high school. Endeavoring to assist the composer by presenting his works in concert, the group has repeatedly used compositions by contemporary composers living in or near Nutley. Tonight's offering will be a quintet for strings and contralto voices by the young Nutley composer, Delmar Molarisky. This will be balanced by the Schumann piano quintet, and Haydn's "Lark" quartet. "Serenade" from "Pictures At An Exhibition" by Moussorgsky - Pochon will complete the program.

Among Belleville supporters of the Symphony Society are Eleanor Bacon-Peck, Adell Sutherland, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Moore, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Parker, the Misses Sarah and Anabelle Cullen, Miss Agnes Gaily, and Donald Gauss. Among the student ticket holders are Bernice Van Sickle, Donna Feurstein, May Millward, Grace Duffy and Flora May Davis.

THE POCKETBOOK of KNOWLEDGE BY TOPPS

ESSEX COUNTY POLITICS

by Meador Wright

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

Essex political leaders from all major groups agree that a city manager referendum in Newark is all but inevitable. A Supreme Court order is expected any day now fixing the election date. Since that date is almost sure to be ahead of the May primary, the outcome in Newark will have its influence on the later contest.

Should the referendum be held sometime in March and be favorable to council manager government, then the election of a council of nine would take place four weeks later — in April.

Announcement by Commissioner Joseph M. Byrne that he would remain neutral in the referendum contest, should it be ordered, was significant in that it indicated the strategy that will be followed both by him and the Democratic organization. By not opposing the referendum, Byrne very shrewdly places himself in a most favorable position to head a councilmanic ticket, should the referendum win.

Although he has no love either for Mayor Ellenstein, Commissioner Franklin or William J. Egan, Byrne is a loyal Democrat, and will act in the interests of his party so long as that action does not compromise too seriously his standard of government. In this, his attitude is very much like that of Vanderbilt whose success in reconciling clever politics and honest administration has made a deep impression on Byrne.

The latter would like to institute for Newark a system of government parallel to that which has worked so well for Essex County, and it is almost certain that he will take advantage of the opportunity that a change in government would bring to put these ideas into effect.

Success Is Unlikely Vanderbilt and his colleagues have the same idea. They even plan to have the law regulating the election of a council changed if they can get it through the Legislature whereby three members of the council would be elected every year rather than all nine every four years. My own guess is that such a bill would have small chance of getting through since Hoffman Republicans no less than Democrats would probably oppose anything that Vanderbilt wanted.

My prediction is that a referendum, if it is ordered, will probably win without much concerted effort on the part of the council that will succeed the present commission. In such a still hoped, despite past rebuffs, to be able to change the lighting system on the avenue.

"We should have a system similar to New York's or Jersey City's Hudson Boulevard. A great majority of the accidents are caused by a reckless effort to beat the yellow light. Do away with the amber and allow one light to control all the traffic in the next four or five blocks," Williams suggested.

This would also be economical, he claimed. The state favors the progressive light system and frowns on the mass stopping idea, he said.

Commissioner Clark pointed out that there is an ordinance on the town books providing for one-hour parking on Washington avenue, but it has never been enforced. He would not comment on the possibility of a drive against double parking on the street. Chief Spatz has intimated that this condition will be eliminated. Opposites and that the real fight will be over the composition of ty. Mayor Williams also pointed out yesterday that the street would relieve some of the heavy congestion which clogs the other three main north and south arteries in town, Washington and Union avenues and Main street.

Where It Ends

The new road from Mill street will cut through the Essex County park lands and hit Belleville avenue just east of the school. It is planned to construct a traffic circle there around which traffic going along Franklin avenue or Belleville avenue will travel. A small part of the present land of the golf course on the northeast side of Belleville avenue will be taken so that Franklin avenue can be straightened out to eliminate one of the bad bends where the street now curves around the edge of the Soho Hospital property.

A petition protesting the closing of Delavan avenue, which is considered a necessary adjunct to the proposed improvement of North Sixth street in the general plan, was handed to the Board of Commissioners Tuesday. The petition pleaded that residents on Delavan avenue would be forced to detour about three-quarters of a mile through heavily travelled streets to reach a direct route to Newark.

Delavan avenue in Belleville is inhabited only for a block and a half north of Belleville avenue. The remaining stretch, about two-thirds of its entire length, is an unimproved track through the golf course of the County Park Commission between Belleville avenue and Mill street. This road will be traded to the Park Commission in return for the right-of-way for North Sixth street to their west.

On a motion by Mayor Williams, he and several other commissioners will meet with the petitioners to explain the plan to them.

County Engineer Stickel announced yesterday that Belleville would receive a $10,000 appropriation from the state dirt road fund for the improvement of Mill street between Harrison street and the Erie Railroad, and Main street between Joralemon street and the Nutley town line.

FIRE TRUCK CRASH
SUIT SETTLED

Upper Montclair Woman
Receives $1,250 Damages
For Collision

Settlement of a $12,000 damage suit growing out of a three-year-old accident involving a Montclair woman and a Belleville fireman was made this week for $1,250. The woman, Mrs. Eleanor Wansel of 270 Upper Montclair avenue, Upper Montclair, charged in her complaint that a fire truck operated by August Bechtoldt, Jr., of 369 Joralemon street drove through a red light at the corner of Washington avenue and Joralemon street and collided with her car.

A motion for non-suit by the defendant's counsel on the grounds that a fire engine has right of way at an intersection was denied by Circuit Judge Caffrey before whom the case was tried.

"Right of way is always relevant," he ruled, "and my conception of right of way does not mean an absolute right and the exercise of that privilege does not warrant a degree of recklessness." He charged the jury to decide whether or not there had been reckless operation of the fire truck. Although Bechtoldt is technically liable for the $1,250, the responsibility will be assumed by the town which is insured for such accidents, it was said at Town Hall.

Miss Maria Marchione, twenty-one, of 140 Grove street, Bloomfield, will go on trial today by Common Pleas Judge Brennan in Newark, charged with auto assault and causing death by reckless driving. The Bloomfield girl, who did not have a driver's license, left the scene of the accident, but was later apprehended by the police.
