Washington-Rutgers Land Is Purchased By Development Companies

Enlargement of the new shopping center in Washington between Rutgers street and Belleville avenue was assured yesterday as Mayor Williams announced that he had purchased and resold 175-183 Washington avenue to development companies. The tract, on which two residences now stand, has a total frontage of 131.58 feet on the avenue and includes all the land from the A&P Super-Market north to Rutgers street.

Gustave Young was the owner of 175 Washington avenue, Essex-Bergen Realty & Holding Company of 179 and Mrs. Annie L. Condon of 181-183 Washington avenue. Titles passed into the Mayor's hands last week from the first two while he purchased the Condon property last May.

The Young land has been transferred to the Belleville Shop Properties, Inc., headed by Hanford Twitchell of 12 East Forty-fourth street, New York City. The remainder of the tract was resold to the Secondary Realty Corporation, represented by Lawrence Kahn of 1 Wall street, New York City.

The new owners have assured the Mayor that the properties would be developed with buildings similar to the A&P and the Sears stores which have been built in recent months.

"The Belleville Shop Properties and Secondary Realty companies have assured me that they will develop these properties consistent with the modern type of construction that has already been created there," the Mayor said.

No immediate plans for construction have been set, he said. Many rumors have been floating around town about the sites but the Mayor stated that even the new owners have no definite plans as yet.

To Observe Yom Kippur All Day Saturday

Rabbi Dobin Will Preach at Kol Nidre Services Friday Night on "The Jewish Position — 5701;" Are Distributing Kits

The local Jewry will join with millions of Jews all over the world at sundown tomorrow in their synagogues and temples to usher in the holiest of Jewish holidays, "Yom Kippur," the Day of Atonement. This solemn occasion, which will be observed all day Saturday, comes on the tenth day of the Hebrew month Tishrei. It is the end of the Ten Days of Repentance, which began on Rosh Hashonah, observed last Thursday and Friday.

Yom Kippur is also called "Yom Hadin," the Day of Judgment, for from heaven is made the final judgment and the "Books of Life" are sealed for the year. The significance of this day, which is more solemn than Rosh Hashonah, arouses the sentiment of every Jewish heart. When the prayers of Yom Kippur are recited, a feeling of self-examination comes over the Jew. He seeks to evaluate his achievements during the year just passed, and thus to determine the success or failure of his living. The influence of his deeds upon the world is made clearer to him and he is reminded of his many responsibilities to mankind.

The famous "Kol Nidre" will be chanted at the Friday evening service at 5:15. This prayer, which brings back the haunting scenes of the tortured Maranos during the Spanish inquisitions of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, is one of the most important parts of the Yom Kippur service. The "Kol Nidre" brings with it the example of the Spanish Jews who suffered all persecution and hardship, but who remained steadfast in their faith. This example of firmness set by the Marana Jews serves to secure the bonds which bind one Jew to the other. The individual Jew realizes his obligations and under the influence of "Kol Nidre" resolves to fulfill them.

How It Is Observed

Yom Kippur is observed by attending synagogue all day and spending it there in fast, prayer and meditation. This Yiskor memorial service is recited in the morning. At the afternoon "Moncha" service, the Book of Jonah is chanted. In it are described the adventures of the Prophet Jonah. Many scholars maintain that the Book of Jonah is an allegorical presentation depicting the development and life of Israel. Toward the close of the day, the devotional "Neilah" service is held. The meaning of the Hebrew word "Neilah" is "fastening." According to ancient teachings, "Gates of Heaven" begin to close at this time and are fastened for another year.

This prayer is by far, the most serious of all. The holy ark is kept open, and many worshippers remain standing throughout the rendition of "Neilah." After the "Neilah" service one long blast of the "Shofar," the ram's horn announces the end of Yom Kippur — and another Jewish year is begun. Divine services will be held in the Synagogue of Congregation A.A.A. at 317 Washington avenue. Kol Nidre services on Friday evening will start at 5:15. All worshippers are urged to be in their seats at that time. Rabbi Rubin R. Dobin will preach at this service on "The Jewish Position — 5701." Services on Yom Kippur on Saturday will begin at 7:30 a.m. Yiskor memorial services for the departed will be held at 10:30. Rabbi Dobin will preach before Yiskor on "Our Heritage."

Distribution of the Kits of Jewish Information, which was started at the New Year service, will continue. These kits are made up of about 100 booklets and pamphlets on Jewish organizations and movements in America. These will be distributed to all members of the Congregation who are interested.

WILL CONSTRUCT TIDAL BASIN

Second River Project Will Help To Control Flood Waters

Construction of a new tidal basin and park along the Second River from the Old Hendricks Dam west to the Bloomfield line, a distance of approximately a half-mile, began this week. The work, which will take several months to complete, will cost the town nothing. Mayor Williams said yesterday. The project will be paid for by the county, state and federal government.

It is planned to widen the bed and banks of the river to ninety-six feet and to grade the banks and plant trees and shrubs. In a section, which is near School No. 2, will be used as a park and for recreation. Its primary purpose is for flood control.

The county and town are cooperating on construction of retaining walls for the section of the river from the Hendricks Dam east to the Essex County Park walls. For this job the county has contributed $15,000 to the town's $1,500.

Two years ago in developing a program to induce the Andrew Jergens Company to locate in Belleville, Mayor Williams outlined to the Board of Commissioners the practicability of developing a water basin with a capacity of ten to fifteen million gallons on the north side of the dam. He said he believed the basin would control the erratic action of the Second River which has caused considerable damage on several occasions when it has risen to flood proportions.

The cost of the improvement will be included as part of the drainage and flood control program developed during the past year by the Board of Freeholders, the State Water Policy Commission and the federal authorities.

Just a week before Mrs. Tuosto had obtained a court order to prevent her husband, Richard D. Tuosto from entering her home and from speaking to her on the street. Her larceny charge against Tuosto was dismissed for lack of evidence.

F. of L., to represent the employees of Heyer Products Company at Cortlandt and Little streets has been tentatively set for Tuesday. Strikers, who had been out for seven working days, returned to work Thursday to await the election.

Meantime Benjamin F. W. Heyer, president of the company, foresaw the possible necessity of closing down certain departments of the plant again due to the company's inability to obtain materials because of the general trucking strike which has paralyzed North Jersey.

Heyer said he is willing to forego his previous demand that a public address system be used to carry the negotiations to the employees "provided the negotiations prove satisfactory. But if there are any issues on which no settlement can be reached or if the union threatens to call the men out in the midst of negotiations, we shall insist on its use."

"If the men go out on strike without having been given an opportunity to hear both sides of the argument, then we shall use the public address system to tell our side of the story to the men outside."

So we hitched our wagon to a FIREBALL

— and gave these smarter, roomier cars even more sensational PERFORMANCE than before

THIS formidable example of precision machinery you see looming here is the new 1941 Buick FIREBALL engine.

It takes its name from what happens inside it.

Like all engines that hold major speed records on land, sea and in the air—like the famed General Motors new Allison aviation engine—it is valve-in-head type.

It represents 39 years of the development concentrated on valve-in-head design—and it stands today as the one engine in the land that really capitalizes on the new and better modern fuels.

The pistons in this Buick FIREBALL Eight are found in no other automobile engine.

Cupped in new contours to complement the dome of the cylinders, they roll the inrushing fuel charge into a flattened and turbulent ball, packed fat with potential power.

Concentrated about the racing-car type spark plugs, that explosive ball is fired from its very heart.

So great is its extra thrust that the same-size engine which last year developed 107 horsepower now pours out a super-efficient 115.

And so successfully does this engine make the most of modern fuels that you can use regular-priced fuels and still get more miles per gallon throughout the whole performance range.

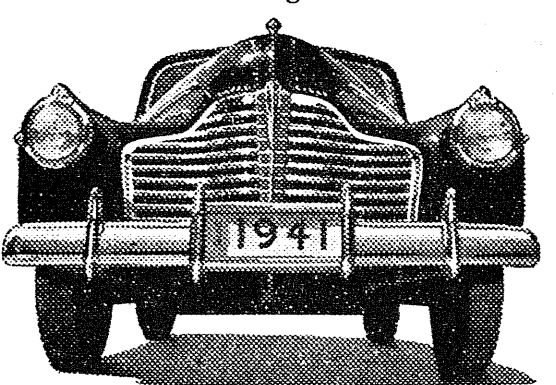

This is the Buick FIREBALL principle, latest development of Buick's exclusive Dynaflex design.

But there's still more to the story in the wonders worked by Compound Carburetion.

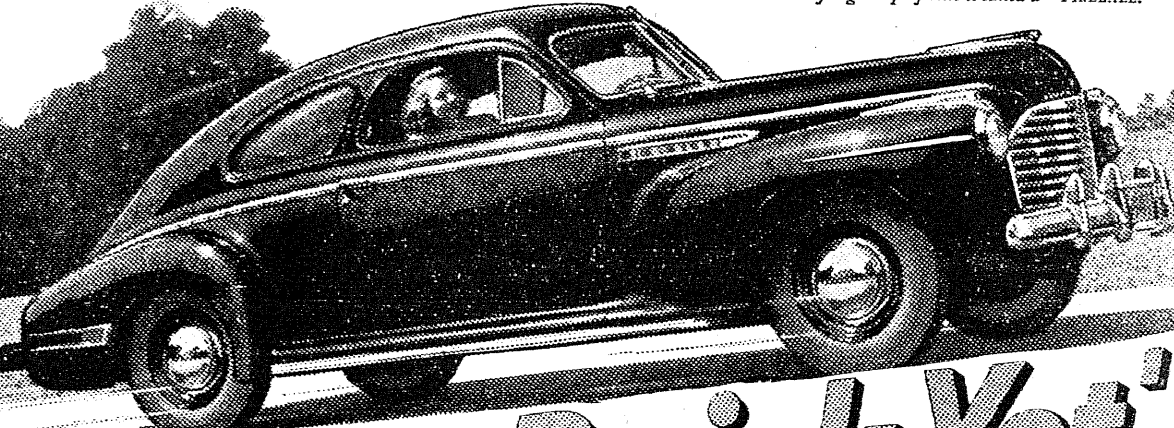

A standard part of Buick SUPER, CENTURY, ROADMASTER and LIMITED engines, this fuel-supply system lets you travel at fifty on the same meager fuel ration you ordinarily expend to get thirty, and delivers up to 10% or 15% more miles per gallon of gasoline.

You can have it in your Buick SPECIAL for a small extra charge—and step up your 115-horsepower engine to a wallowing 125.

But in big engine or bigger, you get plus-power from less gas—even the 165-hp. 1941 engines giving more miles per gallon than last year's 107-hp. engines at speeds above 40!

*According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, a super motor which travels with a series of explosions like the shock waves of a great projectile is called a "FIREBALL."

The Woman's Desk

by PEGGY PATTERSON

The innate desire for security, which is essentially and peculiarly a need of women, means that we are looking at the turmoil of the world today with mounting distress and even fear. The imminent Presidential election in our own nation is a decisive factor which knocks incessantly at the doors of our intellects and clamors for our attention as it has never done before in the lifetime of many of us. Some of us are filled with real fear for its possible results; others, unfortunately, resort to the escapist attitude and think of purely personal matters instead; and still others resort to a lamentably destructive attitude and resolve to have no part in it at all.

The remaining group, of which we are privileged to call ourselves a member, have had a feeling right along that the outcome of the vote of the masses, regardless of which candidate is elected, will prove to be the best possible solution for us today. We are delighted then to have found in print within the past few days the words of people qualified by experience and observation to draw conclusions which justify our belief.

Dr. George Gallup, for instance, expert student and statistician of American Public Opinion, points out that where the founding fathers had nothing to guide them except chance and faith when they originated the form of government which depended on the vote of their scattered citizens, we can prove to ourselves today by actual record that the American people not only know what they want but often voice their desires before their representatives in government have gotten around to covering their needs.

Have Been Asking For It

In the present need for defense as an example, Americans have been asking for it especially in the field of air force for many years. Does anyone doubt that when the average citizen goes to the polls to vote he will forget all the things over which he has been cogitating for some time? Does anyone think that the average citizen is the tool of some political machine? Both of these questions may rightly be answered in the negative. And then if you will calmly remember that it is the average citizen who has been carrying the vote for all these elections since the establishment of the constitution, you will know that he is to be trusted.

For who is the average citizen and why is he your safeguard? He is someone you know intimately — he is your husband, father, mother, even yourself. He is not represented by a handful of prejudiced cliques, some political and some of financial or gangster origin. You will vote in November without coercion or trickery and you will vote for the man who represents to you the fulfillment of your needs. Mr. Average Citizen will do likewise and you can depend on him as you can on yourself.

Regardless of party affiliation, regardless of who is elected if your faith in the ordinary American citizen is deep you have little to fear. As ponderous as is the machinery of government, as circuitous as the route which it must travel, there is one sharp voice which comes clearly through and whose echo reverberates with gusto until every nook and cranny of the great nation resounds with it — the voice of the voter. America may be shaken with it more strongly than ever this year when she awakes again to the prophecy of Theodore Roosevelt "that the majority of the plain people will make fewer mistakes in governing themselves than any smaller body or class of men will make in trying to govern them."

Very few young people can resist the temptation of Halloween celebrations in spite of parental restrictions in these days of danger from accident as youngsters traverse the streets on that witching night in search of booty and amusement. Some communities have solved the problem with parties in the school gymnasiums which have the advantage of setting a goal for the young looters when they start out and which can give them much more real fun than was ever derived from long, cold tramps in the dark with very doubtful prizes as a reward.

Parents Should Join In

Costumes, probably the biggest lure in the whole proceeding, are naturally encouraged and can be more alluring when they are to be shown off for a long evening than just for a few minutes. Games and dancing that might be too much trouble and too crowded in private homes can be attended to in large auditoriums with ease. Decorations provided beforehand lend enchantment and are also good occupation for the young set.

Mothers and fathers can do much toward encouraging these affairs by supplying the refreshments. The traditional doughnuts and cider plus all the home made contributions possible will be found ample. It is very simple for costumed mothers and fathers to enter into the fun and at the same time provide the necessary chaperonage for younger children. If an understanding is reached beforehand the very young party-goers will be sent home at 10 or thereabouts and the older girls and boys can remain to dance.

Parents in all towns might do well to think about a plan for such an evening at the close of this month. School authorities and community groups of any kind should be able cooperators, especially if there are any records of unruliness or vandalism on former Halloween nights. If you who are interested do not have any luck organizing in a big way, at least plan parties in your own homes; not elaborate tiring affairs, but just simple get-togethers which will mark the evening with costume, fun and good food.

Invite in all the "callers" that you can accommodate and do not let your young people pass up a chance for a wholesome good time because they have lost enthusiasm for this minor holiday or, worse still, go out in an ill-assorted group and take advantage of the name which the night bears to destroy the property and disturb the peace of others. Out of this they will get no pleasure; only regret.

Recipe Column

Crisp fall days bring us an appetite for foods which we have eschewed during the summer months. Paramount among these, and very important to your family for its high mineral and vitamin content, is the oyster. Try the two following tasty dishes and watch even the members of your family who claim not to like this precious food become enthusiastic.

Panned Oysters

1 1/2 quarts oysters
1/4 cup butter
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
Salt and paprika
Toast

Drain off the liquor from the oysters and look them over carefully for bits of shell. Brown the fat slightly in a heavy skillet, add the oysters and parsley, and cook at moderate heat for about five minutes, or until the edges of the oysters begin to curl. Add salt if needed. Serve at once on slices of crisp toast on a hot platter, and sprinkle lightly with paprika.

Oysters Scalopped With Rice

3 cups cooked rice
1 quart oysters
1 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup milk
1 cup buttered crumbs

Place alternate layers of rice, oysters, and celery in a baking dish. Pour over them a sauce made from the fat, flour, salt, pepper, and milk, cover it top with the buttered crumbs and bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Again these are recipes chosen from Aunt Sammy's Radio Recipes Revised which is available to you for the asking if you will call at The Belleville News Office.

Licked Before We Start

Public Utilities Commissioner Frank Reardon's reply to the town's request for a re-opening of the Garden State Bus Line's case sort of puts Belleville in the position of the batter who had three strikes on him before he walked up to the plate. No new evidence has been uncovered, says Commissioner Reardon, which would warrant his altering his decision which, much to the pleasure of the Public Service, has been decisively "no."

It may not be new evidence but we think the fact that—not a bus company or the town commissioners—but 700 citizens have signed their names to a petition appealing for the service does deserve some consideration. These people were not motivated by any special love for the Garden State company or hate for the Public Service. All they are interested in is better transportation whether it is given them by Garden State, Public Service or the Toonerville trolley.

That is something which Commissioner Reardon has apparently overlooked. If he is quoted correctly by Commissioner Noll, Mr. Reardon says he has the greatest of sympathy for the people who are inconvenienced but he is forced to follow the general rules. He can have little sympathy or understanding of the plight of these people unless he is in the same predicament that they are in and we doubt that. The general rules make little sense if a bus is permitted to ply through a residential section that needs service, but the people are unable to use that bus because of a restriction which prohibits the line from picking up or discharging passengers. That's something like buying a youngster an ice cream cone and dangling it in front of his face but telling him that he can't eat it.

Commissioner Noll may be sincere in his statement that he would like to re-route some of the existing bus lines so that more people would benefit. Our meager knowledge of the franchise laws indicates that the commissioner's hands are tied unless the company is willing to change its present route and we doubt that. Once a local franchise is given, the municipality is stuck regardless of whether the service is good or bad. They can not revoke a franchise.

At least, from the errors that have been made in the past, the commissioners may have learned a valuable lesson—that no franchise should be issued which is solely to the benefit of the bus company without regard for the public. Regardless of which company is making an application, there should be careful study of how much good the line is actually going to do the town. If only a minority will benefit and Belleville streets are to be used as a means of getting to some out-of-town point, then the application should be refused. Maybe then, bus companies will be more willing to adhere to the demands of the public and the Public Utilities Commission will think that the town is adhering to "the general rules."

Not A Singular Collapse

Those who sponsored the adult school movement should not be too downhearted because of the failure of the public to respond to the excellent program which they had arranged for the fall series. Other communities are having their troubles with the schools, too. Some are opening with curtailed programs while there are a few which have abandoned the plan for the present.

The adult school was a product of the depression. People had less money to spend for leisure time activities. Movies, dances and shows became a luxury instead of a weekly pastime. Public places such as the libraries noted a tremendous upswing in the use of their service by the people. And then came the adult school. Many folks enjoyed learning new things at little or no expense.

It is not that we have entered an era of prosperity that the interest in the adult school has waned. But the quickly changing world events have had a great influence on what people do and think about. For many the speeding up of the national defense program has meant increased work. Others have become so intensely interested in events both here and abroad that they spend much of their spare time reading and listening to opinions on world affairs. It also must be remembered that we are in the midst of an important election campaign. And while people do not turn out for political rallies like they once did, many sit home in the evening with an ear cocked toward the radio to hear the political barrage which candidates for every office are sending out via the air waves.

An adult school is a valuable community activity. We think the demise of it is only temporary and that it will return when the minds of many of the public are settled. The tension and turmoil which is world wide is reflected in the attitudes and actions of many individuals.

Helping The Community Chest

There has been no time since the last World War that we have been called upon to be more public spirited and generous than we are asked to be at the present. Millions of dollars are being sought by agencies in this country to help those who are suffering abroad. The response to these appeals has been splendid as evidenced by the success of the emergency roll call of the American Red Cross. Groups such as the Bundles for Britain and the British War Relief Society have asked for aid and have received an overwhelming response to their pleas. Agencies which seek to aid refugee children coming here and those youngsters who must stay abroad have found the American public willing to do its part.

But like other problems at home which must be faced, regardless of events abroad, we still have our millions who must be helped through charitable agencies. We must think of our young people who should be guided and brought up to think that this is a great country. There are still mothers and infants to be cared for through clinics. Yes, the welfare problems which have confronted us in the past are still here and it is more important than ever that we do our part.

Here in our own community the Community Chest has embarked on its annual campaign. It is striving to raise $17,000 this time. That's a lot of money but it is not such a big sum if every person in town who is able contributes his or her bit. The money will be wisely spent. It will help families who would otherwise suffer. It will help to promote programs that will teach our young boys and girls to live clean lives. The $17,000 represents a wise investment for it will bring great dividends in happiness to many and the prevention of even greater tragedies.

Perhaps "charity begins at home" might be regarded as an affront to some of the groups which are seeking funds to help those abroad, but at the same time we think it can not be denied that our first concern is to answer the local appeal for help and assistance.

The house-to-house canvass of the Community Chest does not start until November 1 but we hope that residents will keep it in mind so that they will be ready to give their contribution when the volunteer workers for the drive call.

Remember, the $17,000 will provide the money to run the Community Service Bureau's valuable welfare program for one year. It will help the Visiting Nurses' Association to continue its excellent work among the suffering. It will make it possible for the Silver Lake Community House and the Boy and Girl Scouts to carry on their efforts to make better citizens out of our youngsters and it will further the work of the Red Cross Chapter.

Town's Behind Neighbors In Liquor Stores But Up With Leaders In Taverns

There's One Tavern For Every 701 People; Liquor Store For Every 4,008

If as the commissioners claim, Belleville is saturated with package stores, then it is fairly dripping with taverns. At present counting the town has forty spots where you can put your foot on the rail and gulp down your favorite drink, while there are seven places where you can tuck the bottle under your arm and take it home to drink. Two weeks ago the board voted down two applications for liquor stores which would have raised the number to nine. The attorneys for the two defeated applicants say they're going to appeal the decision to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission.

There is one tavern for every 701.5 persons in town based on the 1940 population figures. When it comes to package stores, the figure is much higher. There's one package store for every 4,008.5 persons. While Belleville proportionately has more taverns than some of its neighbors, it is above the average for fourteen municipalities which were surveyed in this vicinity.

Taking in a population area of 1,010,604 people in Nutley, Bloomfield, Montclair, Orange, East Orange, West Orange, South Orange, Newark, Irvington, Kearny, Harrison, Paterson, Passaic and this town, it shows that there is one tavern for every 503 people while there is one package store for every 2,286.4. This puts Belleville slightly above the average when it comes to taverns, but decidedly far up the ladder in the package stores column.

In two municipalities, Montclair and South Orange, the package liquor dispensaries outnumber the taverns. Montclair has thirteen stores but only ten taverns. While in South Orange they sell liquor over the bar at six places, but have ten liquor stores. East Orange with a population of 68,589 is almost in the same spot. They have nineteen taverns and fifteen package stores there. In Kearny there are forty-one taverns and thirty-two liquor stores. There is one liquor store there for every 1,212 persons while it gives them proportionately more of this type of liquor dispensary than any of the municipalities surveyed.

East Orange has one package store for every 4,572.6 persons while Nutley is next with one for every 4,389.6 persons. Then comes Belleville with one for every 4,008.5 persons.

When it comes to bars, Harrison probably sets a record. While they won't allow theatres there they have gone overboard for taverns. With a population of 14,116, there is one tavern for every 172 people. Passaic is next with one for every 381 people while Montclair is high on the other end allowing one for every 3,854 persons.

Exclusively YOURS

by Bill Myers

THE crowd was commencing to gather outside the Robert Treat Hotel for a glimpse of Mr. Willie. He wasn't due to arrive until 4:45, and it was now only 2:30. As if by pre-arrangement the organ-grinder whose cavorting monkey-on-a-string has entertained downtown Newark street crowds, paused outside the hotel. The monkey was a little American flag, but no Willie button. Some of the Willie supporters tried to get him to slip a Willie button on his cap, but he promptly gripped it and put it into the tiny pocket of his jacket.

The monkey did some neat tricks for the crowd, winning a good many hearty laughs, and was pretty much the whole show outside the hotel until a delegation of State Police arrived, heralding Mr. Willie. The organ-grinder and the monkey went down the street to put on another show outside the Essex Club. A bellboy who had watched the antics of the monkey and the futile efforts of the crowd to get him to wear a Willie button, remarked as he re-entered the hotel: "That monkey is neutral for F.D.R."

SINCE our last column we have received two rather indignant letters from Alderney ice cream cone eaters who take us to task for mentioning that among the ice cream cone eaters at the Alderney Milk Barn were an ex-Army Major and an ex-Governor of New Jersey — and did not mention the writers of the letters — (1) the head of a nationally-known brewery and (2) a physical culture instructor whose full-page ads appear in national magazines. YOU should see Busch & Sons' jewelry store at Newark's Broad and William street, this week. (Incidentally, there are only some sixty shopping days to Christmas!)
