Ken Smith Faces Suit For Shooting Horse

The Town of Belleville and Police Lieutenant Kenneth Smith are defendants in a damage suit to be brought in Orange District Court by Peter Sabatino, a Newark livery stable proprietor, under a fifty-year-old state law which stipulates that only a Justice of the Peace or an officer of the S.P.C.A. has the right to shoot an animal—a horse in this instance—Sabatino wants $500 from each.

Some Halloween horse and buggy straw riders collided with an automobile, October 31. The horse was badly damaged and Lieutenant Smith, knowing nothing of ancient laws but more about humanity, put the horse out of misery with a revolver bullet.

Lawrence E. Keenan, town attorney, is growing a beard in anticipation of the trial.

School No. 3 "Baby" Gets A Bath

The School No. 3 girls are learning all about the care of a baby. Of course, the one which Miss Angele Chapman, nurse, is giving a bath at the left is only a doll, but they get a good idea of what the job is all about. Those in the rear of the picture from the left are Evelyn Dorman, Catherine Anderson and Betty Ann Thompson who ducked her head just as the photographer snapped the picture. In the front row starting from the left are Agnes Griffin, Jean Monaghan, Grace Young and Betty Bernard.

Girls Scrutinized By A Critical Jury In Learning How To Care For Baby

School No. 3 Youngsters Becoming
'Mother's Little Helper'
Through Classes

The derisive sting of "Mother's Little Helper" is totally lost in the solemnity of the actual denotation of the term when used to describe the twenty teen-age, seventh and eighth grade members of Miss Angele Chapman's Little Mothers class held Monday afternoon in School No. 3. Miss Chapman who is connected with the Belleville Health Department and detailed to local activities of the State Bureau of Maternal and Child Health under the supervision of Miss Ellen Smith, is teaching the little mothers the care of new born babies, the importance of fresh air and sunshine, the bathing and dressing of infants and all the other multitudinous details of maternity in a series of ten one-hour lessons.

At the conclusion of the course the youngsters who pass are awarded certificates of proficiency and pins and recommended for the award of a child nurse badge from their Girl Scout Troop, most of them being troop members. Little Mary McCall, of 156 Cedar Hill avenue was called to the front of the classroom last Monday and told to demonstrate the approved methods of bathing and dressing a baby. She worked under the scrutiny of the other members of the class with only occasional direction from Miss Chapman who had previously demonstrated what's what with

Special Movie Program Monday For Synagogue Young People

A movie night will be sponsored by the All-Youth Program of Congregation Ahavas Achim Monday night. Rabbi Rubin R. Dypin is in charge of the All-Youth Program.

The program, consisting of many talking features, will be presented in the Social Hall of the Synagogue and will start at 7. This activity is part of the year-round program of the Congregation, giving the younger people events of special interest to them. The promotion of safety in the home and outside of the home will be the keynote of this soap and diapers and shirt and Dr. Denton on the class Charlie McCarthy, a rosy cheeked life-sized baby doll.

Miss McCall did a man-size job on the doll or rather, a bang-up "little mothers' job, but from the caustic questions, suggestions and yes—wickedly witty—remarks from her audience of conspectives one might have suspected that she was, in truth, doing a man-size job.

Miss Chapman explained that Miss McCall had actually done a perfect job but added that an audience of youngsters was cruelly observant and recalled that magicians are always particularly wary when doing tricks before children. Only adults are kids to them.

And that is one of the reasons, Miss Chapman said, why the graduates of the Little Mothers class are competently able to relieve their mothers of the care of the younger members of the families, to help neighboring mothers and completely fulfill the actual meaning of the term "Mother's Little Helper."

"They get such a banging around in class from their conspectives," she said, "that they have to learn to be not only efficient but perfect. The ditty must go on just so, it must be pinned just so, the shirt must be slipped over the arms and head just so."

"And when the baby's in the tub, if the student demonstrator isn't on her toes in the matter of properly supporting the infant's head while she soaps with the other hand, the howl that goes up from the rest of the class sounds like infanticide."

Any one of these girls as a result, despite her youth, is able to care for any baby after graduation from bath to formula.

Youths Enter Wide Variety Of Work In Art Show

Thirteen High School Art Students Have Entries
In Newark Exhibit; Are Hopeful of Gaining
National Laurels as Did Past Classes

The high school art department, which has consistently developed a high level of attainment in its students, under the direction of P. Webster Diehl, is again cooperating with the National Scholastic committee in its regional art exhibit in Newark. This is the first year that regional state eliminations have been held prior to the opening of the national exhibition. The state elimination is being held at Bamberger's this week, with a total of 3,120 entries submitted, 1,000 of which will be on display until March 8. After that date the prize winning entries will be sent to the national competition in the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh.

The following Belleville students have entered work in the competition: Dorothy Kent, Mollie Lettices, Lois Kittle, Naida Willette, Walter Garvey, Bob Fogarty, Roger Mellion, Donald White, Jack Gibbs, Jerry Giandonato, Bill Armstrong, Marjory Gardiner and Elsie Butler.

Their work represents a wide variety of media and techniques, as is indicated by the fact that it is entered in competition in the following divisions: oil, portrait study; oil, still life study; industrial design, with plan to scale, illustration and completed three-dimensional model; costume design, in five divisions; portrait studies, in pastel and ink; advertising art; ink rendering, fine line pen, and pen stipple; mural panel, in tempera, showing "My Community's Contribution to America," textile design, pattern for silk, and water color renderings.

Belleville students who have been working for weeks preparing their entries, hope that they may be as fortunate as two years ago when Belleville High School students won nine national prizes, or last year when they got two awards from the national advertising competition and two from the American Magazine Youth Forum Art Awards.

NEXT CONTINGENT GOES WEDNESDAY FOR ARMY DUTY

Fourteen Will Leave If Youth
Secures Papers From Board
In Los Angeles

Thirteen men are presently listed to make up the sixth contingent of Belleville men to leave for Fort Dix on March 5 under Selective Service Board orders. However, the unlucky number will be avoided when release papers for Helbig Paul Arthur of 120 Rutgers street are received from the Los Angeles, Cal., draft board within the next few days.

Arthur, when he registered in Belleville where he has been living for several months, gave his home address in Los Angeles which removed him from the jurisdiction of the Belleville board.

Now, it happens that he would prefer to go off with the local boys and that the Los Angeles authorities are agreeable to complying with his decision. So Arthur will become No. 14.

This group will bring the town's total to eighty-eight.

The original thirteen are:

John Michael McCarthy, a volunteer, No. 535, of 116 Washington avenue; Eugene Jerome Calkin, No. 82, of 62 High street; 479 Union avenue; Danny Cuomo, No. 339, of 146 Franklin avenue; Carmen Tivone, No. 341, of 57 Greylock avenue; Rupert Theodore Roberts, No. 350, of 398 Washington avenue; Nicholas Richard Bonavita, No. 352, of 96 Heckel street; Wilfred Dallas Potis, No. 392, of 64 Hornblower avenue; Willard Seal Bryan, No. 396, of 503 Union avenue; Patsy Fiore, No. 422, of 27 Frederick street; John Luzzi, No. 447, of 184 Passaic avenue; William Joseph Hanrahan, No. 461, of 387 Stephen street; Jerry Charles Gerard, No. 469, of 133 Mt. Prospect avenue.

No Rejections At Dix

No members of the last three contingents have been turned back at Fort Dix for physical or any other reasons, which has won commendation from army medical officers for the thoroughness of the examinations made by Doctors Flynn, Caputo, Meehan and Taffet. One or two men were turned back from the first two contingents due to bad teeth but now, since the addition of Dr. B. J. Jacobson, a dentist, to the medical staff, no errors have occurred.

In case of rejections at Fort Dix, the local board has the following five men on call to provide replacements: Andrew W. Boylan, No. 487; Frank Cardamone, No. 491; Charles Tychynski, No. 506; Robert Lonie, No. 508; Angelo B. Russo, No. 509.

Plan Card Party

Plans for the forthcoming card party will be discussed at the Wednesday evening meeting of the Roofree Branch of the International Sunshine Society to be held at the Woman's Club. The meeting is called for 8:30.

Each volunteer listed his name and address and his present occupation along with additional education and vocational and occupational abilities with the result that the list of abilities of Belleville veterans reads like a list of all the known occupations.

Among the seventy-one were able seamen, accountants, molders steam fitters, ship's pilots, laboratory technicians telegraphers, typists, carpenters, gunsmiths, bakers, pharmacists—enough men with enough different trades and knowledge to do a first class job of either running an army or providing an army with essentials of war.

Those who registered are: William L. Labauch, Otto T. Breunich, Robert P. Smith, William H. Kennepp, Rudolph Lohr, William M. Moore, Edwin R. Ackerman, James J. O'Dea, Carl L. For Defense

Seventy-one local World War veterans are on file today at the National American Legion headquarters in Washington for emergency duty which may be requested as an outgrowth of defense measures and which will be purely voluntary in character and without remuneration unless otherwise provided for by agencies of government responsible for requesting such service or undertaking.

All of them voluntarily registered on Saturday at the Recreation House under the guidance of Belleville Post No. 105, American Legion, W. H. Kennepp, post commander, who was in charge throughout the day, said that he was highly gratified to find that so many Belleville veterans were as ready today as more than twenty years ago to serve their country.

Among the seventy-one were able seamen, accountants, molders steam fitters, ship's pilots, laboratory technicians telegraphers, typists, carpenters, gunsmiths, bakers, pharmacists—enough men with enough different trades and knowledge to do a first class job of either running an army or providing an army with essentials of war.

BANK IS OPENING PARKING AREA

Customers To Have Use Of
New Lot South Of Bank Building

The Peoples National Bank and Trust Company at Van Houten place on Washington avenue is providing a parking lot for the exclusive use of its customers on land abutting the bank on the south side. Excavators are now at work leveling it off to conform with the level of the avenue.

The plot has a fifty foot frontage and a depth of more than 100 feet.

"The parking lot will correct a condition brought about by increased volume of business," Albert P. Luscombe, executive vice-president of the bank said, "which at times causes traffic congestion at the bank's entrance. Customers will now be able to pull in off the street and transact their business without worry of having their cars parked on a heavily used thoroughfare."

WHITE OAKS FIRM WILL CONSTRUCT MORE HOUSES

Development Company Offers
Town $21,500 For Greylock
Heights Land

The White Oaks Development Corporation, which during the past year has been the town's most active residential builder, is planning further expansion in the Greylock section. They have submitted an offer of $21,500 to the town for forty-three parcels of land in what is known as Greylock Heights. The development company, which is controlled by the Goldfarb Brothers of Newark, has erected about eighty homes in the tract on the eastern side of Union avenue north of Greylock parkway.

At the time they came here, the company said that plans provided for the erection of more than 200 homes. The company had previously built nearly 300 homes in Nutley, principally in the vicinity of Washington avenue.

Mayor Williams recommended to the Town Commission Tuesday night that all previous offers for individual parcels of the land on which the Goldfarbs are bidding be held over until the next public sale of town-owned land on March 7 at 4 in the Municipal Building.

The Mayor pointed out that with the land in the sole possession of the White Oaks Corporation it would be developed in conformity with the other parcels of the corporation's real estate holdings and thus maintain the general level of all real estate in the northwest section at the high point already established or in the process of establishment.

$4,000 Assessment Value
Sale of the land at $21,500, he explained, would add not only that sum to the town coffers, but annual taxes roughly estimated at $75,000 on rates of about $170,000. The Mayor estimated that each parcel with its improvement of a home would carry an assessment of around $4,000.

Most of the lots have a fifty-foot frontage. A few in odd corners have slightly less. It was the consensus of the commissioners that with the few exceptions the general restriction would be laid down that the parcels should be improved on the fifty-foot frontage basis.

The lowest allowable bid on the tract in question has been set at the White Oaks' figure of $21,500. It is composed of the following properties:

No. 2 Myrtle avenue; Nos. 617-23-27-41-47-61-79-81 Union avenue; No. 29 Myrtle avenue; No. 16 Tremont avenue; Nos. 14-16-13-15 Harvard street; Nos. 201-07 Adelaide street; Nos. 1 to 11 Myrtle street; Nos. 221 to 235 Adelaide street; Nos. 245 to 267 Adelaide street; No. 285 Adelaide street; Nos. 260-75-57-77 Forest street.

In its offer of purchase to the Town, the corporation stated that the total amount would be paid off within the year.

Glen Ridge Painter Presents
Mayor With Two Pictures
After Taxpaying Incident

Ugh! The tax collector! Hanging on the walls in Mayor Williams' office in Town Hall are two highly prized water colors, the gift of Glen Ridge resident who desires anonymity.

The Glen Ridge resident, a property owner in Belleville, was waiting one day recently to pay unto Caesar when Tax Collector William C. Knapp was trying to explain the intricacies of a tax bill to two Italian-speaking residents. Knapp was courtesy itself and rather than demand payment without explanation, called upon the interpretive services of Patrolman Frank Christiano.

And everything was arranged to the everyone's satisfaction.

The Glen Ridge spectator was so overawed by the proceedings that he promptly commended Knapp and Christiano to Mayor Williams and followed up his remarks, some days later, with the gift of the water colors.

BETTER WAYS TO DO OLD JOBS

The old days were quaint. An ancient water-pump is more picturesque than a chrome-plated faucet. A twig broom was more colorful than a modern Universal Electric Vacuum.

However, we are after results as well as color in 1941. That's why thousands of housewives are enthusiastic about their Universal Electric Vacuums. Ask our representative to call and give you a demonstration.

Among the lesson-sermon citations is the following from the Bible: "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen."

Laid End to End They Add up to a Swell Idea

We mean these Four New Additions to the Buick SPECIAL Series that Give you Big-Car Thrill in less Curbside Space

THE way cars have been stretching out lately, it usually takes only a couple of cars to occupy the curb space of an extension-ladder fire truck.

Not so with the newest additions to the 1941 Buick line.

Here we've reversed the trend—just to prove that an honest-to-golly BIG car can be built without going overboard on bumper-to-bumper distance.

The four new models now adorning the Buick SPECIAL Series fit neatly into modest garages without putting a permanent crimp in the doors.

They slip into parking places smoothly as a rowboat nestles up to a dock—and the way they flit through traffic is a delight to wheel-weary drivers.

When it comes to action—well, they've got a 115-hp. FIREBALL eight under their bonnets that skims you down the road like a mallard heading home. You can add Compound Carburetion at small extra cost and have 125 horsepower that does things we hardly dare hint about in print.

But they're a handy six inches shorter, bumper to bumper, than other Buicks—a quartet of top-quality cars in an easily-handled size that hasn't known such merit before.

The price? It's lower too, since we've passed on to you savings we make in trimming inches off these models.

Better take a look—it'll be the first time you've ever seen a really BIG car wrapped up in this bumper-to-bumper distance.

A Police Radio System Is Needed

There is certain equipment which is vital to the efficient performance of duty and service by a police department. Men alone are not sufficient to provide for the safety and welfare of the community. In many respects the equipment which is available for the use of the local department is superior to that generally found in small communities. It has enabled the department to render good service and to produce the results which have brought them praise and commendation.

Yet, there is one weak link which stands out above all of the rest in which it must be admitted through no fault of its own the department is behind the times. There is no speedy, efficient system by which an alarm can be spread to the men on duty or patrol about town in the event of an emergency.

Belleville has no police radio system. It is one of the few police departments in this section of the state which does not. We are not spendthrifts but we do not believe that the advocacy of a police radio system can be attacked as wastefulness. Anything which is vital to public safety and welfare is in our opinion a mandatory and needful expenditure in government.

How much would a police radio system cost? The most modern and efficient in use today is the three-way system, which means that those at headquarters are able to talk with men patrolling in police cars and those in the cars can talk to headquarters or to other cars. Based on the amounts expended in other municipalities which are in the approximate area of Belleville, it is estimated that the cost of installing a master transmitter and receiver and transmitting and receiving equipment in each of the five police cars would be approximately $4,000, certainly not more than $5,000.

This represents less than two points in the tax rate, but its value would be many times that in the improved police service which it would give to the community.

Belleville employs horse and buggy methods when it comes to spreading an alarm to police who are on duty about town. How is it done? Police call boxes are installed on telegraph poles in certain sections. Periodically, police call in from one of those points and secure bulletins or other information from headquarters. The other method is by red lights which are located at certain points on main streets. When a policeman is wanted, a button at headquarters is pushed and perhaps after a few minutes some cop will see it and rush to headquarters or to the nearest police call box. The originator of the red flashing light failed to reckon with foggy or rainy nights or the fact that during the daytime it is hard to see the light unless you are close to it.

This is not an efficient system and it is not giving the community the best in service that can be had. With police radio there is no haphazard calling of policemen with a prayer that someone will see a red light flashing along the road. An alarm comes into headquarters that there is a robbery or an emergency at some point in town. In less than thirty seconds with the aid of police radio, the men in the patrol car have received the message and can be on their way to the scene.

In the past decade we have been living in a period when municipalities, like most of the rest of us, have been forced to cut corners on expenditures to keep down the cost of government. Police radio is one of the methods employed by law enforcers and protectors which has been vastly improved and perfected in that period. No one can be condemned for having failed to push the installation of the system here. It was one of those things which could be done without, but we feel that the time has arrived when it should be viewed as an important adjunct to an efficient police force.

Manufacturers, business people and householders should all be vitally interested in the best in police protection. Numerous are the cases in which if the police had been able to contact quickly a car patrolling about town, a crime might have been averted or the suspects nabbed on the spot.

We believe that in these times when we are faced with a national emergency in which every municipality must play its part, a police department should have available the best in equipment so that it can function with the greatest efficiency in times of emergency.

Talk About The Next Ticket

This is an off-political season when those interested in affairs political will away the time talking about who will be on the next ticket. If we can judge by the stories and reports in some political columns, the republicans, particularly those in the Clean Government group, are doing plenty of juggling with both angles and candidates.

Of interest locally is the fact that several gentlemen in this county would like to run for state senator. During the term that Homer C. Zink has served in the State Assembly and many people not only here but elsewhere in the county will make an earnest endeavor to have him seek re-election. There will be a certain element who will attempt to make capital of the fact that Mr. Zink voted for the appointment of Frank Hague, Jr., to the Court of Errors and Appeals. They will ignore all of the sincere and valuable tasks that Mr. Zink has rendered in the interests of the taxpayers not only of Essex County but the entire state. His work on the budget appropriations committee and as one of the leaders in the relief problem has been outstanding and has brought commendation from the press and the public.

Many of the local public will be interested in seeing whether those who comprise the inner circle decide to recognize public service or prefer to play politics.

Where Youngsters Get The Ideas

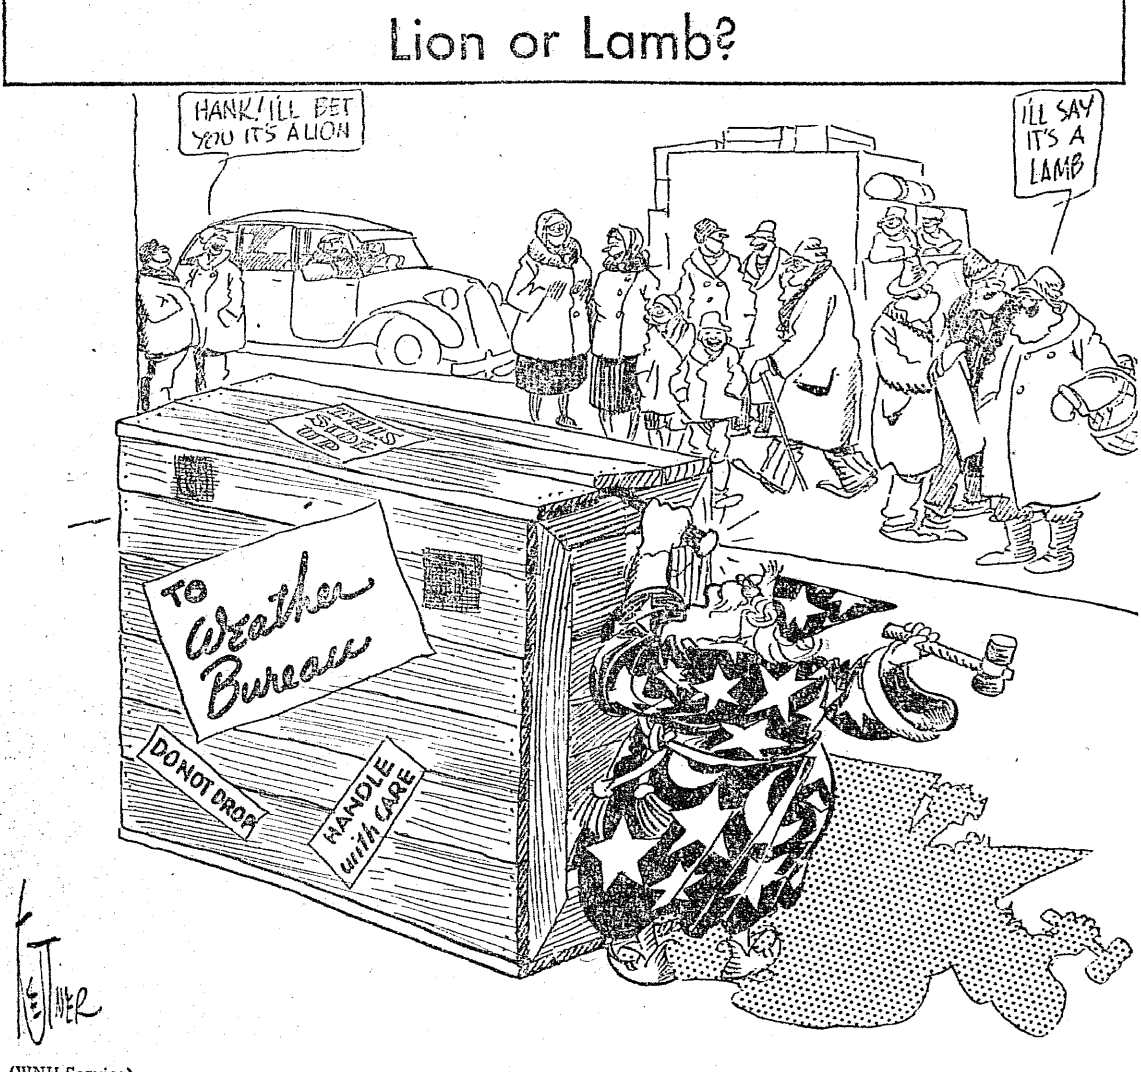

There was something almost fantastic about the story of those two fourteen-year-old Paterson youngsters who staged a gun battle with state and local police for several hours before surrendering after tear gas was forced them out of their hideout. We heard people remark that they could not understand where those young boys learned such things. It is easy to comprehend the ideas that drift into young minds after listening to some of the radio programs, seeing some of the movies and reading comic strips which are supposedly for the children.

Only the other day, the five-year-old son of an acquaintance of ours jumped off the garage roof. He sprained his ankle. When asked by his elders what prompted such a stunt, he replied, "Well, Superman jumped off a skyscraper."

That just about sums up the attitude of some youngsters. We have watched young children nervously bite their fingernails with their ear up against the radio speaker listening to some of the blood and thunder yarns. And how many times children apprehended by the law have replied that they got the idea from a picture they had seen in the movies. We can't leave the newspapers out of this for some of the comic strips are pretty bad and those pulp paper comic book authors are supreme when it comes to thinking up ways to curdle the blood of the younger folks.

All of these things have an effect on young minds and we should not be shocked at some of the things that youngsters do. Just as important as cleaning up the movies that the adults see and the magazines they read is improving the radio programs, the pictures and the comic strips and books which are supposedly for children. All of the responsibility cannot be taken off the parents' shoulders. Some of them either fail to realize what their children are reading, seeing or hearing while others just don't care. To those in the former class we can only say that it would be worth some of their time to check up a bit.

Manpower — The Basic Resource Of Defense

By Eugene T. Berry, Belleville Health Officer

Editor's Note: This is the fourth and last of a series of articles on "Manpower—The Basic Resource of Defense."

Syphilis and gonorrhea threaten the health of soldiers and defense workers. Venereal disease control is a part of total national defense. In the World War, for example, venereal disease in the U. S. Army caused the loss of almost seven million days — equal to a full year's absence from duty for 19,000 men. It is estimated today that there are about 300,000 men with infectious syphilis among the 16,500,000 registered under the Selective Service Act. On their jobs and in the armed forces, these men form our first line of defense. . . . we must keep the healthy ones well; we must cure the sick ones to strengthen our human resources. A syphilitic soldier is a wounded soldier, a sick worker is an inefficient worker.

The Army and the Navy know this. They have examined the problem of venereal disease control with Federal and State public health authorities. The secretaries of War and Navy, and the administrator of the Federal Security Agency, under which the U. S. Public Health Service operates, and State Health Officers have signed a working plan of cooperation to defend the armed and industrial defense forces from venereal disease. Here are the major points in terms of a control program for "our town."

1. FIND CASES — Syphilis and gonorrhea can be cured, but people with the disease must first be found. Finding cases requires doctors and clinics where people can get blood tests. Trained personnel are necessary, and real efforts must be made to reach people for diagnosis. This takes money. And in our town every person who has been exposed, every person in the younger age groups where so much venereal disease is concentrated, should see his doctor or health officer for a blood test and a physical examination and other laboratory tests.

2. TREAT CASES — Control of venereal disease depends upon treating infectious persons in the early stages of their disease. Treatment in the armed forces is a task of Army and Navy authorities. Cases of venereal disease in people in our town must be treated by local physicians and health authorities. People who won't continue treatment or follow the doctor's orders must be "quarantined," with the aid of law enforcement authorities, if necessary. To do these things, funds, personnel and facilities are essential.

3. FOLLOW UP CASES — Syphilis comes from syphilis, gonorrhea from gonorrhea. The spread of venereal disease can be stopped by treatment of people who spread it. Military and civilian authorities will cooperate in uncovering sources of infection. With this information, and with trained people to follow up possible contacts which means again funds and personnel — venereal disease can be found and controlled.

4. PREVENT CASES — Opportunities for contact with infected persons are decreased by repression of commercialized and clandestine prostitution. The task is for local health and police authorities. The support of public opinion — active and sustained — is essential. The political, economic and social bases of prostitution — the major cause of venereal disease — must be removed.

5. EDUCATION — Avoidance of infection depends on people knowing the facts — the facts about the diseases, their diagnosis and their treatment. . . . the methods of preventing them. . . . what to do if infection is suspected. The facts must be available especially to the younger age groups. Every modern method of communication — the press, the radio, the movies, the schools —

Tribute To Tom Fleming

From Wallwin H. Masten, Exalted Ruler, Belleville Elks.

To the Editor of The News: There's no nobler title than Friend. And to thousands of folks in Belleville, or wherever scattered, Thomas W. Fleming, who died last Friday, was of that highest nobility. To many of us a very great man has passed.

May I use the columns of your newspaper on which he and I worked together for many years to extol his virtues?

He was great, not in the sense of money or power, or influence, or position. He was important, not through connections, schemings, or the cunning of his brain. His greatness resided in his simplicity, the genuineness of his character and the absolute completeness with which he filled his role in life. His importance lay in his apparent inability to think ill of any man, of his quiet habit of making friends and of being a friend, and most of all, perhaps, in his helping where and when help spelled the difference between many a harassed life's success and failure.

And I'd like to pay my humble tribute to the one man who, perhaps, more than any other helped me to find my feet that were suddenly staggering in one very real crisis of my life. You don't forget things such as this or the emotions they bring.

I was only one of the many Tom, as he was affectionately known, quietly but surely helped steer across the shoals of a crisis. The other cases were many. Many feel today that somehow real and very fine has passed on to his reward. The thousands who reverently paid respect at his funeral attest to that soldier boy as a man. He left more in life than he took from it.

Young and old, rich and poor, folks from all walks of life paid tribute to him.

Truly, no nobler title for Thomas W. Fleming than Friend.

ESSEX COUNTY POLITICS

by Meador Wright

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

The less erudite among Essex Republicans have been spending the past two weeks trying to figure out just what a "sabbatical leave" really is. Some of them have emerged with an impressive background of academic information, but very few are yet able to translate academic phraseology into terms of political expediency. The dictionary tells them what words to use but "the boys" don't even trust words any more. They are waiting for deeds, for the absence thereof.

Some of them got far enough in school to remember something about nature abhorring a vacuum and they are wondering if this applies to politics as well as to physics. Before they will believe that Arthur T. Vanderbilt has given up the baton of leadership they must see it in someone else's knapsack. There has developed a kind of game of "baton, baton, who's got the baton?"

Regardless either of his motives or his intentions, Vanderbilt seems to have lived up to his reputation for uncanny cleverness. Seldom has a man been praised so unanimously in the press. From the tone of a dozen editorials one would almost conclude that the editors were aware for the first time that a very remarkable man had been living among them, and each rushed off to let the world know about his discovery. It was as though a man who had lived a life largely unknown should upon dying be the subject of obituaries a column long.

Neither Retired Nor Dead But Vanderbilt in my judgment is far from being either politically dead or retired. He has temporarily given up a leadership that had become more and more difficult. The work he plans to do for the Supreme Court is important, but certainly no more time consuming than was the presidency of the American Bar Association. I am inclined to believe that there were motives behind the statement he made at the dinner in his honor that were not made public. Chief of these I would say revolves around Thomas E. Dewey.

Vanderbilt is tremendously sold on Dewey. Conversely, he believes Wendell Wilkie is tough. But he is doubtful that the public in Essex is ready either to support Dewey or to drop Wilkie. Give Wilkie a year's rope and Vanderbilt believes he will have hanged himself completely. Like Dewey, Vanderbilt is not too sold on all out aid for Great Britain. He feels that the American people have gone temporarily off balance yet doesn't wish to join any America First or Essex First crusade.

But there are other reasons much more tangible and nearer home that doubtless influenced his action. These I would name in this order: 1) Dr. Lester H. Clee; 2) Charles Edison; 3) the Essex Assembly delegation; 4) personal enemies, chiefly the Newark Star-Ledger. Clee is the most important and requires considerable space.

In the first place Clee wants to be the Republican candidate for governor in 1943 and he does not mean to permit this ambition to be stifled by any policy of "party harmony" such as resulted in his being sidetracked last year in favor of Robert Hendrickson.

Clee believes that he could have been nominated last year against Harold Hoffman just as easily as Hendrickson was. Furthermore, he is convinced that Charles Edison would never have been elected governor had Clee been the Republican nominee.

No Appeasement Policy With this conviction firmly in mind, Clee as soon as the votes had been counted last November, set out on the long road to win the gubernatorial nomination and election three years hence. Vanderbilt was aware of Clee's plans and realized that active county leadership would become more and more difficult because of them. He knew that if he backed Clee wholeheartedly he would immediately have the Newark minister's innumerable enemies on his neck. And he knew also that Clee was not in any mood to submit to an appeasement policy such as resulted in Hendrickson's nomination last year. Although neither of them wished it, there was grave danger that he and Clee would drift into a personal fight in which the outcome was totally unpredictable.

In a very real sense Vanderbilt has withdrawn from Essex leadership to permit Clee to have the stage. How long he will keep it is problematical, but right now it looks as though the baton of leadership is tucked away in the pocket of Clee's best oratorical afternoon coat.

As to Charles Edison, Vanderbilt accepted him very reluctantly. Two statements regarding Edison that are attributed to Vanderbilt are indicative of his early opinion. First: "The people of New Jersey voted for a name last November and in about six weeks' time they will wake up to find out that a name was exactly what they got." Second: "Edison will be either Roosevelt's man or Hague's man, and I think he will be Hague's."

These statements were made just before Edison's nomination. When Edison announced his program, however, Vanderbilt took a few good looks and decided that his opinion needed revision. Edison was certainly not Hague's man and if he was Hague's man, I think he will be Hague's.

The Woman's Desk

by PEGGY PATTERSON

Since purchasing supplies for home and family is one of woman's unavoidable tasks, it is best attacked in a scientific and thorough fashion. Perhaps a small budget may sometimes discourage you, but it is to be remembered that the principles of good buying must never be sacrificed even though you cannot always set the standards you maintain for yourself. Previously we discussed the sales of linens of which we all take advantage in the first months of the year. Most of us give thought to them and are guided by the same standards when we stock our shelves; but how often do we think of observing these rules when we make our other purchases?

Right here we come to another point which we are fond of stressing — that we have an unlimited fund of information, research and many scientific yardsticks at our beck and call if we care to utilize them instead of discarding them. Once more we remind you that magazines and periodicals, hastily scanned and piled in the cellar or storeroom for disposal, can actually cost you money. Somewhere in those pages are the results of painstaking efforts designed to streamline your duties and cut your living expenses.

Must you, you probably ask, keep these unwieldy stacks of magazine and hunt frantically for specific information when you need it, trying vainly to recall whether the instructions for cleaning your range were in the issue which carried a spaniel on its cover or the recipe for lemon pie in the one displaying a cowering kitten? Indeed not.

Such a hit and miss method is merely another tax on your patience. But the use of the scissors while you are reading and the purchase of an inexpensive filing cabinet may change your entire outlook on homemaking. After you have established a little "office" in your home you will find it easy to keep it up to date and these are some of the things that will be catalogued, if you wish.

Be An Authority

Exact specifications on various items of furniture, bedding, electrical appliances and linens will be one of your most valuable records. You may pass lightly over this sort of thing when you are scanning a magazine with the thought, "Oh, I'd never be able to afford that lovely chair or sofa!" If, however, you are suddenly the possessor of a gift of money or find yourself in new surroundings where extra furniture is needed, how much easier you will feel if you can examine the article from the standpoint of an authority. Consult your file, select your clipping and read it at lunch or on the bus as you go to make your purchase. You will then run no risk of buying an article of inferior quality at practically the same price you would have to pay for the substantial thing you really want.

Minimum standards are available, too. Most of us now know that a sheet which has less than 128 threads per square inch is a poor buy. There are endless requirements like these which you can have on file covering every product used in the home. These are minimum standards. Some advertisements, too, are gold mines of actual information and should be kept. These will give you good training in reading advertising and discriminating between the genuine and the faked write-ups. You can easily be fooled and if you order by telephone directly from an ad you will soon learn that "twelve dollars for a certain price" may mean twelve generous sized cans or twelve minimum sized cans.

All Kinds of Sizes

One of the finest suggestions for this little statistical bureau of yours is a complete list of correct sizes and that includes everything from the current size of your husband's waistline to measurements of the living room windows or the correct wattage of the refrigerator light bulb. Naturally, you cannot carry all this information with you constantly; but when you know that you are considering new curtains, for instance, you will do well to take the card with you that carries the measurements of all the windows in the room which needs them. You will not miss a chance then to take advantage of a bargain when you see it because you must go home and look up the size.

Perhaps you will think that we have given too much time to this rather prosaic subject; but there lies one of the vital points of the subject. If we can just make ourselves set up the machinery for this businesslike attitude the subject will cease to be prosaic and become fascinating. Better than that, the results of shopping will improve to the place where we will receive compliments from those for whom, in many respects, we are the purchasing agent instead of disheartening complaints about shirts whose sleeves are too short, sheets which do not tuck in properly, soaps which dry the skin and items too numerous to mention.

PRINCIPLES HAVE NEW IMPORTANCE

Methods Set By A&P Founder Factor In Company's Defense Position

Business principles laid down eighty-one years ago — and adhered to closely ever since — assume new importance as a defense measure this week, R. H. Sircard, sales manager in this area for the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, declared today.

Those principles, established by George Huntington Hartford when he opened the first red-fronted A & P store in 1860, today serve as an effective brake against spiraling food prices such as took place during the last world war, Sircard said, and make the company's celebration of founder's week in Hartford's honor of particular importance this year.

"The growth of America's mass distribution system, although pioneered by Mr. Hartford through A & P, has largely taken place since the last great war and today stands as an excellent example of insurance against exorbitant food costs due to speculation or inefficiencies in distribution," said Sircard.

The A & P system was founded on a fact, Sircard pointed out, explaining that Mr. Hartford reduced retail prices from a dollar a pound to about thirty cents by making his purchases direct and eliminating many in-between handling charges and unnecessary profits. By applying these same principles of direct buying and quick turnover of large volume at small profit, he was able to add other commodities to his stock and later to expand the system through new stores.

Savings thus achieved are bulwarked by strict adherence to the company's policy against speculative buying of any kind, as well as its policy against pricing sales above its normal, nominal profit, he declared.

"As defense costs mount, everything possible must be done to assure the American public of the greatest amount of neutral foods at the most reasonable prices possible. In celebrating founder's week, we of the A & P are doubly pleased to re-affirm Mr. Hartford's original principles which have made material contributions to the high American standard of living through narrowing the spread between retail prices and returns to producers," Sircard said.
