

EMPLOYER MUST BE REAL LEADER, SAYS EXECUTIVE

If Boss Doesn't Provide Leadership, Agitator Will,
Says T. L. Shaffer

If the boss doesn't provide leadership then the radical agitator will, T. L. Shaffer, vice-president of Congoleum Nairn of Kearny warned yesterday noon at the weekly luncheon of the Belleville Rotary Club. "Labor needs and wants honest, fearless, sincere leadership, and if it doesn't get it," he said, "the agitator will step in."

Every business head should have a well defined labor policy and work up and outwards from that base to establish good relations with his workers.

"Now, you hear, how can I put a labor policy in writing? Of course it can be put in writing. Anything well thought out can be put in writing and anything not well thought out can't be put in writing. And if the boss can't state his labor policy why, how then, can the workman be expected to state it, let alone understand it."

"The radical agitator can state his policy all right. He can draw a picture of it in the form of the boss, the many tentacled octopus who takes all of the dollar for himself. He can state his policy in speech and writing. And it's time the boss did some accurate thinking of his own and some accurate writing and some accurate speaking."

Needs Education

"Labor needs to be educated and is willing to be educated," he said. He pointed out that the agitator will stress the fact that General Motors annually pays more than $2,500,000 in salaries and bonuses to its top executives and argue that the money had better be divided among the workers.

"All the business leader has to do to offset the agitator's immature reasoning is, in his turn to point out, that $2,500,000 divided among the 360,000 workers would mean only two and one half cents more a day in each pay envelope and what the two and one half cents get each worker individually."

"Among others," Shaffer said, "that infinitesimal sum gets the workers Charles Kettering, the world's greatest researcher, a man who has made hundreds of thousands of jobs. Point things like that out to the worker and the agitator is left with his mouth open."

He recommended that wives of all workers should be educated as well as the workers themselves. While a wife may believe that her husband works for a fine company she is inclined to believe that business as a whole is some sort of monster.

"A recent poll of wives in Cleveland showed that sixty-five percent of them believe that business — the boss in her mind — takes more than fifty percent of every gross dollar of income. The fact of the matter is," he said, "that business is lucky to get three and one tenth cents out of every gross dollar."

Willing To Listen

Show the worker, tell the worker, Shaffer advised. "He's willing to listen, he's willing to be led; but it must be honest telling and honest leading and sincere and fearless, leading."

"Contrary to general belief," he said, "the average worker is not interested first in pay, second in security, and third in old age pensions as a good many business leaders themselves think. A poll of 3,000 department store employees showed that pay is a fifth place interest."

First workers want recognition, second, interesting work, third an opportunity to advance, fourth to be educated, and fifth, pay.

"And that's about what you want," he said directly to the Rotarians. "And what you want is what the other fellow wants. So give it to him."

At the outset of his speech Shaffer said that we live under a representative democracy, not a democracy. He carefully drew the distinction by stating that, under a democracy, everyone has a voice in the making of every law; that under a representative democracy only the representatives of the people have such voice.

"Since 1776 more than 300,000,000 persons living and dead have been living citizens of this country, yet only 8,000 persons have sat in the national congress. This brings up the point that every business man should be interested in his government, should personally know his councilman, his commissioner, his state assemblyman, his congressman and should be in there battling all the time. The workers expect him to be. If the business man wants to be a leader he must lead."

MR. 'X' CONTINUES JOB PLACING

Estimates That Sixty Persons
Have Been Employed
In Last Year

Through the efforts and confidence-inspiring outlook of its Mr. X, the Belleville Rotary Club continues to make satisfactory contacts between employers and young people seeking employment. The most noteworthy feature of this successful placement service, described some time ago in The News, is Mr. X's ability to make placements with such attention to the fitness and adaptability of the employee that he is, in practically all cases, an asset to his employer.

Although detailed records are not kept, it is estimated that at least sixty persons were employed through this medium during the last year. At present, due to the draft and the defense activities which are absorbing many young people, Mr. X finds himself with desirable positions for which he cannot find applicants. There are four such openings at present. Mr. X reports that he has placed individuals up to sixty-two years of age.

As the present defense measures clearly indicate, Mr. X points out that opportunities for work today lie for the most part in the fields of science and mechanics. A great deal of harm has been done, in his estimation, by the constant trend of education in recent years for white-collar positions. The procedure of last fall may be repeated and names and addresses destined for Mr. X may be left at The News office by those interested in applying for work.

Peola Is Becoming Favorite With Folks Hereabouts

New to folks in this section, but well known to many in the South, Peola is taking its place as one of the favorite drinks. For more than thirty years Peola was sold and manufactured at Morgantown, W. Va. Last year the company came north and since then the drink has been manufactured and bottled at a plant located at 12 Lawrence street. Peola is not an extract cola, but is made from a company formula and is well aged and compounded. The drink is made up in two different sizes, twelve bottles of twenty-four ounces or twenty-four bottles of twelve ounces.

LICENSE BUREAU STILL BUSY

Abramson's Office Expects To
Have Rise of 1,000
Over Last Year

Every army has its stragglers; every income tax period and every auto license period has its. Yesterday morning, two days after the deadline, more than fifty persons were lined up in front of William Abramson's motor vehicle offices at 500 Washington avenue, to renew drivers' and owners' licenses and more kept coming in throughout the day. Abramson expects to do a near-peak business each of the remaining days of the week.

On Tuesday a few autos were seen scooting along merrily with 1940 plates their drivers, in the words of one observer, either happily crazy or happily lazy.

Abramson disposed of more than 9,000 plates this year, a rise of 1,000 over last year. This is an indication, he said, that residents of Belleville have more employment at more money.

DEFENSE PROGRAM DRAWS CROWD

Capacity Audience Hears
Hartley At Fewsmith;
Players Commended

A capacity attendance marked the defense program at the Fewsmith Memorial Church Sunday evening of the defense programs which are scheduled to be held at that church periodically. Guests of honor were Senator Zink, Mayor Williams, the commissioners, the Board of Education. Mayor Williams introduced Congressman Hartley who spoke on defense. The programs which will follow will be planned along the same lines with a representative of some department of government invited to address the meeting and with guests of honor from among the town officials.

"Building the spirit of liberty internally before trying to enforce it on the rest of the world," according to Dr. O. Bell, pastor, is the keynote around which the programs will center. Closely in line with that is the athletic program of the church which nothing excels in its ability to carry out the above resolve," according to Dr. Bell.

It was to his satisfaction that immediately following the main portion of the program the mayor called up each member of the Fewsmith Minors basketball team and presented each with a letter of commendation on their victory which have again won them the championship of the Y. M. C. A. league. This is their third successive year as champions and membership in the league is now permanent. They have had three distinctions: they were the only team to win the championship in the league the first year they played; the only team to win it two times hand running and the only team to win it for the third time.

In the five years in which these boys have been organized they have never lost any game by more than three points. This year they lost only one game.

Extra Curricular Activities Important In Education

Program Outside of Regular Classroom Work
Under Teacher Supervision Builds Leadership,
Self-reliance and Initiative in Pupils

When the bell rings at the end of the day, school isn't over. Just as important perhaps in the development of the children of Belleville are the innumerable opportunities open to them in the way of extra-curricular activities. These after school hour projects, under teacher supervision give the children a chance to develop further the ideals of democracy that are fostered in the schoolroom. The schools realize the benefits which are to be derived from broadened experience. They have opened the way for the students to express themselves in the field of their greatest interests.

Does Johnny want to hunt frogs? Does Mary want to learn to bowl? Or is either one interested in learning how to take pictures that always come out? Or would they rather learn how to sing, sew, dance, knit, paint the cornet, collect stamps, play scenery, or become a Spencer Tracy? All these interests are developed throughout the Belleville schools. And any other groups are formed as the need for them arises.

During the year the schools also sponsor a variety of field trips. Student groups have ventured as far north as West Point and as far south as Washington, D. C. This region, filled with landmarks of American heritage has been eagerly explored. Jockey Hollow, Washington's Headquarters at Morristown, the Statue of Liberty and early Dutch settlements are just a few of the scenes familiar to Belleville's children. Groups have been taken to musical programs at the Mosque and at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York. Under supervision pupils have visited the museums in Newark and Montclair, and the Museums of Natural History, Science and Industry and Art in New York City. In town it is not uncommon to see a group of children headed for the Fire Department, the Telephone Building, banks, printing presses and various industrial plants.

Such a broad scope of activity as offered the students beyond the prescribed program of school life helps them to develop qualities of self, reliance, leadership, followship, initiative, perseverance, enjoyment of work and an understanding of the privileges and obligations that are theirs as citizens in a democracy. These activities are giving the children concrete experiences, according to school experts.

Raised by them from the age of six weeks, she is the special companion of Clifford, the Kreismers' thirteen-year-old son.

The mention of her name will cause an alert raising of Daisy Mae's ears and it is hoped that anyone noticing such a dog will try for this reaction in order that she may be identified. A reward awaits the person who will return Daisy to her Forest street home.

PUBLICITY PLAN IS OUTLINED

Community Service Mapping
Campaign To Keep Public
Informed

"The interpretation committee of the Community Service Bureau has outlined a new program of public relations for the year," according to Earl W. Seibert, chairman.

"Our constitution provides that every contributor to the Community Chest — from which we receive our major support — is a member of our organization," he said, "and we deem it obligatory to keep our membership informed of the progress and problems of our work in aiding families and children who need help in finding a solution to personal difficulties."

"We also believe that we have a responsibility to make case work available to those who would not otherwise know about it. With this dual purpose our committee is planning a series of short articles to appear weekly in The Belleville News."

"We are also organizing a Speaker's Bureau," said Mr. Seibert, "and we are preparing to make calls from clubs and organizations requesting speakers."

Other members of the committee are Nicholas Colaninno, attorney; Rev. Edgar M. Compton, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church; Halley F. Hickok, president of the Bureau; Mrs. Robert Lunsford, liaison representative between the Bureau and the Woman's Club; Mrs. Charles Schmidt, volunteer for the Bureau, and Walter A. ## PRE-EASTER PARTY HELD AT H. S.

High School Girls Hold
Affair For Youngsters
And Mothers

According to the calendar Easter doesn't officially arrive until Sunday, April 13, but in the domestic science class at the high school arrived last week. Serving a dual purpose, to show what they could do and also entertain about twenty-five youngsters and their mothers, the advanced students in the home economics classes at the high school entertained last week following the regular classes.

The party culminated a project for the classes in which the sewing group made clothing for children and the domestic science girls had studied the care and feeding of children. Those for whom clothes were made were chiefly the little brothers and sisters of the girls. Or, if they were not fortunate enough to have one, they "borrowed" a little boy or girl for the affair.

An Easter party wouldn't be a party without an Easter bunny so the highlight of the party came when old Peter Rabbit himself put in an appearance and distributed gifts of clothing to the various children. The afternoon was rounded out with games and refreshments.

When it was all over, it was difficult to tell who had enjoyed the party the most, the youngsters, the girls or the mothers. The entire project and the party were arranged under the supervision of Miss Louise Carrell, sewing instructor, and Miss Bertha Huff, domestic science teacher. (Picture on Page 2)

MINISTERS' CLUB PLANS SERVICES FOR HOLY WEEK

Four Services To Be Held
Starting Tuesday, Two
On Good Friday

The Ministers' Club of Belleville, which draws its membership from the Protestant clergy, has arranged for four services to be held during Holy Week, starting next Tuesday, which they hope will be well attended. All but one of the services will be held during the evening.

Tuesday evening at 8 Rev. Peter R. Deckenbach, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church, will preach at the Grace Baptist Church. Thursday evening at the same hour there will be a communion service at the Belleville Reformed Church, with Rev. John A. Struyk, the pastor, in charge.

Good Friday will be observed by two services. The first will be held at 1:30 in the Wesley Methodist Church with all of the ministers participating. It will be of "The Seven Last Words from the Cross." In the evening a service will be held at the Christ Episcopal Church with "The Seven Last Words" by DuBois presented in cantata form.

The following statement relative to the observance of Holy Week and the participation of their parishioners was released by the Ministers' Association:

"The keynote of this blessed season," the statement said, "is preparation. We prepare ourselves for Easter that we may be ready to enjoy to the full the experience of meeting the Risen Lord. The weary and heavy laden come to Him to be refreshed and He imparts to those who are weak and dispirited the power of His Resurrection. I Easter means for us a fuller experience of Christ, it will also mean a call from Him for larger and better service. Let us prepare for our response to this call."

"We must be constantly asking not only 'What Christ can do for me?' but also 'What can I do for Christ?' This is the spirit which we must try to develop during Holy Week so that we may meet Him who came not to be ministered unto but to minister and give His life as a ransom for many. During this week let us pray that we may not only know Him and the power of His resurrection, but also that we may share in the fellowship of His sufferings; that we may have some part, however small, in the effort and the sacrifice that He is making to redeem the world."

Measles Cases For March Probably a Record

Belleville had 464 cases of measles last month—probably a record number. The files don't go back too many years and then the town has been growing so rapidly that what is today apparently a great number may be proportionately infinitesimal compared to cases in past years.

Only two cases, however, were reported by the schools last month. Contagious diseases by schools follows: No. 1: measles, thirteen; scarlet fever, one; No. 2: measles, nine; mumps, one; whooping cough, two; No. 3: measles, fourteen; German measles, one; scarlet fever, one; chickenpox, one; No. 4: measles, eight; German measles, four; chickenpox, three; No. 5: measles, seven; No. 7: measles, eight; chickenpox, one; No. 8: measles, three; mumps, one; streptococcal throat, one; No. 9: measles, nineteen; chickenpox, two; No. 10: measles, five; High School: German measles, seven; mumps, one; acute rheumatic fever, one; St. Peter's: measles, sixteen; German measles, two; scarlet fever, one; St. Anthony's: measles, nine.

Places For Colored Youth In CCC Enrollment

Seven boys have applied for enrollment in the local CCC contingent to leave for the western part of the United States on April 17, Miss Julie Chalmers, assistant to Welfare Director John J. Hewitt, announced yesterday.

Places are open in the contingent for two colored youths and Miss Chalmers said that she had had no applications from any.

Under the new CCC ruling all applicants may choose what section of the country in which they prefer to live and work. Miss Chalmers added that CCC enrollment does not preclude a youth from later joining the Army or from transferring to the Army or Navy, and pointed out that CCC experience softens the impact of life in the various branches of the services.

From The SIDELINES

As Seen By
The Sidelineer

The Hot Stove Leaguers who have been chawing for a couple of months about the prospects of the 1941 edition of the Newark Bears are readying a welcome home celebration for the boys that they hope will outdo anything of like kind that Newark has ever seen. If plans go according to schedule when the Bears' rattler chugs into the Pennsylvania Station on the night of Tuesday, April 15, every baseball fan between here and High Point will be there to yell their heads off for the boys. A bang-up committee of baseball "bugs" headed by Henry Schlittenhart, one of the dyed-in-the-wool Bruin fans, is planning an old-fashioned baseball parade down Broad street.

Everybody's invited. The committee is particularly anxious to have high school, semi-pro, sandlot and junior baseball nines in the line-up, so any of the local teams interested should get in touch immediately with Schlittenhart at his office at 1020 Broad street. To top it off there will be a big baseball rally after the parade at the Mosque Theatre and anybody who is a Bear rooster is invited.

While the ranks of the Bears have been thinned out by the grass made by the big brother Yankees and numerous trades, the outlook doesn't look too bad for the boys who last year took the Junior World Series pennant in a hectic final with the Louisville club. Johnny Neun, the Newark's manager, lets it be known already that the Bruins are stronger than they were at the same time last year. The boys did not get rolling into high speed until the warm weather days of June last season. With prospects of gaining some material from the Yanks, Neun confidently expects that this year's team will be even stronger than the '40 Bears.

The Bears will start the northward jaunt from the winter quarters at Sebring, Fla., on Saturday. They will open the regular season on Thursday, April 17.

While many are already thinking in terms of baseball, locally there are quite a few who are still pepped up over basketball with the battle still on among the recreation league teams for the town championship and the Fewsmith Miners having gained the unprecedented honor of having become a three-time winner of the Newark Y. M. C. A. league championship. Dr. O. Bell Close is happier than a golfer who made a hole-in-one every day for a month over the quintet's triumph.

The victory scored by these boys has been an outstanding one and is a tribute to the progressiveness of the leader of Fewsmith Church who has realized that the church and recreation go hand in hand.

One correspondent spoke out this week to raise the roof with us because we hadn't gotten around to the H. S. baseball season as yet. Please, be patient. The boss allows us so much space for spreading this sports stuff and basketball's still in the picture. In another week the baseball boys will take over and then until some time in September the columns will be theirs.

Those who say that basketball is dying at the high school will have to think up a pretty good one to wipe out last week's yarn about the intra-mural court journey which "Jit" Wischke ran. More than 400 boys playing on 50 teams competed in the tourney and it was estimated that during the series more than 1,500 students had sat in on the games.

The idea that basketball is dying at the high school is just one of those stories which are peddled about by those who are grieving because the high school lads had a bad season on the court. The intra-mural tourney, basketball and a half dozen other things show that basketball is far from being as dead as some people would like to have folks think.

In case you missed that little note last week, Bernie Barnett has shaved off for a season with Norfolk, one of the Yankee farm clubs. Last year and the year before that Bernie toiled with the Akron, O. team and made good. Going to Norfolk is another step up the ladder and it means that he makes good, Bernie's next stop will be the Newark Bears or even the Yanks.

Bernie's rise has not been as meteoric as that of the lad from the neighboring town, Hank Borowy of Bloomfield. Unless something unexpected happens, Borowy, who hurried last year for the Bears, is destined to become the permanent property of the New York Yankees. Not regarded as ready for big-time as yet, Borowy was sent south with the Yanks for a trial this winter. In the grapefruit circuit he has proven to be one of the sensations and Manager Joe McCarthy of the American League club apparently intends to keep him.

What Borowy has done it is not impossible for Barnett to do and the day may not be far off when local folks will be trekking to the Yankee Stadium to root for a hometown boy.

Mrs. Ernest Potter of DeWitt avenue entertained yesterday for her five hundred club. Attending were Mrs. Harry Higgs, Mrs. E. T. Seeley, Mrs. Willis Ford, Mrs. Horace Winslow, Mrs. Margaret Norris and Mrs. Daniel Melis of this town, and Mrs. Charles Pritts of Nutley.

SENIOR LEAGUE CROWN WON BY ROSERY

Team Will Meet Grace Baptist Tonight; Decide Town Title Monday

The Belleville Rosery quintet, conquerors of the Haffner boys for the Senior League championship, will take to the court tonight in an attempt to overcome the Grace Baptist five, champions of the Church League, and the right to meet the North Belleville boys, West Belleville Senior loop winners, for the town championship on Monday night. Tonight's clash is scheduled to start at 8:30 in the high school gym, and Monday's clash at the same hour.

The Rosery boys gained the right to battle the Church Leaguers by turning back the Haffner five in two straight games after having been nipped by a one-point margin in the first tilt last week. On Monday night the Rosery boys led by Johnny Calicchio with eight points, turned back the confectionery lads 33-25.

To show that it was no fluke, the Roserys went out on the following night and dumped the Haffners 33-28. Handley with nine points paced the winners, while Calicchio again registered eight points, four of them being foul shots.

The clash tonight between the Rosery and the Grace Baptist five brings together two of the town's best quintets. The Roserys won as they pleased in the Church League this season, starting off slowly but gaining momentum as the campaign got rolling. Midway in the season they jumped into the lead and no one could head them off, even the late spurt of the Fewsmith Church five.

There will be a preliminary tilt at Monday night's clash for the town championship when the Pirates will battle the Starlings for the Intermediate League honors. The Panthers won from the Starlings by a forfeit because the latter used an ineligible player, although the Starlings actually won the game 25-23 for the second round championship. The Pirates then turned around and nipped the Panthers 19-18.

The Fewsmith Miners won the Newark YMCA League championship on Saturday night by defeating the Calvary team 36-22 and the following night they were honored at services held at Fewsmith Church following services which featured Congressman Fred A. Hartley as the speaker. Others attending were Mayor Williams, State Senator Homer C. Zink and Commissioner Noll, King, Waters and Clark, all of whom signed the letters of recognition which were presented to each member of the team. The letter said:

"We, your Congressman, State Senator, Mayor and Commissioner of Belleville congratulate you and your fellow players of the Fewsmith Basketball Team of the Y.M.C.A. League.

"Your splendid victory of last evening, confidently anticipated by us and your loyal supporters, enhances the lustre of your previous record of being established as the first team to be hailed champions in the first year of league competition, and being the first team to win the League Championship for two successive years.

"Membership on a Triple Championship Team is proof you are capable of social and civic cooperation, that you can defend the home court of your fellowman with gracious respect for racial, religious and social associations.

"You have proved you can press forward to newer championships with confidence your own religious ideals have been reflected in the respect you accorded to fellow-players, to opponents, to your Church and your home town.

"The qualities of your ideals, courage and confidence must be maintained to enable you to stand firm in one who is determined to enrich your human contacts so your friends and acquaintances will remember you as one who made the world brighter, better, because you passed this way."

Extending The Dog Quarantine

Many dog owners moaned this week when the order came from the State Department of Health at Trenton that the dog quarantine would be extended for another three months. Abiding by this ruling is one of the penalties of having a dog. Yet, from the number of canines we see wandering about the streets, we are somewhat dubious about the cooperation of some dog owners in seeking to avert a possible greater spread of rabies which has forced the Health Department to order the quarantine.

Health Officer Eugene Berry cannot be expected to devote all of his days to shooting unleashed pooches off the streets and reminding careless owners that they should keep their dogs in the house, penned up in a yard or tied to a chain. And when the animals are on the street, they should be on the end of a leash.

New Jersey and Toll Roads

The ever-increasing problem of handling motor vehicle traffic has been eased in some states through the construction of toll highways. They have provided motorists with a swift and direct means of getting from one key city to another. They have removed the heavy traffic jams and delays which take the pleasure out of driving and which have been a constant problem to motor vehicle and highway departments. In considering the defense of this country, experts have said that there is a need for more direct routes so that in case of a national emergency troops, equipment and materials could be swiftly moved from one place to another.

Best known of the toll highways in this section of the country are the Merritt Parkway in Connecticut and the Pennsylvania Turnpike which runs between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh. The latter road has been open only a short time but from the thousands of cars which have used it, it has already demonstrated that it was needed and that if provided with a direct route free of hazards, motorists would

Low-Cost Homes and Taxes

Many municipalities are becoming concerned about permitting low-cost home developments to spring up within their borders. Hundreds of these houses have been mushroomed about this section of the state during the past year or so. Belleville has not as yet been singled out for one of these large-scale developments. Town governing bodies are principally concerned about the homes which are being built at a cost of $4,000 or $4,500. In some instances the price is even lower than that. Presuming that these small homes are assessed at sixty per cent of their selling price, it figures out somewhere around $2,500 in round figures. In some communities this represents an annual tax of less than $100, while in others it will be slightly above that.

It is not the valuation which is placed on these homes when they are new, but that which can be levied when they are five years old. Their value will have decreased considerably and the taxes which they would pay would be far below $100.

Yet, if the people who live in these homes send one child to school, the cost for that youngster would be only partially paid by

The number of cases of rabies which have been reported during the past year, especially in the North Jersey counties, is alarming. Every dog, regardless of how well he may be cared for by his owner, is a potential carrier of rabies. If you have any regard, not only for your own self-protection but for that of others and the dog, too, you will abide by the quarantine law.

The trouble is that some folks with a dog are like a child with a toy—they grow tired of it. They do not give it the care or the treatment that it should have. If you are one of those folks who cannot be troubled with assuming responsibility for your animal, then give it to some person who is a full-time dog lover. Rabies is a sometimes fatal disease and it should not be permitted to spread because of carelessness.

gladly pay a toll for the privilege of using it.

A legislative committee this week made recommendations to the State Legislature in Trenton advocating the construction of a number of motor parkways which would be self-liquidating and self-supporting through the levying of a toll charge for their use. The millions of dollars which have been expended by the State Highway Department in constructing dual highways and bridges linking North and South Jersey have not begun to solve New Jersey's traffic problems. It is not alone the motorists from this state who swarm to the few through routes, but New Jersey is the bridge between New York and other states, thus its highways are heavily used by both commercial and passenger vehicles.

Even if the Legislature should act favorably on the committee's recommendations, construction of such roads would not be accomplished over night. It would be a long range program which would have to take into account the fact that each year there are many more cars added to those on the road.

the amount they would annually pay in taxes. In addition, they would receive benefits from publicly owned utilities. The point that many municipalities are arriving at is that these developments which have been encouraged in recent years do not enhance local values and ultimately will work a hardship on the rest of the property owners.

Yet, finding an iron-clad rule which would permit towns to regulate the minimum prices of homes to be erected within their limits is quite difficult.

A year or so ago the Town of Bloomfield sought to control the problem by placing stipulations on the height and other details of homes to be erected in first-class residential districts. One builder took the case to court and the Supreme Court ruled that what Bloomfield sought to do was illegal. However, there is today wide agitation for some system by which the condition can be controlled. At present, the only solution is for the municipal officials to approach the builder with hat in hand and request that he erect homes of sufficient value that they will not become an almost immediate burden on the rest of the community's taxing source.

This Town and the Newark Election

The Newark City Commission election is in the strict sense of the word not the concern of the people of Belleville because they will not have any say in the selection of the candidates who will be charged with the responsibility of attempting to put the muddled financial house of our neighbor in order. However, since many of our residents are employed there, and upon the success of their employers under the city's management, they depend for their livelihood, they are interested. And while we may not directly recognize it in our tax bill, the financial headaches of Newark in recent years are being passed on to the suburban municipalities. The decrease of millions of dollars in Newark ratables has forced the suburbs to shoulder a greater share of the cost of county government.

The ever-present dark cloud lurking over the heads of municipalities such as Belleville is how much more of this burden they will be asked to bear. A continuance of the city government along its present lines can only increase the financial chaos in which Newark now finds itself mired. And so, looking at it from a broader viewpoint, while none of us in this town will have a chance to voice our opinions in Newark's election, we do have an axe to grind, even though it may be small.

Newark has been sliding backward for a number of years. The city has been poorly managed and the question today is whether the profits which the political group in control have reaped have placed them in such an all-powerful position that they cannot be removed.

Because of the sharp rise in Newark's tax rate, it might be expected that every property owner would rise up and personally take part in a march on City Hall to forciblyoust the present commissioners. But, it must be remembered that many of those residents do not give a rap about the tax rate. The fact that they may be renters and will pay the bill indirectly never registers with them. Many have lost their homes and are living in them tax-free and in some instances perhaps rent free. Hundreds of properties on which owners are delinquent in tax payments have never been foreclosed. These people are not worried about a $5.88 rate.

The right-thinking citizens in Newark are faced with a tremendous task, one which in their present disorganized state seems almost impossible for them to surmount. Newark's present condition and the outlook for the future is black and it is becoming an increasing problem for the municipalities surrounding it.

ESSEX COUNTY POLITICS

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

by Meador Wright

As part of their game to force Governor Edison to capitulate in the matter of appointments, Republican senators repeatedly hold out the threat of ripper legislation. These threats are not taken too seriously because the Essex assembly delegation is definitely committed to blocking ripper legislation of all types, nor is this policy likely to be changed. It won't be changed because Essex Republicans know that were the assemblymen to join the Republican group opposing Edison their chances of carrying the county this fall would drop pretty close to zero. An independent Democratic slate of candidates which Edison would almost surely sponsor would be elected with thousands of votes to spare. As long as the conduct of Essex assemblymen is thought correct by the voters their reelection is almost certain. They have a perfect campaign issue in their support, but Essex voters in their present mood would turn over the keys against any group that helped to strip the Governor of his legitimate powers. Both the Essex assemblymen and Arthur T. Vanderbilt know this, so it is an axiom that there will be no ripper legislation this spring.

This doesn't mean that all legislation urged by Edison will get Essex support. They are not like less than the fate of a political job which a friend or relative may hold. Like Jersey City, Newark has sunk so close to bankruptcy that it is practically impossible to arrest the dangerous trend. Who will take over the city when the crash comes is a big question. The suburban communities devoutly hope that the burden will not fall on them, although they cannot hope to escape all of it.

Works Well In Essex

At present the Essex group is committed to the retention of the bi-partisan system of county election boards, together with permanent registration and the use of voting machines throughout the state. Their argument is that this system is working well in Essex at the present time, and that if it works here it should work equally well in other sections of the state.

Although he has little fear of ripper legislation, thanks to Essex, Edison is not so happy over the delay in the confirmation of William L. Dill as highway commissioner. The Senate can block any appointment it wishes to, and the Essex senator is only one in a group of twenty-one. The Dill appointment, however, is regarded as an excellent one and refusal to confirm it would give Edison his cue to enter an independent opponent against every senator who comes up for nomination this September.

The Newark commission election drags wearily toward its May climax. The impending tax rate of 5.88 gives a perfect campaign issue to a fusion movement that would seek to break the Elfenstein-Franklin clutch on the seat of the city. But fusion backers are extremely pessimistic over the prospects of getting a ticket in the field. Mayor Elfenstein and other City Hall candidates have unlimbered their heavy artillery on Dr. Cleo as if in anticipation of his candidacy. Or they may be trying to prevent him entering the race by showing him what will happen to him if he does.

Scarcity of Money

Cleo is not likely to be intimidated by these tactics, although his closest friends have insisted all along that he will not enter the race. Byrne will probably run as an independent if the fusion movement fails, but this is not certain. Both are worried about the scarcity of money for legitimate campaign expenses. Nothing about Newark is sure until petitions of various groups and candidates are actually filed.

Aside from racial antagonisms, the greatest obstacle to reform in Newark is absentee landlords. Tens of thousands of former Newark home owners have lost them to banks, insurance companies, building and loan societies and the Federal government. These people now live in the same houses but they pay rent instead of taxes. Tax rates interest them a local government that will be representative of the tax payers of Belleville, than the Manufacturers Associations of Belleville and the Chamber of Commerce, who were the only people who spoke on the subject of the efficiency of the Board of Commissioners in conducting good government as they see it from their point of view, and these same gentlemen never have and never will see the under-dogs view, who are the property owners and laborers and white collar workers consisting of the majority of the people of Belleville, people who read your paper for news as the medium of information, and unless that news is correct, it misleads the people and is bad news.

(Ed. Note—Mr. Burns' letter leaves us a bit up in the air, although we gather that he is aiming at the report of last week's Town Commission budget hearing as reported by this newspaper. We believe that our reporter reported what he believed were the high lights of the meeting. The information attached to Mr. Burns' letter is summary of questions put by him at the Commission meeting. We have in the past and will in the future consider for publication items from him or the Belleville Property Owners Association, the organization of which was recently reported in this newspaper in detail.)

What About Magnolia Tree?

From Gladys R. Holmes
392 Washington Avenue.
To the Editor of The News:
It is rumored that very soon building will begin on the site of the old house now standing opposite your office. I wonder if any thought has been given to the disposition of the fine magnolia tree that stands at the side of the walk.

Even in winter its silvery branches are beautiful, but when its fairy goblets of rose develop with such magical swiftness in the spring, it is very lovely. The thought of the ruthless excavator tearing it from its home is almost like a personal physical blow.

There used to be a sister tree on the opposite side of the walk and a former owner caused it to be sent to another town where it was transplanted with success, I believe. Of course, I do not know what the present owner is going to do in the matter, but if he has no plans, please do not let this lovely tree be wasted; it cannot speak for itself or move away when danger comes. Perhaps our Belleville Shade Tree Commission or the Parks Department could find a new home for it where its beauty may be enjoyed by many people for years to come?

[Ed. Note—This office has already made several off-the-record suggestions at Town Hall that this tree be transplanted to some municipal spot.]

Yesteryear.....

Five Years Ago

Town Engineer Matty Sheehan solved a tough problem and saved the taxpayers money. High winds deposited the roof of a house at 133 Passaic avenue in the street. A crowd collected. Matty whispered that no one would object if people took part of the roof away for firewood. Presto! the job was done.

Commissioner Joseph King was the sole nominee for the presidency of the Belleville Rotary Club.

The Board of Commissioners held up all future municipal contracts for the operation of new bus lines from the Public Service Company, until such time as the utility considered pleas for a five-cent fare to the center of Newark.

Spring was ushered in with a thunder storm but was still awaiting its first robin.

Ten Years Ago

Plans of the Peoples National Bank & Trust Company to form a Merchants' Association to work for a bigger, better and more prosperous Belleville were started at a meeting presided over by Philip Dettelbach. He pointed out that the last attempt to start a Chamber of Commerce had ended in failure because the merchants and manufacturers had been overshadowed by the politicians who had joined.

Belleville was having a fight within its Republican ranks and Mayor Samuel S. Kenworthy came out for Assemblyman Homer C. Zink and Freeholder Joseph King against Republican County Chairman Jesse Salmon.

Dr. Tracey W. Wilson opened dental offices in his home at 435 Washington Avenue.

More than 300 attended a dance at the Montgomery Presbyterian Church held by the Young Men's Bible Class. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cooper won a cup for being the best dancers.

The Belleville Rifle Association held its first annual card party and dance at Masonic Temple.

Scoutmaster F. W. Hinricks bought two lots at Budd Lake to assure his Scouts of a camping site. The Scouts spent weekends at the lake thereafter, building two cabins.

The Thomson Machine Company held its third annual stag and smoker for employees.

Letter Carrier Jack Hudson bought a new automobile which he announced he would use on weekend runs to the shore. Was there a weekend auto jam those days?

Twenty-five Years Ago

Former Councilman Dr. Edward O. Cyphers was elected president of the Belleville Board of Trade.

Thirty-five aspirants reported for the first spring practice of the St. Peter's Holy Name baseball team. William McDermot was assured of a place on the mound and "Sugar" Flynn of the first baseman's berth.

The Most Rev. E. S. Lines, D.D., Bishop of Newark, confirmed a class of thirty-five at Christ Episcopal Church.

The trustees of Montgomery Chapel and their wives held a bowling party at the chapel and the high scorers were Mrs. Newshander with 147 and Mr. Donnelly with 172.

Miss Anna Schwahl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Schwahl of Newark, was married to Edgar A. Scharfenberg. They were to reside at 16 Washington Avenue.

Twenty-five residents in Linden avenue petitioned the Board of Commissioners for concrete paving.
