

Porter Decision Ends Long Zone Battle In Bianchi Case

Ruling By Justice Upholding Town Reverses Previous Decision By Court In Same Dispute

An historic chapter in town zoning battles has been closed with a surprise ending. Placed in the town records this week was the formally but simply worded comment that Supreme Court Justice Porter had refused to grant the request of John B. Bianchi for a reversal of the Town Commission's decision not to grant him a zone change at 729 Belleville avenue.

But, behind that is a wordy, two-year battle of lawyers, property owners and commissioners and hearings before the State Supreme Court.

In a decision which surprised even Town Attorney Lawrence E. Keenan, Justice Porter last week upset a previous ruling by the Court on the property and blocked Bianchi's effort to erect a gasoline station there.

Bianchi who is a Montclair resident, applied two years ago to the Town Commission for a change from a residential "A" zone to business so that he could erect a restaurant on the property. The zoning board of adjustment ruled in his favor.

Residents of the Belwood Park section near to the proposed zone change poured out to the Town Commission meeting en masse and demanded that the board reverse the zone board's stand. The commissioners did and Edward Abramson, attorney for Bianchi at that time, took the case to the Supreme Court. In a decision rendered in March, 1940, the court ruled in favor of Bianchi.

Sought an Extension

The restaurant deal fell through and in May Abramson appeared before the Town Commission stating that his client wished to erect a gasoline station on the property. He stated, however, that the court had ruled only on seventy-three feet of frontage for Bianchi's property and that at least eighty feet is needed for a gasoline station. He asked the board to extend the business zone twenty feet east on Bianchi's property to the railroad avenue. The zoning board of adjustment acquiesced to Abramson's request, pointing to the Supreme Court decision as the basis for its vote.

Although not in numbers as great as the first time, the Belwood Park residents again turned out before the Town Commission demanding that the board refuse to grant the zone extension. With Commissioner Neil absent, the four members voted against the zone change, even though Town Attorney Keenan had expressed the general opinion at that time that it would be difficult to beat the case in view of the board's previous decision.

Abramson notified the board that he would go to the Supreme Court. Subsequently, Bianchi placed the case in the hands of Newark attorney, Paul Just-bader, who appeared before Justice Porter last week to argue against Keenan.

When the Justice asked the town attorney why the town had so ruled, Keenan told him that the board did not believe a gasoline station was necessary there and the property owners in the vicinity were very much opposed.

Enough Gas Stations

In a short, terse ruling, Porter stated that he felt there were sufficient stations and that in view of the present gasoline shortage more were not needed. Furthermore, he stated that he did not think the Court should constantly serve as a place for reversing the actions of municipal bodies.

According to Keenan, the action by the Justice removed Bianchi's entire Belleville avenue tract from the business classification and returns it to Residence "A" land. Should Bianchi wish to make another effort to get the zone changed, he must start by applying first to the zoning board of adjustment and then on to the Board of Commissioners. In view of the court's recent decision, Keenan said that he did not believe that the zoning board would act favorably on Bianchi's application should he make one.

Girl Mariners Have Picnic At Deputy Chief's Home

Swimming, rowing and line-heaving competitions formed part of the program Sunday for the Belleville Girl Mariners who spent the day at the summer home of Deputy Chief William Dunleavy at Pequannock. A campfire meal of roasted corn, frankfurters and marshmallows followed. The fourteen girls were accompanied by their Pilot and Skipper, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hundertfund, their mascot, Carol Hundertfund, and Alvin Brent of the Scout Committee.

Only One Democratic Fight and Two Republican Battles Are Listed; Most of the G.O.P. Candidates Filed Under Designation of Clean Government

There won't be much pre-September Primary Day door bell ringing or vote button-holing as far as the candidates for the local county committees are concerned, unless they should become unduly aroused about the prospects of the county or state tickets which they may be backing. According to the petitions filed before Thursday midnight with Town Clerk Florence R. Only One Democratic Fight
The only tiff among the Democrats is in the Fifth District of the Third Ward where the incumbent Ralph A. Vara finds that Frank Aiello has designs on his committee post.

PRICE INCREASE IS AFFECTING TOWN BUREAU

Board Votes $2,000 Emergency Measure for Waters' Department

Even the town Public Works Department is feeling the pinch of the O.P.M.'s regulation of priority control over the distribution of material and equipment and the increased costs which have come with it.

Commissioner Waters, head of the department, told the Board of Commissioners in its pre-meeting conference Tuesday night that it was not only impossible to get materials at present but that the Water Department's budget appropriation is dwindling rapidly because of the increase in prices.

"Material costs," Waters said, "in the past month or so, have risen twenty-eight per cent."

He recommended the passage of an emergency resolution for $2,000 which would supplement the present funds in the department's budget for materials. He said that if orders are placed now, the town will get delivery in four or five months.

Okayed by Treasurer

Waters told the board that his emergency measure had been approved by Town Treasurer Russell Sargeant and that he understood that the treasurer had in turn received confirmation from State Commissioner of Local Government Walter R. Darby. Other municipalities find themselves in a predicament similar to that of Belleville, Waters said, and are being forced to pass emergency measures.

Miss Agnes Wharton and a group of friends played cards last week at the Budd Lake summer home of Miss Alice Minion and raised $3 which was turned over to the organization for the purchase of wool.

Miss Biller said that she was anxious to have other groups hold similar parties since money is continually needed for the wool used in knitting.

Clothing and money contributions should be sent either to Miss Biller at 42 Essex street or Mrs. James Miller of 15 Essex street.

SHOWING MOVIES AT PLAYGROUNDS

Nearly 2,000 See Educational Films; Costume Show At No. 1 Centre

Movies are the latest treat that Commissioner Noll's Recreation Department has added to the summer play program which it is conducting for the town's youngsters at the various centers. Educational and safety films are being shown and during the past week nearly 2,000 youngsters have viewed films at the Recreation House playground and Edison Field.

Arrangements have been made for the showing of more pictures which will be announced shortly.

The youngsters at the School No. 1 center had a chance to show their versatility at thinking up costumes on Thursday when Miss Josephine Ferrara, the girls' supervisor, directed a fashion show with Mrs. Alton Parker of Belleville avenue, Charles B. Tedesco of Washington avenue and Raymond Hall of Bridge street acting as the judges.

The award for the prettiest costume went to Marie Cicerale of Stephen street, who was dressed as a dancing girl. Sydney Tilkin of Washington avenue as an Indian girl was voted the most original, while August Klyne of Valley street as a baby in a carriage was judged the funniest. Lillian Baldwin of Stephen street, "keeping the Army's" slogan of "Keep 'Em Flying" took the honor for the oddest costume, while Joan Parker of Belleville avenue in her Miss America costume was voted the most simple and effective.

At the Recreation House playground tomorrow there will be a masquerade show under the supervision of Miss Winifred Finnegan. Last Friday the youngsters had a good time clamping, boing and ringing the gong at their amateur show.

Now in full swing at all play centers is the softball tournament known as the Commissioner Louis A. Noll Recreation League. Playground instructors are coaching the various teams with the Recreation House team coached by Anthony Guzzo, former Belleville High athlete, in the lead.

Nereids Sweep Pelham Bay To Win NYRA Regatta

Eight-Oared Boat Leads Way in Win over Nassau And N.Y.A.C.; Darrell Zink a Stand-out; Now Await Middle States Races August 29

Continuing their most successful competitive campaign in history, the Nereid Boat Club oarsmen swept aside strong opposition to hoist the blue and orange bunting up to the top spot in the New York Rowing Association's annual mid-summer regatta at Orchard Beach on Pelham Bay Sunday afternoon.

Registering a total of fifty-one points, the Nereids were trailed by their arch rival foe, the Nassau Boat Club with forty-one to their credit, and the New York Athletic Club with eighteen. Other rowing groups which competed were the New Rochelle Boat Club, Union Boat Club and the Nautilus Boat Club.

The blue and orange's outstanding victory of the afternoon was scored in the eight-oared race when the Nereids, in a borrowed shell, rowed the choppy bay waters to victory over the Nassau oarsmen by one and one-half lengths. It was the second time in the eight-oared races that the Nereids had triumphed over the Nassaus this season.

Getting off to a fast start, the locals' boat, stroked by young Darrell Zink, set a blazing pace for the three-quarter mile distance that rowed the Nassau boatmen right into the water. Although the Nereids have not owned an eight-man boat since 1934, they have been able to team up men this year who make a good combination for such a boat and it is possible that there will soon be some digging down into the treasury and pockets to bring up enough money to put an eight-oared shell on the Passaic once more.

Others In The Eight
Others riding in the eight besides Darrell Zink were Barney Swain, Frank Siegler, Gerard Rhoades, Homer Zink, Les Hagert, Andy McMaisters, Carl Hagert and Hugh Kittle, coxswain.

Darrell teamed up with Al Walker to take the senior doubles event, trailed by oarsmen representing the N.Y.A.C. and the Nassaus. It was the second time in history that a Nereid boat had won a senior event and the first time in a regatta that a doubles race had been won.

Bill Trier and Harry Liess took the junior doubles, placed third in the intermediate doubles and teamed up with Gunther Meder and Jack Weber to win the junior quad event. Barney Swain placed second in the junior and intermediate single shell events, while Warren Everson won the Association singles and George Sturges was second in the novice single gig.

Bill Fehon scored a victory in the junior single gig, while Carl Hagert was victorious in the intermediate single gig event.

Homer Zink placed second to Jack Sulger of the N.Y.A.C. in the senior singles. Sulger's boat edged across the finish line about a length ahead of Zink.

The Nereid oarsmen are now pointing for the Middle States regatta which will be held at Camden on August 29. Competing there will be the outstanding rowing clubs in the East, including some of the Nereids' rivals from the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia.

JOSEPHINE ROSSI KEEPING BUSY

Young Soprano Finds Plenty To Do In Spite of Vacation Time

Summer may be vacation time for most but not for twenty-one-year-old Josephine Rossi of Heckel street who is rapidly climbing the ladder of success as a singer. The young soprano has been much in demand, singing on programs in recent weeks at the Ocean Grove Auditorium, the Assembly Park Convention Hall and the Long Branch Stadium. She has also been featured on several U.S.O. benefit programs.

Miss Rossi is now rounding out a ten-day vacation as the guest of her piano accompanist, Miss Rosalind Joerg, in Long Branch, but even there she finds that she is quite in demand as a singer even among informal gatherings at the Joerg residence which often includes soldiers on a night's leave from Fort Hancock.

A graduate of the local high school in 1937, she has studied at the Juillard School of Music in New York and with Madeline Walther, also of New York. Her opera coach at the present time is William Spada, conductor of the New York Opera Company. Last winter she made her debut at the Newark Opera House as Frasquita in "Carmen."

Board Feels That Better Price Could Be Obtained for Tract In Arthur, Charles Streets

Sale of town-owned real estate again forged to the front this week as the chief topic for the Board of Commissioners. With Mayor Williams, who has charge of property sale, absent the other four members of the board voted to turn down an offer of $6,600 for property in Arthur, Charles and Center streets which has a frontage of 1,022 feet.

Following its action in refusing to accept the $6,600 offer, the board then voted to re-advertise the land in hope of receiving a higher price. The offer of $6,600 was made by Daniel McMillan of East Orange, acting as agent for Mrs. Sally Walsh of Newark.

Much of the property in question is below the street level and will require considerable filling with dirt to bring it up to grade so that it can be used for hotel development.

Following the reading of Williams' letter to the board at a conference in which he had suggested that the offer of $6,600 be accepted, Commissioner King commented that he believed that the land is worth more than $6 per front foot.

Others In Agreement
"That's my feeling, too," commented Commissioner Noll.

"It seems rather low," Commissioner Clark added.

Frank Palmieri, who bid $8,000 for 112 feet of frontage at 6 Arthur street, told the board that he was offering to pay a better price for his portion of the land. McMillan told the board that he would cost him considerable fill in the land so that he could be built. When the board asked him if he would raise the price, McMillan said that client would not go any higher. Later in the evening the board approved a resolution returning to Mrs. Walsh her twenty percent down payment for the land of $1,320 and $25 for the cost of the sale.

After McMillan's decision, Samuel Wilensky of Passaic, head of the Own-Home Corporation, has been doing some building here, looked over the maps showing the property offered and said that he would be interested in paying a better price than $6,600. Palmieri also stated that he was still interested in the land.

The board then voted to re-advertise the land for sale. Prospective buyers may choose from three different bids in making their offers. The board will the 112 feet of frontage at 6 Arthur street or it will sell the entire tract or the tract measuring 112 feet of frontage.

The entire tract includes 49 and 32-68 Charles street, 15 and 37-39 Center street and 6 Arthur street.

Board's Prerogative
Informed of the board's action yesterday, Williams said that was the board's prerogative to raise the price if it felt that that could secure it. He stated that Town Engineer Matthew Sheehan had told him that would take considerable fill to the lots so that they could be used for building purposes. Williams said Sheehan had estimated that it would amount to about $150 a lot.

The Mayor said that McMillan's first offer for the land was $5,000 and that he had worked the prospective buyer up to $6,600. The Mayor said that he was principally concerned about getting the property back into ratables, pointing out that land had been held by the town for from five to seven years. The land is developed within next year, Williams said, it would be equivalent in ratables and taxes it would pay to selling for $10,000.

The board placed several of properties up for sale. Minimum price which will be accepted for a plot 100x47 at Franklin and Berkeley avenues is $600. A minimum has been set for 16x22 Parkway place, $1,000 for New street, $250 for interior at 148 Little street, $825 for 27 Continental avenue and $1,000 for 23 Columbus avenue.

The commissioners also confirmed the sale for $300 of a lot at 178 Franklin avenue to Fr. Formatoro of Bloomfield. He intends to build a two-car garage on the rear of the property, told the board, and later erect a small office building, the street frontage. Sale of plot at 83 Holmes street to Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. for $975 was also confirmed.

Zeiss Named Constable
Edward G. Zeiss of 29 Little street was appointed a constable for the Third Ward Tuesday night by the Town Commission, on recommendation of Mayor Williams. His term is for one year. THREE LOVELY HEADLINES

Much is being written this summer on the care of the hair. The abandon with which women vacationists indulge in sun bathing is, of course, very hard on their hair. It is not too early to consider the crisp days of fall and winter when a smart hat will always be part of your costume. Prevailing styles surely demand that these revealing models be worn over a smart coiffure of lustrous, healthy hair. Women who feel that they can forego attention to the hair during the summer and resort to a series of restorative treatments in the fall reckon without the powerful effect of the sun's rays.

There are a few major rules to be observed, at least from now until the end of the summer if you have not already done so, which should do away with the fear that your fall hat will be worn over hair which is dry and faded. Experts differ on the exact length of time but it has definitely been established that a deadline must be established for exposure to the sun. If your beach coat has a hood remember sometimes to use it. Two or three hours a day with an uncovered head is generally accepted as the limit.

Although you will be tempted to wash your hair more frequently when it is exposed to dust and salt air you must resist the temptation somewhat. Once a week is still sufficient. And it is advised that the hair, if it is to be dyed in the sun, should be washed early in the day before the sun's rays are devastating. Thirdly, you

Mr. and Mrs. Miles C. Monaghan of 298 Union avenue had as their guest last weekend Mrs. Monaghan's cousin, Private Vincent H. Monahan of Fort Dix, formerly of Unionport, N. Y.

The N.M.A. Club, composed of the Misses Kay Ippolito, Millie Guardabascio, Mary Hoffman, Ann Curcio, Noddy Ippolito, Marie Ippolito, Phyllis Domenick and Rose Valeo spent a week at Keansburg. Mrs. Sal Scavone was their chaperone. The club will hold a meeting tonight at the home of Miss Kay Ippolito in Magnolia street.

INDUSTRY DEMANDS GOOD SIGHT

Efficiency is the keystone of industry. If a worker's sight is faulty, he is not efficient. He works slowly, inaccurately, is prone to accidents.

Today, tremendous demands are being made upon industry. It is more than ever necessary for every worker to be completely efficient... to work quickly, surely, steadily, safely.

Seven people in ten have faulty sight. Only two of those seven have had their vision corrected. The others probably do not realize that their sight is defective. The only way to know how you are seeing—well or poorly—is to have your vision examined—this week.

Publicity, a one-time blessing, has now become a curse. As we look around today, we see, it is becoming worse. With a glance, a glare, and a silly anti, some people drive their fellowmen frantic. All these actions are to gain publicity, which has more shock than electricity.

Avoid the shock of a breakdown on the road. Have your car attended to by the experts at Brisk's Gulf Service, Main and Rutgers Streets, before your next trip. Phone Belleville 2-4514.

They've Taken On New Duties

With all the activities that claim women's attention these days there are few wasted hours. The wonder is they can accomplish so much and continue to run their homes so efficiently. Ask one of these homemakers with a hundred outside interests just how she does so much and she'll tell you she uses electricity wherever and whenever she can.

A Thor electric washer does its work better and faster than you can wash by hand. An electric ironer puts a fine finish on each article and you can be seated while you work. Moderate prices and easy payment terms.

Opposition Defeats Itself

From the filing of five different tickets for the Republican Primaries in September one would expect that the G.O.P. political folk were girded for a hectic battle. However, such is not the case as we see it. In spite of the opposition and the rumblings heard here and there, it appears as though the Clean Government forces will march on to another triumph without too much trouble.

It is true that there are five slates entered in the field at this writing. Perhaps one or two of them will be withdrawn within the next week or two. However, no ticket is worth the space which it takes up on the voting machine unless it has an organization to support it — and it can be said that Clean Government is the only one which has a well organized county-wide movement.

That there is not unanimity on the rule of Clean Government is indicated by the opposition slates which have entered the race.

However, they have defeated their own purpose by splitting the opposition into four groups rather than combining into one strong opposition force.

No force which seeks to oppose the rule of Clean Government can hope to be successful without an effective suburban organization. That the efforts of any of the opposition forces have failed in this endeavor is typically indicated by the state of affairs in Belleville where except for a few candidates all candidates for the county committee have filed under the Clean Government label.

Opposition is good for any political movement for it tends to keep the controlling group on its toes. Clean Government is an Essex County power today. It will not be removed so long as it presents candidates in whom the majority of the public has faith and the opposition is unable to present a better case than the mere fact that they would like to be in power rather than Clean Government.

Supreme Court Does Turnabout

Some time ago we commented that the Belwood Park residents should be thankful for the fight which the members of the Town Commission made in their behalf in the zoning case in which the property owner sought to use his property in Belleville avenue near Smallwood avenue for business purposes.

In spite of a previous court decision and the recommendation of the Zoning Board, the Town Commission recently went on record in response to the pleas of the residents against the zone change.

Courts and justices follow a strange course. A year ago the Supreme Court ruled that it was proper for the property owner to erect a building housing a restaurant on the property in question. Yet, last week, when the case involving the same property and a small piece adjacent to it came before one of the members of the Court, he turned down the application and supported the town.

It is not that we question the ruling of the court, but it does show that times frequently change a situation. In the most recent decision the justice commented that he felt there were sufficient gasoline stations and in that opinion we quite agree with him. In fact, we would go him one better and say that there are sufficient business areas.

This town and almost every other municipality in the metropolitan area have suffered from too much business property in proportion to their residential sections. Those districts which have already been set aside as business districts should be fully developed before adding more business sections to the town map.

Some Real Rationing To Come?

The public is just beginning to feel the pinch of this war in which we are doing everything but the shooting. Many people are awakening to the fact that more than building ships and planes and manufacturing munitions and other materials, this country is cutting down on its own civilian production to help the European allies.

The gasoline shortage and the stoppage of the manufacture of silk clothing articles are the first of the major curtailment which is to come. Already, housewives are discovering that the dollar does not go as far at the grocery store as it did a few months ago.

Conversations we have had recently with business acquaintances of ours plus certain moves which have been made in Washington make us feel that a real rationing program is going to come in the fall — one that will be much stronger than the average person suspects.

The curtailment on installment buying, cuts in reduction in the manufacture of automobiles, household appliances and other similar articles requiring metals being used in the manufacture of defense materials are simply suggestions to soften the public up for the real blow that will come within the next few months if we can do any second guessing. Food prices are another source which may be watched for an indication of what is to come. It must be remembered that we are not only hoarding large supplies for a huge standing army but also that this nation is sending much food in addition to materials abroad. Belts must be tightened some place and it is among the public where they will have to be hitched up a few notches before long.

The question naturally arises how much of this tightening the general public will stand before there will be a loud yell that enough is enough. Already there is plenty of grumbling heard about the efforts to cut down on gasoline and more than one lady is horrified over the prospect of having to go without silk stockings. While this may not seem important, it is a key to what general public opinion might be if real cuts come. Would people be content to be told by the government simply that cutting down plus an increase in prices would be the patriotic thing to do — even though we would not be in the war?

There's Still A Big Problem

In the past ten years there has been a tremendous improvement made in New Jersey roads. New four-lane highways have been built linking the northern section of the state with the southern and shore areas. Many connecting links have also been constructed.

Millions of dollars have been spent. Still, the roads are unable to carry the thousands of cars which jam the roads, particularly during the summer season. Even though many people now stay away from resorts because of the traffic jams, there are still more automobiles than there is road space for them to pass over without being delayed for long periods. New Jersey still has its bottlenecks. It is still one of the most heavily trafficked states on weekends. Many of the cars which use the highways are from out of state.

Perhaps Connecticut, New York and Pennsylvania have the right idea in fast through highways which speed the motorist on his way without delay providing that he pays a toll. For several years legislators have talked about toll roads as the answer to the traffic problem, particularly going to and coming from the shore resorts. Despite the millions which have been spent on highways and bridges, the conditions are still far from being satisfactory and take the joy of a weekend out of it for most drivers.

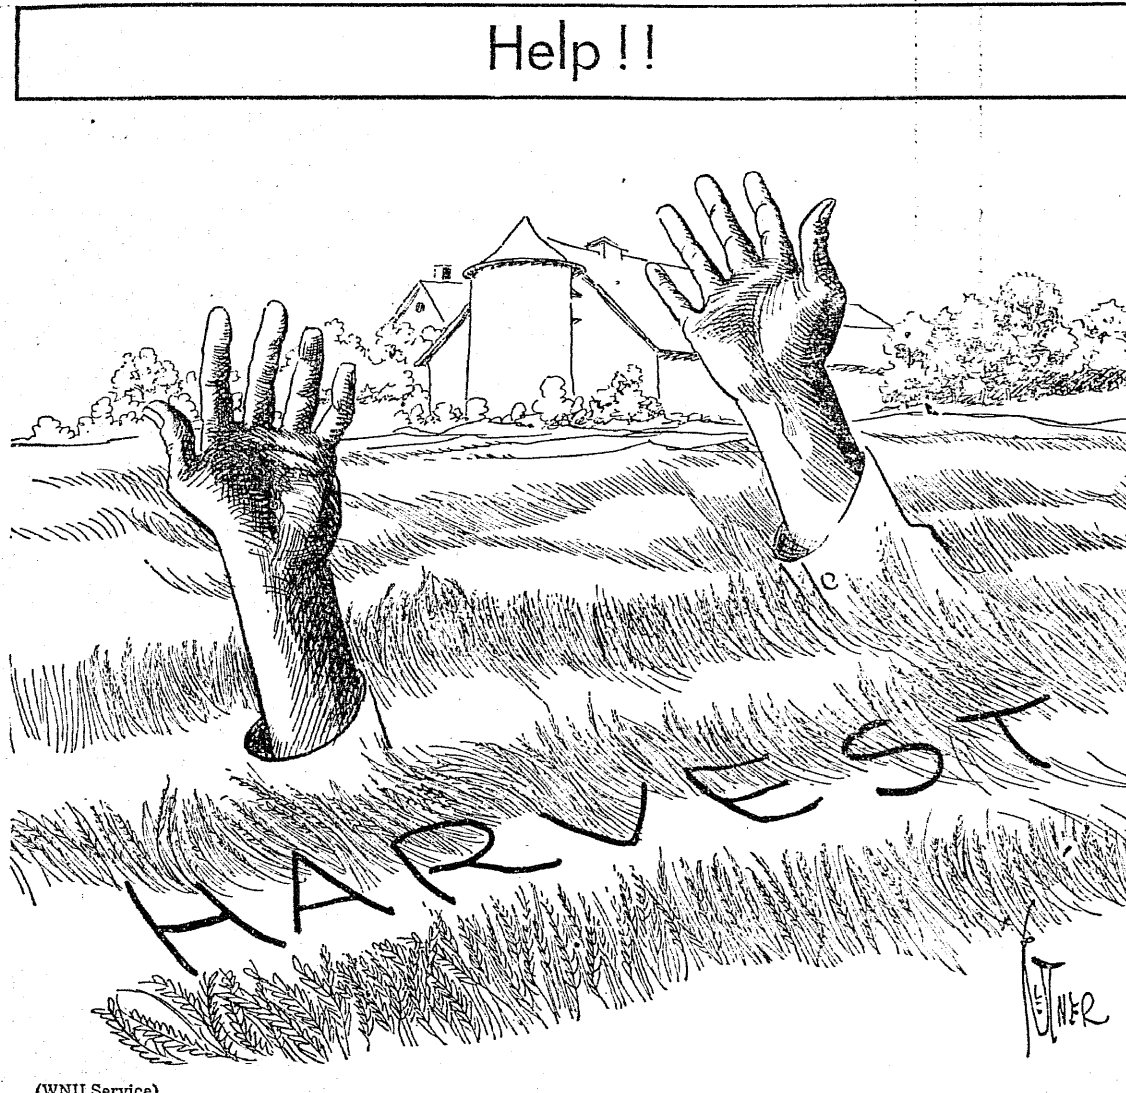

Property Sales a Summer Topic

The town commissioners have had little to talk about these summer months but real estate. We can think of no better topic even though it may be rather warm in a small conference room and the conversation sometimes gets a bit involved, and it takes a half an hour to unravel the facts and get on the straight path once more.

Sale of town-owned land should be good news to every taxpayer for it means just that much land is going back into the ratables and thus helping to cut down the amount of the town tax bill that every property owner must pay.

There's something quite business-like about the board's repeated efforts to get a better price for land put up on the block. Still, there is one point that sometimes confuses us and that is why the board will set a minimum price on the land and then when a successful bidder is ready to go ahead with the deal the board refuses to confirm it. It would seem to us that the better plan would be to set a higher minimum in the beginning and avoid the repetition and expense of going through another sale.

ESSEX COUNTY POLITICS

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

by Meador Wright

The Democratic ticket announced last week is strong enough to give Essex Republicans pause. Raymond Berry, candidate for senator, is considered an unusually able man, and one who will make a strong appeal to voters in November. William Patterson of South Orange should also give a good account of himself. William C. Fiedler, likewise of South Orange, heads the freeholder trio. He was an able official when he held that post during 1932, 33 and 34. The assembly slate is probably better than any Democratic slate in recent years, although most of the candidates are unknown to the general public. It must yet face the test of campaigning.

Despite the excellence of the Democratic ticket, the general feeling is that Essex is still a Republican county and will be enjoying that status after November 4 unless some unusual factors enter the picture. Democrats express optimism as usual, but when penned down they admit that they are counting rather heavily on miracles or near miracles to put their ticket over. These miracles, or, as the Democrats would put it, unusual factors operating in their favor can be enumerated in the following order of importance: 1) Governor Edison; 2) Republican disunity; 3) general unrest which tends to operate against the party in power.

Of these factors, Governor Edison sends the sharpest shivers down Republican spines. Leaders are wondering just how hard the Governor will campaign for the Democratic ticket in Essex and what the public reaction will be to it. They know Edison is unusually popular, but they are hoping, first, that he will not campaign very hard against the Republican ticket and, second, that Essex support for most of his policies will help nullify his support of the Democrats.

Disunity a Threat

Republican disunity looms as a potential threat to the Republican ticket, although it may not look as bad in November as it threatens to look in August. A second Republican ticket is now in the process of being completed. Such a ticket was expected and has been discounted. But a new threat looms in an independent ticket which will be filed five days before the primary as required by law. This ticket as tentatively outlined will be headed by Assemblyman Edgar Williamson of East Orange and will have a number of well known names on it. Obviously, it will be entered to win. Actually its role will be to pull Republican votes away from the regular ticket in favor of the Democrats. Generally, these tickets get far fewer votes than their backers anticipate. But if the general election is close it takes a very few votes to be decisive. General political discontent which observers have noted throughout the nation may work in favor of the Essex Democratic slate, but my guess is that it might work in the opposite direction—that is, against Democratic candidates everywhere. The main anti-Clean Government ticket will be announced very shortly. Fred Herrigal will be the candidate for Senator and Platt Adams for Sheriff as was announced previously. But the rest of the ticket will be different. Mrs. Patrick Henry Adams of Maplewood is being importuned to run for the assembly, but her acceptance is not certain. Most interesting figure on the tentative slate is John J. O'Connor, Jr. of Glen Ridge, manager of the Orange Storage Warehouse. O'Connor is unusually well known throughout the suburbs and should make a strong candidate.

It is too early to appraise properly the strength of the new group. But many of its backers believe the ticket can win. My own belief is that Clean Government will be victorious by a comfortable margin unless the top position won by the group on the voting machines should prove more important than Clean Government leaders expect.

Private Hal Breeze Writes About Visit At Home

Hal Breeze is the leader of one of the better known club orchestras heard in these parts. Several months ago Hal was forced to lay aside his baton when Uncle Sam beckoned a finger at him for service with the Army. He is now at Fort Jackson in South Carolina and has been home on a furlough. He has written some of his impressions after being away from home for some time and has also told about what he's doing to keep his hand in music. Here's the letter from Hal:

I have been home on a ten-day leave and it sure felt good to see the home town again after spending five months of army life in this southern state of South Carolina. It was good to see the town again. Many things attracted my attention which weren't there when I left for the Army in March. The Riviera and Greylock Heights sections below and above Union Avenue sure changed and improved greatly in the last few months. The 5 & 10 and other stores on the avenue have altered the complexion of Washington avenue, not forgetting to mention the new factories and improved park.

Missed Cherry Blossoms

I regretted missing the scene of blooming cherry blossoms at the park. The completed Belleville Municipal Stadium sure adds class to the town. I enjoyed every day of my stay at my Belleville home and wish to express my thanks for the fine way I was greeted by the town folks.

While at home the orchestra recorded my own composition "Dream Girl" which was written here at Fort Jackson, S. C. The song is attracting many comments and is copyrighted in Washington, D. C. Arrangements are being made to have the Nationwide Songs Incorporated of New

The Hal Breeze Orchestra, one of the honored first to play the tune, have done a great job in recording the hit. The Breeze recording is being played on many of the Fort's social functions with many compliments toward its successful hit. An answer to "Dream Girl" has been written by Miss Anna B. Jordan of Boston, Mass. entitled, "I'll Be Waiting, Dear, For You," which is being considered for copyright and publication.

Hard To Leave

It was a difficult task to leave that good home town for these terrific hot days of South Carolina. My greatest surprise was to learn of that favorite pianist Nick Burde Jr.'s entrance into Annapolis, Md. This young chap is missed by the members of the Hal Breeze Orchestra and they are honored to have a local lad of such high honorable standing receive the appointment to Annapolis. Nick is the second member of the local orchestra to leave the boys for government duty. The orchestra, still under the leadership of brother Al Breeze and management of Ugo DiGiiovanni, is clubbing throughout New Jersey.

AUTO INDUSTRY TO SET PACE

Buick Official Says Production For 1942 Will Show Job U. S. Can Do

How good a job America can do will be exemplified in the automobiles designed for 1942. In room, comfort, ability, handling and especially in styling, the cars that replace the 1941 models will stand comparison with previous models in a manner fully expected to astonish many people. Yet they will be made available not only without interference with the national defense program, but in actual furtherance of it.

This was the statement this week of Harlow H. Curtice, president and general manager of the Buick Division of General Motors, in comment on plans for next year's output in which he gave high praise to the resourcefulness of automobile engineers.

Buick concluded production of its 1941 models this week and as the last car rolled off the assembly line in Flint, plant engineers and maintenance men moved in to ready the factories for resumption of output in 1942 models. "One thing for which America can be grateful," Curtice said in reference to the engineering of the new cars, "is that there is no bottle neck in brains. There is no limitation on American ingenuity, no ceiling on resourcefulness, fresh imagination or seasoned brain power capable of great accomplishment."

"If we have an asset that is already fruitfully at work in carrying out the defense program. Here ingenuity and the fresh approach are beginning to show fine results, in some cases many months ahead of schedule and with both quality and quantity at levels higher than was expected. But equally important to the nation as a whole is the fact that this same keen and productive brain power is already at work helping to adapt our normal economy to emergency period conditions."

"It long has been plain, for example, that far reaching changes have to be made in automobile design in order to free critical materials, release certain kinds of machinery and permit the transfer of specially skilled men to defense jobs. And it has been assumed widely that such conditions would mean a high price in terms of automobile quality and ability, if they did not actually halt all motor car production."

"With this assumption, however, automobile engineers do not agree."

"They have given ungrudgingly of their time, effort and inventiveness to further the defense program. They have recognized and fully accepted the necessity for conserving critical materials, shifting acceptable machinery, transferring men of usable skills. "Even with all of that, they still believed that American enterprise could turn out top notch automobiles with what was left for it to work with. So for many months, engineers have been working on new models to meet this dimension. Where defense could be furthered by eliminating certain materials they have turned to others, and developed new and better ways to use them. Where old processes could be revamped to free machine power or skilled labor they have contrived new procedures to get equal or even better results."

"Soul" is the lesson-sermon subject for Sunday in all Christian Science Churches and Societies.

The golden text is: "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name."

Among the lesson-sermon citations is the following from the Bible: "Truly my soul waiteth upon God; from him cometh my salvation."

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "So Science reveals Soul as God, untouched by sin and death, — as the central Life and intelligence around which circle harmoniously all things in the systems of Mind."

The Woman's Desk
by PEGGY PATTERSON

Summertime meals for little ones seem to require much more care and planning than their adult counterpart. But research on the part of the domestic science and child care experts. The theme which courses most vigorously through them all, and which is sufficiently important to be applied to year round meals, is that mealtime must be a very pleasant experience if it is to be a profitable one. When you consider that a child, once able to sit at the table, can have practically all the needs of his nutrition fulfilled in his three daily meals, it becomes pretty important to see that these meals go off smoothly.

Numerous ills can be prevented entirely by proper nutrition and if the simple expedient of balanced meals will do it no pains should be spared to accustom the child early to the experience of eating with pleasure everything he should receive. Unfortunately, too many children are victims of malnutrition, not because their families are too poor to buy the necessary food, not even because the food is not on the table; but simply because they have developed unreasonable prejudices or because they associate mealtime with scolding or unnecessary exhibitions.

Perhaps the reason that these problems come to light in the very warm weather is that the child, contrary to the idea that he "will eat all the time," is just as squeamish as the adult when it comes to too substantial foods or extra large servings on hot days. Also, he cannot, like us, be satisfied to skip a meal or substitute merely a cooling drink. More than ever in such weather will his appetite be spoiled with snatches of food, too much ice cream or too cold beverages between meals. It may be a difficult rule to execute in the summer, but a wise one, to use ice cream as a dessert and not a between meal treat.

Make Them Attractive

After arranging menus which include the essentials — and surely no one is in doubt about them or needs to remain that way long — the next step is to set them forth so attractively that they masquerade gaily for even a hard-to-please child. Now is the time to use your artistry on crisp raw vegetables, decorate the nourishing junkies and custards and cut sandwiches and cookies in alluring shapes. Inexpensive dishes, new ones, in pretty colors and amusing designs are a great help and fresh table covers and napkins for each meal are a necessity.

The one thing, more than any other, which should solve many problems is to seat your child, or children, at a separate small table with a sturdy chair of the right proportions. This puts him on a more independent basis. He is not subjected to his elders' often too zealous reproaches, he does not form tastes for foods, or dislikes, from the careless comments of the grownups at the main table, he is not so likely to be hurried and will set his own pace if not too closely observed. Make all no one is tempted to make a game of eating or coax him to finish something which, unobserved, he would probably consume in his own good time.

Naturally this does not mean that patient training in table manners is to be overlooked. But it is a sensible conclusion, we feel, that a small child will soon take such pride in his own little table, immaculately set, and in his independence to leave when he is finished that he will busy himself about the pleasure of eating and avoid the dawdling and coaxing which result when he tries to suit himself to adult table manners.

Spectacular enough to rate photographs and a story in one of the nation's leading magazines is the story of a traffic policeman who conceived the idea of educating tiny children how to cross streets properly by erecting a miniature traffic intersection in a public playground. A midge traffic light which can actually be operated, small streets marked off by white lines and the patient attention of an officer and playground director are the only things needed for this valuable object lesson.

Use Toy Automobiles

Of course children can get the "feel" of the operation better if they are driving toy automobiles; and, we believe, that they are supplied for practice purposes along with the other necessities to playgrounds desiring to purchase the materials for such a project. But any vehicle, and what child does not manipulate some sort of two or three-wheeled vehicle or even roller skates, will do. To a child, whose imagination easily fills in the background, a stream of children on wheels are automobiles and trucks and all others are pedestrians.

Signals are worked and whistles blown and the little motorists, if they make mistakes, are patiently corrected and shown how to properly execute turns and how to avoid accidents. Of course the small pedestrians must receive an equal amount of discipline if the training is to be successful. But there is one feature in this training which the child cannot get elsewhere. He has the experience of being "the driver." He knows how a careless pedestrian looks from the driver's seat and he undoubtedly recalls that when he next finds himself in the pedestrian class.

Since we make every possible effort to familiarize the small child with other real-life situations before his participation in them — which is usually considered to begin when he assumes the responsibility of going back and forth to school by himself — it seems as though this playground plan, real or simulated, is an excellent method of teaching one of the vital requirements for safety.
