

NEREID TO HOLD REGATTA SUNDAY ON PASSAIC

Blue and Orange Oarsmen To Meet North Shrewsbury Crews Here

The Nereid Boat Club oarsmen will return to home waters Sunday afternoon when they will meet the North Shrewsbury Rowing Association in a meet on the Passaic river. It will be the third in a series of dual regattas in a round-robin program among four amateur rowing clubs — New Rochelle, Nassau, North Shrewsbury and Nereid.

Based on the club's history-making rowing thus far during the season, the blue and orange oarsmen will be favored in the engagement with the Monmouth County club.

The regatta, which will start at 1 o'clock, will be held over a three-eighths mile course with the boats starting at the Rutgers street bridge and rowing downstream to the finish line in front of the clubhouse.

James Rathschmidt, assistant rowing coach at Princeton University, will be the referee, with William Bennett and State Senator Homer C. Zink, members of Nereid, and James Lang of North Shrewsbury the judges at the finish line.

There will be seven races which will start twenty minutes apart. The junior singles gig will start off the afternoon, followed by the intermediate and senior singles gigs, the junior and club double shells, the junior quadruple shell and the club quadruple shell ending the program.

No Eight-Oared Event

An eight-oared event was on the schedule but since Nereid does not have any eight-man boats that event has been postponed until September 14 when it will be rowed on the Shrewsbury, the club there having several of the bigger shells.

It will be the last dual regatta of the season for Nereid and will give them the chance to overhaul the New Rochelle Club which is leading for the point trophy with an average of 62 per cent against Nereid's 55, Nassau's 44 and North Shrewsbury's 33 per cent.

Sunday's meet will be a tune-up for the regatta for the Middle States Association regatta on Sunday, August 31, at Camden when a number of Nereid crews will compete in an effort to demonstrate their supremacy among Eastern oarsmen. The club's final appearance on the water is scheduled for Sunday, September 21, when the annual club regatta will be held on the Passaic.

Rowing in the club doubles event for Nereid on Sunday will be the winners of the senior double shell race at Pelham Bay on August 10. Darrell Zink will be the stroke and Al Walker at bow. This duo is rated as one of the favorites in the Middle States meet.

Carl Hagert, winner of the intermediate single gig event at Pelham, will compete in the junior single gig event on Sunday, while Bill Nelson, who won the junior gig event on August 10, will sport the Nereid colors in the intermediate single gig race.

The other crews will be selected between now and Sunday.

ABANDON PLANS FOR AUDITORIUM

School Board Rescinds $89,000 Bond Issue; WPA Will Not Do Work

The curtailment of work by the WPA this week forced the Board of Education to abandon plans for the construction of a new auditorium at School No. 3. The board voted on the recommendation of Finance Chairman James Lynch on Monday night to call off the project.

The voters gave the board the authority to issue the bonds to finance the auditorium construction at a referendum election in March, 1939. Previously, an $84,000 appropriation approved by the voters had been rejected by the Works Progress Administration.

The auditorium is in bad condition. Last winter a section of the ceiling fell and the question of repairs was referred to the building and grounds committee headed by Walter Gilby. As yet, nothing has been done and it was stated that as yet the board has no plans toward going ahead on a new auditorium.

Loving Love Birds Pays This Woman

NICE BUT SOMETIMES NAUGHTY is this love bird which Mrs. Stacy H. Hammell is holding in her gloved hand. The feathered one is one of the products of the New street woman's year-old hobby which has turned into quite a business.

When feeding her birds or taking them out of their cages, Mrs. Hammell wears gloves because the little fellows have sharp beaks and like to nip at fingers.

Love Bird Raising Hobby Now Profitable Business

Year-Old Interest In Feathered Folk Has Resulted In Mrs. Stacy H. Hammell Now Selling Birds To People From Five Eastern States

A repeated but never fulfilled promise of a friend and the start of a hobby a little more than a year ago has today provided Mrs. Stacy H. Hammell with a business which she finds time-occupying, enjoyable and profitable.

Twelve months ago Mrs. Hammell walked into a bird store and purchased two love birds. She's always had a place in her heart for all kinds of animals and members of the feathered family. While the gay-colored pair sat billing and cooing in their cage, white-haired Mrs. Hammell read up on them and became so interested that she bought another pair. In less time than it took her to tell about it, she soon had more little love birds than she had bargained for.

Today, bird fanciers from five Eastern states come to her home at 44 New street to buy her love birds, raised by feathered fanciers as the best bred and conditioned birds that can be purchased. So seldom a day goes by that she does not have a telephone call or a visit from some person interested in making a purchase.

What this energetic, middle-aged housewife terms as the peak of her short but successful career in love bird raising came last Friday night when she sat before a television receiver and watched three pairs of the birds which were born and raised in her aviary perform.

Birds In Television

Five weeks ago Jack Lane, a Manhattan bird trainer, called at Mrs. Hammell's residence and purchased three pairs of eight-month-old birds. In parting he told the New street woman that she should try to get to a television set on Friday night, August 15, so that she could see them perform. Interested, but rather skeptical as she admitted yesterday, Mrs. Hammell made arrangements to see the televised program at the home of a Newark friend.

Appearing over NBC's WBNT, the program was billed as Jack Lane and his Love Birds. The vari-colored little feathered fellows, slightly bigger but much more beautiful than canaries, did numerous stunts. One of them pushed a miniature wheelbarrow. Another pair performed on a seesaw. One dresses as a clown went around knocking over small cardboard objects and walking through paper-made barrels. Two of them performed as tight-rope walkers and as a grand finale all six of the performers hopped on a merry-go-round and twirled away as the corousel with the familiar music of the amusement park whirled around.

Love birds belong to the parakeet family, Mrs. Hammell explained. The American branch of the family originates from those found in Australia and Africa. Climate, she said, has a great effect on them. For example, a bird brought from the South would probably die here. However, she insisted a love bird born in this climate will probably not die if properly cared for.

Love birds have a general facial resemblance to a parrot. They come in four colors—blue, yellow, green and white and the more vivid and sprightly their color, generally the better the bird. Bred in this climate and properly cared for and fed, Mrs. Hammell said a bird will live as long as fourteen years. They mate very rapidly. The eggs which the female lays are slightly smaller than the size of the penny ball gun which the youngsters get in the corner store candy machines. Birds will lay from three to eight eggs, generally, she said.

Love birds are most particular about where they mate. Before being satisfied with the boxes with which Mrs. Hammell provides them to raise their young, both the male and female will thoroughly inspect the premises. This task plus the decision of whether

CORNER COWBOYS GIVEN WARNING

One Is Fined $50 By Recorder For Use Of Abusive Language

Police served notice this week that they will not be lenient with storefront and corner cowboys. A $50 fine was levied against an eighteen-year Beech street youth, George Fratella, who was charged with having used "loud and abusive language" to Patrolman Nelson Demgard.

The patrolman told Recorder Smith in police court on Monday that Fratella had become abusive when he spoke with him after a Washington avenue storekeeper had reported Saturday night that one of his store windows was broken. Fratella was in the group of youths who were loitering about the corner, Demgard said. According to Leighton, Fratella is now on parole from Annandale Reformatory.

Police warned all youths this week that regardless of whether they are minors or not they would be arrested and prosecuted if the loitering continued. There have been numerous complaints from merchants, particularly those operating soda and confectionery stores, the youths hang about the store fronts and make remarks about the passersbys.

Like Father, Like Son

Following in Dad's footsteps is Jimmie Charlton who wants to be as good a Scout as his father, John, whom he's shown with at Camp Mohican, where the elder Charlton is Handicraft Director.

Jimmie marked 12th birthday yesterday by joining Scouts and becoming first boy to register for the 1942 season at Camp Mohican. Looks like he is a real early bird.

Scouting Gains Another Of The Charlton Family

Boy Scouting seems to run in the Charlton family. Father John, who is printing instructor at the high school, takes up much of his spare time as one of the town's most active Boy Scout leaders.

This summer he has left the misssus in command of their Bell street household while he has been at Camp Mohican near Blairstown teaching Scouts from Newark, Irvington and Belleville in handicraft work.

And, as if one member of the family to be a dyed-in-the-wool BSA-er weren't enough, Son Jimmie, who up until now was shy of the twelve-year mark, which makes him eligible to be a ten-foot, already has a rich knowledge of Scouting lore.

Jimmie has been a frequent visitor at Camp Mohican this summer and is stepped in the tradition of this Scout haven. In addition to knowing all of the "ins" and "outs" of camp life, Jimmie has progressed far along the trail to becoming a top-ranking Scout, although officially he did not become a Boy Scout until yesterday.

DE GRAW SERVICES TOMORROW NIGHT; DIED TUESDAY

Former Mayor, Long Prominent In Belleville Life, Had Heart Attack

Funeral services for one of Belleville's best known citizens, former Mayor John DeGraw who died suddenly on Tuesday night, will be held tomorrow evening at 8 in the William J. Irvine Funeral Home at 276 Washington avenue.

A leader in local civic and political life for more than a quarter of a century, Mr. DeGraw suffered a heart attack at his home, Millbrook Farm, at Montague.

The former town official had appeared in good health and was at work in his Newark office on Tuesday.

The flag on the Town Hall and other public buildings was ordered at halfmast yesterday morning when word of Mr. DeGraw's passing was received here.

Mr. DeGraw is remembered here not only for the part which he played in the town's civic life during this century but for the charitable and welfare work that he did among people through the Wesley Methodist Church of which he was a prominent member and through private sources.

Sharp-tongued and quick-witted when it came to a political fight, he had many friends in all walks of life.

Had Farm In Montague

Although he had not been a resident of Belleville for the past decade, he kept many of his contacts here up until the time of his death. At the farm which he owned in Montague and in which he took a great interest, he was closest to what was probably his most beloved hobby—fishing.

Mr. DeGraw was born in Greenville, now Marengo, Morris County, sixty-four years ago. His early education was received in the graded public schools of Morris County. Later he spent one year attending Newark High School in the evening while working during the day. Ever determined to better himself, he entered Coleman's Business College and was graduated from there with the degree of master of accounts. He received his education as a lawyer at the New York Law School from which he was graduated. In 1907, he was admitted to the New Jersey bar.

In April of that year he moved to Belleville and for many years resided at 217 Washington avenue. Mr. DeGraw at the time of his death was a senior partner in the law firm of DeGraw & Murray, which was established in 1911. Town Attorney Lawrence E. Keenan worked in DeGraw's law office and received his training as a law clerk there. In 1922, after Keenan had passed his bar examination, he became a member of the firm and it then became known as DeGraw, Murray & Keenan. This continued until 1933 when Keenan withdrew from the partnership and established

Three Local Trainees Sent To Camp Lee From Dix

Bernard E. Rowe was among the 367 men who were shipped from Fort Dix to Camp Croft, S. C., for training at the Infantry Replacement Center there.

Parking Meters Here By Fall Present Plan Of Police Department

The Barbers Will Do More Clipping—In Prices

Since almost everybody is being clipped by the defense program, the barbers who do more clipping than anybody else (that is with the shears, of course) our going to do some more clipping.

The cost for clippers, razors and the other implements and materials of the tonsorial trade are going up steadily, the barbers report.

In addition, like almost every other business, their help is asking for more money because of rising living costs.

The Belleville Master Barbers' Association and the Nutley Master Barbers' Association had a meeting here Tuesday night and discussed the question of price rises. It was voted to set a new price of 60c for cutting adults' hair and 50c for children. The rise will go into effect in the near future, it was said.

Most of the barbers in the two towns are members of the associations.

Installation of 1 and 5-Cent Meters Seems Probable; Merchants Urge It

Parking meters for Washington avenue business sections within the next month or two was predicted yesterday at Town Hall, although there was no official comment. Public Safety Director Clark, who has studied the parking problem, is expected to request the Town Commission shortly to approve the plan.

The boom in the Belleville business section during the past year plus the further increase in it and the patronization of it by not only local residents but those from out of town during the coming fall has forced police authorities to inaugurate some plan which would ease present conditions along The Avenue.

Merchants particularly those in the section between Belleville and Rutgers street, have repeatedly urged the town board to take some action, stating that the present inability of people to find parking places is forcing them to go elsewhere to do their shopping. Many of them, it is understood, are in favor of the parking meter plan.

Installation of the meters does not take long so that if the Town Commission should approve the plan within the next few weeks it is quite possible that meters would be in operation by October.

Must Revise Ordinance

Use of the meters would require revision of the town's present inadequate automobile parking ordinance, setting up time zones and no parking areas, certain streets coming into Washington avenue. The ordinance must have the approval of the State Motor Vehicle Department.

It is understood that a plan has been studied and suggested for the location of meters in certain blocks in Washington avenue. Meters installed every twenty feet, will probably be placed on both sides of the street from Howard place to Academy street from Holmes to Joralemon street and from Division avenue to Overlook avenue.

The type which is understood to be most favored by local officials is the Dual Automatic Parking Meter, manufactured by Oklahoma City. One of the machines is now on display at police headquarters.

More than 400 of the Dual Automatic meters are now being used in Atlantic City. An advantage of that machine is that it makes provisions for both the short and long-time parking. It contains two slots. For a penny, the parker may remain in the zone for twelve minutes while the charge for a sixty-minute stop is five cents. There is no handle to crank or lever set after inserting the money. When the coin is placed in the slot, a green marker appears at the meter starts to tick off either a twelve or sixty-minute period. When the time limit has expired, a red sign appears.

One policeman on a motorcycle could control the use of the meters by the public, officials believe. Patrolling up and down the avenue, the officer would issue tickets for those cars in zones which the red marker showed the meter.

Town Appropriates No Money

The cost of the meter is less than $62. The town does not have to appropriate any money for the installation or purchase. The meters are paid for out of the receipts, the company receiving seventy-five percent and the municipality twenty-five percent.

In addition to installing the meters without any charge, the company guarantees to service them one year at no obligation to the town.

In this vicinity, meters are in operation in Montclair, Irvington, Passaic and Paterson. A questionnaire has been sent out to each of the communities by the police department to learn about the type of meters which they are using and whether or not they believe that their use has been an aid in solving parking problems.

Moving Pictures Next Week At Three Playgrounds

There will be more moving pictures for the youngsters at the playgrounds during the coming week. Commissioner Noll, director of the recreation department, announced yesterday that the pictures would be shown at the Recreation House playground in Joralemon street on Tuesday night at Bridge street play centre Wednesday and at Edison Field the following night. All programs are scheduled to start at 8:30.

BEGIN TICKET SALE FOR CHIEFS FETE

Dinner for Leighton and Dunleavy Sept. 25 In Newark

With the date for the affair a little more than a month away, the committee which is arranging the testimonial dinner to be given Deputy Police Chief Elmer Leighton and Deputy Fire Chief William Dunleavy has begun its "big push" to put across the sale of tickets.

Veteran members of their respective departments, Leighton and Dunleavy were promoted to the deputy chief posts in June by Public Safety Director Clark after the creation of the new positions. Both had previously served as captains.

Police Lieutenant Kenneth Smith is chairman of the general committee which is busy with the numerous arrangements for the dinner to be held on Thursday evening, September 25, at the Robert Treat Hotel in Newark.

Tickets may be obtained from any member of the committee and it is requested that returns be made by Monday, September 18.

In form letters which have been sent to a number of people recently asking them to attend, the committee said in part: "So many people today want to express their appreciation of a person until it is too late, then they are sorry because of their lack of thought and procrastination. We are all the same in this respect. Don't you think it is about time we changed and expressed a little wholesome appreciation for those we like?"

"Elmer Leighton and Bill Dunleavy look pretty well and will probably be with us for the next fifty years. They both have been honored by having been advanced to the positions of Deputy Chief of the Police and Fire Departments.

"It is considered as one of the worthiest appointments in this town for many years. They certainly have earned this reward."

Many Youngsters Entered In Costume Parade

Attics and closets were ransacked and mothers were pestered by more than fifty youngsters on Friday who dressed in a variety of costumes ranging from the Gay Nineties down to the present in the costume parade held at the Recreation House playground.

More than 100 spectators witnessed the event as the judges awarded ten-year-old Carol Schiffman the prize for the prettiest costume. Other winners were Irene Rosenali, eight, most patriotic; Catherine Haderski, ten, most original; Thomas Nisinnocca, eight, second most original; Sandy Graham, six, best costume; Katherine Haverkost, eight, most colorful.

Little Train That Wasn't —Or Was It?—There...

This May Also Be Called 'The Valley's Lament' or 'Out of the Night' or Just The 'Erie's At It Again'

Now, this is the story about the little train that wasn't there—or the story of the invisible train. (Ed. Note—Take your pick—this guy doesn't know what he's talking about anyway.)

Well, anyhow, the tale begins on Monday afternoon when one of The News' staff was caught counting the flies on the ceiling in one of Belleville's quaint spots. He was jolted out of this unproductive pastime by a shout from the rear:

"It's a wonder you wouldn't get on the job and do something about that train."

"What train?" blankly and disinterestedly inquired the reporter who hadn't seen anything but a social item in four days and didn't think there was a story in all of Belleville.

"What train? Why if you had ears you could hear it. That one that goes through 2:30 in the morning and wakes up all us folks in the Valley so we can't get to sleep. Something ought to be done about that."

The reporter sat and lazily thought (thirty seconds out for deep meditation). Stay up until 2:30 for story... Too much work... Maybe better, though... Gotta fill the front page somehow...

"All right, I'll look in to the train," the reporter finally sighed.

The scene changes to 2:15 the next morning. Same reporter, but a little sleepy-eyed is walking tramp-like up and down the Erie tracks near Rutgers street, occasionally peering southward into the dark night. Then he cocks his ear—ah, hark!—train!

Nopel Town street sweeper going up Belleville avenue.

It's now 2:30. Now it's 2:45. Could this be a joke? No, that fellow's not one kind to give bum steers.

Three bells, all's h—l. A quick dash up to the lunch wagon for a hamburger. No train. 3:15... 3:20... 3:25... tck, tck... 3:30... Aw, nuts. Home it is. And so to bed.

The next night, Reporter meets informant. Calls him a blankety-blank so-and-so. Says there was no train. Informant replies that he knows blankety-blank well that there was a train and has five berries to bet on it. (Ed. Note—Since this reporter never had five dollars, it's taken for granted that he backed down and admitted that the train must have gone through.)

Reporter and Informer finally agree to meet Wednesday a.m. at 2 at Rutgers street for another train sitdown. The news hawk prays silently that it won't come so that the know-all-about-trains will have one chalked up against him. And there's the pair of 'em at 2.

But, hark! A train! (Maybe it's only a bus.) No. A REAL train. One of those gas-engined house-rockers. Finally, it heaves to a stop just south of the William street crossing. The motorman gets out. Looks west, then east. No cars coming. Bell clanging on the warning sign. No red light. Motorman hops back into cab. Train spitters, coughs out a couple of blue-orange flames... gets gut-whistle ding-dongs and off goes the milk express—to the next block. Same thing all over again and on into the darkness of Belleville with the motorman doing his little hop-off and ding-dong act at every crossing.

Chest puffed out Informant glowers over Reporter and asks if he's convinced. The little guy yawningly admits that he is.

And so... three bells... home to bed and vowed to write a story about it... Think the Valleyites deserve better treatment than that.

English Woman Pays Tribute To American Red Cross

Letter to Local People Speaks of Good That Supplies From Here Are Doing for Civilians; Also Writes About Rationing of Clothing and Food

A tribute to the work which the American Red Cross is doing in gathering and making clothing and other materials to be shipped to England is contained in a letter recently received here by Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Powell of Academy street. It was written by an English woman who is an acquaintance of theirs.

The Powells turned it over to the Red Cross for publication to help show those who are giving long hours for this work that their efforts are being appreciated and that they are being helpful to many of the suffering civilians.

The letter also tells of the horror of the air raids and of the English determination that the Germans will be beaten. Later on, the writer discusses the rationing of both food and clothing to show the hardships under which the people are living in war-time.

The text of the letter is as follows:

"I am going to try to give you some idea of how we are carrying on over here during the War. It is a terrible war — every man, woman and child is in it this time. We simply live from day to day, never knowing what the night bombing might do to us. But the worse it is, the more determined we are to fight on until we have beaten the Germans to their knees.

"When the German planes are near, the siren is blown and we make noise something like the speed policemen make on your movies. Only a hundred times louder. Sometimes the planes pass over to other places and sometimes they begin to drop bombs around us, then we either duck under the table or bed or make a mad rush under the stairs. That is our air-raid shelter and it is the safest place unless you have a direct hit on the house. Nothing can save you. Very often we go to bed now and don't bother to get up until we hear the bombs dropping, then it is time to move. Of course, we have huge guns all around us.

In Voluntary Service
"The American Red Cross has sent wonderful supplies over. I've seen a great deal of the clothing in this small village. I happen to belong to the Woman's Voluntary Service, and have handed some of it out to the evacuated women and children, who haven't anything in the world but the clothes they are standing in.

"You know our food is rationed. I shall give you a list, but mind, we are far from starved, although it might be very little to you. We are allowed so much per head per week, so the bigger the family the more you have. Tea, two ounces; sugar, half a pound; butter, four ounces; margarine, two ounces; lard, two ounces; cheese, one ounce; jam, half a pound every month. Chocolate, sweets and cigarettes are very scarce. Everything else is fairly plentiful.

"Last week we were rather shocked to hear that clothes would be rationed. We are allowed six coupons per year for each person. The only thing I fear is the quality of the material will be poor. Everything looks very black to you, but we manage to carry on and are looking forward to the day of victory which is not very far away."

A clipping enclosed with the letter taken from a British newspaper, lists details in connection with the clothing coupons.

How Coupon Plan Works
For instance, for a man's macintosh or overcoat, sixteen coupons are necessary; for trousers, eight coupons; for boots or shoes, seven coupons; for one pair of socks, three coupons; pajamas, eight coupons; woolen shirt, eight coupons; pair of gloves, two coupons; for a woman's coat or macintosh, fourteen coupons; a woolen dress, eleven coupons; slippers or shoes, five coupons; various undergarments, from three to eight coupons; one pair of stockings, two coupons; two handkerchiefs, one coupon.
Children's clothing requires a proportionately lower number of coupons per article, and no coupons are needed for children's clothing in sizes suitable for infants less than four years old. Other items for which no coupons are necessary include hats and caps, sewing thread, shoes, lace, black-out cloth dyed black or second-hand articles.

A Little Slow Getting Started

It is over a month since Mayor Williams announced the appointment of the local Defense Council and still the members have been unable to get together for an organization meeting. Perhaps some may not realize the importance of the task which has been assigned to them. They have a job to do now — not when some airplane starts dropping bombs from overhead — if that day should ever come.

Numerous organizations in Belleville are interested in various defense efforts and some are fairly well organized. It is the desire of the government that the activities of these people be coordinated under the leadership of the council. More than that, the education of the public to reduce purchase and the use of various commodities, which will, steadily increase, is being done through these councils.

It is not an honorary title for the members of this group, but one which requires work. We are not an alarmist, but at the same time we are not Munich-minded. It is our belief that preparedness is the best safeguard and that Belleville as a thickly populated residential community and as a manufacturing center should be ready and prepared for any situation which it may have to meet.

Recently, we visited in New England and were amazed at the preparedness work which has been done among the civilian population in several states through defense councils. In many instances the entire population has been registered and catalogued in various groups. Even in small towns, classes for air raid wardens, observation corps and first aid workers are being held weekly. The people do not want war any more than those in Missouri, but with traditional Yankee caution, they will tell you that they do not intend to be caught unguarded.

The problem of civilian defense is one which many of the public do not realize, but they should not be kept ignorant about it any longer than is absolutely necessary.

Some Are Ignoring The Appeal

From the present trend of their efforts, the defense petroleum control officials intend to make the gasoline station operator rather than the individual motorist the responsible person in the gasoline reduction effort. By cutting the amount of gasoline which companies will be permitted to sell to stations during a month, Coordinator Ickes and his staff are leaving it to the operator to dole out his supply that he can keep all of his customers and still not run short of gasoline.

This plan may be quite right and it may be well for officials to make appeals to the motorists' patriotism, such as Governor Edison's spiel this week asking all to meet the gasoline shortage "in the American way." But, there must have been many a station operator and motorist, too, who did some teeth-grashing when they read it. For, despite these ringing challenges to American patriotism, there are dealers who are and intend to keep pumping gasoline, come what may. However, we must say that this does not apply to any station in Belleville, at least from what we have been able to discover.

Still, it is a fact that some stations have defied the order and intend to keep right on selling as much as they can unless hit over the head with some hammer legislation. The same goes for some drivers who still tear along the highway as fast as possible, drive cars that leave behind them a quarter-mile smoke screen and waste as many miles as possible.

The action of the operators who have defied the shutdown order is unfair to every gasoline station owner or manager who has closed his doors at night, depriving himself of extra dollars in an effort to cooperate.

True, there is no legislation to enforce the gasoline curfew, but the major oil companies have offered their cooperation and the government should turn to them and request that they not sell gasoline to those stations which insist on violating the edict — even the so-called "emergency" stations — some of which it has been virtually proven are not operating solely for emergency purposes.

Many motorists are sincere in their desire to cooperate, as has been indicated by reports from service station operators, but there are still thousands who are not and the proof is in the figures that East Coast stations in the first full week's operation of the gasoline curfew pumped thirteen per cent more gasoline than they did for the corresponding week last year. It is this element which by its defiance of the government's request will force rationing and a hardship on those who have willingly cooperated.

Used Cars Come To The Front

There was a time when automobile dealers worried about the number of used cars which they had on their hands. Selling a customer a new car was one pleasure, but unloading the old one which had been taken in trade was another worry. Frequently, dealers found themselves in a temporarily bad business predicament because of the slow market in used automobiles.

But, such is not the case today. Most dealers wish they had more good used cars and those which they do have, they find will bring good prices. Definite curtailed production of new automobiles means that all of the people who want cars will not be able to get new ones. Many will find something to their liking in the used car field. With people in many industries making more money today than they have in more than a decade, they are looking to such luxuries as automobiles, even though there is a clamping down on the amount of gasoline which will be sold to run these cars.

Faced with the fact that there will be a cut in the production of new automobiles, present owners of cars should take the best care possible of what they now own. Because, with our defense efforts being stepped up every day and with new announcements of a shutdown in production of things to which we have been accustomed every week, the old buggy may have to run many more miles before it can be replaced with a new one.

Not Too Broke To Be Nuisance

The Erie Railroad is back in the news again. Erie trains have been so far and few between the past few years that many folks had forgotten that there was a railroad. A couple of trains to Jersey City and back again at night and none on Sunday has been the schedule for some time now.

Yet, it takes only one train to make an awful lot of noise and apparently from the reports we have been hearing some residents of the Valley section are getting tired of it. The irony of it all is that the railroad complains that it does not make enough money to run trains during the daytime, but it can send a rattler through in the early morning hours that awakens people out of sound sleep.

Train whistles, train bells and other things that make them noisy have been complained about for years, but now the Erie has a new one. They can't afford raise the gates. More than that, these crossings do not have warning lights.

So what happens? A milk train comes through Belleville in the early morning hours. It's one of those diesel-engined jobs that rattles all the windows and starts the dishes and glasses doing a dance in the pantry. This train, it seems, sneaks up to the crossing, stops. The motorman gets out and looks up and down the road to see if any cars are coming. If not, he starts up the motor with much whirring, spluttering and bell clanging and moves on to the next crossing a block away.

This can get quite annoying and when it happens night after night, we can't blame people for complaining. If the sleep of the people residing along the railroad is nightly being disturbed by this train, something should be done about it. Since the railroad is constantly claiming that it has one foot in the poorhouse because of no business, it probably would be a hard job to get them to put up crossing lights at some of the intersections where the train now finds it necessary to sneak across with much noise. However, if there were lights, the train could roll through without causing too much disturbance to the Valley residents.

Now, along with the butter, eggs, tea, coffee, sugar and other things which you get at the grocer's, you'll be able to buy defense savings bonds. The Treasury Department announced this week that retail stores throughout the country will cooperate. So don't be surprised if some patriotic grocer pops at you some day soon with: "How about some nice savings stamps today? We're giving away a package of tea with every $1 purchase of them."

ESSEX COUNTY POLITICS

The views expressed in this column, are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Editors of the Belleville News.

by Meador Wright

With the announcement of the complete tickets of the Herrigel-Adams group the issue with Clean Government for control of the Republican party in Essex is squarely drawn. Other tickets in the field — if they remain after the date for withdrawal has passed — will count for little or nothing. The Herrigel-Adams group plans to use the simple designation "Republican." By this means they hope by inference to brand Clean Government with promoting factionalism. Clean Government will reply by bringing forward Dr. Lester H. Clee who will state that it is the "Republican" group who are guilty of factionalism, that a few men for selfish reasons promoted inter-party fight in spite of his efforts to bring about a united front against the admittedly strong Democratic ticket.

Hitler, Hoffman and Hiroshito But fireworks will not be limited to the above. Clean Government leaders will use "Hoffmanism" as the ammunition for their heaviest artillery. They will tell the people in every valley and on every hilltop from Belleville to North Caldwell and from Short Hills to Nutley that it is the old Hoffman following that is trying to gain power under a new disguise.

Leaders of the Herrigel-Adams group scoff at this charge. Said one of them: "Harold Hoffman had the same part in selecting this ticket as Adolf Hitler, Joseph Stalin, the Mikado or the Angel Gabriel. If they thought they could get away with it, the Vanderbilt crowd would dub us the Hitler ticket. Their limit is public credulity. They want to win, that is all, and they will do anything or charge anything to bring that victory about."

Vanderbilt, Villani and Victory But the "Republican" group plans a little modest name-calling itself. Much will be made of the fact that some Pearce R. Franklin leaders, notably Commissioner Villani, have climbed on the Clean Government bandwagon. The alteration in the names of "Vanderbilt and Villani" is too tempting to resist and wherever two or three are gathered together that slogan will be heard. Arthur T. Vanderbilt's alleged bossism will be held up as a kind of modern "Hagueism," vicious to com-

The Mud-Stained Passaic

The outstanding feature of the campaign is that it will, probably be conducted under the shadow of the greatest public indifference in decades. With the fate of the whole planet being determined by the tremendous events that are taking place along the banks of the blood-stained Dnieper, residents of Essex are not likely to pay too much attention to the discolorations caused by a few handfuls of mud that may be thrown into the dreary Passaic.

The vote should be light and, theoretically, a light vote should help the group in power. But there are reports of considerable money flowing into the coffers of the challengers. Public sentiment is sometimes fickle in times like these. Another week or so should tell how the campaign is shaping up.

I am told that the committee headed by Roger Hinds has struck pay-dirt in its investigations of the State Highway Department. Fireworks are possible in Trenton any day now. And this is something the public will take notice of, war or no war.

Laurence Torley Talks About Dogs

New York, August 23 — The secret orders issued by the Chief of Signal Corps, with the approval of the Chief-of-Staff of Field Forces of the German Army, covering all details relating to the use of courier dogs in World War No. 1, are revealed in this country for the first time by Alexander G. Lewis in the September issue of the American Kennel Gazette, official magazine of The American Kennel Club.

Mr. Lewis came upon these orders some fifteen years ago, but then they were shelved, and he forgot them until he came to write his book on the history of the dog.

"In the early 1920s, a young French woman purchased a small farm near Pottersville, N. J., began to raise German shepherd dogs. Almost immediately the handful that populated the town started their tongues wagging. They disapproved of her smoking in public. They were alarmed to see her sometimes wearing pants . . . and they were shocked to find her living casually with a tubercular French veteran."

"First they condemned her as a sinful woman . . . Later word was passed around that she was a former German spy, just hanging around waiting for another war. Eventually unable to bear the talk, she deserted her cottage. . . . A typically curious youngster of the period, I searched the empty house with a pal, finding the original German orders about courier dogs. . . . The bold type said: 'Do Not Carry Into The Front-Line Trenches.'"

It is doubtful if these neighbors of the French women in New Jersey really had discovered another "Mata Hari," but the German orders certainly are revealing in their completeness. They prove again that those who oppose the German Army must overlook no slightest detail. And they give a hint, also, of the supreme value of secrecy even in the training of dogs for war.

Was Town Attorney

Mr. DeGraw made his entrance into the community's political life in 1909 when he became township counsel. Later when Belleville switched to the Town Commission form of government he became town attorney and served in that capacity until 1913. It was under his legal supervision that the steps for changing Belleville from a township to a town were first made. He also drafted the first building and sanitary codes and to his credit is also the fact that he was one of the strongest advocates for the adoption of a zoning ordinance to regulate the various types of building and development. Mr. DeGraw was also one of the leading proponents for the creation of the town engineering bureau and the improvement and lighting on Washington avenue.

The attorney was elected a member of the Town Commission first in 1922 and took charge of the Public Safety Department. When Mayor John H. Waters passed away while in office in February, 1925, Mr. DeGraw was voted the majority by his colleagues on the board.

Following the town election in 1926 when he and Frank Carragher were the only members of the old Commission to be returned to office by the voters, Mr. DeGraw passed through a short but most hectic and surprising period in his political career.

Elected with him and Carragher in the 1926 election were Samuel H. Kenworthy, Edward Nelson and William D. Clark, present commissioner who was then taking his departure from local political life. Mr. Kenworthy and Mr. DeGraw were on opposite sides of the political fence, each having supported opposition tickets in the campaign. In the organization of the board after election, Mr. Kenworthy was elected mayor and Mr. Clark and Mr. DeGraw were stripped of their power as commissioners. Mr. DeGraw was named Director of Parks and Public Property, but when the Shade Tree Commission was removed from his department. Although Mr. Clark was named Director of Public Safety, the control of the police and fire departments was delegated to another commissioner.

Resigns from Board

Mr. DeGraw was bitter at the action of the board majority and let his resentment be known by not attending several of the town meetings. Not only the political element but the entire town was shocked on July 13, less than two months after the election, when the lawyer submitted his resignation as a member of the Commission. In so doing, he stated that he felt that an injustice had been done him and the citizens who had voted for him in removing from his control the duties which would have been nominally delegated to his department.

The board subsequently appointed Patrick A. Waters, then a school commissioner, to fill the vacancy and it marked the debut of Waters as an active figure in the town Commission ranks.

His walkout on the Town Commission did not end Mr. DeGraw's part in political life. Always an active Republican party worker and campaign contributor, he announced in the spring of 1928 that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress. Congressman Fred A. Hartley, who was then a Kearny councilman, was his opponent.

Losses to Hartley

Mr. DeGraw waged a strong campaign, well backed by his local supporters. However, he was defeated by Hartley 11,120 to 10,247. The Kearny man's primary victory proved to be the stepping-stone to the political career which has kept him in Congress continually since 1928. For he went on to win the general election in November.

Mr. DeGraw was active in a number of civic and fraternal organizations. He was president of the Rotary Club in 1930 and was also a member of Belleville Lodge No. 108, F. & A. M., Jr. O. M. E., the local lodge of Elks and the L. O. F. For the past nineteen years he had been a member of the Silver Lake Welfare Association and served as a trustee of the old Belleville Club in 1911. An active member of the Wesley Methodist Church, he served as the president of the board of trustees from 1921 to 1931. Mr. DeGraw served a number of years as counsel for the Home, North Belleville and Silver Lake Building & Loan associations.

Arrangements were being made last night to have Rev. Herbert Lytle, former pastor at Wesley Methodist Church, officiate at the services. It was not definitely known then whether the pastor, who is vacationing in Ocean Grove, would be able to come or not.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Helen M. DeGraw; a son, John Burr DeGraw, editor and publisher of the Fairhaven (Mass.) Star and for a number of years a member of The News staff; and a grandson.

Interment will be in Clinton Cemetery, Irvington.

Mass on Saturday Morning For Joseph V. Salmon

A requiem mass for Joseph Vincent Salmon will be offered Saturday morning at 9:15 in St. Mary's Church, Nutley. Mr. Salmon, a former member of the Essex County Park Police, died Tuesday night in St. Francis Hospital, Newark.

He had been troubled with a kidney condition for some months. Mr. Salmon was thirty-four years old.

For the past four months he had been employed in the office of Arthur L. Mayer, realtor. He had served twelve years with the county police, most of that as a motorcycle patrolman.

In addition to his wife, the former Marie M. McNally, he is survived by an eight-year-old son, Joseph V., Jr.; his father, Joseph A.; two brothers, William and John, all of Newark; and a sister, Mrs. Florence Ireland of this town.

Big Bad Robert Taylor

Priscilla Lawson does her best to intrigue Robert Taylor in this scene from "Billy the Kid," even to the extent of having Jacquin Carey supply a romantic musical background on his guitar. The new picture, filmed in spectacular Technicolor, is now on the Capitol screen, and presents Taylor in the first Western role of his career. The co-feature is "Cheers for Miss Bishop," starring Martha Scott in her finest dramatic role with William Gargan.

GLASS MAKING ART IS REVIVED

Closing of European Centres Starts Craftsmen on New Endeavor

It is a fact easy to recognize that glass making in the United States has been largely a commercial undertaking in the past fifty years. Its wholesale use for containers, enormously improved display purposes and a vital part of the construction of homes, factories and automobiles has far exceeded the output of purely decorative objects. In the meantime much perishable tableware and many objects of art have come from Europe.

Now it is being observed, with the closing of glass manufacturing there, that the craft is once more taking hold in America and a new period of design is bound to unfold. Fortunately, there are craftsmen here who have been schooled in the art of blowing glass through as many as five generations. The current exponents, however, will undoubtedly evolve new interpretations and much of the glassware which we buy today will, for all time, preserve a unique handicraft development.

Typical of the new design is the simple bud vase illustrated. Although its solid little base prevents it from tipping, and thereby makes it much more serviceable for use in the home, grace and delicacy are preserved in its flowing lines. Suitably enough it is undecorated to cause no distraction from the beauty of the specimen which will be placed in it.

Many people have still in use or have recently purchased crank freezers which produce ice cream of a smoother consistency than that made in the refrigerator. This illustrates the fact that motion and incorporation of air into the mixture is necessary for best results. However, ice cream which is removed to a chilled bowl for a thorough beating once during the freezing process in the refrigerator and stirred again at intervals is usually a very satisfying dish. The following seasonal recipes are designed for either:

It Should Have Been Mary, Not Harry Ugliarolo

Through a typographical error in last week's report in The News of those entered in the Republican county committee slate for the September Primaries, a mistake was made in the group from the first district of the Fourth Ward where a two-way fight is being waged.

Instead of Harry Ugliarolo of 36 Florence avenue, it should have been Mary Ugliarolo. Running under the Regular Republican designation with Thomas Trabucco of 34 Florence avenue, she is opposing Salvatore Russo of 28 Florence avenue and Lena Roselli of 63 Florence avenue, Clean Government candidates for the committee post.

Modish, Two-Piece Selection

Now Is Time To Select That Dress For Fall

Let this be the season when you select your basic dress for fall and winter while the choicest designs are available in a variety of materials and shades.

And that means immediately! Practically every desirable new feature appears in the sheer wool two-piece dress above. It is interchangeable as suit or dress; it has slimming lines and "just-right" shoulders; it can be varied with a wide selection of accessories. Now is also the time to think seriously about the most becoming and practical of the deep fall colors in which you are going to select your most important frock. Around it you will soon find yourself reconstructing last year's costumes or buying new ones.

There are a few items which seem to be sufficiently outstanding that they will have to be given consideration in every new wardrobe. One is the fact that sleeves in fur and cloth coats and dresses will have many new lines, ranging from the gently sloped shoulder to the extreme dolman sleeve. It will pay to try on each style and be positive that the one you select really flatters you.

The willowy figure, for instance, is flattered by the "top-heaviness" of the dolman sleeve, while those who are generously proportioned above the waist do not benefit by it. The use of decorative cuffs does much to focus interest and break the height of the tall figure while it accents the width of the short, stout person.

Tunic Dress Popular

The same cautions may be expressed about the tunic dress which will have great popularity this fall. However, in furs there seems to be much in favor of the figure which is not too tall or slim. Silky, sheered pelts and the flat curled type like broadtail, Persian and flat caracul are much in evidence and are cut with slim waists and graceful skirts and sleeves. In dresses the slim skirt effect is often achieved by stitched down pleats — a boon to any wearer.

"Fuss and feathers"—and dashing colors—have risen to the head where velvet and feathers will repose in lieu of hats. This is at least true of the dressy type of headgear. American beauty, rich browns, blues, purple and green are favored. On the whole the American trend to simplify one's coats and dresses (which is much the best for the figure) and let one's hats express the fanciful and daring is holding its place. And a good one it is.

Magae Points To Changes In Responsibility Law

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Arthur W. Magae this week called attention to two important changes in the New Jersey Financial Responsibility Law, effective since July 28.

The purpose of the law change is to remove from the highways financially irresponsible owners and drivers who have failed to satisfy judgments resulting from their own negligence. The law formerly provided for the revocation of licenses of those failing to satisfy judgments in excess of $100. The amendment calls for the revocation of licenses where a defendant has failed to satisfy a judgment in excess of $25, within thirty days after the date the judgment becomes final. The law provides, however, for installment payments of judgments. Defendants in this class are also required to prove evidence to the Motor Vehicle Department of financial responsibility for future accidents for a period of three years after the judgment becomes final.

The other important change pertains to motorists who have avoided compliance with the financial responsibility law by undergoing bankruptcy proceedings. Since July 28, a discharge in bankruptcy following a judgment against an owner or operator resulting from a motor vehicle accident, no longer relieves him of any requirements of the act.

Grace Moore Is Secured For Griffith Concert Series

Grace Moore, star of the Metropolitan, screen and radio, and Joseph Szigeti, noted Hungarian violinist, will replace Fritz Kreisler in the Griffith Music Foundation major concert series for the season 1941-42.

An injury suffered by Mr. Kreisler in an automobile accident last spring has left in doubt his availability for the date originally scheduled, necessitating a change by the local sponsors. The new schedule, as announced by Mrs. Parker O. Griffith, president of the Foundation, follows: November 10, the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo; December 15, Grace Moore; January 19, the Schola Cantorum, Hugh Ross conductor; February 9, the Cleve-
