

War Relief Groups To Benefit From Chest Campaign Next Fall

An expansion to include several war relief agencies and the changing of its name was announced this week by the directors of the Belleville Welfare federation. The new title of the organization will be the Belleville Community Chest and Council.

New agencies which have been added to the council and will benefit from its annual drive are the U. S. O. and the navy and army relief societies. The inclusion of these three will eliminate independent drives to raise funds for each. While a campaign was held here early last summer to raise $4,500 for the U. S. O., the army and navy groups have not previously sought funds on a town-wide scale locally.

It is understood that the new title has been adopted to avoid confusion with the municipal welfare department which is town-operated. Confusion has frequently come up through telephone calls and appeals from individuals who have sought service from one of the organizations because of their similarity of titles.

Kittle Is Head
Hugh D. Kittle, high school principal, who was president of the federation, has been elected head of the re-organized group. Other officers are Paul deHagara, vice-president; Joseph F. Howley, treasurer; and John S. Charlton, executive secretary.

Other participating organizations who will benefit from the annual community chest drive for funds are the Visiting Nurses' association, Boy and Girl Scouts, Community Service bureau and the Silver Lake Community house.

Two committees are directly concerned with the drive which will be held early in the fall. The finance committee, a standing body, which will shortly release the amount of the budget and the appropriations for each agency, is headed by James M. Lynch, a member of the board of education. The budget represents the amount which will be sought in the chest drive. Other members of the committee are Luther Van Pelt, Martin Cosgrove, Andrew Salkeld, Mrs. John Denike and

Again Campaign Manager

At the meeting of the campaign committee held Tuesday at the home of its chairman, George Newman, of 24 Hewitt avenue, Kittle was elected the campaign chairman. He was the director of the last chest drive. Other members of the committee are Roy O. Price, Elwood P. Russell, Max Seiler, Mrs. R. L. Lunsford, Mrs. Frank Ackerman, W. Douglas Clark, Jr. and Kittle.

While there has been no indication of the amount which will be sought in the chest drive, it is known that it will be considerably higher than last year. In addition to the three war agencies which have been added to the list of those benefiting, the other groups are expected to request more money because of the increased demands made upon them for service.

18-19 YOUTHS TO SIGN UP TUESDAY

War comes closer to the youth of the community next Tuesday when those boys who are 18 and 19 years old will register for the draft. The high school will be open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. and it is estimated that between 300 and 400 will be registered.

Although the schools are closed, a number of the teachers who are still in town have volunteered to take over the job of doing the registering as they have done in the past. This will relieve the draft board staff which is already burdened down with more work than it is able to handle. Miss Sadie Slusser, draft clerk, and the board members, John P. Butler, chairman, and J. H. H.

will be on hand throughout the day to supervise the registration. All youths must register who were born on or after January 1, 1922, and on or before June 30, 1924.

More than 400 men, it is said, have been saved from a watery grave by a new lapel torch recently perfected by industry. Worn on the life jacket, the torch's glowing red bulb leads rescue vessels to men who otherwise might not be found in a dark sea.

HEAVY HITTING IN BOTH LOOPS

Heavy clouting marked play in both the national and American circuits in the recreation department's industrial softball competition this week. The battle for the leadership failed to change with Walter Kidde and Lloyd Engineering still neck and neck in the national circuit and Carson-Newton and the Federal Leather teams remaining in a tie for first place in the American loop.

The Kidde entry in the national league kept on top by belting the Newark Wire boys 14-9, while the Lloyd team went on a 19-hit spree to swarm over the Sonneborn club 17-2.

Win First Game

The Resistoflex club won its first game of the season after four straight losses, trimming the Bart Laboratory team 7-3.

Wallace & Tiernan was no match for the loop-leading Carson-Newton swatters, bowing 12-3 before the 10-hit attack of the winners.

With Meyers, Cappy, Bosco and Breen each pounding the ball for three hits, the Federal Leathermen made every one of their 19 hits count as they ran roughshod over the Viking Tool softballers 19-2.

St. Peter's Girls Receive Child Hygiene Diplomas

Miss Margaret Mulholland, R. N., district supervisor, bureau of maternal and child health, state department of health, this week awarded certificates to girls in the eighth grade in St. Peter's school, who have completed a course in child hygiene, home nursing and care of the sick. Miss Mulholland stated home nursing and care of the sick would be a required subject for all eighth grade and junior high school girls starting during the next semester.

In her address Miss Mulholland stated that "During this period of total war it now becomes more important than ever to have some knowledge of home nursing. For instance, to know how to make a bed properly, bathe a baby, proper feeding and dressing of a baby, a knowledge of personal hygiene and the danger of the common cold, proper nutrition and all the other subjects you have learned and discussed during your course in child hygiene. This knowledge should aid you in being very helpful in the home or in an emergency, should one occur.

"Each one of you should be in a position to become a stronger, fitter citizen by carrying out that part of a wholesome schedule for which you have fitted yourselves. Examples are: Getting enough sleep, at least eight hours each night; eating and enjoying wholesome foods, including milk, vegetables, fruit and whole grain cereals or bread; and working and engaging in a suitable type of recreation daily.

"In closing my only hope is that some of you have received an incentive that will guide you toward choosing nursing as a profession as nurses are needed now as never before in the history of our country. So, when planning your high school subjects be sure, if you plan to enter a hospital, to discuss with your guidance teachers those subjects you will need to enter training for a nurse."

Over-Confidence!

What does a football coach fear in a winning team more than anything else? Over-confidence!

This country needs to get away from the feeling that we may lose in the beginning but are bound to win in the end. We need to realize how badly we have been beaten in the first months of the war—with the loss of Hong Kong, Singapore, Manila, Corregidor, Java, Burma, the Burma Road, and last of all, the airfields of Eastern China from which Japan could have been bombed.

Before too late, let us bend with a will to do our part to bring about a possible victory. Bombers and more bombers for Tokio—and Bonds and more Bonds to pay for them!

Keep Away From The River

This is the season when the thoughts of many youngsters—and adults, too—turn to swimming to help keep cool on hot afternoons. Most parents have undoubtedly warned their children about the dangers of playing or swimming in the Passaic river. Many times in the past, at this time of the year, there have been notices from the health standpoint stating the river was not fit for bathing.

However, this time we are taking for granted that the river is just as unsanitary as it has been in previous years. The swimming season is young yet, but tragedy has already struck three times in less than a month in the river off the Belleville shoreline. Three young boys have been drowned. This is something for parents to think about and advise that it may be wise to make their warnings about playing or swimming in the river, which has many dangerous spots, even stronger than that which they may have previously said.

Unfortunately, except for the small pool in the Friendly house in Silver Lake there is no place in town for the youngsters to swim. But, there is no point in troubling ourselves about it now or advocating that a pool, or several of them be built. Materials that such a project would take and the labor that it would require is now urgently needed for the war effort. But—keep children away from the Passaic river.

The Important Job Of Telling The News

Many may not easily comprehend the importance of the appointment of a man such as Elmer Davis, radio commentator, well-known author and a former newspaperman, to head the government's bureau of news and propaganda.

In this war, more than any other in history, propaganda has been a weapon that has been wielded as well and with as much effect as an army of thousands. Even in the years before the war, while we of the allied nations were still lolling in complacency, the Nazis were demonstrating their skilled use of it—and through stories and speeches dripping with fear—they gained their point.

Today, the United States is working as rapidly as it can, principally through the use of short wave radio, to gain propaganda supremacy and have the allied side of the war story told in the most places in far-flung foreign corners of the earth.

Even on the home front propaganda and the proper presentation of news have their important place. It has taken many stories to jar people to the realization that there was such a thing as a war and that we were a part of it and had a part to perform.

Most newspapers in the months since the start of the war have realized, and many of them said, that the control of the dispensation of war news has been in the hands of too many inexperienced people. Clashes between the various military branches have been numerous. While one office might agree that a story should be given to the public, the objections of another would delay it.

While the army and navy, in many instances, may have been willing to issue plans of material describing victories or gains in minute detail, there has been a great inclination to minimize the truth about bad news.

Several weeks ago, the government leaders were somewhat worried about the over-optimism among people in certain parts of the country. The fact that the slogan "the war will be over by December" was spreading rapidly prompted even the president to warn against over-confidence. However, it is the government agencies themselves which have been largely responsible for creating such a state. The sooner that official Washington realizes that the best way to deal with the public is squarely, the better it will be. Building their hopes high and then suddenly letting them down is the worst thing that could be done.

We do not know how far Mr. Davis's sphere of control will reach but we have observed during the past week the type of news emphasis with which we are unable to agree.

Headlines screamed in bold black type that a ship—presumably a Jap submarine—had shelled the coast of Oregon. Except for digging up some dirt, it apparently did no harm and certainly could not be termed as having had any great military value. Yet, in the very same paper, tucked well back in the inner pages, with much less emphasis on the headlines, was an admission from Washington that in 12 days 13 allied merchant ships had been torpedoed and sunk by U-boats which are daily marauding shipping in the Caribbean sea.

Which was the most important story? That about a Japanese vessel holding target practice off an Oregon sandbar or one letting us know that the German menace is striking telling blows to merchant shipping, and that many American men are going down with their ships which are plying the seas to get supplies to our troops and to those of the allied nations.

Displaying the news is each newspaper's job. There's no point in being over-sensational about anything that happens in this war for it does not need it.

Vandals At Work Once More

Vandalism seems to rise and fall. There is a siege of it and then the destructive pranksters disappear—either ashamed of themselves or to search for some other outlet for their twisted mentalities.

Several times in the past week we have had calls from residents complaining about the after-dark thefts and destruction of lawn and garden decorations in some of the more attractive parts of town. What young boys—and in most cases they are—can see in destroying other people's property is difficult to comprehend. It is not that they have not been told, for they have heard the story many times.

Teaching Students American History

An interesting nation-wide survey has just been made by the New York Times. One, we think, which should make every educator think a few times about the role which he plays in the war effort and in moulding better Americans with a true and constant belief in democracy.

Of colleges and universities surveyed, The Times found that 82 percent of them do not require the study of United States history for an undergraduate degree. Likewise, it was learned that 72 percent of the colleges do not require United States history as an admission requirement.

This simply means that many students go through high school and college—eight years or more of education—without having learned one thing about the history of their own country. The survey showed that less than 10 percent of those enrolled this spring were studying American history. Of the freshmen in colleges, only eight percent were studying history of their own country, but ironically enough 30 percent were taking courses in world or European history.

Of the 690 institutions surveyed, 69 percent agreed that it should be made a required subject. However, others clung to the theory that under our democratic system, students should be free to study what they want.

Editorially The Times observes in part: "Particularly distressing is the fact that a majority of students go through four years of college, enter a professional or graduate school, leave with one or more degrees—presumably as educated members of the community—without having taken even one course in American history. It is difficult to visualize a truly educated person who is unaware of the background of the United States."

Further on the editorial notes: "To make American history a required course for mature students of college age does not appear to be an undue imposition. As we look ahead to post-war problems, it is essential that we develop men and women with love and devotion for our democratic ideals. Obviously, you cannot teach patriotism by edict, nor develop a genuine love of nation by legislative act. It would be unrealistic to believe that a course in American history can work miracles. Yet we may be optimistic enough to feel that a more thorough understanding of the American way of life, a deeper appreciation of its magnificent past and promising future, would leave their mark upon young minds."

Fortunately, it can be said in New Jersey's favor, that its educational directors require that students have one year of American history before they are eligible for high school graduation. However, that is little enough, for it is difficult to cram the story of America's past, the growth of democracy and the all-important phases of our government into one small year's teaching. Colleges, many of which have devoted professors to lead students in involved studies of a score of foreign governments and their philosophies, could well make the study of the history of this country a required course.

Today, we must build among our youth an undying and devoted love of country and good citizenship so that they may take their rightful place in the community. How can we accomplish this without teaching them of this nation and its past?

Odds and Ends From Other Pens

Paying For Victory

No matter how much the war costs, no price is too great to pay for victory. Patriotic Americans are willing to do whatever must be done to beat the axis. But what is the best way of raising money for carrying on the fight? That's one of the big questions in Washington now as congress gets ready to work on a new tax bill.

Although in some quarters there is opposition to a national sales tax, many congressmen continue to believe that it offers the best way of raising the needed funds and putting a check on inflation at the same time.

Statistics indicate that taxes on corporations are already so high that any further increase might seriously threaten their ability to manufacture war supplies with all possible speed and at the same time make adequate provision for the expanded post-war production that will be needed to provide jobs for the returning soldiers. A recent study of 100 large manufacturing companies shows that under existing rates 54 percent of their 1941 income was taken in federal income and excess profits taxes, compared with 34 percent in 1940. Even without the new high taxes that have been proposed, these companies were able to retain only 2 percent of their 1941 sales to provide necessary working capital, expand their plants and keep their equipment in repair.

So far as higher income taxes are concerned, they, too, fail to furnish all the money that is needed now. At least 75 percent of the entire national income goes to people who make less than $5,000 a year. A general sales tax offers an easier way of enabling them to help pay for the war than heavier income taxes would, for in millions of instances income taxes are falling due when taxpayers have not saved enough money to pay them.

Probably no method of taxation is perfect. But, in view of the existing high taxes on individual and corporate incomes, many tax experts maintain that a sales tax offers an easy way for every American to help pay for winning the war.

Hobbling The Giant

Writing in Nation's Business, Fred DeArmond makes a very complete survey of the rubber situation. In it, he says this: "Fearing that the synthetic program does not take adequate account of civilian needs, the Petroleum Industry War council has offered a resolution asking for an additional 300,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year to be earmarked for that use. According to one authority, it takes about a ton of steel to produce annually a ton of synthetic rubber. If that is true, one day's output of the steel industry—300,000 tons—would meet the possible extra need as now visualized. Regarded in that light, it isn't a lot of steel."

"The American share of the St. Lawrence waterway project alone will call for more than 125,000 tons of steel. Which do we need more—enough tires to keep our cars in service, or more dams?"

It is estimated that, if no new tires are made available to the public, there will be only 3,900,000 non-priority cars on the road in 1945 as against about 27,000,000 at the present time. The effect of that on a country which has been literally built on motor-car transportation is almost impossible to visualize. Even now, the drain on public transportation systems is becoming dangerously heavy in many areas. Take this country off rubber-tired wheels—and incredible confusion will result.

Extraordinary progress has been made in developing practical synthetic rubber from oil and coal. Still greater progress is forecast for the near future. Certainly a way can be found to provide the necessary steel needed for building the synthetic rubber plants—and one of the best ways would be to stop building public power dams which are not needed, and which cannot be completed for many years. It is right and proper to conserve rubber to the limit. It is also right and proper to make every possible effort to provide an adequate synthetic rubber supply, as soon as possible, in the interest of national defense—for if the automobile wheels of this country are actually brought to a standstill, it will be like a giant bound hand and foot.

Business Can't Operate At A Loss

It is one thing to freeze prices at reasonable and equitable levels as a bar against inflation. It is a very different thing to establish arbitrary price standards which cut deeply into the modest earnings of basic industries.

Gasoline is an example of that. Due to the loss and transfer of tankers, it is necessary to ship gas overland at a far higher transportation cost. But the government has not permitted the oil companies to raise their retail gasoline prices to compensate for this. As a result, one major oil company reports that in April alone the additional expense totaled $2,300,000. All oil companies are in much the same position.

Many similar examples can be found in the field of retail merchandising. Because the general price-freezing order made no allowance for the wide "lag" that has existed between wholesale and retail prices, stores are legally bound to sell many items at little or no profit whatsoever—and to sell some items at a loss. They are thus being directly and heavily penalized for their successful voluntary efforts to hold prices down. Economists in touch with the situation say that thousands of stores, in all retail fields, may be forced out of business unless the price order is corrected.

Prices must be controlled. But there is nothing sound in a price control policy that does not allow a store or an industry to add legitimate and unavoidable increases in operating cost to the price charged for its products. No business, no matter how big or rich, can operate without a profit. And no business which is stripped of its earning power can pay today's gigantic taxes and contribute its due share to the war effort.

Gas Offensive Next?

For years Britain has been preparing for chemical warfare, with the view to resorting to it in event the enemy chose that method of attack. It is reported that some of the most deadly gases yet discovered have been developed by the British. If Germany decides to use gas, Britain is prepared to launch a gas offensive on a scale undreamed of during the first World War.

The development of large bombers is a factor in gas warfare. It is possible to spray any liquid gas from the air merely by replacing the bomb rack with tanks of chemicals. The gas is released at an altitude of about five miles and reaches the ground as a fine mist. To spray a city the size of the German capital effectively, several hundred bombers would be required.

Without considering the new types of gases reported developed, there are a large number which have long been available. Some are acute lung irritants, such as chlorine and phosgene. Others are tear gases which, even in low concentrations, make vision temporarily impossible.

There are paralytics which, in sufficiently high concentrations, cause death almost instantaneously by their effect on the nervous systems. There are others which cause sneezing, intense pain in the eyes, nose and throat, and nausea. There are vesicants, such as mustard gas, which cause inflammation of the skin, eyes and respiratory tract.

Of the group, only the acute lung irritants and the paralytics are regarded as lethal agents. Tear and sneezing gases put a man out of action immediately, though temporarily, while the vesicants, like mustard gas, are delayed in action but have great casualty-producing power.

The use of gas in the first world war accounted for approximately 800,000 casualties, including 70,552 Americans. While 27 percent of all American casualties were caused by gas, only 2 percent resulted in death. Of the other 73 percent of battle casualties, more than 24 percent resulted in death.

In total war such as the present conflict civilians at work on the production lines apparently are regarded as fair targets, since there is no disposition to withhold bombing from industrial objectives. A fleet of planes spraying gas from the air could make useless for a considerable period entire sections of industrial towns.

The United States must prepare against the eventuality of gas attacks by raiding planes. The increasing amount of talk concerning the imminence of chemical warfare should serve to speed up the making and distribution of gas masks, the formation of civilian groups to detect oncoming planes and to report their activities, and the setting up of decontamination squads so that paralysis of production in sprayed areas may be as brief as possible.

ESSEX COUNTY POLITICS

The views expressed in this column, are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville News.

by Meador Wright

The chickens are coming home to roost as regards New Jersey finances. Those who have taken the trouble to analyze probable conditions are not surprised at this. Students of government realized as soon as the Japanese began their now famous infiltration march to Singapore that New Jersey finances were in for trouble. They knew that more than half of the state's total revenues were derived from motor driven transport. Motor driven vehicles all run on rubber, and most of them burn gasoline for fuel.

What has happened to our rubber supply is now known to all. What may happen to our motor fuel supply is beginning to be realized. It doesn't take a military strategist to realize that the Germans are now dangerously close to the total remaining supply of crude oil outside of the western hemisphere. The oil fields of Iraq, Iran and the Caucasus are so close to each other that if one falls all are likely to go under.

Their capture would mean that the United States and its Caribbean allies would have to supply the total petroleum needs of all the allied nations except for the relatively small Siberian production.

Moreover, it would have to supply those needs by means of sea transportation at a time when the submarine and bombing plane are especially effective against the oil tanker. The huge armies of Russia and the naval and air forces of England and America would be immobilized without their petroleum life blood. We know they will not be immobilized, and hence we can conclude that further military setbacks in the Near East are likely to sever the very jugular vein of New Jersey's government income. When there is no oil for civilians to use, there is no oil for the government to tax.

Cut Expenses

What then would New Jersey do to replace the 50 million dollars a year it receives from petroleum consuming vehicles? There are several possible answers but Comptroller Homer C. Zink of Belleville has the best one. Cut expenses, says Zink, until existing revenues and gasoline are adequate.

To the layman this may sound easy, but in practice it is immensely difficult. Total state government expenses would have to be almost halved. This is practically impossible in many instances. The huge cost of debt service cannot be lowered at all except where payments of principal can be postponed. Some government institutions such as prisons and hospitals are finding it difficult to get along under their present budgets.

But everyone knows that many costs can be cut. This column has called attention to two items in this year's state budget! One was the item for additional clerical help in Commissioner Magee's motor vehicle department. The other was for the New Jersey advertising council. We dropped in to see Mr. Magee in Trenton last week and took our medicine for what he still considers an unjustifiable attack on him. His answer to the criticism over additional help—and on the surface it is a good one—is that motor vehicle registrations this year will probably average "very near" what they were last year. He says his staff was overworked last year, hence it was good business to hire additional help. We have never heard a justification

A & P To Buy Waste Fats, Greases From Housewives

Cooperating with the war production board's drive to salvage waste fats and greases from the nation's kitchens, the A & P Tea company announced this week that beginning the first week in July such waste will be purchased from housewives at meat counters of its stores throughout the country.

Considered one of the most important salvage programs proposed by the WPB, the effort is aimed at increasing the nation's supply of glycerin, a fat derivative vital in the production of explosives for bombs and shells. Estimating that 2,000,000,000 pounds of household cooking fats are wasted each year, WPB hopes to effect the salvage of one-quarter of this amount.

Housewives, who will be kept informed of the program through company advertising, will be asked to save fats in large-mouth metal containers which may be brought to meat counters in quantities of a pound or over, the announcement said. WPB has requested housewives to keep the fat in clean containers and in a cool place until taken to the store where prevailing rates will be paid, the company reselling the fats to rendering concerns under regulations laid down by the WPB.

The chairman of an automobile concern recently disclosed that the company's plants alone were delivering $5,000,000 worth of war materials daily.

Allwood Girl Is Soloist For Final Stadium Concert

One of New Jersey's own musicians, Patricia Travers of Allwood, will be violin soloist at the last stadium concert of the Essex County Symphony society Tuesday evening at City Schools stadium, Newark. Artur Rodzinski of the Cleveland orchestra will conduct.

In her brief 14 years, Patricia Travers has already proved herself a mature violin virtuoso in appearances with the New York Philharmonic symphony orchestra, the National Orchestral association of New York, the Chicago symphony and civic orchestras, the Detroit and Harrisburg orchestras and other noted music organizations.

Patricia is the daughter of a lawyer and the first professional musician in her family.
The program Tuesday evening consists entirely of Russian compositions. Miss Travers will play the Tchaikowsky Concerto and Dr. Rodzinski will conduct the orchestra in Tchaikowsky's Fifth Symphony and the Classical Symphony of Prokofieff to be heard for the first time at the stadium concerts.

7,464 Licenses Revoked In First Five Months

All previous records for driver license revocations were broken by the courts and motor vehicle department during the first five months of the year, according to Commissioner Arthur W. Magee who reported today a total of 7,464 revocations, an increase of 56 per cent over the corresponding period of last year.

CARE!

Care of your electric cleaner can produce longer, more efficient service. Here's how!—Empty dirt bag thoroughly after each cleaning—Keep brushes free of hair, threads, lint—Avoid running cleaner over pins, tacks, clips and other foreign objects.

CARE!

Care of your electric refrigerator results in more efficient operation and may actually increase its life. Here's how!—Be sure to defrost regularly so that excessive ice does not cake on freezing unit. (This must be done more frequently in summer than in winter)—Avoid leaving door open because an open refrigerator door wastes electricity—Keep refrigerator clean by periodic washing inside with a weak baking soda or borax solution.

SPARE FUSES

It is wise to keep an extra supply of fuses within easy reach of the fuse box. Know how to replace burned out fuses and NEVER use a makeshift substitute. Ask electrician about type and size needed in your home and consult him if fuses blow out frequently.

New Auto Tax Stamp Goes on Windshield

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Arthur W. Magee announced this week the promulgation of a regulation concerning the display of the new federal use tax stamps which must be attached to all vehicles with motive power in use on or after July 1.
The new regulation permits the display of the new stamp on a windshield provided it is affixed on the inside at or near the middle of the upper margin of the windshield. On the great majority of vehicles, this will mean that the stamp will be in back of the interior rear view mirror as viewed from the driver's seat.

The new regulation results from the fact that the new use tax stamp has spaces on the reverse side in which to enter information about the car. Furthermore, unlike the previous edition, the new stamp has adhesive on the face and thus is appropriate for display in the manner described in the regulation.
The stamps are now on sale at all post offices but the enforcement of the law is under the jurisdiction of the U. S. bureau of internal revenue.

Grounds were that the testimony did not show that Mische was under the influence of intoxicating liquor at the time he drove his car.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

TO EVERY CITIZEN

Here is the Whole Story on

WAR DAMAGE INSURANCE

MAYBE you didn't know it, but immediately after the assault on Pearl Harbor, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones announced that war damage . . . that is, damage caused by enemy action or resistance to enemy action . . . would be paid for by your Government.

This was a temporary measure and will terminate at midnight June 30th.

Beginning July 1st, you will be required to pay the cost of repairing damage to your own property caused by war action, just as you now are required to pay for repairing the damage caused by an ordinary fire or other destructive force. BUT . . .

... YOU CAN NOW INSURE against such damage in much the same manner as you insure against fire, wind-storm, explosion, etc., and for a surprisingly moderate premium. This War Damage Insurance has been worked out by the leading fire insurance companies in co-operation with the War Damage Corporation.

It may be applied to dwellings, house-hold goods, personal effects, factories, churches, stores, stocks of merchandise, apartments, automobiles . . . in fact, to just about anything . . . such policies will protect you for the duration of the war upon payment of moderate premiums, between $1. and $3. per $1,000. per year for most classes of property.

The National Association of Insurance Agents, of which the Essex County Insurance Agents Association is a unit, has volunteered the services of its members in effecting the distribution of this War Damage Insurance on a cost-of-service (no profit) basis, in order to contribute to the War effort and avoid the expense of a new government agency. Thus, to secure this new War Damage Insurance, all you need to do is to contact immediately one of the Belleville members of the Association by personal call or telephone.

There isn't much time left to arrange for this War Damage Insurance, which is available only on a cash-with-order basis.

Prompt cooperation will protect your property.

VICTORY BOOK DRIVE HALTED

Temporarily Discontinued Because of Gasoline and Tire Rationing

The collection of books for the Victory Book campaign, in which the local library has been taking a leading part, has been discontinued for the present.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Shattuck, librarian, announced this week that she had received a letter from J. E. Etzkorn, state director of the campaign, announcing that because of the present rationing of gas and tires, it has been difficult to gather the books for delivery to camps.

Etzkorn said that 329,347 books were collected and distributed from Jersey during May.

Mrs. Shattuck requests that anyone having books to donate keep them on hand at home until notice is given that libraries will again accept them.
