

Canteen Instruction Course Opens Sept. 1 At Wesley

A course in canteen instruction for those who have completed the standard Red Cross nutrition classes will be opened Tuesday evening, September 1, at Wesley Methodist church. Classes will be held each Tuesday and Thursday evening from 8 to 10. Mrs. Roy O. Price of Lloyd place will be the instructor.

Although nutrition courses will be offered later under the supervision of the Red Cross nutrition committee, those in charge are anxious to enroll all women who now hold nutrition certificates and have not yet had an opportunity to qualify for canteen work. Those desirous of signing up for the present course should contact Miss Esther Adams at Red Cross headquarters or by telephone. Miss Adams may be reached in the morning at Belleville 2-1843 and in the afternoon at Belleville 2-2111. John J. Hewitt is chairman of the nutrition committee.

DRISCOLL GIVES WOMAN LICENSE

ABC Head Acts When Town Fails To Comply With His Order

Because of the failure of the town commission to comply with his order, State Alcoholic Beverage Commissioner Alfred Driscoll on Saturday issued a license to Mrs. Santa Nappa of 52 Belmont avenue to operate a tavern at 14 Belmont avenue.

The ABC head had sent an order to the town board on August 5 ordering that the license be issued. Last Tuesday night, the commissioners balked at acting on Driscoll's request because of the receipt of a letter from the liquor division of the state tax board asking that action on the transfer and issuance of a new license to Mrs. Nappa be withheld.

Driscoll's order followed a refusal of the town to grant a transfer of a tavern license from the estate of Florence Core to Mrs. Nappa and the issuance of a new license on July 2. Mrs. Nappa's attorney appealed to the ABC board.

After hearing the evidence presented by the town, represented by Attorney Lawrence E. Keenan, and Mrs. Nappa, represented by Max Simon of Newark, Driscoll ordered the license granted.

Used Another Name
The town sought to prove that the license applicant, Mrs. Santa Nappa, did not exist, contending that Mrs. Nappa went under the name of Sadie. The woman stated before Driscoll that she was christened Santa but for years had been known as Sadie. She said that she had filed the application under her christened name on the advice of her attorney. Driscoll said that he was convinced that Santa was her real name. He also vetoed the town's contention that Mrs. Nappa would actually be a "front" for the tavern and would not take an active part in the work there.

The state tax department requested that action be delayed because of the failure of responsible parties to file tax reports with the department for the tavern.

Both Mayor Williams and Commissioner Waters led the move to withhold action despite the claims of Attorney Simon that they must comply with Driscoll's order.

Hurt In Fall

Mrs. D. D. MacDonald of 30 Washington street is recuperating at home from a fall last week from the back porch of her home. She was injured when the porch railing gave way and she fell four feet to the ground.

nearest telephone designated for his use in emergencies on the post and report the details of the "incident" in brief, concise form, recommending the emergency services which would be needed.

At the control center, the defense official in charge of the emergency division which is required to handle the "incident" in turn orders out the equipment and men needed. The warden should observe the time it takes for each group—police or fire reserves, first aid or rescue and repair crews to arrive at the scene of the make-believe catastrophe.

Sullivan would not reveal how many "incidents" will take place tonight. He has conferred with defense officials in Nutley, Montclair, Elizabeth and other towns where a number of similar tests have already been held. He said that it would be impossible to have every one of the 1,200 volunteers in action tonight, but emphasized that all must be at their posts for none will know if he will be called for duty or not.

Set Your Watch

To make tonight's "incident" test a success, it is important that watches used by every volunteer—and almost all of them will need them—be synchronized so that all will show exactly the same time.

Defense Coordinator Harry J. Sullivan has suggested that all participating in the test set their watches at 7 p.m. tonight by the U.S. navy time signal heard over WOR at 710 on the radio dial.

Police Chief George Spatz and Fire Chief Robert Reid have promised that their men and equipment will be ready to work in conjunction with the defense volunteers as they would in a regular test.

Drive At Low Speed

Drivers of all automotive equipment which will be used during the "incident" were warned by Sullivan that they must observe the specific rules established by the latest state defense regulations—cars or trucks are not to proceed to any scene of emergency at a speed greater than 15 miles per hour.

Much of the success of tonight's test depends on how smoothly and how well the control room staff works. Situated at police headquarters where the control center has been set up will be Mayor Williams, who is the defense commander; Controller Arthur W. Clark, Dr. George W. Kaden, chief of the emergency medical service section; Hugh W. Welsh, chief of the public works division; Fire Chief Reid, Police Chief Spatz, Clifford G. Faust, planning clerk; Coordinator Sullivan and Defense Chairman Smith.

The control room staff headed by the above named has had two practice tests under Sullivan's direction, on Thursday and Tuesday nights.

TWO YOUTHS END NAVY TRAINING

Christian Hansen, Smith Sheldon Now On 7-Day Leaves Before Assignments

Two local youths were graduated this week from the recruit school of the navy at the naval training station at Newport, R. I. Both young men are now on seven-day leaves before being assigned to advanced duty at a trade school, shore station or to duty on a ship of the fleet.

Christian Hansen is the 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Axel John Hansen of 38 Garden avenue. A graduate of the local high school, he was a member of the track team and was employed in Newark at the time of his enlistment.

Smith Sheldon, who is also 20, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Porter F. Sheldon of 221 Jorammon street. He was graduated in 1940 from the high school. His brother, Porter F. Sheldon Jr., is a second lieutenant in the army.

Home on Leave
Paul Ehresmann, 21, of 77 Ligham street, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ehresmann, is having seven days' leave at his home after having recently completed his basic naval training at Newport, R. I. Upon his return here he will be assigned to a navy trade or technical school for special instruction, a shore base or ship of the fleet.

Ehresmann was graduated in 1938 from Belleville high school where he was on the basketball team. He has worked in an oil refinery, roller skating rink and as a carpenter, mason, and theatre usher. He is enlisted as a navy regular and hopes to attain a rating as pharmacist's mate.

Ready for Service

Second Lieut. Warren E. Breen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Breen of 1 Essex street, this week concluded an eight-day furlough with his parents. Lieut. Breen, who is 21, recently completed officer training at Fort Sill, Okla. He enlisted in the army in January and is a member of the field artillery. A graduate of the local high school, he was formerly employed by the Atlas Rubber company of Newark. He was also studying at that time at New York University.

Another son, William F. Breen, entered the army air corps in June. He is now stationed at the Sioux Falls, S. D. air base after preliminary training at Miami Beach, Fla. He too was graduated from Belleville high school and was employed by the Dupont corporation in Kearny. He is 23.

Story of Chest Agencies That You Can Help

(This is the second in a series of articles on organizations which annually participate in and benefit from the annual Community Chest drives.)

These articles are intended to better acquaint Belleville residents with the purposes and work of each group so that they may fully realize the need of supporting the chest campaign which will be held early in the fall.—Ed. Note.

Visiting Nurse's Day

The visiting nurse's day starts in the office on Broad street, Newark at 8 a.m. with consultations with the supervisor, making plans for the day's work, and replenishing her little back bag, which must be kept supplied with all the things needed for the day.

The first call is to Mrs. S. who has a new son. He's a week old now and the family still do not know what to name him. The nurse has been calling him Bill, for want of a better tag, but his mother can't make up her mind as to what to name him.

Next on the nurse's list is Mr. G. who is home from the hospital following an operation. He is very discouraged—he can just see himself growing thinner. It's true he is thin, but his biggest hurdle is behind him. The nurse tries to show him that the very adequate diet he is getting can't help him to gain weight as long as he stays all his time worrying. The professional care she gives him is simple to her, and soon he will be able to care for himself, but the "top talk" that goes on during the care is what he needs more than anything else. Before leaving the house, the nurse sits down to discuss with Mrs. G. the relative values of the choice of foods the doctor has sent them. They are full of words like protein, carbohydrate and calories and it takes considerable explaining.

It's almost noon and Mrs. K. can't have her lunch until after the nurse's visit. Mrs. K. is diabetic and has just started to take insulin. She doesn't have to stay in bed, but the doctor has asked the nurse to teach the housekeeper to give her the insulin, since her daughter, who has been giving it goes to work every day, the nurse explained how important it is to have more than one person know how to give this very necessary medication.

She discusses with Mrs. K. as she treats her, other aspects of her illness. Mrs. K. is so amazed to hear that children just in their teens who have diabetes give themselves hypodermic injections of insulin that she decides that after the housekeeper has thoroughly learned the technique, she will learn how to do it herself.

There's a quiet air about the place as she climbs the steps to the new call, the first in the afternoon. No gaiety or noise of children's voices to greet her as she introduces herself. Mrs. M. who opens the door to let her in, is tired and subdued. It is apparent that she hasn't had enough sleep for a long time. Her aged father is very ill obviously not long for this world. The nurse goes quietly and quickly about her work, asking for necessary articles all at once in order to save steps for this worried family. As she works, she shows the daughter how to turn him in the bed, change the sheets without disturbing him and many other things to make him comfortable, using the least amount of energy. It is all so much easier when you see it done the right way and Mrs. M. is grateful. The nurse writes a report for the doctor, repacks her things neatly in the little black bag and promises to return in the morning.

It's a Lark

The next case is a lark—it's little Steve, four years old. Steve was badly burned not long ago and has been very sick. He's under a tent-like arrangement now, with one arm stretched above his head. The nurse has nicknamed him "Big Chief Featherbed," and he gives her the "high sign" as she enters the room. He must be very carefully bathed and turned and the wounds redressed each day, and he has learned to take it like a real "brave." Parents and doting grandparents have been more difficult, for it is hard to see the apple of one's eye in pain, and not jump to satisfy every whim or loosen the tane that holds the arm so high. It has been a long, hard pull, but Steve drank loads of water and finally got over his terribly high fever. Now the nurse teaches him to pretend he's throwing a lasso with the bad arm while his mother watches at the foot of the bed. She knows that future operations will not be necessary if they keep up the stunts. Steve thinks they're a game. This day he suggests sending a lollipop to a little girl the nurse will see on her next visit. The nurse, knowing that spontaneous generosity in such a small child is unusual, agrees. She gravely waits for him to pick out just the right color and then hurries on to the next case.

Alice is three and not very sick, in fact, she doesn't feel badly at all. Her mother will take care of her entirely in another day or two, for the nurse has come mostly as a matter of training. Alice has a little trouble with her heart, and with care now, will be a perfectly well child long before she goes to school. The first visit had been difficult. Alice didn't like strangers and had never seen a nurse before and gave her far from a royal welcome. That day the nurse had stood in the background and allowed the mother to take her temperature while she, the nurse, told the story of another Alice—Alice in Wonderland. But that was four days ago. Now Alice will buy the nurse a purple dress and a purple hat, purple shoes and purple stockings. Apparently she likes purple. The conversation during her bath is spirited about Stevie, the goldfish, the quiet paper dolls and the advantages of merely lying still and listening to the tiny radio near the bed.

The day is almost over now, but there's still time to see Mrs. C. She is seen once or twice a week whenever the nurse can squeeze her in and, always hoping for the visit, but never being sure, makes it an event indeed. Mrs. C. has been an invalid for a long time and will continue to be so, like most invalids, for life has narrowed and events are few, therefore the importance of the nurse's visit. As the nurse bathes her and changes the bed, the conversation lags, which is unusual but it's the end of the day. A chance remark reminded Mrs. C.

of a hymn and the nurse joined her in singing it. They continued with one hymn after another until her care was completed. Now she was fresh and comfortable once more and had released considerable energy during the hymn singing.

A full day has ended for the nurse, each patient is different but still much alike in many ways. It's no wonder she likes her job so well and derives such keen satisfaction from it. She is tired, but she hasn't time to think of her own troubles all day—and that's good for anybody.

To Contribute Blankets
The first local resident to offer to loan blankets to the defense council in response to its appeal is Mrs. William P. Adams of 34 Rossmore place.

It is estimated that 150 blankets are needed to be used in the first aid and casualty stations which have been established by the emergency medical division and which would be put into operation if there should be a raid.

Blankets which residents donate would be tagged and returned to the owners after the emergency ends. In addition to blankets, the council is still hoping to receive a number of army cots which would be set up at the casualty and first aid stations. Those willing to contribute should get in touch with Defense Coordinator Harry J. Sullivan at the town hall.

Baby Parade Princess

Maureen Fogarty, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fogarty of Ligham street, was selected as a princess at the Wood baby parade last Thursday. She was runner-up for the title Miss Junior America at a previous contest in that place. Three weeks ago Maureen took first prize at the Ocean City baby parade. She was awarded a cup in both events.

Board To Hold Special Session On Storm Sewer

A special meeting of the town commission is scheduled to be held tomorrow to consider introduction of an ordinance to construct a 30-inch storm sewer extension and place new catch basins in Continental avenue and Carpenter street. It is estimated that the project would cost $4,000.

Residents in both streets suffered damage during the recent heavy rainstorms.

Because A & P Prices Are Always Low!

Many customers ask us: "Do price ceilings on food mean that prices are identical in all food stores?" The answer is "No." The government ruled that, after May 18th, prices on many food items could not exceed the highest prices charged for those items during the month of March. Since A&P's prices have been invariably low, you can still be sure of getting fine foods at low prices -- often at lower prices -- at your A&P Super Market. Visit your A&P today -- compare prices -- and become an A&P "regular." You'll find that A&P gives you more good food for your money.

BOARDING HOUSES

A. Yes, it does.

Q. By what date must the registration of such rooms in the New Jersey Defense-Rental Area be completed?

A. By August 27.

Q. Is the registration required by law?

A. Yes.

Q. What if a landlord fails to register by August 27?

A. Willful violation of the registration requirements subjects the landlord to the penalties provided in the emergency price control act of 1942 of a $5,000 fine, one year imprisonment, or both.

Q. Are there any other penalties?

A. Yes. The registration statement carries the warning that any charge in excess of maximum legal rents, "not previously authorized in accordance with the maximum rent regulation, may subject you—the landlord—to a $5,000 fine or imprisonment for one year, or both, and to damages payable to the tenant amounting to three times the overcharge, plus attorney's fees." A false statement on the form also subjects the landlord to the same fine and imprisonment.

Q. How is this registration made?

A. It is made in duplicate on forms provided by the Area Rent Office.

Q. Who must fill out these forms?

A. The landlord or his agent.

Q. What does the landlord or his agent do with the statement after it has been filled out?

A. He tears off the instruction sheet, signs both copies of the statement and the continuation sheets if used, and mails or takes the statement unfolded to the designated registration centers. The registration statements are not to be mailed to Washington.

Q. Must a separate statement be filled out for every room in a hotel or rooming house?

A. No. One statement is filled for a given hotel or rooming house. However, the rates for each room must be entered along with the location of the room or its number.

Q. What about a tourist camp with eight or nine separate cabins. Are they registered individually?

A. No, if they come under the maximum rent regulation for hotels and rooming houses, they are registered as are rooms in a hotel, the rate for each cabin being listed along with its location or number.

Q. What about vacant rooms. Must they be listed?

A. Yes. Whether rented or vacant, they must be listed on the registration statement, if offered for rent.

Q. What information is the landlord required to give in this registration?

A. He is asked to identify the establishment by checking off whether it is a hotel, rooming house, boarding house, dormitory, auto camp, trailer camp, residence club, tourist home, or tourist cabin.

Q. Does the landlord list the number of rooms contained in his establishment?

A. Yes. He lists the total number of rooms for rent, and the total number of occupants when the establishment is fully rented.

Q. What other information is he asked to list?

A. The landlord is asked to list the total number of bathrooms in the establishment.

Q. What is an establishment which has opened up as a hotel, rooming house, or any other of the type living quarters under hotel and rooming house regulations since the maximum rent date?

A. The landlord is asked this on the statement, and if the establishment was not in operation the maximum rent date, he is then to write in the date when the establishment first offered rooms for rent.

Q. How does the landlord know what maximum legal rents to put down for the rooms he lists?

A. These rates are entered in the second section of the statement, identified as Section B—maximum legal rents for rooms rented or offered for rent, and special instructions for answering this section are contained on the instruction sheet.

Q. What is the general principle used in determining what the maximum legal rents for rooms are?

A. A 30-day period ending on the maximum rent date is used for setting maximum legal rents for rooms. If a room was rented during this period, then the landlord enters the highest rent for each term of occupancy and number of occupants charged during this period. If not rented then he enters the amount for which the room was regularly offered during the period for the terms of occupancy and number of occupants.

Q. What if the room was first rented, or offered for rent, after the maximum rent date?

A. The 30-day period then starts from the day when the room was first offered for rent. And the same rules for determining what rents to enter apply as in the case of where the establishment was in operation during the 30 days prior to the maximum rent date.

Q. Does the landlord make any distinction when entering the rent figure between a room which was actually occupied during the 30-day period and a room merely offered for rent during that period?

A. Yes. If the room was actually rented at the rent reported and not merely offered for rent, then the landlord is to place a cross (X) in the box after the amount entered.

Q. What if a landlord is now renting a room on a monthly basis and that room was not rented or offered for rent on that basis during the 30-day period used for determining maximum legal rents?

A. He enters the lower of the following.—The first rent charged after the maximum rent date for the monthly term, or the maximum legal rent for similar rooms within the establishment which were rented on a monthly basis.

Q. Does the landlord indicate in his statement that a room now rented on a particular term of occupancy was not rented nor offered for rent on that term of occupancy during the 30-day base period?

A. Yes. He indicates this by placing a dash (—) in the box after the amount of rent entered.

Q. Then landlords are to enter more than one figure for each room?

A. Yes. If he had established different rates for different terms of occupancy and number of occupants, he enters in appropriate spaces the daily rate for one, two and three persons, the weekly rate for one, two and three persons, and the monthly rate for one, two and three persons. However, if he is renting or offering for rent rooms on only 1 or 2 terms, then he enters only those rates.

Q. What if a room was rented to four or more persons at one time?

A. The landlord then prepares an additional schedule of such rents in duplicate and attaches it to the registration statements.

Q. What if a landlord was making a single charge for room and board during the period used to determine the maximum rent? What figure does he enter?

A. He is to apportion the total charge between room and board, and enter only the charge for room rent. This apportionment must be fair and reasonable.

Q. In cases of large hotels, what if there isn't space enough on the statement to list all the rooms in the hotel?

A. Continuation sheets can be obtained from the Area Rent Office.

URGES NEIGHBORS TO SHARE CARS

Car Conservator Recommends It For Pleasure, Shopping Trips

Neighborhood cooperation in the share-the-car plan for shopping and pleasure jaunts was recommended this week by Norman D. Lauterette, local administrator for the conservation of vital war transportation.

It is only by cutting down on the use of automobiles that they will be made to last for the duration of the war, Lauterette explained, said that the office of defense transportation will shortly inaugurate an educational campaign to encourage group riding among neighbors as it has done with war workers and others.

"The ODT," Lauterette said, "is specifically pointing its finger at the housewives who go on shopping expeditions in their cars. In the majority of cases they ride alone. While it may be some inconvenience and they may have to re-arrange their schedule, women must get in to the group riding or car sharing habit just as have thousands of workers."

Lauterette estimated that thousands of workers employed in local plants are already participating in the government's volunteer program to save their cars. With practically all of the manufacturers cooperating, he said that the vast majority have already filled out the questionnaires stating whether or not they own a car, how they get to work and whether or not it is possible for them to ride to work with others or share their cars with fellow workmen. Copies of these questionnaires are forwarded to the state office of the ODT in Trenton for checking.

Urges Traffic Enforcement

The administrator said that in compliance with a request from Joseph Eastman, ODT head in Washington, he had written to Public Safety Director Clark urging that a low speed driving campaign be put into effect immediately and that all traffic regulations, particularly those pertaining to careless and reckless driving and speeding, be rigidly enforced.

Shortly, Lauterette said, in cooperation with the government and the move industry a series of short features on the conservation of automobiles will be shown at the local theatre.

He also stated that the ODT was shortly planning a program to provide for the pooling certain types of company-owned vehicles for joint use among manufacturers in local areas.

To all motorists he said that it is most important that tires are properly inflated to conserve rubber. A check should be made at least twice each week. If a motorist is doubtful about the number of pounds of air which should be put in a tire, the service station operator will be able to tell him.

Make Your Home Warm and Comfortable

No matter how beautiful your home, it is not going to be much of a home this winter if it gets down to the freezing point indoors. Many of us remember that in the last World War winter some homes and apartments experienced that condition.

If you have an oil burner and can convert to coal, the government strongly urges that you do so.

Why not insulate your home and storm-sash your doors and windows, so as to keep as much heat in as possible? For home repairs such as these, we make F.H.A. Loans, repayable up to three years.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Tractors and motors will never wholly replace the Army Mule as a factor in the mobile units of our army. The Army Mule is a tradition and the "mule skinner" is a breed unto himself. Army Mules are used by the Field Artillery and the Cavalry in areas where the terrain is rough and tractors cannot operate.

Pack trains in mountainous sections are often necessary and here the mule, slow but sure-footed, plays an important role. Our Army buys thousands of mules paying from $175 to $190 for each. The mule eats less, carries more, and some declare is smarter than the horse. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps helps pay for these Army Mules. Invest at least ten percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day. U. S. Treasury Department on the latter's yacht on the south shore of Lake Michigan.

Mrs. Lauterette and Norman Lauterette Jr. spent the previous two weeks in West Monroe, N. Y. They were accompanied by Mrs. Lauterette's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson of Bloomfield.

Cpl. Jack Lawlor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lawlor of High street, received the rank of sergeant last week at Eglin Field, Valpariso, Fla. where he is stationed with the army air corps.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhodes of Lincoln terrace spent the weekend with their son, John Rhodes, at Newport, R. I. where he is stationed with the navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mayer of Greylock parkway were hosts Saturday evening to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ryan of South Bend, Ind. and their son, Robert. Mr. and Mrs. Ryan resided in Belleville until very recently.

Bomb 'em with JUNK

Let's blast Japan—and Germany—and Italy—with the chain lightning of destruction that can be built from the scrap in our cellars, attics and garages, on our farms and in our places of business.

Scrap iron and steel, other metals, rubber and waste materials. It will all be used to make tanks, ships, planes and the fighting weapons our boys must have. It is needed it once.

Sell it to a Junk dealer—give it to a charity or collection agency—take it yourself to the nearest collection point—or consult the Local Salvage Committee... If you live on a farm, and have found no means of disposing of your Junk, get in touch with the County War Board or your farm implement dealer.

during the 14 years that he has been in congress.

Hartley made his initial appearance as a campaigner on the radio on Monday night and will be heard in another political broadcast next Monday night at 6:15 p.m.

The congressman opened his broadcast by quoting from a full page advertisement which he said appeared in The Belleville News and which was paid for by Mayor Williams. The ad, commented him for the many things which he had done for local residents and the town and urged that he be given the largest majority of his career.

"Since that time," the congressman stated, "Communists, fellow travelers, leftist labor leaders and other elements who, especially since Russia became involved in the war had been eager to force the intervention of the United States, set up a continuous smear barrage against me because I opposed steps by the administration which I felt would lead to our involvement in war."

"It made no difference to them that I was carrying out the pledges of both the Democratic and Republican parties, the pledges of both the President and his opponent in the 1940 election and the will of 85 per cent of the American people."

Opposed Shipping To Japan "They ignored the fact that I vigorously supported the views of General Billy Mitchell during my entire incumbency in the congress. They ignored the fact that in 1936 I publicly urged the President to stop the shipment of scrap iron and petroleum to Japan. That I voted for the fortification of Guam, being one of only two of the New Jersey Republican delegation to so vote, and that I personally urged the President in 1933 to make military training part of the curriculum of the CCC camps."

He charged that his opponent has attempted to make his votes against intervention appear as though he voted against an adequate national defense program and an all-out war effort.

"I make the incontrovertible statement," Hartley declared, "that I voted for every appropriation the army and navy ever asked for, not alone since Pearl Harbor, not only in the emergency period of these last few years, but down through my entire fourteen years in congress."

Predicted Bataan Loss Claiming that he had sent a report to the people of his district May 15, 1940, showing that the equipment of the army and navy was far from adequate to protect this country, Hartley said that in that statement he had stated and predicted "We are not equipped to prevent establishment of land bases in Alaska and the Aleutian Islands, Greenland, Newfoundland and the Bataan peninsula in the Philippines."

No local organization has stepped forward as yet and scheduled any meetings to be held before primary day on September 15. The same holds true in the district except in Bloomfield and Kearny where there are some primary fights for the partisan nominations for the local councilmanic elections.

MAYOR RUNS OUT, STEWART SAYS

Persistent Critic Says He Prophesied Williams Would Do It

Mayor Williams' candidacy for congress was termed as "an attempted run-out" this week by George E. Stewart Jr., Smallwood avenue resident who opposed the mayor in the May commission election.

Stewart, who assailed Williams and his record as finance director throughout the election, said that just as he had prophesied in statements last April, "Williams is running to cover hoping to leave the financial mess of Belleville's inflated debt, low credit rating, high tax rates and over-assessed valuations on the doorstep of those unfortunate enough to take over."

The mayor's persistent critic said he would never stop his campaign to have the town audit published annually even if he has to go from door to door to get the taxpayers to sign a petition demanding it.

"The voters of Belleville were played as suckers when they trusted Williams on May 12," Stewart said, "and it's proven by his attempted run-out three months later. What a congressman that fellow would make."

Mother Dies Suddenly

Mrs. Emily Elizabeth Kansteiner, mother of Mrs. R. W. Brown of 70 Division avenue, died suddenly Tuesday at the home of another daughter, Mrs. Howard White of Narberth, Pa. She was the widow of Henry Kansteiner who operated the Belleville Department Store at Overlook and Washington avenues in 1916. The Kansteiner's moved here from Bayonne in that year. Shortly thereafter Mr. Kansteiner died.

Mrs. Kansteiner, who made her home with Mrs. Brown for part of the intervening years, was a member of Wesley Methodist church and the local Areme Chapter, O. E. S. She was born in Belleville, Ill. She would have celebrated her 82nd birthday on August 30. Survivors, in addition to Mrs. Brown and Mrs. White, are another daughter, Mrs. C. C. Bowers of Harlingen, Texas, a son, W. R. Kansteiner of Basking Ridge; eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held this evening at the White residence, 508 Brookhurst avenue, tomorrow afternoon at Arlington Cemetery, Arlington when services will be conducted by Rev. Edgar M. Compton at 2 o'clock. Belleville friends of Mrs. Kansteiner are invited to attend.

MOST SALESMEN'S APPEALS VETOED

Only 50% Of 2,000 Gasoline Applicants Are Okayed By State OPA

Close to 2,000 appeals from persons dissatisfied with rationing board decisions on gasoline applications have been received during the past two weeks at state OPA headquarters, it was announced this week by James Kerney Jr., state director of the office of price administration.

Of the 2,000 appeals less than 5 percent resulted in reversal of the rationing boards' original decisions, Kerney stated. The bulk of the appeals were from traveling salesmen, real estate men, insurance salesmen, and persons using passenger cars for the deivery of goods and commodities who mistakenly believe themselves entitled to "C" gasoline rationing books.

In clarification of the eligibility of these groups, rationing officials stated that the only salesmen entitled to a "C" book are those "engaged in the selling of necessary productive equipment for farms, factories, mines, oil wells, lumber camps, and similar productive or extractive establishments or of medical supplies, if the marketing of such equipment or supplies by salesmen is essential to the war effort."

Insurance and real estate salesmen are eligible only for "A" and "B" books, Kerney stated. He urged that any salesmen not falling clearly within the eligible classes refrain from appealing their cases, as such appeals would be useless and would simply add unnecessarily to the already heavy load of work of the staff at state OPA headquarters.

In regard to passenger cars used for making deliveries, OPA headquarters pointed out that the regulations do not permit more than an "A" and "D" book for such vehicles. Motorcycles, however, are eligible for "C" books for delivery and messenger services.

Kerney also authorized all war price and rationing boards to recall and replace improperly issued "C" and "S" gasoline rationing books. "S" books, he declared, may be issued only to trucks, buses, taxicabs, and other vehicles in the service category specifically designated by the gasoline rationing regulations. A station wagon, he emphasized, cannot be considered as a truck and consequently it is not entitled to an "S" ration book. The station wagon is to be treated as a passenger car and may be issued an "A" book; if it meets the eligibility requirements it will receive a supplemental "B" or "C" book.

In discussing the eligibility requirements for "C" ration books, Kerney explained that these books may be issued only to the fourteen categories specified by the rationing regulations as entitled to "essential" mileage.

Two Report Gas Coupons Stolen From Their Cars

Police are checking the theft of gasoline rationing coupons which was reported yesterday. One motorist reported that his coupons were stolen while he was parked in front of the war price and rationing board office at 476 Washington avenue.

Anthony Grinelli, operator of a gasoline service station at 165 Belleville avenue, told police that six coupons from his A book and $18 in cash were stolen from his auto last night.

A Nutley resident, Harrison Law of 44 Whitford avenue, claimed that while his car was parked in front of the ration office on Monday, four coupons were taken from his book which was in the auto.

Things you may not know and should ... about tomatoes

An article prepared by the Safeway Homemakers' Bureau

Tomatoes are without question the most versatile of all foods. They have a place at every meal—tomato juice, soup, salad, sandwiches, sauces, relishes—and they are equally good cooked or uncooked.

Tomato connoisseurs say the best way to enjoy them is to first scald them, then chill, peel, slice, and salt them. But there many other ways, too.

Tomatoes are wonderful for adding sparkle to other foods—meats, macaroni and spaghetti dishes, and vegetable casseroles. You'll find that round steak, pork or veal chops and steaks, shoulder lamb chops, and similar cuts of meat are more tender and flavorful when braised in tomato juice or tomato soup instead of water.

This is the season when tomatoes are ripe and juicy in most parts of the country, and it's a good time to put up tomato juice. The juice is almost as versatile as tomatoes themselves. Serve it hot or cold, as is or lightly seasoned, or combined with other liquids. For peppy flavor, add lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce.

TOMATO JUICE

10 lbs. tomatoes 2 isps. salt

Wash and core but do not peel tomatoes. Cut in eights. Place in large 8-qt. kettle; add 2 cups water; cover; boil 10 minutes. Put through sieve to remove seeds. Add salt and heat to boiling. Pour into hot sterilized jars or bottles; seal, and pasteurize (directions follow). Makes about 7 pts. juice.

Bottling and Pasteurization

Do not use lids with zinc tops. Wash jars thoroughly; sterilize by placing in boiling water for 10 minutes. Heat juice to 175° F. to 180° F. Pour into hot jars, filling just to 1½ inches from the top to allow room for expansion. Seal at once, according to type of lid. Place hot jars in water which has been heated to 160° F. to 185° F. Stand jars upright on rack; have completely covered with water. Heat water to 175° F. to 185° F. and hold temperature 30 minutes. Do not heat higher than 185° F. Remove immediately from hot water. Test seals for tightness. Let cool undisturbed in place free from draft. When cold, wipe off and store.

YETTA BLAUVELT IS MARRIED

Wed Newarker On Sunday
At Wesley Methodist Church

The marriage of Miss Yetta Blauvelt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Klein of 49 Valley street, and Harold Bottino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bottino of Newark, took place Sunday afternoon in Wesley Methodist church where the ceremony was performed at five o'clock by Rev. Edgar M. Compton. A reception was held at the bride's home.

Mr. Klein escorted his daughter who was attended, as maid of honor by her sister, Miss Olive Blauvelt. Bridesmaids were another sister, Mrs. William Ruff, and a cousin, Miss Barbara Simpson. A young sister, Catherine Klein, was Miss Blauvelt's flower girl. All are Belleville residents. Stanley Meyers of this town acted as best man. Frank Domino, also of Belleville, and John Simpson of Nutley were ushers. Bernard Blauvelt and Mrs. Domino, brother and sister of the bride, received the wedding guests prior to the ceremony.

The bride's gown was made with bodice and three-quarter length sleeves of white lace and a bouffant taffeta skirt. Her shoulder veil of tulle was held by a wreath of gardenias. The bridal bouquet of white gladioli and roses was tied with satin streamers decorated with ribbons of the valley. A pale blue gown, in the same style, was worn by the maid of honor and matched by her shoulder veil and floral wreath. The bridesmaids wore identical gowns of blue flowered-taffeta with veils and floral wreaths of a slightly darker shade. All carried nosegays of mixed flowers. A colonial gown of white lace with hoop skirt was worn by the flower girl whose headress was a white lace cap. Hers was also an old-fashioned bouquet.

Mrs. Klein wore a costume of rose lace with purple accessories and orchids in her hair. Mrs. Bottino's gown of blue and white was accompanied by white accessories. Both women wore corsages of tea roses.

The couple intend to reside in Belleville. Miss Blauvelt attended the local high school. Her husband is employed by the Ritchie Fabrics company of North Arlington.

Why Hesitate To Help—Others Aren't

While in many instances the residents have shown an eagerness to cooperate in civic ventures, this has not been entirely true in the case of the defense council. If Belleville is to have the best civilian protection organization that is possible, then the townspeople must do everything that they can to make it so.

In recent months, notably the last one, the council has made numerous requests of the citizenry and the response has been exceptionally poor.

Residents, who by some infirmity are confined to their homes, were asked to enroll for service in the communications section. This work, which is vitally important to the defense organization, they could perform from their homes by making calls on the telephone during tests or emergencies. The names of one or two who were willing to enter this service have drifted into town hall. There must be many more.

And then, there's the story about the folding cots. Several times we have tried to drum it into people's minds that these cots are needed—even if they must be repaired or the canvas mended. Glancing at the figures given in the questionnaire forms which were returned by residents to the council shortly after the declaration of war, there were hundreds of cots which could be had for the asking.

But, when asking time came around, they did not turn up. How many cots are in the hands of the council? Less than 20. This number to equip five casualty stations and numerous first aid centers. They are needed now. No person can foretell when disaster will strike, and at the present rate of preparation, the town would not have the equipment to care for its sick and wounded. Why don't these people who said they would give, carry through now and turn their cots into the council headquarters at town hall?

Last week, a request was sent out for blankets to be used in the first aid stations. Aside from a moving and storage man who offered quite a number, only one resident offered to loan a blanket—and most families must have at least one which they could afford to sacrifice. We hope not, but perhaps some day they will be glad that the first aid station has that blanket if it should be their misfortune to be a casualty victim.

Several weeks ago, an appeal was put out for those skilled in making miniature villages and in working with cardboard to aid the council in creating model towns to be used in instructing air raid wardens. If the wardens do not know what to do in a raid, you will be the one to suffer. They need all of the training and education that can be given to them.

We felt sure that the response would be tremendous. For a long time we have been hearing about these folks with their fine miniature towns equipped with electric trains, and the attractive displays which they erect at Christmas time so that the relatives can tell them how clever they are at such work.

How many people responded to this call? Two.

Must the defense council stand on doorsteps with a gun and demand these things or must it draft people for work that must be done? It seems that this would be a good time for each of us to take stock and decide if we are doing all that we can to help our community, its preparedness program and indirectly the war which we are fighting.

Why hesitate to give up something or sacrifice some of your time? Are those marines on the Solomon islands hesitating? They're giving their all for us, sacrificing their lives. By helping the defense council in any way that you can—as a volunteer or by contributing something—you will be backing up those who are doing the fighting.

Don't Be A Saboteur At Home

Sleeping during the daylight hours is becoming an increasing problem as more and more people join the army of war workers in industrial plants and yards. People who work 10 or 12-hour shifts must get their proper sleep.

The change for many from a life-time routine of getting rest at night to sleeping during the daytime is difficult enough without it being made more so by many inconsiderate people, their children and their dogs.

In a time when the government demands the greatest production possible in war industries, workers must be in the best of condition. If they do not have proper sleep, they cannot do what is expected of them.

Those who are so inconsiderate or lacking in understanding that they will make no pretense at cooperating with neighbors, either in the house next door or in an apartment, who must rest during the day are in effect saboteurs. The worker who cannot give his best in his job because he has not had rest is just as much a stumbling block to production as the person who deliberately seeks to damage products or machinery in an industrial plant.

No one is asked to softshoe about the house on tip toe, but they can cut down on unnecessary noises, being called out to cars by friends who insist on leaning on their horns because they are lazy, and urging that their children play with a little less Indian-like howling.

If this cannot be gained by voluntary cooperation, then we think that the town should impose some penalty in cases where people persist in ignoring the need of others for sleep.

Volunteers Must Observe Rules, Too

Those who must drive during air raid tests have been warned time and again that they must operate their cars at a speed not to exceed 15 miles per hour. This is not a suggestion that has been advanced by some local official, it is the law established by the state defense council.

Violation of this regulation was particularly noticeable in many cases during Tuesday night's surprise test. Cars and trucks travelling to posts went ripping through some of the main streets with dim lights on or none at all at speeds far in excess of 15 miles per hour—and even in excess of the speed limit.

When an air raid test takes place grown-ups aren't expected to turn into children and lose the common sense with which they are supposed to be gifted. Whipping themselves into a frenzy and heading hell-bent for some place is definitely not the thing to do. If they will act this way in a test blackout, what would they do in a real raid?

The state would not have made the ruling on automobile travel if it did not think that it was adequate and if it did not feel that cars could operate at that speed and still get to where they are headed in time. It is not alone their own safety which is being thought of, but that of other drivers and defense volunteers who must walk the streets.

The time for pleading is over. We now have laws and regulations which must be followed. Volunteers can't establish their own—and the job of one is no more important than that of the other fellow. If they can't obey the laws they should be punished, for they are just as guilty of a violation as the man who leaves a light on or is caught smoking a cigarette.

It is time that some of them read the regulations which they are supposed to know.

P.S. To Read Meters Every Three Months

To save gasoline and rubber, in cooperation with the war effort, Public Service Electric and Gas company will read electric and gas meters every third month in outlying districts only, instead of each month for the duration of the emergency.

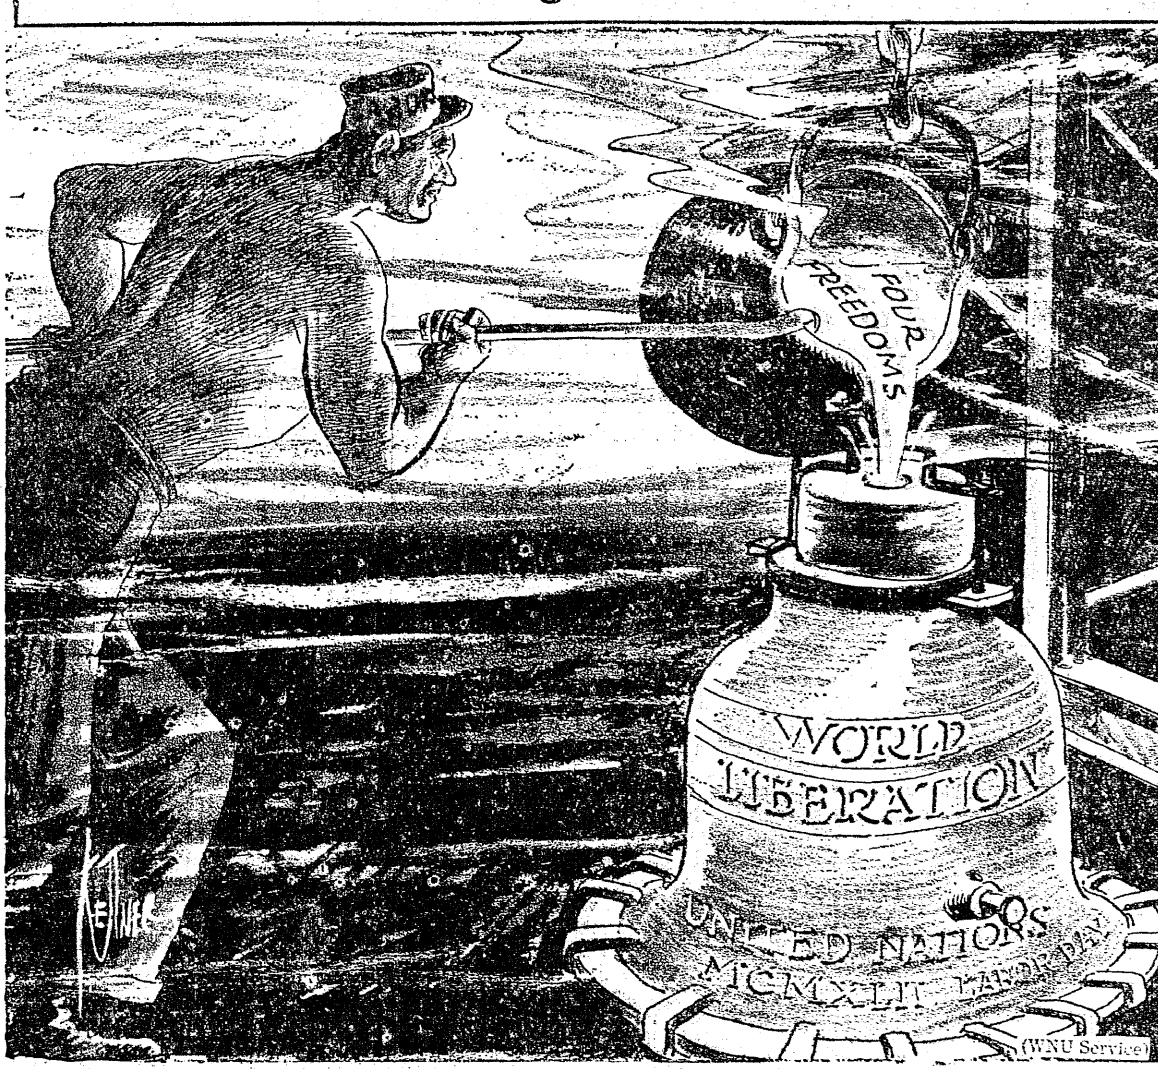

This plan will go into effect in September or as soon thereafter as practicable and will apply particularly where automobiles are used by meter readers on their rounds. It is estimated the plan will result in an annual conservation of approximately 75,000 miles of automobile usage.

About 75,000 accounts throughout the company's territory will be affected. A few districts which do not have rural territory, notably Newark district, will not be affected at all. Also, certain types of accounts will not be included in the change.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Drentlau of Bell street entertained Saturday evening at cards for Mr. and Mrs. William Vogel, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Seebauer and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sprinkle.

Casting the Die

If War Should Come To You--?

MEN AND WOMEN ON WHEELS

If they put you in an automobile in pitch dark, without any headlights to guide you, and told you to drive it through a series of obstacles without hitting any of them, back it into an alley turn around and go through the same course again, do you think you could do it?

That is the sort of rigorous training that the 136 men and women in the ambulance corps of the defense council have been going through for several months, and which prompts their instructor to proudly boast that they are the best trained outfit of its kind in this section.

The man who knocks at your door every Tuesday morning to pick up the laundry, the butcher who delivers the meat every day, the woman with that flashy looking station wagon which passes by every day and the young girl down the street who has been behind the wheel of a car since the day she released the brakes and drove the family car down the hill unexpectedly—they're the ambulance drivers. Trained in not only handling, but making emergency repairs on automobiles, and first aid, they stand ready at a moment's notice to drive out and brave the hail of bombs, craters or machine gun fire to rush the sick and the wounded to emergency first aid stations or hospitals.

Use Trucks for Ambulances

They won't be driving shiny, streamlined ambulances, either. The truck your laundry or your vegetables come in, station wagons and private cars can be quickly converted into ambulances which will meet the need.

One of the first units to be organized, the ambulance corps is a sub-division of the transportation and evacuation committee headed by Charles W. Cullen of Greylock parkway with Norman D. Lauterette of Elena place as the chairman. Lauterette, traffic manager for the National Grain Yeast corporation, and Jack Robertson, half of the firm of Davidson & Robertson, operators of a Washington avenue service station, are in charge of the ambulance section and are its instructors.

With more than 60 pieces of equipment, the corps' membership is equally divided among men and women. More could be used for daytime service. If a sufficient number of volunteers could be enrolled, a day instruction class for drivers would be started.

Many of the drivers own the equipment which they drive. Some local companies have turned both drivers and trucks over to the service while in other cases residents have loaned their trucks or station wagons with the corps heads selecting the operators. Private cars have been enrolled for the ambulant cases, those who need treatment but are able to walk. More half-ton to a ton and a half trucks are needed.

The ambulance division works in cooperation with the emergency medical service section of the defense council. In an air raid, the volunteers would pick up their equipment and drive immediately to one of the casualty stations. A station has been located in each of the five zones into which the town has been divided for air raid purposes.

Equip Cars At Stations

Once they reached their assigned point, the drivers would see that the car would be properly equipped with a stretcher, blankets and first aid equipment. Riding with the driver on any emergency call would be a first aid worker who has been trained by the Red Cross. The ambulances would leave their posts only on orders from the air raid control center at town hall to proceed to a damage point where an injury has been reported. The injured might be taken to a first aid station or directly to the casualty station where a physician would be in attendance and would either give treatment or order the patient removed to a hospital, probably Essex County Isolation hospital which has been designated for use by the town in event of a raid or other emergency.

The 60 ambulances have been assigned for duty according to the population ratio in certain sections and as to the adjudged vulnerability of those areas. However, the program is flexible enough to permit equipment to be quickly transferred from one part of town to another if it should be needed.

Those heading each of the zones under Lauterette and Robertson are: Zone 1, Lawrence Buckley; Zone 2, Philip Nathan; Zone 3, Edward Vogel; Zone 4, Miss Mildred Doran; and Zone 5, Henry August.

Drive All Types of Trucks

First aid training which was given to the corps members by Red Cross instructors was the first work. Some have taken the required 10-hour course for defense volunteers while others have had the 20-hour course given to first aid workers. Under the supervision of Lauterette and Robertson they were then instructed in the operation of all types of trucks which would be used by the corps and making emergency mechanical repairs. Changing and repair of tires and discovering what would be wrong under the hood was required training for the women as well as the men.

The final and the toughest part of the course was the blackout driving training which was given at the municipal stadium. While operators of automobiles and trucks used in air raids are permitted to drive with dim lights on during the blackout tests which are being held periodically, the ambulance corps leaders believe that no lights will be permitted in night driving during actual raids, so they have prepared their workers for the worst.

Using the cinder track which runs around the outside of the stadium field, cardboard boxes were set up as obstacles for the drivers to get around, and in and out of lines of them, without touching or knocking over any of the boxes. As if this was not enough, boxes were set up to represent an alley way and drivers were required to back in to it and turn around, heading back the route they had just driven over.

Obstacle Course Is Changed

Week after week, this training went on. During the tests, the prospective ambulance operators were always accompanied by one of the instructors. If the driver touched one of the obstacles, it was marked down as a demerit and it meant that they had to do it all over again the next week. For each training session the placing of the obstacles was changed so that there would be no opportunity for drivers to become accustomed to the course.

Before any driver would be accepted for membership, they were required to complete the blackout obstacle test without hitting any of the objects in their path. Periodically, members of the corps are being put through the test again so that they will retain the ability to drive safely without the use of lights.

Shortly, it is expected that the corps membership will be uniformed. A committee has selected a white gabardine coverall with overseas caps to be worn by the drivers. On the sleeve it would have the red-wheeled insignia authorized by the O.C.D. Arrangements are now being made for the purchase of the uniforms.

ESSEX COUNTY POLITICS

The views expressed in this column are entirely those of the writer and not necessarily those of the Publishers or Editors of the Belleville Times.

by Meador Wright

During presidential elections following the last World War when Great Britain wasn't so popular with the American rank and file, cartoonists used to picture the British Lion with an iron basket effect around his tail to prevent it being twisted too much by our campaign orators. Some such similar device would seem in order during the next few weeks for Arthur T. Vanderbilt in Essex, for the Short Hills lawyer appears to be in for more personal attacks than any other recent New Jersey leader save Frank Hague.

The barrage against Vanderbilt is coming from several sources. Ranking gunner just now is Fred A. Hartley of the 10th district. Hartley is leading the attack with fury seldom seen in these parts. He shoots first and looks later, with one barrel in the general direction of Vanderbilt and the other pointed at Mayor Williams of Belleville. So far, Williams hasn't started his campaign seriously, but he isn't one to pull punches either—or shotguns if we are not to mix our metaphors too much.

Second in the anti-Vanderbilt ranks is the County ticket headed by David H. Jones of South Orange. The Jones group just now is smarting under a legal setback administered by Arthur Tench, assistant county clerk. Tench ruled that nominating petitions were not in order and threw out the entire ticket consisting of 12 assembly candidates, three freeholders and a candidate for county supervisor who was Jones. Legal steps are being taken by James Giuliano to get the ticket re-instated and final decision will probably be made by Supreme Court Justice Frederic R. Colie who is Vanderbilt's Short Hills neighbor. This fact will likely be noted if the decision is adverse.

Hawkes-Vanderbilt Clash
The third group in importance against Vanderbilt—and it may weeks until the primary election Albert W. Hawkes organization. So far the Hawkes camp has kept away from personalities, but those familiar with the trends of campaigns don't expect this to continue indefinitely. Sooner or later Hawkes and Vanderbilt are going to clash seriously, and it is possible for the repercussions to be far-reaching. Hawkes and his supporters feel that he was entitled to organization Republican backing in Essex on the basis of his long residence here and his strong independent backing. They blame Vanderbilt for his not getting it.

Much of the effectiveness of this Hawkes opposition will depend upon the part Dr. Lester H. Clee plays in it. Clee is going all-out for Hawkes. Of that there is no doubt. But how far he will follow other Hawkes supporters in a direct attack on Vanderbilt remains to be seen. When the Jones ticket was announced Clee immediately let it be known that he had had no part in its selection, and would give it no endorsement. Yet there are reports that Clee is aware of the plans of Hawkes' backers to make Vanderbilt an issue and has raised no objection to those plans.

One thing is important. It is only a little more than three weeks until the primary election on September 15. With the World War in one of its inevitable climaxes, public attention may not be centered too much on the personal difficulties of even such a colorful leader as Vanderbilt. The Short Hills lawyer has been going to clash seriously, and it is lucky before.

He was alone against nine Jap bombers

Alone and unaided, Lt. Comdr. Edward H. O'Hare saved his aircraft carrier from serious damage by shooting down five Japanese bombers and severely damaging a sixth in a single action far out over the Pacific.

How O'Hare shot down five Jap planes in four minutes

As Told by Himself

 The young naval air ace who, in his single-seater fighter plane far out over the Pacific, saved his aircraft carrier from serious damage, told this story of his exploit:

"I was alone against nine Jap bombers. They were flying fast and straight for the carrier which they had apparently been ordered to get at all costs. I got above them and prepared for the first group to pass. Quickly I dropped, pressed the trigger and I saw two of them get hit and drop out. They burst into flames and fell.

"These bombers were coming in formations of three. On the first pass I hit planes on the right after end. Then I went over the left side and started up the line. In this way I shot down five and damaged one or two of the nine bombers. My whole action took only three or four minutes. They tell me there were sometimes three falling planes in the air at once. By nighttime we had shot down 18 of 20 Jap planes seen that day.

"From what I have seen of the Japanese, I'd say that if we can meet them on anything like even terms, we can beat them.

Just give us enough trained men, enough ships and planes to approach even terms, and we'll come out on top."

Make no mistake: WINNING THIS WAR DEPENDS UPON YOU, AS WELL AS OUR FIGHTING MEN—and on the guns, tanks, planes and ships you give those privileged to do the actual fighting.

For all of us, the time has come to take the offensive—to attack. Make this your personal "Declaration of War" against the enemies who would destroy your home, your freedom:

"As we here at home contemplate our own duties, our own responsibilities, let us think and think hard of the example which is being set for us by our fighting men."

President Roosevelt, in his fireside chat April 28, 1942.

Put at least 10% of your earnings into War Bonds every pay day—starting now! War Bonds not only offer the one sure way to help equip our fighting men and guarantee America's continued freedom, but provide the safest way on earth of guaranteeing your family's financial future too.

No matter what sacrifice it may entail—be sure you make your War Bond "quota" every pay day.

Remember, that any sacrifices we make must be puny, indeed, compared to those being made by our boys on the fighting fronts.

Remember, too, that the Japs and the Nazis will not wait while you "put off" buying Bonds until your NEXT pay day. No! It's 10% invested in War Bonds now, with $4 back for every $3 when Bonds are held to maturity—or its 100% LATER—taken, not borrowed, by your Jap and Nazi masters!

Save—or slave? Bonds—or Bondage? IT ALL DEPENDS ON YOU!
