

Mertz Backers Show First Public Sign On Board Vacancy

A speed-up in the active interest of those who favor the naming of Raymond E. Mertz to fill the vacancy on the board of commissioners seemed apparent this week. The first demand from the public for the commissioners to act came last Tuesday night.

Although such a step could have been anticipated from one of the usual political sources, it came from an entirely new source. Raymond Voss of 66 Hill street in the West Belleville section appeared before the board, claiming that he represented a group of Belleville citizens interested in the naming of Mertz.

Voss read a lengthy letter in which he appealed for the naming of the Union Avenue real estate broker. Addressing his remarks to Mayor Williams, who is the acting director of public safety, handling the duties which were assigned to Commissioner Clark before his death in October, Voss said that his group felt that Williams had enough to do to administer the revenue and finance department of which he also has charge.

Should Fulfill Duty

The Hill street resident said that since it was the intention of those who had framed the commission form of government plan that it worked best with five men, the commissioners should fulfill their duty by selecting a successor to Mr. Clark.

Commissioner Waters definitely indicated that he now intends not to take any action until after the budget has been passed. Voss interrupted to say that he felt that now, before the budget is considered, is the time that the new man should take his place. Waters was definitely opposed, declaring that it would take a new man six to eight months to familiarize himself with department routine and requirements.

He said there are four members of the board who are capable of setting up the budget for the public safety bureau.

At tonight's adjourned meeting, it is expected that Commissioners King and Noll will once again propose that Mertz be named. As in the past, the board was deadlocked at 2-2 when they placed his name in nomination last week.

The letter read by Voss, which he said expressed the views of a number of citizens is as follows: "The death of our late director of public safety has created a vacancy on the board of commissioners. This vacancy must be filled by the appointment of an efficient, capable person by the vote of at least three of the four remaining commissioners.

"The administration of sound efficient government demands that all vacancies on the board of commissioners be filled as soon as humanly possible.

"The people of Belleville in the last election of commissioners voted for the present commissioners and chose as their alternate, Raymond Mertz. This was in effect a mandate from the voters of Belleville that Mr. Mertz be chosen to fill any vacancy on the board of commissioners, regard less of the reason that created this vacancy.

"The law gives the unquestioned right to the remaining members of the board of commissioners to fill this vacancy. However, we believe that the law when it delegates them with the duty and responsibility to see that the vacancy is filled promptly.

"A few days after the death of Commissioner Clark, you both, Mr. Williams and Mr. Waters, issued statements that you would not consider filling this vacancy for a period of 31 days. A greater period of time has passed and neither of you have taken any action on this matter other than voting 'no' to the nomination of Raymond Mertz.

"Mr. Mertz is a man who from boyhood has lived in Belleville, attended Belleville schools, been active in civic affairs of this town for a number of years, and at the present time, operates a successful real estate business in Belleville. He has proven himself an able, courageous and competent executive and we believe thoroughly able to manage any department of this town. In addition to the above qualifications, he received over 4,300 votes in the last commission election, placing sixth in the count of ballots. He, therefore, is the choice of at least 4,300 citizens of this town.

"It is our opinion that the stand taken by Commissioners King and Noll is a disgraceful display of selfishness and a complete lack of public spirit.

"We believe that the naming of Raymond Mertz to fill the vacancy on the board of commissioners is the only way to insure the efficient and economical administration of the town of Belleville.

"We urge you to take immediate action to name Raymond Mertz to fill the vacancy on the board of commissioners.

"We are, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servants, Raymond Voss, Chairman, Citizens for Mertz, 66 Hill Street, Belleville, N. J."

It was announced this week by Theodore Buck, newly elected secretary of the Game Wardens' association, that the annual dinner would not be held for the duration of the war. The action was taken by the board of directors.

NO. 37 LINE RUNS BUSES DURING DAY ON JORALEMON ST.

Every Other Bus Operates Over New Route; Helps Many Residents

Improved transportation facilities for residents in the vicinity of Joralemon street, north of Union avenue, was granted during the past week by the public utilities commission.

Starting yesterday, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., every other bus trip on the No. 37 line will run on Joralemon street, going to and coming from its northern terminus at Joralemon and Lighth street. The bus has operated in the past along Joralemon street to Passaic avenue, to Ernest street, to Forest street, Greylock parkway to Linden avenue, to Joralemon street and east to Washington avenue.

The No. 37 bus is a cross-town line operating from West Belleville to the Silver Lake section. Joralemon street residents protested early last June when Public Service suspended daytime operation on the No. 92 line running in Joralemon street and Washington avenue to North Newark. The Public Service replied that it had been forced to take the action on orders from the government office of defense transportation because the bus did not carry a sufficient number of passengers during the day hours.

File a Petition

Residents filed a petition with the town commission. Commissioner Noll, local transportation chief, replied that both he and the Public Service were powerless to change the order. However, subsequently, at conferences with Public Service, he proposed that on alternate trips the No. 37 bus use Joralemon street. The company was agreeable to the plan and applied to the public utilities board for permission to make the change. It was some time before action was taken by the commission.

Noll said that he believed that a greater number of people would be served by the plan. Residents had protested that the suspension of the No. 92 service left transportation in the Washington avenue business section.

Return From Atlantic City

Sylvester Frazier and his son Donald returned last week from a seven-day visit in Atlantic City. Mrs. Frazier was hostess to her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Dovey on Christmas day.

Interest of Most Centered On Various Home Front Agencies

The year ending has been one of the most eventful and important for Belleville geared to wartime activity that has prompted greater community interest by the public than has been seen in previous years.

With the emphasis on building a strong home front, civilian defense has played a leading role throughout the 12 months with nearly 2,000 men and women enrolled in some branch of the organization. Coupled with this has been the work of many organizations, principally the American Red Cross, in training people for various types of protective work, aiding the men in the service and making articles for use on the battlefield or in war-torn countries.

While more than a thousand of the town's youth have gone off to serve the country in some branch of the armed forces, thousands more have marched to industrial plants. Locally, a number of these manufacturing firms, working on 24-hour shifts have been steadily turning out millions of dollars' worth of vital materials and machines to be used in the war.

Boom in Houses

With this tremendous activity has come an upsurge in business locally and a house buying and renting boom that exceeds anything that Belleville has previously known. Demands for increased production in the war plants has brought hundreds of workers to town and it is estimated that during the past year, Belleville's population has swelled by 2,000.

The year has not been without its tragedies. The greatest loss to the civic and political life of the community came early in October when William D. Clark, veteran director of public safety, died suddenly at his home. The first local serviceman to be lost was Harry C. Fredericks, Jr. of 33 Montgomery place, who was coxswain of a naval gun crew aboard a merchant vessel which was torpedoed in the Caribbean in May. Listed as missing in the naval records, Fredericks was posthumously decorated and commended for his bravery in Secretary of Navy Frank Knox.

To Be Honored

H. E. Burden

H. E. Burden of 15 Stephens street will be honored by his associates in the buildings and supplies department of the New Jersey Bell Telephone company today at a luncheon in the Robert Treat hotel, Newark, marking his arrival at the 30-year mark in his telephone career.

The company's gold emblem awarded for three decades of service will be presented by H. A. McIlwain, superintendent of buildings and supplies for the company. Burden is building foreman for the company in Newark, where all his service has been, and is a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

Dimout Hours For The Week

With dimout regulations now in effect and the local civilian defense organization bent on making sure that residents comply, The Times publishes its second weekly schedule of the time each night that the rules are effective.

Residents and storekeepers are required to observe the orders on lighting issued by the army one-half hour after sundown. The time for each night starting with this evening and continuing through Wednesday, January 6, is as follows:

Tuesday	6:06
Wednesday	6:06
Thursday	6:07
Friday	6:08
Saturday	6:09
Sunday	6:10

MOST OF DRAFT GROUP ARE 20 OR YOUNGER

Will Induct Next Contingent Monday; First Of 18-19's Go

Approximately half of those who will be inducted into the army next week will be 20 years old or younger, the draft board announced last night in releasing the names of those who will be called.

Following their physical examination at the Newark armory on Monday, those who wish will be granted a week's furlough and will then be sent to Fort Dix on Monday, January 11.

The group is not as large as some of those which have been sent in recent months. It is the first time that any of the 18 and 19-year-old boys have been inducted. Those in the group are: John Lawrence Blekiski, 125 Cortlandt street; Abraham Schelinsky, 67 Bell street; Andrew Anthony Canfora, 87 Heckel street; Patrick William Rooney, 266 Livingston avenue, Lyndhurst, N. J.; Joseph Thomas Maguire, 25 Fairway avenue; William Henry Martin, 612 No. Grove street, East Orange, N. J.; John Emilio Porcelli, 79 Heckel street; Salvatore Sax Alvino, 331 No. 10th street, Newark, N. J.; David John Connolly, 101 Tappan avenue; Anthony Salvatore Pascheria, 73 Franklin street; Markland John O'Connell, 365 DeWitt avenue; Cecil Boyce, 219 Belleville avenue; Frank Palmer Carnevale, 144 Wakeman avenue, Newark, N. J.; Archie Nunsio Scalla, 377 Washington avenue.

missioners King, Noll, Waters and the late Commissioner Clark, broke local political precedent in May when all of them were re-elected to the board. Never before had an entire board been returned to office by the voters. Although Commissioner Waters was high man, he stepped aside in favor of Mayor Williams who finished in third place.

Lost By 58 Votes

In the political scene, the other event of note was Mayor Williams' effort to be elected to congress. As the candidate of the Clean Government Republican organization, he attempted to defeat the incumbent congressman, Representative Fred A. Hartley, Jr. Williams lost in the September primary by 58 votes.

Garbage Collection Cost Up

Charles Cuzzo was again granted the municipal refuse collection contract although his bid for three years was twice as much as that for the contract just ending. Cuzzo offered to do the work for $95,000. He previously had performed the job for $41,000.

Sgt. Charles Pearl retired after 35 years of service in the police department. He was one of the four original members named to the force when it was organized in 1907.

Cops Get Tires First

The newly formed tire ration board, headed by Edward Gramke, vice-president and general manager of the Andrew Jergens company, performed its first work, with the police department the first to be granted certificates for the purchase of new tires.

The National Grain Yeast company donated a truck to the defense council to be used for emergency work, while the Eastwood-Neally corporation purchased a new car for the police department.

State ABC Head Cracks Whip On Two Dealers

Driscoll Upholds Closing Fountain 35 Days; Began Suspension Sunday Night; Fines Mrs. Miller $1,000; Intimates Further Action Is Contemplated

The harshest treatment yet given to a local liquor license holder was meted out this week by State Alcoholic Beverage Commissioner Alfred E. Driscoll to two dealers. In one case he backed up a 35-day suspension order voted by the town commission and ordered The Fountain, a night club in Watessing avenue in the Silver Lake section, to shut down. Driscoll also slapped a $1,000 fine on Mrs. Sarah Miller, license holder for the Washington Wine & Liquor store at 477 Washington avenue, for illegal storage of $10,000 worth of liquor stock in her home at 134 Floyd street.

FOUNTAIN CASE

The punishment given The Fountain was doubly strong for Driscoll's suspension order became effective at the close of business on Sunday night, four days before the biggest and most profitable time of the year for night spots—New Year's eve.

The unanimous order that the license be suspended for 35 days was issued on September 22 last by the town commission following a hearing for the Creston Holding corporation, license holder for The Fountain, on the charge of selling and serving liquor to minors. An appeal from the suspension order was immediately taken to Driscoll by Max N. Schwartz, representing the defendant.

The Fountain's troubles were the outgrowth of a fatal accident in Nutley early on the morning of May 3. Two young people, Miss Florence Bickell, 22, of Nutley and Pvt. Stanley Reynolds, 24, of the town, were killed. The accident was caused by a car driven by Carmen Maiorano, 20, of Union avenue, who is now in the army. Miss Jane Clendenning, 17, of Nutley was a passenger. The party had dropped Miss Ann Hatch, also 17, of Nutley off at her home shortly before the accident.

Under questioning by Nutley police of the survivors, they told that they had been at the Fountain before the accident, having spent several hours there. They admitted that each of them had claimed that Belleville was entering the new year in "a financially strong position." He said that the tax rate would be whittled down nine points to $4.53.

Hugh D. Kittle, high school principal, was elected president of the Welfare Federation at its annual meeting. He succeeded W. Douglas Clark, Jr.

The draft board prepared to send the largest contingent off to service on March 4 with special public exercises planned with a parade from the high school to the town hall. More than 2,000 men in the 20 to 44 age group were signed up by the board in a weekend registration.

A plan calling for the merger of three local building and loan associations to be known as the Belleville Savings & Loan association was announced. Participating in the consolidation were the Clover, Central and Home Building and Loan associations.

Herbert C. Schmutz was elected president of the board of education for the fifth time.

The Public Service started a line from Pennsylvania station, Newark, which ran through the valley section providing better transportation for hundreds of war workers in that area.

FINE MRS. MILLER

The threat of further legal action by the ABC hangs over the Washington Wine & Liquor store based on intimations in the opinion given by Driscoll in ordering the return of the liquor stock which was seized by agents of the department on November 19.

Adding that Mrs. Miller, in addition to paying the $1,000 fee bear all other costs incident to the seizure of the liquor, Driscoll commented that it should be fully understood that the issuance of the permits merely corrects the storage and in no way bars "appropriate disciplinary proceedings for the suspension or outright revocation of a license holder's license for false returns to the state tax department (and, if the facts warrant, for the possibility that the licensee may be a 'front' for her husband or son.)"

The liquor store's trouble with the ABC started on November 19 when a federal agent made the discovery that the liquor stock was stored at Mrs. Miller's home at 134 Floyd street. He noticed the ABC and department agents immediately seized 431 cases which were stored in the cellar of the home, 11 one-gallon jugs of scotch malt, 11 bottles of liquor found in the attic and three more cases of liquor found in the bedroom of Mrs. Miller's daughter.

The jugs and bottles found in the attic were seized on the suspicion by the department that they contained "boozy" liquor, while the remainder of the liquor was taken because it is a violation of the ABC law which provides that real licensees must store liquor on the licensed premises or in a licensed warehouse or at other premises providing a permit is obtained from the state department.

Asked Earlier Hearing

The seizure hearing before Driscoll was scheduled for January 5 but Mrs. Miller filed a petition for an immediate hearing on the grounds that the 431 cases of liquor taken by the department constituted the bulk of liquor stock available for sale during the holiday season. Agreeing to pay all or the costs involved for the return of the stock, she declared that to delay the hearing until after the holiday season would cause her irreparable damage.

Mrs. Miller protested in her appeal that she was ignorant of the fact that the storage of the 431 cases of liquor in her home was illegal.

"There were no more to the case," Driscoll stated, "I might well, in view of this plausible claim, have granted the hearing." (Continued from Page 3)

Belleville Boys Had To Show Best To Turn Back Hillside

The high school court team will get its sternest test of the season one week from tonight when it will meet the highly rated St. Benedict's quintet at the high school gym. Victorious in three games to date, the high school five had its closest call last Tuesday night when it shaded Hillside high 36-32.

Belleville pulled away to a 12-5 lead in the first period, but the Hillsideers crept up in the third period when they outscored the Zebras 10-9 and held them even in the last period when each scored five points. Neil Finn was the high scorer with 17 points.

The locals have trimmed both the Panzer college and Montclair Teacher jayvee fives by much bigger margins than did St. Benedict's. The Saints and their closest last week when they squeaked by New Brunswick high 32-30.

The warning issued to users of large amounts of fuel oil here recently by the war price and rationing board was strongly re-emphasized in a joint statement issued this week by three government war agencies.

Bluntly, the government edict notified those who have been heating their homes, factories or institutions with oil, and who can convert to coal, that they must convert at once.

The present order is directly aimed at those places which are using 10,000 or more gallons of oil yearly, but it was stated that plans are being prepared for similar conversion by smaller users of fuel oil.

The government statement issued by the office of price administration, the war production board and the petroleum administration for war said that the increased determined effort to restrict the use of fuel oil had been prompted by the needs of the army in Africa.

Must Send it to War

"Oil that is needed for war, must be sent to war," the statement said. "As a direct result of the African campaign, the situation here has become critical."

The order said that the ruling applied to owners of oil-heated buildings such as hospitals, schools, hotels, apartments, recreation halls, municipal buildings, churches and other similar institutions and factories. According to estimates, upwards of 75 per cent of the 5,000 buildings affected in New York and Northern New Jersey can convert.

The Petroleum Administration for war has assigned combustion engineers to all WPB district offices including the one located in Newark. Ten thousand gallon users of oil, facing conversion problems, should consult with these engineers.

Herbert C. Schmutz, local rationing board chairman, said recently that it was expected that a heating expert from the OPA would be here shortly to survey the Nutley and Belleville area with the view to speeding up conversion efforts on the part of users of large amounts of fuel oil.

The OPA has set a tentative deadline of January 26 for fuel oil users to convert, but in cases where an effort is being made to change to coal heating, an extension will be granted by the board. All industrial fuel oil users, which includes all of those except private dwellings, were allowed two-thirds of the amount of fuel oil which they used last year. Coupons were issued to them for the first and second periods of the winter. The second period will end on January 26.

Require Sworn Statement

In cases where it is impossible to convert, the users must present a sworn statement from a heating expert that it is impossible to change over to coal.

Among the groups which have been seriously affected here by the fuel oil pinch have been a number of the churches. Drastically cut in the amount of oil which they have been permitted to use, they have been forced to sharply curtail their activities.

Meetings of many groups have been cancelled or switched to hours when several groups could use the building at the same time.

One of the heating plants which will not be converted is located in the high school. It is the only one of the public school buildings which uses oil heat. Ruel E. Daniels, business manager of the board of education, said that it would be impossible to convert, pointing out that the oil burning equipment installed in the building is a special proposition. He explained that there would be no place to put the grates used in coal furnaces.

The furnace was installed when the new addition to the high school was added, Daniels said. No provisions were made for storage space for coal, he said. If conversion could be made, he said that the coal would have to be stored outside of the building.

More than a year ago, Daniels added, the board of education filed a statement with the government that the system could not be converted to coal.

MILLER CASE
plea, return the liquor on the condition that the licensee pay the costs of seizure and also obtain a special permit from this department, at a moderate fee, to validate the storage.
Calls it Evasion Scheme
"The case, however, involves significantly more than casual storage of liquor off the licensed premises," he continued. "The evidence fully convinces me that the liquor was kept at the house, rather than at the store, in deliberate perpetration of a scheme to evade the recent federal floor tax upon alcoholic beverages."
The law requires that liquor dealers take an inventory of their full stock of beverages on hand prior to November 1, 1942 and file it with the federal government by December 1, 1942, and make payment, based on this inventory by February 1, 1943.
"It's clear," Driscoll continued, "that the licensee or her manager (her husband or son) purposely schemed to conceal the full bulk of the store's liquor stock by keeping it hidden at home. The licensee intended to omit such liquors from her inventory for the federal tax and hence to evade paying a tax on these concealed liquors."
"The reprehensible scheme," the A. J. head charged, "appears to have been conceived some months in anticipation of the tax. I readily find, that as far back as May, the licensee began systematically to withdraw cases of alcoholic beverages from the store and to keep them in the cellar of her home, with various cases being returned from time to time when needed in the business. To cover up the periodic withdrawals of the liquor to the home, the licensee, in her monthly returns to the state tax department, falsely listed such beverages having been sold in the course of business."
The home failed, Driscoll Driscoll, only because of the alertness of a federal agent in checking the concern's inventory and sales records in November. He reported the case to the ABC

Price Listing Is Important

SHOP WHERE PRICES ARE LISTED. That's the advice of the American stores and here's one thrifty, patriotic shopper who is following this advice by buying at a price-posted store. The OPA requires that all prices on cost of living commodities be posted in order to help keep the living cost down.

"Reprehensible Plan"
In reaching his decision, Driscoll said that he gave "great weight to the reprehensible plan the licensee was seeking to effect." Ordering the return of the 431 cases, the ABC head instructed that in addition to the $1,000 fine, Mrs. Miller should pay the full cost of the seizure.
Concerning the three cases of liquor found in the daughter's bedroom, Driscoll said that he was sufficiently convinced that it belonged to the daughter and her husband and that it should be returned.
As to the eleven jugs and other bottles of liquor found in the attic, Driscoll said in his opinion, ordering their return without the imposition of any penalty.
"Although these items give rise to a grave suspicion that their contents are 'bootleg' in origin, nevertheless I am satisfied by the evidence presented at the hearing that they are all carry-overs of one Prohibition liquor owned by Barney Miller, husband of the licensee, and that they were properly declared at the time repeal became effective."
Associated in the business with Mrs. Miller, in addition to her husband, has been their son, Nathan. However, he is serving in the army at the present time.

Start Of An Important Year

The year which is ending has been one of great sacrifice. All of us have been required to cut corners and take in our belts a few notches—either voluntarily or under government pressure. First, we learned that some of the luxuries to which we had been accustomed were out for the rest of the war. Then, came the reduction in what we had grown to regard as some of the necessities of life.

With this has been the steady demand made upon the public for volunteer service in various phases of the war effort. This has been for their own protection and as an aid to those who are either prepared to do their part on the battle line or those who are busy in war plants throughout the country.

As we turn the calendar over for another year, it can be readily understood that we have only seen the beginning of what Prime Minister Churchill so colorfully termed "blood, sweat and tears." Harder days are ahead. We will be forced to deprive ourselves of more things than we have in the past so that those who are in the services may have everything which they need to gain the victory.

Surely, there is not one of us who should not be willing to make the sacrifice. There are still many continuous tasks to be performed by every individual. In the kitchens, housewives should save tins and fats and greases for salvage. Everybody can help by regular purchase of war bonds and stamps. For many there is still a place in some branch of civilian defense. Careful buying of all commodities and care of those scarce things which we now own is required.

1943 is an important year to all of us and we can help by patriotically performing our duty.

Severe Warning To Liquor Dealers

No time in local liquor history have license holders been dealt with as severely as two of them were this week by Alfred E. Driscoll, commissioner of alcoholic beverage control. Of all of the branches of state government, we can think of none which has a more enviable record for non-partisanship than that which oversees the liquor industry.

Perhaps the creed that has placed the department in its present excellent position was established by the late D. Frederick Burnett. He was the original ABC director, and taking over at the end of repeal, he determined that the industry would be operated on a high plane and that the law would be followed to the letter.

His death was a great loss to the state, but the fine tradition which he established has been well followed by his successor, Mr. Driscoll. As harsh as the treatment given to the two local dealers was, it clearly demonstrated two things. The original punishment given to one was given by the town commission. Mr. Driscoll in his opinion made it clear that he did not intend to tamper with the authority which has been invested in local excise boards. Rather, he indicated that when they have performed their duty well, he will back them up and praise their efforts.

In the other case, the ABC commissioner frankly indicated that the government, at least as far as his department is concerned, will not tolerate any effort to evade payment of taxes as required by law.

The punishment in both of these cases has not been light. It should serve as a fair warning to all license holders that they are in a business which demands that they follow the letter of the law constantly. They should know that failure to adhere to all legal requirements will subject them to possible punishment, which will result in not only the loss of business, but of prestige among their customers and associates, and possible revocation of their license.

There is no business which is more in the public eye than that of the liquor industry. There is none upon which opposition forces have more persistently and continuously concentrated efforts to have abolished.

Former BHS Class President Training As Air Cadet

Stanley W. Litts in Training At Maxwell Field, Ala.: Was in Coast Artillery; Edward W. Loranger Made Staff Sergeant At Washington Air Base

A former president of the high school senior class, Stanley W. Litts, has been admitted to the latest class of aviation cadets to enroll in the army air forces pre-flight pilot school at Maxwell field, Ala. The son of Mr. and Mrs. William Litts of Parkside drive, he was a member of the coast artillery for five months before being appointed as an aviation cadet in July.

Cadet Litts was graduated from the high school in June, 1940. In addition to being president of the senior class, he was also the class leader during the junior year. After graduation, he attended Cumberland university at Lebanon, Tenn. for two years and was rated as a junior industrial engineer before entering the service. He was vice president of the college freshman class.

POEMS FEATURE PETREAN PROGRAM

Works of Rev. Abraham J. Ryan Read at Christmas Party Tuesday

In conjunction with the annual Christmas party of the Petrean club held last Tuesday evening in its club rooms, an hour's rendition of poems, written by Rev. Abraham Joseph Ryan, was presented by the drama group of the club.

Father Ryan, called the "Poet Priest of the South," has written some of the most beautiful yet simple poems known. An army chaplain, who enlisted at the outbreak of the civil war, many of the priest's outstanding poems were written during those days.

In less than 30 years his poems were printed in 27 different editions.

The principals, who were introduced by James A. Leonard, Petrean president, and the poems rendered by them are as follows: "Mother's Way" by Mrs. Ruth Cuklin, "Rest" by Mrs. Arlene Hilliard, "A Child's Wish" by Miss Anne Boylan, "Now" by Miss Madeline Keating, "My Beads" by Miss Gertrude Barnett, "Farewells" by Miss Mae Watson, "Prayer of the South" by Miss Graa Kinnealy, "The Conquered Banner" by Mrs. Grace Maguire, "The Sword of Robert E. Lee" by Ambrose R. Cuklin, "In Memoriam" by Mrs. Grace Monahan, "Erin's Flag" by Corwin A. Stickney.

Participates in Old English Dinner at Teachers' College

Miss Nancy Lynch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Lynch of 175 Tappan avenue was one of the students at Montclair State Teachers college who took part in the Traditional Old English Christmas dinner held there last Tuesday evening. The dinner, for residents of Edward Russ and Chapin Halls, was formal. During the dinner, musical English customs such as the carrying-in of the "Boar's Head," "Wassail Bowl" and "Blackbird Pie" were observed.

After dinner, guests adjourned to the living room to witness the lighting of the Yule Log and the annual presentation of "The Twelve Days of Christmas." Miss Lynch and Miss Doris Wilson, also of town, were among the twelve women chosen to participate in the tableau. The program ended with a comic skit, "Old King Cole," and the singing of carols, accompanied by a student on the organ. The program was arranged and managed by Dr. Edna McEachern, professor of music.

Will Hit 35-Mile Per Hour
Violators

James Kerney, Jr., state director of the office of price administration, this week announced completion of arrangements for a program of cooperation between OPA and state, county, and municipal enforcement agencies for reporting to OPA the names of persons violating the 35-mile an hour speed limit. An executive order issued by Governor Edison directed the various enforcement agencies to cooperate with OPA's mileage rationing program in this matter.

"The 35-mile an hour speed limit," Kerney declared, "is the backbone of the mileage rationing program. The speed limit, coupled with periodic tire inspection, is the program's most potent factor for actually saving rubber. The object of the speed limit is to eliminate waste and abuse of tires. Violators are subject to suspension of gasoline and tire rations."

The plan provides for all enforcement agencies including state police, the motor vehicle bureau and all county and municipal enforcement agencies to report speed violations to Kerney's office. The notices of violations will then be sent to the rationing board in whose area the offender lives for appropriate action.

A new rationing program went into effect on December 18—the rationing of new heating stoves and space heaters which burn either coal, fuel oil or kerosene. New cooking stoves, new stoves which burn only wood, the used stoves (in use 60 days or more) are not affected by the rationing order.

Relace Oil Fired Heaters

Persons eligible to buy a coal heater include householders who will use the new stove to replace oil-fired heating equipment. They must simply apply to their ration boards for a purchase certificate and surrender their unused and unexpired fuel oil ration coupons. Others eligible for coal stoves are:

1. Persons who need a stove to heat essential living or working space which is at present not heated at all, and who have not disposed of any usable heating equipment within 60 days prior to the date of application. Such persons will be asked to sign a statement to this effect.

2. Persons whose present coal-burning equipment is damaged or worn out beyond repair must also provide the board with a statement to that effect.

3. Persons who are eligible under the fuel rationing regulations for an auxiliary ration of 350 gallons or more of oil, and will use coal-burning equipment instead. (Sickness or infirmity are the main grounds for obtaining auxiliary oil rations.)

Oil-fired stoves or space heaters are restricted to persons who are unable to use coal burning equipment for one or more of several specific reasons.

State rationing officials announced that the final date for persons who have not yet received war ration book one (the sugar and coffee ration book now in use) to apply for one at rationing boards has been extended from December 15, 1942 to January 15, 1943.

It was emphasized that possession of this book is necessary in order to receive a copy of war ration book two which will be distributed some time soon after January 15.

Institutional and industrial users of sugar were advised that they may apply to rationing boards until January 5 for January, February allotments of sugar. Institutional users will receive 60 percent of the normal allotment, while industrial users will receive 70 percent, the same proportions that were allotted last period.

Wn Helped Give Records,
struments to Navy

Recreational facilities of the navy have been increased by 350 records, 103 portable phonographs, 130 band and string instruments, 263 small instruments, ten radios and three pianos, sent to activities of the war arts music committee of the fifth music foundation during the past month. Final reckoning revealed that the committee's first project—to provide men on combat and transport vessels with more and better music—also netted $132.85 in cash donations to buy new records and instruments. Beginning early in November, a collection campaign worked through public and private societies, federated women's clubs, the seventh and eighth districts, Protestant and Catholic churches, synagogues and Jewish women's organizations. A committee headed jointly by Mrs. Henry Bickhorn of Newark, Mrs. A. H. Ror of South Orange and Mrs. C. Powell Buchner of East Orange, included representatives in Bloomfield, all of the Oranges, Maplewood, Montclair, Niles, Glen Ridge, Irvington, Belleville, Kearny, Caldwell, Millburn, Verona and Newark.

Swics Today For Uncle
O Commissioner Noll

A solemn high mass of requiem will be offered this morning at 9 a.m. for John A. Noll, of 537 Fernan street, Orange, who died on Saturday after a two-year illness. He is an uncle of Lis A. Noll, director of parks at public property.

A native of Germany, he came to this country 45 years ago. Before moving to Orange three years ago, he had resided in Newark and Irvington.

Arriving him besides his wife, M. Olga Noll, are five daughters, Mrs. Edward Reiman of Philadelphia, Mrs. W. J. Wheeler of Philadelphia, Mrs. Joseph Jaer of Orange, Mrs. M. J. Araga of South Orange, and Miss A. Noll of Irvington, and a brother, Louis, of Newark.

Juan David Drew

Services were held yesterday afternoon from the Kiernan Funeral home for Judson David Drew, 88, of 22 William street, who died at his home on December 28. Drew was born in Canada and leaves a son, Jack, of tow and two daughters, Mrs. Pet Kiernan of Newark, and Miss Agnes Boswell of Massachusetts. Interment was in Glendale cemetery. Rev. Peter R. Deckenbach officiated at the services.

had several drinks. The case was turned over to the ABC. Further questioning of the young people was made by the department's agent followed by visits to The Fountain. The charges of selling and giving liquor to minors was made by the ABC and the hearing, the Town Attorney Lawrence, Keenan serving as prosecutor, was held before the board of commissioners on September 22.

Maian, who was the driver of the car, did not appear as a defendant. He was backed up by the board's action in his witness for the state, but Miss Clendenning, who was a cousin of the Bickell girl, Miss Hatch and Miss Zetterstrom did.

"While the 35-day suspension in question is heavy-fisted," the ABC commissioner commented, "nevertheless, three minors—17 and 19 years of age—were involved. The board of commissioners, in imposing the penalty, stated it had made a lengthy study of all of the testimony and felt that the dangers incident to the sale of liquor to minors should be brought home to those in the business with sufficient force to cause licensees to exercise more caution."

"The board attitude was entirely proper. I am not warranted in finding that the respondent (the board of commissioners) acted unreasonably in imposing the penalty in question," he concluded, pointing to a Bayonne case in which a 30-day suspension was upheld for the sale of a glass of beer to a 19-year old youth.

The Fountain appealed the case, claiming that the evidence was insufficient to warrant a guilty decision and that the penalty imposed by the town board was excessive. Pending decision on appeal, The Fountain obtained an ad interim stay of the suspension, which permitted it to continue in business.

"In defense," Driscoll stated, "the licensee represents that none of its employees has any recollection of serving the minors, and relies upon the fact that, when the minors were brought back to the premises at a subsequent date, they had some difficulty in identifying the waiter who served them."

"However," he continued, "the three minors clearly identified the licensed premises as the place where they were served with alcoholic beverages on the above dates."

No Interest At Stake

"Licensee's denial that the minors obtained alcoholic beverages at its premises, considering its interest in the outcome of the appeal, is not sufficient to nullify the clear-cut and logical statements of the minors who apparently have no interest at stake in the case nor any reason to accuse unjustly the licensee. Hence, I conclude that the respondent's findings of guilt against the li-

Casting aside the defendant's claim that the 35-day suspension is excessive, Driscoll termed it as being without merit.

"The penalty to be administered in a local disciplinary proceeding rests," the commissioner said, "in the first instance, within the sound discretion of the municipality. The power of the commissioner to reduce a penalty on appeal is confined to those cases when the penalty is manifestly unreasonable."

Operated a number of years as a night spot, being known as the Ace club at one time, The Fountain was remodelled, enlarged and re-named several years ago by the d'Agostino brothers, Fred, Michael and Gene. Michael, who was employed in the town welfare department, was the first municipal worker to enter the service, now being a sergeant in the army. Fred died suddenly following a short illness a little more than a year ago. Gene continued to manage the business, but early this month was inducted into the army. It is understood that in view of Driscoll's decision, the place will remain closed for the duration of the war.

The ABC commissioner's edict, barring the night spot from remaining open on New Year's eve, forced the cancellation of numerous parties and reservations which had been made for the year-end celebrating.

Offer Retraining Courses For Technical Personnel

A project for the retraining of men between the ages of 35 and 60 for technical war production work was announced this week by the Newark College of Engineering. It is expected that the training will start in January and will continue for about 10 weeks.

It will be limited to men who have been displaced from non-essential industries and who have demonstrated through their business or professional experience the likelihood of being successfully retrained. Government authorities responsible for the allocation of manpower as well as employers in war industry are agreed that in order to achieve maximum productivity the plants of the nation need technically trained personnel far in excess of those now available.

The schedule of study for the courses will include engineering drawing so that applicants may become thoroughly familiar with the industrial language, metallurgy and physical properties of metals, shop processes, as well as elements of machine design, production, organization, and engineering.

The courses will be full-time, amounting to 35 hours per week for 15 weeks, and the full use of the classrooms and laboratories of the college will be made available.

MUST MAINTAIN FAMILY HEALTH

Important Responsibility For Lady of House, Says County Home Agent

American homemakers looking ahead to the turn of the new year will find many opportunities for making even greater contributions to the war effort. Heading the list of responsibilities which will fall to the lot of the lady-of-the-house will be the maintenance of her family's good health and providing the foods essential to growth and vitality will require more thought than ever before now that the nation faces a more rigid rationing program.

No American family will complain about giving up a few non-essentials and luxury foods these days. There's a recommended nutrition yardstick that should be followed each day, however. Margaret C. Shepard, Essex county home demonstration agent reminds homemakers. Haphazard meals with no check on daily food requirements will slow up work, cause more accidents, lower resistance to disease, and do a lot to pull down morale—all of which is just what the enemy wants.

"Since some of our foods must be shared with our allies, alternate foods will be available of similar nutritive value," Mrs. Shepard says. "Remember that a little extra weight is an asset for children and youth, but for the adult of middle age and older it is a decided handicap. Let's eat wisely without over-eating."

"It is just as essential for the whole family to be healthy as it is for those served at the family dinner table. Carried meals must meet the daily food requirements and provide food sufficient in quantity and quality to prevent undue fatigue and accidents, and assure the maximum efficiency necessary for "doing the job."

FARM LABOR IS CRITICAL PROBLEM

3,000 Full-Time Workers Needed Immediately, Says Farm Bureau Head

New Jersey farmers have an immediate need for more than 3,000 full time hired workers, Herbert W. Voorhees, president of the New Jersey farm bureau declared today.

Voorhees based his statement upon a preliminary report of a survey conducted at the request of the farm bureau by the Agricultural extension service of Rutgers university through its volunteer corps. The survey covered 40 per cent of the farms in the state and an estimated 75 per cent of the farms which hire labor.

Forty per cent of the farmers listed labor as their chief problem, although shortages of fertilizer, machinery and truck transportation are also causing considerable concern. Feed and supplies are worrying the poultry farmers more than labor.

If they can solve these problems, New Jersey farmers in general intend to equal or increase next year their 1942 record of production, Voorhees reported. Poultry production promises to be increased about 7 per cent although a decline of approximately 2 per cent is threatened in the production of vegetables.

The survey showed that the number of full time hired workers on New Jersey farms has decreased by about 18 per cent since 1939, while the number of men hired as seasonal workers has declined 9 per cent. Higher-paying jobs in industry have taken more hired workers from farms than have the armed services, according to the survey. The number of family workers on farms has decreased 6 per cent since 1939.

Nearly 40 per cent of the family workers who left farms went into the armed services while 37 per cent went into industrial jobs.

Club Marks Anniversary

The Junior Music club marked the fourth anniversary of its formation with a Christmas party, Tuesday afternoon, at the studio of Mrs. John F. Doyle of Wilber street.

A short business meeting preceded the social and a biography was given of Felix Mendelssohn. Christmas carols were sung, accompanied by members. Those present were, Suzanne and Alice Seiler, Dolores Bjorkner, Christine Wilkinson, Phyllis White, Alan Rosenberg, Walter Shope, William Britton and Jack Doyle.

From office boy to president, all 171 employees of an abandoned shipyard have offered to work without pay for sixty days to get the plant into war time production. "We would rather work for Uncle Sam for two months for nothing than for perhaps the rest of our lives for Hitler," said a spokesman.

Resolve to be a Really Good Cook

There's nothing quite so wasteful these days as economically prepared meals that the family just won't eat. And as victory begins at home, in fact, right in our own kitchens, why not start off 1943 by trying to be a really good cook.

Naturally, planning meals ahead is difficult with restrictions and rationing programs—but meals must be nutritionally good. As it's sometimes easier to plan well-balanced menus if you have a pattern by which to go, I think you'll find the ones given below particularly helpful.

Generoso Prezioso Re-Elected Tripoli Park Club Head

Generoso Prezioso was re-elected president of the Tripoli Park Political and Social club at a meeting held last week. Other officers named were as follows: Frank Zarro, Jr., first vice-president; Peter Musco, second vice-president; Thomas Roselli, corresponding secretary; Matthew Petti, financial secretary; Sabino Prezioso, treasurer; Antonio Russo and Salvatore Palomara, trustees; and Joseph Pelosi, sergeant-at-arms.

Civilian Defense Was Activity Keynote For 1942 Town Board Election Was Political Highlight

ject was represented locally by John F. Coogan, Jr. The property was purchased from the town. Parking meters were installed in Washington avenue, between Rutgers street and Belleville avenue. They were mechanically controlled so that shoppers could insert five cents for one hour's parking or one cent for 12 minutes.

Three more members of the town commission announced that they would be candidates for reelection. They were Joseph King, Patrick A. Waters and William D. Clark. Outsiders to enter the race were Edward Smith and George E. Stewart, Jr.

The rationing board was making preparations to register all residents for sugar rationing May 4 to 7.

April saw some speed-up of town commission activity. R. G. Sutherland was named Raymond E. Mertz's campaign manager, while James Waters was again designated as campaign head for his brother, the commissioner. Bertram J. Woodhall was named director of Elmer S. Hyde's campaign.

Manufacturing firms in the Silver Lake section, both in this town and adjacent Bloomfield, requested the public utilities commission to act quickly on the Public Service application to operate a crosstown bus from the Lake section to West Belleville via Mill street and Washington avenue.

Mayor Last to Enter

With the deadline for the filing of candidates' petitions for the town commission near, Mayor Williams became the 18th and final aspirant to announce. He had served three consecutive terms as finance director, holding the mayoralty for the last two.

In the interest of conserving for national defense, five groups of storekeepers announced that they would shut down their stores four nights each week at 8 p. m.

The defense council was pleased with the town's reaction to its first blackout test. Lights were doused for 15 minutes in Northern Jersey counties.

A one-day strike staged by about 100 high school students over the ban on baseball fizzled when leaders returned to the classroom. School officials said the sport was dropped for the season because there was no playing field.

Two new super markets were opened during the month in Washington avenue. At 161 Washington avenue, opposite the town hall, the Safeway stores opened a large, modern market while the Acme chain opened one at 335 Washington avenue, north of the Congregation A. A. A. synagogue.

The biggest surprise of the town commission campaign came late in April when John F. Coogan, Jr. announced that he was withdrawing from the race. Regarded as one of the strong favorites for a place on the board, Coogan was named to the Essex county tax board by Governor Charles Edison. The five-year appointment paid $4,500 annually.

The American Legion post raised $400 at a concert staged to secure funds to purchase an inhalator for the town.

The Wallace & Tiernan company workers contributed $6,500 to the Navy Relief society. It represented one hour's overtime pay by the 1,500 workers plus a surplus given by the company.

The only action of the town commission race was created by an attack on Mayor Williams' financial administration of the town by George E. Stewart, Jr.

The highlight of May was the town election in which all of the incumbent board members, Mayor Williams and Commissioners Waters, King, Noll and Clark were re-elected. Waters was high man with Mayor Williams in second place. Waters announced that he would make a bid for the mayoralty but at a subsequent conference of the board, it developed that Mayor Williams had sufficient votes to be returned to the office which he had held for eight years.

Installation of three way police radio equipment was completed. The cost was put at $4,500. In addition to the police car, the ambulance and that of the fire chief were also equipped.

Approved by the public utilities commission, the Public Service started operation of the Silver Lake-West Belleville bus line known as route No. 37.

Soon after election, Public Safety Director William D. Clark made two promotions and a new appointment. Harry A. White was promoted to lieutenant in the fire department and Captain John J. Flynn was named a police sergeant. Charles Natale was named to the first department.

Discontinuance of daytime service on the No. 92 bus line running in Joralemon street and Washington avenue to North Newark was announced by the Public Service. The company explained that it was acting on orders of the ODT because of the lack of passengers during the hours from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Sullivan Named Coordinator

Harry J. Sullivan was named defense council coordinator at an annual salary of $3,000. Technically, Sullivan who had been active in Commissioner Waters' campaign for election, was an employee of his department, but Waters said that he was loaning him to the defense council.

The OPA speeded plans in June to consolidate the Nutley and Belleville rationing boards. The plan drew protests both from here and Nutley.

With $766,000 in assets, the DeWitt Savings & Loan association, 200 Washington avenue, opened for business. Commissioner Joseph King was named the financial institution's president while Edward Cantwell was named executive secretary.

Cracking down on the "X" card holders, the ration board took back 203 of the 366 cards of the type which had been issued under the first gasoline rationing plan.

More than 5,400 school youngsters started their summer vacation. The recreation department, local sponsor in the learn-to-swim campaign, announced that more than 300 would take lessons at the Friendly Hoise pool.

Miss Sadie Slusser, a Newark woman, was named clerk of the draft board. She succeeded Edward Reed, who had held the post since the board's organization. Reed took a position in a Newark defense plant.

The draft board announced that more than 150 would be inducted into the service on July 3 to make the largest group that Belleville had yet sent to the army.

Plans were announced for the expansion of the annual Community Chest campaign to include several war relief agencies and include the USO and the Naval Relief society.

Rev. Joseph M. Kelly, pastor of St. Peter's church, was honored at a surprise reception by his parishioners on completing 35 years in the priesthood. He was presented a check for $2,000.

In the first of its kind ever held here, 109 persons each gave a pint of blood in the blood bank conducted on July 1 by the Red Cross chapter.

The draft board reported that it had registered 594 youths in 18 and 19 age group.

Daniels Ration Head

State OPA Administrator James Kerney announced the appointment of Ruel E. Daniels, business manager of the board of education, as chairman of the joint war price and rationing board for Nutley and Belleville.

Lloyd M. Kenny of Nutley was named the executive secretary. The appointment of Daniels and the location of the office here at 460 Washington avenue was strongly protested to county headquarters by the Nutley delegation.

In mid-July Wilbur W. Brooks, executive vice-president of the First National bank, announced that he had tendered his resignation to the bank's board of directors to take effect immediately. He had been affiliated with the institution for six years.

Despite the help of a number of volunteers, the rationing board was swamped with more than 8,000 applications for supplemental gasoline books by motorists. The hottest congressional primary in a number of years was in the office with Mayor Williams picked by the Clean Government wing of the Republican party as its candidate to oppose Congressman Fred A. Hartley, Jr. for re-nomination. Williams, in his opening statement, assailed the representative as an isolationist who should be retired from public office by the voters.

Everett B. Smith, police judge and defense council chairman, in August was elected a member of the board of directors of the First National bank. A member of the Newark law firm of Reed, Reynolds and Smith, he had served as the bank's attorney since 1937.

A year's leave of absence was granted Albert K. McBride, high school director of physical education, by the board of education.

August Plenge, longtime resident, and operator of a large truck farm in Joralemon street and Franklin avenue, died following a heart attack. Sixty-six years old, he had been active in a number of local civic activities.

Hold Zone Tests

The first of a series of zone incident tests was held under the direction of Defense Coordinator Harry J. Sullivan to help defense volunteers to become better acquainted with their duties and what to do in an emergency.

While Mayor Williams had little to say in his primary campaign for the congressional nomination, Congressman Hartley offered to debate both the mayor and Arthur T. Vanderbilt, Clean Government leader, on the town hall steps. The challenge was not accepted.

Back to War

Two cannon pieces, which had long stood as mementos of the past world war, were the first contributions to the all-out drive for salvage which opened early in September with the big push scheduled for the week of September 19 to 26.

Bond drives were the September keynote with the Manufacturers' association and the Craftsmen's club staging the biggest rallies. At a rally staged at Clearman field in the afternoon with Harry James and his orchestra as an added attraction, more than $200,000 worth of bonds were sold by the manufacturers' group. Stamps and bonds as admission tickets to a ball game between the Craftsmen and the American Legion helped to swell the total sales there to $35,000.

As a part of the national drive sponsored by the movie houses, the Capitol theatre sold $2,550 worth in one night.

Defense Coordinator Harry J. Sullivan and other local officials sharply criticized the public for its action during an early morning air raid alert. Telephone lines were so jammed that the company could not handle emergency calls. People, instead of extinguishing lights, put them on.

Two Washington avenue store operators, who had received repeated warnings, Bell Liquor store and the Town Dairy, were each found guilty and fined by Recorder Everett E. Smith for violating dimout regulations. The liquor store paid $25 and the dairy $10.

George E. Stewart, Jr., a sharp critic of Mayor Williams in the May commission election, was commissioned as a first lieutenant in the army and reported to the New York port of embarkation for duty.

It was announced that the goal of the community-war chest would be $35,000. The USO was slated to receive the biggest share, $12,000.

Beaten by 87 votes, based on unofficial returns, Mayor Williams said that he would ask for a recount of the votes in his congressional contest with Rep. Fred A. Hartley, Jr., Kearny, Hartley's home town, and Harrison and East Newark, where paper ballots were used.

In the first sections related for recounting. In the re-tabulation of the votes, Williams picked up some votes, but not enough. Hartley got the nomination by 53 votes.

Give Heavy Penalty

The town commission, sitting as an excise board, handed down the heaviest penalty in its history when it ordered the license of The Fountain, Silver Lake night club, suspended for 35 days. The suspension was the result of alleged sale and service to minors which was denied by the defendant.

To conserve coal, the board of education at its October meeting urged principals to eliminate as many night events as possible. Salvage Chairman Robert G. Sutherland estimated that the haul in the town-wide scrap drive was well over the 100-ton mark, which was double the quota which had been set for the town.

A committee of Silver Lake women, headed by Miss Marie Sericella, sponsored a fashion show and card party to raise funds so that Christmas gifts could be sent to servicemen from the Lake and Soho sections.

In mid-October, Robert E. Smith was named assistant executive of the Belleville district of the Robert Treat council of the Boy Scouts. He succeeded Joseph

T. O'Farrell who entered the service. Smith had been previously assigned to a district in Newark. The town was shaken by the sudden death of Public Safety Director William D. Clark who was 67 years old. He had served continuously on the town commission since 1926. The town commission placed Mayor Williams temporarily in charge of the department.

Commissioner Noll was the first town board member to recommend a successor to Clark. He announced that he would support Raymond E. Mertz, who was the sixth man in the May election. Several weeks later, Commissioner King also declared in favor of Mertz. Mayor Williams and Commissioner Waters did not commit themselves, but subsequently opposed the nomination of Mertz, leaving the board deadlocked.

Two Girls Enlist

Miss Edith C. Petrie of 242 Belleville avenue was the first local girl to enlist in the WAVES, women's auxiliary to the navy. Mrs. John J. O'Connor of Malone avenue became the first to join the WAACS.

Montgomery Presbyterian church marked its 20th anniversary with special services.

Ruel E. Daniels resigned as chairman of the Belleville-Nutley war price and ration board. He gave illness as his reason. Subsequently, James A. Kerney, Jr., state OPA director, appointed Herbert C. Schnitz, president of the board of education to the post. He had been a member of the ration board since its organization and had served as chairman of the gasoline panel.

The general election held the early November spotlight with Albert E. Hawkes and Congressman Fred A. Hartley the principal winners as the town rolled up a big majority for the Republican slate. Hawkes received 60 percent of the 6,573 votes which were cast.

With only 43 percent of its $35,000 quota raised, the community-war chest campaign was extended for two weeks. The house-to-house division held up best of all divisions, exceeding the returns for 1941.

Bonus For Teachers

The board of education announced that teachers would be granted five percent salary bonuses to help offset the increased cost of living. No teacher would receive less than $100, it was stated.

Hugh D. Kittle, high school principal, was commissioned as a lieutenant senior grade in the naval reserve and reported for duty in New York. The board of education named Harold Dufford, high school teacher, was named acting principal by the board of education to work under the supervision of Superintendent of Schools Parmelee.

The two local banks announced that Christmas club checks totaling $200,000 would be distributed. It was the biggest amount in history.

Kenneth D. Hamilton resigned as vice-president and general manager of the Isolantite corporation. He was succeeded by George W. Hawkins of Ridgewood.

The draft board fought the calling of married men with wives but no children to service before Christmas. It was announced that 18 and 19 year-old boys would be inducted in the January call.

John E. Watters, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Watters of Union avenue, was promoted to lieutenant-colonel in the army. A graduate of West Point in 1933, he is stationed in Washington, D. C. with the signal corps.

Thirty-nine fire inspectors were named for Nutley and Belleville to examine fires under the mile age rationing plan.

Contributions from the town's industries boosted the community war chest total to over $24,000. Although hope of reaching the $35,000 quota set had been abandoned, it was believed that the amount would go over $25,000.

Willard H. Sawyer was elected president of the North Belleville Savings & Loan association, succeeding the late William D. Clark.

Ten $18.75 Bonds will pay for one life float. This modern navy "float" saves ten, and its bals wood buoyancy is unaffected by capsizing, splintering or shel fragments.
