YEAR'S FOURTH DRAFTEE GROUP

18 Year Olds In Majority: Allowances Explained By Dependancy Management

The fourth group of boys for '43 who leave today from the high school for various branches of the service include mainly younger boys who have reached draft age or those with few or no dependents. According to the local board, high school boys who are reaching their 18th birthday still form the greatest reserve for filling draft

The board reports that Belleville need not fear a shortage of doctors since none has been drafted and only a few have enlisted with commissions. The whereabouts of another draft delinquent, William Black of Newark, has been reported to the board by the police department. There are still four or five yet to be found

Mr. Michaux's sister, Miss Marie Michaux, is a member of the Belleville plant's personnel de-Michaux was on a gunboat in the Phillipines when the war broke out. Later transferred to been forced to submit to cuts in a submarine which took part in action in the southwest Pacific islands, he told of one occasion in which four Japanese transports were sighted and hit by torpedoes from his ship within ten seconds time. All these were were later confirmed sunk. A Jap submarine on the surface was also hit the next morning. Navy decorations for the entire crew were awarded for this exploit.

Praise Life Belts Michaux said that he had been surprised to learn that Walter Kidde company had a part in manufacturing the life belts which were worn ot all times by members of the crew. He himself has been in the water and always carried extra cartridges "just in case." He had high praise for the belts. "I will stake Already the Kidde company has | my life on them," re said. "They come in handy whenever men are washed overboard-a rather common occurrence on subs." Michaux had also used the Kidde CO2 extinguishers to put out fires.

In helping the workers to realize the part they are playing in the war the Kidde company distributes posters throughout each department showing the position of each individual piece made in relation to the whole product. When a worker can see exactly where his own piece fits into the whole he has a better knowledge of why he is making it.

In addition to posters, explanatory lectures on the why of all equipment are given for the foremen in the plant so that they will be able to explain more clearly how each department fits into the scheme of the whole.

All these aids plus personal talks from returned service men help Kidde workers on to greater production.

COMMISSIONERS DELAY ACTION

Have No Answer To Refuse Problem; Fail To Discuss Fifth Man

Delayed action on two counts was the result of a closed conference held last Thursday night by the town commission. Discussion at the meeting mainly centered around the complaint of Charles Cuozzo, municipal refuse collector, who said that the inability to meet rising costs in collection forced him to ask for a raise in his contract which stands at $96,000 for three years. Stating that he was unable to operate at his former costs due to the necessity of collecting more ashes from homes that had converted to coal and from the inability to get enough men to man the collection trucks, Cuozzo asked the town to consider his problem. The increased volumn of refuse from stores also contri-buted to his problems, Cuozzo

Mayor Williams said that the commissioners decided to let Cuozzo's plea stand, since they could find no solution to the problem. Stating that no action would be taken, he said, "We have all business due to the rising costs of living." Williams stated that of living. he did not think Cuozzo would renig on the contract since a performance bond was posted when Cuozzo took the job, in 1941.

LOCAL BOY CITED

Eight soldiers who rescued a 10-year-old boy from the icy waters of Eastport Pond, Eastport, L. I., on February 13, were cited for heroism last week in a full dress parade at Camp Upton, Included in the number was Sgt. Forrest P. Finkle, son of Mrs. Marquerite Finkle of 46 Washington avenue, who was awarded a Soldier's Medal by Brig. Gen. Phillip S. Gage, conmanding the Harbor Defense of New York and New York subsector, along with Pfc. John B. Donald of Kearny.

All eight soldiers, members of a detail riding in an army truck on February 13, spied 10-year-old Donald Hopping struggling in the icy pond and Pfc. Donald, first man out of the truck, ran out to warn the boy's 7-year-old sister, Patricia, away and then dashed on to get the boy.

The ice broke and the soldier fell in with the lad but he succeeded in getting to him and in olding his head above the water. Meantime, Sgt. Finkle was busy directing the other members of his detail in the formation of a human chain across 80 feet of thin ice.
As the chain reached Pfc.

Donald he handed the frightened boy to safety and then was pulled from the water himself. The local Sergeant immediately began to apply artificial repsiration to the unconscious youngster and continued for 30 minutes unan ambulance arrived. The recovered.

Finkle's citation stated that his Soldier's Medal was awarded "for conspicuous leadership and presence of mind in directing the actions of his detail in rescuing a child from drowning . . . his presence of mind, coolness and demonstration of leadership reflects great credit upon himself and the military service.'

The installation was done under the supervision of Deputy Chief William Dunleavy and permission is being sought by the local Council for permission to operate these lights, since they are now definitely in line with regulations.

Through the use of transformer, the flick of a switch in the Police Station throws the lights bright to The dim light affords visibility for use during a blackout without resulting in any tell-tale traces of light being permitted to go sky-ward. There are 38 trained nurses in Belleville and although about half of them are tied up with the civilian defense measures many have failed to register with the nursing committee of the Federal Security agency, which is planning to form voluntary nurs-ing units for emergency crises. Although 70 per cent of the graduate nurses throughout the state have returned their questionaires for the inventory, there are still some returns to come from Belleville. This percentage has put New Jersey among the leaders in the drive however.

The Belleville and Nutley members of the board have contributed much to its rapid development and realtors from those towns are active in directing its management. Arthur E. Mayer of Belleville is president and Andrew E. Bloxsom of Nutley, is a vice-president. Its secretary is Nugent A.
