Poll of Education Board Indicates 6-3-3 Approval

The consensus of opinion among members of the Board of Education is that when the Board convenes again in September its first order of business will be to lay the groundwork for the adoption of the 6-3-3 plan through the erection of a building on property adjacent to the Municipal Stadium.

A majority of members have expressed themselves as ready to follow the recommendations of the new supervising principal, Evan H. Thomas, but if his word is awaited on the project, it will be a new junior high school for the same reasons as outlined by Wayne R. Farmer in his final report to the Board of Education, published in this paper last week.

Speaking of the High School, Mr. Thomas told The Belleville Times, "You can't alter a man's suit to fit a boy. So many changes would be necessary in the present high school to adapt it for junior high school use that it would be a waste of taxpayers' money. It would be a lot simpler to make a few changes in the present High School building to better fit the curriculum and to build an entirely new Junior High School. It is one of the things upon which Mr. Farmer and I see eye to eye."

Voters Have Final Say
Voters of the town may have the final say as to whether it will be a junior high or a new high school for any efforts to finance such a building will have to be put on a school referendum. At that time if the voters approve in principle the idea of a new school, they may vote down the proposition if they do not agree with the board's designation of the building. Such a vote cannot be expected until next spring, even though the board takes immediate action in September.

In the poll of board members, President Eugene Kelly said it is his belief that the members of the board are in agreement on the desirability of reorganizing the present eight-year elementary and four-year high school plan to a 6-3-3 plan.

Walter Loesner, concurred in the recommendations advanced by Mr. Farmer, but Raymond McCann was in sharp disagreement. He believes that the Columbia Survey recommendations are well founded and that the stadium site is more suitable for senior high students because of more athletic events in the upper grades.

Mrs. Homer Zink said Mr. Farmer's ideas have a lot of merit but feels that the entire proposition requires further study and a more complete discussion by the board in full session.

TOWN ATTORNEY IS PEACEMAKER

Objection To Loading Platform For Watts Company Is Withdrawn By Guarino Lawyer

Through the intercession of Town Attorney Lawrence Keenan, acting in the roll of peacemaker, the Charles Allen Watts Company and the Guarino Marble Works, Inc., who share a paper street known as Nicola street, near the Nutley line came to a meeting of minds before the Town Commission meeting Tuesday night. As a result of an appearance of attorney David Weiner of Newark, acting for the Guarino Marble Works and withdrawing the objections of that firm, the ordinance licensing the business firm printing establishment to erect a loading platform at the end of the street passed on final reading.

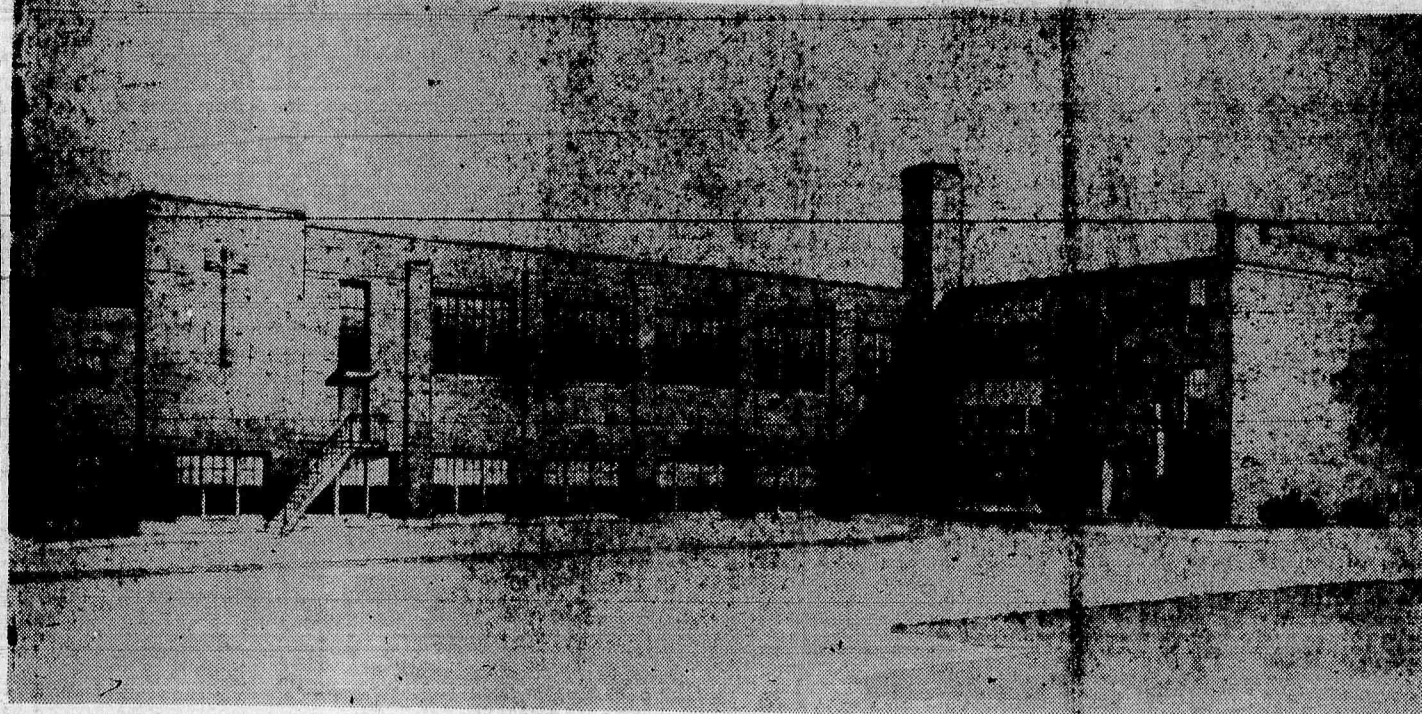

A meeting arranged by Mr. Keenan was attended by executives of both firms and by their lawyers. In his brief appearance before the commissioners, Mr. Weiner thanked them for postponing action for two weeks and commended Mr. Keenan's abilities as a peacemaker.

If the objections had not been withdrawn, the commissioners were prepared to vote the ordinance down on final reading.

Five Day Suspension For John McGary's Tavern

John McGary, who operates a tavern at 580 Washington Avenue, was ordered closed for five days, starting at midnight Saturday night, by the Board of Commissioners, acting as excise board, Tuesday night, on a non-vol plea that he sold alcoholic beverages in original containers after 10 o'clock at night.

This Addition to St. Peter's School May Lead to New High School

This 65 by 154 feet, three-story addition to St. Peter's School, containing six classrooms and a combination auditorium-gymnasium, when completed, may become a part of a new parochial high school, in the plans of Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph M. Kelly. The building, of steel frame, brick and concrete, was designed by Fanning and Shaw of Paterson, and the estimated cost has been set by that firm at $350,000.

COURT TESTS START ON TRUCK PARKING IN SMALLWOOD AVE.

Losers In Magistrate's Court Expected To Go To Supreme Court For Decision

What may be the first of a series of court tests was scheduled to be held before Magistrate Everett B. Smith this morning when the owners of the Westmont Service Station at the corner of Belleville Avenue and Smallwood Avenue, answered a complaint made by Building Inspector Thomas Greco that the firm allowed the storage of commercial trucks in the residential zone adjacent to its property. Regardless of the decision in the local court the decision is expected to be taken to higher courts by the loser.

The town through Town Attorney Lawrence Keenan contends that although the courts have handed down decisions granting exceptions to the residential character of the neighborhood, the property never has been rezoned. The first of the court cases was successfully brought by the Durkin Lumber Company, whose property was partly in Bloomfield and partly in Belleville. In Bloomfield the firm was given a permit, but the permit was refused in Belleville. The supreme court handed down a decision in favor of Durkin, now the Bloomfield Lumber Company.

Supreme Court Decisions
In 1948 the Supreme Court rendered a decision upsetting the town's refusal to allow the Tulsa Oil Company to erect a gas service station on the opposite side of the street and following this decision the Commissioners by resolution, which cited the court action, granted John Bianchi a permit to erect a gas service station and auto repair garage at the corner of Belleville Avenue and Smallwood Avenue, next to the Bloomfield Lumber Company's fence. Bianchi sold out to Westmont and it is this triangular piece on Smallwood Avenue, enclosed on the back by the Lumber Company fence that is in question.

Although the trucks are still stored on the property, Mr. Keenan and Newton H. Porter, Jr., son of former Circuit Court Judge Newton Porter, business partner of Homer Zink, have agreed to a stipulation that the trucks were stored on the property for five days late in May.

The expected defense on the part of the Westmont Service is that the trucks are stored there as part of its business of repair, therefore it is an auxiliary use of using automobiles and trucks and the adjacent property.

Residents of the Belwood Park residential section adjacent to the property in question are expected in large numbers at the court case, although since the lawyers have agreed that the trucks were stored there, there may be no need for any of them to take the witness stand.

Young Woman Seriously Hurt In "Lake" Accident

Miss Carmen Roman, 21, of 64 Belmont Avenue was treated at Columbus Hospital, Newark, on Saturday afternoon for lacerations of the scalp which required three stitches and was held for possible fracture and head concussion, after she was knocked down in front of her home by a car driven by Melvin Shikora, 18, of 55 Avon Avenue, Newark, who was driving a 1947 Buick sedan owned by his father. In a statement Shikora said as he approached Lawrence Street while driving north in Belmont Avenue, he saw a young woman start to cross from east to west, and although he slammed on his brakes and turned his wheels he was unable to avoid hitting her.

Army Chaplain To Preach At Fewsmith Memorial Church

Captain Harold Lawson in Last Week of Furlough After Year in Korea, Won Army's Bronze Star for Caring for Forward Units

Army Chaplain Captain Harold Lawson of 13 Tiona Avenue, now on a 30-day leave after service in Korea, will preach at the 11 a. m. service at the Fewsmith Memorial Church, here, Sunday morning. Captain Lawson, at one time assistant pastor of Newark's Old First Presbyterian Church, is in the last week of his furlough and will report to the Fifth Infantry Training Division at Indiantown Gap, Pa. next week. He served in Korea since the beginning of hostilities.

Sunday's service at Fewsmith will also feature Craig Timberlake, soloist of the First Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth, who will be guest soloist. Dr. James K. Morse, pastor of Fewsmith Memorial Church will conduct the worship. Mark Siebert, minister of music will be at the organ.

With 24th Division
Captain Lawson was stationed with the 24th Division in Tokyo and he entered Korea early in July of last year with the Third Engineer Combat Battalion. At that time the 24th Division, of which the battalion was a part, consisted of two reinforced rifle companies. They were rough days but "the heroism of American troops was beyond question" Captain Lawson says.

The Bronze Star medal was awarded Captain Lawson for service during the critical days of July and August, with "forward elements caring for the religious needs of the men in his battalion." He didn't know he was doing anything unusual, he avers.

On Sunday he offered services at headquarters, plus two services for the companies. On Monday he began the round of visits to the units, carrying mail and greetings from one Joe to another. With his portable altar set up in the hood of his jeep, Captain Lawson explains, he preached on the "platoon system" moving across the field from one group to the next. "One Sunday I held 11 services — seven for one company. Everything is being done for the men in Korea," the chaplain said.

"There are some fantastic things being done," he continued. "Why, The Stars and Stripes (Army newspaper) we received were no older than three days." He had special praise about the way wounded men were evacuated from the hills by helicopter. "If there are unsung heroes in this war, they're the medical corpsmen," Captain Lawson stated. "Their quick action has saved countless lives."

Morale High
For the most part, Captain Lawson found morale, which moved up and down with the tide of battle, to be high. There was gripping over small issues such as rations or cigarettes, he said, added.

Flushed Away $50 Loot Stolen From Shoe Store

A juvenile questioned for the theft of $50 from the Jack and Jill Shoe Store of 141 Washington Avenue, told the Belleville police that after he had stolen the $20 and one $10 bill, he became so afraid that he would be caught with the money that he threw it in a toilet and flushed it away. The youth's parents have promised to make restitution.

Neighbors Successful In Blocking Funeral Home at Holmes and New Sts.

George F. Kiernan Will Not Press Action After Zoning Board Denies Application

George F. Kiernan of 101 Union Avenue, whose application to the board of Zoning Adjustment for an exception to the zoning law to allow him to use the residence at 272 Holmes Street, in a residential zone, for a funeral parlor, was turned down by unanimous vote of that body Thursday night, said yesterday that he will not press the matter further.

Mr. Kiernan took an option on the Gibson home at the corner of Holmes and New Street, with a provision that he could be released if he could not obtain an exception to the zoning law. He was represented in the matter by Robert C. Gruhin.

Thursday's meeting brought out a large crowd of residents from the neighborhood, represented by Edward J. Abramson, who once before had been successful in upsetting Mr. Kiernan's plans to obtain larger quarters. Less than two months ago the Town Commissioners returned to Mr. Kiernan building permit fees on a proposed $80,000 building in Union Avenue, which he was prohibited from building by order of the courts, after a zoning exception and building permit had been issued on vote of the commissioners.

Objectors at the meeting all had their say. Dr. William H.

Post, who lives next door to the Gibson home said: "I strongly object to the property being used as a funeral home." A. R. Viscogliosi of 257 Union Avenue, whose back yard is adjacent to the Gibson home said he purchased his property with hard earned money because it had a large back yard where his children could play. He envisioned a demoralizing effect on his youngsters if the funeral home was allowed there.

Frank Peppel of 156 New Street said he felt that not enough attention was being given to the feelings of those whose property would be affected. "It would be a gross injustice if this board permitted the introduction into this property of a form of activity which is objectionable to the entire surrounding neighborhood, as evidenced by the number of people here tonight."

Andrew G. Salkeld of 261 Union Avenue said that when he purchased his property 28 years ago he went to the trouble of having his attorney make a thorough search of restrictions in the neighborhood, for his own deed restricts the use of the property to one-family houses. His lawyer, he said, assured him that the entire block from Holmes to Joralemon Street, between Union and New, was restricted in the same manner.

Albert Copestake of 281 Holmes Street said that when he built his home 13 years ago Mr. Gibson, himself, came over and congratulated him for his contribution to the fine neighborhood community. "I wouldn't like to see funerals

ERIE CENTENNIAL TRAIN WILL STOP HERE ON AUG. 6

Traveling Exhibit Will Depict Story Of Railroad, Past and Present

A 19-car centennial exhibition train will bring the story of the Erie Railroad, past and present, to Belleville residents when it stops at the Belleville station Monday, August 6, from 11 a. m. to noon, it was announced yesterday by R. Dietrich, station agent.

On Road for Two Months
The traveling exhibit, which will be on the road for two months, opened July 4 at Youngstown, O., and since then has been working its way eastward.

Depicting the story of railroad 100 years ago, when the Erie completed its original line to become the first rail link between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean, will be an actual engine of that era, the "William Mason," along with an old fashioned baggage car and coach. The century-old engine will be mounted on a flat car.

Another display out of the Erie's past will be a special flat car with Daniel Webster, in effigy, riding on a rocking chair. This recalls the Erie's inaugural trip from Piermont to Dunkirk on May 14, 1851, when Webster, then Secretary of State, chose this mode of travel because he wanted to "see the scenery better."

An air-conditioned museum car will contain hundreds of historic items from the Erie's archives. A coach, diner and sleeping car will demonstrate passenger equipment, while service will be represented with a box car, refrigerator car, flat car, and radio-equipped caboose, each containing interesting exhibits.

One of the features of the exhibit is the "see the scenery better."

and hearses parading up and down in front of my house," he declared.

Sherman Beatty of 265 Union Avenue said that 16 years ago he moved to Belleville and rented his present home. His family so enjoyed the fine residential neighborhood and the nice back yards that a year ago he purchased the house and renovated it entirely, with the thought of living in it indefinitely. With a funeral parlor nearby the outlook would be depressing and our intentions would be destroyed.

Theodore L. Forbes of 157 New Street, who has lived in the neighborhood for 44 years, said that he will be going home with Mr. Gibson. In a short time, he would not like to put up with the extra traffic that a funeral home would bring, in those remaining years of his life.

Robert France of 292 Holmes Street, Irvin Folk of 135 New Street and Samuel J. Roselle of 162 Cedar Hill Avenue also denounced the idea of a funeral home in the neighborhood. At this point Fred Fischer of the Zoning Board said that he was convinced that the granting of a variance in this instance would be contrary to public opinion and that it could not be granted without substantially impairing the intent and purpose of the zoning plan and zoning ordinance. He made the motion to deny the application.

Addition to St. Peter's School Planned As Part Of New High School Unit

Tuition Costs Which Could Mount to $56,000 Per Year Necessitates Planning for Secondary School Program; Would Also Alter Old Buildings to Make More Room

Although planned as a six room and auditorium-gymnasium addition to St. Peter's Grammar School, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph M. Kelly admitted to The Times-News last night that the contemplated 65 x 154 feet three-story structure to be erected at the rear of the present building, as soon as bids can be obtained and contract awarded, may become the nucleus of a new parochial high school for Belleville, and perhaps serve Nutley as well.

The pastor of the St. Peter's parish points out that for every graduate of St. Peter's grammar school, who wishes to continue his education at Queen of Peace in North Arlington, St. Cecilia of Kearny or Good Counsel High School, Newark, the parish must pay $100 tuition. And in view of the 58 who graduated in June and the 92 scheduled to receive diplomas next spring, the cost to the parish can become so large that it will be more economical to have its own high school. Four years from now the tuition costs, according to Monsignor Kelly, can amount to $56,000 per year. That amount of money can carry the interest and amortization costs of considerable capital improvements.

Civilian Defense Council Needs New Co-ordinator

Deputy Chief Kenneth Smith's Leave of Absence from Police Department Has Expired; Unit Heads Report Nearly 100 Per Cent Setup

Members of Belleville's Civilian Defense Council at a general meeting in the Town Hall, Monday night, were informed by Chairman Norman D. Lauterette that Kenneth Smith, who has been co-ordinator for the last six months, has asked that he be relieved of the responsibilities, so that he can rejoin the Department of Public Safety and resume his job as deputy chief of the Police Department. A letter from Public Safety Director Harry J. Sullivan, informed the Civil Defense Council that according to Civil Service regulations the Town Commission can give an employee a leave of absence for only six months. The six months expired the day of the meeting and Commissioner Sullivan suggested that Mr. Smith wind up his business with the Civil Defense organization by August 9.

Two resolutions were adopted as a result of this situation. The first commended Coordinator Smith for the outstanding job he has done and the second recommends to the Board of Commissioners that a full time co-ordinator be appointed by a proper appointing authority to succeed Mr. Smith.

Wardens Responding
Director James Leonard of Warden Services reported that great progress has been made in recruiting wardens and that his group is nearing complete organization.

Medical Unit Set
Director Isadore Padula reported that the medical services division is not completely organized. Dr. B. E. Felling is medical chairman, assisted by Dr. Joseph C. D'Angelo. Dr. Frank D. Ruggerio is dental chairman; Helen Gilsenan is nurses chairman and Joseph Rubin, druggist chairman.

Director Harry T. White of the Fire Wardens reported great progress among his volunteers. He reported that nearly every one has been attending drills regularly.

140 Auxiliary Police
Police Chief George R. Spatz reported that 140 members of the auxiliary police force are under going training with 40 men attending each of the meetings as called. He said that Belleville's auxiliary force is numerically larger than that of the city of Newark.

Director Weill in charge of biological warfare reported that as far as membership is concerned his group is fully set up. However because the government has been lax in designating approved equipment his group has been stymied.

Other Changes First
In order to have a high school, Monsignor Kelly plans to convert the old convent into a library and into chemistry and physics laboratories and lecture rooms. The complete renovation of the old school will provide for 13 classes for grammar school children, releasing that much space in the present building for the operation of a high school.

St. Peter's School, when designed by Fanning & Shaw of Paterson, was laid out so that the classrooms could pass the requirements for a high school and very little in the way of alteration will be needed to complete a changeover.

This fall, for the first time, St. Peter's will operate a kindergarten, in rooms in the old convent. Before announcing this innovation, Monsignor Kelly obtained the assignment of a sister, trained in kindergarten work. Already 32 children have been enrolled for the split session classes this fall.

Government OK Needed
The major school addition has been in the planning stage for some time, but because of regulations governing the use of steel in construction it was necessary for Monsignor Kelly to first obtain government clearance on the steel before contracts could be sought. A number of interested contractors now have the plans and specifications, prepared by Fanning & Shaw, and bids are expected next week. Monsignor Kelly had hoped to start construction in the spring so that the building could be enclosed by the cold weather, but the delay in Washington made this impossible.

As planned, the six classrooms will be on the ground level, on the same level as the present cafeteria. The combination auditorium-gymnasium will be two stories high and its floor will be on the same level as the first floor of the present building. In addition to the classroom and the multipurpose auditorium, shower and locker rooms and a moving picture projection booth are included in the plans. When completed the auditorium will be used for the extra masses, which are necessary during the winter months, because of the overcrowding of the present church facilities.

Envisioned for Long Time
The entire setup for St. Peter's educational efforts has been envisioned by Msgr. Kelly for a long time, and upon the visit of Archbishop Walsh to the parish to dedicate the new convent, he outlined these plans to the prelate. Following the benediction on this occasion Archbishop Walsh announced that the next project for St. Peter's parish would be the erection of a new parochial high school.

FINDS WILD DUCK AND 15 DUCKLINGS ROAMING ON LAWN
Seven Of Brood Are Moved To Ricca Brothers Yard To Join Menagerie There

Arriving home from a shopping trip Thursday, Mrs. Marie Gilbert of 6 Continental Avenue noticed her neighbors peering at her lawn. She looked too and saw a wild duck strolling unconcerned across the grass. She went to the telephone and called the police to have someone shoot it away. Not until later did she discover that the duck was being followed by about 15 ducklings. It apparently had laid and hatched its eggs in a nest along the Yantacaw River adjacent to Plenge's farm, and the mother duck had taken her brood out for a walk.

A policeman came. The mother duck flew away and the policeman attempted to round up the brood. He finally caught about seven of the ducklings and turned them over to Ricca Brothers in Belwood Park, who have a menagerie of chickens, ducks, goats, a cow and up until recently a number of horses. The Riccas put the wild ducklings among a brood of tame ducks. They estimate that the baby ducklings were not more than a day or two old when they strayed onto Mrs. Gilbert's lawn.

Youngster Consoling Dying Dog, Bitten For His Effort

Six year old John Valli of 16 Wallace Street stood helplessly by on Saturday as his pet dog ran out into the street and was struck by a car, but little Johnny wasn't helpless when it came to trying to console the dog. The youngster went out into the street and attempted to fondle his pet, it turned on him and bit him several times in the wrist. He was taken to the Columbus Hospital where he was given the routine dog bite treatment by Dr. Trevisan. But the dog, taken to a veterinarian, died soon afterwards. As in such cases where the dog cannot be held under observation, the animal's head was sent to the Newark City Hospital to determine whether or not it had rabies.

RESUME WORK ON APARTMENT UNITS

Celia Terrace and Joralemon Street Structures Will Have 123 Living Units, Garages

Work on the garden apartment development at the corner of Celia Terrace and Joralemon Street is now progressing to an extent that it is apparent what is going on. The permits for the 123 living units in nine dwelling buildings and the four garage buildings on the premises, were issued by Building Inspector Thomas P. Greco on November 13, 1950. Work on the project was started soon afterwards and then was halted for some reason for seven months. When completed the project will be the first such development in Belleville where there is 100 percent parking facilities. The total cost of the project, as estimated when work started last fall was $920,500.

SEEK VOLUNTEERS FOR BLOOD DONOR ASSEMBLY, AUG. 2

Twenty Have Signed Up But Fifty Pints Of Blood Are Needed To Meet Quota

The next town-wide Blood Donor Assembly of the Essex County Blood Bank will be held next Thursday at the Belleville High School, according to Mrs. Charles L. Jaeger, blood donor chairman, Belleville Chapter, American Red Cross.

As of July 20, Mrs. Jaeger advised that 20 residents of Belleville had volunteered as blood donors for this assembly. It is interesting to note that through the efforts of Frank Barger, 18 members of the Belleville School custodial staff have volunteered, and it is felt that others of this group will be on hand.

Need 40 More Volunteers To meet the regular quota of 50 donors, it is necessary to recruit at least 40 additional volunteers to insure the receipt of 50 pints of blood. Mrs. Jaeger and the Red Cross staff aides, with the assistance of Eugene Barnett, recruitment chairman, are conducting an intensified telephone canvass of all blood donors of record to insure a completely successful blood donor assembly.

As Mrs. Jaeger pointed out, the provision of an ample supply of blood in the Essex County Bank is imperative during this period of the year, when accidents, and emergencies make the heaviest demands on the Blood Bank. "Unless we do our part in providing the blood — we who can give it without any ill effects," Mrs. Jaeger says, "some Belleville residents may not recover from an emergency operation because the pint of blood we could have given wasn't there."

Appeals To Donors Of Record "Gene" Barnett, in appealing to all donors of record, asked that they call in for an appointment. They know how simple it is to give a pint of blood — and know how much good it will do some person on the receiving end. "Gene" also pointed out that those who have never volunteered as donors, can benefit greatly by participating in the Blood Bank. The donor will receive a thorough physical exam, learn his blood pressure, blood coagulation temperature, hemoglobin, and blood type, all without cost.

Being a blood donor gives you a mighty good feeling — knowing you are helping someone, regain his health — perhaps even saving his life. Have you done as much? This is your chance. Call Red Cross headquarters now — and register for the August 2 Blood Donor Assembly, which will be held from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Belleville High School. Call Belleville 2-4610.

WILL EXPLAIN VET DISABILITY STATUS AT MEETING HERE

National Representative Of DAV Will Answer Questions At Recreation House Meet

A meeting for all World War II veterans and their dependents will be held Wednesday at the Recreation Building, 407 Joralemon Street, when a national representative of the Disabled American Veterans will tell veterans of their rights and answer questions concerning government help available.

George S. Hendrickson of Irvington, field representative of the Disabled American Veterans, points out that any veteran who had any hospitalization while in service, who was wounded or injured in any way should attend this meeting. As the law now stands, any dependents of World War II veterans are not covered by benefits if the veteran did not have a service connected disability at the time of his death. Such disabilities must be established by filing a claim. He says there is no time like the present to do this. Instruction and help will be given at the meeting.

Two Service Stations Will Install Additional Tanks

Eight licenses of various kinds were approved by the Board of Commissioners at its meeting on Tuesday night. The Essex Standard Oil Company was given a license to install a diesel oil tank at its station at 660 Cortlandt Street and the H. & R. Company of 342 Washington Avenue was given permission to install an additional gasoline storage tank at its station there.

William H. Share was given a restaurant and mercantile license for 645 Washington Avenue; Michael DeMeo of Newark, a veterinarian, was granted a junk collection license and the following were granted canvasser permits: George P. Arnot of Kearny, Harry Model of Newark, Josephine J. Mastrandrea of Lyndhurst and Charles E. Lester of Irvington.

Business Property Changes Hands in Recent Deal

John F. Coogan Jr., local real estate agent, this week reported the sale of two business structures on Washington Avenue. The Bart Sales building at 83 Washington Avenue, pictured above, has been purchased by the Broadway Automotive, now operating a wholesale auto parts sales and automotive machine shop at 66 Washington Avenue. The sale was made by the James J. Tully Agency in co-operation with Mr. Coogan. The building contains 5,000 square feet and will give Broadway Automotive a substantial increase over the quarters now occupied. The interior will be renovated by the new owner when he takes possession in September. Mr. Coogan also reports the sale of the four stores at 140-144 Washington Avenue, next to the Belleville office of Fidelity Union Trust Company. Mr. Coogan and Helen R. Coogan were the former owners. David Seiden of Passaic is the purchaser.

SEVEN ONE WAY, 55 STOP STREETS SET BY ORDINANCE

Amendment To Traffic Code Allows Director To Specify "Play Streets"

An amendment to the town traffic ordinance was adopted on first reading by the Board of Commissioners, Tuesday night, on recommendation of Public Safety Director Harry T. Sullivan, designating seven one way streets, 55 intersections as stop streets and giving the Public Safety Director right to designate certain streets as play streets which can be closed to traffic by barricades at such time during the daylight hours as may be designated by him.

The one-way streets are Dow Street for north bound traffic only; Smith Street for south bound traffic only; Union Terrace for west bound traffic only; Arthur Street for west bound traffic only; New Street for north bound traffic only; Washington Street for south bound traffic only; and Holmes Street for east bound traffic.

Cars traveling on Linden Avenue, DeWitt Avenue, Cortlandt Street, Valley Street and Stephen Street will "make like a slow boat to China." Linden Avenue traffic will have to come to complete stops at the following streets: Joralemon Street, Division, Tappan and Malone Avenues; Little Street, Overlook Avenue and Greylock Parkway. Cars on DeWitt Avenue will have to make complete stops at Holmes Street, Joralemon Street, Division, Tappan, Malone Avenues; Little Street, Overlook Avenue and Greylock Parkway. On Cortlandt Street cars must stop at Mill Street, Belleville Avenue, Rutgers, Holmes, Joralemon and Little Streets; on Valley Street at Belleville Avenue, Rutgers, Holmes and Academy, and Stephens Street at Joralemon, Holmes, Academy and Rutgers Streets and Belleville Avenue.

Individual intersections also designated as stop streets are: Rossmore Place at Hornblower Avenue, High Street at Holmes Street, Hornblower Avenue at Holmes Street; Prospect Street at Holmes Street, New Street at Holmes Street, William and Academy at Cortlandt, Holmes, Perry, Little Streets, Greylock Avenue and Roosevelt Avenue at Main Street; Joralemon at Valley; Garden and Passaic Avenues at Joralemon; Greylock Parkway and Chestnut Street at Passaic Avenue; Honiss and Lawrence at Heckel; Forest at Greylock; Dow at William and Mill Streets; Clinton at William; Harrison at Mill; Emmet and Meachum Streets at Passaic Avenue.

CHEST DRIVE TO RUN FROM OCT. 17 THROUGH NOV. 14

John Dorrothy, a Major In Community Organization, Is Assigned To Chest Office

The Community Chest campaign for Newark, West Hudson and Belleville will be launched on October 17 and continue until November 14, it was announced yesterday by Evan H. Thomas, president of the Belleville Community Chest. Some 7,000 volunteers will be seeking $1,833,108 in the combined campaigns, with Belleville seeking $33,108. For Belleville this represents a 23 percent increase over the amount sought last year and a 31 percent increase over the $25,300 raised last year.

At the same time Mr. Thomas announced that John Dorrothy of Bloomfield, a graduate of Rutgers University, who is working for a master's degree in community organization at Columbia University, has been assigned to the Belleville Chest office and will be here until the campaign is completed.

Mr. Thomas points out that the inclusion of the United Defense Fund is responsible for the increase over the 1950 collections. The United Defense Fund, he explained, is the national fund raising agent for the USO, which was reactivated in January. The UDF also raises funds for the United Community Defense Services, a national "package" of 38 agencies which will help communities congested by the war effort.

"About 95 percent of the money raised for UDF will support the recreational and morale building program of the USO, the balance to be allocated to communities suffering the impact of mobilization and conversion," Mr. Thomas added.

Mr. Thomas stated that the two campaign divisions which solicit the area's approximate 150,000 payroll workers, Commercial and Industry-Labor, will base their drive on the newly-created Plan for Group Giving. The plan was devised by business, labor and civic leaders under the aegis of

Jack Handle Now Breaks Man's Arm In Garage Fight

Charles Leonard, 45, of 18 Bedford Street, Newark, is in Newark City Hospital as a result of injuries suffered in a scuffle in the garage of Capasso & Picelle, garbage collectors, at 190 Heckel Street on Saturday. Leonard was taken to the Columbus Hospital by Patrolman Juliano and Russomano in a police car, after he had been hit in the left elbow with a jack handle wielded by Louis Leone, 39, of 24 Babcock Place, Orange, garage foreman. He was bleeding profusely. At Columbus Hospital he was given first aid treatment and because of lack of room, sent on to the City Hospital, where he is under treatment for a fractured elbow and severe lacerations. Leone in a statement to the Belleville police said that the trouble started when he informed Leonard that his employment had ceased because of unsatisfactory service. Leonard insisted that he had a grievance and wished to talk to the shop steward. As he went to the telephone he used loud and obscene language, and Leone grabbed the phone out of his hand and told him to call from somewhere else.

With that, according to Leone, he saw Leonard reach toward his back pocket, and fearing that Leonard was armed, Leone let go with a healthy swing with the jack handle. It caught Leonard in the elbow and floored him for the count. Leone has been paroled in his own custody for arraignment at a later date.

Agree On Responsibility

Director Lambrecht, liaison officer between the Red Cross and Civil Defense announced that the organizations have reached an agreement as to where the Civil Defense takes over and where the Red Cross is in charge. Civilian defense will be in complete authority in the event of any emergency caused by enemy action. In the case of a disaster such as a flood, fire or explosion the Red Cross will deal with the problem on the basis of rendering aid to distressed individuals as such. This means that in such cases the Civilian Defense will be called upon only to establish police and fire lines and to lend any help that the Red Cross might require inside the disaster zone. Inside the disaster zone the Red Cross will be in complete authority for the safety and well being of persons living or working in the area.

In the absence of the chairman of the communications section, it was reported that the basement of the Recreation Building in Joralemon Street will be the control center of the communications unit.

Lois Woodman, Catherine Scolercio Are At Wellesley

Edward Hassan Returns from Trip To Scotland; Community Chest Members Appear on TV Show; James B. Morse Returns from Camp Dennis

Two Junior Red Cross members of the Belleville Chapter, the Misses Catherine Scolercio of 196 Washington Avenue and Lois Woodman of 27 Hunkele Street, left Tuesday for Wellesley College where they will meet the delegates from the Eastern area to participate in a Junior Red Cross Leadership Training Course for a period of ten days. The two girls were chosen to attend the center by the Junior Red Cross committee.

Edward Hassan of Hassan Bros. Refrigeration Company arrived at Idlewild Airport yesterday from Scotland. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Edward Hassan of Motherwell, with whom he has been staying for the past week. Mrs. Hassan will reside here with another son, Bernard Hassan of 99 Carpenter Street.

Guests on the Coffee Club TV show last Thursday were John Derry, campaign chairman of the local Community Chest; Lester Skinner, residential chairman, and Mrs. Edward Rochau, vice chairman. They discussed various phases of the organization.

James Binney Morse, son of Rev. and Mrs. James K. Morse of Tiona Avenue, recently returned from a month at Camp Dennis, Stillwater, where he was a counselor. During his stay there James became well known for his musical talent.

He is now attending a conference sponsored by the Presbyterian Churches of the United States at Blair Academy.

James, an "A" student while in high school, plans to study medicine after his graduation from the Academy next year.

Mrs. J. W. Gabriel of 104 Overlook Avenue traveled to Sampson Air Force Base, N. Y., and spent a weekend with her son, Pvt. Richard T. Gabriel, who is now taking indoctrination training there.

Other recent visitors at Sampson were Mr. F. Raymond Fogel of 32 Pleasant Avenue, who was the guest of his son, Pvt. Raymond B. Fogel, and Mr. Robert D. Heffley of 363 Main Street, who spent last weekend with his son, Pvt. Robert W. Heffley.

Mrs. Katherine Staebler and Miss Joan Staebler of 590 Washington Avenue had the novel experience of performing on television during a recent visit to the Radio Corporation of America Exhibition Hall in Radio City. They mounted a platform on which a television camera was trained and then watched themselves on a screen facing the platform. While in New York they also went to the Empire State Building and the Museum of Art.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. North of 15 Mertz Avenue are planning a visit to Berne, N. Y., where they will be the guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William North Jr. A graduate of Belleville High School and Pratt Institute, Mr. North Jr. teaches art in Berne Central High School.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Albee of Malone Avenue were Mrs. Albee's niece, Mrs. Leonard B. Mackey and her seven-month-old son, Leonard Jr., of Washington, D. C.

BELLEVILLE COUPLE WED SATURDAY

Miss Katherine J. Austin and Irving Steinbrick Married At Local Church Ceremony

Miss Katherine J. Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Austin of 298 Belleville Avenue, became the bride Saturday of Irving Steinbrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steinbrick of 296 Belleville Avenue. The ceremony took place in Belleville Reformed Church with Rev. John Struyk officiating. A reception was held in Veterans Hall, Lyndhurst.

Miss Mary Ann Steinbrick, sister of the bridegroom, was the maid of honor. Philip Wells of Belleville served as best man. Ushers were Donald Austin, brother of the bride, and Joseph Steinbrick of Kearny, brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a nylon marquisette gown with an illusion neckline and a full-length train. The hoop skirt was trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms. Her fingertip nylon tulle veil fell from a matching crown trimmed with vertical rows of pearls. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white roses.

The honor attendant was attired in a similar gown in blue and a matching crown headpiece trimmed with rhinestones. Her flowers were yellow roses.

The bride, a graduate of Belleville High School, is employed by the Prudential Insurance Company, Newark. Mr. Steinbrick attended East Side High School, Newark, and is with Continental Electric Company, Inc., Newark.

Following a wedding trip to Atlantic City the couple will reside in Newark.

Every year thousands of mothers all over the country alternately plead, threaten, and bribe their way to the verge of a nervous breakdown trying to make Junior practice his music or play a selection for their bridge clubs. If he does happen to oblige, he usually either fidgets on the piano bench and produces horrible facial expressions that could only denote the most exasperating agony, or he somehow manages to pop a violin string while in the middle of "The Flight of the Bumblebee." Both results can wreak havoc with a mother's artistic soul.

Now what would these same women say if they happened to pass School No. 8 on a Friday morning between 9 and 11 and heard the wonderful music being played there? Imagine their incredulity if they were told that the harmony is being produced by a group of high school boys and girls attending the band and orchestra summer school, not because they have to, but because they want to.

Thirty Nine Twirlers

Another aspect of the training program is the local twirling squad, which in recent years has become known all over the state. Composed of 36 girls, two captains and a majorette, the team is coached in precision and dexterity. Except for six lessons given while in the eighth grade, the girls receive no formal training until they have been chosen for positions.

Tryouts are held in the Spring and everyone must compete each year even if they have already served on the squad. The captains and the majorette must be seniors with at least two years of experience. Candidates are judged by a panel made up of Mr. Wortmann, Mr. Mattick and members of the group who are graduating.

Once they have attained their goal the girls must keep their scholastic records high. If marks

Residing in Norfolk, Va., after a wedding trip to Schroom Manor, N. Y., are Isaac B. Salsbury, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Salsbury of Norfolk, and his bride, the former Lynn H. Radar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Radar of 711 Highland Avenue, Newark, formerly of Belleville. Mrs. Salsbury, prior to her resignation June 15, was a faculty member at Greylack School.

The couple were married Sunday evening, July 1, in Anne Gordons. Rabbi Leo Schwarz of Belleville performed the ceremony. A reception followed.

Mrs. Nathan Kabot of Newark, sister of the bride, and Miss Reba Salsbury of Norfolk, sister of the bridegroom, were honor attendants. Flower girls were Eileen Heller of Norfolk and Sue Carol Shapiro of Belleville. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, George B. Radar of Newark.

Meyer Salsbury of Richmond served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Paul Shapiro, Nathan Kabot, Al Heller and Dr. Irwin Schwartz of Norfolk. Arnold Schwartz and Steven Kabot were ring bearers.

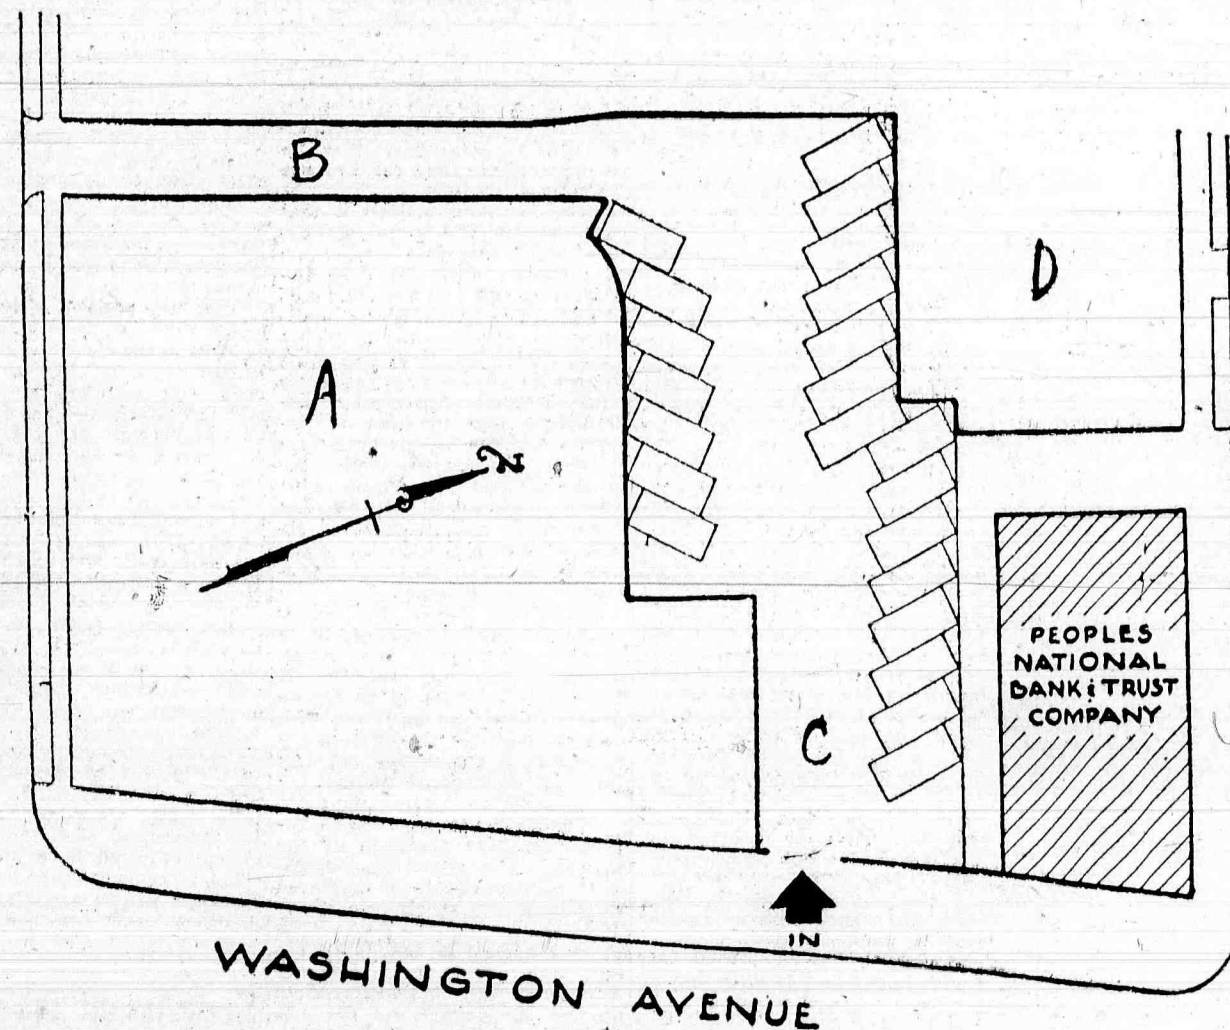

A gown of white skinner satin, trimmed with a collar of seed pearls was worn by the bride. A coronet of matching pearls held her fingertip illusion veil. She carried a cascade of orchids and stephanotis.

Mr. Salsbury is affiliated with Salsbury & Lane, Norfolk.

Miss Marian Yaskell of De Witt Avenue and her co-workers at the R. C. A. Service Company, Newark, attended a picnic Sunday at Vinsenties Grove, Fairlawn.

Members of the Campus Club are planning a gala weekend. Saturday night they will be guests of the Co-ed Club of the Newark Y at a dance to be given in the Downtown Branch building, and Sunday they will take a bus trip to Asbury Park for an all-day outing.

Parmer's Report Reviews Efforts And Improvements

Recalls Many Changes in Town's Schools During Twenty Years As Supervising Principal Here

One of the last official acts of retiring Superintendent of Schools Wayne R. Parmer was the filing of his annual report with the Board of Education, last week. In that report Mr. Parmer listed his recommendations for future board action, and gave a resume of his 20 years as head of Belleville's school system.

Mr. Parmer's report carried this review: "Immediately upon taking over the duties of superintendent in 1931, through principals' and teachers' meetings and conferences, a number of desirable changes were introduced, initiated and successfully worked out as rapidly as they could be set up and to the extent that training and facilities were possible. All of these changes were in response to the new aim in education—the maximum development of an individual into the most socially efficient person he is capable of becoming at all times during his life.

"Our aim—and we tried hard to have every principal and teacher adopt this aim—was that our children in the Belleville schools must be prepared to meet the problems of the future which are unknown now and that since these problems are unknown, they be prepared to meet and solve them then by teaching them to meet and solve problems now. In other words, our objective was to teach young people so far as possible to think straight and to think about how to think.

"The second great objective we tried to set up—not second in importance—was to help the children in our schools to develop a feeling of security in their school life. Everything possible was done to get parents, teachers and pupils away from a very unfortunate fear complex due to dictator methods of teaching and discipline. Time and again principals and teachers were exhorted to be certain to acquire an atmosphere of security for the children in the school building and in the classroom; that nothing was more needed on the part of parents and children than to bring them to feel that the happiest and most interesting place for them was the school; that to get children to have a frame of mind that leads them to look forward to getting to school or back to the teacher is one of the greatest accomplishments, if not the greatest accomplishment, in the life of a child and eventually in the life of the home and community.

Change in Methods of Teaching
 "There was vigorously promoted a change in methods of teaching from the mere 'stand, recite, sit' way of recitation where the child little more than chants and the teacher merely hears and marks, to one in which teacher and children entered into a community of cooperative participation where the emphasis was placed on finding out (research) and the free exchange of thought so that thinking received inspiration. Children learn to do by doing and teachers were encouraged to give variety to methods of teaching by using problem projects, dramatization, group research, individual. (This required room and central libraries, which had to be and were organized as rapidly as possible.) Conference work and activity emphasis soon became both natural and effective to most teachers and school room communities.

"Teachers were encouraged to interest pupils and direct them into organizing good questions, outlining and presenting reports by committees; bringing in material from outside sources—home, library, museums, etc. Visual aids, not books, used, were brought into general use—films, slides, maps, posters, charts, photographs and all kinds of visual aids produced by the children themselves. All this ever requires is direction and encouragement.

"Excursions to industries, town government offices (police, fire and town hall) institutions, museums and other field trips were encouraged.

"The 'lecture method' may have a place in college, but public school teachers (kindergarten to twelfth grade) were asked to enlist their pupils to engage in discussions, asking questions, working by committees, inviting suggestions, hearing reports, etc.

"Discipline was taken out of dictator methods as far as possible and as rapidly as possible. Substituted for such methods there was every encouragement given to the use of positive reasoning in every case and punishment as a last resort, and then only punishment which fitted the nature of the offense. You will find in all of our schools now an honest effort on the part of most teachers to appeal to the best that is in a child so that there may be growth in the best that the child possesses. The position taken in our schools is that we are developing personalities and are not attempting to create mere automatic performers at the command of those in authority. Our objective has been to give every child an opportunity to respect authority by thoughtfulness. It takes time and effort to change and not through regimentation. A faculty from regimentation to this kindly and human, this reasoned positive way of guiding a class or an individual, but our teachers and principals grew to understand and practice the better way in all of our schools.

"New textbooks, chosen by and with the assistance of large representative committees were recommended and placed on the approved list by the Board of Education as rapidly as possible until they were all changed to the most recent and usable publications. Except for the war period, changes have been made regularly so as to have modern up to date texts selected in a way that would insure the best. The indefiniteness as to war boundaries and the position of great areas in overseas war territory made new modern geographies practically impossible. Notwithstanding, these too have been changed during the past year—the new texts to be used beginning September 1951.

"Room libraries and central libraries were set up as rapidly as possible and whenever possible. They were a must in a modern school program. None existed in 1931, I am sorry to say. The newly organized shop in the high school accepted as a project the construction of a five-shelf book case for every school room in Belleville. The selection and purchase of library books was immediately initiated. The entire grade school faculty was organized by grades to select appropriate publications. This gave every teacher special interest and an awareness of the need and of the care necessary to furnish children with the best of reading material. Reference, supplementary, and library books have each year been renewed and increased.

Changes To Fine Arts
 "For the first time, an art supervisor was employed in the grade schools. There were teachers in the schools who had art ability, or shall we say aptitude for art, but nothing was done in this line except copy and stencil work. With the employment of the art supervisor, creative art was introduced throughout the grades, kindergarten to eighth inclusive. An appeal was made to have children draw, mold or construct what they saw or had in their mind's eye. Positive emphasis was placed on the use of their initiative, on those inherent abilities, no matter how lacking they were in expressing themselves at any one time. Our children now seem to live (so important in art) to draw and they are able to set up their own subjects. It is indeed interesting to observe how eagerly the change in this subject field. Every child is praised or commended for doing his best whether that best is as good as the work of some other child or not. Children grow to be able to draw by drawing.

"This subject took on more importance than would generally be observed. It involved the training of a number of classroom teachers, not only in the understanding of art techniques with the object of importing them to the children, but that they enjoy the program in order to give children a love of the subject which is so inherent in the Fine Arts. Even some of our principals needed to have their sights lifted that they might recognize the values of creative practical art. I think they would now agree not only to its practical and recreational values, but that art also makes an important contribution to the emotional and social development of pupils.

"The other branch of Fine Arts introduced and carried to an exceptional success is instrumental music. If you have heard and seen this work, or observed the exhibition of group performance made possible by this work, I am sure you will agree that here there has taken place a superior venture in both the individual and the group instruction is done during the year as regular school work and the summer experiment has contributed not a little toward our unusual total results. Parents have fallen into line without general objective by readily purchasing instruments for their children. Where there exists such fine cooperation there is bound to be excellent results. Through the employment of two instrumental music teachers—unusually excellent teachers—we have made it possible for the other music teachers to give more time and effort to vocal music. As a result, our entire music program has been lifted to a place far above that on which it rested before. The ultimate results of this change will only be fully realized in the years to come. It takes time to train for effectiveness in an art of this kind. The community must be educated to its value and this, too, takes time. May I add that, though it may not be generally recognized, this program will become one of the greatest assets to the recreational interests of our community. That old statement, 'teach a boy to blow a horn and he will never blow a safe' makes real sense.

Changes in Health Program
 "Our health program has been improved in a number of ways. Many people do not recognize the importance of good care of teeth. This care is all important. The dental program set up in our schools, where every child's teeth are carefully diagnosed and reported to parents and records kept of the progress on care of these defects, has had very significant results and is becoming more effective each year. Now that the Foundation program has offered services to families who could not afford the dental costs, every child in Belleville will have effective dental care. The job of educating the public still exists until no child shall be neglected.

"Conscientious school physicians have brought our regular physical examinations to a point where, if parents will take the advice submitted to them by the schools, the health of our young people is certainly better protected than ever before. This, too, is a long term education program.

"Our physical education program has as its objective the preservation of good health and the physical development of our young people. In this respect we have tried to make the program one which appeals to the interests of the children. Health depends upon happiness to a great extent and the emotions of the child should be given due emphasis. We feel we have done this in our program, for games and exercises have been used of a kind that will provide the same or better results provided by mere exercises of a dull work nature.

"With the addition of the new gymnasium in the high school two additional teachers were employed and the physical program enriched to meet high standards of physical education. The man woman teachers working together in a program for upper grades meet the problems of both boys and girls in a way that, in my judgment, is essential to early adolescent pupils. Much is done here in the fundamentals of games later to be used in high school sports. In themselves, these exercises in fundamentals are most interesting to the children and productive of good health and emotional and social balance.

"In kindergarten through the intermediate grades one physical education director was given the position of outlining and demonstrating for the teachers a course of activities designed to promote the natural growth process in strength, endurance, efficiency, skill, posture, etc. Social adjustment and character building are not a small part of our objective. All teachers were given a guide sheet listing games, rhythmic activities, mimetics, athletic games, relays, story plays and tumbling as a help in their regular daily work. Teachers could substitute or supplement the course for special occasions or reasons.

Changes In Teacher Qualifications
 "There were many other changes and adaptations of our school program in the regular course of work in addition to those referred to above. This report would become too lengthy to even enumerate them. I believe I have cited facts that if we were to make such improvement it would be necessary to give extension to the training of our teachers and principals. We set out to do this job immediately in 1931. Extension courses were organized to be given in our own system—our own buildings, through the neighboring educational institutions, sending instructors to Belleville. The requirement soon became too diversified to be able to meet the demand and our teachers accordingly began registering in these institutions where they could secure a choice of subjects.

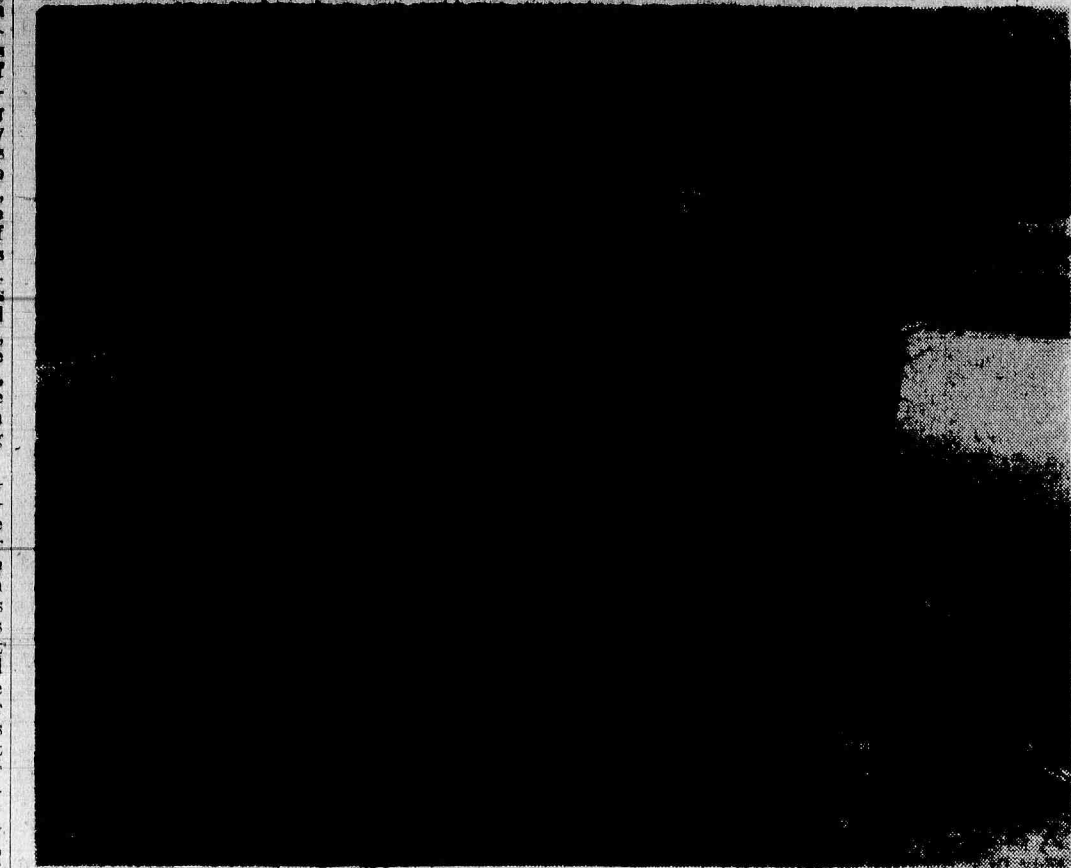

"The fact that matters is that our teachers and principals entered vigorously into a program of extension work for their improvement and to meet the needs of our new program. It was heartening to observe the emphatic trend. As the Board of Education grew able to better compensate teachers or to encourage by compensation, our program of inservice training took on new inspiration. Successive annual reports will give you a picture of this improvement in training. The salary guide and its repeated revisions contributed in no small way to the extension training program of our personnel.

"Buildings, books and other equipment are necessary to a good school program but nothing can substitute for well trained and happy teachers, in an atmosphere of good morale, if you wish to accomplish for the children the most that a community can buy for their educational welfare.

Supervision Improvement
 "For some years I tried to impress upon the chairman of the Teachers' Committee the importance of some one to be employed to assist in a supervisory capacity and had in mind to begin with some assistant to take over the supervision of instruction in the elementary and intermediate grades. My suggestions did not find too much favor, chiefly, I felt, because of the extra cost involved. Then came the vacancy (temporary) in the high school principalship while the principal was in the Navy. No qualified man could be secured for a position with such an indefinite term of employment unless we could extend some hope of a continuance of employment. It was this situation that brought us to considering the position of assistant in supervision in the secondary grades (grades 7 to 12) instead of the lower grades at the time.

Turns Over Keys for Drivers Education Car

George H. Mead, right, Belleville Ford Agent, turns over the keys of the dual control car, used by the Recreation Department for drivers' education, to Commissioner Elmer S. time of the return of the high school principal from the U. S. services. I personally took the work of supervision in the lower grades in the dividing of this supervisory work.

Guidance Instituted
 "From my very first year in Belleville I tried to set up a guidance department in our high school. This recommendation was met with resistance on the part of the majority of the board for some time. The depression, they felt, made it necessary to forego the matter until we could afford such additional services. My feeling was that we could not afford to deny such services to our boys and girls. In June 1939, against resistance, the Board of Education accepted my recommendation to employ a guidance director. Today we wonder how we ever managed to do the job without this service. Not only do we have a well equipped guidance office, conference rooms, guidance library, and a full-time qualified guidance director and psychologist, but also four teachers trained in guidance, giving a good part of their time to this department. If you will read the annual report of the guidance department on file in my office you too will wonder how we managed to get along without this service. My answer is that there was much neglected that should have been done and is now being done.

"The new position of home and school counselor, set up December 1, 1950 in the elementary schools, has already proven its value. Children with problems or children who are maladjusted for one reason or another, need the services of a specially trained counselor for such cases too often involve the home as well as the school, and generally are social or psychological in nature—often they are both social and psychological. Whether a maladjustment is due to physical, social, psychological or economical reasons, it requires that some one with appropriate training step in on behalf of the child—the one who is suffering—and may not know why. Such victims can be ignored but not without dire consequences, usually to the parties concerned and especially to the child. Society usually pays in mounting figures for the neglect of children whose difficulties could have been remedied at comparatively little cost. This new part-time position which has been made full-time for the school year 1951-52 has, in my

Conclusion
 "I sincerely thank the members of my Board of Education for the contribution they have made year after year to the educational welfare of our community. Your time and efforts will probably never be fully measured, but the eventual outcome of your services will nevertheless exist in the improved personalities and character of the young people who have been served by your labors.

Tree, Limb and Wires
 Downed In Thunderstorm
 Belleville suffered relatively little damage in a series of severe storms which hit this area Thursday and which caused considerable damage in neighboring towns. During the storm, shortly after noon a limb was blown off a tree and blocked traffic in Essex Street west of Washington Avenue, and a large tree at the corner of Division and Union Avenues, fell. During the same storm a house service electric wire was broken at 402 DeWitt Avenue. During the storm early in the evening a live wire was found burning in the street in front of 88 Carner Avenue.

Red Cross President Appeals For Flood Relief Fund

Neighbors Should Help Neighbors
 In Time Of Trouble,
 Harriman Says

On the special Disaster Show on NBC-TV Sunday evening, E. Roland Harriman, president, American National Red Cross, made this appeal to all Americans. "The job of rehabilitating the families overwhelmed by this unprecedented disaster is one which will continue long after the waters have subsided. This task, as usual, has been entrusted to the Red Cross.

"The job of re-establishing people in their homes and on their farms when they have no other resources, so they can get back on their feet, is going to take a lot of money—more than the Red Cross can provide from its funds on hand. This is particularly true because the normal operating funds of the Red Cross were not brought to full strength because the last campaign of the organization fell short of its goal.

"On his return from a survey flight over the flooded areas, President Truman wrote me a letter describing the appalling destruction he had seen. He called upon all Americans to contribute at least $5,000,000 through their local Red Cross chapters, to aid the flood-stricken sufferers in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Illinois.

Neighbor Should Help Neighbor
 "As president of the American National Red Cross, it is gratifying for me to report that the American people, as usual, are already rallying to the assistance of their stricken neighbors, even though they be far removed from the ravaged communities. The splendid contributions that are voluntarily coming into our Red Cross chapters are in the finest tradition of our nation. The government can, and should, assist in restoring the public facilities in devastated communities, but in the case of people, nothing can take the place of neighbor helping neighbor. We are fortunate that we have the Red Cross which makes it possible for us all to work together in a common cause.

No Time For Drive
 "There is no time for someone to approach you personally for your gift. Send it to your own local Red Cross Chapter now. A prompt and generous response to this urgent appeal will make it possible for the Red Cross to carry out this merciful mission in your name.

BLOOMER WARNS DISCHARGED MEN MUST REGISTER
State Selective Service Head Says There Have Been Numerous Violations of Law

Belleville youths between the ages of 18 and 26, separated from the Armed Forces and not previously registered, are required by law to register at a Selective Service Local Board within 30 days of the date of their separation, under a new ruling announced last night by Colonel E. N. Bloomer, New Jersey director of Selective Service.

Reports Violations
Colonel Bloomer made that statement in commenting on reports he said he had received from some of New Jersey's local boards to the effect that they knew of instances in which the separated men were not complying with the law.

Colonel Bloomer quoted Selective Service regulations as follows: "Every man who (a) has been separated from active service in the Armed Forces of the United States, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, or the Public Health Service, (b) has not been registered prior to such separation, and (c) would have been required to be registered except for the fact that he was in such active service on the day or days fixed for his registration by Presidential proclamation, shall present himself for and submit to registration before a local board within the period of 30 days following the date on which he was so separated."

Failure to comply with this regulation, Colonel Bloomer said, is a violation of the law and makes the subject liable to heavy penalty. The state director made it plain that it is not necessary for discharged Belleville youths to register with Local Board 15 in Newark. They may register at the local board most convenient to them, but they should give this home address here when they register.

Services Held Yesterday For Richard Vanderhoof
Funeral services for Richard Vanderhoof of 45 Perry Street were held yesterday afternoon in George Van Tassel's community home, 537 Belleville Avenue, Bloomfield. Rev. James K. Morse of Fawcett Memorial Church officiated. Burial was in Glendale Cemetery, Bloomfield. Mr. Vanderhoof died at his home Sunday after a brief illness. He would have been 74 August 10.

Born in Morris Plains, Mr. Vanderhoof lived in Newark before coming to Belleville in 1918. He retired last March, after 32 years with the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, Newark. He was a member of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, William Walter Phelps Council of Newark.

Surviving are three sons, George E. of Norfolk, Va.; Harry of Passaic and Richard Vanderhoof Jr. of Belleville, and four daughters, Mrs. A. P. Bamford of East Orange, Mrs. John S. Hermann, Mrs. J. J. Meier and Mrs. John Cove, all of Belleville; a brother, Edward Vanderhoof of Morristown; a sister, Mrs. Ella Terwilliger of Keansburg; 18 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

Customers' Corner

During the past year, we received more than 4,000 complimentary comments about the men and women who serve you daily in our stores—almost three times as many favorable comments about our employees as there were the year before.

That, of course, makes all of us at A&P very happy indeed, for it indicates that we're giving you the kind of service you want.

If you have any ideas as to how we can make your shopping even more satisfying, our loyal employees would like to have them. Please write:

ORGANIZE FIRM TO DISTRIBUTE KIDDE PRODUCTS

C. & B. Associates Will Push
Fyre-Freez Extinguishers
For Home, Office Use

Formation of the firm of C. & B. Associates as New Jersey distributors of Fyre Freez fire extinguishers, produced by Walter Kidde & Co., Inc., of Belleville, was announced today by three Newark partners in the enterprise. The group's offices are at 790 Broad Street.

President and general manager of the organization is Arthur J. Breitkopf, an attorney and son of Michael Breitkopf, assistant Newark corporation counsel. Joseph C. Amberg, also an attorney and a son of a life-long Newarker, Joseph F. W. Amberg, member of the Newark Housing Authority, is vice president and sales manager. Oscar Caro, associated with the Kidde firm for five years, serves as production manager and factory representative. All three are college graduates and former G. I.'s of World War 2.

According to Walter Kidde officials this is the first time that home owners are able to buy an effective fire extinguisher for less than ten dollars. Endorsed by fire departments and other fire prevention agencies, Fyre-Freez should be on hand in all homes, automobiles, restaurants and stores to keep small fires from becoming big ones. One feature of Fyre Freez which makes it unique and invaluable for home use or in restaurant kitchens where most restaurant fires start, is that it will not spoil food. As the company's circular points out, "You can burn the steak and eat it, too."

Fyre-Freez uses carbon dioxide (CO2) the most effective harmless fire extinguishing agent known and has long been used by industrial plants, aircraft, ocean liners, public institutions and government agencies and was supplied by the thousands to the armed forces for use in tanks, battleships, aircraft carriers, airplanes and vehicles.

Camp Shawnee Boys To Attend Closing Rally Tomorrow Night

A closing rally for the 75 boys attending Camp Shawnee, summer day camp of the Newark Y, will be held tomorrow at 7:15 p. m. in the Halsey Street building.

Special prizes will be presented to three boys for all-round camping excellence, and winners of the camp's various competitions will receive ribbons.

The program will also include special music, a western movie, and refreshments. Parents and friends of the Camp Shawnee boys are invited to attend.

PERFECT MARK FOR ROTARY MEETINGS NOW AT 27 YEARS

Harvey Thompson Pushed By
Two "Come-Latelies" With
21 Perfect Years

Harvey Thompson has an unusual record for perfect attendance at meetings of the Belleville Rotary Club. He has attended 1,420 consecutive meetings which gives him a perfect score for 27 years. Willard Sawyer with 1,122 meetings, and George Kaden with 1,115 meetings have marks of better than 21 years. John P. Dailey has an eight year record and Bob Reed and Norman Thompson 56 consecutive meetings, according to the Rotary Megaphone, weekly bulletin of the Rotary Club.

Altogether 18 had perfect attendance marks last year and some of them were put to considerable inconvenience to make up meetings. Thomas Aitken, who made a trip to the coast without missing a meeting, recently returned from Europe where he made up two meetings in Italy, and one in Paris, France. Willard Sawyer, made up one meeting in London made up meetings on a trip through Florida, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma, while Crosby Hiss and Stu Grant made up meetings in the West.

Enlists for Four Years

Richard V. Ace, son of Mrs. Mary V. Ace of 30 Branch Brook Drive recently enlisted in the U. S. Army for four years and is in basic training at Camp Sampson, N. Y.

Gold Clock

It is the time of the chateaux.
Of wild mustard's second flowering.
The time of tarnished gilt
Of flung patches of tar-weed.
Sheep bells tinkle the moments
As the sheep nibble the wheat stubble.
Green-gold tinsel of sunlight
Slants from the pine needles.
For one second the bells hush.
Has the clock stopped?
No, a gentle metronome of nibble and tinkling
Stirs again.
Gold clock measures gold day.

I Salute the Memory of a Marshal of France

In my small and humble voice, I defend the memory of Henri Philippe Petain, Marshal of France, from the accusation that he is a "traitor."

I knew Marshal Petain personally, both in World War I and in Vichy where I spent two and a half years under the Petain regime until I was arrested by Pierre Laval to spend a year and a half in a Gestapo internment camp in Germany.

I knew the Petain who in Morocco led a quarter of a million French troops against the Rifis to quell the revolt of Abd el Krim.

I knew the Petain who completed the pacification of Morocco, a task begun a quarter of a century before him by another great Marshal of France, Lyautey.

I knew the Petain whom the French government begged to come out of retirement in 1939 to go to Madrid as Ambassador to General Franco's government to reestablish political relations. Petain, at that time, was 83 years old.

I knew the Petain who, on June 16, 1940, at Tours, when the French government-in-exile of Paul Reynaud fell, as German boots already tramped the streets of Paris, was given the thankless job of Premier of a cabinet in flight. Petain, at that time, was 84 years old.

I knew the Petain to whom on July 10, 1940, in the theatre of the casino at Vichy, the French National Assembly, by a vote of 569 to 80, turned over the government for the duration of the war, with full powers to write a constitution for a Fourth Republic. Petain, that day, was 85 years old.

I was at Verdun, as I was at Tours and Bordeaux and Vichy and I watched these events which befell a man well past the four score mark. I was there that hot afternoon when the elected legislators of France turned the remnants of a defeated country over to him and fled to escape the Germans, some even fleeing by chartered boat to North Africa.

But I never knew a Petain-the-traitor!

Throughout the rest of the war, after France fell, Petain held the French together. France was prostrate and only a national hero of his greatness could have prevented the complete collapse of France. True, he talked with Hitler, but Hitler was the conqueror, the occupying Fuhrer. Petain gave nothing, he kept his fleet intact, but he got much in return and slowly France licked her wounds and patiently organized her underground resistance.

It was shocking to read the despatches this week that spoke of Petain as a "convicted traitor." Convicted by whom? Certainly not by his peers. Petain was tried during that troubled period after the liberation when the Communists controlled Paris. He had no fair trial. A Marshal of France, he should have been tried by men of his own stature. Instead, he was tried in "Humanite," the Paris Communist daily. He was tried by the Communists in this country and in Moscow. He was "convicted" as a traitor.

Judge Pierre Mongibeaux, who presided at his trial, was unable to maintain order. For as long as half an hour at a time during the three-week trial, the court room was the scene of a milling, yelling throng which on one occasion upset the chair and table at which the old Marshal had been sitting shortly before guards had taken him to safety. The rules of evidence were lost in gales of oratory and angry denunciations. I who knew Petain, who lived two and a half years with him in Vichy, who talked with him a hundred times during those months of occupation, refuse to recognize his conviction.

To me, Petain did the impossible in holding France together at Vichy in France's darkest days of World War II as a double decade before he had held it together at Verdun in the darkest days of World War I.

To me, Petain is a hero of France and I salute with humble respect the memory of an honest man, a great soldier, a Marshal of France, but never a traitor.

Mr. Marshall Says No!

There can be no mistake this time; Secretary of Defense George Marshall and Secretary of State Dean Acheson both in the same day, on Tuesday, made it clear to Moscow, Peiping and points West that we are not going to be lulled into relaxing our defense preparations by any Kremlin crooners mouthing a Russian lullaby.

The major point which General Marshall established is that we are not going to evacuate Korea until there is a permanent peace settlement. If the Chinese Communist negotiators want to go on with the cease-fire talks under those conditions, well and good. If they do not, we are not prepared to buy peace at any other price.

In our opinion, the Reds will concede the point.

The cease-fire talks at Kaesong have gone along far better than anyone could have hoped. The tendency is, naturally, to look such a gift horse in the mouth. Why does the Kremlin suddenly want a cease-fire where just a year ago it wanted a war?

It is Washington's theory about Kremlin policy that the men of Moscow have their eyes fixed now, as always since the end of fighting in World War II, on the triple objective of adding Germany and Japan to the Soviet empire and of destroying the North Atlantic Treaty Organization because it is the major obstacle to their prime objectives.

Because in Korea we have bled their Chinese satellite armies, the Russians now preach their old propaganda doctrine of "co-existence." When it became apparent to the Kremlin, after one year, that it had made a miscalculation of our intentions and our abilities, the orders went out from Moscow to obtain a cease-fire in Korea.

Look back and examine the calendar of happenings and you will see that so long as the North Koreans and the Chinese Communists were advancing, Moscow would not even talk with the UN about Korea. When we started our campaign of attrition and Chinese losses grew astronomical, the Kremlin sounded the call for a "cease-fire," with Malik mouthing the mush.

The truce talks are taking longer than they should to arrive at a foregone conclusion, but they are being dragged out to provide a breather for the Kremlin. The Russian foreign office is anything but streamlined and it cannot keep pace with the swift, smart diplomacy which Washington's revamped State Department is purveying. A breather was necessary to allow the clumsy men of Moscow to catch their breaths.

The Korean story should confirm the belief we have long held that Russia will grab everything without a war. The minute that a situation arises that smacks of war, the Kremlin leaves go and backs up. It was the same story in Iran in 1947, in Turkey in 1948, in Greece in 1948 and 1949, and in Korea now. The breather may be necessary right now to allow the Kremlin a free hand to organize a drive against the Japanese peace treaty before the 50 nations we have invited to San Francisco initial the pact.

In the meantime, what of Korea?

As this week's talks resumed and dragged along, they still concerned only the agenda of future talks to come. We are still at the stage of drawing up ground rules for the real conferences. The most encouraging sign is that the Chinese gave in on the question of the 38th Parallel; no one would have believed a fortnight ago that the Communists would consent to a status quo during negotiations. Yet they are willing to stay put far north of the 38th Parallel even though that is certain to cost them "face."

Our position in the cease-fire talks is that we cannot discuss now the withdrawal of all non-Korean troops from Korea. The reason we hesitate to agree is that if both sides withdraw, the Chinese will once again be massed just behind the Yalu River with road connections with the North Korean army which can be trained and equipped easily, while we would have to evacuate our armies to Japan or to the United States—quite a distance from our South Korean allies.

Looking ahead, things appear to be moving like this: As soon as the agenda is completed, actual cease-fire negotiations will begin—perhaps next week. While a cease-fire is being signed, plans will be made for a real Korean peace conference. That is where we are likely to step out and hand the hot potato over to the UN. Certainly, no permanent settlement would be possible without the UN in whose name we have been fighting.

The cease-fire pact will merely establish a neutral zone in Korea and provide for inspection teams from both sides to check on the other. It will be a step in the right direction—but realize clearly that it is merely a step, and that Korea is merely one checker on the vast checkerboard of international affairs and that the Kremlin has a whole handful of other checkers left.

ONE MAN'S OPINION . . .

There Are Strategic Reasons, Far More Important Than Moral or Religious Objections, for Bases in Spain

By RALPH E. HEINZEN

It was perhaps particularly fitting that the admiral who put through the unification of the armed forces over the objections of a vociferous corps of naval officers should have succeeded so completely in bringing Spain into the anti-Communist front over the opposition of a vociferous force prompted by religious, political and racial hatreds.

It is typical of that opposition when such a paper as "Christian Science Monitor" should regret Admiral Sherman's mission to Madrid on the grounds that a line-up with "the erstwhile partner of Hitler and Mussolini" is distasteful. During World War II, on the grounds of political and military necessity, we lined up with Stalin and his blood-stained Communist politburo. Was that any less distasteful to "Christian Science Monitor"?

Happily, we have the published memories of Goebbels, of Ciano, of the wartime American and British Ambassadors to Madrid, Carlton Hayes and Sir Samuel Hoare, to set aright the bigoted and biased accusations. It is written in Ciano's diary that Hitler, after trying unsuccessfully to win Franco's consent to the passage of German Panzer divisions across Spain to attack Gibraltar, said in Ciano's presence: "I would rather have smallpox a hundred times than have to deal with that Spaniard again." What higher compliment could be paid to Franco?

Basically, the Franco regime remains a dictatorial regime and dictators remain anathema to most of us.

Question of Need

But there are times when we must lean with the wind, as we leaned during the war when we allied ourselves with Communist Russia although Stalin and Communism were anathema to most of us.

The very day Admiral Sherman left Madrid and flew to Italy, where his brilliant career came to a premature end, Franco shook up his cabinet, very evidently to satisfy conditions imposed upon him by our emissary. In that drastic reshuffle, the first in six years, the grip of the Falange was weakened and the roles of the Catholic party and the Monarchists were increased. With the exception of the Communists and Anarchists, the new cabinet reflects more accurately the true political strata of nationalist Spain.

Militarily, Spain could be as important to the overall defense of civilization as are Turkey and Greece.

Fought Russians

The Spanish Army is not negligible, at its present strength of 400,000. Franco sent two "Blue Divisions" to the Russian front during World War II, to pay back the Russians for the intervention of the "International Brigades" in the Spanish Civil War in 1936-38, and they fought excellently. Russia still holds or has killed off about 1,000 Spanish prisoners of war. We have asked that 10 Spanish divisions be earmarked for use by the West, after their officers are brought here to be schooled in our army camps and the divisions are re-equipped with our latest arms.

The Spanish Navy is virtually nonexistent, but there remain many excellent harbors which, within one or two years, could be converted into very serviceable submarine bases. We have asked for the naval bases of Cadiz, Coruna and Carthage, on the mainland, and Santa Cruz de Tenerife in the Canary Islands.

The Spanish Air Force is obsolete; it has not a single jet plane, but it does maintain more than 60 first-class air fields which, overnight, could be peopled by our own technicians and used against an enemy anywhere in the Mediterranean basin. From Spanish airfields in Catalonia to Russia's major sources of oil in the Ploesti and the Baku-Batum basins, respectively, 1,200 and 2,000 miles. Our planes, shuttling between Spain and landing fields in Turkey or Greece could decimate Russia's oil production in quick order. We have asked for the lease of five main Spanish airfields capable of handling American heavy bombers with 2,400-mile full load radius of action.

Spanish Morocco and Spain's Rio d'Oro, the Gold Coast, are both extremely useful in patrolling the Atlantic and the Mediterranean, while the Canary Islands would be priceless in preserving the South Atlantic against possible attack by Russia's vast fleet of sub-raiders.

Of prime importance to the United States, however, is securing Spain against another Anarchist-Communist uprising which might enable Russia to establish her own bases in the peninsula. If Russia controlled a Spanish regime, the fate of Gibraltar would be sealed. The British know that, and today, instead of hating Franco, they should be grateful to him for having refused, in June, 1940, to allow Hitler's tanks the right of passage.

Pointed at Gibraltar

During the Spanish Civil War, I stood in La Linea, Spain, and looked right into the corridors of the British fortress of Gibraltar with military glasses. Artillery in La Linea could rake the fortress with fire.

During the Civil War, I visited the Franco naval base of La Coruna, near El Ferrol, at the northwest corner of the peninsula where the coast quits the Bay of Biscay for the Atlantic. It was an excellent naval port, with comparatively modern arsenal facilities. As a base for American submarines and seaplanes it would give us perfect control of the waters off the west coast of Europe and even if the Red Armies pushed their way across Germany, the lowlands and France, we could hold them helpless in the water so long as Spain, behind the Pyrenees, was in our hands.

Island Station

The Balearic Islands, particularly Majorca, are studded with airfields and good-sheltering ports, a perfect haven for holding the Western Mediterranean. The value of all those bases would depend greatly upon how much military equipment we are willing to install in them. As they stand today, they are of little value; a year from now they could be made impregnable.

Alas, the Sherman mission has barely ended in the admiral's death, than great pressure is being applied from London and Paris to prevent Spain being admitted to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It is a very selfish attitude, because the French and the British want as much as they can get out of us for themselves. They have prevented Greece and Turkey being admitted to NATO on geographical grounds, arguing they are Mediterranean and not North Atlantic nations. Spain, however, is clearly an Atlantic power.

NATO members have "clear priority" to American aid. If there is a surplus of arms, it goes to the non-NATO allies. If France and Britain continue their selfish obstructions, there is but one way to turn them and that is by a direct Spanish American agreement under which we agree to give arms, as well as economic aid to strengthen Spain's own structure, in exchange for bases.

It is obvious that Franco's political enemies in Paris and London would be unhappy. But we waited four years since we agreed hesitatingly to withdraw our Ambassadors, at the insistence of London and Paris, for Franco to fall without the Spanish dictator showing the slightest signs of wear.

I was working in the State Department at that time, shortly before coming to Newark, when the decision was taken to call home our Ambassador to Madrid to please our allies who were bent, even then, on dethroning Franco. Our Ambassador was Norman Armour, a career diplomat who, as his first act upon reaching Washington, resigned from the diplomatic service as his way of emphasizing his disagreement with our policy. Armour, whom I had worked with in Paris before the war, was, in this one man's opinion, the outstanding American career diplomat. His going was a loss; now four years later we repair a blunder.

Our foreign policy now is our own; in those days it was aimed to please Moscow or Paris or London.

Marines National Deadline For Draftees' Enlistment

Due to an extension of a recent Secretary of Defense decision, potential draftees have a last-minute chance to join the Marines, the corps recruiting station in Newark announced last night.

The directive, which authorizes young men to voluntarily enlist even after they have received pre-induction physicals, was previously deadline July 15. The extension now sets the deadline at August 1, 1951.

Master Sgt. S. P. Judkins, in charge of the Newark station, emphasized however that none will be able to enlist after he has received actual orders for induction.

Trying to keep ahead

IS A BIG JOB NOW-A-DAYS!

Installer Charles S. Heath, of Newark, has been with our supply unit, Western Electric Company, for 4 years. His hobbies, building bamboo fishing rods and model trains, help him keep his fingers nimble for the delicate and exacting work of connecting big switchboards like this new Long Distance board in Newark.

New Jersey's big Defense industries and military establishments are keeping your Telephone Company mighty busy! Trying to keep ahead of the demand for Long Distance service (more than four times that of 1940) requires fast work. Here, for example, is a new switchboard being installed in Newark. Even before installers have left the job, Long Distance Operators move in to help put through thousands and thousands of urgent calls! You can help speed these calls, and get better service for yourself, too, if you'll give your Long Distance Operator the out-of-town number you're calling, whenever possible.

NEW JERSEY BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

LONG DISTANCE calls go through faster when you give the operator the out-of-town number you're calling.

what do you mean "Dog Days"?

SAM: "This is the life! I watch the game from a comfortable chair, with breezes blowing on me and a long, cold drink in my hand. Good of you to fix it, Sue."

SUE: "I doubt if I'd do it, if I didn't have an electric blender. Fact is, Sam, there're a lot of things I wouldn't want to do if I hadn't electricity. Funny thing, too, most things cost more all the time, but not electricity."

SAM: "That's a fact. Our electric bills average only a few pennies a day. Right now we have the fan going, lights on, television working and the kids are playing the radio phonograph in the den."

REDDY: "He's right. Prices of other items on the household budget soar, but my charges, as an electric servant, have been downward over a long period of years."

Fresh Fruit Smoothie is the name of the drink Sam is enjoying. We'll be glad to send you the recipe. Just call the Home Economics Department.

PUBLIC SERVICE

PLAYS

By PIERSON

Bows to Public Opinion

The University of Pennsylvania has given up on its plan to buck the NCAA's plan for controlled television this fall, but did bring about a few modifications in the association's plan. There is no doubt that public opinion and the possibility that some of its outstanding rivals would cancel all sports relations, prompted Pennsylvania in its most recent move.

A two-month controversy ended with Penn agreeing to go along with the NCAA in whatever experimental plan it might consider. It also asked that its five home games be considered in the plan. Originally the NCAA planned to make the television arrangements and to take 60 per cent for its expenses. Now the NCAA has agreed that it will designate the games which may be televised, that the home team make its own television contracts and that a flat sum be paid into the association for its expenses.

Penn had hoped that a number of other universities including Notre Dame would follow its lead, but when they held back announcements of their plans, Penn was left holding the bag.

While everyone is not entirely satisfied with the compromise, there is at least no serious break, and at the same time most television fans will be able to see a game each Saturday. Of course they will not be able to switch wave bands from game to game, but according to the plan, this section will be without a televised game only one Saturday during the season. On that particular day, gate receipts will be measured against receipts of other days. If it should rain that Saturday, the experiment will be in vain.

St. Anthony's Altar Boys Doing Well

After a slow start the St. Anthony's Altar Boys team, playing in the CYO junior baseball league, face their most important game on Sunday when they tangle with the Mt. Carmel team of Montclair. A victory for the Silver Lake boys will give them the first-half title, and a defeat will result in a tie for first honors and necessitate a play-off game against the same team at a later date. The St. Anthony team is coached by Albert Guglicilli, who has been on job for several years. Bob Doyle, the club's chucker has struck out 59 in 37 innings, and with Ralph Conti and Roger Guglicilli, stars for the team. It is said that Roger Hornsby, manager of the Seattle Rainers has expressed a desire to give them all a looksee, at the completion of their high school careers, still a few years off.

Chet Sanok Hot

Chet Sanok, reigning State Open champion, was the whole show at the Forest-Hill Field Club's annual membership tournament Saturday, when he shot a four-under-par 67. He teamed with member Frank Canning to score a net 64, on the strength of Canning's handicap of 12 strokes. Sanok was the only scratch golfer in the field of 58 teams. That 64 put the team in a four way tie for first honors. The others in the winning circle were Jacob Matlock of Blairmont and Ralph Robinson; Frank Glessen of East Orange and Bill Corbin, and Frank Moriarty of Glen Ridge and Ralph Del Dio.

Sanok teamed with Harry Ballou last year to win the event, but Ballou was ill and his place was taken by Canning.

Little League Facts

Giving the devil his due, North Jersey Little Leagues were given a swell buildup in the Newark News' Sunday supplement. Unfortunately, Belleville was not given as much space as was devoted to Lyndhurst and the West Orange and South Orange setups, but it was a worthwhile feature and showed that Belleville was right in step.

Our friend William "Lefty" Boland, recreation director in West Orange and a former baseball player of the first grade, who was associated with us for nine years in the Suburban Baseball League, has taken a real lead in the promoting of Little League Baseball and has been appointed Commissioner of the movement for North Jersey. He's a good man, a fair man and a practical man. With his help other municipalities should get leagues going with about half the effort that had to be expended here.

The Clippers, coached by Art Bloemeke, captured the Belleville title by a two-game margin over the Demons, mainly through the excellent hurling of Joe Tortorello, who had been assigned to the team as an outfielder.

Because four teams with about 15 players each provided an opportunity for some 300 boys who were interested in the sport, plans are underway to expand Belleville's Little League setup by the operation of at least three six-team leagues next season. That will really be something.

PAL Success

Belleville's senior PAL team is not only playing the best ball in the State PAL League but has earned two other "best" reputations. One is that the team is the best uniformed in the circuit. The other distinction is that they have the most hustle.

The running of this team takes considerable volunteer time of a number of Belleville policemen and it is figured that the cost for the season, counting uniforms, baseballs, umpires and traveling expenses will come near $1,000.

Besides the senior team, Belleville will have two teams in a new PAL league for boys between 13 and 15 years of age. Games will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays and each team will play 11 games, finishing the season on August 30.

Both teams will be fully uniformed. One will wear the colors and the lettering of the Giants and the other will wear replicas of the uniforms of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Besides Belleville there will be two teams from Newark, and one each from Irvington and Kearny. The season opens July 31 at 10 a. m. Belleville's Giants play at Irvington and its Cards meet Newark at the Stadium.

Senior PAL Tossers Down Carteret and Rahway in League

Also Beat Kearny Legion; Unbeaten In Ten Contests

Belleville's Senior PAL team won three games in the past week, two of them in the state PAL circuit. Saturday at the Stadium, the Belleville crew which has gone ten games without suffering defeat, seven of them in the state league, will go against the Newark PAL league leaders. On Monday at Irvington the Bellboys will tangle with the Camptown aggregation.

Wednesday of last week Belleville traveled to Carteret where it beat the home PALers 4 to 0 on the hurling of 15-year-old Bob Mallack. The local boys played one of the best games of the year with Sam Graziano at shortstop sparkling with brilliant plays.

Gashlin and Moreno, on base via a walk and hit batsman, scored Belleville's first two runs when Roger Hansen banged a hard one between first and second. The Carteret second baseman knocked the ball down but couldn't field it in time. Another run scored in the second when Wilkerson was safe on an error, Mallack was hit by a pitch. Wilkerson reached third on a wild pitch and with the squeeze play on and Graziano at bat the pitch was low and Wilkerson stole home. Graziano was also hit by a pitch, which finished the mound work of Kolibas. Wanca, who didn't give Belleville a hit the rest of the way out, walked Wilkerson in the sixth. Wilkerson scored when Mallack's sacrifice bunt was thrown past the first baseman, and in a rundown of Mallack between first and second.

Carteret got a hit in each of the first three innings but in each frame Mallack struck out a batter to leave the runner stranded. Wanca, who finished the game for Carteret was All-State for Woodbridge High and had won 21 games in a row. The loss was charged to Kolibas. It was the best pitching Belleville has faced this year. Off both pitchers, the Bellboys garnered only one safety and ten batters succumbed to Wanca's fast one and his bender.

Graziano had seven hard chances and made them all look easy. Moreno's running catch of a line drive which was labeled "home run" and Del Tufo's running catch in right-center, were the defensive features of the game.

Friday at the Stadium the Kearny Legion bowed to Belleville 5 to 1. Jack McKhann, a southpaw, made his first start for the PAL and did right well, allowing five hits in seven innings. The PAL went ahead in the fourth when Spera got his second hit. Moreno sacrificed down first base and Del Tufo singled. Del Tufo went to second on the throw to the plate, stole third and scored on a wild pitch. In the sixth Wilkerson walked, Moreno doubled to right, Del Tufo walked and Wilkerson scored on a passed ball. Hansen then hit a slow roller along the first base line and as he beat it out for a hit Moreno scored. Both runners moved up on a passed ball and Del Tufo finally scored after Westlake's fly to left was caught. Hansen was thrown out at third trying to advance on the same fly.

Saturday the PAL won its third game by defeating the strong Rahway nine 10 to 8, at the Stadium. Belleville had previously beaten Rahway, but that Union County team has since strengthened with two new pitchers and five members of the Linden team which won the Greater Newark baseball tournament.

Rahway scored a run in each for the first two innings, another in the fifth, four in the seventh and one in the final frame. Belleville tied things in the first when Gashlin walked, Moreno singled to right to put Gashlin on third. Gashlin scored on a wild pitch. Paul Weinstein's single, a walk and two errors gave Belleville two more in the second. Belleville garnered three in the fourth when Gashlin and Moreno singled, Del

Tufo hit a triple, to center and scored on Westlake's triple to center. Three more were scored in the fifth. Wilkerson led off with a triple, McConnell walked. When Graziano hit to short and Rahway tried for the double play, Wilkerson scored, McConnell was out but Graziano was safe at first. Moreno walked and Del Tufo singled. Hansen's single scored Moreno.

When Belleville got a little careless with a 9 to 3 lead McConnell was replaced by Bob Mallack. Mallack finally picked Dimino off first to end the game. Rahway had won its last four games, and with Wanko hurling a fast ball Belleville did its best hitting of the season.

Treasure Hunt Features
Playgrounds Next Week

One of the most popular features of the summer playground season will take place next Wednesday when the annual Treasure Hunt takes place at the Stadium. A Gay Nineties Review and the Championship Field Day follow in successive weeks. Last year's Treasure Hunt attracted more than 500 youngsters, and next week's event is expected to be equally popular.

The youngsters assemble in the Stadium's concrete stands and at the signal, about 10 o'clock, they swarm down on the field to try their luck at finding special cards, which have been hidden around the field. Each ticket is exchangeable for a prize, donated by a local merchant.

Prizes cover a wide range and include fishing tackle, toys, free haircuts, flashlights, candy, ice cream, sodas, autographed baseballs, watermelons and a host of other things. All in all there will be more than 100 prizes. Without the help of merchants and individuals who put up these prizes, the Treasure Hunt could not be held.

A special section will be set aside for the youngsters of less than six years old, so that they too will be able to win some prizes. Another change this year is a rule that no youngster can cash in more than two tickets for prizes. He may, however, give the additional tickets to his friends, who may cash them in.

Adults are invited to attend, but only children from toddler age through 14 years may compete in the event. The zero hour is 10 a.m. Anyone who comes late will miss out on the fun and the prizes.

Friendly House
Champions were determined in the horseshoe pits at Friendly House. Entered in the tournament were Charles Vitale, Frank Malfatta, Joe Morano, Domenick Klein, Richard Castiglia, Sam Cancelli, Joe Razzeca, Andy Bojahn, Ralph Belveria, Joe Casta, Tom Roselli, George Molinaro, Rocco Galante, Rocco Scanniello, Pete Badalamente, Sam Falcone, Nick Di Martino, Bob Parrillo, Fil Galiato, Jerry Marra and John Raimo. Carl DeVona emerged as junior singles champ and Jerry Dezenzo as senior titleholder. Jack Spencer and John Anselmo beat Bill D'Ambalo and Ralph Sena for the senior doubles crown and Anthony Palamara and Anthony "Butch" Stivali defeated Carl DeVona and Sal LoCoco for the junior title.

Handicraft enjoys wide popularity on the playground. Carl DeVona, Charles Molinaro and Linda Nesar have completed attractive bracelets. Dick Vazzano and Charles Molinaro have fashioned lanyards. Lucy Scanniello, Sal LoCoco and Dave Libolt are polishing charms for key-rings and chains.

Cheryl Libolt's lovely little Italian doll won the prize for "prettiest" in the playground doll contest. Linda Palamara's blonde bride was the most unusual and Mary Ann Molinaro's baby doll won third prize.

Clearman Field Playground
The Clearman Yanks were hosts to three softball teams, recently. The outstanding performance was that of Richie Raccioppi who twirled a double-header and won 8-6 and 10-5. A game with the Bellwood A. C. was a thriller. After seven innings with the Yanks ahead 8 to 7, the teams decided to make it a nine inning affair. In the extra innings the Bellwoods scored two runs and won 9-8. The other game was with the Silver Lake All Stars, which Clearman won 10-6. Outstanding performers were Doug Fusey, Butch Orsini, Micky Due-lax and Butch Kittle. Clearman Field has five teams of various ages and all are open for games. Contact either of the directors or Ray Smith, playground supervisor.

A new feature was added to Clearman Field, a basketball backboard and new rim. The boys enjoy playing those half court games at the new backboard.

No. 10 Playground
Winners of the doll show were Lani Chen, "most original"; Elaine Vallance, "prettiest"; and Carol Sargent, "most realistic." Handicraft is popular and the children have been making bracelets, key chains, pins, lanyards and pot holders.

Recreation House
Patricia Tentajelli, Mona Martellite and Rose Marie Zucca were winners in the annual doll show. Judges were Mrs. N. D'Addaria, Mrs. J. Mort, Janice Westby and Al Johnston. In the junior department Knute Maers has been doing a terrific fielding and hitting job for the softball team. Basketball is popular with the girls, as well as the boys and Rita Zimmer, Joan Swetel, Pat O'Brien, Betty Brown and Kathleen Botsford can really put the ball through the hoop.

No. 1 Playground
No. 1 seeks baseball, softball and basketball games. In ping pong Stanley Muffet seems to be the best on the playground with Jim Noonan giving all challengers a hard time. The basketball team tangled with a quintet from Nutley and won by a score of 149 to 45. The team sported such stars as Deanie Hatcher, Jim and Buckley McConnell, Bob Plunkett, Joe Brosius, Jim Noonan and Lester "Bonehead" MacEachern.

No. 9 Playground
It was visitors week at No. 9 Playground. Ray and Carl Mead, who used to go to School No. 9 and now living in Springfield, came in. Then Edgar Atkinson and his two sons, Edgar, Jr. and Jimmy from Yardly, Pa., visiting with the Krafts of 67 Terry Street, showed us a thing or two about horseshoes.

Sandra Eibelsheuser, daughter of one of the playground directors, is recovering from a plastic surgery operation at St. Barnabas' Hospital, Newark. There were 45 spectators and 15 entries at the doll show. Judges were Ann Marie Goli, Dolores Goli, Mary Lou Karlson, Harry Winfield and Teddy Kraft. Winners were, "old-fashioned doll," Betty Lynn Karlson; home made Scotch doll, Ann Marie Tinsdale and baby doll, Joan Goe.

No. 5 Playground
The playground was rather sparsely attended this week due to the hot weather. However, Judy Coburn, Camille Perone, Frank Gaccione and Gary Rawe improved their ping pong game with plenty of vim and zip exhibited despite the heat.

William Street Playground
There were big doings on the William Street Playground. Grace McDermott won the jack tournament. Theresa Fitzpatrick for the girls and William Healy for the boys were winners in the checker tournament. Horseshoes are the order of the day now with Peter Lukowiak, Gene Michisimi, Carlo Prisimano, Melvin Torsello, Daniel DeWitt, Bob Schman, Bruce McCumstry, Nick Torsello, Tom Condura, Joe Ward, Joe Premial, Tom Higgins, Tom Rhodes, James Mollar, James McCann and John Schickram, signed up for the tournament.
