

Three Job Changes Mark Chronology of '51 Events

Patrick A. Waters as Acting Mayor, Evan H. Thomas, Superintendent of Schools and Edward J. Abramson, Magistrate, Are Installed.

The year 1951 has been a busy and important one for the people of Belleville. It has been marked by three changes in top jobs in the municipal government, by death, accident, joy and just plain living for many people. When Mayor James J. Tully was recalled to active duty with the U. S. Marines, Patrick A. Waters, a commissioner for 25 consecutive years, took over the gavel as Acting Mayor of the town. The retirement of Wayne R. Parmer, as supervising principal of Belleville schools, after 20 years of service created a vacancy. Evan H. Thomas, assistant superintendent, who received a majority vote of the Board of Education members at their meeting on August 1, early this month Magistrate Everett B. Smith announced that he would not seek reappointment, after 20 years as municipal judge. At a special meeting of the Board of Commissioners, attended by Mayor James J. Tully, who flew in from California, Edward J. Abramson was appointed for a three year term.

Two Belleville boys were reported killed and one reported missing in fighting in Korea.

A glorious Fourth of July celebration climaxed by a circus and fireworks display was staged at the Stadium.

The sports front the Golden Boys of Belleville High School had a great basketball season, winning the North Jersey Group IV, Section 2 championship. But the strain of the state tournament starting on top of a strenuous County tournament was too much as the boys bowed to Bayonne, the state champs in the semi-final game by a single point. And Belleville's first Little League was a huge success. The title was won by the Clippers. And Belleville's P. A. L. senior baseball team won the state championship playoffs in an elimination tournament at Summit.

POST OFFICE OPENS ITS NEW BUILDING WITHOUT FANFARE

On-Again-Off-Again Plans For Moving Left Public Without Prior Notice

Belleville's new Post Office, at Washington Avenue and New Street, although not finished, opened for business at Monday, after on-again-off-again plans to move. Two weeks ago John J. Kant, local superintendent was told that he would move on December 30. Wednesday of last week he was informed to move on Saturday night in the process of packing and moving.

20-Year Lease
Monday morning when Mrs. John Hooper of 79 Floyd Street was first in line to mail a package to her grandson, Lawrence Beam of Bradford, Mass. the hardware and trim was not yet installed on the front door. Electricians were at work trying to get the fluorescent lighting over the counter to work. The Post Office was marked by the presence of Postmaster Louis A. Kelly.

In January of last year it was announced that the Post Office Department had entered into a 20 year lease with a New York firm for the rental of a post office building. By the time the plans for the building were filed, there was a new owner, Benjamin K. Fire, who had bought the building. His contractor was Max Portnoff of Newark.

Town Asked Plan Revision
Building Inspector Thomas G. King, took a look at the plans and specifications and called in Commissioner Joseph A. King. The exterior of the building seemed more like a factory than a post office. The plans called for the entire exterior to be built of common brick. The matter was given an airing by the Board of Commissioners who called a conference with the owner in which he agreed to substitute face brick for common brick on the street elevations and to put stone trim on the corners of the building.

It was to be altered as to size the town wanted a half inch of copper in open siding 2 in. in both Washington Avenue and Little Street to allow for the stone veneer.

Magician Larry Keenan Busy Over Holidays
E. Keenan had little time for his law practice during the pre-Christmas week and the week between Christmas and New Year's Day. During this two week period his advocacy, "Magie Fests" claimed a great deal of his time. For instance he gave a show at the Rotary Club, one at the Elks Lodge and another at the Methodist Church.

Larger Than Old Quarters
The building has about three times the area of the former post office. The overall dimensions are 60 by 85, with an 18 by 30 foot loading platform. In addition the ceiling height is higher.

Bank type windows have been put in on 94 boxes, where boxholders can pick up their mail. The old post office had about half as many.

New Friday-Evening Hours For Local A. & P. Stores
Stores of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company in Belleville and Nutley will inaugurate a new policy Friday when they will be open in afternoon 2 p.m. instead of their usual 6 p.m. closing. The new closing hour is being put into effect to help the town's business throughout this district.

Bone Choked Child
Mrs. Louis Veneza of 38 Sanford Street called for assistance on Saturday when her baby caught a bone in its throat. Passano took the child to Columbia Hospital and the bone was removed.

Active In Women's Affairs
Mrs. Rochau has been active in women's affairs and church work in Belleville. She has been active in the Woman's Club, the Woman's Republican Club and helped to organize the Belleville Church Society, of which she is secretary. At the Board of Deacons, president of the Aid Society, vice president of the Missionary Guild and leader of the Epiphany Troop No. 8.

Mrs. Zink, vice-president of the Board of Education, has served 12 years on the Board. Her first appointment by Mayor Williams in February 1939 to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Zink's office was reappointed to a five year term in 1942 by Mayor Williams and again in 1947 by Mayor Williams. In 1949 she was reappointed to an appointment that she would have accepted reappointment, but that she would not accept it when Deputy Mayor William Tully informed her of his brother's decision.

Seen As Tully Triumph
Deputy Mayor Tully says, "The mayor has the highest respect for Mrs. Zink and knows she has done a splendid job on the Board, but he has had to make a decision for appointment to the Board for a long time."

Other people see in the move Mayor Tully's determination to dictate policy to the Board of Education. With the appointment of Mrs. Rochau, every member of the board will have owed his or her appointment to the mayor. It is so secret that Mrs. Zink followed the Mayor's thinking in many things. Last year she successfully opposed the Mayor's effort to have the Board not to renew the contract of former Supervising Principal William R. Parmer.

Recently she cast the deciding vote when the Board named Evan H. Thomas to the post.

STATE DEPARTMENT ACTION STOPPED PLAN OF FIRM HEAD
Sidney Hollander Has Set To Organize Drive To Have Children Pay Flyers Fines

Sidney Hollander, president of the Ever Ready Label Corporation of 357 Cortlandt Street, was all set to go to Washington to lobby for a plan for having 12,000,000 school children throughout the land demonstrate their anti-communist feelings by donating a penny each toward $122,000,000 fine levied by the Hungarian Government on four American fliers, when the State Department revealed that it had already made arrangements to pay the fine.

Hollander, whose father came to this country 75 years ago from Hungary and opened a cigar store in New York, was he was prepared to go to Washington to lobby for a plan for having 12,000,000 school children throughout the land demonstrate their anti-communist feelings by donating a penny each toward $122,000,000 fine levied by the Hungarian Government on four American fliers, when the State Department revealed that it had already made arrangements to pay the fine.

Hollander envisaged the collection as an opportunity for a nationwide anti-Communist demonstration in organizing the minds of children the value of freedom.

As a receipt to each child contributing a penny, Hollander planned a Presidential proclamation of the general subject of the value of freedom. The proclamation would have been carried in newspapers for each child to clip.

Three Drunken Drivers Were To Learn Fate Last Night
Two men charged with drunk driving were scheduled to learn their fate in Magistrate Edward J. Abramson's court, last night. A trial of the case of George M. Malina, 18, of 127 Hecol Street was scheduled. The local youth driving home from an office Christmas party on December 21 hit his car, knocked over a sign post and drove his car onto a lawn in Hornbowl Avenue.

James C. Bridges, of 698 Broadway, Newark, who was arrested after his car hit the Erie Railroad crossing warning sign in William Street early in December, was to hear Magistrate Abramson's decision in the case heard last week. Mr. Bridges, represented by Robert C. Gray, claimed that he was sitting in the parked car when the brakes released and it coasted down the William Street hill. Town Attorney Lawrence E. Keenan produced witnesses who saw Mr. Bridges get out of the car but no one who actually saw him operating the vehicle.

The penalty in drunken driving cases is $200 fine and a two year revocation of the driver's license.

MAIL DIME CARDS TO OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR POLIO FUNDS

William F. Tully Urges Citizens To Be Generous In Month Long Drive

The 1932 March of Dimes campaign for funds to fight the infantile paralysis opened yesterday and will continue through January 31.

Deputy Mayor William F. Tully, of Belleville, chairman of the annual drive, last night issued the following statement:

"No quota is ever set for this campaign. Fortunately, local residents seem always willing to respond generously to a cause as worthy as this one. They have shown this in the past by taking the polo drive to the point where it could be in the hands of the committee as soon as possible."

In the short time that we have, our volunteer workers cannot get around to each person and ask for a contribution. I, therefore, appeal personally to everyone to take the time to contribute.

It must be remembered that each dime of dollar turned over to the local committee not only aids polio victims directly, but also makes possible the continued research into the causes of this dreaded disease.

It is encouraging to note that we have been assured by medical authorities engaged in research work that a complete cure for infantile paralysis may be discovered within our own lifetime.

Tri-County Camera Club Will Hold Exhibits

"Windswept" one of the 28 prints by members of the Tri-County Camera Club which will be on exhibit at the Glen Ridge Library during January, is the work of George Winter, who was a member of the Belleville Camera Club when it disbanded in 1942. The landscape was taken at Gladwick, N. J. and the sky at Cape Cod. It was honor print in a competition with the Valleyburg Camera Club and scored high in a competition held by the Metropolitan Council of Camera Clubs.

Organization Developed From Belleville Club Which Disbanded in 1942

Members of the Tri-County Camera Club, which had its foundation with a membership of a Belleville Camera Club which disbanded in 1942, will hold an exhibition of its prints at the Glen Ridge Free Public Library throughout the month of January. The exhibit will open tomorrow.

The Tri-County Club of which Fred Behen of 9 Dawson Street, is secretary, also included among its Belleville members, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Davis and Chris Bender.

Membership in the club is not confined to amateurs but includes several professionals as well. The club competes with other camera clubs on a point basis, and in such a competition with the Valleyburg club, Tri-County has won four out of five times. The club is also in a competition in the Metropolitan Council of Camera Clubs. Last year it was second among 24 clubs in Group A and lost first place by a margin of four points. At the present time the Group A is in second place and Group B is in fifth place.

George Winter, honorary president of the club, was a member of the old Belleville club, and was second president of the Tri-County organization. His photograph "Windswept" is one of 28 prints in the exhibition.

'HOT ROD' FAN ACCUSED IN 1ST NUTLEY CAR DEATH

Bloomfield Youth, 17, Whose Initial License Had Been Revoked, Held After Crash

A 17-year old Bloomfield "hot rod" devotee who had already had one driver's license revoked brought tragedy to a Nutley family when he lost control of a speeding car on the curve of Passaic Avenue at Park Avenue.

The teen-ager, son of a Bloomfield tavern owner, was said by two companions to have had ten or twelve drinks of beer during the two hours that preceded the collision of his car, borrowed without permission, with that driven by Charles Watts, 26, of Wayne Place, who was returning home from paying New Year's visits accompanied by his wife Margaret, 24, and their 10-month-old daughter Kathleen.

The Bloomfield youth, charged in Juvenile Court with taking the car without consent and charged in Nutley Magistrate's Court with reckless driving, was taken Tuesday to the Juvenile House of Detention in Newark. He will face Magistrate Jovine here on the reckless driving charge on January 21.

Held By Police

Efforts of Bloomfield lawyers to obtain his release from custody here failed when Nutley police declared that the grave condition of Mr. and Mrs. Watts, in St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic, warranted the boy's detention. Nutley police expect to press action to have the boy's temporary driving permit revoked.

According to statements which two other occupants of the borrowed car, Philip Volcik, 18, of 41 Elston Street, and Theodore Skorski, 29, of 22 Chapel Street, both Bloomfield, gave to Nutley police would indicate that the car was speeding at "better than 40 miles an hour" when the inexperienced driver missed the unmarked curve in Passaic Avenue.

Borrowed Car

The driver admitted to police that he had borrowed the car of Miss Laura L. Henderson, of 31 Main, near Cape May, N. J., a sister of his sister-in-law, who was visiting in Bloomfield. He said he had not asked permission to use the car.

The car raced south in Passaic Avenue at such a speed that Nutley policeman, on duty, who saw it pass was unable to catch up with the youth before the accident occurred. A traffic light on Chestnut Street changed from red to green just as the car reached that intersection so there was no let-up in speed.

Two side marks over a distance of 63 feet in Passaic Avenue, show that the car was out of control before it reached the curve. The Watts family car was being driven north in Passaic Avenue and the driver had slowed to 25 miles an hour to make the curve into Park Avenue when the speeding car headed south streaked across the street and crashed head-on into the Watts' car. Seeing the approaching accident, Watts pulled over to the curb and applied his brakes.

Mother Shields Baby

Mrs. Watts, the worst injured of the five, suffered grave head injuries, severe lacerations and a broken arm. She was so seriously hurt that doctors at St. Mary's Hospital hesitated to remove her from the stretcher of the town ambulance before she could be given emergency aid.

Mrs. Watts, complaining of pain in the neck and left leg, was held at St. Mary's with his wife and underwent x-ray examinations yesterday. The baby, shielded by the mother who bent over her child when she saw that an accident was inevitable, escaped unhurt.

In the other car, the teen-ager speeder suffered a black eye and bruises on his forehead. The other two men had cuts and bruises around their heads. The three were treated at police headquarters by Dr. Farabaugh.

Laxity in Trenton

A police investigation disclosed that although the boy had his original driver's license with in a few months, because of serious violations, he received an invitation from the N. J. State Director of Motor Vehicles, John F. Ferber to apply for a new license. His now permit bears the date of December 10.

"The boy's companions said he realized he was travelling too fast and one said that when he saw smash-up inevitable he buried his face in his arms and braced himself. Police said both occupants put the speed at "over 40 miles an hour" but in his own statement the teen-ager driver said he was travelling at only 30 miles an hour.

Bloomfield police records show that the boy was an ardent "hot rod" operator and was particularly known for his ability at "digging out" which consists of starting off with a kick on the accelerator which sets the wheels spinning, causing a car to "tear away."

PERMIT ISSUED FOR HOUSE ON GROUND SOUGHT FOR SCHOOL

Troina & Cavaleiro Plan
Five $10,000 Buildings
On Division Avenue Site

Anthony P. Troina and Thomas A. Cavaleiro, building under the name Troina & Cavaleiro purchased the three parcels of property in Division Avenue, sought by the Board of Education as part of its plot for a new High School building, following a default judgement against the town, received a building permit on Friday for the first of five proposed one family houses to be built on the land. The builders estimate the cost of the initial house to be $10,000. It is to be a one family 2½ story structure.

Six months ago the original owner offered the property to the Board of Education for $5,000, but when the board took no action title was transferred to Troina & Cavaleiro.

A consultation between the board's attorney, Max N. Schwartz and David I. Kaysport of Bloomfield, attorney for Troina & Cavaleiro resulted in a complete breakdown of negotiations when Mr. Kaysport advised that his clients wanted $12,000 for the property. Troina & Cavaleiro filed suit to force Building Inspector Thomas P. Greco to issue building permits for the site. Both Mr. Schwartz and Town Attorney Lawrence E. Keenan agreed that the suit was indefensible. The judgement was handed down on December 12.

In the meantime the Board of Education held a meeting with all property owners in the vicinity and received permission to run test borings on the various plots, including that of Troina & Cavaleiro.

Other Permits

Other permits issued recently include a two family masonry construction dwelling at 16-19 Yale terrace to be erected by Peter Strat at a cost of $12,000, a demolition permit issued to Thomas A. Edson, Inc., of 25 Belmont avenue, to tear down a one story factory building and a sign permit to Benjamin Gallagher of 201 Washington avenue.

Refrigerator Leaked So Firemen Removed It

Mrs. James J. McGregor of 52 Wallace Street did a wise thing on Thursday afternoon of last week when she found that the refrigerator in her kitchen was leaking. She called the police who in turn notified Deputy Fire Chief White who dispatched men to carry the refrigerator outside. The gas leaked out the coolant in many refrigerators is poisonous and firemen usually wear gas masks when entering a room filled with the fumes. The firemen have a policy that they would rather carry the refrigerator out of a house than a human body.

Winter Solstice

Here on the floor of my room is the turning point of the sun. Beyond the edge of the rug, not far from the book-shelves. The movements of earth and sun in the vastness of space. Are focussed in the window looking out upon my flower garden. The march of the sun. The plank with the lozenge is the place of the solstice. There the sun stands still. For several days at noon—and there it turns to flow, so slowly, back again to the window. On its way to the waiting corners of the garden.

A Careful Look At Stassen.

Harold Stassen has tossed his hat into the ring with an oratorical flourish and a policy that is beyond criticism, and yet, strangely enough, there is too little enthusiasm. The stand-offish attitude of public opinion may, perhaps, merely reflect a realization that if Stassen is a candidate, General Eisenhower is not. One thing is certain: if Eisenhower did intend to run for the Presidency, Stassen would not have announced.

Since he is the third pronounced candidate of the Republican party, a careful look at Stassen and what he stands for is in order—all the more so because he may carry the pledged vote of New Jersey's delegation to the national convention if his national campaign manager, Bernard M. Shanley, of Newark, has his way.

On the basis of his policy pronouncement last weekend, Stassen is a right-wing Republican—as far to the right as either Senator Taft or Governor Warren. He has, none of the traits, physical or political, of the Sir Galahad of a dozen years ago who rivaled Wendell Wilkie as the party's arch-Liberal. He will not be the champion of the Republican left wing when he enters the Primaries in May.

No one can find any fault with anything in Stassen's self-pronounced program. His insistence on "old fashioned honesty" and a higher moral standard from public officials and employees of the nation sounds good. So too does his idea of a "solid dollar" anchored to a modern gold standard, a sort of "old fashioned dollar," too, of the variety that was worth 100 cents.

He laid out a dynamic foreign policy which he summarized in four major points:

"To help all peoples make progress toward better living and become our friends."

"To defeat communism without a world war."

"To turn all nations away from socialism toward economic freedom."

"To strengthen the United Nations and rewrite the charter."

He has said that he stands opposed to a "one-man band" and as he tossed his hat into the ring he promised to invite the active participation in national leadership of General MacArthur, General Eisenhower, ex-President Herbert Hoover, Ralph Bunche, and even Democrats Harry Byrd, Bernard Baruch, and James A. Farley. Not a youngster among them, and not a Liberal, either. A careful look at what Stassen said can only lead to the conclusion that he is running for the nomination not so much on what he feels should be done to cure this old world as he is running on political expediency. He would seem to become a candidate, not with the hope of winning the nomination, but with the intention of putting himself high up on the list of Republicans from whom the next President would build his Cabinet. It would seem that Stassen is a candidate or the seat of Secretary of State.

And, after our careful look at Stassen, what do we see?

In our opinion we see a careful, a cautious candidate, a one-time Liberal who has undergone metamorphosis to become an Old Guard Republican, a virile speaker, a one-time political amateur turned "pro", a logical successor to Wilkie as the symbol of the political homeless of both parties who, like Wilkie himself, knew no definite party lines but picked and chose the best in both but who has abandoned Wilkie for Taft—and, alas, a man of good political morals, an experienced executive, who waited too long.

Prisoners And Politics.

The 30-day drive for a truce in Korea ended and although the failure to reach an agreement automatically wiped out the renewal of fighting. The reason is clear: Korea is one of a piece with the Berlin blockade, one pawn on a full board over which Stalin bends as he plays his game of "Diplomat". The 11,559 UN prisoners behind barbed wire in the frigid prison camps along the Yalu are one of a piece, too, with the four downed American airmen in Hungary—pawns in the vast game Stalin is playing.

This cold war in Europe and fighting war in Korea are being played under rules we never encountered before in our long history of brawls and battles. This time we are face to face with the Slav and in his character there is fatalism and brutality which render him immune to all human sensibilities. This is a kind of war which defies definition but requires the abandonment of all humanitarian curbs. We are up against a foe such as we never before have had to fight—a heartless foe who knows none of the restraints which civilization and common decency have imposed upon us.

The heming and hawing at Panmunjom are one of a piece with the pulling and hauling at the UN General Assembly in Paris and the we-and-they hand-over shifting in Budapest. The Hungarians are no more free to sell us back our four prisoners for the handsome blackmail ransom of $120,000 which sets a new high for Balkan bandits than the Chinese are free to strike a real bargain and get back 133,000 of their own Communist captives for the 11,559 UN and South Korean prisoners they pretend to hold. The pawns are all on one board, in the Kremlin.

We should avoid emotionalism, therefore, in dealing with such a foe. We must develop a new understanding of this type of war, a war of nerves in which the unemotional, inhuman Slav has a decided advantage over the emotional, humane American. It was wrong for a wave of emotionalism to prompt Robert Voegler and others to offer to raise the $120,000 by popular subscription to buy back the four airmen. That forced our government's hand, because, obviously, the government could not allow itself to be put in a position where it could be accused of heartlessness.

Our Joint Chiefs of Staff and our State Department know our foe. They have countered his every move thus far—in Berlin by the airlift, in Greece and Turkey by stimulating national resistance; in Korea by defensive war—without embroiling us in World War III.

We must not appear to want a truce in Korea at any price. We must not be emotionally activated to the point that we can be blackmailed by those who take our citizens prisoners. Our foe, a master swindler in world diplomacy, would know well how to torture and goad us into doing his bidding by dangle our prisoners before our eyes. The only sure way to defend ourselves is to adopt the same unemotional and detached viewpoint towards war and human suffering that our foe enjoys by nature. Alas, for an American or for any civilized human being, that is a lot to ask. Victory or defeat in this gigantic struggle, however, may well depend upon our ability to wait patiently, to negotiate with calm detachment. Nothing will be gained by emotional haste.

State School Aid Declines

State revenues from motor fuel taxes, railroad taxes, race track parimutuel betting taxes and from cigarette taxes were $4,000,000 greater than a year ago in the five months of the 1951-52 fiscal year through November—yet the State's share of Belleville's public school budget for 1952-53 will be cut by nearly $7,000.

When a state cigarette tax was established four years ago it was with a tacit understanding that the income would be redistributed by the state in the form of school aid. By a sleight-of-hand performance in Trenton twenty millions shrink to fifteen millions regardless of the fact that in 1951 the State's "take" from its cigarette tax increased $500,000 over 1950.

Despite promises made when Trenton was trying to foist the tax on smokers, Governor Driscoll has set a ceiling of $15,000,000 for state school aid. The rest, no matter how many cigarettes we smoke, goes into the kitty for other state expenditures. There are more school children every day so with the ceiling static but numbers of pupils increasing, the extent of state aid to each school district grows less. Belleville will receive $42,348 in 1952-53, compared to $50,086 last year.

The purpose of a very unpopular tax has thus been defeated. The gasoline tax should be spent in entirety on roads; the cigarette tax, pledged to school aid, should be spent in entirety on education. Any other distribution of those taxes is not honest. Our schools deserve priority over any spending department in Trenton.

ONE MAN'S OPINION . . .

It's Interesting on Eve of Washington Talks That Churchill Believes "Determiners" Have Swung The Odds Against World War III

By RALPH E. HEINZEN

1952—this year of critical decision—starts auspiciously with the arrival tomorrow of Winston Churchill, Anthony Eden and a retinue of British experts on every conceivable subject from ack-ack to zombies.

On the eve of a meeting of Churchill and Truman, Eden and Acheson it is interesting to know that the British Prime Minister feels that "the determiners have increased, the odds against World War III in 1952 has become more unlikely." "Determiners" in Mr. Churchill's mind are: America's atomic superiority, the ring of air bases around Russia including the American A-bomb bases in the British Isles and the growing North Atlantic Pact army under General Eisenhower which appears now to have survived its faltering growing pains.

Particularly clarifying, too, have been the renewal of truce talks in Korea after the expiration of the deadline and the release by Hungary, under blackmailed terms, of the four American fliers. They are significant evidence that Soviet Russia does not want to force the issue right now.

The background for these Washington talks favors inescapably rather than weakening the "determiners." Churchill and Eden fought appeasement with the loudest voices in the British Parliament during the unhappy days of August, 1938, when Sir Neville Chamberlain, with his hands and feet tied to appease Hitler. Acheson proved in Korea that he would rather fight than appease. Not a single one of the major participants in these talks can by even the greatest stretch of imagination be called an appeaser. Any decisions they take will be in the direction of penning up Stalin even more.

Times Have Changed. It would be folly to believe that Truman and Churchill may be as much of a match as Roosevelt and Churchill did in their meetings. The times and the participants are not the same.

In the first place, conditions are not the same now as they were during World War II. That time American and British policy were parallel on every major point. Now they are not. The United States has refused to budge from its position in Iran. We definitely sympathize with the Tehran government's bid for freedom of action. Britain would give us service only to the unification of Europe; we want it to be real and we want London to get stalling and to jump in and help.

In the second place, Truman does not have the same type of warm personality that Roosevelt had. He attracts intimacy, except that of his old and trusted Miss Gandy. He would not be a participant in the kind of intimate relations that Teddy Roosevelt had with his famous "kitchen cabinet" or the close relationship which fit the wartime "mama diplomacy" of Franklin Roosevelt and Churchill.

Truman Too Timid. This is not Harry Truman's way of doing business. Unlike Roosevelt, who took all his own decisions, Truman delegates much authority to his cabinet and his advisers. White House military advisors, there are few faces around Truman that will be as familiar to Churchill. Many of Harry Truman's retinue are suspicious of Churchill, our sources contend. They feel that he is coming over here to take Uncle Sam's shirt off his back. Some of them feel, too, that while not denying Churchill's contribution to the World War II victory, the United States has the post-war years writing his

As for our own economy, we have succeeded in avoiding the galloping inflation which the realists had predicted at the outbreak of the Korean war. Wage and price controls, which the realists organized, have served a purpose. That is why the decision to abandon the steel strike was an extremely important prelude to these talks. We can be more confident upon British setting her own house in order.

3. Military problems. Churchill has made it clear that he does not like the establishment of American air bases in British soil, with the consent of the Labour government. We have made it clear that we paid dearly in all forms of aid for those bases. Churchill will be tamping his head against a stone wall if he tries to get his out.

The top command post for the NATO sea forces must go to Britain, Churchill contends, to balance Eisenhower's role. It is the contention of American military leaders that Britain has not met her quotas in men or materials for the combined NATO land forces. A concession may be made to Churchill or Atlantic Treaty naval command, but only if Churchill agrees to do more than pay lip service to European Union and the European Army.

4. International Problems. Since Churchill, a month ago, indicated a desire to talk with Truman, things have moved swiftly, straightening themselves out in our favor in several instances. One was Moscow's granting ambassadorship to George F. Kennan as the new U. S. Ambassador in Moscow after having called him a spy. Another was the meeting of the two super powers for the Korean truce without the resumption of fighting or the abandonment of the truce. Both happenings indicate that Moscow is inclined, right now, not to Churchill for a break, but to their "harmonious" mob.

Ignores Summons, Loses License For Thirty Days. John Urcioli of 494 Summit Avenue, Newark, was fined $13 and had his driver's license suspended for thirty days by Magistrate Edward J. Abramson last week on a charge of having a red light. Ordinarily the penalty for such a charge is not near as severe, but Urcioli had been summoned to appear in court December 5. When he failed to, he was notified by mail to appear on the 12th. A non-appearance that day and again on the 19th resulted in a summons being issued for his arrest.

Armando Zippo, of 20 Stone Street, Newark, was fined $13 for speeding and Raymond F. Berspiller, of 132 Renner Avenue, Newark, the same amount for careless driving.

2. Economic problems. Britain's solvency is the issue as Mr. Churchill arrives. To keep going, Britain must continue to import raw and basic materials for manufacture and export. In particular, Britain must have steel. And steel is thought to be one of the main objectives of Mr. Churchill's visit. His goal is believed to be commitment of about 800,000 tons of steel, plus some arrangement by which the steel can be paid for.

Britain's economic plight will dominate these discussions, but Churchill was careful to leave no doubt in London to deny that he is coming to beg another American loan. Doubts, part of Britain's trouble stems from her failure to reach established production levels. The lags are hurling the whole problem, however, will be economic.

239 PERFORMANCE OF "DESERT SONG" SET FOR JAN. 12

Paper Mill Playhouse Completes Eighth Run Of Romberg's Opera

Only the original Broadway production of "The Desert Song" a quarter of a century ago set a record of a greater number of performances at one place than have been seen 239 performances at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn where the musical encyclopaedia completes the season on Saturday, January 12th.

When the final curtain drops on Frank Carrington's latest edition, New Jersey opera lovers will have seen 239 performances of "The Desert Song" with no indication that their appetites have been satisfied by the many productions. Other popular operas such as "The Student Prince," "Blossom Time," "Naughty Marietta" and "The Merry Widow" have never enjoyed the Millburn vogue of the adventures of "The Red Widow." David Atkinson's new interpretation of the key role in one of the highlights in the current production is the outstanding performance of Bill Maier, Ed H. Franklin and Jim Hawthorne in other key roles. Clarence Nordstrom once more plays the comedy role he has monopolized in so many productions and New Jerseyans have found special appeal in the appearance of Sam Ostell, a Newarker who came on from the ranks of the company to win her comedy roles.

Outstanding choreography contributed by Anthony Nello who helped make his of "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Finian's Rainbow" also gives a particular note to the production. The choreographer appears in a singing parade number in the garb of French foreign legionnaires which stops the show nightly.
