purpose of the ordinance is to clear the title on vacant land in the area. The paper streets are not particularly described because old maps of the town show several of them at various locations. No improvements have ever been installed. The adoption of the ordinance will clear the way for development of the land.

Activities In Belleville Schools

Instructional Aids On Phone Usage Will Be Tried Here

Bell Telephone "Package" Contains Movie, Film Strip, Booklet, Telephone Instruments, Directories and Teacher's Guide; No. 5 Shows Movie

A "package" of instructional materials gets a tryout in Belleville elementary schools. As a result of requests from schools for material on use of the telephone, a "package" of instructional aids dealing with telephone usage was completed recently by the Bell Telephone System. Almost two years were spent in producing these materials, intended for use in elementary grades. A considerable amount of investigation and testing was carried through in developing the teaching materials included in the package.

Materials included in the package are: Adventure in Telephony—a motion picture; How We Use the Telephone—a film strip; The Telephone and How We Use It—a booklet for pupils and teachers; sufficient quantities so that each youngster has one; two telephone instruments; telephone directories; and a teacher's guide pertaining to all of those items.

Teachers find it desirable to use the telephone as a phase of communication in developing such related items as courtesy, good speech habits, cooperation and responsibility.

Today the students of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of School Number Five will be the first group of Belleville to see the moving picture film.

Whirlpool Bath Acquired For H.S. Athletic Dept.

Belleville High School has secured a whirlpool bath which can be used as an aid to physical therapy in the case of injury to students of the school in athletic contests. The machine is worth about $1,000, and it was purchased by the Athletic Council. It is movable, and can be used anywhere, but for the present it will be kept in the physical education offices of the high school. The whirlpool bath has many advantages in physical therapy because of the mild massaging effect of the agitated water; this effect is often of value in reflexly increasing circulation to an extremity. Furthermore, higher temperatures can be tolerated when the water is agitated. This whirlpool bath will be used by the high school athletes for treatment in case of injuries to the hand, back, legs, arms and body.

The exhibit will be open to the public after school hours.

This collection is one of the famous traveling exhibits of Soap Sculptures made available as a public service to schools, museums, art centers, libraries, etc., throughout the country by the National Soap Sculpture Committee of New York City. In its efforts to serve the best interests of sound art education and encourage this creative hobby.

MISS MARIE TROAST TOOK COLLEGE TRIP THROUGH SOUTH

Teacher At Passaic Avenue School Among 46 On Studies Trip Of Monclair College

Miss Marie Troast, the only teacher in the Belleville school system able to avail herself of the Monclair State Teachers College Field Studies trip, enjoyed her Christmas in Dixie. Miss Troast is a member of the faculty at the Passaic Avenue Elementary School.

The bus left Monclair on Friday, December 21st, with three members of the college faculty in charge, Professor and Mrs. Dye and Miss E. Pantone.

The trip followed the Atlantic coastal plain to Charleston, S. C., and Savannah, Ga. From there it went across Florida and the Gulf coast plain to Miami, and New Orleans where the group had dinner at Antoine's. Two days were spent in New Orleans where students visited the French Quarter; the wharves where large freighters were loading machinery, flour, cars, and tires; the modern section of the city with its huge stores, and famous historic buildings.

The trip then turned northward along the Mississippi bottom lands to Vicksburg and Natchez. At Natchez the group stayed at Stanton Hall which is a very large and beautiful ante-bellum home.

Birmingham, the iron city, was the stop for Sunday night. This was a great contrast to Natchez. On Monday the group stayed at the Poinsett Hotel in Greenville, S. C., where cleanliness, reigned supreme and even the money received in change was washed.

The group continued northward through historic lands with a final overnight stop at Fredericksburg.

The trip Tuesday took the group through Washington and places near home.

Chinese Student At School One

School No. 1 pupils make their new schoolmate Chen Ket, recently arrived from Hong Kong, feel at home in his new land. Left to right are Joan Kondreck, Chen Ket, Robert Leonard and Theresa Hughes.

UNITED NATIONS WELL REPRESENTED AT SCHOOLS 1 AND 9

Chen Ket, Arrived In N. Y. From Hong Kong, Dec. 17, And Enrolled By 8:55 O'clock

There isn't any semblance of racial or color discrimination at Number One or Number Nine schools because among the teachers and children at the two schools there is a regular United Nations. About ten foreign languages are spoken either by the children or the teachers: Greek, Polish, German, Italian, Chinese, Armenian, Slavic, Indian dialect, Czech, and Yiddish. Americans!

An American Indian girl from the Delaware Tribe from Canada entered Number Nine School the week before the Christmas vacation. Her name is Betty Ann Peters and she is in the seventh grade. There are also a group of Chinese children at Number Nine who were born in Dobbs Ferry, New York.

The most interesting youngster is Chen Ket who entered Number One School on the morning of December 1. He arrived at San Francisco from Hong Kong, on Sunday. He flew to La Guardia Airport, arrived early Monday morning and was in school before the bell rang at 8:55 a.m. Chen Ket is 16 years old and can speak only a few words of English. He was placed in the 8th grade because he had attended a

NEW TECHNIQUE TO BE DEMONSTRATED FOR FIRST AIDERS

Change In Procedure Is "Must" For Red Cross Card Holders To Learn

William Ross, Chairman of Safety Services, Belleville Chapter, American Red Cross, announces that J. S. Tattersall, Director of Safety Services, American National Red Cross, Eastern Area, will be at the Public Service Auditorium, Newark, New Jersey, on Saturday, to demonstrate and instruct all first aid directors on the new advanced technique of artificial respiration. This new change in procedure is a "MUST" for all holders of standard and advanced First Aid Cards to learn. The United States Army and Medical Doctors have demanded this radical change because of the new gasses which, if used, will paralyze the respiratory muscles of civilians if used in an attack on our cities.

Andrew Lukowiak, Chairman of First Aid and Instructional Training in Belleville Chapter, will attend this day meeting to learn this new technique of artificial respiration, so that he will be able to instruct all First Aid instructors in Belleville in order that they may, in turn, re-train all in this new technique. The meeting will also be attended by Mr. Ross.

LIFE at BHS

As Our Teen-Agers See It

by Rita Carissimo-Audrey Maie

School Goes Modern

Something new has been added to home room 107. After questioning Mr. Brennan we found out that he likes the new bookkeeping desks very much. According to him, the students are very willing to cooperate and treat the desks of modern design with respect. In other words they leave their pen knives in their pockets. The light wood adds to the cheerfulness of the room. Mr. Brennan concluded that the main advantage of this new style is that the desks may easily be moved so that the "heterogeneous groups of students" may be arranged in their homogenous groups. (Alien!)

Observe

Next time you're in the library take time out to look at the exhibit of prize winning photographs which were sent to Mr. Gabry. They were all taken by high school students.

La Traviata

Mr. Peck will take a group of students to the student matinee of La Traviata at the Metropolitan Opera House. Anyone who is interested should see Mr. Peck this week.

On Stage

Preparations are under way for the annual Senior Play. This year it will be presented by an all-star cast from the class of '52 and directed by the noted producer-director, Mr. Otis Brown. Mr. Brown has come up with a bit each year, but it is guaranteed that none will have equaled this year's performance.

Hayseed Flop

Another of your favorite kinds of dance is on its way. Of course we mean the annual square dance sponsored by your Junior Red Cross, Fred Kiecke, whose band played at last year's successful event, has been put under contract for this year's dance, also. Betsey sets they will provide music for regular dancing. The date to remember is January 18, from 8:30 to 11:30 in the boys' gym. Admission—well it's reasonable whether you come stage or dress. Dress? Dundergins if you prefer.

Request Performance

The Bakers' Dozen has been requested to sing at an assembly program at School No. 4 and is busily practicing every morning.

Basketball

The girls' after school basketball season began Monday afternoon when Mr. Perkins was elected president of the Officials' Club. This includes scheduling of games, refereeing, score and time keeping.

Italian Club

Looking for entertainment? Then come to room 210 on Thursday afternoon when Mr. Perkins will play the mandolin for the members and guests of the Italian Club. It is heard that the club is planning an assembly program for us.

Wonder Why

Wonder Why? Senior College Prep students are going home loaded down with books this week. College Boards are Saturday.

Donald Miller and Joe Sorrentino are busy figuring out plays. Why—they were chosen as co-captains for next year's football squad.

Students (and teachers) still get "up" and "down" confused, especially on stairways.

TO THE PEOPLE OF NEW JERSEY

A Report on Thoroughbred Racing and Taxes

People generally think of horses and handicaps—not economics—in connection with racing.

But thoroughbred racing actually is an important factor in New Jersey's state finances. For the three New Jersey tracks paid more than $14,630,000 into the state treasury during 1951. That's 8.5 per cent of the entire state budget—a good bit more than was needed for five important state expenditures. To meet operating costs, this sum had to be raised—either from thoroughbred racing or additional taxes.

And racing means money for New Jersey in other ways too. Thousands of visitors from neighboring states come here every racing day. They enjoy the thrills of a great sport. They bring business to New Jersey. And thousands of your fellow citizens are employed by the three New Jersey tracks.

Yes, as thousands cheer, millions are served well by racing in the Garden State.

Yearly Turning Of The Earth
He rests his horses on the brow of hill, Pausing beneath the mellow morning sun To gaze cross-country to the distant town. The sky is wide above him; billowed clouds Contrast its blueness, and the supple wind Ruffles the growing grasslands underfoot. The horses shift their weight; the harness straps Creak with their movement. From a cotton-wood The frequent cawing of a crow disturbs The drowsy silence of the rolling field. Holding his plow possessively, he stands, Thinking the thoughts of one who knows the worth Of yearly turning of the fertile earth.

Ike Backs In.
If General Dwight D. Eisenhower gets into the White House as the 33rd President of the United States he will back into it. Even Ike's best friends would have preferred that he announce his intentions and his program. There is not the slightest doubt that had he announced his candidacy and said with his customary clarity what he stands for, he would have carried every Republican vote and many Democratic votes. There is, undeniably, a good reason why he cannot come out as openly and as flatly as Taft, Warren and Stassen have done. Ike is a soldier and as a soldier in active service he is not free to play any political role. If he forget that strict military dictum he would be betraying the uniform he wears. But he could ask to be relieved and pass the command.

The Times-News considers it regrettable that Eisenhower is not free to act as any other citizen of the land may act in declaring his candidacy. This year, if ever in our history, the nation needs strong leadership in which it can place unlimited confidence. Thanks to Ike's accomplishments as NATO field commander, war has been rendered unlikely but not impossible. It is because of that constant but small possibility of war, if we falter or if we weaken, that we need over the next four years, a strong and able national leader. That leader must be able to reestablish the confidence of the 150 million Americans in their government—a confidence which, alas, has been shaken by the unfortunate lapse of moral standards which has overcome a regime too long in the harness.

Eisenhower is no superman, but he is without a doubt this generation's greatest captain and his prestige is such that his very name can sway millions. Faith in his integrity, his ability, his strength to command is widespread, almost universal. In our particular case, it is spontaneous and sincere. He is The Times-News preferred candidate among all, but our regret is deep that he did not say clearly and unequivocally that he would our president be. As for the President not seek the man; the man must seek the decency of these United States, the office can.

Be Prepared For Polio.
Dread Polio definitely is on the decline. There are national, state, county and local statistics to prove it; but as heartening as are those reports Polio remains a threat. It strikes anywhere, without warning. Four out of every five Polio patients requires assistance of some kind, for the treatment and the cure are still laborious and costly. There are but two institutions which can furnish aid and guidance for families unfortunate enough to suffer the disease to one of theirs—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the Sister Kenny Foundation. The National Foundation began this week its annual "March of Dimes" to raise funds for its extremely necessary work and to wipe out a huge deficit. In three years, the Essex County Chapter has expended $241,871 in service to Polio patients. During the same three years, the Chapter's share of March of Dimes receipts was $215,735. Aid in some cases here in Essex County has amounted to but a few dollars, the average case costs from $8,000 to $5,000 but there is an exceptional case, in which an iron lung has prolonged life since October, 1949. On that one case, the Essex Chapter already has expended $23,000.

There were 28,571 Polio cases in the United States in 1951; 448 in New Jersey and 66 in Essex County. Those figures compare with 33,351 and 885 and 164 in 1950, and 42,336 and 1,520 and 238 in 1949. The statistics prove the definite decline, and yet there were 66 cases in Essex County in 1951, and four of the victims died. Belleville suffered one of the deaths and during 1951 there were five new cases of Polio here which, added to the six carry-over cases which still needed attention, brought Belleville's total at year end to 2. Our town, therefore, has a vital interest in the success of the March of Dimes.

In conclusion, if a personal note is permissible, I would explain my own vital interest. A year ago, my grandson, barely 15 months old, was stricken with Polio in Paris. There is no equivalent of the March of Dimes or the Sister Kenny Foundation in France. It was necessary to search out costly specialists in Switzerland for the treatment and then the curative therapy. The difficulties there merely pointed out the tremendous accomplishments here of the March of Dimes. Since none knows whether, tomorrow, the same misfortune may strike you or one of yours, share now in the annual drives for the aid of the National Foundation so that if the need ever be yours you will find alert and waiting the facilities which your dime, joining the March of Dimes, will possess.

The Terror upset the Zebra in their first match last week and in doing so the Terror became the first to whip the Zebra in a Newark ring. The Zebra Kid had gone hardly challenged in striking five previous appearances before Newark fans. The new hooded grappler was stunned more than the spectators and immediately after being pinned he was on his feet demanding a return go. After in-

ONE MAN'S OPINION ...
Slavs and Teutons Have Been at Each Other's Throats Since Before Christianity, Which Explains Why Stalin Wants to Keep East Germany.
By RALPH E. HEINZEN

The spectacle of a Germany divided by an iron Curtain is nothing new. During half of the history of civilization Germany was a land of battle and struggle. The federation of the descendants of a score of battling tribes which, in modern days, we called the German Reich, either in the form of an Empire or a Republic, is of comparative recent origin. It was born in the Palace of Versailles, near Paris, with Bismarck as its sculptor, in the defeat of Napoleon II in the Franco-Prussian War.

Germany is a melting pot even greater than our own. America is a fusion of races, but those races were, for the most part, Anglo-Saxon, Latin or Teuton. Germany is an even more elaborate cocktail—the ingredients being the Vandals, the Huns, the Goths, the Franks, the Alamanni, the Saxons, the Burgundians and the Bavarians, and, finally, the Prussians, all Teutonic tribes, who battled for centuries and then sat down together with the Slav and the Swedes, the Magyars who are first cousins to the Mongols of Siberia, and the Latins to the west and south.

Too often overlooked in the modern Red Russian victory over Nazi Germany is the age-old struggle between Slavs and Teutons which went on even before the Roman invasion. Begun in the dark era before Christianity, that conflict of Slav and Teutonic races had been all but settled in Germany's favor when Hitler, with his inhuman ambition, came to power. In one great battle at Stalingrad, Hitler staked everything on a single throw of the dice—and lost in a few weeks of winter battle nine years ago the fruit of centuries of German conquest.

Slavs and Teutons
Before Hitler took over, Germany had done quite well for herself in carving out an empire in Slavic lands during a half century of almost total domination of the Slav Prussians had spread up the coast of the Baltic planting their flag and their commerce in the Baltic states, in Riga and Revel. They drove the Slavs inland from the Baltic coast, back beyond the Mincia, and grabbed the commerce of the Baltic States richly endowed Prussia.

There is today a state of the Soviet Union which was the German Voica Republic. Nearly two centuries ago, in 1700, at the invitation of Catherine the Great, at a time when Russia was starving from a lack of farm products, about 27,000 German colonists were settled along the Volga river in the heart of Russia. The Slavs, who had been driven from the Baltic coast, and hampered by droughts, half the colony died in the first ten years, but the colony German colonists finally conquered the climate and the farms grew rich by Catherine's manifesto. The Germans escaped military service in her armies. They remained German and never were integrated into the Russian population.

Off to Siberia
During World War I, the Russians, who had long hated the privileged Germans of the Volga, attacked and persecuted them and in 1915 most of the German descendants of Catherine's colony were packed off to Siberia. The Russians who moved to equate on the rich farms set up an autonomous government for the German Voica which became a Republic in 1924.

Hitler knew all that when, in 1942, he drove his armies through the Ukraine and headed east towards the Volga. His master plan called for the German army to cross the Dnieper and the Dnieper river to reach the Don and at Rostov to plant a hinge. The left hinge of the German army would move straight east to Astrakhan, on the Volga where it empties into the Caspian Sea, so as to hold off the Russian armies while the right hinge of the German forces would scale the Caucasus and reach Baku and Batum, the rich Soviet oilfields.

Oil Wins Wars
Hitler almost had control of the Moscovite oilfields in Rumania and the rich Galician oilfields of Poland. There was no more oil left in Europe to construct except the Russian fields at the far end of the Black Sea, at Baku and tapo locked us in a train and took us to Germany where we arrived at a Gestapo internment camp in the Black Forest just nine years ago this week. While I was being taken, protesting a violation of the Geneva Convention which provided that war correspondents should be surrendered at the nearest neutral frontier as soon as possible, to prison in Germany, Hitler was smiling with the whole German General Staff at Rostov.

Hitler Hunch
Hitler, it appeared, had had an intuitive thought of attacking Stalingrad on his way to Astrakhan to pay back the Russians for sacking the German Voica colony. It was not far off of his way, he argued, and his Panzers could give the Russians an object lesson at Stalingrad like Goring's Luftwaffe had given the English at Coventry.

His choice of Stalingrad, because, as a city, it had grown on the ashes of a Kalmark hamlet, and was a frontier town on the southwestern edge of the German Voica Colony. With one exception, the whole German General Staff advised against any defensive attacks. "Get on to Batum and cut off the Russian oil," the Generals replied, all except Field Marshal Von Paulus who agreed vociferously with Hitler.

A City Disappears
Von Paulus threatened his way into the western half of Stalingrad which straddled the Don river. The Russians were in the eastern half. For six weeks they battled everything they had at each other and Stalingrad was leveled to the ground. As Hitler had to throw his Panzer and Panzer-Grenadier divisions into the battle, the drive down the Caucasus to the oil fields was held up. Hitler had to extricate his armies from Stalingrad, but before he could do so the Russians attacked across the Don and the whole German army there was captured. Hitler lost 250,000 men in that battle along with Field Marshal Von Paulus and 25 German Generals, all taken to Moscow as prisoners of war—and never heard from since.

The rest is history, too. Hitler had been arrested by orders of Pierre Laval in Vichy the same day the American troops landed in North Africa, November 8, 1942, and was held in a prison in Lourdes. Hitler demanded and obtained of Laval the transfer of his 120 American diplomats, consuls, Red Cross and war correspondents. He wanted trading bait. The Germans coming home if they won the battle at Stalingrad? As an eye-witness, I can say that the German defeat in the East—Hitler's first defeat of the war—broke Germany's back. After that battle, Hitler never again won a battle in the war. In this One Man's Opinion, the war turned on that single battle almost a year and a half before the landing in Normandy.

Why Elbe Was Picked
We must take all that into consideration when we examine Russia's attitude today towards a union of design and Western Germany. We must realize that in Russian minds there has been a historic resentment down through centuries against the Germans of the West. The Russians never forget that the whole of the Baltic, the Polish forests and all of Germany up to the Elbe river belonged to the East. Do you understand now why, out of a clear sky, in those final days of the war when Eisenhower, Montgomery, Patton, et al. could just as well have beaten the Russians into Berlin, Stalin proposed that the Western Powers halt their armies at the Elbe river? Roosevelt and Churchill, consenting to the Elbe, probably did not realize that in setting that barrier, Stalin was turning back the pages of history, back centuries to the time when the Elbe was the Slave Western frontier.

Do you understand now why Stalin stalls whenever we or the Germans propose a plebiscite under United Nations control to allow the German people to re-establish their union under a regime which, by controlled popular vote, they choose for themselves?

Stalin never forgets that the Prussians had driven his ancestors back from the lush Elbe valley to the frozen steppes behind the Minsk marshes.

Federal Leather Will Show Product In Tapestry Designs

Furniture Pieces Made Up In Federal On Display At Chicago Furniture Show

Federal in tapestry designs is being introduced at the Chicago Furniture Show by The Federal Leather Company of Belleville. The outstanding feature of the Federal line is that all its tapestry designs are reproduced in leather and embossed designs are available with or without fabric backing in 12 gauge and 22 gauge of matching color, design and finish. This means that furniture manufacturers can use supported and unsupported Federal interchangeably.

Federal is the product of many years of careful research in the vinyl and coated fabric fields and particularly with regard to the needs of the automotive and furniture industries. The new Federal tapestry reproductions meet every demand of the furniture manufacturer and upholsterer for beauty and utility. The beauty of their design is brought out by deep etching which reproduces the patterns with flawless clarity. The ease with which Federal can be handled means greater economy in production time and costs.

Federal is highly resistant to staining, abrasions, stains and hard usage. It wipes clean with a damp cloth and retains its luster and rich color indefinitely. The Federal Leather Company, manufacturer of this product, has grown from a small beginning in 1919 to become one of the world's largest manufacturers of resin coated fabrics for the furniture, automotive, handbag, luggage, shoe and other industry. Federal's line will be shown

Mr. Perkins Attends Science Convention In Philadelphia

Philip Perkins of Belleville High School faculty attended the 118th convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Philadelphia, Pa., December 27th through December 30th. He is also a member of the A.A.S. and the affiliated group National Science Teachers Association.

One of the science teachers meeting seemed to be finding ways and means of adopting the science curriculum to the developmental and environmental needs of the school child. Exchanging ideas with teachers from Colorado, California, Texas, Wisconsin, Maine, etc., proved to be a stimulating experience, since the problems of teachers are similar everywhere.

There was also an opportunity to inspect some of the recent advances in other fields of science including a new drug for the treatment of peptic ulcers developed by the Schering Corporation of Bloomfield, and a method of allowing soil to retain its moisture through Britum now being produced by Monsanto Chemical Co.

CYO REVISES RULES IN PARISH CONTEST

Points For Snow Queen And March Of Dimes Campaigns Are Now Included In Plan

At a recent meeting of the parish moderators of the CYO, it was decided to give credit in the Parish Participation Contest for a number of activities previously not included, among them the annual Snow Queen Competition and the March of Dimes campaign, both of which are now in progress. The announcement, made by Rev. John J. Kiley, Esq., County director of the CYO, explained that the purpose of the Participation Contest is to honor those parishes which offer the most completely integrated program to their members. Other CYO activities previously not included under the rules to which point credit has been attached, are the Sportsman's Awards in the CYO basketball leagues, the sponsoring of Pre-Cana Conferences for senior groups, the number of Talent contests, and the number of Awards-of-Merit parishes win.

The Parish Participation Contest, which was inaugurated as an experiment last year, has met with such favor that it has been made a permanent feature of the CYO program. Parishes are divided into three groups, depending upon their size, and the leading parish in each division receives an award each to the others. At the annual June Assembly, a banner is presented to the moderators of the winning groups.

The announcement emphasizes the importance of the current Snow Queen Contest, and the March of Dimes campaign, which is being held from January 2 to 31 this year. A Snow Queen will be presented at Seion Hall University on January 15 at the first annual Snow Ball from among parish contestants. Parishes which enter candidates will receive credit regardless of who wins.

The March of Dimes Campaign will be highlighted by March of Dimes Sunday, January 20, on which CYO members will take up collections outside church doors.

Members of Kearny Local 59, Insurance Agents International Union, A. F. of L., covering West Hudson, South Bergen, North Newark and Belleville, attended a mass meeting Saturday at the Labor Lyceum, Newark, to hear national President George L. Russ talk on the strike of Prudential agents now ending its sixth week.

President Russ accused the Prudential of trying to break the strike by using millions of dollars belonging to policyholders and the agents. Some of this is represented by pay to the agents for collections and how business written during the last quarter of last year, which is held back for 13 weeks as part of company policy.

The picketing of the Home Office buildings in Newark has been augmented by the maintenance workers and A. F. of L. members of other crafts employed by the Prudential.

Also Maron Finocchiaro, Robert Gaccione, Janice Kleiner, Frank La Mura, Vincent Magliore, Ralph McClone, Elaine Mendinos, Grace Miller, Lawrence Miller, Richard Nisovaccia, Barbara Provence, Leo Pucacco, Anita Toeppe, Ronald Zeller and Karl Looovis.

The school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Betty Fournier, contributed two selections.

20 Year Veterans With Kidde Firms Will See "Top Banana"

Passage of Time Causes Change in Eligibility Rules to Qualify as "Old Timer"; Belleville Plant Has 600 With Ten-Years of Employment

Employees of 20 years or more of service in the employ of Walter Kidde & Company, Inc., of Belleville, the Kidde Constructors, of New York City and the Kidde Manufacturing Company and the Bloomfield, will be feted by these firms at the annual Old Timer's party Thursday with dinner at the Hotel Astor, New York City, and attendance at a performance of the stage show, "Top Banana" at the Winter Garden.

In past years employees of 10 years or more of service guests at the party, but this year's group of employees reaching the 10 year mark makes this division line impractical. There are about 600 employees of the Belleville plant, alone, who have reached the 10 year mark this year, and a proportionately large number are in the same position at the three other firms.

Last year, separate parties were held by each of the firms, but this was contrary to the original purpose of the party. Changes in the original plan have been necessary because of the passage of time. When the Old Timer's Club was started, it included employees with five or more years of service. The five-year group had to be eliminated when the club grew too big. Now a second revision has become necessary.

All employees reaching the five, ten, year and 15 year marks will continue to receive service pins in recognition of their faithful service to the company.

Get the "feel" of the road when starting out by applying your brakes gently when no other vehicles are near.

Adjust speed of vehicle to weather and road conditions. Be especially careful at school zones, intersections, crossings, curves and bridges.

For severe snow and ice conditions, use tire chains. Even with "winterized" tire chains are needed when streets are especially slippery, because only steel chains bite into hard-packed snow or ice to cut stopping distances nearly in half and enable traffic to move up hills or in fairly deep snow.

Be sure your windshield wiper blades clean without dangerous smear, and that defrosters are working.

Be sure your lights are properly aimed. Never drive so fast that you can't stop within the distance you can see.

Keep your brakes equalized. Uneven brakes cause skids.

Fossaner, Division Chairman. The Suburban Division is composed of all suburbs including Belleville.

We are privileged in honoring a man who has been a part of the American scene in tradition of positive service and a remarkable knowledge of international affairs, as well as having the same experience and foresight as a Jewish leader interested in the welfare of Israel as a thriving and important young democracy."

The Meeting Place

The Man Who Ran Away

Everybody in town said he was crazy for doing it. I met him one evening last year at a doctor friend's house. Arnold is what you might call our town's Big Man—he is, or was, executive vice president of a manufacturing firm. He had built the company up from a two-bit machine shop to a leader in its field. He was only 47 then, and it was only a matter of time before he became president. He was making, so my doctor friend told me, 25 thousand dollars a year.

For this town, that's big. So is it big for any other town. He lived in a large comfortable house on a hill overlooking the river. He had two cars, a chauffeur, a maid, a gardener, and lots of ground that the gardener worked for him. People around here used to take their company past his place to show them the Arnold gardens. Sometimes, on a Sunday afternoon, they might see a tall, slim man who looked tired, walking slowly among the flowers. That was Arnold.

Well, one day he didn't show up at the plant. The next day, when they didn't hear from him, the people at the plant began to worry. They called his home and were told that the phone had been disconnected. They were about to send someone out to check when a telegram came from him, sent from a small town in New England.

"HAVE SIMPSON COME UP HERE. WILL MEET TRAIN AT STATION."

Simpson was Arnold's right hand man at the plant. He went and came back two days later with a story no one could believe. But he figured, who am I to question the actions of my executive vice president?

"The vacation won't end," Arnold said. They were sitting on the porch of the neat white house, looking out across a stretch of valley and purple mountains.

Simpson grinned dubiously. "What kind of a gag is this?"

"I'm serious," Arnold said. "I'm not going back. I'm through working. I'm spending the rest of my life right here."

Simpson checked a little but said nothing. When he recovered, Arnold told him the story. "I'm 47, which means I have 20 or 25 years to go." One day as he was cashing his pay check (and a nice fat one it was) he asked himself where he was going. When he didn't find a ready answer, he sat down to think about it. He was a successful big job, good salary, prestige, security. But he—day inside where the real person was —wasn't satisfied.

"I've always loved growing things," he told Simpson. "You know, a garden, flowers. With my salary I could afford to own a country home with gardens and orchards. I could even afford to hire people to do the work for me. But what I didn't have was the most important element—the time to enjoy it all by doing the work myself."

What good is money, he asked himself, if I don't have the time to take pleasure in the things it can buy?

"Well, I did some figuring. I had money in the bank, plus some stocks and government bonds. I added it all up and divided it by the number of years Martha and I expect to live, plus a few in case we fooled everybody by hanging on. The result settled it. We wouldn't be rich, but there would be enough to keep us alive. If we owned only one car instead of two, if I drove it myself, if we used a part-time maid instead of a full-time, we could live in comfort the rest of our lives."

He paused to recharge his pipe. "So here I am — Martha, me, a cow, a cat that came with the house. I've ordered some chickens and some bees. Next time you come up you'll see a successful businessman. I've given up a lot, but I'm getting infinitely more. Actually, all I'm giving up is money, in exchange for release from the tensions of contracts, production, inventory, prices. For the first time in my life I think I'm starting to live."

He stood up. "Now, Simpson, if you'll excuse me, I have a cow to milk. Don't do it very well yet — sometimes the cow swats me with her tail when I pull too hard, but I'll get there."

With that he turned off the porch and headed for his barn. Simpson headed for the station, feeling a little dazed. Two days later the president of the company paid a call. When he left, he was a little dazed. When the people in town heard about it, they were dazed. Everybody was dazed, except Arnold. They called him crazy still do and probably always will. Maybe he is. I wouldn't know.

But I wonder. Sometimes I have a funny feeling that he's the sanest man I ever heard of. And the happiest.
